Speaking of and for Floyd County

Here Comes Santa Claus

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas, and this Friday, the similarities will be much closer in Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg's annual Christmas Parade will begin at 5:30 p.m. November 29, followed at 6 p.m. by the lighting of the city's official tree by Mayor Ann Latta. Other activities planned for the evening include music by the Phi Theta Kappa Chorus; an honors ceremony for the Prestonsburg High football team; Christmas music by the Blackcat Marching Band and, of course, a visit by Santa Claus himself.

The Prestonsburg Rotary Club will join Santa earlier Friday at the old Abigail Theater where kids can have their photos made from noon until 5:30 p.m.

Home For The Holidays

The Floyd County Times office will be closed Thursday, November 28, and Friday, November 29 for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The Friday edition of the Times will, however, be on the streets mail as usual on Vovemper 29. Floyd County students will also get a long weekend with schools closed Thursday and Friday this week.

There will be no mail service on Thursday, and most courthouse offices will remain closed on Friday, reopening Monday, December 2, with usual business

For new Prestonsburg High School:

Four alternate sites are surveyed

Four alternate sites are being considered for the location of a new Prestonsburg High School, a project which has been delayed because of controversies surrounding the proj-

The Floyd County Board of Education voted at its November meeting to look at alternate sites for the school and the owner retained the right to Department of Education; board located near new U.S. 23 and Route to get the project moving. A representative from the state Department of Education met with local officials Monday to look at the sites and to determine if they were suitable alternatives to the current proposed site at Middle Creek.

The Middle Creek location came under fire last year after the board voted to purchase the site for $400,000 any coal uncovered during site preparation. The owner relinquished the coal rights earlier this year.

The Middle Creek location also received opposition from the Prestonsburg City Council which wanted the school to remain inside the city limits.

Jim Judge, with the Department of Facilities Management for State member Eddie Billips; architect Randy Burchett; construction manager Sam Martin and assistant superintendent Gary Frazier inspected five sites Monday in Prestonsburg, Judge said four would be suitable for the new high school. Property adjacent to the existing school; the old drive-in theater property; the Gordon Moore property

A hilltop site near the city's industrial site was ruled out because it would require extensive site preparation, Judge said.

Tempers flare in ongoing dispute over pay scales

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Pay inequities among Prestonsburg city employees and concerns that no plan existed to close the gap were raised Monday night by councilman Billy Ray Collins.

But, the issue is expected to be resolved at the December council meeting, according to Paul Combs, owner of the firm hired to develop a plan to eliminate the inequities.

"I have submitted that information to the mayor (Ann Latta) and I can't really talk about it," Combs said Tuesday. "I'm ready to meet with the council when they are."

Combs said part of the proposal was sent to the mayor on Monday and the other information was mailed

"I think it's over," Combs said "I'm sure this (proposal) will solve the problems."

Collins told council Monday night that a person was hired in the public works department who didn't have a drivers license and who was making more per hour than a fireman. Collins, who is a member of the personnel committee, said the employee's starting hourly pay was $5.40 an hour compared to $4.53 an hour for a fire-

"I won't sit here and be a damn part of that," Collins said. "It just ain't fair and there's no way anybody's going make me swallow

Collins complained about Combs' firm, saying he had not been able to contact him and he hadn't shown up for scheduled meetings. Collins added that the personnel committee has met nine times and made eleven recommendations to resolve the issue, and only one had been followed. "We're stupid. A man can't get (ahold) of him," Collins said. "If he (Combs) can't meet with the personnel committee this time, I won't be back to another meeting of the personnel committee and you all can meet until hell freezes over. It's the same song and the same verse. Nothing ever gets done. I'm sick and tired of that kind of government."

Failed bank gets new life

Prestonsburg's troubled United Federal Savings Bank reopened Monday with a new name, a new owner and a new lease on life.

United Federal, taken over earlier this year by Resolution Trust Corporation amid financial difficulties, has been sold to Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company, one of Kentucky's leading banking institu-

The local bank, which was renamed United Savings Bank FSB with the takeover by Resolution Trust, opened Monday, November 25 as the Floyd County Branch of Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company. United Federal's Hin?man branch reopened Saturday, November 23, as the Knott County Branch of Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company.

Pikeville National will assume all liabilities of United Federal, totalling approximately $34.2 million and will purchase the institution's assets, which total approximately $35.2

Resolution Trust Corporation, established in 1989 to manage and sell failed federal savings institutions will not advance any funds to Pikeville National and will not incur any expenses as a result of the transaction. Pikeville National will pay Resolution Trust a franchise premium of Services at the local bank will continue without interruption. Brandt Mullins, president and CEO of Pikeville National said in a news release issued Friday that customers will receive a letter within the next two weeks outlining "the transfer of their accounts and expanded products and services available to them."

With the acquisition, Pikeville National has assets of more than $510 million. Pikeville National Bank and Trust is an affiliate of Pikeville National Corporation, an eight-bank holding company with assets totalling more than $1.2 billion.

UNITED FEDERAL Savings Bank reopened Monday in Prestonsburg as a branch of Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company.

State requests that hearing be rescheduled

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

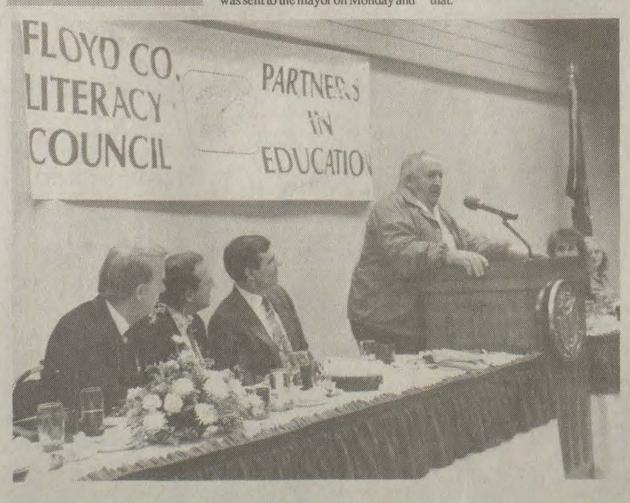

A public hearing scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday on a proposed building plan for Floyd County schools was postponed at the request of the state's school chief.

Don Hart, with the state Department of Education, facilities management branch, said Monday that Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen had directed state employees Friday to contact local school districts to reschedule facility hearings. "The Commissioner, late Friday, gave employees a directive—because of all the flak they've received because the hearings are in the daytime-that all superintendents be called to see if they would reschedule the hearings," Hart said. "And, if they chose to do so, we wish they would reschedule the hearings for the evenings."

The local hearing has been re-

Student of the Year

Lonnie Jarrell, a 67-year-old Slick Rock resident, was named Student of the Year Thursday evening during the Fourth Annual Floyd County Literacy banquet at Jenny Wiley State Park. More than 275 people, including Governor Wallace Wilkinson, attended the recognition ceremony. (photo by Scott Perry)

Lonnie Jarrell is proof:

It's never too late to learn

by Dodie Webb Staff Writer

Sixty-seven year old Lonnie Jarrell of Slick Rock on Cow Creek is a success story - not just because of his 24 years of happiness with his wife, Bonnie, or because of his daughter, Estill Jean Endicott, of whom he is very proud, but due to this "old rabbit hunter's" success in another area.

Sitting with Bonnie, Governor Wallace Wilkinson and other federal, state, and local officials at the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council Banquet Thursday, Lonnie accepted the "Student of the Year"

Until March, 1991, Lonnie could not read. Through the literacy program, developed and administered by the David School, and his tutor, Sandy Burchett, Lonnie is now reading and progressing at a rapid pace a fact of which he is extremely proud. His enthusiasm for learning to read has motivated him to possibly continue his education by attaining his human infrastructure."

G.E.D. when he completes his studies with the literacy program.

As refreshing as Lonnie's present story may be, his history is not much different than that of many other Eastern Kentuckians.

Lonnie grew up during the depression. His father worked from 4 a.m. until 10 p.m. in the coal fields bringing home only two dollars a day

But a 67-year-old Slick Rock man won their hearts.

More than 275 people turned out Thursday evening for the fourth annual Floyd County Literacy Banquet at the convention center at Jenny Wiley State Park, and they were all on their feet when Lonnie Jarrell finished his brief but potent speech.

Jarrell, who later was named Student of the Year by the Floyd County Literacy Council, spoke of a life of hardship, the result of his inability to opportunity at an education and of raising food so his family could eat during the Depression. He spoke of his father, who was also illiterate, and how he made just two dollars a day working on other peoples' farms. He spoke of being turned down when he read or write.

It was a sad story with an all too familiar theme.

But Lonnie Jarrell didn't dwell on his problems or his past. He had more important business to discuss, like how he had spent most of the past eight months learning to read.

When asked for the best two sites of the four, Judge favored the Moore property and the industrial site, but would not rule out the old drive-in 'The bottom line is, if the state would grant a waiver (for acreage) I don't think I would disregard the drive-in site," Judge said. "The Moore site would be approvable if the access problem can be solved."

A study of the alternate sites prepared by Alchemy Engineering shows that the drive-in site would provide nine acres of land with seven usable acres. It would also include two acres on the riverbank. Approximately 60 percent of the property lies within the 100-year floodplain.

The new high school is expected to accommodate 800 students and the state recommends that the school be built on 18 acres of land. But, the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education could grant a wavier to allow less acreage for the

The Alchemy report said the Moore property would provide 27.5 acres but it provided no breakdown on usable acres. Eighty percent of the property lies within the 100-year floodplain.

Judge said the site would require extensive fill material and access could be a problem. A bridge would most likely have to constructed to allow access from new U.S. 23.

"It's a nice location for a school," Judge said, "If the access problem students during the course of a year. could be solved and if it could be filled it would be fine.'

The site adjacent to the exisiting high school would only provide 4.5 acres and 87 percent of the property lies within the floodplain. Judge said that would not be a favorable site because of the small amount of acre-

Judge said he would recommend that Mike Luscher, director of Facilities Management for the state Department of Education (formerly buildings and grounds) grant tentative approval for the four sites. Judge said a letter from Luscher granting that approval would be made available to members of the Floyd County Board of Education for consideration by the December 10 board meeting.

When asked by construction manager Sam Martin, during a meeting after touring the sites, which two were most suitable, Judge told Superintendent Ron Hager, Burchett, and Frazier Monday that he favored the Moore Property and the industrial site, but said the old drive-in site was also an option.

Martin said that the board should pick two alternate sites so core drilling could begin on the properties.

The board is expected to decide on the alternate sites at its December meeting.

Jarrell was the centerpiece of applied for jobs because he couldn't Thursday's literacy banquet, but he shared the podium with some prestigious company and the evening itself was diverse, closing with a farewell tribute to Governor Wallace Wilkinson, whose term ends Decem-

Keynote speaker for the event was Hilda Legg, co-chair of the Appala-"It's opened up the whole world to chian Regional Commission (ARC) and a Kentucky native. Legg told the gathering that the ARC had focused in the past on roads and infrastructure development, but that direction was shifting toward "addressing the human infrastructure."

> "Fifty percent of the unemployed in Appalachia are illiterate," she said. "There was a time when we believed education was not that important. You didn't need a high school education to go into the coal mines; you didn't need a high school education to work in the textile plants.'

Legg said it was time to change that attitude.

"Literacy gives self-respect, selfesteem and provides dignity," she said. And, recognizing the volunteer tutors who work with literacy programs, she added, "It takes the people who learn how to teach to make the program work."

Literacy programs, she added, "allow us to contribute to a cause much more important than our own selfish needs. The battle is not over."

Governor Wilkinson, whose wife Martha has spearheaded his administration's efforts to combat illiteracy, told the audience that Kentucky is now recognized as "the undisputed leader in substantive education reform in this country.' The governor said Martha's Army, his wife's drive to improve the state's General Education Diploma (GED) program, had "done more to promote literacy (in Kentucky) than ever be-

Applauding the local effort, Audrey Haynes, executive director of the Kentucky Literacy Commission, called the drive to improve literacy "the economic backbone of the region." She said the partnership between area leaders is "the only way to eradicate illiteracy.'

Governor Wilkinson presented awards to a variety of the local program's students and volunteers, including the Student of the Year award to Lonnie Jarrell: Tutor of the Year to Kathy Bentley; and Outstanding Volunteer of the Year to Peg

In effect, a med-waste incinerator is a municipal solid waste incinerator with 15% of the waste being infectious. Medical waste includes paper, card board, plastic, rubber, food wastes, cans, bottles, animal carcasses, hypodermic needles, scalpels, etc., chemotherapy wastes, diapers, bandages, solvents, and pathological wastes (body parts, bed pan residues, and so forth).

Medical waste also contains metals such as Lead, Cadmium, Mercury, and Zinc; it can also contain low level radioactivity. Plastic make up 3% to 7% of municipal waste, but 14% to 30% of infectious waste. Because plastics are the major source of Cadmium and Lead, medical waste incinerators emit more of these toxic Chronic exposure to Cadmium, a toxic metal causes a wide range of adverse effects in humans, including Cardiovascular(heart, arteries), Endo-(hormone), Hepatic (liver), Bone, Hematological (blood), Immunological (immune system), Respiratory (lung), Renal (kidney), Reproductive and Teratogenic (birth defects) effects.

There is strong evidence of an association between Cadmium exposure and an increased risk of Respiratory (lung) cancer. A hospital patient generates 13 pounds of medical, infectious and solid waste waste per

Multiply this by the number of patients times days spent in the hospital and you will come to the conclusion that Medisin incinerators are emitting tons of toxic chemicals and metals per day. This is causing the people within breathing distance of these incinerators to become very sick.

How can H.R.M.C. teach the public about the links between air pollution and disease and still support a technology that incinerates medical waste?

How can H.R.M.C. teach the public about chemical sensitivity when each day the black chemicalladen smoke from their incinerators darkens our skys?

How can H.R.M.C. teach the public about the economic value of a healthy environment when their own economic values are so completely dependent on the importation of other institutions' medical waste?

And, how can H.R.M.C. inspire to fight for health protection and not just disease treatment when their incinerators may very well be causing numerous health problems?

Many people think that the time has come to shift the burden of proof from the victim to the polluter.

Awhile back in the year there was a proposal for teachers to be tested as to their ability. A candidate for govemor requested it. Right away there was an uproar from the teachers, at the same time they were demanding raises in most Eastern Kentucky counties.

The problem is not how many bad teachers there are. For as with everything else, the number of teachers is far greater than the number of good teachers. The problem is the quality of education.

Citizens across the Commonwealth say their efforts to get involved in local government are met with closed doors and done deals. In response, the Kentucky Local Govemance Project is releasing a manual on conducting public meetings in ways that open doors to meaningful public participation.

The manual, "Strengthening Lo-cal Democracy: Making Meetings More Democratic," list procedures for meetings that are required by law but are often ignored, and suggest additional procedures to help citizens hold their officials accountable. Citizens can use the manual as a point of departure for writing better procedures for local government meetings in their communities. Among the manual's suggestions

•Meetings should be held at night or at a time that is convenient for the public, and should provide enough room so everyone can see and hear.

•The public should be allowed to comment on all issues, and an official should answer their questions.

·Background materials and handouts should be given to the media and the public.

·Video tapes or audio tapes of meetings should be readily available for citizens. "Our manual will help citizens government meetings, the better the decisions will be," says Liz Natter, co-director of the project, "We're thankful to the people from Graves to Greenup County who have shared their ideas with us for this manual."

Susan Shoulders of Jefferson County said citizens used an early draft of the manual to convince their (109) solid waste board in August to adopt rules for public participation.

CHANGING DIRECTION OF UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION BILL BENEFITS KENTUCKY

I am sure that a good many Kentuckians have heard the Chinese proverb, "if you don't change direction, you're likely to end up where you are headed.'

That statement was never more true to me than just recently when I was forced to change the direction of an unemployment compensation measure steamrollering its way through Congress.

Under the so-called compromise legislation, which had sailed through the House of Representatives, unemployed Kentuckians would have been eligible for only six weeks of extended benefits — seven weeks less than under the original proposal vetoed by President Bush.

At the same time, states that were eligible for six weeks in the original measure were being granted up to thirteen weeks under the formula used to calculate benefits in the compromise bill. This was an unfair situation that Kentuckians should not have been forced to take.

Over the past seventeen years in Congress, there have been many times when I have felt lonely on the Senate floor trying to represent my state the best way I knew how. Last week was one of those times, when I had to object to a request by the Majority Leader for the Senate to immediately consider this legislation upon passage by the House.

I objected to the request for immediate consideration because I felt we needed additional time to work out a compromise on this grossly unfair bill which provided much greater benefits to some states at the expense of others. I objected because by any measurement, it was clear that my state and potentially 155,000 Kentuckians who could be covered under this legislation, were not getting a fair deal. And by doing so, it gave Senators from other states the time and opportunity to find out their states and their citizens were being shortchanged as well.

And after hours of negotiations, I am pleased to report that we were finally able to shape a second bill that shortchanges no state in this Union.

We were able to agree on a measure that will fairly benefit every state's workers who, through no fault of their own, have found themselves out of work and have exhausted their unemployment benefits.

We reached a compromise, which the Administration agreed to, that gives every state at least thirteen weeks of additional benefits and would "reach back" to cover unemployed workers who had exhausted their benefits on or after March 1, 1991. We anticipate this second measure being enacted before Congress adjourns for the year.

During these difficult economic times, our citizens are hurting just as badly as those in other states and the needs of our families are just as great. The recession has hurt those workers hardest who have been laid off and unable to find another job. It isn't because they lack the skills or don't want to work. It is because the jobs just are not there.

It is imperative that Congress and the Administration work together in shaping fair and far-sighted economic policies to get our economy moving and provide good-paying jobs for all citizens.

I'm going to be doing all I can toward this effort, and I encourage all Kentuckians to take part in this debate that will shape our country's economic future.

NOAA BILL CONTAINS PERKINS'S MEASURES

U. S. Rep. Chris Perkins's efforts over the past several months to prevent the closure of two critical weather offices serving Eastern Kentucky have advanced another step, his office announced today. Perkins' measures are included in the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) Authorization Act of 1991, which passed the U.S. House of Representatives last night by voice vote. The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is likely an attempt will be made to delete the language protecting local weather services, Perkins

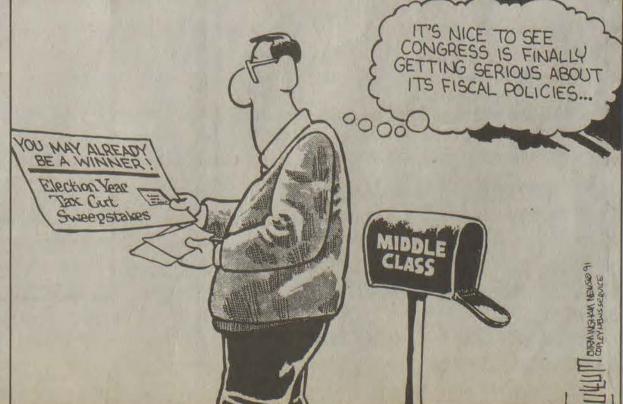

The measures, in effect, prevent NOAA, the parent agency of the National Weather Service, from reducing local offices' services to regions throughout the country if new, more centralized radar systems are put in place. The two weather offices in Eastern Kentucky affected by Perkins's measure are in Jackson, Breathitt county, and Huntington, W.Va., which serves several counties in northeastern Kentucky.

place Eastern Kentucky in between a few different technologically advanced weather radars. Although these new radars are better than the ones we have now, I fear that their forecasting for areas in Eastern Kentucky may be worse. Fringe areas like Eastern Kentucky have every right to demand proof that the new, improved radars will not give them worse forecasts," Perkins told House members in defense of his measures.

The two measures accomplish the following objectives: The first measure requires the Secretary of the Commerce Department to provide local liaison services for at least two years if a decision is made to close down local offices as part of the Weather Service's planned modernization. The second section prohibits the Commerce Department from permanently deactivating any weather radars without certifying that such closings would not jeopardize weather forecasts or liaison functions in the affected areas.

"What these measures do quite simply is make sure that the high level of communication that we have between local weather offices and the communities and schools they "The Weather Service plans to serve in Eastern Kentucky will not be adversely affected by this planned modernization," Perkins said.

Approximately $5,000 worth of stolen merchandise has been returned to owners by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department as a result of an investigation into a four-county theft

Thieves broke into the workshop of Russell Hayes in West Prestonsburg about two weeks ago and stole $4,000 worth tools he used to restore old automobiles. The tools were returned to Hayes Monday at the sheriff's department.

"It was a Saturday night about two weeks ago when someone broke the lock off the door and carried out my tools," Hayes said. "Whoever broke in didn't damage anything, they just stole my tools. I restore antique cars as a hobby. It put me out of business."

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said the tools were turned into the sheriff's office Monday after a person, whom he did not name, found the tools in the possession of a relative. The relative had bought the tools from a third party not knowing they were stolen, Thompson said.

Among the items recovered were a sander, electric grinder, a buffer, an assortment of wrenches and an air operated paint gun.

Sheriff's deputies Chuck Ousley and Linzie Hunt also recovered a television and video cassette recorder stolen from Allen Elementary last

Robbers sentenced in Pike federal court

Three Floyd County residents and an Indiana man who pleaded guilty to robbing a branch bank of the First National Bank of Pikeville on May 9 were sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court.

William Burchett, 25, Kenneth David Warth, 35, Daisy Helen Warth, 44, all of Endicott and Nelson Zepeda, 37, of Fort Wayne, Indiana received sentences ranging from 12 to 15 years for their parts in the robbery.

The four pleaded guilty September 30 to the robbery charge, use of a firearm during the crime, robbery conspiracy and a count of aiding and abetting.

Approximately $11,700 was stolen during the heist.

Tom Self, assistant U.S. attorney for the eastern district, said the four were also sentenced to three years' supervised release and ordered to pay back $422 that was not recovered by the bank. Each defendant faced up to 35 years in prison and up to $750,000

responsibility

by John H. Uppole Ranger

Dewey Lake

We have become so accustomed to non-returnable bottles, disposable diapers and plastic bags, we expect all of life to be equally convenient. If we do no longer want an item we simply throw it away, leave it behind or ignore it hoping it will go away. Unfortunately we have lost our ability to know what is disposable and what is not. We have become experts at disposing of our responsibility, integrity and compassion when convenient. A promise is worth about as much as a bottle cap providing it does not have a winning number inside. One thing we do value is money and getting the best bargain for it. Because of this you would think we could appreciate one of the greatest bargains in life, love. There is no price tag that can be put on the joy in a child's face upon receiving their own puppy or kitten. What is it worth to have a loyal and compassionate friend when you're sad and no one else seems to care. A friend who will wait by the door or from a hill top waiting for your return home, asking only to be petted and hugged know-

With such a relationship, however, comes a large responsibility. How many puppies and kittens are given to children without the parents or the children understanding their ongoing responsibility. ing that you're safe. This is indeed a bargain.

So what happens to these trusting friends, children's pets and victims of irresponsibility? Just look along the roadside of Eastern Kentucky. You'll see them ripping open garbage or licking out the remains of a candy wrapper thrown from a car window. Our happy puppy and/or kitten is sick, starving, frightened, injured or dead along the roadside.

Some people in attempt to solve the problem of an unwanted pet while, attempting to relieve their guilt, simply take the pet for a ride disposing them somewhere else. All they are doing is making their pet someone else's problem. Dewey Lake has been

Throw-away society must accept a favored dumping point for throw away cats and dogs over the years.

These unwanted pets are susceptible to a wide array of diseases and parasites including rabies. In recreation areas like Dewey lake, these sick pets come in contact with children and other visitors. The unwanted pets attempt to feed themselves by rummaging through trash cans scattering garbage and litter. This debris in turn attracts insects and rodents causing concern for visitor health and safety.

What about our throw away pets after the end of the recreation season when visitors are not around to leave scraps of food? The answer is many of the throw away pets will starve and die in the cold of winter.

These pets are subjected solely to the will, wants and irresponsible actions of mankind. They have only the life we select for them. Every unwanted female puppy and/or kitten born will give birth to three more unwanted animals and all because someone neglected their responsibility. Animal shelters and the Humane Society across this country have done aremarkable job in "recycling" throw away pets by placing them with caring owners. However, the supply of throwaway pets is far greater than the availability of homes and shelters are closing due to the lack of funds to operate.

New Nursing Class Begins

The 33 students selected for the spring nursing class at Prestonsburg Community College met for the first time on November 15 at a nursing pre-admission conference. They were congratulated by President Deborah L. Floyd who commended their persistence and courage. Sarah Lewis, bookstore assistant, informed them about the purchase of uniforms, and Jenny Bottoms, coordinator of the Nursing Program and chair of the Biological Sciences Division, gave an overview of what to expect in the program. Pictured above are Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, Sarah Lewis, and Jenny Bottoms speaking to the new nursing class.

Dr. Rondal Goble returns home

Highlands Regional Medical Center announces the addition of Rondal E. Goble, M.D., Board Certified Family Practitioner to its medical staff. Dr. Goble, a native eastern Kentuckian, graduated from Prestonsburg High School in 1978 and entered Eastern Kentucky University where he graduated in 1983. He attended medical school at Marshall University in Huntington, West Virginia and received his medical degree in May 1987.

Dr. Goble went on to specialize in Family Practice medicine and completed his internship and residency at Marshall University Affiliated Hospitals in 1988. During his final year of residency, Dr. Goble was named Chief Resident of the Family Practice Department. He was also named outstanding third year resident. Before returning to Prestonsburg, Dr. Goble practiced medicine for one year in Winchester, Kentucky in family practice.

Dr. Goble stated, "I became interested in medicine when I was a student at Prestonsburg High School and decided to major in pre-med in college. During my college years, I worked at Highlands Regional in their summer program and the positive experience I gained confirmed my decision to pursue a medical career. After I finished my medical training, I always wanted to come back home to practice medicine, and now that has become a reality."

As a family practitioner, Dr. Goble will treat patients of all ages from pediatrics, teenagers and adults to geriatrics with equal interest in all areas. Dr. Goble also expressed an added interest in the field of teaching and helping develop high school programs similar to STEPS, a national program which involves students working with professional careers. Dr. Goble's office will be located in Suite Number 2 of the Highlands Regional Medical Offices in Paintsville beside Shoney's Restaurant. He will begin office hours on December 2 and will see patients Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Appointments with Dr. Goble can be made by calling Highlands Medical Offices in Paintsville at 789-9389.

Dr. Goble is the son of Don and Maxine Goble of Prestonsburg and Dr. Goble's wife, Laura, is the daughter of David and Peggy Hereford of Prestonsburg.

MCA Grade School Tournament Gets Better, And Better...

ALLEN EAGLES MCA CHAMPIONS

If you took in any of the just completed Mountain Christian Academy grade school basketball tournament, you could see that it just keeps getting better and better. That is because of the competition.

Granted, some of the more talented teams were left out for one reason or another, but overall the just completed tournament was a huge

It was a capacity crowd just about each night as somewhere between 650 to 700 fans jammed the hilltop gym to take in some very good bas-about the event.

Allen Grade School took home the coveted crown over an excellent

Martin team. The upset just made the tournament a more prestigious event.

The games were exciting and there were some surprises. But in all the fans came away with a good feeling

Martin entered the tournament as the clearcut favorite and no one expected the Eagles to upend the bigger Martin

Each player played hard and did their best for their respective teams. Sportsmanship prevailed and that is something that has been lacking in recent games around the county.

An All-Tournament team was named at the conclusion of the tournament. Martin placed four players on the team. Named were: Adam Coleman, Kevin Robinson, Beau Tackett and Thomas Jenkins. Allen had three players that were named to the elite group: James Jarrell, Corey Patton and Keith Marsillett. Others named were: Steve Adkins, Auxier; Chris Cornette, MCA; Estill Stumbo, Maytown; Aaron Hall, Osborne.

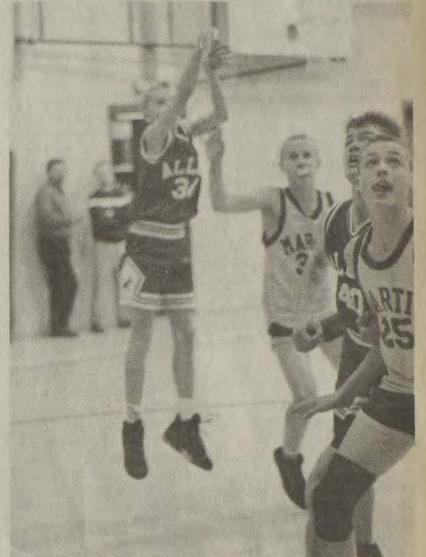

Matt Crawford of Duff won the individual free throw trophy and was the big reason that his team shot 77 percent to capture the team free throw award also.

The cheerleaders were awarded for their participation in the event. Martin won first place for the cheerleaders with Duff taking second place. Third place went to Prater Creek.

Auxier won the consolation game over MCA and received a nice trophy for their third place finish. Martin was second and Allen first.

Coaches Potter and Mayo of the Mountain Christian Academy did an excellent job of hosting the tournament. It was a first class act all the way. The folks in the concession stand area get very little recognition of the fine work they do, so we salute the concession workers as well as those that sold tickets.

I'm sure that next year's tournament will be bigger and better still.

Helps Allen to upset win!

Hot Shooting Eagles Capture Pioneer Classic Shootout

That's the Alice Lloyd Eagles who just captured the Pioneer Classic Shootout this past weekend with a 107-92 win over Fred Hardeman. The win in the championship game ran the Eagles record to 6-1 on the season with their only loss being a four point set back at the hands of the Pikeville

College Bears. "I challenged the players before this game, telling them they could be the best team of the six teams in the tournament if we could win this game," said Eagle coach Jim Stepp. 'Our rebounding has been weak but we had 44 in this game.' In the opener for the Eagles, Alice Lloyd went up against archite

EVERBODY PLAYS AS ALLEN SOARS PAST FALCONS

Allen Coach Jackie Day Crisp had a chance to let his junior varsity players see some playing time in the semifinals of the MCA A team tournament Friday night. All the players got to see action and it was the "B" team that did most of the scoring for the Eagles. Brandon Castle came off the bench and scored 10 points to lead the Eagles, James Jarrell added nine points and John Hurd, also off the bench, tossed in eight. Corey Patton and Brandon Kinzer each added six points in the win. Chad four each as did J. Estepp. Sammy Nelson scored two points. Chris Cornette had seven points to lead the Falcons. Eric Moore tossed in four Burchett, W. Hale, Ethan Blackburn and John Paige had two points apiece. Allen held a 12-10 first quarter lead but the Eagles turned up the offense in the second and third periods to post the easy win.

Russell Clark also had a good outing with 23 points and point guard Todd Johnson poured in 20. Both Clark and Johnson have been catalyst for the Eagles team.

"We played a fine ball game against Lindsey-Wilson," said Coach Stepp. "We were 17 for 29 from the three-point range and our defense forced 29 turnovers. Our quickness is definitely an advantage.

Clark hit five three-pointers in the game while Webb canned four. Johnson had three treys and freshman Mitch Harris was a perfect three for three from the 19'9" line. Harris scored 13 points for the Eagles. Avery Fairchild scored eight.

The Eagles out rebounded Lindsey-Wilson 44-37 with Pollard hauling down eight. Pollard also scored 16 points in the game. Alice Lloyd had 25 assists with Johnson picking up 11 of them. Alice Lloyd had only 11 turnovers in the game.

CAMPBELL COMMITS TO PIKEVILLE

Jeff Campbell, a 6-2 shooting guard from M.C. Napier High School, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball next season with the Pikeville Panthers. Campbell is the first recruit for Coach Rick Scruggs during the early signing period.

WAS IT A MISTAKE?

We all know about the misfortune of Fairdale's basketball standout Carlos Turner in the recent stabbing of his girlfriend and then himself. Now the University of South Carolina has had second thoughts about recruiting the 6-6 standout forward.

Gamecock coach Steve Newton says that South Carolina should have checked into the background of Turner more than they did, especially interviewing his girlfriend Nicole Shivers. Newton said that if he had known what he knows now, the university would have definitely not recruited Turner.

BELATED BIRTHDAY WISHES...

Go out to Vicki and Mickey Johnson (twins) of Wheelwright. The two turned 18-years-old back on November 5. Vicki plays basketball for the Lady Trojans while Mickey performs for the Trojans. Happy Birthday Vicki and Mickey.

K-MEN PUSHED SUTTON TO TAKE

PELPHREY AND FARMER According to Pete Grigsby Jr., who played the Baron, Adolph Rupp at the University of Kentucky, it was the local K-Men in this area that persuaded then Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton to recruit the likes of John Pelphrey and Richie Farmer.

"We pushed Sutton to take Pelphrey and Farmer," said Grigsby. "He took them to pacify us and get us to leave him alone.' Another K-Man, Billy Ray Cassidy of Martin County, was instrumental in Sutton's recruiting the Paintsville and Clay County

"I think that John Pelphrey is an example of a player that doesn't have the best of speed, but he made it at UK because of sheer determination and hustle," said Grigsby. Grigsby added that the area K-Men would like to have some other players in the area they can recommend to the University of Kentucky.

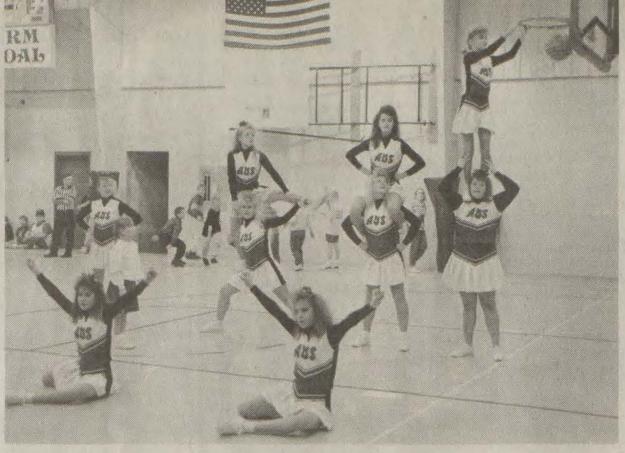

"If the players will learn the fundamentals of the game and work hard they can make it there. It not necessarily always the ones that are the most athletic.'

MOREHEAD STATE NAMES ASSISTANT BASKETBALL, BASEBALL COACH; SIGN MCCAIN

Morehead State University recently named James Farr men's assistant basketball coach for this season. Also the Eagles named Paul Bakke as their new assistant baseball coach.

The Eagles basketball staff signed 6-7, 300-pound center, Jason McCain from Kaskaskia Junior College to a men's basketball scholarship.

Some form of basketball has been played in the Americas for 12,000 years.

Sports In Our Shorts

By Dave Baker and Julian Tackett

Bill Curry and Recruiting Coordinator Tommy Limbaugh have expended Kentucky's efforts northward, and despite a tough season, early indications are that some of the nation's top prospects are interested in the Cats. Last week, Ron Nealy, one of the top defensive backs in the country was in for an official visit on the day of the West Virginia basketball game. Nealy is 5'10," 170 pounder who runs the 40 in 4.45 seconds. He had 32 tackles, 2 interceptions and 413 kick return yards for Concord Vail High School in Glenn Mills, Pennsylvania.

Max Emfinger, one of the country's top football recruiting gurus rates him as one of the top three cornerback prospects coming out of high school. "He's just real good," Emfinger said. "He's quick, smart, aggressive and I believe he will make a great corner in college." According to Emfinger, Nealy's list of colleges right now has Kentucky No. 1, South Carolina No. 2, and Pittsburg No. 3. Nealy left Lexington for an official visit at Michigan State.

Here are two great pluses for signing a player like Nealy. He's already easily passed his SAT score and he'll graduate from high school in December. That would put him on campus for spring practice, and that would give him a big leg up on other incoming freshman. Also in town for official visits last weekend, a couple of big linemen, Jim Brown from Hudson Valley Community College and Bill Lofton from Showan Junior College in Virginia.

Down to brass tacks time

The more things change, the more they stay the same. This year's expanded high school football playoff system was hailed as the chance for an underdog to perhaps capture a state championship. While those underdogs were able to help solve the issue, this weekend's semifinals will feature many old hats who are making return trips. Class AAAA powers Trinity and St. Xavier, AAA standouts Covington Catholic and Bell County, AA's Danville and Mayfield, and Class A traditional powers Harrodsburg, Pikeville, Heath and Beechwood lead the charge as these teams get up from the Thanksgiving table to head for a berth in the state championship. But don't try selling the other teams on the traditional powers' clean path to the finals. Clark County and North Hardin have their finest teams in years, while Bowling Green has left several highly touted teams in its wake on the way to the

But reserve your highest admiration for the Lawrence County Bulldogs. Coach Bill Goldsmith's charges will get up from the Thanksgiving table in Louisa, and embark on a nearly 12-hour bus ride to face the Mayfield Cardinals. After finishing third in their district, Goldsmith's team has taken a methodical route to the finals winning their first three games. Not flashy, but certainly suc-

The best kept secret in the playoffs may be Bell County. The Bobcats, highly touted in the preseason, were forced to forfeit four of their first five games due to the use of an ineligible player. But on the field, the team has lost just once in 13 weeks, and appear to have the momentum to vault past Covington Catholic and onto the Fairgrounds Stadium turf.

Back to old days

How much has the interest in Kentucky basketball increased? Just ask your local neighborhood ticket scalper. One unnamed "distributor" told me that a pair of good lower arena seats for the season were going for between $4500 and $5500, while upper arena seats were fetching between $2500 and $3500. According to that "distributor," that's an increase of about 35 percent. Who says there is a recession?

The horse returns?

By the time you read this column, don't be surprised if former Wildcat Dan Issel isn't back in the Commonwealth. The word around Frankfort is that Governor-elect Brereton Jones will name Issel as the state's new Tourism Secretary. A few weeks ago when it was announced that Issel had been nominated to the Basketball Hall of Fame, he was here in Kentucky stumping for Jones in the last days of the campaign.

Thanks again

We would be remiss if we didn't reflect and give thanks at this time of year. Last year on Thanksgiving, we were all holding our breath as thousands of our brothers and sisters. fathers and mothers, friends and relatives were waiting in the desert of Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf for word of their fate. Yes, the economy is tough, times are not as good as we would like. But we don't have the fear of war on our heads, our hostages are finally coming home from the Middle East, and for most of us, our biggest worry is Kentucky's intensity level from one game to the next. Let's remember that in this time of Thanksgiving, to indeed be thankful. Keep smilin'

Small game, waterfowl season set to open

As the heart of the autumn season arrives, with it comes the opening of small game and waterfowl seasons in Kentucky.

On November 19 rabbit, quail, and squirrel seasons open statewide. Hunting for these species always opens throughout the state on the day following the end of the deer gun season. Grouse season also opens November 19 in 53 counties in the eastern portion of the state. Hunters may get complete season information by obtaining a copy of the 1991-92 Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide, available at license outlets or from Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' offices.

In far Western Kentucky, duck and goose season opens on Thanksgiving Day, November 28. Waterfowl hunting in the Eastern Duck Zone gets underway December 7 and the Eastern Goose Zone opens December 13.

This season the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service divided the state into two zones for duck hunting. Hunters should note that the boundary lines for the duck zones and the goose zones ARE NOT THE SAME, And. as with the goose zones, different hunting dates are in effect for the Eastern Duck Zone and the Western Duck Zone.

WHY DO WE HAVE DUCK AND GOOSE ZONES?

The main reason why zones were developed for duck and goose hunting in different areas of the state is to allow more hunting opportunity in areas where the higher waterfowl populations are, and conversely, to restrict the harvest in places where populations are lower.

Waterfowl, especially geese, pose a rather unique situation for fish and wildlife agencies charged with maintaining an adequate supply of this resource for public use. First, the large majority of these birds migrate to Kentucky, and are only present during cold weather periods. Second. when the geese come to Kentucky, some use one path to get here, others use a different path. It all depends on where the birds' "real" home is. These paths are called flyways, and they lead geese to specific parts of the

There are two flyways between the northern and southern states that birds passing through or staying in Kentucky use. Almost all the geese that spend the winter in far Western Kentucky use the Mississippi Flyway. In Eastern Kentucky, however, most of the geese come from a different "home base" called the Southern James Bay. The line between the eastern and western goose zone for hunting, is basically drawn to separate the two populations. Why separate them? Because how well the population of geese is doing in one flyway isn't always the same as how well geese are doing in another

At the present time, goose numbers are very high in the Mississippi Valley population (which use the Mississippi Flyway), so goose hunting season in the Western Goose Zonc can be longer and the bag limits higher. On the other hand, goose numbers from the Southern James Bay population aren't as high, so the harvest must be more controlled, unti the birds bounce back. Harvesting a limited number of geese won't hurt the population, but over harvest could

And that's the bottom line for federal fish and wildlife agencies . . to guide the wise use of our renewable wildlife resources to insure public enjoyment year after year.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources works to continue providing all types of wildlife-associated activities, and encourages all state residents to take part in things such as hunting, fishing, birdwatching, wildlife photography or any other related activity. Almost 80 percent of Kentuckians already do. and whatever your fancy, the opportunities are endless. Enjoy!

Road's pose fatal attractions for deer during mating season

Love knows no boundaries, even highway boundaries, when mating season begins for deer this month. Blue Grass AAA Foundation for Safety cautions drivers to be especially watchful for deer crossing highways during November, one of two peak months for deer movement (the other is May). Last year 2,842 cars hit deer on Kentucky highways, often causing car damage and inju-

Alice Lloyd Lady Eagles Fall Hard To Rio Grande

Sometimes the best laid plans go astray. So it seemed in the case of the Alice Lloyd Lady Eagles basketball team last Friday night. The game plan against visiting Rio Grande was simple: hit the boards hard and play good defense. That failed to materialize in the Lady Eagles' 74-54 loss to Rio Grande.

"Our goal coming into the game was to play good defense and get some rebounds," Coach John Mills stated. "But that didn't happen. We didn't execute on offense at all. This team needs to realize we can play at this level - that's all it comes down

Rio Grande lead from the tip-off to the buzzer dictating the pace and scoring of the game. In the first seven minutes, the Lady Eagles managed to score only two points.

Down by 19 points at intermission, the second half saw the Lady Eagles surge to within nine points with nine minutes on the clock. The visitors from Ohio, with their tough defense and outstanding board play, denied the Lady Eagles their come-

Coach Mills believes the games before Christmas will be important for the Lady Eagles.

"We need to win our next game," he said. "It's crucial we get our confidence up. It's back to basics."

* If you see an animal in your lane, squeeze the brakes rather than applying them hard and skidding. Braking hard causes the front end of cars to dip and increases the chance an animal will come over the hood and through the windshield.

* If you hit an animal, pull safely off the side of the road and turn on your hazard flashers. If the animal is alive, it may be dangerous. WELL IN DINGY WATER tournament pro Jerry Rhyne, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and a long-time student of me when to re-tie is when I'm catchbass habits and habitat.

Just how well can largemouth bass once every 30 minutes," he says. see in dingy, muddy water?

anglers think they can.

changing water conditions just like our eyes adjust to changing light," says Rhyne. "A fish may not see as well in really dingy water, but it just doesn't make sense that a bass becomes practically blind every time the water gets muddy.

"I have seen many times where lure color choice made a distinct difference in the number of fish I caught in muddy water, so I know bass can see under those conditions."

Rhyne's philosophy when fishing dingy, murky water is to follow the same rules he uses when fishing under clear or cloudy skies: use bright, clear lures on clear days and darker lures on overcast days.

"If you've ever fished much at night, the Johnson pro continues, "you know the most effective lures are usually dark colored ones, even if you're fishing on the bottom. Black and black/grape worms are probably the top lure for summer night fishing.

'Obviously the bass must be able to see them quite well, even though the light level is so low. I believe the same is true in murky water, too."

What is really important about Rhyne's observations is that anglers can use a wider choice of lures when fishing this type of water. Spinnerbaits and other vibrating lures have long been considered best for these conditions, but Rhyne has enjoyed excellent success with jigs and worms.

"Fishermen have believed bass detected lures in murky water by vibrations because they couldn't see," says Rhyne, "but I like to use a jig in muddy water, and it doesn't have much vibration at all.

"I know the bass are seeing the Owners of Johnson and Evinrude electric positioning motors might like to try OMC's weedless propeller for those motors. It has a close-fitting hub and special swept-back blades that OMC says keep it from snagging without sacrificing thrust. It's available from Johnson and Evinrude dealers and fits electric motors dating to 1982.

RE-TIE NOW TO SAVE HEARTBREAKS LATER

If you've been bass fishing very long, the chances are you've experienced the heartbreaking experience of losing a big fish.

Fish get free for a variety of reasons, but one of the most common is broken line. Anglers simply need to learn to re-tie their lures more often.

That's the advice of top money winning tournament angler Larry Nixon, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and former winner of the Bass Masters Classic* world championship.

"In tournament fishing, it only takes losing one bass that could have won you a lot of money to make you start re-tying your lures," says Nixon. "It's happened to me, and now I probably re-tie more than most."

Two factors usually determine how often Nixon does re-tie his line -- the amount of cover he's fishing, and the number of fish he's catching.

"If I'm working in really thick

Ib.

Matt Crawford, Duff Elementary MCA Individual Free Throw Winner

BASS PROBABLY SEE QUITE cover and know my line is continually rubbing against logs, rocks, sticks or even grass, I will re-tie at least

"I check my line repeatedly, feel-Probably a lot better than most ing the line above the hook for any signs of wear, such as nicks, frays or That's the opinion of top bass general roughness. If I feel anything, I clip the line and re-tie my lure.

The other factor that really tells ing a lot of fish. I check my line after "I believe a bass's eyes adjust to every bass I catch, but if I'm hooking and playing a lot of bass, I usually retie after every three or four fish."

Bass can be rougher on line than cover, explains the Evinrude pro. Although they don't have actual teeth, bass can easily fray a line on the rough surface around their mouths.

'Re-tying is most critical with lighter, smaller lines," says Nixon. "If you're using a line such as six or eight pound test, you really have to take care of it. A tiny nick on six pound test line is much more serious than the same nick on 25 pound test." Many anglers who lose fish blame the line when it breaks, but Nixon puts the blame on the angler. "Today's quality lines are so well made that they rarely fail except when they're abused by the fisherman," he says. "You can abuse a line many ways, too, like leaving it out in the hot sun, continually stretching it if you snag your lure, or always pulling it against a rough surface. These things will weaken any line and cause it to break, but the most common breaking point is the first several feet above your hook where fish or heavy cover will wear it

"If you feel any type of abrasion when you rub this part of the line, you should clip it off and re-tie your lure."

Nixon can speak from the experience of losing an important bass to broken line. It happened during the final afternoon of the 1977 Bass Masters Classic when a broken line let the winning fish escape.

Ever since then he's been a firm believer in re-tying his line.

Tip: Service experts at Outboard Marine Corporation recommend anglers apply OMC Triple Guard grease to the tilt tube steering ram of their outboards to prevent the tube from seizing during winter storage. The tilt tube should also be periodically greased during the regular boating season to keep the steering operating smoothly.

Moon planting is a very controversial subject among gardeners, and farmers. There are some who will not plant or sow anything unless the sign is right. Me? I plant when the ground, and temperature is ready; if I have the seed, except for planting corn and potatoes; if it is in the light of the moon, the period between the new and full moon. I have tried these two vegetables and find that if com is planted in this period, you will need a step ladder to reach the ears, it grows so tall. Potatoes planted at this time can not be kept covered with soil and you will end up with a good crop of green skinned potatoes. A unusable potato as the light causes a poison in the vegetable that is not safe to Another tenet of moon planting depends on the exact positions of the moon in the 12 zodiac signs. This belief in moon planting is ancient and obscure. In this day and age the strong-cal farmers and gardeners alike. The sign or moon planting has always been scoffed at by the scientist. There have been very few supervised experiments on this planting idea, and those that have been made show there is little or no difference resulting from plantings made at different times of the month.

Growing up on a tobacco farm in Tennessee I know that the seed from tobacco to be used the next year was always gathered at the end of the full moon. If the seeds did not have the extra light from the moon they would not germinate. I don't think anyone knew why the practice was started nor continued. They knew it was needed and it worked.

Science believes there are many factors with which we are not familiar with. Then because of our ignorance we are apt to be 'down on what we are not up on'. Keeping ones mind open and handling all that may come into it is something quite different. It is regrettable that in education we have not invented a can opener for the closed mind.

More than one scientist suggests that if there were anything in moon planting at all, it might be caused by the tidal powers of the moon. They explain that tides occur on dry land and in the atmosphere as well as on the sea. If they are correct; why wouldn't these dry land tidal waves

Chairman of Cleveland clinic addresses physicians

Center hosted a Cardiology seminar, October 28, featuring Floyd D. Loop, M.D., renown Cardiovascular Surgeon, Chairman and CEO of the Cleveland Clinic. The seminar was presented at the Landmark Inn in Pikeville, Kentucky with forty area physicians and medical personnel attending.

Dr. Loop, a pioneer in the field of Cardiovascular Surgery, addressed physicians on new techniques in coronary artery by-pass grafting and answered questions concerning Cardiothoracic surgery and angioplasty.

Dr. Loop defined risk factors in cardiovascular surgery and indicated preventative measures people can take to avoid cardiovascular diseasetwo of the most important being smoking cessation and cholesterol control. Dr. Loop stated, "Cardiovascular surgery can temporarily correct a problem, but it cannot cure the underlying cause. In most instances cure must involve change in the patients' diet and lifestyle." Dr. Loop went on to state that todays rates for survival following coronary artery surgery are excellent.

Although Dr. Loop is Chairman and CEO of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, and is one of the most notable medical figures in the United States, he continues to practice surgery and pursue research interests in addition to his numerous administrative duties and public appearances.

Prestonsburg Kiwaniannes hold luncheon meeting

Members of the Prestonsburg Kiwaniannes held their monthly luncheon meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Thursday, November 22, at 12s30 noon, (with the event being a week earlier than usual due to the Thanksgiving holidays.) Mrs.Mabel Jean LeMaster, President, welcomed those in attendance, and Mrs. Maman Leslie gave the blessing.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Lucy Regan, chairman of the Spiritual committee, presented Mrs. Goldia S. Williams, who gave the devotional, reading passages from "Psalms," from "Hope for the Troubled Heart," by Billy Graham, and "He Brought Me a Rose," by Chessie Cornett. She ended her discussion with prayer.

Mrs. Jane Wallace, program chairman, presented Prof. Laura Weddle, a Professor of English, at Prestonsburg Community College, who delighted the group with her readings of James Whitcomb Riley's When the Frost is on the Pumpkin," and other poems, including, "Song for November," "Little Orphan Annie," and "America's Thanksgiving." Her program, and its rendition brought an enthusiastic applause from those in attendance.

During the business meeting, the minutes were read by Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, and Mrs. Garnett Fairchild gave the financial report. The President said that the Heart Clinic, sponsored by the Floyd County Health Department, would be held December 10-11. During those days, the Kiwaniannes, in cooperation with the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club furnishes snacks, milk and juice for persons in attendance there. Volunteering to help with this endeavor were Myrtle Allen, Lucy C. Regan, Maman Leslie, and Jane Wallace.

Photographs of officers for the year 1991-92 were made by Mrs. Jane Wallace. These are Mabel Jean LeMaster, president; Ada Meade, vice president; Dorothy Osborne, secretary, and Garnett Fairchild, treasurer.

Book takes mystery out of small home repairs

In case you haven't noticed, the hammer marks on wood. day of the handyman is over.

You are a rare homeowner if you can find someone to come in and fix a sticky door, a leaky faucet, a worn screen door or the dozens of other little annoyances constantly cropping

More likely, the door continues to be pounded open, the dripping faucet stains the sink yellow and drives to distraction anyone within hearing distance, and household occupants learn to live with and love the myriad of diminutive visitors who meander in through the hole in the screen door.

Anyone who has ever needed a small household repair, which surely includes everyone, has experienced the frustration of trying to find a professional to do a small job and the rage of having to pay traveling costs and service charges in addition to labor and parts.

Then there is the indignity of spending time on the phone trying to track down and beg a repair person to deign to acknowledge the small problem, because most home improvement professionals are not interested in small jobs. The cost, coupled with the agony of waiting for the return call and the time off from work waiting for the service person to show up, often late or not at all, make a minor home repair a major headache.

Robert Berko may have the answer for you. Berko is the editor of SMALL HOME REPAIRS MADE EASY, a manual that lists step-tostep directions on how to do aroundthe-house repairs. According to Berko, such mysteries as unstopping the toilet, fixing the door bell and repairing the garage door are within the capability of even the most unskilled and unschooled among us.

The paperback manual starts your education even before you attack the problem with an illustrated rundown of common tools you will need and how to handle them. For example, the novice will appreciate the illustrations of five different types of hammers, such basic revelations as how to start a nail and how to avoid

But lest the more experienced among you scoff at a book that devotes a page to hanging a picture, shelves and other things on a wall, rest assured that the manual gets into the more exotic home repair tasks such as eliminating holes in masonry, plumbing problems, repairing or replacing cracked or warped outside siding and shingles, and repairing flashing and caulking roof joints. Berko tells us that most home repairs are simple and can be mastered with no previous experience with tools or home repair. The manual provides easy-to-follow instructions, indicating the proper tools and materials to have on hand at the outset, making a visit to the hardware store in the middle of a project unnec-

This 88-large-page book, SMALL HOME REPAIRS MADE EASY, is available for $5 (plus $1.50 p&h) from Consumer Center, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, NJ 07050 or 1-800-0121 with credit card.

An added benefit to doing the job yourself is that you will probably do a better job than a workman who is trying to do the job in the least possible time, said Berko. "It's good for people to do their own repairs," he said. "It saves money and it's a source of satisfaction."

This book has just been updated to include new products and tools and now includes simple instructions on installing your own telephone and extensions.

Berko is executive director of Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer organization founded in 1969 and devoted to educating consumers. CERC gets all proceeds from the sale of this book.

As a director of the N.J. Home Improvement Contractors Association and former head of one of the state's largest home improvement contracting companies, Berko has had many years experience in the home improvement field.

Arts and crafts

Morehead State University's fifth annual Appalachian Christmas Arts and Crafts Market will be held Saturday, Dec. 7, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Laughlin Health Building.

More than 100 exhibitors from across the region, including several Kentucky Guild Artists, are expected. Many of the artists will demonstrate their handicrafts during the day.

Santa Claus will be on hand from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"There will be something for everyone, from handmade baskets and quilts to wooden toys and Christmas decorations," said Georgia Sammons, market coordinator.

"It is always hard to improve on the previous year's show, but we always try," she added. Every exhibitor's craft is judged for originality, as is the design of the display booth. "This helps us create a better overall show," Sammons said.

Additional information on the market may be obtained by calling MSU's Regional Development Services weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at (606) 783-2077/783-2895 or toll-free in Kentucky at 1-800-262-

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS by Beth Jones

"Soap Operas: Based on Reality?"

Don't you just love soap operas? They're so realistic-truly life-like representations of reallife. I don't think so. Things that happen in those shows just don't occur in the big city of Price.

While I do admit to watching soaps when I'm not at school, I take them at face value. Some people I know, however, feel as though they know the characters personally. These folks get really upset if they miss an episode.

The story lines to the soaps are unreal. The most outlandish show, in my opinion, is "One Life to Live." On this soap, character have been to heaven and back, to the Old West, and to the underground city of Eterna. Do the citizens of Mud Creek have experiences such as this? What about the people of Drift, Maytown, or Middle Creek? Again, I doubt it.

Have you ever noticed that the kids on soap operas grow up in a matter of months? In May, for example, the kid goes to summer camp. She is six years old. Three months later, she comes back and POW! the kid is eighteen and trying to steal her mother's fifth husband.

I just wonder where the writers get their ideas. I think perhaps they once wrote science-fiction novels. Maybe the writers grew ine they are pretty smart, though. These writers get a vast majority of the American population to believe what they write. More power to 'em, I always say.

People in the soaps marry about as often as I change my socks. Take Erica Kane on "All My Children" for example. I think she's been married seven times. She's right up in the running with Liz Taylor and Zsa Zsa Gabor for having the most husbands. She's also had more boyfriends than I have teeth. Erica's just lucky, I

I could go on for days about the silliness of daytime soaps, but I'd end up with some enemies (I probably already have a few.) Remember, though, soaps are O.K. if you take them at face value. The characters aren't real, and even if they die, the writers can always bring them back. "Til next week...

Thanksgiving dinner

Once again, the Thanksgiving "Love Dinner" will be served at the Community United Methodist Church, with other churches of the community participating in the furnishing of the food. The dinner will be served in Fellowship Hall there to those who are able to attend, and will be delivered to shut-ins. THE OPRY

The Kentucky Opry is pure delight. I've seen it three times and will be as anxious to go again when there is an opportunity.

For anyone who has not yet seen this group perform, it would be worth your while to catch the show when it is available again. And when you go, you can expect to sit back and forget the little trivialities that have nagged you. Your spirits will be lifted and you'll come away feeling better and more positive about this area and the new opportunities available to our young people.

Many things have been said and written about this group-and I could write a paragraph about each member- but I'll say simply that, by doing what they do best, they have renewed our faith in ourselves and our own abilities.

Billie Jean Osborne has a knack for recognizing and promoting talent. After all, during her teaching

Sexton has been making reindeer for the past seven years, beginning his

Christmas project in Roanoke, Virin Roanoke. He saw an old, rotten wooden deer standing in someone's yard. "It was just two old, rotten the reindeer and then resold them at a profit. Guests at the motel were drawn to the deer and purchased them.

Sexton estimates his reindeer are scattered across the country from Florida to the western states. "One is even in Puerto Rico," said Sexton.

Hours passed by his home to film the Muddy Gut segment, she was intrigued by his reindeer display. She bought several and ordered more.

career, she took a high school band and a group of majorettes and won first place awards all over the country. They went several times to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans, to the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, DC, and to both the Kentucky Derby parade and the State Fair in Louisville. We came to expect another trophy with each competition they entered.

The Kentucky Opry is a new and different dream whose timing is right for our needs- and for the crew's need to express what it is capable of. Their performances has brought us to our feet, and that ought to make it easier for us to move forward.

IN THE AUDIENCE

Another good thing about going to see the Kentucky Opry is that so many other people you know will be there, too, and you get to see so many new and old friends.

Wooden shapes come to life

under guidance of Arthur Sexton

Among the new friends I saw at same restaurant, or the same shop. the most recent performances was We seem to run in some of the same Betty King who lives in Knott County circles, and she has such a pleasant and works as a window clerk at the Martin post office.

We found ourselves seated together and she had recognized me for my contributions to postmaster publications. Between songs, we talked a little about our postal careers and some people we both know. This was Betty's first time to see the Opry, and she was duly impressed.

Among the old friends we ran into was Myrtie Hill Davis. She once ran a little grocery store in the upper end of Prestonsburg and I would stop in fairly often, partly to get some item and partly just to see her. She is such a gracious lady, and it had been much too long since we'd even been able to say hello.

Another old friend who was seated near us was Eva Collins. Of course it's not unusual to run into Eva for quite often we find ourselves in the personality that even a brief visit with her is a treat.

It was at the first performance of the Kentucky Opry that I saw Edith Rice. I heard her tell her husband, "I'm not going to talk to Aileen for I don't want to wind up in the paper."

Edith is the postmaster at Eastern, and I don't suppose she'd want me to tell that I was her trainer in that capacity-but I was.

Of course she would be pleased, I am sure, to have me say she and her husband, Reginald, are the parents of Kenny Rice, well known TV person-

You will talk to me again, won't you, Edith?

I, on the other hand, was planning to catch a few more winks.

She won this round too!

Finally game time arrived and I was glad. She spotted her coach, Johnny Stephens, the minute we hit the door.

Coach told Tiff to go to his wife Jean to get her uniform and go get ready. Off she went and back in a flash, we were headed for the ladies' room to change. (No co-ed locker rooms for my daughter).

Anyway, her eyes shone like 50 cent pieces when she saw herself in the mirror in the Bullet uniform. "I can't wait mommy, we play next," she said jumping up and down.

These games are a sight to see. The kids are so adorable, espe cially when they do some of the cutest things. For instance, Tiff got hold of the ball at one point and was headed in the wrong direction to try and score two points. The crowd was screaming WRONG WAY, WRONG WAY and the referee pointed her in the right direction.

She looked at her coach as if to say, Ooops! Shrugged those shoulders, and took off in the right direction. The Bullets played their hearts out, and lost by only seven points. Pretty darn good for their first game.

My brother-in-law, Chris, was next to play, so we decided to stay and watch his game.

One little fellow had the ball and was covered by the other team players, their arms were up like they should have been to block his pass to his teammate. So, what does this little tyke do, threw it backwards- and it worked.

If you get a chance, see a game. I can assure you it's enjoyment of the best kind.

Till next week, play ball!

THANKSGIVING SUPPER IS HELD

The annual Thanksgiving fellowship supper was held at the Grethel Baptist Church Annex on Friday, November 15, at 6: p.m. with 44 individuals attending.

Special guests were Dr. Paul Reiter, a professor at Appalachian Bible College in Bradley, West Virginia and freshman student, John McKin-

Dr. Reiter was speaker for the Thanksgiving service, and McKinney spoke to the young people at their party on Saturday, November 16.

Dr. Reiter brought the messages Sunday at 11 a.m. and at 6:30 p.m. Mr. McKinney gave his testimony in the evening service.

Special speaker were guests of Pastor and Mrs. David Givens and family.

PEOPLE FORGET

You can love him or you can hate him, but as Governor Wilkinson rides slowly off into the sunset, you can never say his term was boring. From day one, controversies too numerable to mention in a column this size, have plagued him. Lexington Herald-Leader cartoonist Joel Pett (himself the subject of much controversy) has characterized him as a weasel. Throughout his tenure we've heard him called everything from a genius to a buffoon. Now, as Brereton Jones dons his white hat and get ready to move into the foreman's bunkhouse, Wilkinson's quietly packing his saddlebags.

Depending on with whom you're talking, Wilkinson was either a heroic town marshal who fought the odds and all the bad guys and cleaned up Dodge City, or he was merely just another dastardly villain who snuck little attention, except from a few into town, cleaned up on shady deals, then snuck out again. I suppose history will have to judge him. I can't.

One things for certain, though. First lady Martha was anything but the prim and proper school marm, and didn't do much to help her husband's image... in my opinion. It's likely she'll be remembered for her bib (?) for the democratic gubernatorial nomination (which was something akin to ludicrous, to say the least) far less than she will for her fight to eradicate illiteracy.

Not that it's her fault, necessarily. It's just that most folks (unlike the old song suggests) choose to "accentuate" the negative and "eliminate" the positive when it comes to public officials...and their kin.

Anyway, the governor's visit to Eastern Kentucky last week drew very people in the media. Folks in Pike County named a road after him. Later that day he was at Mayo State Vocational-Technical school in Paintsville. But, few people noticed.

I suppose it all proves that even when it comes to politics, fame is fleeting and people forget.

Times have really changed since John Kendrick Burns penned these lines:

"For Summer rain, and winter's sun, For autumn breezes crisp and sweet; For labor's doing to be done, and labors all complete; For April, May and lovely June, for bud and bird, and berried vine; For joy of morning, night and noon, my thanks dear Lord, are thine!'

I'll bet we'd all feel better if, just for a few minutes, we'd give thought to what the holiday is truly all about. But, most of us probably won't because, as I said, people forget.

Big Sandy Retired Teachers hold luncheon

Members of the Big Sandy Re- behalf of retired teachers during the tired Teachers' Association held their quarterly luncheon-meeting on Friday, November 22, at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. Coffee and donuts were served from 9:30-10:00

Miss Ethel Fetterly, President, presided. She welcomed those in attendance, then called on H. C. Dutton to lead the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag. Mr. Dutton also presented the devotions, the theme of which was "Thanksgiving Season." He read passages from Psalms, read a poem about Thanksgiving, and led in prayer. Russell Boyd, former President of KRTA, introduced a group of Elder Hostel members who were visiting at May Lodge, and showed an interest in attending this meeting,

Miss Fetterly then presented the Johnson Central High School Chorus and their Director, Mr. Brad Daniels, who entertained the group with such songs as "We All Need Somebody to Lean On," "Oh, Holy Night," "Don't Know Nothin',""Do You Hera What I Hear?" and "Johnny, Be Good."

The President read to members of this chorus, a poem entitled, "Somebody's Mother," and Russell Boyd expressed the feelings of many when he stated this presentation caused him to be "not only entertained, but also inspired."

Names of those in the chorus, who, Dutton, Harold Preston, Lillian Arunder the guidance of their Director, Mr. Brad Daniels, rendered this outstanding program, includes Christina Adams, Elizabeth Beam, Jennifer Beam, Jeremiah Blair, Amy Browning, Angela Browning, Sharon Caudill, Kevin Conley, Monica Estep, Loretta Evans, Amanda Greer, Cindy Hackworth, Jennifer Fyffe, Michell Maynard, Jacqulyn Music, Glenda Phelps, Lana Ramey, Kenneth Rice, Dejean Rose, Gloria Stacy, Amy Ward, Amy Wikoff, Amy Williams, Paula George, Angel Hall, Herb Stapleton, Marsha Brown, Joyeal Hollan, David Wells, Tres Dean, Jamey Robinette, Martina Auxier, Joe Nickel, and Billie Jean Spaulding.

Following the program, a roll-call by counties was made by Mrs. Delphia Hicks, who also read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. Miss Ruby Akers, President of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association, displayed the cookbooks which this group is selling, the profit of which is earmarked for many worthy causes of the FCRT.

The President introduced Mrs. Pauline Salyer Blair, who was once one of her pupils, and now a member of the BSRT.

Reports were heard from these committee chairpersons on these subjects: Russell Boyd, legislation; H.C. Dutton, membership; Virginia S Goble, Pre-retirement; Glen McDowell, insurance, and a report on publicity was made.

These presidents of the various counties also made reports Charles Spears, Pike; Anna Ruth Arnett, Magoffin; Edith Hall, Lawrence, Harold Preston, Johnson, and Ruby Akers, Floyd. (Martin County was not represented at this meeting).

Ray Conley, of Johnson County, read a poem entitled, "Elkhorn City," written by his uncle, Dr. J. D. Meade, and another "I'm Drinking from a Fountain," Author Anonymous, after which the President remarked, "My cup runneth over"

Miss Fetterly, President, presented Mr. Frank Hatfield, Director of the KRTA, who, in turn, gave special recognition to Mr. Russell Boyd, former President of KRTA., and to Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, a member of the KRTA Executive Council.

Mr. Hatfield stressed the importance of membership. He said the response from pre-retirement meetings had been good. He also said that 5 lobbyists would be working on

Mrs. Martin, Junior American Citizens' State Chairman, spoke on patriotic and historic subjects for students from kindergarten to eighth grade for Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, urging chapter members to participate in this category.

In other business, Brackett reported on the one-room school project. An application containing 68 documented pages, 4 pages of pictures, and 15 miscellaneous letters went into the school project postmarked to the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission 1792-1992, November 1, 1991. She was assisted by Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, Mrs. Imogene Caldwell, and Mrs. Ray Brackett.

The regent read an invitation from the Prestonsburg Rotary Club and the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce to attend the 4th Annual Literacy Banquet on Thursday, November 12, at Jenny Wiley State Park Convention Center. She announced that the KSDAR Executive Board of Management will be held November 12-13 at the Campbell House, Lexington, and that John Graham Chapter will serve as one of the hostesses in the March State Conference at the Marriott Resort, in Lexington.

Mrs. Brackett reported on attending the Duncan Tavern Homecoming on October 27, at Paris, where approximately 200 state DAR members gathered for a luncheon. She also passed out 1991-92 Yearbook programs.

A sympathy card was sent to member Pamela V. Wohlford and her family, on the death of her son-inlaw, Enoch Mitchell, principal at Betsy Layne Elementary School.

The secretary read an invitation honoring the regent and her husband, Carl R. Horn, on their 60th wedding anniversary, which will be held at Jenny Wiley Convention Center, December 1, from 2:00-5:00 p.m.

Answering the roll call were Horn, Brackett, Goble, Stepp, May, Runnels, Dorothy Osborne, Alice Harris, Mae Kendrick, Vivian Hale, and a guest, Mrs. Cordell Martin. Mesdames Vivian Hale and Pauline Burchett served as hostesses.

"Each one has its own personality," said Sexton. There is also something about the reindeer that make people want to talk to them. Customers usually begin talking to the creatures before they leave the yard, said Belcher. Both Sexton and Belcher said they frequently find themselves talking to the reindeer and are saddened to see them leave their care.

Possibly, people become attached to the wooden creatures because the reindeer's eyes and mythical hearts hold a mysterious tale of Christmas - a message of love and pride in accomplishment.

(1) In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Delta Energy Corporation, P.O. Box 2189, Ashland, KY 41105-2189, has filed an application for a major revi-sion to an existing surface coal mining and reclamation operation. The major revision proposes to add an additional 6.49 acres of surface disturbance and delete 13.00 acres of surface area and 11.70 acres of underground area for a total permit area of 226.16 acres located 1.75 miles northeast of German in Floyd

(2) The proposed major revision area is approximately 1.0 mile north from Crooked Branch Road's junction with KY 194 and located 0.25 mile east of Copperas Creek. The latitude is 37 42' 30" and the longitude is 82 36' 57".

(3) The proposed major revision is located on the Lancer U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be affected by this major revision is owned by O.C. Howell, et al. William Crider, Warren Cline, et al, Celia Cline and Pocahontas Development

(4) This major revision proposes a change in the post-mining land use from forestry to wildlife habitat and the addition of road areas.

(5) The major revision application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 1346 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653-1397. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, No. 2 Hudson Hollow, Frankfort, Kentucky

PUBLIC NOTICE

The State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education has scheduled a public hearing on a proposed facility plan to be presented by the Kentucky Department of Education for the Floyd County School District to be held December 5, 1991 at 6:00 p.m. Required by KRS 157.620 and regulated by 702 KAR 1:001, the hearing will be held at Prestonsburg Elementary Auditorium. The hearing is open to the public.

The facility plan is a list of the construction and/or renovation projects that the school district may undertake and the order in which they may be initiated. A copy of the proposed facility plan is available for examination by interested citizens at the office of the Floyd County Board of Education, Prestonsburg, Ky. Questions may be directed to Ronald L. Hager, Superintendent Floyd County Schools. Persons having concerns about the facility plan may present oral and/or written testimony to the hearing officer. The hearing officer, after considering the proposed plan, and all other plans or alternatives presented at the hearing and applicable laws and regulations, will recommend a facility plan to the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education for approval. When approved by the State Board, the plan becomes the district's facility plan for a period of four (4) years.

up from the revised August index of 111.2. The monthly increase in September of nearly 50.0 percentage points was the largest monthly gain since record keeping began in 1971. Also, last month's index was the highest since May 1977, when it was 118.6.

NAR President Harley E. Rouda said the current affordability conditions, namely low interest rates, have not been seen in fourteen years. "There is a dichotomy in the market-buying conditions are excellent, but home sales, especially trade-up buyers, seem immune from lower rates. First-time buyers have been highly responsive to the fall in rates, yet trade-up buyers are more sensitive to the confidence factor," he said.

The September index shows that a family earning the national median income of $36,361 in September had 116.1 percent of the income needed to qualify for conventional financing covering 80 percent of a home priced at $99,800, the median existing-home price for that month. The median is the midpoint, meaning half the existing single-family homes sold in September for more than the median price and half sold for less. Similarly, half the families in the United States earn more than the median income and half "Objectively speaking, home buying conditions couldn't be better, and as mortgage rates continue to fall, more buyers will be drawn into the market. However, for any long-term improvement in the housing market to occur, we need to do something about the dismal level of consumer confidence," he said.

NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo said that in addition to consumer confidence, the lack of jobs also is a serious problem. "The decline in interest rates is the best shot in the arm the economy could get. However, we need more jobs to go along with the low rates," he said.

The Housing Affordability Index calculated for the four regions of the country improved in every area during September.

Tuccillo said excellent mortgage rates, including for adjustable mortgages, which are now under 8 percent, are creating a ripe market for

A family earning the median income in that region had 156.6 percent of the income needed to purchase the median-priced home there last month. In August, the index for the Midwest was 146.6.

In the South, the typical family also had more than enough income to purchase the median-priced home last month. The index was 113.7 in September, up from 111.9 the previous

In the Northeast, the typical borrower's purchasing power stood at 93.0 in September, an increase from 87.6 in August.

In the West, a family earning the median income, had 83.3 percent of income needed to buy the medianpriced home in September. In August, the index for the West was 80.3.

The interest rate used to compute NAR's Housing Affordability Index. which is a composite of closing rates for both fixed-rate mortgages and adjustable-rate mortgages on existing homes, as reported by the Federal Housing Finance Board, declined to 9.17 percent in September from 9.36 in August. The September rate was the lowest since March 1988, when it was 9.14.

When calculated with the board's effective fixed-rate mortgage interest rate of 9.57 percent for September, the index was 112.2. When calculated with the effective adjustablerate mortgage interest rate of 7.87 percent for September, the index was

The median home price declined $2,400 between August and September; the median family income rose $112; and the income needed to qualify for a loan covering 80 percent of the typical home declined $293. Also, the monthly mortgage payment declined $27 to $652 in September.

FLOYD COUNTY ADULT LITERACY COUNCIL

Kentucky Literacy Commission Audrey Tayse Haynes, Executive Director

Sandra L. Gubser Secretary Workforce Development Cabinet

ALC: THE REAL PROPERTY AND ADDRESS OF THE PARTY AND ADDRESS OF THE PART

Dear Citizens of Floyd County:

On behalf of the board and staff of the Kentucky Literacy Commission, I am very pleased and excited to have the Floyd County Literacy Council as a member of our statewide literacy network.

The Floyd County Literacy Program has consistently proven itself as one of our best: highest enrollment of adult new readers, very high retention of participants, and very active community involvement. Among the many assets of the David School, Danny and Ann Greene are spokespersons for literacy in Floyd County across Kentucky, and throughout the nation. We, too, are very proud of them!

Recently Floyd County Literacy Program was chosen by the Kentucky Literacy Commission to serve as a Literacy Resource Center for 13 Eastern Kentucky counties. We are honored to have the opportunity to tap into the quality programming and staff involved in the Floyd County program. Many neighboring counties will now be able to take advantage of the fine training opportunities provided to Floyd Countians.

We salute the commitment of the board and staff of the Floyd County Literacy Council. Your efforts to eradicate illiteracy in your county will provide hope for a better future to the adults and families it serves and a brighter economic future for Floyd County.

Respectfully,

Audrey Tayse Haynes Executive Director

My Story

By Natalie Elliot

I was sixteen years old when I quit school. I felt like getting married and raising a family was more important than an education. When my children were grown with their own families. I needed something to occupy my time, so I decided to get a job. The only problem was when I applied for a job and they found out I did not have a high school diploma or GED they would not hire me. I decided then to start taking the adult education classes. I took the classes through The David School. The night I graduated was one of the most important nights of my life. I felt like I had accomplished something.

While I was going to the adult education classes, I decided I wanted to help others the same way the teachers had helped me. After I received my GED, I wanted to help my teacher with her other students. I enjoyed watching the other students learn things I had learned. After working with my teacher and learning how to teach others, I now teach students how to read in my own home. It is one of the most enjoyable things I have ever done. If you are interested in learning how to read or get your GED, you can contact The David School or the READ program.

Local United Way funds new programs

Through the cooperative efforts of the United Way of Eastern Kentucky, the Floyd County Literacy Council will now be able to establish literacy tutoring for area high school students in need of remedial reading.

Honor students, teachers and parents willing to participate will be trained as tutors by the Council. The trainer will travel to each school and conduct free 14-hour tutor training sessions, certifying the volunteers as Kentucky Literacy Commission tutors and Literacy Volunteers of America tutors.

This project has been received with great enthusiasm by local high school teachers, parents and the Floyd County Education Association.

Funding from United Way will enable the Council to provide the service free to students, tutors and schools. The program, it is hoped, will encourage students to reach their full potential and prevent student dropouts.

United Way funding has also enabled the Council to expand its efforts in the area of public awareness. Advertising with fliers, posters and the local newspaper provides the opportunity to reach many prospective tutors and students.

The Council considers tutors to be the lifeblood of the program and sponsors a recognition ceremony and party at least twice a year for tutors and students.

This year for the first time, tutors and students will also be able to take field trips. Many students, as well as tutors, have never traveled outside the area, and the field trips are ex-

On November 16 at the Literacy Volunteers of America national conference, I presented a workshop on Developing Community Relations in Rural Areas. Attending this workshop were representatives from 60 literacy programs around the country.

This workshop consisted of sharing the activities and participation of local businesses, clubs, churches, organizations and individuals we have had in Floyd County.

I shared how supportive the people of Floyd County have been over the past years for our annual banquet. I mentioned the various stores in our community that put either bookmarks or fliers in their customers' bags or the signs allowed to be put up in stores and churches; how so many of the local churches have opened their doors to our students and tutors to be able to study in a warm and comfortable setting; the various donations of books and materials donated to our program from local businesses; the advertising space that is donated to us. The list went on and on.

As people shared stories of how much trouble they had in enlisting the support of their communities, I realized how fortunate our council is to have such a supportive community.

Thank you.

What a wonderful feeling to see this!

Making a difference

By Sandy Burchett Tutor

This is my third year being privileged to teach adult reading through the Floyd County Literacy Program. When I think of what a wonderful experience it has been and how much it has added to my outlook on life and on my community, I immediately think of a very special person, Sister Mary Gervase, formerly of Prestonsburg, who approached me about the idea of teaching adult reading. After talking with her about it and the time involved, I thought maybe I could make a difference in someone's life.

I have to say that it has made a difference in my life in that each person I have worked with is now more confident and smiling about life itself. What a wonderful feeling to see this! This, in turn, enables each one of them to feel a part of their community.

There is so much to say about this wonderful opportunity of teaching. Many thanks to Palmer Hall and Lonnie Jarrell for being dedicated students. They are not only my students, but also good friends who have helped me in many ways. Thanks also to the Christian Appalachian Project and Floyd County Literacy Program which worked very hard toward this goal. Thanks to Peg Smith of David School, who, through God, has inspired me week to week.

I would be glad to talk with anyone interested in this great goal for our community.

Rotary International's goal:

Creating a literate global population

-- starting at home

By Kevin Yeager President

Prestonsburg Rotary Club

Literacy is a topic that is on the minds of many Rotarians these days, as it should be with everyone involved in workplace activities.

Rotary International is an organization comprised of service clubs whose members are business men and women in their local communities. As such, there are several reasons why Rotarians are very interested in raising the literacy level throughout the world.

Rotarians, who live by the motto "Service Above Self," seek out opportunities to serve the community. Improving the literacy level in a community is, without a doubt, one of those opportunities.

Also, Rotarians are very often employers in their communities. Similar to all employers, they need a supply of potential employees who can read and understand instructions and communicate well with good verbal and written skills.

This is why Rajendra K.
Sabook, President of Rotary International, has called all Rotarians to participate in literacy efforts within their countries and communities.

In his call to action, President Saboo urged all Rotarians to perform the following functions:

 Make a personal commitment to learn about functional literacy gaps around the globe, and especially in your country, region and workplace. •Investigate needs and resources by looking into programs run or sponsored by government agencies; schools, community colleges, universities and trade schools; religious groups; nonprofit organizations; libraries; business groups, and consultants.

 Decide how you will participate — for example, as an advocate, volunteer administrator or tutor, or fundraiser.

 Follow through on your decision by getting involved in helping meet the challenge of functional literacy.

As a result of this call, Rotarians around the world are gearing up to participate in all type of literacy efforts.

At the local level, the Prestonsburg Rotary Club was involved in literacy efforts long before President Saboo issued his call for Rotarian participation in these programs. Our club, along with the Floyd County Literacy Council and the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, is cosponsoring the Fourth Annual Literacy Banquet.

The purpose of this banquet, which will be held on November 21, at the Stumbo-Wilkinson Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, is to increase the awareness of the literacy problems in our community, to recruit new volunteers into local literacy programs, and to share success stories of those who have been helped by the programs in recent years.

Besides our efforts with the banquet, Daniel Greene of the David School is the literacy coordinator for our Rotary zone, which includes many states in addition to Kentucky.

We need everyone to join the cause if we intend to stamp out illiteracy around the world. We need to start at home, right here in Floyd County.

But most importantly, several individual Rotarians have been volunteer tutors in recent years. If you have ever been a tutor, or have known a tutor, you know that the relationship is not "strictly business." A large portion of a tutor's heart goes into the relationship between the student and the tutor, which is a primary reason for the successful completion of the

Yes, literacy is a project that all Rotarians have been called to by our International President, and as Rotarians always do, we will respond to the call. But Rotarians and the many other dedicated organizations and volunteers cannot do the job at hand alone. We need everyone to join the cause if we intend to stamp out illiteracy around the world. We need to start at home, right here in Floyd County.

Ever since I started trying to get my GED, I have learned more than I expected.

Trying for my GED has helped me to build up my self-confidence, and now I have faith in myself to become anything I want to be. Anyone could really be what he or she wanted to be only if one would put his or her mind to it.

Peg hounded and pounded on me as she coached me along to get my GED.

Literacy: It affects the 'whole person'

By Sister Mary Fanning Executive Director Our Lady of the Way Hospital

Concern for the health care status of the whole person and providing educational opportunities for the personal and professional growth of its employees are two important components of the operating philosophy of Our Lady of the Way Hospital. This operating philosophy has its roots in the gospel message of Jesus Christ and is translated into action through support of educational improvements and advancements for hospital employees and for the community. The education orientation of the hospital supports the underlying conviction that the health care ministry is a ministry to the whole person: the body, the soul, the mind and the heart. To the degree that any facet of the person is "ministered to" or "healed" the whole of the person is affected: physically, spiritually, mentally and emotionally.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital has made GED classes available to employees during their work schedule; it has made its conference room in the Seton Complex available free of charge for literacy and adult education classes; and it has a financial assistance program available to employees to encourage them to further their education. At this time, 17 of the hospital's 150 employees are enrolled in courses, and some take advantage of flexible scheduling to attend day classes.

Literacy plays a very important place in the physical health of a person. Reading skills enable the individual to learn about diseases and prevention, to review instructions concerning diet or medication, and, further, to participate in the healing of others with the same physical condition by reading about their experiences.

As a community health care leader, Our Lady of the Way Hospital is committed to its support of literacy and adult education programs and finds great reward and satisfaction in seeing that its resources are used to this end.

ARC funding helps local Literacy Council

By Ann Greene Literacy Coordinator

Through a grant written by the Kentucky Literacy Commission, the Floyd County Literacy Council has received funds from the Appalachian Regional Commission to upgrade its services.

This past year, we received monies to purchase a new computer system, which enabled us to set up a more effective management system.

This year, we will receive funds to become a resource center for the Big Sandy Area and the Kentucky River Area county literacy programs.

As a regional resource center, we will provide the following services to 13 counties, including our own.:

• A 12-14 hour Basic Reading Tutor Training program.

 Ongoing inservices for tutors in local programs as needed and requested.

•Computer training for

Literacy Council coordinators and tutors

Through this grant, these councils will have access to training needs in their own counties. Training will also be provided to upgrade the skills of the Literacy Coordinator of Floyd County.

This new project will allow us to expand our knowledge and help us to serve our students and the students in other counties more effectively.

It is hoped that we might be able to get an 800 telephone line installed to make it easier for people in these counties to contact us with their needs at no expense to their programs.

The Floyd County Literacy Council is proud to be of assistance to the people of Eastern Kentucky.

A wife's tale

The literacy program has really helped my husband a lot. He is reading much better than before.

He isn't as frustrated now as he used to be. Reading is meaning more to him now.

The children and I enjoy having their daddy read books, etc., to us. We encourage him as much as possible. The children are proud of their daddy and he feels better about himself!

My husband has a really nice tutor, Peg Smith. She cared enough to open doors for him in his reading. She is a really caring person and her friendship means a lot to the whole family.

My husband has accomplished a lot in reading. He is determined to read even better. If you can't read too well, or if you know of someone who doesn't, you really should learn. Reading can change people's lives.

Supports literacy programs

By Sidney Jane Smith Director Floyd County Head Start

Each year, almost 679 children from low-income families enter school for the first time in Floyd County. While their more fortunate classmates may face the new challenge with assurance, many of those from low income homes begin school with health problems and lack of self-confidence. Without the will to move ahead, these children often fall behind in their first years of school and find their troubles compounded in later years.

Head Start began with an eightweek summer program by the Office of Economic Opportunity in 1965 and was designed to help break this cycle of poverty by providing preschool children of low-income families with a comprehensive program to meet their emotional, social, health, nutritional and psychological needs.

Recruiting children age 3 to school entry, Head Start over the years became an eight-month program and was enthusiastically received by educators, child development specialists, community leaders and parents across the nation. Head Start now serves 450,000 children and their families each year in urban and rural areas in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and the United States territories.

Together, we can make a difference.

The Floyd County Head Start Program is funded for 196 children located in 10 classrooms at eight centers. The program employs 10 teachers, 10 teacher aides, 10 bus drivers, three family service workers, one secretary/bookkeeper and one director. The program maintains its own transportation system.

Promoting Family Literacy Through Head Start

The primary goal of Head Start is to promote the development of social competence in the young children it serves. To effectively meet this goal, Head Start has long recognized the importance of supporting parents' efforts to attain family self-sufficiency of many Head Start families; furthermore, an intergenerational cycle of illiteracy, low expectations, and frustration threatens the development of Head Start children. Head Start must respond by incorporating a family-centered approach to promoting the literacy development of families it serves.

Head Start should play a significant role in helping its families break the cycle of intergenerational illiteracy because:

 Literacy development, which begins in early childhood, is a critical aspect of social competence.

 The adult literacy skills of Head Start parents significantly affect the self-sufficiency of their families.

•Local, state and national attempts to promote family literacy need partners like Head Start to effectively reach low-income families with young children.

Community Partnership and Collaboration

The Floyd County Head Start Program, Floyd County Board of Education, Big Sandy Area Community Action Program Agency Inc.-Head Start and the David School are joining resources to provide parents with the opportunity to achieve literacy.

The Big Sandy Community Action Program-Head Start Inc., using Head Start literacy funds, will pay for possible babysitting costs, transportation costs, and fees. These literacy funds were awarded to the agency by Region IV Head Start for the express purpose of Head Start Family literacy efforts.

Through communication, coordination and collaboration, we are seeking to help break the cycle of family illiteracy. Head Start can help "connect" with families who might be overlooked or ineffectively served by existing approaches. Together, we can make a difference.

Group tutoring now possible

In a collaborative effort, three organizations have joined together to provide a new model training project.

With funding from the Coors Foundation, Literacy Volunteers of America and Laubach Literacy Action have developed a new method for teaching adult literacy students.

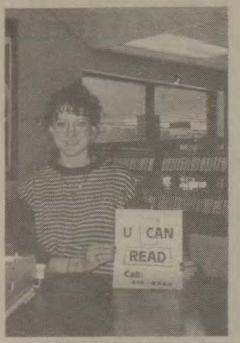

Traditionally both literacy organizations have worked with students on a one-to-one basis. This new method would bring literacy students together in small groups.

The theory behind this is that our adults, although unable to read, do have a world of knowledge to share. The students would be discussing and sharing information and learning together.

The Coors Foundation put on three national "train the trainer" sessions.

Ann Greene from the Floyd County Literacy Council was asked by the Kentucky Literacy Commission to join a training team to serve Eastern Kentucky. She attended the national training and then, with her team, trained others at the State Adult Learner Institute in August at Eastern Kentucky University. This model will enable programs to serve more students if they have a limited number of volunteers.

Volunteers who want to be small group tutors must first attend the basic reading workshop and get experience in tutoring. Then they must attend a nine-hour small group training session dealing with specific techniques and fundamentals of group dynamics.

Purposes Floyd County Literacy Council

♦♦To increase public awareness of adult illiteracy in Floyd County and to keep the community aware of adult literacy programs by sponsoring a variety of activities to disseminate information and promote literacy activities.

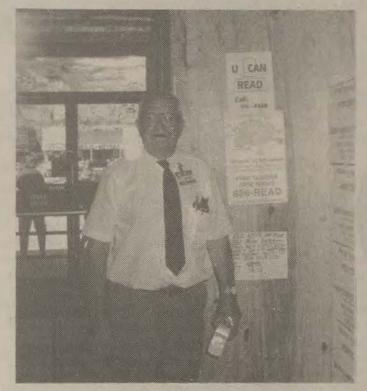

◊◊To participate in any local, state or national campaign to create an awareness of the problems of adult illiteracy and recruit students and volunteer tutors.

◊◊To attend local, state or national conferences to keep up-to-date with new methods, techniques and technology that might help us to serve our students more effectively.

♦♦To provide quality training, support and materials for volunteer tutors

◊◊To identify and obtain resources that will ensure the maintenance and expansion of the adult literacy effort.

⊗To work with local, state and national governments and legislators to further commitments to support literacy.

Reading is exciting

By Charlie Bentley

As a student in adult literacy, I find learning to read a slow process. It takes time. You have to put a whole lot of time into it. You have to be patient with yourself.

I can read more words now than I could a year ago, but there are still many words I need to learn. I want to learn to read items at the grocery store better and to read my mail without help.

Anyone who wants to learn to read should give it a try.

They should not be ashamed. I think anyone can learn to read.
It just takes time.

Every time I learn one new word I get excited. It makes me feel real good. I know I'm one more step closer to reaching my goal of reading better. Sometimes it is hard to read when I have a lot of things on my mind. I cannot concentrate. But I do the best I can.

Never give up!

... my cup labeled "courage" has been filled.

Since living in David, Kentucky, my life has changed so much because of many people. But especially because of the students whom I have had the pleasure and honor of getting to know and working with. Through these adults who have somehow been "short changed" by the educational system and/or circumstances in their own personal lives, my cup labeled "courage" has been filled.

It has been filled because I look at these people who, first, have had to admit to another person they can't read or can't read very well and, then, take the step of going to "school." Many of these adults have unpleasant and fearful memories of what "school" is and so the courage to take this step is admirable to me.

These students are the ones who have given me the courage to get up in front of people and give presentations, and I hope I have taught them that they can read. We have learned about courage from

Also, because I have never lived in, nor ever visited, Eastern Kentucky, it is my students who have oriented me to the culture, food and personality of the region. They have taught me what "greens" are, that "packing" something here means carrying it, how to look for herbs on the mountainside, what a deep faith is, and, because of the hardships, a whole new definition of the term "survival."

In addition, I have been shown the value of family here. For example, when a family member becomes sick, the whole family comes together for support. It also seems that family all live near one another. This is very new to me.

After writing this, I am not sure who has learned more, me or the student! It has been such a blessing for me to have worked with these students. I will take with me memories of kindness, loyalty, intelligence and love of and for all the people I have tutored.

The Place We Go for the Summer

By Linda Sue Caudill Abner Mountain, Kentucky

It's an old farm house that we go to and stay for the summer when the kids are out of school. It's 300 and some acres of land that we walk over and you can see cows and bulls and there are three big fishing ponds to fish in on the farm.

There is so much to do on the farms I don't know how the farmer gets it all done in a day's time.

They feed the cows and cut the corn and bale all the hay and cut tobacco.

Tutoring is beautiful

By Bill B. Tussey Jr.

Becoming a certified tutor for teaching literacy students has become one of the most enjoyable goals that I have ever accomplished. The feeling of accomplishment, purpose, and satisfaction is wonderful. When the student first spells a list of words, writes his/her own language experience-approach story, or when he/she reads that first passage smoothly, it gives one a feeling of excitement and exhilaration. There is so much that happens in the interaction that it cannot be totally described. I would not give up this experience for all the money in the world. The experience is beautiful and I would recommend that everyone try it one time in their lifetime.

Rotary International

Rotary International, the world's largest service club, recently completed a campaign in which Rotarians from across the globe raised money to purchase polio vaccine with the goal of vaccinating every child in the world and eradicating this dread disease.

The campaign was tremendously successful and all goals surpassed. Many Rotarians in the health care professions went a step further and volunteered to take the vaccine into the farthest reaches of the earth, giving their time and talent to inoculate children.

The Rotary campaign for the 1990s is to erase illiteracy from the face of the earth. Rotary Clubs throughout the world are, again, banding together for this important goal. Rotarians with their tradition of service are volunteering their time and talents to promote literacy efforts, either as tutors themselves or in raising funds to support literacy programs.

The Prestonsburg Rotary Club is proud to have been in the forefront of this campaign. For the third year in a row, the Prestonsburg Rotary Club is pleased to cosponsor the
