New road is getting old fast for merchants

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Although motorists may be suffering from a loss of composure while waiting in the bottleneck caused by construction at the intersection of U.S. 23 and KY 114, the businesses in the Prestonsburg Village Shopping Center are suffering from a loss of customers and a loss of money.

Long lines and short tempers are causing patrons to stay away from the shopping center in droves, heaping hardship on the retailers in the center.

"Conservatively—very conservatively—business is probably down 60 percent," the manager of the Disc 'N' Dat music store said Monday. "(Last) Friday, it took 30 to 40 minutes for people to get back out of the shopping center.... A lot of people said they would not be coming back."

"It's killing us," Anita Lafferty, manager of Behr's department store, said Monday.

Lafferty said that many of the store's regular customers had decided to go to stores in Paintsville and Pikeville to do their shopping. Pat Sexton, Behr's assistant manager, said that she had seen traffic backed all around the parking lot and down the hill trying to gain access to U.S. 23. Customers may come into the plaza once, Sexton said, but they have no desire to repeat the experience.

Teresia Joseph, manager of the Artley Shop department store said that business had been down at least 49 percent and that the store had begun closing an hour earlier every day to help compensate for the loss of sales.

Business down, may get worse

Heilig-Myers manager Bob Anderson said Monday that business was down at least ten percent, but expressed concern that the situation may worsen since the bulk of the store's business is conducted during the first ten days of the month. Anderson said he only lives three miles from the store but since construction on the intersection began it takes him at least 30 minutes to get to work every day.

However, Anderson said, you have to put up with a little inconvenience for progress. Anderson said he felt that the construction workers and highway officials had arranged the best conditions they possibly could in order to get the job done.

Employees are paying, too

Tom Hutchison, co-owner of the McDonald's Restaurant franchise at Prestonsburg Village, said Wednesday that although the store has lost a great deal of business, his main concern was for the employees, people with families, who are losing work-hours and wages. Last week alone, Hutchison said, his employees lost over 1,000 man-hours.

Merchants in the Glynn View Plaza, located on Ky. 114, are suffering similar problems, Hutchison said. Food City, Rite-Aid and all the other stores in the plaza have lost a tremendous amount of business simply because potential customers don't want to fight the traffic.

In order to help his crew, Hutchison said, he and his brother/business partner Bob Hutchison had shifted as many employees as possible to their franchises in Paintsville and Pikeville.

Hutchison said that although he was happy the new road was going in and was in no way opposed to progress, he felt that the plaza merchants' needs were not taken into consideration when the intersection construction was planned.

Hutchison said he thought much of the problem could be alleviated if

School marks final year with trip down memory lane

by Ed Taylor
Times Sports Editor

Beauty queens are asked to take their final walk.

High school and college students, at graduation time, take the final walk to receive their diplomas upon finishing school.

Now, all former students, players, cheerleaders, teachers and anyone else who attended Wheelwright High School are being asked to take one more walk next Thursday, October 8, when Wheelwright High School will stage their final football homecoming in the history of the Left Beaver school.

"We're asking everyone who ever attended Wheelwright High School to join the football team at the locker rooms at the high school and walk with us down the railroad tracks to the football field one last time," said head football coach Donnie Daniels. "I used to walk the tracks myself, as many others did, when I was a kid. Weeds have grown up along the tracks but we're going to walk it anyway, all the way to the football field."

It will be homecoming night at Wheelwright and the final one for the Trojans. There will be other special events planned for the evening. The school has chosen 12 homecoming attendants this year, the most the school has ever had. The Last Trojan Walk is scheduled to get underway at 4 p.m. from the high school. Car pools will be formed to bus people back to their cars or the school after the walk.

"We just want to show our appreciation to our fans for their support over the years," explained Daniels, "and we have some other things we plan to do."

The first Wheelwright football team was formed in 1939, headed up by Walter Price. One of his players that year was the legendary Garnis Martin.

The festivities will really get underway a day earlier, Wednesday, when a parade will run from the senior citizens building to the youth center in Wheelwright. The parade will start at 4 p.m. and last until 5 p.m. Anyone who wants to be in the parade is urged to take part.

"From 1939 to 1992 Wheelwright High School has had a lot of good football players as well as teams," said Daniels. "There are a lot of memories here at Wheelwright and we want all those who have been a part of those memories to relive them

Two make Merit semis

by Willie Elliott
Contributing Writer

School systems have various ways to recognize the top academic students: classroom grades, standardized test scores, writings, and other projects. Probably the most prestigious academic accomplishment is being named a National Merit Scholar. Floyd County has two students who have reached the semifinalist round of this selection process, Lisa Hobson and Heather Watson.

Hobson, a student at McDowell High School, and Watson, a student at Allen Central, are among 15,000 semifinalists in the 1993 National Merit Scholarship Program across the country. As semifinalists, they will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 6,500 Merit Scholarships, worth over $25 million, to be awarded next spring.

More than a million juniors entered the Merit Program by taking Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests (PSAT). To qualify as a finalist, a semifinalist must have an outstanding academic record, be endorsed and recommended by the high school principal, and submit scores that confirm his or her PSAT performance.

Hobson is the 16-year-old daughter of Michael and Cora Belle Hobson of Ligon. Watson, also 16, is the daughter of Joyce and Stanton Watson of Garrett.

Floyd teen dies of injuries suffered in two-car mishap

An 18-year-old Floyd County woman was killed in a two car accident Wednesday at the intersection of KY 80 and KY 1210 at the mouth of Stephens Branch near Martin.

Jennifer L. Ousley apparently pulled into the path of a pickup truck driven by Ella C. Hamilton, 51, of Viper in Perry County while trying to make a left turn off KY 1210 at Martin, police said.

Ousley was taken to Our Lady of The Way Hospital in Martin and was transferred to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington where she died at 12:30 a.m. Thursday.

Hamilton reportedly received minor injuries in the accident.

Both drivers were wearing seatbelts.

Kentucky State Police trooper Mike Thorpe is investigating the accident. Also responding to the scene were the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad, the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and the Maytown Volunteer Fire Department.

Ousley is survived by a daughter, Whitney Louise Ousley, and her parents, Avinelle and Cecil Ousley of Manton. Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Hall Funeral Home. Burial will be made at Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

Second suit filed alleging drug Halcion responsible for suicide

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A Prestonsburg lawyer on Tuesday filed a second lawsuit in Floyd County Circuit Court against the Kalamazoo, Michigan-based UpJohn Company, the maker of the "nerve pill" Halcion, claiming the drug had driven a Garret man to take his own life.

Ned Pillersdorf, a Prestonsburg attorney, said Tuesday that Halcion had caused Luther Messer, 68, to become increasingly confused, depressed and paranoid and ultimately drove Messer to put a shotgun in his mouth and pull the trigger.

Also named in the suit are Messer's physician, Dr. Ira Potter, Dr. Virginia DeGuzman and the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Pillersdorf said Wednesday that the UpJohn Co. had lied to Food and Drug Administration and the American people by knowingly marketing a drug that caused such severe side effects and adverse reactions. The company falsified test reports of the drug, Pillersdorf said, lying about the results of one test and entirely making up another.

Pillersdorf also said that Potter had failed to familiarize himself with the potential hazards of using Halcion and had over-prescribed the drug to Messer.

Messer's widow, Delores Messer, 58, said Wednesday that prior to using Halcion, her husband had been intro-

House approves Route 23 funding

Funding to complete the four-laning of US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville was approved by the U.S. House of Representatives Thursday, but Kentucky also lost over $31 million in additional money.

Congress approved a bill which calls for $1,344,000 to finish the Prestonsburg-Paintsville highway. The same bill also had an amendment that would've provided $31,770,000 to build more roads in Kentucky, but the amendment was dropped at the insistence of President George Bush, Congressman Chris Perkins said in a press release Thursday.

Monday is last day to register to vote

Monday, October 5 is the last day to register to vote in the November 3 general election and Floyd Countians have their choice of three places to register.

Persons may register in the Floyd County Court Clerk Carla Boyd's office, WDOC radio station in Prestonsburg or at Prestonsburg Community College.

Anyone unable to go to the polls and vote in November 3 election could qualify to vote by absentee ballot. For more information contact the clerk's office at 886-3816.

Boysen will head public input session

Kentucky Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen will conduct a public hearing Tuesday, October 6 at the Jenny Wiley Convention Center to hear citizen's comments on the Floyd County Board of Education's short term plan for improvement.

The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. and is expected to last for two hours.

Development director named to state panel

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

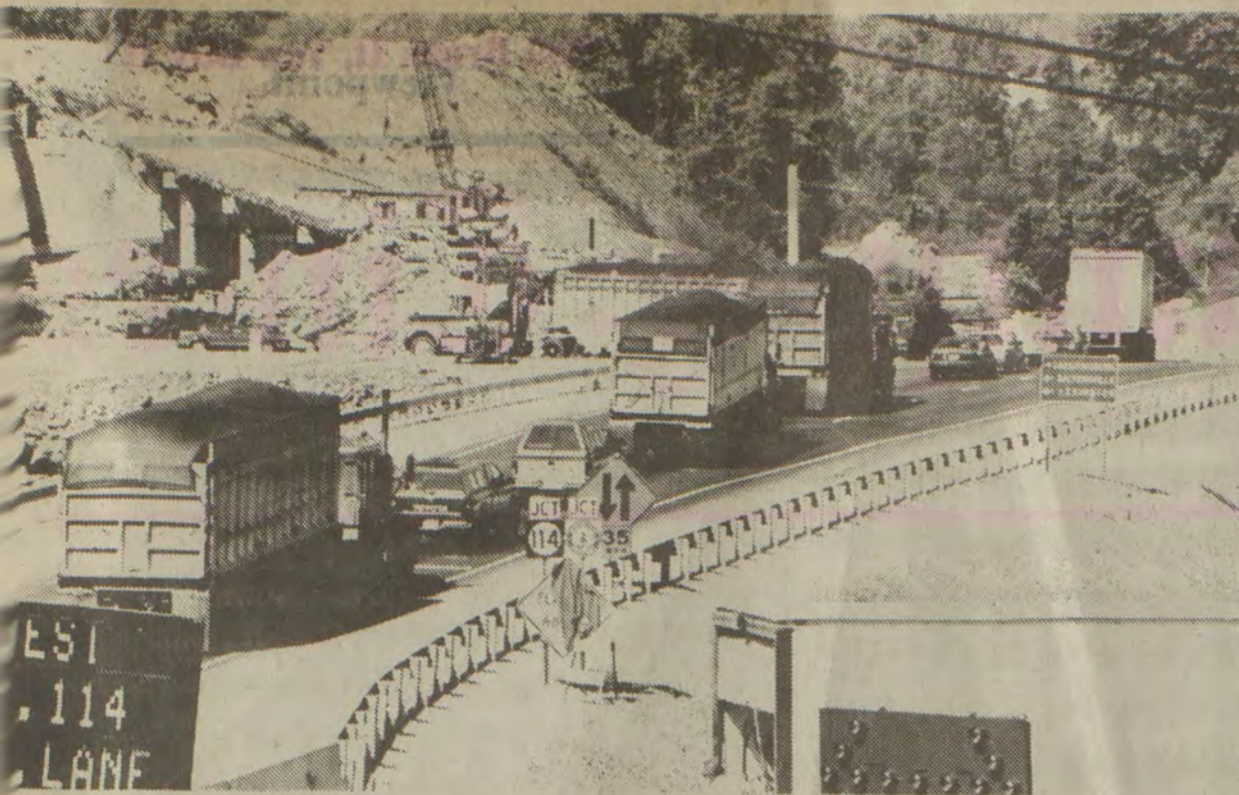

Darrell Gilliam, executive director of the Floyd County Development Authority, was one of eight Kentuckians appointed Thursday to the board of Governor Breton Jones' new Economic Development Partnership.

The Economic Development Partnership, established in the 1992 legislative session of the General Assembly, will be responsible for governing the Cabinet for Economic Development and will name a five-member Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority, which will merge and supersede the Kentucky Development Finance Authority and the Kentucky Rural Economic Development Authority.

One of the Partnership's first responsibilities will be to begin work on a five to ten year strategic economic development plan for the state, which is to be completed by July 14 of next year.

Also appointed to the board of the Economic Development Partnership were T. William Samuels, president of Maker's Mark Distillery in Oldham; William T. Young, chairman of the board of W.T. Young, Incorporated in Lexington; David Garvin, founder and chairman of the board of Camper World in Bowling Green; Margaret Greene, president of South Central Bell's Kentucky Division in Louisville; William R. Sprague, president of the Kentucky Farm Bureau in Union County; James K. Phillips, a chemical worker for Air Products and Chemicals, Inc. in Calvert City; and Richard E. Searles, vice president to the Clarion Manufacturing Corporation of America in Walton.

Road going up, business going down

Construction on the intersection of U.S. 23 and Ky. 114 has created a bottleneck that is delaying traffic so badly that businesses near the intersection are losing customers by the truckload. A highway department spokesman said that work on the intersection may take another two weeks. (photo by Geoff Belcher)

New Road

the traffic lights at the intersection were better synchronized and if the state highway department opened the south-bound lane of U.S. 23 straight to the road that leads to the shopping center.

Henry Mayo, Main Street Manager for the city of Prestonsburg, said

Thursday that although it is unfortunate that the Prestonsburg Village and the Glynn View Plaza shops were suffering from the construction, there is some consolation.

Other Prestonsburg merchants, such as the Sav-More and Food Lyon grocery stores, the Sundry Store and almost all of the downtown merchants are experiencing a tremendous upsurge in sales.

Steve Reach, of the Lexington-based Reach Commercial Assets Group, which rents space to the retailers in Prestonsburg Village, said Tuesday that all the stores in the center, including Wal-Mart and Winn-Dixie, had suffered losses of at least 35 percent.

Reach said that the traffic situation had gotten so bad that some of the retailers had worked together to have a temporary access road from U.S. 23 on the east side of the Super 8 Motel so their employees would not have to wait in traffic so long.

Reach said that his main concern was that the smaller "mom & pop" stores in the plaza would not be able to weather the lack of sales and be forced to close. He credited the recent closure of Radio Shack partially to construction on U.S. 23.

Reach added that the city of Prestonsburg and Floyd County would also suffer financially because of the construction, due to the loss of wages and taxes.

The Reach Commercial Assets Group had been under the assumption that the construction project had been methodically planned out, with alternate access and egress routes included to avoid the bottleneck that has formed, Reach said.

He and his associates have employed Thomas Bullit of the Lexington-based law firm Bullit, Kincaid, Irvin and Reinhart to negotiate with the transportation and highway departments to reach some sort of solution.

Bullit will meet with the departments soon, Reach said, to request that they install some kind of access road to the shopping center for immediate relief.

Roope named to advisory council

Donna R. Roope, an employee of the Bank Josephine, has been appointed to a statewide advisory council on substance abuse and pregnancy.

Roope will serve on the newly formed council for one year along with the health professionals, business executives, government officials, human services professionals and community organization leaders from across Kentucky.

The council was formed to advise three Lexington organizations—United Way of the Bluegrass, the Woman's Center of Central Kentucky, and Bloomsbury Communication, a communications research organization—that are joining forces to organize a statewide awareness campaign on substance abuse and pregnancy.

The campaign will focus on reducing the incidence of birth defects and infertility problems that occur as a result of substance abuse. The project is funded by the state Division of Substance Abuse and the Developmental Disabilities Council.

"We're delighted to have representation on the council from all parts of the state," said Alayne White, executive director of the Woman's Center of Central Kentucky and project director for the campaign. "Substance abuse during pregnancy is not only an urban problem; it's a problem for the entire state."

Campaign organizers plan to develop a television public service announcement, print educational materials and establish a 24-hour hotline. The advisory council will work together through the fall of 1993, advising the agencies on the direction of the campaign and identifying ways to reach target audiences.

verted but the drug had made the problem much worse.

He became extremely depressed, shutting himself up in the house and not wanting visitors, Delores said. She added that he also talked frequently about becoming a burden to their two sons.

"It's hard to believe that a small pill could bring such drastic consequences," Delores said.

Messer had been hospitalized for an apparent Halcion overdose, Delores said, and the doctors had taken him off the medication abruptly even though patients are supposed to be weaned from it gradually. Also, she said, no psychological follow-up exam was ordered even though the physicians knew Messer was experiencing extreme depression.

Three days later, on October 7, 1991, he was dead.

Delores said that even before the medication had been prescribed to her husband, it had been taken off the market in some European countries because it had proven to cause suicidal tendencies in the elderly.

"I'd just like the public to scrutinize all medication given to the elderly... to make sure it isn't Halcion," Delores said. "If it is, ask (the doctor) to prescribe something else."

One of the most extraordinary aspects of this case, Pillersdorf said, was that to his knowledge, this is only the second Halcion-related lawsuit to be filed. Both cases have been in Floyd County and both have been represented by Pillersdorf, along with his cousin, New York City, New York attorney Gary Pillersdorf.

On January 30 of this year, Pillersdorf filed a lawsuit against the UpJohn Company on behalf of Mary Ann Johnson, of Weeksbury, who claimed that Halcion had caused her husband Billy Virgil Johnson to commit suicide.

According to Johnson, her husband had been prescribed Halcion and became increasingly paranoid until he became convinced that there was an FBI conspiracy against him, locked himself in his bedroom and shot himself in the stomach. That suit is still pending.

Pillersdorf said Wednesday that he had asked Floyd Circuit Court to consolidate both cases.

We don't have to guess who... We know it's you! Johnny Marcum!

Highlands offers cancer screening

"In my mind, I just knew it was cancer," is how Sandy May of Staffordsville explained her feeling about tests performed after she experienced cramping, diarrhea, weight loss and blackouts. "It's like the Lord just said go have these tests run."

But after surgery to remove a precancerous mass on her colon, May is a firm believer in early detection. "I would urge anyone that has symptoms to go to a physician and have tests run because it could be cancer," she said. "Cancer develops years before you know that you've got it. Cancer strikes. There's no age for it. And there's a lot of colon cancer in the world today."

"I'm just sorry I put it off so long," May continued. "I went back for my six month checkup last fall and everything was great. I just feel great right now."

As 39-year-old Sandy May said, there's no specific age for cancer. But a majority of colorectal cancer cases occur after the age of 50. It occurs slightly more often among women than men. Anyone with a personal history of colorectal cancer, polyps in the colon or ulcerative colitis, is at particularly high risk.

According to the American Cancer Society, cancer of the colon and rectum is one of the most curable when detected early and treated promptly. More than three-quarters of all such patients can be cured and are able to return to normal lives.

Three effective tests can detect colorectal cancer and should be performed at the following intervals:

1. A digital rectal examination every year after 40.
2. A stool blood test every year after 50
3. A sigmoidoscopy examination every three to five years after the age of 50, based on the advice of a physician.

These guidelines only apply to people without symptoms. If you have a change in bowel habits or rectal bleeding, see your doctor right away.

Through Oct. 31, Highlands Regional, is offering cancer screenings and a free cancer risk test at the following locations. Watch local newspapers for special discount coupons, including a coupon for a free fecal occult blood screening.

You break it, you buy it

by Scott Perry

If we want to dance to the music of education reform in Floyd County, we have to pay the piper, at least one member of the board has suggested.

The repairs needed for the local system are gonna cost somebody, might as well be the taxpayers, right? Wrong.

We didn't see one word in the state Department of Education report on an investigation into the Floyd school system which suggested that a lack of money was the root of the system's woes.

What we did see was a whole mess of words suggesting that the school system's leadership was a mess.

In the business world, there's a simple rule that governs day-to-day management...

You break it, you buy it.

So, if there's any anteing-up to be done to fix the breakage in the educational system in Floyd County, it stands to reason that the bill ought to be paid by the bulls who have been roaming freely through the china shop.

That's not the Floyd County taxpayers who, for the most part, haven't even been allowed in the store.

What a pal!

It's been almost a year since Floyd County voters gave Brereton Jones his largest margin of victory among Kentucky's 120 counties.

To show his gratitude, Jones has favored us with a thumbs-down on a proposed harness racing track in Prestonsburg and a mountain of red tape to threaten a proposed mountaintop golf course.

To the Guv's credit, he apparently did live up to one campaign promise...to name one of his horses after the county which gave him the sweetest victory in last November's gubernatorial race.

Somewhere out there there's a thoroughbred named "Floyd County," stuck, no doubt, in the starting gate.

Next on the EPA hit list: the family lawn mower

by Randall Eiger and Michael T. Folie

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has a long record of meddling in the economy at the expense of businesses and consumers, but recently it administered the "coup de grace"—or maybe that should be "cut the grass," because the family lawn mower is the latest target of the EPA pollution police.

What has this defenseless household machine done to arouse the wrath of the mandarins at the EPA? Well, it runs on an internal combustion engine, like cars, trucks, trains and planes do, and although most lawn mowers are smaller than your average 747 jumbo jet, at the EPA, an engine is an engine is an engine.

Nobody has good figures on how many power mowers actually are operating or how often they run. Few people mow the lawn as often as they drive their car—unless they have some kind of lawn-mower fetish. In the winter, with a few inches or feet of snow on the ground, mowing the lawn can get very messy.

But absurdity never has stopped the EPA from acting. The EPA even has proposed a study to determine the possible health effects of showering. Maybe the logic is, if you don't cut the grass, you won't need to take a shower.

As this is being written, EPA staff members are eagerly driving to work in their cars, flying to meetings on jets and sending reports here and there on express delivery trucks—developing standards designed to stamp out power lawn mowers.

For your faithful little mower to meet proposed EPA standards, lawn-mower manufacturers will have to modify their engines—change the design of combustion chambers and design engines to run on a more efficient fuel-air mix. It is yet to be determined if there will be lawn-mower police dispatched to do Saturday afternoon spot "breathalyzer" checks on rogue lawn mowers suspected of exceeding the standards.

Perhaps all this is not such a bad thing. Everyone wants clean air. But is the lawn-mower campaign necessary? Does it justify the costs, not only in bureaucratic time and energy, but also those that will be imposed on the mower companies and passed along to consumers in the form of higher prices for their Toros and Lawboys? No one has the answer, and the EPA hasn't even bothered to ask.

The whole knock against bureaucracies like the EPA is not that they're bad guys with evil intentions, but that they won't sit down and calculate costs versus benefits. They are more than willing to mandate a tiny benefit and force someone else to pay the huge cost—usually businesses and consumers.

In a year when a Philippine volcano has lowered the average global temperature by 2 degrees, and Kuwait suffers the effects of oil fields set afire by Saddam Hussein, the EPA's focus on lawn mowers is understandable. Compared to volcanoes, lawn mowers are easy targets.

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Kentucky's shame

For the second time in as many months, Kentucky's failure to meet the needs of its young people has been made painfully clear by the results of a national study.

First came a Children's Defense Fund report that found 10 Kentucky counties where the under-18 poverty rate in 1989 was 47 percent or higher.

Now comes word from the U.S. Department of Education that Kentucky's dropout rate for 1990—a dreadful 13 percent—was the eighth worse in the nation.

The link between the two studies is fairly clear. For example, McCreary County, which had an under-18 poverty rate of 57 percent in 1989, had a 31 percent dropout rate in 1990.

In Magoffin County, where the child poverty rate was 48 percent, the dropout rate was 30 percent.

The simple truth is that for many of Kentucky's kids, poor performance in the classroom is a direct function of growing up in poverty.

And kids who struggle in the classroom today—particularly in the lower grades—can easily fall into a cycle of failure and become the dropouts of tomorrow.

Fortunately, not all the news from the education department report—which was based on 1990 census data—is negative.

While the state's national dropout ranking is a disgrace, it must be noted that the actual dropout rate declined significantly from the 21 percent registered in 1980.

Still, Kentucky cannot establish a vibrant, internationally competitive economy when 13 out of every 100 people between the ages of 16 and 19 fail to earn a high school diploma.

Lowering that number will take the combined efforts of government, educators, the business community and many others, and that effort clearly must include lifting kids out of poverty.

School reform still supported

A University of Kentucky survey has found that the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act still enjoys a solid base of support among state residents.

Good.

The more Kentuckians who support reform, the less urge legislators will have to tinker with the law before it has had time to take full effect.

The random sample of 664 Kentuckians found that 54 percent either strongly or somewhat support school reform.

Two-thirds of the respondents said they believe KERA will increase student competitiveness in the job market and that school-based councils will lead to improved decisions.

The weakest support was for the primary grade mandated by the act. About 40 percent said they thought the elimination of grade-level designations for children in kindergarten through third grade would result in improved education.

The weaker support for the primary concept is not surprising, since it is perhaps the most dramatic, visible change mandated by the law.

Many parents—and some teachers—still are not convinced the idea will improve instruction.

Given a chance, the primary system will work. It has elsewhere, and it can in Kentucky.

KERA calls for the most dramatic changes that will have ever occurred in public education in Kentucky.

There is always a certain amount of fear, uncertainty and opposition (with) such change(s).

But the survey results indicate that a majority of Kentuckians recognize the need for improvement in our public schools and are willing to give the reforms time to work.

Kentucky is on the right tract. Stay the course. (The Ashland Daily Independent)

DEBATES ABOUT DEBATES

George Bush says he wants to debate. Bill Clinton says he wants to debate. Certainly the American electorate wants—and deserves—a debate. Why, then, was the presidential exchange scheduled for next week in Michigan abruptly canceled?

The specific reason is that President Bush rejected the carefully developed format proposed by the bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates. The broader reason is that, as has occurred every four years since 1960, the candidates are sparring for advantage over the terms of the debates.

In this round, the burden rests on Bush to break the impasse.

Clinton accepted the commission's plan for three 90-minute presidential debates and one vice presidential debate. That might have been expected, considering that a challenger generally benefits more, and risks less, in debating a sitting president.

Nonetheless, if Bush genuinely wants to debate his opponent, as he did in 1988, he will have to reconsider the commission's plan or offer an alternative acceptable to both sides. Such a format could be worked out through negotiations between the Bush and Clinton camps. But, to date, Bush-Quayle campaign chairman Robert Teeter has been more inclined to stiff-arm the commission and issue ultimatums to the Clinton-Gore campaign than to engage in good-faith bargaining.

The simple, straightforward format devised by the commission had much to recommend itself. But the key point is that debates of some kind should be held.

The commission proposal was intended precisely to eliminate the quadrennial partisan wrangling that surrounds debates. The panel was established in 1987 with the backing of both parties; its co-chairmen are Frank Fahrenkopf, former head of the Republican National Committee, and Paul Kirk, former head of the Democratic National Committee.

Under the commission's plan, the candidates would appear in a setting close to a true debate. The encounter would be conducted by a single moderator, who would pose the questions and ask follow-ups.

This approach would overcome many of the drawbacks of recent presidential debates. Those were more like complicated dual press conferences held before a panel of journalists who consumed much of the allotted time and often jumped from one prepared question to the next without following up adequately on previous answers. This format also would better provide for unadorned, face-to-face exchanges, giving voters a unique opportunity to size up the two candidates and their competing ideas.

In the last 30 years, debates have become a staple of American presidential campaigns. More than any other forum, they help define the essence of the choice faced by voters.

As the training contender, the president could make good use of debates to get his message across to voters. That's why it would serve his interests, as well as Clinton's, to come to terms on a format. If the candidates fail to do so, the real loser will be the democratic process.

Guilty verdict in murder trial results in court outburst

A guilty verdict and a recommendation of life in prison last Wednesday for a Martin County man, convicted of the stomping death of his girlfriend's two-year-old son, resulted in a courtroom outburst that saw one family member jailed and another taken to the hospital.

After two days of testimony, a Johnson County jury deliberated only one and one half hours before finding William James "Bo" McNeeley, 23, of Beauty, guilty of murdering two-year-old Sherman Jay Newsome on January 20, 1992.

Members of the McNeeley family, upset with the verdict, became disruptive. Police officers, already in the courtroom, were met with resistance when they tried to bring order to the courtroom. The outburst continued into the hallway, down the stairway and ended on the courthouse lawn.

McNeeley's wife, Vernia, was transported by ambulance to a local hospital after having a seizure. McNeeley's father, 47-year-old James C. McNeeley, was taken to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center and booked on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. — Mountain Citizen, Inez

Virgie woman convicted in plot to kill husband

A jury Wednesday convicted an Eastern Kentucky woman of talking her 15-year-old son into killing her husband for a $100,000 insurance policy, a crime for which the son was never charged.

The Pike Circuit Court jury deliberated about 45 minutes before finding Draxie Elizabeth Thacker, of Virgie, guilty of complicity in the May 1986 murder of Ansel Thacker. Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Rick Bartley agreed to accept the minimum 20-year sentence, and Judge Bayard Collier scheduled formal sentencing for November.

Thacker's Jeep backed over the side of a hill, and Pike County Coroner Charles Morris had declared the death an accident. But Morris testified during the trial that officials at a hospital morgue later found a .22 caliber bullet wound over Thacker's right eyebrow.

Bartley said he wanted to charge Draxie Thacker's son from a previous marriage with the crime. But he said a law in place at the time would not have allowed the son to be tried as an adult without a prior felony conviction. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Jailed agent's bankruptcy stymies wrongful-death suit

Former FBI Agent Mark Putnam has filed for bankruptcy, putting an indefinite hold on a wrongful-death lawsuit by the family of the pregnant informant he confessed to killing, attorneys said Tuesday.

The lawsuit, which the family of Susan Daniels Smith filed in 1990, was scheduled to go to trial Tuesday in Pike Circuit Court.

Putnam, 33, a Connecticut native who was stationed in the FBI's Pikeville office, confessed in June 1990 that he had killed the Freeburn woman on June 8, 1989. Putnam said he strangled Smith, 28, in a fit of rage after she threatened to tell his wife and superiors that she was four months pregnant with his child.

In exchange for leading authorities to the body, Putnam was allowed to plead guilty to first-degree manslaughter. He is serving a 16-year sentence at a federal prison in Minnesota. — Appalachian News Express

Sodomy law ruling may overturn Pike convictions

The sodomy convictions of a fired state trooper and a former Pike County school official may be thrown out after a ruling last week by the Kentucky Supreme Court.

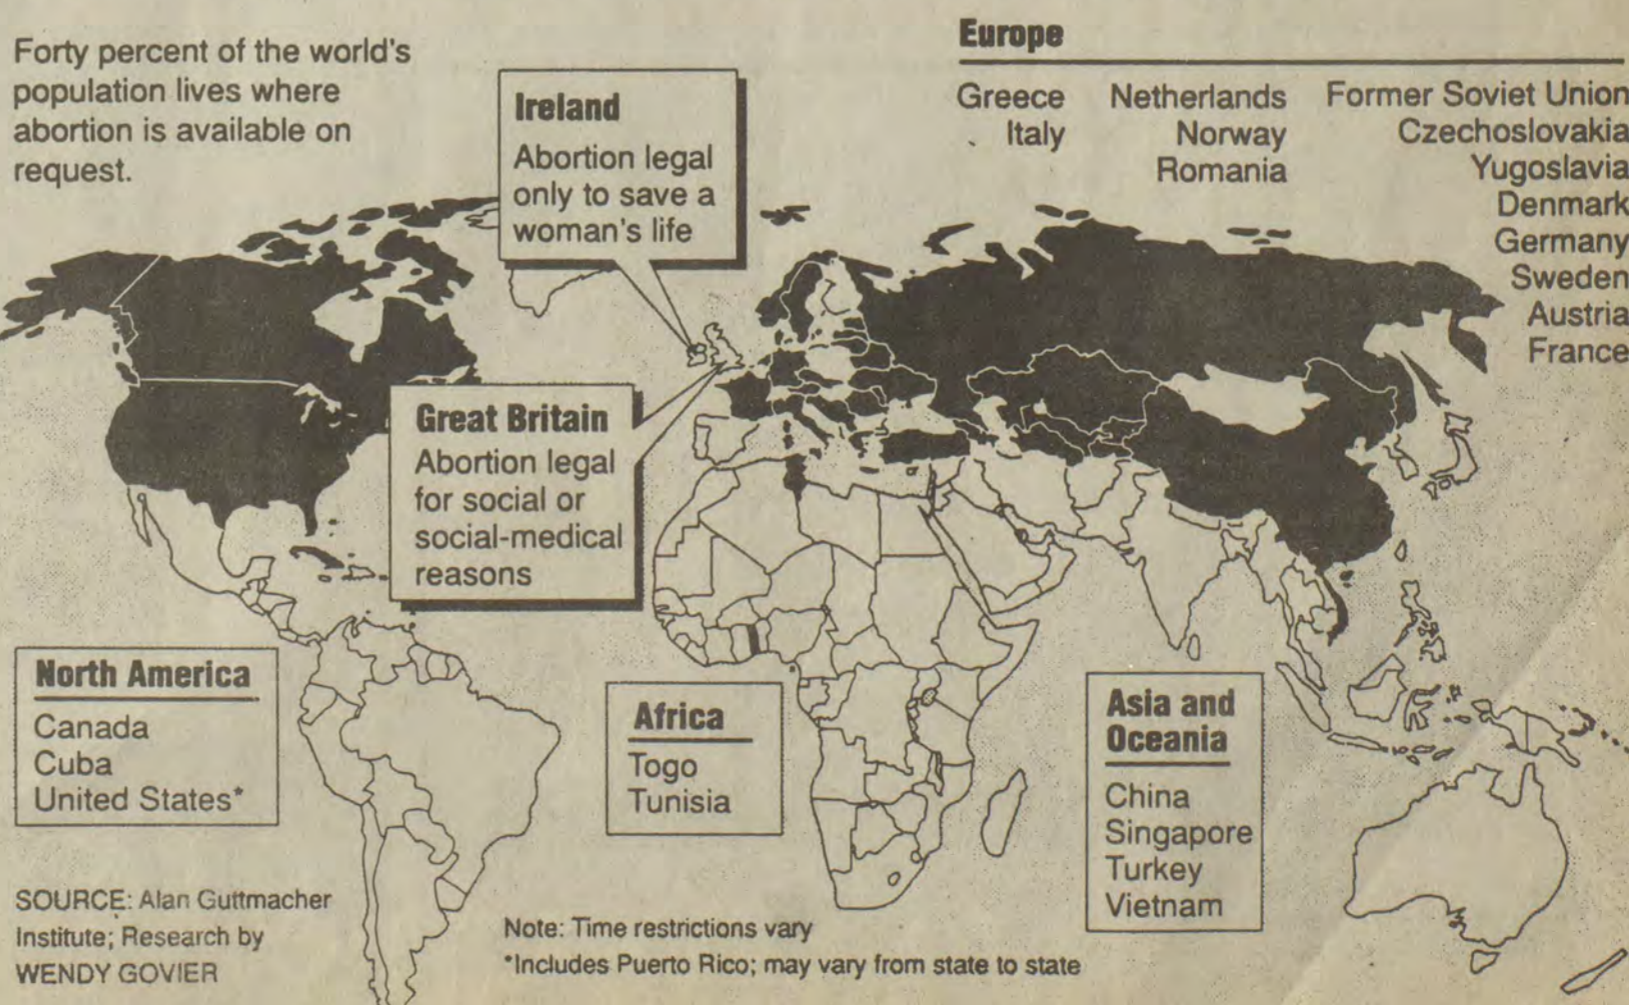

The high court ruled the state's sodomy law unconstitutional because it unfairly singled out gays for punishment. The 4-3 ruling was based on the court's interpretation of privacy rights.

Former Pikeville trooper Jerome Martin and retired Johns Creek High Assistant Principal Tim Branham were convicted by a Pike District Court jury of fourth-degree sodomy in March 1991 after the mother of another trooper testified she saw Branham performing oral sex on Martin in Martin's cruiser.

A state police trial board found Martin guilty of the act and dismissed him. His appeal of that action is still pending in Franklin Circuit Court, but Martin's attorney, Earl Mullins, said he does not believe the Supreme Court's action will have much impact on that appeal. — Appalachian News Express

Two mining companies awards college scholarships

A record total of 61 children and spouses of employees of Golden Oak and Big Elk Creek mining companies have been awarded college scholarships for the 1992 fall semester.

The scholarships total $21,250 and the 61 students are enrolled at ten colleges and universities and three vocational schools. The scholarship recipients represent eight Kentucky counties and one lives in Wise, Virginia.

Eighteen of the recipients are attending the Hazard County College, with 13 enrolled at the Southeast Community College, nine at Morehead State University, five at Alice Lloyd College, three at the University of Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky University, two at Pikeville College, and one each at Lincoln Memorial University (Tennessee), Clinch Valley College (Virginia), and Prestonsburg Community College.

Golden Oak and Big Elk have been providing the scholarships to all children and spouses of employees since the fall of 1990. Approximately 256 scholarships have been awarded in the amount of $90,000 during this period.

The scholarship program, unique because all employee children and spouses are eligible for scholarships which are renewable as long as the student is in good academic standing, was begun in 1990. All children or spouses of people who have been employed by Golden Oak or Big Elk Creek for one year are eligible.

Thirty-three scholarships were awarded the first semester with almost twice that number being awarded this semester.

The scholarships are $1,000 a year for students attending four-year colleges and $500 a year for those attending two-year colleges.

Letcher County has the largest number of students with 34, followed by Perry with 12, Knott six, Leslie three, Floyd two, and Pike, Harlan and Woodford with one each.

The two Golden Oak and Big Elk scholarship recipients from Floyd County and the institutions they attend are Carrie Reid, Prestonsburg Community College, and John Paul Stone, Pikeville College.

Memories of Auxier Grade School

by Gertie McKenzie

The first school in Auxier was an el-shaped wooden two-room school with sliding partitions.

Each morning the partitions were opened and chapel was held before classes began. Water was carried to the school each day and it was heated by coal and wood burning pot bellied stoves.

A third room was later added and another teacher was hired to help the two teachers who were presently teaching.

The three-room school was torn down in order to build a new brick one. While the new school was under construction, school was held in three different locations in Auxier:

- The late Molly Burchett's house, located beside Lynn's Country Store, formerly known as Clem Stambaugh and Wells' Grocery;

- James "Dee" Caudill, house in which he and family now reside; and
- Auxier United Methodist Church, where small children were taught.

The new brick school was built and janitored by a man named Samp Johnson. Mr. Johnson lived across the R.R. tracks from T.A. Patton's Company Store in which Wade Diddle and family now reside.

Johnson would go to the school early each morning to build the fires and he would then return home. One morning after Mr. Johnson's daily task and returned home, the school caught fire and burned down.

A second brick building was constructed in 1927 and is now the present Auxier Consolidated School.

There were eight grades taught until the second brick building was built and then the High School was consolidated with the grade school.

The first high school teacher's name was Ms. Odor. It's said that students were required to take Latin as one of their subjects because she was very limited in what she could teach.

The Auxier School today consists of eight teachers, four teacher's aides, one library aid, 142 children.

All past and present students and teachers have many fond memories of the Auxier School. To preserve the history of the school, former students need to keep their memories alive and relate them to their children.

Flag raised

After an absence of several years, Wheelwright High School again has a flagpole complete with a flag! Ben Bowling, parent of a Wheelwright High School student painted the flagpole and installed pulleys for the raising of the flag. With the student body in attendance, the four World War II veterans: Mickey Little, George Faine, John Branham and Everett Hall, raised the flag given to the school by Congressman Chris Perkins. The student council led the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance. (photo by Shawn Curry Hamilton)

On the 4th Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each September, hundreds of people gather in Minnie, for the New Salem Association of the Old Regular Baptist Church. There are 56 churches in Kentucky and a few churches in Ohio. However, people from correspondence associations come in to the New Salem Association, as well.

Buster Turner from Minnie, Kentucky, explained, "Friday and Saturday are mostly for business. On Friday, the delegates from all 56 churches elect a moderator, assistant moderator, clerk and assistant clerk. Each church in the association sends three delegates and an alternate. Each delegate gets one vote." Turner said the delegates try to work out any problems that have arisen in each church in the past year. The elected officers serve for one year, from association to association.

Many people come in RV's which they park on the grounds of the association building. Often, these people come on the Sunday before the association. Turner said that another association is held on the 3rd weekend in September in Pike County and those people just come over and vacation for a week. He said that most of the campers are retired and just like to come in and visit. This year, campers came from Florida, Ohio, Washington state, and all around the South.

Kathryn Youmans said, "I think the association is the highlight of the year. It's a tradition. It keeps us in touch with our ancestors. I always look forward to the association. It's just good preaching and good food."

There is a lunchroom located in the association building. The members of the churches spend many long hours in the kitchen to prepare food for the enormous crowds. Their work is much appreciated.

Bobbie Blackburn of Drift remarked, "The Association is a lot of work for the people involved. They start preparing months in advance. It is great, though. The association is like a big family reunion where everyone comes in to hear preaching and singing."

One millionth blood donation

Central Kentucky Blood Center has reached a significant milestone. One million blood donations have been made with CKBC since its doors first opened in 1968. In recognition of this historic event, CKBC honored its One Millionth Blood Donor, Mike Hampton. Hampton became CKBC's One Millionth Donor on August 25, when he participated in a blood drive sponsored by Kentucky Department of Highways in Manchester, where he is employed as a draftsman. He is a five gallon donor and donates both at the workplace and community blood drives in Clay County. As the One Millionth Donor, Hampton received two round-trip airline tickets good for anywhere in the continental United States compliments of American Eagle/American Airlines and a $200 shopping spree donated by Central Kentucky Blood Center.

BICENTENNIAL CHRONICLE

The Rogue's Gallery: Harpe Brothers Spread Brutality

A savage thirst for blood and a deep-rooted malevolence against human nature are traits that characterized Micajah and Wiley Harpe, known respectively as "Big Harpe" and "Little Harpe."

The Harpes terrorized travelers in Kentucky and Tennessee in 1798-99, robbing and killing indiscriminately. While honest, hardworking settlers were carving communities out of the wilderness, the Harpes were busy slaughtering the population. Historians credit the Harpes with 35-50 murders.

One favorite, gory stunt was to cut open a victim's stomach, fill it with rocks, and sink the body in the nearest river.

Born in North Carolina, the Harpes were loyal to the British during the Revolutionary War. After the war, the Harpes were subjected to persecution from their neighbors, most of whom were colonists. The Harpes themselves, and later historians, have cited the atmosphere of hatred the murderers grew up in as one reason for their bloody careers.

Around 1800, Micajah was killed in Muhlenberg County by the husband of one of his victims. Big Harpe's head was severed and placed in a tree at a Webster County crossroads as a warning to other outlaws. Wiley fled to Natchez, Mississippi, where he was later executed.

Class reunion

Who are you? Guess who? Where's that book? This was the way the conversation went at the May Lodge the weekend of August 28 and 29. The who were members of the 1954 Prestonsburg graduating class. The book referred to the 1954 year book which was needed to help classmates recognize each other because most of them were being reunited again for the first time in thirty-eight years. The halls rang with shouts and laughter as classmates recognized each other and shared remembered stories. Classmates from California, Texas, Alabama, Georgia, Indiana and many different areas around Kentucky shared two days of such joyful camaraderie. Pictures and letters from other classmates who were unable to attend the reunion were enjoyed by all.

In Tune

A generation apart

by Courtney Cieslak, Steve Hall, Curt Hall,
and Jeff Dye

When a conversation takes place between a teen and a parent, may interesting things be learned. Last week Mr. Elliott's media class interviewed their parents. Even though it was different, the students discovered many interesting things in the fields of music, clothes, education, and personal interest.

Is there any difference between the music of today and the music of yesterday? The only big difference between the two would be the language and sexual topics. Music of yesterday didn't have explicit lyrics as some of the music today. Sex was only insinuated in yesterday's music; whereas, in today's music it is blatantly sung.

The clothes our parents wore were outrageous. Bell-bottom pants and shirts with butterfly collars were just a couple of styles they wore. Today we wear blue jeans and t-shirts. This might sound like something our parents wore, but believe me, it wasn't. Teens today would not be caught dead in a pair of bell-bottoms.

Education was the big subject with most of our parents. They want the best possible education for their kids. Most parents didn't work hard in school while others feel they worked to the best of their potential. All parents agree that they want the best possible education for their kids.

Although today's teens may participate in a few things their parents did, they are not able to enjoy the whole range of entertainment areas. There's still a movie theater in Prestonsburg, but there isn't one in Drift or Martin as there was in the 60's. Once in a while one will see something floating in the creek; however, it probably won't be a young kid playing there as it was years ago. Is the damage to the environment caused by a lack of concern or a gap between generations. Maybe all teens should sit down and talk to their parents.

F.H.A. executive council meets

The Allen Central Chapter of Future Homemakers of America's executive council met on September 10 at 3 p.m. in the home economics room. The officers were excited and looked forward to planning upcoming events for the 1992-93 school year.

The main focus of the meeting centered on selection of goals for the upcoming year. The officers planned fundraisers, talked about upcoming community events and filled two open offices.

Other business conducted at the meeting included plans for the first meeting to be held October 12. Talk of a parent/member banquet was also discussed. The events planned seem fun and exciting. They hope to involve all that are interested.

AC Beta Club elects officers

The Allen Central Beta Club is looking forward to a very exciting and productive year. The club will be doing those things they do each year—contributing each year to the Kosair's Children's Hospital, the Hospice Organization of Floyd County and to the Scrubby Bear program at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

The Beta Club also has a special project for the school each year. Last year the club replaced the fence near the front entrance. This year the club will be contributing to the T.V. lab that is being developed in the media center. The Beta Club hopes to outfit the lab totally before the year is out. It will be available for all teachers and classes to use for any special projects they may plan.

The only fundraiser to do these things is the annual orange sales—so members will call on everyone around November to buy oranges. Beta Club officers for the 1992-93 school year are president, David Baker; vice-president, Evelyn Howard; secretary, Donetta Marín; and treasurer, Tracy Hicks.

Friends

Garrett Volunteer Fire Department visited Duff Elementary to participate in the community workers program. This program was part of a thematic unit on "Friends." The fire department brought their fire truck, ambulance, and equipment to share with the children. They also discussed the safety procedures to follow in case of a fire. The children were enthusiastic and the day was a very productive and enriching experience. Firefighters participating were Terry Triplett, Randy Bentley, Ricky Bentley, and George Vanover.

Fresh faces at Allen Central High School

There are several new faces on the staff at Allen Central this year. These new faces include Marjorie Burke, Phillip Price, Gwen Williams, Tammy Mullins and Cindy Hughes. There are also two students teachers at Allen Central, Jack Calhoun and Sandy Collett.

Marjorie Burke is the new math and science teacher. She teaches Algebra, Introduction to Chemistry and Physics, and Chemistry. Miss Burke is a 1992 graduate of Alice Lloyd College. This is her first year of teaching. She seems to be getting into the school spirit at AC as she has already sponsored the Girls' Varsity Cheerleading Squad.

The new Geography and U.S. History teacher at AC this year is Phillip Price. Price is returning to the classroom this year after teaching home bound instruction. He is a graduate of Wayland High School and Morehead State University. He started teaching in 1968.

Transferring from Martin Elementary this year is Gwen Williams. She teaches Health and Psychology/Sociology. Although this is her first time at AC, she previously taught Social Studies at Maytown High School. She attended PCC for two years and then transferred to Morehead State University where she obtained a Bachelor's and Master's Degree in teaching. She has been teaching for 20 years.

Also new to the staff is Cindy Hughes. Mrs. Hughes teaches deaf education, which she taught at Duff Elementary last year. She is originally from Illinois, where she attended Illinois State University and obtained a Bachelor's Degree in deaf education. She then moved to Kentucky where she earned a Master's in elementary teaching from Morehead State University.

Tammy Mullins is another new face this year. She is a remedial English teacher and also teaches at Wheelwright High School. This is her first year of teaching after graduating from Pikeville College.

Allen Central also has two student teachers, Jack Calhoun and Sandy Collett.

Calhoun is student teaching for Mr. Jamerson. He attends Alice Lloyd College where he is working on a degree in physical education for grades K-12. He is from Grayson, where he attended East Carter High School. He says he wanted to become a physical education teacher because he has always enjoyed sports.

Collett is a student teacher for Mrs. Slone. She also attends Alice Lloyd College.

A B C S OF EDUCATION

by Jennifer Little

In the last column, we noted that parent involvement in the child's life is one way to eliminate the bad effects of peers. Peers, or friends, can also be a positive influence in your child's life. Many children spend time with their friends because their home life is less than happy. They avoid being at home because they want to find love and acceptance somewhere, perhaps at your home.

Many people do not realize how terrible it can be to be a child. The world is full of people telling them what they can and cannot do every hour of every day. Children are raised to become adults, but how often do we give the child a chance to practice the values and beliefs he or she has been taught by us? By allowing the child the chance to practice his or her values and beliefs, we provide opportunities to discuss consequences and results.

Only by practicing making decisions can a child become a good decision maker. Allow your child to make decisions. Set up opportunities every chance you get. It is quite easy to do. Whenever there is an opportunity, give the child the chance to say what he or she would like to happen. For example, you may be deciding what to have for dinner. Wouldn't it be more rewarding to cook a meal about which no one complains? Try to give the family members the responsibility of deciding the menu for the next day. You could say, "We have some ground meat in the refrigerator for tomorrow's dinner. How would you like it cooked? As spaghetti and meat balls, as hamburgers, as a casserole or as (whatever your speciality is)?"

By allowing choice, you allow your child to choose good choices for him or her. By allowing him or her to choose his or her own friends, you give more respect for your child and honor his or her independence. By fostering his or her independence, you prepare him or her for becoming an adult and choosing everything in his or her life. By doing simple things every day, you prepare your child for adulthood.

But what happens when you do not like your child's choice in friends? Why do you not like the child? Is the child dirty or dressed poorly? Could it be because that child's parents do not have the money to provide the child with what your child has? Or maybe the parents simply do not know how to raise children.

What can you do? Plenty! You can give the child some clothes your children have outgrown. You can offer to allow the child to stay the night and give him or her a good bath, clean clothes and a warm bed (possibly the first one he or she may ever have had). You can offer him or her a meal prepared with love and served with compassion, one which is balanced and warm and made especially for the family. You can help the child learn proper manners by allowing the child to be friends with your child.

You can extend yourself and your child's interests by involving the friend in your family activities. This does not mean that you need to adopt this child as yours. It simply means that you can help influence your child by giving him or her a model of behavior which is acceptable to you. By showing another child what you value, you correct your child while using him or her as a model for another child less fortunate. This process allows you to love both your child and another child who is searching for love. You give the other child an alternative to bad behavior which could possibly influence your child later on.

Teachers are aware of the children in need. They give those children attention, sometimes more than your child. That is because they know your child is loved and cared for enough to share his or her teacher time with one who really needs the attention. Perhaps you could help the teacher by volunteering to work in the classroom so that your child and the other, more needy, children can have more teacher time.

By caring for all our children, the teachers have the responsibility of the future. By caring for your child alone, the teacher invests much effort into one of many. The many are the ones who will decide how our society develops. We all need as much help as possible. We need love and attention from everyone around us, just as the needy child does.

We can all search for our sources of love, but the school is the best place to find the source and those who need it most. It is central in all of our lives, if only because that is where our children go every day. We find many of our friends in schools. Where did you find yours? Did they ever need a friend who loved them just because they had no one else to love them at that moment? Did you? What did you do? Talk with them? Put your arm around them? Listen to their problems? Did you know that they felt alone at that moment? How did you know? Did you see it in their faces or hear it in their voices? Did you notice that no one paid attention to them? Did you?

That is how we make our future—by noticing our children. They are all ours because they can all influence our own. What can you do? Anything, everything! Volunteer to be a parent who cares. Care for one, care for many. It does not matter, but who will be your child's friend later on? Will you know for sure if it is someone you can like or love? It can be if you care now. Do the best you can and no one can ever find fault with your efforts. Help your child love himself or herself by loving those your child cares about every day.

4-H NEWS

More than 225,000 4-H members and 30,000 4-H leaders across Kentucky will be celebrating 4-H Week, October 4-10.

"This year's theme for the celebration is '4-H: Making the Global Connection.' The theme emphasizes 4-H'ers' growing concern about the world," said Anna Lucas, extension 4-H program specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

In Floyd County, the celebration will include Green Day; Friday, October 9, all 4-H'ers are asked to wear green and October 4-10 has been proclaimed Floyd County 4-H Week, said Chuck Stamper, extension 4-H agent.

Lucas explained that 4-H helps young people develop both knowledge and self-esteem as they complete projects and activities.

"Kentucky 4-H offers more than 80 projects and activities—ranging from plant sciences to riflery—to interest young people," Lucas said.

She said that 4-H is open to all young people between the ages of 9 and 19.

Many of the 4-H'ers in Kentucky participate in school clubs; others participate through project clubs, such as 4-H horse clubs. Still others participate in special events and activities such as the 4-H speech contest, Lucas said.

Kentucky 4-H is one of the largest 4-H programs in the nation. Nationally, some 5.5 million young people participate in the program each year, Lucas said.

Enrollment is just beginning in Floyd County, Stamper said, and anyone who wants to join 4-H is encouraged to call the extension office at 886-2668.

Volcanoes

Karen D. Hall's fourth grade class at Duff Elementary has been studying changes in the earth. One item of study was volcanoes. During this unit, students learned that magma forms beneath the earth's surface. When it reaches the earth's surface, it is called lava. Lava is red hot as it explodes through the opening at the top of the volcano. The hot material piles up, cools, and hardens, forming a mountain of solid rock. The students designed and demonstrated the eruption of their own volcanoes. Pictured are, first row, Jeremy Moore, Aaron Thorpe, Thomas Robinson, Kevin Bellamy, Ashley Sexton, Karl Brown, Tabatha Hughes, Jamie Tackett, and Richard Turner. In the second row are Lisa Bailey, Tracey Cooley, Justin Scott, Kyra Osborne, Carey Fitzpatrick, Karl Osborne, Misty Scott, Kevin O'Quinn, Tommy Wallace and Heather Handshoe. In third row are Leighann Ratliff, Kristopher Fultz, Stephen Prater, Gregory Ray, Travis Francis, Victoria Wells, Anna Moore, Crystal Owens and John Slone.

Mountain Voices

by Willie Elliott

When we got home from school the other afternoon, they were making candy out at Nanny's house to take to this year's New Salem Association meeting (that's another story). The candy was delicious, but it was not the way my mommy made it, and I got a craving for some of Mommy's candy. Since my mom has been gone from us for many years, I knew there was only one chance to get some "real" chocolate candy. I called my sister, Joann Paige.

After making a quick survey of how everyone was doing, I asked her if she had made any candy lately. Of course, she said yes. I told her how much I would like to have some candy if and when she had the time. I promised I would pay her well for her efforts. I knew she would make the time very shortly, and I also knew she wouldn't charge me for it. This conversation took place about 6 p.m.

Within two hours here she was at the front door with a batch of chocolate candy and a batch of peanut butter candy. The chocolate candy was prepared to my specifications and the peanut butter was the way Ryan and Linda liked it. I carried on about what a nice sister I have (and I really meant it). After gorging myself on the candy, I sat down and we had a long conversation. Joann and I live within five or six miles of each other, but we get so wrapped up in our lives that we neglect to visit enough. So it was nice to just sit and talk.

As we talked about various members of our family, it became apparent that we were comparatively fortunate in the state of our lives. Sure, I am a little uptight about all these new teaching ideas and concepts, but God has given me a good brain to figure out how to learn these ideas. As we talked about cousins, aunts, or uncles being at the mercy of alcohol, drugs, or other family-wrecking afflictions, I realized how lucky (Linda always make me say blessed) we really are.

As Joann got ready to leave, I realized that I had enjoyed the visit as much as, if not more, than the candy. In fact the whole evening was so pleasant that I plan to call her next week and ask her if she has been making any pies.

Registration for Sweet 16 Academic Showcase to begin

Kentucky high school students interested in competing for college scholarships in the 1993 Sweet 16 Academic Showcase must register by Wednesday, December 2.

More than $68,000 in scholarships will be awarded in 1993 through the eighth annual Showcase. Scholarships for individual first place winners are $2,000; $1,200 for second; $850 for third; and $600 for fourth. In the competitions (math and computer) each first place student receives $1,350; second, $950; third $650; and fourth, $400.

Registration packets have been mailed to all high school principals in the state, according to Mary Wathen, program coordinator. Interested students should contact their principals or academic counselors about registration and rules for various competitions.

Competitions will be held in Art, 2-D and 3-D; Music, vocal and instrumental; Journalism: feature writing; English, creative writing and essay; Speech, Chess, Computer problem solving and Math.

Students entering the English and Journalism categories must also submit their entries with their registrations on December 2.

Regional competitions will be held at Eastern Kentucky University, January 23; Morehead State University, January 30; Murray State University, February 13; and Georgetown College, February 20.

The state finals will be held March 18-20 at Transylvania University in Lexington.

This year about 1,660 students from 195 high schools in 90 counties participated in the regional competitions with 103 students representing 103 high schools competing in the state finals.

Since the Academic Showcase was started by Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler in 1985, about 482 scholarships totaling more than $ 500,000 have been awarded to students from over 250 Kentucky high schools.

A large portion of the funds raised for the scholarships come from an annual televised auction. The program is also underwritten by private sponsors.

The Sweet 16 Academic Showcase is based in Lexington and is coordinated by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government with the assistance of many volunteers.

Encourage your children to sharpen their writing skills

With the school year in full force, the steady flow of homework may be greeted with moans and groans from your children. But, after the homework is done those moans and groans will turn into proud smiles after your children have created their own written works of art.

The October issue of the National PTA's magazine, PTA Today, shows parents how to make creative writing an enjoyable and learning experience for their children.

Authors Shavaun Wall and Nancy Taylor suggest that parents share what they are writing and why with their children. "Let them know that you are writing to thank a friend, to keep in touch with a relative or to file a complaint," say Wall and Taylor. "Perhaps your children will want to do some 'parallel writing' to their cousins as you write your sister or jotting down their favorite foods as you prepare the shopping list," they continued.

The PTA believes that parents can encourage children in their writing by hearing and responding positively to message behind their child's all-too-imperfect written product. If your child feels that you are hearing the message behind their writing, they will want to communicate through writing more often.

Other articles appearing in the October PTA Today include homework help for harried parents, how the make up of American families has changed and parent involvement in schools.

Copies of PTA Today are available for $2.50 each by sending a check or money order made payable to the National PTA, 700 Rush St., Chicago, IL 60611. The Magazine is published seven times a year (October-May, December/January combined issues), and subscriptions are $10/year.

Ashland Oil education campaign features Parent Power Publication

Ashland Oil, Inc. used a classroom setting and representative teachers, parents and students to announce a new education campaign that focuses on the role of parents in their children's education.

"One of the most critical ingredients in a child's education is active participation by his or her parents," said Mac Zachem, senior vice president of external affairs for Ashland Oil. "Reports show that the positive impact of parental involvement on student achievement is evident in the primary grades as well as throughout all class levels," he said, referring to the primary classroom at Second Street School in Frankfort that was the site of the news conference.

A free newsletter, Parent Power, has been created as a tool to help everyone learn how to make a difference in a child's education. The newsletter is offered by Ashland Oil in partnership with Scholastic, Inc., which produces more classroom materials than any other company in the English-speaking world and is America's largest publisher of magazines for teachers.

"We will provide three issues of the publication during the 1992-1993 academic year to anyone requesting them," Zachem said. "Although the newsletter is called Parent Power, the information is useful to anyone concerned about improving a child's education, such as grandparents or neighbors. We are stressing the community spirit of adults working together for the benefit of students."

Maytown opens Resource Center

Maytown Elementary has opened its new Family Resource Center. The center is located on the second floor of the main building under the direction of Donna Samons and her aide, Karen Goble.

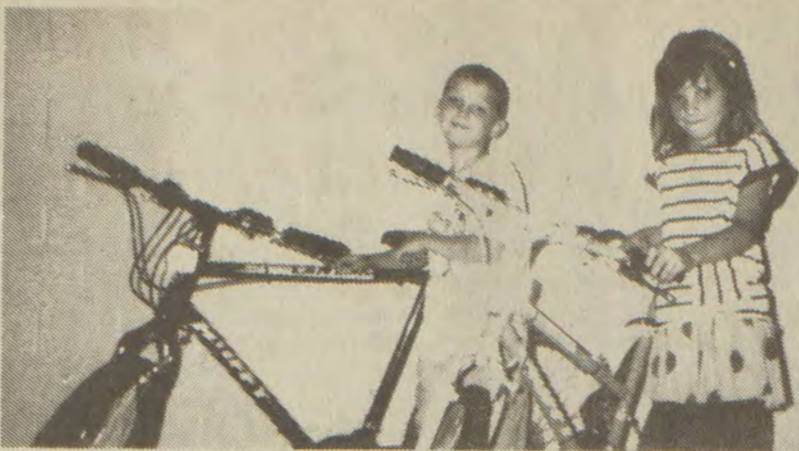

The purpose of the center is to remove any barriers that students might have which would prevent them from doing well in school. Such barriers could be physical, psychological, social, or any number of problems children and their families face. The center is to act as a liaison between the school and the agencies available for use by families. Parents with problems should contact the center to initiate any referrals to agencies.

The center will also be providing parent workshops, student class presentations, after-school tutoring, art workshops, musical training, dental information, etc. The center hopes to extend its services to other areas next year as needs arise.

Parents of Maytown students are urged to visit the center and become informed as to services available. The center is open daily from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Their phone number is 285-0321.

For a free subscription, call 1-800-238-3400 (24 hours a day).

The newsletter features practical educational activities and ways to get involved at home, as well as how to communicate more effectively with teachers and school administrators. A few of the tips are: call your child's teachers; stop by and introduce yourself to school office personnel; create a homework contract with your child; and help make a connection between curriculum topics, daily homework and the workplace.

Bicycle winners

Maytown Elementary is once again in the process of improving student attendance. Many incentives are offered, including a set of bicycles each year. Shown above are the most recent winners, Andrea Fields and Chris Goble.

$$$ REWARD $$$ FOR THE RETURN OF ELVIS

Elvis is our seven-week old German shepherd-mix pup. He disappeared from our home on Main Street Auxier early Sunday, Sept. 27. He is a mixed breed, with no actual value other than what he means to us-- he is more like a family member than a pet. Elvis is black with tan eyebrows, light tan under his chin, on his chest and on all four legs. He has big floppy ears that also have a little tan on them.

If you have seen him, please call Geoff at 886-8506. We are offering a $50 cash reward for his return, no questions asked. We will also find you another puppy if you want. Thank you.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Believing Adam was Stuart, Gloria told him about Brian and Dixie's relationship. Hayley, who had begun to drink again, vanished. Jack confessed his love to Angelique. Angelique told Dimitri she'd give up seeing both Jack and Edmund if that's what he wanted her to do. Edmund, meanwhile, considered dropping his paternity claim after Peg Moody failed to come up with the answers. Carter, who learned Charlie was against him, gave Natalie a music box. Wait To See: Dimitri sees an opportunity he had overlooked before.

ANOTHER WORLD: Tommy tried to advise Spencer on how to get Iris back. Amanda feared Sam's growing career might separate him from his family. Sally made a startling comment about who Lucas' real killer might be. Paulina considered Hannah's advice about her relationship with Jake, and later Paulina stood by Jake, and asked Rachel not to press charges against him. Lorna accidentally knocked over Kevin's briefcase and found a tape labeled "Property of Jake McKinnon." Billy told an angry Kevin that too many allegations were being compiled against him. Wait To See: A shocker develops out of Kevin's decision.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Frannie, devastated by Darryl's revelation of Jennifer's paternity, confronted Barbara about it, and also told Tom and Margo she felt they'd betrayed her by keeping the paternity secret. Evan asked Rosanna for an "incentive" to keep her identity secret so that her father wouldn't find her. Margo told another one of Nevins' rape victims that he was HIV positive. Ellie told Iva that although Kirk wanted a child, she's not ready to have one. Frannie met secretly with Hal, while Darryl met with Anthony Harper. Wait To See: Another startling revelation creates more confusion for both Darryl and Frannie.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Unaware that Sheila had accessed her formula on the computer, Brooke was chagrined to find it had somehow been deleted and she vowed to work all night to reconstruct it. Taylor (unaware that she was actually referring to Sheila) told Ridge, Brooke was like that deranged woman who took Lauren Fenmore's child so she could possess the biological son of her husband. After learning of the close call Zach and Felicia had, Stephanie (unaware that Jack was Zach's father) wondered what kind of low life would put his son into such a dilemma. Jack gave Sally $100,000 to save Spectra now that Clarke was gone. Wait To See: Eric is drawn further into Sheila's web.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND

"Country Roads" lead to Apple Day

Some people play for peanuts. Darryl and Don Ellis started singing for bubble gum. The brothers were 4 and 7 years old when they started singing "Country Roads" for neighbors in the rural Pennsylvania town of Beaver Falls where they grew up. The payoff? Quarters to buy gum and a lifelong commitment to making music and pleasing fans.

"We did it for the attention," says Don Ellis.

"And money," added elder sibling, Darryl, with a knowing grin.

Whatever their motivation, by the time the Ellis brothers were 13 and 15, they had their own band and were playing professional gigs at local clubs and country fairs. They've been entertaining ever since and now in their mid-20s, the brothers are veteran performers with a debut Epic album, Bigger Than The Both Of Us.

"We've always made music," says Don. "Even if we were playing ball, we were singing while we were doing it."

Their tight harmony, high energy and waggish humor are born from years of teamwork on the basketball court and lively banter around the family dinner table. Their father was a welder and their mother raised Darryl, Don and an older brother at home with a firm hand and songs by Kitty Wells playing on the stereo. There weren't many kids in the area, so the family had to depend on each other for fun and support. That closeness has sustained Darryl and Don in their shared musical aspirations.

What one doesn't think of, the other will—and they aren't bashful about telling you. The bottom line is that they love what they do and their enthusiasm for country music and stage play engulfs their audiences like a bear hug.

"We have a good time doing it, "Don says. "Playing is no work at all."

Brotherly trust is obvious. They direct their future as a team, but the good-looking Ellis boys are certainly not the Double Mint twins. Darryl handles day-to-day operations, while Don works the creative stream. Like the brothers, the musical mix is part pop, part contemporary country. Like many of today's country artists, their early idols were beyond the country mainstream including Billy Joel, Elton John, James Taylor and the Beatles.

The Ellis brothers stretch the limits of contemporary country with a complete wardrobe of songs on their first Epic release—from the rollicking "Rock to a Window," the retro "I Just Want to Be the First," with its bebop background vocals by the Jordanares; the soulful, yet gritty "You Know Why;" and the gospel influenced "Something Moving in Me." But no matter how disparate each selection may be, they are unmistakably related with the Ellis' trademark "big" sound and tight harmonies.

"Bombastic is the right word to use," says Darryl, who refers to their writing style as a "human melting pot" because of the blend of so many musical tastes.

"But no matter what we do, the voice is still country," says Don, a virtual mental Rolodex of country song trivia. "We love pulling it all together and giving people something different to hear."

One thing you can't call them is predictable. Darryl and Don will tell you as soon as people try to guess what they'll do next, they'll change it.

Improvisation and spontaneity learned after years of playing fairs and stage shows comes across in their vocal harmonies. They bring people to the edge, build to a crescendo and then step back as the listener falls

Darryl and Don Ellis

Darryl and Don Ellis will perform with Trisha Yearwood in concert at the Johnson Central Fieldhouse Saturday, October 3, at 8 p.m.

THE BREAKFAST BLUES

Since it takes one to know one, I can sympathize with food care workers such as: waiters, waitresses, and the "politically correct" buspersons. When I was growing up, my family was in the food catering business so I got to know how hard these people work and what they have to get accustomed to by working for the public.

This all came back to me this past weekend as I hurriedly buzzed in the drive-through of a local fast food establishment during the breakfast rush. There must have been 20 cars ahead of me in line and several more were slowly pulling in behind me when I noticed that the majority of the drivers were women who had not chosen to wear full face make-up and everyday dress clothes while they purchased breakfast for their families. If I noticed it, I could only imagine how the food workers were taking it.

In my case, I didn't even have a pair of sunglasses to hide the fact that I hadn't removed the previous night's make-up from my eyes. If a raccoon had spied me, he would have proposed marriage on the spot. Needless to say, my dress was casual because housecoats have always fallen into that category and after giving my order I proceeded to the window. What I observed as I waited for my order was nothing short of hysterical.

Two cars ahead I saw a woman reach for her order only to have the server drop it when he looked down at the driver. At that particular time, I could only see the back of the driver's head, but when she got out to pick up the dropped bag I saw what had alarmed the server. The woman had forgotten to put on slacks. It didn't bother me, but since I don't go for women - it wouldn't; however, the food server was a man, and he fainted.

In the next car, a woman reached for her order just as she sneezed and said something about early morning sinus drainage. The food server turned her head and swallowed hard before excusing herself. I didn't know what happened and I don't want to know.

It was finally my turn to pick up my order so I tried hard to disguise myself. It's difficult for me to look decent at two o'clock in the afternoon so you can only surmise what I look like right after getting out of bed. Cautiously, I slid down in the seat and with only my eyes showing above the door, I reached for my order.

"Did you want anything else" the server asked.

"Huh?" I replied without raising up in the seat.

"Do you want anything else?" she asked again.

"Oh, no," I said in embarrassment.

"Can you reach the bag?"

"Yeah, I think," I grunted, putting my arm as far out the window as it

Truth, Justice and the American Way

by Geoff Belcher, staff writer

There is not so much comfort in the having of children as there is sorrow in parting with them.

-Thomas Fuller, M.D., Gnomologia

What really raises one's indignation against suffering is not suffering intrinsically, but the senselessness of suffering!

-Nietzsche, The Genealogy of Morals

None of this would have been possible without Elvis.

-Buddy Holly, 1957 interview

Well, there've been Elvis sightings all over L.A. (Lower Auxier) this week.

In case you haven't noticed the multi-media blitz by now, Elvis has disappeared. Elvis being my dog, of course.

Now, usually, I try to avoid discussing too much personal, private stuff in Truth, Justice & The American Way, partially because this is arguably a humorous column and mainly because my real life is for the most part pretty boring. (Also, my wife still hasn't forgiven me for that nasty purse-shopping story, even though it was true.)

Well, I ain't bored today and I don't feel like being funny, so cut me some slack.

Elvis, who turned seven-weeks old yesterday, at least I hope he did, somehow or another completely vanished from the face of the earth Sunday.

I've searched all over Auxier, Crawdad Holler, River Plains, Prestonsburg, Blockhouse Bottom, Jenny Wiley State Park and Timbuktu and talked to every person I could talk to, and nobody's seen my dog.

I've put flyers up all over both Prestonsburg and Auxier. I've placed ads in the newspaper and on the radio offering a $50 reward for his safe return. I even offered to buy 'em a replacement dog.

So far about three kind, decent people have actually tried to help and have directed me to other dogs that, while looking very similar to Elvis, are unfortunately not my dog.

On the other hand, fifty-eleven other slob dogs have showed up at my house with dogs that don't come anywhere near matching Elvis' description, demanding their $50 reward. And I don't mind a bit. Every little bit helps.

But the simple fact is that at this point, either Elvis spontaneously combusted or somebody took 'im, knows who he belongs to, knows how p.o.'d I am, and is still too sorry to bring him back.

I mean, lets face it, he's only a seven-week old puppy. It's not like he's gonna run off and join the circus.

Now, way back in the old days, say, three weeks ago or so, I used to think I was basically an optimistic person with a tremendous amount of faith in human nature. Now that I look back on it, I see that I was really just naive.

Don't get me wrong. I know there are a lot of people in this world with problems that are a whole lot worse than mine.

Everywhere you turn these days, you see abject poverty, starvation, misery, people who are stuck in construction traffic and people who are just plain butt-ugly and can't afford plastic surgery.

I also know that to far too many people, dogs and cats are just burglar alarms, mouse traps and/or speed bumps. But jeez o' mighty, with as many strays as there are running up and down the street everyday, why take one that already has a home?

I mean, how low do you have to be to steal somebody's dog?!!

As all animal-lovers know (and by animal-lovers, I do not mean the sort of people you see interviewed on daytime television talk-shows), dogs and cats become very much like children to you.

You feed them, clothe them and send them off to college.

You take them to the doctor at the first sign of illness, injury or worms.

You take great joy in their accomplishments (such as ripping the arm off the guy down the street with the M.C. Hammer tape and the really great speakers), and great sorrow in their failures (such as the failure to make it out the door before the living room carpet becomes a work of modern art).

You take great pains to make their lives as comfortable and pleasurable as you possibly can, and then some yahoo thinks they could probably make a couple bucks off 'em and they're gone.

It oughta be a capital offense.

At the very least, I think it's worth a good beating, torturing, vivisection and neutering, not necessarily in that order.

Anyway, at this point my options are pretty limited. Catering to basic greed hasn't worked: anybody that turns down 50 bucks for a dog that ain't worth a plug nickel ain't interested in cash.

Threats haven't worked: I've told everybody in the five-county area that if Elvis isn't back on my porch immediately, I'll hunt down the person who done it and rip their lungs out through the nose.

Abject begging hasn't worked:

I've quite literally crawled through the sewer trying to find my little buddy.

So now, I have decided to fall back on that last great refuge of all true parents, the one weapon that every mother and father worth the name possesses in great quantity: pure, unadulterated, unmitigated guilt (let's face it: your parents know exactly which buttons to push with you, mainly because they're the ones that installed 'em).

Warning: The guilt portion of this column will now begin. All those that do not have my dog have no reason to continue reading, unless they just really want to be depressed.

Dear Mr(s). Dognapper: Do you know what it's like to lose a loved one?

Do you know how it feels to get up every morning and forget for just a moment that the object of your affection is gone and you go to talk to them and they aren't there?

Do you know how it feels to just have someone disappear and you

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be more dependent on another than you would normally choose to be. Don't get "rammy" when you see another is full of bull. Trust yourself to come up with a solution that works for everybody. You are the conquering hero in the weekend parade. Grin and wave all weekend long.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be more forthright this week and do be bullheaded about matters that are important to you, if you want to get your point across. Loosen up when negotiating a new money arrangement — go for it. Your creative energies are high all this weekend. Your imagination is calling.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Get plenty of exercise mixed with work, or you could get stressed out big time. Someone tries to get you to change your routine midweek. What happens depends on how committed you are. By the weekend, have your priorities set straight, if you want a warm and loving few days.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may have a hard time getting the work week started, because there are so many "better" things to do. Somehow, somewhere you have to buckle down, because what good is playtime without money? Count on getting yourself ready and raring to go the weekend.

LEO (July 23-August 22) You are having a lot of problems this week. Somehow the inner turmoil will end, meanwhile there will be steam and sizzle. You get happier as the weekend comes in. Use this energy to accomplish what you should have during the week.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) You talk up a storm all this week. Get your point across and center on what is important to you. You breeze through the work week and are ready for anything. You roll into the weekend full of fun and games. Your more flirtatious comes out all weekend long.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Be more aware of how very possessive and needy you are. These are driving traits definitely, but they could also be driving you nuts. Communications flow toward the weekend and you get to clear your chest, so to speak. Plan on slowing down this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) You whiz through the week, getting what you want. But what is it all for? Good question, and since you're in a more in-reverted phase this month, it might be worth pondering this weekend. Spend time thinking, talking, exchanging ideas and, perhaps, a feeling or two.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) When you're quiet this week, you're very quiet. When you're loud, it seems as if you're thinking through your actions right now. (Maybe hatching a plot or two.) You don't need to go all through this, as you're a natural winner. Use the weekend to build your self-confidence.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) You experience the proverbial highs and lows this week. The good news is, there are twice as many highs as there are lows. You also zero in on what you want and, you old goat, you get it. Expect to do a lot of celebrating and partying this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) Making your presence known has never been a problem, Aquarius. Keeping you under control can be. You demonstrate the know-how to get what you want in business. Socially, you're a whirlwind this week.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) You have a very wild imagination, Pisces, and when you let it go... Whatever that daydream is, you're determined to make it happen by the weekend. Creative brainstorming with pals takes up a good portion of your time. You make a great show at work, as well.

LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D. SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH

Q. I have an overactive thyroid gland. This was just found out by a new doctor I went to. For years, I have been nervous as a cat. The doctor thinks that the two are related. Can this be cured?

A. Some of the characteristics of excessive thyroid activity are nervousness, marked sweating with little activity, palpitations of the heart, loss of appetite and insomnia.

For a long time, the major test that was used for the determination of overactivity or underactivity of the thyroid was the BMR or Basal Metabolic Rate. In the last 20 years, the most highly sophisticated tests have been devised to replace the BMR and give highly specific indications of hyperthyroidism (overactivity). Blood tests known as T3 and T4 are only two of the major ones.

When the diagnosis is established by these and other tests, safe and effective treatment with new drugs brings gratifying results. The drugs are aimed directly at reducing the overactivity of the thyroid gland. Radioactive iodine is widely used. It should be emphasized that there is no evidence that the radioactive iodine may later cause cancer. Yet this choice of treatment is a highly individual one and geared entirely to each specific patient.

It is relatively rare today for surgery of the thyroid gland to be considered. With constant supervision by the doctor or by the specialist in endocrinology, a healthy thyroid balance can be established and maintained.

Mallet told Eve not to tell Harley—who had moved into their new apartment—the truth about his medical condition. Gilly pondered giving Roger the photos of Blake and Ross if that would keep him from learning her secret. Wait To See: Eve is puzzled by a reaction Nick shows to a certain situation.

LOVING: Unaware that Giff was holding Trisha out of sight at the belfry, Trucker, who admitted to Dinah Lee that he still loved Trisha, told her she had much to live for. Trisha, meanwhile, struggled for Giff's gun when he nearly fell over the ledge, alerting Trucker to their presence. Giff and Trisha almost went over the ledge, and hung on for their lives. Dinah Lee told Clay she was leaving town to get over him. Wait To See: Clay's "plot" with Leo begins to take shape.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Lee Ann told Kevin she trusted him, and she would agree to let him have Duke. However, Kevin betrayed her trust and had two policemen arrest her as she handed over her child. Max told Luna he resisted falling in love with her so as not to jeopardize their friendship. Hank told his ex wife, Nora, that Rachel planned to stay on in Llanview. Jim Vern arrived looking for Suede. Wait To See: Billy encounters another problem.

SANTA BARBARA: B.J. stabbed Warren in the shoulder with a pair of scissors during a romantic moment. Micah wanted Jodie to have tests for her vision problems. After paying off Ken in cash, C.C. was furious to learn he'd been duped, and that Ken intended to marry Sophia immediately. Katrina told Ted she was returning to Dash. Julia and Mason, unaware that both of them had been approached separately, were each tempted to replace the late judge. Sawyer told Aurora he met a man who could arrange a fight for him. Wait To See: Warren realizes he's taking a chance in being alone with B.J.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nikki decided not to have the abortion, and later told a shocked Victor that she was returning to Jack. While Cricket and Danny still tried to persuade a skeptical Cal and Randall about Michael's behavior, Michael learned the tape had been found and rushed off to pay the $300 demand and destroy it. Ryan was stunned by Victoria's statement that she hates sex, and that she wouldn't see a sex therapist. John Silva cautioned Scott that living with Lauren won't assure that the court will grant them joint custody of Scotty. Wait To See: Michael runs into another complication in his attempt to circumvent Cricket's charges.

—Auto mechanic Kenneth Arrowood filed a lawsuit for $2,613 in Cleveland in July against his mother, citing her failure to compensate him for fixing her pickup truck. A week later, Hazel Arrowood, 78, filed a counter suit, pointing out the many uncompensated services she provided him over the years as mother, cook, nurse and bail bondsman, among other things, and recommending that the court give Kenneth "the whipping that he so rightly needs and which I failed to give him as a child." ## Quiz on homosexuality should straighten out misconceptions

DEAR ABBY: A cousin and I have a difference of opinion. It has to do with common misconceptions about homosexuality.

I recall that you ran a true-false quiz dealing with this subject several years ago, and I would like to enlighten him.

Would you please run it again? HIS COUSIN IN GALVESTON, TEXAS

DEAR COUSIN: I'm happy to run it again—and I hope it helps to shed a little enlightenment where needed:

How much do you know about homosexuality? Mark the following statements true or false:

1. Homosexuals commit more crimes than straight people. (True or False)
2. Everyone is born straight, but some become gay because they have been seduced by a gay person early in life. (True or False)
3. You can always tell homosexuals and lesbians by the way they act, dress and talk. (True or False)
4. With the proper therapy and motivation, a gay person can become straight. (True or False)
5. Boys raised by domineering mothers and weak (or absent) fathers usually turn into homosexuals. (True or False)
6. Gay people can never become mothers or fathers. (True or False)
7. Homosexuals are more inclined to molest children sexually than heterosexuals. (True or False)
8. If a person has one or two sexual experiences with someone of the same sex, he is gay. (True or False)
9. The American Psychiatric Association stated that homosexuals are

"sick." (True or False)

10. Homosexuals can be legally married to each other under the law in the United States. (True or False)

11. Most homosexuals try to convert young people into becoming gay also. (True or False)

12. Children raised by gay parents (or gay people) usually become homosexuals themselves. (True or False)

How did you score?

If you marked all 12 statements "False," you are very well-informed.

If you marked nine statements "False," you are fairly well-informed.

If you marked four or more statements "True," you have a great deal to learn about homosexuality, because ALL of the above statements are false!

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, I loaned one of my favorite books to a friend

When she returned it, the cover had been badly torn and taped together. She didn't even apologize.

Perhaps I was wrong to be so upset over this, but the next time she asks to borrow a book from me, what should I say?

A LOYAL FAN

DEAR FAN: Say, "After you returned the last book I let you read and I saw how badly it had been abused, I promised myself that I would not lend you another." Period.

DEAR READERS: Bertrand Russell, British philosopher (1872-1970), wrote: "You should never spank a child before he is 11. And after that it is too late."

Highway 101 plays to packed house at Renfro Valley

Highway 101 gave ample proof of their popularity, playing to a packed house during both their concerts on Sunday, September 20, at Renfro Valley.

"I've seen a lot of country music concerts in my time," said Pete Stamper, vice president of entertainment at Renfro Valley, "but this had to be one of the best concerts I've ever attended."

From their opening number to a show closer which had the audience clapping for more, Highway 101 kept the hits rolling. While each number the popular group performed was a crowd-pleaser, it was their chart-topper "Bing, Bang, Boom" which nearly brought the barn down. Applause from avid country fans in each of two shows rocked the rafters and thundered through the aisles for the song which propelled Highway 101 into the national spotlight.

How does an entertainment complex with a reputation for top notch entertainment top the success of this concert. "This is just the beginning of the series," says Stamper. "Every concert on our Fall series is a winner," he added.

Conway Twitty is the next star to hit the Renfro Valley stage. He appears in two concerts, at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m., on October 18.

As expected, tickets to see Conway Twitty have been selling fast, but a limited number of seats is still available. To see Conway, or any of the other stars in Renfro Valley's Fall Concert series, fans may call the box office at 606-256-2638, Monday through Friday, from 9-5.

In addition to Conway Twitty, tickets are on sale for concerts featuring Patty Loveless and Marty Brown (November 8) and Joe Diffie (November 22). Loveless and Brown and Diffie will appear in two concerts, at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

In addition to this special concert series, Renfro Valley presents a regular season of Barn Dance, Jamboree, Mountain Gospel Jubilee and Sunday Morning Gatherin' shows. A museum, 14-shop shopping village, restaurants and lodging complete the popular entertainment complex, which is located on Highway 25, near Mount Vernon.

It was easy to see that I was upsetting the server as she attempted to pass the bag to me. What she didn't know was that I was protecting her from a fate worse than death. If she thought the scantily clad driver of a few cars ago had been bad, she'd want to carry silver bullets and crucifixes if she ever saw me that early without make-up.

"Could you sit up a little higher so I can reach the bag to you, please?" she stated politely.

"No, the stress would be too much for you. I can't do that," I lied as I pushed back the sleeve on my chenille bathrobe.

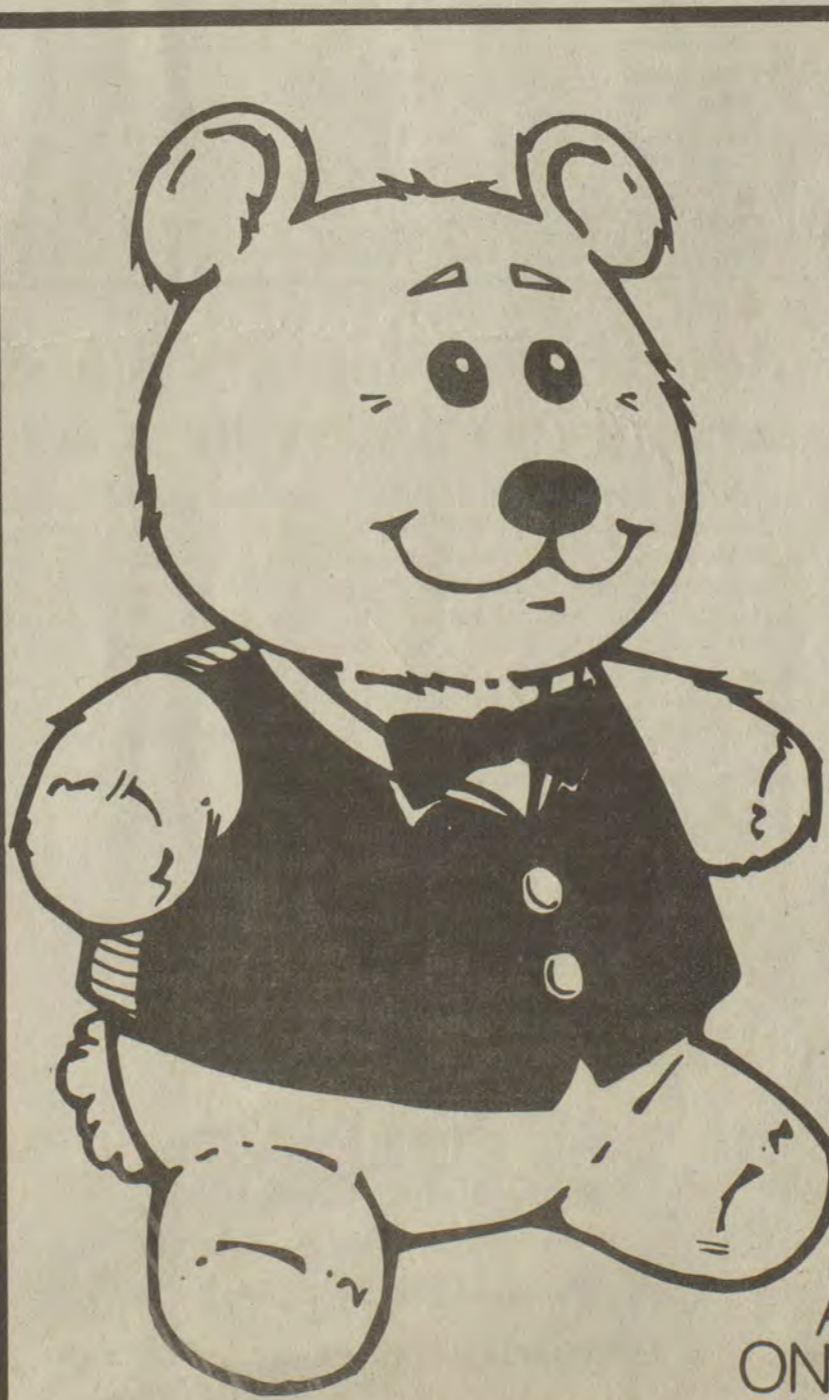

"Then just pull up to the side and someone will bring it out to you."

"Are you sure that's all right?"

"Yes, Ma'am. I'm sure. Just pull up to the side. The cars behind you are waiting."

This was true, but I didn't envy the food server's next customer. Looking into my rearview mirror I spotted a woman who didn't have any eye-lashes or eyebrows in the a.m. hours. And behind her waiting for her order was Attila the Hun without the helmet.

If it's true that air traffic controllers have the most stressful job, fast-food workers have to rank right up there with them. After all, who would want to spend their mornings looking at ugly women if they didn't need the money.

Prestonsburg captures district golf meet; McKenzie medalist winner

McDowell's John McKenzie shot a six-over 74 to win the medalist award and the Prestonsburg Blackcat's golf team finished with a 318 to capture the 1992 58th District Golf meet that finished up this past Tuesday at the Beaver Valley Golf Course at Stumbo Park in Allen.

Matt Crum, runner-up in the medalist finals, along with Mike Marcum shot an identical 76 to lead the Blackcats to victory. Betsy Layne took second place with a 343 and McDowell placed third at 351. Allen Central was three strokes behind with a 354.

Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido told the four teams just before the awards were passed out that the tournament went well and that he thought it was more even individualized than previous years.

McKenzie nosed out Crum for the medalist award with his 74 with Crum two strokes down at 76. McKenzie had an eagle on the number four hole to finish with 39 for the second round after shooting a 35 on the back nine. Crum birdied on holes two and five but had a double bogey on greens eight and nine. Crum shot a three over par 37 for the second round after finishing with a 39 at the Jenny Wiley course in the first round Monday. Marcum just missed second place after a bogey on the ninth hole. Marcum finished with a 76 also and Brett James shot a 79. Chris Cornette finished with an 87.

Toby Newsome's 78 topped the Betsy Layne golfers with Jamie Hylton coming away with a 85. Chirs Potter shot a 88 and Dale Kimbler finished with a 92.

Newsome bogeyed on the first two holes of the second round and was two over on the number eight green.

Richard Lyons shot a 94 and Brian

Pugh had a 95 for the Bobcats.

Mark Duddleson had a 44 in the second round to finish with an 89 overall. Brandon Akers shot a 92 and James Stumbo finished with a 96.

Jason Martin shot an 86 for the Rebels with a 46 in the second round after shooting a 40 on the back nine. Ephrium O'Quinn really picked up his game in the second round chopping off 13 strokes from the first nine. O'Quinn had a 56 in the first nine and then finished with a 43 in round two but still finished with a high 99 to not place. Nick Halbert was one stroke better in the second round finishing with an 87. Matt Crawford also was one stroke better and shot an 87 for the tournament.

Eric Cathers was six strokes better shooting a 44 in the second round and finishing with a 94. Ben Moore had a 96.

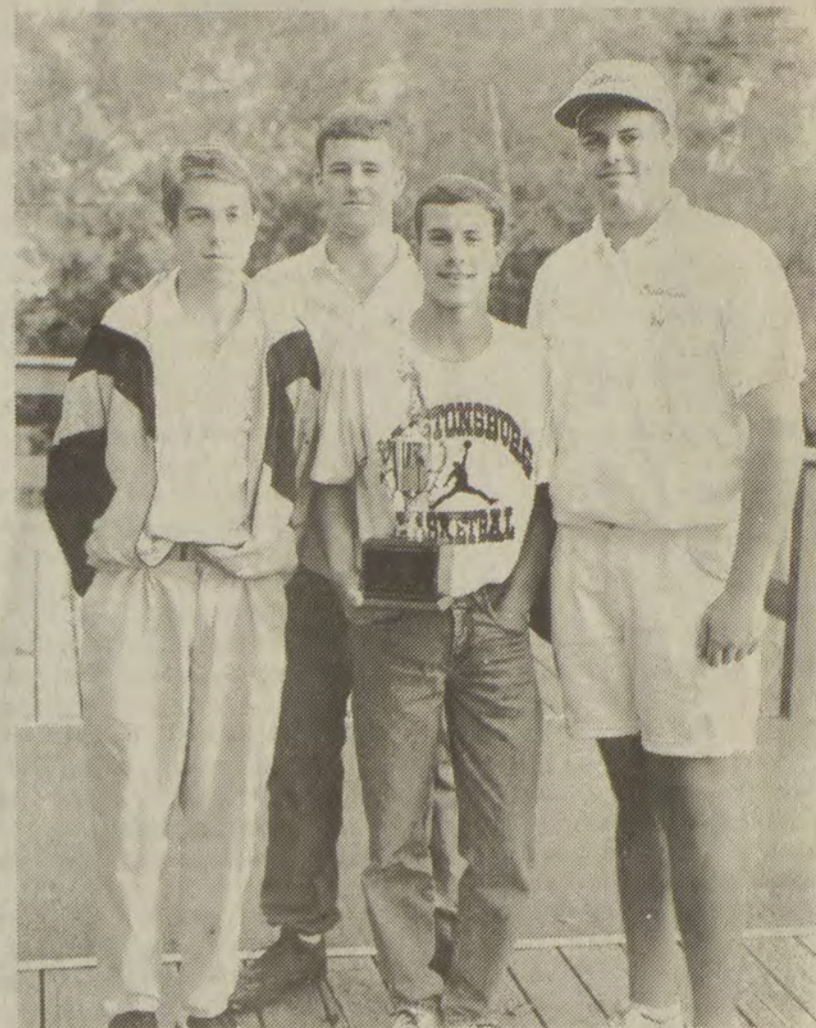

The 15th Regional golf meet will be held at the Paintsville Country Club and will get started this coming Tuesday.

Shelby Valley invades Prestonsburg tonight

Forget about the past five football games. What lies ahead and especially what happens in the next three weeks will go a long way in determining who will win the District 2, Region 4 title.

Shelby Valley brings their 3-2 record (2-0 in district play) to the Blackcat lair tonight for the first game of five consecutive district games for Prestonsburg. After an encounter with Magoffin County next week, Prestonsburg will have Sheldon Clark making a visit.

Second year coach Tom Searcy's Wildcats are coming off a 37-12 win over Class A Elkhorn City last Friday night after being shelled by Raceland two weeks ago.

Shelby Valley's two conference victories have been at the expense of Magoffin County and Morgan County.

Joe Don Cole (6-2, 181 junior) will return for his second year at the quarterback position. Cole threw for 101 yards against Elkhorn City last Friday night and connected for two touchdowns.

"Joe Don is averaging around 85 to 90 yards per game passing," said Coach Searcy. "He's thrown four touchdowns for us this season and completes about 42 percent of his passes."

Frankie Tackett will be at the full-back slot for his second year as well as playing the defensive end on the other side. Tackett rushed for 122 yards against the Cougars and scored on touchdown being the primary carrier for the Wildcats.

"He is probably the hardest worker we have on this team," said Searcy of his fullback. "He will play anywhere you ask him to and do an excellent job. He's a hard-nosed player and also is our long snapper and a backup linebacker."

Tailback David Osborne has had his problems in the first four games for the Wildcats but impressed his coach last Friday night.

"David has looked good for us at times but I believe he played the best game he has played this year against Elkhorn City."

Osborne rushed for 101 yards scoring two TDs.

Coach Searcy said that his squad this year has been hit hard by injuries and he has had five to six players absent at one time or another during the first five games.

Pikeville wins big over Adams Middle School

Chuck Rowe
Sports Writer

After winning the Floyd County championship each of the two years the school has been open, the Adams Middle School Blackcats were on a good start at winning their third straight as they started the season with a 35-6 win over the Betsy Layne Bobcats.

But their next two games pitted them against out-of-county rivals Paintsville and Pikeville. Against Paintsville, the Blackcats intercepted a pass with no time left on the clock and ran it for a touchdown to win the game over the Tigers 20-14.

Tuesday night, the Pikeville Panthers came to town to stun the Blackcats 40-14 as the Panther offense put together an offensive explosion in the first half.

After Adams picked up a couple of first downs on the first series of plays, the Panther defense tightened up and held the Blackcats on four downs. The next play, the Panther running backs had no problem finding the end zone on a 22-yard touchdown run. The try for two was good to make the score 8-0.

Pikeville's defense held Adams to negative yardage on four straight plays, as the Blackcats handed the ball over on downs. On the first play of the Panther series, the Pikeville fullback rambled 43-yards for a touchdown. On the try for a two-point conversion, the pitch was fumbled and the Panthers recovered it running it to the other side of the field, untouched, into the end zone.

The scoring onslaught continued in the second quarter, as the Panther offense scored two more touchdowns. One on a 67-yard touchdown sprint and the other on a 51-yard touchdown run. The try for the two-point conversion, on both touchdowns, was good as the teams went in at halftime with the score 32-0.

In the second half, Pikeville ended their scoring on a 56-yard touchdown run with 7:02 remaining in the third quarter. The two-point conversion was good to make the score 40-0.

Adams' offense starting moving the ball pretty well for the first time in the game as they picked up four first downs moving the ball from their own 38-yard line to the Pikeville 9-yard line. Pikeville held the Blackcats on three straight plays that brought up a fourth down and goal from the 1-yard line. Adams finally got on the scoreboard as Michael

Rebels cross country places second in Paintsville meet

Anthony Moore's Allen Central cross country team placed second to Lawrence County in last Tuesday's cross country meet at Paintsville. Lawrence County scored a low 32 points while the Rebels posted a 71. Paintsville finished third with a 75 and Sheldon Clark totaled 86 points for fourth place.

Kenny Scarberry ran a 22:00 in the boys 5k run and Todd Howard was eight overall with a time of 22:16. Kenneth Bradley posted a 24:05 and Mike Elzokari ran a 24:34 with Estill Stumbo recording a time of 26:27.

Castle followed his center on a quarterback sneak for the touchdown. Matt Lafferty added two points to the Blackcat's score as he ran the ball for the two-point conversion to make the score 40-8.

On back-to-back tackles for losses by John Morris and a run of 7 yards, the Panthers were faced with a fourth and twenty. The punt was faked as the punter ran down the visiting sideline almost picking up the first down as he gained 18 yards.

The next play, Morris was hit and fumbled the ball as Pikeville recovered the ball on the Adams' 47-yard line. But the Blackcats wanted to score again as their defense held Pikeville on four straight plays to take over the ball on the Panthers 49-yard line.

The Blackcats set up the final score of the game on a pass play from Morris to Wesley McGuire for a gain of 26 yards and a Lafferty run of 11 yards that took the Blackcats to the Panther 3-yard line. Two plays later, Morris ran for the touchdown on a 1-yard run to end the scoring for the game. The final score, after the two-point conversion for Adams failed, was 40-14.

John Morris had the most yards for the Blackcats as he carried the ball 20 times for 59 yards and a touchdown. Matt Lafferty tossed in 12 yards on eight carries.

There was some movement in the ranks this week as several of us were way off base. Mike Burke takes the lead as Ed moves to fourth. Celeste continues to show her expertise. Kentucky will lose for the second time this season. Miami will win by a slim margin over Florida State and Prestonsburg along with Wheelwright will win. The Bengals and Browns will not lose this weekend mainly because they are not scheduled. Chiefs over the Broncos.

GUEST RADIO PERSONALITIES

Wheelwright just glad to be home as they entertain Jenkins tonight Prestonsburg

Wheelwright head football coach Donnie Daniels and his Trojans will not have to sing "On The Road Again" this Friday night as the Trojans return home after playing four consecutive road games that saw them split the trip with two victories and two losses.

"It's just good to be back home again," said Daniels whose team hasn't played at Brackett Field since August 28 when they faced Betsy Layne in the season's opener. "We are going to be able to play before our home fans who didn't have a chance to watch us on the road."

Wheelwright, who is very much in the playoff picture, will face the Jenkins Cavaliers, who won their initial game of the year with a 67-8 shelling of Allen Central last week. But, according to Daniels, the Cavs haven't been playing all that bad as their 1-4 record would indicate.

"They have been losing like we have been winning," said Daniels. "They have lost by two points or seven points, just missing winning. Whereas we have been winning that way."

They (Jenkins Cavaliers) have been losing like we have been winning.
— Donnie Daniels
Wheelwright coach

"They are a decent football team. They have a very strong halfback in Donnie Wright and a decent quarterback who is coming back from last year. They lost a lot of good players but still have a good nucleus."

Daniels said that the Cavaliers were an option-oriented football team that likes to run a lot of option plays and mix up their offense.

"They do a good job of mixing their offense also," said Daniels. "They have a good ballclub despite their deceiving 1-4 record."

To say that this game with the Cavaliers is not a big one is to say the least. Not only does Daniels recognize the significance of the game but the players as well.

"We need this win bad," said the Trojans mentor. "The players know it. We feel with the remaining home games that we have to win the home games. The next two district games are big ones for us."

Wheelwright has three district games remaining including tonight's game with Jenkins. Allen Central must visit Wheelwright and the Trojans will travel to Elkhorn City for their final game of the season in what could turn out to be a deciding game in district play.

"But we're hoping that things have been decided before we play Elkhorn in the final game," said Daniels, whose club stands 2-2 in district competition. "We think that a 4-3 record would be good enough to get us in the playoffs but we also feel that if we can win the remaining three district games that would give us a 5-2 record and a possible second place finish."

The Trojans have met foes Pikeville and Fleming-Neon on the grid iron and have come away with victories over Johns Creek and Phelps. A win tonight and a victory over Allen Central October 16 would certainly go a long way in improving their chances for a playoff berth in their last season as a Trojan team.

With Jenkins coming into tonight's game, the Trojans find themselves not at full strength. Out with bruised kidneys is Cruise Caudill who will miss tonight's home game.

"He wants to play real bad," said Daniels, "but we are going to hold him out because an injury like that is not something you take a chance on. He will be re-evaluated next week and if possible he will be back for the homecoming game next week. Every player wants to play in their homecoming game."

Daniels feels that he has an adequate replacement for Caudill in Matt Johnson who has given the Trojans some quality playing time this year.

"We hate to lose a player the caliber of Cruise, but at the same time we want to be realistic concerning Cruise and also feel that Johnson will give us an adequate replacement. Johnson has played well for us and we feel that he will do all right"

Daniels said that his ballclub suffered some freakish injuries against Fleming-Neon last week but that his backfield was intact and injury free.

On the defensive side of the football, Daniels revealed that his leading tackler, Steven Bates, was about 80 percent.

"Steven is the type of a defensive player who can give an option offensive team a lot of problems," said the Wheelwright coach. "He has a bruised lower thigh muscle and is about 80 percent. He will be ready to play."

Coach Daniels and the Trojans would just like to forget last week's 47-0 embarrassment at the hands of Fleming-Neon and Daniels feels that his team has a lot to prove to the Trojan fans.

"We want to go out against Jenkins and show everybody that we are a good football team despite losing like we did to Fleming-Neon," explained Daniels. "That game was an embarrassment to us and we want to prove we are a better team."

It will also be Pop Warner night tonight as the smaller players will entertain the crowd at halftime of tonight's contest.

"The fans are excited that we are back home and, to be honest with you, I am tickled to death to be playing at home," stated Daniels.

Game time is 8 p.m. and it should be a good one. A playoff berth could be riding on this game for the Trojans.

"I would just like to have a full squad at least once this season but it doesn't look as if we will," he stated. Out for the Wildcats is Jeremy Johnson who broke his collar bone and will miss the rest of the season.

"We've had to take some of our young men and thrust them into playing for us because we have had so many injuries," explained the Shelby Valley coach. We have a lot of sophomore and juniors playing some of the skill positions and it is a learning process for them."

Transfer Scotty Wright anchors the center position who Searcy says has done an excellent job. The only experience on the offensive line is found in guards Carlos Perez and Ryan Bowling.

Two new players fill in at the tackle spots in sophomore Timmy Smallwood.

"We have been forced to play Timmy quicker than we wanted to," Searcy stated. "We had hoped that he could play at least five or six games on the junior varsity team but, again, because of injuries we've had to play on the varsity."

At the other tackle will be 340-pound Anthony Childress. "I think he is that big," said the Wildcat coach laughing. "Our scales didn't go up that high but we figured he was that big."

Chris Kiser (6-1, 175, senior) and Eric Blackburn (6-1, 220, sophomore) will run at the tight end positions.

"This will definitely be a big game for us," said Searcy in assessing the upcoming game. "I can't say enough about the way Seth Hyden and Dwayne Garza play. They are going to be hard for us to handle."

"Prestonsburg is the kind of a team that you can't key on any one person," continued the Shelby Valley mentor. "Aaron Tucker does an excellent job quarterback and he came to Prestonsburg about the time I was starting at Whitesburg and I know all about him."

Searcy says that he doesn't see how his team can match up with Prestonsburg whom he believes could have an undefeated district record.

"They are the strongest team in our district," said Searcy. "They also are a great defensive team."

Prestonsburg will be coming in on a 42-20 win over Betsy Layne last Friday night. While the game was a run away, some of the Prestonsburg starters saw limited playing time allowing the junior varsity squad to get some playing time in.

Prestonsburg is the kind of a team that you can't key on any one person.
— Tom Searcy
Wildcat Coach

Hyden, Garza along with Jody Cornette will run the football out the backfield and that is where Searcy expects a lot of problems from.

"Not only can they run the football, but Tucker can pass which makes them doubly hard to defend against." Danny Osborne is a week away from returning to the Wildcats' lineup after suffering a knee injury during basketball practice.

"When we finally got (Eric) Blackburn back we lost Johnson and that's the way it has been all season," said Searcy. "We will be there Friday night and give it our best shot."

Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m. with radio stations WKKZ and WQHY airing the contest.

Allen Central travels to Sheldon Clark tonight

This weekend will find the Allen Central Rebels traveling to Sheldon Clark tonight; the Rebels will have two days rest and then face county rival Betsy Layne Monday night.

But first things first. The national record-setting performance of Cardinal quarterback Jesse Watts is still burned into the minds of the Allen Central coaching staff and don't look for a repeat of what Watts accomplished last year.

Watts threw for 651 yards last year against the Rebels' defense and it has been thought to be a national record. But, according to Brooks Downing, sports information director of the KHSAA, the stats have not been entered into the National Record Book and won't be this winter when the book is released.

"We've got to look at some film of the game," said Downing in a telephone interview Wednesday. "Although we believe that Watts has the national record, an error has been detected in determining the actual yardage and it hasn't been considered official."

Downing said that everything is being done by his office as well as Sheldon Clark High School to see that the record is made official after all "anyone that breaks the national record deserves to be in the record book."

Watts will be facing a team that has had its share of difficulties this season both offensively and defensively. The Rebels are 0-5 on the season and will be facing one of the top 2A teams in District 2, Region 4.

Along with the throwing arm of Watts, the Rebels must find a way of stopping the running of Brad Tiller who did it all for the Cardinals last Friday night against Tug Valley. Tiller, who joined the Cardinals' team late in the season, carried for 146 yards and the junior fullback scored five touchdowns in the Sheldon Clark romp. Add Joey Pinson, a favorite target of Watts, and the Rebels' secondary could be pressing hard to stop any record-setting ambitions the two may have.

The Cardinals enter the contest with an unblemished 5-0 mark and an offense, led by Watts and Tiller, that is averaging 43 points per contest. Contrast that with the younger Rebels who are still looking for win number one and seeking to put some points on the scoreboard.

Shutting Watts down, something the Rebels would love to do, will not be an easy task. When you think of Tiller, who transferred from Paintsville this year and add another transfer in Ray Collins from Johnson Central, you can easily see that Watts has much more in his arsenal this year than last.

The Rebels have faced some strong teams this season in Fleming-Neon and Pikeville but they may not have faced a team the caliber of Sheldon Clark.

"Sheldon Clark is such an awesome offensive force in every area," said Coach Dewey Jamerson. "They have speed, size and depth. Watts is a super quarterback and he has a number of outstanding receivers to throw to, but with the addition of Tiller and Collins in the backfield, it makes them even more dangerous. We're just hoping to make a game of it, but even that won't be easy."

Sheldon Clark coach Jim Matney is taking the cautious view even though most fans are expecting a blowout.

"Allen Central will come in here looking for a measure of revenge after last year," said the Cardinal mentor. "Just because we're undefeated we can't take anyone for granted. Besides, this being Homecoming and we're wanting to play well, we need to get this victory because we have a tough, three-game road district schedule coming up. Hopefully, we can continue to get out to an early lead and take it from there."

Game time is 8 p.m. and it will be homecoming night for Sheldon Clark.

Say Good-Bye To Dirty Contact Lenses

Call it long-term buildup, call it dirt, or call it plain old gunk. It's that troublesome film on your soft contact lenses that just won't go away no matter what you do. No amount of rinsing, soaking, or rubbing can get your soft contact lenses completely clean. Some amount of debris is always left behind. Little by little, the buildup increases until one day those windows to your world start to fog over and aren't nearly as comfortable as they used to be. The conventional soft contact lens is designed to be cleaned and reused for approximately one year, which translates to about 5,000 hours of lens wear. Considering that lens deposits begin to accumulate soon after a lens is placed on the eye, it's easy to understand why most contact lens wearers breathe a sigh of relief when it comes time for lens replacement. Disposable contact lenses introduced several years ago have solved the problem of long-term deposit buildup for more than one million people who prefer the option of overnight wear. The lenses are worn round-the-clock for up to seven days and six nights and then simply thrown away. But what if overnight lens wear is not an option? What if you are a member of the daily wear set—the group who removes their lenses at bedtime, cleans and disinfects them overnight, and then puts them back in the next morning? Take heart. There is good news for you too. People who want the clear vision and comfort afforded by frequently replaced lenses, but are not candidates for overnight wear, will appreciate the recent development of SUREVUE® Contact Lenses. These lenses, manufactured by Johnson & Johnson Vision

How To Get The Home You Want

This is the time of year when people start looking for that new home that was talked about all winter, often discovering that finding a mortgage is sometimes harder than finding a "Dream Home." But, there is a ray of hope with a little-known mortgage—the EEM. The Energy Efficient Mortgage (EEM) is a special type of mortgage that takes into consideration the savings in energy bills a homeowner realizes from living in an energy-efficient home. This "extra money" can be used to pay a higher monthly mortgage payment. When lenders determine whether a prospective borrower can afford a house, they use debt-to-income ratios to establish the buyer's ability to repay the loan. The typical ratio is 28 percent of the gross income for housing and no more than 36 percent for all debts including the mortgage. Taking into consideration that an energy-efficient home will cost less to operate, the EEM raises the qualifying ratios to 30 and 38 percent respectively in recognition of anticipated energy savings. Until recently, determining whether or not your new home would qualify for an EEM was difficult. There was no uniform standard to qualify a home for an EEM. However, a newly built home can now easily qualify as long as it's built to meet or exceed the requirements of the 1989 Model Energy Code (MEC) published by the Council of American Building Officials (CABO). This is due to the fact that Fannie Mae, one of the largest secondary mortgage lenders, recently agreed to provide an automatic 2% adjustment of its underwriting ratios for any home built to the 1989 Model Energy Code. Currently, there are at least ten states whose state codes equal or exceed the MEC guidelines. Therefore, any homes built in those states should automatically qualify for an EEM. For new home buyers in the other states, they need only specify to the builder that they want their house built to meet the MEC guidelines for it to qualify. For more information on the advantages of Energy Efficient Mortgages, talk to your lender or write to the CertainTeed Home Institute for a free brochure called "How to Get the Home You Want" at P.O. Did You Know?

Americans are heading for the great outdoors! Today's active families enjoy camping and hitting the road in light trucks, RVs and other sports vehicles. Here are some facts you may not know about what's available to meet the needs of outdoors-oriented folk:

•By the mid '90s, one out of every two vehicles sold in the U.S. will be a light truck, sport vehicle or van, experts say. According to a recent Automotive Marketing light truck research study, the owners of these vehicles like to do it themselves, installing at least one accessory for improving performance or appearance during the first year after purchasing the vehicle.

•Many automotive enthusiasts are turning to a unique catalog that's a single, convenient source for thousands of aftermarket parts and accessories for light trucks, vans, RVs and sport vehicles. The new Sears Automotive Parts and Accessories catalog contains 120 pages of products ranging from wheels, tires, winches and batteries to bed liners, lightning kits and running boards. The new catalog also features a toll-free hotline that lets customers talk with trained experts who can help them order exactly the right size product for their vehicle.

•Popular activities on today's family camping trips include boating, fishing, hiking, swimming and mountain or rock climbing. Before heading for adventure, many families take time to peruse the pages of the new Sears Outdoors Catalog. It includes a complete selection of the best-selling boating products, with brand names such as Gamefisher, Diehard, Wise, Stearns, Coleman, Snark, Eagle, Minn Kota and Grumman. •In addition, the 76-page catalog includes sections on men's and women's outdoor apparel as well as camping gear—tents, sleeping bags, backpacks and accessories from companies such as Hillary, Coleman and Igloo; and fishing gear, including rods and reels from Shimano, Garcia and Fenwick and Plano tackle boxes. •For a free copy of the Automotive Parts and Accessories catalog and/or the Outdoors Catalog, call 1-800-366-3000, toll-free—those who are hearing-impaired with a TDD device can call 1-800-729-2828— or visit a local Sears store.

A Lifetime Long Distance Number
A growing number of people on the move are dialing into a new telephone number that's theirs for life and goes wherever they go. It's called the AT&T Easy Reach™ 700 Service and it works like this: For $7 a month, consumers get a 700 number that remains theirs as long as they remain EasyReach subscribers—no matter where on the U.S. mainland they may travel or move. The average American now moves 11 times in a lifetime, creating a challenge for relatives, school chums, ex-neighbors and military service buddies attempting to keep up. The new service will also give subscribers the advantage of selective call forwarding that can be programmed from any touch-tone phone and the option to receive calls that are toll-free to the caller just like those to 800 numbers. The new service is expected to be particularly attractive to today's "maximobiles," busy individuals who don't want to miss calls as they travel from office to hotel or from car phone to weekend getaway spot. However, the service is also expected to appeal to families with children at college, frequent travelers and people who simply hate to miss a call when away from home.

For those who don't want to miss a call when they travel, there's now a telephone number that follows them around wherever they go.
