

New Dewey ranger enjoying the challenge

Johnny B. Martin, one of the newest Park Rangers at Dewey Lake, is enjoying the challenge. Martin, who is the son of Charley and Opal Martin of Lexington, was born at Welch, West Virginia. The family later moved to South Williamson where Martin lived until he graduated from Belfry High and went on to college. He is a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University with a degree in Recreation and Park Administration, with an area of specialization in Camping and Outdoor Recreation. Martin, who spent nearly ten years with Kentucky State Parks, including five recent years at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park as the Park Recreation Program Supervisor, achieved one of his goals when he became a Federal Ranger. "Ever since I decided to major in parks and recreation, I knew I wanted to be a Federal Park Ranger. I was fortunate enough to achieve that goal with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers," Martin said. Many local people should remember Martin from his days at Jenny

Wiley, where he was involved with numerous community special events as well as the special events he arranged at the park. He enjoyed the days spent with state parks, but was ready for new challenges. "I gained a lot of valuable experience with state parks, but I was at a point in my career where I was ready to seek out a new challenge," says Martin. Working for the Corps has been a challenge for Martin, but a positive one. "I have to admit there is more to being a Ranger for the Corps than what I first thought. There is a lot of office and paper work, but there are the fun duties too, like lake and vehicle patrol, resource protection and interpretive programs," says Martin. He further said that the Corps of Engineers is a class organization and the Huntington District is top notch. "I've been impressed with how much they care about their employees," Martin said. Overall, Martin says being a Ranger with the Corps of Engineers at Dewey Lake is a challenge, but one he is enjoying.

Authority seeks housing site

Property is being sought in the Mud Creek area by the Floyd County Housing Authority for the construction of a 15-unit low to moderate income housing project. Property to be considered should meet the following criteria:

- have at least three to five acres of relatively flat land;
- be located above the 100-year flood plain;
- have access to a public or private water system;
- be on or near a well-surfaced, two-lane road;
- be on a sewer system or near a constantly flowing (blue line) stream for purposes of a sewage treatment plant; and
- be accessible to public services, such as grocery and/or other retail outlets, medical services, a fire department and schools.

 Interested parties having land for sale in the Mud Creek area that meets these guidelines should contact Julia May, executive director of the Floyd County Housing Authority, at 886-2717.

The Department for Housing and Urban Development announced last month that Floyd County had been awarded 15 additional housing units.

A youth program has been initiated in Wheelwright for the students at W.H.S. and the feeder schools, Melvin and Osborne. The coordinator for the program is the Upper Left Beaver Youth Service Center and Keith Smallwood is the director. Work has been underway for the past two months on the center. Painting and a general "brightening" have had top priority. The center will have TV, VCR, and as many educational programs as possible. Smallwood plans to hold events in the near future. "Since the purpose of the center is for the enjoyment of the youth, we plan to do exactly that."

TRANSIENT ISCHEMIC ATTACKS

"Little strokes," medically called transient ischemic attacks (TIAs) are frequently a warning sign of a major stroke. They occur when the flow of blood to the brain is momentarily blocked or diminished for no more than one or two days. Since only a small area of the brain is influenced, you may be only slightly aware that something is wrong. It is very important that you learn the warning symptoms of stroke.

The warning signs of stroke include:

Temporary vision loss. Vision loss is usually temporary and may last only several minutes or seconds. Many patients describe "sparkles," or a curtain "dropping down in front of their vision. Regardless of the exact form of duration of the vision loss, it should be reported to your physician.

Numbness, tingling, or weakness of an arm or leg. Numbness, tingling, or weakness of the arm or leg is a fairly common occurrence, so people often ignore it, but it can indicate a severe narrowing of the arteries carrying blood to your brain.

Dizzy spells, confusion, fainting spells, and staggering. These symptoms are also often easily dismissed by patients. However, they can be another important sign of impending stroke.

Difficulty speaking. Temporary and unusual speech difficulties are also a common warning symptom. Patients frequently describe that their mouth "was full of cotton" or simply didn't work as they expected.

If you experience any of the symptoms above report them immediately to your doctor. You are most likely to have another TIA or major stroke if you have high blood pressure, high levels of blood cholesterol, and have a history of TIAs. Many persons who have had TIAs may have a major stroke unless medical or surgical measures are taken.

Your age and race are also risk factors. Six out of seven stroke deaths occur after age 65. Probably because of a greater incidence of high blood pressure, black Americans suffer more strokes at an earlier age and with more severe results. Other risk factors include diabetes, smoking, and a family history of strokes. The more risk factors you have, the greater your chances of having a stroke.

Fortunately, prompt medical or surgical attention to the warning signals of stroke may prevent a fatal or disabling stroke from occurring.

Many of the risk factors can be controlled by re-evaluating your lifestyle and making necessary changes. If the cause of the TIAs is blockage in the main arteries of the neck, a Vascular Surgeon may recommend a procedure called a Carotid Endarterectomy. During a carotid endarterectomy, the blockage in the carotid artery is removed, restoring blood flow and greatly reducing the chance of further strokes.

New advances in Nutritional Therapy prove effective in fighting cancer

Doctors once thought special, nutritious diets could help strengthen cancer patients experiencing bad effects from chemotherapy. But nutritional therapy often had the unwanted secondary effect of fostering tumor growth as well. This can occur because there is competition for nutrients between healthy cells and cancerous cells.

However, at the recent third annual Research Conference of the American Institute for Cancer Research, two leading cancer researchers cited initial positive results of experiments on improved nutritional therapy which overcomes the problem of also strengthening the tumor.

Dr. David Ota, professor of surgery at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Cancer Center, has tested special diets that deprive tumors of some nutrients while supporting normal cell growth in patients. "Malnutrition is a significant problem in advanced cancer patients," Dr. Ota commented. "Several reports have shown that severity of weight loss is associated with decreased survival.

"Since glucose, fats and specific amino acids are used by tumors at a higher rate than normal tissue, we've looked for alternative substances that can nourish the patient's normal tissue while depriving tumors of nutrients that promote their growth," he said.

Dr. Ota has designed a specific nutritional regimen that combines certain nutrients that impair tumor growth, but do not adversely affect the patient.

How to limit tumor cell growth without killing healthy cells is also being investigated by Dr. Alan C. Sartorelli, professor, Yale School of Medicine. In his conference presentation, Dr. Sartorelli discussed his extensive research on how to affect tumor cell growth using derivatives of Vitamin A, called retinoic acids. Retinoic acids are specifically being examined for their potential in putting leukemia patients into remission. Dr. Sartorelli is a current recipient of research-grant funding from the American Institute for Cancer Research.

Getting a bike for Christmas ?

Don't forget the helmets

If there's a bicycle in the house but no helmet for the child who rides it, you've just discovered the perfect Christmas gift. Bicycle helmets can reduce the risk of head injury up to 85 percent and, as a result, may save a child's life, according to the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation.

"Christmas is the time when many children receive their first bicycle, and parents put a lot of thought into choosing the right bike. Unfortunately much less attention is given to choosing safety equipment to go with it, especially helmets," said Lilla S. Mason, Executive Secretary for the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation. A fall from a bicycle, often as little as four feet (or two feet from a tricycle), can cause serious head injury.

When purchasing a helmet, look for the following:

- Helmets should be approved by the American National Standards Institute or by the Snell Memorial Foundation. This means the helmet meets a series of strict safety standards.

- The fit should be snug, but not uncomfortable. Straps should be independently adjustable, with an easy-to-operate buckle. The helmet should not impede the wearer's vision or hearing.

Helmets are available from the Foundation for only $19. A brochure, "Parents, Buying Your Child A Bike?" is available free of charge. For more information, contact the Foundation at 233-1111 (outside Lexington call 1(800)568-5222).

Priority roads selected for snowy weather

Kentucky Transportation Secretary Don C. Kelly recently announced the priority roads in Floyd County for snow and ice removal during the upcoming winter season.

Kelly urged citizens to use Priority A roadways if at all possible when traveling during hazardous conditions. "These priority roads will be cleared as quickly as possible when ever winter weather hits," Kelly said. "We recommend that travelers use these routes if they must be out on the roadways. We will do everything feasible to keep roadways clear of snow and ice and to ensure the safest possible travelling conditions. I ask residents of Floyd County to work with us in this effort and to use extreme caution when driving. Our main concern is the safety of the motoring public."

Priority A roadways in Floyd County, which will be cleared first by Transportation Cabinet road crews, include U.S. 23, U.S. 460, KY 80, KY 114, KY 122, KY 404, and portions of KY 3, KY 7, KY 979, and KY 1428. This category includes interstates, parkways, urban expressways and other state roads with exceptionally large volumes of traffic. The next roads to be cleared will be Priority B and then C, as indicated on the attached map. Priority B roads include state primary roads, bypasses and roads with slightly less traffic than Priority A roads. State secondary roads, rural secondary roads, and other routes with comparable traffic volumes fall under the Priority C category.

Paintsville JVs outlast Betsy Layne JVs, 60-57

By Ed Taylor

It was a close encounter in the Paintsville versus Betsy Layne junior varsity game Monday night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse. The two teams locked up in a good old fashioned barn burner with the Tigers coming away with a 60-57 win over the Bobcats.

Brad Sergent scored a game high 33 points to lead the Tigers with Matt Ratliff adding eight. Sergent was all over the court with jumpers, lay-ins, and three-pointers as the Bobcats had problems in containing the high scoring guard.

Leading by one, 52-51, the Tigers began to widen their lead over Betsy Layne in the fourth quarter with 1:31 left in the game. Paintsville took a seven point advantage, 58-51, on a basket by Sergent. Steve Johnson hit a three-pointer for Betsy Layne with just over 30 seconds left in the game to make it a 58-54 lead. The final margin came on a three-pointer at the buzzer by Ryan Newsome.

The score was tied 21-21 with 1:19 left in the second period as neither team could get a marginal lead. Betsy Layne took a 23-21 lead on Mark Ousley's basket but Kip Williams tied the game with two charity tosses. Paintsville missed going to the locker room with the lead when Eric Marcum missed two free throws.

Betsy Layne raced out to a 29-23 lead with 3:51 left in the third period as Derrick Newsome scored on a spinning mover inside. Sergent's trey and free throw made it a two-point game at 29-27.

Newsome completed a three-point play that gave the Bobcats the lead at 32-27 and then led 35-34 on a field goal by Marcum. Marcum came back with a three pointer after a Betsy Layne turnover and Paintsville claimed the lead 37-35. Betsy Layne led 39-37 at the end of the third period on a basket by Johnson with 10 seconds left in the quarter.

Paintsville led 52-48 with less than two minutes to play in the game. Johnson hit a jumper and was fouled. He connected on the free throw for the 52-51 lead.

Johnson led all scorers with 20 points. Newsome added 15 with Ousley and Ryan Newsome scoring nine each. Jeremy Rogers added four.

Lady Mustangs defeat Lady Eagles 54-18, in the Right Beaver Classic

Chuck Rowe
Sports Writer

The John M. Stumbo Lady Mustangs advanced to their third game of the Right Beaver Classic Friday night by defeating the Allen Lady Eagles.

The Lady Mustangs outscored the Lady Eagles 19-0 in the first quarter behind the duo of Penny Tackett and Ashley Tackett. The duo of Tacketts scored 14 of the first 19 points their team recorded in the first quarter.

Penny Tackett scored six points, two field goals and two free throws, and Ashley Tackett scored eight points, two field goals and four free throws, to lead the 19 point explosion in the first quarter.

The Lady Mustangs started the second quarter on back-to-back baskets by Lori Hall and Mandy Hall. The Lady Eagles finally got on the scoreboard with about 4:00 left in the first half on a basket by Shalena Lewis which made, once again, by the play of the Tacketts. Ashley and Penny both scored four points on the Stumbo run that took their team to a 31-2 lead, their biggest lead of the first half. The Lady Eagles finished the scoring of the quarter and cut the lead to 25 points, 31-6, on back-to-back baskets by Brandie Lawson and Tiffany Warrix.

The Lady Mustangs scored six straight points in the third quarter on four points by Penny Tackett and on a basket by Gina Hall to make the score 39-8. The Lady Eagles scored 10 points in the third quarter behind two baskets by Jill Compton and two baskets by Lewis. That made the score 45-16 at the end of the third quarter and the 29 point lead equaled the Lady Mustangs' biggest lead of the game.

The Lady Eagles got only one field goal, by Jackie Cundiff, in the fourth quarter as the Lady Mustangs scored nine points. Stumbo got two baskets by Jill Martin, one by Lisa Osborne, one by Amanda Hall, and a free throw by Leslie Newsome to take the victory.

Kentucky Afield

SMALL GAME SEASONS OPEN
Rabbit and quail season in Zone A is November 1 through 13 and Nov. 24 through Jan. 31, 1993. In Zone B, rabbits and quail may be taken Nov. 24 through Feb. 21, through Feb. 28, 1993.

Counties in rabbit and quail Zone A are Bell, Boyd, Breathitt, Carter, Clay, Elliott, Estill, Floyd, Greenup, Harlan, Jackson, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Lawrence, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Lewis, McCreary, Magoffin, Martin, Menifee, Morgan, Owsley, Perry, Pike, Powell, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Rowan, Russell, Wayne, Whitley and Wolfe. All other counties are included in Zone B.

Kentucky's statewide furbearer season is from Nov. 24 through Jan. 31, 1993, and squirrel season reopens statewide Nov. 24 and will close after Dec. 31.

All hunters born on or after January 1, 1975 must carry a valid hunter education course completion card while hunting in addition to the appropriate Kentucky hunting license. Hunters who must meet the hunter education requirement may purchase a hunting license prior to taking the course and obtaining the card; however, hunters must have the card in possession when in the field hunting. A bow hunter not in possession of a firearm may carry a national bow hunter education program course completion card in lieu of the hunter education course card.

Children under 10 years of age may hunt without a course completion card, but must be accompanied by an adult (at least 18 years old) who shall be in a position to take immediate control of the child's bow or firearm. One adult shall not accompany more than two children at one time.

Hunter's not required to have a hunting license are not required to carry the hunter education card, but are encouraged to take the course even though it's not mandatory. The course is provided free and scheduling information is available by contacting the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) Information & Education Division at (502) 564-4762 or (502) 564-4336.

FREE CAPS TO COOPERATORS

Kentucky deer, quail and grouse hunters can receive a free "cooperator" cap by participating in any one of three population surveys being conducted by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

KDFWR Deer Program Coordinator John Phillips encourages deer hunters to send in the lower left jaw of their harvested deer to the department's wildlife division, via postage paid envelopes, for research purposes. Jeff Sole, upland wildlife program coordinator, is working with a similar wing return survey for quail and grouse to monitor these game populations more effectively.

Hunters who obtain deer jaw or quail and grouse wing return envelopes from state conservation officers, wildlife biologists or the KDFWR wildlife division in Frankfort and participate in the programs will receive a free cap for their cooperation. Along with the cap, hunters will be provided information either on their deer, or about the upland game bird programs. Caps for returning deer jaws are usually sent from the KDFWR in mid-April, while caps and information from the wing return surveys come later.

TRY THESE LINE TRICKS TO CHANGE LURE ACTION

Many bass fishermen alter a lure's action by using their rod tip, moving it from side to side or up and down to make a lure go in a certain direction.

What many anglers don't realize is that changing line size can also cause a lure to act differently.

"You can make a lure run deeper or more shallow, fall faster or slower, or wobble more from side to side, just by changing line sizes," explained Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler David Wharton.

"In fact, I won a tournament on Sam Rayburn Reservoir several years ago by using a much heavier line than normal that kept my lure from diving as deep as it would have with lighter line."

When anglers speak of line weight, they're describing the pound-test rating of that line. The heavier the pound-test, the thicker the line becomes, and as thickness increases the line becomes less flexible. Heavier lines also have more water resistance.

"That's why diving, vibrating lures like crankbaits do not work nearly as well with heavier lines as they do with lighter lines," explains Wharton. "A heavy line holds the lure up so it can't dive as deep, nor can it wobble as effectively."

Wharton normally uses a thin 10-pound test line to fish crankbaits, but during his tournament win on Rayburn he switched to much thicker 20-pound test line because it kept his crankbait up above the underwater grass where the fish were located. With lighter line his lure would have kept diving into the grass.

"You can also slow a lure's fall by using heavier line," explains the Johnson pro. "For example, in winter when bass are holding very tight to cover and aren't aggressive, a very heavy line will slow a jig's fall dramatically so you can keep it in the strike zone longer."

"On the other hand, if you're fishing deep, clear water and using small lures, a lighter line is normally a better choice because it allows the lure to fall faster."

"A lot of fishermen use six-pound test line for this type of fishing. If you used 20-pound test, it would take the lure twice as long to reach the bottom."

When he's fishing fast-moving lures like spinnerbaits, Wharton uses 17 or 20-pound test line.

"With spinnerbaits I'm always fishing around thick brush and I'm usually moving the lure pretty fast," he explains. "With a fast moving spinnerbait, I still get the action I need with the heavy line and I get the added benefit of abrasion resistance from the brush at the same time."

OMC SysteMatched Parts and Accessories offers a partially synthetic outboard lubricant designed for today's high performance V-6 outboards. Called Johnson GT™ and Evinrude XP™ High Performance Lubricant, OMC says the product offers better engine protection at high RPMs, reduced piston scuffing and ring sticking, and reduced carbon build-up. Both lubricants can be used in any outboard at the manufacturer's recommended fuel/oil ratio.

IT'S EASY TO BECOME A BASS PRO, BUT HARD TO STAY ONE

It's easy to become a bass tournament pro, but hard to stay one.

That's the opinion of Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler Ken Cook, who has not only managed to remain a tournament pro for a decade, but also become one of the sport's most recognizable stars.

"Anyone who pays his entry fee to a national tournament can call himself a professional," laughs Cook, "but to stay a professional you have to keep fishing and paying those entry fees, and it gets expensive in a hurry."

Cook's advice to aspiring tournament anglers is to work into the professional ranks gradually by fishing smaller local tournaments and gaining both competitive experience and fishing knowledge.

"Even then, it won't be easy," smiles the 1991 world bass fishing champion. "In my first pro tournament, which was held on Lake Texoma where I fish often and had won several tournaments, the pros blew me away. I caught about 15 pounds of fish, but the winner came in with more than 66 pounds."

"It really dawned on me then just how good some of the pros really were at locating and catching fish."

One aspect of becoming a tournament angler today has changed considerably since Cook turned pro in 1981. Today it is much easier for fishermen to acquire new knowledge because of the abundance of magazines, videos, and television programs.

"When I started," says the Evinrude pro, "the only real ways to gain knowledge were from personal fishing experiences and by talking with other anglers."

"Today, the learning curve is much faster because of all the material available. We see this quite dramatically, too. Today's anglers joining the pro circuit really know much more about fishing than we did when we started years ago."

Still, says Cook, joining a local bass fishing club and participating in their tournaments will provide invaluable experience in learning how to locate fish quickly and adjust to changing conditions, two criteria veteran tournament pros consider extremely important.

"Certainly one of the benefits in fishing club tournaments is that they aren't as expensive as national events," Cook adds, "but you can learn just as much. To fish a full season on one of the national tournament circuits may cost as much as $13,000 just in entry fees, and you could probably add another $13,000 in travel expenses."

"That's a mighty big investment to make without first getting as much tournament fishing experience as possible in a local club."

"I'd guess nearly all of today's top pros probably began their careers by fishing club tournaments first."

Before storing your boat for the winter, the service experts at OMC recommend checking all fuel lines and fittings for cracks or other damage caused by today's alcohol enhanced fuels. If any lines or fittings look suspect, change them immediately. To combat deterioration of fuel system parts, OMC SysteMatched Parts and Accessories has developed special materials that resist the destructive effects of alcohol and which are used in all OMC fuel hoses, primer bulbs, fuel tanks and oil injection systems.

What you can do to save the family tree

on Court Street

Enjoy entertainment and refreshments in the downtown stores!
There's something for everyone!

The fruit tree has stood in the backyard as long as the home place has been standing. That tree has provided fruit almost every year, but it is beginning to look haggard.

Can anything be done to save it? Yes. But you might want to ask yourself first if it is worth saving, according to extension horticulturist Jerry Brown, with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"There is a good chance that the old faithful tree is a seedling from some unknown ancestor," Brown said.

"Be sure that this is the best choice for you before you choose to try to save it. Many newer cultivars have better disease resistance and are often more vigorous than some of the older stock. Taste fruit from cultivars produced in your area to see if there is a substitute suitable for your use," he said.

A new fruit tree from a nursery will cost about what a dinner in a good restaurant costs, he said.

Saving an old variety takes time and patience. And planting a seed may result in fruit that is substantially different from the old tree, he said.

"Peaches often resemble the parent enough that the difference may not be objectional. However, ripening date and other characteristics may be different. Apples, which have a greater number of chromosomes, when grown from seed may be quite different from the original tree," he said.

Brown added that while a root sprout of a seedling will be the same as the seedling, sprouts from grafted trees will produce fruit different from the parent tree because the sprout would be from the rootstock of the grafted tree.

Here is one method to save your tree which involves only time. You must have bud wood from the old tree and rootstock to graft the bud to. To help ensure success, they should be of the same species, apples on apples, peaches on peaches, he said.

Dwarfing rootstocks can be ordered from a commercial nursery, or can be grown from seed, Brown said. Rootstock produced from seeds usually are not dwarfing.

To grow your own rootstock, save seeds from the fruit and plant them in late summer one to two inches deep in fertile garden soil. The seeds will germinate and grow the following spring.

By the fall, these new trees will be big enough for you to implant a bud from the old tree. By using a bud from the old tree, the fruit the new tree produces will be identical to that of the old tree, Brown said.

"Budding is a relatively simple matter and is often successful if done properly. Extension publication, HO-39, 'Reproducing Fruit Trees by Graftage,' available at county extension offices in Kentucky provides detailed instructions on budding," he said.

In the following spring, those that were not budded or those where the bud failed to take can be whip grafted using wood stock from the parent tree. Instructions on whip grafting and collecting graft wood also are available in the HO-39 publication, he said.

Hunger-fighting gift helps save planet, too

Want to give someone a warm and fuzzy Christmas gift for that person you're still shopping for? Literally warm and fuzzy, it's a food-producing animal provided in honor of your friend, family member or client to a hungry family by Heifer Project International (HPI).

From HPI's Christmas catalogue you can help provide an impoverished family a flock of baby chicks ($20), a woolly sheep or a friendly dairy goat ($120) or even a bred dairy heifer ($500) and related services.

Since 1944, these gifts — normally one to a family — have been helping rural families around the globe become self-reliant. For the 70 percent of the world's people who are rural, one farm animal can make the difference between poverty and malnutrition, and a life with hope.

Before receiving the animal, the families are trained in basic animal husbandry skills and sustainable agriculture techniques that work in harmony with the earth. One way of protecting the planet for future generations is the planting of special trees whose leaves provide quality forage for animals and whose roots help stop soil erosion. Shoppers can help provide a rural community a set of 500 of these tree seedlings for $60. Other gifts in the catalogue include fish fingerlings, rabbits, pigs and honeybees.

If Uncle Al doesn't merit an entire cow in his stocking, the catalogue offers the option of buying a "share" of an animal, starting at $10. HPI sends the relative or friend an attractive card that describes your gift and how it helps (but doesn't mention the amount of gift), or you can send the cards yourself.

The gift doesn't stop with the cow or flock of chicks. Families receiving HPI's help follow a unique practice called "Passing on the Gift." Each family gives its animal's first female offspring to another needy family that has completed training.

To receive the free catalogue, call Heifer Project International's toll-free number (1-800-422-0474), or write P.O. Box 808, Little Rock, AR 72203

The American Cancer Society's public education programs teach people about cancer and how to protect themselves from it. Last year, 55 million people took part in these programs.

Art students receive awards

McDowell High School art students captured three first place awards in the 1992-93 GFWC-KFWC seventh district art competition.

Stephanie Reid won the blue ribbon for water color painting. Judy Lawson received top honors in both the drawing and oil painting categories.

The first place winners will represent the Drift Woman's Club in the state competition late this spring.

Other McDowell students' works which were highly regarded by the judges were by Michael Case, Michelle Hall, Jeff McGuire, Jamie Short, Matt Slone, and Tiana Slone.

Warm death

You've picked one of the coldest evenings of the year to be traveling home for the holidays. It is 11:00 p.m. and you're still two hours from your destination, when suddenly you have a tire blowout. You pull off the road and prepare to change the tire. Then you realize the spare tire is also flat. After unsuccessfully attempting to flag down another vehicle you realize just how cold it is and return to the warmth of your vehicle. When you get inside the vehicle you start the engine to run the heater, knowing that you are going to have to go back outside again to get help. As the vehicle warms up you begin to get cozy, delaying thinking about your unfortunate situation. Its been a hard day; you went to work racing around to get everything done before the end of the work day and now you are really tired. You talk yourself into taking a five minute nap as the purr of the vehicles motor lullabies you to sleep.

Suddenly you hear the sound of breaking glass and feel being grabbed and pulled on to the cold pavement. Rotating red and blue lights are bouncing off the hillsides around you and you can't move. You hear people talking but you can't speak. Days later in the hospital you realize that you were fifteen minutes from death or coma. You could have died in your sleep from carbon monoxide poisoning, warm and cozy. "Warm Death" (carbon monoxide poisoning) claims the lives of hundreds every year. The sad thing is that carbon monoxide poisoning gives no warning and it has no smell. Carbon monoxide is produced from engine exhaust fumes. The fumes rise from the exhaust system and enter the car through the floor board, trunk and engine firewall. Combined with the oxygen-depleted heat from your vehicle's heating system, carbon monoxide overtakes its victims without them even knowing it.

Motorists and sportsmen should refrain from running automobile engines to warm the vehicle while parked. If you must run the engine ensure that a window is partially open. If you begin to get sleepy get out of the vehicle and walk around. To keep warm, motorists and sportsmen should carry blankets in the vehicle, they are a safe alternative. During routine maintenance make sure your vehicle's exhaust system is not leaking around the connections or that your muffler and exhaust pipes are free of holes. Check under your vehicle and in the firewall for any rust holes or other holes that are not part of the vehicle design. Pollution control devices are put on your vehicle for a reason, leave them in place, they are a part of the safety features designed in the vehicle.

The situation mentioned above could happen to anyone. Be aware and be cautious, others could be depending on your judgment.

Resident artist
Vicky Childers McKinney, Floyd native and artist, was commissioned to do a painting of the Barter Theatre's retiring director, Rex Partington.

Former resident commissioned to paint portrait of retiring theatre producer

A Floyd County native was recently commissioned by the Barter Theatre Board of Directors to do a painting of the theatre's retiring director. Vicky Childers McKinney, an Abingdon, Virginia portraitist chosen from the community's numerous resident artists, participated in the on-stage unveiling and presentation following the theatre's production of "The Butterfingers Angel."

The portrait of Rex Partington, retiring after 21 seasons as Artistic Director and Producer, was presented to the theatre as a gift from the Susan Ruth Partington Memorial Fund and will hang in the upper lobby of the theatre along with the portrait of the theatre's founder and first director.

The Barter, State Theatre of Virginia, was founded during the Depression years and is nationally renowned for its stage productions. The theatre, a professional stepping stone of many well-known performers, is located across the street from the historic Martha Washington Inn in downtown Abingdon.

McKinney is the daughter of John and Ellene Vicars Childers, former Floyd County residents who now live in Abingdon, and the granddaughter of Ethel Vicars of Hager Hill. She attended elementary school at both Wheelwright and Martin and was a member of Martin High School's last graduating class.

After studying at the Harris School of Art in Nashville, Tennessee, McKinney began her career as a professional portraitist in Abingdon, a southwestern Virginia community noted for its promotion of fine arts. She later became a student of Professor Ron Taylor at the University of North Carolina.

McKinney currently resides in Abingdon with her husband, Harry, and daughters, Helen Katherine and Mary Ellene.

Pageant winner

Tia Lashae Sallsbury, 21/2-year-old daughter of Joetta Sallsbury of Hunter and Danny Sallsbury of Ashland, was recently crowned Wee Miss Autumn at McDowell. The pageant was held by the Drift Woman's Club on November 7. She is the granddaughter of Virgil and Joyce Slone of Hi Hat and Ervin and Bernice Sallsbury of Eastern.

New Year's wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Patton of Hueysville announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Tammy Faye, to Bill Samons, son of Jack and Ernestine Samons. Miss Patton is a graduate of Allen Central High School. Mr. Samons is also a graduate of Allen Central High School. He is employed by P and B Ambulance Service. The wedding will be January 1, 1993, at 1 p.m., at the Church of Christ in Hueysville.

Creepy crawly luncheon

Student/parent involvement was an exciting event at Auxler Elementary recently when cafeteria workers, Neille Farler and Colleen Burchett planned a spooky Halloween luncheon for parents and grandparents. Nineteen parents and grandparents attended much to the pleasure of students who were dressed in their creatively designed costumes. The menu, an off sort of thing, consisted of witches brew, creep crawly sandwiches, kooky clay cake, orange moons, clacker and toad's milk, a menu that would make any monster or witch happy. Spooky music played in the lunchroom added to the creepy atmosphere of Halloween as monsters and goblins whisked around in cloaks and baggy costumes. Pictured left to right are Dustin Music, Stella Music, Stephen Vanover, and in the background is Terry Blanton.

Who's Caught In The Superfund Trap?

Superfund: A Super Failure

Source: U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Superfund: Focusing on the Nation at Large, September 1990

Experts charge superfund liability traps thousands of different parties, wastes money and stalls cleanup.

Love Canal. Valley of the Drums. Times Beach. Congress passed the federal Superfund law to clean up these hazardous waste sites and others like them as quickly and efficiently as possible.

THE PROBLEM

Unfortunately, Superfund has proven to be a super failure. After 12 years, more than 1,200 sites have been tagged for cleanup. Virtually every congressional district has a site, with thousands more waiting to be included in the program. Billions of dollars have been spent. But only 84 of the nation's worst hazardous waste sites have been completely cleaned up.

THE SOLUTION

But Superfund can be improved. The NETF Project proposes replacing the liability system for old wastes with a broad-based fund paid into by businesses across all economic sectors. The liability system would be retained for current and future sites as an incentive for responsible waste management. The NETF would be a much more cost-effective way to clean up America by ensuring that money goes to cleanup, not legal fees.

Making Superfund work is imperative. Total cleanup could take 30-60 years and cost up to $500 billion. We simply can't afford the status quo. Congress needs to hear from all Americans concerned about hazardous waste cleanup.

For more information, contact: Jan Edelstein, Director, NETF Project, PO Box 50592, Washington, DC 20091, (202) 638-1400.

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Acting Immediately Can Salvage Water Damaged Household Items

On average, households are three times as likely to receive damage from water as they are a fire or any other type of unfortunate, natural disaster. If a homeowner knows what actions to take immediately following a flood or broken water pipes, furniture and other household items can be salvaged and brought back to original condition.

ServiceMaster, a national commercial and residential cleaning and disaster restoration contractor, offers the following "DOs" and "DON'Ts" for salvaging water-damaged household items:

- Water Damage—DO:
- Use dehumidifiers as available (temperature should be above 60 degrees).
 - Use fans to circulate air to assist drying and fight mildew.
 - Remove as much water as possible by mopping and blotting.
 - Wipe furniture dry.
 - Place wood blocks, plastic wrap, or foil between furniture legs and carpet to prevent staining or rusting on carpet.
 - Lift draperies off carpet and hang on drapery rod by looping through a coat hanger.
 - Prop wet furniture cushions up for even drying. Check for possible "bleeding."
 - Remove oriental rugs or other coverings from wet wall-to-wall carpet.
 - Open furniture drawers, closet doors, or luggage to enhance drying.
 - Remove paintings and
- Water Damage—DON'T:
- Do not use household vacuum to remove water.
 - Do not use T.V. or appliances while on wet carpet or wet floors.
 - Do not go into rooms with standing water if the electricity is still on.
 - Do not lift tacked down carpet without professional help as this could promote shrinkage.
 - Do not wait to call for professional help—damage from the water and bacteria growth can begin within hours.

Air Bags: Some Surprising Facts

How are air bag systems engineered to help protect people? Here are facts from the experts who engineered the air bag system at GM, considered by many the best in the industry:

*In a typical 30 mph collision into a fixed barrier, the passenger compartment will come to a stop in approximately one tenth of a second. The air bag system must do its job even more quickly.

*A driver side air bag may develop 2,500 pounds of force, or more, to stop the average unbelted driver in a 30 mph crash—that's the requirement of Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208.

The people at GM who design and engineer air bag systems have spent a lot of time in studying how an air bag interacts with an occupant.

In current GM models, for example, crash sensing is handled by multiple electromechanical devices—discriminating sensors and an arming sensor. The sensors are calibrated and located on vehicle structures so the system is less likely to be activated by conditions that don't really require the air bag for occupant protection.

Even the way an air bag is folded will affect its impact on the driver.

Even the way the bag is folded inside the inflator module can affect the way it contacts the driver. GM air bags, for example, are carefully folded so they unfold away from the occupant to help soften the impact of restraint.

Air bag systems are a supplement to the lap and shoulder belts in an automobile. That's why safety experts recommend that for maximum crash protection, safety belts be used even if a car is equipped with air bags.

NOTICE PRESTONSBURG RESIDENTS TRASH PICK-UPS

The City has been informed that the Floyd County Landfill will not re-open in the foreseeable future, and that therefore the high rates we are paying for solid waste disposal at alternate sites will continue.

The City will begin picking up trash orders again, starting in December, but must now charge for this service. Trash pick-ups will take place the second week in December (December 7-11), and the first week of each month thereafter.

The following rates and policies will apply:

1. Charge for picking up normal household disposable or discarded items, not to exceed four cubic yards, is $10.00.

2. The City will not pick up any construction materials (i.e. bricks, roofing materials, lumber, stone, etc.)

3. Normal yard rubbish, not including brush, will be picked up free for the time being, and should not exceed four cubic yards in volume.

4. Brush, tree limbs or logs, will constitute a Special Order. For small amounts, the minimum charge is $10.00. Larger amounts will be charged on an hourly fee schedule, based on volume and use of men and equipment. To schedule a trash pick-up, call the City Clerk's Office at 886-2335.
