Voter turnout is light :

Jones, Forgy are top choices

Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler made a surprising, early exit from the Democratic race for Governor Tuesday, conceding the battle to Lt. Governor Brereton Jones before 9 p.m. with just a little more than 65 percent of the state's precincts counted.

Baesler, who had run within a few percentage points of Jones in the early going Tuesday, acknowledged defeat ahead of Dr. Floyd Poore, who ran a distant third to Jones.

With 89 percent of the state's Democratic votes counted Tuesday, Jones had captured 37.7 percent to Baesler's 30.8 percent. Poore was third with 21 percent of the Democratic vote while pro-marijuana candidate Gatewood Galbraith had 5.4 percent.

On the Republican side of the gubernatorial ledger, the race remained too close to call with 95 percent of the state's precincts reporting. In that race, Congressman Larry Hopkins held a slim lead over Lexington attorney Larry Forgy. Hopkins had 79,410 votes to Forgy's 75,491.

In Floyd County, depending on which party you counted, the voter turnout Tuesday ranged from dismal to depressing. Using the gubernatorial race as a measuring stick, only 34 percent of Floyd County's 25,547 registered Democrats cast votes Tuesday. The turnout was poorer on the GOP side, where 28.5 percent of the county's 1,946 registered Republicans voted.

On the Democratic side of the governor's race,

Brereton Jones captured Floyd County's favor, winning the county with 4,858 votes. Dr. Floyd Poore took second with 1,764 votes and Scotty Baesler finished third with 1,324.

Gatewood Galbraith got 545 votes in Floyd County while non-candidate Martha Wilkinson drew several ballots.

On the Republican side of the race, Floyd County voters gave the nod to Larry Forgy. Forgy picked up 337 votes to Larry Hopkins' 226.

Statewide results are closer :

Patton win is lopsided

Despite a relatively low voter turnout, a lopsided plurality in Eastern Kentucky helped propel Pike County Judge Executive Paul Patton to the Democratic nomination for Lt. Governor Tuesday, avenging Patton's loss in the same race four years ago.

With 86 percent of Kentucky's precincts reporting Tuesday, Patton maintained a 10 point lead over his nearest challenger, Attorney General Fred Cowan. The Republican side of the race for Lt. Governor appeared much closer, with Hazard businessman Eugene Goss holding a slim, three point lead over Lawson Walker, a state representative from Northern Kentucky.

Patton, who lost his first statewide race in 1987 to Brereton Jones, was catapulted into the Democratic nomination for Lt. Governor by decisive margins in Eastern Kentucky counties.

In Pike County, his home territory, Patton breezed to a 7 to 1 margin over Cowan, his nearest competitor, grabbing 7,197 votes to Cowan's 1,193.

In Floyd County, Patton also won handily, outdistancing Cowan by 5,194 votes.

Patton carried all but one of Floyd

County's 44 precincts, losing the Bosco vote to Cowan and Steve Collins. In that precinct, Patton got six votes while Cowan and Collins picked up 21 each.

Patton got a total of 6,100 votes in Floyd County. Second place on the Democrat side in the Lt. Governor's race went to Cowan, with 906 votes and third went to Collins with 648 votes. Finishing a distant fourth was Pete Worthington, with 191 votes, followed by Judge Ray Corns, with 186; Bobby Richardson, with 91; and John Frith Stewart, with 78 votes.

On the Republican side of the ballot for Lt. Governor, Eugene Goss was an easy winner, picking up 312 votes, winning 37 of the county's 44 precincts.

Second place in the GOP race went to Lawson Walker, who narrowly, edged third-place finisher Tommy Klein by a vote of 89 to 81.

Patton and Goss, both Eastern Kentuckians, will meet in the General Election in November.

The first precinct to report in for Floyd County Tuesday was Court-house, at 6:15 p.m., and the last in was Melvin, at 7:45 p.m.

911 moves to phase two

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

Preparation for a 911 emergency telephone service is moving into its second phase, bringing 911 closer to becoming a reality for Floyd County.

In February of 1990, the Floyd County Fiscal Court entered into an agreement with South Central Bell and Harold Telephone to provide 911 service to the county. The first phase was to map and name roads within the county.

The Fiscal Court contracted with Big Sandy Area Development District, at a rate of $15,120, for this service and the second and third phases, which involve numbering houses and developing a computer data base.

The first phase took approximately two months to complete, according to Dan Cooley, 911 program coordinator. With the help of the magistrates and a team of people traveling the roads of Floyd County, 50-60 roads were discovered that were not named and another 30 were not even on a map.

The second phase is scheduled to begin on June 10 with the help of the U.S. Postal Service. A team will be sent out to measure distances between houses and to number the homes on a road. Residents will be notified of their house numbers and will be able to utilize the addresses when the post office gives official notification. This should take Big Sandy ADD about one month to complete, Cooley said, and services are expected to be operational within a year.

Several delays in the operation have been encountered over the past (See 911, page two)

Feds indict Charles for defrauding banks

A Boyd County man and woman were indicted by a federal grand jury, sitting in Ashland recently, for allegedly scheming to defraud The Bank Josephine of Prestonsburg and Catlettsburg Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The indictment charges William Eric Charles, 36, with conducting schemes to defraud the two federally insured banks of over $2.5 million in loan money during 1990, according to Louis DeFalaise, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky. Charles is president of WEC Coal Sales Incorporated, a coal brokerage firm.

Jill Lewis, also of Boyd County, is a secretary at WEC Coal Sales' Boyd Office and has been charged with assisting Charles in the scheme to defraud The Bank Josephine.

According to the indictment, the scheme to defraud The Bank Josephine involved sending false and forged coal sales documents to the bank. The bank had a standing arrangement with WEC Coal Sales to advance loan money to WEC based on amounts due the corporation for sales of coal.

The false sales documents inflated amounts due WEC causing the bank to loan additional money to WEC. The indictment alleges that the false documents resulted in over $1 million in loans.

According to the indictment, the scheme to defraud Catlettsburg Federal Savings and Loan Association involved improperly using the same certificates of deposit as collateral on five separate loans. Charles allegedly obtained five loans from Catletts-

Police "harvest" pot, suspects are cited

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Two Floyd County men were arrested over the weekend in two separate incidents involving marijuana.

Colonel Lewis Bolen of David was arrested by sheriff's deputies Saturday morning after officers confiscated 40 marijuana plants at his home. Bolen was charged with cultivating marijuana, more than five plants, a class D felony, said deputy Ricky Thornsberry.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, with assistance from the Kentucky State Police, had been investigating Bolen for several months, said deputy Chuck Hall.

In an unrelated incident, the sheriff's department also confiscated four marijuana plants Saturday afternoon near a residence on the old Bosco Road near Hueysville. No arrests have been made.

In another incident, Prestonsburg city police arrested David DeRossett, 33, of Martin Friday and charged him with trafficking in marijuana within 1,000 yards of a school and carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Police chief Greg Hall said DeRossett was arrested after officers witnessed DeRossett transferring marijuana to an individual at Prestonsburg Community College. Hall said officers searched DeRossett's vehicle and found a half an ounce of marijuana and a weapon. The incident is still under investigation by Detective Sergeant Jeff Stumbo.

In a separate investigation Saturday evening, city police officers confiscated eight marijuana plants at an undisclosed location in the city. The plants were approximately 20 inches tall.

No arrests have been made in the case.

Flood projects pass first hurdle

A $300,000 flood control project for Right and Left Beaver passed a major hurdle in Congress last week when the Appropriations Committee approved a $14 million flood control package.

In addition, the committee approved $7.5 million for the Army Corps of Engineers to maintain the Dewey Lake, Paintsville Lake, Yatesville Lake, Cave Run Lake, Carr Fork Lake, Grayson Lake, Buckhorn Lake and dredging at the mouth of the Big Sandy River.

The flood control projects include:
• $300,000 to continue the design of the Beaver Creek flood project;

year, Cooley said.

"Some volunteer firefighters are fighting it and they don't even know what they are fighting, and we don't know why they are fighting it, because it will be such a big help to this county," Cooley said.

A public meeting was scheduled last Friday with the emergency units in the county to discuss and explain the operation, but was canceled due to lack of concrete information on the dispatch system, according to Judge Executive John M. Stumbo.

Several fire departments have expressed concerns about their area's ISO rating should the dispatch method retransmit the initial alarm. A retransmission is when the 911 dispatcher receives a call and then calls the fire department's dispatcher who then calls the firefighters.

According to John Clark, an ISO evaluator, a retransmission of the initial alarm would cost the department one point out of a possible 100 points within the ISO rating scheme.

"Unless you are right between classes, one point will not hurt you," Clark said. There are 10 ISO classes available, consisting of 10 credits each. ISO ratings are used to determine fire insurance rates for individual homeowners. The lower the rating, the lower the rates are for insurance premiums.

The fire suppression rating schedule evaluates three areas: fire alarm system, the fire department and the water system. The fire alarm system is worth just 10 points if all credits are earned. Three points of the 10 are alarm receipt. The other credits include the method of transmittal, the number of operators, the number of circuits and an alternate power source for the telephone.

"Even if one point is lost through retransmission, it could be made up, within another part of the rating scheme, by having the 911," Clark said.

Clark said the ideal way to dispatch through 911 is to have the 911 operator dispatch directly, without going through a second operator, or, to be able to hand off the call electronically, so the caller can talk directly to the fire department dispatcher.

"This second method is done in a lot of places and works fine," Clark said.

In order to establish the 911 system within the county, which is really an "enhanced 911" including an instantaneous trace and computer print-out on all calls, the county placed an 89 cent charge on all phone customers within the county. This charge has amounted, to date, to $160,726 in an interest bearing account designated solely for 911, according to county treasurer, David Allen.

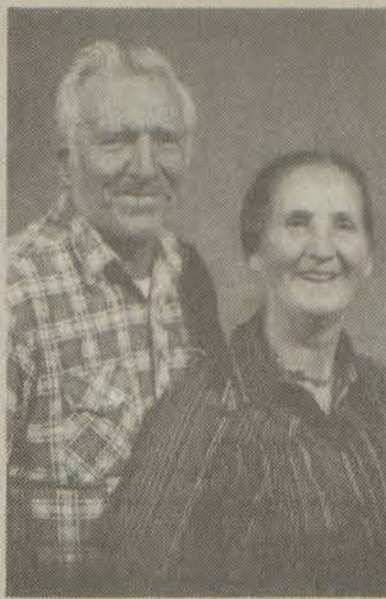

All revenues from a tax or fee expressly levied to fund 911 emergency services must be expended solely for this purpose, according to KRS 65.760.

South Central Bell's pricing forecast quotes the installation of the equipment and lines at a one time charge of $58,123. Harold Telephone Company's costs for installation and data base creation are $17,950. There is a monthly charge of $4,455 from South Central Bell for service and leasing of equipment. An additional monthly cost would be incurred by the county for dispatchers' salaries and possibly office space rental.

Floyd County residents would continually be charged on their monthly bill for the service, but the price per month could change. Presently, Johnson County charges their phone customers 98 cents per month, and Pike County is looking at charging 58 cents per month if the service is city-wide or 93 cents per month if county-wide.

The location of the central dispatch office and the method of dispatch are still being discussed between county and city officials. A second meeting for emergency unit personnel is being scheduled and will be announced at a later date.

burg Federal within seven days. The loans totaled over $1.5 million.

Each loan allegedly would be paid off by Charles with a check upon which he would stop payment. Before the bank would find out that payment had been stopped, Charles allegedly would take out additional loans. The indictment states that Charles stopped payment on the checks to circumvent Catlettsburg Federal's requirement that such loans be fully collateralized by deposits.

The indictment includes two counts of violating 18 USC section 1344, executing a scheme to defraud a federally insured bank, and 28 counts of violating 18 USC section 1014, making false statements to banks in connection with loans.

Each of the 30 charges carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and/or a $1 million fine. The indictment resulted from an investigation conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Prosecution of the case will be handled by Assistant U.S. Attorney David P. Grise.

Indictments are not an indication of guilt, but a determination by a grand jury that charges merit further court action.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

We've taken great pains to bring you this column this week.

Actually, we've taken large doses of pain-killers to bring you this column this week.

For one who considers a dozen trips to the office coffee pot equal to the minimum daily requirements for physical exercise, Memorial weekend is no holiday.

Nope, it's the occasion for the annual "reunion" volleyball match, that once-a-year event when friends of all ages gather for fun in the sun. Of course when the sun beams down at 100 degrees plus, the "fun" becomes a matter of opinion.

Anyway, we survived this year's games with the complimentary number of stoved-up fingers and aching muscles and with bragging rights for having been undefeated in four matches. The wins were so easy, in fact, that the tournament committee is considering a change in the format for next year to require the use of a net.

Now that's carrying things a bit too far.

Next thing you know they'll ban the lawn chairs and expect us to run, jump and (gasp) sweat.

Good grief. What's the world coming too?

A proposal that would create a second judicial circuit for Floyd County seems to be a reasonable approach to resolving backlogs on both criminal and civil dockets, but it isn't the only step needed.

Grand juries meet only twice a year in Floyd County and that's a problem in itself. It is not uncommon, for example, for a grand jury to issue 100 or more indictments at one time, creating an immediate flood on court dockets and a burden on all the players in criminal proceedings, including the judge, the defense and prosecuting attorneys, the jurors and the defendant.

A person charged with a crime in early July may not be indicted before late December and a trial could come months or, as we have seen in some cases, years later.

Grand juries which meet quarterly, four times a year, could ease the flood and a second circuit judge could stop it all together.

Makes sense to us.

Don't know what the world is coming too, but we're coming to an important milestone this weekend when we commemorate the passing of 20 years since the passing out of our high school diploma.

Things sure have changed since our school days.

Kids sport "burr" haircuts, listen to popular musicians like Paul McCartney, Michael Jackson, the Rolling Stones and Tina Turner, ride around in cars with the radios blaring and complain about having absolutely nothing to do.

Yep, things sure have changed in the past 20 years.

Let's put an end to the most pressing debate to strike these parts in the past seventeen years.

Are these bugs cicadas or locusts?

The answer: both.

While the dictionary notes specific physical differences between a cicada ("a large flylike insect with transparent wings") and a locust ("a migratory grasshopper that often travels in great swarms") there is a third entry defining the critter most likely to smash into your windshield at this particular point in time.

It is (drum roll please) a seventeen-year locust ("a cicada which lives underground as a larva before emerging as an adult to live a brief period").

And the truth shall set you free.

Celebrating America

This past Memorial Day, we paid tribute to all of our veterans of foreign wars and their families who endured the hardships of having loved ones abroad. On the eighth of June, we, as Americans, will honor our soldiers that fought so bravely in the Persian Gulf.

The Capital's national victory celebration will feature everything from a ceremonial wreath dedication by President Bush to a picnic for the soldiers and their families. A main attraction will be the USO show featuring three nationally acclaimed performers and a 45-minute fireworks display on the Mall.

The highlight of the occasion will be a streamer ceremony and a victory parade paying tribute to the troops. It will feature over 10,000 units, representing all branches of the military. The Capital has never before hosted, nor has the country ever witnessed, such an event. This is history.

So, if you have the opportunity, take part in this wonderful tribute. Kentuckians will be well represented in the event and their families should be proud.

Even Kentuckians that cannot attend will certainly be able to witness media coverage and get a sense of the spirit of the celebration.

Our troops and their families deserve all the recognition, support and honors this nation can bestow on them.

If the 213 high school students from 30 Tri-State area schools who recently traveled to Washington, D.C., to participate in the Close Up Foundation government studies program are indicative of the entire student community, then I would like to report that our future is in good hands.

For a full week, the students had the opportunity to visit Washington and develop a better understanding of our democratic process. While here, they saw Congressional proceedings and questioned journalists and government experts as they shared their views with students from other areas of the country.

They returned home with a deeper awareness of their responsibilities as citizens and the realization that a single individual can make a difference. Their enthusiasm for involvement in the democratic process is to be admired.

The Close Up experience was made possible only through the strong support of parents, teachers and schools. Also, various companies and organizations helped make Close Up fellowships available to students in financial need. These sponsors include: Bell Atlantic Charitable Corporation; Burger King Foundation; Martha Holden Jennings Foundation and MAPCO Inc.

It was exciting for all of us at the Close Up Foundation to be able to work with these young people.

It's hospitals like Our Lady of the Way that help educate the public about organ donation, creating an awareness about organ donation that did not exist before. Currently, 22,000 people are awaiting an organ transplant—156 of them reside here in Kentucky. A new name is added to the national list every 30 seconds. ## Report to Kentucky

Senator Wendell Ford

Proposed cut in reserve forces needs to be reconsidered

I am extremely concerned about a current Department of Defense plan to eliminate more than one-third of our National Guard and Reserve structure and a large number of armories around the country.

In my opinion such a dramatic reduction would be counterproductive and unwise, especially in light of the reserve's tremendously successful performance in Operation Desert Shield/Storm.

As Co-Chairman of the Senate National Guard Caucus, I recently initiated a letter to Defense Secretary Richard Cheney—signed by 54 senators—questioning the wisdom of this force structure reduction.

Our concern centers around three aspects of the Department's plan:

First, the proposal from the Pentagon initiates a significant drawdown of Army National Guard and Reserve forces.

Secondly, the reduction is at an even greater rate than reductions that would take place within the active Army.

Finally, we believe the cuts represent a continuation of the trend away from this country's basic military philosophy and the historical precedent of a small standing army and reliance on the "militia."

Within the first few hours of Operation Desert Shield, over 10,000 Guard and reservists volunteered to support their active duty counterparts in the Gulf. A total of over 72,000 reserves—more than 1,000 from Kentucky—were ultimately called on to perform a variety of missions including operating MASH units, aerial refueling and maintenance. And in the case of Kentucky's own 623rd Artillery Brigade, Guard members were called into combat situations.

Other Voices

by Don Harker and Liz Natter, project co-directors

A fundamental aim of the Kentucky Local Governance Project is to create a vision from the people of how democratic government should work. Many of us have little experience in "doing democracy" in Kentucky because our schools, homes and workplace are not democratic. Few of us participate in local government. But if we do not decide how democracy is going to work, and make sure it does work, who will?

We know there are elections from time to time for people who are supposed to be conducting the public's business. Roads get built and water lines get laid. There's a sheriff and police around. But is government working the way it should? Is it truly a government of, for, and by all the people?

More and more Kentuckians are concluding that people need to be involved in the day-to-day political decision-making that goes at the local level. John Galvin, a resident of Hardin County, put it this way: "There ought to be some way that government is seen as something we do besides election day... Election day is just the very beginning; it's not the end."

"Right now most people touch government only on election day," he said. "Most people never go to a fiscal court meeting, never attend a planning and zoning hearing... (but) fiscal court is where decisions are made every day, every week."

Some people think that a highly technocratic republic is best, where the specialists in every walk of life tell the rest of the people what to do. Others of us simply do not want to be bothered or to get involved in local government. Some officials would prefer not to have citizens involved in government. They say it would take forever to make decisions if they had to listen to every citizen's opinion about any matter. Some of them want to make decisions they know the public would not approve if given the chance to do so.

Task force issues emergency proposals on domestic violence

Twenty-four hour protection for victims and a statewide computer system giving police immediate information about domestic violence court orders are among ten emergency recommendations issued by the Task Force on Domestic Violence Crime formed by Kentucky Attorney General Fred Cowan.

"With 11,000 reported cases in Kentucky last year, domestic violence is a crime and a tragedy that cries out for immediate solutions," Cowan says. "These are recommendations we believe can and should be implemented quickly, without enacting new laws."

The ten recommendations are designed to immediately change the way prosecutors, judges and others in the criminal justice system respond to cases of domestic violence.

To afford quick and maximum protection against violence, the Task Force strongly urges that victims have 24-hour access to the court system. Judges, prosecutors and law enforcement officials should all have written procedures for round-the-clock access to victims can obtain warrants and protective orders. There should also be prompt and consistent enforcement of protective orders.

A 24-hour, immediate source of information about protective orders would be available to police throughout Kentucky under another of the emergency proposals. The Law Information Network of Kentucky, or LINK, which is already in existence, will have a domestic violence file as soon as July 1, according to Major Neil Brittain of the Kentucky State Police.

Carroll County District Judge Stan Billingsley, who co-chairs the Task Force, says that details of the emergency recommendations will immediately be sent to law enforcement, social services agencies and others to speed implementation. The new proposals will also be placed on the agenda of scheduled training sessions for Kentucky's prosecutors and circuit and district judges.

In addition, Cowan says that a statewide domestic violence survey, currently being conducted, will be repeated a year from now. The survey will provide a gauge for measuring the effectiveness of the implementation and effectiveness of the emergency recommendations. Cowan says that his Victims Advocacy Division will also monitor the recommendations and provide technical assistance to help with their implementation.

A final report is scheduled to be issued by the Task Force this summer. It will contain long-range recommendations including those dealing with improved training and accountability, as well as proposals for new laws dealing with domestic violence for the 1992 Kentucky General Assembly to consider.

Floyd Schools to receive funds for energy study

Floyd County School District is one of three Kentucky school districts selected to receive funding for both Technical Assistance Studies and Energy Conservation Measures.

Floyd will receive $4,130 for a Technical Assistance Study of one building and $161,923 for Energy Conservation Measures in 15 buildings. The district's cost is $30,469. The total cost for all projects is $196,522.

The program is administered by Kentucky's Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Energy.

Flood

- $160,000 to continue the study to solve Jackson's flooding problems;
- $300,000 for pre-construction engineering and design of the Hazard flood control project;
- $8,070,000 for construction of South Williamson's flood proofing and floodwall construction;
- $600,000 for continuation of the Salyersville cut-through project;
- $3.5 million to finish the Yatesville Lake; and
- $300,000 to dredge a stretch of the Ohio River for the city of Ashland's Riverfront development.

The committee also allotted $170 million to the Appalachian Regional Commission and $400,000 to explore the economic potential of expanding recreational activities on existing reservoirs along the Levis Fork of the Big Sandy River, the Little Sandy River, the Upper Licking River and the Kentucky River's North Fork.

The funding projects, part of the overall energy and water development appropriations bill, now go to the House floor for consideration and a vote.

June wedding is planned

Yonts/Branham

A June wedding is planned to unite Stacy Lynn Yonts and Douglas Glenville Branham. Stacy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Yonts of Halo. She is a senior at Wheelwright High School where she is captain of the majorette squad, a member of the Wheelwright Marching Band, Future Homemakers of America, Future Business Leaders of America and Students Against Drunk Drivers.

Douglas is the son of Carrie Alice Branham of Bypro and Greenville Edward Branham of Prestonsburg. He is an emergency medical technician and the owner of Lifeline Ambulance Service at Bypro. He is a 1988 graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

The wedding will take place at 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 29, at the Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church in Prestonsburg. Following a honeymoon in the Carolinas, the couple will reside in Bypro.

To wed

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Honeycutt, of Middlesboro, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Kristi Ann, to Scott Anthony Tackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tackett, of Banner. She is a 1987 graduate of Middlesboro High School and a 1991 graduate of Alice Lloyd College. Tackett is a 1986 graduate of Betsy Layne High School, a 1990 graduate of Alice Lloyd College and is currently employed by the Floyd County school system. The couple will exchange vows Saturday, June 15, at 2:30 p.m. at the West Cumberland Avenue Baptist Church in Middlesboro. Pastor Joe Codey will perform the ceremony. A reception will be held in the fellowship hall of the church. The custom of an open wedding will be observed.

Gospel sing scheduled

An afternoon of gospel music by local groups is scheduled for Saturday, June 8, from noon-8:30 p.m. at the Pleasant Home ball field on Rt. 3, Watergap Road, one mile west of the Dewey Lake Entrance. Performers scheduled to appear include Jackie Dobson and Becky Watts, Heartpeace, Gospel Light, Spiritual Voices, the Maytown Baptist Singers, Ron Wright, the Maytown Methodist Quintet, Revelation, the Daniels family, Randy and Denise Porter and more.

Grant to boost Floyd county child support collections

The state of Kentucky will again help local prosecutors and court designated agents with their personnel needs in order to increase the pressure on parents delinquent in their child support.

Grants totaling $500,000 have been approved by the Department for Social Insurance Division of Child Support Enforcement to 79 county attorneys, Commonwealth's attorneys and friends-of-the-court for continued staff support to work on overdue child support cases in 93 counties. Floyd County received an allocation of $29,120.

Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson said, "This is the third year that the state has turned over a portion of its Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) collections to the local officers of the court in recognition of their work and their needs for staff to track these cases."

Together, state Child Support Enforcement staff and local prosecutors collected over $66 million in fiscal year 1990. Projections for the current fiscal year ending June 30 forecast a record collection of nearly $75 million.

"Parents have a responsibility to see that their children are fed, clothed and provided shelter," said Robinson. "When parents shirk that responsibility, the state has to step in to see that they get back on track.

"We know that, in order to be most effective in collecting on delinquent cases, collaboration between the state and local prosecutors is vital," he said.

Local prosecutors who handle child support collections receive federal reimbursement for approximately two-thirds of their child support-related expenditures. These contracts will be covered by the same reimbursement formula.

Currently, there are about 214,000 child support cases on file with the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Heather needs special family

Heather

These big, pretty brown eyes are those of Heather. Heather is three years old (born Nov. 11, 1987). She was born with congenital pneumonia. She was diagnosed failure to thrive and developed bacterial meningitis at four months. As a result, Heather has suffered acute neurological damage. It appears that Heather will always be dependent on her caretakers to meet her daily needs.

Heather functions best when her schedule is routine. Unexplained or sudden change is hard for her to handle. She takes medication to prevent seizure activity. She is susceptible to colds and influenza. She has her shunt checked on a semi-annual basis. She does not walk and is dependent on her wheelchair. She enjoys lying on a blanket.

Heather eats very slowly and must be fed pureed foods. She especially likes banana pudding and vanilla custard. It takes up to an hour for her to eat meals. She has no speech at this point. She is in speech therapy, however. She also has physical therapy.

Heather is a happy child and a good sleeper. For more information about Heather or about other children in the Special Needs Adoption Program please call 1-800-432-9346 or contact the Department for Social Services at 606-886-8192.

15th Regional Final...

Pikeville Captures Regional Title Over Prestonsburg

Back!

The Pikeville Panthers will be going to Boyd County to play in the Sectional High School Baseball Tournament and the right to go on to the state finals in Lexington next week. The opportunity came for the Panthers as a result of a 6-2 win over the Blackcats of Prestonsburg in the finals of the 15th regional tournament at Pikeville Friday night at the W.C. Hambly Athletic Complex.

What it all came down to in the final game was pitching. What team had the deepest pitching staff? Pikeville's Bobby Casto, considered one of the region's best, hurled a complete game against the Blackcats in picking up the complete game victory. Prestonsburg had used the ace of their staff — John Clark — in the first two games of the tournament and Coach Russell Shepherd went with Chris Cavins in the championship game. Cavins hadn't pitched in over three weeks for the Blackcats.

Casto had things going his way during the course of the game. He scattered four Prestonsburg hits. He only fanned four batters but had the Blackcats hitting the ball on the ground. It seemed Prestonsburg was having a hard time in getting the ball past the pitcher's mound. Seven batters bounced out back to the pitcher's box — one batter in the second and seventh innings, and two batters in each of the first and fifth innings. There were 13 outs on ground balls to the infield plus one pop out to first. Only three outs were recorded by the outfield. So, the stats show the Pikeville infield was busy in the championship game. Panther first baseman Jason Howell had 13 put outs in the game.

With Prestonsburg unable to get past base runners on the base paths, the four runs that Pikeville scored in the third inning off Cavins made it tough on the Blackcats to come back.

Cavins plunked lead off batter Lee Jones with a pitch after retiring Nathan Elswick, leading off the third inning. Jess Baird, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, worked Cavins for a walk. Jones scored on a base hit by Matt Adkins to tie the game at 2-2. After J.P. Blair flied out to right field, Pikeville took a 3-2 lead on a run producing single by Howell. Adkins scored on a wild pitch by Cavins, and also some confusion on the covering of home plate. All runners moved up on the wild toss to the plate and Howell trotted home with the fourth run of the inning when Casto singled sharply to right center. The four runs gave Pikeville a 5-2 lead.

The Panthers pushed across their sixth run in the sixth inning when Casto, who lead with a base hit, came home on Elswick's RBI double.

Prestonsburg had taken a first inning 1-0 without the benefit of a base hit. Heads up base running by John Clark led to the Blackcat score. Clark led off the game when he walked on a 3-2 pitch after fouling several of Casto's pitches off. Clark stole second and Anthony Howell sacrificed him to third. Sean Damron picked up an RBI when he grounded back to Casto in the pitcher's box.

Clark came down the third base line and when Casto tossed the ball to first, Clark came in to score on the heads up play.

Pikeville tied the game in the first at 1-1 on a lead off base hit by Lee Jones. Baird and Adkins went out on ground outs for two outs but Jones scored on Blair's two-out base hit.

The Blackcats made it 2-1 in the third inning. With two out, Clark singled and went to second on an errant throw by Casto. Clark scored on Howell's base hit. Howell had two hits in the game. After Howell's base hit, Casto retired the next eight men he faced until Howell got his second hit for Prestonsburg in the sixth inning. Casto retired 13 of the last 15 batters he faced after the third inning. Jason Crisp had a two-out double in the seventh inning for Prestonsburg.

Casto, in getting the win, fanned four batters while walking but one — a lead off walk to Clark in the first. He allowed two runs, both earned.

Cavins was the losing pitcher, yielding five runs in two and two-third innings of work. Cavins walked one batter while hitting one.

Ronnie Goodman came in for Cavins in the third and pitched two strong innings of relief. Goodman retired seven of the eight batters he faced, allowing no runs on one hit. He walked no one and retired the side in order in the fifth inning.

Mark Bentley pitched a good sixth for Prestonsburg. He fanned one batter and allowed one run on two hits. He had no walks.

Prestonsburg left three runners on base while Pikeville stranded four. The Blackcats committed one error — their only error in the tournament — and Pikeville was guilty of one miscue.

Prestonsburg ends their season with a 24-14 record.

15th Region Overview :

Good Defense, Timely Hitting, Large Crowds Highlight Regional Play

The 15th Region High School Baseball Tournament, just completed at the W.C. Hambly Athletic Complex in Pikeville, will always be remembered for the excellent defense that was shown during the entire tournament. Timely hitting by some ball clubs either kept them in the game or helped them to pull out a victory. The tournament was well attended as each night saw the stands almost filled to capacity. It speaks well for the growing popularity of high school baseball in our region.

The concession stand workers did just that, worked, as they were constantly kept busy with orders for their hot dogs, hamburgers and polish sausage smothered with fried green peppers and onions being cooked on the outdoor grills.

The rains stayed away, even though a couple of nights looked threatening. In all, it was an excellent tournament. Here was a big surprise at the tournament. No one wanted to beat up the umpires! I have to say this about the officials at this regional tournament. It was the best umpiring crew I have seen yet in high school baseball. They did an outstanding job of handling the tournament each night. Enough cannot be said of this crew. I want to give Dale Conn, David Maynard, Andrew Joyce and Roy Bogar a "tip of the hat" for an excellent job. And, I am not the only one that feels that way. Many comments in the stands and around the field were heard about the outstanding job these four men did. There was little, if any, heckling from the stands.

It was an exciting tournament. Defending champion Paintsville along with Pikeville, came into the eight team tournament as favorites to capture it all. Paintsville has always been one of the top teams, not only in district and regional play, but across the state as well. Coach Charlie Adkins may not have been as strong this year as he was last year when he won all the "marbles", but he has some very young players coming into the program and with his knowledge of the game, look for the Tigers to be right back in it next season. Eighth grader, Don Montgomery, was very impressive in the first game for the Tigers against Millard. Brad Tiller, a freshman, is a good defensive player as well as being able to hit the ball.

Paintsville found the Blackcats of Prestonsburg too much this year as they dropped out of competition with a 4-2 loss to Coach Russell Shepherd's team. I personally feel that Coach Shepherd is much underrated in the region as a coach. In his 20 plus years, he has consistently brought his Blackcat teams into regional competition. His ball club certainly is young. Young, but very good. Coach Shepherd and the Blackcats will definitely be the region's top choice next season in high school baseball.

Pikeville, just as predicted by many, took it all. The Panthers, under coach Dave Thomas, were just an outstanding team and I am sure they will represent the 15th Region very well in the Sectional at Boyd County this week (tournament starts tonight). Coach Thomas' team has the ingredients that a team needs to win a series of games such as the regional. Depth at the pitching spot. Priority number one for any team. Good fielding. The Panthers committed only four errors in the entire tournament. Hitting. They know what do with the base ball. We wish them the best as they travel to Boyd County.

Coach Thomas, who also served as tournament manager, was very cooperative in helping out the needs of the media. He and his excellent staff did a great job of hosting the 15th Regional tournament. I appreciate all the things they did to make it easier to cover the games.

David Mulliken was the tournament's official scorer. He made the decision on whether it was a hit or an error. A quick and correct decision was sometimes called for and he did a great job.

At the conclusion of the tournament, an All-Regional Tournament team was announced. All coaches, along with the media (newspapers and radio) voted for the 10 man team as well as the tournament's Most Valuable Player. It was not an easy task. There were so many good and deserving players. But only 10 players could be named.

Named to the All-Regional team were Prestonsburg's John Clark and Jason Crisp. Both had great tournament games. Pikeville placed J.P. Blair, Lee Jones, Todd James and Matt Adkins on the squad. James was the Panther's catcher and he never swung the bat in the tournament as the designated hitter batted for him. James is an excellent glove man behind the plate and the only one I

15th Region Semifinals :

Prestonsburg Ends Paintsville's Dream Of A Second State Title With 4-2 Victory

It had all the makings of a great game. Many fans went away saying it was the best high school game they had ever witnessed. Said one radio announcer, "in 46 years I have never seen a greater catch." That is just some of the things said to sum up the game between the Prestonsburg Blackcats and defending state champion Paintsville in Thursday's semifinal game between the two rivals.

Prestonsburg not only had beaten the state champions for the third straight time this season, but ended the Tigers' hopes of a repeat state championship season. The Tigers rolled to the state title last year. But many of last year's players had graduated and left coach Charlie Adkins to rebuild with youth. The Tigers completed their season with a 22-20 record — uncharacteristic of a Paintsville team.

For Prestonsburg coach Russell Shepherd, elation was not the word to describe how he felt after his team handed the Tigers a 4-2 loss in the semifinal game.

"I told our kids before the season started that we had to play realistic baseball in order to have a good season," said Shepherd. "It just feels good to be back in the finals of the tournament again." Prestonsburg has also been one of the most successful teams in the region. Last year the Blackcats lost to eventual state champion Paintsville in the finals of the regional tournament 19-3.

The heroics of the game had to go to Prestonsburg's Jason Crisp for his catch in centerfield off the bat of Brad Tiller with the bases loaded. Crisp made a super catch of the drive and came up with the ball showing in his glove, and the umpire signaled Tiller out to the roar of the Prestonsburg (and some not from Prestonsburg) faithful. Crisp received a standing ovation for his inning-ending catch.

"I knew the bases were loaded and I also knew I had to catch the ball," said Crisp about the catch. "I was just hoping I could get to it." If Crisp didn't make the catch, the Tigers would have scored three or more runs.

Sean Damron had the only home run in the tournament as he hammered a Morgan Cyrus pitch deep to right center. The center and right fielders converged on the drive and rolled to the wall. Damron turned up the speed as he circled the bases. Shepherd at first was waving his fleet-footed runner on around third and then suddenly put up the stop signal. Damron ran the stop sign (no citation) and headed home to beat the throw to the plate for an inside-the-park home run.

"At first, I didn't know if the ball was going to drop in, although it did look like a base hit," explained Damron of the inside-the-park home run. "At first, I thought they had caught it and then when I saw them getting up and running toward the fence, I knew they hadn't caught it."

"Coach Shepherd gave the stop sign, but I never saw it, all I saw was him waving me in," he explained.

Damron's home run came in the bottom of the fourth inning with Anthony Howell on third base. Howell had reached third on a three-base error in right field by Ray Collins, who came in the game replacing Billy Phelps, who was removed by Coach Adkins for his show of disgust for being called out on a third strike. The two-run homer tied the game at 2-2.

After the two teams played each other tough the first three innings, Paintsville looked like they were ready to make their move for a repeat of last year's regional championship game. The Tigers pushed home two runs in the top of the fourth inning. Designated hitter Todd Porter drilled a base hit to left field and went to second on an errant throw from the Prestonsburg outfield. Porter then stole second. Damron, who started for the Blackcats, walked Joe Collins on four pitches that brought a visit to the mound from Coach Shepherd. Damron then served a one-out base hit to Mike Eldridge that scored Porter. Tiller reached Damron for a base to load the bases for the Tigers.

Shepherd's second visit to the mound brought out Damron, and hard throwing John Clark came on the hill for the Blackcats. With the bases loaded for Paintsville, Clark walked the first man he faced — Jamie Hinkle — on a 3-2 pitch to send Collins home with the second run of the inning and a 2-0 Paintsville lead. Clark got Jon Holbrook to pop to short and fanned Byron Simpson who batted for Ray Collins.

Clark pitched himself into a jam in the Tigers half of the fifth as they loaded the bases on the Prestonsburg right hander. With one out, Rocky Blakenship walked but was forced at second on a grounder to second baseman Ronnie Goodman. Goodman just missed turning a double play. Clark walked Collins and Eldridge to load the bases with Tigers. Paintsville could not take advantage of the scoring opportunity when Tiller ended the threat with a fly ball to Crisp in centerfield.

Prestonsburg plated the winning run in the fifth inning when they scored twice. Jason Storey was retired leading off the fifth for Prestonsburg on a super catch by centerfielder Jamie Hinkle. Hinkle went to the ground on his belly and made a diving catch of the drive in left centerfield. Scott Stephens lifted a base hit to right field that Don Montgomery misplayed in right. Howell advanced all the way to third base. Clark then drilled a base hit to the opposite field to score Stephens. Howell sacrificed Clark to second and Damron was intentionally walked as the Cyrus elected to face Chris Cavins instead. Cavins greeted the move with a solid base hit to right center bringing Clark home with the second run of the inning for Prestonsburg.

Clark retired the Tigers in order in the sixth and fanned Collins in the seventh, with a runner on base, to end the game, the season and the dream for Paintsville.

Clark was the winning pitcher in relief. He fanned four Tiger batters and walked five as he struggled somewhat in the fifth inning. He allowed no runs on no hits.

Damron, who worked the first three and a third innings, gave up the two Tiger runs in scattering four hits. He struck out two Tiger batters while walking one. Damron was called for one walk.

Cyrus suffered the setback for the 22-20 Tigers. Cyrus struck out five and walked no one in giving up all four runs on six hits. Cyrus looked sharp in the first two innings, retiring the first six men he faced until Aaron Tucker reached on an error by Tiller at shortstop.

Prestonsburg left four runners on base while Paintsville stranded eight runners. Prestonsburg played errorless baseball and the Tigers committed three errors. Cavins picks up the game winning RBI in the fifth inning.

know that can do a cart wheel with full catchers gear on.

Others that were named to the team were Paintsville's Mike Eldridge. An outstanding ball player that has signed a letter-of-intent already. Rocky Blakenship of the Tigers' squad was named also. Paxton Wedington and Tommy Chamberlain of Johns Creek round out the 10-man squad. Perhaps the most difficult and controversial award to give out is the Most Valuable Player. I will confess to you that the one I voted for did not get it. I wish he had. He was deserved it. But Jess Baird of Pikeville won the coveted award as the tournament's Most Valuable Player. Jess pitched a super game for Pikeville in beating a good Johns Creek team to reach the finals. There were 22 players nominated for the All-Tournament team as well as Most Valuable Player. According to tournament officials, the voting was very close.

The winners and runner-up teams received a nice trophy for their participation in the tournament.

There was plenty of radio coverage of the games as stations from WSIP in Paintsville with the golden voice of Jason Blanton were on hand to cover the event. Jason does a great job at WSIP and I appreciate him for all the help he gives me. Radio stations WLSI and WDHR out of Pikeville had it all covered from the first out to the last.

I look forward to next season as I believe the action will be better and even more exciting.

GREAT FINISH FOR BRIAN WALLEN

Brian Wallen placed second in the state finals in discus throwing at Lexington Saturday with a toss of 132-feet and 11-inches. It was the highest finish for Wallen in the three years that he has made it to the state finals.

Wallen no doubt was disappointed in not placing first, but there were many young men that would have loved to place second. We are very proud of the accomplishments of Wallen this year in track and field. We will have a complete story in Friday's sports section.

BE SURE TO READ DEPARTMENT

The story on "Why Teachers Are Leaving Coaching!" in today's sports section is a must for all to read. It is an excellent article, and I am sure you will enjoy reading it. Many truths are mentioned in the writing. We are loosing many fine coaches because of the antics of players and intervention of parents. It takes a lot of dedication on the part of a teacher to take on the added responsibility of coaching an athletic event. I always appreciated "Hoss" Halbert when I went to school at Martin. You could tell he did it because he loved the game of basketball and baseball. He genuinely cared for his players. And there are others in the coaching ranks today that are that way. However, there are some that only do it for the extra pay day it brings them. Be sure to read the article.

SUMMER FUN

Now that the high school baseball season has ended, and what a great season it was, we can now turn our attention to the summer leagues around the county and we have many summer teams.

Vacation time is approaching for me and I am looking forward to the time to head down to Georgia for a few days in June. I want to get take my time off before all the All-Star teams start playing. That is another time I look forward to — All-Star tournament time.

KENTUCKY JUNIOR ALL-STARS ARE COMING

Speaking of upcoming events, the Kentucky Junior All-Stars will be coming to the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse in June. Chris Burke of Prestonsburg has been named to the team and will face a group of 15th Region junior All-Stars. In the preliminary game, a East and West All-Star team, made up of regional seniors, will meet at the fieldhouse. We will have more information and hopefully a full roster of each team later so stay tuned.

LETS NOT OVERLAP FOOTBALL AND BASKETBALL THIS SEASON

When school starts back this fall, I certainly hope the grade school football season will not be interrupted by the early start of basketball. We have lost many of our feeder schools in football and if something isn't done about it our high schools will continue to suffer. Osborne and Melvin dropped their program last year. That left Wheelwright without a feeder school. Allen Central only gets what the combined team of Duff, Martin and Maytown send to them. Betsy Layne and Stumbo continue to dress a team but how long will it last? Of course, Allen and the Adams Middle School will continue to field a team and feed into the high school here at Prestonsburg.

When the call goes out to play basketball, many who play football drop the pads for sneakers and the hardwood. Let's not let it happen this year. Let's get our grade school football programs back on track. Let's renew the county football all-star classics that many people enjoyed in previous years. This could come from the Floyd County athletic director's chair. We need to have a strong elementary football program once again.

Until Friday, good sports!

Why Are Teachers Leaving Coaching?

(by Daniel C. Cilo, principal at Indiana Area Senior High School in Pennsylvania. This article appeared in the August issue of Scholastic Coach)

The public and the press have become aware of the fact that many good teachers are deserting the coaching ranks, and they are unhappy — sometimes "mad" — about it.

Unfortunately, they are creating a mythology about it. They tend to look upon most teachers as "overpaid fat cats" who do not believe they are being adequately compensated for their coaching duties.

They fail to understand that no sane person would ever coach "just for the money." There are coaching salaries that average out to 25 cents an hour. (Former Martin coach Denzil Halbert received the whopping salary of $25 per month for coaching at Martin in 1948.)

Coaches — who usually are dedicated teachers — quit for other reasons. Problem athletes often top the list. Today's athlete, like today's student, is a product of the television generation. He (or she), is much more difficult to handle than the athlete of 10 or 20 years ago.

How can you teach young athletes the basics after they've watched our greatest athletes breaking every tenet in the book of fundamentals?

Imagine a basketball coach trying to teach passing after his players have seen Magic Johnson or "Air Jordan" or a football line coach trying to teach blocking after his players have seen a devastating blindside hit replayed on television ad nauseam?

High school athletes feel compelled to emulate or otherwise showboat after watching their pro heroes carry on like video game characters. And they often expect their coach to emulate the big name coaches who rant and rave, incite the crowds, and bait officials.

Another reason for leaving coaching is the meddlesome parent who has grandiose ideas of his or her child's ability. Where do you think kids get the idea that they must start, star, play a certain amount of minutes, and get the headlines? Usually from their parents.

We know a coach who had three different parents tell him how PROUD they were of their sons quitting the team because of their truncated playing time. Just playing and competing aren't enough for some parents. Their kids have to play a certain amount of minutes and the team has to win.

Still another reason for quitting is the acrimonious second-guessing by the "experts" in the stands and streets — all turned into gurus by television. Television has spawned countless couch potatoes who imagine they know the game and who have the temerity to challenge, criticize, cajole, and even vilify competent and caring teachers who happen to do some coaching.

These "instant experts" believe sincerely, but erroneously, that the hours spent in front of a television set are recommendation enough to coach, albeit vicariously.

What one actually sees and hears on television is a glitzy, highly professional product that is a quantum leap backward from the reality of interscholastic sports. All network sport is guilty of unrelenting pre-game hype, endless replays, graphic analysis of plays, insipid sideline comments on obvious injuries, and finally, the post game wrap up to explain everything over again.

The typical high school coach is in coaching because he/she loves teaching young people and has a strong interest in sports. He/she knows that high school sports provides a real life extension of the classroom. No simulation seminar, or scrimmage can substitute for the experience of actual competition.

Where else does a student have the opportunity of making a decision and then immediately dealing with its consequences in a game? Every coach knows that competition brings out the best in young people.

The American high school is obliged to have its teachers do the coaching. The school cannot afford to contract this critical responsibility to a non-teacher or someone who is not in the building. Any teacher who has coached, directed a play, advised a newspaper, or extended his/herself to students after school knows of the special relationship that develops between students and teacher.

That is what makes coaching so worthwhile, special and rewarding. Young people today, more than ever before, need strong and positive role models. They need to see their teachers taking an interest in them beyond the classroom.

In these harrowing times — the time of delinquency, drugs and degeneracy, with its compelling need for wholesome activity for young people — it's incredible to find the people best qualified to meet these needs, the teacher/coach, being maligned, discouraged and even excoriated.

The coaches have to be spared such calumny and vituperation. They have to be embraced and supported, not driven away. Why can't the ubiquitous booster groups do something that doesn't cost any money: support the coaches.

Wouldn't it be wiser to give their moral and vocal support to the coach than to present still another gaudy jacket or shirt to the players?

One must be fair, however. The practice of showering the players with material gifts starts long before high school. All through Pee Wee, Little League, and even junior high school, the athlete kids get used to playing in the best uniforms, using the best equipment, receiving handsome trophies, reading about themselves in the paper, having their pictures being made into bubble-gum cards, being taken to numerous camps, and seeing many professional games in person.

What can be done about all this?

Unlike Chekhov's remark after reading Tolstoy's Ann Karenina: "There are no answers, but the problems are stated beautifully," there may be a way to halt the drain of coaching talent.

The administrator can play a large role in this reconstruction. First, he/she must support the current coaches administratively. He/she cannot leave them out there on the limb of criticism. The principal, athletic director, and school board must close ranks and publicly support their coaches.

Anything less will result in a divide and conquer mentality which will quickly drive the coaches out of coaching.

All the legitimate channels of communication and complaints must be made known to everyone. In most states the principal is the titular head of the interscholastic program since he/she, more than any other person in the building or the district, has the most complete perspective of the program.

The principal must not abrogate his/her responsibility. He/she must work closely with the athletic director and others directly involved in athletics.

Secondly, the principal must look for the kind of teachers who can help the school in the classroom and beyond. The personnel is out there, but it must be sought out and recruited. The good news is that slowly but surely the quality of new teachers is improving.

There is no need to settle for less. We must not cheat our students out of a once in a lifetime experience in varsity sports, yearbook, newspaper, drama, concerts, etc.

Finally, most athletic budgets total approximately one percent of the entire district budget. Surely, in this time of rampant drug and alcohol abuse, violence, and immorality, this is money well spent. Our schools must be as aggressive in offering wholesome activities to the students.

The key to success in this challenge is the teacher as coach.

INSPECTION PERIOD

FOR THE PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Floyd County property tax roll will be opened for inspection from June 3 through June 17, 1991. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll.

This is the January 1, 1991, assessment on which state, county and school taxes for 1991 will be due about September 15, 1991.

The tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator in the county courthouse and may be inspected between the hours 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Any person who wishes to appeal a real property assessment must file a written letter or petition with the county clerk within the above period of time. This letter or petition must state the reasons for appeal, identify the property in question and state the taxpayer's estimate of actual fair cash value (KRS 133.120).

Appeals of personal property assessments shall not be made to the county board of assessment appeals. Personal property taxpayers shall be served notice under the provisions of KRS 132.450(4) and shall have the protest and appeal rights granted under the provisions of KRS 131.110.

The following steps should be taken when a taxpayer does not agree with the assessed value personal property as determined by the office of property valuation administrator.

- (1) He must list under protest (for certification) what he believes to be the fair cash value of his property.
- (2) He must file a written protest directly with the Department of Property Taxation within 30 days from the date of the notice of assessment.
- (3) This protest must be in accordance with KRS 131.110.
- (4) The final decision of the Revenue Cabinet may be appealed to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.

Martin Tigers Roll Past Martin Dodgers 22-3

In a game played in the Martin Pee Wee League, the Martin Tigers posted an easy win over the Martin Dodgers, 22-3, in defense of their league title from last year.

The Tigers batted around in the first inning as they sent 20 batters to the plate in scoring 17 runs in the first frame. Shannon Sizemore had a first inning home run for the Tigers. Brandon Sizemore reached second and scored. Later in the inning, Josh Yates and Shannon Sizemore each picked up run producing doubles for the Tigers. Brandon Sizemore also doubled in the first inning, the second time up. Carlie Ratliff and Alex Patton had home runs for the Tigers in the first inning.

In the second inning, the Dodgers scored two times to make it a 17-2 game. Brett Patton opened the inning with a double. Patton scored on Eric Swope's two-base hit. Swope came in to score the second run for the Dodgers on a base hit.

The Tigers plated five runs in the second inning to take a 22-2 lead. Amber Hutchinson doubled to lead off the inning and Josh Yates tripled her home. Yates then scored on a two-out single by Trish Hall. Carlie Ratliff got her second hit of the game, driving in Hall. Ratliff later scored the fifth run of the inning for the Tigers.

For the Dodgers in the top of the third, Jeremy Hayes scored the Dodgers third run of the game on a base hit by Patton. The game was called after three innings because of the mercy rule.

Mud Creek Peewee League Results

REDS VS PIRATES

The Mud Creek Reds scored two runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to snap a 1-1 tie and hand the Mud Creek Pirates a 3-1 loss.

Derrick Martin was the winning pitcher for the Reds while Craig Hall suffered the setback.

The Reds scored their two runs in the bottom of the fourth when Robbie Johnson walked and Leroy Adkins singled. Both Johnson and Adkins scored on a two-run double by Derrick Martin.

The Reds had taken a 1-0 first inning lead on a base hit by Adkins and Ryan Hall's RBI single. The Pirates came back in their half of the second to tie the game at 1-1 on a single by Craig Hall and an RBI double by Corey.

The win was the sixth in a row for the Reds with no losses. The Pirates fell to 1-5.

*****

TIGERS VS SMURFS

The Mud Creek Smurfs held off a late inning charge by the Mud Creek Tigers and went on to post a 4-2 win over the Tigers.

The Smurfs scored twice in the first inning and pushed across two runs in the fourth inning to take a 4-0 lead. The Tigers got a lead off single by Sheena Akers. Matthew Stone followed with a base hit, and Holly Hamilton walked to load the bases. Akers scored on T.J. Hamilton's base hit to make it a 4-1 ball game. Scotty Howell walked with the bases jammed to force home Stone to make it 4-2. The rally fell short as Martin retired the side.

The Smurfs went out in front with two runs in the first on Shawn Little's base hit. Little singled home Eric McKinney and Shannon Williams. Jonathan Tackett had a base hit in the inning but was forced out. McKinney singled and Williams doubled.

The Tigers threatened in the bottom of the first when they collected four hits but was unable to score. Shawn Hamilton, Stevie Mitchell, Josh Hamilton and Bubo Hamilton each had base hits in the inning.

In the top of the fourth for the Smurfs, Eric McKinney had a lead off double. Shannon Williams doubled but was thrown out at third. Shawn Little walked and McKinney scored on Brandon Newsome's base hit to make it a 3-0 game. Adam Hamilton's base hit made it 4-0 as Little scored.

*****

Martin Tigers Post Two Wins

George Hall and Ann Hall homered for the Martin Tigers in their 16-5 win over the Martin Colonels in the Martin Pee Wee League. George Hall also had a triple in the game.

Josh Yates tripled for the Tigers as did team mate Carl Ratliff. Ratliff had a double in the game also. Brandon Sizemore had two doubles in the win for the Tigers. Shannon Sizemore collected two two-baggers also. Trish Hall and Robert Hall had two-base hits for the winners.

For the Colonels, Mark Howard and G. Arnett and Daniel Rowe had doubles.

The Tigers edged the Martin Royals 9-4 in Pee Wee action at Martin. Adam Hutchinson hit a home run for the Tigers. George Hall tripled in the win.

Robert Hall, George Hall, Ann Hall, Trish Hall, Josh Yates, Shannon Sizemore and Amber Hutchinson each had doubles for the winning Tigers.

Chad Sammons collected a triple for the Royals and Keith Crum doubled in the loss.

Wayland Cubs Blast Paintsville Giants

The Wayland Cubs American Amateur baseball team journeyed outside of the Hindman League and faced the Paintsville Giants last week. The Cubs kept their winning streak intact with a 15-1 win over the Paintsville club. Wayland has won 53 straight regular season games over the past three years.

The Cubs scored five runs in the first inning, four in the second and six in the third to win the mercy game in four innings.

Ethan Blackburn had a third inning triple for the Cubs, picking up two runs batted in. Brandon Merrill collected two hits in the game including a first inning double. Merrill had two RBIs with the double.

Byron Patton was three-for-three in the game — all singles — and had three runs batted in. Brian Crawford also collected three hits and one RBI. Eric Casebolt, Nick Sammons and Rodney Bentley also had base hits in the game. Sammons drove in two runs with his hit.

The Cubs will return to league play this Saturday against the Hindman Reds. It will be the third and final round for league play before the tournament starts.

Mitchell, Nelson, Sammons Bat Allen Astros Victory Over Ivel

Sammy Nelson tripled, doubled and drove in four runs to team with Wesley Sammons and Billy Mitchell to lead the Allen Astros in a 12-1 win over the Ivel Reds in the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League Thursday evening at the Allen Park. Sammons had three doubles in the game, picking up three runs batted in. Mitchell went two-for-two at the plate plus a walk. Mitchell tripled in the Astros third, driving in a run.

Nelson also had a third inning triple that scored two of the Astros' five runs in the inning. Nelson doubled in the second inning picking up two RBIs. Sammons played "double or nothing" with the Reds as he banged out three two-baggers, scoring three runs. Sammons doubled in each of the first three innings. His hit in the third was a two-run double.

John Ortega was the winning pitcher, fanning nine batters and walking one.

Tommy Taulbee suffered the setback for the Reds. Taulbee fanned five batters but walked six. For the Reds, Brad Bailey was perfect at the plate with a two-for-two outing. Bailey doubled in the second inning for the Reds.

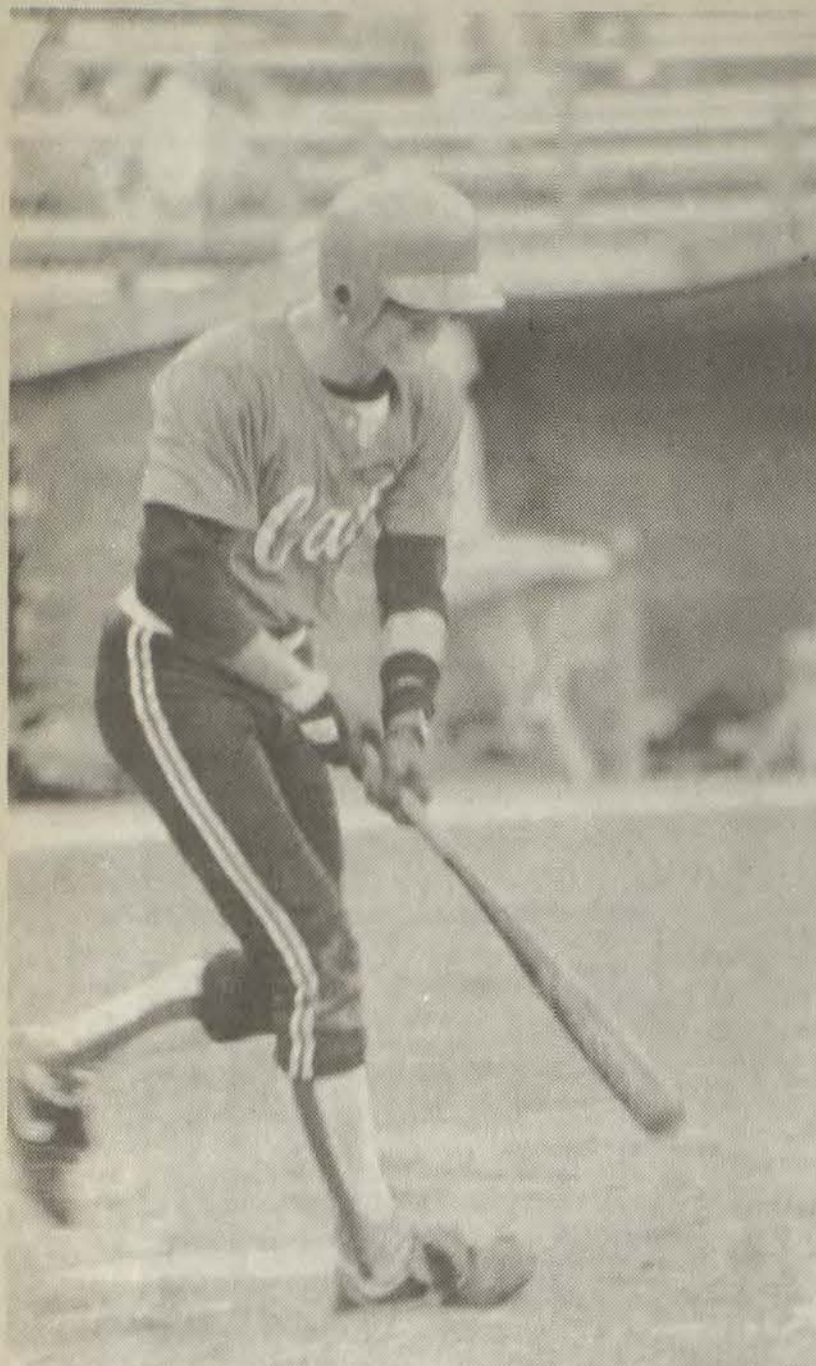

Ivel managed just three hits in the contest and committed no errors. The Astros collected eight base hits.

The win keeps the Astros in front of second place Mud Creek Cubs with a 11-1 record. The Astros' only loss came at the hands of the Cubs. The Astros will face the Prater Creek Indians tomorrow (Thursday) at the Allen Park in a 5:30 p.m. starting time.

Carl D. Perkins Softball League Results

CASTLES VS PERKINS CENTER

The Carl D. Perkins Center softball team fell to Castles from Paintsville 19-12 in the Carl D. Perkins Softball League last Thursday night. Castles pulled off a big eight-run sixth inning in handing the Center its first loss in the opening games of the regular season.

Vernal Brown hit a home run for the Center in the fourth inning.

After taking a 2-0 lead in the first inning and scoring six in the second for a 8-1 lead, Castles saw the local team score nine times in the second inning to take a 10-8 lead. Single runs in the third and fourth inning for the Perkins Center team gave them a 12-8 advantage. In the fifth inning Castles exploded for eight to go on top 16-12. Castles added three in the seventh for the final margin of 19-12.

HAPPY'S VS FIELDS

Happy's defeated Fields of Paintsville 12-1 in softball play last Thursday evening. Happy's had trouble scoring in the first two innings, but made up for the dry spell by plating eight runs in the third inning. The winners added four more runs in the fourth inning to win by the 12-1 score. Fields took a 1-0 lead in the first inning but was shut out the rest of the way.

RUDY'S VS FIELDS

Rudy's came out with hot bats in the opening round of the regular season. Rudy's handed the Fields team of Paintsville a 17-7 loss in the abbreviated four-inning game. Rudy's got two home runs in the first inning — one by Tommy Marsillett off the banks of the C&O Railroad tracks — as they scored five times and never looked back in winning their first game. Mike Conn also had a home run for Rudy's.

CASTLES VS RUDY'S

In a game played Sunday, Castles defeated Rudy's 17-5 by scoring seven runs in the third inning with the help of two home runs. The winners added seven more runs in the fourth, including their third homer of the game.

Rudy's went scoreless in the first three innings. They finally pushed across a run in the fourth and scored four times in the fifth. The game was called due to the 10-run "mercy rule."

CARL D. PERKINS CENTER VS CASTLES

It was revenge time for the Carl D. Perkins squad as they handed Castles a 16-11 loss, on the strength of heavy hitting by Vernal Brown, to avenge an earlier loss to the Paintsville team. Perkins scored three runs in the first inning with the help of a home run by Brown. Brown connected a second time in the third inning as the Center team scored two runs. Brown wasn't through with the long ball, as he hit his third round tripper in the Perkins Center six-run fifth.

HAPPY'S VS ROCKY'S

In a nail biter, Happy's defeated Rocky's 13-12. The winners scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to pull out the 13-12 win. Rocky's lead 3-2 after the first inning. Happy's went on top 5-4 with three runs in the second. The score was 8-5 when Rocky's scored four times in the third.

Trailing 10-8 going into the bottom of the fifth, Happy's pushed across three runs to take a 11-10 lead. Rocky's tied the game at 11-11 with a single run in the top of the seventh.

Tackett Hurls No-Hitter As Martin Braves Tomahawk Blue Jays 28-0

The Martin Braves ran their season record to 6-1 behind the no-hit pitching of Beau Tackett in the Beaver Creek Little League at Martin last Friday as the Braves handed the Martin Blue Jays a 28-0 defeat.

Tackett (2-1) fanned 15 batters in the game while walking seven. It was his first complete game of the season.

Jason Bentley took the loss for the Blue Jays with P. J. Holbrook coming on in relief.

Thomas Jenkins blasted a first inning two-run home run for the Braves. Tackett not only hurled his team to victory but carried a hot bat as well. Tackett collected a third inning triple and a RBI. Coming to bat for the second time in the third, Tackett doubled in his two-for-three outing.

Phillip Holbrook drove in five runs for the victorious Braves. Holbrook had three hits in four at bat. He had two triples in the game — one in the first and again in the third. He collected two RBIs with his triple in the third. Chris Cornette had a third inning triple as well as a double in the same inning. Cornette hit another two-bagger in the fifth inning, driving in two runs. Cornette had four runs batted in against the Blue Jays.

Travis Johnson was two for three in the game and two RBIs. Gordon Maynard singled with one run batted in. Jacob Skeans had a base hit and two RBIs. Jeana Hall got her first Little League hit and drove in a run in the process.

The Braves will face the Garrett Pirates tomorrow (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. The Blue Jays play the Drift Giants Friday at Martin in a 5:30 p.m. start.

Corporate Sponsorship And Sports; A Long Standing Tradition

by Grace M. Martin

A race car roars across the finish line as spectators cheer with excitement. A promising young tennis player battles it out with a popular veteran, and thousands of fans follow the match with bated breath. These are inspiring scenes to millions of Americans. And they are scenes that often are made possible by corporate sponsors.

Sponsorship of sporting events by corporations is a long standing tradition, perhaps for tobacco companies more than most. Nearly a century ago, ads for chewing tobacco first appeared on the outfield fences of Southern baseball stadiums, giving much needed support to the then fledgling game. The relationship — and the sport — flourished. And today, the tobacco industry has expanded its sports sponsorship to include not only baseball, but a wide spectrum of other events ranging from tennis tournaments and auto racing events to horse racing, golf tours and timed ski courses — all to the tune of about $100 million annually.

Recently, this connection has come under criticism from Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan who says tobacco companies should stop supporting sporting events and fans should stop attending competitions sponsored by cigarette manufacturers.

However, many sports professionals, spectators and others do not share Sullivan's views.

Virtually all of the top women tennis stars of the past 20 years — Billie Jean King, Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver — strongly advocate their sport's relationship with Virginia Slims, which began sponsoring women's tennis in the early 1970s. Shriver credits Virginia Slims pioneering role in the sport as "giving women the opportunity to be professional tennis players."

Says Shriver, "Virginia Slims doesn't mean cigarettes to me. To me it's people, it's a relationship, it's tennis." She adds that she might not be where she is today if not for corporate sponsorship of the tournaments.

Mark McCormack, chairman and president of International Management Group, a leading sports marketing firm, echoed Shriver's sentiments when he told ESPN, "Without Virginia Slims, women's tennis would not be where it is today; let's make no bones about it."

The executive director of the Women's Tennis Association, Gerald Smith, takes a pragmatic approach to the issue of sports sponsorship. "I do believe that all the promotional activity and all the advertising is directed at adults who are over the age of 21. The tennis spectator, on average, is 38 years of age." He adds that such an adult can surely make an informed decision on whether or not to smoke and is unlikely to be influenced by the sponsor.

Fans seem to bear out Smith's contention. "To tell you the truth, I don't connect the cigarette with this (event). It never enters my mind when I watch tennis," fan Amy Clary told the Houston Post at the Virginia Slims in Houston, Texas.

Racing is another sport that has received extensive support from the tobacco industry over the years — and the people involved want to keep it that way. National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) spokesman Chip Williams told UPI that since their sponsor "is selling a legal quality product, we're happy to be associated with it."

Top Indy Car racer Emerson Fittipaldi, winner of the 1989 Indianapolis 500, is even more emphatic; "Motor racing is so expensive, and with Phillip Morris it has become a major success. It's great for all sports to have Phillip Morris' backing."

One spectator at a Virginia Slims tennis match may have spoken for many sports fans when he told the Houston Post: "I really don't think about who sponsors an event. All the big sports events have sponsors, like the New Year's Day Bowl Games. I don't pick which games I watch based on who's sponsoring them."

Fresh Fish for Supper

There may be meals more tasty than a platter of fresh fish, but don't ask me to name one. Whether baked, broiled, grilled or simply deep-fried to a crunchy golden brown, fresh fish are a feast fit for a king — and if you've caught them yourself, the meal is doubly satisfying.

Whether you angle for trout, walleye, crappie, bluegill or bass, all of these species are excellent when properly prepared, and that preparation begins at the water's edge.

All fish taste best when fresh. Anyone who has tasted a "shore lunch" of fresh walleye or pan-fried a morning-caught trout for breakfast has savored fish cookery at its best. However, when we wish to bring our catch home, special effort is required to maintain that fresh-caught flavor. Fish flesh is very delicate, and the flavor may be lost quickly through improper handling.

Stringers, fish baskets and even live wells are not the best ways to hold your catch for very long, particularly in warm weather. Stringers and baskets expose the fish to stress and to warm surface water. Also, the fish may be exposed to oil and gas from the boat motor. Live wells depend on water circulation, and when the boat is not running, they heat up quickly.

All these factors can cause the fish to die and promote rapid deterioration. A dead fish cannot regulate the water absorbed by its body, and if left in water, it soon becomes soft-fleshed, mushy and unpalatable. Actual spoilage may occur quickly at temperatures of 40 degrees Fahrenheit and above.

The best bet is to clean your catch immediately, removing the viscera and gills. Then dry the fish and put them into sealable plastic bags. Next, completely cover the fish with crushed or cubed ice in a good ice chest.

Properly cleaned, bagged and kept under ice, fish will keep very well for your trip home and up to a couple of days. Just keep the ice layer on top and the melted water drained away.

While nothing beats fresh fish, proper freezing techniques will keep your catch flavorful for up to six months. After final and complete cleaning, you may wish to either fillet the fish or leave them whole. Either way, place the fish in sealable freezer bags and add enough water to cover the fish. Don't crowd the fish in, and allow room for expansion as the water freezes. Place the bags in the coldest part of your freezer so that the packet freezes as quickly as possible.

When you are ready to cook your catch, allow the fish to thaw slowly. Tear the plastic bag away, and leave the ice block in a strainer or a colander so that the water drains. Many cooks prefer to fillet the semi-frozen fish at this time. Keep the thawed fish cold until cooking.

Now your fish are ready for your favorite recipes, and you are ready for a great meal.

Kentucky Afield

By Russ Kennedy

Free Fishing Days

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is offering free fishing days June 1-2, allowing everyone the opportunity to sample the fun and excitement of angling.

Free fishing days means anyone, regardless of their age or where they live, may fish Kentucky waters without a sport fishing license. Anglers must still observe size and creel limits, as well as all other regulations that govern fishing in Kentucky.

Free fishing days are observed each year on the first weekend in June and are designed to promote recreational fishing by introducing persons of all ages to this healthy, wholesome and relaxing outdoor sport. The free fishing weekend also is an excellent means of showcasing the commonwealth's outstanding sport fisheries.

Be on the Lookout For Zebra Mussels

Zebra mussels aren't a problem in Kentucky — yet. And state fish and wildlife department officials want to make sure these harmful mussels don't find their way into Kentucky waters.

Zebra mussels grow in dense clusters, mainly on solid, submerged surfaces like boat hulls, piers, docks, buoys, lock and dam walls and riprap. They're notorious for affixing themselves to water-intake pipes, wreaking havoc and destruction on water utility systems and power plants. Experts predict $655 million in damages to Great Lakes plants and utilities over the next 10 years.

Zebra mussels also have been known to clog the cooling systems and severely damage or destroy boat motors. It's estimated that engine repairs and replacements resulting from zebra mussels could eventually cost boat owners upwards of six million dollars per year.

From the biological point of view, zebra mussels can destroy natural food sources and spawning grounds of sport fishes. This sort of ecological damage could eventually cost sport fisheries as much as $200 million annually in lost revenues and repair efforts.

Zebra mussel-infested ballast water from incoming freighters was likely deposited in the Great Lakes (however unintentionally) around 1986. By the end of 1989, their presence was termed "widespread" in Lake Erie. Zebra mussels also are known to be present in some inland lakes of Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania.

It's also believed zebra mussels already may have been spread to Dale Hollow Lake on the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

So, how do zebra mussels move about from place to place? Simple. They do it by attaching themselves to boat hulls and motors.

In early spring, many Great Lakes area anglers and sport boaters annually migrate to the warmer southern climes of Kentucky.

And, many Kentucky boaters frequently travel north to enjoy Great Lakes fishing and sport boating.

It's the boats — and trailers — Kentucky-bound from the Great Lakes and other northern inland lakes which are a major cause for concern. These boat and trailer-owners unknowingly may be bringing dreaded zebra mussels back to Kentucky with them.

A big problem with zebra mussels is that until they've grown substantially, they're invisible to the human eye — what biologists call micro organisms. (A full-grown adult zebra mussel is usually about the size of your thumbnail, although they can grow as large as two inches.) Therefore, in most cases it's impossible, to look at the hull of a boat and say, "No zebra mussels here!"

Anglers and sport boaters removing their crafts from possibly contaminated waters should make every effort to completely drain their engine cooling system right there on the spot.

And, once a boater gets his craft home, it's wise to again trim the motor down flush against the transom and drain any remaining water from the system.

Ideally, the engine's cooling system should be professionally cleaned, flushed and serviced. If this isn't possible, time is the next best solution. Having thoroughly drained the cooling system, leave the boat out of the water for at least 10 days. Though this measure won't remove zebra mussels from the system (dead ones hang on as tightly as live ones) it will kill them, preventing any possible spreading.

Boat hulls and trailers should be cleaned thoroughly with a hot water, soap and bleach solution.

Make sure too, that neither the wash water nor the rinse water is discharged into any other water system such as a sanitary or storm sewer.

Should that waste water be contaminated, zebra mussels could survive and create further problems in residential as well as community water supply drainage systems.

Bassin' with the Pros

DROP YOUR SPINNERBAITS FOR MORE BASS

The next time someone suggests dropping a spinnerbait, don't cut the lure off your line and throw it away.

The term "dropping a spinnerbait" refers to a highly productive fishing technique that can be used in shallow or deep water when bass are not active. It's easy to learn, and it can be used with many of the different spinnerbait models now on the market.

"It's my favorite method of fishing a spinnerbait," explains well-known Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler Burma Thomas. "Unless bass are extremely active and hit a spinnerbait on a fast retrieve, I always start dropping it."

Basically, says Thomas, all you do to drop a spinnerbait is stop reeling so the lure sinks. The key is making the lure sink in the right spot, which is always around the cover.

"I like to drop a spinnerbait along the edge of a grassbed where the water becomes slightly deeper," she explains. "Just cast over the grass, retrieve the lure fast through the vegetation, and then stop reeling when the spinnerbait gets to the edge."

"It will fall straight down with the blades still spinning, and this is when most strikes will occur. You're catching bass that are holding on that outside edge."

You can also drop a spinnerbait beside brush piles and stumps, even along riprap, with stunning results.

"If you touch the cover with the spinnerbait as you let it drop, you seem to increase your chances for a strike," adds the Evinrude pro. "Just reel the lure up to the cover like you're going to come through it, but then stop reeling. The spinnerbait will fall right into it."

Around riprap, Thomas prefers to use a series of drops in which she casts shallow, reels the lure out several feet and lets it drop to the bottom. Then, without bringing the spinnerbait back to the surface, she starts reeling again, then stops and lets it fall once more.

"I believe a retrieve like this gets the attention of the bass," says Thomas, who has won 14 national women's titles. "The fish aren't active so they won't go to the surface to hit the lure, but when it falls right in front of them they can't resist it."

Most anglers prefer heavier three-quarter and one-ounce spinnerbaits with larger blades when they use this technique. Thomas uses tandem willow leaf blades because of the added vibration and flash they provide.

"You can drop any spinnerbait on any depth," she says, "but the deeper you fish, the heavier the lure should be so it falls vertically and the blades keep turning."

SERVICE TIP

The service experts at OMC recommend bass boaters install a water pressure gauge on their boat to provide an early warning of possible trouble. Outboards can lose water pressure if the motor is trimmed or raised too high, or if the water intake is covered with weeds or mud, and this can lead to overheating.

FISHIN' TIPS FROM THE TRACKER PROS

Psst...hey buddy, want to catch some really big bass? Learn the art of Flippin'!

To properly learn to flip, it takes the right equipment, a considerable amount of practice and you must fish from a boat. Choose a rod that feels comfortable, is lightweight but very strong and one that is about 7 foot in length. The monofilament you choose should be a minimum of 20 pound test. Your baitcasting reel should have a smooth drag system and it should be tightened down to avoid slippage.

Heavy jigs with pork or plastic trailers such as crawfish make excellent Flippin' lures. Practice by standing on a 3 foot elevated platform and place a paper cup approximately 10 feet away.

Learn to gently drop the lure into the cup. Then fish every post, pillar, weedbed, stump or any other piece of visible cover.

Regulations: How They're Made

Have you ever wondered how Kentucky's fish and game laws come into being? Or how they are changed? Or who is responsible for seeing that your money is wisely spent? If not, you should. Kentucky's sportsmen can have a great deal of power, and they can have a say-so in the workings of our fish and wildlife department if they know how to play the game.

The most powerful faction of Kentucky's outdoor sporting arena is the Fish and Wildlife Commission. This nine-member agency, composed of one representative from each of the nine geographical districts, is the governing body that decides which proposed regulations and regulation changes will be considered for passage into law.

The members of the Fish and Wildlife Commission are appointed by the governor. Actually, a public vote held in each district derives a list of the top five vote recipients, and that list of nominees is passed on to the governor. For each district, the governor will then appoint one commissioner from that list of five nominees. Fish and Wildlife Commissioners serve a four year non-paid term. In other words, our Fish and Wildlife Commissioners receive no money for their voluntary public service.

The Fish and Wildlife Commission meets quarterly in Frankfort to hear proposed regulation changes from the public and from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Proposals are voted upon by these nine commissioners, with the majority ruling.

Once a proposal is passed by the commission, it must be filed with Kentucky's Legislative Research Commission by the 15th of each month. Next, the proposal is published in the Administrative Register, along with an announcement for a public meeting date. This step ensures that Kentucky citizens have ample time and opportunity to state their support for, or air their grievances against, a proposed change in our hunting and fishing regulations. These meetings are usually conducted in Frankfort, but may be held in a geographical area most affected by the proposed change. Typically, this public hearing is held at the end of the month in which the proposal was first published in the Administrative Register. However, if no one responds within five days of the scheduled hearing, that meeting is canceled and the Legislative Research Commission is advised of that fact.

Next, the proposal is sent to the Administrative Regulatory Subcommittee and then to the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee. Those groups review the proposal to ensure that its wording is consistent with the Commission's intent and in agreement with Kentucky statutes. If either of these committees have a problem with the proposal, they file a grievance with the Commission and the process starts all over again.

If the proposal passes successfully through those committees, it then becomes a Kentucky state law.

On the average, it takes approximately six months for a proposed change in our hunting and fishing regulations to become law. The fisheries division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, for example, submit their proposals to the Fish and Wildlife Commission during their June meeting so that the new laws can go into effect on January 1.

Although this process seems rather complicated, it is designed to meet the needs and the wants of every sportsman in Kentucky. Fishermen and hunters have several avenues that they may take to present proposed changes to our game and fish laws.

The most direct avenue is to contact the Fish and Wildlife Commissioner from your district. Do you want a 10-inch size limit enacted on crappie taken from Fishtrap? Do you want the deer season changed or extended? Call your Commissioner. Their phone numbers and addresses are publicly published and readily available from Frankfort (phone 502/564-3499) or from any member of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. The names and address of all Commissioners are also published in Kentucky's "Happy Hunting Ground" magazine.

The Commissioner for the 7th District, which includes Pike, Floyd, Perry, Lawrence, Johnson, Magoffin, Knott, Letcher, Leslie, Breathitt, and Martin counties, is Doug Hensley. Mr. Hensley's phone number is 606/436-2321, or you may write him at PO Box 775, Hazard, KY 41701.

One influential group that represents a great number of this state's outdoorsmen is the League of Sportsmen. Each year, after an internal voting session, the League presents their proposals directly to the Fish and Wildlife Commission. Any sporting group affiliated with the outdoors may join the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, and this membership allows the group to send two voting members to the League's voting sessions.

Political organizations respect appeals from organized groups, so our bass clubs and sportsmen's clubs have a wealth of influence that can be utilized to enact the wants and wishes of their membership.

Individuals may also contract any member of Kentucky's Fish and Wildlife Resources Agency and submit a proposal. Or, you can write to the Commission and request permission to address the group in person during any of their quarterly meetings.

In addition to voting on regulation changes, the Fish and Wildlife Commission also decides how our money is spent. As you may or may not know, our Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Agency receives no tax dollars from the sale of commodities, nor any tax money from income taxes. All of the money utilized by our state's fish and wildlife agency comes from just two sources, from the sale of fishing and hunting licenses and tags, and from federal taxes collected on sporting gear. The Sportfish Restoration Fund collects taxes on the sale of products used for angling and aquatic recreation. All fishing tackle, boats, marine gas, and anything else associated with water oriented recreation is taxed on the federal level. Hunting gear is similarly taxed at the federal level through the Pittman-Robertson Fund, and that money goes to support wildlife programs in the states.

Ed Carroll, the district fisheries biologist for this area, says, "To receive money from either the Sportfish Restoration Fund or the Pittman-Robertson Fund, individual states must match those dollars at a 1 to 3 ratio. For example, for every dollar Kentucky's Division of Fisheries puts up, the Sportfish Restoration Fund will match it with three dollars. For the 1990-91 fiscal year, our fisheries department received 3.157 million dollars from the Sportfish Restoration Fund, so you can see we are talking about enormous sums of money." (For your information: Kentucky's Fisheries Department spends 25 percent of those federal dollars on development projects such as boat ramps, boating access projects, fishing piers and fish attractors.)

Kentucky's Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Agency is a large, complex organization that serves the outdoorsmen of the Bluegrass state. Yet, individuals and sporting groups have the ability to influence the workings of the agency, to offer input and suggestions, and ultimately to enact changes that will benefit everyone concerned. The hardest step is simply getting involved.

HALL FUNERAL HOME

Proudly Adds Another Feature:

A Life Remembered® Tribute Program Videotape

We at Hall Funeral Home are excited about a new optional service we can offer you.

"Tribute Programs" is a tasteful and wonderful way to add new meaning to the funeral or memorial service. The six-minute video tape is a tribute to a LIFE carefully prepared from pictures of the person.

Yes, a tribute program may also be pre-arranged and completed. Selections of pictures, a musical theme from a long list of hymns or other music, and favorite scripture passages are all part of this unique service. All these elements are combined with sophisticated video technology and a sensitive production approach provided by National Music Service.

Eastern Ky. families have expected Hall Funeral Home to provide leadership. This new feature is expanding nationally, and we are proud to be the first in the state to offer it to the people we serve.

A little light on the subject

Highlands Laparoscopic surgical team follow their every movement by a greatly enlarged image on a TV monitor.

Laparoscopic gallbladder surgery now available at Highlands

Americans who will need gallbladder surgery next year have some light at the end of the tunnel. They will encounter less pain and faster recovery because of laparoscopic cholecystectomy—surgery performed via a slender surgical probe and a narrow lighted tube inserted through small incisions.

Previously, the gallbladder operation required a week of hospitalization and six weeks of recovery. Now, 15-20 per cent of patients are released the same day, and the remainder require no more than an overnight stay. Most patients return to normal activity within a week. This results in big dollar benefits to the patient. Hospitalization costs are cut by more than half, and faster return to work means fewer losses in wages. This new procedure, introduced in France in 1987, is now available at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

The gallbladder is not a convenient organ to reach. The four-inch, pear-shaped sac is attached to the underside of the liver, where it stores bile made in the liver for release during digestion. Surgery involves removing the organ when it becomes diseased — often with small stones in the gallbladder or bile duct. The advantage of laparoscopic cholecystectomy is that surgical instruments reach the gallbladder via a narrow tube that navigates readily around those obstructions like abdominal muscles which get in the way with conventional surgery. By eliminating the need to make a six-inch incision and cut through the abdominal muscle, trauma is reduced. The result is less pain and faster recovery. In this procedure, surgeons bring not only lights, but camera, to the surgical site. Working through four tiny punctures, surgeons insert a laparoscope, a device that contains a light and a camera that magnifies the image 16 times. One surgeon acts as an assistant, while the other surgeon watches a video monitor to perform the surgery. Carbon dioxide is injected to inflate the abdominal cavity and create a clear working space.

The stones and the diseased gallbladder are extracted through one of the punctures—usually at the navel. Sometimes the stones must first be crushed. The gallbladder is then detached from the liver after the bile duct and one large blood vessel are clamped off. Laser or electrical cautery may be used to perform the surgery. The operation is completed when the four small punctures, none larger than 1/2 inch, are stitched and bandaged.

A medical assessment will determine when the streamlined procedure is right for the patient. Some patients are not candidates for laparoscopy — those who have excessive scarring from previous abdominal operation.

Most patients who require gallbladder surgery and elect laparoscopy will qualify for the procedure. And, they will experience a far quicker, less painful recovery than otherwise. They may even be the subjects of the best gallbladder video in their neighborhood.

Christian musicians' competition is slated

Contemporary gospel music has come to national attention recently with the rise in popularity of performers such as Sandi Patti, Amy Grant, Larnelle Harris and groups like the Gaither Vocal Band and the Imperials.

A non-denominational musicians' competition is being conducted this year for local performers in this category that will include musicians in Prestonsburg.

The second annual contemporary Christian Musicians' Competition which is sponsored nationally by Doulos Training Seminars and the Benson Music Group, is scheduled to be held at the Holiday Inn Lexington, Saturday, June 15.

Included in the competition are vocal solo divisions for both teens and adults, vocal group, instrumental and songwriting divisions. Participants will be rated on their musicianship, technique, overall communication and performance. Professional Christian musicians will serve as judges for the event.

Area participants with qualifying scores may advance first to regional and then to the finals which will be held in Nashville, Tennessee this fall. Members of the Christian recording industry will serve as judges in Nashville.

Awards on area and regional levels include trophies, sound track accompaniment tapes and recording hours in a professional studio. On state level, cash prizes are also awarded.

The competition presents a unique opportunity for unrecognized talent in the area of contemporary gospel music to extend performing abilities beyond their own hometown.

For more information, write Contemporary Christian Musicians' Competition, P.O. Box 1505, Asheville, North Carolina 27204-1505, or call 919-625-2091.

Christ United Methodist women hold meeting

Christ United Methodist Women held their monthly meeting in the Fellowship Hall of the church at Allen on May 14 with president Marena Hale presiding. Pastor Ken LeMaster was present and opened the meeting with a prayer.

Myrtle and Bertha Ratliff presented a short skit demonstrating a visit from members of the Evangelism Explosion program. They were assisted by Laura Ratliff and Tommy Taulbee.

The minutes were read by the secretary, Linda Rice, and approved. Treasurer Debbie Adkins gave the treasurer's report.

Hostesses Bertha Ratliff and Myrtle Ratliff served refreshments to members Debbie Adkins, Elizabeth Bailey, Lisa Bertrand, Delores Bradley, Cathy Campbell, Pat DeRossett, Marena Hale, Kay LeMaster, Connie McKinney, Jeri Mullins and Linda Rice.

Visitors present were Laura Ratliff, Tommy Taulbee and Pastor Ken LeMaster.

Cheryl Hughes will present the program in June. The hostesses will be Delores Bradley and Jewel Allen.

Holland family services held

Memorial services for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holland were held at the Roark Cemetery on Sunday, May 26, at 2 p.m. Johnny Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Holland, held the event. Willard Holliday, of Salyersville, conducted the service.

Presbyterian homecoming: Renewal of vows marks renewal of commitment

The First Presbyterian Church will celebrate its annual homecoming at 11 a.m., Sunday, June 2, by observing the 25th anniversary of its present sanctuary building. The church, established in 1899, moved in 1966 to its present location at the north end of Prestonsburg. Dedication services were held June 5, 1966.

The church homecoming is held every year on the Sunday closest to the dedication date. This year's event will be a special one. To mark the occasion, the church is inviting all couples who have been married in the present sanctuary to return for special recognition and renewal of vows. In addition, members and friends are asked to bring to the potluck dinner, following worship, dishes that have been church favorites over the past 25 years.

The homecoming choir — composed of present and past choir members under the direction of James Ratcliff — will sing and new members will be received into the church. The anniversary will also be marked by a display of mementos of family weddings held in the church over the past 25 years.

The celebration and display will be for this day only, so friends are encouraged to come and participate in this festive event. The Rev. Timothy Jessen, who has served the church during 12 of its 25 years of use, is the pastor.

Precautions Against Lyme Disease And Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever

Kentucky public health officials are cautioning adults and children alike this summer to take measures to prevent tick bites, which can cause Rocky Mountain spotted fever and Lyme disease.

Since 1985, 101 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever and 67 cases of Lyme disease have been reported in Kentucky, according to Andrew Pelletier, M.D., a Department for Health Services epidemiologist.

"Because both of these quite serious diseases are transmitted by tick bites, Kentuckians should take certain precautions when walking, working or playing in tick-infested areas, especially in May, June and July when ticks are most active," Pelletier said.

To help prevent tick exposure:

*Wear a long-sleeved shirt tucked into long pants; tuck pant legs into socks or boots; tape area where pants and socks meet to keep ticks out;

*Wear light-colored clothing so ticks can easily be seen;

*Spray insect repellent listing "permethrin" as the active ingredient on pants, socks and shoes but not on the skin. Repellents listing "DEET" as the active ingredient may be sprayed on the skin.

*Avoid walking in brush and tall grass;

*Keep pets from infested areas, and check ticks on pets and remove them.

After being outside:

*Promptly remove and wash clothing;

*Inspect your body carefully and remove attached ticks with tweezers, grasping as close to the head as possible and gently tugging the tick free without crushing its body. If tweezers are not available, cover the fingers with a tissue;

*Wash hands and the area of the bite immediately with soap and water, and keep the bite area clean;

*Do not try to crush the tick. Instead, flush it down a toilet.

Pelletier says that the symptoms of Rocky Mountain spotted fever are a definite fever and possibly chills, headache and muscle aches occurring three to 10 days after a tick bite. One to three days after the fever, a rash usually appears first on the wrist and ankles and then spreads to the rest of the body, thus the term "spotted fever."

"The severity of Rocky Mountain spotted fever ranges from mild to fatal," he said. "So anyone with these symptoms following a tick bite should see a doctor immediately."

This disease can be treated effectively with antibiotics, but early diagnosis and treatment are critical, he said.

The first state of Lyme disease begins three to 31 days after a person is bitten. Again, flu-like symptoms are present—fatigue, chills and fever, headache, muscle and joint pain or swollen lymph nodes.

Another sign of Lyme disease is a peculiar circular skin rash that appears where the tick bite occurred and then expands. The patch can vary in shape and appears most often on the thigh, groin, trunk, armpits and, in children, on the face. The center may clear as the patch enlarges, giving a ring-like appearance; it may be warm but usually not painful.

"Left untreated, Lyme disease can cause arthritis and have effects on the nervous system that may include numbness, pain, stiff neck and severe headache or muscle weakness of the face or limbs," he said. "heart irregularities may occur."

Pelletier says that early treatment with antibiotics usually brings about a rapid recovery. Delayed treatment can leave patients with recurring symptoms or permanent damage.

"Anyone suffering the symptoms of either Rocky Mountain spotted fever or Lyme disease following a tick exposure should see a doctor and mention the bite," he said.

"All Kentuckians should remember that a few smart precautions when in the woods, open fields or other tick-infested areas can help prevent tick bites and the serious illnesses that can follow."

Rail City Run
Prizes Offered Again

The $100 prizes for record-breaking times in the Rail City Run-by-the-River went unclaimed last year. The East Greenup Kiwanis Club, operators of the race, will offer the incentives again this year. The 10,000 meter TAC-certified course records are held by Tom Cherchuk, with a time of 31:57 in 1984, and Melanie Trimble, who ran the distance in 19:35 in 1988. Andy Hissam of Ashland won last year's men's race in 34:07, and Debbie Biddle of Cynthia, Kentucky, won the women's 10K in 41:25. The 5K races were won by Ron Rowsey and Becky Webb.

This year marks the 14th running of the Rail City Run-by-the-River. It will be run on Saturday, June 8. Registration opens at 7 a.m. at the Russell Central Elementary School, and both races will start at 8:30. All runners will receive mint-green cotton T-shirts, and there will be plenty of door prizes and refreshments. A grand prize drawing for a set of tires will be held after the race. Proceeds are used by the Kiwanis Club to help underprivileged children. Information is available from Grant Jensen at 606-329-5991 or 836-8594.

GOOD ADVICE

Paul and Elaine Gearheart of Harold are owners of Harold Telephone Company, and their friends, Bob and Junella Thacker, own Thacker-Grigsby Telephone Company in Hindman. Both of their companies advocate the use of telephone directories.

The Gearhearts and Thackers have become good friends and often take trips together, not only for company conventions, but on personal vacations as well.

A few years ago, they went to Florida to rest, relax and sight-see a bit. While out driving one day, they noticed some fellows moving along the water in an airboat. It aroused their curiosity.

They wanted to observe this vehicle more closely and learned that it was built in the area — but they couldn't find out where the company was located.

After asking at several service stations and other businesses, they had no luck. Then, as Bob was driving, Paul noticed a man working on his lawn and suggested they stop.

"Sir," Paul asked, "do you know where the company is located that builds these airboats we've been seeing?"

"I don't know," the man answered. "Have you looked in the telephone directory?"

It hadn't entered their minds.

WEIGHT LOSS

David and Pam Games live in Frankfort where David is the postmaster. He is also a fairly new editor of the Kentuckian, state publication for the National Association of Postmasters.

David asked that I do some writing for the paper, something I did for most of my postal career. In his first issue, along with my article, he ran a picture of me that had been taken after some banquet. It was obvious that I'd been eating rather well.

I wrote him a note that said, "Your paper looks fine except for that fat lady on page 13."

With my next submission I enclosed another note. "Dear David," I wrote, "Please don't run that big fat picture again — or if you do, I wish you'd cut it way down. You might just let one eye peep through."

My copy of the latest issue came this week and, along with the article, was the picture of one eye. (Other readers might wonder about this.)

To tell the truth, I can't even be sure it's my eye — but I liked it better than the first picture he ran.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

When I went to church one Sunday I noticed rice scattered on the ground near the entrance.

I asked the minister where it came from and he said he had performed a wedding ceremony on Saturday. He said it was a very nice ceremony and that the bride and groom were in their sixties.

I believe rice is usually showered as a symbol of good wishes for fertility. I hope they used a lot.

Kim's Korner

Quite often I receive calls and comments requesting certain topics to be put into print, and in this column. With this in mind, I'm going to do just that.

by Kim Frasure

My brother-in-law, Barry, and his wife, Deanna, had planned on spending Sunday fishing at Dewey Lake. As Mr. Murphy (as in Murphy's Law) would have it, obstacles were to interfere with their plans.

Besides the usual rod and reel and live bait one needs to fish, licenses are extremely important. For if you are caught without one, you'll end up paying a hefty fine that could really ruin the relaxing day you had planned. If you ask any fisherman, they will tell you that the rangers routinely check on whether you possess a license or not.

What Barry and Deanna came to realize was fishing licenses are not that easy to acquire. They figured that a live bait store would naturally sell fishing licenses. Since they needed to get some bait anyway, they had counted on buying their licenses there as well. Wrong.

"What, do you mean you sell live bait but not licenses?" Barry asked.

"Sorry" was all he kept hearing.

Frustrated and aggravated, the two headed back towards town to try and find a place that sold fishing licenses. He discovered a place where a combination hunting and fishing license could be bought.

"Fishing, fishing, fishing," my brother-in-law huffed. "All I want is a fishing license, how hard could that be?"

Well, after fifteen stops and half the day gone, he was discovering the answer to that question.

I wonder why one cannot buy a fishing license at the lake? It seems logical to me. Oh well, maybe they'll start selling them now, Barry. Till next week — catch a big one.

Eastern's golden days, part II :

A hair cut, a card game, and an innocent victim

By Barbara Martin

Not all tricks played in our town were done at Halloween. Anyone was likely to have a trick played on them any time day or night. Some were done while others were watching. Here is a story which reveals the extent of such a trick pulled in broad daylight. It happened because of the method of cutting hair in those days. A paid barber was unheard of. Gifted men of the family took on the responsibility of keeping everyone well groomed. They purchased barber tools and felt a sense of responsibility for all who came to be relieved of their unwanted growth of hair.

When I was very small, my father had his hair cut by my Uncle Homer Martin. He was an excellent barber.

Then Dad repaid him with some type of work done. We pitched in to help thin and hoe corn. One evening we took the makings for ice cream to Uncle Homer's house and made two gallon runs by the light of an outside gas light. Natural gas was free so they opened a place in the pipe, lit it and enjoyed the light which it made.

Not everyone repaid this taken-for-granted free service. One of these generous workers was our gentleman, Hoggie. Men and boys lined up at his house, waiting for their turn in the makeshift barber chair, much as they do today in the Barber Shops. Hoggie owned a set of barber tools, and since he was such a good hand at it, many times he spent all day Saturday and Sunday just cutting hair for the men and boys who lived in his vicinity. As you might imagine, there were days when you just had to take a break from it.

One day no one had showed up for a cut so Hoggie decided to walk over to see how the card games were going. On some days new champions emerged. They loved to boast about their playing abilities. Old champions like Hoggie liked to take away their titles, then he did the bragging.

Upon this particular day, quite an active card game was going. Being a huge structure it was cool and shady inside. The hay, stored there from the cuttings on the creek side of the highway, smelled fresh. Kids liked to climb up the vertical ladder into the loft. A long rope hung from the center roof for a swing. We caught hold of the rope, climbed to the point where the hay was piled the deepest, swung away out, and dropped off on the return swing, into the deep hay. Card players were able to do child care along with their game, if we didn't play too long and mess up the texture of the hay, as it was used to feed farm animals. There are most always cats with kittens in a barn loft, so we had much to amuse us while our dads took their turn in the competition.

Hoggie took a seat as soon as the call was given to challenge the champions. Soon he was having excellent luck and would not have quit playing short of a house fire, when in came a boy expecting a free hair cut. This innocent boy was not aware of the craving of a card sharp to continue his winning streak. Maybe when he was grown but not then. He really should have joined the kids playing in the loft and waited until the streak of luck had ended. The normally freely given service was absent at a time like that. So the plot thickened.

Present in the barn was the ever obliging Ketch. Another observer offered Ketch's services. He told the boy that Ketch was a much better barber than Hoggie was. Many fun seekers sitting around verified the statement, of course. They sent someone over to Coonce's and Hen's house to borrow their barber tools. When they returned Hoggie gave Ketch a few pointers, as to how he had always cut it, and returned his attention back to his card playing.

Ketch pretended to be cutting by Hoggie's instructions. Soon they were participating in a mock scene more entertaining than the card game. The pranksters covered their laughter by pretending to be laughing at the card players. Ketch lifted up the hair, opened and closed the scissors, but only a few real cuts were made. The result was a heavy ledge of hair around the top.

Believing that the cut had been given properly, the boy thanked him and went on home. Very soon he came back in a rage. The pranksters were still present, happy from their joke, and watching the card game. They added to their fun by telling the boy every kind of tale they could think of. "That is the new style", "I think it is very becoming", "Soon everyone will have one like it" and "You are the first one to set the style around here", and many other comments.

Somewhat contented, the boy left again. On the way home he met Come-by-Yeh/Come-by-yo Martin who asked him who had ruined him. This let the axe fall! The next time the boy came back, he had his mother with him. She threatened to take a warrant for them. Since they were such good talkers, they talked her out of it.

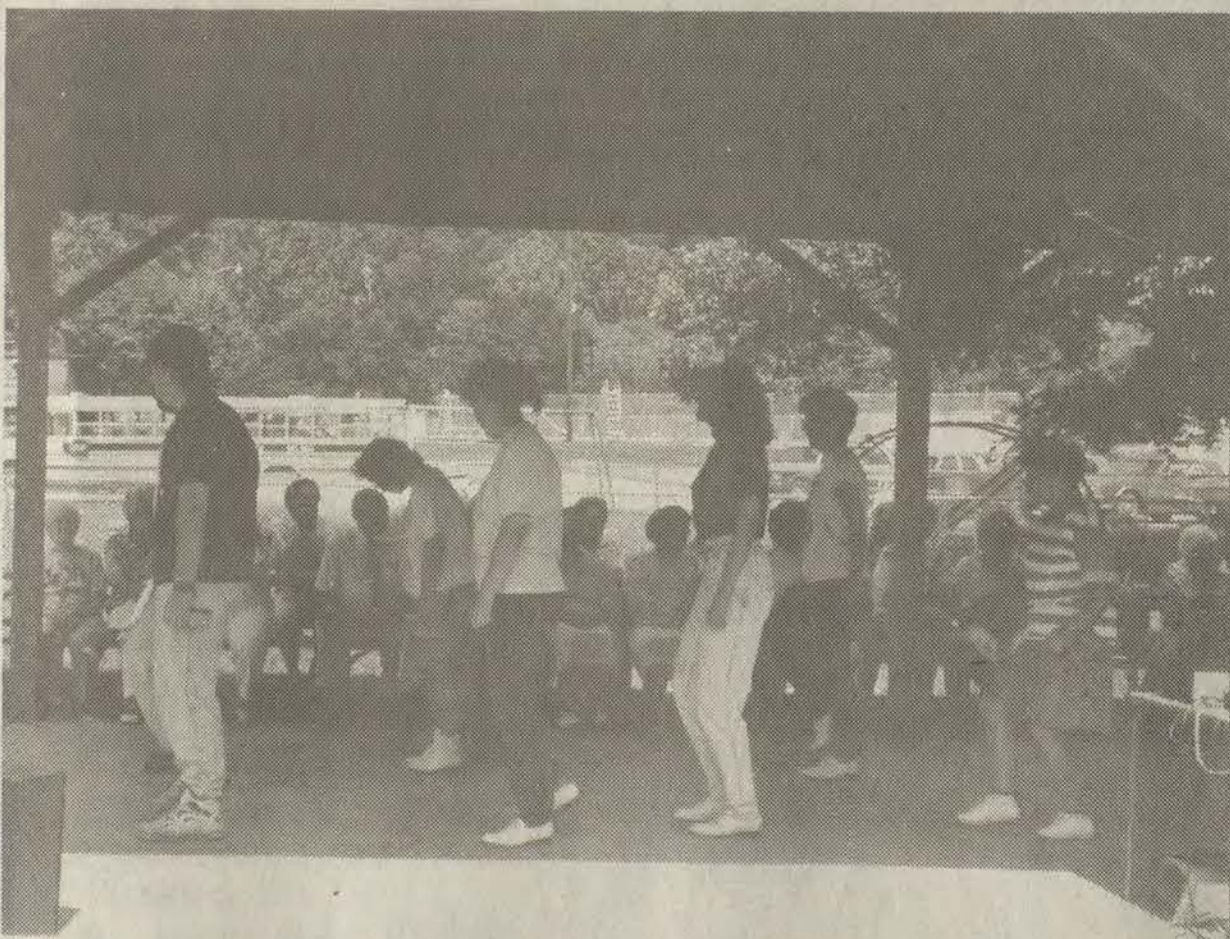

It was the general belief in our community that it was a shame for a man to wear long hair, so the same people appeared often for haircuts. Few men have lived to tell the story of how they applied their scissors, comb, and clippers, hardly taking time out for meals. They suffered many a day from operating manually the hand clippers. The need was so great they gave of their energies freely. Farm work was halted until the person was relieved of his unsightly hair.

As cars became more plentiful and the imposition was realized, people began to seek the services of those who earned their living cutting hair. Wess Moore, who married Peachie Osborne of Eastern, got a lot of trade from our town. Reeves Hall had a brother who completely lost his given name, as he was called Barber Hall by all, even to this day. I doubt if anyone remembers his real name, except for his family. Later, Weatherbird opened a shop at Langley Supply Company, Maytown, KY. Most people had no transportation to these towns, and no money to pay for the service, so these community barbers worked many years before they could completely retire from their free work which contributed so much to the welfare of others.

THE FIRST TIME I QUIT SMOKING

When I was the five-year-old son of a coal miner, to me, smoking was even more of a sign of manhood than was having warts or cussin'. After all, the people I looked up to more than anyone else were smokers. My daddy smoked, my older brother smoked, and all those suave movie stars like Bogie, Cary Grant and Clark Gable smoked. Furthermore, President Roosevelt himself smoked. I saw his picture in Grit one time and he had a cigarette in a little black plastic holder and was smoking it that way. I assumed at that time that presidents smoked differently than real people.

Anyway, I looked forward to the day when I'd be old enough to light one up myself. However, unlike today's world, time then just dragged by, especially if you were waiting for something in particular.

You've heard about the "impatience of youth?" Well, I took a short cut, so to speak.

No I didn't then, nor do I now, know what the stuff was that we called "life-ever-lasting" or "rabbit baccor." I did know, though, that it was a weed and you could smoke it. I knew what it looked like. I'd heard some of the older boys say that if you rolled it in a paper sack, it was better than a real nickel cigar.

So, on that chilly autumn afternoon when I found some growing on the hill in front of our house in the head of Society Row, I decided that I'd waited long enough. I stripped a double handful off the stalk, stuffed in in the pocket of my overalls and headed for the house. I grabbed a couple of sulfur matches off the top of the kitchen safe and tore a hunk off the brown paper poke that mom had neatly folded and stored back in the hall press. Realizing my need to be absolutely alone — after all, this was serious stuff and would require my full concentration — I headed for the toilet.

After peeping through the cracks and satisfying myself that no one had seen me and become suspicious — it wasn't like I usually went in there more than half a dozen times a day — I set right to work.

With the precision of a surgeon, I rolled the weed between my palms until it was about four inches long and about as round as a pencil. Then, I placed it down on the seat beside me and carefully tore a piece off the paper bag about four inches square. I curled it slightly with my forefinger, placed the tobacco inside, then rolled it neatly, leaving about a quarter-inch edge so I could lick it good and hold it all together.

Just as I was about to wet it down with the tip of my tongue, I realized that I'd better not wet the end I was going to light, for if I did, it wouldn't.

Finished, I stuck the world's-most-perfect cigarette between my lips, reached for a match and lit her up. As the match touched the end of the cigarette, the paper caught fire. I must have panicked, because as it did, I inhaled deeply. I sucked that flame into my mouth, literally toasting my tongue.

At the same time, my uncombed hair that hung down on my forehead to nearly my eyes went "Poof."

Being the clever guy I am, I immediately dropped the perfect cigarette — right smack into a cardboard box filled with old Sears and Roebuck catalogs. The box, in turn, went "Poof."

I stomped out the fire in the cardboard box, bailed out of that outhouse, found the water bucket in the kitchen and put out the fire in my mouth.

With the help of daddy's barber scissors and my sister Mary Jean's dresser-set mirror with the pink plastic handle, I managed to trim my singed bangs.

My eyebrows grew back eventually, and I quit smoking.

C.J.'s Two!

Crandell Lee Stone III (C.J.) celebrated his second birthday on May 5 at the home of his grandparents Crandell and Wanda Stone of Shelbyville, formerly of Allen. He celebrated with a circus cake.

Others in attendance were his parents, Crandell Jr. and Roxann Stone of Shelbyville, his great-grandmother Lottie Crisp of Shelbyville, formerly of Allen; his great-aunt Linda Robinson and his cousins Billy and Belinda Robinson of Mt. Washington, Charles and Mary Jackson of Louisville and Shannon Worley and her son Lesley of Waddy.

C.J. is the great-grandson of Nova Stone of Arkansas Creek as well as the late Gomer Crisp and Miles Stone. He is the great-great-grandson of R.L. and Roxie Pitts of Middle Creek.

Rebekah Lodge No. 31 meeting

Members of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 met Tuesday evening, May 20, at the I.O.O.F. Hall. In the absence of Mrs. Jean Hickman, Noble Grand, who is ill, the Vice Grand, Mrs. Donna Thomas, presided. Get well cards were signed to be mailed to Mesdames Jean Hickman, Dolly Pettrey and Loretta Akers. Present were Mesdames Donna Thomas, Hope Whitten, Myrtle Allen, Claudine Johns, Maman Leslie and Paulina Owens.

Kiwaniannes luncheon

The Prestonsburg Kiwaniannes held their monthly luncheon meeting Thursday, May 23, at noon at May Lodge. Mrs. Hope Whitten, president, presided and led the group in reciting the "Kiwanianne Creed." Mrs. Jane Wallace gave the devotions, the title of which was "The Shepherd's Psalm." Due to the absence of Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, secretary, the minutes were read by Mrs. Maman Leslie. Mrs. Garnett Fairchild gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Jane Wallace, program chairman, presented Miss Tess Whitmer, assistant editor of the Floyd County Times and president of the Jr. Chamber of Commerce who recently served a period of 198 days in the Persian Gulf Crisis. Miss Whitmer gave a vivid description of her experiences there, where her duties consisted mainly of the processing of prisoners of war. Miss Whitmer, who is presently a lieutenant in the US Army Reserves, said something near the end of her discussion that was evident throughout the time she spoke — that she would not hesitate to return to duty if she learned that our country needed her services.

Mesdames Myrtle Allen and Maman Leslie reported on the semi-annual Heart Clinic held recently at the Floyd County Health Department, where they assisted for two days in the serving of food for heart patients. Assisting in the furnishing of food for this purpose are various churches throughout this area, and the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club. A letter of appreciation from the Floyd County Health Department was read.

A get well card was signed for Mrs. Bill (Dolly) Pettrey, who recently broke her hip in a fall at her home and, after spending several days in the Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington, is now a patient at the Country Place Nursing Home in Lexington.

The next (and last) meeting of this group will be Thursday, June 23, at this same location.

Present were Tess Whitmer, Hope Whitten, Garnett Fairchild, Maman Leslie, Jane Wallace, Mildred Salisbury, Lucy Regan, Minerva Cooley, Docia Woods, Ada Meads, Annabelle Maggard, Myrtle Allen and Pearl Robertson.

Births announced

Mrs. and Mrs. Christopher Cooley announce the birth of a son, Casey Allen, born May 21 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. The baby weighed 7 lbs. 5 oz. and measured 21 inches in length.

Mrs. Cooley's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith of Versailles. Mr.

Cooley's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vincel Cooley of Prestonsburg. The paternal great-grandparents are Mrs. Viola Cooley DeRossett and the Rev. Jack DeRossett.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Cooley announce the birth of a son, Craig Allen Cooley, born at the University of Kentucky Medical Center on May 22. The baby weighed 8 lbs. 6 oz. The maternal grandparents are Janice and Gene Prater of Middle Creek. The paternal great-grandparents are Mrs. Viola Cooley DeRossett and the Rev. Jack DeRossett of Prestonsburg.

Methodist mother-daughter banquet

A mother-daughter banquet was held by the United Methodist Women of the Community United Methodist Church on Tuesday, May 14, in the Floyd Room of the Highlands Regional Medical Center. Those in attendance were Sharon May and Ver-vie Ellis; June Cooley and January Cooley; Debbie Burke and Rhiannon Burke; Marian Masters and Jesse Burke; Sue Spradlin and Amanda Leslie; Pam Leslie and Allison Leslie; Christina Simpson, her mother Mrs. Newsome and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Tony Vandyne; Goldie Collins and Linda May; Ernestine Collins and Tess Collins; Rita Mounts and Debbie Patton; Sharon Burchett and her mother, Mrs. Collins; Carolyn Stout and Leslie Stout; Nancy Tackett and Kim Compton, Mary O'Dell and her daughter and Marcella Slone and her two daughters, Julia and Kim.

The room was beautifully decorated in keeping with this occasion. Dr. Tony Mounts made photographs and presented them as gifts to the mothers in attendance. Mrs. Rita Mounts sang a solo entitled "We'll Be There." Prizes were awarded to the youngest mother, Mrs. Tony Vandine, and the eldest mother, Mrs. Newsome. A special gift was presented to the pastor's wife, Mrs. Marian Masters, who will soon accompany her husband, the Rev. Ron Masters, to his new assignment in a Methodist Church in another part of the state.

Mrs. Sharon May serves as president of the United Methodist Women of the church sponsoring this well-attended event.

Sloan given surprise party

Mrs. Roberta Sloan was honored with a surprise birthday dinner on Saturday evening, May 18, at her home on Arnold Avenue. The dinner was served by her children and other members of her immediate family. The dining room table was covered with a white linen cloth, and decorated with a bowl of fresh flowers and candelabra holding pink lighted candles. Other arrangements of flowers were at various points throughout the house.

Following the dinner, traditional, decorated birthday cake was served by the honoree's granddaughters, Elizabeth Bowling, Johnna Coburn and Cara Sloan. Mrs. Sloan opened her many gifts from family and friends. The happy occasion was filmed by her grandson, Chad Sloan.

Sharing this happy event were Mrs. Roberta Sloan and her family and friends; Patricia Bowling of Stone Mountain, Georgia; Elizabeth Bowling and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Coburn of Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Doug Coburn and Johnna Coburn of Robinson Creek; David Sloan, Chad Sloan and Cara Sloan of Ft. Mitchell; Sylvia Keese, Lynn Bartley, John Reed Keese, Eric Bartley and Ethel Golf of Pikeville; Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Moore of Mt. Sterling; Doug Fitzpatrick of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Allen of Maytown; Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sparks, Mrs. Burieta Gearhart, Mrs. Ruby Lamping, Mrs. Maxine (See Society Events, C 8)

County Kettle

By M. L. Harmon

As I write "County Kettle" this week, I cannot seem to get my mind off my up-coming major surgery tomorrow, May 30. The doctor tells me I will be a new person after it is over. I am not too sure I really wish to be a new person; I have kind' a gotten used to me as is. Also, at this time I have a possibility of facing up to three more surgeries. If I will be a new person after each, I could become quite a confused person. After this foolishness, it's time to get into the goodies—the recipes for this week.

BIRD'S NEST CHICKEN

8 nested-style angel hair pasta bundles
8 chicken breasts halves, skinned and boned
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 (16-oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen spinach, thawed and well-drained
1 (10-oz.) can cream of chicken soup, undiluted
2/3 c. water
3 oz. Monterey Jack cheese
3 oz. cheddar cheese, diced

Cook the angel hair pasta nests according to package directions; drain well, keeping nests intact.

Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper; arrange in a lightly greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Spoon mushrooms and spinach over chicken. Arrange the cooked pasta nests over spinach.

Combine soup and water in a small saucepan; bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Pour sauce over pasta nests. Bake at 375° for 1 hour.

Combine Monterey Jack and cheddar cheese. Sprinkle over chicken. Bake an additional 5 minutes. Yield 8 servings.

BARBECUE SAUCE

submitted by Betsy Baldrige

1 large onion, chopped
1/3 c. shortening
2 tbs. sugar
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 tbs. all-purpose flour
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 c. catsup
1 tbs. vinegar
2 tsp. worchestershire sauce
1/2 tsp. tobasco sauce

Cook onion in shortening slightly.

Combine next 5 ingredients and blend. Combine catsup, vinegar and sauces. Add dry ingredients to onions. Add catsup mixture. Simmer until thickened. Add to 1 pound, or more of cooked shredded beef. Serve on hamburger buns with lettuce, tomato slices and mayonnaise.

FROZEN PEANUT BUTTER DELIGHT

by Barbara Boyle

1/2 c. peanut butter
1/4 c. butter, softened
1/2 c. firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 c. all-purpose flour
1 (8-oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
1/2 c. sugar
1/4 c. peanut butter
1 tsp. vanilla
2 eggs
1 c. whipping cream, whipped
1 (6-oz.) pkg. semisweet chocolate morsels

Cream peanut butter and butter; add brown sugar, beating on medium speed, until light and fluffy. Add flour; mix well. Reserve 1 cup of mixture for topping. Lightly press remaining mixture (will be crumbly) into bottom of an ungreased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350° for 8 to 10 minutes, until golden brown, cool. Set aside.

Combine cream cheese, sugar, 1/4 cup peanut butter, and vanilla. Beat at medium speed until light and fluffy, add eggs one at a time beating well after each addition. Fold whipped cream into cheese mixture. Spoon over baked crust.

Place chocolate morsels in the top of a double boiler. Bring water to boil, reduce heat to low and cook until chocolate melts. Drizzle melted chocolate over filling; cut through to marble. Sprinkle with reserved topping. Cover and freeze 8 hours until firm. Cut into squares to serve. Yield 12 to 15 squares.

PAN FRIED CHICKEN

1 broiler-frier (about 3 pounds) cut up milk
3/4 c. flour
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
oil
cream gravy (recipe follows)
Place chicken in single layer in an 8-inch square baking dish. Add milk to cover. Let stand 1 hour, turning once. Mix flour salt and pepper on waxed paper or in a bag. Remove chicken from milk, coat with seasoned flour. In a large skillet heat 1/2 inch oil to 375°. Dark meat in pan first, add white meat 5 minutes later. Fry, turning often with tongs, 20 to 30 minutes until fork tender. Drain on paper towels; keep warm while preparing gravy.

CREAM GRAVY

Pan drippings
3 tbs. flour
1 1/2 c. half and half
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
Pour off all but 3 tablespoons of pan drippings from skillet. Loosen any brown bits in pan. Stir in flour. Cook over low heat until lightly browned. Gradually add half and half, stirring until smooth. Simmer about 7 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

SKILLET CREAMED POTATOES

8 new potatoes, peeled and diced
1/2 c. boiling water
dash of salt
1/2 c. milk
2 tbs. finely chopped parsley
Put potatoes in small skillet, add boiling water, sprinkle with salt. Cook covered 6 to 8 minutes. Uncover and continue cooking until water evaporates. Add milk, stir gently with fork over low heat until well blended and liquid has thickened slightly. Add parsley. Serve hot.

CURRY RICE SALAD

1 (6-oz.) pkg. long grain and wild rice mix
2 c. chicken broth
1 c. raisins
1 c. hot water
1/2 c. sliced green onions
1 c. chopped pecans, toasted
1 (16-oz.) can garbanzo beans, drained lettuce leaves
dressing (recipe follows)

Combine rice mix and broth in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat, and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until rice is tender, and liquid is absorbed. Combine raisins and water, let stand 10 minutes. Drain. Stir raisins, green onions, pecans, and beans into rice mixture. Serve on lettuce leaves. Serve with dressing. Salad may be served warm or cold and with or without dressing.

DRESSING

2/3 c. mayonnaise
1 tbs. curry powder
1 tbs. honey
1 tbs. vinegar
1/8 tsp. red pepper
2 tsp. prepared mustard
1 tsp. worchestershire sauce
Combine all ingredients and chill. Yield 3/4 cup.

CARROT SOUP

1 1/2 c. chopped onion
1/2 c. butter, melted
3 (10-oz.) cans chicken broth, diluted
1 lb. carrots, thinly sliced
1/2 c. uncooked long-grain rice
1 sprig fresh thyme
1/4 tsp. pepper

Saute' onions in butter in a Dutch oven until tender; add remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, cover, and simmer 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; cool 10 minutes. Pour 1/2 of the soup into container of blender; blend until smooth. Repeat with remaining soup. Yield 2 1/2 quarts.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE (MICROWAVE)

1/3 c. butter
1 1/2 tsp. lemon juice
2 egg yolks, lightly beaten
1/8 tsp. salt
dash of red pepper
Place butter in a 1-quart glass bowl. Microwave at HIGH 1 minute until melted. Add lemon juice, and stir well. Combine egg yolks, salt and red pepper; gradually add to butter mixture, stirring constantly with a wire whisk. Microwave at MEDIUM-LOW 1 to 1 1/2 minutes stirring with a wire whisk at 30-second intervals. Serve over cooked meats or vegetables.

ALMOST BANANA PUDDING

1/3 c. sugar
2 tbs. cornstarch
3 tbs. water
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 1/2 c. evaporated milk
1 tsp. vanilla
2 bananas, sliced
3 egg whites
1/4 tsp. cream of tartar
1 tbs. sugar
Combine cornstarch and 1/3 cup sugar in a heavy saucepan; add water and stir well. Add egg yolks and milk. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly, until mixture begins to bubble. Boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, and stir in vanilla. Let cool slightly. Fold in banana slices and spoon mixture into 66-ounce custard cups. Set aside.

Combine egg whites, at room temperature and cream of tartar in a small mixing bowl. Beat at high speed until soft peaks form. Gradually add 1 tablespoon sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Spread meringue over individual puddings, sealing to edge of cups. Bake at 400° for 8 to 10 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm or at room temperature.

3 eggs
Freeze rolls of cookie dough; slice one roll into 40 (1/8-in) slices. Arrange cookie slices in a well greased 15x10x1-inch jellyroll pan. Press cookie dough together to form bottom crust. Set aside. Beat cream cheese at high speed until light and fluffy; gradually add sugar, and mix well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Pour mixture onto cookie layer. Slice remaining dough into 40 slices; arrange over cream cheese mixture. Bake at 350° for 45 minutes. Cool. Cut into squares. 4 doz.

ZUCCHINI-HONEY BREAD

3 c. all-purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. soda
1 tbs. cinnamon
1 c. chopped pecans
2 large zucchini
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 1/2 c. sugar
1 c. oil
2 tsp. vanilla
Combine first 5 ingredients, stir in pecans. Peel zucchini; shred 2 cups, combine with remaining ingredients, stir until just moist. Pour batter into 2 greased bread pans. Bake at 350° 1 hour and 5 minutes, until a wooden pick inserted comes out clean. Cool in pans 10 minutes, remove from pans and cool on wire rack.

PEACHES AND CREAM CHEESECAKE

3/4 c. all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 pkg. vanilla pudding mix
3 tbs. butter, softened
1 egg
1/2 c. milk
1 (16-oz.) can sliced peaches, undrained
1 (8-oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
1/2 c. sugar
1 1/2 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
Combine first 7 ingredients in a mixing bowl; beat at medium speed, until smooth. Pour mixture into a greased 8-inch round cakepan. Drain peaches, reserving 3 tablespoons of peach liquid. Set liquid aside. Arrange peach slices over batter. Combine cream cheese, 1/2 cup sugar and reserved peach liquid, beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Spoon mixture over peaches in center of cake, leaving a 1-inch border around edge of cakepan. Combine 1 1/2 teaspoons of sugar and cinnamon, sprinkle over cream cheese filling. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes. Remove from oven, and cool to room temperature on a wire rack. Chill.

BAVARIAN CREAM WITH FRESH FRUIT

1 pkg. unflavored gelatin
1/2 c. sugar divided
1/4 tsp. salt
2 eggs, separated
1 1/4 c. milk
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 c. whipping cream, whipped strawberry slices
kiwi fruit slices
Blueberries

Combine gelatin, 1/4 cup sugar, and salt in top of a double boiler. Combine egg yolks and milk, mixing well; add to gelatin mixture. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves. Remove mixture from heat, and stir in vanilla. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Beat egg whites (at room temperature) until foamy. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup of sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into gelatin mixture. Pour into a lightly greased 4-cup mold, and chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with fresh fruits. Yield 6 servings.

BAKED CHILI CHICKEN WITH SALSA

1 med. onion, chopped
1 med. carrot, chopped, coarsley
1 stalk celery, coarsley chopped
1 bay leaf
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
5 c. water
8-boneless, skinless chicken breasts, halved
2 cans green chilies, undrained
12 fresh tomatillas, cored and halved
1/2 c. chopped onion
2 cloves garlic
1/4 c. firmly packed cilantro
vegetable cooking spray
10 corn tortillas
2 c. shredded mozzarella cheese
2 c. shredded cheddar cheese
salsas (recipe follows)

Combine first 7 ingredients in a large Dutch oven; bring to a boil over high heat. Add chicken breasts; cover, reduce heat, and simmer 5 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Remove from heat. Remove chicken, and chop into bite-size pieces, set aside. Strain broth mixture, reserving 1 cup. Set aside.

In a food processor bowl add green chilies and next 4 ingredients. Top with cover and process 1 minute until chili mixture is smooth. Coat a skillet with vegetable cooking spray. Place over medium heat until hot. Add chili mixture and cook, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes, gradually add chicken broth; stir well.

Cut tortillas into 1/2 inch strips; place in a single layer on a baking sheet. Bake at 350° for 15 minutes or until strips are crisp. Remove from oven; cool.

Coat a 13x9x2-inch baking dish with cooking spray. Layer half each of tortilla strips, chicken, sauce mixture, and all of mozzarella cheese; repeat layers of tortillas, chicken and sauce mixture. Cover and chill 8 hours. Bake at 350°, uncovered, for 40 minutes. Add cheddar cheese and bake an additional 5 minutes. Serve with salsa. Yield 12 servings.

SALSA

2 1/2 c. chopped tomatoes
2 cans chopped green chilies
1/4 c. diced onions
2 tbs. minced cilantro
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. sugar

Combine all ingredients in a medium bowl; stir well. Cover and chill 2 hours before serving. Yield 3 cups.

HOMEMADE SAUSAGE

1 lb. ground pork
2 tsp. rubbed sage
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
Combine all ingredients, mixing well. Shape into 6 patties, 1/2-in. thick. Cook in a large skillet, over medium heat 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Drain. Yield 6 servings.

ITALIAN SAUSAGE: Add 2 teaspoons paprika and 1/2 teaspoons fennel to above recipe.

COUNTRY SAUSAGE: Add 1/2 tsp. ground marjoram and 1/4 tsp. thyme to above recipe.

CRUNCHY PLUM COBBLER

2 lbs. fresh plums, pitted and quartered
3/4 c. firmly packed brown sugar
1 c. all-purpose flour
1/4 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 egg, beaten
1/4 c. butter, melted
ice cream or whipped cream (optional)
Arrange plums in a lightly greased 10x6x2-inch baking dish; sprinkle with brown sugar. Combine flour, sugar, cinnamon; add egg stirring with a fork until crumbly. Sprinkle flour mixture evenly over brown sugar; drizzle with butter. Bake at 375° for 45 minutes. If desired, serve with ice cream or whipped cream. Yield 6 servings.

Robinson named Chair of Ky. Chamber Board

William T. Robinson III

William T. Robinson III, partner with Greenebaum, Doll & McDonald in Covington, has been named chairman of the board for the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce. Robinson began his term at the chamber's annual meeting on May 15.

As chairman, Robinson leads the 60-member board in setting policy on a wide range of business and legislative issues as well as determining the chamber's priorities for the coming year. Board members come from throughout the state and represent every economic sector and every size business.

Tom W. Wright, president of AmeriQuest Inc. in Ashland, will serve as a regional vice-chairman for the coming year. Other Eastern Kentucky business executives serving on the board are Estill Lee Carter, president of Music-Carter-Hughes Chevrolet-Buick in Prestonsburg; Leon L. Hollon, president and CEO of Peoples Bank and Trust Co. in Hazard and William Owens, president of Pikeville College.

With headquarters in Frankfort, the Kentucky Chamber is the state's largest broad-based business association, with more than 3,000 members. The chamber advocates business positions with state government, sponsors Project 21 and Certified Cities, provides support for the 100 local chambers in the state and offers a variety of services and seminars for its members.

I often wonder why more people around here don't grow peanuts. This area is ideal. We have the long growing season peanuts require. Light frost in the early spring and late fall do not damage them. They are fun to grow and easy to cook and to eat. If you grow your own, they will be fresh, not musty nor moldy. We didn't grow any last summer and we really miss them. There seems to be a stigma about growing them. They are not grown only by the poor, lazy, southern people.

The Spanish red and the Mexican brown peanuts are the two most commonly grown in the USA. The Mexican peanut is the small variety used mostly for "salted peanuts." Small they may be, but they are heavy producers.

The Spanish peanut is larger and is usually boiled in oils, or sold roasted in the shells. They do not produce as abundantly as the smaller Mexican peanut, but their taste is far superior. Both are planted and grown alike.

Growing peanuts is no more difficult than growing green beans, but it's far more fun. Work the soil deep and well, turning in compost, leaf mold or well-rotted manure. Shell the peanuts and plant the seed about 3 inches deep. At least, that's what the instructions say. I find it best to plant them no more than 1 1/2 inches deep. Shallow plantings encourage quicker growth, and will prevent damp rot in case of a cold, wet spring, as is normal here. Plant four seeds in a hill or a mound, with mounds 18 inches apart in rows two feet apart.

If the sun hasn't warmed the ground up too well they will be slow to germinate. Don't become discouraged if they don't come up for a week or so. If the weather turns damp and cold they will not begin to come up for a couple of weeks.

When the plants are about 6 inches tall, start to cultivate. This will aerate the soil and keep down the weeds. After the plants are a foot high, hill the rows as you do your potatoes, hilling high around each mound. This is very important. As the plant grows, the lower leaves fall off. In place of the leaves, a long pointed peduncle appears and forces its way into the soil. A peanut pod appears at its very tip.

After the plants have been hilled up, mulch with at least eight inches of straw or grass clippings. The decaying mulch will not only keep down the weeds, but each time it rains, the juices will be carried down to the hungry roots. Your peanut plants, thus treated, will need no more attention until harvest.

Leave the plants in the ground

SWEDISH WEAVING WORKSHOP

A Swedish Weaving Workshop will be held on Tuesday, June 4, at the Auxier Fire Department at 6:30 p.m. Supplies needed are three colors of contrasting embroidery thread, a blunt end tapestry needle and scissors. Fabric will be available at a cost of $1.75 for each person. Call 886-2668 for reservations by June 3.

Cabbage Patch

By Nell Harmon

until the tops are completely destroyed by frost. Be sure the stems are not green or alive before you harvest. Pull or lift each bunch carefully out of the soil, using a potato fork if necessary, and shake them free of dirt. Run your hand around the soil to see if any peanuts have fallen off and gather them. Pull the peanuts from the stems immediately, and drop them in shallow trays to dry. After the trays are filled, store them in the attic or in the garage to dry. Never store them in the basement as the cool, damp moisture will cause them to mildew and rot.

After two months drying time you can roast them in the shell by placing them in a 300°F oven for 20 minutes. Then, remove them from the pan immediately. The peanuts will cook for some time after they are removed from the oven. At this stage, they are undercooked but, by the time they are cool, they will be cooked done.

Before the family eats them all, pick out some suitable peanuts for seed for next year's planting. These seeds will be better than any you can buy as they have become accustomed to your soil and climate. Seed pods should be plump with a pleasing yellow color. Save the shells or hulls for mulching as they are high in nitrogen. Uncooked, they have a nitrogen content 3 to 4 times higher than roasted hulls. Both raw and roasted hulls have the same amounts of phosphoric acid and potash.

For Bill Loftus, It Was A Better Way To Get Home Sooner.

Bill was lucky. He walked away from his car wreck last September. His seat belt probably saved his life, but it left him with a nagging pain in his lower abdomen. He toughed it out for two months before seeing his family physician, Dr. Blake Burchett. It was a hernia, needing surgical repair.

Bill did some homework on the hospital, a surgeon and even an anesthesiologist. He checked costs and reputations, looking for the right balance between economy and quality care. He needed to be in and out of surgery fast, and back home as soon as he could. The answer was Same Day Surgery at Highlands.

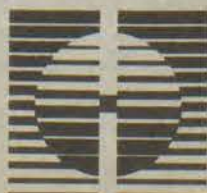

Bill is one of a growing number of smart healthcare consumers who ask for information and prices these days. With the help of his family doctor, his surgeon, Dr. William Cook, and the surgical and nursing staff at Highlands, he learned what he needed to know.

"We went into all the little details...how long it would take...what we were going to do...what recovery time would be like. I wanted to get in, I wanted to get it done and I wanted to get out. Everything went like a well-oiled machine...the people were wonderful, the care and concern that I experienced was wonderful."

To learn more about Same Day Surgery, ask your family doctor or call Ann Martin at Highlands, toll free 1-800-533-HRMC or locally, 886-8511.

We keep getting better at getting you better a whole lot closer to home

Bierman and Mrs. Joyce Short Allen, all of Prestonsburg.

Burchett improving

Mrs. Woodrow (Norcie) Burchett, who recently underwent surgery at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, is improving at her home on Cow Creek. Her many relatives and friends wish her the very best.

Salisbury birthday cookout

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Salisbury of Hunter were recent guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Grayson Johnson of Hindman, for a cookout honoring Mr. Salisbury on his birthday. Among those other than the Salisburys enjoying this event were Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Daugherty of Falls Church, Virginia; Dr. and Mrs. Paul J. Johnson and son Tyler of Lexington; Mr. David Johnson of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Beckham Combs, Ronald and Michael Johnson, all of Hindman. The honoree was presented with many gifts by his family and friends and a period of reminiscing was enjoyed.

Cooley shower

A stork shower honoring Tim and Gayle Cooley was given in Fellow-

Area artist's work to be exhibited throughout KY

Images From the Mountains: A Traveling Exhibit of Appalachian Artists will be on display at the Knott Public Library from June 3-28. The exhibit will feature work by local artist Thomas Whitaker of Floyd County.

Now in its fourth year, Images From the Mountains is a juried exhibit that showcases Eastern Kentucky artists. This year's exhibit includes 27 paintings and prints by 21 regional artists. Susan Dickson, director of the Ohio Arts Council's Individual Artist Program, selected the works. Other areal artists include Nan Spradlin of Johnson County and Robert Moler of Knott County.

A reception will be held in the Knott County library on Monday, June 3, from 2-5 p.m.

ship Hall of the First Community United Methodist Church on Thursday evening, May 16, at 7 p.m. The room was decorated in keeping with the occasion. Hostesses for this event were Mesdames Sherry Tucker, Sandy Howell, Cheryl Sexton, Debra Burke, Sharon May, Debbie Patton, Pam Leslie, Ernestine Collins, Christina Simpson, Sue Spradlin, Nadine Booth, Rebecca DeRossett, Kim Compton and Carol Ann DeRossett. Many attractive and useful gifts were received for which sincere thanks were expressed.

Flowers...

Flowers on the altar of the First Baptist Church during services there on Sunday morning were for Mrs. Sarah Laven, on her birthday from her nieces and nephews.

Retired teachers' luncheon

Members of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association will have a cover-dish luncheon meeting on Thursday, June 6, beginning at 10:30 a.m. at Stumbo Park, Allen. Matters of importance to retired teachers will be discussed. The Allen Grade School's square dance group, under the direction of Mesdames Glenda Blackburn and Florene Harris, will present a program similar to that presented during the recent Big Sandy Retired Teacher's Association at the Jenny Wiley Convention Center. Miss Ruby Akers and other officers of this organization remind members and those who may be interested in becoming members that membership is being stressed during the years 1990-92, and urge them to be present.

ALC alumni get-together

Floyd County Alice Lloyd College Alumni members are reminded of the "get together" of this group at Alice Lloyd on June 15 and are asked to help make this a memorable event.

Methodist bake sale a success

The Friendship Circle of the First United Methodist Church has reported that the Spring Cleaning and Bake Sale was a great success and they thank all those who helped in any way or donated items for this sale.

Corrections

The names of Sarah and Charlie Butcher should be added to the list of family members who attended the recent birthday party and luncheon for Mrs. Orville (Gladys) Cooley.

The name of Mrs. Myrtle Allen should be added to the list of those attending the recent A.A.R.P. dinner meeting at Highland Regional.

A part of the item concerning the Alice Lloyd College - Floyd County

Alumni banquet at May Lodge this past week should have read, under the part of reminiscing: Prof Charles Houghton demanded — and, in a few instances, almost realized his goal of perfection from his English students. The Lee Hall family operated the store at C.C.C.C. and, in case students didn't have a nickel to pay for a Mr. Goodbar, the Hall family would sometimes allow these students to "open up little charge accounts."

The names Dean Wallace Campbell and Jane Campbell should be added to the list of A.L.C. administrators who attended this event.

Howells' 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Howell of Prestonsburg celebrated fifty years of marriage on May 3. Many friends and relatives shared in the celebration at a party given in their honor on May 5. Special singing was provided by Jessie Castle, Ladene Sturgill and Mary Ruth Caudill of the West Van Lear Missionary Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell have two daughters, Dolores Ann Ward of Van Lear and Sandra Howell of Prestonsburg, two grandchildren, Markquita Smith and Michael Neal Ward and three great-grandchildren, Dara Michelle Click, Micah LeeAnn Ward and Joseph Edward Ward, all of Van Lear.

The Howells would like to express their appreciation to everyone who attended the party and for the many lovely gifts they received.

Miss Rachel E. Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Allen of Prestonsburg, will marry Mr. Philip Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin of Bowling Green, Ky., on Saturday, June 8, at 2:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church (Irend Cole) in Prestonsburg.

The gracious custom of open church will be observed. A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony at the Allen home, 119 Central Avenue. Everyone is invited to attend. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Burchett and Mr. and Mrs. John Allen.

Every season brings change to Hillenmeyer Nurseries. But since 1954, their health insurance has been firmly rooted with Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Truly one of Lexington's garden spots, Hillenmeyer Nurseries has been on the same 275-acre spread since 1841. Five generations of Hillenmeyers have planted, pruned and nurtured the trees, shrubs and evergreens they sell across the country.

At Hillenmeyer's, something new is always sprouting up. Except when you talk to Louis, Chris and Stephen Hillenmeyer about their health insurance. For the past 37 years, just one health insurance company has tended to their needs - Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

Innovative thinking and a wide range of quality health plans have enabled Blue Cross and Blue Shield to meet the Hillenmeyers' ever-changing needs. While some companies change insurers like the seasons, the Hillenmeyers have opted for the strength, stability and resources of Kentucky's most popular health insurance company.

If you want your health plan to come up roses, contact Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

Good isn't good enough anymore.

Brokers can show buyers innovative ways to finance a second home

The number of people who buy second homes likely will increase in the 1990s as baby-boomers set up their retirement homes and people continue to take advantage of the mortgage interest deduction on second residences. As a result, more and more people will want to know about the various financing options available in the second-home market, according to an article in the September issue of Real Estate Today, published by the National Association of Realtors.

According to a recent recreational property survey sponsored in part by NAR, second homes are not only for the upper-income brackets. The survey released this summer showed that a surprising percentage of middle income wage earners can afford a second or recreational home. More than half the owners surveyed had annual household incomes ranging between $20,000 and $59,999. In comparison, only 13.3 percent had incomes exceeding $100,000, suggesting that wealth is not a requisite to owning a second home.

Homeowners may be more apt to get into the second-home market if they can find an agent who's familiar with the guidelines and understands the various reasons individuals seek second homes, say Gary Stephens and

Tim Woods, Realtors from Big Bear Lake, Calif., and co-authors of the article, "Show Buyers How To Fund a Second Home."

For example, for a buyer who may spend several months a year in another city on business, a second home is more than just a resort property.

For buyers to get into the second-home market, it's important that they understand the financing parameters. In many ways second-home financing is similar to financing for primary residences. "Although some lenders shy away from it because of the higher risk factor, most of the normal financing sources are available—mortgage companies, commercial banks, S & Ls and life insurance companies," say the co-authors.

As with primary-home loans, lenders look for specific ingredients in the loan package of a second-home loan applicant. Most of the same characteristics apply, with emphasis placed on credit history, appraisal, debt-to-income ratios and standard verification of employment, deposits, and mortgage credit rating.

According to the article, like primary-home loans, most conventional second-home loans are sold to the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac). However, those agencies categorize second homes in a class by themselves, separate from owner-occupied or investment properties. Because of that, the lending guidelines differ somewhat from those for primary homes.

For example, say Stephens and Wood, Freddie Mac specifies that the second home must be in a location that will allow it to function as a second home. "That is, it has to be remote in distance from the buyer's primary home."

Freddie Mac doesn't allow it to function as a second home. "That is, it has to be remote in distance from the buyer's primary home."

Freddie Mac doesn't allow owners to refinance second homes to draw out equity, and the home can't be subject to mandatory rental agreements. However, owners may elect to rent their second home during those times when they know they won't be there.

There are differences, as well. For example, lenders of second-home loans work under a different set of loan-to-value ratios (LTV's). Conventional lenders typically require an 80 percent LTV, and the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) requires an 85 percent LTV. So buyers applying for a conventional second-home loan would have to come up with a minimum down payment of 20 percent, and a 15 percent down payment using an FHA loan.

"Borrowers can get around the 20 percent down payment requirement if sellers are willing to carry back some of the financing," note the co-authors.

Another district difference between buying primary and second homes concerns "multi-unit" property purchases. With most lenders, borrowers who buy a "multi-unit" property can obtain an owner-occupied interest rate as long as they intend to use one of the "multi-unit" properties to be classified as second homes.

Consequently, most lenders will classify the purchase as an investment property, with non-owner-occupied financing, often resulting in higher rates and fees and a larger down payment.

Residency requirements are considered in the approval process on almost all loans sold to Fannie Mae.

Second-home buyers can opt for conventional financing if they can meet the guidelines and come up with enough money.

"But when you're working in the second-home market, you may come across more non-conforming or restrictive loans than you would in the primary-home market. One reason may be that the buyers aren't selling a home and moving up, so coming up with a down payment may be difficult," say Stephens and Wood.

In addition, they note, the buyers may not meet standard debt-to-income ratios if they're financing two homes. Finally, in some resort areas it's common to find older standard properties or properties with non-conforming zonings.

FHA loans are common in the second-home market, particularly since FHA increased its maximum loan limits in high-priced areas. The assumability feature and the 15 percent down payment requirement are very attractive to second-home buyers who may not have enough cash to put down for a conventional loan. When FHA financing is used, the second home must be owner occupied and not used as a rental. VA-guaranteed mortgages aren't available on second homes.

Real Estate Today is published monthly by NAR, except during February and December.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing nearly 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.
