Hager supporters start petition drive

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A local effort is underway to keep Floyd County Superintendent Ron Hager in office until his contract expires and central office workers have initiated a campaign to raise money to offset his legal fees.

Hager was charged March 12 by State Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen with willful neglect of duty and misconduct in office. The State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education will hold a suspension hearing on those charges Friday, April 10 in Frankfort.

Petitions began circulating last week which read: "We the following citizens of Floyd County request that Ronald L. Hager be permitted to serve as superintendent of the Floyd County School System for the remainder of his contract for that position."

Twenty-two names were on a petition at Rose's Drug Store in Prestonsburg on Monday. It has not been determined in how many locations the petitions are circulating or how many citizens have signed them.

It is not known who is circulating the petition or to whom they will be delivered.

"It was just a short meeting to tell us that Mr. Hager was not resigning," Grigsby said. "Mr. Thompson also explained what might happen if Mr.

Board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell said Tuesday that a hiring freeze enacted by the board in January would prevent Hager from hiring anyone except on an emergency basis.

"I don't believe he can do any hiring until we lift that freeze," Campbell said. "I don't think it would be appropriate if he did."

Campbell said he went to the central office on Monday, but Hager was not in his office. "I don't think he's done any hiring," he said.

Health coordinator Ned Bush said Tuesday that he was not in the office Friday when the meeting was held, but said he was asked if he wanted to make a donation.

Boysen has accused Hager of filing false annual financial reports, of failing to place monies in two major construction accounts into interest bearing accounts at The First Guaranty National Bank, of allowing an illegal bingo game to operate at Prestonsburg High School and of failing to advertise for bids for security contracts.

Frazier takes over at Martin Elementary :

Phone tap is investigated

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A war on grime and an apparent illegal phone tap were the two major issues facing Martin Elementary interim principal Gary Frazier on his second day on the job Tuesday.

Frazier took over as principal at Martin after principal Bill Hughes took a leave of absence. Hughes is expected to retire.

Hughes was named in charges filed against superintendent Ron Hager by the Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen.

Hughes began his leave last week and assistant superintendent Frazier said Hughes would retire from the school system.

Assistant superintendent of finance Tommy Thompson, however, said Monday that Hughes had taken a medical leave of absence and he did not know when he would return.

Hughes' name surfaced March 12 when Boysen filed willful neglect of duty and misconduct in office charges against Hager. Boysen alleged that Hager failed to "timely address and correct" a false year-end financial report submitted by Hughes.

"Hughes misrepresented the financial condition of his school as solvent when in fact, a deficit of over $18,000 existed," Boysen charged.

The state board scheduled a suspension hearing on Hager's charges for Friday, April 10 in Frankfort.

Neither Hughes nor Hager could be reached for comment.

Frazier, meanwhile, has found a few surprises at the school, including a "live" speaker in the principal's office and an extra line spliced into the office telephone.

"I'm going to get an estimate from the phone company on installing a secure telephone line," Frazier said. "And the live speaker on the wall has been disconnected. It's been different."

One of Frazier's main objectives, he said, is to get the school safe and clean.

"We're working like crazy," Frazier said Tuesday. "We are addressing clear violations of fire codes—mechanical rooms full of clutter and flammable liquids and a hot plug wire hanging from the ceiling. Why these things have been ignored by Mr. Hager and Mr. Hughes, I don't know."

Maintenance workers were busy Monday scrubbing and repairing an unusable restroom near the cafeteria. "We're getting it painted, and installing a new commode and lavatory so

Floyd woman is killed, Johnson man is charged

Vera Ellen Akers, 26, of Banner was killed Saturday night in Pike County after a vehicle driven by David Ray Castle, 26, of Johnson County allegedly ran a red light and struck her vehicle in the driver's side.

Castle was charged with second degree manslaughter and first degree wanton endangerment in connection with the accident.

Police say Castle ran the traffic light on U.S. 23 at Coal Run and struck Akers' vehicle as she was attempting to turn onto U.S. 23.

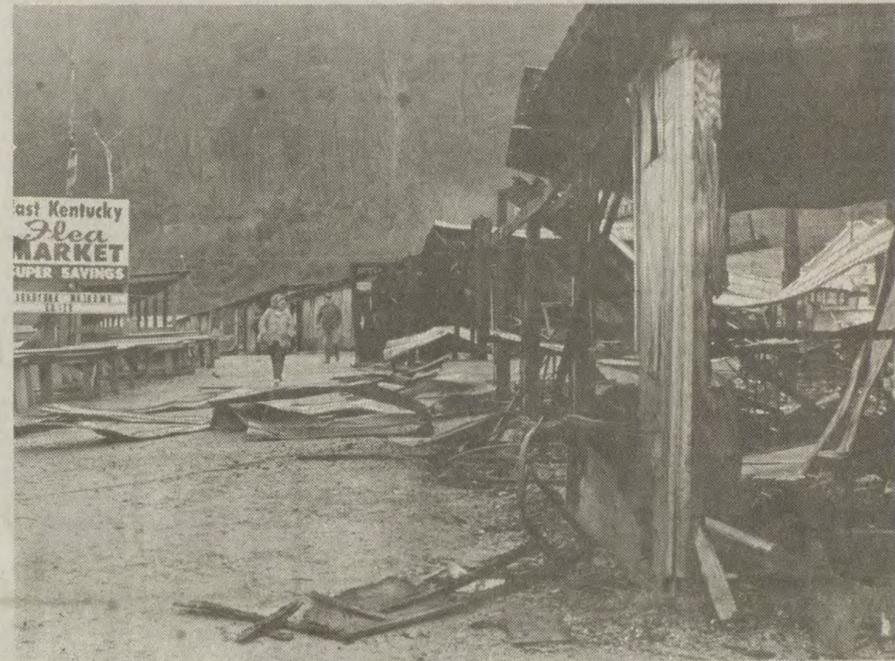

Akers was wearing a seat belt. Castle was lodged in the Pike County Detention Center Sunday under a $25,000 cash bond.

The accident is under investigation by Kentucky State Police troopers Chuck Bledsoe, Mike Crawford and detective Richard Ray.

Getting down to business

Assistant superintendent Gary Frazier wasted no time getting down to business Monday after he was named interim principal at Martin Elementary. Frazier took over as principal after principal Bill Hughes took a leave of absence last week. Hughes is expected to retire. (photo by Susan Allen)

A fire Friday night wiped out about one-fourth of the sales booths at East Kentucky Flea Market on Auxler Road, said Howard Ferguson, chief of the Auxler Volunteer Fire Department. Ferguson estimated that about 10 or 12 sales booths were destroyed during the blaze, and thought the origin of the fire was possibly in the electrical wiring in the buildings. Auxler firefighters, with the assistance of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, battled the fire for about an hour before bringing it under control. It was business as usual Saturday at the flea market, which is owned by Floyd Skeans. (photo by Susan Allen)

Immunizations are ordered for staff, students :

Measles pop up at Duff

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

An outbreak of a rash among Duff Elementary students has health officials scurrying to immunize students and staff against a possible epidemic of measles.

"One case of a vaccine preventable disease (such as measles) is considered an epidemic," said Jane Bond with the Floyd County Health Department.

About two weeks ago, the school began receiving reports of students complaining about a rash, a symptom of Fifth Disease. "With Fifth Disease, some people never experience any symptoms," Martin said. "Sometimes, though, they have a stomach ache."

One of the most prominent symptoms is a large red spot on the face. "It looks like you've been slapped," Martin said. This symptom was not evident on the Duff students, though.

Health officials, after talking with students at the school, reported the outbreak to Dr. Clarkson Palmer, with the Department of Epidemiology, Communicable Disease branch, at Frankfort. After checking the symp-ptoms and looking at some of the blood work done on several of the children, Palmer told Joy Moore, a nurse at the Health Department that measles was "highly suggestible."

The cases cannot be confirmed by the state for ten days when blood work results are finalized, said Jane Bond with the Health Department. Bond explained that a blood sample is taken at the inception of the disease and again after ten days. Those samples are then compared for the level of antibody concentration.

A few doctors in this area have diagnosed the illness as Fifth's Disease, Martin said. However, some of the children began complaining of eye infections and high fevers, symptoms of measles.

Health officials are unsure which type of measles virus they are dealing with, Rubella or measles. With Ru-

Deputy solves case before it is reported

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Solving a crime after it is committed is difficult enough, but Floyd County deputy sheriff Larry Newsome solved one Monday before it was reported.

The investigation began at 11 p.m. Sunday when Newsome was making a routine patrol on Rt. 979 at Beaver. He noticed a pickup truck that had run into a ditch had a large amount of copper wire in the truck-bed.

Newsome found Harlan Dwayne Hall, 21, and Gregory Tackett, 34, both of Big Mud Creek sitting in the vehicle waiting on another vehicle to pull the car out of the ditch. The two men were later charged with theft by unlawful taking after Hall reportedly confessed Monday that the wire was stolen.

"They told me Sunday night that they could produce a receipt for the copper on Monday," Newsome said. "On Monday, they didn't have one. Dwayne Hall confessed that it was stolen and, after checking with several mines in the area, I found out it belonged to Nicks Coal Company at Teaberry."

Newsome contacted Lawrence Kedricks who works at Nicks Coal Company just after Kedricks discovered that approximately 200 feet of copper wire was missing.

"He hadn't had a chance to report it," Newsome said. "I asked him if he would identify the wire. He described it exactly before he ever saw it. He had placed his own mark on the end of the tubing—different colored rubber seals. This is the quickest case I've ever solved."

The copper was valued at approximately $1,400.

Level field is goal for job hunter

Competition is stiff, Gilliam says

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

The competition for new jobs is an uphill fight, but Floyd County is making moves to level the playing field, an economic development expert told the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce this week.

Darrell Gilliam, executive director of the Floyd County Development Authority, told Chamber members Monday that an aggressive program with short and long-term goals was underway to bring Floyd County into the competition for new jobs.

Gilliam, who has been on the job for three weeks, said he had two primary missions as director of the local authority.

"We have to retain the jobs we have now," Gilliam said, "and recruit new jobs."

Short-term goals for accomplishing those missions, he added, include the development of "an effective industrial team" to deal with industrial prospects and the development of "effective marketing materials."

Long-term goals include the acquisition and development of industrial sites and a "pro-active, aggressive marketing campaign" to locate industry on those sites.

"We have to realize," Gilliam added, "that competition for new jobs is stiff. To be an active participant in the competition for those jobs, we have to do it ourselves. Nobody is going to do it for us."

Firearms violation

A Prestonsburg man has been charged with dealing in firearms without a license.

Larry Douglas Tipton, 49, was charged by a federal grand jury in Lexington recently for illegally dealing in firearms during an 18-month period.

Tipton had allegedly purchased 334 firearms from a dealer from February 1989 to August 1990 and then allegedly sold the guns in Kentucky and Virginia. Tipton could face a sentence of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine if convicted.

Mutual aid

Crews from five Floyd and Knott county fire departments battled to save the Frazier-Dearing garage and apartment complex at Wayland Monday.

Joint effort results in three arrests

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A joint effort between four law enforcement agencies Saturday led to the arrest of three persons who were charged with third degree arson in connection with a house fire at Wheelwright.

The event unfolded with the report of a fire at 2:50 p.m. Saturday at the home of Thomas Rice. The home was totally involved in flames when members of the Southeastern Fire Department arrived on the scene.

In the meantime, Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, who was at home, found out through phone calls to residents in the area that a man driving a brown vehicle was seen fleeing the area shortly before the fire started. The vehicle was reportedly heading toward Martin.

Thompson notified his office dispatcher to alert units in the area to look for the vehicle. Shortly after Thompson's call, dispatcher Johnny Layne received an anonymous tip that the vehicle was a 1975 or 77 Grand Prix and one of the occupants had outstanding warrants against him.

Wheelwright police chief Charles Harmon also notified Layne about the vehicle. Layne radioed Martin city police officer James Slone and deputies Ricky Thornsberry and Fred Mynher. Thornsberry and Slone spotted the vehicle at Bucks Branch in Martin and pulled it over. Kentucky State Police detective Lynn Cross joined Slone and Thornsberry at Bucks Branch.

James P. Allen, 28, his wife, Carla Allen, 26, and Gary Allen, 26, were arrested. Thornsberry said Gary Allen first told him his name was George Allen. It was later revealed that Gary Allen was wanted on two felony warrants in Ashland and local police had an indictment warrant against him for theft by unlawful taking.

Thornsberry said that four children were also in the vehicle and that James and Carla Allen said the children started the fire with a cigarette lighter.

James Allen was charged with driving under the influence on suspended privilege, no registration receipt, no insurance, failure to register transfer of vehicle and improper registration plates. Carla Allen faced identical charges except for the DUI charge. Gary Allen was arrested on the indictment warrant and the two charges from the Ashland State Police Post. Thornsberry charged Gary Allen with making an unsworn falsification to authorities.

KSP detective Joel Newsome charged the three with third degree arson.

All three remained lodged in the Floyd County Jail Tuesday.

An order for over $5,000 worth of cleaning equipment and supplies was placed by Frazier with the central office Tuesday. Two buffers, two scrubbers, a wet/dry vac, five mop buckets, floor mats and mops are to be delivered to the school Wednesday afternoon.

"These people have nothing to work with," Frazier said "There has been a tremendous improvement in the cleanliness of this school in one day. We're getting it cleaned out and cleaned up. There's nothing wrong with these teachers and kids. All they needed was some leadership. I'm having a ball."

Frazier also circulated a petition to teachers Monday morning to hold an election for site based management. Teachers will vote on the issue Thursday, April 16.

Frazier said that Tom Williams of Martin has volunteered to sandblast the outside of the building to remove the purple trim on the brick building. Williams is scheduled to begin on Thursday.

City applies for sewer grant

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Allen City Commissioners approved a resolution to apply for a $750,000 Community Development Block Grant to upgrade the city's sewer system.

The grant proposal seeks funds for a sewage treatment and collection system to serve Allen and the communities of New Allen and Dwayne.

Commissioners will hold a public meeting April 16 at 7 p.m. at the Allen Fire Department to receive input about the sewer improvements and to offer citizens outside the city limits the opportunity to hook-up to the new system.

Commissioner Elmer "Fudd" Parsons presided over the meeting because Mayor Vernon "Buster" Porter is hospitalized due to complications from diabetes.

In other business, the commission approved sending a petition to the State Highway Department asking that a traffic control device be installed at the intersection of Beaver Avenue and Main Street.

The next regular meeting of the commission will be Monday, May 4 at 7 p.m. at city hall. The meetings are open to the public.

pneumonia. It can lead to an inflammation of the brain.

Health nurses in conjunction with the Floyd County Board of Education hope to begin blanket immunizations today, Wednesday. Students enrolled in kindergarten through the eighth grade must be inoculated. Adults employed at the school who received a Measles, Mumps and Rubella vaccine after 1957 also must be immunized, Martin said.

Students in Duff's fifth, sixth and seventh grades will not need the immunization because they were immunized as part of a revaccination program. Health nurses began inoculating fifth grade students with the vaccine about three years ago after outbreaks of measles occurred throughout the United States. Health officials said that primary vaccine failure may have been the reason behind the outbreaks. They now recommend a 2-dose measles vaccine schedule — one at 15 months of age and one at school entry level (either when entering kindergarten or middle school).

Adults and children who have been immunized should bring proof that they have had adequate immunization. Those children who do not have the second dose of MMR by Monday, April 13, will not be allowed to return to school for two weeks.

Parents are encouraged to be on hand when their children are vaccinated. "It makes the child feel secure," said Martin.

PCC professor presents paper

Dr. Thomas L. Vierheller

Dr. Thomas L. Vierheller, a botanist in the Biological Sciences Division of Prestonsburg Community College, will present a paper at the May 2 meeting of the Ohio Academy of Sciences held in Akron, Ohio. Entitled "Determination of Forest Decline within the Hamilton County Park District," the paper presents data collected from two parks in the district. This information showed that the severity of forest decline was related to the proximity of the park to air polluting industries. Of course, the areas closest to the pollution showed the most decline.

The decline was categorized as most severe at Shawnee Lookout Park and least severe at Woodland Mound Park. A study of woody vegetation and a soil analysis was conducted in the summer of 1991 to determine the extent of decline at each park and identify differences between the two parks.

The program is fully approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing to offer an associate degree in nursing and three of the last four classes have achieved a 100% pass rate on the NCLEX-RN exam.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Spent most of last week on the road, traveling to a far-away land called Missouri.

We learned two things on the trip:

(A.) The Western Kentucky Parkway is the most boring road in the world; and (B.) We're mistaken when we believe there's no place like home.

Since item A is self-explanatory, let's move on to item B.

We smalltown folks tend to believe our problems are unique; that our downtown is suffering like no other; that our potholes are deeper than any others; that our schools are the only ones beset by politics.

Last Wednesday, after driving nine hours and 500 miles, we walked into the newspaper office in Perryville, Missouri and right into a conversation that we knew we had heard somewhere before.

The talk of the town, it seemed, was an upcoming school board election, a renovation project for downtown and, surprise, local politics.

It's a small world.

Fun in the sun can be deadly these days.

Scientists now believe that our protective ozone layer is deteriorating faster than originally thought, and that means the chances of contracting one form or another of skin cancer is multiplying, too.

Ironically, the holes in the ozone are being created by the byproducts of inventions developed to keep us cool...air conditioning, refrigerators, etc.

The more dangerous it becomes to expose our skin to the sun, the more necessary are the items that cause the danger.

The good news is that damage to the ozone can be repaired.

The bad news is that things are going to get worse before they get better, and we won't see any improvement in our lifetimes.

If we begin doing everything right, now, fun in the sun will be something folks in the year 2100 can count on.

If the feds don't get the first indictment out of their latest investigation into the workings of Kentucky's state government, they will still have performed a great service for voters in the commonwealth.

If it accomplishes nothing else, the FBI probe of potential influence peddling should set off a few alarm clocks among the powers that be and among those lawmakers who set themselves above the very laws they enact.

Some legislators are concerned that the innocent may be caught up in the same net as the guilty in this federal probe.

That depends on how you define 'innocent.'

We suspect that very few would fit any interpretation of that particular term.

One of the best things that happened during the 1992 session of the state's General Assembly is something that didn't happen.

Education reform did not dry up and blow away.

Two years after landmark reform legislation was enacted, KERA lives, much to the chagrin of many political hacks who were betting their careers on legislative revisions for some of the hard-hitting reform measures.

Efforts to water down the powers of school based decision making councils were appropriately flushed down the toilet, signaling the beginning of the end for the power mongers who have steadfastly refused to share control of their schools.

That's a two-by-four between the eyes that any mule this side of the glue factory ought to understand.

We've kept quiet about as long as we care to on criticism of our news coverage as being "biased" or "unfair," particularly when the critics who deliver the sermons make no efforts to disguise their own narrow-mindedness.

Isn't it interesting to note that these critics choose to vent their spleens at us in the letters to the editor column of our "biased" and "unfair" newspaper?

Criticism we can take.

Hypocrisy is another matter.

Editor:

I am a historian and author currently writing a book about the Scioto Marsh in Hardin County, Ohio, at which many local residents of Floyd County worked in the onion fields in the early decades of this century.

Perhaps a local historical society has collected oral history interviews or other recollections of that experience. If so, I would like to know about that and the names of resource persons who may know of such materials. Also, the large growers on the marsh were said to have advertised in local papers in Kentucky for workers. I think the practice of advertising for laborers may have been done in the mid to late teens or the early 1920s. That is when the first large group of workers arrived in Hardin County, Ohio, from Kentucky. I see that The Floyd County Times was founded in 1927. Was there a county newspaper before that?

The growing of onions on the Scioto Marsh required much land labor in the early 1900s and on into the 1930s and many of the laborers came from Floyd, Magoffin and Johnson counties in Kentucky. The hundreds of families who came to work in the fields contributed much to the once famous productivity of the marsh but now they are gone from the scene and it is difficult to adequately characterize their presence there at that time. I would appreciate an opportunity to correspond with anyone who has information about the subject, or to come to Floyd County and talk with them, if they can help me understand the work experience.

Thank you for any help you can give me. The book which I am writing will have national distribution. My most recent book publications include a history of the American Legion (NY: M. Evans & Co., 610pp., illus., 1900), and a two volume study of the 1844 emigration on the Oregon Trail (Spokane: The Arthur H. Clark., 274pp. ea., illus., 1991).

I wonder how many of you were as appalled as I was at what happened in our state Senate on Tuesday, March 24, 1992. Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton proudly voted the tie-breaking vote to defeat House Bill #460, the seat belt law. He even went so far as to compare the freedom of the press to driving an automobile. Lt. Gov. Patton seems to have forgotten that driving an automobile has always been considered a privilege and not a right. We already have strong driver and automobile restrictions. It is against the law not to restrain two year old children but it is not against the law to not restrain 16 year old children. Your driver's license can be suspended for minimal infractions and even without due process in one particular case and this is because driving safety is considered such an important issue. After all, automobile accidents are the number one cause of death in young adults. Safety belt usage has been studied quite extensively and is one of the few things that have been shown to save tens of thousands of lives and serious injuries. The cost to our society is measured in hundreds of millions of dollars and every major health and safety organization has endorsed safety belt laws. There are still only a few states that have not passed such legislation. Kentucky will probably be the 50th state to pass a seat belt law, but with our progressive legislature we are already used to being last in most things.

As a physician I have personally seen a significant number of teenage drivers who have come into the emergency room after having just run their heads through an automobile windshield in sometimes what would ordinarily have been relatively minor accidents. Most of these kids will tell you that they weren't wearing their seat belt because they "never thought about it" or "no one in my family uses them" or "my father says he doesn't believe in them". Studies have clearly shown that seat belt usage goes up dramatically when it is the law. Safety experts also tell us that our ability to control an automobile in a skid is tremendously improved when the driver is wearing a seat belt.

The seat belt law will come up again and eventually it will, at some future date, pass. For the time being I hope that everyone will remember our 19 senators and lieutenant governor who voted against common sense and the lives of our citizens.

You are right, car insurance is a joke.

I'd like to know why insurance companies think that a teenage boy is more of a high risk than a teenage girl. I don't think it's fair for parents to have to pay more for a teenage boy than the parents of a teenage girl.

I asked my neighbor what she paid for her daughter's insurance for a year. I like to have passed out. I pay at least $1,200 more a year for my son than she does for her daughter. My sister works for an insurance company and she makes more than my husband does, and he's a coal miner.

You said something about Auxier water bills, we moved out of Auxier because we couldn't afford the water and gas.

Yes, the future for our kids looks very grim. I get so sick when I read the newspaper, the drunk drivers, drugs, etc. There are so much drugs sold in our county it's a shame. There are drugs being sold at our schools and places like the head of Wilson Creek and Cracker bottom in Martin. The people need to get together and run the dope fiends out of our county.

Yes, the guy is right, we need to get help and clean Floyd County up. Starting with the courthouse, insurance and utility companies. I don't know about the rest of the people, but we are working to make the rich richer.

Editor:

What is this county coming to? My God, I read your paper, but I think you don't need news bad enough to make stealing a good thing. How do you people expect our boys and girls to feel when one misses a day of school—on the street to juvenile court they go. But Jennie Jacob's case shows what everyone can get away with. If she didn't have money for her dress why didn't she beg her husband to let her pick up cans or worked for it. You know I am an old woman and a full blooded Goble. Never have I read such a mess. Maybe we should put our town's dirty linen on Oprah and Geraldo, tell of tragedy in our police force and a lot of things. You talk about kids, pot and drugs. My Lord, don't make a tale of shoplifting. I think you will change your mind. What would your children think, stealing is a bad thing? I have never been so shocked in my life!

It breaks my heart to listen to the newsmen on TV say well, the president sent so many billion dollars to other countries, when he could use the money in the United State to help people that are out of work save their homes. That's the people's money, I think the people of the U.S. should have a say in what is sent overseas. There are people here in the U.S. that need help. Sure, we draw unemployment when we are laid off, but when you have four kids in school, a house payment, insurance, utility bills, car payments, shoes and clothes to pay for, and if most people are like me it takes two unemployment checks to pay my house and car payment, then there's nothing left.

We get an increase in taxes and it all goes overseas. Why? One thing I can't figure out, if the U.S. is in such a mess, how can we afford to send money overseas? I'd like to know, wouldn't you?

The first sign of spring:
new garbage on the landscape

by Beth Jones
Contributing Writer

It's only the first week of April and already the signs of spring in Eastern Kentucky are evident. The plants have already begun to turn green, the spring showers have come, and residents have started spring cleaning. Yes, all these signs of spring arouse pleasant thoughts, except for the fact that many residents throw the garbage they've cleaned out of their homes into the rain swollen creeks, lakes and rivers.

Eastern Kentucky has such a beautiful landscape, and it is a shame that plastic jugs and baby diapers mar the natural beauty of our region. The entire end of our fine state is becoming one huge landfill.

The first group responsible for this mess is the residents of the area. Some people cannot understand that our waterways are not garbage cans. It would not take much effort to throw refuse into a trash receptacle instead of into Dewey Lake or Left Beaver Creek. It would be very helpful if the citizens would organize clean-up groups such as the Adopt-A-Highway program. Instead of picking trash up from ditches, they would have to remove refuse from tree limbs and the edge of the water's surface.

The second group who can help greatly in cleaning this mess is politicians. Magistrates, congressmen, etc., have the power to make things happen. This is a worthy project. Our hills would be even more beautiful if they were trash-free.

To keep our area clean once and for all, the residents and legislators must join forces. After all the negative publicity this area has faced, shouldn't we do something to turn these bad feelings around? A clean landscape can do nothing but show pride in Eastern Kentucky?

Congressman Carl C. Perkins

Bush to Ashland:
Send it to Russia

By Congressman Carl C. Perkins

Last week the president announced that he was requesting to rescind about four billion dollars in previously appropriated funds. One of these items was $1,000,000 for a parking garage in downtown Ashland. This was a line-item appropriation made at my request.

This proposal was developed in consultation with the mayor and businessmen as an integral part of the effort to rejuvenate downtown Ashland. The only practical method to secure these grant funds was through a line-item appropriation. After much hard work these economic development funds were approved and the president signed the bill.

Last week the President gave a speech and asked to cancel Ashland's Economic Development and American Job Creation Funds along with another four billion dollars. He then headed to Camp David with German Chancellor Helmut Kohl. It was agreed to provide the former Soviet Union with 24 billion dollars in economic development funds. President Bush said the United States would give $4 billion, the same amount of domestic money he wants to cut.

If President Bush has his way, the Ashland parking garage will be built in Moscow by Russian workers using Russian products.

I believe that American workers using American materials should build the Ashland parking garage in Ashland, not Moscow.

Fires destroy rental homes

Two separate rental properties at Wayland owned by Malcom Dearing were damaged by fire within a period of three days.

Approximately fifty firefighters from five fire departments fought a fire at the old Fraley-Dearing garage on Monday. Fire personnel from Wayland, Topmost-Kite, Knott, Garrett and Maytown fire departments manned fire hoses and pumper trucks for five hours before bringing the fire under control.

"It didn't look good for awhile," said Sam Bentley, Wayland fire chief. The fire was coming through the top of the building when his unit arrived. Bentley said he had to return to the scene about three times because the fire kept reigniting.

One of the three apartments in the building was occupied at the time of the fire. No injuries were reported.

In an earlier incident on Saturday, a vacant mobile home owned by Dearing was partially destroyed. The trailer was located in a trailer park and Wayland firefighters hosed down adjacent trailers.

Both fires are being investigated by state police arson investigator Barry McKenzie, who was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

In a separate fire, Wayland firefighters rendered mutual aid to the Kite-Topmost and Knott County fire departments around 3:30 a.m. Monday. Two homes on Rt. 7 were completely destroyed in the blaze. The heat from the fire was so intense that five windows in the home of State Representative Russell Bentley burst. Bentley's home is located across the road from the fire site.

OPTICIANS SUPPORT EYE RESEARCH DURING APRIL DONOR AWARENESS WEEK

Opticians all across America will be donating to eye research during National Eye, Tissue and Organ Donor Awareness week, April 19-25, 1992. The Recycle Sight Project, a public awareness and fund raising campaign, was announced by William F. Lenz, Chairman, Guild Council, Guild of Prescription Opticians of America and Daniel J. Donahue, President, Opticians Association of America. In cooperation with TBI, the largest non-profit network of eye banks in the world, the project involves participating opticians donating a portion of each frame sold to TBI's Eye Research Program during Donor Awareness Week.

Marcus Minix, owner of Minix One-Hour Optical, in Prestonsburg, Ky., is participating in this project to fund research that investigates the causes and cures for all types of human blindness. "An optician's primary commitment is to improving sight. National Eye, Tissue and Organ Donor Awareness Week offers us a special opportunity to increase public awareness about the importance of sight preservation and to help fund research that can combat blindness."

TBI community-based non-profit eye banks provide eye tissue for sight restoring corneal transplant surgery and for research.

The Guild of Prescription Opticians of America has a long tradition of professional service to America's eyewear consumers. Member firms of the Opticians Association of America accredited by its Guild Division are independent professionals dedicated to providing superior eyewear products and services.

PCC to hold second round table

Tuesday, April 14, 1992 is the date of the second event in the newly instituted College-Community Round Table. Meeting in room 132 of the Johnson Building at Prestonsburg Community College from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m., this chautauqua-like series of discussions of timely issues will feature an interchange on an environmental concern.

Presenters in the College-Community Round Table on April 14 will be Dr. Thomas Vierheller, a botanist—representing the scientist's viewpoint, and Dr. Robert Perry, an English teacher—representing the humanities. Their topic will be "global warming and the depletion of the ozone layer".

Responders and participants in the question/answer session will be the members of the audience made up of faculty and students at the college, along with members of the community.

"All are welcome to attend and participate," according to Eileen Lewandowski, who serves as moderator for the programs. The first meeting on Tuesday, March 31 was a success due to the interesting remarks of the presenters, along with the timely questions from and interchange with the members of the audience. In fact, their discussion has suggested several possible topics for the discussions to be held in the fall.

Lewandowski also wants to remind everyone that the third in the spring series of round tables will be held on Tuesday, April 28, featuring a "community issues gathering" approach to the topic: jobs and economic development. This gathering will be a totally audience centered discussion using a non-confrontational discussion style adapted from the National Issues Forums for use with the Appalachian Civic Leadership Project.

For more information about the College-Community Round Table, you may contact Eileen Lewandowski, assistant professor; communications coordinator, Appalachian Leadership Project; 886-3863, Ext. 404.

Driving costs average 38.8 cents per mile in 1992, AAA says

Motorists will pay an average $219 more to own and operate a new car in 1992, a 4 percent increase from the previous year, AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky reports.

According to AAA, ownership and operating costs for a new car driven 15,000 miles will be $5,820 in 1992, or an average 38.8 cents per mile.

Driving costs increased 13 percent last year and 7.8 percent in 1990.

AAA's driving costs are based on a composite national average for operating three domestically built passenger cars—a subcompact Ford Escort LX, a mid-size Ford Taurus and full-size Chevrolet Caprice.

Kentucky History Highlights

By Mary Jean Kinsman

THE SHRYOCKS:

Kentucky's architectural family

The name "Shryock," when linked to Kentucky architecture, most often brings to mind Gideon Shryock, designer of Kentucky's third capitol building, the first Greek Revival building in the state. However, many Kentuckians may not know of Gideon's father, Mathias, and his two brothers, Montgomery and Cincinnatus, who were also builders and architects.

Mathias Shryock (1774-1833) came to Lexington from Maryland in the 1790s, and by the early 1800s he was an accomplished and respected carpenter-builder, in business with his brother-in-law, Michael Gaugh. They designed and built the David's Fork Baptist Church (1801) in Fayette County. Shryock built an Episcopal church in Lexington in 1814, and is said to have worked on one of the early Transylvania College buildings. He also built a substantial brick house for his family on North Broadway.

Free shade trees

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during April 1992.

The free trees are part of the non-profit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten shade trees are Red Oak, Weeping Willow, Sugar Maple, Green Ash, Thornless Honeylocust, Pin Oak, River Birch, Tuliptree, Silver Maple, and Red Maple.

"These trees were selected to provide shade and beauty, and a variety of forms, leaf shapes and fall colors," John Rosenow, the foundation's executive director, said.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to SHADE TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by April 30, 1992.

Gideon Shryock (1802-1880) became Kentucky's first native-born, professionally trained architect and the state's most prominent architect of the second quarter of the 19th century.

After working with his father, Gideon left Lexington in 1823 and went to Philadelphia to study with William Strickland, who was a designer in the Greek Revival style.

Shryock returned to Lexington in 1825 and began the practice of architecture. In 1827 he won a competition for designs for a new state house to replace Kentucky's second capitol building which had burned in 1824. This handsome structure of Kentucky limestone was the first Greek Revival building west of the Alleghenies.

Major buildings designed by Gideon Shryock include Morrison College of Transylvania University (1830), the Franklin County courthouse (1832), the Arkansas State Capitol (1833), the Jefferson County courthouse in Louisville (1835), and the Louisville Medical Institute (1837). In all of these buildings Shryock used the Greek Revival style. Shryock's only documented residential work is the Orlando Brown house in Frankfort, designed in 1835. It is a Georgian plan house with Greek Revival details.

Gideon Shryock moved to Louisville in 1835 to supervise construction of the courthouse. That same year he was appointed Louisville City Architect, a post he held until 1842.

The Jefferson County courthouse was beset with financial and construction problems soon after building began. In 1842 it was still unfinished and Shryock resigned, or was removed, from the project. The last building known to have been designed by Gideon Shryock was the Chestnut Street Methodist Church in Louisville (now the Brown Memorial CME Church), completed in 1865. Shryock died in 1880 and is buried in Cave Hill Cemetery in Louisville.

Gideon Shryock's younger brothers, Montgomery and Cincinnatus, are said to have received architectural training from him. Little is known of Montgomery (1808-1834), who became a civil engineer and died in Vandalia, Illinois.

Cincinnatus Shryock (1816-1888) lived in Lexington and did most of his work after the Civil War. He had studied medicine at Transylvania, but left school to enter the building business. His first major commission was for the Odd Fellows Hall, later the Opera House, in Lexington. It was completed in 1856 and burned in the 1880s. During the Civil War there was little building in Lexington, and Cincinnatus moved his family to Woodford County where he operated a Kentucky River ferry owned by his father-in-law. After the war he returned to Lexington and again took up his architectural practice.

He designed the Centenary Methodist Church at Broadway and Church Street in 1867. His finest work is the Gothic Revival First Presbyterian Church on North Mill Street, completed in 1872. He also designed a number of houses in Lexington and several are still standing. Cincinnatus did not follow his brother in working in the Greek Revival style, but rather designed in the Gothic Revival, Italianate, and Second Empire styles which were popular after the Civil War. Cincinnatus Shryock died in Lexington in 1888.

The work of the Shryock architects - father and sons - spanned the 19th century, and their designs represented most of the architectural styles prevalent during those years.

For further reading on this subject, the following sources are suggested: A History of the Profession of Architecture in Kentucky by Julian Oberwarth and William B. Scon, Jr. (1987); and "Gideon Shryock, Kentucky Architect, and Greek Revival Architecture in Kentucky" by Alfred J. Andrews, The Filson Club History Quarterly, 18 (1944).

Mary Jean Kinsman is Curator of Photographs and Prints at The Filson Club.

The Filson Club has been dedicated to collecting Kentucky historical material since 1884.

UK recreation, wellness, and fitness consultants visit

Tim Dunnagan, University of Kentucky's Director of Wellness, and Bill Pieratt, UK's Director of Recreation, served as consultants to Prestonsburg Community College recently to study recreation and wellness programming potential. During their Thursday and Friday, March 19-20, visit they met with area residents, youth and college employees to assess the community's needs and to begin to gauge the support for an expansion of the college's student center.

An expansion of the existing student center is in the preliminary plans for 1994. College President Deborah L. Floyd invited these consultants to Prestonsburg to begin the process of planning for this expansion. During their visit they met with various members of the college and community.

During the consultation visit, Mr. Dunnagan and Mr. Pieratt met with Mayor Ann Latta; Dr. Eddie Clark, a Martin dentist; D.B. Kazez, Paintsville resident and Prestonsburg attorney; Mike Conley, property manager for the Kentucky River Coal Company; Clarence Traum, CEO of Highlands Regional Medical Center; Dr. Blake Burchett, member of the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission; Dr. Rodney Handshoe, cardiologist and member of the College Foundation Board; and Dr. John Boswell, area physician.

The UK team also met informally with about 20 various area senior citizens, and college faculty and staff. Their visit was intended to get a better "feel" for possible wellness and recreational programming interests in the area and to make suggestions regarding the programming focus for a student center expansion.

Among the areas explored included a campus facility that would include an indoor pool, an elevated running track, a gymnasium, an aerobics studio, racquetball courts and other areas for various activities including classrooms and community meeting spaces. The consultants explored the possibilities for utilization of this space for instructional purposes such as physical rehabilitation and other allied health programs.

PCC is currently engaged in a pilot project of wellness and fitness with employees which was launched over 8 weeks ago. This project is intended to serve as a model for community colleges across the state and is co-sponsored by the PCC Wellness and Fitness Committee and the UK Department of Wellness. Glennis Little, co-chair of the PCC Wellness and Fitness Committee, also met with the consultants and discussed various issues and ideas of the local committee.

In addition, the consultants met with Mayor Ann Latta, President Floyd, Assistant to the President Carolyn Turner, College Building Engineer Bill Bays and Prestonsburg engineer Cliff Latta, to discuss a proposed walking track on the PCC's campus. Tentatively named the "River Walk", this track would be designed as a cooperative project between the city and the college. The feasibility of a "River Walk" is currently being studied.

Choices and changes, tools for area teachers

The Kentucky Council on Economic Education (KCEE) and the Center for Economic Education at Alice Lloyd College are co-sponsoring a workshop to focus on a program entitled Choices and Changes.

Choices and Changes is an innovative program for at-risk students with low self esteem designed to empower young people with the tools of decision making, economic knowledge and self-knowledge. These skills will help young people see the value of education and will help motivate them to get the most out of their school experiences. Choices and Changes demonstrates the critical link between education and future fulfilled activities that teach key economic understandings.

Although materials for Choices and Changes are produced for four grade levels from primary through junior high, we will limit our focus to junior high (grades 6-8). We would like to extend an invitation to all junior high teachers in Knott, Letcher and Floyd counties.

The date for the workshop is Tuesday, April 14, at the Holiday Inn, Prestonsburg from 4-7 p.m. A food buffet will be offered beginning at 4 with the workshop immediately afterwards. This will be provided for your teachers free of charge. Each teacher in attendance will receive a complete teaching package which includes a teacher resource manual, a complete set of blackline masters for student activities, and a classroom set of 30 student journals. This teaching package is valued at $60.

With the workshop only days away, I will need a reply as soon as possible. Please send a list of names that will be attending or call the Center for Economic Education at Alice Lloyd College at 368-2102, Ext. 5712 or Dr. Nancy Billingsly, Ext. 5709.

Annual Cardinal Hill Telethon set for April 26

The 21st Annual Cardinal Hill Telethon will be hosted at Memorial Coliseum on Sunday, April 26, from 10:30 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. The telethon will air on WKYT-TV, Channel 27, and WYMT-TV, Channel 57.

The telethon helps people with physical rehabilitation needs from all parts of Kentucky. In the past year, 17 people from Floyd County were patients at Cardinal Hill Rehabilitation Hospital.

Sam Dick and Barbara Bailey of WKYT-TV return as hosts this year, while honorary chairpersons include Carolyn Curry, Judy Rose, and Martha Wilkinson.

The 1992 Cardinal Hill Ambassadors will be on hand throughout the day to share their experience at Cardinal Hill. The Ambassadors, Alvia Vankirk and Alan Sea, are chosen because of the tremendous progress they made in Cardinal Hill programs.

Alvia Vankirk is a former Cardinal Hill patient from Corbin. Vankirk, 74, had a stroke in September and has now returned to work full-time. Alan Sea, 4, is a student in the Cardinal Hill Pre-School. Alan has cerebral palsy due to premature birth.

In addition to appearances by several former Cardinal Hill patients and supporters, the action will be enhanced by the autograph and photograph session with UK senior athletes. All UK senior athletes have been invited to participate.

The telethon production is not the only action to be found at Memorial Coliseum. A free health fair, which is open to the public, will be held on the east concourse of the coliseum and the Cardinal Hill Bid Board Auction with over 75 items will be conducted on the basketball floor.

Everyone is invited to make a pledge by phone, or come by Memorial Coliseum and drop a donation in the fish bowl.

Cardinal Hill Rehabilitation Hospital is a non-profit organization serving the physical rehabilitation needs of central and eastern Kentuckians since 1950. Cardinal Hill is licensed for 100 inpatient beds and offers complete outpatient therapy services. The hospital, employing over 500 people in clinical and administrative positions, is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospital Organizations and the Commission on the Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities.

Highlands Cancer Committee information update

The National Cancer Institute has placed significant emphasis on cancer nutrition awareness. They believe that by carefully choosing a well-balanced diet, you may reduce your cancer risk. Likewise, the Cancer Committee at Highlands Regional Medical Center urges you to take steps through better nutrition to help protect yourself and your family from cancer.

It is believed that one third of all deaths occurring from cancer may be related to what you eat. Making positive choices in your daily diet promotes good nutrition and good health and may reduce your chances of getting some types of cancer.

It is important to eat a variety of foods each day, such as fruits and vegetables, whole cereals, lean meats, poultry without skin, fish, dried peas and beans and low-fat dairy products. No one food provides all the nutrition you need.

Maintain a desirable weight. Obesity is a risk factor in many disease including heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes and some cancers.

Avoid fats, saturated fats and cholesterol. A diet low in total fat may reduce the risk of cancer of the breast, prostate, colon and rectum. A low-fat diet will also reduce the risk of heart disease.

Eat food with adequate starch and fiber. It is recommended that you increase the amount of starch and fiber in your diet by eating more fruit, vegetables, potatoes, whole grain breads, and cereal. A high fiber diet may reduce the risk of colon and rectal cancer.

Avoid too much sugar. Sugary foods are also high in fat and calories and low in vitamins and minerals.

Avoid too much sodium. This can contribute to high blood pressure and untreated high blood pressure can lead to heart attack, stroke and kidney disease.

If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation. Heavy drinking is associated with cancer of the mouth, throat, esophagus and liver. Alcoholic drinks are high in calories and low in vitamins and minerals. Note that cancer risk is specially high for heavy drinkers who smoke.

Given these dietary guidelines, Highlands Cancer Committee recommends that you review the types of foods in your daily diet. See how you can make better choices to reduce your chance of cancer and other diseases. It is important to remember that these are choices for healthy people.

Consult your physician before beginning any modified diet, and remember, good nutrition alone can not protect you against all diseases.

Beware of fad diets and supplement promotions to prevent or cure cancer.

Highlands Cancer Committee also reminds you that you don't have to give up foods you like, to protect yourself against cancer. Instead, choose more often the foods that may help reduce your risk of cancer, choose less often the foods that might increase your risk of cancer. They also recommend that you don't attempt all the changes overnight. Read product labels, plan your daily menus and enjoy healthy eating and good health.

For your health and information, Highlands Cancer Committee will publish a series of patient education articles concerning various aspects of cancer awareness.

Kentucky Opry to perform

by Tami Jones

They'll remind you of the New Christie Minstrels and Up With People. They're a little bit country, a little bit rock 'n roll, talented musicians, pretty girls and a whole lot of fun. They are Prestonsburg's own Kentucky Opry, featuring some Eastern Kentucky's finest young professional singers, musicians and dancers.

Kentucky Power Company presents Kentucky Opry at the Paramount Arts Center at 8 p.m. on April 14. Tickets are $10 and $8 and may be purchased at the door. All proceeds benefit the Kentucky Opry and its goal to build a music school and performing arts center in Prestonsburg. Call 324-3175 for tickets.

Kentucky Opry was founded by retired Floyd County music teacher Billie Jean Osborne. After seeing young performers at Opryland and Myrtle Beach's Carolina Opry, she realized that just as much talent existed in Eastern Kentucky.

She developed a plan to create an organization to bring together the talented young performers of the region and help them develop their talent. In addition, the group's headquarters would be a new performing arts facility to present top country entertainment and serve as a tourist attraction in Prestonsburg. With the support of local government and business leaders, Kentucky Opry was formed.

Kentucky Opry, consisting of nine musicians and four singers, gave its first public performance in Prestonsburg in 1990 and has a growing following with each performance. Last summer, they performed every Monday night at the Jenny Wiley State Park and will be part of the park schedule again this year.

Career highlights for Kentucky Opry include performing for Governor Brereton Jones' inaugural celebration, opening for Travis Tritt at Paintsville's Apple Festival and a benefit performance for the American Heart Association in Ashland.

Don't let the name "opry" fool you into thinking it is just country. Kentucky Opry presents a variety of music including everything from Big Band to Broadway and patriotic songs in addition to today's country sounds. Mix in a little dancing and comedy (including a hilarious Elvis impersonator) and you have a show that compares favorably to anything found in the more well-known venues of Opryland and Myrtle Beach.

A lot has happened in five years since a retired school teacher single-handedly went out to create a top-notch performing arts program in a rural community in Eastern Kentucky. In Billie Jean Osborne's words, "It is a dream that has been falling into place one day at a time."

Breaking the cycle of abuse

(Information for this series was provided by the Floyd County Extension Service.)

Abuse of People With Disabilities

We slip into a handicapped parking space because we'll only be a minute. Averting our eyes from the man in the wheelchair, we cross the street to avoid him. Our children laugh, pointing at the girl who struggles to swing with leg braces. The blind woman searches for the curb with her white cane. Silently we pass by, hoping she doesn't hear us. We help the physically challenged youth when he doesn't need it. At times we act as if people with handicaps are not even there.

These are subtle, but clear-cut ways we abuse people with disabilities. Blatant maltreatment happens also. Individuals with handicaps fall victim to the same sexual, physical and emotional abuse as anyone else. But due to their handicaps, they are more vulnerable. Individuals with disabilities may be unable to defend themselves against hitting, restraining, and sexual molesting.

Emotional abuse of people with disabilities is equally devastating. They endure ridicule, pity and treatment as eternal children. They are called freak, vegetable or retard. Sometimes people with handicaps are not allowed to do things for themselves, which may teach them to be helpless. They may be isolated because to others they are dangerous, disruptive or embarrassing.

Some people with disabilities are given aversive treatments. Inappropriate electroshock therapy, over-medication and institutionalization are sometimes used to control behaviors considered otherwise unmanageable. Many national advocacy groups have developed policies condemning such treatment.

THE IMPORTANCE OF INDEPENDENCE

In recent years, there has been a welcome emphasis on integrating folks with disabilities into the mainstream of society. When those challenged with disabilities live, study, work and marry in the community, everyone involved benefits.

Individuals with disabilities have the right to make choices and to live as self-sufficiently as possible. As they grow in self-reliance, children need suitable support from their parents. Too much support detracts from the person's move to independence; too little places the individual in a sink-or-swim position which may be discouraging or overwhelming. Adults with disabilities also need appropriate support from service providers, parents, co-workers and friends.

FAMILY STRESS

No matter how well a family adjusts to caring for a person challenged with disability, over time everyone feels stress. Family members can be drained by the continual demands of caring for a loved one with special needs. When a caregiver feels overwhelmed, physical, mental, emotional or even sexual abuse can occur. Stress factors include:

- Increased external pressures such as finances and the needs of other family members.
- Increased risk for isolation—both for the person with special needs and the rest of the family.
- Transition times such as when the child starts preschool, leaves high school and changes jobs.
- Feelings of embarrassment. Parents may think a child with handicaps reflects negatively on them.
- Feelings of disappointment and frustration. The person with a disability may fall short of the hopes and expectations of loved ones.
- Constant responsibility. Physical and emotional demands on the caregivers can be exhausting.
- A do-nothing attitude. Caregivers don't ask for or use the services and help they need.

STRATEGIES FOR LIVING

WELL WITH A DISABILITY IF YOU ARE A PERSON WITH A DISABILITY

• Don't isolate yourself. Build a network of friends. Involve yourself in support and advocacy groups. Take advantage of education and job opportunities. Get involved in sports or hobbies.

• Don't tolerate abuse from caregivers. Physical, emotional and sexual abuse are criminal offenses. Call a hotline or social agency, or tell someone you need help. Get out of unhealthy living situations.

• Consider your options. Today supported employment in the community and a variety of independent living arrangements are realistic alternatives.

• Become an activist. When people with handicaps are denied needed services such as continuing education, this is subtle abuse. Other rights abuses include sexual or economic exploitation, denial of access to the community, and discrimination in hiring and housing. Become involved in making positive change. Denial of informed choices is a violation of your rights. No one should deny you the opportunity to take risks as you grow in independence.

• Show people what you can do and be. Make your life contradict the stereotypes that people have of someone with your handicap.

IF YOU ARE A CAREGIVER

• Use available services. Take advantage of services such as special education and vocational rehabilitation.

• Arrange for respite care. Ask a friend to take over while you go to the library or park. Set up formal respite care through an agency or daycare center.

• Meet your own needs. Avoid isolation. Keep up old friendships, cultivate new ones. Stay involved. If feelings like anger, depression or guilt surface from time to time, find a counselor, support group or friend to help you through them. Relax when you can, enjoy small triumphs, and maintain your sense of humor. When you take good care of yourself, you and the person with special needs can live so that each of you leads a balanced, enjoyable life.

IF YOU CARE

• Don't assume or intrude. People with disabilities are people first, with preferences just like you. Don't assume someone using a wheelchair needs help. Just smile and ask if she needs a hand. She may not need your help, but will value your caring attitude. We all appreciate being treated like "regular folk."

• Be a friend. Give the person with a disability the support he needs to succeed. Encourage him to get involved. Rejoice with him about the new job or his winning goal in basketball. Be there to listen. He has feelings, dreams and desires just like you. Don't withdraw from people with physical, emotional or mental disabilities.

• Be an advocate. The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 prohibits discrimination in public buildings and services, in communications and in transportation. Be alert to times, places and ways that people challenged with disabilities experience discrimination. Stand beside them and speak up against the inequities. Protest injustice!

Creative living options and supported employment are allowing people with disabilities to live and work alongside those without disabilities. On the job, in our neighborhoods, and in restaurants, stores and schools we are finding a common meeting ground. As we reach out in friendship, the barriers between those of us with and without disabilities disappear.

Christian musicians' competition slated

Gospel musicians such as Sandi Patti, Gold City, The Talleys, The Gaither Vocal Band and Steve Green, all of whom started out as musicians in their own home churches, have become increasingly well known with the recent rise in popularity of gospel music.

In the past two years, the Contemporary Christian Musicians' Competition has brought some of the finest local Christian musicians to the attention of the Christian recording industry professionals in Nashville. The 1991 winner of the competition in Nashville was Kelly Harlow of Charleston, South Carolina, who was awarded a $5,000 recording session from Benson Music in Nashville as well as approximately $3,000 in cash and other prizes. A 1990 group division winner, "Gifted" from Charlotte, North Carolina, was recently featured on the Nashville Television Network program "Nashville Now."

CCMC, which is non-denominational, focuses on encouraging Christian musicians—regardless of whether their style is southern gospel, inspirational, contemporary or classical—in the development of their abilities as effective performers. The competition originally began in North Carolina, but it extended into seven states last year and into several mid-western states this year.

The third annual Contemporary Christian Musicians' Competition is scheduled to be held at the Holiday Inn South Airport, 3317 Fern Valley Road, in Louisville on Saturday, April 25, 1992.

Adult and teen Christian musicians, soloists, instrumentalists, groups and songwriters in the Prestonsburg area are eligible and are encouraged to enter.

Area participants with qualifying scores may first advance to regional and then to final competition, which is held in Nashville in the fall. The competition is judged on all levels by professional Christian musicians, and in Nashville by members of the Christian recording industry.

Awards for the competition are sponsored by the Benson Music Group, Writingsong Resources, Douglas Training Schools and the Gospel Music Association in Nashville and include trophies, accompaniment tapes and recording hours on area and regional levels. On the final level, cash and professional recordings are also awarded.

The competition presents a unique opportunity for talent in the area of gospel music to extend performing abilities beyond their own hometown. For more information or entry forms, write Contemporary Christian Musicians' Competition (or CCMC) at P.O. Box 1505, Asheboro, N.C. 27204-1505, or call 1-800-325-CCMC.

Cancer Answers
The Cancer Information Service is part of the Kentucky Cancer Program and is supported by the National Cancer Institute.

Q: My husband and I are in our 40's. We are starting to worry about getting cancer. Are there things we can do to check for cancer?

A: The most important thing you and your husband can do is have a check-up every year. You should have a Pap test to check for cervical cancer, a pelvic exam to check the uterus and ovaries, and a rectal exam to check for colon cancer. You will also need a breast exam and mammogram (breast x-ray) to check for breast cancer. Between the ages of 40 and 50, you should have a mammogram every 1 or 2 years and after you reach 50, you should have one every year.

Your husband needs to have a rectal exam to check for cancer of the prostate, colon and rectum. His testicles should also be examined.

There are also things you and your husband can do at home. Help each other look for changes in the skin and check moles. Do breast self-exam and testicular self-exam every month. Ask your doctor or nurse to show you how.

Remember, the best way to fight cancer is to find it early when it can be treated with best success.

Q: My mother has lung cancer.

She would like to see her grandchild, but I'm afraid for my baby to be around her. My mother coughs a lot. Could he catch cancer from her?

A: No, your son cannot catch cancer. It cannot be spread by coughing, sneezing, kissing, or in any other way. Cancer is an uncontrolled growth of cells in the body. These cells cannot be spread from person to person.

Pikeville College Phonathon a success

The Pikeville College Phonathon was a huge success, according to campaign chairperson Gerri Kinder. The drive raised $51,164 for programs at the private liberal arts college, more than $15,000 over the Phonathon goal this year, she said.

"The people in the community really supported this year's phonathon, and that accounted for its tremendous success," Kinder said. Many area businesses advertised the Phonathon on their marquees, and several local pizza restaurants: Domino's, Little Caesar's, Mr. Gatti's, Pizza Hut and Sir Pizza, and ARA and the Pikeville Coca Cola Co. donated refreshments for the volunteers. Vital Signs of Pikeville and Unisigns of Ivel donated signs and banners for the drive, and Eastern Telephone Co. donated and installed the telephones.

About 75 volunteers — students, alumni and friends of the college — telephoned prospective donors during the last two weeks of March, and by the end of the drive on April 2, had reached 2,500 of them.

Volunteer groups included the Pikeville Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, area media representatives, the Pikeville College chamber group, the men's and women's basketball teams, faculty, staff, alumni and students.

"The support of the community is especially important now that the college is in the midst of a major capital campaign," Kinder said. "Foundations and donors outside the region look to see if there is community support when they make their decisions to fund the college. We can show them that the people of this area believe in Pikeville College and in supporting a quality private college in this community."

Sheriff Cecil E. Cyrus

The family of Cecil E. (Gene) Cyrus wishes to express their deep appreciation for the outpouring of cards, flowers, food, and other contributions given to us by grieving friends and public out of love and honor for their Sheriff and friend. Knowing how much many of you loved and honored him has been a great comfort to our family.

Maybe you arrived on the tragic scene as an officer or Rescue Squad Member, or maybe you joined in the speedy ambulance trip to the hospital; maybe you assisted Dr. Arnold in the emergency room or you waited nearby with tears of hope in your eyes and prayers in your hearts when Dr. Arnold delivered the tragic news to us; maybe you sent us a lovely card, a beautiful floral arrangement, a donation, or you brought a prepared dish; maybe you dropped by to say kind words of condolences or to just sit in a chair respectfully near him; maybe you assisted us with the painfully necessary arrangements, or you drove many miles to console us in our devastating grief; maybe you were among the over 4000 law officers, dignitaries, friends, and others saying goodbye or paying respects at the services, or you were among the firemen extending the firetruck ladders toward heaven like giant hands meeting in prayer; maybe you stood respectfully at the side of the road, or you stood at attention as the procession of family members followed their loved one to his allotted resting place; maybe you were not able to be with us at all, but you thought of us or you prayed for us to gain strength through God to see us through the difficult departure at the graveside.

We thank you so much for whatever part you played in comforting us. Because of the many expressions of love and respect for our patriarch, we family members cannot individually express our full appreciation for these offerings of comfort to us during our time of extreme grief.

Due to the unavailability of return addresses on your many offerings and contributions, it is impossible for our family to personally express our deepest gratitude and appreciation for all of your support as we pass through the difficult hours and days of coping with our loss.

Please continue to pray for our family to accept the ache of loss and to rejoice in that our loved one is "walking tall" in heaven with God.

With sincere appreciation,
The Cyrus Family

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

TEAMS REPRESENTED AREA WELL

Our two junior pro and one varsity basketball teams represented our area very well in the recent Kentucky Junior Pro state tournament in Bowling Green over the weekend.

Martin and Prestonsburg were our junior varsity representatives while Floyd County played in varsity competition. Floyd County placed third in the state tournament and was clearly the most talented team down there. The local all-stars had to play without the services of Jason Bevins and had Bevins been healthy, it would have been a Floyd County trip to the nationals in Knoxville, Tennessee.

The officiating was anything but good. The first night of the tournament for the Floyd County team was one they would rather forget but can't. The game, and this is just the way I feel about it, was literally taken from them.

Thomas Jenkins had just scored the go-ahead basket for Floyd County with nine seconds remaining. The opposing team was trying to get the ball inbounds against the Floyd County press. When the chance of doing so was futile, they called a time out from the bench (a player must signal a time out). During the time out, Floyd County coach Steve Jenkins calmly asked the official if there shouldn't have been a five second violation in getting the ball inbounds. Stands to reason. Nine seconds minus four left on the clock proves that five seconds ran off the clock before time out was called. Anyway, on the four count a time out cannot be awarded. Steve had the right to ask that question.

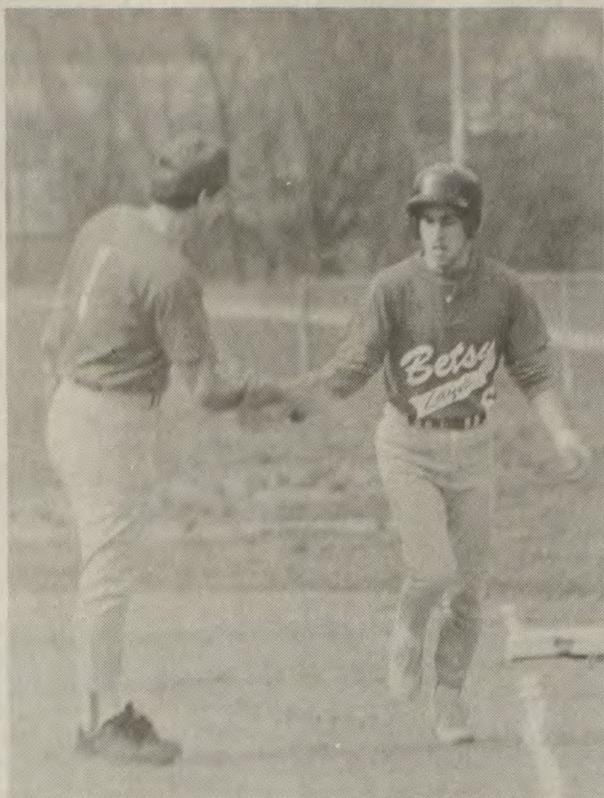

While Jenkins asked the question, the official called a technical foul on him for, get this, being out of the coaches' box during a time out. The technical gave the opposing team two shots, which they made, and the ball with four seconds to go. Needless to say Floyd County lost by one point.

Now, had Coach Jenkins come raving out of the coaches' box and carrying on like any coach should not, then a technical foul would have been in order. But anyone who knows Steve, knows that is not the way he is. He simply asked a question and received a technical for being out of the coaches' box during a time out in which a coach can be out of the box.

Later, at Diddle Arena, Saturday morning, where the junior varsity was playing (I ran myself to death from place to place), I parked myself behind the state tournament director. He was conversing with the official who called the technical foul the night before on Jenkins. Now I wasn't eavesdropping, but I couldn't help but hear the conversation. I thought I should leave but what was being said was too interesting. The official, now I heard it with my own ears after seeing the incident the night before with my own eyes, told an entirely different story than what had taken place. I thought to myself, and I do that often — you have to in this business, he must be talking about another situation. But he kept referring to the Floyd County team. His reason for calling the technical was because Jenkins came onto the floor during a game situation. That was totally false. There was clearly a time out awarded to the team, Madisonville, and then Jenkins never really actually left the coaches' box except for maybe a step.

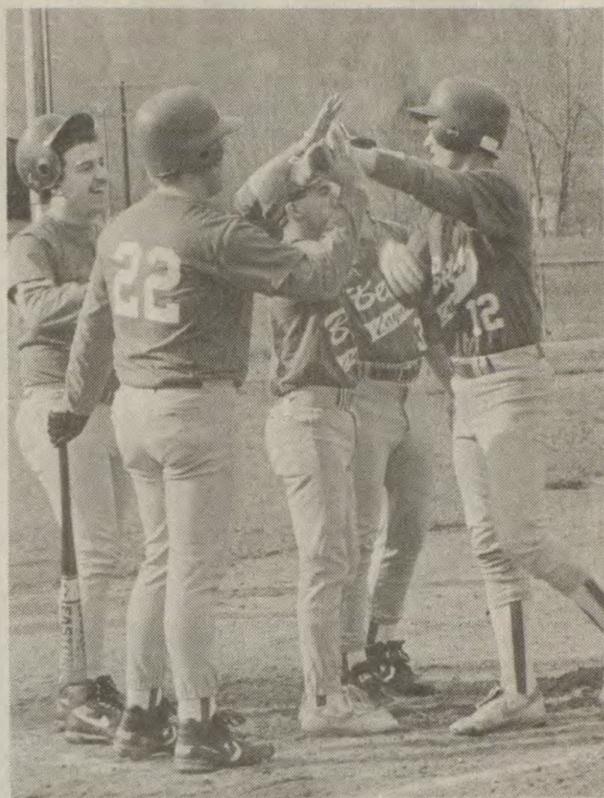

During the following game, I observed the coach from Southeast Lexington 1 and lo and behold he was constantly out of the coaches' box, yet no one said a word. I think what had happened was that the Floyd County fans were very vocal and the official just couldn't take it. So, under pressure he made the wrong call and had to stick with it. But that is just one example of

This Bud's for you!

Kidd, Hall power Bobcats past Cardinals

Finally! Finally, the high school baseball season got underway Monday at Allen Park when the Betsy Layne Bobcats hosted the Cardinals of Sheldon Clark. It was the season opener for both ballclubs after rains of the past few days had forced cancellation of the first six games.

Betsy Layne got the season off to a good start, winning the opener 6-3 over Sheldon Clark, one of the better teams in the region.

Betsy Layne played long ball with the Cardinals as Bud Kidd and Barry Hall each had round-trippers. Kidd, a transfer from McDowell, hit his solo shot in his first at bat for the 1992 season. The blast was well over the left field fence as the left fielder Dennis Horn just watched it sail out of the park. The home run tied the game at 1-1 in the bottom of the first inning.

Sheldon Clark had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning on a base hit by Rodney Maynard. With two out, shortstop Brad Tiller walked on a 3-2 pitch from Bobcat starter Todd Akers. Tiller then stole second and scored on Maynard's base hit. Maynard ended the inning by being thrown out by Hall trying to steal second base.

Successive groundouts to shortstop by Derrick Newsome and Chris Potter leading off the bottom of the second inning gave Betsy Layne two quick outs. Thomas Bowen worked Kidd full when he served up the home run pitch.

After Sheldon Clark went out in order against Akers in the second inning, it was the gopher ball that haunted the Cardinals in the bottom of the inning. Barry Hall hit a drive deep over the left center field fence to lead off the second inning for the Bobcats to give them a 2-1 lead after two full innings.

Sheldon Clark put their first two runners on base to start the third frame but left them stranded after Akers settled down. Akers plunked his counterpart, Bowen, with a pitch and then issued a walk to the number nine hitter Dennis Horn. Akers fanned lead-off hitter Jesse Watts for the first out and Hall nailed Bowen trying to steal third for the second put out. Shawn Jennings ended the inning by flying out to centerfielder Barry Collins.

Betsy Layne struck for three runs in the bottom of the third for a 5-3 lead as eight batters paraded to the plate. Derrick Newsome started the inning by popping out to third baseman Mike Cooper. Potter drew the one out walk and Kidd fanned for the second out. With two out, Chuck Laferty singled past the shortstop and Hall walked, loading the bases with Bobcats. Barry Clark hit a roller down the third base line that was thrown away at first and all three runners scored on the miscue. Shawn Newsome singled but was forced at second for the third out.

Sheldon Clark put two runners on in the top of the fourth inning but failed to move them around as Clark came in to relieve Akers on the mound. Betsy Layne collected two base hits — Newsome and Potter — leading off the inning but both runners were left stranded as Kidd fanned for the second time and Laferty's drive to centerfield was brought in by Jason Maynard.

Betsy Layne picked an extra run in the bottom of the fifth inning when Pinson came on to pitch for Sheldon Clark. Hall drilled a triple to right field and came home to score on a long drive to left field off the bat of Barry Clark.

Laferty came on to pitch the sixth inning for Betsy Layne as coach Junior Newsome used three pitchers in the opening game. Laferty had trouble finding the plate in the early going and issued back-to-back walks to Jessie Watts and Shawn Jennings. A wild pitch moved both runners and Watts scored on a Tillers' ground ball to second base. In an attempted pick-off play at third base by Hall, the ball sailed past third baseman Shannon Newsome allowing Jennings to score. Laferty got Robbie Fletcher to bounce to short, ending the threat.

Akers (1-0) picked up the win working the first three innings. Akers threw 48 pitches with three strikeouts while walking but two Cardinal batters. He gave up only one run on just one base hit.

Clark hurled two inning throwing 28 pitches, striking out one and walking one. He allowed no runs on one hit.

Laferty worked the sixth and seventh innings, giving up two runs on no hits while walking four.

Bowen suffered the setback working the first four innings for Sheldon Clark. Bowen allowed five runs on four hits and issued one walk while fanning five. He gave up two home-run balls.

Pinson in relief allowed one run on two hits and walked none while striking out one.

Hall was two-for-two in the game. Derrick Newsome had a two-hit outing for the Bobcats.

Sheldon Clark committed two errors in the game while Betsy Layne also had two. The Cardinals left five men stranded on base and Betsy Layne also left five men on base.

Betsy Layne (1-0) will travel to Mullins (cut through at Pikeville) tomorrow (Thursday) for a meeting against the Tigers. The game is a scheduled doubleheader and game time is 1 p.m. M.C. Napier will visit the Bobcats this Saturday in a noon game at the Allen Park.

Softball organizational meeting scheduled for Sunday, April 12

The Archer Park softball league will conduct an organizational meeting this Sunday at 4 p.m. at Archer Park for the upcoming men and women's softball league, according to director Kenny Conley.

All teams interested in playing in the upcoming season are urged to be in attendance.

Pacemaker sets pace for Halbert in attending state tournament

It would take more than having a pacemaker inserted to stop former Martin Purple Flash coach Denzil "Hoss" Halbert from attending the Kentucky State Tournament in March.

Halbert, who was suffering from some heart blockage, had a pacemaker installed on March 23 but still made the boys' state tournament.

"I had too slow of a heart beat," said Halbert of his condition. "So I had to have a pacemaker inserted and now I feel fine. I had the operation done at 7:30 Monday and left Good Samaritan Hospital Wednesday at 10 a.m. and I said let's go to Louisville (site of the tournament)."

"They said 'what if you die going there' and I told them that I might as well die doing what I love doing," said Halbert.

Halbert made the trip to the state tournament with his two grandsons, Shawn and Mark Howard.

"This year's state tournament was the worst I have ever seen," said the popular former Purple Flash coach. "Bobby Keith did the worse coaching job against Lexington Catholic that I have ever saw. When two small schools come in and win in the state tournament, there's something wrong."

Halbert said that he bypassed the 15th Regional basketball tournament final four because "I didn't want to watch all Pike County schools play."

"We have become the doormat for the rest of the region," he said of the lack of good teams in the 15th Region. "Players just don't seem to be interested in practicing and playing like they used to. Why, we had players who would stay after school to practice and walk home after practice late at night. They did it everyday.

Nowadays, if they don't have a Jaguar to drive to practice, they won't stay."

Halbert said that he liked Shawn Hoskins who played for Clay County this year. "He is a good ball player," said the coach. "He signed with South Carolina."

Halbert believes that coach Rick Pitino made the wrong decision against Duke in the East Regional finals.

"He should have put (Andre) Riddick in the face of Grant Hill (who in bounded the ball) and had (John) Pelphrey or (Deron) Feldhaus fronting (Christian) Lattener," commented Halbert. "Had someone been guarding the inbounds pass, it would have had to be a shorter pass and taken more time off the clock. But they had a great year."

Also at 3 p.m., the league will hold their try outs. All players wishing to play in the HAP Little League must sign up on this date.

3-run homer gives Lady Blackcats opening day win

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats opened their 1992 girls' softball season on a successful note Monday evening when they visited the Lady Panthers of Pikeville. Prestonsburg came away with a 12-9 come-from-behind win over the host team for their first win.

It was an uphill climb for coach Bridget Clay's ballclub, but they scored four runs in the top of the seventh inning and held off the Lady Panthers in the bottom of the seventh for the win.

The big blow for the Lady Blackcats was Amy Reed's three-run home run in the top of the seventh that gave Prestonsburg the victory. Trailing 9-8 entering the top of the seventh, Slope Onkst collected a base hit leading off the inning but was forced out at second on Jamie Ratcliff's ground ball. Pinch hitter Tonya Hale singled and Jamie Clay then hit a double that allowed Ratcliff to score the tying run and to knot the game at 9-9. With Hale and Clay on base, Reed hit the three-run homer, circling the bases to give Prestonsburg a 12-9 lead that held up through the bottom of the inning.

"They had taken the lead early on us," explained Coach Clay, "until Missy (Bailey) settled down on the mound."

Bailey was the winning pitcher for Prestonsburg when she came on in relief of Hale who started the game. "Kerrie Merion played a good defensive game for us," said Clay. "She had that sacrifice fly that helped us out."

Pikeville (0-1) had taken the early lead after Prestonsburg failed to score in the top of the first inning. The Lady Panthers scored five times for a 5-0 lead. Prestonsburg came roaring back in the second and gained the lead with seven runs crossing the plate. Pikeville reclaimed the lead with three in the bottom of the second and added an insurance run in the bottom of the fourth to lead 9-7.

Prestonsburg (1-0) scored to make it a 9-8 game on a base hit by Carolyn Reffit that scored Clay who had tripled in the inning.

Reed went two-for-three in the game and Clay finished with three base hits, two doubles and a triple.

Bevins returns to spark Floyd Co. past Southeast stars

Never take any team lightly in basketball. Don't put the score on the scoreboard by the way a team warms up. Such could have been the case when the Floyd County All-Stars faced an undersized Southeast Lexington squad in the Kentucky Junior Pro state tournament at Bowling Green last Saturday.

Floyd County was playing their third game of the day when facing Southeast Lexington. But it didn't take long for Floyd to find out that you can't take the smaller teams lightly.

In fact, Floyd County had to press their injured center, Jason Bevins, into action to help pull this one off. Bevins had been out since injuring his ankle in the championship game of the Eastern Regionals two weeks ago in Richmond. Bevins played briefly in his team's first state tournament game on Friday night. But due to swelling in the ankle, Bevins was forced to sit out the other games.

Wrapping the ankle tightly for support, Bevins entered the game in the third period and responded with 11 points in the period to spark a Floyd County rally that netted them a 65-54 win over Southeast Lexington. Bevins could be seen favoring the injured ankle, but at the same time giving all that he could. He hit a couple of turn around jumpers and had two offensive rebound baskets. The big center pulled down four rebounds while in the game. He did not play in the fourth period.

Kevin Robinson led the Floyd County All-Stars with 12 points to go with Bevins' 11. Cory Patton tallied 10 points.

Floyd held a slim two point, 31-29 lead after the first half after trailing 18-13 after one quarter of play. Floyd scored the first five points in the second period to tie the game at 18-18 on a three-point play by Adam Coleman. Floyd took their first lead at 22-21 when Beau Tackett took a nice pass from Timmy Nunnemaker and hit a lay-in.

The score was tied at 23 and 27 before Floyd went on top 29-27 on Patton's basket. The lead went to four points after C.K. Dingus connected on two free throws after an intentional foul was called on Southeast. Brent Barger's basket made it 31-29 at the half.

It was in the third period that Floyd County made their move behind Bevins. Bevins scored the first four points of the third stanza to go up by eight points, 39-31. The lead went to 11 points on back-to-back baskets by Floyd's two big men — Patton and Bevins. Southeast cut the lead back to seven, 43-36, on baskets by R.J. Herald and Byron Hilton. But Bevins grabbed an offensive rebound for a basket as Floyd County moved out to a 50-40 third quarter lead.

Poor ball movement on the part of the Floyd County team, plus their inability to handle the full court pressure of Southeast Lexington, created some problems for the local team. Three straight turnovers by Floyd resulted in an early 6-2 lead for Southeast. James Jarrell, who scored the first four points for Floyd County, hit a short jumper with 4:41 remaining to make it 6-4. Six unanswered points by the Lexington team gave them a 12-4 lead as the turnovers continued to mount for Floyd County. It was a game where even unadvised shots for Lexington were going in. Southeast led 18-13 after the first quarter.

Thomas Jenkins scored eight points for the winners with Tackett finishing with seven. C.K. Dingus added six points.

Scored on break away!

Halbert

Halbert believes Cincinnati Red fans are getting too excited about this year's Reds team. "Now you fellows are getting too carried away with the Reds," he said. "Wait until the grapefruit juice runs out of them (reference to the hot weather when the Reds pitching staff squanders). However, they did make some good acquisitions over the winter months."

Halbert, a die hard St. Louis Cardinal fan, said that he has already gotten his tickets to travel to Riverfront Stadium to take in a four game series between the Cardinals and Reds.

"I usually make two or three trips to Cincinnati a year but his year we are just going once and take in a four game series," he stated.

Halbert says that he is feeling fine and he has been assured that he has the finest pacemaker built by NASA researchers.

"I told them that should qualify me to be an astronaut," Halbert said jokingly. "The doctor told me it took more qualifications than that."

Halbert was amazed to learn that the pacemaker could be tested over the phone.

"You place a magnet over the heart and turn it on and place the phone mouthpiece to it and they can test it that way," he explained. "It certainly saves time running to Lexington for tests. They usually call when they want to monitor it."

Coach Halbert, and he will always be "coach" to thousands of admirers around the area, is certainly feeling better and ready to root the Cardinals on to a pennant. The man has touched the lives of many students and athletes, not just at Martin High School but other places as well.

Floyd Co. overcomes slow start to post 70-50 win over Newport

It was a cold, flat Floyd County All-Star team that took to the floor against the Newport All-Stars in the Kentucky Junior Pro Varsity State basketball tournament at Bowling Green Saturday afternoon.

Actually, both teams struggled in the early going with Newport taking the early lead.

However, it didn't take long after the first basket for Floyd County to warm up and post an easy 70-50 win over Newport and advance on in the tournament.

Thomas Jenkins tossed in 17 points to lead the scoring parade for Floyd. Kevin Robinson added 14 and Adam Coleman scored 10. C.K. Dingus, off the bench, netted eight points.

The game was much closer than the final score would indicate. In fact, the lead was only four points, 54-50, for Floyd until they scored the last 16 points of the game to win by 20.

Coleman and Dingus picked up a sluggish Floyd County offense in the first half—Coleman in the first period and Dingus in the second. After his team fell behind 2-0 in the early going, Coleman scored five unanswered points and Tim Nunnemaker added two to send Floyd out in front 7-2. Newport came back to close the margin to one, 7-6, and tied the game at 8-8. But Coleman scored the last four points in the first period for a 12-8 Floyd County lead.

In the second period, Dingus came off the bench and hit two long jumpers to give Floyd County a 17-12 lead. Jenkins got in on the scoring parade in the second period also tossing in seven points. Dingus had six points in the quarter.

Technical fouls highlighted the Newport All-Stars play as they were whistled for one in the second period and again in the third. The technicals were called because the players were complaining. Floyd led at the half 27-21.

Newport came back at the onset of the third period and pulled to within two points, 27-25, on baskets by Nick Skidmore and Adam Goodling. The margin stayed at three until back-to-back baskets by Kevin Robinson and Jenkins gave Floyd County a 36-29 lead. Josh Miller's field goal for Newport made it 36-31 before Floyd went on a 7-0 run and raced to a 43-31 lead. Robinson had a three point play in the run. Floyd County led 43-34 after three quarters.

An 8-3 spurt by Newport pulled them to within four points, 54-50, of Floyd County until they went completely cold from the floor.

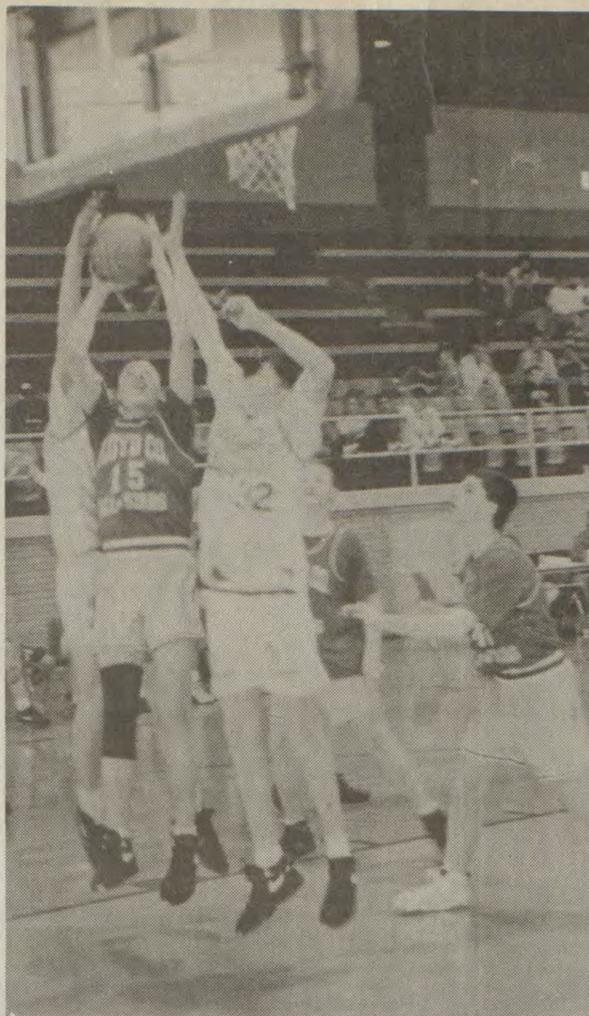

Mike Stephens had six points for Floyd County with Terrance Mullins tossing in four. Beau Tackett and Tim Nunnemaker each scored three points. Robbie Merion and Cory Patton finished with two each and James Jarrell had one point.

Miller led Newport with 11 points and Matt Longland added 10.

Boy and girl shootout winners are announced

Justin Dickens of Morganfield Elementary and Alice Cox of Tates Creek Elementary are the top fund raisers in the Twelfth Annual Rick Pitino Wildcat Basketball Shootout for Easter Seals. Both Justin Dickens and Alice Cox and their families will join Easter Seal officials at Bravo Pitino's and sit behind the U of K player's bench during the March 1 home season game.

Justin Dickens, an 11-year-old fifth grader, collected $835 for Easter Seals. He has been the high dollar student at Morganfield Elementary School for the past five years and was the grand prize winner in last year's Shootout. Morganfield Elementary has participated in 11 Shootouts raising $29,259.56 and $2,559.45 in the 1991-1992 Shootout. His father, Mike Dickens, is principal at Union County Middle School and his mother, Tana Dickens, teaches at Union County High School.

Alice Cox, a 13-year-old seventh grader, raised $1,000 during the Shootout at Tates Creek. Alice participated in last year's Shootout, but tripled her collections this year. Her collection total was almost the entire school collection. She is an honor roll student who is also a member of the girl's basketball team. Tates Creek Elementary School has participated in two Shootouts raising $2,241.28 and in 1991-1992 raised $1,266.32. Her parents are Kenneth and Nancy Cox.

St. Lawrence Elementary School in Louisville was the top fund raising school statewide. St. Lawrence raised $10,227 in this year's Shootout, and has collected $41,974.06 total in five Shootouts.

Students like Justin Dickens and Alice Cox have raised over one million dollars in eleven Shootouts. Of those funds, 99 percent stayed in Kentucky, and 83 percent was spent on direct hands-on services to thousands of children and adults with disabilities. Last year over 24,000 Kentuckians received Easter Seal services.

In overtime, Hopkinsville South eliminates Prestonsburg, 67-60

The Prestonsburg Junior Pro junior varsity basketball team was eliminated from the Kentucky Junior Pro State basketball tournament by Hopkinsville South in the third round of the tournament at Bowling Green over the past weekend.

It took an overtime before South could post the 67-60 win over a very good Prestonsburg squad. In fact, Hopkinsville scored the last nine points in the extra period in posting the victory. Prestonsburg controlled the opening tip-off to start the overtime period and with 1:59 remaining in the three-minute extra period, Neil Hamilton hit a shot under the basket for a 60-58 Prestonsburg lead. James Bryant, the smallest player on the floor, hit a shot from behind the three-point circle to tie the game at 60-60. Prestonsburg missed on their next possession and Shawn Ousley was whistled for a foul for coming over the back of Joey Rodgers. Rodgers hit the front end of a one-and-one attempt to make it a one-point game, 61-60.

Prestonsburg suffered a big blow when guard Wesley Samons was called for his fifth personal foul on a "cheap call" sending Rodgers back to the free throw line. Rodgers drilled both attempts and Hopkinsville led by three, 63-60. Prestonsburg failed to take care of the basketball and turned it over where Bryant scored on a lay-up to seal the win for Hopkinsville. Quinton Tyler finished off the scoring with a lay-up.

Prestonsburg looked to have things under control in the fourth period of regulation play. With the score tied at 56-56, Rodgers fouled Samons with just 13 seconds left in the game. Samons, who thrills the crowd with his around-the-back-under-the-leg ritual that he goes through before each free throw, hit both free throws to give Prestonsburg a 58-56 advantage. With time running out for Hopkinsville, Prestonsburg forgot to check Bryant behind the three-point circle and he buried a jumper with three seconds left to tie the game and send it into overtime.

Prestonsburg trailed 54-51 at the 2:21 mark of the fourth period because of some turnovers, but rallied back to take the lead at 58-56. Billy Mitchell scored on a break for Prestonsburg and John Ortega followed with a basket to give Prestonsburg the lead at 55-54 with 1:58 remaining. Ortega was fouled with 57 seconds remaining in the final period and he hit one-of-two shots to give Prestonsburg a two point, 56-54 lead. Rodgers tied the game on a jumper with 38 seconds showing.

Prestonsburg held a 12-10 first quarter lead on Shawn Ousley's basket and a three point play from Mitchell. The five straight points erased a 10-7 Hopkinsville lead. Two free throws by Andy Jarvis put Prestonsburg on top 16-12 with 3:55 remaining in the second quarter. But, Hopkinsville outscored Prestonsburg 6-2 to take a 22-18 lead. Two free throws by Tyler and a basket by Michael Poindexter gave Hopkinsville South a 28-22 lead. Bryan Fitzpatrick completed a three-point play to narrow the lead to three before Tyler scored just before the half ended to give Hopkinsville a 30-25 halftime lead.

Hopkinsville raced to a 36-31 lead on a basket by Jack Oldham but Prestonsburg scored the next five points on a basket by Hamilton and a three-point play from Samons to tie the game 36-36. South led 46-44 after three quarters.

Samons had 11 points to lead Prestonsburg. Mitchell and Hamilton added eight each with Ousley finishing with six points. Ortega tallied five and Stephens scored four. Fitzpatrick scored three points for Prestonsburg with two points going to Campbell and Conley.

Hopkinsville South was led by James Bryant with 18 points. Rodgers tossed in 17 and Oldham finished with 12.

Prestonsburg's All-Star team finished with an overall 29-5 record.

Martin drops 59-29 game to Madisonville in state meet

That lonesome feeling!

Martin's Todd Sammons brought the ball up the court against Madisonville in state tournament action at Bowling Green last Friday night. Sammons scored four points in his team's 59-29 loss to Madisonville. (photo by Ed Taylor)

While baseball is very much in the air, basketball continues to be the hot topic of the sports scene. Locally, the Martin junior varsity Junior Pro basketball team traveled to Bowling Green to take part in the Kentucky Junior Pro State basketball tournament this past weekend.

Martin met with some stiff competition when they ran into a "buzz saw" in Madisonville. Madisonville posted a solid 59-29 win over Martin, dropping the Floyd County team into the loser's bracket of the double elimination tournament.

Madisonville busted the game open in the second quarter when they outscored Martin 17-6 to take a 27-13 halftime lead. Rusty Smiley scored nine of his game high 18 points in the second quarter. Martin got baskets from Nick Samons, Ethan Blackburn and Jim Branham. First half turnovers hurt Martin as they failed to take care of the basketball.

Madisonville led at the end of the first quarter, 10-7, as Martin stayed close. Martin's only lead came at the 4:04 mark of the first period when Shannon Mynhier hit a free throw to give Martin a 5-4 lead. Todd Samons and Jeannie Hall had the first two baskets for Martin. The score was tied at 2-2 and again at 4-4.

Three consecutive turnovers by Martin allowed Madisonville to take a 10-5 lead before Samons hit a basket to end the quarter.

Madisonville scored the first six points of the third stanza and assumed a 20 point, 33-13 lead.

Nick Samons connected on two free throws to make it a 35-17 game but Madisonville rolled off 10 unanswered points for a commanding 45-17 game.

However, the way Martin played, and it was hard, anyone would have thought the game was closer than the 28 point spread.

Branham led Martin in scoring with eight points. Todd Samons, Jessie Hall, Nick Samons and Ethan Blackburn each scored four points.

Madisonville edges Floyd County All-Stars, 45-44, on controversial call

It wasn't a very happy group of Floyd County fans who walked (ushered) out of the Bowling Green Junior High gym Friday night.

The Floyd County All-Stars met Madisonville in the second round of the Kentucky Junior Pro Varsity State Tournament. The game started around 10:30 p.m. and it was a wild and wooly one with Madisonville edging Floyd County 45-44.

Floyd trailed 43-42 when Thomas Jenkins intercepted a Madisonville pass with 13 seconds remaining in the game. Jenkins drove to the basket and dropped the ball through the net with 10 seconds remaining to give Floyd County a 44-43 lead.

Madisonville had problems getting the ball in bounds and called for a time out from the bench with just four seconds on the clock. Floyd County assistant coach, during the time out, stepped out of the coaches' box, and asked the official if there should have been a five second call whistled on Madisonville. The official immediately, during the time out, signaled a technical foul on Jenkins for being out of the coaches' box (during the time out). It was as if a fuse had been lit under the Floyd County fans as they went to their feet in protest.

Brian Brown walked to the free throw line and sank both free throws that gave the lead, the ball and the game to Madisonville. After the technical foul, Madisonville retained possession of the ball and ran out the clock.

Floyd County struggled offensively against Madisonville and was able to stay close behind the scoring of Thomas Jenkins. Jenkins tossed in 16 points to lead Floyd in scoring.

The game was knotted at 38-38 in the fourth quarter when baskets by James Jarrell and Jenkins put Floyd County on top 42-38. A defensive breakdown by Floyd allowed Madisonville to score the next five points to lead 43-42 until Jenkins steal.

Floyd County stayed close to Madisonville in the second quarter by going to the free throw line 12 times after only scoring one field goal in the period. Floyd connected on seven of the 12 attempts with Mike Stephens scoring the only field goal in the quarter. Madisonville scored only six points in the second period as they trailed 23-20 at the half.

Madisonville scored the first six points of the game to grab an early 6-0 lead. Jenkins was a one man show in the quarter for Floyd scoring 10 of his team's first 12 points to trail 14-12 after the first stanza. Down 10-4 in the first, Jenkins scored six unanswered points to tie the game at 10-10. The score was tied at 12-all before two Madisonville free throws gave them the lead. Terrance Mullins scored the other two first quarter points.

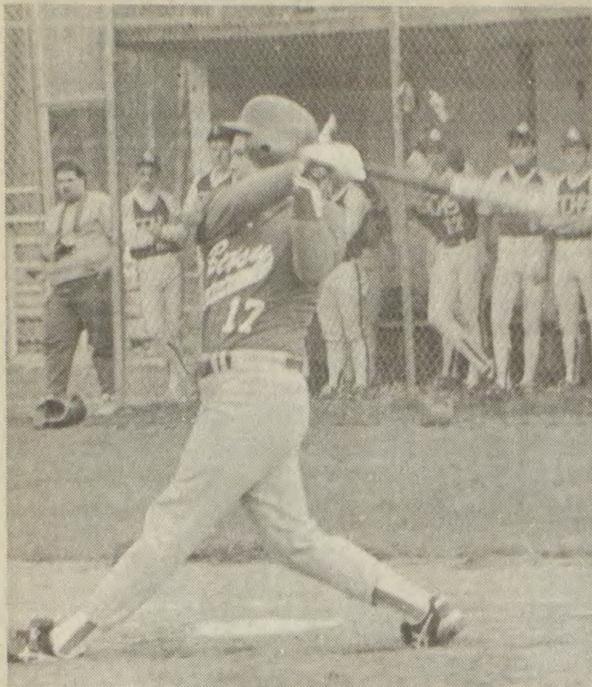

James Jarrell finished with eight points for Floyd County and Mike Stephens added five.

Brandon Osborne led Madisonville with 12 points and Russell Oates tossed in 10.

Hoptown smothers Prestonsburg 60-30, in state tournament loss

Hopkinsville North scored the first 14 points of the game and went on to post a one-sided 60-30 win over the Prestonsburg junior varsity basketball team in the second round of the Kentucky Junior Pro basketball state tournament at Bowling Green over the weekend.

Prestonsburg found the Hoptown team was very quick out of its sticky defense. The Hoptown defense caused some early turnovers for Prestonsburg and some forced shots.

Prestonsburg did not score in the game until the 2:20 mark of the first quarter when Kyle Conley scored underneath the basket. Hopkinsville raced to a 16 point lead, 21-5, after the first quarter. Shawn Ousley had a free throw in the frame and John Ortega had the only other field goal for Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg's defense showed some improvement in the second period as they held Hopkinsville to six points in the stanza. Prestonsburg down court, Ousley grabbed three offensive rebounds and finally scored with 3:46 showing and gave Prestonsburg the lead, 34-33. Prestonsburg got the ball back with 2:46 on the clock and the lead. Coach Wilburn Samons sent his team into a weave out front in an effort to run some clock. The weave resulted in a turnover and Rusty Smiley was fouled with 2:40 remaining. Smiley hit both free throws to send Madisonville out in front 35-34 before Mitchell hit the basket to give Prestonsburg the lead for good.

Madisonville led 12-10 after the first period and held a five point lead at the half, 23-18. Prestonsburg experienced some dry time in the early going of the second period. Madisonville outscored the local team, 7-2 and went on top 19-12. A 5-2 spurt by Prestonsburg cut the deficit to three 21-18 before Robertson scored two charity tosses for Madisonville before the half ended.

Ousley, Hamilton and Ortega each scored four points for Prestonsburg. Andy Jarvis, Joe Campbell and John Stephens had two points in the game.

Nicholson led Madisonville with 12 points. Smiley tossed in 10.

Move over!

Prestonsburg's John Stephens (3) put up a shot between two Madisonville players in the Junior Pro junior varsity state tournament at Diddle Arena in Bowling Green. Prestonsburg posted a 38-35 win over Madisonville. (photo by Ed Taylor)

The Prestonsburg junior varsity Junior Pro basketball team is not accustomed to scoring in low numbers. After averaging over 60 points per game in the Eastern Regionals at Richmond, the local state tournament team found the points hard to come by. While the defense was strong the offense struggled.

Also, taking care of the basketball seemed a problem for Prestonsburg as they were guilty of some uncharacteristic turnovers. However, despite being a low scoring affair, Prestonsburg posted a 38-35 come-from-behind win over Madisonville in the first round of the Kentucky Junior Pro State basketball tournament at Bowling Green Friday night — in a game that did not start until after 10 p.m.

Billy Mitchell tossed in 10 points to lead Prestonsburg in scoring. Teammate Wes Samons added six points to lead a balanced scoring attack.

Prestonsburg trailed 35-34 with just over two minutes remaining in the game. Mitchell hit a jumper to give Prestonsburg a 36-35 lead with 2:36 left. Madisonville turned the ball over against Prestonsburg's defense with 1:32 showing on the clock and Neil Hamilton took a super pass from Samons for a lay-in to give Prestonsburg a three-point edge, 38-35, with 39 seconds remaining in the contest.

Madisonville seemed to be more confused against the Prestonsburg defense and were guilty of two costly turnovers in the closing seconds.

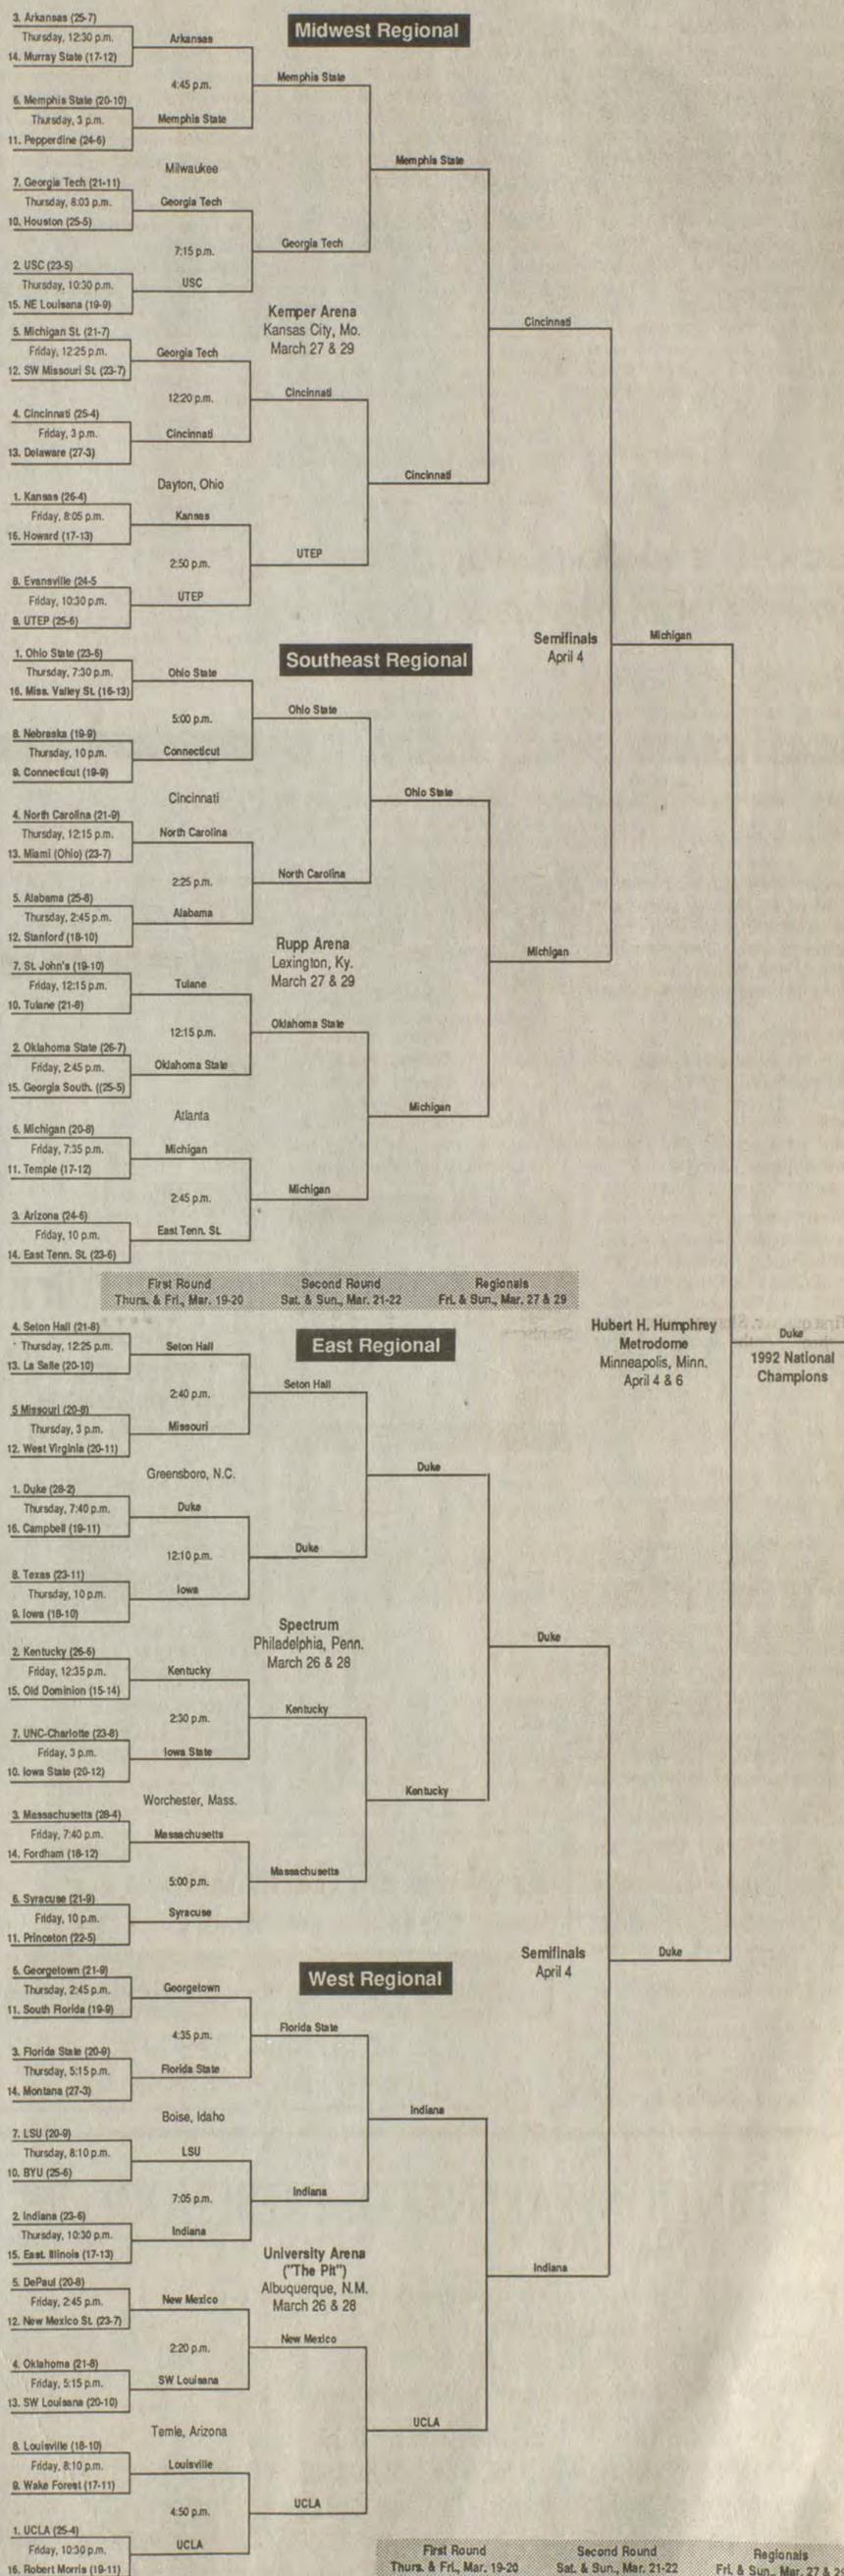

Prestonsburg found themselves in trouble in the third period when they fell behind by nine points, 29-20 on a three point play by Dillian Leasure with 4:24 left in the half. Following a time out, Prestonsburg turned up the heat on defense which resulted in Prestonsburg getting back into the ball game. John Ortega scored on a lay-up and Andy Jarvis received an excellent pass from Samons for a basket to make it 29-24.

Madisonville turned the ball over on their next five possessions and Samons scored twice to make it a one point, 29-28 game. Within 35 seconds on the clock, Mitchell fouled Heith Robertson as he went to the basket. The basket was good but Robertson missed the free throw as the quarter ended with Madisonville clinging to a 31-28 lead.

Mitchell took a pass from Ortega for an easy lay-up to narrow the margin to one point, 31-30 to start the fourth quarter. In an unusual move, Madisonville spread the court as if to hold the ball for the remainder of the game. Mike Nicholson, however, found an opening in the Prestonsburg defense and hit a lay-up to lead 33-30. Big man in the middle, Shawn Ousley, connected on two free throws with 4:52 to go and it was a one point game again, 33-32. On the next trip

Turnovers plague Floyd All-Stars in loss to Lexington

Turnover, turnovers and more turnovers. Add that to some very poor free throw shooting and it all added up to a loss to the Floyd County Varsity All-Stars in the semifinals of the Kentucky Junior Pro State basketball tournament at Bowling Green Saturday (acutally Sunday morning) evening. The game lasted into the wee hours of Sunday morning with the completion coming at 1:32 a.m.

Floyd County was required to play back-to-back games in the way the tournament was set up. After defeating Southeast Lexington 2 in the previous game, Floyd turned around and played a rested Southeast Lexington 1 team with the winner earning a game in the finals of the state tournament and being assured of a trip to Knoxville, Tennessee for the nationals later in April.

However, Floyd County could not take care of the basketball, as predicted. Lexington came out pressing and creating some problems for the local all-star team. Floyd County had 14 first half turnovers of which Lexington converted seven into points.

Turnovers were not the only problem Floyd County had. Floyd missed 17 free throws — several one-and-one situations — that could have given the win.

Trailing by 11 points, 28-17 entering the third period, things seemed to pick up some for the county all-stars. A 5-0 run with 1:57 left in the third period — all five points came from Thomas Jenkins — closed the margin to four points, 31-27. Down five points, Floyd outscored Lexington 6-2 and trailed by only one point, 35-34 at the end of the third period.

Floyd stayed within one point of the Lexington team on two free throws by Cory Patton with 4:06 left in the game. Back-to-back baskets by Drew Parks and Adam O'Nan gave the Lexington team a 45-40 lead following a costly Floyd County turnover. Patton scored for Floyd to cut the deficit back to three, 45-42, and Patton had a chance to cut deeper into the margin but missed two free throws in the process. David Judy drilled two free throws and Park added one to close out the scoring and Floyd County home.

While they did cut down on their turnovers greatly in the second half, Floyd County still managed to turn the ball over 18 times.

In the first quarter, Floyd turned the ball over on their first five possessions allowing Lexington — who wasn't playing all that great — a chance to roll out to a 6-0 lead. It was 12-3 after the eighth turnover for Floyd in the period.

A basket by Thomas Jenkins and two free throws by Terrance Mullins cut the lead to five, 12-7 at the first stop.

Three consecutive turnovers to start the second quarter did nothing to enhance the chances of a come back for Floyd County as they fell behind 18-7 with 5:28 left in the half.

Tackett's 14 points lead Floyd County past Madison County

Beau Tackett scored 14 points to lead the Floyd County All-Stars to a deceiving 76-65 win over Madison County in the Kentucky Junior Pro state basketball tournament at Bowling Green Saturday afternoon. The game was deceiving in that the lead was much more than the final scored showed. Floyd County built a 29 point lead with a spurt in the third period to go on top 60-31 after three quarters.

Tackett led the way but it came from the charity stripe where he attempted 16 free throws, hitting 12. Kevin Robinson finished with nine points and Terrance Mullins added eight.

Floyd County led 17-11 after one quarter behind the scoring of Merion who had a field day at the free throw line himself. Merion had eight attempts and hit four in the quarter. Kevin Robinson had a three-point play in scoring five points.

Leading by 13 points in the third,

Floyd County went on a 14-0 run to take their biggest lead at 60-31. Madison County kept chipping away at the lead and pulled to within 12 points, 71-59, late in the fourth quarter. Down 74-59, Madison County ran off six unanswered points when Jerod Rigney hit two baskets and connected on two free throws to narrow the margin to nine points. But that was as close as Madison County could get in losing by 11 points.

Floyd County led by 11 at the half, 36-25, after holding a 17-11 first quarter lead.

Tim Nunnemaker and James Jarrell added seven points each in the Floyd County win. Merion tossed in six points and Coleman netted five. C.K. Dingus, Thomas Jenkins and Mike Stephens had four each.

Madison County was led by Rigney with 15 points. Larry Estill had 13 and Reagan Taylor scored 11.

ANNUAL WILDLIFE OFFICERS BENEFIT HUNT SCHEDULED MAY 9

The annual Wildlife Enforcement Officers Benefit Hunt, sponsored by the Side By Side Hunting Retrievers Club will be held Saturday, May 9. This national event, the largest of its kind, will take place at the Jim Beam Distillery near Lebanon Junction, Kentucky.

This special field trial, including an auction and banquet, raises proceeds to support conservation officers and their families should an officer be killed or permanently disabled in the line of duty. To date, monies from this fund have been dispersed to approximately a dozen officers or their families throughout the United States.

The event is open to any retriever owner who wants to enter their dog in competition, and show their support and appreciation for the important service conservation officers provide in protecting wildlife-related recreational activities. Entry fees range from $30 to $45 and registration is open through May 1.

The 1992 Wildlife Officers Benefit Hunt is the sixth such event sponsored by the Side By Side Hunting Retrievers Club which operates out of the Louisville area.

Anyone interested in entering the benefit hunt, or donating auction and raffle items to support the wildlife officers fund, should contact Chuck Williams at (502) 633-5938. All contributions are greatly appreciated.

Why? Because they lost the opener!

UK SENIORS BASKETBALL GAME MOVED TO PAINTSVILLE

The UK seniors basketball game that was supposed to be coming to Prestonsburg has been detoured and sent to Paintsville instead. Oh, well!

Until Friday, have a good week everyone and good sports. Remember, be good sports.

HUNTING WITHOUT PERMISSION

Since the spring turkey hunting season doesn't get underway until mid April, perhaps this is a good time to reflect on landowner rights and hunting privileges.

I'd like to share a couple of stories dealing with landowners encountering hunters on their land without permission. The stories are true. One took place right here in Kentucky and the other happened in another state. You get to decide which one happened here.

No. 1: Returning to their truck after a few hours pursuing wild game on a winter day, a couple of hunters came face-to-face with the person they hadn't bothered to contact before hunting. Truck keys dangling from one hand and determination steadily gleaming from unwavering eyes, the landowner ordered the pair to strip and start walking. (By strip,

I mean everything—and they did.)

Glancing out her farmhouse window, a woman noticed two very pink individuals moving toward her house. She grabbed a couple of bathrobes and gingerly handed them around the door to the travelers. Some time later she found the returned clothing crumpled in a heap near the front door. Upon completing their adventure, the unethical hunters found nothing missing from their truck except the keys. Hopefully, the two learned a valuable lesson and won't soon forget the chilly consequences of their unthinking ways.

No. 2: Hearing shots during deer season and remembering that no one had recently asked permission to hunt on his farm, the owner set out to find out what was going on. Following a newly made swath cut through a field, he soon discovered an unfamiliar truck parked not very far from, and parallel to, a bluff overlooking a stream on the farm.

Soon owner and trespasser came face to face with the intruder claiming to be the property owner and demanding the rightful owner leave immediately. Refusal brought shots fired into the ground at the real landowner's feet and he angrily left the scene.

Thinking his bluff a success, the unethical hunter continued his activities for a pretty good while before returning to the spot where his vehicle was parked. The truck, however, was nowhere to be seen.

The landowner, you see, owned some heavy equipment, and after his confrontation with the trespasser, he went back to the house to take action (perhaps alerting the sheriff while there). The landowner proceeded to push the truck over the edge of the bluff.

Irate, the truck owner called the sheriff, threatening to take legal action against the landowner. The sheriff responded, "Sir, there are several charges that could be brought against you. I suggest you hire a wrecker to get your truck out of the creek. but first—ask the landowner. Your truck is still on his property."

It's Up To You - Ask and Do Asking first before entering private property (for any reason) is your responsibility. And remember, too, that landowners are under no obligation to grant permission for you to hunt (or fish) on their land.

Realizing that the future enjoyment of their pursuits depends, in large part, on landowner attitudes, ethical sportsmen do more than ask first. They take time to build good landowner relations with communication skills and kind actions.

Mutual respect goes a long way toward achieving any end, especially when it comes to just who it is that has the right to grant or deny a privilege.

STAMP COLLECTORS TAKE NOTE

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) has announced that all back issues of the Kentucky trout and waterfowl license stamps will be destroyed, and no longer available for sale after February 28, 1993.

Stamp collectors requested the KDFWR to destroy the surplus of older trout and waterfowl stamp issues in order to increase the value of collections. Collectors who desire to complete their set of these stamps, or those who want to begin a collection, should contact Jeff Kays, KDFWR License Division, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (502) 5644224, ext. 437, for more information.

Remaining back issue stamps will be sold at face value, as supplies permit, through the end of February 1993.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS

by Beth Jones

"PICTURE THIS"

One of the few times I enjoy waiting is when I am awaiting the arrival of pictures I've sent to be developed. I anticipate what each photo will look like. The suspense is almost more than I can stand.

I'm sure you've figured out that photography is one of my favorite hobbies. Capturing the image of someone I admire or care for is very fulfilling. I also enjoy photographing landscapes and animals. Basically, I'll take a picture of anything.

I am very paranoid when it comes to photography. I am so worried that I'll stick my finger in the way or will jerk when I snap the picture, I take two or three shots of everything. This practice wastes a lot of film, but it gives me a little peace of mind.

The best photographs I've ever taken (in my opinion) are of professional wrestlers and musicians. The two that stick out in my mind are (1) Ric Flair in a purple and white sequined robe (you can imagine how awe-inspiring it was) and (2) Lee Greenwood at an outdoor concert.

Once I was really, really embarrassed while taking a picture. My family and I were sitting up in the balcony at the Grand Ole Opry. Porter Wagoner was on stage and Mom insisted I take a picture of him. I ran down two flights of stairs and carefully made my way up to the stage. I was crouched down so I wouldn't block anyone's view. I then snapped the photo and moved back about five feet. At this point, Porter finished singing and looked right at me. He said, "Darlin', I hope that picture you just took turns out pretty as me. But I'm gonna stand right here and pose for you in case that last one doesn't come out right."

I wanted to sink right through the floor. The entire audience was looking at me and I suspect they were laughing. And to beat it all, Porter Wagoner was posing patiently just for me. I probably turned four shades of red; I wanted to run out of the building, but instead I just stood up, took the picture, and went back up to my seat. Incidentally, both photographs turned out pretty good.

Although I enjoy taking pictures of anyone or anything, my favorite photographic experience was when I got to sit on the stage and photograph Travis Tritt when he was in concert in Paintsville. All the photos were close-ups; they turned out just the way I had hoped. I only wish I had a better camera, so the quality would have been better.

Hey, photography could be my calling in life. NOT. I just can't imagine people paying money for a photograph I've taken. I would like to take a class in black-and-white when I go to U.K. I'm sure I'll love it and besides, it won't hurt my style.

'Til next week, "Say cheese!"

Small World — by Aileen Hall

A visit planned
Ben Hall is a transplanted Floyd Countian now living in Somerset. He has grown up at Banner on Prater Creek, the son of K. F. and Maggie Webb Hall.

The parents have been deceased for several years, but they had enjoyed the warm regard of many neighbors, friends and relatives and were affectionately called Aunt Mag and Uncle Kenas.

There were two other children—Gretchen, who married Bennie Laferty and resides in Allen, and Grace, Mrs. John Floyd, who is a widow living in Grayson.

Ben had married Lottie Patton of Hueysville. They lived at Wayland for many years where he was employed by Fraley-Dearing Motors and was active in the Masonic Lodge.

Ben and Lottie had a daughter, Charline, who is married to Owen H. Clark and lives in Indiana. There are two grandchildren, Meg and "Little Ben"—his grandfather's namesake. The younger Ben is now Doctor Clark who has a busy medical practice in Indianapolis.

I became reacquainted with the Ben Hall family recently after he wrote to me from Somerset to say he looked forward to each issue of people who were a part of his life.

His letter had been prompted by the issue dated January 29, and he commented, "What a good story about your Aunt Lillie."

He also mentioned, "I knew all of your mother's family, and if the Lord lets me live, the next time I come to Floyd County I'm coming to see you." I'll be looking forward to the visit.

Infosources

I called on two sources of information about Ben Hall for we mostly remembered each other's families. I knew I could count on Kenneth Hall who lives in Stanville and, sure enough, he told me several things about Ben—where he had lived and worked, and who he was related to.

Then I called Gretchen, Ben's sister who lives in Allen. She told me the children's names and where they live, and says she and her brother talk by telephone every Sunday.

When I told her he said he would come to see me, she said, "And I'll come with him." I'd say we can also count on Kenneth, and we may wind up killing the old red rooster.

Complications

While roaming up and down the aisle of some supermarket, we often run into friends and have brief little visits.

Such was the case a few days ago when I bumped carts with someone I hadn't seen for a while. "I haven't seen you in forever," I said. "How are you doing now?"

"Well, I'm finally getting better," he told me.

"I'm so sorry," I replied. "I didn't know you'd been sick."

"Oh, my yes," he answered. "I've had double pneumonia—in both lungs."

Kim's Korner

Who's up for election, Bill or Hillary?

This column will probably get me more calls than Carter has liver pills. But, hey I love to talk on the phone. I just finished reading Merlene Davis' column in the Herald-Leader and I do love her column, not to mention that I agree with her 100 percent of the time.

If you read it, or have watched any TV lately you're aware of the coverage Hillary Clinton is getting. Which makes me wonder if dear old Bill is elected which one of the two would actually be in command.

I read where Hillary had made the comment she wasn't a "Tammy Wynette" kind of woman.

Ah, come on Hillary. It looks like you're standin' by your man to me. Maybe she meant she just doesn't like country and its twang.

We know she doesn't like the average American housewife routine, for she chose to fulfill a commitment to a profession.

And I applaud her. But don't look down on those who do choose to be a housewife, Hillary.

Politics is the profession where MAN or WOMAN must make everyone happy when running for office.

So, let's not forget the little people, huh, Hillary.

I know at least one person is going to accuse me of writing with a Republican attitude and say this is why I've made such remarks. But, in all honesty it is not.

Whether Barbara Bush was George's wife or not I'd love her dearly. How can one help but not?

Whether Hillary is Democrat or Republican makes no difference to me—it's attitude and the meaning of what's said that does.

For that comment I apologize now Granny, but you and I have discussed this Democrat/Republican thing before.

Hillary Clinton stands to be one heck of a role model for our young females of tomorrow. I just think maybe she could use an attitude adjustment in certain areas.

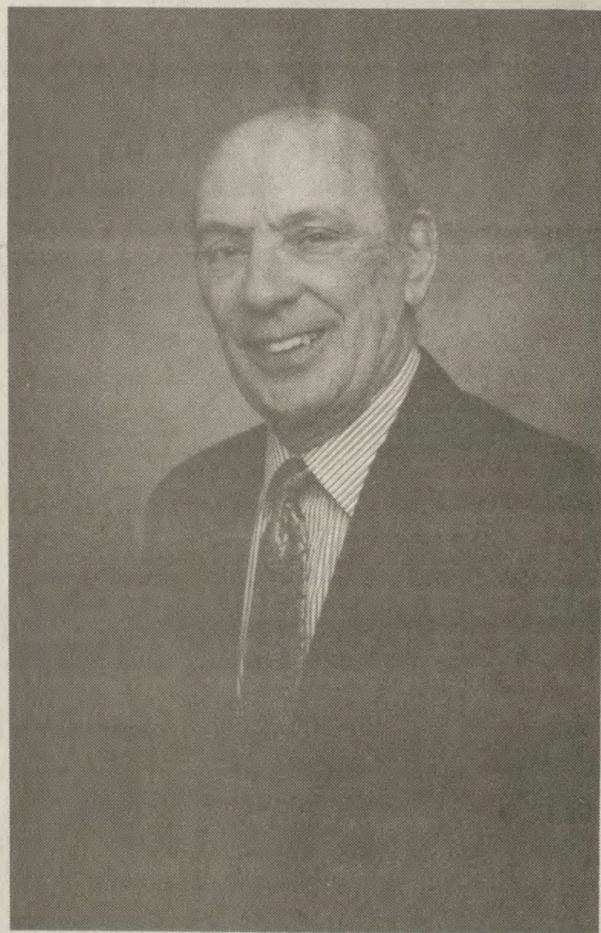

Her appearance is impeccable, her self-discipline is admirable, and her arrogance is NOT!

No way, Ted. Yes way, Bill. Till next week, hello, Benita.

Floyd County Extension agent Gene Ball to be honored Friday on his retirement

Gene Ball

Gene Ball, Floyd County Extension Agent for Agriculture and Community Development, a forty year veteran of the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service will retire in May, according to a release from the Floyd County Extension office.

He began his extension career in 1953 as assistant county agent in Pike County with a major portion of his time being devoted to 4-H Club work. He transferred to Martin County as Agricultural Agent in 1957, remaining there until 1965 when he transferred to Floyd County as County agricultural agent and as Area Community Development Specialist for five counties.

In 1970, he moved to the Big Sandy Area Extension office in Ashland as Area Community Development Specialist for ten counties. While in this position he helped develop and implement a program to use paraprofessional workers to organize rural communities, which gained national and international recognition. This program, known as the Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association expanded from 54 to 95 organized communities under his leadership.

In 1978, he was chosen by the Dean of the College of Agriculture to assume the position of area extension director for the Northeast Area and transferred in 1979 to a similar position in the Wilderness Trail (Harlan-Laurel) area. He returned to Floyd County as county extension agent in 1984.

Originally from Lawrence County, Ball attended and graduated from Blaine High School. After high school, he served in the US Navy for two years. He then returned to Eastern Kentucky and began his college work at Morehead State University for two years and subsequently transferred to the University of Kentucky from which he holds both a Bachelor and Masters Degree in Agriculture.

Ball has received widespread recognition for professional achievement. Awards include the Meritorious Service Award from the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources, a Community Development Leadership Award from Pennsylvania State University, Ashland Chamber of Commerce Award for Outstanding Service to Community Development, Meritorious Service Award and Distinguished Service Awards from National Professional Organization and a Development Service Award from the Big Sandy Area Development District.

He is married to the former Lois Cain of Salyersville. They have two daughters and three grandsons. Ball and his wife will move to Lexington in April.

Poison Oak — by Clyde Pack

WE'RE LUCKY TO HAVE 'EM

Well, my little brother Joe hit the big five-O the other day. It couldn't happen to a nicer guy. The only problem with it, though, is that since I've always been three years older than he, it won't be long until I'll have to add another candle to my cake, too.

Thinking back to those days when we were growing up, I realize that it's a thousand wonders that either of us ever survived to reach puberty, let alone adulthood.

One incident that always comes to mind regarding Joe that could have ended in Dad doing away with both of us right on the spot without feeling even the least bit guilty, came about because Dad decided to fix the roof one Saturday morning.

Because the lowest part of the roof was a good 15 feet from the ground and was very steep, he wouldn't let Joe and me on top of the house. We helped him by handing up the bucket of tar, his little box of roofing nails and his hammer.

As Dad settled into the chore of locating the hole that caused the leak, Joe and I sat down under the weeping willow in the shade in the corner of the yard where we could watch and be handy if Dad needed anything. After a few minutes, though, Joe got bored with it and wandered off.

After about an hour, Dad apparently decided that the roof was again ship-shape and began gathering up his tools. He could still see me sitting in the shade in the corner of the yard and I guess he thought Joe was there, too, because as he approached the edge of the roof, he tossed down the hammer.

At that very instant, Joe was coming back around the house and the hammer just barely missed him. He stopped, looked up, looked at me, grinned, wheeled and ran into the house. In about five seconds he came running out with a bottle of catsup.

He stopped by the porch, dumped the catsup on his head, sat the bottle down and went over and stretched out — face down — in the yard. His catsup-stained head was next to the hammer.

The roof was high, the ladder was long, and I was speechless. As Dad placed his foot on the first rung, he looked down. Thinking he'd mortally wounded his youngest son, his feet touched no more rungs. As his feet struck the ground, Joe was up and running.

Since all this had taken place in a matter of seconds, I didn't have time to do anything, except the wrong thing, which was to laugh. Dad wasn't laughing, though. He knew he'd been had and he was highly aggravated. Since Joe was long gone, Dad turned to me, no doubt thinking that I was a part of it all.

Now one thing about Bill Pack, he didn't beat his children — in public. So, he invited me — no, he ordered me — to go into the house.

All I could do was laugh harder because I really thought that I had witnessed one of the funniest scenarios I had ever seen in my life. How Joe had come up with this so quickly left me completely amazed — and in a whole bunch of trouble.

When I went inside, I met Mom in the kitchen. Through gasps of laughter, I started telling her what I'd done — or in this case, hadn't done — when Dad walked in with a willow switch and an empty catsup bottle.

"Where'd Joe go?" is all he said. I told him I didn't know, but I'd be glad to try and find him if he wanted me to.

Somehow, probably through the grace of God, aided by Mom's admonishment of Dad for not being more careful, neither of us got punished.

Memories like this, though, do serve as a reminder of just how lucky we are to still be having birthdays.

Holy Week and Easter Sunrise Services

Each year, Holy Week Services are held at one of the Prestonsburg churches—usually the First Baptist (Irene Cole Memorial), or the First United Methodist, because they are considered to be the most centrally located.

This year, these services will be conducted at the First Baptist Church here, from Monday, April 13, through Friday, April 17, at noon.

Under the direction of the Floyd County Ministerial Association, who plans the programs, their presentations and locations, in cooperation with the local churchwomen, who are responsible for the furnishing and serving of light snacks that follow these services, record crowds are usually in attendance.

Women of the church furnish the snacks each year and the food is served by members of the social committee of the host church. Hosting the event this year will be Eva Collins, chairman; and Wanda Lafferty, Myrtle Allen, Jan Wells, Maman Leslie, Marsha Carter, Minerva Cooley, Judy Cumutte, Carlette Caldwell, Carolyn Polk, Wanda Caldwell, Jewell Bays, Nell Hebrer, Glenda Blackburn and Ruth Roberts.

On Sunday morning, April 19, Easter Sunrise Services will be held at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheater, at 7 a.m.

Pastors scheduled to deliver these messages, and the churches which they represent are:

Monday, April 13—Rev. Joe Muench, St. Martha's Catholic;

Tuesday, April 14—Rev. Wayne Burch, East Point Church of God;

Wednesday, April 15—Rev. Tim Jessen, First Presbyterian;

Thursday, April 16—Rev. French Harmon, First Baptist of Allen;

Friday, April 17—Rev. Wayne Sparks, First United Methodist; and Easter Sunday, April 19—Rev. Raymond Snider, Community United Methodist.

The public is cordially invited to attend any and/or all of these services.

Welcomed home from Florida

Welcomed home from Florida during the past few days have been Mr. and Mrs. Delmas Saunders, who spent the winter months in Bonita Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Collins, and her brother, William Dingus, who arrived here on Sunday from St. Cloud.

While there, Mr. and Mrs. Collins and Mr. Dingus spent some time visiting with their aunt, Mrs. Sally Dingus Humphrey, formerly of Prestonsburg, who has been residing in St. Cloud for the past several years.

Flowers on the altar of First United Methodist

Flowers on the altar of the First United Methodist Church during services there this past morning were in honor of the marriage of Bill and Terri Frazier, and for Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier in honor of their 55th anniversary, all of which were from their family.

Celebrates 92nd birthday

Brown Sammons, of Wabash, Indiana, formerly of Weeksbury, celebrated his 92nd birthday, on April 8, with friends and family at his home in Wabash. Mr. Sammons would enjoy hearing from friends here. His birthday celebration was hosted by his daughter, Mrs. Ruby Bayless.

District 4 Rebekahs hold meeting

Local churchwomen hold brunch-meeting

Members of the local churchwomen held a special meeting and brunch at the First Presbyterian Church here, on April 1, honoring Mrs. Linda Harvey, social worker and journalist, of Lexington, who spoke to the group concerning the local food pantries.

Mrs. Kaye Hale Ross, president of the local churchwomen, presided at the meeting and presented the guest speaker.

Mrs. Harvey, told of her work with the Lexington food pantries and stories of many experiences with the groups. As a journalist, she said she often entered notations of specific needs of the poor into the bulletins of her church, and that this usually brought good results. She said she "tries to get people to touch the face of poverty."

Much valuable information was received as Mrs. Harvey; the Rev. Tim Jessen, pastor of the host church; Mrs. Sue G. Martin, coordinator of local food pantries; and the following persons, who work with food pantries in these locations led discussion of the work being done and the needs to be met in their endeavors: Doreen Martin, Drift; Becky Patton, Martin Branch; Eula Hall, Mud Creek; and Gene Hall, Wayland.

Mrs. Martin said that support from FEMA "wouldn't begin to meet all the needs of these food pantries," and the importance of meeting these needs was stressed. It was stated that "people want to know how to give." The Rev. Jessen suggested that "when something is showing progress, build on it."

Following the meeting, a delicious brunch was served by women of the host church. Present were Carolyn Stacy and Marcillous Stacy, Martin Branch; Eula Hall, Mud Creek; Sister Ida M. Deville, St. Vincent Mission, David; Gwen Hall, Catholic Social Service Bureau; Doreen A. Martin, Rev. Timothy Jessen and Otella Smiley, of the First Presbyterian; and Docia B. Woods, First Baptist (Irene Cole Memorial) Church; and the guest of honor, Linda Harvey, of Lexington.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Sue G. Martin held a short meeting with leaders of the local food pantries.

Lamplighters Meet

The Lamplighters of the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial) met in fellowship hall of the church, on Tuesday, March 31, at 4 p.m.

During the business session, members were asked to bring a list of things they would like to do, and places they would enjoy going.

A video entitled, "Christ in the Passover" was presented. The people in the story were members of a Jewish family eating a Passover supper; a memorial showed God's allowing people to leave Egypt after being slaves there for hundreds of years to return to their homeland. Wine and unleavened bread, representing the blood shed and the broken body of our Savior, were also shown, with the house being cleared of all leaven prior to the supper. The fact that when the Lord's Supper is observed in the churches now, grape juice and unleavened bread are used, was stressed in this film.

Present for this meeting were the following: the Rev. Michael Taylor, and daughter Elizabeth, Rev. Thomas Foy, and Mesdames Lucy C. Regan, Myrtle Allen, Pearl Robinson, Ada Meade, Ruby Lamping, Dixie Webb, Maman G. Leslie and Patsy Evans.

One of the greatest gifts you'll ever give your family may be your funeral.

It's something no one likes to think about. But sooner or later, we all have to face it. Including you.

And when it happens, the loved ones you leave behind will have to face a lot of decisions about your funeral. Everything from your favorite flowers to friends that should be notified. All at a time when these details should be the last things on their mind.

But you can do something now to help make this time a little easier for them.

Because you care . . .

That's why we're offering a special book we call "Requests," which you can fill in now to help guide your family in making these choices, secure in the knowledge they're doing what you would have wanted.

It's our gift to you, and it's available free.

There is no cost, and there's no obligation.

Except to those you love.

Savory Sausage Chicken Pie features a creamy filling accented with sausage and a tender biscuit crust.

Resurrecting meat pies—and great homemade taste
Remember meat pies? You probably recall them as one of the first convenience foods available in the freezer section of the supermarket. Although they're a classic childhood favorite, those frozen little pot pies just don't compare to the homemade variety.

Homemade meat pies are an entirely different story. And they come in all shapes, forms and flavors whether cooked in a casserole or on a baking sheet.

"Meat pies are part of virtually all cultures," explained Linda Carman, director of consumer affairs for Martha White Foods. "Fillings can be made from an assortment of meats, and crusts vary from biscuits to pizza dough to cornbread."

Odom's Tennessee Pride Country Sausage and the Martha White Kitchen have teamed up to create a sampling of meat pies from around the world. The recipes pair savory meat fillings accented with pork sausage with a variety of crusts.

"The distinctive flavor of sausage makes it a perfect ingredient for many dishes.

A new version of the standby chicken pot pie, Savory Sausage Chicken Pie features a biscuit crust with a creamy sausage-and-chicken filling. The recipe is made with the traditional vegetables—carrots, celery and onions—but this time browned sausage complements the old-fashioned flavor.

The Italian version of a meat pie is a pizza turnover known as a calzone. The pizza dough is rolled out and then half is covered with the filling. Then the dough is folded over and sealed. The baked result is a tender, chewy crust loaded with a combination of meat, cheese and vegetables. The Sausage Sweet Pepper Calzone has a colorful filling that showcases red and green bell peppers and onions sauteed with the sausage.

Or, the calzone gets an American touch with green chilies and Monterey Jack cheese in the Southwestern Sausage Calzone. Try using the hot style sausage for an extra zesty flavor.

Even a Country Style Chili Con Cornbread fits into the meat pie category. It's a spicy chili casserole that combines ground beef with sausage and a layer of crusty cornbread baked on top.

Where's the Fat in Your Diet?

So, you'd like to get the fat out. Reducing dietary fat is more a matter of substituting foods than eliminating foods, advises Mary Helen Gunkler, registered dietitian and staff nutritionist for Total cereal.

Nearly 30 percent of fat calories in the average diet come from meat, fish and poultry. To reduce the fat from these foods, limit yourself to no more than 2 to 3 ounces per serving. Choose lean varieties; remove excess fat and skin. Use cooking methods that help reduce fat, such as broiling or roasting on a rack.

Fats and oils themselves contribute about 13 percent of fat to the average diet. To help reduce fat from these sources, use non-fat salad dressings. Spread toast and rolls with all-fruit jam rather than butter or margarine. Season with spices and herbs rather than high-fat sauces.

Milk products account for about 12 percent of fat in the average diet. Reduce fat intake from these products by choosing low-fat and nonfat versions of milk, cheese, sour cream, yogurt and frozen dairy desserts.

As the chart shows, fat comes from a wide variety of other foods as well. In many cases, you can reduce the fat in favorite dishes by substituting low-fat for high-fat ingredients. Also, focus more on the foods that contribute little or no fat to the diet. Fruits and vegetables are good choices as are grain products, including bread, pasta, rice and cereal—especially whole-grain products, such as whole wheat bread and Whole Grain Total cereal.

With all the delicious low-fat foods available today, says Gunkler, decreasing fat in the diet is easier than ever.

American beef goes south

Aggressive marketing by the U.S. cattle industry is helping U.S. producers get a jump on growing export opportunities in a very price-sensitive market Mexico. As recently as 1989, supermarket chains in northern Mexico bought only domestic beef carcasses. Today, thanks to producer dollars from the national beef checkoff, as much as 70 percent of one supermarket's beef sales come from U.S. boxed beef.

That's one success story from a series of training seminars conducted by the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) with cattle producers' checkoff funds. The seminars have taught meat department managers, meat buyers and store managers of major supermarket chains in Mexico how to use U.S. boxed beef to their company's advantage. The seminars show Mexican retailers they can make more money with U.S. boxed beef products—Mexican labor costs for boning the beef are expensive. U.S. beef arrives boxed and boneless. Also, retailers only have to buy the cuts they want and don't have to worry about selling unwanted parts of a carcass.

Strategic planning and implementation of programs designed to promote U.S. beef sales are administered by USMEF's Mexico City office. This strengthens long-term U.S. industry prospects in the important Mexican market by increasing the likelihood that U.S. beef will continue to be chosen to meet Mexico's growing demand.

U.S. beef exports to Mexico are growing at unprecedented levels, increasing nearly 400 percent in dollar terms from 1987 to 1990. With lower levels of domestic production in Mexico amid greater consumer demand, USMEF predicts that Mexican imports of U.S. beef will continue to rise.

Mexico is now the third largest export market for U.S. beef; following Japan and Canada. Two-thirds of all beef imported by Mexico comes from the U.S.

County Harvest

When spring comes, birds start collecting food for their young, baseball players warm up for a new season, and homeowners tackle their spring lawn nemesis—crabgrass.

Once crabgrass appears in a lawn, it is hard to get rid of without a dedicated plan. According to the lawn experts at The O.M. Scott & Sons Company, the best way to alleviate the problem of crabgrass is to attack before it starts. Unlike dandelions and other broadleaf weeds, crabgrass must be prevented early in the spring before the seeds germinate. A pre-emergent weed control is the most effective answer, and it should be applied sometime before temperatures steadily reach 80 degrees—so application dates will vary from one region of the country to another (see map).

"A pre-emergent crabgrass application puts an invisible barrier between the surface of the soil and the seed," according to Mike Kelty, vice president of research and development at Scotts. "Established grass will grow, but the crabgrass seeds will not be able to break through this barrier," Kelty continued. "It is important to apply this early in the growing season because once crabgrass is growing, the pre-emergent application won't be effective."

Crabgrass is an annual grass, which means it lives only one year. But, while it is alive the parent plant produces and disperses thousands of seeds during the summer. These seeds germinate into new crabgrass plants the following spring.

The most efficient way of preventing crabgrass and applying your spring fertilizer is to purchase a product that combines these steps. A pre-emergent crabgrass control plus fertilizer (such as Scotts Turf Builder Plus Halts®) will provide protection against crabgrass, and also add important nutrients your lawn needs in the spring.

Before applying the product, grass should be dry and should not be so tall that it touches the bottom of the spreader. It is also recommended that homeowners who have had crabgrass within the previous two years apply a crabgrass preventer this year, even if it wasn't a problem last year. If crabgrass has not reappeared in two years the need for a crabgrass preventer is greatly reduced. Crabgrass preventer should not be applied to newly seeded or sodded areas; Starter® Fertilizer is recommended for these areas. Experts also suggest not to rake, thatch, or aerify the lawn in the first few days after application.

Scotts maintains a full-time consumer service department to answer questions about lawn care. Simply call the toll-free Consumer Hotline: 1-800-543-TURF.

Easter pets may be inappropriate

You've seen the stuffed animals in the stores for a couple of months now, rabbits and chickens and other creatures aimed at providing a cuddly delight for the wee ones at Easter.

The variety and availability seem to increase every year.

What you don't see as often as you used to are special and inappropriate "pets" for the Easter season, such as ducklings and chickens and rabbits.

That may be a good thing, because selling chickens or ducks to children who live in the city almost certainly condemned the animals to an early death.

Some practices — like the sale of brilliantly colored chicks and ducks — are now illegal. The dyes usually resulted in the early death of the animals, and heartbreak for the child who often blamed himself or herself. If they survived, there was the question of where to care for them.

You can still buy baby chickens and ducks — without the dyes — and also rabbits, and there's nothing wrong with that in itself. But you do need to use some common sense.

Children and adults living in close contact with chickens and ducks run a risk of exposure to salmonellosis, a severe gastro-intestinal problem. The disease, which may also affect pets, is seldom fatal but often requires medical treatment including hospitalization.

The U.S. Public Health Service says not to give small children ducklings and chicks at Easter. Scientists at PHS' Centers for Disease Control say many of the cute little critters carry salmonella and can make infants and young children very ill.

It works like this: The feces of infected chicks and ducklings carry various salmonella bacteria—and children handling the fowl typically ingest the germs when they stick their unwashed hands in their mouths.

Salmonella can also be transmitted by the flesh and eggs of poultry—which is why the Public Health Service advises that egg dishes, chicken and turkey be thoroughly cooked.

Rabbits pose another, but similar problem. They, too, must be kept out of doors to thrive and many persons, especially city dwellers, have neither the space nor the expertise to care for rabbits.

Farm animals given as pets most always have to be soon disposed of, because as they outgrow infancy they pose unique problems, and may violate zoning laws as well.

If you want to give a pet for Easter, there are many more traditional pets just as lovable and a lot easier to care for.

Apartment dwellers with restrictions against dogs and cats might consider caged animals — gerbils, hamsters, guinea pigs, mice, rats or birds. Many people find them absolutely delightful pets.

Ask a veterinarian for advice, if you want a live pet for an Easter present for a child. He or she can estimate cost of upkeep, what might be acceptable within the neighborhood, the expected lifespan of the animal and can match with reasonable certainty the age of the child to the pet with a view to the welfare of both child and animal.

Eight plastic containers which allow for the recycling of aluminum cans (Canpactors) were donated to Prestonsburg Community College by BIRP (the Beverage Industry Recycling Program of Kentucky). D. Ray Gillespie, executive director of BIRP assisted in the process. The eight containers will be distributed evenly around the campus with one on each floor of each building. Each canpactor is equipped with a can smasher on the top which will allow the container to hold up to 400 smashed aluminum cans. Pictured is Lee Beard, a counselor and instructor at the school. Beard is in charge of the recycling program.

Business

Is travel between jobs deductible?

Q: I now have a second job. My boss says that I can take an automobile deduction when I drive to my second job. I first go home and clean up and then drive there. How much of a deduction can I take, and what form do I use?—L.K., Greenbelt, Md.

A: If you work at two places in a day, whether or not for the same employer, you can deduct the expenses of going directly from one place to the other.

However, if for some personal reason you do not go directly from one location to the other, you can deduct only the amount it would have cost you to go directly from the first location to the second. Form 2106, Employee Business Expenses, puts these transportation expenses on Schedule A.

Q: Does the IRS have a publication on recent income tax laws or changes?—Jane, Topeka, Kan.

A: Sure. Publication 553, Highlights of Recent Tax Changes. Call 1-800-TAX-FORM for your free copy.

Q: I have a very delightful German student living in my home who attends the same school as my son. Can I take the cost of his food and board as some kind of deduction?—A.P. Atlanta

A: If you pay any of the expenses of a full-time student who lives in your home under a written agreement between you and a qualified organization, you may deduct as a charitable contribution up to $50 for each month that the student is a member of your home during the tax year.

The student may be a foreign or an American student but cannot be your relative or dependent and cannot be an exchange student with your children. A full-time student is an individual who is in the 12th-grade or lower at a school located in the United States.

THE TAX ADVISER

GEORGE SMITH

Q: I paid my fourth quarter state income tax estimate for 1991 in January 1992. Which year do I take it as a deduction on my federal income tax return?—R.L., Youngstown, Ohio

A: State income tax payments are, of course, deductible on your federal income tax return providing you itemize on Schedule A.

However, you can only take the deduction in the year the payment is made, not for the year to which it is applied. If you paid your state estimate in December, you would be deducting it now, not 12 months later.

Next time, you may want to pay it in December. A little tax planning will tell you which month is correct.

Q: Our nursing home is going to build an addition to the present building. This is a non-profit home. Can I take a deduction for my contribution even though I live there? I do not have to do this if I don't wish, but they still plan to go ahead with the addition, with or without me.—J.L., West Bloomfield, Mich.

A: First, you may deduct charitable contributions, providing they are paid to a qualified organization. Any organization can tell you if it is a qualified organization. If not, there is no deduction.

However, in a recent IRS letter ruling (9141011), it proves that taxpayers, at times, can have their cake and deduction too. In this ruling, a nursing home solicited its residents for contributions to build a pedestrian walkway to the hospital across the street. The residents were not required to contribute. The walkway would be open to all contributors and non-contributors alike.

Contributors received no discount or rebate on their obligations to the nursing home. The IRS said that although contributors would benefit from the new walkway, their benefit would be no different from that enjoyed by non-contributors.

Therefore, the IRS said that their contributions were tax deductible.

Grant awarded for co-firing of wood and coal

In parts of Kentucky where wood products industries are strong, there are excess supplies of wood waste in the form of sawdust, chips and bark. These "wastes" could provide a low-cost source of renewable energy for many Kentucky homes.

East Kentucky Power Cooperative, recently received two grants totaling $50,000 to do an engineering feasibility study of burning sawdust and coal in one of its large power plants near Maysville. The utility company, which serves 18 distribution cooperatives in 89 of Kentucky's 120 counties, is headquartered in Winchester. It provides electricity through its member systems to many wood-producing Kentucky counties.

If the co-firing of sawdust and coal proves technically and economically feasible at the Maysville plant, the study could provide an impetus for other power plants to utilize a wood/coal mix. Other benefits of co-firing a wood/coal mix include reducing air emissions to meet new air quality standards, lowering costs to electricity consumers, and solving a troublesome and costly solid waste problem for the Kentucky wood products industry.

A grant from the TVA's Southeastern Regional Biomass Energy Program will provide $32,620 for the project. The remaining $17,330 is from the Kentucky Alternate Energy Development Fund. The Kentucky Division of Energy is administering the two grants.

Estimated Tax Payment Due Soon For Some Taxpayers

April 15, 1992, is the due date for persons filing their first estimated tax payment voucher for their 1992 taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service says that most persons who need to make estimated tax payments are those whose withheld tax is:

- less than 90 percent of the tax shown on their 1992 tax return, and
- less than 100 percent of the tax shown on their 1991 tax return.

Due to a tax law change last year, certain taxpayers will no longer be allowed to base estimated tax payments for the 2nd, 3rd and/or 4th quarter on their tax liability for the prior year.

Generally, taxpayers affected by this change are those whose adjusted gross incomes are:

- more than $75,000 ($37,500 for married persons filing separately), and —more than $40,000 ($20,000 in the case of married filing separately) greater than their adjusted gross incomes for the prior year.

For taxpayers who pay their taxes on a calendar year basis, the 1992 estimated tax payment dates will be the approaching April 15 due date, June 15; September 15; and January 15, 1993.

Additional information about estimated taxes appears in IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax." The Form 1040-ES, "Estimated Tax for Individuals," also contains complete instructions for filling out the form. The publications, form and instruction can be obtained by calling, toll-free, 1-800-829-3676.
