Tribunal to hear principal's appeal

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A three-member tribunal picked by the attorney general's office will conduct a hearing August 12 at the Floyd County Library conference room to hear evidence in the appeal of fired Wheelwright principal Lewis "Spike" Berkheimer.

Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen agreed to let the attorney general's office name the tribunal because Berkheimer was fired by interim Floyd County superintendent Eldon Smith on Boysen's recommendation.

Berkheimer is accused of improperly touching a female student on two occasions and that he falsified his employment application.

Smith sent Berkheimer a letter last month which said that "the evidence indicates that you engaged in inappropriate sexual contact with a minor." Smith's letter also said that Berkheimer failed to include on his employment application a 1976 conviction in Ohio of contributing to the unruliness of a child.

Berkheimer was charged by Kentucky State Police with two counts of first degree sexual abuse in March. At a preliminary hearing, District Judge Danny Caudill dismissed the charges saying not enough evidence was presented to warrant the charges.

The case was also presented to a Floyd County Grand Jury but no indictment was returned.

Vacancies for school jobs remain unfilled

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With the beginning of the 1992-93 school year just around the corner, Floyd County's new superintendent of schools hopes to fill four vacant principal positions by next week.

Through retirements, reassignments and one firing, seven principal jobs were open in the system in July: Prestonsburg High School, Wheelwright High School, Adams Middle School, Martin Elementary, Harold Elementary, Auxier Elementary and McDowell Elementary.

Superintendent Steve Towler said Thursday that positions at Prestonsburg, Adams and McDowell had been filled.

Karen Trivette, former assistant principal at Betsy Layne High School, was hired to take over operations at Prestonsburg High School. Former principal Robert May announced his retirement in June.

At Adams Middle School, Janice Allen, president of the Floyd County Education Association, was named to replace principal Thomas Tackett, who was reassigned as a homebound teacher.

A former Knott County teacher, Juanita Combs, will be the principal at McDowell Elementary. Former principal Frank Pack retired at the end of the 1991-92 school year.

An interim principal will be named to head Wheelwright High School until the outcome of an appeal hearing for fired principal Lewis "Spike" Berkheimer. Berkheimer was fired last month by interim superintendent Eldon Smith for allegedly improperly touching a female student and for allegedly falsifying his employment application.

Principal vacancies remain at Harold, Auxier and Martin elementary schools.

"We hope to have those positions filled next week," Towler said Thursday. "We're working hard to get that done. I'm glad school doesn't start until August 31 this year."

More pot harvested as tips lead cops to crops

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County sheriff's deputies discovered 238 marijuana plants in two days in an effort to destroy as much of the home grown weed as possible before the fall harvest.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, chief Linzie Hunt, sergeant Lloyd Powers and deputy Ricky Newsome discovered 169 pot plants Tuesday afternoon at Big Branch in Little Mud Creek. The illegal crop was burned at the site.

On Wednesday, sergeant Powers located and destroyed 69 marijuana plants that were found in the German Bridge area. Plants ranged in size from 18 inches to five feet tall.

If the plants had reached maturity the estimated street value of the marijuana would have been $238,000.

"Any marijuana that we find and destroy is that much less that will be out there," said chief Hunt. "This sheriff's department is working for the best interests of the children of this county. We ask anyone with information about marijuana growing in the county to call us."

Anonymous callers provided the information that led deputies to the marijuana fields at Mud Creek and German Bridge.

Anyone with information is asked to call the sheriff's department at 886-6711 or toll-free at 1-800-834-5430. All information will be kept confidential.

Waste is trucked out as landfill opening awaited

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Landfill, which closed temporarily last week, may be ready to reopen within the next four to six weeks.

The Floyd County Solid Waste division began storing all waste at a temporary site in June following closure of its phase I landfill due to tougher standards and restrictions imposed by the Environmental Protection Agency and Kentucky's Cabinet for Natural Resources Division of Waste Management.

The temporary site was closed last Friday after its permit expired. Since the site closed, Floyd County officials have been transporting all waste to West Virginia at a cost of $23.50 per ton and approximately $1 per mile transportation cost, Dave Cooley, manager of the Floyd County Solid Waste Division's landfill site, said Thursday.

"That's considerably more than we've had to pay in the past," Cooley added.

However, Cooley said, Floyd

County officials have not yet discussed raising customer rates.

Cooley said that all the scales required by the new stricter regulations have been installed at the site and are operable.

Cooley also said that Bizzack Construction should have all further required construction completed within the next three weeks.

If construction on the site is completed on schedule, Cooley said, the only obstacle to reopening the landfill is waiting for approval from the Division of Waste Management.

Write-in vote is promised for district three school election

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Although it appeared that incumbent school board member Tommy Boyd would run unopposed in the November election, a write-in campaign will be launched by a candidate who missed the 4 p.m. filing deadline Tuesday.

Robert Stewart, 30, of Betsy Layne announced Wednesday that he will seek to unseat Boyd for a position on the Floyd County Board of Education.

Stewart was four signatures shy of the 20 needed to file his petition to be on the ballot in the district three board race.

"I'm still in it but not on the ballot," Stewart said Wednesday. "I'm waiting to hear from the state Board of Elections to see if I can be on the ballot. If I can't be, I will have a write in campaign. It's hard to win as a write-in candidate."

Stewart, a student at Prestonsburg Community College, said he had filed his petition earlier Tuesday but was not informed that four of the signers were not registered voters as required by law.

"I didn't find out about it until Tuesday afternoon," Stewart said. "If I'd had more time I could've gotten what I needed."

A recent state investigation into the school system was one reason Stewart decided to become a candidate.

"The state stepped in because of the way our system is run and the old style politics are on the way out," Stewart said. "I have kids in this school system and I'm hoping I can make a difference."

Teacher, war hero and poet :

Living life to its fullest

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Few men achieve all they wish in life, often finding their goals too lofty, their time on Earth too short. Occasionally, however, there is an exception to the rule.

Born at Oneida in Clay County on February 18, 1921, Blaine Ronald Hall has in his seventy-one years been many things: beloved husband and father; a rugged steelworker; an accomplished musician; a dedicated teacher; a decorated war hero; a successful businessman; a community leader; and, perhaps his most cherished achievement, a nationally recognized and lauded poet.

Hall grew up in McDowell, where over the years he developed a deep and abiding love for the hills and the people of Eastern Kentucky.

In 1941, Hall graduated from Alice Lloyd College, then called Caney Community College, with a degree in education, which he immediately put to use as a teacher at Wheelwright High School. He later taught at McDowell High School, where he met his future wife, Ruth. Hall was inducted into the Army in 1942 and stationed in London, England, where he served as a sergeant with the 8th Air Force until the end of World War II.

During his military career, Hall was put in charge of a small platoon of baby-faced soldiers who were barely younger than himself. On one particularly harrowing occasion, Hall led his men through a gauntlet of Nazi shellfire to safety.

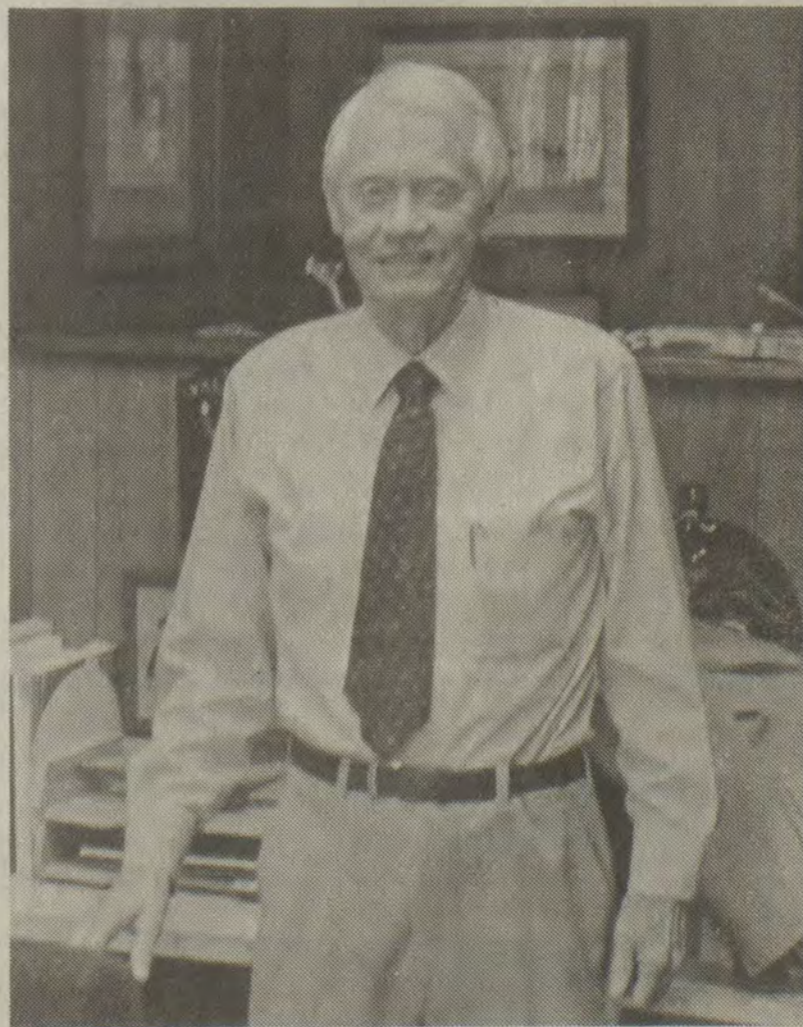

"It was awful," Hall said. "There were bombs going off all around us... gunfire and explosions.... But we finally made it to a bunker and our boys' (anti-aircraft weapons) just shot the Germans out of the sky."

Hall briefly returned to teaching after the war, but decided there wasn't enough money in it.

After two years of working for Inland Steel, he decided to go into business for himself and began selling insurance.

Hall moved to Prestonsburg in 1954, where he became the founder and president of the Highlands Mutual Insurance Company. Today he owns the Hall and Clark Insurance Agency in downtown Prestonsburg

Neighbors pull Prestonsburg man from burning home

A Floyd County man narrowly escaped from a fiery death Wednesday evening when his neighbors pulled him from his blazing home.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department responded Wednesday to a 10:20 p.m. call from Kenny Marsillette of West Prestonsburg, who said that his brother Eugene was trapped in a blaze at his mobile home at Corn Fork.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said Thursday that Unit 6 of the fire department arrived at the scene to find Marsillette lying in the front yard with an emergency rescue technician attempting to revive him.

The P & B Ambulance Service rushed Marsillette to the Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he was treated and released.

Blackburn said that preliminary investigations show that fires had apparently been set in the kitchen and bedroom areas of Marsillette's mobile home, which is owned by Morgan Joseph.

Kenny Marsillette had told officials that he and Eugene had earlier extinguished a fire that had started in a waste can in the kitchen, Blackburn said.

with his son-in-law, C. Richard Clark, who now operates the business.

Deeply affected by his wartime experiences, Hall became somewhat introspective and turned to poetry to express his thoughts and emotions.

After having three books of poetry published, as well as having his works published in numerous anthologies, Hall has received award upon award to commemorate his literary achievement.

His poems celebrate Eastern Kentucky, mankind and God Himself, whom Hall regards simply as "the Supreme Intellect."

Selections from his three books of poetry, "From These Hills," "Probing the State of Consciousness," and "Reflections and Moods," are taught at the University of Kentucky, as well as several other colleges and universities.

Today he is listed on the Literary Map of Kentucky alongside such luminaries as Jesse Stuart and Robert Penn Warren.

He is also listed in the International Who's Who in Poetry, Who's Who in the South and Kentucky in American Letters.

As a businessman, he has served on the board of directors of various civic and social organizations, including the Kiwanis Club, the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, the Public Housing Commission, First Commonwealth Bank and the Kentucky Poetry Society. He was even an instigator in the creation of the Jenny Wiley Convention Center.

Today Hall spends much of his time writing poetry and playing and recording music. He can, as his wife Ruth says, "play any instrument by ear," but he favors the guitar, banjo, mandolin and organ.

When asked how he feels about his many accomplishments, Hall says simply that "I'm old, old, old. I've had plenty of time to do what I wanted to do... But you know, if I had the choice or the chance, I'd do it all over again."

Perhaps Hall's life, loves and works can be summed up by a stanza from one of his own poems, "Probing the State of Consciousness":

"I celebrate life-life's whole spectrum-

The dumb worm, the spinning atom, the restless seed,

The scum of it, the elegaic turn of it,

The kiss of love..."

It's about our Economic Future.

A Message from Costain Coal Inc.

Coal: A solid foundation for future growth.

Coal Economics in Eastern Kentucky

- Almost 25,000 workers in Eastern Kentucky make their living from coal mining.
- Eastern Kentucky coal production in recent years is the highest it has ever been—130 million tons a year.
- Coal provides $233 million per year in wages for Floyd and Pike county workers, $790 million for all of Eastern Kentucky.
- Kentucky exists in a global market, exporting coal to 26 states and 30 countries.

(From Kentucky Coal Facts, 1991-92, published by the Governor's Office for Coal and Energy Policy and the Kentucky Coal Association.)

Coal has been a key part of the Eastern Kentucky economy for more than a century. But what role does it have in our future?

Telecommunications, data processing, tourism—these are promising industries for our region. But these must be added to industries that already have proven themselves here. It is unrealistic to think we can replace overnight a century-old industrial base that has supported our region. Eastern Kentucky must capitalize on investments we have already made.

A Billion Dollar Impact

Costain Coal's contract with a Florida cogeneration plant will bring half a billion dollars directly into the local economy through wages, purchases of equipment, supplies and services.

Economic development experts confirm that each dollar of business revenue means between $2 and $2.50 in total economic impact. This additional money is generated when, for example, a miner gets paid and buys groceries every week; the grocer is able to buy a home appliance; the appliance vendor eventually is able to buy a home, providing a job for a builder, and so on.

So, our 20-year contract for up to 20 million tons of coal is a billion-dollar asset to the region's economy.

Modernizing our economy means new kinds of industry. But it also means keeping our existing industries up to date. Innovative technology, innovative management, innovative marketing—these are as essential to the coal business as they are to high-tech businesses like computing.

Coal is not a dead industry to step over on the way to the future. Instead, it is a solid foundation on which to build the future. Coal helped to fuel the industrial revolution, and it can help to fuel the next generation of economic growth in Eastern Kentucky.

County fairs were once the highlight each summer in almost every hometown across the state, and a group of Floyd Countians is trying to resurrect a part of that tradition.

Beginning Saturday, August 15 farmers and gardeners will have the opportunity to display and sell the fruits of their labor each Saturday at a Farmer's Market in the municipal parking lot in Prestonsburg.

"We are hoping this will revive the Floyd County Fair Board and give the farmers and gardeners a chance to display their goods," chamber of commerce director Keith Akers said Thursday.

The market, which is expected to continue for at least five weeks, will also offer prizes at the end of the season to participants who, for example, have the largest home grown vegetables.

Non-commercial vendors may set up booths for $2 a day and commercial participants will be charged $10 a day. The market will open at 8 a.m.

To register call Akers at 886-1341.

Akers added that the Floyd County Fair Board will meet Thursday, August 13 at 6 p.m. at the chamber office. The board will hold elections at that meeting and all interested persons are invited to attend.

ALLAN S. PERRY III—Publisher-Editor

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Editorial :

What's the difference?

by Scott Perry

What's the difference between a coal truck driver who careens through a red light, killing another motorist, and a state police trooper who crashes through an intersection in pursuit of a u-turner, killing a passenger in another car?

Twenty years and a traffic light.

The truck driver got twenty years for wanton murder in an accident prosecutors said was caused by his desire to get in "another load of coal."

The state trooper was never charged, the u-turner (to our knowledge) was never caught, and the highway department put up a stop light to, we assume, keep others from meeting the same fate at the intersection. And, as far as we know, the results of an "in-house" KSP investigation of the mishap have never been released.

Two lives lost needlessly.

A double standard on the reactions?

Lions, tigers and bears

For many Kentucky parents, the start of this school year has to be something like Dorothy's fabled trip down the Yellow Brick Road.

Few know what to expect from the implementation statewide this year of ungraded primaries, which replace grades one through three as we have always known them.

Like Dorothy's walk through the Enchanted Forest, there is a natural fear of the unknown, the lions and tigers and bears who lie in ambush behind every tree and shrub.

But, with a little courage, heart and brains, Dorothy and company made their adventure a memorable one, indeed.

With some of the same, we ought to be able to make our journey into the unknown (we have a child entering the primary level this year, too) come to just as happy a conclusion.

"Gun nuts" want self-defense rights

Editor:

It is interesting to read that all of us who are in favor of our second amendment rights are "gun nuts" and "crazies." The anti-gun forces leave no stone unturned to try and humiliate and stigmatize anyone who believes in the right to own guns.

It is said that pro-gun forces use influence and threats to keep politicians from passing gun control laws.

That's probably true if we consider that pro-gun forces threaten to tell the people back home how politicians vote if the vote is against peoples' rights.

Someone fails to mention that it is against the law to misuse firearms and for those who do so, it is even against the law to own guns.

Washington D.C. has one of the most restrictive gun laws in the nation, yet it has become the murder capital of the world, according to some reports.

Victims are like ducks in a pond because law abiding citizens are not allowed to own guns for self-defense.

It would also be interesting to know the difference between those killed when criminals fight with each other and the so-called crimes of passion.

Anti-gun forces claim they can break down gun-related crimes as to what crime and what weapons used. Yet there are no national crime statistics to confirm these numbers.

If there were adequate records it would be very simple to institute instant background checks—a measure anti-gun forces are against.

Why? Anti-gun forces want only to totally eliminate guns and nothing else is even considered. The simple equation is that some feel that if a person is attacked and shot and he is able to shoot the attacker, two people are shot and it would have been better if only one had been shot even if it is an innocent victim.

The truth is, if a person dials 911, in areas that have the service, it is likely help will arrive all too late, if at all.

It's not always the fault of law enforcement agencies as their jobs are difficult and they face more crime than most have the ability to deal with.

Because it is our own ultimate duty to protect ourselves and our families, it can only be called criminal for those anti-gun forces to try and eliminate our guaranteed constitutional rights to have the ability to do so.

Most law enforcement officers in this country agree with this despite efforts to portray an opposite view.

If anti-gun forces spent half their energies helping to solve socio-economic problems in this country, we might see a drastic change in crime statistics, but it is more chic to persecute people than solve problems for the elitist anti-gunners.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the fine folks at WPRG-TV and the Harold Telephone Company for being so nice to my students at John M. Stumbo School.

In the spring, we were studying communications in our 7th and 8th grade reading class and as a part of our lesson we took a field trip to our local TV station, WPRG-TV channel 5. We also toured the Harold Telephone Company where everyone was really going out of their way to give us an understanding of how TV and telephone communications are such a part of our lives.

The Diamond Lady and Dr. Don gave us the low-down on radio and TV and Miss Mary Bush helped us around the telephone office.

Our reading class has been producing a TV news show of school news, functions, etc., and WPRG-TV 5 was kind enough to air it for us at the end of the year.

People with such love for children as the employees of the Harold Telephone Company and WPRG-TV have my undying gratitude, thanks so much.

Bush, a certified administrator?

So, will a new majority save Boysen and his nosy investigators from having to come to Pike County and treat them like Floyd County? Will Pike get a superintendent named like Boysen did for Floyd County? If Pike County pays for the Pike County Highwall School, will they be able to afford to hire a superintendent or will they have to get one from the Job Corps? Come to think of it, is Bush certified as a school administrator? It looks like he will need a job.

Even the working class Republicans have turned on the president of privilege. It took awhile but people finally realized that Bush and the people who have access to him could care less about the loss of freedom in America as their types never are threatened with it. — Larry Webster (Red Dog), Appalachian News-Express

Reappointment of Davis won't help consumers

By reappointing Bob Davis to the state Public Service Commission, Gov. Brereton Jones struck a blow for the status quo in utility regulation. That's bad news for consumers across the commonwealth.

Back in the days of Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., the three-member Public Service commission served the public fairly well. It doesn't any longer. The plight of consumers, once a primary concern during utility rate cases, now is largely ignored by a PSC that has become far too chummy with the businesses it regulates.

Davis has been part of that problem. The former basketball and football coach was unqualified for the post when Gov. Martha Layne Collins appointed him in 1987. Five years' experience in the job hasn't made him much better. After all, those five years have been a period of mediocre-to-bad performance by the agency.

Understandably, citizens groups think the recycling of Davis constitutes a broken campaign promise by Jones. This isn't the kind of consumer-oriented appointment Jones led them to expect. It isn't an appointment of the best-qualified and most-knowledgeable person. It isn't an appointment that signals a return to the PSC's glory days of actually serving the public.

It is instead a signal to utility companies that their interests will continue to prevail with the PSC. That makes it politics as usual in Frankfort, which is just the opposite of what Jones promised the state. — Lexington Herald-Leader

It's time to get tough

While Johnson County solid waste officials ponder a way to afford the higher costs of dumping garbage in far-away landfills, they should think very seriously about something else.

It's been six months since the mandatory garbage ordinance went into effect, and it's high time to start penalizing those who aren't complying.

For several months now, officials have been saying that enforcement is just around the corner. That corner has gotten longer and longer, and many law-abiding citizens are getting tired of the ride.

Many residents who haven't signed up for service think nothing will happen to them if they don't. Many who have will eventually agree with them and stop paying their bills. Before you know it, the county's garbage situation will be back to square one.

So, Johnson County, it's time to get tough. It's time to make an example out of someone. You might be surprised at the outcome. When others see that you mean business, they'll start lining up for the service.

Don't be afraid to take John Doe to court just because he's not the only guilty party. You have to start somewhere. — Tony Fyffe, Paintsville Herald

Editor's note: This article is reprinted from a recent edition of the Kentucky Press. The author, Charlie Portmann, of Western Kentucky, received his first glimpse of Eastern Kentucky in June during the Kentucky Press Association's convention held in Pikeville.

Dreaded trip scary, but enlightening

by Charlie Postmann
The Franklin Favorite

Skeptical going in and more understanding coming out. That sums up our semi-annual Kentucky Press Association convention trip. This time, the press ventured a long way from home into unexplored territory for most of us. We gathered in Pikeville, yes, the Pikeville in eastern Kentucky.

Traveling nearly 400 miles over six hours, most of us from western and southeastern Kentucky would have preferred heading south instead of east. Why, we could have almost slipped into Florida in that distance. But, duty won out over sound reasoning and we treaded on.

The road to Pikeville was somewhat depressing and dangerous. If we were not dodging coal trucks or watching ambulance after ambulance go by, we were marveling at the hills and houses. Some houses were just as we expected with washing machines on the front porch and graveyards in the back yard. Others, though, were beautiful homes, sporting pools and elaborate floor plans molded into mountains. We experienced everything from claustrophobia by being surrounded by hills upon hills to the fear of heights as we peered down 2,000-foot bluffs to pre-1920 Bluegrass music. Sure, it was different, and we knew that going in.

Though, you wonder how things can be so different in the same state. We felt as though we had crossed into the twilight zone or something. Things really got hairy after we got lost near the Virginia state line. We were beginning to believe this would be our first and last trip to eastern Kentucky, but our paranoia, spawned by too many movies and rumors, was needless.

It didn't take long for our worries to ease. Signs posted everywhere welcomed the KPA. And for the most part, the people were just as friendly as the ones back home. Still, we tried to mold in with the crowd, but we stuck out like a preppie on a moped at a Harley Davidson run.

Still, we couldn't help to realize that Pikeville had come a long way. Centered in the heart of the state's largest county, the city was catching up with the rest of the state. And, slowly, we began to understand what the people were all about.

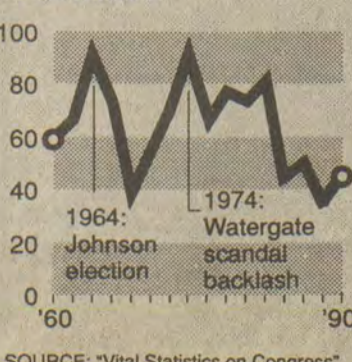

Eastern Kentuckians simply value their heritage, traditions and values much more than us. They take care of their own families and seemed to be immune to the rat race that most of us live in. Many looked perfectly content sitting on their front porches and watching their children play. The people in the central and western part of the state can learn a lot from our fellow eastern Kentuckians. And we did.

The highlight of the entertainment was performances by the Kentucky Opry and the Kentucky Opry Jr. Pro, which was composed of high school students down to a second grade drum player. The country music and comedy show was impressive and don't be surprised if many of the performers achieve stardom one day. They play at the Jenny Wiley State Park Theatre through August 24.

We were never so glad to reach flat country again on the long ride home. But we did come back with a better understanding of eastern Kentucky and respect for its people. The trip to the east was worth it after all.

Taxes, a confusing issue

Special meetings were conducted by both the Inez and Warfield City Commissions last week in an effort to come into compliance with new rulings by the state department for local governments.

A growing controversy centers around a ruling by the department that a local effort must be made to tax the citizenry before state severance tax monies can be obtained. The local city governments have operated since their inception without such a tax and have relied on funds from the state and federal governments as well as a small tax on businesses to support their efforts — Martin County Sun.

State builds facility in Martin County for mentally ill patients

The state is in the process of building a mental retardation home in Martin County. The building will be erected on property formerly owned by the Martin County Board of Education, located on Blacklog beside the school bus garage. The home will be an eight-bed facility, and will be constructed and staffed by the state — Gene Sisco, Mountain Citizen.

Operation Round-Up nets one in Johnson

More than 60 alleged drug dealers in Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties were arrested Tuesday in what police said was the largest single drug round-up in Kentucky's history.

One person was arrested in Johnson County, Nellie Kimbler, 53, of Paintsville. Kimbler was charged with trafficking in a Schedule IV drug for allegedly selling Valium to an undercover police officer. — Paintsville, Paintsville Herald.

Area doctors penalized

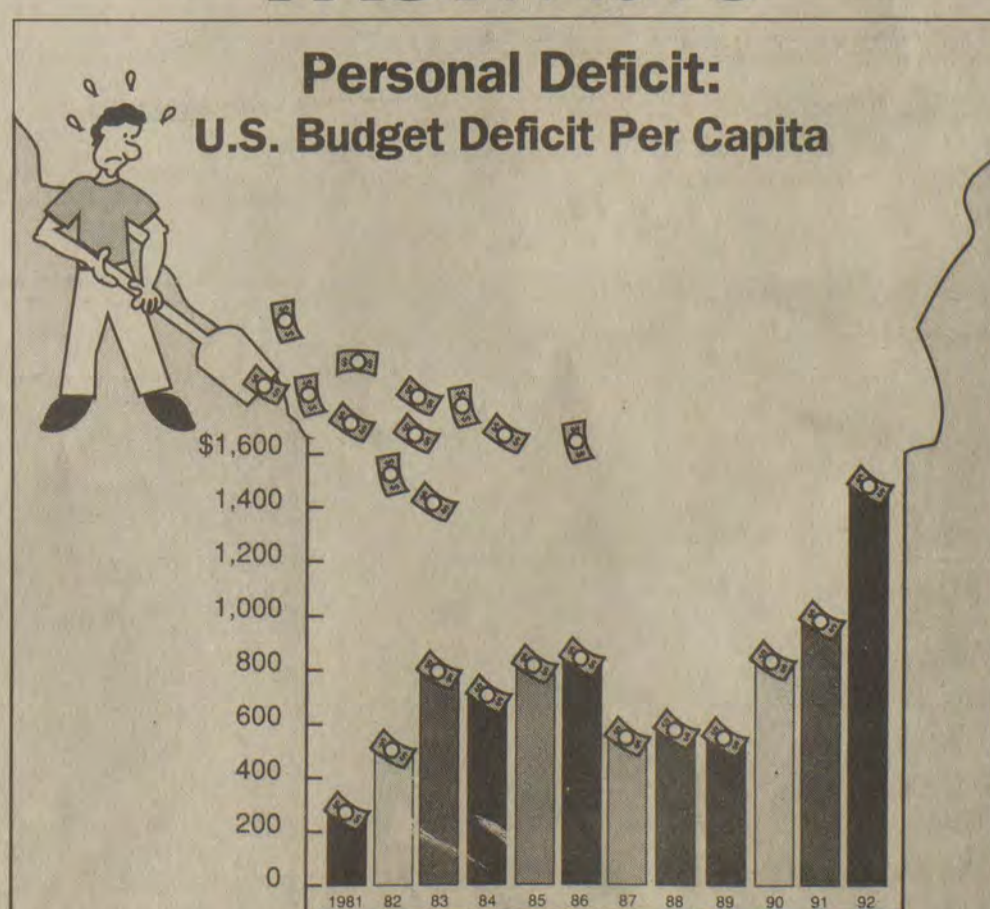

Two area doctors were penalized by the Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure during July.

The board placed Pike County doctor Charles F. Sowards on probation for five years and required him to maintain a log of controlled substances which he prescribes or dispenses. He must complete "The Prescribing and Use of Controlled Substances Mini-Residency."

Dr. Wail Alnas of Johnson County was fined by the board on July 28 for reportedly failing to complete continuing medical education in the area of HIV/AIDS as required by law — staff report.

Safely Home, My Dear Children

I am home in heaven, dear ones
Oh, so happy and so bright.
There is perfect joy and beauty
In this everlasting light.

All the pain and grief is over,
Every restless tossing passed,
I am now at sweet forever
Safely home in heaven at last.

Did you wonder I so calmly
Trod the valley of the shade?
Oh, I but Jesus' love illumined
Every dark and fearful glade.

And He came Himself to meet me,
In the way so hard to tread,
And with Jesus' arm to lean on
Could I have one doubt or dread?

Then you must not grieve so sorely,
For I love you dearly still;
Try to look beyond earth's shadows
Pray to trust our Father's will.

There is work still waiting for you.
So you must not idly stand.
Do it now while life remaineth,
You shall rest in Jesus' land.

When that work is all completed
He will gently call you Home.
Oh, the rapture of that meeting
Oh, the joy to see you come.

Loved and Sadly missed, your family.

TALK TO US

THREE BIG WHYS FLUMMOX TEEN

Q: FROM 'AN AVERAGE 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL': I'd like to know why are my highs so high and my lows so low? Why do my parents criticize everything I do? And why is sex such a big thing?

A: STUDENT PANELISTS FROM CARTER HIGH SCHOOL IN DALLAS: You may have over-protective parents who do not know how you feel. Tell them you need to be encouraged and praised sometimes, too. They probably just want you to be the best you can be.

Thirteen is also the time many girls become women, and their hormones are unbalanced. That may be why you often feel like you're on an emotional roller coaster. Your folks are having to learn to adjust to losing their little girl and to accepting a new woman in the house.

Some teens think that being sexually active will make them popular. But life isn't about having sex. It's about how you feel about yourself as a person. And right now, you probably don't feel very good about yourself.

As you get a little older, you'll realize that sex isn't everything, and you'll begin to have more gray days instead of just black and white ones!

PAT AND DAVID: About your highs and lows—the physical changes in your body are going to produce emotional ups and downs that are perfectly normal. Plus, you may not be the laid-back type. So life may tend to pull you from one extreme to the other. If that's the case, you'll just have to remember that neither the highs nor the lows last forever.

About your parents' criticism—this is a time of life when it's easy to take any of their comments as criticisms. We suggest you tell your mom that some of their comments really upset you. In fairness, that means giving them the chance to explain the things you do that really upset them.

About sex—it's an important part of most people's lives that can have enormous consequences, depending on how and when it's experienced.

TALKBACK FROM 'THE GANG GIRL WHO WANTED OUT': You asked if I was willing to leave my boyfriend. I did. You asked if I was willing to move. I did and the trouble still followed.

I recently lost a real good friend, for no reason. His death left a lot of people hurt and really angry. You see, he was our peacemaker. He tried to keep everyone out of trouble and now all hell is breaking loose, and I'm scared my boyfriend, who is an ex-gang member, will get involved with his old gang to revenge the death of his friend.

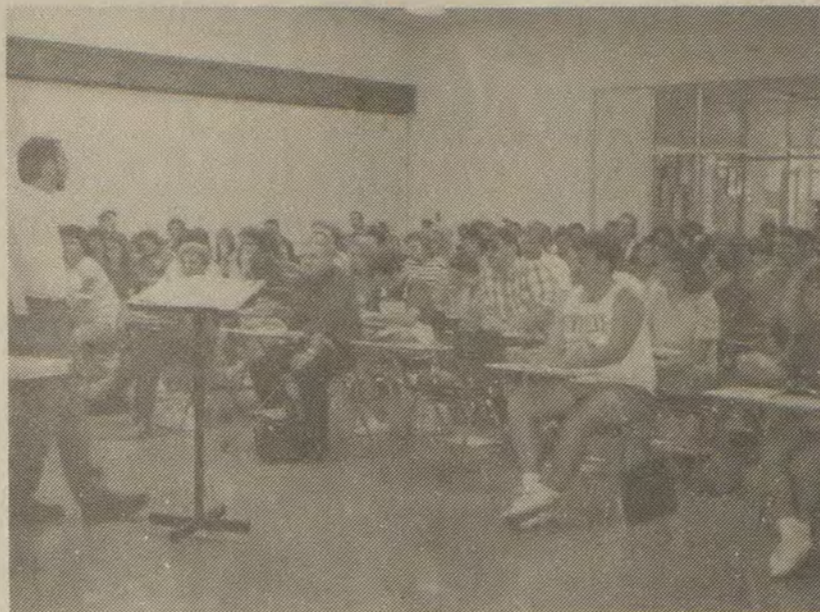

You see, that's how it's done with homeboys. If one is killed, his homeboys go after the one who did it. This time is worse; they are going after not only the one who did it, but also everyone who had something against him. I don't know what to do. I know what's gonna happen. They will get him and his friends will come and get one of them, and it will go back and forth until there is no one left, and I'm tired of losing my friends.

I've been in those anti-gang programs and they are good cause I have someone to talk to who understands, but they can't protect me once I leave. I'm more scared now than ever. Please help me.

PAT AND DAVID: As we told you before, gang experts say there are only two ways for deeply involved gang members to get away—be killed or leave the area. The only way you can be safe is to cut ALL ties with your past and make new friends.

The best chance you have of doing this is to move a lot farther away than you have—to a completely different area. Is there a relative in another city or state you can go to live with? We advise you to level with your parents and ask them to help you move to a place that's safe.

(Send your comments, questions and requests to be part of a high school panel to PAT AND DAVID, c/o Universal Press Syndicate, 4900 Main St., Kansas City, Mo. 64112.)

Orientation

D. Lee Beard assists students attending freshman orientation at Prestonsburg Community College.

PCC initiates new orientation and registration process

Why is PCC's campus overflowing with students in mid-July? PCC had a good summer school enrollment, despite the late closing date of area high schools. In fact, the headcount for the 1992 Summer Session was 820 as of June 16.

However, the students who are flooding the campus these days are not only summer school enrollees. Prestonsburg Community College has initiated a new orientation and registration program in which students prepare in the summer to take classes in the fall. The new program was designed to help students get started on the right foot toward success.

PCC has also begun a new testing and placement program which requires that new students take the ASSET test and receive advice regarding the best courses to take based on the test results. New students who wish to enroll early for fall classes are tested in reading, math, and writing skills. Based on test scores they are counseled into the best courses for their ability levels. Students also participate in a new student orientation program designed to increase success in college. So far approximately 1900 students have already registered for fall classes and about 600 new students have been administered the ASSET test.

The test is given to 90 students per regular session; six sessions were planned, but two testing-only sessions had to be added after all six regular sessions were filled. One night testing session was held August 6, at 6 p.m. in Johnson 102. The other testing-only session will be August 7 at 9 a.m.

In general, the day-long sessions consist of an explanation of the use of the results (to help rather than hurt) and then the actual ASSET test is administered in the morning. Cookie and Coke breaks are held during the testing procedure using cookies donated by Mountain Top Bakery and Sav-More.

Following the testing, lunch is provided with the assistance of Little Caesars pizza. After lunch, staff members from Counseling, Financial Aid, Community Services, and the Pike County Campus conduct the students on a guided tour of the facilities.

In the afternoon, the students receive an orientation to campus services and programs, followed by general advising and registration.

Reddy graduates with honors

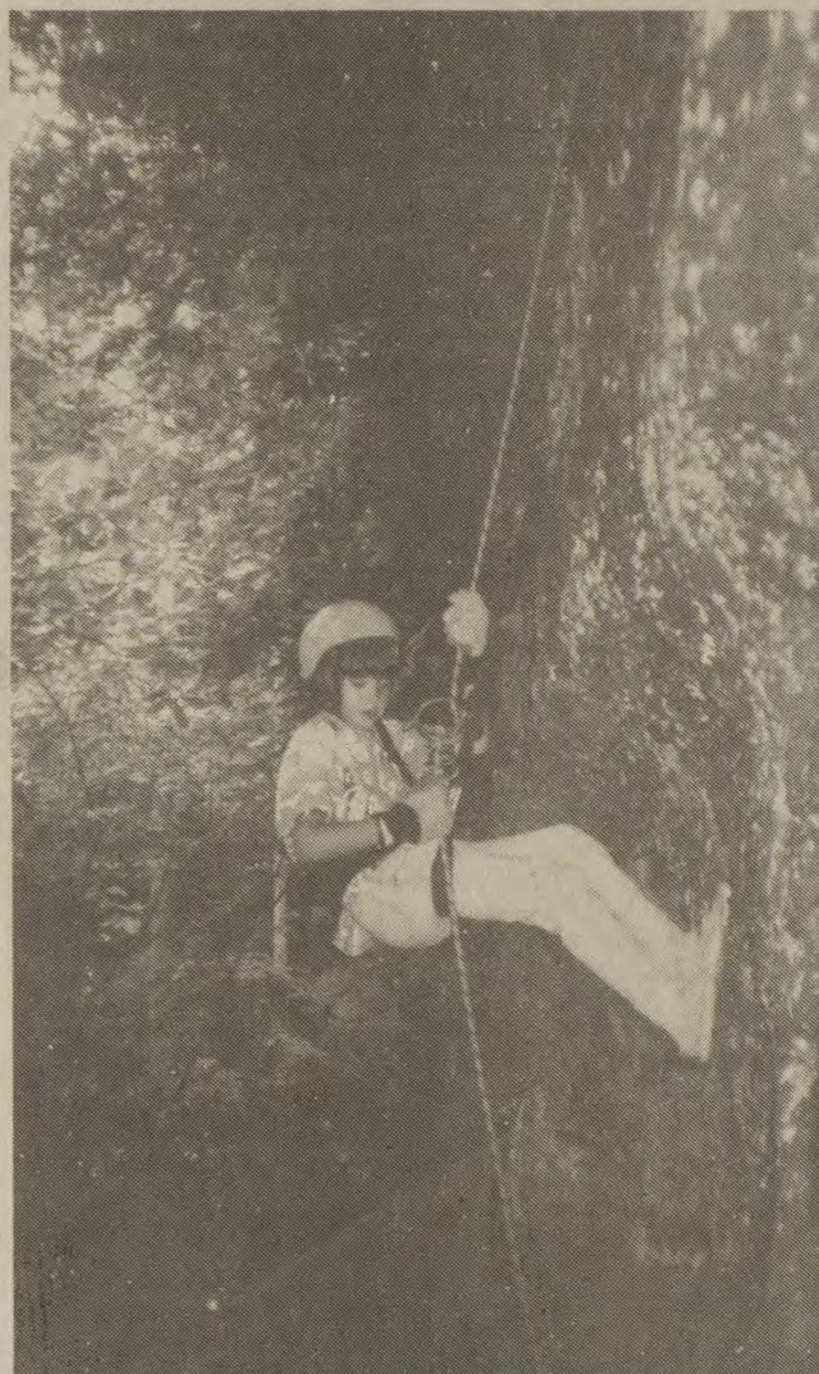

Prerana Seelam Reddy, daughter of Dr. and Dr. Ashok S. Reddy of Mays Branch, graduated, with highest honors, from Stuart Hall, an Episcopal boarding school for young women in Staunton, Virginia. Miss Reddy was named the class Valedictorian.

During Stuart Hall's Class Night, Miss Reddy received the DAR History Medal for having the highest grade in United States history; the Imprint Award, the School paper; the Mathematics Award for a student who presents a high level of effort, interest, and achievement in mathematics and its application; the Science Department Award, for a student that shows significant ability in scientific research, organization, and knowledge; the Foley Award, an engraved cup which remains at the School with Miss Reddy's name on it for her excellence in English; and the Bessie Hunton Essay Prize, for her strong writing skills. Miss Reddy received the highest average in the following departments: English, History, Math, Science and Religion and also the highest average in the senior class.

Also during Class Night, Miss Reddy received academic distinction for being among the top 10 percent in her class in Calculus, Philosophy and Religion, Physics, and U. S. History and Government II. She served as secretary of the senior class; a member of the Pop Quiz Team; a member of the National Honor Society; a Prefect, the school's most prestigious leadership role; Imprint editor; a member of the E.L.A.; and as a Stuart Scholar, which is a program that allows students to achieve academic acceleration as well as offering an enriched curricula and fully credited non-academic options.

She will attend Duke University in the fall.

High adventure

Karl Michelle Ross, age 8, member of the Brownie Scouts Troop No. 423 of Prestonsburg, rappelled down a shaft at Camp Judy Layne during a "Dad and Me Campout."

Father and daughter attend Girl Scout Camp

Kari Michelle Ross and her father, Johnnie E. Ross, scoutmaster of Prestonsburg Troop No. 877 got a taste of Girl Scouting, the Wilderness Road way recently, attending a "Dad and Me Campout" at Camp Judy Layne.

The camp, located near the scenic Cave Run Lake, offered a bit of high adventure, outdoor camping, and craft making to registered Girl Scouts and their fathers.

"It was an experience I'll never forget," said Johnnie Ross. "I got to go sailing, hiking, canoeing, and rappelling with my own child for a change. For nearly 11 years I've only had the opportunity to watch other children enjoy the outdoors in this matter. Being with my daughter gives a parent a sense of pride, closeness, and accomplishment."

During the three day camp, offered by the Wilderness Road Council of the Girl Scouts of America, scouts got the opportunity to come to camp with their dads; cook, eat, and sleep outside. The theme for the week was "Beauty and the Beast" with the focus on a line from the movie's theme song: "Maybe there is something there that wasn't there before." Approximately 25 fathers and their daughters attended and from every indication, at the week's end there was "something there that wasn't there before."

"The staff was great! Among whom was local Girl Scout, Emily A. Damron. They had one goal, to make it the best experience ever and that they did," said Ross.

"The food was good, the staff knowledgeable, and my daughter had fun," Ross added. "It's an experience I wish every father could have with their daughter."

This was the first campout of this type sponsored by the Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council, and they expect it will become an annual event.

Did the girls like it? "Rappelling was scary," according to daughter Kari, "but it was fun. The thing I loved most was hiking at night and sailing on the lake with my dad."

"Scouting, be it Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts, is a great organization, designed to foster citizenship, friendship, particular values and a duty to God, what more could any parent want for their child in today's society," Ross concluded, "get you child involved in scouting, call you local leader today!"

EKU signs exchange program agreement

In an effort to promote positive relations between the United States and Japan, officials from Eastern Kentucky University and Yamanashi University signed an agreement Friday, July 31, to develop scholarly exchanges between the two universities.

In the pact, signed in a ceremony on the ECU campus, ECU President Hanly Funderburk and Yamanashi President Shoichiro Koide agreed to provide for exchanges of both faculty and students, as well as information, over a five-year period.

"Such cooperation of our two universities will promote a deep understanding between the United States and Japan," said Funderburk. "We believe that this agreement will also contribute to cultural exchange and world peace."

Each institution shall recommend one or two exchange students annually for a period of at least one academic year. Exchange students will be exempt from tuition and fees at their host university, but will be responsible for all incidental expenses, such as transportation, housing, textbooks and insurance.

The agreement also encourages faculty exchanges, which could include private short visits of faculty members, study exchanges based on sharing of information, joint studies including exchanges of experimental data, joint experiments, lectures over a few months, and seminars for faculties and students.

The agreement stems from a "sister region" agreement between Madison County and the Yatsugatake Region of Japan, which is part of the Yamanashi Prefecture (or state) located 100 miles northwest of Tokyo. Funderburk was part of a 25-member Madison County delegation that made a 10-day visit to Japan in 1990.

It was during that trip that the possibility of an exchange program was first discussed.

"During our visit, several students approached our party to express interest in studying at ECU," Funderburk said upon his return.

Yamanashi, the region's primary university, is located in Kofu, a city of about 250,000 residents.

Funderburk also noted Japanese investment in manufacturing plants in Kentucky.

"It is our desire to work more closely with the management of these plants and to provide opportunities for them to take advantage of our programs in business, industrial technology and the science areas," Funderburk said. "In a global economy, this is an important and natural move for the University community."

TRACK AND FIELD FACILITY IS MUCH NEEDED!

Over and over we must keep repeating ourselves. Again, this time only in the light of the next Floyd County Board of Education meeting on Tuesday, August 11.

A group of concerned parents, as well as players and fans, are trying hard to get the local school board to see the need of a track and field facility somewhere in the county and a possibility of locating one up Right Beaver.

I can see so many advantages to have such a facility in the county, but I have said all that before.

One of the local student/athletes asked me the other day "Ed, do you think the board even cares whether we want one or not?" Maybe they don't. And that would be a shame. In a time when the county is trying desperately to get a working relationship with students and parents as well as other committees, I can see where perhaps their priorities do not include considering a track and field facility.

But, what if our board members along with our new superintendent decided that there was a need for such a thing and went to work on it for the sake of our kids — all the kids in the county, not just a select few — and built such a place. It certainly wouldn't hurt their image in the communities.

One of the greatest athletic events around is track and field. It involves so many kids that otherwise do not play either basketball or football. I have followed the county teams — Wheelwright and Allen Central — in their meets and now Betsy Layne is going to get in on the act next year. I have seen students excel in a certain event and the sense of accomplishment makes their eyes light up.

I've heard parents say, "I never knew he or she could do that" and just smile. Now, what if we had a facility for such athletes. Wouldn't it be better for them to practice after school and compete twice a week than to park their car in some empty parking lot at night and just sit there?

Come on, board members do something about the situation. Work with those who are concerned about the need for a facility. Show some interest and help accomplish what is drastically needed in our county.

THEN THERE IS SWIMMING....

Another great sport. Summer swim leagues have gotten the younger kids interested in participating and by looks of the huge number of people who turn out for the meets, it certainly indicates that we need to start thinking of patching some holes in our only high school pool and start some high school swimming.

Steve Cummings, who pioneered the Big Sandy Swim League, has taken his organizing talents to Johnson Central High School and organized a high school swim team that did very well in their first year.

We have a pool at Allen Central but, according to reports, the pool is not able to hold water because of a crack. School principal Jody Sword at one time wanted to open the pool for kids to swim in. That's just like Jody, thinking of the kids. Well, why not? Lets patch some holes and start a swim team at Allen Central and any other school that wants to use it. Let's involve as many kids as we can in our county sports.

VACATION TIME IS HERE....

It is off to Cincinnati this week (starting Monday) for a week's vacation. Three Cincinnati Reds games are on the schedule as well as, perhaps, a trip to some of the surrounding sites.

While I look forward to the time off, I still know that I will be missing my usual spot behind the desk and wonder what about this

KHSAA raises membership fee and schools are confused

Confusion reigns and most member schools of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association (KHSAA) are asking why the raise in membership fees for 1992?

The question may not be so much as to why but why so much? As the new school year approaches for the fall, the KHSAA has announced that membership fees will be increased and increased dramatically. Last year membership schools paid a meager $35 minimum and a maximum of $125 depending on the class your school was in. This year a class A school, such as McDowell, Wheelwright and Allen Central will be required to fork over $800 per school which has Allen Central athletic director Bert Layne confused as to why.

"I received papers on it last year before school went out," explained Layne without saying as to how much the Rebels will have to pay this year. "Then I got papers on it again already and I think it is outrageous what we have to pay."

"I really don't know why we have to pay such an amount," he continued. "I guess to pay for their new building they built in Lexington."

The KHSAA recently moved in a new office building on Winchester Road in Lexington which is also a combination office building as well as a Hall of Fame.

Class 2A schools like Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne will have to pay $1,000 membership fees this year with $1,200 being assessed 3A and $1,400 to 3A members.

"I think what has happened is they have gotten themselves in debt and are looking to the schools to get them out," stated Layne. The increase in dues is supposed to generate just over $300,000. With the construction of the new KHSAA building, part of the burden seems to be passed on to member schools.

"It's really high," said Layne. "It's a whole lot of money, especially for the smaller schools." Layne said that his school was being hit by a higher insurance premium this year. The Rebels will have to pay $50 for every football player who does not have insurance. The cost last year was $20.

"I suppose they want us to pay for the new building when they were to have sold bricks to finance it."

The KHSAA sponsors and manages all of the championship tournaments for its member schools and, if a school is not a member, they do not participate in any tournament games. There are approximately 288 member schools in the association.

"They did not take a poll of the smaller schools to see how they felt about it," said Layne. "It's just outrageous in what they are asking."

According to reports, KHSAA's new budget for the 1992-93 school year is around $2 million dollars which includes expenses for insurance, staging the boys and girls' state basketball tournaments, as well as the state football playoffs.

How will member schools pay the higher rate? Will it cause a crunch on an already strained budget? Just how far will schools be willing to go with the KHSAA? Some schools — or all — will feel the binds of this increase. While the KHSAA has a new building, they also may have a new problem they don't want to live with but which may not go away for awhile.

Central to play six of ten games on the road

The Allen Central Rebels football team has been hitting the pads hard already and the practice season only began last Saturday.

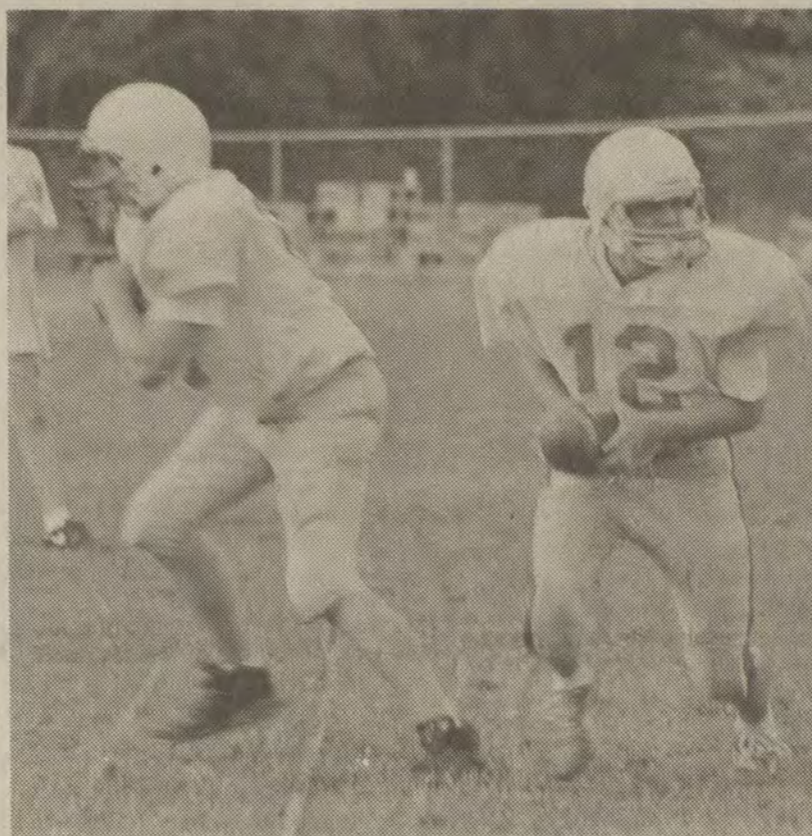

Rebel coach Dewey Jamerson is hoping to avoid a repeat of last season when his Rebels went winless in 10 games.

Allen Central will find no easy foe in their opening game on August 28 when the Cougars of Elkhorn City make a call. The Cougars will be experiencing a down year also but will be plenty of competition for the Rebels.

After a trip to Fleming-Neon in week two, Allen Central will stay on the road the third week as they visit a dangerous Pikeville Panther team on September 11. Pikeville is not expected to be the Pikeville of the past when they won three straight state titles and were runners-up last year in single A. You can bet, though, that the Panthers will be a solid ballclub anyway.

Games four and five will be played in the friendly confines of Daniels Field. Johns Creek will provide the opposition in a district matchup on September 18. The Bearcats will be without long-time quarterback/end Chris Gannon but they are not to be overlooked as some talented JV players will step forward to plug any holes.

October will get off to a rough start as the Rebels go to Sheldon Clark, a preseason favorite in Class 2A district play. The Cardinals will be the first of four consecutive road games before Allen Central returns home to close out the season with a home game against Phelps.

After Sheldon Clark, Allen Central will face two county foes in Betsy Layne and Wheelwright. Neighboring Magoffin County will entertain the Rebels in a Saturday afternoon encounter on October 24.

Elkhorn City, Pikeville, Johns Creek, Wheelwright, Phelps, Fleming-Neon and Jenkins join the Rebels in district play. The Rebels also compete in conference play with Elkhorn City, Jenkins, Wheelwright and Fleming-Neon.

Allen Central lost five seniors from last year's team and with a youth corp coming back, it could be a difficult

BL seniors look to new season without chance for district title

For some of the Betsy Layne Bobcat senior football players all the hard work of the past may seem to have been a waste of time, especially since the Bobcats have withdrawn from district competition for the next three years. They expect, though, to go and play just as hard if not harder just as though they were still in contention for a district title.

Attitudes and confidence is a feverish point for the eight returning seniors as they camp out at the school, working hard each day and sometimes into the night.

Returning as the Bobcats signal caller this year will be senior Bryan Combs who has guided the Bobcats from the quarterback slot for the past two seasons. Combs missed the final three games last year when he suffered an ankle injury that put him on the sidelines. But the 6-foot, 3-inch, 200-pound quarterback has committed himself to be the team leader offensively.

"It's going to be a real challenge this year," the senior quarterback stated. "Having not won many games for two years has been a disappointment but we have a new coach and the hope of some good things."

Combs said that he looks for Betsy Layne to have their best season yet and it will be because of all the hard work.

"We have all worked harder and we have discipline this year," he stated. "All the players are giving all they can give and that is a plus."

Combs says that he has committed himself to being a team leader because "it's part of the job and I need to take charge offensively."

"The coach sends in the plays and and it's up to me to run them. I just want to give 110 percent. It is going to be a tough job but we can do it."

Says Coach Johnson about Combs, "When we are through practicing Bryan is watching football films. He is a fine kid and is very capable of playing college football. He is working on other parts of his game that will make him a better player."

"I'm disappointed that we're not in contention for the district this year," said Combs, "but I can see the reasoning behind it. Looking at where the program is at and the shape it was in. The main goal for all of us is to have a winning season."

Clyde Bush will be playing his third season as a Bobcat but the thought of not being able to win a title hurts.

"We finally got a team together, along with a coach, that is capable of challenging in the district and now we're not going to be able to compete," said Bush. "But I can see the reasoning behind the decision to withdraw from competition."

Bush was a hard hitter on defense last year for the Bobcats but will be moved into the tailback slot of offense this season.

"Clyde's got good speed and is a tough player," said Coach Cecil. "He

Football fever running high in Bobcat camp as season nears

In just 21 short days the 1992 high school football season will kick off as all four of the county schools will be in action (Prestonsburg plays August 29) in what they all hope to be a successful campaign this season.

For the Betsy Layne Bobcats new coaching staff, the season can't start soon enough for them. They are ready and chomping at the bits to get started.

There is a whole new excitement in the Betsy Layne camp this year as new head coach John Derossett heads up a program that will be coming off a 0-10 season and winners of only one game in the past two years.

On hand to help out will be some experienced assistants that Coach Derossett feels will add to this year's program.

Former Prestonsburg Blackcats Clyde Johnson and James Derossett have joined the staff at Betsy Layne along with third year assistant Jody Cecil. Johnson played with Coach Derossett when both were players for the Blackcats under then-coach Phillip Haywood in 1984. Derossett graduated last season from Prestonsburg where he had a successful run on the grid iron. Cecil has been a mainstay at Betsy Layne entering his third year as an Bobcat assistant.

Johnson does not bring any college playing experience with him to Betsy Layne but has no doubt that he can bring something useful to the Bobcats program.

"No, I didn't play college football," he explained, "but I feel that I have something to bring to the kids here. Having been around programs that have been run well in the past and working with other camps, I feel that I can bring a winning attitude to these kids.

"I want them to act and feel like winners," he continued, "to show some class on and off the field. I want them to take pride in the football program here at Betsy Layne and if they expect to win when they walk on the field, then they will win."

Johnson said that the kids in the Betsy Layne camp this year are "like sponges that are just absorbing up everything that's being taught them."

What Coach Derossett has brought to the program at Betsy Layne seems to have influenced all the other coaches.

"I can honestly say that Coach Derossett truly loves what he is doing and that is teaching kids the game of football," said Johnson. "He has more spirit about him than anyone else I have been around. He's a professional at it and he loves to see the kids learn and play football."

James Derossett, who came from a very successful program in the four years he played for Prestonsburg, sees something else in this year's Bobcat squad.

"The players are hungry for a good season," the new assistant coach stated. They do what is asked of them and they are all hard workers. The program has been down for so long that they are all ready for a change. I really expect them to have a successful year. We may not win a lot of games but the win and loss record does not indicate success or failure. This is a class group of players."

Still Coach Cecil sees other changes that will affect this year's team.

"I have seen Coach Derossett make a big change in this team," he stated. "Discipline is much better and all the kids seem to have a better attitude because they are going to get to play."

"Another area of improvement there is no waste of time," he continued. "Everything is more efficient."

"These kids started months ago in getting ready for the season," explained Coach Johnson. "They've worked real hard. We just recently had a two-day camp for grade school players all over the county who wanted to come. When they left here after those two days, they were excited and they will take that back to school with them."

Johnson expressed the importance of having a successful feeder school. "It is very important that your feeder schools be well organized all the way down," he commented. "Coach Derossett will work with all the coaches in our feeder system and, hopefully, we can get some quality players from it."

Coach James Derossett will be coaching the grade school feeder team that will include players from Betsy Layne, Stumbo, Harold and Prater. Derossett will also be coaching the freshman team.

A head football coach needs to surround himself with some capable and hard-working assistants and Coach John Derossett seems to have done just that.

Betsy Layne's football practices are not your normal set times. The team has been camping out at the school and staying not just through the day but all night also.

picks up on offense real well."

"I think the new attitude on the team is great," commented Bush, "and everything is so positive. With the combination of both, we are building our confidence."

"The coaches this year have taught us respect and made us realize that we can do the job. If we can't, then we just have to keep working hard and keep trying."

Bush says that he likes playing defense but looks forward to being on the offensively line this year.

Tight end Jamie Newsome echoes the same feelings of the other seniors in believing that this could be the best year that Betsy Layne has had in football.

"Because of the different attitudes on this team and the coaches we have this year," he explained. "They push us as far as we can go. All the players are really trying to make it a good team this year."

Newsome just wants to do all he can to help out on offense this year at his end position, although he likes playing on the defensive side also.

"It bothers me that we are not going to be playing for a district title this year but I can still see the reasons behind the decision not to compete. We have something this year that has been missing in past years," said Newsome, "and that's discipline and pride."

First year player Brad McKinney came for the team this year because of all the talk of the new coach that would be in town and that things were going to be done different.

"The past year wasn't that great," he said, "but when I heard of the changes that were coming I decided to go out for the team. 'I've been to every practice just like everyone here and I hope to be able to contribute to the team this season."

McKinney said being what the record has been the past two seasons at Betsy Layne he can understand the move to withdraw from the district this year.

"I would like the team to be able to compete this year but I understand the decision," he said. "I'll just work hard and try and help the team by doing the best that I can."

Wayne Stevens does not see it as an impossible feat to break the school record for most wins in a season at Betsy Layne. The Bobcats won six games back in 1984 and that is not an impossibility as far as Stevens is concerned.

"This is going to be a good team that everybody wants to be a part of," said Stevens. I really believe that we can break the old school record for wins. In the past it has always been the same people but this year is different because we have more new people."

Steven specializes on defense and has set a goal of 30 quarterback sacks this season. "I just want to contribute what I can and I have been coming to all the practices."

Halfback Doug Hammond in his last season at Betsy Layne will try to lead the county in scoring. Hammond also has set a goal of rushing for 1,000 yards this season — a goal he doesn't think is impossible.

"I'm looking forward to the season," said Hammonds. "I have always felt that we have had the talent here at Betsy Layne and just haven't shown it yet. I think we have a good season this year and really I don't see a team on our schedule that we can't beat."

Hammond said that he likes to play against good competition because it "makes you a better player."

While being disappointed in not playing for the district title this year, Hammond just wants to use the games to improve on.

"I want to lead the county in scoring and rush for 1,000 yards," said the hard running back.

One player you don't want coming at you is Ashley Lykins. Lykins is entering the camp this year with a whole different attitude just like the other Bobcat players.

"We've had an attitude change," said the defensive linebacker who will also be at the fullback spot. "We have taken some personal pride in the team and we will be playing with more confidence. We have an experienced backfield returning but I think I've got what it takes to play the fullback spot even though it is my first year there."

Lykins feels that a goal of 1,200 yards is not unrealistic.

"I just want to do what the coaches ask of me," said halfback Bryan Bowling. "I want to gain some experience and one thing I like about this team is the team effort that is there. There is not one individual but a team effort."

"The new coaches have taught us respect all the way around and has helped us to instill some confidence in ourselves."

While, like all the others, Bowling is disappointed in not being eligible for a district championship this year, he still expects the team to have a good season and to achieve a lot this year.

"Our line may be young this year but I feel we are solid there," he said. "We all have pride in the program this year."

Bush said it all in a closing statement when he referred to how the community is starting to talk about this year's team and asking how practice was going. "The community seems to be pulling together — that will help build our confidence if they get behind us."

Bush said there was no negative thoughts from any of the players about playing this year and they just needed to play as a unit.

A Look At Sports

and what about that.

With the start of school the last of August, things will begin to get busy again and we'll football it for two months; then turn our attention to the roundball season.

Someone asked me last Tuesday how I'm picking the upcoming basketball season (football hasn't started yet) and I told them I'm not. But I will predict a district title for Prestonsburg football team and a very good shot at a regional title. The Cats will be tough to contain. Middlesboro will be a formidable foe. "It will be a long trip to Middlesboro," said Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton Tuesday. But the Blackcats could be a surprise even there.

We will have our "Pigskin Picks" again this season, so stay tuned!

Until whenever I get back, good sports everyone and be good sports.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Dimitri caught Helga burning the codicil. She told him it was a log she kept of his trysts with Erica. Later, at the engagement luncheon, Edmund told Brooke about the codicil which claimed he was Hugo Marrick's son, and the heir to Wildwind. Unaware that an emotionally upset Edmund had trashed the lodge, Dimitri blamed Erica, who was stunned at the accusation. Galen installed bugging devices to tap Carter. Dimitri told Jack he's committed to his marriage to Angelique, which meant Jack had no right to pursue her. Wait To See: Stuart learns of Adam's probing into Gloria's motives.

ANOTHER WORLD: Lorna was about to reveal the truth about her parentage when she overheard Jenna tell Felicia she'd do anything for her except forgive Lorna for all she's done. Jamie reconciled his differences with Jake. But later, a distraught Iris called Rachel after viewing the tapes, crying that they could ruin Jamie, Kelsey, and Bay City General Hospital. Kevin saved Sally from committing suicide, and vowed that Lucas would pay. Later, Lorna found Lucas in a life and death situation. She rushed him to the hospital where she signed consent as his next of kin. Wait To See: Carl's plan to get Ryan through Vicky takes a disturbing turn.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Darryl arrived while Frannie was reading Carolyn's papers, and discovered how many lies he had told her. In a rage, he tried to burn the papers, but she struggled with him, hitting him on the head with a poker. He followed her onto the tram, and both were trapped when it malfunctioned. Later, when they're rescued, Frannie returned to Oakdale to tell a shocked Barbara what she suspects about Darryl. Despite his doctors' belief that he would never recall anything, including who he was, Holden seemed to be remembering something. John was stunned by Iva's anger when she learned he'd told Lucinda about her pregnancy. Wait To See: Darryl's fears about what Frannie thinks she knows drive him to make a desperate decision.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Saul offered Sally an engagement ring, and proposed. Despite her belief that marriage wouldn't work for them, he insisted she take more time to think about it. Taylor was upset to see Blake, believing he'd come to talk Ridge into leaving her, so Blake could have her back. Felicia told Stephanie she was puzzled by Zach's refusal to come to dinner at the Forresters (unaware that Zach didn't want to see his father, Jack). Karen and Thorne hid as Bill returned home with his "mystery woman." Thorne was floored when he recognized the voice of Darla.

SUMMER TIME AND THE LIVING IS EASY

There's something about a lazy, hot, summer Sunday afternoon that defies explanation. It's something that's on the tip of your tongue, but you can't quite put your finger on it. This past Sunday was one of those days.

It started out like a typical Sunday, but by two o'clock in the afternoon, you knew it wasn't going to be normal.

"What are you eating, J.R.?" I asked.

"Pop Tarts," he answered quickly. "Dinner will be ready in about 30 minutes. Don't eat that junk now."

"It's not junk when I eat it for breakfast," he said, smartly. Just put it up.

"What's for dinner?"

"Roast."

"Yuck."

"You like roast."

"I'm not really up for roast."

Then my nephew Josh came into the kitchen and he started to fix himself a Pop Tart.

"Put that away. Dinner's almost ready."

"Then why are you letting J.R. eat them," he said, as he saw J.R. holding a Pop Tart package.

"He's not going to eat them. He's putting them up."

That's when we heard a car door shut and seconds later the grandchildren came running into the kitchen.

"Can we have a Pop Tart, too?" they asked, innocently.

"We're not eating Pop Tarts," I said, numbly.

"Then why are J.R. and Josh holding them?" my grandson Zachary asked.

The look I directed at J.R. and Josh resulted in their throwing the Pop Tarts on the counter as they hurried out the door to play basketball.

"Are you hungry?" I asked the grandchildren's mother, Tara.

"No, I'm on a diet," she said, as she prepared some formula for the new baby. "I've lost two more pounds."

I told her that was great as I shoved a handful of Doritos into my mouth. It was only seconds later that the day took a turn for the worse as the baby started crying uncontrollably.

"What's wrong with her? She never cries."

"I don't know. She's cried all day."

The next thing we heard was the granddaughter, Malorie, screaming at the top of her lungs as she burst through the door with her brother right behind her.

"What's wrong? I questioned."

"Wah! Zachary, Wah! Zachary, Wah!"

"I didn't see her!" Zachary screamed.

Dog star

Jodie Lynn, owned by Patty May of Allen, has amazed audiences with her canine performance as Toto. She is pictured with Misty Daniels, who portrays Dorothy.

Local dog becomes a star as Toto at Jenny Wiley Theatre

When Patty May of Allen met a plane in Lexington five years ago, she had no idea that one day she would have a member of her family performing at Jenny Wiley Theatre in Prestonsburg.

Patty went to Lexington that day to pick up her six-week-old Australian Terrier, Jodie Lynn.

Since that time, the two have been inseparable and Patty says Jodie's new found stardom was never planned.

"I heard about the auditions for Toto from the girls who work with me in my office," said Patty. "They said 'That's Jodie! You've got to let her be a star!' Well, I was reluctant at first because we're never really apart, but we went to the audition and she got the part."

A part she won with no formal training of any kind, not even any from Patty herself.

"I've just always treated her just like a human being and she loves humans," she said. "They (the staff at Jenny Wiley Theatre) have just treated her wonderfully and she really loves Dorothy (Misty Daniels of Pikeville)."

Daniels says about her co-star, "Oh, she's simply wonderful. We hit it off immediately. Now when she sees me, she gets really excited. It's like she knows she needs to be near me."

Patty said Jodie Lynn always stays near humans because she's been raised that way.

"She lives in the house, sleeps with me and eats at the dinner table with me," she said.

Jodie Lynn enjoys Puppy Chow most of the time but indulges in lettuce, chicken and tomatoes on occasion.

"Her favorite is lettuce," said Patty. "It helps keep her weight down."

Jodie Lynn weighs in at a whopping 9 pounds.

That's 9 pounds of energy and joy for the Wizard of Oz audiences and the theatre staff.

"She's really enjoyed it," said Patty. "When we turn into the theatre parking lot, she jumps up in the window and wants to jump out."

Patty said she can't watch Jodie Lynn perform because she's afraid she'll recognize her in the audience and run toward her, but there's another reason as well.

"I get really nervous and I'm afraid she'll mess up," said Patty.

No problem there, Jodie Lynn has amazed audiences night after night when she hits all her marks.

It's just another story of every dog having its day. For local star, Jodie Lynn May, that day is at night on the stage at Jenny Wiley Theatre. For ticket information, phone (606) 886-9274.

I went shopping the other day. It wasn't by choice, mind you. We just happened to be in Lexington and less than an inch from about eleven-seventy-seven malls anyway and, for some reason or another, my wife insisted that just because all the leather had peeled off my tennis shoes and there were huge holes in the soles, it was time to get a new pair.

I don't know where women get these silly ideas. Keep in mind that this was our first real trip to a mall since we got married. We did stop at a mall briefly on our honeymoon, but that doesn't really count because: 1) in the first week of your marriage, whatever your significant other wants to do, eat, drink, say, spend, borrow or even think is perfectly all right with you because you don't want to tee them off and end up sleeping on the couch on your honeymoon; and 2) we were spending pretty freely because among the numerous toaster ovens, dishes, silverware and sheet sets we received as wedding presents, we also received MORE MONEY THAN WE HAD EVER SEEN IN OUR LIVES, all of which we blew on absolutely nothing.

Anyways, I'm pretty sure that the shoe thing was just a pretense to get me into the mall because, oddly enough, the first thing she wanted to look at was new purses.

Now in all fairness, she wanted to get my shoes first. Of course, my being a newlywed and all, my husbandese hasn't yet become quite as sharp as it should be.

What I have since learned is that, under the Geneva Convention rules of shopping, if the husband buys, say, a pair of socks, it is perfectly acceptable for the wife to then buy an attractive outfit, a pair of earrings to go with it and maybe a cute little pair of Italian pumps, a couple of cassettes, a new jacket, a new sweater and a Mercedes-Benz.

Buying my shoes was a relatively painless process. I went in two of the mall's seemingly endless number of shoe stores and took a brief glance at prices before ending up at Shoes For A Dollar for their special half-price sale, where I spent approximately thirty seconds looking at their scant supply of mens' shoes before picking out a pair of canvas sneakers for about thirty cents.

I think that's the extent of most men's shopping habits. We go into a store knowing exactly what we want and exactly what we want to pay for it.

We're amateurs. Part of our problem, I think, is that we have so few choices. In the store I went into, they had about three different styles of mens' athletic shoes to pick from, two of which required in-store financing. Easy choice.

The womens' section, however, had 357 different styles of shoes in 457 different colors and varieties and 557 different price ranges.

I don't know about you, but I usually spend half an hour picking out what I want to eat at Lee's Famous Recipe, and there you're pretty much limited to chicken.

So anyways, the shoes having been bought, it was purse shopping time. Screwing up my courage and patting my checkbook halt for reassurance and half out of sheer, stark, staring fear for its safety, I bravely ventured into the purse section of the Really Big, Really Expensive, Really Rude Sales Clerks Department Store, where their motto is "The customer always apologizes first."

Now, I thought women had an awfully lot of shoes to pick from. You should've seen the purses.

They had purses in sizes extra-small, small, medium, large, extra-large, jumbo, family-size, economy-size and larger than Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties put together-size.

They came in various shades of blue, brown, black, red, green, gold, orange, pink, purple, plaid, polka-dot and candy-striped. Glitter and non-glitter.

They had purses made of silk, leather, pleather, plastic, PVC, denim, vinyl, cotton, nylon, burlap, rope and a few other materials I couldn't even identify.

They even had, and I swear this is the truth, purses made of frogskin. I don't know if you've seen 'em, but let me just tell ya buddy, that must have been one heck of a big frog. I'd have hated to have seen that sucker when it was alive, 'cause instead of flies it must've eaten stuff like poodles, housecats and small children.

After about an hour, my lovely wife had picked out two purses and then asked me which one I liked the best.

I of course made the horrible mistake of actually telling her which one I liked best instead of falling back on the old, intelligent husband standby "They both look nice, dear."

She of course said, "I don't knowwww... don't you think it's a little small?"

Realizing my tragic error and remembering that she did in fact keep all her worldly possessions, including all her jewelry, her entire wardrobe and about $2 million in pennies in her purse, I quickly said "You're right dear, that one is much too small. You really should get the jumbo economy sized candy-striped vinyl purse. With glitter."

"I don't knowwww...", she said. "That one's sort of tacky."

Finally, after the seasons had changed twice and I had grown a full beard, my wife made her selection: a saddlebag.

Well, it looked like a saddlebag to me.

She informed me that it was, in fact, very stylish.

I then remarked that in the future, we might save a little money if we did all of our shopping at the stockyard.

I think I came dangerously close to sleeping on the couch.

At any rate, to my incredible delight and disbelief, the purse actually cost slightly less than the shoes I had just bought, even though I had been reasonably certain that the rate of inflation had gone up at least 12 percent while we had been in the purse section.

When we finally got to the counter, my wife's face beaming with pride at her frugal-yet-elegant choice, we were greeted by Matilda the Hun, chief sales clerk of the Really Big, Really Expensive, Really Rude Sales Clerks Department Store.

When we answered "check" to the age-old question "cash or charge?" ol' Matilda cast a reptile-like glance in our general direction and looked at us like we had in reality said "food-stamps."

After we showed her about thirty I.D.s and she had completed her thorough check of the last twenty years of our lives and discovered we did not have criminal records, Matilda fi-

THE YOUNG AND THE ZESTFUL—The folks on this CBS series have been busy making all kinds of news, to wit: Eric Braeden (Victor) and Monaco's Prince Albert won the Monte Carlo International Tennis Prix, which benefits the Princess Grace Foundation. Prince Rainier presented the trophy and a gold watch to Eric and Prince Albert. Braeden was the only daytime star among a covey of celebrities (Sharon Stone, Regis Philbin, etc.) who participated in the only sport in which Love means you don't score! John Forsythe, whose fans yearn to see him return to a prime time soaper, was also there.

Y&R's Nikki Newman Abbott may still be working her way through a daytime daze vis-a-vis her feelings for ex spouse Victor, (Braeden). But in real life, Melody Thomas Scott has no illusions about the state of the ecology. As her fans know, she's hosting her third fundraiser Aug. 7 at the Bel Air Hotel to benefit the Woodland Hills, Los Angeles branch of the "Save the Earth Foundation." Most of Y&R's cast will be there. The celebrity host is Ray Coombs, who helms the "Family Feud."

English-born, Jamaica-raised, and former Canadian resident, Tony Lee Williams, who plays Olivia on Y&R, would love to hear from viewers on where they'd like the story to take Olivia, who is battling cervical cancer. REX ON A ROLL: Rex Smith, Darryl Crawford on "As The World Turns," recently showed fans just how far he'll go to keep things exciting. Dangling from a tram in a Swiss Alps scene, he both took our breath away and managed to absolve himself of a murder at the same time, much to his wife, Frannie's (Mary Ellen Stuart) delight (and ours as well!).

WAGNER SCORES: "Santa Barbara's" Jack Wagner took part in NBC's recently televised Isuzu Celebrity Golf Tournament at Lake Tahoe, Nevada. Jack, who finished near the top, doesn't just dally as a duffer. He's quite adept at making the divots fly, having been Missouri State Champion as well as Bel Air Country Club champion.

STORK TALK: Michelle and Jamie Goodwin (he's Kevin on "Another World" and their toddler son, Zane, welcomed Benjamin Joseph who weighed in at 8 pounds, 13 ounces at his June debut. Said the proud papa: "He certainly knew how to make an entrance."

ASTHEWORLD TURNS' Colleen Zenk Pinter (Barbara) is in Vancouver for NBC's "Women on the Edge." The flick stars Michael Zaslow ("Guiding Light"), Leslie Charleson ("General Hospital"), Deidre Hall ("Days Of Our Lives") and a host of other soap folks.

"Wah!" Malorie screamed as she grabbed her foot and fell to the floor. "He closed my foot in the car door!" "What were you doing in the car?" their mother asked.

"I was trying to get Zachary out of the car," Malorie said.

"I wasn't in the car, Mama," Zachary said. "I was just playing the radio."

"Then you were in the car." As I started to the kitchen to get some ice for Malorie's foot, Josh came tearing through the back door with blood dripping from his knee.

"What happened to you?" I asked. "I ran into the concrete wall. Do I have to go to the hospital?"

"I don't think so. Sit up on the counter and I'll look at it as soon as I put this ice on Malorie's foot," I said.

After attending to Malorie's swollen foot, I went back to the kitchen to see a pained expression on Josh's face as he sat on the counter. I swabbed the wound with alcohol and concluded that amputation would not be necessary.

So much for lazy, Sunday afternoons that defy explanation. At least we sleep soundly.

After Frank forcibly kissed B.J., she stabbed him in the hand with scissors, and left the cabin. After learning Ken had moved in with Sophia, C.C. asked Mason, Julia, Sami, and Dreyfus to move into the mansion with him. Lisa overheard Lily and threatened Rafe she'll have an abortion, leading him to propose to her. Wait To See: Cruz's life takes an interesting new turn.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: An angry Jill warned Dru she won't let her pose nude for Sensuality Magazine. Blade explained to a startled Marietta about Dru's exclusivity contract with Jabot. TELL ME WHY

WHAT CAUSES OUR DREAMS?

Let us begin by saying what does not cause our dreams. Our dreams do not come from "another world." They are not messages from some outside source. They are not a look into the future, nor do they prophesy anything.

All our dreams have something to do with our emotions, fears, longings, wishes, needs, memories. But something on the "outside" may influence what we dream. If a person is hungry, or tired, or cold, his dreams may include this feeling. The material for the dream you have tonight is likely to come from the experiences you will have today.

So the content of your dream comes from something that affects you while you are sleeping (you are cold, a noise, a discomfort, etc.) and it may also use your past experiences and the urges and interests you have now. That is why very young people are likely to dream of wizards and fairies, older children of school exams, hungry people of food, homesick soldiers of their families, and prisoners of freedom.

There are people called psychoanalysts who have made a special study of why we dream what we dream and what those dreams mean. Their interpretation of dreams is not accepted by everyone, but it offers an interesting approach to the problem.

They believe that dreams are expressions of wishes that didn't come true, of frustrated yearnings. In other words, a dream is a way of having your wish fulfilled. They believe a dream provides an outlet for our wishes, and they may be wishes we didn't even know we had.

Dear Abby

Harvard Outfielder's Glove Doesn't Have What It Got

DEAR ABBY: You had a column recently that I enjoyed very much. It had to do with common misusage of the language.

That subject brings to mind this story that Vin Scully, radio/TV announcer for the Los Angeles Dodgers, enjoys telling:

It seems there was a very talented outfielder who had played for Harvard University's baseball team. He could gather in any fly ball that came anywhere near his territory—and when he caught it he'd yell, "I got it! I got it!"

Between innings, the manager went to this player and said, "Jonsey—you are undoubtedly the best outfielder in college baseball, but I would like to remind you that we represent a highly respected university, and we should speak accordingly. The correct phrase is, 'I have'.

The outfielder replied, "OK, Coach, I'll remember."

The next inning, Jonsey went to his position, and the inevitable fly ball came toward him. He jumped two feet into the air and caught it, yelling, "I have it! I have it!" Then he promptly dropped the ball.

A.R. CHARLES CONCORD, CALIF.

DEAR MR. CHARLES: Beautiful! Thanks for the memory.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Remembering Lisa," the man who could not forget his high school sweetheart, tell him to leave no stone unturned. It may be the best thing that ever happened to him.

I, too, had a young man I had dated whom I could not get out of my system. He had married and divorced, and I had never married. We found each other last February, and we are to be married in October!

Neither of us was (or is) the same. We are older, wiser, and much more able to handle all aspects of our relationship, including those that troubled us early on.

Don't let the distance stop you. We were 1,300 miles apart, and now reside in the same city. Abby, one phone call could change his life. It did mine. You may use my name.

LOVE IS LOVELIER THE

SECOND TIME AROUND (KIM JOLLIFF, DENVER)

DEAR KIM: Congratulations and may all of God's blessings be yours. Your letter is further testimony to the wisdom of keeping all one's old telephone numbers and addresses. Nothing ventured, nothing gained.

DEAR ABBY: I love the limericks in your column. Please keep them coming. Here's my all-time favorite. I believe Bennett Cerf is the author:

Wrote a swain to his gal in Saskatchewan,

"If you'll wear my ring, I'll dispatch you"

Fee-Only Life Insurance Advisers What You Should Know

A fee-only life insurance adviser will provide you with objective advice and access to wholesale costs for policies you may buy.

Imagine how you would feel if your physician's only compensation was a commission on the drugs he or she prescribed. That will give you an idea of how a growing number of American families are viewing their life insurance purchases. Those unsure about the objectivity of insurance salesmen have begun to look into fee-only advisers.

According to Peter C. Katt, author of The Life Insurance Fiasco: How To Avoid It ($19.95, Dolphin), fee-only life insurance advisers are compensated directly by their clients, rather than earning commissions paid by insurance companies for selling life insurance policies. As a result, fee-only advisers have an incentive to provide objective advice, based on what is best for the client.

For example, a fee-only adviser's recommendation to someone considering purchasing life insurance to pay estate taxes may be not to buy life insurance at all, but to use other strategies instead—a recommendation a commission-motivated agent may not make.

Katt points out that in addition to unbiased advice, fee-only life insurance advisers give their clients access to wholesale costs for life insurance purchases by recommending low-load, no-commission products whenever appropriate and possible. The Life Insurance Advisers Association (1-800-521-4578) will put callers in touch with fee-only advisers. Check your local bookstore for Katt's new book or call 1-800-345-0096 for information on how to get a copy.
