Airport debate :

Neither board may act

by Tony Fyffe
The Paintsville Herald

Neither the "old" nor "new" Paintsville-Prestonsburg Airport Boards will take any action on the future of Combs Field until a lawsuit is settled in Johnson County Circuit Court, attorneys agreed Wednesday.

Appearing at a hearing before Judge Stephen N. Frazier, attorneys for the cities of Paintsville and Prestonsburg and the Floyd/Johnson County Pilots' Association also agreed to allow the "old" and "new" treasurers to work together to pay bills at Combs until the issue is resolved.

The pilots' group and others filed suit last week after Mayors John David Preston of Paintsville and Ann Latta of Prestonsburg jointly appointed a new, six-member airport board. The suit claims the appointments must be ratified by the respective city councils; the mayors disagree.

The suit also claims Preston, Latta and others are involved in a "conspiracy" to close Combs Field. An amended complaint filed before Wednesday's hearing further alleges that the mayors' appointees intend to close the facility.

Preston and Latta have "specifically solicited the aid of people who would be appointed to the airport board...who would agree to aid in closing the airport," the amended suit states.

It also contends that both cities would have an obligation to pay the state $250,000 to close the facility. Such expenditures must be approved by the city councils, it says.

Dale Phillips, city attorney for Paintsville, Larry Brown, city attorney for Prestonsburg, and C.K. Belhasen, attorney for the pilots' association, said during the hearing that the main issue is whether last week's appointments have to be approved by the city councils.

Frazier agreed, but added that there was a concern that the new board would act to close Combs Field before the issue is resolved. Phillips and Brown assured him that such action would not be taken.

The old board would also not consider the airport's future during the litigation, Belhasen said.

Preston contended that the old board does not have the authority to consider any issue since it has only three members, noting that Prestonsburg was without representation until last week.

Belhasen noted that numerous airport bills would have to be paid before a decision is made by Frazier. The attorneys said that J.K. Wells, elected treasurer last week, and Byrd Preston, the old treasurer, could jointly take care of the payments.

Frazier gave both sides 25 days to file briefs in the case, indicating that a ruling would be rendered soon after.

New members appointed by the mayors last week were Mike Schmitt, Scott Perry, Ted Naim, Sam Isbell and Dr. David White.

The old board consists of Preston, Greg Meade and Dr. Joe Spears.

Pike physician loses license

A Pike County physician's license to practice medicine was revoked in September by the Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure.

According to a disciplinary report from the licensure board, Magdi Z. Phamy, M.D. is accused of ordering excessive medical tests and overcharging for an anesthesia unit provided to patients. The excess charges resulted in the physician receiving overpayment for his services, the report said.

The case is presently being appealed by Phamy in Jefferson Circuit Court

Surveying the scene

Prestonsburg Police officers Gerald Clark, Anthony Castle and Sue Blackburn surveyed the scene of an accident Tuesday afternoon near Ball Alley Curve in Prestonsburg. At least two individuals were injured in the accident. The accident report had not been completed at prestime Thursday, according to the Prestonsburg Police dispatcher, and details of the incident were not available. The accident is being investigated by Sue Blackburn. (photo by Janice Shepherd)

To coincide with Bicentennial :

Chambers eye tourism train

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

You can hear the whistle blowing, it's coming 'round the bend... Maybe.

If a joint effort by four Eastern Kentucky chambers of commerce builds up enough steam, the region could offer a unique view of Appalachia this summer...just in time for Kentucky's 200th birthday.

The project has been dubbed the Eastern Kentucky Bicentennial Excursion and it involves a passenger train trip from Russell, in Greenup County, to Dante, Virginia, in June 1992.

Project coordinators, Keith Akers with the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, and Clyde Blevins, with the Paintsville-Johnson County Chamber of Commerce, are awaiting a feasibility report on the project before setting final details.

Akers said this week that tentative plans call for the train excursion to begin at the Russell rail yard near Ashland, with stops along the way at Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Elkhorn City. The 110-mile trip (one-way) will be the longest tourism excursion in the state, culminating at Dante, Virginia, before making a return to Russell.

Consisting of 30 coaches—including two observation cars, two dining cars and a flatbed for picture-taking—the train will pass through the Breaks of the Appalachians, called by Akers the "Grand Canyon of the South." Entertainment and an historic overview of the region will be provided throughout the seven-hour trip.

Riders, Akers said, may board or disembark at any of the stops. Two trips are tentatively scheduled, one on June 6 and another for June 7, 1992, and prices will be advertised after all plans are finalized.

Akers said a host of dignitaries, including President George Bush, would be invited to join the excursion.

In Prestonsburg council race :

Recanvass requested

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Prestonsburg City Councilman who was not re-elected in Tuesday's election filed Thursday for a recanvass because of voting problems in the Cliff number two precinct.

Dr. Gary Brown served notice to the Floyd County Board of Elections for a recanvass of votes in the seven precincts in the city limits.

Precincts to be reviewed are: Courthouse, Trimble Branch, Depot, Richmond, Cliff number five, Porter and Cliff number two.

Brown's attorney, Larry Brown, said Thursday that once the votes have been recanvassed Brown will decide whether to pursue the possibility of having another election in the city race.

"If my client decides to seek another election, it will be up the courts to decide if another election can be held and what precincts will be involved," Larry Brown said Thursday.

Brown was defeated by 17 votes in Tuesday's race. County Court Clerk Carla Boyd said Tuesday that if a recanvass was called for it would be held November 13 at 8 a.m.

Questions were raised about Tuesday's council race when several voters from the Cliff precinct complained to Boyd they were not allowed to vote in that race.

Voters at Cliff precinct number two were not denied the opportunity to vote Tuesday in the Prestonsburg City Council race, said election officer Mary Stambaugh.

Stambaugh said Thursday that "about three" persons who complained about not being able to vote in that race did not inform election officers they lived in the city. She added that since the precinct is split, most eligible voters for that district were identified on the election roster.

"We did not deny anyone the right to vote," Stambaugh said. "Several people who voted told us after they had already voted that they couldn't vote in the city race. They wanted to go back in the voting booth to vote again and that can't be done."

Those voters were not identified

The director of the Floyd County Head Start program was elected to the Kentucky Head Start executive committee last month.

Innovation is goal for Stamper

Chuck Stamper

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Innovation may take the place of tradition in Floyd County's 4-H program with the arrival of a new youth development agent.

The days of focusing on water and soil conservation as the primary objective for 4-H should take a backseat to a host of new programs geared toward helping today's youth deal with problems facing them.

Chuck Stamper, the county's new agent, hopes to begin 4-H programs that deal with the situations facing latch-key children and he wants to see more teacher and parent involvement.

"I've been involved in 4-H since I was in fifth grade at Quicksand in Knott County," Stamper said. "I think 4-H is one of the best ways for students to learn leadership and to respect their elders. It promotes positive morality."

"There are a lot of new programs developed for 4-H. I'd like to begin some of those and build on the existing programs, too," Stamper added.

County wide meetings at central locations are planned for the coming year and hopefully, Stamper wants to develop a drama program for 4-H students.

"I want to begin a program dealing with public speaking and a theater program," Stamper said. "I hope to get a play together that the students can do and put on a performance for the community."

The latch-key program would teach children about safety issues concerning being home alone and how to schedule their time until their parents can join them.

"We're beginning to see an increase in latch-key children in Floyd County," Stamper said. "Our program, among other things, would teach them cooking safety and what to do if a stranger came to their door."

Besides implementing new programs, Stamper wants to build up the 4-H summer camping program.

Pike man shares record jackpot

Life for Robert Coleman of Racoon in Pike County changed dramatically Wednesday after he had one of the two winning lottery tickets for the state's largest jackpot.

Coleman, 57, will share Lotto Kentucky's $42 million prize with Tom Savage, a retired salesman from Louisville.

Coleman told reporters Thursday that he and his wife, Janice, left Pike County at 3 a.m. Thursday morning to drive to Louisville to collect his share of the jackpot. Governor Wallace Wilkinson, who was on hand to present the checks to the two men, offered to give Coleman a ride home by way of the state's helicopter.

It wasn't all good news for the Coleman family Wednesday: Coleman's aunt died Wednesday night.

Coleman's wife said Thursday that she had no plans to retire from her job, a cook at a Dairy Queen restaurant.

Savage's wife, Norma, resigned her position as a teller at the First National Bank in Louisville early Thursday morning.

Coleman bought his ticket at Food City in the Town and Country Plaza in Pikeville. Food City will receive $210,000, a one-percent commission on the sale.

Both men matched the six winning numbers, 1, 5, 19, 25, 35 and 38 on a quick pick play.

Both couples have five children and said they would share their good fortune with them.

Savage said Thursday that he went upstairs to wake his wife after he found out his numbers matched. Savage said his wife told him she had to go to work and rolled over and went back to sleep.

The Lotto jackpot grew to a record $42 million after nine weeks of no winners. The winners will receive $789,000 each year for the next 20 years.

Both couples said they would continue to play the Kentucky Lottery.

PRESTONSBURG MAYOR Ann Latta accepted a plaque last week at Frankfort which commemorated the city's selection as a Hall of Fame City under the state Chamber of Commerce's Certified Cities program. State Chamber president Bill Robinson, left, made the presentation.

Third arrest made in theft probe

A third suspect in a four-county theft ring was taken into custody Thursday by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Harold Brown, Jr., 19, of Prestonsburg was charged with burglary and theft by unlawful taking. Brown is a suspect in a theft ring being investigated by the sheriff's department and the Kentucky State Police.

Officials say that the ring is operating out of Pike, Johnson, Knott and Floyd counties. Two Floyd County men were arrested last month in connection with that investigation.

In other police activity, Delbert Jacobs, 36, of Ligonier, Indiana, was extradited to Floyd County Thursday by deputy Larry Newsome. Jacobs faces flagrant non-support charges in Floyd County.

Education bill gets House okay

A House-Senate conference report containing $596 million for education programs serving needy areas passed the House of Representatives Wednesday.

Concentration grants, a formula created by Congressman Chris Perkins that funnels federal dollars to school districts with the highest concentration of low-income families, received the funds. A large amount of those funds were allocated to Eastern Kentucky, Perkins said.

The funds are included in an appropriations bill for the Department of Education, Labor and Health, and Human Services for fiscal year 1992. It now only needs to be approved by the Senate and signed by the president.

Perkins first got funding for concentration grants in 1986.

Community Education Day to focus on literacy

The focus will be on local literacy programs as Kentucky community educators and the Kentucky Literacy Commission join in the observance of National Community Education Day on Tuesday, Nov. 19.

The theme of the 10th annual observance is "Literacy: A Community Affair." In communities throughout Kentucky, the observance will call attention to the societal problems resulting from illiteracy and spotlight local programs promoting literacy.

A number of community education and literacy programs will hold open houses or other special activities to showcase their programs and honor community volunteers.

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson has proclaimed Nov. 19 as Community Education Day in Kentucky, noting that illiteracy prevents people from leading productive lives and contributes to the generational cycle of undereducation and poverty.

The proclamation urges all citizens to support the efforts of community educators, the Kentucky Literacy Commission, schools and community volunteers to provide opportunities for all Kentuckians to become literate and to lead better and more productive lives.

Community Education Day was established by the National Community Education Association to recognize and promote strong working partnerships between schools and communities. Each year the association chooses a theme in keeping with its emphasis on school-community collaboration and lifelong learning.

Stephanie Christenson, president of the Kentucky Community Education Association and Woodford County community education director, said the observance would give community educators an opportunity to demonstrate their commitment to the nation's educational goals by helping to create a literate populace.

Ensuring that every adult American will be able to read by the year 2000 was one of six national goals adopted by the Bush administration and the National Governors' Association in 1990.

National Community Education Day is co-sponsored by the Council of Chief State School Officers, Laubach Literacy Action, Literacy Volunteers of America, the American Association of School Administrators, the National Association of Partners in Education, Project Literacy U.S. and other educational and civic groups.

"Kids can learn so much at 4-H camp and it's fun," Stamper said. "We've seen a decline in the number of students who attend camp and I hope we can encourage more kids to attend."

The 4-H program serves students from ages nine to 19 in the county school system and stands for head, heart, hands and health. For more information about the program contact Stamper at 886-2668 or visit the office located in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex, room 106.

on the roster as being eligible to vote in the city, Stambaugh said. Those persons should have notified the election officers before casting their ballots, she said.

Boyd said Tuesday night that several people had complained to her office that they could not vote in the city council race. Boyd said that 27 people were registered to vote in that race at Cliff. No votes were cast according to official records in the Cliff precinct for Prestonsburg City Council race.

Stambaugh said Thursday that she planned to discuss the issue with the state's Attorney General Fred Cowan and Boyd.

Inevitable flu season due soon, time for immunizations

Flu season usually doesn't hit Kentucky before December, but health officials say that the next few weeks are the best time to get a flu shot for those who need them.

Department for Health Services officials recommend that anyone with chronic heart or lung disease should have a flu shot. Those with chronic kidney disease or diabetes should be immunized, as should nursing home residents.

Anyone older than 65 — regardless of their health status — and physicians, nurses and other health care professionals who have contact with high-risk patients should also have a flu shot, according to Clarkson Palmer, M.D., manager of the departments communicable diseases branch.

"It's important for people with chronic diseases to have a preventive flu shot because for these people influenza can lead to serious complications and can even be life-threatening," Palmer said.

Palmer says that November is the best time for Kentuckians to get shots because flu season tends to begin sometime in December and peak in January and February. Cases of influenza usually extend into March.

"While November is the best time for an influenza vaccine, a little earlier won't hurt," said Palmer. "And if someone in the high-risk groups goes through November without getting a shot, they should go ahead and get one in December — it's better late than never."

The shots can be given to most people, except those with a severe allergy to eggs. Those people who have a short-term illness with fever should put off getting the shot until they have recovered.

Pregnant women should consult with a doctor before receiving the immunization, but they are generally advised to wait until the second or third trimester of pregnancy before getting a flu shot.

People younger than age 18 who have a flu-like illness should not take aspirin while sick because of the risk of Reye Syndrome, Palmer said. Reye Syndrome is a disease that affects the central nervous system and liver and is associated with the combination of flu and aspirin use in children and teenagers. It is fatal in 10 to 40 percent of the cases.

Parents should contact their child's doctor for alternatives to aspirin use during flu-like illnesses.

Influenza vaccinations are available at local health departments in Kentucky and from private physicians.

Local doctor recertified as Family practice specialist

Dr. Larry Milford Leslie of Prestonsburg, has been recertified as a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a recertification examination offered by the ABFP. The physician thus maintains specialist status in the medical specialty of family practice.

ABFP diplomates must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years. The family practice specialty was the first to require diplomates to be recertified on a continuing basis.

The written examination is designed to prove the candidate's continuing competence in the basic components of family practice—internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and neurology, and community medicine.

To qualify for certification initially, a physician must have successfully completed three years of residency training in family practice and passed an intensive certification examination. There are some 390 residency training programs in teaching hospitals and university medical centers across the United States.

About 40,000 family physicians have now been certified in the specialty. Most are members of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy was the first national medical group to require members to take continuing study, and was chiefly responsible for securing speciality status for family practice.

Solomon wrote, "What has been will be again, what has been done will be done again...there is nothing new under the sun." (Ecclesiastics 1:9)

This has been amply demonstrated in the state of Ohio. Some churches, according to news reports, offer savings of other than souls. The Huntington National Bank has installed banking services in three churches in Columbus, Ohio.

Yes, that's right buddy! The money-changers are back in the temple. Other large banks said this may be a trend that catches on nation wide. I wonder if it will take Jesus' second coming to enforce again, "my house will be called a house of prayer, but you are making it a den of thieves." (Matthew 21:13). "There is nothing new under the sun."

There are many victims of harassment. Gwendolyn Hammonds was a victim; Anita Hill was NOT!!

Having made the above distinction, I will now confine my remarks, for the most part, on Gwen's case. By the way, she is a close relative of mine, so when I speak of her, it is not as a stranger, but having known her all her life.

First, I want to congratulate Gwen for her courage in bringing the case against her principal. I am sure she weighed the pros and cons very carefully, but in her final analysis, must have heard her Daddy Bill saying, "Never start a fight, but never run from one."

I also congratulate the County Prosecutor's Office; especially Dan Rowland, for the decision to prosecute the case. I don't doubt that they were under great pressure, both overt and covert, to not prosecute the case. So, two thumbs up for Mr. Rowland. His tenacity is admirable. It could not have been easy for Gwen or Mr. Rowland to buck the entrenched tong that has ruled Floyd County from time immemorial. I believe that tong has outlived its usefulness—read that USELESSNESS.

Parents, teachers, pupils, and all you taxpayers, working together, you can take back your schools. No, it's not going to be easy, but nothing worthwhile ever is. What is more worthwhile and precious than your children? Volunteering just a few hours a week in the schools is a great way to keep abreast of happenings.

In September, the great movie director, Frank Capra, died. Among his many films were the classics, "It's a Wonderful Life," and "Meet John Doe." While reading about his life, I came across the following: "At age 84, upon receiving the American Film Institute's Life Achievement Award, Capra explained his art as "the love of people." And, he further stated, "Add two simple ideals to this love of people—the freedom of each individual and the equal importance of each individual—and you have the principle upon which I've based my films."

I would like to think the above-mentioned citation from Capra is the guiding principle of Floyd Countians: Love of people, the freedom of each individual and the equal importance of each individual.

Let's face it, this state is facing a budget deficit of $155 million, including a $31.7 million reduction in the budget for higher education. I think legislative budget chiefs, Senator Michael Maloney and Representative Joe Clark, should seriously investigate the cost of implementing the death penalty. Kansas has repeatedly voted down the death penalty, hours a week in the cost issue. Death penalty states like Texas, Maryland, California, Ohio, and Florida have reported costs ranging from $1 million to $7.3 million per execution, depending upon the method of cost evaluation.

For a long time now, Kentucky has had to finance approximately 30 inmates on death row. Frankly, I have to think that dropping the death penalty would certainly eliminate the need to reduce the budget for higher education—and would likely obliterate the entire budget shortfall.

Because of the arbitrary and unpredictable nature of sentencing, the death penalty is a kind of lottery anyway, isn't it? Without it, we would all be winners.

Report to Kentucky

by Senator Wendell Ford

IT'S TIME TO CLARIFY
AND ADDRESS CONCERNS ABOUT THE CONGRESS

I want to use this Report to Kentucky to address some very serious questions and concerns that have been raised about the operation of the Congress under the U.S. Constitution.

Let me start right off with two equally important points.

First, I am convinced that we have an obligation to all of our constituents to review and improve some of our most vital congressional procedures in the light of recent events.

I will be doing everything I can to meet that obligation as chairman of a new Senate task force to recommend improvements in our confirmation process for presidential nominees to the Supreme Court and many other federal positions.

Second, we have an absolute duty to preserve the constitutional role of the Congress and to correct any and all misconceptions that might arise in that regard.

Unfortunately, one very serious misconception was reflected in the President's recent statement that the Congress has exempted itself from the civil rights laws of this nation.

The fact is that these laws have been applied to the Congress in a manner consistent with the separation-of-powers doctrine of the Constitution. They have not been applied to the White House, a fact that the White House has overlooked.

I sponsored last year's measure applying the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and related legislation to the Congress. I also helped to shape a compromise amendment to the Civil Rights Act of 1991, building upon last year's gains through provisions for new internal procedures and judicial review for Senate employees.

This new civil rights bill, recently approved by the Senate, also extends these provisions to the White House.

My concern is that the Congress and the President work together to apply our laws to all Americans with the kind of fairness and common sense Kentuckians can understand.

This is also the approach I plan to take as chairman of the task force appointed by Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell to review the Senate's constitutional mandate of "advice and consent" with regard to presidential appointments.

I look forward to working with key committee chairmen—Senators Boren, Nunn, Biden and Pell—in recommending changes to fully protect the rights of individuals in every phase of the confirmation process. We face a difficult task in this effort to right any wrong that has found its way into this critical and highly sensitive process. But it must be done—and done now.

Some of us have been pressing for reforms in every part of our federal government for a long time now—and we welcome those now underway, including the appointment of a special counsel to investigate Senate leaks.

I see a great opportunity to accelerate the process of reform. I also see a continuing responsibility to preserve the foundation of our great democracy—a foundation resting in large part on the separate constitutional powers of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government.

Elvis is dead

by Scott Perry

Now that the election is over, everybody and their brother will be offering their opinions of what happened. Since we don't have a brother, we'll have to give ours, ourselves.

Here's what happened.

One side won, the other lost.

Political analysts will try to find some deep-rooted causes for why one side won and the other side lost.

But the real reason is as obvious as the nose on Jimmy Durante's face.

There ain't but one side.

The two-party system in Kentucky is as dead as Elvis and less likely than the King to be spotted in some grocery store checkout line in the future.

The low voter turnout in Kentucky general elections is no surprise, either.

Who needs to vote? Statewide races are decided in the primary.

Let's face the facts.

The only way a Republican can win a state office in Kentucky is to be registered as a Democrat.

Ain't that so, Mr. Jones?

CUT THE "LAWYER'S TAX"

This week I plan to propose a tax cut. A tax cut that will not increase the deficit, and requires no offset, and will stimulate economic growth. I am referring to the "Lawyer's Tax"—the liability Crisis.

The "Lawyer's Tax" is the stealth tax. It is added to virtually every product sold in this country. This tax is 95% of the cost of a child vaccine; one-third the cost of a stepladder; and $300 added to the cost of having a baby delivered.

Direct litigation costs and higher insurance premiums cost this country $80 billion every year. The total cost of the "Lawyer's Tax," including the cost incurred trying to avoid it, is $300 BILLION every year. Businesses simply cannot absorb the high cost of the lawyers fees, they must pass it on to you—the consumer through higher prices.

This is how my "Lawyer's Tax" cut, the Lawsuit Reform Act of 1991, works: (1) It abolishes the doctrine of joint and several liability, so that a defendant's share of the damages is proportional with his share of the responsibility for causing the harm. (2) It requires the loser of any civil action covered by the bill to pay the legal cost of the winner, up to a reasonable limit, unless the loser is legally indigent. (3) It prohibits a person from suing others if the person was under the influence of illegal drugs or alcohol and this condition was over 50% responsible for their injury. (4) It provides that awards for damages in product liability suits will be offset by payments from workers, compensation by payments from workers, compensation programs, and allows for a right of subrogation. (5) It limits the statutory liability of local governments except in bonafide constitutional rights cases. (6) It promotes alternative means of dispute resolution.

The Lawsuit Reform Act protects both the victims of wrongful injuries—who have a right to fair compensation—and the victims of wrongful lawsuits. These six provisions would go a long way toward restoring balance and reason to a civil justice system that is currently crushing America's volunteer spirit, driving up health care cost, reducing educational opportunities, cutting essential services of local governments, and making America less competitive in the world marketplace.

The current liability system does not serve consumers. It serves lawyers. The Lawsuit Reform Act serves all Americans by protecting victims of wrongful injuries as well as victims of wrongful lawsuits.

The Lawsuit Reform Act serves all Americans by protecting victims of wrongful injuries as well as victims of wrongful lawsuits.

Allen Elementary School held a trick-or-treat night on October 30 at the school, where they treated over 460 kids.

According to a survey by the Arthritis Foundation life can be made less painful for arthritis sufferers

An Arthritis Foundation survey shows that 74 percent of people with arthritis polled experience more than the "minor aches and pains" popularized by television commercials. However these same people report that they are very optimistic about life because they stay in charge of arthritis by using a variety of strategies they say help manage the disease, many of which are available through the Arthritis Foundation.

The majority of respondents in the Arthritis Foundation survey say arthritis causes moderate to severe pain. More than 50 percent say arthritis even affects their ability to do everyday tasks, such as bending down to pick up clothing from the floor or getting in and out of a car. However, 64 percent of the same respondents are very optimistic about life. Among the items mentioned as important to coping with arthritis, 93 percent cite taking an active role in their own care, 86 percent cite staying informed, 86 percent cite regular exercise, 96 percent cite appropriate rest, and 94 percent cite maintaining a balanced diet.

This survey shows that despite a common misperception that nothing can be done for arthritis, there are many ways to make life easier and less painful," John L. Cowan, M.D., Chairman of the Arthritis Foundation, Kentucky Chapter's Medical and Scientific Committee. "One of the keys to coping with the disease is to stay in charge of arthritis and not to let arthritis take control of your life. And one of the first things someone can do is contact the Arthritis Foundation for information and help."

The Arthritis Foundation, Kentucky Chapter has a variety of services designed specifically to help people with arthritis improve the quality of their lives, Dr. Cowan noted. These services include information about the different kinds of arthritis, medications and other treatments effective in treating the disease, self-help measures, support groups, exercise programs, arthritis self-help courses, a loan closet of medical treatment, referrals to specialists who treat arthritis, and referrals to other community services. All are available either free or at minimal cost and vary in availability depending upon the local community. To find out what is available in your community, call the Kentucky Chapter's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-633-5335. In addition, through a $20 annual membership donation, persons can receive a year's subscription to the national bi-monthly magazine, "Arthritis Today" which features current information on arthritis treatments, research, and methods to effectively cope with arthritis.

May is National Arthritis Month. The Arthritis Foundation is encouraging people to stay in charge of arthritis by taking an active role in their treatment. The Arthritis Foundation is the source of help and hope for an estimated 500,000 Kentuckians and 37 million Americans who have arthritis. The Foundation supports research to find the cure for and prevention of arthritis and seeks to improve the quality of life for those affected by arthritis.

Kentucky Veterans can find job assistance at employment offices

On November 11 Americans will honor the nation's service men and women for their contributions to their country, but every day is "Veterans Day" in Kentucky's Department for Employment Services, where veterans receive special help with their hiring needs.

"Veterans are usually good employee prospects because of their training and experience," said Employment Services Commissioner Darvin Allen. "They also deserve the help we can give them in light of their contributions."

For the 1990-91 fiscal year, Kentucky's state job service agency met all 14 veteran performance standards as set by the federal government — the first time that has happened in four years.

The U.S. Department of Labor gets those standards for job placement, training, counseling, federal contract awards and other general services.

"Kentucky has always done a good job of helping veterans with employment and training needs, but in the past few years we've fallen short in a couple of areas," Allen said. "This year we've targeted those areas and have improved our results."

States are required to give preferential treatment to veterans in these areas when job candidates have equal qualifications. Among those considered first are Vietnam-era and disabled veterans.

"Of the nearly 325,000 job applicants we had last fiscal year, about 11 percent were veterans and of those about 6 percent were disabled," said John Hodgkin, director of DES's Division of field services.

Each of the agency's 28 field offices has a local veterans employment representative to assist former military personnel.

Another 11 offices have 25 Disabled Veteran Outreach Program specialists who work in local offices and out stations, such as veterans hospitals.

In addition to the regular services for veterans, DES will assist the Department of Defense and DOL with the new Transition Assistance Program (TAP) at Fort Knox, which will start by year's end.

TAP will help military personnel, who have left active duty within 180 days, to move into private employment. The three-day seminars will give information on training, job search techniques, career development, resumes and interviews. Each state with a military base will have the program.

"TAP was needed because of the curtailment of military bases, which resulted in a reduction in the number of active duty staff," Hodgkin said.

"TAP was planned before the Persian Gulf War and is targeted at military bases. Most people in the war are either still on active duty or were reservists and National Guard members who returned to non-military jobs."

The DES also sends a representative weekly to Ft. Knox and when requested to Ft. Campbell to make services more accessible to military personnel.

"Providing on-site assistance at military bases is another way of making sure military personnel know we are available to them," said Hodgkin.

Another effective tool to help veterans find employment has been DES's regional job fairs, which are conducted a couple of times a year.

"This past year has been our most successful one," Hodgkin said. "It brings job seekers, including veterans, and employers together where they can exchange information."

"The bottom line in all our endeavors is helping veterans use the employment and training options open to them through our department, so they can find jobs," Hodgkin said. DES can help them bridge the gap between military life and private sector life or assist veterans who have been out of the military for years. In either case, we want to serve their needs."

Cancer Question & Answers

Q: My husband and I are in our 40's. We are starting to worry about getting cancer. Are there things we can do to check for cancer?

A: The most important thing you and your husband can do is have a check-up every year. You should have a Pap test to check for cervical cancer, a pelvic exam to check the uterus and ovaries, and a rectal exam to check for colon cancer. You will also need a breast exam and mammogram (breast x-ray) to check for breast cancer. Between the ages of 40 and 50, you should have a mammogram every 1 or 2 years and after you reach 50, you should have one every year.

Your husband needs to have a rectal exam to check for cancer of the prostate, colon and rectum. His testicles should also be examined.

There are also things you and your husband can do at home. Help each other look for changes in the skin and check moles. Do breast self-exam and testicular self-exam every month. Ask your doctor or nurse to show you how.

Remember, the best way to fight cancer is to find it early when it can be treated with best success.

Q: My mother has lung cancer. She would like to see her grandchild, but I'm afraid for my baby to be around her. My mother coughs a lot. Could he catch cancer from her?

A: No, your son cannot catch cancer. It cannot be spread by coughing, sneezing, kissing, or in any other way. Cancer is an uncontrolled growth of cells in the body. These cells cannot be spread from person to person.

Q: Is there anything I can do to help prevent cancer?

A: Yes, there are a number of things you can do to help lower your chances of getting cancer. The following are some things you can do.

* Eat high-fiber, low-fat foods. Fruits and vegetables, whole grain breads and cereals are good sources of fiber. You can avoid fat by baking and steaming foods instead of frying them. Choose lean red meats, fish and poultry, low-fat milk and cheese. Use only a little margarine, cream and salad dressing. It is easy to find recipes now for low-fat, high-fiber meals. For ideas, call 1-800-4-CANCER.

* Do not smoke, chew or "dip" tobacco products. There are tips and programs to help you quit using tobacco. For information, call 1-800-4-CANCER.

* Stay away from too much sun. The sun's rays are strongest between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., especially during the summer. That is when the risk is the highest. Protect your skin by using a sunscreen that has a number 15 on the label and by wearing a hat with a wide brim. Also, be sure to protect your children's skin from sunburn.

* Follow the safety rules at work to protect yourself from harmful materials such as asbestos.

* If you drink alcohol, do not have more than 2 drinks a day. Drinking too much alcohol has been linked with cancers of the mouth, throat, esophagus, and liver. If you smoke and drink, you are at an even higher risk of getting cancers of the mouth and the esophagus.

Q: Last year, my sister was diagnosed with breast cancer when she was 35. I'm 34 now. Does that mean I'm going to get it, too?

A: There is no way to tell when or if you will get breast cancer. All women are at risk for the disease and 80% of women who get breast cancer have no family history of it. Because your sister has breast cancer, your risk is higher than other women. Knowing this should help make you more careful about taking steps to find breast cancer early when it is more likely to be cured. See a doctor or a nurse at least once a year for breast exam. Your doctor may recommend a mammogram every 1 to 2 years until you reach 50. After that, you should have one every year. Check your breasts yourself every month for lumps. Most breast lumps are not cancerous, but report any changes you find in your breasts to your doctor as soon as possible.

The Cancer Information Service is part of the Kentucky Cancer Program and is supported by the National Cancer Institute.

Nursing program commended by state board

Prestonsburg Community College's Associate Degree Nursing Program was recently commended by the Kentucky Board of Nursing after the board reviewed the college's 1990-1991 annual report.

The board acted to accept the report and granted continuation of full approval status for the prelicensure nursing program. It also commended the administration, faculty, and staff for their efforts and wished them "continued success."

HOROSCOPE

November 10 through November 16

By C.C. Clark

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

It's time to plan for future events. Take care of as many details as possible now so you won't have to do everything at once. A family dispute could cause big headaches.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Keep your temper in all situations, especially when dealing with children and authority figures. To get rid of that stressed-out feeling, try exercising.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Listening to others will give you ideas about how to solve problems of your own. There are no easy answers, but follow your heart and you'll come up with the right ones.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Be on your best behavior or face the consequences at home and work. Family members and co-workers aren't in the mood for your crazy antics, so save it for another time.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

For some reason, a friend seems to be closed-minded about a certain situation. This is just one of those times when it's best to just let things ride.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Stay away from giving friends advice about financial matters. If you let yourself get involved, it may come back to haunt you at a later time.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

You may get a visitor from your past. This might just be the opportunity you need to work out personal problems that stemmed from this past relationship.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

No matter what your plans might be, you must be prepared to change them at a moment's notice this week. It is possible you may have to become involved in something you never imagined.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

The stability in your life you've been craving will come to you this week. It actually comes from an inner peace you have discovered.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

Getting rid of the debris in your life will make you feel like a brand-new person. Get out that broom and clean closets. You'll be amazed at how good you'll feel.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

Your creative powers are outstanding, and you will inspire those around you to do their best. Your happy mood is contagious, and others' spirits will also lift.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

You will realize a change in your priorities this week. You've been avoiding getting together with family members, but you really shouldn't put it off any longer.

VIDEO BIJOU

Coppola's 'Tucker' an exhilarating ride

By Steven Alan McGaw

Anyone who's read this column for any length of time knows I'm an ardent fan of Francis Ford Coppola. Several of his movies (The Conversation, Apocalypse Now and all permutations of The Godfather) are among my very favorite films. Certainly, he has his excesses and failings, both as a man and an artist, but look at the movies the man makes! Tucker: The Man and His Dream (1988)

One needn't be a psychiatrist to understand Coppola's affection for and identification with Preston Tucker. The visionary automaker wanted to build "the car of the future" and might well have succeeded if he'd been allowed. That success, of course, might have challenged the big boys in Detroit, and therein lay Tucker's undoing. Like the would-be automaker, Coppola has repeatedly challenged conventional wisdom and authority in Hollywood and paid the price, risking his mental and emotional health, to say nothing of his financial stability.

Jeff Bridges is quietly excellent as Tucker, a man with just enough little boy in him to think he just might pull it off. Joan Allen is luminous as his supportive wife, and his sons are played by up-and-coming stars Christian Slater and Corin Nemec. Frederic Forrest is a delight as one of Tucker's mechanics, and Dean Stockwell contributes a fine cameo as Howard Hughes.

TV PIPELINE

Publicity-shy Al Pacino dubbed 'male Greta Garbo'

By Taylor Michaels
Q: Could you please tell me some facts about Al Pacino?
—C.S., Denver, Colo.

A: Pacino was born April 25, 1940, in New York in the Bronx. He spent much of his childhood at the movies. The actor quit the High School of Performing Arts (the school featured in the movie and series Fame) after his second year. While attending the Herbert Berghof Studio, he met Charles Laughton, who volunteered to help Pacino. His first performance was in an off-Broadway play, but the experience was so unnerving he refused to perform in public for an entire year. Fortunately, he got over it and performed again on Broadway and subsequently in movies. His feature film credits include the Godfather trilogy, ...And Justice for All, Author! Author!, Bobby Deerfield, Cruising, Dick Tracy, Dog Day Afternoon, Panic in Needle Park, Revolution, Scarface, Sea of Love, Serpico and the recently released Frankie & Johnny. Pacino lives in New York and guards his privacy so much that he was once dubbed "the male Greta Garbo."

Al Pacino

Reynolds was talking to four great ladies. Now, CBS is airing Knots Landing in that time slot. Will we get to see the end of the show? If not, please tell me the name of the person who needs to be fussed at for such an error.
—Patricia Tindoff, Tyler, Ala.

A: I think CBS just ordered six or so episodes of the show. So if you saw that many, that's all there were. Efforts to contact CBS about the show have yielded nothing. As far as I know, there are no plans for any additional episodes. If you want to fuss, write to CBS Entertainment, CBS Television City, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90038.

Q: I'm a fan of MacGyver, and I read your recent article on Richard Dean Anderson. I was wondering if you had a mailing address for him.
—Cameron Reeves, Nacogdoches, Texas.

A: Write Anderson c/o MacGyver, Paramount Television, 5555 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., 90038.

Q: What happened to Stephen King's Golden Years? I watched it every week, and the last time it was on it ended with those famous TV words, "To Be Continued." The next week Burt

Kentucky Tech Launches Outreach program

Struggling to keep pace with rising child-care and household expenses? Overwhelmed by automation and technological advances that far exceed your training? Unable to find a job to match your skills, or to match your skills to today's job requirements? Kentucky Tech has a suggestion: "Get Technical...It Pays."

"Get Technical... It Pays" is the theme of a statewide vocational outreach campaign launched by the Department for Adult and Technical Education. The department directs Kentucky Tech, the network of state vocational and technical schools that provide the hands-on training needed for high-paying, hi-tech careers in today's labor market.

"Get Technical... It Pays" also is the message Kentucky Tech is delivering to the unemployed or underemployed who want to join the workforce, re-enter the labor market or change careers. The outreach campaign aims particularly at encouraging single parents, homemakers and displaced homemakers from 15 to 50 to sign up for vocational education.

Kentucky Tech embraces more than 70 secondary and postsecondary technical schools, health occupational schools, community colleges and university vocational programs at the associate degree level. They offer training in more than 60 career fields ranging from automotive repair to surgical technology, from agriculture mechanics to security training, and from business/office skills to radio and TV production.

"Get Technical...It Pays" emphasizes that vocational training is accessible and affordable. Financial aid is available.

The next round of classes begins in January. For more information about technical training programs and locations, call the Kentucky Tech toll-free number, 1-800-223-5632.

Ruby Mayo

MATH, MAYO, AND MOTIVATION

How does one teach a child to enjoy mathematics? This is a question that can be answered in a paragraph, a chapter, or a whole book. It can also be answered in two words: Ruby Mayo.

A fifth and sixth grade math teacher at Martin Elementary School, Mayo is one of the many Kentucky teachers who is bending with the wind of new educational reforms. Though she has taught math for a number of years and her goal remains the same—teaching children to apply math skills in everyday situations—Mayo sees the teacher's role in a new light: more guide and moderator than stereotyped teacher. Her philosophy is that learning can be fun for both students and teacher. Here's how she does it!

Motivating Mathematics by Ruby Mayo

Under the new Education Reform Act learning in the classroom will be different. This is what we teachers have been told. In my sixteen years of teaching, I have never experienced such a revolution in learning and teaching techniques. The roles of both teacher and the student have been restructured.

My role as a teacher has shifted from one who hands out information to one who guides students to develop their own thinking. The lessons are designed to include real-world problems that encourage students to explore, question, reason, and communicate.

A variety of instructional methods is utilized to develop that ever-present wide range of abilities in the classroom. The traditional teacher demonstration is no longer just the use of a chalkboard and text, but may include actual objects such as number cubes, counting chips, thermometers, fractional pieces, and/or calculators. These manipulatives are extremely valuable to all grade levels; they make mathematics more meaningful as well as visual.

In teacher-led discussions, the teacher serves as a moderator rather than a lecturer. The purpose of these discussions is to lead the students to think mathematically—not just to use rote memorization without understanding.

Another instructional method is the integration of mathematics with other subject areas. Math is no longer an isolated activity. Designing a chart on "The Seven Wonders of the World" or locating the longitude and latitude lines on a map provide a very practical math lesson integrated with social studies. Locating books in the library using the Dewey Decimal System is a worthwhile math lesson integrated with language arts.

Working in small groups has been one of the most successful methods of instruction that I have used. The students work on math assignments and/or projects which were set up during the teacher demonstration or teacher-led discussion. This classroom activity provides students not only with peer tutoring, but also an excellent opportunity to share ideas and listen to each other. As a result, they receive help in completing their assignment or project as well as develop the ability to communicate and reason with their peers. In addition, the student is under less pressure when working with others rather than alone. Therefore, he develops self-confidence and will participate more readily. The small-group activity involves cooperative as well as independent work.

How do the students feel about this new approach to learning mathematics? These are some of their comments:

"It is easier to understand."

"We like to work in groups and help one another."

"We learn from each other."

"Everybody works! Everybody learns!"

(See Math, B 2)

Mountain Voices — by Willie Elliott —

Academic coaches attend conference

KEEPING ATTENDANCE RECORDS
I can do most of the things that need to be done around school with some degree of efficiency. I can do minimal work on the computer to produce a publication; I can operate binding machines (with some help from the students); and I can get my class to lunch and back without losing more than two or three students. I'm not allowed to say "I can't" to anything because we won't let Ryan use that expression so I will just have to say I have a great deal of difficulty with attendance record keeping.

In previous years I was convinced that I was going to jail because my attendance records were so chaotic. But it really wasn't my fault. It was those Allen boys (Brent and Maurice). They have no sense of creativity. I tried to explain to them that it didn't matter whether John Doe's attendance was 3-17 or 17-3 since they both totaled 20. And they have those silly transportation codes. A 21 is a student who rides in the front of the bus to school and in the back of the bus home. Who looks at this stuff anyway? I say just give us the money and take our word that the students were present. The worst thing they ask us to do is make the right hand side of the form match the left hand side. Don't ask us English teachers to understand that. There's another thing that bugs me. Maurice and Brent won't take rough drafts of the attendance forms.

This year one of my classes didn't have sufficient enrollment so Mr. Paige (with help from evil spirits, no doubt) saw fit to give me the job of keeping attendance. That is the equivalent of making Saddam Hussein the secretary general of the U.N. When I started the job of keeping attendance, I made the statement that we all would go to jail. Mr. Paige said, "No, we won't." I felt better because I just knew that he was going to say something to the effect that I should do the best I could and that would be fine. But he continued his statement by saying, "You will." For a person that worried about a jail term for keeping his own attendance that was heavy stuff. I kept twelve different sets of records. Folks, we're talking maximum security lock ups here. I know one thing: they can't send me to Vietnam. I ought to be careful because the last time I said that, I came to myself getting off the plane at Da Nang.

When I do get something right on the attendance form after using three bottles of white out, I have to explain why I used white out. I thought everybody knew that white out was used to cover-up mistakes. That word hasn't got to the state department yet. Maybe there is some substance in the stuff that creates a high for users and the state department doesn't want teachers stumbling over SID 1's or PA 4's.

I really do know that keeping accurate attendance records is important, but those Allen boys really ask a lot of us. If you meet them casually in Wal-Mart's they don't carry, on a normal conversation about the weather or children. As soon as they spot a teacher, they read him his rights. They say, "You are required to give only student number, transportation code, and homeroom number."

I have students posted all around the school grounds. As soon as they spot Brent or Maurice, they come running. I simply hide out until they leave, but I know that the day of reckoning is coming. I keep having this nightmare in which all my numbers go to data heaven and I have no idea how many days the students were absent or present.

Alberta Turner did this job last year. She keeps telling me that it gets better, but I can tell by the smirk on her face that it doesn't get any better, but gets worse. I know one thing: she looks much happier this year than she did last year.

To tell you the truth, I think I will head out to Canada. I had my chance the last time and didn't take it. For that little oversight I had a one room flat on the jungle floor for one solid year. In the meantime, if you see Brent and Maurice, tell them you think I filled out a W35 (a teacher who has taken all he can stand and has headed for the border—and not to get tacos either.)

On a serious note I would like to say that I have come to understand the difficulty of keeping attendance records. If one school poses that many problems, think what it must be like to keep up with every student in Floyd County. I jokingly said that these things were the doings of Maurice and Brent, but they are going by rules given to them. As for mistakes, they know mistakes will be made. With that many people and numbers there is certain to be mistakes. Brent and Maurice ask of us only what we ask of our students—make mistakes, but find them and correct them. When I have the luxury of doing only my attendance in future years, I will approach the task more seriously because I know two minutes on my part can sometimes save someone else a big headache. Most of all, I will be happy that I don't have to worry about the attendance records for the whole school.

Several Floyd County Academic Team coaches attended the Kentucky Academic Association's fall conference October 24-26 at the Executive Inn-West in Louisville. Participation in this conference enables coaches to be recertified in KAA rules and regulations. Sessions were also presented to enhance and enrich coaching skills. Floyd County's Jenny Wiley Academic Conference is a stepping stone to Governor's Cup Competition at the state level. Coaches attending and their respective schools were:

- Clara Parker - Adams Middle School
- Glenda Blackburn and Judy Childers - Allen Elementary School
- Ramona Aiken - Auxier Elementary School
- George Ann Case - Betsy Layne Elementary School
- Bonnie Ward - Harold Elementary School

Students Enjoy New Learning Techniques

Students at Martin Elementary are participating in various aspects of the ungraded primary concept even though the school was not designed as a pilot school. Shown above are first grade students who are busily and happily completing tasks assigned by teacher Shirline Patton. According to Principal William Hughes, the school will formally begin the ungraded primary program next year.

Martin Custodian

Because clean, pleasant surroundings contribute to the learning process, one of the most valuable support services in a school is that of building upkeep. Pictured above is Debbie Kilburn, substitute custodian at Martin Elementary, who says she does not believe in putting off until tomorrow what needs to be done today. Way to go, Debbie!

The Learning Carousel at Martin

Most teachers agree that motivating students to learn and practice on so-called humdrum but necessary skills has always been a challenge (headache, too, sometimes). As a result, teachers are always searching for new ideas and eager to try new techniques and materials to determine "what works with this year's group."

Martin Elementary's Donna Gray brought to her classroom this year a new instructional tool that has proven to be a winner with her fourth-grade students. The Learning Carousel, designed by Gray and constructed by her husband, consists of four learning center carrels that offer a variety of skills in a game-like format. The activities, which emphasize specific concepts in core subject areas, allow students to gain mastery of needed skills and become more self-reliant.

Each center is changed weekly. Schedules are flexible and participants spend from twenty to thirty minutes per day on Monday through Thursday. Friday has been designated as "Help Day"—a time set aside to provide students with extra practice if needed.

Carousel participants sometimes work individually or with a partner. Because each "hands-on" activity is self-checking, an immediate feedback allows students to experience instant success or pinpoint and correct errors.

Gray feels that the kinesthetic approach is an effective instructional technique that is also popular with students since it replaces much of the traditional paper-pencil practice work.

A veteran teacher of twenty-eight years in Floyd County school, Gray has displayed throughout her career a talent for student motivation through innovative techniques and materials.

How does a busy teacher, wife, and mother find the time to complete such monumental projects? It can be done, as demonstrated by Gray who made use of post-operative weeks during this summer to construct approximately one hundred skills activities.

Donna is a native of Maytown and resides there with her husband, George, and three daughters, Connie, Hope, and Jane.

Ronald Salisbury joins staff at Betsy Layne Elementary

The staff at and students of Betsy Layne Elementary welcome Ronald Salisbury, acting principal of the school.

Although this is his first year to fulfill the job of principal, he brings with him the experience needed for the job. His twenty-five years of teaching include three years in a rural school, three years at Stumbo Elementary, and the remaining nineteen years at Harold Elementary. These years in the classroom have given Salisbury insight into the responsibilities of being principal.

The duties of a principal are numerous and varied. However, any problem to be dealt with or any job to be done is never too menial for Salisbury's attention. He confronts any situation with open-mindedness and the confidence and the ability to remedy the situation. For Salisbury, helping people with problems and seeing the progress being made at Betsy Layne are the most rewarding parts of his job.

Salisbury has many goals and expectations for Betsy Layne Elementary. He would someday like to see the school as being one of the top in the state with all of the students performing on above average levels. He is committed to the growth and improvement of Betsy Layne and its students.

Salisbury and his wife, Linda, are the parents of four children, Melissa, Marty, Charity, and Jason. They reside at Toler.

Being a principal requires a lot of time, patience, and dedication, and Salisbury certainly fulfills all of these requirements. The staff and students extend their thanks to Mr. Salisbury for a job well done.

Students also had a birthday breakfast for Jackie Leedy on Monday. The students prepared the menu for the breakfast.

"Fridays are especially fun filled days for kids," said Mary Franklin, teacher.

Math

"There are so many ways to do math."

"I like the manipulatives. It's fun!"

"It makes you think more."

"Time goes by so fast."

"We don't have as much pencil and paper work."

"Mental math can be faster than a calculator sometimes."

As a fifth and sixth grade math teacher, I feel that teaching mathematics with this new approach is very exciting. The students are motivated to learn, and I am motivated to teach and learn. When both students and teacher are motivated, everyone tries much harder. When class is over, we are still asking questions and probing for answers. The students are communicating and solving problems together. They are using "hands-on" activities which serve to make math more visual. We are interacting with each other; we feel like a team with a common goal: to learn how to use mathematics in the real world in a practical way. That's what math is all about!

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor

PLAYOFFS BEGIN TONIGHT...

For some high schools the 1991 football season will definitely come to an end tonight as the state of Kentucky prepares to launch a new playoff format that hasn't left everyone too happy with the new alignment.

For instance, Greenup County, which has won a total of 0 games this season, is on the way to the playoffs while teams like Shelby Valley (4-3) are packing up the equipment for another winter.

How can something like this happen? Because of the new format from the Kentucky High School Athletic Association. This year the top four teams in each district advance to playoff competition. I suppose the reasoning behind such a move is to extend the football season for some teams. The new format eliminated the 11th game and they might as well have left it alone because 11 games is all some are going to play anyway.

Now, the fourth place team, such as Greenup County (0-10) must go against Covington Catholic who placed first in their district. You talk about blowouts. It certainly will happen, particularly in the first and maybe second rounds. If you're an 0-10 team you more than likely would like to tuck it in for the season.

But some will say "anything can happen in the playoffs." Well, I suppose that it can and you can't argue with that.

I still like the top two teams going and if they need more teams how about inviting some of the better teams around the state to take part.

COACH PUMPHREY A VERY HUMOROUS MENTOR

I had a chance to talk to Mason County coach Ben Pumphrey over the phone today (Thursday) and it was a pleasure just to talk with the veteran football coach. He certainly has a sense of humor and in his profession he needs one. It was very refreshing to talk to the man who has been in the ranks for 41 years. Of course, I was warned about him when I conversed with the Ledger-Independent sports department in Maysville Wednesday night.

Coach Pumphrey tried to play down his team's success and was very comical about their chances. I have this to say about that. "Beware of wolves in sheep clothing."

CANTRELL RANKINGS.....

Has Fleming County number 10 and Russell number seven. Fleming County, if they can pull out a win over Whitesburg and a Blackcat victory over Mason County, could be coming to town next Friday night (November 15).

FINAL SIGN UP FOR MAYTOWN JUNIOR PRO

Rick Hancock has announced that if you want to play basketball in the Maytown Junior Pro basketball league the final day to sign up is this Saturday at the Maytown Gym between the hours of 1 p.m. and 2 p.m.

NEW FLOOR STIRRING GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Will the floor at Allen Central bring the 15th Region boys basketball tournament back to our area? I think AC would be a great place to showcase the 15th Region's best. The laying of the new floor has stirred expectations of the elite tournament coming back to Floyd County. Rumor has it that Sheldon Clark is in the running for the event. With the new highway leading into Cardinal country, it doesn't take long to get to Inez now. I suppose that any place would be better than having to drive to Belfry. Someone asked me why I considered it a bad drive to Belfry? I said, because the people in Belfry don't want to drive over here, therefore, it must be a bad drive.

GET OUT TONIGHT AND SUPPORT THE BLACKCATS...

I was surprised the crowd was so low in last Friday's game with M.C. Napier. Hey, this is the playoffs! Get out and support Prestonsburg against Mason County. Remember, game time is 7:30 p.m. instead of the usual 8 p.m. starting time. Admission to the game will be $3 for adults and students.

Until next Wednesday, be good sports!

Prestonsbug, Mason County Hook Up In Playoffs Tonight

Just follow the catpaws on Arnold Avenue and they will lead you straight to the Cats Lair tonight as the Prestonsburg Blackcats entertain Mason County in round one of the high school football playoffs at the Prestonsburg Stadium. Mason County, fourth place finishers in District 1 play, will roll into Prestonsburg with a 6-4 record. Prestonsburg matches the overall record of Mason County but has a 6-1 record in district play and finished first in District 2.

It will be the running game of Mason County versus the passing of Prestonsburg quarterback Aaron Tucker. Tucker's best game came against Morgan County two weeks ago when he completed nine passes for 207 yards. Last week Tucker had two completions for just 62 yards, but the speciality teams took control of the win over M.C. Napier.

Tucker has completed 37 passes this season for an unofficial 693 yards passing. He has had 14 passes picked off by the opposition. Lately, Tucker has been getting some needed yardage on keepers on third down plays.

Hauling in the passes for the Blackcats is John Thomas Clark, who has been outstanding this season. Clark not only has played the split end position but he has handled the kicking for the Cats. In the last three games, Clark has split the uprights for nine consecutive extra points. He has hauled in several catches that have either set up touchdowns or scored for Prestonsburg. His best game came against Morgan County when he had five receptions for 133 yards and one touchdown. He had catches of 35 yards and 47 yards that set up two other scores. Jason Crisp has been on the receiving end of Tucker's passes lately and caught a 48-yard TD pass against Napier. James Derossett is another that has come a long way this season. Deros-sett is a picture of determination. He loves to go after the football and had a big game also against Morgan County with three receptions for 65 yards and a score.

Henry Webb's Points, Rebounds, Assists Lead Alice Lloyd's 90-74 Comeback

The Alice Lloyd Eagles opened their 1991-92 college basketball season on a successful note Tuesday night as they handed Clinch Valley (Virginia) a 90-74 loss. The game was closer than the final score would indicate. Clinch Valley came to play and gave the Eagles all they wanted until a late first half surge netted the Eagles a 39-36 halftime lead.

Henry Webb (McDowell) tossed in 24 points for game scoring honors to lead the Eagles to their first win of the season.

Alice Lloyd held a 10 point, first half lead until they saw it disappear and Clinch Valley go up by three points. The Eagles rallied behind the three point shooting of Webb to catch and pass Clinch Valley. Jitters and inexperienced play were credited to the breakdown of the Eagles' offense, as well as defense. Then followed a series of basket exchanges with the score tied several times. Webb hit a three-pointer with under two minutes remaining in the first half. The McDowell product then connected on a layup and came back with his second three-pointer when Todd Johnson stole the ball and flipped the pass to Webb, who drilled the 21-footer that gave Alice Lloyd the 39-36 lead at intermission.

The second half of play gave no clear indication of the ultimate outcome between the two teams. Aggressive play, unforced turnovers and slothful rebounding characterized the Eagles' play until the final three minutes left on the clock.

Terry Bird, a Wolfe County product, kept the Cavaliers in the game scoring a game high 29 points. The Eagles, sparked by Webb's 12 second half points, pulled away in the closing minutes for a 90-74 opening game victory.

Eagles coach Jim Stepp was less than pleased with the way his team looked in the season opener.

"We're glad to get the win," he reported, "but we'll need to get tougher and get out of some of the early season jitters."

Besides Webb's 24 points, Russell Clark (Pikeville) added 18 points. Rick Conley (Johnson Central) scored 15. Todd Johnson finished with 15 points. Freshmen Mitch Harris (Shelby Valley) and Avery Fairchild (Johnson Central) had six and three points respectively.

Webb was four-of-seven from the three point line. Harris hit two-of-five treys. Webb had eight assists against the Cavaliers.

Bird led the Cavaliers with his 29 points. Caywood was the only other Cavalier in double figures with 10 points.

Caywood was the top rebounder in the game with 11. Webb and Eddie May had eight boards for Alice Lloyd.

The Eagles hit 10 of 20 free throws while Clinch Valley connected on three of just five attempts. Only one player fouled out of the game and that was Carter for Clinch Valley.

The Eagles turned the ball over 10 times compared to Clinch Valley's 18 miscues.

The Eagles will entertain Knoxville College at home tomorrow (Saturday) on Homecoming Day at Alice Lloyd. Tipoff is scheduled for 3 p.m. The Alice Lloyd Lady Eagles will also see action tomorrow at 1 p.m. as they will face a mixture of Kentucky/Tennessee All-Stars.

Alice Lloyd will face archrival Pikeville in a doubleheader at Pikeville this coming Tuesday, November 12.

Maytown Rolls Past MCA Behind Halbert's 15 Points

Nick Halbert scored 15 points to lead the Maytown Wildcats to an easy 55-22 win over the Falcons of Mountain Christian Academy Monday night at Maytown. It was homecoming night at the Right Beaver school where Lisa Hagans was crowned "Miss Homecoming Queen, 1991."

Maytown came out early and established the tempo of the game with their full court pressure. The Wildcats scored the first nine points of the first period and held an 11-6 advantage at the end of one quarter. Estill Stumbo's layup and a basket by Charles Twiss gave Maytown a 4-0 lead. Chris Bailey had a nice turn around jumper and then hit a free throw and Halbert's first basket of the game made it 9-0. Chris Comette's basket at the 2:32 mark ended the Falcon's drought. Cornette and John Burchett's back-to-back baskets cut the margin to five, 11-6.

After a free throw by Halbert, to start the second period, gave Maytown a 12-6 lead, the Falcons got field goals from Mike Osborne and Brandon Moore to pull within four points, 14-10. Maytown then ran off the 15 points of the half for a 29-10 halftime lead. Jason Shannon hit a "rain" maker to start the run.

Maytown built a 35-16 lead early in the third period and then outscored MCA 10-0 to put the game away.

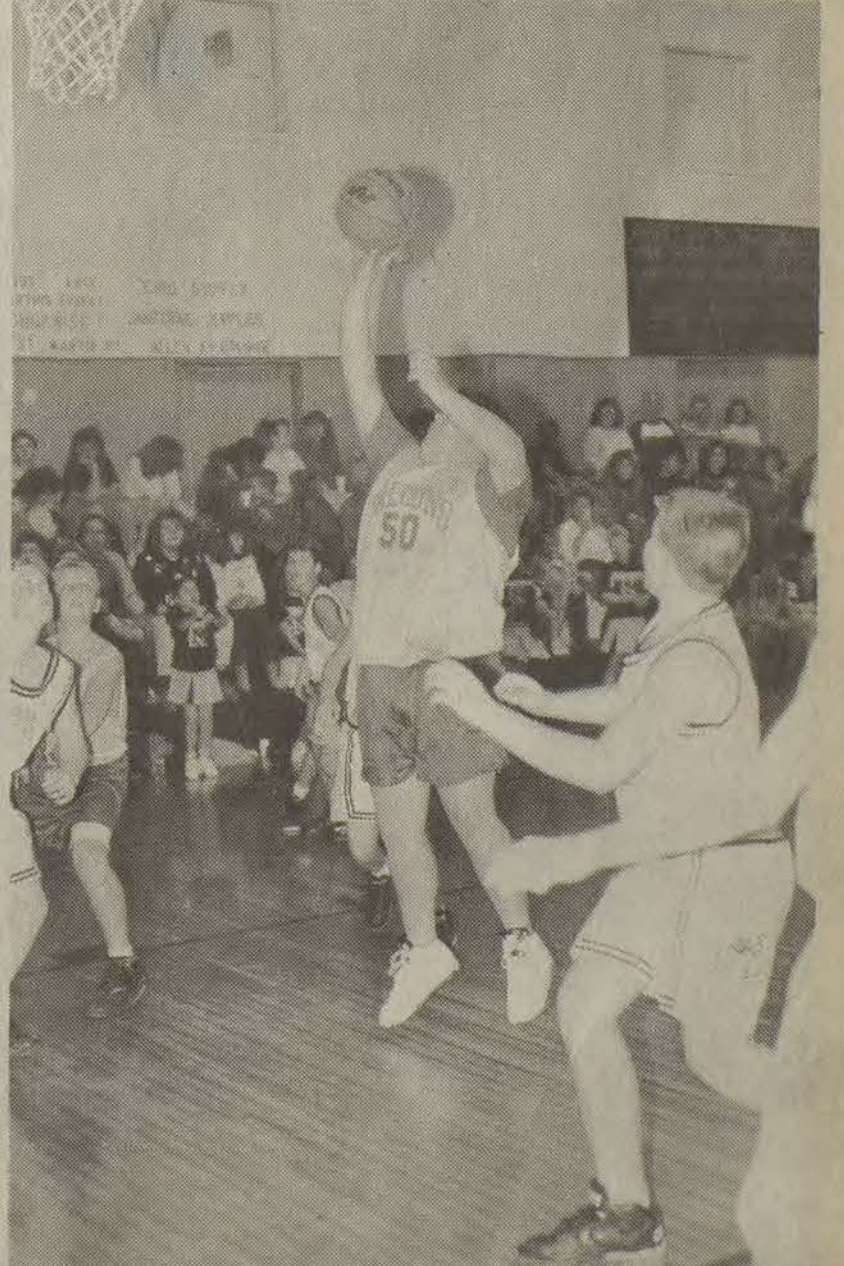

Maytown attempted 25 free throws hitting 11—something that has bothered Maytown coach Rick Hancock.

plays the wide tackle-six and "if any team throws against us they will kill us. We just don't play well."

"Jeremy Jones is our end and, like I said, we have thrown the football 14 times and had eight completions and Jeremy has caught all eight." Jones is 6'4" and weighs in at 160. "These are good youngin's. I hope that Bill (Letton) will be easy on us."

"We lost to Russell 28-8 and they were just being kind to us," Pumphrey went on. "We scored against their reserves in the final minute of the game."

What about the thrashing his team gave Greenup County (44-0)? "I don't know what happened to Greenup County that night," said the Mason

County coach. "We certainly didn't play a Greenup County team we knew."

"Some of these coaches say they have players out and they lie to you," said Pumphrey. "Then when it gets game time they experience a miraculous recovery. We're all here and we don't claim any miraculous recoveries."

"Like I said, we're just little fella's and we're proud just to be coming to Prestonsburg. I'm proud of Bill (Letton) and the job he has done there in Prestonsburg."

Pumphrey recalls the many players that he has seen come through Prestonsburg and go on and play for the University of Kentucky.

"We just want to keep a low profile and not make anyone mad at us," the Mason County mentor explained.

In the Dave Cantrell ratings, Prestonsburg is rated 27 while Mason County holds the number 33.

A Prestonsburg victory would keep the playoffs at home against either Whitesburg or Fleming County. Whitesburg, District 2 third place finisher, edged the Blackcats 23-19 in the third game of the season at Whitesburg. Fleming County placed second in District 1 and is currently ranked 15 in 2A football.

Should Mason County come away with the win, the home field advantage would fall to the winner of the Whitesburg/Fleming County game.

Mason County Schedule Differs From Blackcats In Quality, But They're Still Tough

It's a whole new season for all high school football teams, Prestonsburg included, as the playoffs get underway tonight around the state. Tonight at the Prestonsburg Stadium, the Blackcats will host Mason County out of District 1 in the opening round. Mason County comes to Prestonsburg having finished fourth in their district with a 6-4 overall record and a 4-3 mark against district competition. Prestonsburg is also 6-4 overall but sports an exciting 6-1 district mark, good for first place in District 2 play.

Kick off is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight—a half hour difference in the regular season starting time.

Mason County comes into tonight's ball game having lost two of their last three games. Mason had to go to the final game of the regular season against West Carter to determine the number four spot in the district. The top four teams from each district advance to the playoffs. Before winning against West Carter, Mason County fell to Fleming County (second seed) and Lawrence County (third seed).

Mason County had lost to 3A school Montgomery County 20-12 in a non-district match up. Montgomery County placed second to Ashland Paul Blazer in Class 3A, Region 3, District 2. Mason County, who lost the first two games of the season, lost their season opener to always tough Russell, 28-8.

Mason County recorded wins over East Carter, Rowan County, Greenup County, Bath County and Lewis County. Bath County is a 1A school and winners of Region 3, District 2 in Class 1A. Greenup County, a 3A school, never won a game this season finishing 0-10 but will be taking part in the playoffs under the new alignment. Mason beat Greenup 44-0 back in September.

Unlike Prestonsburg, Mason County split their first four games going 2-2 while Prestonsburg lost their first four. Also unlike Prestonsburg, Mason struggled toward the end playing their best football early and then tapering off. Prestonsburg won their last six games for a 6-4 mark.

Prestonsburg's schedule appears to have been much tougher than Mason County with the likes of Estill County (9-1, second place, Region 3, District 2), Middlesboro (9-1, second place, Region 3, District 2), Belfry (8-2, first place, 3A, Region 4, District 2), Sheldon Clark (9-1, second place, Region 4, District 2). Neither team played similar opponents.

Lady Blackcats Post First Win Ever Over Martin, 27-20

For Gay Hatfield's Lady Blackcats of Adams, they had more to celebrate than just a win in their basketball game Wednesday night. The Lady Cats defeated the Lady Purple Flashes 27-20 for their first ever win over the Martin school.

Crystal Layne tossed in 17 points to lead Adams in scoring. Layne is averaging around 16 points per game this season. The game was close throughout with Adams holding the lead. Heather Collins added six points in the Adams win.

Amanda Samons led Martin in scoring with six points. Melissa Mullins added five and Jennie Parsons scored four.

Top Regional Teams To Take Part In Lady Daredevils' Panorama Saturday

High school basketball is just around the corner and already the panoramas are cropping up all over. On Saturday, November 16, the McDowell Lady Daredevils will host their second annual panorama that will feature some of the top girls' programs in the region. The games are scheduled to get underway at 11 a.m. and will run throughout the day.

In the first game, Fleming-Neon will take on a young Betsy Layne Lady Bobcat team. Coach Bill Newsome's squad will be in a rebuilding year with the loss of several players from last year's team.

In the second game of the day, top region choice Elkhorn City will battle Johnson Central in a 12:30 p.m. start. B.J. Elswick's team is the choice of many to take the regional title this year. "This will be the biggest team that I have had at Elkhorn City," said Elswick. "I don't know about being the regional choice."

The host school, McDowell, will face the Lady Hornets of Phelps in the third game at 2 p.m. McDowell looks to be a good offensive team but coach Cassandra Keathley says that "our girls need to improve on defense." Phelps has always been one of the top teams in the region.

Jenkins and Johns Creek will be matched up in the 3:30 p.m. game. Both teams could be a surprise in the region this year.

New Wheelwright coach Tommy Pack will get a chance to see his Lady Trojans in action against the Lady Mustangs of Millard. Millard, a very young team last year, will definitely be improved this year. The Lady Mustangs will give the Lady Trojans a good early test. Wheelwright will have their entire team back from last year plus some promising freshmen. Becky Allen, Vickie Johnson and Stephanie Little return to lead the Lady Trojans.

Last year's 58th District champions, the Allen Central Lady Rebels, will face Cordia in the final game of the evening at 6:30 p.m.

Harold continued to build on the lead by scoring the first six points of the second quarter to make it a 13-3 game.

Kidd led Prater in scoring with 11 points. Hughes finished with six and Wesley Collins added five. Josh Hamilton scored four points.
