Commonwealth calls memory loss 'too convenient':

Defendant can't remember pulling trigger

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County man charged with murder in the September 1991 shooting death of a McDowell man testified Thursday that he had no memory of the incident.

Frank DeRossett, 51, of Allen was indicted on the murder charge last year for allegedly shooting Clive "Bubby" Case five times at the American Legion Club in Martin.

"My last conscious thought that night was Case walking up toward the bandstand," DeRossett testified. "The next memory I have is standing there with my back to the band and the overhead light was on. I knew something bad had happened but I didn't know what had happened."

DeRossett said that Case began threatening and harassing him by phone in 1980 after DeRossett fired Case from his job at National Mines. DeRossett said Case continued to call him until 1987, and threatening to get revenge. He said Case had threatened to burn his home while he was in it.

"He would tell me I screwed his life, that he would get even and that he would kill me," DeRossett said. "I didn't know how to handle (the situation)."

DeRossett said he had been playing poker at the club on September 7, the day of the shooting, and saw Case later that night. Case was a member of the band playing at the American Legion that night.

The defendant said he and Case talked on two occasions and Case repeated earlier threats to get revenge for the firing. DeRossett added that his stepson, Nicky Hamilton, was talking with Case that night and told Case where DeRossett was living.

"The first thing Case said to me was 'So you live down at Allen with your dad,'" DeRossett said. "I felt helpless and like the phone calls had started again. I was scared. Because anyone who holds a grudge that many years has something in mind."

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton called DeRossett's memory lapse "convenient" and told DeRossett that he obviously knew how to find his car, get the gun from his home and drive back to the club and shoot Case.

"It's a little bit too convenient to forget that," Patton said. "Do you remember telling the psychologist that you 'wanted something physical' and that you hated Case?"

DeRossett responded, "my memory is very bad."

Harwell Smith, a clinical psychologist, testified that DeRossett suffered from an extreme emotional disturbance at the time of the shooting caused, in part, by his fear of Case. Smith also said DeRossett suffered from organic brain syndrome, a form of brain damage caused by drink-

Bomb probe continues

A second homemade bomb was found in a mailbox Wednesday at a residence at Emma.

An unidentified resident reported the bomb to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department Wednesday evening and the incident is believed to be connected to the Saturday night bombing of a mailbox at the Banner Post Office.

The fuse to the bomb found in the mailbox appeared to have been lit but it did not detonate. The bomb con-

Bee causes traffic delay

Officials say a bumblebee caused the accident Wednesday in which a fully-loaded Peterbilt coal truck overturned on Route 114, blocking traffic for nearly an hour.

Trooper Scott Hopkins of the Pikeville post of the Kentucky State Police said Thursday that Jack Alsept, Jr., of Rousseau, was heading west on Ky.114 at approximately 11:14 a.m. Wednesday when a large bumblebee flew in the truck-cab window.

Alsept later told Hopkins that he was allergic to bee stings and was preoccupied with slapping the bee away when he went off the road around a curve approximately one-tenth of a mile east of Fitzpatrick Road near Prestonsburg.

Rescuers relieved no body was found

by Geoff Belcher

Rescuers with the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad spent over three hours Wednesday diligently searching for a suspected drowning victim.

The search took place in response to a report made by two fishermen who said they had found what may have been a body at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineer's Downstream Recreation Area at Dewey Dam.

Also on the scene were Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and Chief Deputy Linzie Hunt.

Thompson and a spokesperson for the Corps of Engineers said that Lanzie Keens and Keith Causey, both of Lackey, reported to the Corps office at about 1:30 p.m. that they had retrieved from the water what they thought was a body wearing a blue shirt with red stripes.

However, the two men said, the fishing line broke and their catch sank before they could clearly identify what it was.

Thompson said that although a preliminary search of the water produced a blue and a red garbage bag, which rescuers thought may have been what the fishermen saw, the rescuers continued their operation until they were positive the report was not the product of overactive imaginations.

About ten rescue squad members in motor boats dragged the entire downstream area until well after 5 p.m., when they were thoroughly satisfied that there was no body in the water.

Although the report proved unfounded, rescue squad members were relieved rather than irritated.

"This is one job where you want to turn up empty-handed," a rescue squad spokesman said Wednesday. "We're just glad that nobody drowned."

County garbage problems keep solid waste commissioner at home

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

An official with the Floyd County Solid Waste System has turned down an invitation to help solve sanitation problems in Russia, Ukraine and Estonia because he's busy solving sanitation problems that closed Floyd County's landfill on July 31.

Robert McAninch, commissioner of Floyd County Solid Waste, who has twice visited Russia as part of the Citizen Ambassador Program of People to People International to assist with waste management there, met with engineers in Frankfurt last week to propose using Garth Hollow as the site of a permanent landfill in 1995.

Garth Hollow has two heads, McAninch explained. The closed landfill is located in the larger section. The temporary landfill, which is scheduled to open within six weeks will be located in the smaller branch of the hollow.

McAninch proposes to build the permanent landfill near the junction of those branches and extend the liner over the bigger landfill that is now closed. Engineers are studying the new concept, said McAninch, and should reach a decision soon on the location of the permanent landfill.

Floyd County's landfill was closed due to restrictions imposed by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). McAninch questioned the closing of the landfill, and said he believed the landfill falls within regulation guidelines.

EPA regulations require that the clay lining should be rated 10 to minus

Stumbo to undergo surgery

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Floyd County Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo remained in good spirits at the Highlands Regional Medical Center Thursday, although he expected to undergo surgery late Thursday afternoon.

Stumbo, who for the first few days of his hospital stay continued to conduct county business, admitted himself to Highlands Saturday after he discovered he was suffering from anemia and a high potassium level.

Stumbo declined to discuss details of his upcoming surgery, but said that the procedure should be relatively minor and that he wasn't worried.

"I'm feeling much better now," Stumbo said Thursday, although he added that he was no longer answering the phone with the line "Judge's office," which he said Tuesday was intended to amuse and relieve those worried about him.

It is uncertain just when Stumbo will be released from the hospital, pending his recovery from Thursday's surgery.

Friday's Floyd Fiscal Court meeting will proceed as scheduled.

Drivers ready to hit the road

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Classes apparently will begin in the Floyd County School System August 31 without the threat of a work stoppage for the first time in two years with bus drivers voting Tuesday to accept an agreement with the board of education.

Bus drivers voted 23-8 to accept a proposal that will boost their pay by 11 percent, that will award extra pay routes by seniority and allow all drivers a chance to drive on extracurricular trips.

Drivers met behind closed doors for about an hour Tuesday evening to discuss a proposal presented by superintendent Steve Towler. The agreement provides $33 per day for drivers with up to five years driving experience and $38 for drivers with five or more years experience.

The agreement also awards preschool and Floyd County Technical High School bus routes to drivers based on seniority.

Classified school workers staged a five-day walkout last year after the board refused to recognize the Teamster's Union as the bargaining agent for the workers.

Floyd County teachers went on strike for 10 days in 1990 wanting a pay raise and better working conditions.

"School will start on August 31," said Darrell Preston, spokesman for the bus drivers. "Dr. Towler has done a sufficient job of meeting our demands. Our main concern was the rate of pay and to be treated fair. Money was a big part of it but it's not the only issue."

Preston said Towler also agreed to take a "closer look" at the health care benefits for drivers.

Towler said Thursday that he had come to a "good faith agreement" with the system's bus drivers which, "hopefully," will allow school to open on August 31 with drivers in full force.

Specifics of the agreement won't be detailed until the board has a chance to review and act on the proposal at the September meeting, Towler said. A special called meeting of the board is not anticipated.

Hit-and-run driver sought

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Police are continuing their search for the driver of a vehicle involved in a hit and run accident in Prestonsburg Wednesday that hospitalized a Menifee County boy.

Jason Tackett, 12, was staying with relatives in Prestonsburg Wednesday afternoon when the motor scooter he was riding collided with an older model black van at the intersection of Poplar Street and South Lake Drive, police say. The accident occurred at approximately 7 a.m.

After receiving emergency treatment from the Prestonsburg Fire Department and Respond Ambulance Service, Tackett was rushed to Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he remains in stable condition.

The incident is currently under investigation by the Prestonsburg City Police.

Witnesses to the accident or persons with information regarding the identity of the van's driver are urged to contact the Prestonsburg City Police at 886-1010.

Fundraiser lunch planned for Hays

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A fund-raising luncheon to benefit the campaign of 5th Congressional District Democratic candidate John Doug Hays will be held next Wednesday, August 26.

The event will be hosted by U.S. Senator Wendell Ford, Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton, U.S. Congressman Chris Perkins, State Democratic Party Chairman Dr. Grady Stumbo, State Senator Kelsey Friend, former State Senator F.M. Burke and Faye Burke.

Acting as special co-hosts to the luncheon will be Democratic State Senators and Representatives from all over the 5th District, several Pike County officials and Ron Cyrus, father of country music superstar Billy Ray Cyrus.

Cyrus is a Democratic State Representative from Greenup County and works for the AFL-CIO.

Hays, a Pikeville attorney, said in a press release issued Thursday that he hoped the strong Democratic ticket in both national and state elections would provide voters with a great op-

Break-in at Wheelwright

Wheelwright police chief thwarts robbery

by Geoff Belcher

Quick action on the part of Wheelwright Chief of Police Charles Harmon thwarted an attempted break-in at the old Dollar Store in downtown Wheelwright early Tuesday morning.

Harmon said Tuesday that he was conducting his regular nightly patrol of the city when at about 1 a.m. he chanced upon several men attempting to gain entrance to the old Dollar Store building, which is currently standing unused.

The glass entrance to the door had been shattered, Harmon said. He estimated that the cost of replacing the door would be over $1,000.

The building, Harmon said, contained appliances and freezer equipment with which building-owner Bob Moore had planned to open an appliance store.

Harmon took the men into custody at approximately 1:10 a.m.

By 1:49 a.m., Harmon, assisted by Floyd County Sheriff's Deputy Shawn Roop, had also apprehended Bobby J. Hall, of Melvin, as another suspect in the break-in.

Hall, currently lodged in the Floyd County Jail, has been charged with Criminal Mischief in the 1st Degree, a Class D felony.

Harmon did not reveal the names of the other suspects involved in the break-in attempt.

tained what appeared to be black powder and smaller buckshot pellets.

The bomb found at the Banner Post Office was similar in appearance but contained larger steel balls. That bomb was picked up at the Floyd County Sheriff's Department Wednesday by federal postal authorities who returned Thursday to recover the second bomb. Both devices will be analyzed by federal authorities.

The bomb detonated at the Banner site damaged the mailbox and no damages were reported at the Emma residence.

The incidents are being investigated by Floyd County deputy sergeant Lloyd Powers and the federal postal authorities.

Anyone with any information about the incidents are asked to call the sheriff's department at 886-6711.

off the road, Hopkins said, both lanes of traffic were blocked later that afternoon when truck owner Howard E. Hayes, of Jackson, and Conley's Wrecker Service arrived to remove the vehicle.

There was no sign of excessive speed or reckless driving, Hopkins said. Alsept received only minor cuts and bruises.

The bee escaped unharmed.

Garbage

7, engineering terminology for the rate which liquid passes through the clay lining. "The clay lining has to be able to contain liquid — without liquid seeping through — over a period of time," McAninch explained. "In other words, we're trying to create a big garbage can that won't leak."

When the Floyd County landfill was built, the lining tested at 10 to minus 6, said McAninch. At that time, garbage had not compacted the lining, McAninch said, and if the landfill was tested now, after it had been compacted by layers of trash, then it should test at 10 to minus 7.

McAninch said state officials agreed with him, but told him he had to prove his point. McAninch said to do the testing he would have to tunnel under layers of trash because it's now illegal to drill into a landfill, and that would be too expensive.

Though regulations didn't require it, McAninch said, about 40 inches to 9 feet of clay lining was used, when the landfill was built in 1981.

The temporary landfill will have a 12" clay liner with 60 mil plastic liner, but the 1995 landfill will have eight layers: filter fabric, drainage layer, synthetic liner, 36" clay liner, then another filter liner and drainage liner, synthetic line, and another 12" clay liner. The permanent landfill will require six acres, said McAninch.

Rough estimates put the cost of building the temporary landfill at around $600,000, McAninch said. The permanent landfill, which must be completed by 1995 will cost roughly $3 million.

Though there will be a small increase in fees to counties utilizing the dump, the Floyd County landfill will keep its costs to customers as low as possible, said McAninch. The landfill will charge $15 per ton to dump and, according to McAninch, the state says that's too cheap. Greenup County charges $40 per ton, said McAninch.

"All this is so senseless. Regulations on landfills are to protect the groundwater. What little groundwater there is here is already polluted so bad from mining," McAninch said. "What little will get in the groundwater won't hurt it anyway."

Awards presented to Costain Coal operating companies in 1990 and 1991 for Outstanding Reclamation Practices.

Costain Coal stands tall on its record of responsible environmental management. Costain's mining operations have won two regional awards for "Outstanding Reclamation Practices" from the Kentucky Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcements.

Our Stratton Branch operation received the award in 1990 and the Amy Branch operation in 1991. These lands that once provided resources and jobs have now been restored to level and gently rolling pasture lands. The Stratton Branch site has now been nominated for an additional state reclamation award.

The sound management approach that won these awards extends to everything we do at Costain. That approach has extended to the planning of our Stratton Branch ash storage site and it will extend to the ongoing management of the facility. Costain and its consulting engineers have gone even beyond Kentucky's strict guidelines for preparing the site and monitoring its groundwater and surface water.

The final state of the Stratton Branch site will be useable real estate that can contribute to economic development in Floyd County—a further demonstration of the careful planning and management that characterizes the way we do business.

Harkins school project receives state funds

When the Josie D. Harkin School opened its doors in 1924, perhaps few characterized the school as "historic." Almost seventy years later, the school has become the latest on a growing list of projects aimed at preserving the state's past.

The Josie D. Harkins project received $7,100 for restoration of the school, which closed in 1987, ending an era of one-room schools in Kentucky. Upon completion of the restoration, the school will become a historic attraction at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Fifteen projects which received funding through the Kentucky Bicentennial Grant Fund program have reached completion, according to the Bicentennial Commission.

"We want people to remember the traditions that make Kentucky special," said Commission Chairperson David K. Karem. "This program enabled us to leave a number of lasting reminders of our 200 years of statehood."

The grant fund began with a $1 million appropriation from the 1990 General Assembly and culminated in awards to 134 permanent projects in 83 counties. "Each county is unique," said Karem, "and one of the best ways to showcase that diversity is to go to the beginning and chart its influence on the state's history."

Preservation has been an effort largely rooted in the past, but state tourism officials expect future benefits from local Bicentennial projects. Kentucky Travel Development Secretary Bob Stewart claimed that history has shaped much of the state's current tourism industry.

All projects that have received Bicentennial Grants should be completed by October of this year.

ing alcohol for an extended period of time.

"Sometimes people, especially men, become angry to suppress fear," Smith said. "The whole thing came crashing back for Frank."

DeRossett's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, asked Smith if he thought DeRossett was telling the truth when he said he had no memory of the shooting.

"I'm convinced (he is)," Smith said.

Smith added that, in his opinion, DeRossett suffered a type of amnesia associated with severe trauma.

Witnesses testified that after the first three shots Case fell and while he was crawling to the back door of the bar, DeRossett shot him two more times in the back. Case's body was found in the parking lot approximately two feet from the highway.

Jeff Tackett, a member of the band and a good friend of Case's, said he saw DeRossett standing in front of Case with the gun in his hands.

"He was standing there with the gun in both hands shooting my buddy," Tackett said. "He shot him three times and he fell. He (DeRossett) hesitated a minute and shot him three more times while he was crawling for his life."

"After the shooting, I went to look for Bubby," Tackett said. "We found him. I grabbed a hold of his hand and he took a couple of breaths like he tried to say my name. I held on to his hand and ask the Lord to not let him die."

One shot ricocheted inside the club and struck Larry Spears, the drummer of the band, in the chest.

When the shooting stopped, witnesses testified that DeRossett handed the gun over to Adam Ousley and sat down at a table. That's where police found him when he was arrested.

The case will continue (today) Friday.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Editorials:

Bound for blazes

by Scott Perry

The biggest man we have ever known is a five-year-old little boy.

Off to school for the first time in his first-day clothes, hair combed, little hand in ours he marched innocently into the unknown.

There were no tears as he took his seat in the little chair at the little table, though it was obvious that both of us were exercising considerable restraint.

Surrounding our son were the faces of the future.

Hundreds like them were taking their places at their own little tables throughout the state and the country.

Too soon their innocence will give way to cynicism, their enthusiasm swallowed up by a cruel, cruel world.

But today they face their first real challenge with the hearts of lions, humbling even the most hardened of the worldly-wise.

Where do they find such courage?

If pride is a sin, we are most definitely bound for blazes.

We suspect we'll have plenty of company along the way.

The only way to fly

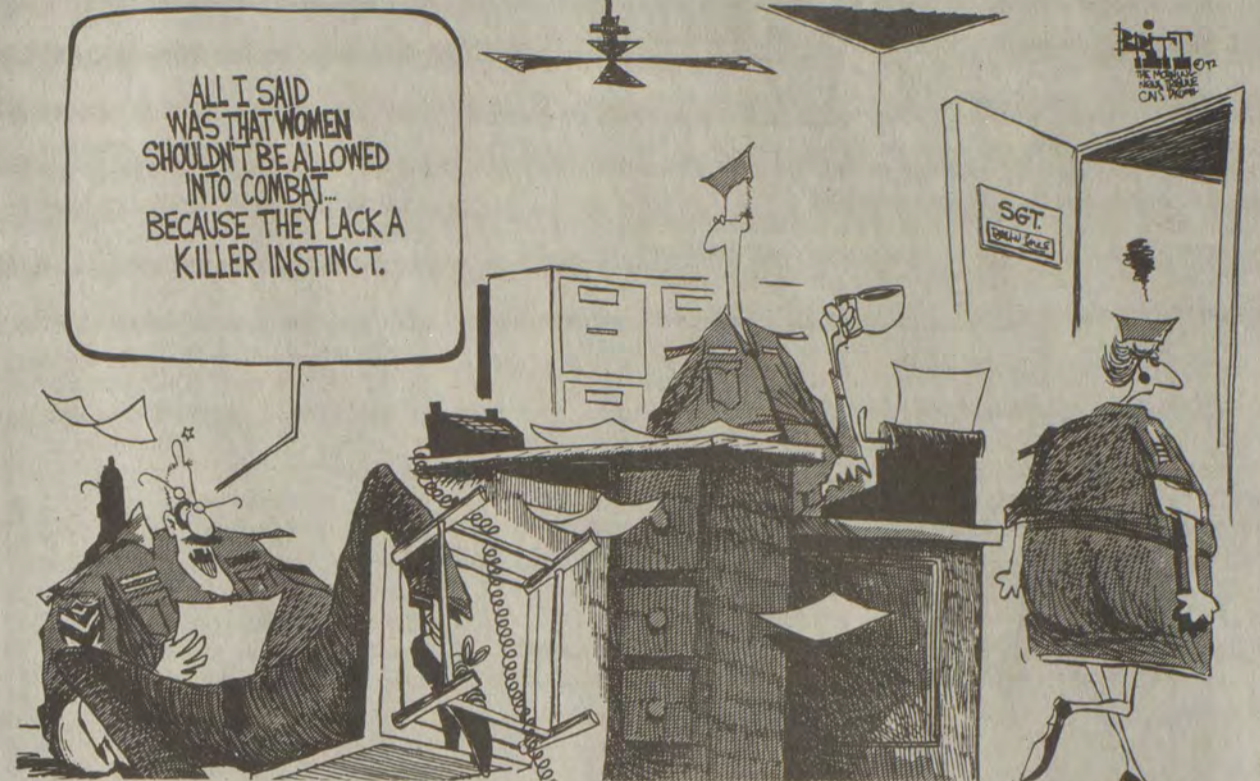

State officials are pondering the purchase of another helicopter to replace the Sikorsky which crashed a couple of weeks ago with Gov. Brereton Jones aboard.

According to figures released Thursday, the Sikorsky cost state taxpayers $1,000 a day last year just for parts and maintenance. That does not include the expense of actually using the chopper.

The cost of a new helicopter seems somewhat extravagant given the fact that a number of state programs, including some education reform measures, had to be cut or scaled down because of funding shortfalls.

Besides, other branches of government have helicopters the governor could borrow in a pinch. If one of those isn't available, maybe he could just drive like the rest of us.

Down to Earth, it's the only way to fly.

Before I read Susan Allen's article pertaining to Allen City Hall problems, I knew people were upset over the outrageous sewer bills we will have to pay. I know I am! As high as my water bill goes, I can't stand the thought of paying three times that much for water and sewer.

That's what the petition was supposed to be about. Everyone was led to believe if the city became dissolved that maybe the county would step in, help with the sewer plant and maybe our bills would not be so costly.

But for someone who's been connected to the city hall in earlier years to say, "there ain't no government in the city," come on people, back up what you say. I've been in the city for 44 years and I know there's never been a strong city hall.

Allen's problems didn't just start a few months ago, they started 79 years ago and we all know it.

A city is a business and a business has its books audited once a year. Well, the fact is, this is the first city council to ask for the books to be audited.

I attended the August meeting and heard city council members ask these men (who were quoted in the article) to set in on the council and help the city work out their problems, if they were so concerned, to get involved and help. They didn't want to get involved, just ask questions and make comments.

Everybody knows I signed the petition. I thought it would help. I know now I was wrong.

The sewer plant will go in regardless. The city has signed a court order.

The city council can just do so much. They need everyone who cares involved.

People, don't sit home and listen to second-hand information.

It's never straight the second time around. Don't just sit back and wait for our city to be dissolved. And don't sit around and let one or two people make decisions for us. This has gone on for years.

Also, if you come to the meeting and bring a tape recorder, don't hide it, just lay it out for everyone to see. You may get a better sound.

Apology past due

Dear Mr. Belcher

We are disappointed in you as a reporter. The following letter refers to your July 1, 1992, article concerning an eviction.

When I called you expressing my concern of your lack of facts, you admitted you should have researched the article further. You told me on the phone that you had sent my dad, Mr. Alex Howard, a personal letter of apology by mail and made a public apology in your column, "Truth, Justice, and the American Way," July 10.

The personal letter has not arrived and the newspaper "apology" was lacking.

The subject matter which accompanied the apology was in bad taste. I felt disgusted and enraged after reading that article. After another long distance telephone call to your editor and you and a visit to your office by me and two other family members, you promised to hand carry the letter of apology to our dad. That too has not been done as of this date. You did offer to print our two-page letter of complaints we gave you upon our visit to your office, but we felt it too long for the public to take up their time to read. We would appreciate it if they take the time to read this letter.

If you cannot follow through on your promise and resolve this matter satisfactorily, place cancel my subscription to your publication. I have no need of it.

To our dad, we love you. You're the best.

A question?

Editor:

When someone takes a life—whether intentional or unintentional—by running a red light, why should one person be prosecuted and another exonerated?

We refer to the truck drivers trying to make an honest living and a highway patrolman. Each ran a red light. The truck driver killed a lady, the patrolman also killed a lady and injured her passenger.

Does a patrol car and its driver have preference because he wears a badge and carries a gun?

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Who's in charge?

For all its ponderous bulk and microscopic detail, Kentucky's constitution is oddly silent on one point: When should the lieutenant governor step in and take over for an incapacitated governor?

The question came up in 1983, when heart ailments left Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. completely unable to perform his duties as governor. And it has come up again because of Gov. Brereton Jones' injuries in a helicopter crash.

This situation isn't as pressing now as it was in 1983. Jones apparently won't be completely incapacitated by his injuries. Anyway, it's not hard to imagine Jones turning the reins over to Lt. Gov. Paul Patton for a few days; they get along well.

Unfortunately, it's also easy to envision circumstances in which a governor and lieutenant governor do not get along at all. In fact, you need go back only a year or so, to the time Jones was lieutenant governor and Wallace Wilkinson was governor.

It's almost impossible to imagine Wilkinson surrendering the power of the governorship to Jones, no matter what his physical condition might have been. It's even less likely that a governor of one party would turn over power to a lieutenant governor of another party. But it's easy to imagine an ambitious lieutenant governor declared unable to serve and easy to see what kind of confusion that would bring to state government.

A constitutional amendment on the ballot this fall would help remedy this situation somewhat. It would require governors and lieutenant governors to run as a ticket, making it more likely that the state's top two officials will at least enter office on good terms. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Driving rules are meant to be obeyed by everyone

Last week in Floyd County a coal truck driver was convicted of wanton murder for having run a stop light and hitting a pickup truck resulting in the death of the pickup's driver. The coal truck driver testified that he was going 38 mph, but witnesses said it was more like 50 or 60 mph.

The coal truck driver was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Some have argued that the sentence was ridiculous and excessive but you can bet that none of those complaining were from the dead woman's family. They have lost a family member, forever. We're certain that 20 years compared to an entire life doesn't seem excessive to them.

We obviously don't know the particulars of this case but drivers can't continue to run red lights with impunity. Yes, accidents do happen but the driving rules of this state are designed to limit those accidents to a minimum.

We've been at traffic stops at intersections and watched coal trucks run through red lights without care, long after the light turned red. No, all coal truck drivers don't do this, but it's the few that do that give the entire group a bad name.

We all need to be a little more aware and careful when we are traveling our highways. Coal truck drivers need to obey the rules of the road, such as stop lights and speed limits, and other drivers need to be aware of the difficulties of driving a large truck and not pull directly, and slowly, into the path of an oncoming coal truck or pass it on a hill only to turn immediately.

No driver can ever be in such a hurry to get somewhere that it's worth risking his or her life or the lives of other travelers. — The Big Sandy News, Louisa

Ten Years Ago (August 25, 1982)

Enrollment in Floyd County school may exceed the 10,000 mark this year—at the end of the first three days of the school year, enrollment in grades 1-12 stood at 9,251—said superintendent E.P. Grigsby Jr. Eastern Kentucky had the state's highest unemployment rate in June when the last work figures were released and that unhappy circumstance may be worse now, with a weakening coal market resulting in layoffs at area mines. Frank Mullins, of Estill, a Prestonsburg barber, recently completed a rather unusual adoption procedure as he adopted two burros straight from the "Old West." The Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals has been asked to force a Floyd panel to hear a citizen's complaint that tax assessments on some landholding companies here are too low. There died: Helen VanHoose, 64, of Prestonsburg, Monday in Lexington; Alson Blankenship, 82, of Pikeville, Tuesday, August 17 at Mountain Manor Nursing Home, Pikeville; Ruby Stewart, 80, of Denton, Thursday at her residence; Charles Meade, 78, of Printer, last Wednesday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital; Otis Moore, 55, of Michigan, Friday at Mt. Olivet; Ellen Frasure, 74, of Grethel, last Thursday at Pikeville Methodist Hospital; Flotite Hall Elam, 65, native of Floyd County, last Wednesday in Louisville; Darb Parker, 76, formerly of Floyd County, last Thursday in Batavia, Ohio; and Minnie J. Ousley, formerly of this county, Saturday, August 14 in Ohio.

Twenty Years Ago (August 23, 1972)

The Floyd fiscal court received an unexpected boost to its funds Monday, August 14, when Gov. Wendell Ford returned $10,427 in strip mine fees to the county. Officers investigating the discovery of the body of a newborn baby in a Wheelwright garbage dump last Thursday morning said Monday they do not have one clue as to the identity of the mother or the person who left the body there. With the possible exception of a central service building, the Goble Branch campground on Dewey Lake will be developed and in use for the 1973 session, a spokesman for the Department of Parks said last week. The story of the rise of Benjamin William Baker, Maytown native, to a successful career in Hawaii is told in two publications, "Men and Women of Hawaii" and "Men and Women of the West." The Floyd county football season opened last Saturday night with Class A Wheelwright dropping their first official road game to Morgan county. There died: Kermit Smith, 64, retired Hindman merchant, and his wife, Okla Wallen Smith, 62, when their compact car was struck by a tractor-trailer at an intersection at Bean Station, Tenn., Tuesday; John H. Hattin, 81, of Plymouth, O., formerly of Hueysville, August 13 at a Willard, O. hospital; Mrs. Lillie M. Bays, 78, of Bonanza, Thursday at the Prestonsburg General Hospital; Joseph Richard DeRossett, 47, native of Emma, August 16 at the UK Medical Center in Lexington; Will Webb, 97, of Ligon, Monday at the McDowell hospital; Robert L. Slone, 70, former Floyd county magistrate, Sunday in South Bend, Ind.; Mrs. Stella T. Branham, 63, of Grethel, Saturday at a Martin hospital; Mrs. Ann A. Hunter, 77, of Wayne, Mich., formerly of Martin, August 15 in a Wayne hospital; Mrs. Sallie M. Stratton, 98, widow of the Rev. Isaac Stratton, of Banner, August 15 at her home; Mrs. Kate Crager, 77, of Hanging Rock, O., native of the Hueysville area, August 15 at the McDowell hospital.

Thirty Years Ago (August 23, 1962)

The 76-mile turnpike piercing the Eastern Kentucky mountains will be christened "The Mountain Parkway," Gov. Bert T. Combs announced during an aerial tour last week of the new highway. Governor Bert Combs announced in Frankfort Friday that construction of the amphitheatre at Jenny Wiley State Park for the staging of a pageant built around the life of the pioneer heroine, Jenny Wiley, will be let to contract about October 1. Several hundred people, many from adjoining states, sat in the sun and shade of the Garfield Place lawn Sunday afternoon and saw The Proud Heritage for the second time. The World's Fair was being held in Seattle, Wash., and Gordon Moore, of Prestonsburg recounted his visit there in an article in this week's Times. Poison has been ruled out as a possible factor in the death of actress Marilyn Monroe, a Los Angeles coroner has ruled. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. David Donald Allen, of Prestonsburg, a son, David D., II, August 20 at the Prestonsburg General Hospital. There died: Isaac Parsons, 67, Tuesday at his home at Betsy Layne; Mrs. Martha Tackett, 75, of Tram, Tuesday at McDowell; James D. Hubbard, 76, Monday at his home at Water Gap; Willard Rowe, 59, of Garrett, last Wednesday at home; Lee Conn, 74, of Dana, Saturday at the Beaver Valley Hospital, Martin; William Rodolph Loar, 65, of Betsy Layne, last Wednesday at Cincinnati.

Forty Years Ago (August 21, 1952)

Bids were asked this week on blacktopping of the Abbott and Bull Creek roads. Sgt. Elmer O. Blackburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Blackburn, has been awarded the Silver Star for heroism in Korea. The UMW "mourning period" will begin Saturday and last for a week. Praise, Kentucky soon will be no more—name of the postoffice will be changed September 1, to Elkhorn City. Schools will open September 2, despite the fact that the 13th polio case was reported in the county this week. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Price, Toledo, Ohio, formerly of Prestonsburg, a son, Gordon Allen. There died: Mrs. Rosa Martella Harris at her home here Saturday; Thursa Wright Wallen, 74, of West Prestonsburg, Sunday at the hospital here; Mrs. Link Salisbury, 66, August 18 at her home at Hunter.

Fifty Years Ago (August 20, 1942)

Natural gas interests here claim the OPM regulation restricting drilling to one well per 160-acre tract portends a dark future for the industry. Thirty thousand dollars worth of county road and bridge bonds outstanding since the 1920's were redeemed this week, County Judge Edward P. Hill said. The City Council here voted last Monday night a $1,000 tax on street carnivals and other traveling shows coming to Prestonsburg. Mrs. Mary James Meade, 27, of Neon, formerly of Ligon, underwent an operation at a Martin hospital, a few days ago, in which her right arm and foot were amputated. The operation was made necessary by injuries she suffered when hit by a train at Ligon. Citizens of Garrett last week honored two survivors of the aircraft carrier Lexington sinking—Willoughby Patton, of Garrett, and his Navy friend, Ralph Galen Blickenstaff, of Muncie, Indiana. There died: S. E. Allen, 69, of Prestonsburg, Tuesday at the hospital here; Mrs. Rebecca Allen, 81, Friday at her home near Hueysville; Mrs. Malissie Parsons, 78, Tuesday at her home near Grethel; Mrs. Jones Frazier, 66, Sunday at her home on Wilson Creek; Mrs. Julia Ann Spencer Davis, 84, here Tuesday; Cordelia Martin, 7, at Bypro, Monday; Mrs. Florence Wells Goble, 69, of Auxier, August 4 at Paintsville; Mrs. Edgar Adams, 26, of Betsy Layne, Friday at a Martin hospital.

The Great Divide
Bush and Clinton Clash
over national energy strategy

by Scott Denman

Sifting through political differences between candidates can be challenging. But through responses to a candidate survey by Energy America, George Bush and Bill Clinton have espoused definitive and divergent plans for our nation's energy future, giving voters a clear choice in November. Quotes presented below are those of the candidates.

In general, President Bush advocates conventional production strategies, including oil and gas development in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR), jump-starting the moribund nuclear industry, and taxpayer support for "clean coal technologies." At the same time, Bush opposes higher auto fuel efficiency standards as "expensive and dangerous." He calls for improved combustion engines and "expansion of electric vehicle technology, an acceleration in scrapping older cars, promotion of mass transit and programs to encourage ride sharing."

In contrast, Clinton's campaign emphasis on change is reflected in his pursuit of "a new energy policy ... rely[ing] less on imported oil, and more on cheap and abundant natural gas, and on research and development into renewable energy sources."

Clinton opposes drilling for oil in the ecologically-sensitive ANWR. He favors a goal of 45 mpg for auto fuel efficiency standards and "revenue-neutral market incentives to reward consumers who conserve and make polluters and energy wasters pay." Clinton also seeks to achieve European standards of energy efficiency for U.S. factories and office buildings.

Clinton favors federal tax incentives for renewable energy sources that would help to "level the playing field" and enable renewables like solar and wind "to compete fairly" against "traditional energy resources [that] ... reap many benefits, from a tax structure slanted in their favor."

Bush argues that his Administration's proposed FY 1993 budget of $247 million "for solar and renewables is up by 67 percent over the level four years earlier." This is true; however, Bush's "high" FY93 request for renewables amounts to only one-third of Pres. Jimmy Carter's $718 million in FY80. And Bush's FY 1993 budget request for all nuclear fission and fusion programs ($1.377 billion) is nearly double the amount requested for all renewable energy and conservation programs combined ($768 million).

Bush vigorously endorses the revival of nuclear power in the U.S. and has "ordered the Department of Energy to initiate work on new types of reactors...." Clinton has stated that he "generally opposes the proliferation of nuclear power plants because of my deep reservations about the safety risks and long-term problems posed by such plants."

Governor Clinton calls for an international climate change treaty and wants the U.S. to commit to stabilizing carbon dioxide at 1990 levels by the year 2000. President Bush, however, postulates that "the relationship between greenhouse gas emissions and global climate change is not yet well understood." In fact, Bush travelled to Rio de Janeiro and signed the United Nations Convention on Climate Change only after he had been assured that binding limitations on carbon dioxide production had been removed from the treaty.

Enough from the candidates. What do the people want? A March, 1992 poll conducted by the independent firm of Frederick/Schneiders, Inc. for the Safe Energy Communication Council found a striking similarity between many of Bill Clinton's energy positions and those of a majority of the public.

For example, 63 percent say that the U.S. can meet future increased demand for electricity through energy efficiency. A combined total of 76 percent want renewable energy sources, conservation or natural gas to be the federal government's top funding priority. Nearly two-thirds (65 percent) oppose the construction of more nuclear power plants. The poll also indicates that four out of five Americans, or 81 percent, would not allow the government to override a state's environmental laws to site a nuclear waste dump, as Bush and the Congress have proposed for Nevada.

The candidates positions on energy policy speak loud and clear. Come November, the voters will make their choice known.

Scott Denman is the Executive Director of the Safe Energy Communication Council.

Inez man pleads guilty to reckless homicide

Dwayne Mills, 23, pleaded guilty to reckless homicide in Pike Circuit Court Monday. Mills was charged with second degree manslaughter and two counts of first degree assault.

Mills was involved in an accident September 15 that claimed the life of Sean Crum, 19, of Inez. Mills, who was charged with driving under the influence, reportedly struck another vehicle. Crum was a passenger in Mill's vehicle.

"It's simply another case where a drunken driver destroys another person's life, as well as his own," prosecutor Rick Bartley said. — The Mountain Citizen

Perry woman gets four-month sentence for embezzlement

Lorrie W. Lindon, 32, of Hazard, was sentenced to four months in prison to be followed by a three-year probation and restitution to People's Bank and Trust Company of Hazard.

Lindon pleaded guilty to embezzling approximately $13,993 from the bank between January and December 1991. — Staff report

Martin County jailer killed in car crash

A two-car accident near "Bob" Amos Park, Pike County, Monday took the life of Martin County jailer John "Butler" Jude, 78, of Beauty.

Jude reportedly failed to obey a stop sign and pulled into the lane of an oncoming car driven by Marvin Hensley, 40, of Pikeville. Jude was taking the 1384 exit of U.S. 23 at 9:29 a.m. when he attempted to cross the highway in order to reach an interstate ramp. He was struck almost immediately by Hensley's vehicle.

Jude was pronounced dead at Pikeville Methodist Hospital by Pike County Coroner Charles Morris. Hensley was treated and released. — Appalachian News Express

Belfry woman sentenced to two-year prison term

The state has recommended a two-year prison sentence for a Belfry woman who pleaded guilty Monday to one count of obtaining a controlled substance by fraud.

Michelle Love Thom, 42, originally pleaded guilty to the same charge on March 16, but later withdrew her plea after being arrested on the same charges in Clark County on April 15.

Investigators for the Drug Control Branch of the Cabinet for Human Resources called Thom's Clark County arrest "one of the biggest prescription drug seizures in state history." Officials seized 200 prescription drug bottles which contained 3,413 pills and tablets. Other evidence indicated 30,000 to 40,000 Percocet tablets had been obtained by Thom in the preceding four to six months.

She was originally indicted on nine counts of obtaining a controlled substance by fraud but, with the original plea, eight of the nine charges were dropped against her. — Appalachian News Express

Book tells story of slain FBI informant

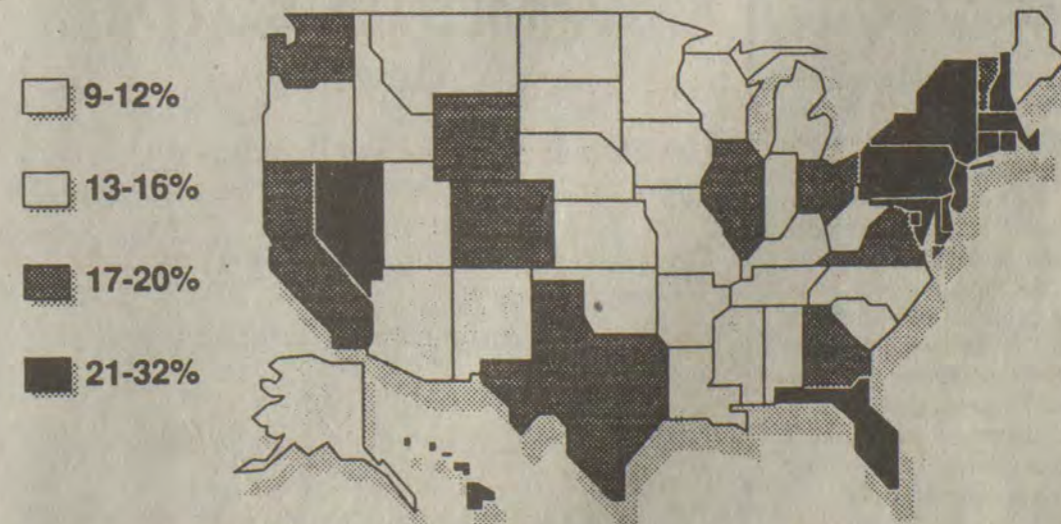

The first book on the 1989 murder of a Pike County woman by FBI Agent Mark Putnam arrived with a bang in Eastern Kentucky last week, booksellers say.

The FBI Killer, written by Cumberland College faculty member Aphrodite Jones, began selling briskly on Friday, said Elliott Fraim, who owns Readmore book stores in Prestonsburg and Pikeville.

The paperback chronicles the troubled life of FBI informant Susan Daniels Smith, 27, of Freeburn. Smith was strangled by Putnam on June 8, 1989. Putnam, who confessed to strangling Smith, became the first FBI agent to be found guilty of murder. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Humanity workshop planned for Prestonsburg Baptist church

John L. Lott Jr., associate, brotherhood department, Kentucky Baptist Convention, will lead a Regional Brotherhood Leadership/Hope for Hurting Humanity Workshop, August 27, at 6:30-9:30 p.m., First Baptist Church, Prestonsburg. This is a leadership training workshop for both the new and experienced.

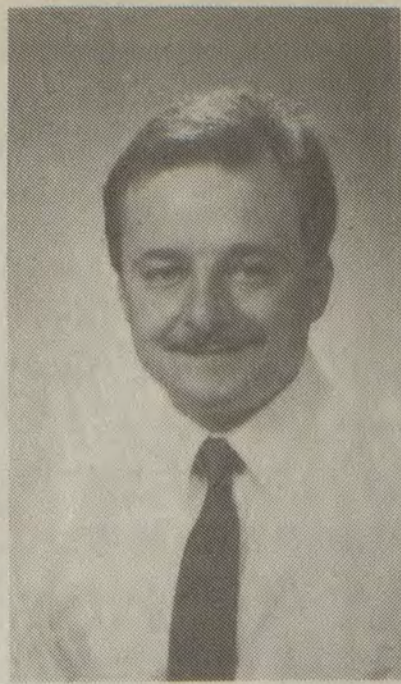

Brotherhood is a Southern Baptist organization for men and boys. It promotes missions through education, prayer, mission activities and special emphases.

A native Louisvillian, Lott graduated from the University of Louisville, with the bachelor of arts degree. He graduated from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1984 with the Master's of Divinity degree.

Since 1979 he has served as pastor or minister at Smith's Grove Baptist Church, First Southern Baptist Church, Jefferson, Indiana, West Point Baptist Church, Masonic Widow's and Orphan's Home, Louisville, Twinbrook Nursing Home, Louisville, and Brookwood Baptist Church, Jacksonville, North Carolina.

His denominational work has been as associational brotherhood director for Warren Association, Warren County, and as Southern Regional Brotherhood director.

He is married to the former Carol Lee Tucker and enjoys woodworking, model railroading, golf, scouting and aviation.

Tom Lewis

Joins WMKY staff

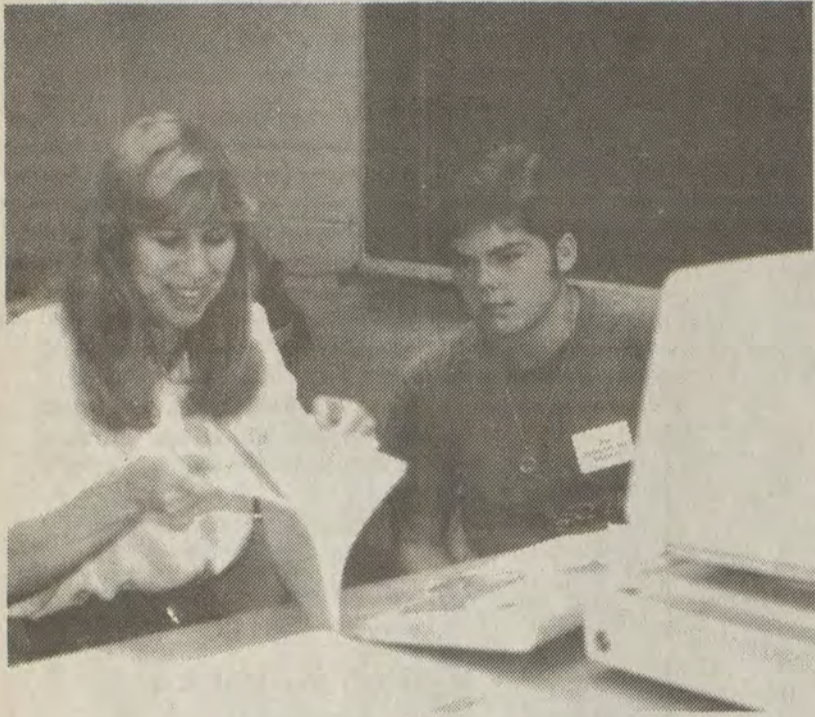

Tom Lewis has joined the staff of WMKY-FM 90.3, public radio from Morehead State University, as news and public affairs director.

"Making WMKY the No. 1 radio news source in MSU's service region," is the goal Lewis has set for himself. "I believe my department has an obligation to offer our listeners a thorough, in-depth newscast," he said.

A native of London, Lewis began working at the radio station while a student at Morehead State. He was a member of the Eagle Sports Network for three years and most recently served as a program host and sports assistant.

A two-time graduate of MSU, Lewis earned a bachelor's degree in journalism in 1989 and received a master's degree in communications in 1991.

He is married to the former Lora Hardwick of Betsy Layne, a residence hall director at MSU.

Clark registers at Transylvania

Steve Clark, a graduate of Betsy Layne High School, met with Veronica Dean-Thacker, a professor at Transylvania University in Lexington, to discuss classes during student orientation July 25. Students who plan to attend Transylvania in the fall visited the campus, met with faculty and registered for classes during the day-long orientation. Clark is the son of Carolyn Clark of Honaker.

Dr. Wilson addresses HRMC summer graduates

Dr. Emory Wilson, Dean of the College of Medicine at the University of Kentucky was the keynote speaker at graduation ceremonies held Friday, July 24 for Highlands Regional Medical Center's Summer Apprentice Program.

Dr. Wilson stated that he had worked with Highlands for a number of years and noted their aggressive commitment in meeting the needs of people in eastern Kentucky. He went on to add that the real heroes in healthcare practice are those who work in under-served rural areas.

Clarence Traum, President and CEO of Highlands encouraged the students to be alert to opportunities and changes in healthcare as we move to the year 2000 and beyond. He also challenged students to take an active role in countering unkind statements about eastern Kentucky.

Three students related their experiences at Highlands and how it had affected their career choices. Mary Hereford, a pharmacy student from Prestonsburg, said her work in the pharmacy department definitely helped her to make her career choice. Brett Akers, a second-year medical student from Prestonsburg, said that working in OR firmed up his career choice in medicine, especially after completing his first year of medical school. Brian Bailey, a Nursing Student from Salyersville, said "CCU is one of the best areas in the hospital to learn about the care of critically ill patients. The two experiences I will never forget are being involved in a "Code" and getting to go to OB and watch the birth of a baby." All the students who worked in the Summer Apprentice Program gained actual "hands-on" experience and learned more about "real" life in a hospital.

Under the coordination of Bronelle Skaggs, former Executive Director of Kentucky Tech Region 11, 62 students from surrounding counties completed eight (8) weeks working in various departments of the hospital. Mr. Skaggs applauded Highlands' foresight and investment in the future.

A long term goal of Highlands Summer Apprentice program is to enhance recruitment of qualified medical staff and personnel, thus insuring eastern Kentucky an adequate supply of highly-qualified healthcare personnel to serve the future needs of our area.

Highlands hopes to be able to continue the Summer Apprentice Program next year and enhance it with even more educational aspects.

In Memory of JAMES LEE BOYD II (Lee Bug)

His life was short but not in vain,
For what he taught me I will remember forever.

When you looked into his eyes the pain was there to see,
But not once did he cry for he always had a smile.

It was as though he was a special child sent straight from heaven above;
The inspiration he gave was felt by all,
And the short time he lived he was a shining light in the lives of his parents as well as mine.

He fought a long, hard fight,
But on August seventh, he finally gave up,
And into God's arms he has returned.

...There is no more pain
for Lee Bug can finally play!

Love,
Aunt Sissy

The Voice on Yonder Shore

The sun shines as brightly as ever,
the snow is whiter yet;
The flowers cease not to blend their hue,
their beauty we ne'er forget.

Birds still chirp their happy tunes,
building nests so busily;
Yet, the past two years oftentimes stood still,
for a few of us, you see.

Oh! we haven't asked for pity—no, God's grace is so divine;
We found comfort in His precious arms,
a healing in His time.

Some days the hours would linger, causing one to reflect awhile,
Remembering a word spoken or his sweet and handsome smile.

We keep his picture out to remind us, it gives us comfort somehow,
For it portrays a happy smile, not pain upon his brow.

Yet, I know if he could speak to all of us on yonder vast shore,
He'd say—love one another, cease from strife forevermore.

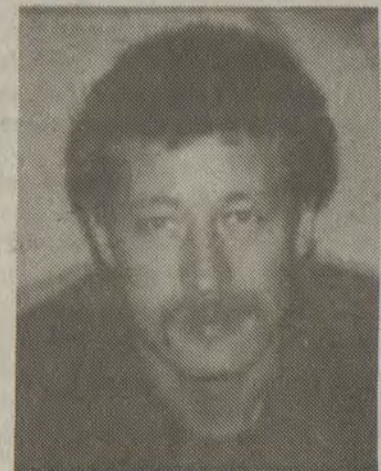

Warn those of painful times—that may be ahead,
There is someone who can comfort, as you lie upon your bed.

Only He can give you that peace that comes from within;
His name is Jesus, He can free from all guilt and sin.

We cannot live for others, it's to Him we owe our debt,
He's paid the price on Calvary's tree, that we dare not forget.

One's life will soon be over, there is reckoning one day,
For our life is like a vapor that fadeth away.

Minutes turn into hours and days into years;
There's nothing wrong with remembering,
there's healing in our tears.

In Memory Of
D.J. Conn

We can't change yester year, nor turn back the hands of time,

Yet, that voice on yonder shore is sure apt to remind
That temporal things won't satisfy a poor lonely soul;
Only our Creator can truly make a person whole.

Oh! happy day, sweet Jesus, if it hadn't been for You,
The awful pain we have felt, would swallow up and rent one into.

So! let me speak to you, dear reader, are you contemplating SUICIDE?
Take heed to the voice on yonder shore and put it aside.

Take up the cross with Jesus, believe in Him today,
He died on Calvary's tree for you, loves you more than words can say.

In His precious book is written, more treasures than life can give,
A peace that passeth understanding, a map for us to live.

I beseech you, dear hurting friend, in behalf of D. J. CONN—one who now knows Jesus is truly the answer to all life's pains, problems and woes.

THE VOICE ON YONDER SHORE
For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.
(Romans 10:13)

It is not too late to register for classes at Prestonsburg Community College.

PCC did register a record number of students in July, but registration is still continuing. You may register at the campus in Prestonsburg on August 24, from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Classes will be begin on Wednesday, August 26.

Duff PTA to meet

The Duff Elementary PTA will be having a meeting on August 21, at 7 p.m. at the Duff Elementary Library.

Proper packing can prevent problems

Packing food for day trips or family vacations is important so as not to ruin any food or cause food poisoning problems.

"Having plenty of ice or frozen gel packs before packing the cooler is probably the most important thing to remember," said Joe O'Leary, Extension food technologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Perishable foods should be placed directly from the refrigerator into the cooler to reduce the chance of bacteria attack. Food should not sit on the kitchen counter for a long period of time before it is put in the cooler.

"You can pack poultry and meat while they are still frozen and allow it to thaw during the trip," said O'Leary. "The meat will act as a piece of ice, keeping the other food cold."

If the ice in the cooler begins to melt, replenish it so the food does not become warm. Any food that becomes warm should be thrown away immediately so bacteria do not spread to other food items.

"Remember to bring some hand-wipes on the trip to wash your hands before handling the food," O'Leary said.

Hunger is the father of art.

YOUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP MAY OFFER A GOOD SCHOOL

The approaching school season reminds us that there are several options for our children's education. We have a fine public school system in this country, which does its best for our children; both in teaching them and in trying to protect them from evil influences, and it should be remembered that even the best school in the world cannot do the parents' job. However, there is an alternative. Many Houses of Worship provide their own elementary school, beginning with kindergarten. They offer a full curriculum, maintain discipline, and establish a solid foundation of faith and moral values. There is no better place to give your children a good start in life, and now is the time for you to look into it.

The greatest natural resource that any country can have is its children.

EXTREMITIES.....

During baseball season I was running all over the county, region and state trying to keep up with all the games that were taking place. It seemed there were not enough hours in the day to cover all that needed covering. It was like trying to split yourself into so many persons just to be everywhere you needed to be. Fatigue set in and you started thinking about a vacation.

Now, the other extreme. Baseball season is over and there is that wait in anticipating the start of the next season — football. While it is just over a week away, still you are looking for things to get done before it finally arrives. But somehow you find that while you are getting things done, like working on a football tab, there still remains those free hours.

I have become accustomed to doing something all the time that I find idle time is not to my liking. I had a wonderful vacation and was happy that I was able to take one. But, still there is that habit that I have developed over the past four years of just wanting some sporting event to cover.

I, for one, cannot wait until they have the first kick off. Then the first jump ball. I know that during the course of the seasons I will once again be thinking about a vacation. But until that happens, I plan on enjoying covering the local sports scene and giving it all that I've got.

I'm excited about the upcoming football season. I wish all of our local teams the best for the next ten weeks. Allen Central, Betsy Layne, Wheelwright and Prestonsburg will embark on a new season August 28 (August 29 for Prestonsburg).

I look for Prestonsburg to be one of the top teams in District 2. I really like the team and all the talent that will be coming back this season. When you get to personally know these players, as all players in the county, you find yourself rooting for them very hard. I want to see them succeed not only on the field but in life as well.

There's a lot of talk around the region as well as the county about this Prestonsburg team. Great things are expected barring any major injuries.

PINIELLA'S PEP TALK - WILL IT WORK

After the Cincinnati Reds dropped a second straight game to the last place Philadelphia Phillies, Reds manager Lou Piniella took his troops behind closed doors and gave them a what-for. Whether the little tongue lashing will be effective remains to be seen but there is one thing that Reds fans need to realize — most of the Reds players are not what you might consider big league ball players. And if they should finish second in their division, then that is an improvement over a fifth place finish last year.

The problem for the Reds has been the absence of the long ball. After leading the National League in that department last year, the Reds have had to scratch for runs this season. Look for some big time trading during the off season.

BEST WISHES....

WILL THERE BE GRADE SCHOOL FOOTBALL?

Even though the board of education adopted new policies toward a grade school football season, the question still has to be asked if there will yet be a full slate of teams in the county.

Donnie Daniels, head football coach at Wheelwright, wants to try and put two teams together up Left Beaver. Daniels has indi-

Rebel seniors learn from drastic season

The Allen Central Rebels did not win a football game last season in a drastic 0-10 season. But this year's crop of seniors hope to make something positive out of the dismal year and pull together this season to help the Rebels to a five-hundred or better year.

Allen Central will open their season against Elkhorn City at home on August 28 at the Don Daniels Complex.

"We've learned a lot from last year," said running back Dave Gilliam. "One thing we learned is that it hurts to lose. I think this year we can have a five-hundred season. We return several players from last year and we have some good new players coming in this year that will help our program."

While the Rebels backfield will average right at 200-pounds, it is the experience that makes Gilliam think positive this season.

"Our line will be an experienced line," he explained, "and so far they have shown a lot of strength. We need to improve on our defense especially outside linebackers."

The Rebels fell 30-20 in their only panorama to date and Wheelwright ran the sweep on Allen Central for some valuable yardage.

Gilliam stated that this year's group of seniors want to leave the Right Beaver School on a winning note and leave something for the program to build on.

The returning senior hopes to be instrumental in leading the Rebels to a playoff berth this season.

"I can see us winning the EKMC conference this season," Gilliam stated. "I also feel that we can be a fourth place team in our district giving us a playoff spot."

Jason Clark will be returning to the Rebel squad this season after having to sit out last year because of a motorcycle accident he had. Some hard work has gotten Clark back into the action quicker than some expected.

"It's good to be able to come back and play again," commented Clark. "I lifted weights and worked out and it was hard to sit out last year. I'm looking forward to the season and I also want to go out on a winning note at Allen Central."

Clark said that the Rebels definitely have the talent to have a winning season this year and he wants to be able to contribute this year and also lay some ground work for next year.

"I believe we can win the EKMC conference," Clark said. "We can have a winning season."

Clark has set a personal goal for himself and that is to rush for 1,000 yards in this his final year. Looking at the district competition, Clark tabs Pikeville and Fleming-Neon as the teams to beat. Clark said that a 5-5 season is not impossible.

Third year player Dan Stumbo will handle the passes at end for Allen Central this season and he can't wait for the first kick off.

"I'm really looking forward to this season," commented Stumbo. "We've got good speed this year and we are stronger at the linebacker and safety position on defense. We return a real strong backfield and we have decent size on the lines."

Stumbo said that he wants to be there for the team and to contribute what he can to help Allen Central have a successful year. Just playing good football is the only personal goal he has set.

Playing at the tackle spot on both sides of the lines will be Jeremy Webb, a 6-foot, 1-inch, 210-pound senior. Although this is the first year of varsity competition for Webb, he still looks at this year's team as definitely being stronger than last year's 0-10 squad.

"We just need to play hard every game and do our best," said the first year player, "and go as far as we can. We are going to be strong in the backfield with some experienced players coming back. We have good speed this year."

While Webb sees a strong offensive unit intact, he also said that the defense needs some work to prepare for the opening game.

He personally just wants to go out and give it all he's got. "I just want to play some good football and contribute what I can," he stated. "We've got the team to finish fourth in our district, I think. Our attitude is good and we want to get out and win and not end up like last season."

While she doesn't play football, Evelyn Howard feels like part of the Allen Central football team as she has worked as the team's manager for the past three seasons.

"I couldn't do without her in all the things that she does in taking care of the equipment, fixing helmets," said head coach Dewey Jamerson.

Howard said that she became interested in football when her brother played for Allen Central.

"I like football," she said with excitement in her voice. "Football is a rough sport, and I like that."

Howard's responsibilities could almost be that of a team trainer. She hands out all the equipment, repairs busted helmets, and makes sure that the team has water to drink — but she refuses to keep stats.

"No stats," she said laughingly. "I really feel close to this team and I'm going to miss it after this year. They are a great bunch of guys and I hope they reach their goal this year."

Howard views the Allen Central program as stressing a team concept this year and that the team has been looking better with each practice.

Howard jokingly said that her biggest job was keeping things in order for Coach Jamerson. "He forgets if I don't write it down for him. Coach Jamerson is a good coach. One that a person can talk to."

Allen Central may have had a winless season last year but that could work out to be a positive blessing for this year's squad as they have dedicated themselves to assure there is no repeat in 1992.

Top Guns advance to state event

The Top Gun women's softball team will travel to Elizabethton on August 28-30 for the state women's Class D softball tournament after finishing fourth in the region this past weekend.

The Top Guns fell to KLC in a close one, 3-1, to be eliminated from the tournament.

KLC scored two runs in the top of the sixth inning to snap a 1-1 tie and went on for the victory. Top Guns had a chance to score some runs in their half of the sixth inning when they got one out singles from Tracie Burke and Jamie Clay. But Bridget Clay grounded out to first and Michelle Justice grounded to third, stopping the rally.

KLC took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning on an unearned run. Top Guns tied the game in the bottom of the fifth on a lead off triple off of the bat of D.C. Frazier who scored on Tammy Tackett's base hit. The local team left two runners stranded in the fifth.

The Top Guns posted a first game win over the Silver Bullets with a 10-3 lashing. They scored five runs in the first inning for a 5-0 game and pushed across three in the third to build a 9-1 advantage. Bridget Clay collected two hits for the winners including a double in the fourth inning. Justice also had two singles for the Top Guns.

The leading hitter for the winners was Gwen Anderson with three hits.

Anderson scored three runs and had a third inning two-run double. Jamie Clay, Loretta Tackett and April Stephens had a base hit each.

The Top Guns took a 4-0 lead in the first inning against KLC in game two but could not hold on to the advantage as KLC scored three times in both the fourth and sixth innings for the win.

Burke collected three hits in the game for the Top Guns. Tammy Tackett also gathered three base hits and two runs batted in. Michelle Justice was a perfect three for three at the plate. Frazier had a two hit night with Stephens and Loretta Tackett getting one hit.

Top Guns held a 6-5 lead until KLC erased the lead with three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning for a 9-6 score. Top Guns scored their final run in the seventh inning when Burke crossed the plate on Frazier's base hit.

Dropping to the losers bracket of the double elimination tournament, the Top Guns faced a team that saw one of the shortest games in the tournament. Batting in the top of the first inning the eligibility of one of the Save Rite players was questioned and the game forfeited to the Top Guns team by the score of 7-0. Save Rite had two runners on base at the time the game was called.

The Top Guns took the forfeit and moved up against a AA&W team. Top Guns posted a convincing 5-2 win over AA&W to move into the quarterfinals.

Top Guns grabbed a 2-0 lead with single runs in the third and fourth innings and pushed across three in the fifth to go ahead 5-0. AA&W finally got on the scoreboard in the sixth inning and scored their final run in the seventh.

Burke doubled, leading off the third for the Top Guns and scored on an error off of the bat of Jamie Clay. Michelle Justice scored in the fourth.

Completes eighth year!

The Mud Creek Pee-Wee baseball league recently finished their eighth season of play for five to nine year old players. Individual and tournament trophies were presented to over 70 participants from the five teams. The Smurfs, coached by Glen Tackett, are pictured on the first row as the league and tournament champions. The Tigers, coached by Terry Hamilton, occupy the second row for placing second. Third place and the third row went to Lloyd Bentley's Braves. Fourth place in the tournament went to the Reds, coached by James Eddle Hall. The Ghostbusters are on row five and placed fifth.

Hauer and Walters to defend title in Governor's Open

Professional golfer Bob Hauer, of Cincinnati and amateur Bob Walters, of Pikeville, will be defending their championships in the 28th Governor's Open Golf Tournament September 12-13 at the Juniper Hills Course in Frankfort.

Entries for the event are limited to 60 professionals and 180 amateurs. The pros will be playing for more than $10,000 in prize money, making the Governor's Open one of the more attractive tournaments in Kentucky.

Co-sponsors of the tournament are Kentucky Central Life Insurance Company based in Lexington and the Holiday Inn-Capital Plaza in Frankfort.

Hauer won the $3,000 first prize in last year's pro division with a sizzling eight under par 132 in the 36 hole event finishing birdie, eagle, par on the final three holes.

Hauer has been a pro at the Cresthills Country Club in Cincinnati for 25 years. He had played in the Governor's Open for more than 20 years before scoring his first win last year.

C.J. Benassi Jr., of Frankfort, had a 136 total last year to win the second prize of $1,500.

Walters, a car dealer, had an even par 140 in 1991 to win the amateur division for the fourth time in five years. He edged Larry Grasc, of Frankfort, by a single stroke.

The 20 lowest scoring pros will share the prize money. The three top players 50 years of age and over also will earn cash awards. Amateurs vie for gift certificates and the enjoyment of top caliber competition. They are placed in flights based on handicaps.

The open will be preceded by a pro-am on September 11, with two pros teamed with four amateurs for 18 holes. Twenty pros will share money in this event, the 10 best individual scorers and the 10 who are on the five top teams.

Participants will enjoy a dance the night of the pro-am and a cookout the following night.

The Governor's Open is conducted by the Juniper Hills Men's Golf Association. Jim Bieme is president of the association, Mark Coleman is the tournament director and Gene Hilen is the pro at Juniper Hills.

OPEN NOTES:

Three time winner Jim O'Hern of Louisville is now a successful member of the PGA Senior's tour. Louisville native Jodie Mudd is a budding superstar on the regular PGA tour.

The Juniper Hills Golf Course in Frankfort opened in 1957. Shortly thereafter, the Juniper Hills Men's Golf Association was formed to provide golf.

QUOTES

"From a humble beginning in the 1960's, the Governor's Open has grown into one of the prestige golf tournaments in Kentucky. Many people return year after year to play," said Mark Coleman, chairman of the 1992 open.

"I believe I have played in the Governor's Open every year and I certainly look forward to it. The tournament is well run and the people are enjoyable. It's just a nice atmosphere," says Eddie Tyree, pro at the Seneca Golf Course in Louisville.

Staying Fit

BODY COMPOSITION TESTING
by Don Fields
Professional Trainer

In my last article I covered the benefits of body fat testing as compared to simple weighing and the misconception of height/weight charts for determining general fitness. This time I want to explain how to measure your body fat percentage and determine body composition.

There are at least three methods by which body fat percentage can be measured. One is underwater weighing which is generally more accurate for people who are above 40 percent body fat. This method is expensive as well as impractical for use on a regular basis as it involves weighing submerged under water as well as lung capacity testing. Another method is the electrical conductivity test which sends a small electric current through your body to measure resistance and determine fat percentage. Again, this method is not readily available.

The most practical method is to use a skin fold caliper to measure the thickness of your skin and fat at various locations. This method is most accurate to determine body fat at 15 percent and below. Anyone can obtain a skin fold caliper and learn how to use it. Most doctors have one and can check your percentage each time you see them.

By knowing how much body fat you have you can determine how much of your body weight is fat and more importantly, how much is muscle. This is referred to as body composition testing. The most important aspect of body fat testing is to monitor fat loss as well as changes in muscle mass.

If this doesn't seem important, consider that the amount of muscle mass you have determines your metabolism or the rate at which you burn calories. The more muscle you have the less fat your body can store.

Consider this example: If you weigh 140-pounds and your body fat is 20 percent, then 28-pounds is fat. This leaves 112-pounds of lean body weight which includes muscle, bones and organs. Of this, 112-pounds of lean mass, the only part you can change is muscle.

If you begin a weight lifting program and a few months later repeated the test to find that you still weigh 140-pounds but your body fat has reduced to 15 percent, you would now have 21-pounds of fat and 119-pounds of lean weight. It is easy to see that by exercising with weights you have lost seven-pounds of fat and gained seven-pounds of muscle.

Simple weighing would only have told you that your weight had not changed. Body fat testing reveals what really takes place through exercise.

What is the correct body fat level for you? For women up to age 30, 14 to 21 percent is good. From age 30 to 50, it is 15 to 23 percent and over age 50, 16 to 25 percent is acceptable. For men up to age 30, it is nine to 15 percent, age 30 to 50 is 11 to 17 percent and over 50, 12 to 19 percent.

Both men and women should be below the upper limit for good health and appearance. If you are near the lower limit, you are considered lean.

It is not considered healthy to be too lean, especially for women. It is even worse to starve yourself just to reach a certain weight thinking you will be more attractive.

Remember, thin people can still be fat. By not eating properly, you will only destroy muscle tissue, not lose fat. Eat healthy, exercise and check your body fat.

cated the need for a team at McDowell and then combine Osborne and Melvin for a team. However, funding for a new team at McDowell may be a problem. "It would take a hunk out of their budget at McDowell if they decide to have their own team," he said. "If the board would help in getting the program started it would allow us to have two feeder schools upon Left Beaver."

I agree with Daniels, the board, if possible, should step up and help fund a second squad as a feeder system for the new Left Beaver High School that will open next year.

Allen Central coach Dewey Jamerson is much in the dark over a feeder team up Right Beaver. Martin is a large enough school to field their own team with Maytown and Duff combining for a second team.

Of course Allen and Adams Middle School will follow tradition and field a strong football program.

Coach John Derossett, Betsy Layne head coach, will have James Derossett heading up the grade school program on South 23. Stumbo, Harold, Betsy Layne and Prater will join together to form a feeder system for the Bobcats.

"If we don't play here in the county, then our grade school team will be playing over in Pikeville," said Derossett. Derossett believes a strong feeder system is needed at Betsy Layne if the program is to be revived.

PANORAMA ACTION THIS WEEKEND

Wheelwright and Allen Central will be playing in the EKMC Conference grid-o-rama this Saturday night. Prestonsburg will face Boyd County in a scrimmage match up at the Prestonsburg Field Friday night.

RETIRING BIRD...

One of the best to ever play the game of basketball finally figured he had enough and called it quits after 13 years with the Boston Celtics. Larry Bird no doubt was a giant among NBA players and he earned the respect of those that he played with and against.

Unlike the Charles Barkley's, Michael Jordan's and many of the other so-called professional basketball players, Bird did not run his mouth but showed his talent between the lines on the basketball court. He truly was an ambassador for the great game of basketball and Celtic fans are going to miss the performance of the "Bird".

BACK OFF SAN FRANCISCO...

Says the city of St. Petersburg, Fla. A suit has been threatened against the West Coast city if they continue to interfere with the transplanting of the San Francisco Giants next year.

The folks in San Francisco are trying to derail the move and keep the Giants in the Bay area only to suffer some more financial losses.

The city and the creatures of the city are talking big but no one wants to buy a season ticket to show how concerned they are over the Giants leaving. Professional baseball is a big part of a city's economy and the loss of the Giants would take a big hunk of it to the south should they move.

On the flip side, the new Florida Marlins are hoping the move is stalled for a least a year so they can get a foot hold as Florida's only major league club. Someone says it is a matter of the big bucks, everyone wants them. No, every city needs them to survive and the Marlins are no exception.

Look, for the Giants, with the help of the Major League Players Association, who has done a big part in almost destroying the game, to stay at least one more year in the Bay area and don't be surprised if the deal by Bob Lurie is jeopardized by the move.

KIWANIS GOLF OUTING TOMORROW...

Golf touney director Teddy Hall is expecting a big turnout for the Kiwanis Golf Tournament to be staged at the Jenny Wiley Golf Course tomorrow (Saturday) morning. Tee off time is 8 a.m. and probably will be in the fog.

Lot of good prizes to be given away in the event and Hall promises a prize on every hole even for those who are not great golfers.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Charlie rejected Hayley's sexual advances. Brian and Dixie made love. Dixie and Gloria tentatively made peace after Dixie learned Gloria had set up a trust fund for Junior. Carter's presence in the court unnerved Galen, who lost her case. Mona learned she has cancer. Edmund hired Jackson to pursue his claim legally. Dimitri was furious with Angelique who gave Edmund access to Flora's memorabilia, and he ordered her to choose sides. Hayley overheard Adam, posing as Stuart, making a date with Gloria. Adam explained he was doing this to learn if Gloria is a gold digger. Wait To See: Erica becomes concerned at the changes she sees in Dimitri.

ANOTHER WORLD: Jenna was stunned when Felicia told her she and Lucas have found their daughter in Bay City, and that Jenna knows her. Alan, the student who had stalked her, told Jenna he didn't shoot Lucas, and she'd better be wary because the shooter is still out there. In Chicago with Paulina and Hannah, Jake learned Rita's death may not have been a suicide, and Paulina got an alarming letter from Marsha. Ryan was shocked when Vicki took his "advice" and said she was going on with her life—without him. Wait To See: Jake gets a shocking glimpse into the past.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Tom encouraged Margo to contact a rape crisis center. Frannie told Tom she suspected Darryl framed Gavin for Carolyn's murder. Frannie told Dr. Michaels she feared Darryl might use Carrie to get the baby's share of Carolyn's fortune. Iva agreed to marry John. Lucinda told Scott that Kitty Fielding was in town, and looking for him. Hutch was surprised by Tess' arrival. Emma was surprised at Valerie's (Ned's wife) arrival. Wait To See: Frannie fears she may have found the clue that provides indisputable proof about Darryl.

BOLD & THE BEAUTIFUL: Eric was surprised to hear (from Sheila) that Judy had to leave town suddenly. Sally was surprised to hear Stephanie offer her good business advice. Although furious, Sally realized she needed Clarke, who agreed to return for half the company. Taylor feared Jack was seeing Stephanie for her wealth, and that his old gambling habit would resurface. Stephanie cautioned Brooke that as half owner of Forrester, she'd have to report to her from now on—and suggested Brooke might want to look for another job. After making love, Zach told Felicia he had a past: he once killed a man. Wait To See: Stephanie makes a decision about Brooke that could change both their lives.

SISTER DEAREST OR MISERY LOVES COMPANY AND I'LL COMPANY

An article in last Saturday's paper stated that "children chronically roughed up or picked on by siblings might show psychological problems in young adulthood."

That statement was made after two studies linked such experiences to greater anxiety, lower self-esteem, and more depressed moods.

If you are now reading this column, know that what you have read up to this point, and what you will read if you continue has been written by an abused sibling.

My older sister, Melinda, delighted in making my life miserable. For as long as I can remember, she badgered, intimidated, and mentally tormented me at her leisure.

The first recollection of my abuse came on Christmas Eve of my fourth year of life. In wide-eyed anticipation of Santa's visit, I snuggled up close to Melinda in bed and talked about Santa's visit. Since Melinda was more "tuned in" to what Santa was about, she didn't wish to humor me about the noises I heard that might be a signal that Santa was on his way. Instead she said, "Sara! I think I can see him coming! Yes, that's him! He's coming down in his sleigh. Wait! You stay there," she said, as she ran to look out the window. "Don't come over here. He's coming, but he's going to crash! Oh, no!"

Needless to say, I screamed and Mother came to the rescue, but Melinda's torture did not end with that one episode. There were many more.

One afternoon, I had done something to displease Mother, and I was sent to my room. Minutes later, Melinda appeared at the door and told me to leave through the window. When I told her I was not allowed to leave the room she insisted I go. "You get out of here right now. Mother will never know you're gone. I won't tell her. Now get out or I'll bust your nose." Foolishly I left and, of course, minutes later Mother and Melinda were walking down the street after me - both carrying switches. (In defense of my Mother, she did say that she couldn't wait until I got big enough to defend myself against Melinda, but Melinda lacks one-fourth inch being six feet tall, and I'm barely tall enough to qualify as an adult.)

When I got old enough to understand, Mother told me that Melinda wasn't too happy about my arrival into this world. Mother said Melinda would comment on how cute my nose was as she twisted it as hard as she could. She would do the same thing with my toes and fingers. When I was six weeks old, Melinda dropped me directly on my head which might

Talented technical staff puts it all together at Jenny Wiley Theatre

Ever wonder what it takes to put together a full-scale outdoor drama night after night? The answer to that question is quite simple—you assemble some of the most gifted craftsmen in the business to build your sets, to make your costumes, to design your lighting and to run your sound.

At Jenny Wiley Theatre this summer, we've assembled the best acting company and talented artistic staff, but without our technical staff, our shows would not be magical productions.

When you attend the theatre this summer, notice the beautiful sets—some of the most complex sets we've ever assembled. For The Wizard of Oz, our technical staff, led by technical director Steve Taylor, had to make the first scenes in black and white and if that weren't enough, they also create a tornado which whirls the scenery offstage.

"This year, we have the best technical staff we've ever had," said Jenny Wiley Theatre general manager Tedi Vaughan. "They've done such a fantastic job with fairly limited resources. Every show just simply looks fabulous and works very well thanks to scenic designer Jim Hunter."

For Big River, a raft carries stars, Darren Bagert and Ervy Whitaker, around the stage as they travel down the mighty Mississippi while fantastic blue lighting creates a river and the atmosphere of night.

Costumes are always a big part of any theatre production and our 1992 season contains a wide variety of costumes from different periods. For Anything Goes, Costume Designer Sherry Harper had the task of recreating both formal and sports wear from the 30s.

For Greater Tuna, not only are there numerous costumes but most of the costume changes take place in less than 10 or 20 seconds requiring special sewing considerations.

"The dressers, Nikki Ratliff, Hope Mullins, Karen Spears, and Krista McIntyre are extremely important to the success of this show," said Greater Tuna star Jim Ligon.

In all of the productions, lighting plays a very important role. Lighting and Scenic Designer Jim Hunter creates The Haunted Forest in The Wizard of Oz and many other important scenes.

Another key element is sound. The songs in the musicals would not work without good quality sound. Sound engineer Frank Ford must deal with hundreds of cues each night. He makes all the actors sound even better than their strong voices would if they stood alone.

Keeping the entire cast and crew together night after night is our production stage manager Meredith Scott Brittain along with stage manager Scott Laske.

Others working on our 1992 Technical Staff include: Chris Griffith, assistant stage manager; Kevin McCombs, assistant technical director; Meredith Sims, master electrician; Frank Ford, sound engineer; Eric Ratcliff, general technician/assistant sound engineer; David Frazier, stage carpenter; Kevin D. Smith, stage carpenter; Sherry Harper, costume designer; Page McGrath, assistant costume designer; Shannon Ballard, stitcher/dresser; Suzanne Finerty, props manager; Kristen Ormerod, props assistant; Ronald Grigsby, Charles Minish and Bryan Spill, production apprentices; Tim Lester, light board operator.

As well as Hillard Ballard, sound (See Staff, B 3)

I'm a little disappointed.

Over a month ago, I threw my hat into the presidential ring, but nobody seems to be taking me seriously.

Okay, so maybe the hat had one of those little propellers on it, but that's still no excuse to just completely ignore my candidacy.

I may be young yet, but I think I'd make a much better president than those other two guys. At least I couldn't be any worse.

First of all, I have never, ever been convicted of any crime. Those allegations could never be proved.

Plus, I have never cheated on my wife. Those 8 X 10 glossies of me with the Old Milwaukee Swedish Bikini Team that have been circulated around the county were taken in front of a cardboard cut-out. And I don't know where those hickeys came from. Honest.

I have never used drugs, I have never dodged the draft, I have never said "Read my lips" and I can spell potato.

I have outlined a clear, positive platform for my presidential candidacy which would greatly benefit Eastern Kentucky in general and Floyd County in particular, including the creation of the Muddy Gut Hollerland Amusement Park and Petting Zoo and the world's first piranha ranch right here at Dewey Lake.

I have also pledged to pick a vice president with an I.Q. at least as high as your average carrot and promised that I would never, under any circumstances, get in a helicopter, even if I was in a hurry.

But have I received one single word of support? One single campaign donation? Noooooooo.

Not even my own wife will vote for me, although I have a sneaking suspicion that that may have something to do with that nasty purse-shopping episode (even though I told her that if I was President, I would no longer be writing every little detail of our private lives and that she could get all the purses she wanted for free).

So far, the only endorsements I have received are from Elvis and Elvira, Mistress of the Dark, but as they are my pet German shepherds, they are sadly unable to vote.

I think one of the main reasons nobody's taking me seriously is because, unlike my Democratic and Republican opponents, I have not held a national convention.

All that's about to change.

I am now in the process of organizing the first annual Geoff Belcher For President Fundraising Barbecue, Fish Fry and Wienie Roast, to be held at the spillway at a date to be announced. I think I'll probably have it on Labor Day so most people won't have to take off work to attend and because so many people will be at the spillway anyway you won't be able to spit without drowning somebody. That way, even if nobody comes to my party, I can pretend there's a huge crowd.

It'll be great. All I need now is: 1) money; 2) guest speakers; 3) entertainers (Tanya Tucker never called me back); 4) money; 5) barbecue; 6) fish; 7) money; 8) to convince my wife to make a speech for me; 9) wienies; 10) money; 11) some convincing lies; 12) a senile old windbag ex-politician to tell everybody how great I am; 13) lots of baked beans and potato salad; and 14) money.

I'm pretty sure I can get my mom to make the potato salad and my aunt to make the baked beans, but I have no idea where I'm gonna get the rest of the stuff if you, the reading public, don't help me out.

Also, I need to come up with a snappy new name for my political party. That's the hard part. Aside from the fact that Democrat, Republican, Communist and Independent have already been taken, my political standpoint is a little obscure.

On one hand, I'm sort of liberal since I favor cutting defense spending to benefit improved social and domestic policies and I think someone should sponsor those silicon implants for Olive Oyl.

On the other hand, I'm sort of conservative since I think rap "singer" Ice T should be publicly horse-whipped for the "song" Cop Killer and because I support enacting leash laws for children under the age of 12.

So help me out. This party planning stuff ain't as easy as it looks. And I'll be honest enough, unlike my opponents, to tell you that I don't have all the answers even though I'm creative enough to think up some pretty believable lies without having to depend on a speech writer.

So send in those cards and letters and especially checks. Lots of checks.

I'm here for you. The American people. The people of Eastern Kentucky. The people with a lot of cash to blow.

I'll make it easy for you.

In the highly unlikely event that I fail to win the election, instead of keeping all the campaign donations, I will give them to the local Humane Society and the American Cancer Society.

I know, I know. Giving up campaign donations is a completely un-Kentucky politician thing to do, but hey, that's the kind of selfless guy I am.

Of course, you know, things like cars or stereos or something like that I'd probably have to keep, but I'd definitely give them the cash. Most of it anyways. Well, at least a little bit.

Now, if the shameless begging and appeal to your respective senses of charity hasn't worked, I'll add a threat. I'd rather rule through fear than ability anyway.

If you don't start sending me money, I'll have God come and take Oral Roberts away.

Then I'll run for magistrate. You'll be sorry then, boy. I might actually get that job.

That would probably be a better job anyhow since magistrates only have to work about two hours a month, make more than $20,000 per year and can now do stuff like weddings.

Can you imagine me as minister at a wedding? If I were you, I'd get my checkbook out right now.

The wife you save may be your own.

And don't get any big assassination ideas either. I have two German shepherds and I know how to use 'em.

As always, you can send flowers, cards, suggestions, hot tubs, stereos, color televisions and cash to me here at the Times. If you have a hard time with my name, just write "Your Majesty."

"He was a brilliant strategist but not much of a horseman."

Widower finds his fair lady but wonders whether to wed

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: Do you think an 80-year-old man is foolish to consider remarriage? Some of my children do. I am a widower who has been alone for 12 years, during which time I have been in the company of some lovely eligible women. But I never have wanted to marry until I met "my fair lady." She is 65 and has been a widow for 10 years.

We are both in reasonably good health, and we would like to spend the rest of our lives together, making each other happy. All our children are married. Some approve of our plans to marry; some do not.

I own my own home and have a little money. In view of the mixed feelings of our children, should we sneak off and get married by a preacher with just a few friends as witnesses? Or should we have a small church wedding, invite all the children, and let those who want to, come, and those who don't, stay home?

DEAR YOUNG: Why "sneak off"? Do whatever pleases you and your fair lady. The last thing you should worry about is what your children think.

DEAR ABBY: You frequently receive letters from long-suffering wives who complain because their husbands have a habit of getting "lost" in bars on their way home from work. Allow me to suggest a solution that was used with considerable success by one such wife in Omaha:

As was his custom when detained at a bar, the husband telephoned home. The instant he heard his wife on the other end of the line, he began, "Now, honey, before you say anything, I just want to ..."

Then he heard his wife's voice speaking in calm, modulated tones, "... When and if you decide to come home, you will find your dinner in the oven. But I won't be here. Don't try to find me. And by the way, go to hell. This is a recording."

The husband rushed home in a panic. The house was dark. The wife's car was missing from the garage.

To his relief, he found his wife in bed! She turned on a light and confirmed that the voice he had heard was no recording—it was "live."

The missing car? She had parked it around the corner on a side street. "But next time," she said, "it might not be a joke."

ROBERT MC MORRIS, OMAHA WORLD HERALD

DEAR ABBY: My husband isn't an alcoholic, but after he's had a few, he gets very generous and starts giving away things. (His cufflinks, expensive pens and pencils, even the necktie he is wearing.) He practically forces things on people, some of whom he hardly knows.

Some folks realize it was the booze talking, and the next day, they will return whatever he's given them. But most people just keep it. Is there a solution to this problem?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. Sobriety.

GRANDPARENTING

'SHARED JEOPARDY' CREATES FAMILY BOND

Q: Our 10-year-old grandson who lives nearby "ran away from home" last week. He didn't go far — just up to the woods behind the barn at his family's farm.

It took his parents about two hours to find him, and they were furious. They sent him to his room with some very harsh words.

I think they should have been more compassionate. He had threatened to do this before, but this is the first time he has really followed through. It worries me. What do you think? — "Granny," Norfolk, Va.

A: We think it is very fitting for you, "Granny," to show compassion. That is one of the most important roles for all grandparents. We also think you shouldn't worry too much. Maybe this young boy simply thinks he's Huck Finn and seeks adventure, normal for many young boys that age.

We consulted Joshua L. Miner, who recently retired after 34 years as teacher, dean of admissions and coach at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He is also the founding trustee of Outward Bound U.S.A., Greenwich, Conn., the challenging wilderness experience for all ages.

"Josh" said: "Parents should provide opportunities for 'shared jeopardy.' Today, parents are often only 'competent spectators.' They dutifully attend athletic contests, listen to music recitals and attend dramatic

Popular composer lauds Kentucky

Played each year at the opening of the Kentucky Derby, "My Old Kentucky Home" has become a familiar and beloved song not just to Kentuckians, but to all Americans.

Reportedly, composer Stephen Collins Foster (1826-1864) was inspired to write the song while visiting Federal Hill in Bardstown, home of his cousin Judge John Rowan, Sr. Foster, a Pennsylvania native, also spent time in Augusta, where his uncle was president of Augusta College. In Augusta, Foster was impressed by the musical, harmonious voices from an African-American church floating softly over the town. Many of his songs, such as "Old Folks at Home" (Swanee River), reflect this poignancy.

America's first popular composer, Foster wrote over 200 songs, including the rollicking favorites "Camptown Races" and "Oh! Susanna."

Each summer in Bardstown "The Stephen Foster Story", an outdoor musical, pays tribute to Foster's creativity. Performances are held Tuesday through Sunday nights on the grounds of Federal Hill.

The federal government is commemorating the house Foster immortalized, and the Kentucky bicentennial, with a postage stamp of Federal Hill.

productions. But that's not enough.

"Some 150 years ago about 80 percent of Americans lived on farms. Jeopardy was shared as a matter of course. If food was not properly put up in the summer, the entire family suffered in the winter. But shared jeopardy is hard to come by today."

Mountain climbing, he said, gives wonderful opportunities for shared jeopardy. "There's enough social glue here to hold two or more people together for the rest of their lives. The communication problem is solved," he added.

In your case, of course, the parents may not be able to take their son mountain climbing, but they could at least go on a few overnight hikes with him. They should also tell him they love him even when he gets angry and runs away. After finding their son, they should have given him hugs rather than punishment.

If he threatens to run away again, suggest to his parents to have a "safe harbor" standing by. Your house, for example, could be a place to cool down. Grandparents should always have open ears and open arms. "Help him pack his knapsack," as Josh put it, pointing him in the direction of that "safe harbor."

Josh also talked about five qualities that should be reinforced during early childhood: compassion, a sense of right and wrong, a feeling for order, curiosity and, finally, a desire for adventure.

We thank you and your 10-year-old grandson might soon be on the right track.

Several weeks ago we wrote about a bright, precocious 3 1/2-year-old boy, Peter Raphael, from Conshohocken, Pa. His grandmother proudly described how he was glued to his TV set and his favorite videos, absorbed only in classical music and carefully following the gestures of the conductors alone.

Kate Tamarkin, music director of the Vermont Symphony Orchestra, was very helpful, telling us: "Don't pressure him. Simply allow him to enjoy what he is doing now. You risk burn-out when he reaches 18 or 20."

We spoke this week to David Zinman, music director of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, who was also highly amused, but with a slightly different approach:

"This young boy should have music lessons, and hear many different instruments. Maybe start with the piano, since his mother plays the piano. He may soon learn how to read music. Once he starts to read music, he's in business! He might also like to play a string instrument as well."

PROUD "MAMA": Just like any doting parent, Elaine Princi (Dorian, "One Life to Live") is always happy to talk about her two "children." They're the youngsters she began sponsoring a few years ago through the Christian Children's Fund after she returned from a trip to South America.

"I'm so proud of both of them," Princi said. "Beatriz Conseuelo Congo, who lives in Ecuador, is 12 years old now. She sends me letters, drawings, little calendars she's embroidered, and her report cards.

"Cheyenne is two-and-a-half, and the family where he lives writes to me constantly, and sends snapshots of him with his cute smile."

MEANWHILE, OLTL fans were delighted to welcome back actor Thom Christopher, whose last appearance on the series was as the conniving Carlo Hesser. This time he plays Dr. Mortimer Bern, a sort of mild-mannered medico who seems a pleasant sort. But this is Soapdom, so appearances can well be deceiving.

JOANNA GOING TO EXTREMES: Joanna Going, whose previous soaps were "Search for Tomorrow" and "Another World," is one of the stars of the upcoming ABC series, "Going to Extremes." The series' creators are Joshua Brand and John Falsiey, who gave us "Northern Exposure," and helped turn Janine Turner—formerly of "General Hospital"—into a major prime time star.

FROM HOUSE BUILDER TO HOMEWRECKER: Film and TV thesp, Kimberlin Brown (Sheila, "Bold and the Beautiful") had planned to be an architect. She even did some draftsman work for a carpet company while in high school. Today she's in her second manifestation as one of daytime television's bitchiest, witchiest women: As Sheila Grainger on "Young and the Restless," she broke up a man's home; on "Bold and the Beautiful," she's doing ditto to her hapless boss. In real life, Kimberlin is nothing like her daytime role. But she loves doing her... "because playing someone who is so totally different from the person you are is a lot of fun."

GO SEE: If you're anywhere near J's, one of New York's oldest jazz clubs, on Sunday, August 23, drop in to see Eileen Fulton (Lisa, "As the World Turns") in her exciting, new cabaret act.

counter with her son produced no further fireworks. Lisanne overheard Bo claim Lawrence ruined Carly's life, giving her the ammunition she needed to get Carly out of the picture altogether. Distracted over a patient's death, Carly worked to provide a Medical Van for uninsured families. Accessing the police computer, Bo learned Marcus was in a life threatening situation at the hospital. Stella and Roman were less than ecstatic with the Marlena/Roger relationship. Shane was delighted to be reunited with his children after Philip returned to Los Angeles. Wait To See: Lawrence is rocked by events surrounding Lisanne and Vivian under the same roof.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Rick and Holly struggled through the dangers of the San Sebastian jungle, growing closer all the time. Karen was shocked to learn her mother's behavior led to Jagger's beating. Jenny and Ned's romantic interlude was cut short by bad weather. Felicia followed Mac on the case she had set up for him, aware, all the time, that she was also being followed. A.J. was unaware that Nikki hit on him as her way to the good life. Wait To See: Felicia's plan takes a potentially dangerous turn.

GUIDING LIGHT: Nadine bonded with Bridget over the young woman's secret pregnancy. Alexandra was evasive when Nick asked her why she sold the land to Roger. Later, Alexandra was stunned by Roger's reaction to her tirade against him. After hearing Nadine tell Bridget that she'd given up her baby for adoption, Marley shared her pain about Daisy with Mallet. Alexandra was moved when Nick finally called her mother, but their new found closeness was broken when Alan-Michael capgily arranged for Nick to find Roger's file. While Fletcher told Henry he planned to propose to Vanessa, Billy arrived in Cross Creek just as Vanessa was about to tell Little Billy about her relationship with Fletcher. Wait To See: Bridge "inspires" Nadine with an idea that could save her marriage to Billy.

LOVING: When Trisha lets Trucker's name slip during a kiss, Giff exploded, then calmed down. Realizing he's not Alden's son, Clay demanded Isabelle tell him all about the past. Gwyn learned Armand Rosario, the lawyer, was her new admirer. Together, Gwyn and Armand researched Tim's past. Ava finally met Leo Burnell, who whisked her off to a private lunch, and told her they'd gone to high school together. Ally cautioned Casey that his crush on Ava was a waste of time. Stacey moved out of the mansion, and back into her old home. Wait To See: Trucker's fears for the baby may prove too tragically true.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Clarkson's photographer followed Cassie and Andrew, hoping to get more information to destroy Andrew's reputation. Luna and Max reconciled, but Max remained suspicious of Suede's interest in her. Billy ran away. Andrew told the crowd at Rodi's Tavern, he loved Cassie. Viki and Clint learned Billy is gay. Clint told Joey he could no longer be Billy's friend. After Lee Ann warned she'd kill anyone who tried to take her baby away, a triumphant Kevin was given custody of Duke. Marty was ready to tell the truth. Wait To See: Viki reacts to Clint's decision about Billy.

SANTA BARBARA: Frank was found dead. Lab tests showed gun powder on Sawyer's shirt. Angry at the way Sawyer was being treated, Jodie quit the force. In the hospital, Kelly told a recovering Cruz that B.J. was safe. When Reese refused to stay out of the case, Boswell took his badge. While still in a relationship with Ted, Angela started a new one with C.C. Later, Ted told her he was going to marry Katrina. Warren arrived and told her Ted may have turned her in for illegally demolishing the building. At the custody hearing, Mason told C.C. he expected he'd do the right thing: He did—grant custody of Channing to Gina and Lionel. Wait To See: Angela's complicated love life becomes even more so.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: When Ashley clued Kay into Jill's plans, Kay called Carol (who was helping Jill) to say Jill wanted the party to be held at her (Kay's) home—instead of the Abbott home—and asked her to call everyone on Jill's list to tell them about the change. When no one turned up at the Abbott's place, a suspicious (and furious) Jill checked with Carol and learned about the switch. Michael became suspicious of Cricket's motives when Hilary told him the Romalottis are her neighbors. Intending to tell Nina he could no longer see her, Ryan arranged to meet her at Gina's. Nina, misinterpreting what he said, agreed not to pressure him about marriage. Wait To See: Scott faces a difficult decision as he prepares for Lauren's custody suit.

design; Scott Bentley, general technician/scenic painter; Angela McKenzie, stitcher/dresser; Michelle Bardo, fight scene coordinator; Richie Hall and Mike Goble, spotlights; and Rose Langefield and Tammy Moore who volunteered to serve as dressers and assist with children.

So, now you know that it takes so much more than just actors to put on a show. It takes a very talented and hardworking staff like the technical staff at Jenny Wiley Theatre.

NATASHA'S STARS

Smile Awhile

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You WOW your world early in the week—make the most of it. Pretend you're the Emperor (or Empress) of your domain, and create exactly what you want. Go for the more spiritual values in life or you could be caught (like the Emperor) without any clothes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Get into your head and get more into your heart. You take action and move into new realms late in the week. You survey your gains as the week comes to a close. Indulge yourself and another.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be more upbeat about your direction and your needs. Aim for what you want with the full expectation of getting it. Play hermit midweek, if you have any questions as to which way you need to go. By the weekend, you feel renewed and ready.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might as well take the lead this week, because everyone will dump the responsibility (yours and theirs) on you. Be more understanding of another's foibles and you discover a friendship is enriched. The fact is, if you put out this week, you get.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Your mind travels to distant lands and distant people this week. You might take this as inspiration and really push hard at work, so you can call it an early weekend. Now really, you big pussy cat, what is it that would really have you purring?

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Getting down to the nitty-gritty of a partnership takes up a large part of your week. You have daydreams to fulfill, and you're able to make them yours this week. Be aware, however, that actions taken could have long-range implications.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Let others call the shots, as usual or for a change. Look at a partnership differently. Be willing to take a risk and open up. Consider a special weekend away (far away) where you make a dream happen.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Your efficiency at work is tested, as opportunities drop at your door. Socializing and getting to know a new member of your immediate circle take on importance. This weekend you finally know exactly what's there, and whether you want to pursue it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) You're forever a partier. (And a happy one at that.) You once more decide that the grass is greener on the other side—go ahead, take the risk. Put some of this high energy into your work, so that you can call it an early weekend and go on the prowl again.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Stay focused on priorities, and worry less about the outcome. Take a risk, here and there, and you'll feel much better than you have in a long while. Romance floats into the picture.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) You initiate action and need to deal with the outcome. Be more in touch with your feelings, and allow yourself some time to 'clear' and begin again. Romance blooms.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Money and long-term security dominate this week. You can have it, if you really explore your options. Be more grounded in what you want. Allow another to close the gap between the two of you. Complain less and smile more.

explain many things about me to many people.

This past weekend we visited my sister and she hasn't changed a bit. As soon as I entered her house she began telling me how I had just missed seeing our youngest sister, Amanda.

"Didn't you tell her I was coming?" I asked.

"Yes, but she didn't want to wait," Melinda announced coyly.

"But you knew I would be here before one o'clock," I cried.

"She knew that, Sara," Melinda smiled. "She must have wanted to see her friend more than she wanted to see you."

"Did she say when she'd be back?" I asked as my knees shook uncontrollably.

"No. I guess you won't see her again until Christmas."

Melinda had a thing about wanting to make me miserable around Christmas.

"Okay. She left. So what," I said, defensively.

Melinda and now Mother, who she had convinced to bring in as an accomplice, was in on "let's make Sara insecure and miserable for as long as we can." When they both started laughing, I knew they were calling my bluff.

"We love tearing you up, Sara," Melinda said intimidatingly. "You're still such an easy mark."

"Don't you think you're a little old to keep doing that to me? I knew you were kidding," I lied.

"Hah! Hah! Hah!" Melinda laughed uproariously. "We could tell. Right, Mom?"

Thankfully, Mother was unable to answer because she was too busy wiping the tears of laughter from her eyes.

At least that study proved one fact that I've known is true which is: older does not necessarily mean smarter.

NEWS FOR PET OWNERS

Ease With Fleas

A tiny insect can be a huge problem for pets and their owners. The wee flea, you see, is an incredibly prolific, long-lived and hard-to-manage pest. Fortunately, help is available at local stores.

New advanced pesticides break the flea cycle, which works like this: Your dog carries adult fleas into your home. The fleas bite your pet and almost immediately start laying eggs—up to 400 eggs per flea. With your dog's normal activity, these eggs get into the carpeting, furniture—all over the house. They then hatch into larvae, which weave protective cocoons, attaching them to your carpets' fibers, and then later emerge as adults to repeat the process.

A good way to fight fleas effectively is with a weapon such as Raid® Flea Killer Plus Egg Stop Formula from the world's leading expert on fleas and flea control for your home and dog. It contains an insect growth regulator which prevents hatching eggs from maturing into biting, reproducing adults. It remains effective for up to 120 days.

First spray your pet, lightly enough to dampen your dog's coat. Then use your fingers to rub Raid® Flea Killer Plus down to your dog's skin and in areas around your dog's mouth, eyes and ears. Next, vacuum your dog's bedding and other resting areas such as carpeting and couches. Then treat these areas thoroughly with Raid® Flea Killer Plus. Continue to vacuum these areas thoroughly and often.

For homes with heavy infestations that may require additional flea treatment, there's Raid® Fogger. One can treats an area of up to 24' x 24' with a fogging mist that seeks out and kills hard-to-reach fleas where they hide.

Alzheimer's: What Caregivers Should Know

Alzheimer's disease, the progressive and degenerative brain disorder, transforms patients into ghosts of their former selves, leaving caregivers and loved ones trying their best to cope with patients as their personality, as well as mental and physical health, decline. While the patient is an obvious victim, the caregiver is often called the "second" victim of Alzheimer's disease.

The following caregiver tips are provided by Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceuticals Inc. Hoechst-Roussel is one of several companies committed to the research, discovery and development of new compounds to treat Alzheimer's disease.

•Become informed about the disease. Knowing the symptoms and course of Alzheimer's disease as well as treatment options will help the caregiver feel more in control. Initiate discussions with the patient's physician to become educated.

•Try to share caregiver responsibility with other family members.

•Periodically reassess the patient's living situation to make sure it's working. Can changes, minor or major, help facilitate care?

•Establish a financial plan. Help from lawyers and accountants will get the patient's finances in order and ease the economic burden on the caregiver.

•Consider joining a caregiver support group to share concerns.

•Take one day at a time. Do not dwell on the future. Find humor where you can in daily activities.

•Talk out feelings and worries with others—a clergyman, an old friend, or caregiver support group members.

•Take care of yourself: eat well, exercise regularly, get enough sleep.

•Be conscious of potential problems that can occur as a result of depression—a common response to the caregiver situation.

THE ECONOMY AND YOU

One Way To Save Jobs

By Robert E. Swift

Manufacturing has been described as the engine that drives the economy. However, more than 2.7 million U.S. manufacturing jobs have been lost since 1979—more than half a million of which were in the U.S. textile and apparel industry.

Some of these displaced workers have found jobs in the service sector, but those jobs pay about 25% less than manufacturing jobs. For instance, in March 1992, average weekly employee earnings in manufacturing were $464, compared to $344 for service jobs.

This, combined with the effects of inflation, is a major factor in our declining standard of living. In fact the average weekly wages of non-supervisory workers are actually 19% less than they were in 1972, in terms of comparable purchasing power.

No wonder, then, that many of us feel that the "American dream"—a better life for our children, owning a home, affording higher education and a comfortable retirement—is slipping away.

Why have so many good U.S. manufacturing jobs been lost to rising imports?

In the case of the U.S. textile and apparel industry, the major reason is the low wages paid by many foreign textile and apparel operations, which also do not abide by the same worker-safety and environmental-protection standards of U.S. manufacturers. Textile and apparel imports accounted for a staggering 37% of the total U.S. merchandise trade deficit in 1991, despite research that shows most consumers prefer U.S.-made textile and apparel products because they believe their quality is superior.

The textile and apparel industry is not alone in being damaged by imports. Twelve of 21 manufacturing industries also had trade deficits last year.

While the nation's leaders and candidates for public office debate what should or should not be done to remedy the situation, consumers can help stem the flow of jobs to other countries without spending a dime more—just by making an informed choice regarding their purchases.

For instance, the average U.S. consumer spends $849 a year on clothing, approximately 60% of which is imported. But it is estimated that, for every $30 in purchases that every U.S. consumer switches from imported to U.S.-made products, 100,000 American textile and apparel jobs could be saved.

All that consumers have to do is shop as if their jobs depended on what they buy. Someone's job does depend on it, as well as the quality of life that we enjoy.

Robert E. Swift is executive director of the Crafted with Pride in U.S.A. Council, headquartered in New York City.
