The North Lake Drive. Prestonsburg branch of the Bank Josephine was robbed Wednesday afternoon for the second time in less than two weeks. The robbery occurred at approximately 1:15 p.m.

An eyewitness said that she was conducting her business at one of the bank windows when the suspect reached over her shoulder and handed the teller a note.

He is described as being a white male, approximately five feet ten inches tall, weighs between 165 and 175 pounds and has dark hair. However, the man who committed Wednesday's robbery was wearing a beard, while the suspect in the June 26 robbery was clean shaven.

Missing boy found alive

A two-year boy reported missing Thursday morning was found approximately three hours later scared, but unharmed.

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department received a call at 12:15 p.m. from Cindy O'Brien of Cushaw Hollow near Printer saying her son, Todd, had been missing for about two hours.

Sheriff's deputies, the Floyd County Emergency Rescue Squad, Kentucky State Police, Left Beaver Rescue Squad and Lifeline Ambulance responded to the scene to search for the missing child.

The boy was found by Terry Castle, a neighbor who was helping wooded hillside 500 feet behind the home. Rescue crews combed the surrounding area for about an hour before the child was found.

Breathitt woman compensated after jury trial

by Susan Allen

A Floyd County jury awarded a Breathitt County woman $15,000 Thursday when they found she had been wrongly accused of theft. The jury deliberated almost two hours before deciding that Barbara Minix, 27, had been falsely accused of taking over $8,000 from an Action

Mart convenience store last year. The jury found that Paul Whitt, vice president of Action Petroleum, had wrongly sworn out a warrant against Minix in December 1991 charging her with 13 counts of theft.

The two-day trial centered on Minix's allegations that she had been sexually harassed and assaulted by B.W. McDonald, president of Action Petroleum; wrongly dismissed from her job as manager at Action Mart by Whitt; and that her civil rights had been violated.

The jury ruled that McDonald had not sexually harassed or assaulted Minix and that McDonald had not violated her civil rights.

"I don't want them here," Hamilton said. "I raised my kids. Let everybody else raise their own."

Another member of the group said she was afraid of the effect that teens who had in the past proven to be Greg Walters, a spokesman for troubled and troublesome would have on the children who already lived in the neighborhood.

Akers, who worked at the Floyd County Detention Center for seven years, said that she understood the groups concerns, but felt those concerns were unfounded.

"I don't think they understand that these kids will be under strict, 24 Walters stressed that none of the hour supervision," Akers said. "If I have two kids in a room watching nome in a residential section of Staning troubled youth, but they felt such 1 V, an adult will be with them. If one kid wants to get out and walk down the street, an adult will be with him."

> Akers said that the home would contain a maximum of four teens at any given time, and that all the children placed there would fall under the category of "status offender." A status offender, Akers said, is any minor who had run away from home or been truant but had not committed any crime that an adult could be charged with.

> "The most important thing I'd love to get across is that Kentucky is the only state in the union that is still not in compliance with the law by putting status offenders in jail with murderers." Akers said. "I've seen kids placed in detention for truancy with a kid who just murdered his mother.... A lot of kids are placed in jail when in some cases it's the parent's fault they couldn't control them. Instead of putting them in detention, we want to put them in a home environment. It's basically a foster home."

Akers said the main reason for placing the home in a residential neighborhood was that the cost of commercial rent was too prohibitive. She also said that she had had to act fast in renting property for the facility in order to secure the federal funds that had been set aside for it.

Walters said that the group had begun a petition against the home and would meet with Akers, Magistrate Ermel Tackett and other county officials Tuesday, July 16 at 7 p.m. at the Floyd County Fiscal Courtroom. The public is invited to attend.

public office in Floyd County will be paying more to file candidacy papers for the next election, according to Secretary of State Bob Babbage.

The 1992 General Assembly increased the previous $20 fee for most candidates filing for political races effective July 14, Babbage explained.

Congressional candidates and candidates for a statewide office will pay a $500 filing fee, Babbage said. A $200 filing fee is required for candidates for Commonwealth's attorney, the General Assembly, the District Court, the Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court, he added.

Highlands Auxiliary donates digital image system

Highlands Auxiliary has donated a digital image system to the cardiology department. This system will be used to enhance stress echocardiography testing by improving accuracy in making diagnoses, resulting in better quality care for patients with cardiac disease.

Stress echocardiography is becoming the most effective method of non invasively detecting coronary artery disease. This technique uses a standard stress test where a person exercises on a treadmill with monitoring of blood pressure and an electrocardiogram and combines it with an enchocardiogram to allow detection of abnormal areas of heart wall motion. If a patient has significant blockage in a coronary artery, one would expect not only to see abnormal electrocardiographic changes but to see associated abnormalities on the echocardiogram. Combining the imaging two technologies (echo and digital imaging) will drastically improve the diagnostic accuracy of Funds for auxiliary donations come entirely from their operation of the hospital gift shop. Donations to the hospital are to purchase new equipment or physical plant improvements, which might otherwise not be feasible.

Most persons seeking election to county and independent boards of education will pay the customary $20 filing fee. All other candidates who file for an office with the Secretary of State or the county clerk will pay a $50 fee, Babbage explained.

Babbage said the law requires all funds received by both the Secretary of State and the county clerk for filing notifications, declarations and petitions, minus $20, be forwarded to the State Treasurer and deposited in the election campaign fund which was also established by the legisla-

The increase in fees was included in the election reform legislation contained in Senate Bill 221, Babbage said.

The law which created the election campaign fund makes it subject to the control of the Registry of Election Finance and directs that the funds collected from candidate fees go for public financing of campaigns of candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, Babbage explained.

The law also makes provisions for runoff primary elections, changes maximum campaign contributions, and changes the laws regarding writein candidates, Babbage added.

WORKING WITH TVA TO SAVE THOUSANDS OF COAL-MINING JOBS

I was pleased to report a few months ago that some of us were working with the Tennessee Valley Authority on plans to save more than 5,000 coal-mining jobs in Kentucky.

I am even more pleased to report today that these plans are now becoming a reality.

Our goal is to prevent the loss of crucial TVA markets now served by our Kentucky coal industry. We cannot afford to lose these markets to low-sulfur coal from Western states under the terms of the Clean Air Act

These TVA markets, absorbing 28 million tons of Kentucky coal each year, were hanging in the balance when we began our fight to save sibility of losing thousands of Ken-Kentucky coal-mining jobs in the tucky jobs without a fight. midst of a continuing recession.

Today, the TVA is installing scrubbers to allow the continued use of Western Kentucky coal at its Cumberland power plant.

This large and highly commendable investment will help the TVA to continue on this commonsense course meet and exceed sulfur-dioxide emissions standards under the first phase of the Clean Air Act.

I want to come out at this time in support of the actions of Eddie Billips and The FCEA. I said two weeks ago that what was going on with Mr. Boysen, Mr. Towler and the Floyd County School Board was not quite kosher and had a funny smell to it and indicated my reservations in the way that things were being done in personal letters to Boysen, Towler and Carol Stumbo of the FCEA.

Sure, maybe Mr. Towler will be honest, untouchable by past and current corruption and will do a fine job, only time will tell; but, the way that he took power leaves a lot of questions to be answered by both the School Board and Thomas Boysen.

Instead of taking politics out of the school as he swore to do, Boysen used the old "power play," dumping the search committee and boards' choice for one of his own, a friend who needed a job. It was all but stated that if the board did not choose his friend, he would continue to reject the remaining choices on the search committee's list. The state and county spent thousands of dollars to check out Mr. Zitterkopf but failed to do the same thorough job with Mr. Towler.

A local paper asked my friend Tom Gish what he thought of the goings on regarding Towler and he had no comment. Now Tom is the current chairman of the Harlan County School Board being put there by the state to help straighten things out and he is also active on the Pritchard Committee and KERA and had he been impressed he would have said so but chose to remain silent.

I think that the school board cut a deal they thought would help them with Boysen and the Office of Educational Accountability. I have heard from reliable sources that 2 or 3 were facing investigations and possible charges before the fall elections and I think they tried to appease Mr. Boysen and save their own necks by hiring his friend, Mr. Towler. I don't know Mr. Thomas but if what Mr. Billips is saying is true then the hiring adds up to a effort to cut a deal by a board that has lots of reasons to.

I fully agree that everything should be checked out as 5 of the top 8 candidates the search committee came up with were still available for hire when Towler was selected. Why weren't they considered? Something smells here!

In a recent publication of the Kentucky Housing Corporation there was an article on the rebirth and revitalization of Wheelwright. I have had the good fortune to visit that community in years gone by. I applaud the initiative and hard work required to make the dream of revitalization a reality. The Big Sandy Region is fortunate to have people such as Roger Recktenwald of the Big Sandy Area Development District and Anna Gene Tackett, now with the Kentucky Housing Corporation, who possess the vision and energy to make things

It is such energy and drive that makes the Big Sandy Region unique. Since Roger Recktenwald first resided in your region in the early 1970's he has given freely and unselfishly of his talents and resources. The people of Wheelwright and the region have benefited greatly by the presence of Roger, his wife Eilene and his entire family.

It is with great sadness that we realize the loss of one of our charter club members. Mrs. Beatrice A. Collins of Prestonsburg, formerly of Lackey, passed away on July 2 after a long illness.

Until her illness restrained her from attending and taking part in our club meetings and activities, she was an active and faithful member from the time of the club's inception in 1926 as a "Mother's Club" and later when it became federated in 1934 as the Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club. "Miss Biddie," as she was lovingly called, could always be depended on to do whatever she was asked to do and do it well. She was also a person who never had an ill word to say to or about any other club member. Her willingness and faithfulness is recognized by all the members who knew her from the past, and her actions will be an inspiration to younger ones who learn of her.

ABORTION AND THE SUPREME COURT

The Supreme Court's recent decision leaving it up to the 50 states to decide how and when you can take the life of an unborn child was a terrible disappointment to me.

I had hoped the court would take a positive step and affirm that the unborn child has a constitutional right

Instead, it left us with a weak compromise — one that some even call cowardly.

Now, the battle will move to Congress, where a pending bill would take away the states' right to regulate abortion and allow it virtually on

As one who has always opposed abortion, my position is clear.

I will fight this bill, just as I have voted on 46 other occasions in Congress against proposals that would either promote or condone the killing past decision.

Make no mistake about it: The Freedom of Choice Act is headed for a certain veto. But the pro-abortion faction is becoming more strident than ever — and larger in number. In one recent roll call, in fact, they came within just twelve votes of overriding the President's veto.

Now, more than ever, we need a Congress that believes in the rights of children still in the womb.

We, as a nation, take pride in our moral values: on standing up for the rights of all, on helping those unable to help themselves.

But by continuing to allow abortion, we are failing to protect the most innocent members-and most defenseless-members of our society: our unborn children.

The Supreme Court ignored a golden opportunity to right a past wrong and overturn an abominable

Youth group holds fast food supper

Members of the First Presbyterian Church Youth Group participated in a Progressive Fast Food Supper last Sunday, June 28, with trips to McDonalds, Wendys, Dairy Cheer and Dairy Queen. The menu consisted of a sandwich, fries, drinks, and of course, ice cream for desert. "At least this way you have the best of fast food meals," remarked one of the members, "this is fast food heaven."

The group obtained permission from Dairy Queen to finish the meal there and have desert, but "we sure got some strange looks from people who did not know what was going on," said Johnnie Ross, minister for youth. "I suppose it was quite a shock for patrons to come into Dairy Queen and see us eating food from the other restaurants in town," Ross added. "But we had fun and got fed, what else could we have asked for?"

The group will be attending summer camp at Burnamwood, July 5-11. The Rev. Timothy Jessen will be the camp director for the week an Johnnie Ross will be the activities director. The camp is open to all youth grades 6-8, from across the state. Space is limited, but some slots remain open. For more information, contact the church office at 886-2214.

Dr. Margaret Lewis to head MSU's Big Sandy Campus

Morehead State University has named Dr. Margaret Lewis, an administrator in the Texas higher education system, as director of its Big Sandy Extended Campus Center in

The appointment, effective July 13, was announced by Dr. Marc D. Glasser, dean of MSU's graduate and extended campus programs.

Currently vice president for student development at North Lake College, Irving, Texas, Dr. Lewis has more than 16 years in administrative roles. She succeeds Dr. Roland Burns, who served during the past year as interim director at the Big Sandy ECC and now is director of the Ashland Area Extended Campus Center.

Before assuming the post at North Lake in 1984, Dr. Lewis was associate dean of students at East Central University in Ada, Okla., and worked in student life areas at the University of North Texas.

"I truly am excited about the new opportunities ahead of me as center director," said Dr. Lewis. There is so much potential there and I was impressed with the enthusiasm and warmth of the people I met during my visit to Prestonsburg and the area. I look forward to working with them," Dr. Lewis said.

The new director earned her doctoral degree in adult and higher education administration from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and her undergraduate degree in Russian and history from the University of New Mexico.

Among her professional achievements are an award-winning program to assist high risk students succeed which she designed and development of computerized systems for recruiting and tracking students.

Since the mid-1980s, MSU officials have been working closely with Prestonsburg Community College and other educators, as well as civic leaders, to identify the needs of the Big Sandy area's people, who have two years of college, and make additional work available to them leading to a four-year degree.

In 1989, the Council on Higher Education designated MSU's regional site in Prestonsburg as an extended campus center. With CHE approval, MSU is authorized to offer at least 75 percent of the upper division coursework leading to specific bachelor degrees at extended campus

Unduplicated enrollment at the center for fall 1991 was 486 students and 39 classes were offered.

Those attending the Progressive Fast Food Supper were Emily Damron, Sherri May, Aaron Damron, Aaron Bond, Michael Slone, Eliza Kendrick, Paul Jessen, Ruth Jessen, Chris Spriggs, Chris Bailey, and Kevin Ross.

Side Trips

If you are ever on a sandy coastal beach in the early morning and out of the corner of your eye you happen to spot a small shadow flickering by or dartng away from your presence, don't worry. You are not imagining things. Most likely, the shadowy figure you've seen is a "ghost" crab, scurrying back to its burrow.

Ghost crabs, also sometimes referred to as "sand" crabs, are so named because of their light, camouflaging coloring which blends in so perfectly with the surrounding sand that one can hardly see them at all. Like the hermit crab and penaeid shrimp discussed in earlier articles, ghost crabs are decapod crustaceans. They are "true" crabs of the taxonomic family Ocypodidae, genus Ocypode, of which there are several species.

Ghost crabs are really quite fascinating creatures. Their speed and agility on the beach is amazing. Some species are known to be able to run up to five miles an hour or more (that's about 2 yards per second!), faster than any other crustacean. The ability of the ghost crab to move so fast is partially due to the fact that they do not only walk, or scurry, forward and diagonally, but they also walk sidewards! To achieve their greatest speed, they run sidewards! Moreover, they are able to stop and reverse direction instantaneously. They do the water, the age of the crab, and the all this using only the last four thoracic legs. Those who are interested in aerobics could enjoy an inexpensive, healthful time attempting to catch one of these illusive "ghosts!" Odds are, they wouldn't!

Also playing a larger role in a ghost crabs' agility is its body shape. The head and thoracic region (cephalothorax) is short and rather wide and appears to be fused together because the hard outer covering/carapace covers the entire area. Whereas most decapod crustaceans, such as lobster and shrimp, have large tails or, more accurately abdomens, the ghost crab and other true crabs have a much "reduced" abdomen, and what little there is tucks securely underneath its body in a shallow depression. Likely, this offers some protection to the reproductive parts, as well as being helpful to females during breeding in the carrying of the fertilized eggs until she releases them into the water.

crabs vary according to the species, but as in other crustaceans, mating usually occurs shortly after the female molts (the time when their hard carapace is shed to make way for the edge. developing new one underneath). In order to attract a female, male ghost coast this summer, take time out one crabs either rap the joint just below the large cheliped (pincer or claw) against the ground, or rapidly flex the beach inhabitants, the ghost crabs.

The female can "feel" these series of vibrations up to about one yard away through specialized organs in her legs. Some male ghost crabs "build" mounds of sand that resemble pyramids which lure the female. During the actual process of mating, the male transfers a membranous packet of sperm to the female. Unlike hermit crabs and penaeidshrimp which were discussed in previous articles, the eggs of ghost crabs are fertilized internally and are laid some time later. The female carries the eggs on her pleopods (abdominal appendages) during part of their development, then releases them into the open sea to complete their development and hatch into free-swimming larvae, called zoeae.

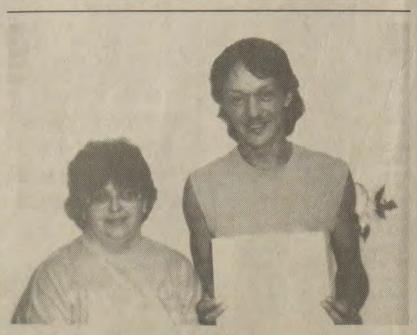

Another fascinating aspect about ghost crabs is their ability to construct burrows in the sand. They dig burrows not only to cool themselves from the heat of the sun and to protect themselves from predators, but also to give themselves a place in which to spend the molting period, during which they neighter eat nor move until the new carapace has completely hardened. Burrows are also used by some males of the species to "detain" the female, once lured into it, until the mating process has been com-

UPSET PARENT SAYS SO....

Everyday it seems that someone has a say about the way the Beaver Creek Little League allstar team has been doing. Some have complained out loud about the way some of the players are not getting to play while others are just put out with the selection

Carol Sue Branham, Martin, isn't put out about the selection process or the fact that her son, Jimmy, didn't get into the first all-star game at Archer Park. But her concern has been over the acceptance of her son on the

Beaver Creek North squad. "He was just treated rudely," says Branham of her son's treatment. "Some of the kids would say 'who is that?' and were not friendly with him."

Branham's quarrel was not with playing but just feeling like part of the team.

"When his coach Rick Thornsbury (Martin Blue Jays) told me that Jimmy would be the one choice of the Blue Jays selection for the team, I thought that they would call and tell us when practice would be. Well I waited and thought that maybe I am the one that should call and find out when practice was. So I called Mr. (Joe) Owens who was coaching the North all-star team. I told him that Jimmy was one of the all-stars and asked when practice would be. He told me that Jimmy wasn't on the list of all-stars." Branham then proceeded to give Owens an account of her son being selected for the team by his coach but was surprised to find another one had been selected by Owens.

"I found out that they had put Timbo Hagans on the team," explained Branham. "Owenstold me that Jimmy could come on as an alternate. I told him that no, that is not the way it is supposed to be and that Jimmy was selected as an all-star, not an alternate. He told me that his roster was full."

Branham explained how she contacted Beaver Creek Little League President Jimmy Goins and was told he would see what he could do about it, if anything. Later Branham said that she received a phone call from Owens informing her that Jimmy was on the team and "not as an alternate."

"We went to practice that day and we were told to be there at a certain time. When we got there, we were told that they wouldn't be there long and that we could go on home," said Branham. "I said no, we'll stay. They practiced for over two hours.'

Branham felt that the coach should have introduced her son to the rest of the players when they were concerned who he was.

"He should have taken Jimmy and told the other players that he was a member of their all-star team," stated Branham. "My concern is not if he plays or not, but how he is accepted.'

Branham, like many, feels that the extra boys should have gotten to play in the team's first game against Beaver Creek South. "I certainly admire what Clinis Hall did with his team," said Branham. "He let them all play and that was nice of him. And when I see him I will tell him that. He played all his players. That's what this is all about, isn't it? To teach the kids."

Joe Owens has done a good job working in the Little League. He took the coaching position of the all-star team when Jeff Sammons of the Martin Cardinals passed up the position. He, along with David Combs, heads up the squad of Right Beaver and both are very good coaches. However, winning an all-star tournament is not all of it. Teaching kids how to play and letting them play is as important as winning. If a player is named to around and sometime live in your belfry, but the kind Little Leaguers use to hit a hardball. Live baseball

The Harold-Allen-Prater (HAP) Little League All-Stars have several of them and they put them on display Tuesday evening at Archer Park as they pounded three Martin County All-Star pitchers for 10 hits in scoring a 12-0 win in the first round of the double elimination tournament.

HAP is the defending champions of the Little League Classic played last year in Paintsville.

A good crowd was on hand for the game between the two county teams. Craig Johnson tossed a two-hitter and Wesley Samons provided the power as HAP had little trouble with Martin Samons belted a two-run home run in the first inning when HAP scored four times. He later tripled and scored a run in the fourth inning.

Johnson was almost untouchable on the mound, although he did struggle with his control in the middle innings only to finish strong. Johnson went the distance allowing only two hits while striking out 13. He issued two walks.

Russell Hall also swung a hot bat for HAP with two hits and a run batted in. Hall had a first inning double that scored a run. John Ortega was the leading RBI man with three that came on his two hits. Ortega had a run scoring double in the second inning and drove in two runs with a base hit in the fourth.

Derek Stanley showed his hitting ability with a two hit night. Except for a bunt attempt in the first inning that he almost beat out, Martin County could not get Stanley out. He doubled Live bats. No, not the kind that fly in the third and singled home a run in the fourth before walking in the fifth.

Martin County's two hits came off the bats of Bobby Fields and Eugene Fletcher who started on the mound for Martin County. Fields base hit leading off the second ending any thought of a no-hitter that Johnson may have gotten especially the way he hurled the first inning. Johnson got the first three batters on strikes in order and looked sharp in locating his pitches. However, he struggled from the second through the fourth before righting himself and finishing strong.

HAP held a 6-0 lead until the fourth inning when they pushed across six runs for the 12-0 score. Samons tripled with one out and scored on Johnson's base hit. Hall then lined a base hit to centerfield with Johnson advancing on to third base. Hall got hung up between second and third being caught in a rundown. Johnson came on to score and Hall returned to second safely.

Matt Kidd was plunked by a pitch and Stanley singled behind him. However, some poor base running by Kidd found him in no man's land as he was caught in a rundown and tagged out. Brad Reynolds reached on an error and Billy Mitchell walked to load the bases for HAP. Ortega then lined a base hit to centerfield scoring two runs and giving HAP a 12-0 lead.

Martin County put two runners on base in the second inning but left them stranded when Johnson fanned Brian Davis and got Ronnie Sweeney on a ground ball to third. In the third, Martin County made some noise, again loading the bases on Johnson, but the HAP defense kept the Martin

Burke whiffs 11, drives in two in Prestonsburg win

After waiting in the wings for almost 2 1/2 extra hours to play baseball, the Prestonsburg 14-15 year old senior league all-stars finally got to take the field at Inez, host of the senior league tournament. The wait proved to be worth it after the local team posted a 4-2 win over Fleming-

The game was scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. following the first game that started at exactly 5 p.m. However, a marathon of a game that featured more walks than there were fans held up the start of the game for Prestonsburg. The game finally got underway shortly before 9 p.m. and did not conclude until after the 11 p.m. hour.

Jason Burke had the power bat and strong arm as he hurled and batted the Prestonsburg team to their first game win in the tournament. Burke went the distance for Prestonsburg striking out 11 batters while scattering five Fleming-Neon hits. Burke walked only two batters and did not allow an earned run. Fleming-Neon scored twice in the first but both were unearned.

Burke also had two hits in the game driving in half of his team's runs. He doubled home two runs in the fourth inning. Team mates Jerry Lafferty and Ryan Ortega also col-lected two hits in the game

Fleming-Neon took their 2-0 lead in the first inning on a one-out error by Jason Spencer at short stop off the bat of Keith Webb. Burke got Collier on strikes but the ball was dropped by catcher Ricky Lemaster. Lemaster recovered the ball and threw to first in plenty of time to nail Collier but the umpire ruled that first baseman James Jarrell never did step on the

Hale's sac fly sends Prestonsburg past Morgan Co. 8-7

It had it all. Runs. Good defense. Bad defense. Good pitching, not so good pitching. It kept the crowd around to the very end.

That is what Little League base-Wednesday night at Archer Park as the Prestonsburg All-Stars defeated a good Morgan County team 8-7 to advance in the winner's bracket of the Area 2, District 7 All-Star Little League tournament.

The 8-7 win for Prestonsburg will set up a confrontation with Paintsville tonight in a 7 p.m. game.

While most games have their hero, Prestonsburg had their heroes -Andy Jarvis and Gavin Hale. Grant Castle came on in relief in the third inning of Nathan Fannin, who struggled through two innings. Castle picked up the win, working the final four innings. Castle held Morgan County in check after they had taken a 5-3 lead off Fannin. Castle kept the visitors at bay to allow his team the opportunity to catch the all-stars of

Morgan County. Prestonsburg finally caught up and tied the game at 7-7 on Jarvis' tworun home run in the fifth inning. Down 7-4 against Adam Vest, Prestonsburg scored three times in the inning. Bryan Fitzpatrick opened the inning by drawing a lead-off walk. Jarvis then blasted a drive to right centerfield where rightfielder Daniel Fallen went back on the ball. Fallen reached for the ball and, about the time the ball hit the glove, Fallen hit the fence. The ball hit off his glove and sailed over the fence for a tworun home run to make it a 7-6 game. Gavin Hale then singled, advanced to third on an error in centerfield and scored when Fannin was safe on a shortstop error. Hale's run tied the game at 7-7. Castle, who came on in the third, got Morgan County in the fourth inning, although they did put a runner on by an error. He struck out Vest and got Michael Miller to pop out to shortstop to end the inning.

Morgan stirred things up in the fifth, but again Castle bowed his neck and pitched out of trouble. A good defensive play by Ryan Hardee in centerfield cut down a runner who could have been the game winner.

It was an exciting baseball game. the fifth and Fallen singled, putting runners on first and second. Nickolas Phipps roped a base hit to centerfield which Hardee fielded and fired to home plate to cut down Holbrook trying to score. Castle got Ferguson ball is all about and it was no different on a fly ball to Hardee in center and Travis Stacy on a pop out to shortstop Fitzpatrick leaving two runners on

The good defense of Prestonsburg was rewarded by the offense in the bottom of the sixth inning when Prestonsburg scored the winning run. Eric Kelly, who had been two-fortwo at the plate, drew a walk. Castle fanned before Fitzpatrick singled up the middle. Jarvis walked to load the bases for Prestonsburg and Hale then lifted his fly ball to the outfield with Kelly tagging and scoring to give Prestonsburg the win.

It was an uphill battle for the local all-star team as they spotted Morgan County a four-run lead after half an inning. Two walks, two errors coupled with two base hits accounted for the four Morgan County runs. Fallen reached on a one-out error on second baseman Grant Castle. Fannin walked Phipps and Fallen scored on a base hit by Chris Rowe. Phipps scored the second run on Stacy's RBI single. Chris Jones grounded to Fitzpatrick at short only to have the ball misplayed to load the bases. Fannin had trouble finding the strike zone as he issued back-to-back walks to Christopher Daniels and Vest, forcing in two runs. Fannin got Miller on strikes and Holbrook on a bouncer back to the box. Ten hitters went to the plate in the inning.

Prestonsburg responded with a single run in their half of the first on a lead-off walk to Castle and a twoout error off the bat of Hale that permitted Castle to come around to

A one-out double by Phipps in the Morgan County second gave them a 5-1 lead when Phipps scored on a base hit by Rowe with one out. Fannin retired the side leaving two runners stranded.

Prestonsburg pulled to within two runs, 5-3, when Gordon Bradley and Kelly scored. Bradley walked with one out and Hardee grounded to second with Bradley moving to second. Kelly drilled a base hit to centerfield Anthony Holbrook walked to start scoring Bradley and the ball bounced

Walters hurls BC South past Wheelwright 4-1

Beaver Creek South All-Stars scored three unearned runs in the second inning and went on to post a 4-1 win over the Wheelwright All-Stars at Archer Park in Prestonsburg Wednesday night.

Wheelwright became the first team to be eliminated from the double elimination tournament.

Todd Walters picked up the win for the South team. Walters yielded only three hits in the game in striking out seven. He was in control issuing only one base on balls. The high kicking pitcher has a lot of support on the defensive side.

It was a good Wheelwright team that went down to defeat due to a costly error at shortstop that allowed three runs to score. Clabe Hall, who kept dazzling fans with his defensive play, doubled leading off the South's second. Walters walked and Gordon Maynard jumped on the first pitch that Curtis Anderson tossed him and hit a gapper for a double scoring Hall to tie the game at 1-1 with Walters moving to third base. John Stumbo popped out to third before Brian Akers walked. Brandon Elswick grounded hard to shortstop Coby Little, who went to second for the force on Hall but threw wildly into rightfield for an error, allowing Walters and Akers to ground ball off the bat of Daniel Lafferty to give South a 4-1 lead.

Brent Tackett came on to pitch for Wheelwright and retired John Hall for the final out.

Tackett looked like the pitcher that should have been on the mound as he kept South from denting the plate the rest of the way. However, Wheelwright could not generate any kind of offense against Walters.

Wheelwright did take a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Justin Holbrook scored after reaching third on what turned out to be a three-base throwing error by Walters. Walters fielded Holbrook's bouncer back to the score. Tuttle advanced to third base mound, knocked it down, picked it on the mistake and he scored on a up and threw hastily to first baseman Maynard only to have the ball sail

Russell High School conducts FCA basketball camp

It was free. It cost absolutely nothing. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes, headed up by Russell High School head basketball coach Ron Reed, conducted a four day basketball camp that was open to all who wanted to attend. The camp was free or charge and held at the Family Life Center gym.

"We wanted to bring something in with a motivational biblical approach," explained Coach Reed. "We had two speakers each day as well as Bible study stations."

Lending a helping hand in the camp was Coach Reed's Russell High School basketball team. The group came in for the four day camp and was their first this year.

"We hope to make it an annual event," stated Coach Reed. "We appreciate all the help that Pastor Russell Hollan and his church has given us this week. They have done a first class job." Hollan is the new pastor at the United Methodist Church here in Prestonsburg.

Over 70 kids took part in the free camp. Fundamentals of the game were squad. Free throw shooting, reboundwere stressed in the camp.

an all-star team, that player should be able to play and show that he can perform as the others.

One thing about young kids, and I learned this in the eight years I coached Little League baseball in Indiana, they remember you most often by the way they are treated. The victories are soon just memories, but their respect of an adult is how that adult, teacher, coach, or anyone else, treats them. If they are treated fairly, as all the rest, they remember that and are not likely to ever forget it. If they are treated differently, then that too they do not forget.

Young kids grow up to become young adults and then young men and they remember those who had a positive or negative influence on their lives.

While winning is perhaps the foremost thought of any coach, he must not forget that these young players are also looking for some influence for their young lives. And who can give them that (outside their parents themselves) more than their Little League coach.

One of the greatest compliments paid to me was when a young man in college came up to me on a visit to Indiana and said to me "thank you for being a big part of my young life." That meant an awful lot to me.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports even to Little League coaches.

TOP LADY ANGLER REFLECTS ON BASS FISHING WITH MEN

America's top professional lady angler, Linda England, has just one word to describe her first full season of tournament bass fishing with men: educational.

"I believe I learned more in six tournaments this past sea.son than I have in the entire 16 years I've been fishing professionally," says England, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and a former world champion on the ladies pro tour.

Sandy Akers, left, and Linda Holbrook took on an usual job this summer and that was coaching Little League baseball at Wheelwright. In addition to coaching their own team in the regular season league, they also took the helm of the Wheelwright All-Star team that played at Archer Park this week. DECLINE

Women's softball is on a decline in the state of Kentucky in the number of women's teams.

Several factors have been contributed to the decline in what used to be a growing sport. For one thing, the economy has seemed to hurt the women's softball programs. A lot of the women's teams are self-supportinning but left all runners stranded. ing and they must raise the needed money to field a team. Prestonsburg had a golden opportunity to do some damage in the bottom of the third but had to settle for one run. Fitzpatrick led off with a base hit but was forced at second on Jarvis' ground ball to short. Hale doubled home Jarvis but was left stranded as the next two batters went out easy.

Kelly collected a single in the bottom of the fourth but it came with two out. He was left on base as Castle flied to centerfield.

After Morgan County failed to score in the fifth, Prestonsburg had their big inning.

Castle hurled 3 2/3 innings in getting the win. He allowed two runs, both earned, on five hits. Castle fanned one while walking three. Fannin went the first 2 1/3 innings giving up five runs on four hits. He struck out two and issued four walks.

John Benton was the losing pitcher having been brought on in the sixth inning. He recorded one out when he fanned Castle but was the victim of Hale's sacrifice fly. BABYHOOD

It hasn't been my day for approximately the last 36,500 days, and the days that comprised this past week were no exception.

On Thursday before the 4th of July, my granddaughter Malorie called and asked me to pick her up at the doctor's office while her mother was getting her weekly prenatal checkup. After I picked her up, we went by the video store and the grocery before going home. When we entered the house, my husband announced that we should go to the hospital immediately.

"Malorie?" I asked, as we got back into the car. "Did your Mother say she was having the baby?"

"No, but she told me to hurry up and call you," she said.

Since Malorie is only seven years old, she saw no urgency in her mother telling her to call me to come and get her. She did that often.

"Is Mama having the baby, Popo?" she asked me interestedly. (Popo, pronounced poe poe, is what my grandchildren and many other children call me. It was a nickname my grandmother Lucy gave me, and I always believed it sounded better than Granny. Of course, that's not the first thing I was ever wrong about.)

"Yes, Malorie," I said, as we walked into the lobby. "What do you want, a boy or a girl?"

"I don't care as long as it's healthy. If it's a girl, I want it to be healthy. And even if it's a boy, I want it to be healthy, too."

"Sounds as if you'd like to have a

"I would, but I don't care."

In the waiting room, Malorie and I (now joined by my mother and three of Tara's co-workers), sat waiting patiently for the arrival of the stork when Tara's husband walked into the

"Had an accident. How's Tara?"

"Tara's fine. How are you?"

"Great. Except for this little cut on my neck." The little cut on his neck made him look like Frankenstein on Seconds later, the doctor came out and told us it would be a few minutes before they performed the surgery (C-section). And what she told us made Johnny's pain threshold pale by comparison. It seems that Tara had told her fellow co-workers she hadn't been able to sleep too well for the past two days because of some minor discomfort. The doctor said the "minor discomfort" had been labor, and it was a wonder she had been able to endure the pain.

Whenever I hear of someone who has an easy childbirth, I think of what

John Tesh: a man of note(s)

John Tesh

by Seli Groves

Love and music are the twin themes that dominate John Tesh's life. And, sometimes they overlap.

Tesh and actress Connie Selleca were married on April 4. This week, John's newest instrumental album was released on his newly formed GTS record label. Titled "The Games," it features the music he's written for NBC's use during the Olympics telecast in Barcelona later this month.

It also features three very special songs. One is called "Concetta." Tesh explains, "I wrote that for Connie-Concetta is her real name—when we were still courting. She was working out of town on a series at the time and musical story of me at the piano in my studio, and Concetta in her car, on the car phone, driving back home. I had it played for the first time by a string quartet in a restaurant in Monterey, California, on the night I proposed to her. The second time it was played by a full orchestra on the day we were married."

The proposal came during Thanksgiving weekend. John and Connie had flown up to Carmel to serve and take part in a Thanksgiving dinner for the homeless. The next day, he suggested they fly to Monterey for a late-night dinner. When they got to the waterside restaurant, it was closed. But not to them. "I told her it was perfectly all right to go in," he said.

And, of course, it was. John had arranged to buy out the place for the evening so that he could propose in a manner she was not likely to forget.

He recalls one minor glitch in an otherwise perfect evening, and that was the matter of the mechanics of the proposal. He went down on two knees instead of the traditional one.

"Connie pointed that out to me," he said. "but only after she said 'yes'."

Two other songs on the album also reflect his private feelings. One is "April Song," which Tesh says, "is a song of passion and romance that comes from the heart." The title needs little explanation: "Suffice it to say great things have happened to me in that magic month.'

The other cut is "Leave it to Gibber." Gib (Gibber) is Connie's 11late on Friday nights, she would drive year-old son by her former marriage American Games Theme" won him

"When I was writ- for his Tour de France Bike Race" ing this particular piece, it was meant to become a song for the cycling events in the Olympics. Gib, who is a very fine pianist, would dart in and out of the studio and voice his opinions about what I was doing, and make some excellent suggestions. The tune, which will be heard in the context of the Olympic cycling coverage, is definitely a piece inspired by the Gibber."

John Tesh started playing the piano at age six. By the time he was 10, he was studying with teachers from New York's Juilliard School of Music. He also began playing the trumpet, but had to switch to the trombone because the instrument was easier on his braces.

While at Garden City High School, he was named twice to the New York State Symphonic Band. He joined several rock bands where he played both the trombone and the rock organ. He also started to write and produce his own music. After he was graduated from North Carolina State University, Tesh landed jobs with several radio and television studios before heading to New York where he became an anchor reporter for the local CBS station. The stint earned him two Emmys and an Associated Press Award for investigative journalism. He moved to CBS Network Sports in 1981 as a commentator and found increasing recognition of his musical talents. His 1983 "Pan

In 1986, John was asked to cohost the "Entertainment Tonight" series. While "Et" takes a good deal of his time, he still composes network sports themes for NBA basketball, NFL football, Wimbledon, world gymnastics championships, world track and field championships, and the Olympics showcase. He's also written the themes for the animated Fox series, "Bobby's World" and did the arrangement for the "Entertainment Tonight"

Asked how he manages to do both the show and somehow meet all the demands of his musical life-the composition, scoring, arranging, recording, etc., Tesh chuckled. 'Sometimes I wonder about that myself," he answered. "But somehow," he said, "it gets done."

As for creating specific themes for different sports, Tesh said, "the key is remembering that the sport itself has to carry you. The music is important, but it should complement (not dominate) the athletic event," he

I'm seriously considering changing the name of this column to "Yellow Dog," both in deference to my esteemed colleague Red Dog at the News-Express, and because that's basically about the only thing I haven't been called this week.

In case you don't know what I'm talking about, stay calm. Most people, including myself, rarely do.

I'm referring to the fact that an article I wrote last week has generated what we newspaper types like to refer to as a "storm of controversy."

My article about a family that had been evicted, appearing in the Wednesday, July 1 edition of the Times, was admittedly very one sided.

Let me first say in my own defense that I did make a genuine effort unable to do so.

I was not attempting to, as has been alleged, "do a hatchet job," or "destroy a good man's reputation."

I was trying to do a story about some people who were having some difficulties finding a place to live.

My intention was to let the public know what their difficulties were so that maybe they could get some re-

Some of you fine readers could, if you were so inclined, help me overcome those obstacles.

If I call you on the phone and tell you I'm trying to do a story, please understand that I'm really trying to do a fair, accurate account of events. I'm not Geraldo Rivera.

We here at the Floyd County Times like to think we're pretty nice people. We have cats and everything, although we really wish people would stop setting their strays out on us. We're currently full up on cats. It's not that we don't like them, but we've already had two get hit by cars before we found them.

Now, I know it's summer and therefore harvest time for the spring mating season and there's been a bumper crop of puppies and kittens this year. I know there's nothing much sadder than an unwanted pet (except maybe the current group of presidential candidates), but anybody that sets a poor, defenseless animal out on the road to starve or get run over really needs to be neutered.

Find a home for your pet before you throw it out. Or maybe sell it to a nice Vietnamese restaurant. Or maybe you could call your local animal shelter, which could also use your donations. And if you need a source for that small donation you should probably consider canceling HBO since you've got to be tired of watching Rocky XIXX and Kevin Costner and Mel Gibson's respective butts by

But I digress.

I think the point I was trying to make was that reporters are like cute, cuddly little kittens: we're papertrained; stroke us and we'll purr; get in our face and we'll scratch your eyes out.

Just remember there are a lot of hungry reporters out there just waiting for scraps.

EDELL HEALTH NOTES

SHOULD NURSING MOTH-ERS DRINK? ... Advice on whether breast-feeding women should drink alcohol has so far been confusing and contradictory. An infant at the breast does take in a little bit of alcohol after the mother drinks, but we don't yet know very much about how these mini-cocktails affect the baby.

A recent study by Julie A. Mennella and Gary K. Beauchamp, at the Monell Chemical Sense Center in Philadelphia, shows that drinking changes the smell of mother's milk and that a baby takes in less milk when nursing after the mother drinks.

This news leaves us with a lot of questions. Is it the different smell and taste of the milk that changes the way the baby nurses? Is it some effect that alcohol may have on the baby's nervous system? Or does alcohol alter the mother's milk production?

Janine Jason, a physician for the Centers for Disease Control, writes in an editorial accompanying the Monell study that whatever the longterm effects of alcohol in breast milk, they are probably less significant than the effects of heavy drinking on a mother's ability to parent.

In short, we're still far from drawing any real conclusions. Meanwhile, most physicians think it's all right for a breast-feeding mother to have an occasional drink.

GUARDING KIDS AGAINST GIARDIA ... Even under the best supervision, children in day care are bound to share more than toys. One of the most common diseases being passed around these days is diarrhea caused by the intestinal parasite Giardia lamblia. Unfortunately, new research indicates that finding an effective and economical solution to cleaning up child-care centers will pose a serious challenge.

A team of scientists from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and from public health agencies in Arizona recently studied the problem at 31 day-care centers. They evaluated the effectiveness of a variety of strategies, the strictest of which included educating the center staff about Giardia, testing children and staff for the parasite, prescribing treatment for all infected individuals with or without symptoms, and barring them from day care until the treatment was complete.

The stricter measures cost more in medical expenses, in missed childcare, and in parents' work days, but the really bad news is that these measures didn't result in better control of the dread Giardia.

The best thing to do, then, is to prepare yourself in the event that you or your child does get sick. Symptoms, which include bloating, gas, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, nausea, fatigue, weight loss, lactose intolerance and constipation, can last as long as two weeks and may recur repeatedly. If you or your child fit the profile, ask your doctor for a full stool-specimen test to be sure.

more about the Sunday coupon inserts. I love receiving them, and I buy the Sunday newspaper because of them. How many are printed during the year?-Melody Philbrick, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Dear Melody-Two major publishers print the newspaper coupon inserts-Valassis in Michigan and News America in New York.

Currently they are printing them just about every week of the year, because manufacturers have a lot of coupons they want distributed. To some extent, they are seasonal, so you can expect to receive thicker inserts around the holidays: 4th of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas and

About 40 million households receive coupons each Sunday with their newspaper. This falls short of the 70 million households that use coupons. The coupon clippers who do not receive the inserts get their coupons in the mail from sources like Carol Wright, or they clip them from magazines such as Good Housekeeping.

An increasing number of coupons can be found in supermarket advertising circulars, and they are being distributed inside the supermarket in increasing numbers. NCH Promotional Services, one of the largest processors of coupons, says that coupons distributed in-store increased almost 50 percent last year. While they do not amount to more than a few percent of all the coupons distributed, this is an interesting trend.

But if you are a serious coupon clipper, the Sunday inserts are almost indispensable. Last year, the coupon inserts contained 230 billion coupons.

Manufacturers place most of their coupons in the Sunday inserts be-

> The inserts make it relatively easy for them to plan their advertising. It just takes one telephone call to order a page in an insert distributed in about 350 cities to those 40 million house-

> The inserts have a policy of product exclusivity. If an insert has taken cereal coupons from one manufacturer, say Ralston Purina, it will not carry coupons from a rival like Kellogg's in the same inserts.

> This puts pressure on the manufacturers to place their coupon insert advertising well enough in advance so they do not get frozen out by the competition. Remember, there are more cereal product manufacturers than there are insert publishers. Manufacturers typically make their decision to advertise in the inserts as much as a year in advance.

> The only thing I do not like about the inserts is their failure to provide useful product information. The coupon is there, and so are eye-catching headlines, but that's about all. No one wants to buy a product just so they can use the coupon.

In time, the dinosaurs, who were unable to adjust to the new conditions, died out and became extinct. They were replaced by warm-blooded animals with larger brains and the capacity to get along under the new and changing conditions.

How do scientists know what creatures were alive on this Earth millions of years ago? By studying fossils.

Fossils are animal and plant remains buried in the rocks. These remains, which have in most cases petrified (turned to stone), may be of shells, bones, whole skeletons, or simply the tracks made by ancient animals on the shores of swamps.

Worrying About Death Is No Way to Live Life

DEAR ABBY: A 13-year-old girl wrote to you saying that she is afraid she's going to die a virgin.

Well, I'm a 22-year-old girl who is still a virgin and I intend to stay that way until I'm married. I suppose I could wind up dying a virgin, but I am not going to have sex just so I can say I've had it.

OK, so if I should die tomorrow, I would die a virgin. I would also die without ever having eaten salmon tempura, vanilla coffee, or anchovies on my pizza. I'd die without having seen Paris, Tokyo or Berlin. I'd die without having read Tolstoy's "War and Peace," or the complete works of Shakespeare. I'd die without having seen a Broadway show, or my kid brother's high school graduation.

If I were to die tomorrow, I'd leave a whole lot of ambitions unfulfilled, including getting married and having children. On the other hand, there are a lot of things I have done in my 22 years. For example, I have seen a sizable portion of the United States. I've dipped my toes in the Gulf of Mexico, I've been to England, I entered a lip sync contest and won $50, and I graduated from Emory

The point I'm trying to make is this: Don't worry about getting everything done before you die. Just live every day as fully as you can, and never do anything just for the sake of getting it over with. That's the worst reason I know for doing anythingincluding having sex.

SHEILA IN ATLANTA

DEAR SHEILA: Congratulations. Many people live to a ripe old age without learning what you have learned at 22.

DEAR HURTING: Perhaps your daughter mentions the many things she had to do without as a girl in order to make her daughter appreciate what she is being given.

Obviously, it did not occur to your daughter that she would have had a lot less had you and her father not struggled to give her what she considered "meager."

Don't "hurt" in silence. Tell her-or better yet, show her this column, and tell her you wrote it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 62-year-old man. I have been washing my own clothes for a few years now, and need to know something.

Why do my boxer shorts always turn inside out in the washing machine? Do the manufacturers put something in them to cause this?

RICHARD THOMAS, TRACY, CALIF.

DEARMR. THOMAS: Are you sure the shorts were not inside out when they were placed in the machine? Next time you do your laundry, make sure all your shorts are turned rightside out when you put them into the machine, then examine them when they come out.

I'll be waiting to hear from you.

He says that this passage, which originated in France in the 15th century, was written by a Stanley Ullman, and widely considered a special favorite of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the World War II leader also blessed with tremendous courage and self-confidence.

Dr. Wilhelmsen came to the United States alone at 17 from Norway, and has never looked back. He graduated from both the medical and dental schools of the University of Maryland, and now, at 59, is chief of plastic surgery at Kernan Hospital, Balti-

In addition to two children and two grandchildren, one of his many interests, in addition to surgery, is his 80-acre Sunnybrook Farm, with its herd of 16 American buffalo.

Tom, born in New Orleans, loves the Cajun word "lagniappe," meaning an unexpected windfall, a happy dividend. For example, if you order a dozen oysters at a corner bar and get a 13th free, that is a "lagniappe" (pronounced "lan-yap").

"Seven years ago, when I was a newspaper editor here, I was judging a national newspaper writing contest and came across this charming vignette that I recorded in my day book:

"She then ordered a cheese burger and French fries!

"TV programs seldom offer as much honest entertainment as a grandchild's reflections on a drive-in culture."

"The contest was sponsored by The Baltimore Sun in honor of H.L. Mencken to pick an outstanding newspaper or magazine column of commentary."

Carrying out the dancing metaphor, Tesh agreed that composing for sports events is like writing a score for the ballet. Neither is done in a vacuum, and both involve human beings moving in space. The composer for the dance needs to know the ballet's story, and how the dancers will translate his or her music into a visual art form. In sports, the composer needs to know how the games are played, and the athletes' special choreographies.

CHUCK SHEPHERD

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

Eldon Helget, a manager at a Menards building supply retail store in Minneapolis, was fired in June because he wanted to add ramps to his home to ease travel by his wheelchair-bound daughter, Heather, 11, who has spina bifida. Helget violated the Menards company rule that a manager cannot build or add to his own house because such construction would tempt him to steal supplies from the store.

COMPULSIONS ON PARADE

—Glendale, Calif., police sought a man calling himself "Jim Wells," who got "dozens" of women to mutilate their old shoes by promising them on the phone that they would receive new ones. He said he was conducting a survey for a shoe company.

-James Fentress, 23, was arrested for taking an ambulance for a joy ride in Oklahoma City in May. Fentress was dressed as an ambulance company driver and was apprehended when he stopped in a parking lot to show some kids how the siren works.

-Albuquerque, N.M., sheriff's deputies, arriving to evict Rick "Reptile" Little, 30, from his home in a rent dispute in June, encountered 140 snakes being housed (at least 40 of them venomous), along with owls, toads, rabbits, salamanders, moles, lizards, turtles, tarantulas, scorpions, dogs, cats and fish. Not surprisingly. the stench, said deputies, was unbearable.

—A Burlingame, Calif., man complained to police in May that his neighbor was tossing buckets of urine onto his patio. According to police, the neighbor said it was only a religious brew of holy water (flowers, leaves, rosemary, water and ammonia). Said the man, "I don't care what the old lady showed you. I know she's throwing out urine.'

-Among the latest underwear thieves: St. Joseph, Mo., police caught a 14-year-old runaway boy in March who had broken into several homes and stolen guns and brassieres. In November, Lincoln, Neb., police ended a three-year reign of at least 23 burglaries in which only underwear was taken. Arrested was Randy S. Boone, 37. At least six mobile homes in a Seattle suburb were burglarized in January and February, with the only missing items women's lingerie. A 19-year-old man had been arrested after the first report, but the incidents continued even after he had been accounted for.

-St. Louis was plagued this winter by an early-morning jogger who threw girls down to the ground on their way to school and sucked their toes.

-Prosecutors in Waverly, Tenn., attempting in November to build murder cases against two prison escapees, changed their minds and decided not to call to the stand the prison barber, an informant who would testify against the two. Weighing against the barber's credibility: (1) He's in the slammer himself for 1,964 years; and (2) His name is Ugga de Boogidie.

-James Dogg, 42, was charged with assault in Mandan, N.D., in May for beating up his girlfriend's mother. 86-year-old Regina Lafromboise, who had been joking about Dogg's name and making barking sounds.

CREME DE LA WEIRD

Agence France Presse reported in March that Michael Balama, 45, a farmer and father of nine children, has resurfaced, living in a tree in Pankshin, Nigeria, after having disappeared two weeks earlier from a nearby tree in which he had been living for five years. He said he wanted to come down but couldn't because "some people are holding me." Balama's wife said, "What I miss about Michael is that we can no longer make love together and produce more children." Balama eats food prepared by his wife and neighbors by climbing down to lower branches to retrieve it.

Book signing

PCC professors take part in book signing

To help celebrate the Kentucky Statehood Bicentennial, the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission and others hosted a reception honoring the publication of The Kentucky Encyclopedia on June 10 at Northern Kentucky University. Contributors to this definitive reference work include three Prestonsburg Community College Professors: Dr. Douglas E. Herman, Associate Professor of History at Prestonsburg Community College; Dr. Thomas D. Matijasic, Associate Professor of History; and Dr. Carolyn C. Turner, Professor of Humanities. Dr. Herman and Dr. Turner participated in the program.

Dr. Thomas D. Clark, Kentucky's Historian Laureate, gave the keynote address. Before and after this highlight, contributors including Herman and Turner signed copies of the Encyclopedia for the public. Editorin-Chief for the three-year-long project was Dr. John E. Kleber, Professor of History at Morehead State University. His Associate Editors were Clark; Dr. Lowell H. Harrison, Professor Emeritus of History at Western Kentucky University; and Dr. James C. Klotter, State Historian.

The entire history and geographic extent of the Commonwealth are reflected in the 1000-plus page book, which contains the work of more than 500 authors. Herman's entries were on the anti-evolution bills of the 1920's and the Rev. Dr. John W. Porter, who led the opposition in Kentucky to teaching Darwinian evolution in public schools. Matijasic wrote about Andrew Jackson May, Harman's Station, the Battle of Ivy Mountain, Paintsville, and Johnson County. Turner edited the Harry Caudill entry on John C. C. Mayo, and wrote the entries for Mrs. John C.C. Mayo, and John C. C. Mayo, Jr.

Dr. Herman and Dr. Turner also read entries from the Encyclopedia for KET's Bicentennial Minutes se-
