Board enacts freeze over Hager's protest

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Floyd County School Board members enacted a hiring freeze last Friday night despite objections by superintendent Ron Hager who said that reports that the district will be in a deficit are false.

Hager added at Friday's meeting that the auditing firm of Helton, Linton and Cranfill was hired illegally to perform the school district audit.

his remarks concerning Cranfill, Hager declined to comment further on the issue and said the matter would be brought up at the February 11 board meeting.

Board members voted 3-2 at Friday's special meeting to freeze all hiring within the school system, citing a projected $400,000 budget shortfall in state funds and reports that the district is in dire financial condition.

Permit sought for mobile incinerator :

Soil treatment plan filed for Right Beaver

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

A North Carolina Company has a permit application pending with the a soil remediation incinerator at Warco in Floyd County.

EnviroSpec Inc. of Matthews, North Carolina filed a permit application with the state in July 1991 to locate a soil incinerator on 10 acres at Warco between Maytown and Martin.

EnviroSpec president Richard Crosby said Tuesday that his company was seeking a permit in order to be able to do business statewide in Kentucky.

"We have designed and patented a mobile, thermal stripping system that August and October last year by the we can mobilize and take to a site and remediate contaminated soil and put permit to work throughout the state of Kentucky."

Crosby said he was not aware of any potential clients in Warco and called it a "starting point" for a mobile state Division of Air Quality to locate treatment plant in order for the company to work throughout the state. Crosby said the company's registered engineer, Ray Cathey, was in charge of the permit process and he did not know why Warco was listed as the site.

> Roger Cook, a supervisor in the combustion section of the permit review branch of the Division of Air Quality, said Tuesday that the department was expecting additional information from the company this week to complete the application.

> The company was notified in state that additional information was needed to complete the application.

When contacted Monday about said he was informed of a debt to the federal government of over $400,000 stemming from the 1984 flood.

Hager quickly responded that the auditor knew about the debt and that the board had "saved" that amount of money out of last year's budget to repay the government.

Hager said Monday that he had been writing letters to the government since "1988 or 1989" trying to get the debt forgiven. Hager said his efforts have been useless and the debt is "expected" to be repaid this year without putting any strain on the district's finances.

"I expect to leave this school district with a (positive) balance as I have every year," Hager said Monday.

Superintendent Ron Hager told the board Friday that he felt the move to freeze hiring was an obvious attempt to "usurp" his authority to hire personnel.

"I feel this is in direct violation of state statutes and I'd say the courts will decide it," Hager said.

"Well let the courts decide it," said board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell.

Deadline is extended on airport compliance order

by Scott Perry Times Editor

The future of Combs Airport is in local hands, a state official said Tuesday, but Kentucky's Office of Aeronautics will keep a watchful eye on the facility's operation and its compliance with aviation regulations.

Non-compliance with state safety requirements has been one issue in the ongoing debate over the fate of the jointly-owned Paintsville-Prestonsburg airstrip and that noncompliance continues to concern state aeronautics officials. The local facility was ordered to

Argument leaves one teen stabbed, second charged

by Dodie Webb Staff Writer

A 15 year-old female was arrested Monday evening for allegedly stabbing a 14 year-year old female four times during an altercation near downtown Prestonsburg.

A year-long dispute between the two juveniles apparently peaked when the 15-year-old allegedly pulled a knife on the victim, stabbing her twice in the back, once in the chest, and once in the arm, Detective Sergeant Jeff Stumbo of the Prestonsburg City Police said Tuesday.

The victim was treated and stitched Monday, apparently for minor stab wounds, and was released by Highland's Regional Medical Center the same evening, Stumbo said.

The accused 15-year-old juvenile was arrested following an investigation of the incident by Stumbo and city police sergeant Mike Omerod, Stumbo said.

The arrest was made approximately two hours after the incident at the accused juvenile's home on the right fork of Bull Creek, Stumbo said. She was placed in the Floyd County Juvenile Detention Center pending a hearing on the incident.

Regional Hospital after he had been stabbed several times with a knife, according to Kentucky State Police.

James A. Pratt, 21, of Pine Top, was charged with murder and booked at the Knott County Jail. Conn and Pratt were apparently arguing in the parking lot of Holly Hills Shopping Center in Mallie, police said. Conn apparently hit Pratt with a beer bottle and Conn was then stabbed several times at 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

Conn is survived by his wife, Gloria Conn and two sons, Jarred McKay Conn and Andrew Blake Conn of Topmost.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday (today) at 1 p.m. at the Hall Funeral Home in Martin.

Bob Bodner, director of the state Transportation Cabinet's Office of Aeronautics, said Tuesday that the deadline for correcting those deficiencies had been extended to April 30.

Bodner said the local airport board had taken action on a number of the safety problems detailed in the August inspection, but one issue remained a serious concern.

"The major item is the location of a house in the landing threshold," Bodner said Tuesday. "We don't know how to handle that (problem)." Bodner said it would be left up to the local Paintsville-Prestonsburg airport board to propose corrective measures, which he suggested could include closure of one end of the runway or shortening of the landing strip to "relocate the landing threshold."

home fire on Turkey Creek Sunday that Maytown firefighters kept confined to a small area.

"We got lucky on this one," said Darrell Bradley with the Maytown Volunteer Fire Department. The fire was reported by a neighbor around 1:30 p.m. Sunday and firefighters quickly contained the fire to the living room area of the home owned by Leitha Salisbury. Firefighters would not discuss how the blaze was started. No one was at home at the time of the incident.

Maytown firefighters were assisted by the Garrett Fire Department

The fire is being investigated by Kentucky State Police arson investigator Barry McKenzie.

A mobile home on Branham's Creek Sunday was razed in a separate blaze Sunday. Because a trailer burns in about 14 minutes, said Greg Frasure, assistant fire chief with the Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department, "there was no way we could have saved it."

The home, owned by Donnie Hall, was totally involved by the time the fire department arrived around 2:25 a.m. Sunday. Therefore, said Ralph Short, Mud Creek fire chief, firefighters "took it as defensive instead of offensive."

"We put our attack toward houses close by," said Short. Quick action by the fire department saved homes situated near the blazing house.

The cause of the blaze is unknown, but Hall's mother, who lives next door, told firefighters she heard an explosion. Because the mobile home was heated by gas, firefighers assume a gas explosion started the fire.

A blaze at a home on Abner Mountain at Melvin brought the Southeast Floyd County Volunteer Fire Department out Wednesday to the scene of yet another fire in that area. The area has been plagued by fires within the last few weeks, according to Daniel Gullett, captain of the fire department.

Freeze-

The fire began in the rear bedroom of the home, which was rented by Bobby Gene Newsome. The cause of Arson is suspected in a mobile the fire is not known, Gullett said. because there was "too much intensive burn to get a clear cut cause." The wooden, single-story home, owned by Dora Johnson, and its contents were a total loss, Gullett said.

> Firefighters were able, though, to save a trailer and a wooden house, located on each side of the home, that were threatened by the blaze. Ten Southeast Floyd County firefighers and five Wheelwright firefighters battled the fire, staying on the scene approximately two hours.

Auxier firefighers received a scare Thursday when they received reports of a burning odor at Auxier Elementary School. The school was evacuated until firefighters determined the odor was caused by a melted ballast in a light fixture in the boy's bathroom, said Howard Ferguson, fire chief. Six firefighters responded to the scene.

Big Sandy ADD renews commitment

By Dodie Webb Staff Writer

The Big Sandy Area Development District (ADD) held its annual meeting on Friday, January 31 at the Jenny Wiley State Park Convention Center to define and clarify participating counties' goals and objectives concerning area development.

Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton; legislator Hubert Collins, district Representative for Martin and Johnson counties; and Commissioner of Local Government Bruce Ferguson attended to address developmental issues of Eastern Kentucky, and also to expound on the economic outlook for Kentucky as a whole.

County representatives from Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, and Pike counties divided into work groups early in the meeting to reassess their goals regarding development for 1992.

Human services concerns, improved water and waste water systems, industrialization pertaining to economic development and jobs, tourism opportunities, recreational facilities, transportation issues, and housing were among the major priorities outlined by the county panels for ADD assistance.

Lt. Governor and Economic Development Secretary Paul Patton spoke during the dinner session about the governor's hopes and plans for economic development for Eastern Kentucky and the state.

Patton said that possibly within the last two years of Governor Jones' term that approximately 50 percent of the coal severance tax monies should be returned to Eastern Kentucky.

"It will take two years to plan and the last two years to act and reform (implement)," Patton added.

Patton also told the group about a program which is under development by the governor for our region.

Two offices may be established in Eastern Kentucky that will house parttime industrial development agents. The agents would help "small towns not in the industrialization race" learn how to become a viable participant among other Eastern Kentucky cities who can attract industrialization to their area, Patton explained.

The governor has pledged to attract manufacturing to Kentucky by way of a National electronic mail processing industry and also through a data processing corporation, Patton said.

"We are also working on a tool to help existing industry expand," Patton said, adding that, "The present has never been more bleak or the future more bright."

Pike church opposes track

A Pikeville church group is opposing an attempt to locate a harness racing track in their city.

Pikeville United Methodist Church's administrative board passed a resolution recently that condemns the city's attempts to sway the state Harness Racing Commission to name Pikeville as the site for the track. The church based its resolution on the denomination's Book of Discipline. Gambling is a "menace to society" and "deadly to the best interests of moral, social, economic and spiritual life," according to the book.

Harness racing commissioners are scheduled to return to Pikeville this week to look at possible sites.

Commissioners were in Floyd County Thursday to look at three sites and chairman Wayne Schumate and vice chairman Tom O'Hearn said Floyd County was their personal favorite. Prestonsburg businessman Clyde Woods formed the Eastern Kentucky Racing Corporation and has a tentative agreement to purchase all the stock of Louisville Downs Inc.

The commission will decide the location of the track at their February 14 meeting at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington.

Help us save our environment (say no to toxic waste)!

Pike County has not been a quiet place lately; numerous meetings have been held with hundreds of Pike countians, lawyers, doctors and state officials debating on toxic waste plants coming into Pike County.

These plants are to contain benzene, ethyl benzene, tolvene, xylene, and ethylene dichloride.

This is an experimental things and it's not an issue to be taken lightly. Different doctors have stated certain types of diseases this sort of plant could cause. The lead in the dirt and air could cause lead poisoning in the blood stream, which could lead to death. The benzenes in the dirt and air could cause retardation, brain damage, lung, heart, liver and nerve disease. Also, for pregnant women, just being around the dirt or breathing the contaminated air could cause these same problems or deformities to the unborn child.

Now, I ask you: Are we willing to become Guinea pigs for these people to make money?

This soil treatment plant will affect more than just Pikeville; It will affect surrounding counties in Kentucky and possibly other states, depending on the wind. The smoke-like substance from the plants will blow as far as the wind will take it. That's why we need everyone in Pike County and surrounding counties who will be affected by these two toxic waste plants to pull together and not allow this to happen.

Anthony Little Editorial: The Conservation

In 1989, several Wheelwright High School seniors and teachers began a program to promote environmental conservation. This program, which was founded on the national holiday, Earth Day, consisted mainly many different contests for the students. We had the hectic scavenger hunt, the widely entered essay contest, the poster contest, and the ever popular dash to see how many cans could be picked up in a week. The prizes for each of these were small, ranging from a small cash sum to twenty bonus points in a class. However, this fact just didn't seem to matter. Almost everyone was just eager to compete. Also the little breaks given in class due to special programs were also appreciated .

The purpose of these events was to increase awareness of certain environmental hazards. The themes of the events could be from how to recycle certain forms of trash to a comparison of the biodegradable attributes of plastic to paper. Most of the awards were paid for by the can collection contest. The group that collected the most cans received a certain percentage of the total profit of all the cans collected. The rest of the money went to paying for the other prizes.

In the following years the entire concept seemed to turn into a wildfire. The first efforts were only participated in by a few of the classes. After that, the entire school joined in the act in one way or another.

Now it has become so important an event that one of the classes has adopted the highway running in front of our school. The same group has established a loosely organized campus cleanup program. Several performances from various classes have shown students acting out skits with an environmental theme. We now even have a stylized recycling can in the bottom hallway of the middle and science buildings for the "proper" disposal of pop cans.

-Ben Franklin

What amazes me is the ferocity in which the concept has caught on here. Nearly everyone has helped with the numerous projects, or at least they have an opinion about what should be done to clean up the campus. Of more importance is the fact that, in 🛸 recent years, more students seem to be putting their trash in the cans that are provided. It almost seems as if the entire school had a secret desire to clean-up their community. All these people needed was a small boost such as one given in 1989.

This tells me something about the people around here. In some places our communities have a less than desirable reputation. The focus of these negative notions is that most people around here do not care about what's going on. I believe that the community doesn't need feelings but a focus. When we "set our minds" on something we follow it through to the end. This attribute is most often summoned up in a single word: stubbornness! That's the best quality of our school and our community. If you want proof of this you only have to look outside at the people diligently picking up beside the road.

We still have some problems here in Wheelwright. The road is recluttered almost as fast as the students can clean it. A couple of times the students picking up the trash have been put in danger by passing cars. Sometimes, we still use paper plates and plastic forks/spoons in the lunchroom instead of the reusable plates and silverware. Some students still throw down their trash anywhere that is convenient. Despite all these flaws the main point is that the majority of students here at Wheelwright are trying to make it a better place. In this most important sense, they have already succeeded.

Opinions expressed in this column are the views of the writer and not necessary those of the Times.

KPA News Bureau

by Tim Webb,

Four days after Gov. Brereton Jones told a joint session of the General Assembly that he wanted to purge the state's eight university boards, the House of Representatives passed just such a bill.

House Bill 149, sponsored by Rep. Ernesto Scorsone, D-Lexington, calls for the termination of all current state university board members.

New board members, according to the bill passed Friday by representatives, would go through a screening process conducted by a panel of nine people, selected from each of the state's supreme court districts, along with a student and a faculty member. The governor would then pick from the panel's recommendations. Scorsone stressed the likelihood of some current board members being reinstated.

Scorsone said the plan was needed because of the "turmoil and problems" in various higher education systems.

The bill, he said, is not designed to get back at former Governor Wallace Wilkinson, who appointed himself to the University of Kentucky board before leaving office in December.

"It was ... a vivid reminder, to the fact that we really do not have a process to get an appointment," Scorsone said. "What we have is appointment by whim."

Several House members said they supported the concept of the bill, but questioned some of its features.

Rep. Louie Mack, D-Lexington, led most of the bill's opposition, saying the bill was like "punishing the entire class" because of "one bad child." His biggest questions with the bill were the dismembering of all board members at once and out-ofstate appointments. The House voted almost 3-1 to prevent out-of-state alumni from sitting on a university board.

The House bill must now get Senate approval before it becomes law.

Gov. Jones, who proposed the bill in his State of the Commonwealth address Monday night, seemed to have gained much legislative support for his proposals.

Jones said his administration would take steps to reduce the budget by cutting the size of government.

come from money left over in state agencies at the end of the fiscal year.

Other proposals offered by Jones included appointing a task force for health care, returning half of the coal severance tax to coal counties, placing economic development offices in Eastern and Western Kentucky, assigning experts to market Kentucky coal worldwide, adding $100 million to state parks, developing an animal research center at Pin Oak farm in Woodford County, supporting abottle bill, and cutting campaign contribution limits for governor and lieutenant governor from $4,000 to $100.

In an address to a joint session of the House and Senate Friday morning, Commissioner of Education Thomas C. Boysen said that Kentucky is staying on course in improving education. Boysen added that Kentucky is setting an example nationwide in school reform.

The Senate last week passed a bill requiring earthquake emergency procedures in every public or private school and a bill substituting the term "hard of hearing" for "hearing impaired" in state parlance.

Kentucky General Assembly

Picking up some steam Removing political favoritism from state government seems to be the agenda for the 1992 General Assembly.

The House of Representatives passed three related bills Monday, Jan. 27, that would cut ties between campaign contributions and state contracts. House Bill 157 passed 97-1, calling for the creation of committees that would review proposals for non-bid contracts from architects and engineers.

"If this bill passes, the selection process will not include how much money you gave to the last candidate for governor," the bill's sponsor Marshall Long, D-Shelbyville, said.

The two related bills that also passed, House Bill 147 and House Bill 156, would allow Capital Projects and Bond Oversight Committees to issue orders of testimony from people involved in state contract or bond issues and require state lease holders to disclose their names as lease holders before taking a state job.

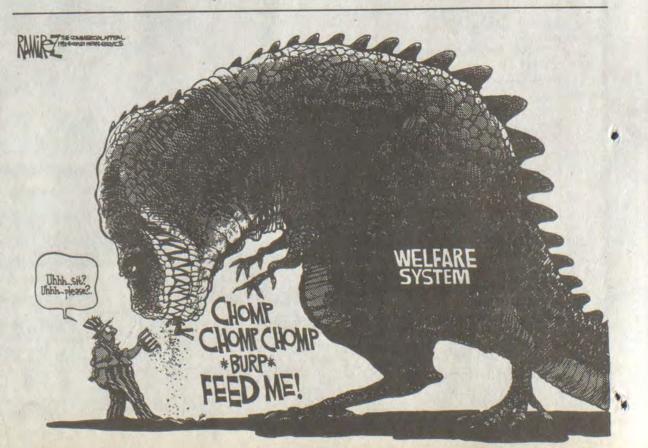

Kentucky teenagers would be allowed to drive before they are 16, under another bill passed by the House last week. House Bill 31, which passed 56-25, would allow teenagers to get their instructional permit three months before their 16th birthday.

Amid fears of higher insurance rates and traffic accidents, the bill received some harsh criticism on the House floor.

"You can say what you want to ... This bill will in fact raise the rates of insurance," Porter Hatcher Jr., D-Louisville, said.

In a close margin, House Bill 25 passed by three votes, Wednesday, requiring farmers to comply with the state plumbing code.

The bill's sponsor Jim Callahan, D-Southgate, said the bill was intended to protect public water systems from contamination by farm waste and chemicals. The bill would only apply to farmhouses and plumbing installed after the bill becomes law.

Former coal buyersentenced

A former coal buyer for Arch Coal Sales Company was sentenced in Federal District Court in Pikeville Monday for conspiring to defraud the Bank Josephine of over $1 million.

John Kent Clark was sentenced by Judge Joseph Hood to serve 33 months in prison followed by three years of supervised release. Clark was also ordered to pay $23,200 in restitution to the Bank Josephine.

Clark was indicted along with William Eric Charles, president of W.E.C. Coal Company, for sending false and forged coal sales documents to the bank which inflated the amounts due W.E.C. from Arch Coal Sales. The inflated sales amounts caused the bank to loan additional money to W.E.C.

Charles was sentenced in November 1991 to 37 months in prison and ordered to pay the bank $912,000.

Novelist reads at Pikeville College

Mentality of Exploitation, Part IV: Pilgrims discover America is no land of milk and honey

In Of Plymouth Plantation, William Bradford describes the Pilgrims' flight from Holland in these terms: "So they left that goodly and pleasant city which had been their resting place near twelve years; but they knew they were pilgrims, and looked not much on those things, but lifted up their eyes to heaven, their dearest country, and quieted their spirits."

Because he is writing for posterity and wants to ennoble the colony's founders, Bradford ignores the materialistic motive behind the settlement and stresses instead the spiritual one. Like Lot and his family fleeing the wickedness of Sodom, the Pilgrims "looked not much" on Leyden, but kept their eyes fixed on their heavenly destination. It is this image of the Pilgrim-the image of the highminded heaven-seeker-which has become enshrined in the American cultural pantheon.

This emphasis on the spiritual is also seen in Bradford's description of the Pilgrims' first landfall on Cape Cod peninsula:

"Being thus arrived in a good harbor, and brought safe to land, they fell upon their knees and blessed the God of Heaven who had brought them over the vast and furious ocean, and delivered them from all the perils and miseries thereof, again to set their feet on the firm and stable earth, their proper element."

According to this version of the story, the country that confronted them that day was by no means a land of milk and honey. On the contrary, it was "a hideous and desolate wilderness, full of wild beasts and wild men."

Because American historians have chosen to make it so, Of Plymouth Plantation is the book on which our modern conception of the Pilgrim is based. Only recently did I learn that another version of the Pilgrim storyan unofficial version, so to speakhas also survived. I am referring to Mourt's Relation, a book originally published in London in 1622. A fac-glorify the founders of Plymouth in the eyes of posterity. The purpose of Mourt's Relation, however, was to lure prospective settlers to Plymouth and persuade wealthy Englishmen to invest in the enterprise.

Both books describe the landfall at Cape Cod, subsequent explorations of the Cape Cod peninsula, and the landfall at Plymouth Beach. But what a difference in treatment! In Of Plymouth Plantation Bradford omits mentioning the feelings of the Pilgrims when they got their first glimpse of America. In Mourt's Relation, however, the sighting is described in these terms:

"The appearance of it much comforted us, especially seeing so goodly a Land, and wooded to the brink of the Sea.'

Scattered throughout Mourt's Relation are "catalogs of riches" designed to persuade cautious investors that the Plymouth experiment could reap enormous profits. In this book, when the Pilgrims look at Cape Cod, they see no "hideous wilderness." On the contrary, they see a land "compassed about to the very Sea with Okes, Pines, Juniper, Sassafras, and other sweet wood." Moreover, says Bradford, "Every day we saw whales playing hard by us, which in that place, if we had instruments and a means to take them, we might have made a very rich return."

Bradford's observation about the value of Cape Cod's whales was prophetic, and by the 1820s whaling had become New England's most lucrative industry. St. Jean de Crevecoeur, writing in 1782, noted that Nantucket, the seat of the New England whale fishery, possessed "above 200 sail of vessels," employed more than two thousand seamen, and boasted several citizens "worth 20,000£ sterling." By Melville's time, in the 1840s, these figures had tripled.

Today, of course, many of the species of whales which made Nantucket rich have been hunted to the brink of extinction.

It was inevitable that the American whaling industry would be the first industry to try to satisfy the country's enormous appetite for energy. That the market for sperm oil was soon captured by coal oil, kerosene, and other forms of energy in no way lessens the fact that whaling has immense symbolic importance for American history and modern history in general. Melville knew this, and that is why Moby Dick is the classic expression of the theme I deal with in this essay. Ahab's unrelenting war against the White Whale is a metaphor, not only for the whaling industry's war against whales, but for modern industrial man's war against Nature.

On December 16, 1620, sixteen days after their first landfall on Cape Cod peninsula, a period during which the Pilgrims explored the peninsula in a shallop, the Mayflower traversed Cape Cod Bay and anchored at Plymouth Beach. During the crossing Bradford saw two "fine Islands uninhabited, wherein are nothing but wood, Okes, Pines, Walnut, Beech, Sassafras, Vines and other trees which we know not." Several days prior to This, they had camped for one night on an island they named Clark's Island, after the Mayflower's first mate. According to Henry Martyn Dexter, the editor of the 1855 edition of Mourt's Relation, Clark's Island in 1855 encompassed 86 1/4 acres. In ancient times, says Dexter, before the coming of the whites, the island had been covered with red cedar. After the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, however, this timber had been cut down and "sold in Boston for gate-posts." In Dexter's day five or six of these trees were still standing, although they were in "a gnarled and stunted condition." The largest was six feet in circumference and twenty feet high.

Foster children find "special" families

complicated medical needs find "special" families

For anyone looking for ordinary people doing extraordinary things, Kentucky foster parents caring for medically fragile children fit the bill.

More than 40 Kentucky children, ages five months to 17 years, with birth complications and medical disorders, serious physical disabilities or terminal illnesses are being cared for in 43 foster homes through a program of the state Department for Social Services.

Acting Social Services Commissioner Peggy Wallace said 125 children have been cared for in the medically fragile foster care program since 1985.

"The program has received national recognition and inquiries from several other states requesting information from our foster care specialists," Wallace said.

Estalene Jenkins, nurse consultant and coordinator for the program, said medically fragile children usually go to foster homes directly from a hospital, where they may have spent their first several months. The children no longer need round-the-clock hospital care, but still require continuous medical treatment and monitoring.

"We set out to demonstrate that this type of care is cost-effective," Jenkins said. "Foster parents receive $27 per day; care in an institution would cost around $150, or over $600 in a hospital.

"Also, the child's stay in a hospital is reduced. And last but most important, these high-risk children can enjoy a family atmosphere with all the love and nurturing any child has in a typical, loving home," she said.

"We were pleased to find many marvelous people - ordinary citizens with a special dedication to caring for children who need them."

The program was started for chil-

Kentucky foster children with dren born with birth defects or severe medical disorders, Jenkins said. "But now we're caring for babies born addicted or affected by the mother's drug use during pregnancy, and kids who have been severely abused.

"We advocate for every child we've got with us, and use every available community resource to help each of the children develop to their fullest potential despite its medical diagnosis or handicap."

Some children attend local schools and or have in-home instruction. Federal assistance programs and health organizations are tapped for funds for the children's extra needs. Like other foster parents, medically fragile caregivers may be couples or single adults of any age as long as they can care for the seriously ill child. They have 30-plus hours of training to qualify, and must have an additional 24 hours of training each

Jenkins said the state has so far been able to find parents as needed, "but we would like to have a log of parents ahead of that moment of need."

Another "plus" would be to have homes throughout the state, closer to the children's families. Natural parents are urged to visit their child and learn about their child's condition and care needs from the foster parent.

Homes for high-risk children must also be within 30 minutes of emergency treatment facilities, and less than an hour from a medical center.

"Home health agencies make it possible for these children to leave hospitals and live with families," Jenkins said. She also cited respite caregivers, physicians, social workers, health departments, university and public and private agency specialists who make the program work.

Persons desiring more information on Kentucky's medically fragile foster care program may contact Jenkins by calling (502) 564-2136.

Various symptoms point to Cystic Fibrosis diagnosis

by Barbara H. Morris

Cystic Fibrosis is a disease which affects one of every two thousand children born in the United States. It is a disease primarily of white children. Black children rarely have this problem. This information will describe the symptoms of this disease. It will explain its causes and treatment. It will also help you better understand how to cope with it.

Cystic Fibrosis affects the lungs and digestive system. As a matter of fact, it usually affects the parts of the body that produce fluids, such as tears, saliva, mucus and sweat.

Cystic Fibrosis is not contagious; that is to say, a child with this disease cannot give it to anyone else. Doctors have determined that Cystic Fibrosis is hereditary. This means that, if both parents have the same certain abnormal trait, or gene, in their blood, there is one chance our of four that their child will be born with Cystic Fibrosis. It is thought that approximately one person in twenty has this abnormal trait. If both parents carry traces of this disease in their blood there is Only a doctor can tell if your child has Cystic Fibrosis. However, there are symptoms you can watch for. These symptoms include frequent bouts of bronchitis or pneumonia; a persistent cough and difficulty in breathing; a huge appetite with little or no weight gain; unusually frequent, large bowel movements; a protruding abdomen, or "pot belly"; and extremely salty sweat.

Let's spend a moment discussing each of these symptoms. Difficulty in breathing and frequent bouts of bronchitis and pneumonia were possible signs of Cystic Fibrosis. When a child has this disease, the mucus in the body becomes very sticky and the feet slightly raised, and you will heavy. This heavy mucus clogs the lungs and breathing passages.

It causes a persistent cough and makes it difficult for the child to breathe. The child may make a wheezing sound when breathing. Because of the heavy mucus, infections are more likely to occur. The mucus can clog passages to the pancreas. The pancreas is an organ which helps the child absorb his food and gain weight in a normal fashion. When the passages to the pancreas are clogged with mucus, however, this organ cannot help in the proper absorption of food and the child is not able to gain weight. When food is not properly digested the child's stomach may appear swollen and he or she will have more frequent bowel movements

A child with Cystic Fibrosis may have perspiration, or sweat, that is extremely salty. When the sweat dries, the salt collects on the skin. You may have noticed this when you kiss your child. This is often the first symptom a mother reports to a doctor.

Prayer & Bible Study7 p.m.

one chance out of four that their child will be born with Cystic Fibrosis. If only one parent carries the trait, there is no chance of their having a child with Cystic Fibrosis.

There is no known cure for this disease. But, there are proven treatments. First, doctors have designed a simple, painless test to determine if the child does, indeed, have Cystic Fibrosis. It is called a sweat chloride test. It can be done in a hospital or laboratory and it is not necessary for the child to be away from home overnight. The test simply measures the amount of salt in the child's sweat.

You may be asked to help your child by performing a procedure called "clapping." This means that your child will have to lie flat, with clap him or her on his or her back and chest. Clapping is important because it helps loosen the mucus which is clogging the lungs and breathing passages.

It is important that Cystic Fibrosis be diagnosed as soon as possible. Salty sweat alone may not cause any serious problem. However, sticky mucus can cause problems which may threaten your child's life. Remember, though, such a condition can be treated, if it is discovered in time.

Constitutional reform advocates present recommendations released its recommendations for updating Kentucky's 100-year old Constitution. Two Floyd countians sit on the committee: John Rosenberg with Appalachian Research and of the Center's Campaign Finance Defense Fund and Ann Latta, mayor of Prestonsburg.

The Constitutional Improvement Policy Council, which was formed by the Kentucky Center for Public Issues last year, recommended four areas of reform: gubernatorial succession and eliminating some statewide elected officers, reducing the number of elections, and campaign finance reform, economic development and merit election of judges.

The most recent call for constitutional improvement grew from a series of forums sponsored by the Kentucky Bar Association in 1989 and '90. In 1990, the Shakertown Roundtable focused on constitutional reform throughout its annual meeting. The policy council's recommendations are the outgrowth of six months of intensive research and discussion among the fifty-three civic leaders who compose the council.

"The momentum for improvement of our Constitution has intensified with Governor Jones' commitment tional amendment to make the terms outlined in his State of the Commonwealth Address," said Sheryl G. Snyder, chairperson of the center. "There also is strong interest in the issue among the leadership of the General Assembly," said Joseph H. Terry, co-chair of the council.

We have an opportunity to craft from our 19th century Constitution a better framework for our government as we enter the 21st century," said Attorney for the Eastern District of would have to pay for turning him in Snyder.

Governor, Attorney General and Auditor of tion to witnesses who saw him kill Public Accounts. The amendment Ernie Logan in Dewitt, in Knox would also allow those four officeholders, after 1995, to succeed themselves for one additional, consecutive four-year term. The council also recommended that elections be held in even-numbered years only; that the proposals and Electoral Reform Policy Council be adopted and that a new section of the constitution be created to allow the General Assembly to establish limits on the amount statewide candidates can spend on their campaigns as well as the amount individuals can contribute to candidates.

"Meaningful campaign finance reform may be a prerequisite to legislative support for gubernatorial succession," said Terry, the chair of the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance. "The time has come for both campaign finance reform and constitutional reform," said Terry.

The council also called for support for economic development through an amendment which enables state government to appropriately regulate corporations, railroads, and public utilities, while repealing several outmoded sections of the constitution which may hamper business and economic development.

The council proposed a constituof office of district judges coterminous with terms of circuit judges, and to increase the experience require-

In its final recommendation, the council proposed a statutory amendment permitting merit retention of judges, allowing incumbent judges to stand for reelection on their records. "Merit election of judges is unfinished business under the Judicial Article, which the people of Kentucky adopted in 1975," said Morton J. Holbrook of Owensboro, chair of the council's subcommittee on the judiciary.

Snyder said that the constitutional and statutory recommendations have been presented to the General Assembly for consideration during the current legislative session. "If the General Assembly agrees with any of these constitutional recommendations, they will appear on the ballot in the November General Election for voter approval," he said. Snyder added that the work of the council will continue beyond the November election. "We expect some amendments to pass in this legislative session and to be approved by the voters in November," he said. "But our antiquated constitution has shackled us for a century, and we therefore expect our efforts to change it may take several years. We hope to bring the Constitution of Kentucky into the 20th century before it is over," he said.

Floyd attorneys establish scholarship

The Floyd County Bar Association honored Judge Hollie Conley by establishing an endowed scholarship for a Floyd County student at Alice Lloyd College. The Floyd County Bar Association raised $3,600, that was matched by the Conley family, years as Commonwealth Attorney, in the amount and a check in the amount of $6,600 was presented to the college by attorneys John Rosenberg, Woodrow Burchett, and Robert Rowe Jr., acting in behalf of the Floyd County Bar Association.

The endowment principal will remain intact and will be named the "Hollie Conley Scholarship." "We encourage others to contribute to the scholarship fund; certainly attorneys, but also friends and family members who wish to express in a tangible way their gratitude for Judge Conley's many years of service," commented attorney Burchett.

Judge Conley attended Alice

Lloyd College from 1939 to 1941. He enrolled at the University of Kentucky in 1941 and lived at "Caney Cottage," a residence provided by Mrs. Lloyd for two-year graduates of Caney College (now Alice Lloyd College). Following his Bachelors degree, Judge Conley entered Law School at Duke University where he completed his Law degree. He returned to Floyd County and immediately sought public office. He served six years as County Attorney, eight and twenty-eight years as Circuit Judge, a record for Circuit Judges in Kentucky which accorded him the name of the Dean of Kentucky Judges. He retired this year.

Judge Conley is married to the former Minnie Martin of Right Beaver Creek. They have four children:

Melanie Warford, a physical therapist in Gibson City, Illinois; Judelle Conley, a United Parcel Service employee in Lexington; Danice White, Tazwell, Virginia, also a physical therapist; and Hollie M. Conley, a psychotherapist in San Francisco, California.

"I want to personally thank the Bar Association for establishing this scholarship in my name," said the Judge. "I just hope that some young person will he able to continue his/ her education that otherwise may find it impossible without financial help." The scholarship will be awarded to a high school graduating senior who exhibits academic excellence and demonstrates financial need.

Radiologic Technology students achieve national milestones

The August 1991 graduates from Morehead State University's associate degree program in Radiologic Technology has distinguished themselves by achieving two special milestones.

In taking the national registry examination, the 41-member class attained a 93 percent passage rate, the highest in the MSU program's history, and exceeded the national average score.

The MSU rad tech students also earned an average test score of 83, which was 1.12 points higher than the national average, according to Dr. Betty Porter, chair of MSU's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences.

Accredited by the Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology, the 24-month long program began in 1973. Its curriculum offers students the opportunity to spend half of their time in the classroom and the remainder gaining hands-on experience at various hospital affiliates.

Mayo Vocational School holds mid-term graduation

The mid-term graduation exercises for the class of 1992 were held Wednesday, January 8, at 1 p.m., in the Mayo auditorium. The guest speaker was Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, president of Prestonsburg Community College. Dr. Floyd spoke to the graduates about her own personal trials and accomplishments, as well as what it takes to be successful. She gave the graduating class inspiration and her congratulations for reaching their own personal goals. The ceremony was opened with the invocation by Robert G. Benson, minister of the First Christian Church. The presentation of special awards was given by Bill Bailey; presentation of departments by Lillian Wheeler, assistant director, with the awarding of diplomas by Gary Coleman, director of Mayo State Vocational-Technical School. The program concluded with the benediction Salyersville; Glendean Kirk, Inez; by Dean Robinson, electronics technology teacher.

Veterans bonus program wraps up

The Amended Vietnam Veterans Bonus Program closed as of December 31, 1991, after processing more than 5,000 applications from Vietnam or Vietnam Era veterans who also had service in a previous wartime period.

The amended bonus program approved approximately 40 percent of the applicants paying an average of $178 each for a grand total of $350,000. The original Vietnam Veterans Bonus Program, which closed operations earlier in 1991, processed over 102,000 applications and approved nearly $32 million in payments to just over 88 percent of applicants with the average bonus amount of $368.11.

The amendment to the original Vietnam Veterans Bonus Act authorized payment of the difference between the amount qualified for the Vietnam Bonus and the amount of bonus already paid for service during previous wartime periods. The maximum amount any veteran could receive for service in all conflicts was $500. In Floyd County the original $256,765 authorized was amended to include an additional $2,298.

For more information about the Kentucky Vietnam Veterans Bonus contact the Division of Veterans Affairs at (502) 564-4883.

SIDELINED

Being back at the old desk after being on the bench for four days is certainly a great feeling. Nancy said that she never saw anyone who wanted to go back to work so badly. After some oral surgery Wednesday (started out as a routine visit to my dentist), the doc said that I would have to sit on the bench for a few days before returning back to work.

With all that behind me and feeling great again, I am anxiously awaiting the games that are upcoming in the month of February. Some top conference battles await us and it will go down to the wire in the race. FORMER WHEELWRIGHT COACH CALLS...

Former Wheelwright coach G. N. Wilkinson called me Tuesday from the St. Louis area after reading the sports pages of the Floyd County Times. He is interested in the final year of the Wheelwright school and wants to be in attendance when the Trojans take the floor in the district tournament in March.

"I coached one year at Wheelwright (1949-50) and we were 18-15 that year," said the former Trojan mentor. Wilkinson, who is 68 and retired from McDonald Aircraft Corp., remembers the former coaches he coached against and the players that manned his team.

"I had Don Wallen (in Floridanow), Homer Akers, Larry Joe Dickerson, Tommy Jones, Jim Osborne on my team that year. I remember coaching against Denzil Halbert at Martin; Garnis Martin was at Prestonsburg and Ray Heinisch at Maytown," remembered Wilkinson.

Wilkinson said that he was going to gather up Garnis Martin and they both would be at this year's state tournament in Louisville.

"I much prefer Lexington for the state tournament. I have relatives there and it wouldn't cost me anything to stay," he said laughing. "I could get Garnis to take me over to Bardstown (where Martin coaches football) and keep me, I guess.'

Wilkinson said that there was nothing like Floyd County basketball. It was good to talk to the former Wheelwright coach and we each hoped to meet each other along the way. CAWOOD DESERVING..

Hall's "buzzer beater" sinks Shelby Valley Wildcats, 58-57

Remember the old game show of several years back called "Beat the Clock"? In an allotted amount of time you had to complete a certain feat in order to be the winner over the "buzzer." That's going back some in time but it is just as up to date today in the game of basketball as then. Stewart Hall proved that as the senior guard drilled a jumper just ahead of the buzzer to give the Allen Central Rebels a 58-57 win over the Shelby Valley Wildcats at Allen Central Saturday night. Hall's"buzzer beater" improved the Rebels overall record to 6-7 on the year.

Freshman Jeremy Hall, getting his first start of the year, tossed in 15 points to lead the Rebels in scoring. Carl Watson, also getting back into the starting lineup, responded with a good outing by adding 14 points. Stewart Hall finished with 11. Jeremy Hall had three three-pointers in the game.

"Jeremy played a real good game for us," said Rebel coach Johnny Martin of his freshman's performance. "He hit three of five three-point attempts and was six of 11 from the floor. He had five assists for us. He will definitely get another chance to start."

before Allen Central took a 47-43 lead on a basket by Stewart Hall and two free throws from Phillip Patton. Johnson hit back-to-back three-pointers and Rodney Kiser connected on the front end of a two shot foul to complete a 7-0 run that netted the Wildcats the lead at 50-47.

Baskets from Larry Patton and Watkins reclaimed the lead for Allen Central at 51-50 before the lead changed on a jumper by Johnson for Shelby Valley at 52-51. Todd Lucas hit a trey that put the Rebels on top 54-52 but Keys' rebound basket tied the game at 54-54.

With eight seconds on the clock and the ball in Hall's hand, the senior moved toward the basket, pulled up and hit his buzzer beater shot.

Allen Central held a 26-23 first half lead after trailing at the end of the first quarter 11-6. Keys' basket to start the second quarter gave Shelby Valley a 13-6 lead but a rebound basket by Watkin,s followed by a field goal from Patton, made it a 13-10 game. Watkins added two free throws to narrow the margin to one, 13-12. Jeremy Hall hit his first jumper 26-21 on a inside basket by Watkins to tie the game for the first time at 15- and two free throws by Larry Patton. 15 and Allen Central took their first Baker's jumper just before the first lead, 18-17, on a three-pointer by

They couldn't have awarded Kentucky's Sportsman of the Year to anyone else better than the voice of the Wildcats, Cawood Ledford. No one will ever be able to replace the golden voice of the legendary Cawood.

Ireally, and I mean this, don't want to see or hear Ralph Hacker take over the job of replacing Cawood, Hacker is a bore to listen to and has no talent at all. I certainly hope he decides to get into politics.

great in sports announcing. CATS ARE IN FOR A LONG HAUL THE REST OF THE WAY

What looked like a certain 20 plus win season for the Wildcats just may not be so. Of the remaining nine games the Cats have left, six are going to be hard to take. A win at Auburn will not be easy as the Cats find the nest of the War Eagles always tough. Then Alabama, the second most physical team in the SEC (Arkansas number one) invades Rupp Arena. The Cats have shown they are not invincible at Rupp. And Alabama is the only one to hand Arkansas their only conference loss.

After a win over cupcake Western Kentucky, Kentucky will take to the road to face a very tough Mississippi State team. Again, it will not be easy. State is certainly an improved ballclub from last year and plays tough at home. I don't think Rick Pitino and company are looking forward to their travels to Georgia despite defeating the Bulldogs at Rupp Arena.

Wins over South Carolina and Vanderbilt at home will send the Wildcats packing for much improved Florida at the Gators Den - not an easy place to play and win.

Tennessee, already a winner over the Cats and big, will close out the regular season at Rupp. But again, it will be a good Tennessee team that comes in. Will the Cats be ready?

Kentucky hasn't had the treys falling for them like they were earlier in the season and has failed to develop an inside game simply because there are not any players, other than Jamal Mashburn, who can play inside. Riddick and Timberwolf have an awful lot to learn as far as playing big time college basketball. Gimel Martinez has shown some spark of late but still fouls too much.

Out of the nine remaining games, only three can comfortably be put in the "W" column. The other six could spell defeat. Final possible record 18-11. Is that good enough for the NCAA? Until Friday, good sports every one and be good sports!

Keri Newsome scored 24 points, pulled down four rebounds and McDowell to a 58-54 win over the regionally ranked Lady Pirates.

"We're playing much better basketball," explained Lady Daredevil coach Jimmy Hopkins. "It certainly was a big win for us.".

McDowell used their running game in the second quarter to overcome a four point, 15-11, first quarter deficit. The Lady Daredevils outscored Belfry 18-8 in the second quarter to take a 29-23 halftime lead.

"We ran the ball and got several points off the fast break," said Hopkins. "Their press didn't hurt us any and we handled it really well. Of course, we don't have trouble with anyone's press."

Hopkins was pleased with the play of his guards against Belfry, especially in their play on the boards.

'I told my guards that I wanted them to get us at least four rebounds a game. I told them that we don't need any of this no rebounds or just one rebound from our guards."

The message came across loud and clear for the Lady Daredevils as junior guard Kristy Mullins pulled in eight rebounds and picked up eight assists for McDowell.

"Kristy played a real good game for us on the floor," explained Hopkins. Shelby Howell led McDowell with 10 rebounds and Michelle Hall pulled in nine as McDowell totaled 46 rebounds in the game. Nikki Mullins had nine boards for the winners.

"Shelby is averaging around 10 rebounds a game for us," stated Hopkins. "She and Michelle (Hall) are working much harder in rebound-

The result this time around for the popular Rice was a sounding 73-53 win for the Lady Daredevils over the Lady Mustangs of Millard.

Three players burned the nets for 16 points each for Betsy Layne as the Lady Cats won for the seventh time this season against eight losses. Lady Daredevils struggle under the basket falling to Shelby Valley, 51-35

"You can't win ball games if you can't hit a shot underneath the basket," said McDowell Lady Daredevil coach Jimmy Hopkins after he witnessed his team missing many scoring opportunities under the basket against Shelby Valley Monday night at McDowell.

That proved to be the downfall for the Lady Daredevils as they dropped a 51-35 non-conference game to 15th Region rival Shelby Valley. The win was the 17th straight for Bobby Spears' ballclub this season. The only loss the Lady Wildcats have suffered this year was a season opening, overtime loss to Prestonsburg.

It wasn't that McDowell wasn't getting their shots. They had several wide open shots underneath the basket but just could not convert the chances. Good ball movement allowed them to get the ball down low to Shelby Howell and Kristy Mullins but neither could hit the shot inside.

"We came out and took a two to nothing lead and then they tied the game," explained Hopkins. "Then we started missing the shots inside and they started hanging their heads losing confidence.

It was different looking team that came out of the McDowell locker room in the second half. The Lady Daredevils turned up the pressure on defense, chasing the ball and double teaming causing some turnovers for Shelby Valley. The up tempo defense helped McDowell to cut into Shelby Valley's 25 point halftime lead, but the damage was done in the first half.

McDowell outscored the visiting Lady Wildcats in the second half but could not generate enough offense to get back into it.

Shelby Valley was led by their outstanding eighth grader Brandi Baker, who tossed in 18 points. Baker, who moves really well without the ball, found herself open inside for some easy baskets and she also hit some short jumpers. Christie Stewart added 12 points with Sabrina Bentley tossing in nine. Bentley hit three three-pointers for the Lady Wildcats. Late in the fourth quarter Bentley was hit hard and had to leave the game, causing some concern to her coach about her returning.

"Sabrina makes our team go," explained Coach Spears after the game. "She makes things happen for us and if she isn't able to come back for us we could be in trouble.'

Shelby Valley just plain blitzed the Lady Daredevils in the first two quarters of the ballgame. The Lady Wildcats rolled to a 16-4 first quarter lead behind the scoring of Baker and Bentley.

Good ball movement for the Lady Wildcats against the 2-3 zone and then a 1-3-1 zone of McDowell's in the first quarter netted Shelby Valley the lead. Baker scored off the backside of the 1-3-1 as McDowell was slow in converting defensively on the baseline.

Something that hasn't seemed to bother McDowell this season did when they went up against the Lady Wildcats - full court pressure. Shelby Valley kept the press on all night as McDowell had problems getting the ball up the court.

At halftime Shelby Valley had built an insurmountable lead at 37-12. Kristy Mullins had eight of the 12 first half points for McDowell.

The Lady Daredevils came out in the third period and played up to their expectations, outscoring Shelby Valley 13-5 to cut the lead down to 16 points.

"We got the lead down there in the third period and then it seemed they just quit again," stated Hopkins of his team's play in the third period. "We let them get back up by 20 points and we just could never get back into it. We just missed to many easy shots inside.'

McDowell lets Cougars off hook second time; falls 68-62 outscored McDowell 6-2 in the final minute of the semifinals of the Kentucky All Class A regional at Pikeville Friday night and posted a 68-62 win over the Daredevils.

It was the second time the two teams met in the past two weeks and the result was a late Cougar rally and a win.

The two teams meet earlier in the second game of the Prestonsburg Shootout just over a week ago. In that encounter the Daredevils were unable to hold their final quarter lead and fell to coach Rady McCoy's team.

Friday night Matt Johnson hit a layup to start the final quarter and gave McDowell a 46-45 lead. But Todd Conley hit a three-pointer and Kevin Hunt followed with a jumper to give the Cougars a 50-46 lead. Elkhorn City pulled out to a fivepoint advantage, 55-50, on a threepointer by Conley with 5:20 remaining in the fourth period. Dale Hinkle completed a three-point play to pull the Daredevils back to within two, 55-53. Five unanswered point by the Cougars put Elkhorn up by seven, 60-53, with the clock running out on McDowell.

Hinkle completed another threepoint play to keep McDowell close at 60-56. After Mike Fraley connected on two free throws for a six point game, Mike Duddleson hit two charity tosses and Johnson came back with a layup with 1:30 on the clock and a 62-60 game. But, Conley nailed a short jumper and after a Johnson layup with 30 seconds showing, a basket by Larry Puckett and two free throws by Brett Salyers with 10 seconds remaining sealed the victory for Elkhorn City.

After struggling in the first quarter, McDowell improved their floor game and moved to a 30-25 halftime lead. Conley hit a layup to open the second quarter to give the Cougars a 14-8 lead. Johnson then went to war for the Daredevils and scored three consecutive layups to tie the game at 14-14. After Hunt's free throw gave Elkhorn a one-point, 15-14 lead, three-point play from Johnson and Scotty Stanley's three-point play to take a 24-15 lead. McDowell led by 10 points, 27-17, with 3:16 left in the second quarter on Duddleson's trey. Elkhorn scored the next six points as the Daredevils felt too comfortable and lost the ball. Puckett's sixfoot jumper, a layup by Conley and Fraley's two free throws made it a new game at 27-23. Alan Joe Moore's basket with six seconds remaining gave the Daredevils the five point halftime lead.

Doug Hopkins hit the first shot of the second half as McDowell went on top 32-25, but it didn't take long for Elkhorn to respond by scoring seven unanswered points for a tied game at 32-32 and again at 34-34. Hopkins drilled a three-pointer to give McDowell a 37-34 lead and Hinkle's six-footer made it 39-34. But, again the Daredevils couldn't stand prosperity and the Cougars took the lead at 41-39 by scoring seven consecutive points. Stanley's two free throws tied the game at 41. The Cougars led after three quarters, 45-44.

Sophomore Todd Conley led all scorers with 27 points which included four three-pointers. Fraley finished with 12 points and Hunt had 11.

Johnson led McDowell with 19 points and Hinkle added 14. Duddleson contributed 11 with Hopkins and Stanley scoring six each.

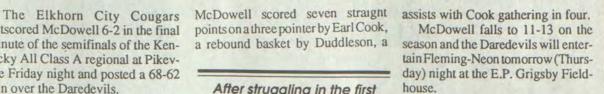

Turnovers hurt McDowell as they were guilty of 22 miscues. Elkhorn City had 15. Cook and Stanley each had seven rebounds for McDowell. Duddleson and Hinkle each had six. Duddleson also handed off seven any of the releases, which will take place along waterways in Allen, Adair, Madison, Menifee and Greenup counties. This is the second consecutive year that the fish and wildlife department has acquired river otters for release into the wild in an effort to restore the species in the eastern two-thirds of Kentucky. Last February, 75 otters were released, 25 each in Spencer, Harrison and Grant counties in front of hundreds of spectators. North American river otters are currently protected from harvest in Kentucky.

"We believe this program will be highly successful in bringing back this native species to Kentucky," s: '1 Don R. McCormick, KDFWR com missioner. "It has worked very well in other states and been exceptionally well received and supported by wildlife enthusiasts."

According to McCormick, although chances are increasing for people to see river otters in their natural environment in Kentucky, attending a release is probably the best chance many will have to observe a wild river otter.

"I encourage everyone to join us in returning an important part of Kentucky's wildlife heritage to its original home. After all, wildlife belongs to, and its care is a responsibility of, all Kentuckians," he added.

The following are locations for otter releases:

Green River, Adair County: From Campbellsville, take Hwy. 76 east to junction with Hwy. 206. Take a right onto 206 (west) and follow less than a mile to the bridge over Green River. Signs should be posted. Observers approaching from city of Liberty should take Hwy. 70 west to 206, take a left on 206 and follow to bridge over Green River.

Kentucky & Red Rivers, Madison County: From Richmond, take Hwy. 52 east to Hwy. 977, and then take a left on 977 (north) for approximately 13 miles to the College Hill boat ramp on the Kentucky River. Signs should be posted.

Red River Gorge, Menifee County: From the Mountain Pkwy. take exit 40 onto Hwy. 715 north. Stay on 715 into Menifee County. Site located along Red River about 5.5 miles from county line. Watch for signs to gravel road entrance to park-

From Grayson, take Hwy. 1 north for approximately 8 miles to the covered bridge over the Little Sandy River. Signs should be posted.

Free throw shooting for the Lady Daredevils left something to be desired as McDowell hit 24 of 40 attempts. The Lady Daredevils turned the ball over 12 times in the game.

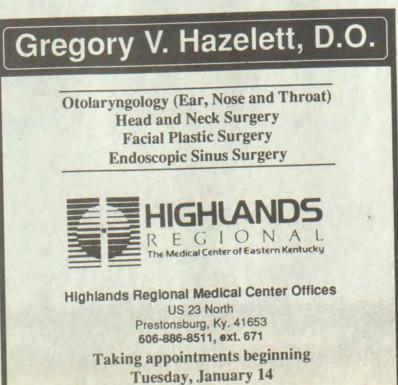

"We shot the three's but just couldn't hit them," said Hopkins. "I told them to just keep putting them us, just keep shooting them."

Heather Francis led all scorers with 21 points for Belfry. Francis, one of the region's top girls players, had six three-pointers in the game. Jamie Heaflin added 14 points and had three treys. Amanda Totten scored 12.

Howell and Nikkie Mullins each finished with six points with Debbie Fannin scoring five. Fannin also had three rebounds and two assists. Stacy Shepherd, who did not score, was credited with three boards.

McDowell improves to 6-8 overall and will be off until Wednesday, February 12.

LADY DAREDEVIL NOTES: McDowell will play Wheelwright this coming Saturday in a conference make-up game at McDowell. Game time is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. with a varsity game only.

JOHNSON CENTRAL SWIM TEAM TO

COMPETE IN REGIONALS Normally a first year high school swim team doesn't have to worry about going to the regional meets but not so with this year's first edition of Johnson Central High School swim team. The team will travel to Richmond this Saturday, February 8, to compete in the Central Kentucky Region. According to director Steve Cummings the first year team is up and ready for competition. We wish the team the best of luck in the meet and that they may advance on to state anced scoring attack and posted a 58-49 win over tough Morgan County for their fourth consecutive victory. The win improved Prestonsburg's overall record to 11-4 on the season. It was a game that was a concern early for Prestonsburg coach Bridget Clay.

"I was worried more about this game than any other all year," she explained. Morgan County (9-5) is one of the top rated teams in the 16th Region and came into the game with a 9-4 record.

Missy Bailey, 6' 1" center, scored 18 points to lead the Lady Blackcats in scoring. Carolyn Reffitt tossed in 16 with Raquel Cain scoring 10

Carla Nickell led Morgan County with 11 points. Melissa Whitt, Jodi Gillespie and Kim Lang each scored eight points.

The game was a seesaw affair until the fourth quarter when Prestonsburg took the lead for good. Down 39-39 on a basket by Morgan County's Leigh Ann Kelly, Prestonsburg went on an 11-2 run that netted them a 49-41 lead. Bailey's free throw tied the game at 39-39 and the Lady Blackcats took the lead 41-39 on a basket by Keri Merion. Bailey then added another free throw for a 42-39 contest.

Nickells kept the game close with a short jumper but Prestonsburg ran off seven unanswered points for a 49-41 advantage. Reffitt hit a threepointer and Amy Reed had a basket plus a free throw in the spurt.

The Morgan County bench was hit with a technical foul with four minutes left in the game. Prestonsburg converted both free throws and then scored when they got possession of the ball to break the game open.

After the game, Reffitt reflected on how physical the game was. "Morgan County was a very physical tcam," said Reffitt, "but we played well together tonight and played really good defense."

"We thought coming into the game tonight it would be a physical game," said Prestonsburg mentor Clay. "We knew that Morgan County would be a tough team and we struggled at times. But we hit the free throws when it counted and played good team ball. Now we get ready for a big PBURG......13 11 14 20 - 58

County tied the game at 2-2 on a basket from Nickells. The game was tied at 4-4 before Prestonsburg took a 8-4 lead. Reffitt's first trey of the game gave Prestonsburg a 11-6 lead. The lead was at five a second time at 13-8 before Tracy Brown's jumper made it 13-10.

Whitt scored on a layup and was fouled to open the second quarter for the Lady Cougars to make it a 13-12 game. Whitt missed the free throw. Reffit's free throw gave Prestonsburg a two point lead before Carrie O'Conners' jumper tied the game at 14-14.

Prestonsburg experienced some coldness in the second period and Morgan County raced to a 19-14 lead on two field goals from Lang and a free throw by Kelly.

Prestonsburg righted themselves and went on a 6-0 run for a 20-19 lead. Gillespie hit a three-pointer for the Lady Cougars to give the lead back to Morgan County at 22-20. Reffitt tied the game with a rebound basket but Gillespie nailed another trey for a 25-22 Morgan County lead. Reed hit a short jumper for Prestonsburg to close to within one point, 25-24 at halftime.

The lead exchanged hands seven times in the third period with Prestonsburg taking a 38-33 lead late

Check Out "The Wild Turkey Review"

As the wild turkey population soars throughout the United States, so does the number of turkey hunters. In 1992, some 3 million men and women will take to the woods in 49 of our 50 states to match wits with this exciting gamebird.

The Wild Turkey Review, which debuts February 1, is a bi-monthly newsletter designed to help these hunters attain the highest levels of skill and knowledge in this sport. Each issue will contain 8 pages of timely information on turkey hunting techniques, hotspots, new gear, research findings, etc. "In effect, the Wild Turkey Review will be the newspaper of turkey hunting," says writer/editor Wade Bourne. "It will contain the very latest and best news on the sport presented in tightly-written articles.

Bourne continues, "The Wild Turkey Review will be slanted to hard-core turkey hunters, but beginners will also puck up plenty of information that they won't find in any other publication. Also, I promise to print 100 percent reliable information, not payback articles about subquality places, methods, or equipment.'

Wade Bourne is a good friend of mine who helped me get started as an outdoor writer. He is one of the top outdoor writers on this continent who has published articles in every major dicated outdoor radio show in the country.

> But perhaps even more important, Bourne is an avid, longtime turkey hunter."I've hunted and written about most gamebirds and animals in North America, and the wild turkey is handsdown my favorite," he says. "There's no other sport that matches the challenges, rewards, beauty and mystique of turkey hunting. I live it, breathe it and sleep it, and that's why I'm excited about publishing the Wild Turkey Review. I promise it'll be on target with information and advice to help readers enjoy this sport to the max.

> In addition to feature articles, each issue of the Wild Turkey Review will contain such regular columns as "Hunting Hotsports,""Wade Bourne: My Call" (an editorial), "Gearing > Up," "Books/Videos," and "Aim for Safety." In addition, each issue will include a guest column by one of North America's premier turkey hunting experts.

> Hunters wishing to subscribe can do so by writing: Wild Turkey Review, 450 Old Trenton Road, Clarksville, Tennessee 37040, phone 1-800-252-3474. Indianapolis hosts National Wild Turkey Federation Convention Federation's 16th Annual Convention and Sports Show is scheduled Center in Indianapolis.

A full slate of activities will attract hunters and outdoor enthusiasts from across the country. The show will feature over 175 exhibits offering the latest in turkey, deer and waterfowl hunting equipment plus big game hunts, guns, knives, camouflage clothing, and wildlife art and other collectibles.

Informative hunting seminars will feature some of the nation's foremost authorities on calling and hunting the wild turkey - Paul Butski, Tom Duvall, Ray Eye, Walter Parrott, Wil Primos, Terry and Robby Rohm, Eddie Salter, Tom Stuckey and many more.

World champion duck caller Roy Rhodes will also be there, and whitetail deer enthusiasts will get to see the King's Collection -21 Boone & Crockett heads from throughout mittee, which consists of professional North America - and the Indiana Deer Hunters Association's Whitetail Hall of Fame, a collection of the best Hoosier trophy racks ever assembled.

Convention-goers will also get to meet 3-time Indy 500 winner Johnny Rutherford, former pro quarterback Bert Jones, and other sportsman-celebrities.

Rutherford and Patrick R. "Pat" Ralston, director of the Indiana Department of Natural Resources, are honorary co-chairmen of the convention .

There will also be panels and speakers on turkey hunting safety, wild turkey management and related topics, and the animal "rights" issue and how to deal with it. A continuous wild turkey hunting video theater will also be featured.

A highlight of the show, and always top crowd-pleasers, will be three grand national competitions: the wild turkey calling (senior and junior divisions), the taxidermy, and the ule for all teams, I suppose on paper the advantage will go to Prestonsburg. Wheelwright has three conference games remaining (two after last night) and all three are on the road. However, members of Jackie Pack's ballclub have shown they can play on the road as well as at home. Wheelwright must visit Betsy Layne (Tuesday night) where in the past, they have never played very well. The Trojans have stops at Allen Central and Prestonsburg remaining, also. The Trojans are scheduled to face the Blackcats on February 18. Both teams could very well come into the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse with 6-1 records and the very game that could decide the top spot in the conference.

Prestonsburg must travel to Allen Central (Tuesday night) and then to McDowell on February 14, Valentine's Day. I assure you there will be no "love" displayed at the "Devil's Den" on this Valentine's Day as the two powers hook up. It will be a very important game for Prestonsburg who finds the E.P. Grigsby Fieldhouse as not being very kind to them in the past.

McDowell has two conterence games reamaining with Prestonsburg at home and a road game at Betsy Layne. Seemingly, McDowell has third place locked up and, barring a complete breakdown, should finish right there. The Daredevils still have a shot at the top spot but will require some help from Allen Central and Betsy Layne to make it.

All three of Allen Central's conference games are at home as Prestonsburg, Wheelwright and Betsy Layne must make an appearance. If the Rebels should win all three, third place is the best they could accomplish.

Betsy Layne will travel to Allen Central, host McDowell and Wheelwright in their final three conference games.

In part two of this series, we want to look at the key players for each team. In part three, the areas of improvement, strengths and games that got away. Part four will give us what the players and coaches think.

In Friday's sports section, we will look at the women's conference race.

Concentration: Key to tournament success Early Times

That is one reason the tournament pros not only carry the maximum number of rods allowed with them during competition, they have those rods already rigged with different lures and ready to use instantly.

During the MegaBucks tournament, in which 10 finalists rotate through 10 different fishing holes for a specified amount of time, Nixon had 10 different rods ready to use.

"With only about 45 minutes of fishing time at each hole, you don't have time to experiment with different lures, retrieves and techniques," notes Nixon, whose bass tournament winnings have exceeded $1 million.

"You look at the water, decide what lure will cover it the most efficiently, and start casting.

"We were able to look at the different holes just briefly before competition, and I decided which lures I had to have ready. I put on spinnerbaits, topwaters, plastic worms, and crankbaits so I could cover all the

EAGLES DOWN LINDSEY WILSON BEHIND WEBB'S 19 POINTS

The Alice Lloyd Eagles got off to a slow start against Lindsey Wilson College last week, but rebounded in the second half to easily hand the Raiders a 91-72 loss.

Former McDowell product, Henry Webb, tossed in 19 points to lead the Eagles scoring. Todd Johnson and Russell Clark each added 18 points.

The Eagles fell behind in the first half due to the sharp shooting of Joe McGeorge and Michael Earles. The Eagles trailed at the intermission 46-40.

Nixon, like many tournament pros, talks very little while fishing, nor does he take time to eat. He may drink several sips of water during the day, but that's all. His total concentration centers on casung, retrieving and catching fish.

"It only takes about 45 seconds to change lures," laughs Nixon, "but, honestly, that's all it takes to break my concentration. If I already have another rod rigged and ready with a different lure, I can change in less than 10 seconds and never miss a cast.'

GEORGETOWN DOMINATES SECOND HALF IN WIN OVER LADY EAGLES

It was a game that Alice Lloyd Lady Eagles coach John Mills would just as soon forget. The Lady Eagles saw what was a close first half turn into a nightmare against Georgetown College last week.

The two teams played to a 43-43 tie through the first 20 minutes of play but it was a different tune in the second half. The Lady Tigers used a lot of players in the second half and tired out the Lady Eagles on defense. Susan Van Arsdale led Georgetown with 23 points hitting 87 percent of her shots. Katrina Short had 21 points to lead the Lady Eagles. Former Betsy Layne standout, Brenda Hamilton, added 13 points for Alice Lloyd.

The Lady Eagles are currently 10-12 on the season and 5-8 in district play.

EAGLES 12TH IN NATION IN OFFENSE

The latest statistics for the National Association Intercollegiate Athletics, Division II, lists Alice Lloyd College as 12th in the nation in team offense. The Eagles, with a season record of 11-6, have averaged 93.3 points per game.

BASS WORLD CHAMP REMEMBERS HIS FIRST PRO TOURNAMENT

Ken Cook of Meers, Oklahoma, today wears the crown of reigning world champion of bass fishing, but even he admits his chances of becoming a champion looked pretty slim when he fished his first professional tournament 16 years ago.

"It was in September, 1975, on Lake Texoma along the Texas/Oklahoma border," remembers Cook, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and winner of the 1991 Bass Masters Classic* on the Chesapeake Bay in Maryland.

"I was really excited and felt confident I would do well, because I'd been fishing a lot of local tournaments and finishing high, and I'd even won a big tournament several years earlier on Lake Texoma.

"I considered Texoma one of my home lakes, so I really felt I was ready for national competition."

Things quickly went downhill, however, as Cook discovered the real world of competitive bass fishing.

"At that time Texoma had a 10 fish daily limit," Cook remembers, "but I caught only seven or eight keepers the first day. I was already out of the money.

"What amazed me the most about that first day was that when I went to each of my two favorite places on the lake, another fisherman was already on each one. One was Bill Dance from Tennessee, and the other was Tom Mann from Alabama.

"I couldn't understand how in the world these two men could find two of the best places on the entire lake after just a couple of days of practice. It had taken me years of fishing to locate them."

An angler named John Pryor from Ardmore, Oklahoma, won the tournament with a three-day catch totaling 66-pounds, 4-ounces of bass. Cook finished "somewhere below 100th place" with less than 15pounds.

"It was a humbling experience," laughs the Evinrude pro, who is now considered among the best competitive bass anglers in the world. "I came away from that tournament with a lot of respect for the other anglers who could locate and catch bass so easily

Of course, says Cook, he also realized that tournament fishing on a national level - even 16 years ago - had already evolved to the point where actually catching bass was only part of the competition.

"The biggest thing then and today is locating the bass," says Cook. "All the competitors out there have the skill to catch the fish, but not all of them can find them.

"I've been very fortunate to have found enough bass in different lakes to win several tournaments, but even now I'm the first to admit I'm still learning each time I'm on the water.

HOW TO CHOOSE THE PROPER CRANKBAIT

Not too long ago, the only thing bass fishermen needed to know about choosing a crankbait was the depth to which it would dive.

Not any more.

Now, anglers must also decide on a crankbait body style, which determines its action.

"Sometimes one of the newer flatsided crankbaits with a tight, narrow wobbling action is best," says Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler and guide Randy Dearman of Livingston, Texas, "but at other times, the older, fatter crankbaits with their wider wobbling action is best.

"There is a lot more to choosing a crankbait today than simply choosing one for the depth it reaches."

The flat-sided crankbaits appearmore natural, says Dearman, and have less water resistance so they dive slightly deeper.

"I like to use these types of lures in hotter weather in the summer, or in clear water," Dearman explains. "To me, they look better and the tight side-to-side vibration is more appealing in clear water where bass have a chance to actually look at the lure.

"In colder water like we're getting now, or in dingy or muddy conditions, I prefer the older style crankbaits because they have a much wider, more pronounced action. Bass key in on them by the vibrations, not by sight."

The new flat-sided crankbaits are fished the same way the older lures are, which is bouncing and ricocheting them off the bottom or the structure being fished, says Dearman.

"In nearly all cases, any crankbait will be more effective if it makes contact with the bottom or the object you're fishing," notes the Johnson pro. "This creates an erratic action that triggers strikes, irregardless of what type of crankbait is used.

"I especially like to fish crankbaits around pier pilings, and I always try to get the lure to hit those pilings as I retrieve."

Although the flat-sided crankbaits have been extremely popular during the past 12 months, Dearman says they are not really new.

"I have some flat crankbaits that were hand carved years ago by some fishermen in Tennessee," he says. "The entire crankbait plug industry originated with lures that were being carved up there, but for some reason the fatter, more rounded lures were the ones that caught on, not the thin, flat ones.

"Now, because the flat crankbaits have been credited with winning a number of big tournaments, every major crankbait manufacturer is offering one."

"BASKETBALL ETIQUETTE"

Have you ever noticed how the rules for expected behavior change when one attends a basketball game? Basketball games, especially high school games in eastern Kentucky, are somewhat magical events. They actually transform people from being mild-manr.ered to outrageously hyper at the moment of the tipoff.

In all the years I've attended games, I've seen many a bizarre sight. I've observed people paint their faces, throw confetti, make obscene gestures at the officials and the opposing team, threaten to lynch the refs, and turn beetred (I'd imagine from high blood pressure) at high-anxiety moments.

I admit that at times some of those characteristics could have described me well. But I wasn't alone - there were huge crowds around me acting in the same fashion. My most vivid memory is the 1989 15th Regional Tournament. The setting was the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse. The tipoff for the championship game between the McDowell Daredevils and the Prestonsburg Blackcats was set for 8 p.m.

The gymnasium was filled to capacity by 6:30. I had never seen so many fans at a single game in my entire life. The fans began yelling at each other. Some Daredevil fans had a stuffed cat on a fishing pole and were casting it out on the floor and reeling it back up into the stands. Some of the Prestonsburg crowd had painted themselves from the waist up. Many things were taking place. The police escorted a few people out. However, my fondestmemory is of a normally mildmannered McDowell teacher running up and down the sidelines yelling, "Get up! Get up!" It was a touching sight. Unfortunately, McDowell lost the game. It did prove, though, that society's rules for expected behavior change during a basketball game. Over the years, I have compiled a list of "basketball etiquette."

Earl Ogle is a very pleasant fellow who is also the postmaster in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. People who go to the Smokies on vacation could have their pleasure doubled just by stopping in to see him.

I see Earl occasionally, and once I asked, "Do they still have that tourist mor kept them in such a congenial train ride in Gatlinburg?"

"No," he answered, "they finally took that off." "That's a shame," I said. "It looked like great fun." "Yes," he agreed, "it was very popular, and at first they put it on a tri-weekly basis."

"You mean they ran it three times a week?'

"No," he explained, "they'd take it for a run every week and try to get encountered his mother's displeasin back in."

Charles was working around his home one Saturday and decided to walk up the street to pick up something at the store.

One his way he saw that two children, a little brother and sister, had set up a lemonade stand by their front gate. They'd printed and posted a sign that read: LEMONADE - 25¢ A GLASS.

The few glasses he saw looked as if they might have been used, but there was a box of supplies nearby. Charlie stopped to chat and do business with the children. He handed the little boy a dollar and said, "Keep the change."

"What did you say, Sir?" asked the child.

And so he repeated, "I said to keep the change.

ping cart trailing along behind mom. Her mother had turned the corner and was checking the prices, thinking Taylor was close behind. Then she heard the threeyear-old jabbering up a storm. She poked her head around the isle to see who Taylor was talking too.

Taylor had Mrs. Butterworth by the neck saying, "Talk, talk, you talk on T.V., now talk."

Not being able to hold her laughter, Taylor's mom burst out in giggles.

Tay, looked at her with her big blue eyes and said "Why won't she talk to me mommie? I can't make her talk."

How, Kathi Jo explained Mrs. Butterworths not talking we're not sure.

But, Taylor's wonder did not end there.

After watching a Disney movie on dinosaurs, Tay sat down to a family dinner. "Mommie." she said, "Did you know dinosaurs live in the mountains?"

"A long, long time ago, millions of years ago, I guess they did, Tay," her mom answered.

Florida has no mountains, huh Mom?

"No," said her mother. Gram has mountains.

"Yes, she does, Tay," answered her mother.

Excited as could be Taylor continued to tell how the dinosaurs live here in Eastern Kentucky.

Her mother explained, "There are no more dinosaurs."

Why, Tay asked.

Employment services is job pool for employers

by Leesa Kruse

The Kentucky Department for Employment Services is no longer just"the unemployment office." With a wide range of services, the department offers assistance to both the job seeker and potential employer.

For employers, services offered by the department can save time and money.

"If a company runs a help-wanted newspaper ad or advertises on a marquee, they're going to get qualified, unqualified...everybody and their brother will go in to apply," explained Deborah Allen, field office manager at the Prestonsburg office. "If we do their job search for them, we screen their applicants and only send them the number of people they request to interview. "We also do testing," she continued. "If they want a secretary who types 60 words per minute, we do the testing here and only send them applicants who can type 60 words per minute." The employer saves the cost of advertising and the time it would have taken to see all the candidates who might otherwise have applied for the job. "We get most of our job listings from employers who call us," said Allen. "They pay for our services through their FUTA tax (Federal Unemployment Tax Act). We say we're a free service, but actually we're a pre-paid service for any employer who uses us."

the Department of Employment Services. The Targeted Jobs Tax Credit. (TJTC) is an incentive program aimed at giving disadvantaged groups an opportunity to work. Those groups include handicapped persons and recipients of state and federal general assistance, among others. Tax credits of up to $2,400 are available through TJTC.

Employers may also be entitled to a $100 Unemployment Tax Credit for each person they hire who is drawing unemployment benefits.

Disabilites Act protects civil rights of disabled

If you own a public business like retail store or a restaurant and don't have a wheelchair ramp or your rest rooms aren't modified for use by people in wheel chairs, you are breaking the law.

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) was signed by President Bush July 26, 1990 and was designed to protect the civil rights of disabled people by barring discrimination and guaranteeing equal access to public accommodations and promoting a disabled person who is otherwise qualified for the job. While an employer may ask an applicant about their ability to do a job, they can no longer ask if someone has a disability or test to screen out people with disabilities.

"This means employers won't be able to use applications with a laundry list of questions like, 'Do you have diabetes?' or 'Have you ever had an ulcer'," explained Allen. "They're no longer going to be able to ask questions like that."

1.) One is not expected to act prim and proper at the game. He or she is able to act emotionally, irrationally, and totally uncivilized.

2.) One is expected to stand for not only "The National Anthem," but for each playing of the "school song," as well.

3.) It is impolite for the opposing team's band to play while the other team's cheerleaders are on the floor. There is such a thing as taking turns. As well, it is rude for the band, any band, to play while the game is in progress. (I recall this occurring last week at the All"A" Classic. YOU KNOW WHO YOU ARE.)

4.) One should not worry wondering if he is making a fool of himself in front of other spectators. Usually, they are acting in a similar manner, and will be ashamed to gossip about you later.

5.) It is perfectly acceptable to use phrases such as, "Kill the ref!" and "The referee needs glasses!" if he indeed made a call that everyone can see was wrong.

6.) It is in good taste to wear one's school colors to the game.

7.) It is rude to stand up in front of others, unless they are standing, too, or unless one is acting out of pure emotion.

Of course, there are other rules regarding "basketball etiquette," but unfortunately I don't have the time nor space to list them all. I hope everyone can use these seven items as guidelines. Until next week, "Go McDowell!"

Employers may be eligible for tax credits for hiring certain workers from

The Department serves a pool of more than 10,000 applicants. Those who apply there will find many programs to help them, including counseling, job search training and in many cases, educational assistance. The JOBS (Job Opportunities and Basic Skills) Program is one which Allen finds helpful. "JOBS is set up to train people who are receiving benefits from social insurance-food stamps or AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children," explains Allen. "We give classes on interviewing skills, how to fill out an application, good child care, budgeting money, and even how to dress for an interview. The classes can really help someone who has never been exposed to these sort of things before." According to Allen, the classes are currently voluntary but will soon be a requirement for all AFDC recipients.

JOBS also offers educational benefits with GED completion and literacy programs, and continuing education at technical schools or community colleges.

(See Chamber Spotlight, C 3)

"This Act is probably the most comprehensive since the Civil Rights Act of 1964," said Deborah Allen, field office manager for Prestonsburg Department of Employment Services. It affects employment, transportation, public accommodations, state and local governments, and telecommunications.

All state and local governments and all public businesses such as restaurants, hotels and retail stores were to be in compliance with the Act by January 26, 1992.

Other employers who have 25 or more employees must comply with the ACT by July 26, 1992. Employers with 15 to 25 workers must comply by July 26, 1994. Private businesses with less than 15 employees are exempt. Religious organizations and private clubs are also exempt from some provisions of the Act.

The Act states that employers may not discriminate in hiring or

ADA states that all public accommodations-hotels, theaters, doctor's offices, libraries, day care centers, parks, etc .- may not discriminate on the basis of a disability. For instance, auxiliary aids and services must be provided for persons with vision or hearing impairments so they may have equal opportunity to participate and benefit

Also, all physical barriers in existing facilities must either be moved or an alternative method of providing services must be offered. All new construction and alterations and renovations must also be accessible

The Floyd County Chamber of Commerce is planning a seminar for employers on ADA in the near future. If you have questions now about the American with Disabilities Act and how it affects you or your business, call the Department for Employment Services at 886-2396.

Retirement and your IRA

If you are nearing retirement and have an Individual Retirement Arrangement (IRA), or are planning on rolling over assets from another retirement program into an IRA, the IRS would like to alert you to special rules that apply to you.

Generally, you cannot withdraw assets from your IRA before you reach age 59 1/2 without having to pay a 10 percent additional tax. Exceptions may include hardship situations such as disability or death, and distributions that are rolled over or are qualified annuity payments.

A rollover is a tax-free distribution to you of assets from one qualified retirement program which you contribute to another program within 60 days. The amount you roll over tax-deferred, however, is generally taxable later when the new program pays that amount to you or your beneficiary. Generally, you must make the rollover contribution by the 60th day after the day you receive the distribution.

You must start receiving distributions from your IRA by April 1 of the year following the year in which you reach age 70 1/2. If you do not withdraw the entire balance by the required beginning date, you must start making periodic withdrawals. The minimum withdrawal amount is figured based on payments over a period not longer than the life expectancy of the owner, or the joint life expectancies of the owner and beneficiary.

Rules affecting IRA's are contained in IRS Publication 590, Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRA's). Taxpayers can get a free copy of the publication by calling the IRS at 1-800-TAX-3676, or by stopping by your local IRS walk-in office in Kentucky.

WHAT'S YOUR HURRY? I got to the check-out counter with my sole purchase - a box of trash bags - at almost the same time as the lady pulling one heaping grocery cart as she pulled another.

I didn't want to appear rude or anything, but in as much as I could have checked out and already been home by the time she'd unloaded just one pile of her groceries, I started to step in front of her.

However, I found myself on the receiving end of one of those "don't Sometimes I get the feeling that even think about it" stares and she nearly ran me over as she pushed (and pulled) in front of me.

A little embarrassed, I apologized and stood quietly behind her as she slammed her items - three of four at a time - onto the slow-moving belt. She had her check written and was out of the store before the carry-out who laughs last.. doesn't get the joke." boy could bag her buns.

to pay for my trash bags, I heard her say something to the young man assisting her as he made his way to the front door, trying to negotiate the narrow opening from behind a cartfull of tall brown bags.

The last I saw of the woman she was pointing in the direction that I'd assumed she'd parked her car. By the time I got to mine, she was long gone.

Boy! Was she in a hurry, or what? something extremely urgent is going on that the whole world knows about except me. It's like some philanthropist somewhere is handing out hundred dollar bills. It's like everybody has to get wherever it is they're going right now, or else.

I guess it's like the old saying, "He Maybe I'm a little slow in more ways rybody was in such a fizz, I'd be in one, too.

I am smart enough, though, to Kentucky, where, comparatively speaking, we're supposed to be more laid back and easy going, we also live in a hyped-up, listen-up, hurry-up oriented society. Everywhere we turn people are emphasizing speed.

For example, people are always talking about the "fast" lane. A pill is no good, unless it's "fast" acting. We spend millions of dollars on "fast" food. Some of the finest people I know drink "instant" coffee and Nestle's "Quik". Your best basketball teams are those with good "fast" breaks. While the greatest baseball pitcher nearly always has a blistering 'fast" ball.

I can't for the life of me, however,

As I fumbled for the correct change than one. Maybe if I knew why eve- even begin to understand why those things designed to have a total opposite affect on us makes us hurry. Why do you suppose we go faster when we realize that even here in Eastern come upon a yellow caution light? Or, when we see a sign saying there is a dip in the road, why do we accelerate instead of braking?

Oh well, I guess it's just my nature to be slow. As a matter of fact, I've been told that I'm as slow as Christmas, and have even been metaphorically compared to cold molasses on a number of occasions. I don't care, though. After all, I'm seldom late for anything. I mean, I get to work on time. I get to church on time, I even get this column in on time. As a matter of fact, sometimes I'm even early. Like filing my income taxes. Would you believe that I qualify for a ... should I say it? A "quick" refund?

Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd County Home Economist, announces that all Homemakers Clubs will resume their regular meeting schedules, beginning February 1. (Meetings for the month of January were discontinued on account of the weather).

Local Churchwomen meet at Community United Methodist

The Local Churchwomen met Friday morning, January 31, at 10:30, at the Community United Methodist Church. Prior to the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Cheryl Sexton, of the host church. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Mabel Donahoe. Due to the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Dot Marshall, no financial report was given.

Mrs. Sue G. Martin, who served the group as president during the past year, installed the officers for the year, 1992-93. These were president, Mrs. Kay Hale Ross; vice president, Mrs. Bess West, (in absentia); secretary, Mrs. Mabel Donahoe, and treasurer, Mrs. Dot Marshall (in absentia).

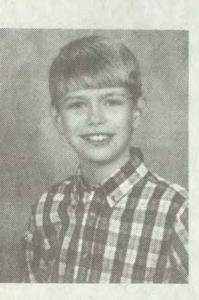

It was announced that the annual World Day of Prayer would be held at the Christ United Methodist Church, at Allen, on March 1, at 7 p.m.

At the suggestion of the new president, Mrs. Ross, meetings which had been held on the third Friday of every-other month were changed to meet Saturdays so that more churchwomen who work during the week may have the opportunity to attend these events. The next meeting will be Friday, March 21, at 10:30 p.m., at the First United Methodist Church.

The annual Holy Week services, a joint effort by the Floyd County Ministerial Association, whose members are responsible for the planning and presention of the programs, and the Local Churchwomen, who are responsible for the furnishing and serving of light meals for these meetings, are scheduled to be held this year from April 13-17, at the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial). Easter Sunrise Services will be held at Jenny Wiley Park

A discussion, led by the Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was held in regard to the Cooperative Christian Ministries and its relation to the locally sponsored food pantries. Several problems regarding this matter remain to be solved, but it was generally agreed that canned goods and monetary gifts are needed for this project. It was suggested that canned goods be taken to churches each Sunday.

The former president, Mrs. Martin, has spent much time in helping with the food pantry, the membership of the organization, and other matters of importance to the Local Churchwomen, and the new president, Mrs. Ross, expressed her will-

JOBS underway

Darnell Nunnery, unit coordinator for the JOBS Program, instructs students in her Job Readiness Class, preparing them to be more competitive in the local job market.

The Dislocated Workers Program is one of Allen's favorites. "This program helps those people who have handles Unemployment Insurance never had to use tax dollars before," she explained. "It helps those who and competent staff here," noted have worked hard all their lives and all of a sudden find themselves out of a job and without a marketable skill because their coal mine or whatever went out of business.

"The program can pay for up to 104 weeks of training to develop new skills for dislocated workers and participants can still receive their unemployment benefits while in the program." Allen said the department had recently received a $2 million coal grant to work with those people who become unemployed in a coalrelated field.

While it's not the only job at their office anymore, the Department still Claims: "We have a very seasoned Allen. "If it takes working nights or weekends, by Friday afternoon all of our claims are worked up. Now, that's dedication. It's been difficult since the new extended benefits were approved. We've reopened some of the older claims and extended newer ones, but our staff makes every effort to make sure that everyone gets the benefits they deserve."

For Life

Pikeville Methodist is a great place to start out. And bere's double proof: Stephanie and Amanda Combs, twin daughters of Steve and Teresa Hefner Combs of Pikeville.

Amanda and Stephanie arrived on December 11, 1989, almost two months earlier than expected. (Just couldn't wait, I guess!) Because twins are often premature, the Combs family anticipated an early arrival and planned accordingly.

"Having the Neonatal Unit at Pikeville Methodist was definately a factor in our decision to stay at home to have our babies," said Mrs. Combs. "It's more convenient to stay home and it's nice to be near family and friends at a time like that. But the most important thing is doing what is best for the babies. We felt like the Pikeville Methodist Neonatal Unit would give our children the best start they could have anywhere."

Dr. Ruth Ann Shepherd, full-time staff neonatologist, was in the delivery room when Amanda (4 lbs. 4 oz.) and Stephanie (3lbs. 10 oz.) were born. They were taken immediately to the Neonatal Unit where they stayed for almost a month. During that time, the new parents could be with the girls anytime they wanted.

"Dr. Shephard explained everything to us in detail. We never had to wonder what was going on," Mrs. Combs continued. "Some of the little things I remember especially, like there was music playing all the time and a guest book in the hall for visitors to sign if we were out when they came by."

"I guess one of the most touching moments was when we finally got to take the girls home. You could tell the staff really cared. We were told we could call anytime we needed, day or night. And I did!"

Amanda and Stephanie Combs today

"I know we made the right decision to have our babies at Pikeville Methodist. Just look at them now - could there be any doubt?"

Breaking the cycle of abuse:

Prevent substance abuse: a parents guide

No doubt about it. Your son or daughter will be asked to use alcohol. tobacco, marijuana or some other drug. At that moment, he or she will make an important decision. Unless you have prepared your child otherwise, the choice may be based on misinformation, curiosity or fear of rejection.

Alcohol and drug use have reached an epidemic stage nationwide. Our children are being seduced into their use earlier and earlier. Almost 30 percent of high school seniors say their friends get drunk at least once a you can prepare your child to resist week. One-third of students grades 4 these substances. But the best time through 8 think alcohol is a "big for action is before substance abuse problem" among children their age. even starts to make inroads in your Almost half say the same about drugs. youngster's life. Parents play a criti-Most teen substance users do not cal role in prevention. know or seem concerned that dependency may result from the fre- household chemicals and dangerous quent use of alcohol, tobacco or cer- places. However, with older children tain drugs.

YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

You protect small children from you may not feel qualified to discuss substance abuse. Assuming that children already know about it from television or school is a mistake. Without The good news is that as a parent specific parental guidance children may make important decisions based on peer pressure or misinformation. When you teach young people specific facts about drug and alcohol risks, they develop the understanding and motivation to avoid those intoxicants.

Schools and community groups also can positively influence children. Catchy announcements on radio and television increase awareness and teach prevention skills. Slogans like "Be Smart, Don't Start!" and images of popular youth discouraging drug use reinforce the value of making wise choices.

Your own use of any drug may springboard your child into unwise personal and social decisions. Be aware of your influence as an example to your child.

Pre-teen years offer opportunities to discuss family values, expectations and rules of the home. Children also need to know what happens when these rules are broken. Take time to listen to your children so they feel safe talking about these issues. As you work with them, they will develop confidence. Later, when offered drugs at the party or out on the playground, they will be more equipped to withstand the emotion of the moment.

An assertive attitude is a good defense. Even a child with strong values needs to resist actively. When asked, "Don't you drink?" a young person, instead of feeling inferior, might say assertively,"No!" "No thanks," or "I'm not into chemicals."

STEPS TO HELP YOUNGSTERS

The Just Say No Foundation offers these suggestions to young people who are invited to use drugs:

1. Understand what is happening. Someone is inviting you to use alcoasking you to do it.

2. Keep In mind why you should say no. Drugs are illegal and so is alcohol if you are under 21. It's also bad for you physically.

3. Say no. Have the courage to do

SUGGESTIONS FOR PARENTS

· Learn the facts yourself. A good local source of information is the "Talking With Your Kids About Alcohol Program" developed by the Prevention Research Institute (see resource section).

· Provide clear, consistent messages to your child. Children respond to accurate information. Without threatening, tell them about the risks involved.

· Be a good role model for your children. Your example is a powerful influence.

· Be consistent in your expectations and discipline. Set clear rules and limits, and have the courage to enforce them.

· Listen to your children. Consider their point of view, even if it differs from yours. Ask questions and then listen with respect. Don't interrupt. With a safe haven for discussion, your children will be more inclined to listen to you and trust you.

· State your own values. Children need to know what you personally think and feel about the issues.

· Help your child develop skills and talents. When a child invests time in friendships and activities she enjoys, she gains confidence and feels valued. A reasonably active life leaves little room for boredom.

· Teach your child to identify the truth. Others may exaggerate their use of alcohol or drugs to gain peer approval. They may also lie about the dangers.

· Encourage individuality and assertiveness. The child who confidently resists stays free from alcohol and drugs. She protects herself from peer pressure and develops a strong inner sense of what is right.

· Practice refusal skills with your child before he faces strong peer pressure. Play-acting possible social events teaches your child to resist negative situations. When the time comes, he can say no to drugs and yes to positive alternatives.

· Stay calm, firm and well informed. Share factual information. Keep fear, anger and distrust in check as you discuss this difficult topic. Avoid sarcasm, accusations, and emotional appeals. They may cause your child to stop listening.

· Work out prevention strategies with other parents in your school and community. Many children in the community may not be receiving preventive attention. Help likeminded parents set family policies which may stop the cry that, "Everyone else is allowed to!"

Provide your children with a warm, accepting atmosphere in which they feel comfortable confiding in you. Listen with respect to what they say they are feeling and thinking. Be trustworthy, and encourage the same quality in them.

MYTHS

Young people may hear that alcohol or marijuana will not harm them or that a small amount is safe. Replace misinformation such as, "Everybody else does it," and "A little bit won't hurt me" with facts. For example, if a child claims "pot" is harmless, explain that marijuana is 5 to 6 times stronger than in 1970. Marijuana affects short term memory, coordination, concentration, motivation and judgment. Regular marijuana use may affect the lungs and reproductive system. A person also can become psychologically dependent on it.

Now that February is here, it is time to start getting our 1992 gardens underway. At this time I now have small seedlings of a few plants in the cabbage family in pots in the house. I only sow a few cabbage plants at a time, about two weeks apart, so I will have cabbage all during the season, rather than it all coming in at one time. We eat a lot of cabbage in different ways, except as sauerkraut. I am the only one who likes sauerkraut and I don't like it often.

My onion seeds came up well this year and are also looking well. I need the ground to dry up, so I can get them out into the onion bed I prepared last fall. All I need to do is smooth and loosen up the soil. If worse comes to worse, I will have to set them out before I can redo the bed. That will dows now for early spring forcing. To get an early start, most annuals can now be sown in flats.

Bulbs in storage should be checked over for possible rotting or diseases. If your bulbs appear shriveled, your storage place is too dry. Moisture must be added. Cuttings from mums can be started now. Make sure the soil they are placed in is very low in nitrogen to prevent too fast and 'leggy" growth.

This is a good month to set out peaches, pears, plums, persimmons, mulberry, fig, and pecan trees. This can and will be a very busy month for true gardeners, even if it is in the dead of winter.

University of Kentucky to sell genetically improved cattle ever opportunity to tap in to the University of Kentucky's genetically improved research cattle herd by buying some of 63 animals to be offered at sale.

The auction of purebred angus and brangus cattle will be held by UK's College of Agriculture at 1 p.m. on Monday, March 16, on the college's recently acquired research farm two miles west of Versailles on Highway 60.

It is the first activity on the new farm formerly known as Pin Oak Farm since its acquisition by UK, said John Johns, UK extension beef specialist.

"This is our first production sale ever," Johns said. "We have sold bulls before through either auction or private treaty. But this is the first time, Kentucky farmers have had an opportunity to buy any of our female stock at public auction.'

This sale will feature 15 two-yearold angus bulls, 10 spring calving angus cows, 18 fall calving angus cows, 10 open yearling angus heifers and 10 yearling brangus bulls.

Catalogs with pedigree and performance information are being developed and will be available before the sale. Why is the university selling these animals?

"We're carrying more cattle, especially females, than we need for our research program," Johns said. The genetics are good enough that these animals need to be out there helping farmers build up their herds."

The animals definitely do NOT need to be headed for the stockyards,

"We wanted to offer them to breeders to help build up the quality of the Kentucky farmers have their first cattle herds in Kentucky," he said. "These animals are good, sound specimens of our genetic program. We want to see our genetics being used by breeders.'

The money received from the sale will be put back into the research and other agricultural programs in the animal sciences department of the College of Agriculture, Johns said.

ASCS accepting applications

Local farmers will have until February 15 of this year to apply for new Burley tobacco quotas.

To be eligible the applicant must meet the following criteria: a) own the farm; b) not have any interest or ownership in any other farms in the U.S. for which a quota is already established; c) have available necessary equipment and facilities to produce the tobacco; d) expect to obtain more than 50 percent of his/her yearly income from farming; and e) have experience in 2 of the last 5 years in the production, harvesting and marketing of burley tobacco.

Homemakers plan meeting

The Cow Creek Homemakers will meet this February at the Freewill Baptist Church on Cow Creek in the Annex Fellowship Hall at 1, Tuesday, February 18.

Vegetable seeds are hard to find early enough to have early plants, unless you order your seeds from a seed company. I was lucky last month and found a seed display in a discount store in Paintsville. That gave me a head start on plants, saved me having to pay a higher price for the seeds, plus the handling and shipping charge. I have often wondered why the local stores that sell seeds do not put their displays out rather than keeping them in the storage room. Could it be the stores that do sell seeds also sell plants in the spring and there is more profit in plants?

During this month - in hotbeds, greenhouses, cold frames or indoors -sow seeds of cabbage, cauliflower, celery, tomatoes, peppers and onions. This will get you into the gardening fever early and bring fine rewards in the spring. It will save the expense of buying non-hardened and half dead plants that are shipped in here from the deep south.

Orchard mulch (if you did mulch) should be checked. If the weather is mild, apple and pear trees can be safely premed now. To prevent disease, make sure all old fallen fruits are picked up from the ground near and under all fruit trees.

Garden tools need a thorough cleaning and mending before the hectic spring season arrives - and it is just around the corner. Repair cold frames and hotbeds, not in use, for

Tobacco Expo draws crowd

A mixture of enthusiasm and concerns characterized the second annual Tobacco Expo '92, held January 15 at Heritage Hall in the Civic Center.

The one-day event attracted twice the number of participants as last year's inaugural session, according to Dr. George Duncan, a University of Kentucky extension specialist.

This year about 100 exhibitors representing 40 companies, plus 20 seminar speakers and nearly 2,000 burley growers attended the Expo, which was co-sponsored by the Kentucky Co-operative Extension Service and the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association.

NEW BURLEY GROWERS The Expo's combination of a trade show and product seminars seemed particularly helpful to many farmers who are adding burley production to their operations.

Jerry Dryden of Corydon, Indiana, described the Expo as "a tremendous way to deliver information about the new burley technology."

Dryden said he plans to grow his first burley crop in 1992 because tobacco "has been fairly consistently profitable over the years, whereas many other commodities go up and down as supplies accumulate. But with tobacco, we have a way of handling surpluses much more effectively than the other commodities."

1993 PLANS

The next Tobacco Expo is slated for mid-January 1993, according to Duncan, who plans "more space to accomodate more exhibitors.

And since this year's 600-seat seminar space remained full throughout the day, Duncan expects that Tobacco Expo '93 will also have a second meeting area for seminars.

Working Social Security beneficiaries should check annual requirements

If you work and receive Social Security benefits, take a look now at your final 1991 W-2 forms. If your 1991 earnings are over Social Security's annual limits, you will need to report them to Social Security.

The 1991 earnings limits are $9,720 for beneficiaries who are age 65 through 69 and $7,080 for beneficiaries who are under 65. The earnings limits do not apply to people who are 70 and over the entire year.

We used your estimate of 1991 earnings submitted when you applied for benefits (or when you filed last year's earnings report) to figure out the Social Security benefits you would be paid in 1991. The purpose of this year's annual report is to enable us to compare your actual earnings to your estimate to see if you have been overpaid or underpaid. If you were underpaid, you will get a check for the additional benefits. If you were overpaid, we usually deduct the overpayment amount from your future benefits, unless you prefer to make a refund.

NFIB survey shows growing frustration of small business largest small business group shows considerable distrust toward a proposal put forth this month to solve the problem of uninsured workers in Kentucky and toward other state programs.

James E. Hammons, owner of J & L Equipment in Mt. Vernon, said it's time to level the playing field between the people who pay for health care and those who provide it, in the survey conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business/ Kentucky.

"If the state is ready to regulate doctors and hospitals like they do my business, then I will support health (insurance) plans, but not until then," said Hammons. "I can hardly afford comments that illustrated the impact my own insurance, much less others."

responded "no" when asked if the state should create a small-business health access corporation to provide coverage for firms with fewer than 24 employees. Hammons' sentiments were echoed by many respondents.

Louisville business owner Ronald Snyder said, "This access corporation would only create a new department and result in more corruption and wasted money." Marion Humphries, a jeweler in Russellville, added, "The health access corporation is not the way to solve the problem, you must focus on the greed of the entire health care industry."

Tom Underwood, NFIB/Kentucky state director, said that member comments this year expressed more

The annual survey of the state's displeasure than ever toward state initiatives. Health care was not the only target.

> The state lottery system also provoked highly-charged and negative feedback. Eighty-two percent said they were not satisfied with the financial disclosure of the Kentucky Lottery Corporation. More than half said it has not benefited the state and 66 percent said lottery proceeds should benefit a specific program and not go to the general fund.

> "The lottery and the state administration have done a very poor job of providing information as to how the money is spent," said Larry E. Rogers, owner of Dixie Schwinn Cyclery in Louisville.

Underwood said he expected of the recession and the difficulty business owners have meeting the Hammons was one of many who rising costs of running a business while faced with lower revenues. But he wasn't fully prepared for the high degree of cynicism expressed in the American Standard recently donated thirty-seven lavatory faucets to W.D. Osborne Elementary. The donation was presented by supervisor, Carl Cole. "This (survey) shows that small business has all but lost the faith in state government," said Underwood.

"What we're looking for is leadership and accountability, and hopefully the '92 session will prove these qualities still exist."
