Ash landfill opposition continues

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

In response to protests from a local citizens group the Floyd County Fiscal Court has reissued its blanket resolution declaiming the transportation of hazardous or toxic wastes into the county.

At a meeting of the Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens Against Pollution Thursday and again at the Fiscal Court meeting Friday, the group protested the construction of a proposed landfill at Ivel that will contain out-of-state waste.

The landfill, which Pikeville-based Costain Coal Incorporated began permitting two years ago, will contain fly and bottom ash from coal incinerated at A E S Cedar Bay, a public utility based in Jacksonville, Florida.

However, an official for the Kentucky Cabinet for Natural Resources, Division of Solid Waste, who asked not to be named, has said to the Times on three separate occasions that fly and bottom ash are considered neither toxic nor hazardous.

Among the primary concerns expressed by those attending the meeting Thursday evening and at Friday's meeting of the Fiscal Court were the proposed landfill's proximity to the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River, which supplies drinking water for most of the region; and

Filing date nearing in board races

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With two weeks left until the filing deadline for the November school board races, only one candidate has filed for one of the three seats up for grabs.

District three incumbent Tommy Boyd was the lone contender who had filed in the county clerk's office Tuesday prior to the August 4 filing deadline for the November 3 non-partisan school board elections.

Boyd, whose district includes the Betsy Layne, Mud Creek and Harold area, was elected to the school board in 1988.

School board seats in districts four and five are also on the ballot in November.

Dr. Mary Hall, a 19-year incumbent, is expected to seek re-election to retain her post in district four. District four includes the Left Beaver area.

Official arrested after parley

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Wheelwright City Commissioner was arrested for driving under the influence and disorderly conduct by city police Thursday approximately an hour and a half after a city commission meeting.

Luther Johnson Jr., 38, was arrested by Wheelwright police officer Rodney Newsome for allegedly driving while intoxicated. The arrest came just hours after a heated discussion between Johnson and police chief Charles Harmon at the commission meeting.

Johnson's breathalyzer results showed his blood alcohol level to be .077.

The citation issued to Johnson said that he was arrested after city policemen observed him driving past the old Dollar Store.

Johnson said Monday that he pleaded guilty to the charge and was ordered to attend traffic school. Court records, however, showed no disposition of the case Monday.

County joins race for harness track

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A joint venture between the Floyd County Fiscal Court and the City of Prestonsburg to secure a location for a proposed harness racing track was announced at Friday's fiscal court meeting.

County officials approved an inter-local agreement to create the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation which will be managed by a five-member board of incumbent members of the Eastern Kentucky Convention Commission.

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond told the court that the commission was being formed to buy property for a proposed harness racing track and convention center facility. Hammond explained that two members of the commission would be appointed by the mayor of Prestonsburg; that two members would be appointed by the county judge-executive; and one member would be appointed jointly by the judge-executive and mayor. Hammond also said the judge-executive and mayor could appoint themselves to the board. Board members will serve a four-year span with the initial appointments being made for staggered terms.

In other action Friday, the court heard from two members of a three-panel committee named to redraw voting district boundaries in the county.

Members Tom Smith and Hattie Owens told the court that the committee is at a virtual stalemate in their redistricting efforts.

Owens, wife of magistrate Jackie Edford Owens, told the court she disagreed with proposals to add two and three voting precincts in Middle Creek to magisterial district two. Mrs. Owen's claimed that would place 3,100 additional residents in her husband's district.

Smith said the committee found that the proposal to add the two or three precincts would bring district two more in line, regarding population, with the county's other magisterial districts.

Smith added that he felt the third committee member, Paul Gearheart, "didn't want to cast the deciding vote."

County Attorney Hammond recommended that the committee submit the two proposals to the court for a decision.

Magistrate Owens suggested that the fiscal court consider the possibility of adding another magistrate and creating a district five.

Judge-executive Stumbo said the redistricting issue would be placed on the court's August agenda for discussion.

During the citizen complaint session of the meeting, the court heard from Alice Hall of Prater Creek and Naomi Martin of Stumbo Hollow.

Hall asked the court to replace a culvert on her property that cannot handle the volume of water during heavy rains and causes flooding to several homes in the area.

Hammond told the court he is trying to resolve the issue of whether or not the county had initially installed the culvert.

Hall said that former magistrate Kenneth Roberts had installed the drain.

Judge-executive Stumbo said the court would investigate what action can be taken to replace the pipe.

Martin presented the fiscal court with a receipt for two tires which she claimed had to be replaced after driving over a metal bridge in her district. She said that in several places the metal flooring was "tore all to pieces" and had punctured the tires on her automobile. She asked the court to reimburse her for the tires.

Magistrate Betty Caudill told the court she had traveled across the bridge and did not observe any prob-

Case to be heard in Floyd Circuit Court :

Hager protests ouster by state

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Ousted Floyd County superintendent Ron Hager filed an appeal in Floyd County Circuit Court Friday contesting his removal from office by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education.

The state board voted on June 18 to remove Hager from office on charges of willful neglect of duty and misconduct in office.

Education Commissioner Thomas Boyens brought the charges against Hager in April and Hager was suspended from his job. A removal hearing before a three-member panel of state board members was held in May.

Boyens's charges claimed that Hager filed false year-end financial statements; that he failed to place school construction monies in interest bearing accounts; that he failed to follow proper bidding procedures relevant to school security services; that he allowed an illegal bingo game to operate at Prestonsburg High School; and that he failed to reprimand Martin Elementary principal William Hughes for filing false year-end financial statements.

Hager's appeal seeks to reverse the state board's decision to remove him from office on grounds that the Floyd County School District was under state intervention during the time the events occurred for which he was charged.

The charge that Hager submitted a false financial report stemmed from the exclusion of a $345,347 debt to the government in fiscal years 1989 and 1990 for 1984 flood damages. The charge said the school district would have ended those years in a deficit if the debt had been included.

The appeal says that in June 1990, state designee Bob Gover reported to then State Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock the district would end the year with a positive balance and that Gover noted the flood debt had been excluded.

In response to the other charges,

Tempers flare at commission meeting

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Tempers flared at Thursday's Wheelwright City Commission meeting when discussions centered on city police going outside their boundaries and drug testing for city employees.

Sparks flew between commissioner Luther Johnson Jr. and police chief Charles Harmon when Johnson announced he was against city policemen responding to complaints outside the city limits.

Harmon responded that city officers routinely offered assistance to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department when they were requested to go outside the city limits. The discussion heated up between the two and Harmon threatened to arrest Johnson for disorderly conduct.

Johnson asked Sheriff Paul Hunt

Thompson, who was at the meeting, his views on the issue.

Sheriff Thompson explained that his office had asked Wheelwright city police to respond to calls in that area when deputies were in other areas of the county.

The sheriff added that he recently hired a full-time deputy to patrol the Left Beaver area and that his office wouldn't have to rely on the city police as much in the future.

After much debate, the commission voted 4-1 to allow city police officers to respond to situations outside the city limits when it was a life or death situation.

In the midst of the discussion, city police officer Danny Bates handed in his badge to Johnson. Harmon retrieved Bates' badge and said after the meeting that he would not accept

American Standard offers property in joint industrial development effort

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton, Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta and other state and local officials met Friday at the American Standard Corporation's Paintsville Plant site to discuss industrial development in the area and to address some needs of the plant.

Plant Manager Ronald Belhasen said at a press conference Tuesday afternoon that American Standard had offered land located on the Paintsville Plant site to Floyd and Johnson counties and the cities of Paintsville and Prestonsburg for use as an industrial development site.

Belhasen said that the plant had 38 acres of prime land that would potentially be available within the next three to four years for industrial development.

American Standard Corp. would assist in the recruitment of new industry to the area, and would attempt to persuade its vendors to locate at the site, Belhasen said.

Belhasen said the move would be mutually beneficial for both the community and American Standard, by increasing revenues and employment in the region and bringing the company's vendors closer, thus allowing faster, less costly product delivery.

In exchange for allowing the property to be used for industrial development, Belhasen asked that local leaders assist the plant in seeking a sewer extension to aid American Standard solve its lack of sanitary sewers and solve its difficulty in complying with new, stricter Environmental Protection Agency regulations.

The city of Paintsville had offered sewer services to the plant at the time of its construction nearly twenty years ago, but has yet to do so, Belhasen said. He added that the plant's current on-site sewer system was inadequate.

Belhasen also requested that the Paintsville/Prestonsburg airport remain in operation.

The Paintsville/Prestonsburg Industrial Development Authority has recommended closing the airport to use the property as an industrial development site.

Sergeant John Bevins, of Allen, gathers tools needed to repair a part on a combat engineer vehicle during attending annual training exercises being conducted at Fort Campbell. Sgt. Bevins is a member of B Company, 206th Engineer Battalion, Kentucky Army National Guard. Company B is based in Prestonsburg.

Hager

Hager's appeal claims:

- that security services obtained by the school district were professional services and exempt from state bid laws;
- that the bingo games conducted at Prestonsburg High School were operated by a booster-type association and Hager had no statutory duty to monitor that activity;
- that the failure to place school construction monies in interest bearing accounts at First Guaranty National Bank was the fault of the bank and/or the treasurer for the school board;
- that Martin Elementary principal William Hughes was reprimanded in July 1991 for his actions regarding the financial status at the school;

In seeking to reverse the decision to remove Hager from office, the appeal asserts that the state board's decision was "unjust" and "undemocratic." The appeal also protests the involvement of the state's Office of Education Accountability (OEA) in presenting or prosecuting the case against Hager. The petition says the involvement of OEA attorney Steve Yater in the removal hearing violated the state's separation of powers provisions.

OEA is an investigative arm of the General Assembly formed to oversee the implementation of the Kentucky Education Reform Act. Boysen's charges against Hager were based on the results of an OEA investigation.

The appeal also claims that the state board does not have authority to remove a local school official from office and that Hager's hearing should have been held before a majority of board members.

Hager is seeking to have the state board's decision reversed and to recover his full salary from the date of his suspension.

No date has been set to hear the appeal. Under state law, after the state board has been notified of the appeal, a transcript of charges and all evidence considered at the removal hearing shall be submitted to the court and the case "shall be advanced and heard without delay."

Bates' resignation.

The issue of drug testing for all city employees brought a challenge from Harmon that city commissioners also be tested.

Commissioner Andy Akers said that the move to require drug testing was not pointed at any particular city employee. Akers said that no specific time would be scheduled for the tests.

Commissioner Lowell Parker said the commissioners wanted to provide a drug-free workplace for employees. The measure was passed unanimously.

Commissioners also heard a report from Sheriff Thompson concerning the proposed minimum security prison to be built in their city.

Thompson said that 24 companies had responded to the state's request for proposals to build the facility in Wheelwright. Bids to build the facility are to be returned to the state Corrections Cabinet by August 26, he said. Thompson said construction on the facility should begin by October 1.

Thompson suggested that the advisory committee appointed by the commission begin planning to offer company representatives a tour of the site and plan a reception for state officials when ground is broken on the project.

Thompson also advised the city to begin work on the "turn around" area of the city street to handle an expected increase in traffic when the prison is built.

In other business Thursday, commissioners approved a proposal from Keith Smallwood to lease the old swimming pool building for a Youth Service Center. Smallwood explained that funding for the project had been approved by the Kentucky Department of Education and the center would provide various recreational activities for youth in the area.

"I've got the equipment, you've got the building and the kids got the time," Smallwood said.

The city agreed to enter into a lease agreement with the Floyd County Board of Education for the use of the building.

Other issues discussed Thursday included:

- the introduction of an ordinance by Commissioner Parker to lower city gas rates;
- the announcement by Commissioner Akers that the city fire department purchased a new fire truck for $15,000;
- awarded bids to construct a retaining wall and replace a handrail inside the city; and
- held the second reading of a ordinance increasing sewer rates in the city.

All commissioners were present at Thursday's meeting. The next scheduled meeting of the commission is Thursday, August 20 at 7 p.m. at city hall. The meetings are open to the public.

lems with the flooring.

Stumbo said the bridge would be inspected. No decision was made about reimbursing Martin.

Other action at fiscal court Friday, included:

- the presentation of the sheriff's 1991 audit report;
- awarded $16,366 in emergency medical services grants to the Left Beaver Rescue Squad;
- opened and awarded bids on materials and supplies for the 1992-93 fiscal year;
- approval to pay the expenses for two past and one upcoming special wet/dry elections;
- approval of a petition to take Kelly Drive into the county road system; and
- approval of a request from Premium Elkhorn Coal Company to disturb a roadway on Frasure's Creek.

All members attended Friday's fiscal court meeting. The next meeting of the court is scheduled for Friday, August 21 at 10 a.m. at the courthouse annex. The meetings are open to the public.

Water shortage experienced by utility company

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission has requested that its water company customers immediately begin conserving water any way they can.

Superintendent Bill Harvey Howard said Monday that the Kentucky Division of Water has imposed a "tap-on ban" on the water company.

Howard said that meant the water plant was currently experiencing a water shortage because it was operating at its maximum capacity daily, pumping three million gallons of water per day to customers, including water customers at Auxier, Allen, Martin, Prater Creek, Water-Gap and Bull Creek, Abbott and Little Paint and the entire Sandy Valley Water District.

Howard said that voluntary water conservation now may prevent mandatory water rationing in the near future.

Prestonsburg Utilities has been approved to receive a $2,001,993 loan from the Kentucky Infrastructure Loan Fund to increase the water plant's capacity from three million gallons per day to five million gallons, Howard said.

Construction on the project will begin in approximately four months and is expected to last about ten months, Howard said.

that by allowing the landfill's construction, a precedent would be set that would make it easier for other companies to construct similar sites in the future, thus increasing the potential for contamination.

Malcom Layne, president of Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens Against Pollution, questioned why the waste must be disposed of in Eastern Kentucky and expressed concern that Eastern Kentucky would be a dumping ground for the rest of the nation. Layne urged Costain representatives to consider renegotiating the contract with A E S Cedar Bay to keep the waste in Florida.

Although Costain officials countered that the waste was produced from Eastern Kentucky coal, Prestonsburg High School teacher David Layne reiterated his brother Malcom's concerns Friday at the Fiscal Court meeting.

"We buy oranges from Florida and eat them," Layne said, "but we don't send back the peels."

Pikeville attorney Michael DeBourbon led Thursday evening's rally and said that he volunteered his services to the Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens because they did not have the same access to attorneys and engineers that Costain had.

DeBourbon said he knew Costain to be an efficient coal producer, but questioned the company's experience in disposing of coal waste incinerated by a public utility company.

Costain manager Jack McNichol said that his company had spent a great deal of time, research and effort to ensure that the landfill would present no danger of pollution.

McNichol said that the landfill was designed by International Technologies, Incorporated, a Tampa, Florida-based engineering firm that specializes in designing environmentally sound facilities to contain potentially hazardous materials. McNichol said that his firm's intention was to construct a site that would safely contain waste for over a hundred years.

DeBourbon questioned Costain's fuel supply contract with A E S Cedar Bay, saying that in the course of his research he had learned that A E S Cedar Bay had falsified information in permit applications for the Jacksonville plant.

McNichol said that despite A E S Cedar Bay's problems, Costain had not misrepresented itself in any way.

Pikeville physician Dr. James L. Black spoke about the potential health hazards posed by the landfill, saying that fly and bottom ash contained toxic constituents such as lead, mercury and arsenic that could contaminate groundwater.

Black urged the citizens to enlist the aid of the local chambers of commerce, tourism commissions and health officials to stop the construction of the landfill before it begins.

I.T., Inc. engineer Michael Jones, who has been involved with the project since it began, said that his firm had designed the landfill according to regulations set by the state of Kentucky which are more stringent than in most other states.

Jones said that the site contained more groundwater monitors than were called for under Kentucky regulations and that any ash to be contained in the site would first be subjected to extensive toxicity and leaching testing to ensure no potentially hazardous materials would be present.

Jones said that due to the presence of a six inch compacted clay liner, diversion ponds and ground and surface water monitoring wells, any water issuing from the landfill confines would take over 700 years to get out.

Jones said that the ash would be treated so that it hardens like concrete when it comes into contact with water and that the facility had been designed to resist heavy rain and flooding.

In order to demonstrate that fly ash is not harmful to the environment, project manager for I.T., Inc. Craig Turnbo provided the Fiscal Court with information detailing numerous construction purposes, including concrete material, for which fly ash from coal incineration is used in other states and countries.

Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens questioned Turnbo's motives.

"If somebody paid me half a million dollars (the sum Costain paid I.T., Inc. for its services), I'd stand up here and tell everybody the stuff was like sugar and they could put it on their breakfast cereal," Owens said.

"If fly ash is so good for construction," David Layne added, "why don't they keep it in Florida and build a new Disneyland out of it."

Jones said that so much fly ash is produced and is currently so underutilized, it has become necessary to dispose of it in landfill sites. He added that to dispose of the material in Florida would require the displacement of wetlands, which is against federal regulations.

Costain engineers Mike Francisco and Tom Mattox have provided a copy of all permits and specifications of the proposed landfill for the Ivel and Big Sandy citizens to study.

Costain has a contract to sell a million tons of coal a year to A E S Cedar Bay, which would produce 150 thousand tons of fly ash per year, McNichol said.

Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens Against Pollution will meet again at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 23, in the Floyd County circuit courtroom. The meeting is open to the public.

District five 20-year incumbent James Arville Duff said Tuesday that he is not a candidate for the November election because he has two daughters employed in the Floyd County system.

Duff added that he "probably" would not have been a candidate if the laws had not changed.

"I've served on the board for 20 years," Duff said. "I feel I've done my part."

Under Kentucky's Education Reform Act, a board member cannot hold office if he has certain relatives employed in the district who were hired during their tenure. District five covers the Right Beaver area.

Under Kentucky law, no person shall be eligible to membership on a board of education:

- unless he/she is 24-years-old;
- unless he/she has been a citizen of Kentucky for at least three years and a voter of the district for which he is elected;
- unless he/she has completed at least the twelfth grade or has been issued a GED certificate;
- unless he/she file an affidavit with the nominating petition certifying completion of the twelfth grade or the equivalent;

- who holds a state office requiring the constitutional oath or is a member of the General Assembly;

- who holds or discharges the duties of any civil or political office, deputyship or agency under the city or county of his/her residence;

- who at the time of his/her election, is directly or indirectly interested in the sale to the board of books, stationery, or any other property, materials, supplies equipment, or services for which school funds are expended;

- who has been removed from a board of education for cause; and

- who has a relative, relative meaning father, mother, brother, sister, husband, wife, son, daughter, aunt, uncle, son-in-law and daughter-in-law, employed by the school district and is elected after July 13, 1990, and this shall not apply to a board member holding office on July 13, 1990, whose relative was not initially hired by the district during the tenure of the board member.

Report to Kentucky

by Sen. Wendell Ford

NEW UNEMPLOYMENT BILL COULD HELP 30,000 KENTUCKIANS

I am pleased to report that we will continue to provide extended unemployment benefits to those losing jobs through no fault of their own in this recession.

The Congress acted on July 2 to continue our Emergency Unemployment Compensation Program, which otherwise would have expired on July 4 and marred the celebration of Independence Day for millions of concerned Americans.

This new legislation provides 20 weeks of extended benefits for Kentuckians who exhaust their regular unemployment benefits in this continuing recession.

The latest projections show that some 30,000 hardworking Kentuckians could benefit from this renewed program before it expires on March 6, 1993.

That number would be in addition to the 40,000 Kentuckians receiving well earned assistance under the first two phases of this emergency program.

Some of us have been fighting for this program for the past year—ever since the President rejected our first efforts to help the victims of the longest recession since World War II.

As some Kentuckians know, I had to block our first compromise with the President just long enough to gain fair treatment for Kentucky.

We came out of that fight last November with an initial 13 weeks—rather than just six weeks—of extended benefits for Kentuckians. We later approved another 13 weeks under our recently expired legislation.

That legislation might have been enough if this recession had ended as the White House predicted.

But the national unemployment rate has now risen to 7.8 percent. Nearly 10 million Americans are officially unemployed, with an additional 6.5 million being forced to work part-time due to a lack of full-time jobs.

Our new legislation will allow millions of jobless Americans to support their families, pay their bills and help to stimulate economic activity as they look for new jobs.

Benefits offered under this bill will not be subject to any change unless the national unemployment rate falls below 7 percent for two consecutive months.

Our bill does not increase the federal budget deficit. It pays for itself through changes in the estimated-tax requirements of large corporations and the personal tax exemptions of high-income taxpayers.

It also modifies eligibility requirements to ensure fairness in making extended benefits available to those losing their jobs in national economic emergencies.

I am pleased that the President agreed to sign our bill, which goes well beyond a plan offered by the Administration.

We are fighting for other strong measures to overcome our current economic problems and put Americans back to work. I will keep working with Kentuckians to make sure that we do everything in our power to succeed in this all-important effort.

Young people face tremendous challenges—peer pressure, blended and single parent families, education and career concerns, drug and child abuse, suicide and sexuality. These issues transcend all social and economic levels.

Despite these, youth are doing remarkably well with efforts to grow personally and become contributing citizens. Studies document their high ideals for stronger relationships among people, an improved environment, better communities and world peace. They are our future leaders, but they are also leaders now in their schools, organizations and communities.

Successful programs that help youth resist negative behaviors by providing positive experiences in a caring atmosphere must be given credit for helping young people succeed. Research shows that the most effective preventive programs are those such as 4-H.

We must continue to invest our best to help youth become even better decision makers who respect themselves and others; at the same time, we must help youth develop social, scientific and technological competencies. Our extensive knowledge and research base supports a diversity of existing and potential programs. When combined with the efforts of volunteer leaders, youth and sponsors, 4-H is an effective "grass roots" program that can continue to accomplish those goals.

4-H is acclaimed as the largest informal co-educational organization in our country and is emulated all over the world, yet size alone is not what makes it unique. The greatest measure of success is the proven impact that 4-H's quality experiences have on the lives of youth, their families and leaders.

We are making significant differences in the quality of rural and urban lives. We thank Floyd countians and request their continuing leadership in keeping 4-H a vital force in the development of young people and America's future.

I am writing this letter one year after the death of my mother, Ruby B. Lafferty. My mother was killed on July 14, 1991 when the car in which she was a passenger was struck by Kentucky State Trooper John C. Blanton of the Pikeville Post. Trooper Blanton was in pursuit of a U-turn violator when he skidded through a 4-way stop and struck my grandfather's vehicle. This crash resulted in my mother's death, my grandfather's serious injuries and changed our families lives forever.

Around the date of this accident, there were approximately 4-5 other deaths on Kentucky highways which were a result of police pursuits. There was anger and concern throughout the commonwealth. There was also a call for an independent State Police review board by some of our legislators. One legislator who proposed such action was Rep. Jim Maggard.

Now, one year later and five lives later—where is the care and call for action to monitor and review police pursuits, particularly lethal police pursuits? Alas, unfortunately I feel these lives were lost and yet nothing has changed. Since the publicity has died down there has been no further mention of the formulation of a review panel and thus nothing has changed.

As for our family, we still grieve, our hearts broken. As for Trooper Blanton, he is still a trooper. He has been assigned to a neighboring county.

Where is justice and sorely needed change these days in Kentucky?

I thought I would drop a note to thank you and other folks in this community for helping to promote the session on economics for Leadership Kentucky held in Prestonsburg during the week of July 6, 1992.

As a member of this year's class of Leadership Kentucky, I was grateful for and impressed with the reception given to my fellow class members.

Leaders from all over the state commented on the hospitality and friendliness of folks in this community.

Thanks to Margaret Spano, Gene Luke and Don Jahsda our class experienced a warm and lavish reception at the Holiday Inn. The college and campus were immaculate, thanks to Dr. Deborah Floyd and her staff. Highlands Regional Medical Center catered a delicious, healthy lunch for our session at the college with the help of Dr. Floyd's staff.

Thanks to Daniel Stratton, a graduate of Leadership Kentucky, and Tedi Vaughn, manager of Jenny Wiley Theatre and fellow class member, we were treated to the show "Greater Tuna" at the Jenny Wiley Convention Center. Thanks to Fred James and Leesa Chapert for all their help with arrangements and information.

I am very proud to be a part of Leadership Kentucky; there are some wonderful, energetic, innovative leaders in the class of 1992. I was even more proud to be a member of this community during the week of our session. Thanks to everyone, some of whom I know I'm forgetting to mention, for all their work. You made us all look good!

Regardless of the myriad complaints expressed against State Education Commissioner Thomas Boyesen, he has done an outstanding thing in finally taking action regarding the situation at Wheelwright High School.

I have felt outrage at the manner in which the case was handled by everyone concerned; the judge, the county grand jury, the protesting students, and, most especially, by some teachers who were reported to have attended fund-raising events to help defray legal expenses for the accused.

My sense of outrage was compounded to learn that a teacher and a guidance counselor were told of the accusations and did nothing. They should be fired, not suspended. God protect the children from such guidance.

I wish to salute the lady who cared enough to report this in the first place. I hope that the young lady involved will not lose all faith in adults. Some of us do care deeply.

If a certain teacher representative feels compelled to write yet another time for the edification of Floyd County, I hope, nay I pray, that you will edit it to only a few million words.

Carl Rowan's Commentary

SOCIAL SECURITY, MEDICARE CHANGES COMING

It now seems certain, no matter who wins the presidency in November, that affluent older people are going to contribute a lot more money for Medicare, and pay more taxes on their Social Security payments.

And that is as it should be. Aged citizens who are fortunate enough to have large incomes in their retirement should eschew greed and welcome changes that take economic burdens off their children and grandchildren.

Democrat Bill Clinton said on NBC's "Today" show that he wants to raise the portion of Social Security benefits (now 50 percent) on which high-income elderly people pay taxes, and that as part of national health care reform, he wants to raise the fees charged upper-income elderly for Medicare.

President Bush, who seems never to miss a chance to shield the wealthy, has suggested raising Medicare premiums, but only for individuals with incomes above $100,000 and couples earning more than $125,000 a year.

There is no way to slow the river of red ink that is producing a budget deficit of $400 billion this year without dealing drastically with some of the runaway costs of entitlement programs such as Medicare and Social Security. It is noteworthy that none of the aspirants to the presidency advocates a "means test" for Social Security or Medicare. These ought not be reduced to poverty programs. But they ought not be blank invitations for the affluent to take, and take and take what the nation cannot afford to give.

QUAYLE AND THE CULTURAL THEME

Vice President Dan Quayle is now setting the pace in what seems to be an emerging theme of the presidential election: the Cultural Civil War that is going on in this country. He has been drawing a line in the sand between what he calls the "cultural elite"—a phrase I deplore—and mainstream America. He has his eye on the values of TV talk shows and sitcoms ("Murphy Brown"), Hollywood and the academy. The values of the academy, by the way, filter out into journalism and even onto country club porches.

"The cultural elite," the vice president said recently, "don't want me to talk about values, but the American people do."

The federal government certainly cannot legislate values—imagine Congress passing a law against check kiting—but the presidency and the vice presidency are, in Theodore Roosevelt's phrase, "bully pulpits," and Quayle is speaking up for a tongue-tied Bush administration.

I dislike the term "cultural elite" because most of those so described are not especially intelligent, though they might be able to grin and tapdance, or whatever. If you listen to the early morning conversation of Paula Zahn and Harry Smith on CBS-TV, you cannot conclude that they are intelligent. Glib, yes. Full of standardized liberal clichés, yes. But thoughtful or intelligent, no. The same holds true virtually across the TV board. Phil Donahue, for example, or Arsenio Hall.

At the National Endowment for the Arts, the acting chairwoman, Anne-Imelda Radice, has been trying to save the endowment by cutting back on obscene and repulsive art grants. This is surely in line with the intentions of the congressmen who created the endowment.

But for her trouble, she was "outed." The "arts community" spread the word to the gossip columnists that she is a lesbian and also leaked the name of her alleged companion. It is not that the arts community or the cultural elite, so-called, disapproves of lesbianism, not on your life. They disapproved of her administrative decency and tried to slug her. I don't know whether she is a lesbian, and I don't care. She's doing a creditable job, and President Bush should slug back by making her appointment permanent.

A little-known playwright named

Jon Baitz got himself into the news recently, not through any artistic achievements, but because he received an NEA grant of $15,000 and immediately turned it over, with fanfare, to two unsuccessful applicants. He went so far as to compare Chairwoman Radice to the Vichy collaborationist regime in France during the war, a regime that sent some 100,000 Jews to their deaths. This comparison achieves a truly startling level of vulgarity. The government should file a lawsuit against Baitz to recover our money, plus an added suit for personal libel.

We learn from a spectacular article by Alessandra Stanley, recently published in The New York Times, that there is a new blacklist in Hollywood: directed against conservatives. Writers and actors who are conservative and don't guarantee box-office millions suffer, often terminally, in their movie careers. They can't touch Charlton Heston or Arnold Schwarzenegger, who are too big, but lesser figures pay.

Film people of conservative or middle-of-the-road views, such as Kevin Costner, Mel Gibson and Steven Spielberg, just shut up about their disagreements with Hollywood orthodoxy. Sometimes just shutting up isn't good enough. Some actors "pass" as leftists by attending fund-raisers for the Christie Institute, which supported the Sandinistas, and other such functions.

People such as Jane Fonda and Oliver Stone never shut up about their political views. They are Hollywood royalty.

Once-successful screenwriter John Milius says he has been effectively blacklisted for his conservatism. He also says that he had some wry revenge during the Los Angeles riots when Hollywood liberals phoned him and asked if they could borrow a gun.

Cultural elite, eh? I am a professor at Dartmouth, an institution from which you can graduate without reading a single play by Shakespeare—though you are required to take a course in non-Western culture.

Vice President Quayle gets it, and I think most Americans get it. Quayle isn't really talking about a cultural elite. He's talking about cultural vermin.

This is not only smart electoral politics. It has the unusual merit of being true.

When will Bush learn? No doubt much too late.

Anything goes

by Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

Ethel Merman did it and became a star. Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre did it under the stars and, well, "heaven knows, Anything Goes!" For anyone who relishes the chance to see a Cole Porter musical with as lively a cast as you'll find anywhere, JWST has just the ticket—a snappy rendition of the classic, "Anything Goes."

This production is a delight for the whole audience. Porter's music is timeless. Somehow, the story is timeless, too. Anytime boy finds girl, boy loses girl, and boy wins girl again—there's a charming magic about the kind of romance where a guy will do just about anything to win a girl's heart.

JWST is highly fortunate to have an especially talented cast this summer—with the vocal strength and stage confidence that you might watch for on some of the national circuits in a few years. Lisa Dames is just such a talent. Dames plays the role of Reno Sweeny with a very classy, very brassy flair. Eric Holland's portrayal of Sir Evelyn (pronounced EEE-velyn, dahling!) is also very classy—and very sassy, making a perfect match for Reno.

Jennifer Lampert and Darren Bagert portray the moonstruck lovers, Hope and Billy, who just can't seem to break through some of those nasty old social barriers. Lampert's sweetness and Bagert's infectious charm create an enchanting romance that the audience can cheer for.

But a couple of real crooks steal the whole show! Guilty are Monica Heuser, playing Bonnie, and Michael Fisher, playing Moonface Martin, No. 13 on the most wanted list (looking for a break to make the top ten). Both displayed a real gift for comedic timing and Heuser's snappy "Heavenly Hop" song and dance was one of the show's highlights.

Perhaps the most difficult role in any comedy is the role of the "straight man"—also known as the object of any comedy action—and this show has three of them. The Ship's Captain, played by David Stokes, tries to be appropriately earnest and decent in spite of all the shenanigans. Elisha J. Whitney, played by Robert Smith, staggers in and out of the action for just the right amount of comic relief.

Ervy Whitaker plays the ship's steward, who just tries to keep up with all the fun. All three straight men are perfect targets for the one-liners hurled with amazing accuracy by the production's comedic players.

Richard Oberacker directs the orchestra and the music is flawless; at times sounding like someone had just dusted off the old 78s. James Hunter's set design is clever and the lighting is excellent. Sherry Harper's costumes are imaginative and colorful. The choreography, under the direction of Dee Anne Bryll, is lively—the audience would have enjoyed seeing even more dance numbers.

On the evening of the second performance the cast seemed a little stiff—not as though they were unsure of themselves or their talent; but as though they were being held back. It seemed as if the director had taken these young talents from the year 1992 and had tried to pour them into an uncomfortable 1934 mold.

That's a shame, too, because I'm sure that 1934 mold was broken after opening such a tremendous hit. So, too, were these molds broken in the string of movies and revivals that have proceeded through the years.

This cast has a right to make and break its own mold. Director David Weiss needed to be certain that the cast understands the material, and in that he succeeded. But Weiss perhaps forgot to let the cast breathe their youth and light into this play. After all, "Anything Goes" is a classic because it has withstood the test of time and it's unlikely a group of talented young players in 1992 could produce anything worse than a fresh perspective.

With several more performances left in the season, something tells me this cast might best just relax and enjoy Cole Porter for themselves as well as for the audience. I hope they do, because for those who truly enjoy the theatre, "heaven knows, Anything Goes!"

Audiences shouldn't despair. Is the show fun? Well, as Reno might say, "You bet your ascot!"

Revised school building plans to get finishing touches

A state advisory group will meet Thursday to put the finishing touches on a proposed new policy that gives local citizens and school officials clear responsibility for school building plans.

Designed to give local districts more discretion to build or keep small community schools, the policy removes or relaxes some state regulations criticized by community groups as being too rigid.

The state's Facility Needs Advisory Committee will meet from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. at Cumberland Falls State Park to complete a plan that:

- Requires local districts to appoint a 16-member local district planning committee of parents, educators and community leaders to prepare long-range building plans for the district. Currently, plans are being prepared by district professional staff with assistance from the Kentucky Department of Education.

- Requires the local planning committee and local board to conduct hearings in the district in addition to a formal state hearing. Now, only the state hearing is required.

- Allows districts to build new classroom buildings smaller than currently allowed by state regulations and still be eligible for reduced state construction aid.

- Under current regulations, no state aid is provided for construction of schools with an enrollment less than 300 students for elementary schools, 450 for middle schools and 750 for high schools.

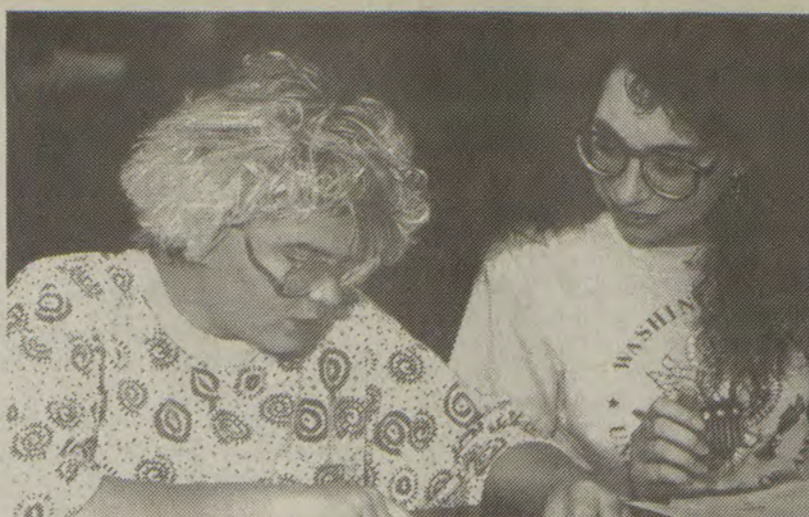

- Allows districts to renovate schools smaller than currently allowed by regulations and permits some state funding. Currently, districts are prohibited from renovating schools not meeting state size minimums.

- Drops a requirement for districts to be organized only along elementary, middle and high school lines to qualify for state construction aid.

- Restricts the role of the state education department to determining whether local plans meet the technical requirements of state laws and regulations.

The Facility Needs Advisory Committee was established by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education earlier this year after a series of controversies last fall concerning the closing of small, community schools.

The board reviewed the advisory committee's preliminary report at its July meeting and suggested only minor changes. After the committee completes its work, department staff will draft revised state regulations for the board's consideration in September.

Literacy Programs in 15 States Receive Free Books

A Knight Foundation grant helped distribute 1.6 million books to more than 500 adult literacy programs in the Appalachian region and other states.

The Christian Appalachian Project (CAP) received $25,000 to defray the transportation costs in distributing books through the Operation Read program.

Operation Read is a collaborative effort of CAP, Feed the Children, and the National Council of Family Literacy to distribute, at no cost, donated children's books as well as books of literature and history to literacy programs in Alabama, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, New Jersey, and Washington, D.C.

Established in 1950 by John S. and James L. Knight, the Knight Foundation is one of the nation's largest private foundations. It makes national grants in journalism, higher education and the field of arts and culture. It also supports organizations in communities where the Knight brothers were involved in publishing newspapers but is wholly separate from and independent of those newspapers.

Feed the Children, an Oklahoma-based charity focused on making the world a better place for children, supplied most of the books, which were solicited from major publishers.

The National Council of Family Literacy, a Louisville, Kentucky-based organization dedicated to expanding Americans' reading ability, supplied the names and addresses of literacy organizations in the distribution area.

CAP's Operation Sharing program solicited books and is the distribution agency for Operation Read. Operation Sharing solicits and distributes in-kind corporate gifts of food, books, building materials, clothing, and other commodities to CAP programs and other service organizations in Appalachian Kentucky and other states.

In Memory of Lester Green

(August 1, 1918 - July 23, 1991)

Lester, it's been a year since God called you home and left me all alone. But you'd been sick so long and suffered so much, I knew you wanted to go join Dora, your first wife of many years, your Mom, Louise, and your son, Jim—where you'd have no more pain. We had a wonderful marriage of 18 years, 4 months together but the days and nights are so lonely without you. Little Kathy said it best, that Jesus needed Grandpa Lester to raise a garden and catch fish, so all the angels would have something good to eat.

McFarland to direct area United Way

Tina McFarland

Butch Bradley, president-elect of the Board of Directors serving United Way of Eastern Kentucky, is proud to announce that Tina McFarland has been selected to serve as the not-for-profit agency's Executive Director. She recently moved to Ivel and began her new responsibilities June 16 at the office based in Prestonsburg.

She comes well-known to many due to two years of volunteer work among deaf persons through area Southern Baptist churches. She is a graduate of Casey County High School and attended Eastern Kentucky University before accepting a position with Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville in 1982. Following three years of service to multi-handicapped deaf students there, McFarland gained over six years' experience with the Kentucky Baptist Convention, a statewide not-for-profit agency based in Louisville.

McFarland is the eldest daughter of Watson and Marjorie McFarland who continue to reside in Casey County. She has two sisters: Monica Johnson, who lives in Liberty and works for McDowell Home Health Agency in Danville; her youngest sister, Rhonda Walters, lives in Craynor.

United Way of Eastern Kentucky is a not-for-profit agency serving the area of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike Counties. The office is located at 503 South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

Blood supply dwindles; donations are needed

Central Kentucky Blood Center is issuing a health advisory to the public—don't bleed this summer! The community's blood supply is rapidly dwindling as donations remain critically low. CKBC is collecting an average of 795 pints of blood per week while transfusions number 920 per week. To make the difference, CKBC has regularly been bringing in blood from other blood centers around the country who have enough support in their communities to collect what they need, and have a surplus to share in emergency situations. In the last year, CKBC has had to import 6,553 units of red blood cells. This procedure is extremely costly. CKBC is spending between $20,000 and $40,000 per month to import blood components. Recent efforts to obtain blood and blood components from other blood centers indicate there is a blood shortage emerging nationwide. This means there will be very little blood available to CKBC for the remainder of the summer.

Eastern Kentucky will donate enough blood for their own patients if they understand there is a need. For many people, it's just a matter of making the time to donate, especially during the summer when there are so many other activities going on," he explained.

Group O Blood is at the critical level, but all blood groups are needed. To donate blood you must be between the ages of 17 and 68, weigh at least 100 pounds, and be in general good health. Donating blood is a safe, simple process that saves lives every day. If your business, church, or civic organization would like to sponsor a blood drive in August or September, please call CKBC at (606) 276-2534. CKBC has donor centers in Lexington, Prestonsburg, and Somerset along with mobile blood drives in your community.

DONATE BLOOD.
It only hurts when you don't CKBC officials have not issued an emergency appeal for blood donations at this time, but they are extremely concerned about blood inventory levels. They do not want to use the limited stock of frozen blood inventory except in a true crisis. According to Jim Spiker, CEO, there is no reason why blood must be brought in from other regions of the country to meet routine needs. "I believe the people of Central and Paintsville Big League....

Plays long ball in sweep of Pikeville to capture District 7 title

The Paintsville Big League team used the "gopher ball" to sweep the Pikeville Big League squad in a doubleheader Thursday and capture the District 7 Big League Division championship at the Paintsville Park.

Paintsville hammered four home runs (two in each game) in the twin bill to move on to Louisville this weekend for the Big League Division state tournament. Paintsville is the defending state champion.

Hatler Riddle was a hard problem for Pikeville to solve as he allowed the visitors just three hits in going the distance for Paintsville in game one. Paintsville posted a 9-1 win behind Riddle's three-hitter. Riddle gave up a single to Nathan Elswick in the first inning and Keith Ison base hit him in the second. Pikeville got only one other hit over the final five innings and that was a sixth inning single off the bat of Elswick. Riddle allowed only one run on three hits while striking out four. He walked two batters.

Scott Anderson suffered the setback for Pikeville working the first four innings. However, Anderson did enter the fifth inning but was unable to retire a batter with Tony Newsome coming on in relief. Anderson was reached for three runs, Joe Collins three-run home run, in the inning before Newsome came on. He struck out three batters and did not walk a batter. Anderson gave up five runs on six hits.

Pikeville had taken a 1-0 lead as Paintsville took three innings before they could solve the hurling of Anderson. Elswick scored Pikeville's lone run in the first on a two-out base hit and an error on Bud Kidd in left field when he nonchalantly tried to handle Kevin Justice's fly ball. The ball popped out of Kidd's glove for a two-base error permitting Elswick to score. Justice was later picked off first by Riddle.

Anderson retired the first eight batters he faced in the Paintsville lineup until Riddle singled in the third. However, Riddle was left stranded.

Paintsville did strike in the fourth after Riddle retired Pikeville in order in the fourth with the help of a double play. With two out, Barry Hall lifted a pop fly around the pitcher's mound only to see the ball pop out of the glove of Anderson for an error. Errors seem to always come back and haunt a pitcher and this was no exception. Chuck Laferty (Betsy Layne) then drilled a long, two-run home run to give Paintsville a 2-1 lead. Scott Caudill singled behind Laferty's round tripper but was left stranded.

Paintsville took a 5-1 lead in the fifth inning when Joe Collins blasted a three-run shot over the left centerfield fence. Brad Scott (Allen Central) singled and was sacrificed to second by Riddle. Bud Kidd (Betsy Layne) singled with Scott stopping at third. Kidd was cut down by Jason McCoy trying to steal and Barry Collins walked. Collins then drove the ball deep over the fence with the ball bouncing off the swimming pool building.

Paintsville scored a single run in the sixth and pushed across three in the seventh. Barry Hall and Scott collected two hits each in the game for Paintsville.

In the second game, Billy Elam kept the Pikeville squad off balance with his off speed pitches going the distance in Paintsville's 13-0 shutout and the district championship. Elam scattered three Pikeville hits, striking out five and walking but two. Elam retired the last 11 batters he faced in securing the win.

A pair of home runs were hit by Paintsville as Bud Kidd led off the Paintsville third with a solo shot and Brent Hamilton cranked out a two-run home run in the fifth.

Pikeville threatened in the first inning against Elam with a one-out single by Newsome and a double from Elswick. But Elam got Justice and Casto on strikes to end the inning.

Paintsville scored once in the second inning for a 1-0 lead and then added four more in the third. John Holbrook, Barry Collins, Hamilton, and Ray Collins each had third inning singles. Stewart Hall (Allen Central) had a sacrifice fly that drove in a run in the inning.

Five runs scored for Paintsville in the fifth inning with two coming on Hamilton's two-run home run. Chuck Laferty picked up his third hit of the doubleheader with a single that scored two runs. Barry Hall singled just ahead of Hamilton's home run. Ray Collins doubled in the inning.

Collins, Sean Williams, Laferty, and Hall each collected two hits. Hamilton led the Paintsville hit parade with three hits, scoring three times and driving in three runs.

Johnson outstanding ...

HAP District 7 Champions

Great! Brilliant! Outstanding! These are just a few adjectives to describe the pitching performance of Craig Johnson against the Belfry All-Stars in the championship game of the District 7 Little League All-Star tournament played at Archer Park Monday evening.

Harold-Allen-Prater (HAP), winners of Area 2, District 7 faced a good Belfry All-Star team, winners of Area 1, District 7 in the finals of a tournament that began back on July 6. HAP posted a 5-1 victory to earn the right to advance on to state competition at Catlettsburg this Saturday evening.

It was a combination of good things that saw the local all-star team pick up the win over a very talented Belfry squad. But the most noticeable item was the pitching performance of one Craig Johnson. After the first inning, Johnson was nearly untouchable. Consider this:

- He pitched no-hit baseball after the first inning.

- He retired 15 of the last 17 batters he faced.

- He walked only two batters in the six innings of work.

- He retired nine in a row from the second to the fifth inning.

- His team committed no errors in a flawless game.

Belfry starter Derrick Dotson was very impressive in the first three innings that he worked. He did not allow a hit to HAP until Johnson singled hard up the middle in the fourth inning that ignited a rally which saw HAP take their first lead at 3-1.

With one out, Johnson singled and Derek Stanley followed suit as Dotson's bid for a no-hitter was gone. With runners on first and third, Russell Hall bounced to shortstop Stephen Dasher who stepped on second but his throw to first was too late to double up Hall with Johnson scoring the go-ahead run. Hall stole second and scored on a base hit by Brad Reynolds.

Belfry took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when they collected their only

Robinson tosses three-hitter as Floyd Co. captures Babe Ruth title

In a dramatic comeback, the Floyd County 13-year old Babe Ruth All-Stars captured the district title and will move on to state competition in Louisville this Friday night.

The comeback was a dramatic one in that the local all-star squad lost the first game of the double elimination tournament and had to come back out of the loser's bracket to win it all. Floyd defeated Johnson County 13-4 Monday evening at Johnson Central to take the prized trophy home with them.

Kevin Robinson was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player. Robinson picked up the win in the championship game working the first six innings, his limit. Chris Moore came on to close out the game hurling the seventh.

It was Johnson County that sent the Floyd County All-Stars to the lower bracket in an opening game loss. But Floyd kept their composure and defeated Knott County and then posted double wins over Johnson County.

In the championship game, Floyd County reached Kyle Adams for three first inning runs as they jump out to a 3-0 first inning lead. It was Adams that stifled the Floyd County team in their opening loss.

With one out, Adams hit Wesley Collins with a pitch and Brandon Castle was safe on a two-base throwing error by third baseman Jeremy Hannon. Robinson singled up the middle to score Collins and Castle moving to third base where he scored on an error. Robinson stole second base, something the Floyd All-Stars did all night. Robinson came in to score on a wild pitch. Moore was safe on an error by shortstop Shane Hensley and Hannon's throw to first was errant off the bat of Doug Keathley.

Johnson County plated two runs in the bottom of the inning as they just would not go away. Adams and Brad White scored for Johnson County on a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Collins singled with two out in the in the first two innings. They left five runners on base and committed six errors. Paintsville collected 13 hits in the game and stranded five runners. Paintsville played errorless baseball.

Paintsville will now head to Louisville Valley High School for the Big League Division Kentucky Baseball State Tournament. Paintsville will face the winner of the Lexington area (District 3) this Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

second and scored on Hensley's second error in as many innings to make it a 4-2 ball game. Two runs came in to score for Floyd in the top of the third innings as they widened their lead to 6-2. Keathley, who had a good night at the plate, doubled to lead off the third. Brad Kidd, hitting lefthanded, blooped a flyball to left that fell for a base hit but Keathley had to hold up at second base. Keathley moved to third on a passed ball and scored when Eric Cook grounded out to second. Kidd scored on Daryl Shepherd's RBI single.

But Johnson County fought back and scored twice in the bottom of the third for a 6-4 score. Floyd County then added two runs in the fourth, a single run in the fifth and plated four in the seventh to secure the victory.

Robinson had five strike outs, six walks and he allowed four runs on three hits. Moore, who worked the seventh, did not allow a hit. He walked three and struck out one.

Robinson had two hits, two RBIs, scored two runs in two official trips to the plate. He walked once and had a sacrifice fly.

Keathley collected three-hits in the game as he was on base all five times. He reached on two errors and had two infield hits to go with his double.

Defensively, it was Collins play at first base that stood out for Floyd as he made several good plays.

It was a hard luck tournament for hard throwing right hander Brandon Castle who started two of the four games. Castle hurled 14 innings in the tournament and recorded 22 strikeouts. He was the loser in the opening game and did not figure in the decision in his second start.

Johnson County posted a 6-4 win over Floyd in the opening game as Castle struggled in the first inning when Johnson County scored four times. Castle, who normally is in control of his pitches, walked two batters and hit one to get himself in trouble. After the first frame, the right hander settled down but Floyd County could not generate enough offense to come back.

Castle, Keathley and Shepherd each had two hits in the opening game. Keathley had a great tournament collecting eight hits in the four games.

Floyd County came back on Sunday afternoon, after a rain-out Saturday evening, and mericed Knott County 18-4 in a wild "walk-a-thon."

Knott County pitching issued 21 base on balls in the five inning game. Collins had two hits in the game for Floyd County and he scored four runs.

Robinson started the game for Floyd County and picked up the win.

Floyd came back on Sunday afternoon and posted a 7-5 extra inning win over Johnson County to avenge the earlier loss. It was Castle on the mound for Floyd and seemed destined to win his first game. But leading 5-4 going into the bottom of the seventh, Johnson County tied the game and sent the game to inning number eight. Castle could not pitch beyond the seventh inning and Robinson came on in relief. Floyd County scored two runs in the top of the eighth for a 7-5 lead. Keathley got a one-out base hit and Eric Cook walked with two out. Beau Tackett singled home Keathley for a 6-5 lead and Cook scored on Collins RBI single. Robinson then retired Johnson County in the bottom of the inning to get the win.

Robinson won all three games for Floyd County in the tournament.

Floyd will face Paris in the first round of the state tournament in Middletown (Louisville) this Friday evening at 8 p.m.

Pop Warner Football program gearing up for second season

"It's that time of year again," said Doctor Don Chaffins, director of the Pop Warner Football program that got its initial start last season. "We're going to have our sign ups for the coming year on August 1."

That's right! All future Hall of Fame football players will be able to get their career underway by being at the softball field at Archer Park on August 1 at 1 p.m. to sign up for the second season. Students in kindergarten through fourth grade will play in the flag division.

Last season the league played its games one night during the week and then again on Saturdays. "Right now we don't know what days we will be playing on," said Chaffins. "We are looking at a possible starting time of the first or second week in September."

Something new this year for the Pop Warner program will be the addition of tackle football for fifth and sixth graders. A player in the tackle division must be 10, 11 or 12 years old on August 1 to be eligible to play in the tackle division.

A team will play around six games during the course of the season. Flag football is played on a 80-yard field while tackle football must be played on a 100-yard field. Tackle football could be played at the high school field.

Chaffins urges all parents to bring a recent physical examination, insurance and a birth certificate with them when they come to sign up.

"We would really like to have all three when they sign up," said Chaffins. "But if they do not have a physical report we will provide them one later."

The sign up day is for all football players and cheerleaders.

Chaffins admits while they would like to have all players and cheerleaders signed up by August 1, that there are some who will not be able to make that date so an alternate date has been set for August 8 at 1 p.m. at Archer Park.

"The program is for any kid in any school system," commented Chaffins.

two hits of the game off Johnson. Dasher doubled to centerfield with one out and moved to third when Brian Smith bounced out to first baseman Wesley Samons. J.R. Johnson then sent Dasher home with a two-bagger to right centerfield. Johnson then got Dotson on strikes to end the inning.

HAP tied the game on some alert base running by Chad Case, who has to be the best number nine hitter in the Little League tournament. Case was safe on a two-base throwing error by third baseman Smith. Case stole third and, on the throw to the bag by catcher Cliff Wallace, the ball bounded into left field and Case scored to tie the game at 1-1.

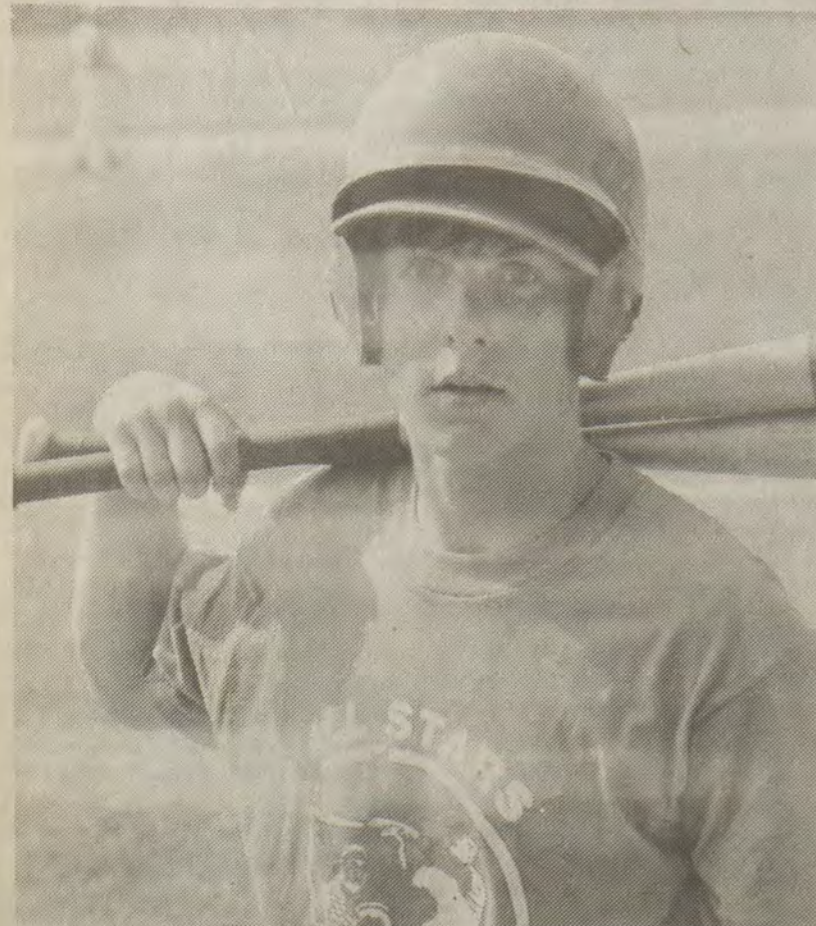

HAP made it a 5-1 game with two more runs in the fifth inning. A lead-off base hit by Matt Kidd and a single by Ronnie Kidd put runners on first and second. Case then drilled a double to right center scoring Matt Kidd with Ronnie Kidd stopping at third. Ronnie Kidd then tried to score on a passed ball but was tagged out at the plate by Wallace. Case scored on an error for the 5-1 score.

After the first inning Belfry only put two runners on base over the final five innings. Wallace drew a lead-off walk from Johnson in the second but was left stranded as Johnson got Matthew Slater and Freddie Pinson on strikes. Albert Vippeman's ground ball forced Wallace at second base.

Belfry went down in order in the third and fourth innings as Johnson fanned the side in the fourth but walked Slater leading off the fifth. He then wiped out Pinson and Vippeman on strikes before getting Hensley to pop to short for the third out. Johnson set down the Belfry All-Stars in order in the sixth.

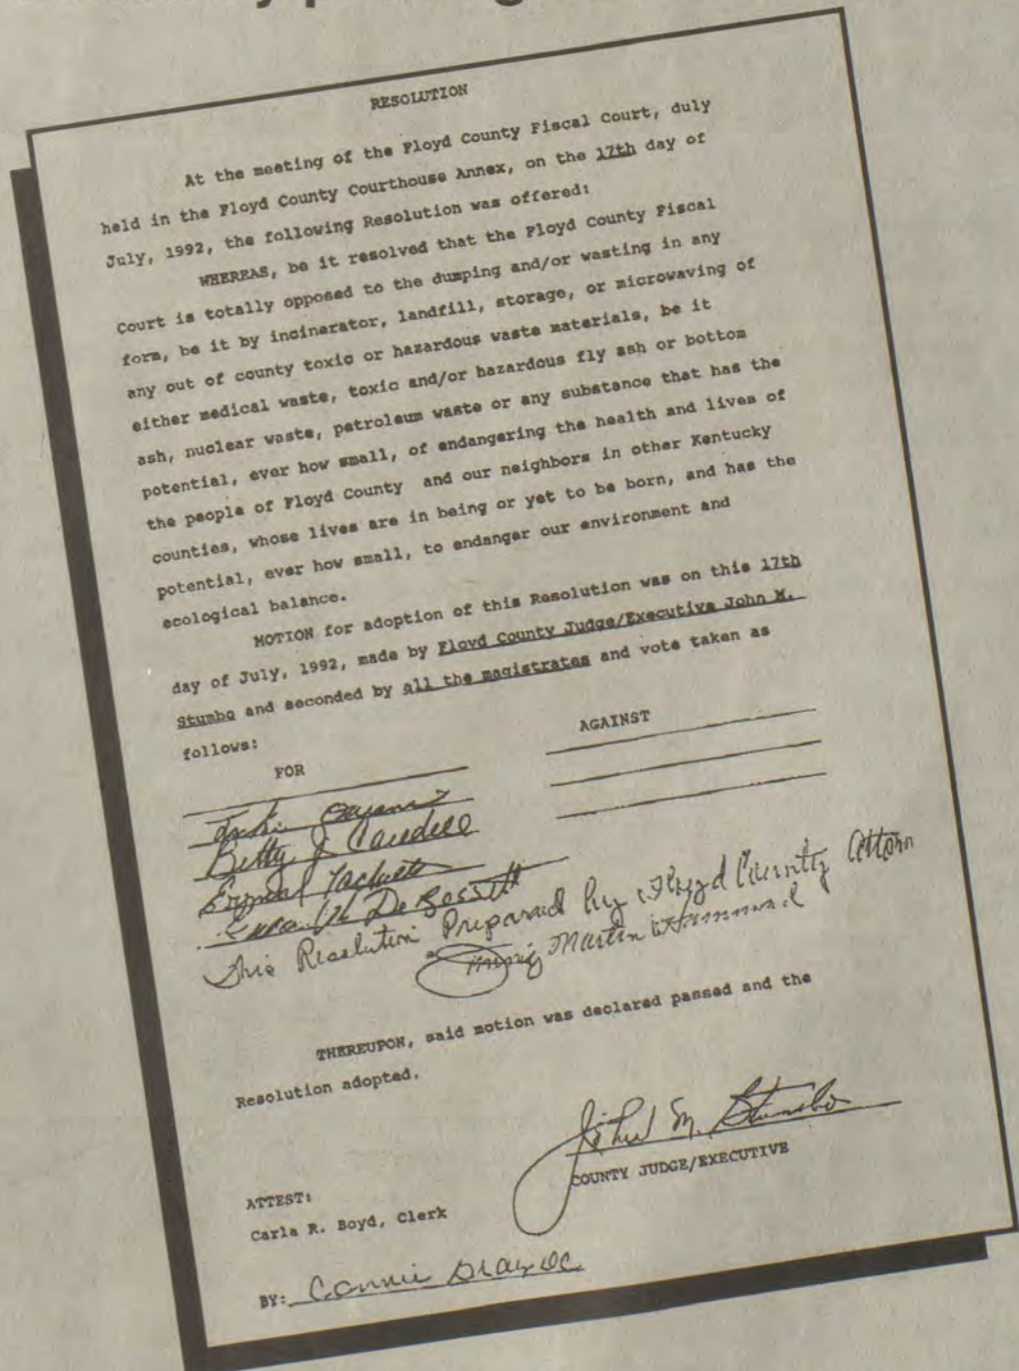

Belfry lost the first game of the Area 1 playoffs to Pikeville, but came back and won seven straight games to win the Pikeville tournament. However, in District play, a team carries the loss with them in the championship round. A victory by HAP gave Belfry their second loss.

Johnson struck out 10 batters while issuing only two walks. He allowed one run on two hits. Dotson suffered the loss for Belfry in going the distance. Dotson struck out three and walked one. He allowed all five runs on six hits.

CARRYING A HEAVY BAT for the Floyd County 13-year old All-Stars is Wesley Collins. Collins had a good tournament on defense as well as at the plate as he helped lead the squad to a tournament championship. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Eighth Annual Bluegrass State Games to draw record number

A record number of Kentuckians, approximately 18,313 from 108 counties, will be participating this weekend in the eighth annual Bluegrass State Games.

The Games—featuring 22 different sports—will be held July 24-26 in Lexington.

Fourteen from Floyd County, not counting softball players, will be taking part in four different events in the Bluegrass State Games. Veteran bowman, Kenneth Allen of Allen, will be shooting in the archery division events. Allen has brought home several gold, silver and bronze medals in the past games. Last year, Allen had an off year and won only a silver medal in the animal shoot. Allen has brought home five golds in the years that he has taken part.

Other archers who will be participating will be James Polk, Prestonsburg, and the father and son team of James and John Stout of Prestonsburg. All three have taken part in past Games.

Polk won a bronze in last year's games in the Freestyle Unlimited. The Stout's came home with two gold medals in their father and son act.

Last year's gold medal winner in chess, Rodney Slone of Garrett, will be set to defend his title again this year.

Several Allen Central track and field participants will be taking to the track during the eighth running of the Bluegrass State Games. Todd Howard, Hippo, will run in the 800 meters and 1500 meters where he won two bronze medals last year. Jason Samons won a gold in the 100-meter run and came home with a silver medal in the 200-meter dash for 14 year olds. Samons will be returning to Lexington for this year's Bluegrass State Games.

Levi Wells will be taking part in this year's discus throw as well as shot put. Wells won silver medals in both events last year. Another participant in the discus and shot put will be Shawn Robinson also of Allen Central.

A good bet to finish strong this year will be Allen Central's Jessica Wade. Wade will be running in the women's 3000-meter run where she placed fourth last season. The way that Wade has been working out, look for a much higher finish this year.

Returning to her "field of dreams" will be Prestonsburg girl's head basketball coach Bridget Clay, who brought home the gold in the women's long jump in last season's Games. Clay was an outstanding jumper while in high school at Prestonsburg and holds several records.

Newcomers to the Games this year will include Allen Central's Kevin Patton and Chris Bailey.

Nikki Queen, another Allen Central standout in track, will be entering another sport—swimming. She will be the first from Floyd County to enter the event. Why did she pick swimming over the track events?

"I've been swimming for the past three years," she stated, "and I wanted to enter the swimming events." Queen will swim in the 50-meter freestyle, 50-meter backstroke and the 50-meter breaststroke. Queen is currently a member of the Jenny Wiley Waves summer swim team.

Five local softball teams will be in the Bluegrass State Games this year. Softball is the largest team event in the Games followed by soccer. Over 300 softball teams, which will involve over 6,000 players, will be in competition this weekend.

The public is invited to attend the free colorful ceremonies of the Games on July 24 at 8 p.m. at the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium.

The activities outside the stadium begin at 2 p.m. with participants checking in and receiving t-shirts for their sports. From 4 p.m. until 7 p.m. there will be a free picnic supper for the athletes, their families and volunteers. From 4 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. Phoenix will provide musical entertainment for those in attendance. Miss Kentucky, Tawnya Mullins; Miss Kentucky Basketball, Becky McKinley, Bullitt County; and Mr. Kentucky Basketball, Tick Rogers, Hart County, will be on hand to meet with participants.

There will be face painters, jugglers, video games, pop-a-shot and moonwalks for the Games participants.

From 7:30 p.m. until 8 p.m. the 202nd Army National Guard Band will perform inside the stadium.

At 8 p.m. the parade of athletes begins, led by the Bluegrass Brass Band and Flag Corps. A Kentucky National Guard flyover sets the stage for the grand opening. The Headquarters 138th Artillery Brigade of the Kentucky Army National Guard will present the colors.

The guest speaker for this year's opening ceremonies is Wes Unseld, vice president and head coach of the Washington Bullets. Unseld, a star basketball player at the University of Louisville, played for the Bullets before becoming coach.

After the Oath of Athletes is administered by Governor Brereton Jones, runners who have carried the Games' torch from Frankfort will run the torch into the stadium for the official lighting of the Bluegrass State Game flame.

The evening will conclude with entertainment and a fireworks finale.

ROBINSON NAMED MVP
It was a good Babe Ruth tournament held at this past week at different sites throughout the region. Our 15 year olds lost to Carr Fork at Hindman and our 14 year olds fell to a good Johnson County team.

Only one Babe Ruth team will make the trip to state competition and that is Tom Holbrook and Barry Hall's 13 year olds.

One of the reason for the trip for the squad is because of the play and pitching of Kevin Robinson. Robinson was named the Most Valuable Player at Johnson Central where Floyd County defeated Johnson County for the right to move on to Middletown this weekend.

The Floyd County 13 year olds won three straight games to capture the title and Robinson was the winning pitcher in all three games. He started two games, winning both, and picked up one win in relief Sunday afternoon.

Congratulations to Robinson and the Floyd County Babe Ruth, 13 year old All-Stars and the best of luck at Middletown this weekend.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports.

Satisfied turkey hunters spend big bucks in Ky

Turkey hunters not only spent more than $2.5 million in Kentucky during the 1990 spring hunting season but are satisfied with the season length and limit and how wild turkeys are managed in the commonwealth.

The findings are based on 68 percent of 770 Kentucky members of the National Wild Turkey Federation responding to a survey conducted by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in March 1991. The sample represents approximately 10 percent of Kentucky turkey hunting permit buyers and respondents represent all regions of the state.

According to the survey, the average Kentucky turkey hunter is 40 years old with 28 years hunting experience, has hunted turkeys six years and pumps $338 per spring season (excluding licenses and permits) into Kentucky's economy. Also, most turkey hunters (85 percent) come from rural or small town backgrounds and 75 percent have attended a hunter education course.

Significantly, the majority of turkey hunters want the current two-week spring season to remain in effect because it produces another want—more adult gobblers than juveniles (or jakes) in the harvest. (Currently, adult gobblers make up 75 percent of the statewide harvest.) Interestingly, an even higher number of respondents (86 percent) don't want a statewide turkey quota or a limit on the number of turkey hunting permits issued.

Nearly half of the survey group says working a bird is the single best measure of a quality spring hunt while remaining respondents are almost equally divided among these choices—number of gobblers heard, number of turkeys seen, opportunity to shoot or harvesting a bird.

And here's another noteworthy point. Based on 1992's 11,000 spring turkey hunters and excluding fees paid for licenses and permits, dollars contributed to Kentucky's economy by hunters jumped to $3.7 million. That surpasses 1990's contribution by $1.2 million.

If money talks, maybe taking turkeys talks, too.

Johnson County scores 9 in ninth for win over Floyd County

The Johnson County 14-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars took care of business Sunday afternoon after being rained out Saturday evening. Johnson County advanced to state play in Louisville this weekend with a 10-3 win over the Floyd County 14 year old All-Star.

It wasn't to be for the local all-star team as they let one get away from them. The lack of active bats failed to produce any runs for starter T.T. Pack, who was dominating on the mound. Pack could only pitch the first seven innings and had to leave after the seventh with the scored tied at 3-3 on a controversial balk call.

Floyd County trailed 3-0 after five innings with the third run coming on a balk call against Pack. Joey Stepp reached first on a one-out error on second baseman J.P. Skeens. Randy Fannin's fly ball to left field was misplayed by Marcus Hamilton, putting runners on first and third. While leaning to take his signals from catcher Pete Dawson, Pack was called for a balk which permitted Estep to walk on home for a 3-0 lead.

While the runs did not loom large at the time scored, it became a big run when Floyd County made a comeback to tie the game at 3-3. A lead-off double by Brent Akers in the fifth led to the first run for Floyd County. Akers scored on Brian Adam's base hit making it a 3-1 game.

In the sixth, Floyd County made some noise with two men out. Pack was safe at first when his ground ball to third was misplayed. Akers collected his second base hit and Pack scored when Adams' ground ball got through the third baseman for Johnson County. Akers came in to tie the game on Fannin's third error at third base in the inning. Had the balk called been avoided, it would have been a 3-2 Floyd County lead.

The two teams went into extra innings. Floyd put their lead-off batters on in each of the seventh and eighth innings but were unable to capitalize.

In the top of the ninth inning, Johnson County went to work with one out against Terrance Mullins who came on in relief of Pack in the eighth. Mullins had retired the side in order in the eighth but ran into some difficulty in the ninth.

A one-out walk to Lance Bowling set the stage for a big inning for Johnson County. Bowling stole second and scored on Roger Akers' base hit. Billy Fitch walked and Akers scored when Estep drilled a base hit. Fannin singled and a base hit by Deven Runyon scored Estep before Byran Allison cleared the bases with a triple. Allison scored on a base hit by Roger Castle.

Floyd County had defeated Johnson County in the first game of the double elimination tournament but fell in the second game 11-4 to set up the third and deciding game.

In the second game, it was the same story — no hitting. The game was picked up on Saturday afternoon after being rained out on Friday evening with Johnson County holding an early 2-0 lead.

The game was resumed in the second inning with Floyd County at bat. Just as the ninth of the third game was a disaster, the fourth inning of game two proved to be drastic. Seven runs crossed the plate for Johnson County as 11 batters marched to the plate against starter Brent Akers and relief pitcher Matt Crawford. Crawford came on in the third inning.

Three walks, placed around a strike out, loaded the bases for Johnson County. Roger Castle grounded to second and, in the confusion, the play came to home plate but way too late. Ryan Allison lifted a sacrifice fly scoring a run and Runyon walked to load the bases again. Brian Ratliff singled sharply to center sending two runners home. Randy Fannin followed with a bases clearing double.

Johnson County scored twice in the first inning for a 2-0 game. Allison singled with one out with Runyon drawing a walk. Both runners scored on a double by Fannin.

Two runs scored for Johnson County in the third inning but one run was nullified after the home plate umpire ruled that Runyon left the base too soon on a fly ball after Floyd County appealed the play. Allison scored on a fielder's choice after a single and two stolen bases.

Floyd got on the scoreboard for a 3-1 game with a run in the third inning. A lead-off single by James Osborne got the inning started. Mark Tackett came on as a courtesy runner, stole second and third to score on an error at third base.

Floyd's two runs scored in the fifth inning when Joseph Risner was hit by a pitch and Skeens doubled. Risner scored on an error and Skeens dented the plate on a base hit by Marcus Hamilton.

The final run crossed the plate for Floyd in the seventh inning on back-to-back singles by Hamilton and Larry Hunter. Hamilton scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of Adam Coleman.

Akers suffered the loss for Floyd County in going two innings. Akers allowed three runs on three hits while striking out three and walking three. Crawford worked four innings with five strike outs and five walks. He yielded eight runs on three hits.

Floyd County left eight runners on base while committing two errors. Allison picked up the win with 10 strike outs in the six and two-thirds innings that he worked. Allison allowed two runs on seven hits.

Staying Fit

by Don Fields
National Federation of Professional Trainers

Getting in shape can be accomplished many different ways. It depends on what kind of shape you want to be in, as well as what you perceive as being in shape. Everyone has their own idea of fitness and what it takes to get in shape. You can read hundreds of articles or ask thousands of questions and you may only get more confused.

In order to implement a successful exercise program, you must first decide what you want to accomplish and then decide the best way to reach your goals. The goals you set for yourself must be realistic and short term in order to be attainable. You must have a plan designed to help you reach each goal you have in mind. By following a specific routine designed to reach your goals you can measure your progress or lack thereof and adjust it accordingly.

All of this may sound like a lot of trouble. Maybe you think all you need to do is go out and run a little or go to the gym and take aerobics or lift some weights. Maybe, if you are a genetically gifted individual, this is enough. In most cases it is only a waste of time. Would you attempt to sail a ship on the ocean without following a set course? I hope not! You would simply sail around for a while and eventually get lost or at best end up where you started. Working out is no different. Regardless of what your goals may be, you must have a plan in order to reach it.

Having made the decision to change your physical condition through diet or exercise there are two things you need to consider. First, it is better to lose weight by increasing your activity level than to deprive yourself of nutrition. By exercising instead of dieting you will be more effective at burning fat stores instead of muscle. Second, you must consider what type of exercise is best suited for you. This is mainly determined by the things you like to do most. If you don't enjoy the exercise program you choose to follow, you are not likely to stick to it long enough to get results.

An effective exercise program must give you two things — muscular tone and cardiovascular fitness. This means your routine should consist of aerobics and resistance training in order to provide maximum fat conversion and strength. Aerobic training may consist of walking, running, bicycling, swimming or aerobic dance classes just to name a few. Strength training is mainly limited to weightlifting with free weights or some type of machinery designed to simulate free weight lifting. The ideal routine would consist of both, along with a healthy, low fat diet.

There is only one type of exercise that can give you both, at the same time — weightlifting. Weightlifting is the most effective form of general fitness exercise available. It can be both aerobic and resistive at the same time, therefore building muscle and burning fat stores simultaneously. Although powerlifting and bodybuilding are seriously competitive sports, weightlifting is beneficial for everyone.

There are many myths about weightlifting that need to be dispelled. For instance, there is no such thing as muscle bound. I'm not even sure what is meant by the term. I assume it is meant to convey the idea that being muscular takes away speed and flexibility, thus not allowing those who lift weights to participate in other sports. I can't think of any athlete in any sport that could not improve his or her performance by being stronger or faster.

Remember, muscle is what moves you. Weightlifting will make you stronger, faster and more flexible. As a matter of fact, every major sport you can mention strongly encourages its athletes to lift weights in the off season and most lift during their respective season of playing. Enough said about muscle-bound.

One of my favorite myths is that if you lift weights (and get muscle-bound), you must continue to work-out for the rest of your life or all of that muscle will turn to fat. How can muscle turn to fat? Can your bones turn into fat if you don't use them? What about your brain? Well, maybe your brain can. I guess that's where the term fathead comes from. Anyway, muscle cannot turn into fat any more than lead can turn into gold. If you don't use it (muscle) you lose it. Muscle simply shrinks back to its original, sedentary state. If you continue to eat like an athlete, you will get fat because muscle burns fat. The more muscle you have, the less fat your body will store.

The last myth I want to touch on concerns women who are concerned that lifting weights will make them look like a man. Personally, I have never seen a woman turn into or even start to look like a man after lifting weights for years, let alone months. I have seen women who looked masculine and men that looked feminine. I believe these cases are hormone related, not a result of weightlifting.

Many women and men express concern that they will become too muscular by working out with weights. This is ridiculous! If you ever wake up some morning, look in the mirror and think "oh no, I have too much muscle." Then all you have to do is cut back on your weightlifting program. It will go away. I have never seen anyone get too muscular, although I have seen a few get too fat and blame it on muscle.

There is only one good reason not to lift weights to get in shape — maybe you don't want to. All I can say to that is try it. Give it a chance. Maybe its not as bad as you think. If you begin a simple weightlifting program under proper guidance, I think you will be pleased with the results and surprised at how easy it is. Very little time and effort is required to get in shape through resistance training if it is done right.

The most effective weight training program is also the simplest and easiest to perform. Training and education is the key. As a trainer and gym operator for the last eight years, the biggest mistake I see people making is trying to do too much too soon. This applies not only to the amount of weight lifted, but the number of exercises performed and their frequency as well.

Everyone is in a hurry to get back into shape (or get there for the first time). Instead of taking the shortest route possible, they take the long way around. By this I mean they get on a complicated program that involves advanced training principles and more often than not leads to overtraining and disappointment.

If you are a beginner, act like one! Learn as much as you can. If you need advice, ask someone who is qualified and experienced. Don't try to imitate someone who is probably doing it wrong to start with.

As a rule, you are considered a beginner for at least one year. It takes that long to develop good training habits and perfect the most basic routine. Of course, everyone makes mistakes and you must learn from them, not continue to make them over and over.

When it comes to weightlifting, more is not always better. A simple basic routine will give the best results. This is true for experienced lifters as well.

Look for more specific weight training information in the next Staying Fit column. In the meantime, give weightlifting a try or, if you are already working out, rethink your current routine for one that is simpler, easier and more effective.

Bartrum continues to roll; Trimble claims victory

by Billie Trimble
Contributing Writer

Mark Trimble of Paintsville and Martin's Bat Bartrum claimed victories at 201 Speedway this past weekend. Bartrum won the feature race in the Super Street Division and Trimble rolled to victory in the Claim Feature event.

Trimble took the Claim feature after Tommy Curtis was claimed in Friday's racing. Curtis refused the claim and had to move up to the Super Bomber division and forfeit his win giving Trimble the victory. Roger Brown placed second behind Trimble. Brown felt the heat of Charlie Williams, who was on Brown's bumper throughout the race. First year driver Robbie Pigg Jr. got fourth place. Joe Ramey Jr. finished fifth and Howard Mills claimed sixth place.

Bartrum crossed the line to take the feature win in the Super Street division while Scott McCloud followed across the finish line for second place. Mike Osborne placed third with fourth place going to Terry Joe Mills. Gary Skeens placed fifth and Cornealus Hall rounded out the pack with a sixth place finish.

In the first of two consolations, Calvin Pack took the checkered flag for first place with Mike Jenkins running a close second. Kevin Frazier placed third and fourth place went to Jerry Honeycutt. Chris Fitzpatrick and Mike Dawson placed fifth and sixth, respectively.

Fran Blackburn of Inez took consolation two followed by Larry Whitt in second place. Jerry Ramey crossed the finish line for third place and fourth went to Bennie Butcher. Rodney Webb finished fifth and Terry Hall placed sixth.

Saturday's racing was dampened by rains in the early evening but track officials ran the track in so racing could continue. In the Super Bomber division, Mark Queen crossed the line for first place while George Meade followed behind for second. Ted Blevins placed third with Terry Muncy holding on for fourth. Fifth and sixth place finishes went to Tom Sparks and Doug Saylor.

Bumps and bangs highlighted the Street Class race when Jodie Adkins went up the track into Ronnie Cole sending Cole into the guard rail. Paul Turner then drove into Adkins. Adkins had to be towed into the pits while Turner drove in. Cole went in with a flat but a good pit crew had him out before the race resumed. This gave Clyde Fitch the break needed to take the lead and cross the finish line for first place and his first feature win of the season.

Cole, due to car problems caused by the accident, crossed the line behind Fitch for second place. Carlos Burton took third and Turner, after returning to the track, placed fourth. Fifth was given to Jodie Adkins.

In the Super Bomber division, a consolation was held, with Jim Lemaster taking the checkered flag for first place and Jerry Honeycutt placing second. Paul Meek was third ahead of fourth place finisher Gary Cunagin. Scotty Ratliff and Greg Hall were fifth and sixth place finishers.

The point standings are as follows: Super Bomber, Ted Blevins; Street, Ronnie Cole; Super Street, Bat Bartrum.

1992 Spring turkey harvest sets record

Topping all previous records, Kentucky turkey hunters took 4,000 gobblers during the April 15-18, 1992 spring turkey hunting season.

The figure represents a 51 percent increase over 1991's spring harvest of 2,634 gobblers.

To give you an idea of how well wild turkeys and hunters are doing — in 1978, the year the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources began its wild turkey restoration program under the able leadership of biologist George Wright, hunters took 44 birds. Since then, 4,621 wild turkeys have been released on 290 sites across the commonwealth, and Wright estimates the statewide wild turkey population amounts to more than 35,000 birds.

This is good news for the rapidly growing ranks of wild turkey hunters in Kentucky. According to Wright, the number of spring turkey hunters jumped from 9,000 in 1991 to 11,000 this year. And even though more hunters went afield this year, they were more successful than ever before. The hunter success rate (harvesting at least one bird) increased to over 30 percent which represents good odds for this challenging sport. Additionally, only five percent of turkey hunters took the season limit of two birds. This is significant because it indicates no alterations in season length or the two-bird limit are warranted.

1992 represents another first in Kentucky wild turkey hunting. A hundred or more birds were taken in each of 10 top harvest counties. In 1990, only one county could make this boast.

Morehead coach visits....

Coach Proctor: "We want Eastern Kentucky kids!"

Morehead State University head football coach Cole Proctor made a swing through Eastern Kentucky in a goodwill tour that took him to Paintsville, Pikeville and Prestonsburg. Proctor made the trip with Morehead Athletic Director Steve Hamilton and Randy Stacy.

Coach Proctor will be entering his third year as Morehead's head football coach and the Eagles coaching staff expects good things from this year's football squad.

"We have some experienced players back for us this year," said Coach Proctor of his returning players. "We will have five starters back on offense and five back on defense. The question we have now is how fast we get settled in at the quarterback position."

Competing for the signal calling spot will be Paintsville's Jeremy Holbrook, who was a red shirt sophomore, and Crescent Springs Matt Bloemer, a red shirt freshman.

"Right now it is a toss up as to who will be there," said Proctor of the two talented quarterbacks. "Matt was more active this spring and Holbrook is such a strong competitor. It will be a dog fight."

Proctor sees a big defensive line returning for the Eagles this fall and Morehead should be stable at the running back position.

Key injuries were a problem for last year's Morehead team finishing with a 4-7-0 record. However, the Eagles did run off four consecutive victories in the middle of the season that included three conference wins and a nonconference win over Liberty which inflicted a loss on eventual national champion Youngstown State.

One of the key injuries was to Brandon Ford who "blew out a knee" last season but, according to Proctor, Ford should be ready to run this year.

"Our defensive linebackers will be intact," explained the Morehead mentor, "and we should improve in the secondary."

Returning will be running back Darrin Harris, defensive lineman Richard Shadwick and defensive back Tyrone Fisher. Shadwick, despite a shoulder injury, had a banner year for the Eagles last season and is expected to team with Fisher to lead the Eagle defense.

According to Proctor, the Eagles will be a more option oriented offensive team this year.

"With the option that we will run we won't need the big linemen to protect our passing game," he stated. "We will be needing and looking for the 6-foot 1-inch, 250-pound player that will fit into our running game. We want to be able to control the ball on the ground and we will run the option."

Coach Proctor stated that in his recruiting efforts that character is very important in an athlete. They also must be good students.

"We look for a combination of being a student and then an athlete," Proctor commented. "We want good kids. We're not out there to recruit problems."

Coach Proctor stated that the recent cuts in the university's program was a "wait and see" situation.

"We're not going through anything that the other schools are not experiencing," Proctor stated. "With the NCAA mandate we are in the same boat that the others are in."

"It's something that he didn't want," said Hamilton, "but we will have to wait and see what happens."

With Proctor's system firmly in place and a good recruiting effort, excitement and enthusiasm have been brought back to Eagle football. In his first year at MSU in 1990, Proctor shared the Ohio Valley Conference's Coach of the Year Award after leading the Eagles to a 5-6-0 record and the University's best Ohio Valley Conference record of 3-3-0.

The Eagles posted back-to-back wins over Murray State and Eastern Kentucky University to end the season.

The Eagles will start the season with a tough Marshall University team. But Coach Proctor sees the game as a good opportunity for his Eagle team.

"Steve did that to me," said Proctor jokingly about opening the season on the road at Marshall. "No, it's a pleasure to play them there. There will be a good crowd for the game and we will enjoy being there. They took it to us last year."

The Eagles then will face West Virginia State before opening league play against a good University of Tennessee at Martin team. "That will be our farthest trip," said Coach Proctor "Then we head to East Tennessee State where I used to coach, and it will be a big game for our kids." Morehead will play East Tennessee on a home basis.

Tradition runs high at Tennessee State and the Eagles will face that tradition at home after an absence on the Morehead schedule.

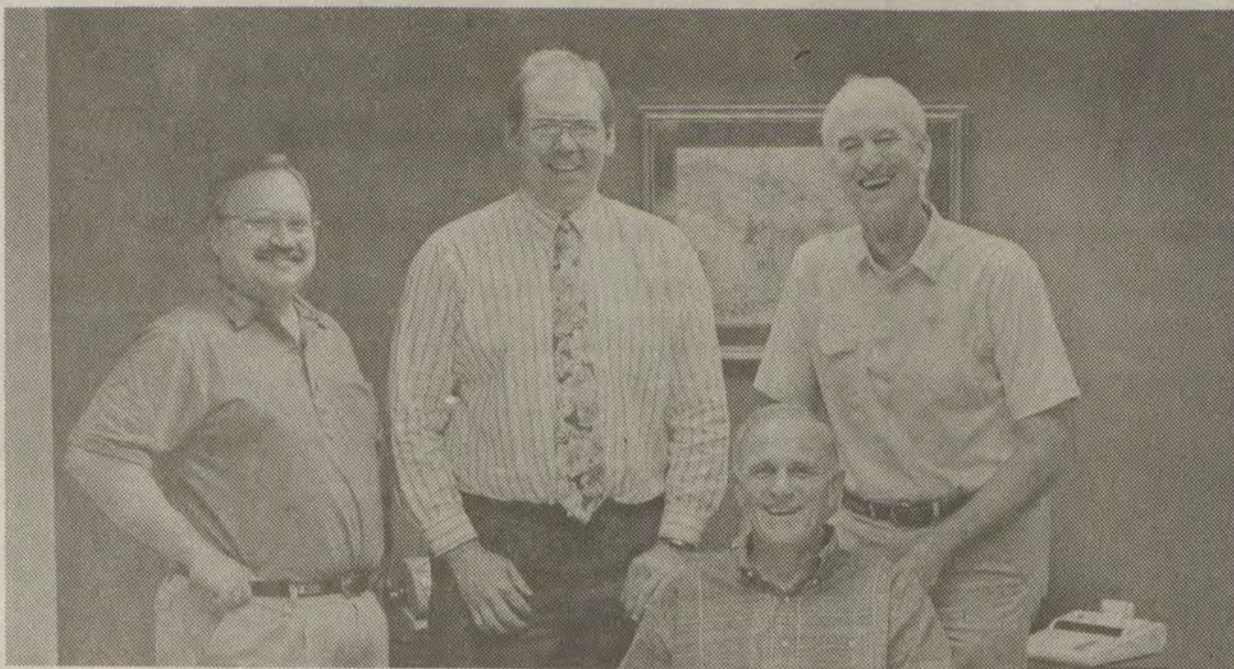

The Eagles will close the regular season against an always tough Roy Kidd team in Eastern Kentucky who has been absent from the Eagles schedule for two years.

"They will reload after losing some good talent from last year," said Proctor.

Proctor believes that there's good talent in Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State wants part of them.

"We want to recruit Eastern Kentucky kids," he said. "In fact, we have one of our assistants that is all he does is scout Eastern Kentucky."

Coach Proctor was quick to point out with the new recruiting rule, a prospect has to have already taken his ACT or SAT test before they can visit a school.

You can help protect Ky's Wild turkey

Poaching continues to threaten Kentucky's wild turkey population and you can help put a stop to this illegal activity by calling the Report-a-Poacher hot line-1-800 25ALERT (1-800-252-5378).

Concerned citizens, along with sportsmen and conservation groups, are extremely important in helping protect Kentucky's wildlife resources. The toll-free number, open 24-hours a day, puts you directly in touch with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and is ONLY for reporting game law violations. You don't have to give your name.

Turkey poachers soon learn Kentucky has some pretty stiff fines and other penalties for illegally taking a wild turkey in the commonwealth. Courts have levied $1,000 fines, suspended hunting licenses and ordered violators to pay the replacement cost of each turkey illegally harvested.

Through ongoing restoration efforts begun in 1978, Kentucky's wild turkey population has jumped from 2,000 birds to more than 35,000 in the commonwealth today. Don't let poachers put a dent in this 14-year success story. Do your part and get involved. Call 1-800 25ALERT if you have a violation to report.

10 Great Reasons to Shop in Floyd County

John spent $50 of his locally-earned salary at the local supermarket. Joanne, the supermarket manager, was paid in part with John's $50.

Joanne spent $50 at a local clothing store. The clothing store owner paid her cleaning lady with Joanne's $50. The cleaning lady paid the dentist who paid his doctor who paid his rent. The owner of the building where the doctor has his office put the $50 in his local bank; his wife wrote a check at the beauty shop. The owner of the beauty shop had repairs done on his car and paid for them with the $50 the building owner's wife had paid him.

Who did the repairs on the car?

"THE VACATION: A SUMMARY"

Well, I've returned from vacation safe and sound. I think the usual saying is "tan and rested," but I'm afraid I don't quite fit that description. Since it was over 100 degrees at 9 a.m., I couldn't stay out on the beach as long as I would have liked. Therefore, I am not as tan as I would have liked to be. As for the rested part, I don't know of anyone who comes home from a vacation rested. After a 10-hour ride from Myrtle Beach, I was exhausted.

However, the vacation was a success. I really needed to get away for a little while. I tried not to think of anything while I was gone. Not surprising, but I was pretty good at it.

Anyway, there are really great places to shop in Myrtle Beach. I'm sure many of you will be heading down that way and would like to know where to go to spend your money. There are these really great outlet malls down there. A few places don't have the good prices one would expect, but one can find a good bargain if he looks.

I bought a gorgeous pair of Code West boots at a boot outlet. I love them. I also bought a Bugle Boy football jersey for $6.99. Who can beat that price? I love those outlet malls.

There are a few more exciting things to do at the beach. Bungee jumping and parasailing (that's where a person is strapped to a boat and a parachute and is then lifted over the ocean).

Due to circumstances beyond my control, I was unable to engage in either of these activities. However, I will one day. I think both would be so exciting. I'd just love it.

Of course, there are shopping malls, souvenir stores, restaurants, and all that jazz. I spent a little time at each one. In the end, though, I was pretty glad to get home. I needed the rest.

Later.

Summer camp for children with asthma, diabetes set

Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Christian Appalachian Project, and the Prestonsburg Rotary Club are participating in an effort to provide a summer of fun for children with asthma and diabetes.

Our Lady of the Way, Christian Appalachian and numerous sponsors, including the Prestonsburg Rotary Club, are helping to conduct a day camp for children with asthma and diabetes at Camp Shawnee, August 3 through 7.

Camp, open to children ages 6-16, will begin at 9:30 a.m. each day and will end at 3 p.m.

The first part of the day will be devoted to educating these children about their illnesses. For instance, they may learn that asthma is a disease of the lungs that causes episodes of wheezing, coughing, rapid breathing and "choking" for air.

In normal breathing, the airways are open, allowing air to move freely in and out of the lungs. During an asthma episode the muscles around the airways tighten, the airways swell and too much mucus is produced. This leads to narrowing of the airways, which makes it difficult for air to move freely in and out of the lungs, resulting in breathing problems.

One of the first steps to take toward controlling asthma is eliminating the trigger factors such as avoiding cigarette smoke or people who have colds.

Warning signs of an asthma attack are itchy chin or throat, dry mouth, becoming tired or grouchy, a light wheezing or coughing, tight feeling in the chest, shortness of breath or restlessness. At the first sign of an oncoming attack, asthma sufferers should stop and rest, and take their asthma medicine as prescribed.

Other activities at the camp include canoeing, hiking, swimming and sports activities, arts and crafts, games and olympic competitions.

Children will receive snacks and a lunch at the camp.

Closing ceremonies and award presentations are scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday, August 7.

The Prestonsburg Rotary Club is helping to raise funds for the project through the concession stand at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre, through its pancake breakfasts. Area businesses — McDonald's, Jerry's Restaurant, Dairy Cheer, Happy Mart (Coleman Oil), Long John Silver's, Holiday Inn, Wendy's, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Lee's Famous Recipe, Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre and the Kentucky Opry — have been supportive of the Rotary Club's projects, said Joe Bolton, a member of the Prestonsburg Rotary.

The money raised by the club goes directly back into the community, said Bolton, so buying a snack at the amphitheater or pancake during the pancake breakfasts helps Floyd County by allowing projects such as the summer camp.

In addition to the day camp, the Rotary sponsors Safe Trick-or-Trick night each Halloween, awards scholarships to Floyd County students, and assists the senior citizens programs.

Early signs of an asthma episode

Individuals who have asthma often learn to identify their early warning signs—the physical changes that occur in the early stage of airway obstruction. These early warning signs usually happen long before more serious symptoms occur. Being aware of these early warning signs allows the individual to take medication at a time when asthma is easiest to control. Proper action should be taken immediately.

One or more of these warning signs are evident during the initial phase of an asthma episode:

Changes in breathing may include:

- coughing,
- wheezing,
- breathing through the mouth,
- shortness of breath, and/or rapid breathing.

Verbal Complaints

Often an individual who is familiar with asthma will know that an episode is about to happen. The individual might say that:

- the chest is tight,
- the chest hurts,
- he/she cannot catch a breath,
- the mouth is dry,
- the neck feels funny, and/or
- a more general "I don't feel well."

Other signs may be:

- an itchy chin or neck—some people may rub their chin or neck in response to this feeling, or
- clipped speech—the individual may speak in very short, choppy sentences.

Some common things that can bring on an asthma attack are:

- furred or feathered pet
- pollens or molds
- household dust mites
- cockroach droppings
- exercise
- cold air
- upper-respiratory infections (cold or flu)
- laughing or crying hard
- tobacco smoke
- strong smells
- household sprays
- emotional stress (fear or excitement)
- foods (peanut butter, nuts, eggs, chocolates, milk, orange juice, etc.)
- perfumes

NEW FROM JAPAN: FAMILY PLANNING

The Japanese have always been an innovative bunch, but this time, in my opinion, they've even outdone themselves. According to a report on CNN, they've come up with an idea called "Rent-A-Family."

Here's how it works. Lonely old people contact this agency and hire actors (and actresses) to come to their homes—like on a Sunday afternoon, or something—to pretend they're the old couple's son or daughter bringing their young family to visit mom and pop. The young couple even bring a baby along to play the role of the old couple's grandchild.

It's really just an afternoon of make believe, but the elderly couple shown on TV seemed tickled to death to have the kids over for lunch.

Apparently, everybody played his role to the hilt, even down to the conversation as they dined.

Of course, I couldn't understand what they were saying but there were lots of chuckles and the demeanor of all the participants suggested small talk...in much the same manner as we Americans might do.

With a little imagination, and based on how we are, one could almost understand what was being said.

"Oh Mama," the young lady exclaimed, "I love this rice. You must give me the recipe."

"It's an American dish. It's called Uncle Ben," the old woman answered.

"Remember, Pop," the young man asked, "when you whipped me because I broke the branch out of the Pagoda tree in the garden when my kite stuck?"

"Was that you? I thought it was your brother Minamoto."

"No, it was me, Pop. Remember, Minamoto was the one you always had to thrash for cussin'."

"Ah so. You're right. He was always using Budda's name in vain."

"Oh, look at baby," yelled the grandmother to the son. "He puts the chopsticks up his nose just like you used to. And doesn't the look just like his grandfather?"

"I don't think so," protested the young play-like mother. "He may have his grandfather's eyes, but that's about all."

"After we eat," announced the old man, "I'll show you my new satellite dish. We can watch wrestling. Jake the Serpent Samurai is taking on Fatso Fugiyama."

"Oh no," said the young mother. "Let's watch American county music. Baby just loves Shotgun Red."

It was all kind of sad, really. The report showed the old woman wiping real tears as the young couple left. "Please come back soon," she said.

Now I think the concept of this thing is just great, but couldn't it get a bit confusing? I mean, what if, in a week or two, the old couple called the service again, and an entirely new cast of characters showed up?

"You look funny, son. You been sick or something?" asked the old man.

"Baby looks different, too," remarks the grandmother. "And why's he wearing a dress?"

"He's a she, Mama," answers the young woman.

"Who're you?" the grandmother asks.

"Your daughter," the young woman answers.

"I have no daughter, my child."

"Oops. Sorry, wrong house."

The report went on to say that this is indeed a very profitable business and there's even a waiting list of old folks who want their family around once in a while, even if it is all pretense.

Although it won't likely be as popular as the transistor, since there's a yen to be made, I guess we'll see the same thing pop up around here pretty soon. Don't be surprised if someday you're driving down the road and spot a new sign: "Honest John's Rent-A-Family, Video Rental and Carry Out."

After all, when it comes to making money, especially in Eastern Kentucky, everything's relative.

Kim's Korner

It's unbelievable the number of times Sally Jesse Raphael's Thursday show has been the topic of conversation this past weekend. I don't think I visited a house, store or gas station where someone didn't bring it up.

by Kim Frasure

It's also unbelievable how many people across this nation perceive Eastern Kentucky and Kentucky itself as the "Hillbilly" hole.

I'm waiting, and patience is wearing thin, for a positive look at Kentucky—more so Eastern Kentucky—to be on national T.V.

Frankly, I'd probably bet you a small wager Unsolved Mysteries will be calling next. After all, it would be interesting to actually know if Sally's staff "set-up" the blow dryer incident.

I just can't understand why the Sally Jesse Raphael staff—or she for that matter—felt this story was worth putting on national T.V.

Thank goodness Oprah didn't. I would be crushed. Her shows gets ridiculous at times, too, but I think of Sally's topped her in the ridiculous category now.

I got phone calls after the show Thursday telling me "You've got to write about this," and I thought at the time there was no way—I'm chompin' at the bits; this was just too unreal. Some of the comments were just simply unbelievable.

Then Friday's Lexington Herald came out and there was more Floyd County news in it than Lexington news, or anything else. Maybe I'm being a tad bit melodramatic here, but it sure seemed that way. Every other page had some negative story about our county—with the exception of The Jenny Wiley Story and Photo. Thank goodness for that positive note—be it musical—no pun intended.

Wouldn't it be nice to have a show, let's say on WYMT, showing nothing but the beauty, talent and good things our counties and state have to offer? So, it's a dream, it's my dream and we'll call it Kim's Korner live—one thing is for sure, we won't have to call it the Sally Jesse Raphael Show.

Part II

11-year-olds driving?

Sunday night I was talked into giving five 11 year olds a lesson in driving. Call me nuts, it's quite all right. But, in all honesty, they did extremely well.

We chose our course at Stumbo Park, it was around 10:30, so we had the entire parking lot to ourselves.

Ami Trimble was first in line and she took to the wheel like she was a pro. Sitting on one leg to make her view better, she mastered the course without a hitch.

Jenny Wells was next and excited to say the least. She put the gear shift in drive, hit the gas and Maria Andretti would have been proud.

Crystal Stone, third in line, had absolutely no problems at all. Crystal's not new to the driving scene and this one came pretty easy for her.

Lauren Hites, fourth to the wheel, expressed her nervousness but overcame it quickly. She loved the signal light and can park a Geo on a dime.

Last, but not least, was my daughter, Ashleigh, who's very new to the driving scene—her very first time, ever. My nerves were raging as she got behind the wheel.

She reached for the seatbelt and we all got nervous. As she put the car in drive, I kept saying to myself, "Don't panic, Kim, don't panic."

Ash gave it the gas and we were on our way around the course—no problems. If these girls are an example of the upcoming drivers we've got to face on our highways in the near future, I can tell you from first hand experience we have nothing to worry about. As long as they continue to be as cautious and pay attention at 16 as they are at eleven.

Phew! What a night.

Oh, I guess I should fess up, Spouse, we used the Maxima instead of the Prism—Not! You can breathe.

Till next week, drive safely.

MAKING GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABLE: For as long as most of us can remember, government officials have been bemoaning the rising costs of medical care. For the most part, however, they've done little about it except to raise Medicare fees and look to cut back on Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Much of the higher costs were not so much involved with the increasing use of technology—as most of us might have thought. But, instead, the costs were going up because some doctors were overcharging their Medicare patients. This fact, and other disclosures about abuses of the system were published in the American Association of Retired Persons' February, 1992 "Bulletin." That report finally goaded the Health Care Financing Administration to do what it's been empowered to do under the provisions of a bill enacted by Congress in 1989 (effective 1991) and that was to take action against doctors who overcharged.

It seems that until the spur was put to them, the agency had, instead, led doctors and insurers to believe that patients were obligated to pay all bills—even those clearly illegal!

The legislation was implemented to limit amounts charged Medicare patients by doctors who do not participate in Medicare, and do not accept Medicare's approved amount as payment in full. The new law permitted them to bill Medicare patients no more than 40 percent above Medicare's approved payment schedule for most office visits, and no more than 25 percent for other services. In 1992 the limit was reduced to no more than 20 percent above the fee schedule.

It's estimated that out of 30 million Medicare enrollees, a staggering number may have been, and may still be overcharged. A sad footnote to all this is that many people may not get refunds because the HCFA says it lacks authority to force the doctors to make repayment. However, Rep. Pete Stark (D-Calif.), cosponsor of the 1989 bill, may introduce legislation requiring reimbursement. Meanwhile, in New York, a federal judge approved the settlement of a class-action suit that will force the Social Security Administration to reopen tens of thousands of cases in which the SSA, following a directive from the Reagan administration to cut costs, denied or cut benefits to people unable to work because of mental or physical disabilities. Under the settlement terms, the SSA must write to about a quarter of a million applicants whose benefits were denied since 1981, advising them that they can now request a review of their claim.

Look for the New York case to lead to similar settlements in other jurisdictions around the country.

Traveling with diabetes
It is common knowledge that diabetes is a prevalent disease in eastern Kentucky. Many of us are either personally affected by diabetes or know someone who is. While living with diabetes often can be quite challenging, special circumstances like traveling, can further complicate matters for those with diabetes.

With summer vacation here, many people with diabetes will be engaging in more travel, making it more difficult to maintain the optimal level of care to which they are accustomed to at home. Diet management can be quite frustrating since restaurants don't normally cater to a specialized diet. With careful food selection however, people with diabetes will be able to maintain dietary requirements and at the same time, enjoy a variety of delicious and exciting foods.

The next diabetic support group meeting at Our Lady of the Way Hospital will address the topic of "Traveling With Diabetes." The meeting will be held at Seton Complex on Monday, July 27, from 1:00-2:00 p.m. Everyone is welcome! Bring your family and your friends.

Support group meetings are held monthly on the last Monday of each month and are free to all. Children and their parents are encouraged to attend, also. The support group offers valuable information on a variety of issues chosen by clients and staff. In addition, the support group offers many the added emotional support which may not be available from their physician or family. Participants have the opportunity to share thoughts, concerns, ideas and to develop new friendships, as well.

For further information regarding the Diabetes Support Group or any other health education program, contact the Community Health Education Department at Our Lady of the Way Hospital at 285-5181, ext. 388. Recipes for diabetes was taken from The Complete Diabetic Cookbook by Mary Jane Finsand, Sterling Publishing Company Inc., New York (1987).

Third birthday

Christopher Jordan celebrated his third birthday July 11 at the home of his mother, Lisa Stricklin, of Prestonsburg. A Winnie the Pooh theme was observed and guests enjoyed a barbecue followed by cake and ice cream. Guests included his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stricklin of Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Case, Brandon and Jennifer all of Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Watkins, Ray and Kalen, all of Birchleaf, Virginia; and Sharon Stricklin of Prestonsburg.

Prenatal session offered at Our Lady of the Way

Our Lady of the Way's Community Health Education Department will be having a prenatal session monthly covering common bodily changes that occur during pregnancy as well as the steps to healthy nutrition and healthy babies. Areas covered are morning sickness, backaches, proper eating patterns, normal weight gain, constipation, urinary tract infections, nutritional requirements during pregnancy, medication usage, and many other concerns.

This session is the first class of the regular childbirth preparation series. The target audience is women/couples in the early stages of pregnancy, due to the importance of sound nutrition throughout pregnancy. Research shows that babies who reach a good birth weight are more likely to be well-developed physically and mentally.

The prenatal session will be held on the first Monday of each month from 10 a.m. until noon and repeated on the first Wednesday from 6:30-8:30 p.m. at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. The next session will meet in the hospital dining room on August 5 from 6:30-8:30 p.m. A $5 fee will be charged to those participants who are not enrolled in the childbirth series.

If interested in attending this session or in registering for the childbirth series, please contact the Education Department at 285-5181, ext. 388.

Good bugs and bad bugs, learn to spot them

There are good bugs, and there are bad bugs out there in Kentucky farmers' fields. Sometimes it's hard to tell the difference, because they look alike.

One of the most beneficial is the lady beetle. These insects often are found on plants that harbor other damaging pests such as aphids, scales and mites. They eat those pests. That makes them an inexpensive and effective pest control.

Most people recognize the adult lady beetle, but many people suspect the larval stage as trouble makers. The larval stage resembles small alligators, tapered at each end with relatively long legs.

On the other hand, a country cousin to the lady beetle, the Mexican bean beetle, feeds strictly on plants in both its larval and insect forms.

Adults feed on leaves by stripping away leaf tissue between the veins. Mexican bean beetles, although a larger member of the same family as the lady beetle with similar appearance, can be a serious pest for growers of soybeans as well as snap, dry or green beans. They are orange insects with 16 black spots on their wing covers. The larvae are light orange and covered with branched spines.

For information on recommended insecticides to control the Mexican bean beetle and other insect pests, growers should contact the Floyd County Extension agent.

COOL COOLER—For picnics, I used to use a store-bought ice pack in the ice chest. Now, I just use a zipper-type recloseable plastic bag filled with ice cubes.

The water stays in the plastic bag as the ice melts, and the ice stays clean. Both the water and the ice can be used at the picnic. Jeanette R., College Park, Md.

WHAT IS GLAUCOMA?

Glaucoma is the condition of high pressure inside the eye which causes permanent damage to vision. It is one of the principal causes of blindness among adults in the United States.

The correct pronunciation is "glaw-koma". Glaucoma blinds one out of every seven blind persons over the age of 35. When vision is lost because of the damage by glaucoma, it cannot be restored.

The eyeball (globe) is inflated by the pressure of a thick jelly inside the eye, much like a basketball is inflated by air.

In the first stage of glaucoma, the pressure increases in the smaller front chamber which then presses against the larger back chamber. This in turn causes pressure against the retina which is the membrane that lines the back wall of the eye. The retina may be compared to the film of a camera.

The nerve cells in the retina produce the sensation of sight when light falls upon them and impulses are transmitted to the brain. These nerve cells require blood supply for nourishment. High pressure inside the eye slowly damages the nerve cells beginning first at the edge of the retina by cutting off the blood supply and thus cutting off the nourishment to the nerve cells. Thus side vision, known as peripheral vision, is gradually reduced beyond repair.

The latter stage of glaucoma is the condition where the continual pressure of glaucoma destroys the nerve cells in the center of the retina. This causes loss of central vision and loss of all sight.

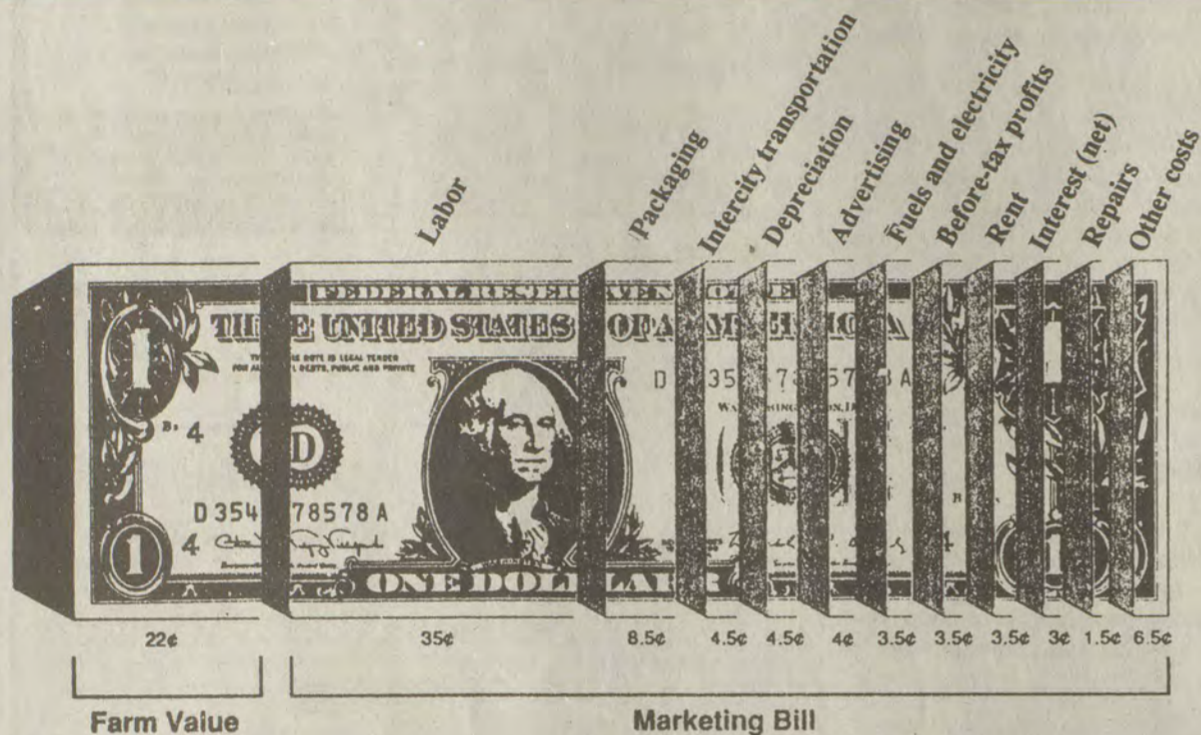

Prevention of glaucoma is very simple. During routine eye examinations the pressure of the eye is measured by a 'pressure gauge' device. This may be compared to measuring the pressure of an automobile tire. The damage to nerve cells in the retina may be kept to a minimum by detection of glaucoma pressure in its early stages.

Another test, known as a visual field, may be performed to plot the area of vision loss directly associated with nerve cell damage of the retina due to high pressure inside the eye.

If glaucoma is detected, high pressure may be controlled by use of daily glaucoma eye drops. Otherwise laser surgery may be required to enlarge small canals inside the eye to enable the excess fluid to flow out of the eye.

It is recommended that everyone have a glaucoma test yearly after the age of 35. If there is a family history of glaucoma, medicines known to increase internal eye pressure must be avoided. See your eye doctor regularly to prevent blindness.

Marketing costs chew at food dollars

With just 22 cents of each retail food dollar going to the farmer, who's getting the other 78 cents? And what are the profit margins of those who wholesale, retail, package and transport food products?

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that $361 billion of the total $462 billion spent on food last year went to pay marketing costs. That figure includes food bought for home consumption as well as restaurant purchases.

The labor bill claimed the biggest chunk of food marketing costs, totaling $163 billion, or 35 percent of total consumer spending. That was 5.8 percent higher than in 1990, despite relatively modest 2 percent earnings hikes for workers.

Packaging claimed $38 billion, or 8.5 percent of the total. Transportation costs added $20 billion or 4.5 percent of total spending, and energy expenditures reached $16 billion, 3.5 percent of consumers' outlays.

What about profits? For 34 leading food product manufacturers, their bottom line showed up at 5 percent of sales, after taxes. Food chains checked in with after-tax profits of 1.18 percent, compared to a tight 1 percent of the year before.

AMELIA EARHART BORN, JULY 24, 1898

A BRAVE WOMAN

Amelia Earhart, born in Atchison, Kansas, on July 24, 1898, is known to us as the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic. Her famous flight took place in May of 1932. After working as a nurse she learned to fly, against the wishes of her family, and was the first woman aviator to receive a pilot's license from the International Aeronautic Federation in 1923. She is credited with several other "firsts": the first woman airplane passenger to cross the Atlantic (June, 1928); the first woman to receive the National Geographic Society gold medal (June, 1932); the first nonstop transcontinental flight by a woman (August, 1932); the first woman to fly solo across the Pacific Ocean (January, 1935). In 1937 she attempted a round-the-world trip but never made it. Her plane vanished in the South Pacific on July 2.

On The House

Managing Your Biggest Investment

FINDING THE RIGHT MORTGAGE: AS IMPORTANT AS FINDING THE RIGHT HOME

by Dorothy Harris

Everybody knows that for most people and most families, buying a house requires taking out a mortgage.

What buyers too often fail to realize, however, is that finding the right mortgage can ultimately turn out to be almost as important as finding a home your family can love.

All mortgages are not created equal. And choosing a mortgage that's not well suited to your needs, your budget and even your temperament can cause you unnecessary expense, inconvenience and anxiety over a long period of years.

It's not that some mortgages are good and others are in some way intrinsically bad. But mortgages — like houses and cars and people — come in many different types. Different types exist to serve different purposes. A kind of mortgage that's perfect in some situations can make no sense at all in others.

The big variables in mortgages are the length of time you're given to repay and the rate of interest you're charged. All of us want to pay the lowest possible interest, of course, and in general most of us want to be free to repay a mortgage as slowly as we like.

That doesn't mean, though, that you should always go for the lowest rate of interest you're offered — or that you should always demand 30 years to repay.

Where interest rates are concerned, for example, you can and should tailor your mortgage to your circumstances. Your income, how much predictability you require in your life, how long you expect to stay in the house you're buying, and what you expect the economy to do in the future — all these things can and should be taken into consideration.

It's almost always possible — in the beginning, anyway — to pay lower interest by taking out an adjustable rate mortgage. With this kind of mortgage you and the lender agree to start out at one rate but to reset it at some later time depending on what happens to interest rates generally.

There's a measure of risk in this, obviously. If you're not comfortable with risk but are comfortable with the fixed rate available at the time you buy your house, you might be better off with a somewhat higher rate that will stay constant throughout the life of the mortgage.

"Semi-fixed" mortgages are an interesting alternative. With them, your interest rate is adjusted only once, usually after five or seven years. Then the rate remains constant for the remaining life of the mortgage.

Usually you can save half a point of interest with a semifixed mortgage, and the risks are minimal if you expect to be selling your house before resetting time comes around.

The most important thing is to acquaint yourself with all the alternatives, work out the numbers that apply in your case, and take the trouble to shop around. A good real estate broker can help you do all those things.

A Great Investment With NO MONEY DOWN

to qualified property owners

INSTANT FIXED-RATE 10% A.P.R. FINANCING
No "Points" or Closing Costs

A new home on your property is still a GREAT investment... for today, and for your family's future. Jim Walter Homes offers NO MONEY DOWN to qualified property owners... and 10% A.P.R. FIXED-RATE financing to ensure that your payment remains the same throughout the term of the mortgage.

Jim Walter Homes builds from the ground up, to almost any stage of completion. We'll build the shell home, completely finished outside, unfinished inside, to one that is 90% complete. You tell us where to stop, then finish all or part of the inside yourself to save money.

So if you want to build on your property, we'll start right away. Financing approval, in most cases, is within 48 hours instead of days or weeks required by many others. And, when Jim Walter builds and finances for you, forget about the additional payment of points and closing costs.

Over 30 Models
2 to 4 Bedrooms • 1, 2 & 2 1/2 Baths
1 & 2 Story Models

In addition to offering convenient financing and lowest possible prices on the homes we build, we offer a COMPLETION ALLOWANCE of up to $2,000 toward the purchase of items of permanent improvement such as well, floor covering, septic system, etc. A Jim Walter representative will gladly give you details.

*For cash payment, either down payment or total price, made at the time you agree to purchase one of our homes, we'll offer you an additional credit of 15% of the amount paid.

*These offers may be withdrawn without notice.
