Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf told the board that he had agreed to assist the employees by drawing up the bylaws and constitution for their group.

Pillersdorf said, however, that after the group gets organized they may hire someone else to represent them, possibly the Teamsters.

"I've agreed, for $1, to help them form their own association," Pilldressed immediately. Once they get Kentucky Education Association organized and form their group, they

Youth is killed in mishap

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

A 14-year-old Floyd County youth was killed Tuesday evening in a motorcycle accident at Auxier.

Kevin Christopher Slone of Auxier died of massive head and neck injuries after the dirt bike he was operating crashed into a store building at Auxier, said Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson, Nelson pronounced Slone dead at the scene.

Slone was traveling on Rail Road Street in Auxier when he ran off the road and struck the building, said a Kentucky State Police dispatcher.

The accident is under investigation by KSP trooper Eddie Crum and the Floyd County Sheriff's Depart-

Slone was a freshman at Prestonsburg High School. He was a member of the football team and an honor student.

He is survived by his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Slone of Prestonsburg; his mother and stepfather, Sherry P. and Greg Shepherd of Auxier; and a half-sister, Kelly N. Slone of Prestonsburg.

Funeral services will be Friday, September 27, at 1 p.m. at the Community Methodist Church in Prestonsburg with burial at Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel. Floyd Funeral Home is in charge of the arrangements.

Quite a haul

Due to a tip from a Prestonsburg resident, detective Greg Stumbo, chief Greg Hall and assistant chief Roy Roberts were able to selze this 10 pound cache of marijuana; street value — $15,000. According to police, the person who reported the find "just stumbled onto it" in some tall weeds along the side of a roadway. This is the largest amount of processed hemp confiscated by the city police, according to Stumbo. It was found Wednesday around 9:30 a.m. Anyone having further information about this haul or any other illegal drug activity in the city is urged to call the police department. All information is kept confidential. "I feel really good that there is at least this much less dope on the streets," Stumbo said about the find. (photo by Tess Whitmer)

Health-care funds are debated:

Congress hears coal issue

A confrontation between sparring coal producers and the UMWA over who should pick up the tab for a medical benefits program for retired miners moved into the congressional arena Wednesday, and the outcome could affect the future of an estimated 124,000 people.

According to a published report Thursday, the issue involves the status of two coal industry-financed funds for health-care benefits and a call for an industry-wide tax to help stabilize those funds. The matter has caused battle lines to be drawn between the UMWA and Bituminous Coal Operators Association (BCOA) and coal companies that are not party to a current national labor agreement.

The UMWA and BCOA contend that thousands of retirees and their beneficiaries are receiving benefits from the health-care fund despite that fact that the companies they worked for are not contributing to the fund's finances. Some of those companies were once part of the national labor agreement but chose to withdraw or have gone out of business. Workers gible for health-care benefits.

Representatives of coal companies which never participated in the national labor agreement, however, are strongly opposing any new taxes to shore up the health-care fund.

Scott Kiscaden, vice-president of Quaker Coal Co. of Prestonsburg,

"As for the proposed salary cuts,"

by Don Lowe News-Express

The dream of receiving a better share of the state's controversial coal severance tax could be coming true for Kentucky's coal-producing counties, but only with the provision that the money is not wasted.

State Senator Kelsey Friend to the News-Express this week that a recommendation to change the amount of severance tax returns will be voted on Monday and should pass the Coal Revenue Allocation Task Force, a joint House and Senate committee consisting of 10 senators and 15 representatives.

That recommendation will probably include a provision that would cap magistrates' salaries at $12,000, less than half the salary Pike County magistrates currently receive.

Last session, it was almost impossible to get (the bill) out of committee," Friend said. "What this bill will do is increase the amount returned by 13 percent beginning fiscal year 1992. That will make it 25 percent. And it will increase each year until 1994."

The proposed increase would peak in fiscal year 1994 at 50 percent, Friend said.

Friend said while this is definitely good news, there was, among many, a major stumbling block that had to project; and be overcome before this increase was received favorably.

"There was always the complaint years, that the money was being sent back to the counties and the magistrates were getting raises from it," he said.

The result of that complaint is a stipulation that all counties, in order to receive the increase, must put a limit of $12,000 per year on the salaries of magistrates.

"The exception will be Louisville (Jefferson County)," Friend said. Under current Kentucky law, Jefferson County magistrates are the only "full-time" magistrates in the state.

"I'm not sure (at this point) if changing their salaries in the middle of a term is entirely legal. I hope to get an amendment that would stop that and implement the limit with the next group of magistrates," Friend

Friend said he feels most magistrates will respond favorably to the

"In the first place, it would be most difficult not to welcome an increase and, if this is the only way the counties are going to get the increase, they will support it," he said.

Currently, magistrates in Pike County receive $27,415 per year for their services and additional benefits, including a vehicle and gasoline at the taxpayers' expense, life and health insurance, a retirement package, an office and a secretary.

Obviously, the new limit on salaries would be a significant pay cut for those magistrates

Thursday afternoon, several of the Pike County magistrates could not be reached for comment.

Pike County district six magistrate, Stirl Eddie Harris, however, was available and very vocal on the "First of all, I am in total support of a larger return of the severance tax money to Pike County," he said. "As chairman of the Jones for Governor (in Pike County), I traveled the state with Brereton Jones (Democratic nominee for governor) and he has consistently advocated a return of 50 percent or the tax throughout my

Dear Editor:

Sen. Mitch McConnell, initiated a bill that would allow individuals the richt to file legal actions against any producer, distributor, or manufacturer certain types of video tapes or publications. As you might guess these materials are pornography. I for one agree that some of this material is unfit for most humans and certain species of the animal kingdom. However, who am I, or anyone else for that matter, to have the right to say that no one should have the right to have access to this type of material. In fact many European countries that are more permissive with this type of material have fewer sex crimes than our beloved United

This material is not the real issue in this bill. Where I do find fault is in a scenario such as this: Mr. Joe Blow, who is about two bricks shy of a full load, decides he wants to read the bible. He reads about Jesus healing the sick so he prays for his sick cat and the next morning the cat is better. Joe figures that he has the same power. Later he reads about Jesus walking on the water so he decides to stroll across Dewey lake. As we all know, this is not within Joe's power but he cannot swim so he drowns. Joe's loving wife finds the passage that Joe had read and can prove that Joe had performed previous things that were spoke of so he was merely acting out what he had read. She decides to file suit for this injustice. She feels that such things should not be printed.

This little story may sound strange but, if we allow such laws to pass, this could really happen. There could come a time when publishers are so afraid of legal action that the bible would go out of print.

This particular bill is not my entire complaint. It is only the tip of the iceberg. We have a congress that feels, and has on occasion tried to prove, that we are stupid. They want to change, rearrange, interpret, etc. the Constitution and the Bill of Rights I feel that they think it is insufficient, or outdated for society today. I feel this way because they have said so on a number of occasions. All I'm saying is, if it ain't broke don't fix it.

The Constitution has held this country together for 215 years. I feel that 215 years is not bad. There can't be a whole lot wrong with a piece of paper that can construct a country

THE INTEGRITY OF CLARENCE THOMAS

This week in the Senate, Clarence Thomas has grabbed the national spotlight. By now, most of you have heard the story of his upbringing in poor rural Georgia. And perhaps some of you have even watched part of his courageous, even-tempered testimony to the Senate this week.

The last two nominees to the Supreme Court, Anthony Kennedy and David Souter, are much like Thomas in that they are conservative. Yet it seems for the Senate Judiciary Committee that the similarities end there. Although the grassroots organization against Thomas has not compared to that faced by Judge Robert Bork in his failed attempt to gain a seat on the Court, Judiciary Committee members have questioned Thomas in much the same adversarial way.

Justices Kennedy and Souter, like Thomas, were asked about their thoughts on several issues. When both refused to answer in some cases, Senators on the committee did not press repeatedly.

That has not been the case with Judge Thomas. They have asked him incessantly about the right to privacy, his views on "natural law", and other sensitive issues, many of which could soon be affected by Supreme Court rulings. Why the scrutiny of Thomas and not of the other two? Kentuckians may draw their own

I have received phone calls and cerning Judge Thomas. And like most Americans, Kentuckians strongly support him. Not only has Judge Thomas triumphed in the face of incredible odds against him, but he has also compiled an impressive career record.

that is considered the most free, the Recently one of our U.S. senators, land of opportunity, the only super power that is not in revolution, and where you can speak your peace without being arrested in the middle of the night by the secret police. Do I think we need to revamp our Constitution? I don't think so!

> Our congress seems to want to find some inanimate object to blame for some evil deed that a person has done. They do not feel that a person can act out of freewill and commit a terrible crime. I got news for them, they can and do. There is no way to convince me that a gun, baseball bat, chain saw, knife or chair leg ever committed murder. A video tape, book, or magazine is incapable of committing rape or molesting a child. People commit crimes. We need to wake up and smell the coffee. If we outlaw things because they were used in the commission of a crime, we would have to include such things as; cars, hammers, coffee pots, pool cues, lead pipes, wrenches, screw drivers, table legs, silverware, gasoline, axes, chain saws, etc. I think you get the

> Rather than outlawing many things that are used to commit a crime let's try something new. Let's punish the person who committed the crime. Let's give people sentences that fit the crime. Let's have mandatory sentences for the use of a firearm in the commission of a crime. Let's send people to jail for a length of time that will let them know that it is unacceptable to drive drunk and kill someone. Let's let criminals know that they have done a crime and that they will be punished for it.

I, and many other people, feel that right now, in many cases, the criminal is getting nothing more than a smack on the wrist. We allow the vast majority of felonies to be plea bargained down to almost nothing. If we start punishing a person for what they did rather than what they are willing to admit that they have done, it may be safe to walk the streets at night

I know that we have our problems here in the United States, but crime is something that we can do something about. Let's not allow all of our freedoms to be legislated away because of the crimes of the few.

I know that this letter may step on more than a few toes and I'm sorry for that. I do feel though that right is right and wrong is wrong. I encourage you to, if you feel the way I do, write your congressman and President Bush and let them know how you feel. If you think that everything is perfect, then go ahead and set at home and watch T.V. on election day as you always do, and get out of the peoples way who wants to see this country stay the greatest country in the world.

Sincerely, Richard Price Prestonsburg

Thanks so much for printing my story. Mom saw the story for the first time that morning. The tears flowed freely all morning.

Two calls from my sisters in Alaska helped start the day. My brother, Gary Clark, sent our parents 61 long-stem red roses with a note "Mom and Dad, you married when people married for LOVE." No one had ever seen 61 roses in one basket.

That morning there were 29 family members and friends for breakfast. My sister, Linda Gearheart, had worked so hard: her house was so pretty. Mom's cake came from Shirley Belcher and had been homemade in Grundy, Virginia. Mrs. Elaine Gearheart gave our mom a beautiful white sweater which came in handy due to cold mornings.

It was a job getting Dad and his chair in a van, but he enjoyed the trip out, especially seeing the baby who

I guess a call from Mrs. Dean Conn of Harold sums it up very nicely. She called me and said I bought a paper and found your story. She said she couldn't put it down and that she didn't want it to end.

Small loans are important at First Guaranty National Bank

Most big banks can't be bothered with small loans. But at First Guaranty National Bank, even the smallest loans are important. We know small loans can meet big needs.

Through the years our customers have learned they can count on us, whatever the need. Big or small. And they know they'll get the same friendly, efficient service when their requests are small as they do for a major purchase like a home

Often its the little loans that give us the opportunity to establish lasting relationships with our customers. Relationships that bring people back to us again and again as their needs change.

A small loan can keep a son or daughter in college during a tough time. Unexpected repair bills don't have to cause a financial strain. Emergency circumstances can be easier to manage when money worries don't add to the crisis.

With a small loan from First Guaranty National Bank, you can meet needs as they come rather than wait for more budgetconvenient timing.

The quality of service at First Guaranty National Bank is not measured by the number of zeros attached to the requests. It is measured by our commitment to establish a lasting relationship with each customer.

This philosophy has served us well because our customers keep coming back and they recommend us to their families and friends. Steady and constant growth, one customer at a time, has made First Guaranty National Bank a strong and sound financial institution. So sound, in fact, that we've been recognized as one of the Top 100 Best Midsized Banks in America. *

If you need a loan, from $50 to $1 million, we welcome your business at First Guaranty National Bank.

Quotes & Quibbles

DO NOT READ THIS ARTICLE!!!!!

By: Martha Reed Perry Reference Librarian Prestonsburg Community College

How would you feel if certain articles in the newspaper had this heading? Would you be willing to let could not read? What if you went into Survivors include three sons, the library and there were certain were "dangerous" or would be a "bad wouldn't even let you look at them? Would you feel that they had the right to judge what books or magazines you could read?

The sad fact is that many people Paul Aiken officiating. Burial was are already trying to impose their made in the Government Relocation opinions of what should and should Cemetery at Auxier under direction not be read on other people. Every day, books are being banned all over the world for many different reasons. Book banning isn't just something that happens in far away places,

According to the publication Banned Books Week 1987: Celebrating the Freedom To Read," numerous books have been challenged or banned in Kentucky in the last few years. The Crucible, Death of a Salesman and Le Morte D'Arthur were all challenged as required reading and referred to as "junk" in 1987 at the Pulaski County High School in Somerset. William Faulkner's As I Lay Dying was banned in the Graves County school district in 1986 for "offensive and obscene passages referring to abortion and used God's name in vain." A decision that was reversed only after resulting pressure from the American Civil Liberties Union and "considerable negative publicity." And in Jefferson County in 1982, The Rolling Stone illustrated History of Rock and Roll was challenged because it "will cause our children to become immoral and indecent."

People start trying to tell you what you can and cannot read at an early age, don't they?

The week of September 28 - October 5 is Banned Books Week. Sponsored in part by the American Library Association, the week is one in which people are made more aware of the rights they have to read, check out or purchase the books of their choice, and of the fact that these rights can be, and are, threatened at any given time. The ALA Intellectual Freedom Committee defined censorship in 1984 as: "the removal of material from open access by any governing authority." It's amazing the number of people who consider themselves to be wise enough to push for this removal.

Looking through the list of banned books, I noticed that I had read quite a few of the titles listed. After doing a quick count, I discovered I had read over 20 of these "banned books" as assignments in high school and college. Of Mice and Men was challenged at my high school in Franklin County the year after I had been assigned to read it. I remember thinking then that I hadn't noticed that the book had done any irreparable harm to me, and I was angry that someone was trying to tell me, as a young adult, what I could and could not read. I still feel that way now.

Some of the books which have been banned or challenged might surprise you. They include books by Danielle Steel, Stephen King, Mark Twain and Alice Walker. Also included in this extensive list are Gone With the Wind, the Merriam-Webster Collegiate Directory and The Living Bible. I was surprised to see one of my favorite childhood books, Harriet the Spy, included on the list, as cane, and drugs (pain killers) are no longer a daily part of my life.

These are the words of one of those treated by Dr. Ballard Wright, Director of the Pain Management Clinic at Good Samaritan Hospital and a Active Member of the staff of Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in the specialties of Anesthesiology and Pain Management.

Each month, Dr. Wright sees patients at Paul B. Hall who have been referred to him by their family physi-

One of the most remarkable of Dr. Wright's techniques is the implant of a spinal-cord stimulation device...tiny electrodes connected to a miniature generator implanted just under the skin on the lower back. This so-called 'pain blocker'" is designed for back pain victims who have tried other forms of therapy without success, Dr. Wright said.

In addition to undergoing thorough medical evaluation, the patient's pain must be centered in a specific area - the implant device is not effective for generalized pain, Wright said.

For those who do qualify and are considered likely candidates for spinal-cord stimulation the results can be most gratifying.

After a usual overnight stay in the hospital, Wright reports that all the patient feels is a comfortable tingle. Most experience a reduction in pain almost immediately and can soon return to a normal, pain-free life.

Dr. Wright conducts a Pain Management Clinic at Paul B. Hall and sees numerous local patients each month. A consultation with your family physician or a call to Paul B. Casino Night

The Jaycees will be holding their annual "Casino Night" at the Prestonsburg Holdiay Inn on Friday, September 27. "Casino Night," for all those who have never attended one in the past, is an evening of fun for adults. For the low price of $5, players purchase $30,000 in "fun money" and spend the evening either losing it or trying to win more at the blackjack, craps and roulette tables. At the end of the evening there is an auction of fine gifts donated by area businesses. The big winners take home the prizes.

All proceeds from the evening go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The Holiday Inn donates the room and the Jaycees donate the manpower. Everyone is invited to come out for an evening of unusual entertainment for Eastern Kentucky.

Church of God Homecoming

There will be a homecoming at the Betsy Layne Church of God on Sunday, September 29 beginning at 11 a.m. The guest speaker is Eli Johnson from Hazard. Special singing will be provided by The Gullets of Ashland. Dinner will be served and everyone is welcome.

Mountain Voices-by Willie Elliott-

I have played tennis (I know some of my friends are going to say: "You call that tennis?") for nearly twenty years, and this last Saturday I was involved in a somewhat different kind of tournament. John Paul Biliter, Kimber McGuire, and Russel Music Jr., invited a group of players to participate in a doubles tournament in which the idea was to have a good time and get to know each other better. Winning was way down on the priority list.

Ken Fuller said he expected to draw a young player who would run all the balls down but instead he was placed with me. I told him not to complain because he could have drawn Gary Bentley. Now I will get a phone call from Gary, and he will put me in the same class with Chris Waugh and Greg Ratliff for verbal ers, but their real strengths are spouting cliches and using boxing metaphors to intimidate their opponents.

One nice feature of this tournament was the fact that each team played three matches. That took some of the pressure off the players to win because each player knew he had other matches coming up. At the end of the first match which was played at noon, we all went over to the picnic table where Kimber and John Paul had prepared some hot dogs for us. I had to work hard to keep Ken Fuller's mind on the game once he got a whiff of those hot dogs. I believe he started playing harder so he could end the game and get to the food. Some dedication to the game, huh?

During the break we met some of abuse. Chris and Greg are good play- the wives of the players and discussed various things including Jimmy Connors. We all agreed that he was just about the greatest thing since sliced bread. I have to admit that some die-hard University of Kentucky fans had to dash home to watch their beloved Cats. When they returned, not much was said about the game. This led me to one conclusion: Kentucky had lost.

So the tournament went without a hitch. Well, there was a small one. Lois Howard felt that the ladies should be allowed to play also. I asked Lois, You wanted a tournament for the

'No, we wanted to play with the men." That would never do. How would we explain it when the ladies defeated us? I suppose next year we will have to let them play and just hope that they won't spread it all over the county when they beat us.

The format took the pressure off, the food was fine, and the company was excellent, but someone forgot to take the fatigue and soreness out of the game. When I dragged home about seven o'clock, my body must have thought it had been in a dogfight. Linda asked me how it could be so much fun if I was in such pain. I told her the pain comes after the game.

Anyway, it was a fine idea and John Paul, Kimber, and Russel Jr., are to be complimented on a fine job. John Paul, get a patent on that scoring method. Since winning wasn't important, I think Benji Caudill or Kimber McGuire (winners) or Gary Bentley or Russel Music, Sr., (runners-up) should send me one of the trophies. I had already made a place about or redoing things I was too tired to do right the night before. Today I discovered I could do three things at one time, so I went for a fourth and met with disaster.

We have this fairly new scanner attachment to our computer system at the Times that really saves on time. Anything that comes in typed clearly without a bunch of smudges or whited out areas can be scanned, thus eliminating manual input through the keyboard (that's "typing" for you non-computer literate people).

When Mike was first teaching me the scanning process I found it quicker to type the copy, even with my painfully slow 45-words-perminute typing speed. But, now, I don't know how I ever lived without the precious box on the far side of my desk.

While scanning copy there is dead time for the operator, anywhere between 30 seconds to two minutes depending on the length of the material being scanned (right now you are probably saying "tell us about your disaster you mentioned, Tess." I'm getting to it in my own way, so be quiet you people who relish in other's unfortunate

Being as busy as I am these days, these precious seconds of "dead time" cannot go unused. So I spend the time editing copy that has already been typ set, periodically punching a button on the keyboard or changing the material in the scanner to keep the process in motion.

During this editing/scanning time Thursday, I was also composing this column in my head (which was something totally different). Well, I was doing so well at juggling these three items, I thought I'd add drinking a cup of coffee to the schedule (there are no such things as "coffee breaks" in the newspaper biz). That's when the disaster

Pen in one hand, coffee in the other, one eye on the computer screen, the other on the copy in front of me, my mind in far off places, something had to go. The phone rang just as I was sipping my coffee, I attempted to reach for it with my pen hand while simultaneously swallowing the sip I just took and spilled coffee all over my new white

After that, I decided a few things were going to have to change in my life to make things just a little bit simpler. I'm not going to wear white to work anymore. After all, if I'd been wearing black I wouldn't have spilled my coffee.

I am seriously looking forward to this weekend, and not just because of the busy week I've had, either. As you read this I am on the road to Ohio to attend my little brother's wedding.

Some of you avid readers may be asking yourself, "didn't her brother already get married earlier this summer?" Well, yes he did. But I do have more than one brother. I have three (God blessed me,

This brother invited me to be in his wedding, however, which means I have to go to the rehearsal tonight, thus missing out on Friday night in Prestonsburg. My future sister-in-law, being a cautious one, thought it best not to have me as a bride's maid but only to have me read a scripture during the ceremony. She said she wasn't sure if I was going to be around come time for her wedding, considering I was in Saudi when the date was set. So now I don't have to worry about walking down the aisle and tripping or standing at the alter and having my foot go to sleep, only standing up in front of about 100 people and reading. Will I stutter, mess up a word, forget my brother's and his future-wife's names? All are distinct possibilities.

But, the part I fear the most is walking up to the podium to do the reading. The last time I was asked to do a reading at church was during my class's confirmation (it's a Catholic thing, so not all of you may know what I'm talking about. Just believe me when I say it is an important time in a young Catholic's life). As I walked to the podium to deliver my reading, in my new high heels which my grandmother insisted on putting strips of masking tape on the bottom of "to help me with my footing," I stepped in a small puddle of water and slipped, falling on one knee.

You never saw a person rise from a kneeling position so fast in your life. Later, my family in the back of the church said they didn't even notice (so kind of them to say). Another friend said they thought I had only knelt to genuflect (that would have been a good excuse, if I'd thought of it). I was so humiliated and anxious that I wouldn't let go of Deacon Dan's hand when he came to the podium to show me where to start reading, so he had to stand beside me the whole time and whisper words of encouragement.

My cousin, the smart, pretty one, was the only one who openly felt pity for me. She said, "Oh, Tess, I told your grandmother about the masking tape, but it's used to help me slide on the runway." She was a model at the time. At least now I know that grandmothers aren't Tomorrow night I walk up the same aisle, to the same podium, at the same church that I did some 13 years ago; unfortunately, there won't be any Deacon Dan to hold my hand. I hope I won't need it. Maybe I should tell my brother this story to ensure him that he couldn't possibly do anything worse and not to worry because the path to humiliation belongs solely to big sis.

Just to be on the safe side, I have checked the soles of my shoes for any traces of masking tape.

For all of you who do have to spend this Friday night in Prestonsburg, be sure to stop at the Holiday Inn and spend a few dollars to benefit Muscular Dystrophy by attending the Jaycees' Casino Night starting at 9 p.m. It is loads of fun and for a good cause. I regret that I will not be able to attend (some of my fellow Jaycees may not believe that but

Thank you in advance to all those who attend, to all the businesses which donated gifts for the auction, and to the Holiday Inn for donating the banquet room. Without all these people, this evening would not be possible.

I would be remiss if I didn't also thank the Jaycees who put in many hours of non-existent spare time to make all of these projects successful ones. Although a bit undecisive and having a tendencey to procrastinate, all members have the remarkable capability to pull it off at the last minute and have a tremendous amount of fun doing it and laughing about it later.

They are all truly remarkable people and I thank them for putting up with my somewhat unorganized ways this year as president. Good luck this Friday, I know you'll pull it off and I'll be there in spirit if not in body sitting at my customary black jack table.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS by Beth Jones

ALL WE NEED IS A REALLY GOOD SALE

In the society we live in, we are constantly bombarded by sales. Car sales, clearance sales, red-tag sales, and one-day only sales are just a few that we hear about every day. Here's what I think about all these

As I drive to school in the mornngs, I listen to the radio. At least one morning a week, some furniture store is having "a-once-in-aifetime" sale, I dare to ask how many "once-in-a-lifetimes" there are at some of these places. Always, too, it's the same man doing the announcements in the commercials. Is he contracted by furniture retailers? I wonder. He's never on car sale ads.

Car ads are never on the air unless there is a sale. To car people, a sale is anything that includes a rebate, cash-back, or low financing. My favorite type of car sale is the "push, pull, or drag it in" sale. What do the dealers do with all those old cars? Besides, the dealers just overprice the cars, knock off the excess when you "drag" your old car in, and therefore make the same amount of money. Now that's what I call a sale!

"Going out of business" sales are fun, as well. When Maloney's (or L.A. Joe's, or Big Lots; you get the picture) decides to go out of business, everything is discounted 10-percent. Of course, no one cares enoughabout 10-percent off to even go to Maloney's. So the discount is lowered to 20, 30, and 40-percent off. More people go, but not enough to clear out the store. Just wait, though, until the day everything is marked down 50-percent, yes, you heard me right, 50-percent. The entire population of Floyd County heads to Maloney's to stock up on car wax and dish clothes. What a great country we live in! "Going out of business" sales are sights to

Just last weekend, I went to a '20-percent off bag sale," This is a sale in which a salesperson gives you a bag when you enter the store and everything you can put in that bag is twenty-percent off. Pretty good idea, don't you think? I didn't have much trouble getting everything I wanted into my bag, but some other customers were trying to stuff an entire wardrobe into theirs. Some people are just greedy, I guess. Well, anyway, there was a pretty big crowd, so I guess the sale was a success

Sales are a big part of this American thing, I think it's safe to say. I'm glad we have them, don't get me wrong, but some of them are so outlandish. I think I'll go on a crusade looking for unique sales. Wait, here's one. "Buy two items at regular price and get a two-slice toaster for only $4.99. I better get over there quick. October, Domestic Violence Awareness Month

Sandy Brookover, of the Big Sandy Abuse Shelter, presented Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo with a proclamation to have October recognized as Domestic Violence Awareness Month in Floyd County (this is a national campaign). Everyone should know by now that wife-beating is a crime in Kentucky. But for too many years, some police, prosecutors, judges and citizens have viewed the crime as a family matter, a dispute that occurs behind closed doors. No more. It is a crime and clearly the business of the state.

Now, there is plenty of evidence that the perception is changing, that wife-beating will be treated seriously. And perhaps the best evidence can be found at Kentucky State Police headquarters in Frankfort. There, three state employees have devised a system that should place Kentucky at the

EADS TO RETURN TO MELVIN

The good news received here is that Tim Eads, who decided not to return as coach of the Melvin Cougars basketball team, has done a reversal and decided to guide the program after all. I am glad that Tim made this decision. He is a fine young coach in our school system and did a great job at Melvin last year.

Eads said that he looks forward to coaching the Cougars this year and that his squad, although young even for eighth graders, should be a competitive team.

CHUCKLE DEPARTMENT...

Statement of all statements. 'Reggie Sanders is not ready to fill my shoes yet." The quote came from Eric Davis about the ability of Sanders replacing the slumping (all season) Davis in centerfield. Why should it be so hard for Sanders to fill Davis shoes. All he has to do is spend most of the season on the disabled list. Tell the organization that you are just too tired to play baseball. Hit an anemic .230 with 11 home runs and just over 30 RBI's. That shouldn't be too difficult for Sanders, or anyone for that

The talk is that Davis could be history in Cincinnati. I don't think so. The Reds' brass will keep the centerfielder around one more year and then he will go elsewhere. I personally would like to see the Reds make a trade for Davis but I don't look for it. Davis will never hit 30 or more home runs again until he is playing somewhere else. Marge and company might as well realize that and make Davis available in the winter meetings.

Reds manager Lou Pinellia says that he "likes it in Cincinnati" and has no plans of returning to New York to manage the Yankees. That's too bad! I would like to see the Reds skipper skip back to the Big Apple and lets get someone that knows how to manage in the National League.

WORTH KEEPING.... Barry Larkin, Chris Sabo, Paul O'Neil, Hal Morris, Mariano Duncan, Jose Rijo and (gulp) Tom Browning. The rest the Reds should try and peddle somewhere else.

The Reds definitely need a third starter (with some consistency) to go with Rijo and Browning, Rob Dibble (I can't believe I'm writing this) is a definite keep (but he doesn't want to stay) in the bullpen. Randy Myers is questionable but could have one year left in his arm if it is ever decided where he will pitch (out of the bullpen or as a starter).

Morris, O'Neil, Sabo, Larkin have made the Reds the best long ball team in the major leagues and a couple more steady performers along with a third starter and the Reds could be a very competitive team once again. SAY Didn't the Reds at one time have the services of one Bill Gullickson who has won 19 games in the American League this season.

BUMPER STICKER... "My wife said that if I went fishing one more time that she was going to leave me. God, I'm going to miss her. STORE SIGN

"There is four times more water than there is land. Anyone can see that the Lord meant for man to fish four times more than he works." DON'T FORGET ...

The Prestonsburg Junior Pro basketball league will conduct sign ups Sunday, September 29 and again Sunday, October 6 between the hours of 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. The sign up dates are for players and cheerleaders.

Bobcats To Test Blackcats Tonight In District Matchup

Once a year the Betsy Layne Bobcats and Prestonsburg Blackcats get together for a good old game of high school football. That happening takes place tonight as the Bobcats will travel down U.S. 23 to the Prestonsburg Field for a district match up with Coach Bill Letton's winless Black-

Betsy Layne (1-3) sort of had last week off, having to forfeit their scheduled game to Shelby Valley, and evened their district record at 1-1. Betsy Layne had been hampered with a shortage of personnel against the Wildcats.

But all should be back to normal tonight as the two county rivals battle each other on the gridiron.

BLACECATA

Betsy Layne will come at the Blackcats with a lineup that has had little success on the ground. In three games, Betsy Layne, as a team, has carried the football 103 times for a total of 369 yards rushing for an average of just over 3 yards per carry. James Keathley has been the big gainer out of the Bobcats back field with 32 carries in three games for 140 yards rushing. That's 4.1 yards per carry. Doug Hammond hasn't carried as much as Keathley because he had to miss one game and he has managed 89 yards on 17 carries in the two games he has played. Jamie Kidd is averaging just over 4 yards per carry with 120 yards on 26 attempts.

In the passing department, quarterback Byron Combs has completed just eight passes in 36 tosses for 90 yards. That's less than a fourth com-

Prestonsburg has carried the football 129 times in the four games for 700 yards rushing. Garza has carried the ball 43 times for 221 yards. Hyden has 212 on 15 carries. Hyden didn't handle the ball that much against Whitesburg but had a good outing against Estill County.

John Goble has played, in reality, only his second game of the four played. Goble exited early in the first quarter of the Estill County game and then was forced to set out the Middlesboro contest. However, the power runner has made good in the last two games with 136 yards on 35 attempts.

While the Bobcats are supporting an entirely different attitude this year they appear ready to challenge the Blackcats on their home turf. But it will be a big assignment for the likes

Karate Class Grows While Plans Are Made For Tourney

Four months ago Sam Hager started his karate classes here in Prestonsburg and already the class has grown to 20 students with more expected to take part. Hager started the class because of the love he has for the sport and his desire to teach it to others as a form of exercise which makes good cardio vascular exer-

"I got involved in karate at the age of 10," said Hager, who holds a Black Belt degree in the sport. "In 1988, at the age of 15, I was in a tournament in Lexington and had to compete in the men's division and I won second place in the men's kata event. I took first place in the juniors weapon divi-

"I am presently working my way toward my second degree," he stated. Hager drives to Lexington every weekend for classes under Sin The'

who is a Grand Master in karate. Hager said that he is personally involved in his classes and gives each student individual instruction. "I teach the animal forms like the tiger, white crane, praying mantes, bird and things like that," he explained. "Other forms like iron man training which builds every muscle in a persons body. We also teach many of the weapons like bo staff, broad sword, nunchaka, sai, kwando, short stick and so forth."

Hager said that he also offers a conditioning class that he teaches to the upper rank yellow belt and up students and the class is free of charge. Self defense for women and young children in the white belt rank are also offered at the school.

An instructor must be certified in order to teach the karate classes and Hager is only one of two certified instructors under Grand Master Sin The' in the area. While Hager is in the Prestonsburg area, Francis Hunter is also certified and holds classes at the Betsy Layne High School.

Hager says that a karate tournament will be held in Lexington on November 2 under the direction of Grand Master Sin The'. The tournament is open to anyone who is under a certified instructor of Grand Master Sin The'. The upcoming tournament will be broken down in the classes of point sparring, forms of kata competition, weapons and "push hands" for the black belts.

White through black belts are welcome to the tournament that is open to all who would like to watch. According to Hager, fourth, fifth and sixth degree black belts will be sparring against each others. First through third black belts will be grouped together in their sparring,

Hager revealed also that Grand Master Sin The' is currently making a movie that will be released after the

Colonels Jump On Top In OVC; Continue In League Play With TTU

Coach Roy Kidd's Eastern Kentucky University Colonels, riding atop the Ohio Valley Conference standings with a perfect 2-0 league record after Saturday night's impressive 17-7 win over Middle Tennessee, now travels to Cookeville, Tennessee, Saturday for a league battle with coach Jim Ragland's team will be Tennessee Tech.

The game is slated for a 2 p.m. start at tech's 16,500 seat Tucker Stadium. EKU will go into the game 2-1 overall and ranked in a tie for third place in the nation with Furman, while playing its first home game after dropping three road games to open

'Year in and year out, Tennessee Tech plays us tough, especially down at their place," said Kidd. "They are 0-3 but they have lost to three really good football teams in UT-"Chattanooga, Ohio University and of each grade school, boys and girls. Samford.

They beat Samford in every phase of the game, except on the scoreboard. They're getting closer to putting it all together. I just hope it's not Saturday at Tech," Kidd added.

Senior fullback Alonzo Hamilton leads Tech in rushing with 140 yards and one TD. Sophomore quarterback Damyen Taylor has hit 26-55 for 268 yards and two TD's and has rushed for another 56 yards. Senior Marshall Hale leads TTU receivers with 10 catches for 180 yards and one TD.

Eastern used the pinpoint passing of senior quarterback Joey Crenshaw and the running of tailbacks Markus Thomas and Tim Lester to defeat Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. MTSU Saturday before a home opening crowd of 20,700.

Crenshaw was 13-23 for a career high 167 yards and a 25-yard TD strike to tight end Dwayne Woods. Thomas ran for a season's high 143 yards and Lester added 62 behind the blocking of senior tackle Carl Satterly (Winchester) who graded out at 96 percent and was voted OVC Offensive Lineman of the Week.

Defensively, EKU kept the potent Middle attack at bay, allowing but one beautifully executed end around play that went for the Blue Raiders lone score. MTSU was held without a first down in the first quarter.

For their efforts in this game, senior safety Chris McNamee (Pikeville) and end David Wilkins (Cincinnati) were named winners of the OVC's Defensive Players of the week award. NcNamee had five tackles, three assists, a sack and a caused fumble. EKU hosts defending champion Georgia Southern, next Saturday at Roy Kidd Stadium at 7 p.m. Tickets are still available for this game. Locally, EKU games can be heard on radio station WXKZ in Prestonsburg. The Eastern and TTU came will be aired this Saturday with kick off scheduled for 3 p.m. over

The Surprise of 1991

One of the biggest stories of the 1991 baseball season has been the great improvement of the Atlanta Braves. After finishing in last place four out of the last five years, the Braves are back in the ranks of

Some of the improvements in the Braves took me by surprise, but overall, the rebound was not totally unexpected. The ballclub really was ready to explode with a little help here and there. I always felt these kids had major-league ability, and the addition of veterans like Terry Pendleton at third base and Sid Bream at first base solidified the team.

All of the ballclub is having a world of fun now. It's been a long time coming. This team has suffered some terrible adversity. We tried to go with free agents, and some of them didn't work out. We tried going with young people, but the fans were impatient for a winner. So the return to winning means a great deal to the Braves organization.

It also means an awful lot to the city of Atlanta and all of the Southeast. That's one of the elements in this year's success. There's nothing like playing before empty stands to make a team feel like nobody cares. This year, more than 2 million fans will have paid to see the Braves play. Any time fans are excited and supportive, ballplayers are going to play harder and come out and do the unexpected.

Experience also is important to having a championship team. The closer you get to winning a championship, the more young players will begin to have butterflies in their stomachs. That's why having a few veterans on the team is so important. It helps stabilize some of the young players.

In a lot of ways, this Braves ballclub reminds me of the team I was on in 1956. The Braves, then as now, had gone through several down years when we suddenly found ourselves contenders again. The experiences of that year helped us win the pennants of 1956 and 1958.

The key to winning is to keep the team relaxed and having fun. You have to play the last games of the season the same way you played the first games. You can't win it by saying, "We have the best ballclub." You can't win it by saying, "We should win it." You've simply got to put the players on the field and compete. There are no shortcuts. Id

Allen Central Plays Two; Will Play One At A Time

Coach Dewey Jamerson's Allen Central Rebels will have a busy weekend as they face two opponents in four days. Tonight the Rebels face a struggling Jenkins Cavaliers team and then on Monday evening the Rebs will travel to Pike County for a make up game with Johns Creek.

The Johns Creek game was originally scheduled for this past Friday night but was canceled until Monday

Jenkins (1-3) lost to Phelps 14-7 last Friday night. The Cavaliers has a dangerous running back in William Figger, Figger (5-9, 195) will handle the football most of the time for Jenkins. Mark Walker (5-10, 165) will call the signals. Mike Damron (5-10, 165) along with Jody Baldwin will round out the backfield for Jenkins.

Allen Central is in a desperate need of a good game performance from the Rebels. A very young team with very little experience on it, the Rebels have faced some very tough competition in their first three games. Losing big to Whitley County, Fleming-Neon and Pikeville, the Rebs are ready for a showdown with a club of equal strength.

Jamie Slone leads the Allen Central backfield of Kevin Patton and James Osborne. Slone has been out with an injury sustained in the Fleming-Neon game but will see action in both games this weekend. Brad Scott handles the quarterback position for the Rebels and has played the three games behind center. Look for Robbie Sexton to get the call to carry the football.

Defensively, Allen Central will have to contain Figger and stop the pass plays of Walker. David Gilliam, Shawn Bailey and Shawn Robinson will anchor down the line for the Walker is consistent in throwing the football, although the Cavaliers play mostly on the ground. Dustin Eversole will hold down the tightend slot with Walker looking for him in passing situations. Senior Brad Damron will be the flanker.

Brian Baker, 250 pound nose guard, will head up the Cavaliers defensive line. If anything, Jenkins has proven to be slow coming off the football and mental mistakes have cost the Cavaliers some yardage both Allen Central has been routed in each game and according to Coach Jamerson, that needs to change.

"We just need to put some points on the scoreboard and everyone have a good game," he said. "That would help as much as winning a ball game. If we were to win, well, that would put us over the top."

Look for the young Rebel team to realize that if they are to win then it must come tonight as their schedule doesn't getany easier. Sheldon Clark, Elkhorn City and Leslie County waits

ALTHA'S POWER RATINGS

KENTUCKY FAVORED BY 29 THIS WEEK; EASTERN KY PICKED TO WIN CONFERENCE

Kentucky, now ranked 41st in the nation, gets to practice their offense this week against Kent State. Defense is not Kentucky's problem, having given up 33 points thus far in the season. The POWER RATING predicts Coach Curry will use this occasion to practice the offense, and the POWER RATING margin of victory (29 points) may be conserva-

OHIO VALLEY CONFERENCE

As the POWER RATING predicted, Eastern Kentucky beat Middle Tennessee State last week. Eastern Kentucky's 17-7 victory will, in all probability, secure the Conference championship. Eastern would have to lose two games in conference play to lose the championship. This appears unlikely because the rest of the conference is not on a par with Eastern or Middle Tennessee. This week, for example, Eastern is favored by 35 over Tennessee Tech, and Middle Tennessee by 42 over Murray State.

NATIONAL The POWER RATING predicted accurately last week's big game: Washington over Nebraska. This weeks big game is number one Florida State at number four Michigan. The prediction: Michigan 30, Florida

Fleming-Neon Brings New Ranking And 4-0 Record To Wheelwright

It is something new for Jack Hall's Fleming-Neon Pirates to be ranked in the top ten in Class A football but it's not unusual for Coach Hall to have a quality team such as he has this year. The Pirates will be in Wheelwright tonight to face a charged up Wheelwright Trojan team as Coach Donnie Daniels has his team at .500 with a 2-

The Trojans are coming off of just playing the state's number one Class A team — Pikeville. The Panthers ran off with a 47-6 win over Wheelwright but the way the young Trojans played the second half had to be a confidence booster for them.

The Trojan's defensive line led by Marty Tackett and company will have to contain two of the top runners in the state in Kevin and Josh Fleming. All the duo did was simply help the Pirates destroy Elkhorn City 47-0 last Friday night. Kevin totaled 174 yards rushing against the Cougars and scored three touchdowns. However, Josh went 4 yards better for 178 yards rushing and he crossed the goal line for four TD's.

"Fleming-Neon is a solid ball club that will come at you," said Wheelwright coach Donnie Daniels. "I have a lot of respect for Jack as a coach and you can bet they will not beat themselves. They have had their problems in the past but this year they have a very sound ball club.

"They were down 21-8 to Paintsville and came back and won the game," Daniels continued, "that shows you they won't quit. They are the kind of ball team that will play to the last whistle."

of Brandon Combs and Ashley Lykins and company. This is a quick defensive line for Betsy Layne and it will have to contain the running game of the Blackcats. If Tucker is on, he could cause a lot of problems for Betsy Layne's secondary with the likes of Jason Crisp and John Clark. Clark and Tucker hooked for a 63 yard touchdown against Belfry.

Game time is 8 p.m. with radios WXKZ and WQHY on hand to call all the action for those not able to attend.

Daniels stated that was what he wanted to instill into his players in the future - not to quit.

"We're playing with a lot of confidence now," the Trojan mentor stated. "We just need to keep our head up after the Pikeville loss and we will be alright.'

The Trojans are entering what can be considered the last solid contender they must face and Coach Daniels views his team as favorite in three of the remaining six games.

'We have to be favored in three of the games we have left," he noted. "We could have a very good season this year."

For the Trojans they will be looking to a very talented backfield that has depth. Steven "Road Runner" Jackson leads the ground game for the Wheelwright team. Jackson has carried the football 40 times in the four games the Trojans have played for 442 yards rushing. That's better than 11 yards per carry! Jackson had a 87 yard touchdown run against the Panthers Friday night and scampered 83 yards for a score that was called back because of a clipping call. He carried 13 times against Pikeville for Teammate Arnold Adams has been roll of late also. Adams rushed for 51 yards against Pikeville Friday night. Adams didn't get the ball that much the second half of the game as the ball went mostly to Jackson.

Adams has been impressive in the punting department for Coach Daniels ball club. He averaged 31 yards per punt in last Friday's contest.

Chuck Hutton, who seems to be missing during the game, but when the stats are all figured out there is Hutton in the thick of things. Hutton is perhaps the go-to man on a third and long situation. Hutton possesses that spark of speed that can get him around on a sweep.

Wheelwright has averaged just over 200 yards a game on offense. Their best outing was 318 yards against Phelps. The Trojans are basically a running team and seldom pass the football. Quarterback Steven Defensively for Wheelwright, that is where they have struggled. But the Trojans are young on the defensive side of the ball and many of the offensive line have to go both ways. It will take a super outing by the line to contain the running game of the Pi-

Guest Jim Allen did great with a 9-2 finish. We welcome Jeff Meek this week. Poor Johnny dropped. He must have been out planting apple seeds. Scott and Mike are tied for the top spot with Kari staying in the race. Locally, the Blackcats are the choice in high school. Kentucky should have an easy time with Kent State, Tess's alma mater. Denver and New Orleans are the choice in the pro ranks with Browns and Bengals off.
