State official says board should review plan :

Gym changes raise concern

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Another costly change proposed for the high-priced and incomplete South Floyd High School has raised the concern of one state official who said this week the proposal should first be reviewed by the local board. Preliminary plans for a physical education facility at South Floyd, submitted by project architect Paul Hoffman, have prompted a response from Mike Luscher, director of the state Division of Facilities Management, which questions a proposal to relocate the building.

In an April 1 letter to Floyd superintendent Steve Towler, Luscher indicated he was "not aware" that the gymnasium site had been changed, adding that the proposed new location raised "two primary concerns."

Those concerns are that the "close proximity" of the new foundation wall to the academic building could damage the foundation of that building when site work begins and that there is no way to bring the road around the front of the school.

Luscher's letter to Towler said that the relocation of the gym would require an access driveway to extend all the way around the east wing near a high wall and down a 25' high, "one-to-one" slope.

"The additional earth fill and driveway fill will cut the existing flat area diagonally in half and eliminate the potential usefulness of this flat for any physical education activities," Luscher's letter said. "I believe that this is much less desirable than reversing the locations of the building and parking as previously planned."

Luscher said Thursday that he felt the issue whether or not to vary from the original gym site should go back to the local board of education for discussion.

"I'm making my concerns known," Luscher said Thursday. "I'd rather (the board) address them now than after the building is built."

It was approximately two weeks ago that the Luscher found out the gym site was moved.

"I found out that the gym had been moved about a couple of weeks ago," Luscher said. "I didn't realize they had located in the other location. I didn't realize it had been moved on

Bank to fight $2.1 million verdict in suit

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

First Commonwealth Bank President Burl Wells Spurlock said Thursday that he intends to appeal a Pike Circuit jury's decision against the bank in which a Floyd County coal operator was awarded over $2.6 million.

Jerry Baldwin, of the Lexington-based law firm of Frost & Jacobs, said Tuesday that the jury had awarded Terry Giese, of Prestonsburg, $1.9 million in compensatory damages and $700,000 in punitive damages in a breach of contract countersuit.

Baldwin said the counter-suit arose after First Commonwealth sued Giese to recover around $200,000 that had been issued as the first few installments of a $1.9 million loan agreement made in 1991, used to set up the Riverfront Corporation.

In order to recover the funds, Baldwin said, the bank seized and

Medisin cited; malfunction is blamed for excess smoke

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County company that operates two medical waste incinerators was cited March 25 by the Kentucky Division of Air Quality for a opacity level violation.

Medisin Inc. was cited for releasing smoke emissions that exceed the allowable 10 percent opacity level. Opacity level refers to the amount of light obscured by particulate pollution.

Eva Smith-Carroll, spokesperson for the Division of Air Quality, said Thursday that Medisin officials have replied that smoke omissions were the result of a malfunction from incinerator number two at waste disposal facility located behind Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Medisin vice president Bob Ford was not in his office Thursday and was unavailable for comment.

Smith-Carroll said she did not know the nature of the malfunction and the department would now review

An operating permit ...for the Medisin incinerators is pending in the Division of Air Quality.

Medisin's report and determine if "the incident is an allowable malfunction."

If the malfunction is determined to be allowable, Smith-Carroll said that the company could be granted "administrative relief." If the incident is declared not allowable, the department could take administrative action, she said.

A decision on the issue is expected early next week.

An operating permit from the Division of Air Quality for the Medisin incinerators is pending in the Division of Air Quality. State regulations adopted in 1991 require permitting of medical waste incinerators.

Medical waste incinerators operating prior to 1991, must apply for operating permits and submit a schedule which brings the units into compliance with the new regulations by December 31, 1994, the regulation specifies.

New regulations include:

Search has begun for candidates to fill seats

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Applicants seeking to fill the two vacant seats on the Floyd County Board of Education in districts two and three have seven days to submit their requests to the state education commissioner.

Wednesday's advertisement announcing that two board positions were available set the clock running on the 10-day period that applications will be accepted. Applications from candidates sent to Education Commissioner Thomas Boyesen must be postmarked by April 19.

Candidates are to pick up an application at the Floyd County Board of Education office and mail the completed form to Commissioner Boyesen at 500 Mero Street, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, KY 40601.

After the deadline has passed for accepting applications, a committee will be selected to review applications and interview candidates. Once that process is complete, the committee will make a recommendation to Commissioner Boyesen.

Boyesen will fill the two vacancies on the board of education who will serve until January 1, 1994.

In November's general election, candidates in district two will be seeking to serve the unexpired one-year term of former board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell who died March 20.

Candidates in November's election for district three will be seeking to serve the three-year unexpired term of former vice chairman Tommy Boyd who resigned his seat March 31 due to health reasons.

Campbell and Boyd were both charged with misconduct in office by Commissioner Boyesen and were facing removal from office by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education.

Wedding guests asked to give to new scholarship

A Prestonsburg Community College professor and his fiance on Thursday presented PCC President Dr. Deborah Floyd with a $1,000 check, the first installment of a new scholarship fund at the college.

Robert McAninch, political science professor and Floyd County Solid Waste director, and his bride-to-be, Helen Perry-Schul, began the McAninch-Perry scholarship fund in order to celebrate their impending nuptials. The couple is to be married on June 5.

In lieu of wedding gifts, McAninch and Schul are asking all wedding guests to donate to the scholarship fund.

Noted author comes 'home' to promote children's book

by Polly Ward

Willie Pearl Mahone left the mountains of Eastern Kentucky in 1944 as the bride of a soldier. Wednesday she came back as a celebrity.

Mahone and her daughter Michelle Y. Green were at the Bookworm Bookstore, in downtown Prestonburg, Wednesday afternoon signing copies of Willie Pearl and Willie Pearl: Under the Mountain, two children's books written by Green.

Mahone and Green, who now live in Maryland, were pleased at the warm reception they received at the bookstore from both adults and children alike, who lined up to have their Willie Pearl books autographed.

For the past three years, Mahone, Green and publisher

William Holmes have been coast-to-coast promoting the book. But Wednesday marked the first time they have been on a promotional tour in Eastern Kentucky.

"I count it a great honor to return to Kentucky and be with my family," said Mahone, who has a brother and two sisters who still live in Jenkins.

Mr. Rogers draws sizable audience in visit to Floyd

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Questioning constituents turned out in droves when Mr. Rogers, Hal Rogers that is, visited the neighborhood Wednesday to discuss, among other things, health care reform, cable television, gun control, tobacco lobbyists and gays in the military.

Rogers, Kentucky's Fifth Congressional District Representative appeared in Prestonsburg, David and Wheelwright Wednesday, offering a State of the District address of sorts and answering questions from concerned citizens.

In a brief speech at each of the town meetings, Rogers issued a brief outline of his personal beliefs concerning controversial national issues.

At the Prestonsburg meeting Wednesday, Rogers stressed that his three main goals in reforming the health care system were to ensure that the right of the private citizen to choose physicians was preserved; to find a way to cut the costs of medicine and medical care; and to find a way to provide health insurance to every American, regardless of socioeconomic status and/or pre-existing conditions.

"The Brady Bill would only apply to...gun stores while these varmints don't buy guns in stores...."

Addressing the topic of gun control, Rogers said that he had previously voted against the "Brady Bill," which would require a seven-day waiting period before the purchase of a handgun.

"The Brady Bill would only apply to... gun stores while these varmints don't buy guns at gun stores," Rogers said, "they buy them (illegally)."

Rogers called the bill "the first step toward wholesale gun control..." and said that it was "bad, unconstitutional and does not work," adding that Washington, D.C. has the strictest gun control measures in the country, yet also has one of the highest murder rates in the country. Unfortunately, Rogers said, the Brady Bill may be enacted because, although it was vetoed by the Bush administration, President Bill Clinton has promised to support it if it is once again approved by Congress.

Rogers also criticized the Clinton

Pike bakery is accused of taking anti-union actions

The National Labor Relations Board and the United Steelworker's union have filed charges against Pike County's Mountain Top Baking, accusing the company of engaging in unfair labor practices.

Mountain Top, a Meta-based factory that sells cookies and baked goods nationwide, is one of Eastern Kentucky's largest non-coal businesses.

According to a press release issued by the NLRB Wednesday, the accusation stems from Mountain Top's efforts to prevent its 300 workers from unionizing. In March, the company's employees voted 166-99 to organize and to accept United Steelworkers as their collective bargaining agent.

The groups are scheduled to appear before an administrative law judge on August 10 to discuss the allegations.

Babbage explains secrecy of ballot

"Kentucky's voting system ensures the secrecy of each individual's vote," Secretary of State Bob Babbage said recently in response to questions from citizens.

Babbage said his office had received several calls from citizens questioning the secrecy of their vote. Some alleged that they were told their vote could be determined after the election.

"That is simply not the case," Babbage said.

"Kentucky has one of the foremost voting systems in the nation which has served as a model for several other states," Babbage added.

"One thing is certain, once a vote is cast, only the voter knows for whom or for what issue the ballot was marked," he added.

The majority of Kentucky's counties now have electronic voting machines which allow the voter to press a button. The vote is then added electronically to the composite file of votes cast. This system adds even more secrecy to the voting process.

Kentucky law requires a closed primary, that is voters who are affiliated with a certain political party can only vote for candidates of that party during a primary election. Any voter, regardless of party affiliation, can vote in nonpartisan elections.

In Kentucky's general elections voters have the opportunity to cast their vote for candidates and issues regardless of their party affiliation.

"Many misunderstandings still exist regarding elections in Kentucky," Babbage said. "But one thing is certain, the secrecy of a ballot is secure in every instance. Persons no longer should feel there is the remotest possibility of retribution or even knowledge about the way they voted."

that Navy personnel, who told him that gays in the military "would destroy... the effectiveness of the unit... the cohesion, morale and the ability of a boat to serve its function."

"(Clinton's) doing a lot of good things," Rogers said, "but he's just terribly misguided on this one," adding that Clinton should concentrate on more important issues such as cleaning the country's streams and rivers and building a better highway system instead of on "silly, trivial issues that mean nothing in the greater scheme of things."

Addressing local issues, Rogers said that the extension of Interstate 66 through Eastern Kentucky is "still the most important project that we could ever hope to happen to us."

He added that he had gained the support of West Virginia congressman Nick Rayhall, chairman of the congressional subcommittee on highways, in extending Route 66 into the region.

Rogers also vowed that the funds appropriated last year to improve and modify the Veteran's Administration clinic in Prestonsburg should be put to work soon, greatly increasing the facility's efficiency by bolstering its staff and amenities.

Answering questions from the audience, Rogers suggested as an alternative to the Brady Bill a means of controlling gun sales without infringing on the rights of private citizens.

Under Rogers' proposal, persons wishing to purchase handguns would be issued identification similar to credit cards which could be run through a national computer system that would instantly tell merchants whether or not customers were eligible to buy guns.

Colonel Denzil Allen, commander of the Kentucky Wing of the Civil Air Patrol, asked Rogers about his position on Clinton's economic plan, saying that the plan is unfair to aviators because its proposed BTU energy tax would increase the price of Avgas by 22 cents per gallon, a 47 percent increase over current prices; would require new registration fees for aircraft, forcing owners of small airplanes to pay the same price as owners of large jets.

Rogers said that he too opposed raising any taxes or rates until the federal government can show the American people that it can cut spending on frivolous and unnecessary projects and organizations.

$8.9 million can help raise comfort, lower bills for eligible Kentuckians

Twenty-five Kentucky agencies will receive close to $8.9 million again this year to help low-income families weatherproof their homes and bring down their utility bills.

The state and federal weatherization money is targeted to families having to pay a major portion of their limited income for heating and cooling, according to Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson, whose department oversees the weatherization program.

This year's funding is the same amount as last year, Robinson said, and is distributed to 22 community action agencies serving 118 counties, including Big Sandy Area Community Action Agency of Paintsville, which services Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties will receive $593,999 in weatherization grants.

"These agencies process the applications and actually carry out the weatherization work, either with their own crews or by contracting with local repair firms," Robinson said.

"Most anything that makes the house more energy-efficient can be done—caulking, weatherstripping around doors and windows, reglazing windows and adding insulation. The agencies try to make the most difference in comfort and in heating and cooling costs with the least money.

Weatherization funds come from three sources: $3,221,500 from the U.S. Department of Energy, $2,356,775 from the Home Energy Assistance Program and $43,292,600 from the Energy Assistance Trust Fund created when the state received court-ordered rebates from the petroleum industry.

sold some of Giese's dozer and mining equipment. Giese then countersued to recover the assets he had already pledged. Giese's father, Harvey Giese, also sued to recover his investment in Riverfront Corp. The elder Giese was awarded approximately $72,000, Baldwin said.

It was First Commonwealth's position that the bank had no binding commitment to loan Giese the full $1.9 million, Baldwin said, but that the elder Giese was awarded approximately $72,000, Baldwin said.

Frost & Jacobs attorneys Richard Getty and Denise McClelland, representing Giese, told Collier that First Commonwealth had no right to sell their client's collateral and that he was financially damaged by the breach of a loan agreement.

In a written statement issued Thursday, Spurlock said "First Commonwealth Bank is disappointed with the jury verdict. It feels that it followed prudent lending practices and did nothing wrong. It plans to appeal and will vigorously contest the verdict. In the meantime, the bank's business will continue as usual."

The nationally acclaimed books are based on the childhood of Mahone, who grew up in the coal-mining camp of Jenkins during the Great Depression.

"This is the story of my life," Mahone said of the Willie Pearl series. "It's a real honor for this to have happened to me. It's a story I told my daughter when she was a little girl, about caring and sharing..."

Mahone's father was a coal miner, and though her family was poor, they were rich in love for one another. The books are noted for their positive rendering of an African-American family, and Willie Pearl has been nominated for the Newberry Award and the Coretta Scott King Award for excellence in children's literature.

The first book takes place at Christmas, and ten-year-old Willie Pearl desperately wants Mandy, the beautiful doll she saw at the company store. But she can't quite come up with the $2.50 it takes to purchase the doll. Her older brother Johnny has his eye on a BB gun at the store, but he realizes he'll never make enough money at odd jobs to buy the gun by Christmas. He tells a depressed Willie Pearl, "Even if there's nothing under the tree this year, we still have a lot to be thankful for. We've got a home, good food to eat, and people who love us. What can be better than that?"

Green, who has a journalism degree from the University of Maryland and has been a technical writer and editor for 15 years. She chose to write her first fiction book about her mother because "you write what you know."

Through the years Mahone passed down stories about her mountain childhood to her three daughters, and the stories became more real to Green during annual visits to Jenkins.

"I'm a military brat," Green laughed. "I was born in Chicago, but my heart is here. Jenkins feels like home to me...When I return to Jenkins for visits, I also gather research. My aunts and uncles still live at Jenkins, and they expand the stories my mother told me.

"Beside collecting oral history, I did research at working coal mines...I also have taken pictures of vintage coal mines."

It took Green 18 months to research and write Willie Pearl and eight to ten weeks to write the second book.

Holmes, president of William Ruth and Company, a small publishing house in Maryland which published the series, said Green brought the first Willie Pearl manuscript to him and "I just really fell in love with it. I told her I'd like to publish it..."

"For one thing, it gives us the opportunity to show an African-American family living and loving together. And it's not set in an urban environment, where African-Americans are usually depicted. It was different. Not only that, it depicted a loving family that would appeal to everyone."

He added, "Ms. Green came to me with the idea of one story. I thought it should be more than one story and have dolls and other positive products. Willie Pearl should be a role model character for African-American youth."

Thus, Holmes and Green developed the concept of a Willie Pearl series (Green has already begun writing the third book) and Holmes created 19-inch dolls of Willie Pearl and another character in the book, Mae Ella, Willie Pearl's best friend. Caroline Traum, of the Bookworm, said "We've been carrying both the book and dolls since last fall and they have been selling well."

To Green, Willie Pearl is more than a book.

"It has been a life-long goal of mine to be a published writer and, more importantly, to document my family history," said Green. "It is a dream come true."

me until I got the design development designs."

Luscher said he favored the original gym site, but that it is up to the local board to decide where to locate the gym. No estimated cost of relocating the gym site has been submitted to state department for facilities management, he said.

Moving the site would require additional site preparation which has proven costly on the South Floyd project in the past.

Floyd superintendent Steve Towler said Thursday that he was "in the process of seeing if the board wanted to get involved" in the issue of relocating the gym.

"I'm not certain if we are going to take the issue back to the board," Towler said. "I'm trying to keep chairman (Eddie) Patton involved in this. Basically the board had approved the location of the gym, as I understood it with Mr. Hoffman, (last) fall."

Preliminary drawings by Hoffman of the gym building indicate that the facility is "too big" for the original gym site, Towler said Thursday.

"The gym has grown as far as the square footage in the gym and the outside dimensions of the gym from the plans that I saw that Mr. (Jim) Ellis had drawn," Towler said. "The whole site itself is smaller than it was originally proposed to be. We can shrink the size of the building. We're still going to have to jack it up six or seven feet (on the original site)."

Jim Ellis was the original architect on the Left Beaver contract and his contract was terminated last year when he failed to maintain professional liability insurance. Ellis was also one of the first persons to voice concerns about the Left Beaver project and in February 1991, he asked the state's Office of Educational Accountability to investigate school construction projects in Pike and Floyd counties.

Towler said he would recommend to the local board that the gym site be relocated because he felt Luscher's concerns had been addressed during an on-site visit to the school Wednesday.

A 25-foot wide driveway can be constructed around the gym, Towler explained, and any site work performed near the academic building would not require any blasting.

"(Luscher's) concerns about the current foundation and the traffic flow, we can answer those," Towler said. "I don't really think it's feasible to put the gym back where it was originally proposed. It's bigger. As I understand it, there's some fractured sandstone underneath that fill and we'd have to jack it up pretty high."

Hoffman gave a presentation on the South Floyd gym at the October 1992 Floyd County board meeting which, Towler said, included relocating the gym.

"(Hoffman) had a drawing of the gym and when he showed it to the board, he said to notice the gym has been moved to the side," Towler said. "(The board) may not have caught that. From the very first time (Hoffman) looked at where the gym would be, he thought it ought to be at (the proposed) site."

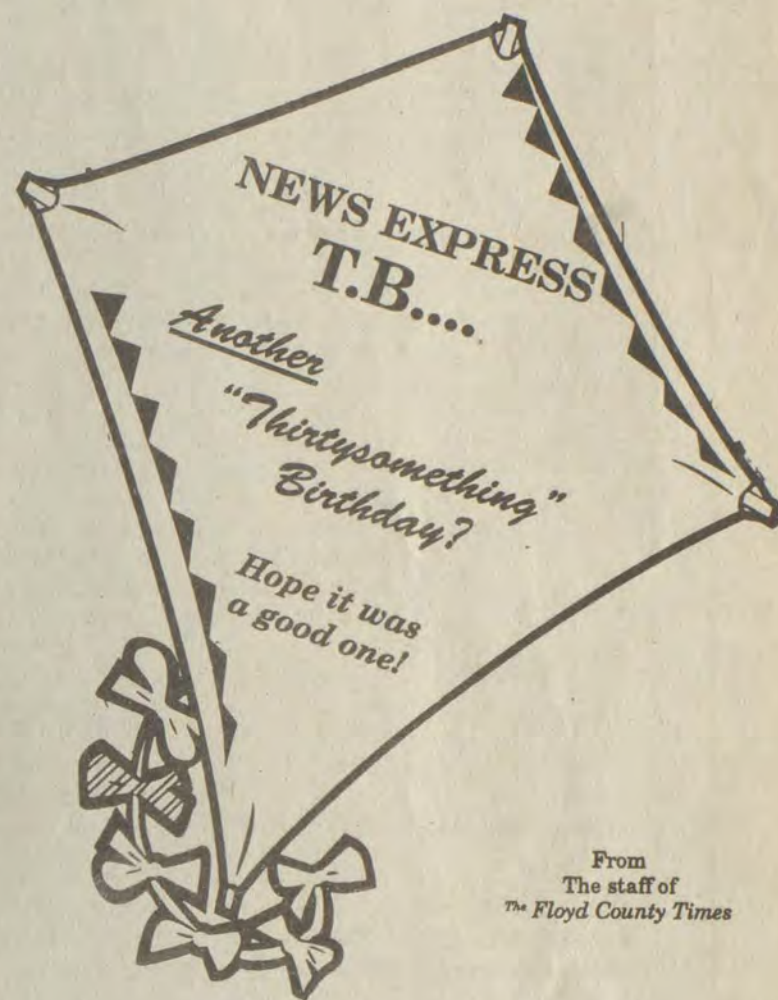

Towler said he did not know if the board voted to move the gym site.

The board had hoped to have the site work for the gym finished before the academic building is scheduled to be open this school year.

Towler said he was "not confident" that would happen.

The issue is expected to be on the agenda for an April 13 special meeting of the board. The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. at Adams Middle School.

Eileen Lewandowski

PCC faculty member chosen for leadership

Eileen Lewandowski, a faculty member in Prestonsburg Community College's Humanities Division, has been selected as a member of the 1993 class of Leadership Kentucky. The class will be formally introduced at a reception held in their honor at Bardstown, Kentucky on April 17. The 1993 Leadership Kentucky class represents a diverse group of citizens from throughout the commonwealth.

Leadership Kentucky was created in 1984 as a non-profit statewide educational program in affiliation with the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

Participants in Leadership Kentucky are selected from across the state; a cross-section of citizens representing a variety of backgrounds, who have demonstrated leadership ability and who are dedicated to Kentucky's progress.

Leadership Kentucky brings together each year 50 of the state's most promising leaders for seven monthly programs that address critical issues facing the state. They meet and talk with Kentucky's current leaders and explore through a systematic educational program the state's opportunities, needs and resources.

At the conclusion of the Leadership Kentucky experience, graduates have developed a network of relationships with a cross-section of leaders from throughout the state, and they have deeper insights and broader knowledge of the issues facing Kentucky. They bring a fresh, broadened perspective to their local communities and serve as important participants in the unified effort to shape Kentucky's future.

Ms. Lewandowski, her husband Bob and daughter Carol, currently reside at Hager Hill in Johnson County.

Patty Loveless anxious to play Renfro Valley

Getting back to stage and studio were Patty Loveless' primary objectives during her recovery from surgery in October to correct a vocal chord problem. The stage at Renfro Valley remained in the forefront of Patty's thoughts throughout her convalescence. "The people in Renfro Valley were so thoughtful during my recovery," said Loveless. "In the weeks following my surgery, a gift from Renfro Valley arrived with just about every mail delivery. I'm really looking forward to my April 18 concert there."

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Which witch?

by Scott Perry

It stood to reason that some folks weren't going to be too happy about the Floyd County Board of Education's plan to reorganize the system's administrative structure.

We would have been surprised by any reaction less than that which followed board approval of the plan, where some affected by the changes claimed they were nothing short of a "political witch hunt."

That's about as typical as you can get in these parts, where school systems are the seats of power.

Typical, yes.
Accurate, no.

The reorganization plan offered by superintendent Steve Towler, modified and approved unanimously by the board is the product of a lengthy state review of the Floyd County system and a directive from the state Department of Education, which said the local board must:

"Reorganize the administrative structure to include skilled and motivated school leaders with emphasis on educational excellence and accountability..."

The key words in this mandate are "skilled" and "motivated."

It is apparent by their inclusion in the state review that those particular requirements weren't necessarily among the criteria in the past for landing a job in the central office.

There are skilled and motivated people in the central office now, though, and they aren't likely to be casualties of the reorganization plan. They should welcome a structure that will allow them to do their jobs without undue political pressures.

The board and superintendent Towler have done what is right and what is necessary to bring a measure of accountability and reason to school management.

That's no witch hunt, that's progress.

Get involved in your community's environment

by Robert R. Beverley
Resource Manager

Kentucky is blessed with many natural resources, with scenic beauty as just one among the top few. Often, as you drive along any road in Eastern Kentucky, one can see trash and/or litter scattered beside the road. It is hard for some to understand why so many people insist upon spoiling the beautiful scenery in our part of the State—how someone could throw trash out the window without giving it a second thought.

It is also hard to understand how someone can stand by and watch their community being ruined by people that evidently don't care about where they live or their children's future.

What's at stake? Pride in where we live (and how), pride in our State and its scenic public properties is at stake. Our overall personal welfare is at stake.

The economic success of all Kentuckians is also at stake. It's an embarrassment for us all when tourists visit Kentucky only to find the landscape littered with every imaginable piece of refuse. As just one example of the problem, one can look at our public recreation areas, our lakes and streams. These areas are part of the overall attractions that Kentucky has to offer.

Unfortunately, the trash problem is quite evident, in spite of the efforts of many local individuals who volunteer to clean up the mess deposited by uncaring people. Trash dumped into creeks and floodplains eventually flows downstream into the lakes, making them unattractive and, at times, even physically dangerous. Floating debris impedes normal boating traffic and can cause severe damage to props, fiberglass hulls, etc.

Who wants to visit Kentucky to see its legacy of discarded bed mattresses, junk cars, refrigerators, and the like? The problem reinforces stereotypical images of uneducated mountaineers and drives sickened visitors away, never to return.

This greatly reduces income to local businesses from tourism or may even deter future businesses from developing job opportunities. People surely won't want to move to this part of the State, if they won't even want to visit.

But, there is hope. Eliminating the problem is NOT impossible and it should not be thought of as a lost cause.

Many volunteers have spent long hours cleaning up other people's mess throughout their communities. These people are special and have enough foresight to understand the benefits of a clean environment. These are the people that want to do something good for their community, families and friends. The results are immeasurable and, without voluntary help, "we would all be wading in trash," even more than we are now.

Problems still persist; however, much can be done to erase this terrible blight on our land. It's not a lost cause and the problem can most assuredly be licked. But we must all do our rightful part. With your help, it can be done.

What can YOU do? Consider the following:

- Don't litter! Lend a hand
- Dispose of your garbage properly. Lose the old traditions, practices and ways of thought, of improper garbage disposal.
- Push for a better refuse disposal system in your community. Make a difference.
- Don't use your public (or private) lands as a dumping ground.
- Put a litter bag in your vehicle and use it.
- Get involved in your community. Change it. Volunteer to help clean up the trash.
- Don't use streams and rivers as a conveyor belt to get rid of your refuse.
- Abide by our public laws designed to protect us all.
- Recycle: Get cash for scrap items instead of dumping it over the hill. There are businesses that take scrap metal, used oil, old tires, plastic and other items.
- Respect and take pride in public property, your own property and the community.
- Be a positive role model for your children. They do as you do. Their values are your values.

Our trash problem need not be our legacy. Kentucky has a lot of good things to offer. It need only be uncovered from its blanket of litter. Together we can all do our part to restore the dignity of our land. With your help, it can happen.

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Don't let mine rules be shaved

The most immediate and tragic consequence of the 1989 Pyro coal-mine explosion was the 10 lives it cost, an irreplaceable loss against which all other considerations are secondary.

Yet, the lingering peripheral damage stemming from that, and like incidents, should not be overlooked.

Investigators concluded that a buildup of methane gas above the limits of safety was responsible for the Webster County accident.

Pyro Mining Co. has pleaded guilty to 29 safety violations and faces a $3.75 million fine.

The accident was yet another blow to the already fragile bond of trust that needs to exist between labor and management and between community and corporate citizens.

Underground mining is at best a dirty and dangerous business for those who do the work. Mine owners have a solemn obligation to the miners to minimize those hazards through nothing less than scrupulous adherence to every safety regulation in force — and perhaps more than that.

There can be no excusing any shaving of the rules, whether deliberate or out of carelessness. In many businesses, corner-cutting might merely have an unfortunate effect. In a coal mine, it can mean dead men, widows and orphans.

Pyro as a company already has admitted wrongdoing. Some of the employees have also; others are yet to be tried, and we make no pre-judgment there.

But as a generalization, what happened in September 1989 at the mine simply can't be tolerated.

The growing public concern over ethics should not stop with government. — The Paducah Sun reprinted from the Herald-Leader.

Are coal trucks hazardous? Load limit tells the tale

Do coal trucks get a bad rap? Or are they rolling menaces to the public safety on Eastern Kentucky roads? The debate can't be answered statistically, because nobody keeps the kind of figures needed to give definitive answers.

But one fact stands out unmistakably. Kentucky allows coal trucks to haul up to 120,000 pounds — half again as much as other trucks, which are limited to 80,000 pounds.

Combine that with the difficult roads of the coalfields and it's easy to see why people in the mountains go fearfully onto the region's highways.

The likelihood of lowering the load limit is small. Coal truckers say they can barely make ends meet as it is, and the legislature historically has been sympathetic to their plight. But as long as these big rigs run the road carrying an extra 40,000 pounds legally, there should be no other debate over whether they pose a greater hazard than do other trucks.

The dispute will never end

The Big Sandy Regional Detention Center has become the Deja Vu Capitol of Kentucky. If you don't believe me, consider the latest court ruling concerning the facility's management.

Once again the counties of Johnson, Lawrence, Magoffin and Martin have control of the jail. That means Johnson County Jailer Thurman Tackett is out — again.

Most people, however, have gotten to the point that they don't care who's in charge anymore. After seven years of litigation, they're tired of hearing about it.

The Court of Appeals has said that the management question was answered in 1989 by the Supreme Court. In other words, the appeals judges say, the litigation has come to an end. Tackett, however, will ask the Supreme Court to consider the case one more time.

That means that Tackett will be a jailer without a jail. That, in turn, means that future Johnson County jailers will also be without a jail to manage if the court decision stands.

The bottom line to this whole mess is that the dispute with the regional jail will never end. Even if the Supreme Court overturns the latest ruling, somebody won't be happy.

And, no matter which side you're on in this continuing saga, that's bad news for everybody.

HEALTH-CARE REFORM REQUIRES EFFORT

by Leonard Larsen
Scripps Howard News Service

Of course it's gratifying that Hillary Rodham Clinton is flying to the nation's cities and backroad hamlets to listen to sad stories from Americans as part of her job in fashioning health-care reform for the nation.

It may diminish the work only slightly to consider that it's actually presidential show-biz, an enormously expensive public relations project, complete with in-house TV crews, skilled interviewers to screen panelists for the variety and degree of their health-care miseries and schedulers to move the show along, with traveling White House aides and Secret Service agents to mark it all as official government business.

The obvious intent is to make it appear that Mrs. Clinton is digging out information on the shortcomings of the nation's health-care system, information that's already known to almost every American and most of the rest of the civilized world.

The problem with health care is the cost of it. In every category, from health insurance to prescription drugs to hospitalization to doctors' charges to rehabilitation to health maintenance to long-term care for the elderly and the chronically ill to emergency treatment, to every single charge from Band-Aids to brain surgery—all of it costs too much. And the prices keep going up.

That's what the nation's healthcare crisis is about and what it's been about for many years. It costs too much and Americans by the millions can't afford it, and it's no secret that has to be pried out of people prodded into telling bleak stories of personal misfortune to Mrs. Clinton and a retinue of PR specialists who calculate the carefully assembled grief for its political impact.

A weak case can be made on behalf of the road show for national healthcare reform on the suggestion that all of this—each story of hardship and untended health-care problems—is actually news to Mrs. Clinton and news when she reports it to her husband.

Both, in fact, have been on one public payroll or another during most of their working and married lives and obviously shielded from the real world out there.

But the president and Mrs. Clinton have demonstrated intellectual capacity clearly above average and the successful Clinton presidential campaign showed them to be concerned and conversant with almost every wrinkle of that life average Americans have encountered, even a few wrinkles average Americans might not have encountered.

So it's not news to most Americans and it can't be news to the Clintons that, as Mrs. Clinton has been told in recent days, employers complain at escalating health-insurance costs or a cancer victim can't be insured or an hourly wage-earner works a hazardous job without insurance or an accident-injured mother has $1 million in health-care costs she can't pay or that an Iowa farm family last year spent most of its cash income on health insurance.

It's been said of Mrs. Clinton's road show that the cross-country events are "crucial discussions shaping the health policy that the Clinton administration intends to unveil in the first week in May." It might also have been said that the string of "hearings" are a well-orchestrated project, the product of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, whose operatives have supervised each event down to the screening of "panelists" and the approved guest list for members of each audience.

This is vastly important work that Mrs. Clinton has chosen to do and her husband has assigned, nothing less than the complete and comprehensive reform of the nation's health-care system, and every American ought to wish them success. What also ought to be wished is that, after all the presidential showbiz, there will be more substance and less contrivance in whatever is going on in the still-secret discussions by the unknown participants who, it's believed, will produce the actual policies and programs of health-care reform.

There's the prospect here for great achievement or great failure and, in delivering the work into his wife's hands, President Clinton has made her a full partner either way.

Blandford asks judge to suppress tapes

An attorney for former Kentucky House Speaker Don Blandford has asked a judge to suppress audio tapes and videotapes of Blandford and two lobbyists gathered during a federal investigation into state government corruption.

Blandford faces federal bribery charges as a result of the investigation.

His attorney, Allen Holbrook, argued Tuesday that the FBI had not properly sealed the tapes after they were made - a contention that E.J. Walbourn, an assistant U.S. attorney, disputed.

Holbrook also has asked the U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood to dismiss a charge of lying to the F.B.I. and to forbid federal prosecutors from using a March 31, 1992, interview with Blandford as evidence in the case against him.

Hood took each of Holbrook's motions under study and scheduled more hearings for pretrial motions Tuesday. Blandford is scheduled to go to trial April 18. — The Lexington Herald-Leader

Rogers advocates redirecting Licking River

U.S. Congressman Hal Rogers said he will seek federal funds for a flood control project from downtown Salyersville.

The proposed plan would also improve the flow of the river along a three-mile stretch.

As a member of the Energy and Water subcommittee, Rogers will help write the final version of the funding bill that will be adopted by Congress later this year.

Referral center open once again

The Veterans Referral Center is back in business.

The center, located on Broadway in Paintsville, reopened Wednesday after being closed for the last two weeks for financial reasons, director Bill Scurlock said Tuesday.

Anonymous contributions allowed the facility to reopen, Scurlock said, adding that it will stay in business "as long as we're able to keep the finances flowing."

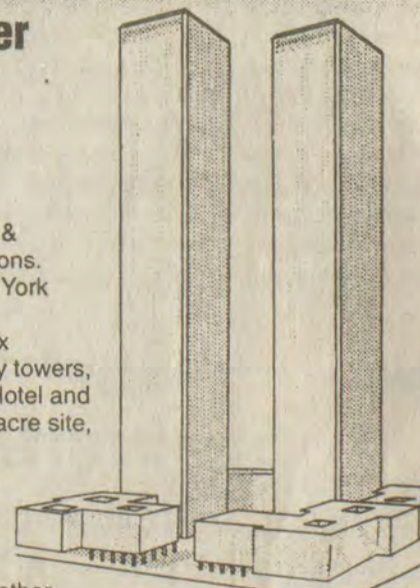

The center, which offers assistance to veterans, closed March 19 because it ran out of money. Scurlock said the facility opened entirely on donations from individuals and businesses.

Meanwhile, the local chapter of Veterans of Foreign Wars has opened an office at Van Lear to help veterans as well. The VFW Post 3998 is located on Route 302. — The Paintsville Herald

Science fun

Shannon, Malorie and Andrea have lots of fun playing scientific games at Prestonsburg Community College. Dr. John Shiber, Division of Biological Sciences, oversees the project.

Exploring the sciences through games

"What a perfect way to spend a rainy Saturday morning," commented one of the many parents who attended "Educational Science Games People Play" at PCC on March 26th. This is a family-oriented activity sponsored by the college's Continuing Education and Community Service office in which children and adults play various interesting board and card games, each of which has a scientific or mathematical theme.

Dr. John Shiber of the Division of Biological Sciences, who first introduced this activity to the community, says that the children (and parents) derive a great deal from playing such games. "First of all," he said, "it is fun. Secondly, the games teach something of importance to everyone."

At least one adult is encouraged to take part in each game, which helps to set a more serious tone to the activity. "You cannot imagine how much the children enjoy playing these games with the adults, and vice versa. Everyone learns in a situation like this," says Dr. Shiber.

All the games are informative. Among the most popular are the following: "Space Hop," which tests the players' knowledge and teaches them about the planets and their relative location to one another in the solar system; "Endangered Species," which gives the players insight into the setting up of wildlife preserves and politics involved; "Decimeter," which is a fun way to learn about and become familiar with the metric system of measurement that is slowly being adopted by this country; and "Super Sandwich," which familiarizes players with the nutritive value of different foods by, literally, eating their way through the game!

Boring? Not in the Least! Informative? Exceptionally so! Upon being asked for their opinion on this activity, everyone who participated said he/she had fun, learned something new, and would like to come back again to play...soon!

Talent at work

Ronnie Gevedon, PCC artist student is shown working on location. His work will be exhibited at the college gallery through April 23.

PCC student Ronnie Anderson Gevedon has art exhibition

An exhibition of art work by Ronnie Anderson Gevedon will be on display at the Prestonsburg Community College Art Gallery from April 5-23.

Ronnie Gevedon grew up in the Cannel City area of Morgan County. He has been influenced by his grandfather, C. Gevedon, mountain farmer who remained rather distant from his grandchildren. (Four of his own children had died from childhood diseases.) Ronnie remembers seeing his grandfather paint rocks, trees, crosses, the house, well box, anything and everything. Ronnie also paints on doors, table tops, canvas, paper and any available surface.

Gevedon's subjects are nostalgia, fantasy and science fiction. Like the artist Goya, Ronnie Gevedon paints the seen, the unseen, and the obscene.

"Ronnie is a person who goes to a history class and draws through the lecture. Somehow he can concentrate on several things at once," says art professor Tom J. Whitaker.

An invitation goes out for all to come and see the first major exhibition by Ronnie Anderson Gevedon.

Easter gas prices up four cents over '92, AAA says

Motorists traveling over the Easter holiday weekend will find that gasoline prices have increased. According to AAA's most recent Fuel Gauge survey, the average price of self-serve regular unleaded in the Lexington area is 99.7 cents a gallon. This price is 2.3 cents higher than the Club's previous survey on January 20 and four cents more than last Easter.

Statewide, the average is $1.002 a gallon and nationally, the average is $1.11, also four cents higher than Easter, 1992.

The survey, which includes 43 service stations in the Lexington market, reflects a range in price from 97 cents to $1.05 a gallon.

VIDEO EDITING SERVICES is casting for a video production to be shot in the Lexington area and Eastern Kentucky. They are not looking for the usual young and glamorous talent, but for good theatrical actors in their 40's, 60's and 70's.

VIDEO EDITING SERVICES is contracted by the University of Kentucky Research Foundation to produce a video about mammography screening for rural Eastern Kentucky women and six public service announcements. The client wanted a program that women could relate to. The script was designed as a dramatized piece with real characters. Not the normal industrial script treatment. This video will be more like a soap opera.

Casting Agent, Pamela Mullins said "One of the ladies was coming from Louisville when her car broke down, she hitchhiked back to Louisville, rented a car and headed back to Lexington. She is in her 70's and full of energy and determination. She did a good read and has a call back". Production days will be in early May. If you are interested in auditioning call Pamela Mullins at (606) 255-9049.

Other recent projects took VES's crew to Chicago for clients James N. Gray Construction and Spiegel, Inc. to shoot a segment of "PROJECT MILLENIUM" a training video for employees. Visual Information Systems, a production company from New Jersey contracted VES to shoot at the Markey Cancer Center a segment for the Medical Broadcast Network.

Greet Spring With Little Bunny Cakes

Add sparkle to Easter brunch or dinner with easy-to-make, mini-size bunny cakes. They're adorable and delicious!

Each bunny-shaped cake is sized just right for an individual serving — great for special entertaining or to surprise family and friends. You might...

- Individualize the cakes with guests' names to use as edible place cards.

- Tuck the mini cakes in a pretty basket lined with food-safe colored paper to make an Easter dinner centerpiece. Then for dessert, just pass the basket around the table.

- Place the cakes in pastel bags and deliver to friends, neighbors or retirement homes.

Thanks to the new Mini Bunny Cake Pan from Wilton, these cute cakes are super easy to do! The muffin-style pan bakes six cakes at once, and each bunny face mold is complete with indentations for a nose, mouth and eyes.

The pan is great for cakes, muffins or brownies! Use your favorite recipe, or bake a convenient mix. Try chocolate bunnies topped with fudgy icing or raisin bran muffins to eat plain. Thanks to the shape, decorating isn't even needed!

Other "quick-as-a-bunny" spring treats include lemon poppyseed cakes — just add 3 tablespoons poppyseeds to a lemon cake mix, bake, then spread with frosting. For extra-quick lemon flavor, simply mix grated lemon peel into vanilla icing.

"Furry" coconut-topped bunnies are another easy idea. Spread each cake with buttercream icing, then sprinkle with shredded coconut. Use candy for the nose and eyes, and make quick whiskers with extra thin strips of licorice.

Young Authors

County Schools jointly feature the student work of Brandis Bradley, a fourth grade Young Authors' winner from Mrs. Gayle Justice's class at Harold Elementary. Brandis is the daughter of Debbie and Johnny Bradley of Stanville. Her book, Spelling and Memorizing Using Mnemonic Clues, printed with permission, was the winner in the fourth grade "skills-content" competition.

Brandis was a room winner, a school winner, and a county-wide winner for the 1991-92 school year for her book. She received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond at a spring awards ceremony. Over 5,000 elementary and middle school students participated in competition throughout the county.

Student teachers

Student teachers Danita Johnson, Sandi Slone and Christina Allen are staying busy at Duff Elementary and at Alice Lloyd College.

Student teachers at Duff

There are some new faces—Danita Johnson, Sandi Slone and Christina Hall—at James A. Duff Elementary School, with the addition of three new student teachers from Alice Lloyd College.

Danita Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, of Teaberry. She is majoring in Elementary Education (grades 5-8), with an emphasis on social studies and English. Her interests include softball, basketball, and cheerleading. During this semester, she has assisted in coaching the Duff Lady Bulldogs, the Duff Boys Varsity cheerleaders, and also the Allen Central Boys Varsity cheerleaders. She is a member of the Alice Lloyd girls softball team. Her supervising teachers are Sheilah Ratliff and Faye Robinson.

Sandi Slone is the daughter of Florida Combs of Pippa Passes. She is majoring in Elementary Education (grades 5-8) with an emphasis on math and English. Her hobbies include tennis and reading. She has a 22-month-old son, Joshua. Her supervising teachers are Cindy Pack and Sheilah Ratliff.

Christina Allen Hall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Allen, and the wife of Brian Hall, of Printer. She is an Elementary Education major (grades K-4), with an emphasis on English. She is an Alice Lloyd cheerleader and residential advisor. Her supervising teacher is Maudie Sexton.

All three student teachers are working and studying under the supervision of Wayne Hall, Ph. D., of Alice Lloyd College and plan to graduate in May.

Mountain Heritage Arts elects officers

Newly-elected board members of Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts elected officers on April 7 for its calendar year.

Elected were Delores Smith, chairperson; Joyce Everly, vice-chairperson; Jodi Blackburn, treasurer; and Sr. Anita Hayden, secretary.

Smith is vice president of R & S Truck Body Inc. She works with various committees involving economic development, education reform, the Chamber of Commerce, the Kentucky Opry and the Floyd County Litter Task Force. As past president of the Chamber of Commerce, she was instrumental in the initial formation of Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts Inc, formerly Floyd County Arts.

Everly is chairperson and board member of St. Vincent Mission. She is active in the Floyd County Litter Task Force. She has served with Floyd County Citizens Education Council for 13 years. She has also served as president of the Paintsville Band Boosters for two years. She is an active community volunteer and had volunteered at David Appalachian Crafts for seven years.

Blackburn has been active in Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts since its inception. She was instrumental in the formation of the arts center. She has served as treasurer of the interim board since May, 1992. She is circulation manager of the Floyd County Times.

Sr. Hayden has worked closely with Mountain Heritage since its beginning. She exhibits and sells hand-woven baskets and has taught two classes in basket weaving this past year. She has served as secretary of the interim board since May, 1992. She has taught at David School for four years.

In other business, committees were organized for upcoming events. Committees and those leading them are as follows:

Fundraising, Gerty McKenzie; workshop/education programs, Julie Johnson; East Point project, Brenda Crouch; membership/patrons fund, Delores Smith; publicity, Joyce Everly and Charlotte McFall, co-chairperson, and Jodi Blackburn.

Other board members include Ron Vanover, Gary Frazier, Julie Johnson, Gerty McKenzie and Larry Blackburn.

Vanover is director of recreation and interpretation at Jenny Wiley State Park. While his background is in music and environmental studies, he has organized and coordinated fundraising and other alumni events while working at Union College. He also coordinated recreational activities at Cumberland Falls State Resort Park. He is an instructor for round, folk, two-step, square and traditional dancing.

Frazier is a member of the board of the Kentucky Opry. He has been an assistant superintendent of Floyd County Schools for the past five years. He has been involved in the Highland Folk Festival, and the college system. He is a former professor of Morehead State University and is former principal of McDowell elementary and high school and Maytown Elementary.

Johnson has worked as a craftsperson for over 15 years and has worked at David Appalachian Crafts as sales/marketing manager for seven years. She is familiar with the process for juring and has been accepted by guilds and art organizations to serve as a juror.

McKenzie, a self-taught artist, has been active in the Mountain Heritage Arts since its beginning. She has served on the interim board.

Larry Blackburn has been involved in wood working for the last 20 years and has been making knives for about seven or eight. He is a track inspector for CSX Railroad. He is a lifetime resident of Cow Creek.

Good Friday Service

Christ United Methodist Church of Allen will hold its annual Good Friday Service April 9, at 7 p.m. The Christ United Methodist Choir, under the direction of Jerry B. Lafferty, will present their Easter Cantata "Hosanna" during the service. The pastor, Rev. Kenneth R. Lemaster, extends a welcome to all to attend.

Floyd County seventh and eighth grade gifted students recently toured the Toyota factory in Georgetown. Students got a first hand look at how cars are manufactured.

Wearing a PFD can save lives

It's that time of year again when the sun starts to stake its claim on the Northern Hemisphere. Not only are days getting noticeably longer, but there is a touch of warmth in the air. Cabin fever is about to break, and the symptoms of winter confinement are about to fade.

For fishermen and boaters, there is something ritual about the first time on the water since last season. Maybe it's the magic of a boat slipping through the water on a warm spring day—boats on a trailer or in drydock don't have the graceful presence of those in the water.

These early season outings are often very tranquil since boat traffic is light. Who would believe a monster awaits the unsuspecting and unprepared boater in this near-perfect setting?

This menace is silent but deadly. This unforgiving element is the water—cold water. While the air temperature is warm, the water is still cold. The shocking effect of cold water on the human body is instantaneous and immobilizing.

Persons who fall into cold water may disappear under the water without a struggle. Those who survive the initial plunge may lose the use of their arms and legs and may not be able to get out of the water. As the person's body temperature drops rapidly, unconsciousness and drowning result.

Of course, there is a simple precaution that can prevent such tragedy. Boaters should wear a PFD any time they're near the water. A PFD is a Personal Flotation Device. It will keep you afloat until you can get out of the water or until help arrives. However, it won't do you any good unless you wear it, especially if the water is cold.

It's also a good idea to take a friend along on any boat outing. The buddy system may be a lifesaver, especially when the weather's warming and the water's cold.

For boating safety information, contact the Kentucky Water Patrol at 1-800-828-BOAT.

Williams excels in math and engineering at UK

Robyn Williams

Robyn Williams got her first taste of serious number crunching in elementary school. After participating in a math competition sponsored by the Kentucky Society for Professional Engineers, Robyn decided she wanted to study engineering at the University of Kentucky.

Winner of a Henry M. Lutes Scholarship from the UK College of Engineering, she is now majoring in chemical engineering and minoring in math.

Following a stint at Highlands Regional Medical Center last summer, during which she worked as a phlebotomist, Robyn is contemplating another challenging direction.

"I'm considering going into medical school after I graduate," she said. "I'm taking all my chemistry prerequisites for medical school now. It's something I've always thought about."

As a top student in calculus, she was chosen to be an undergraduate assistant in the MathExcel Program, helping teaching assistants in an accelerated course for calculus students.

"It's kind of like being a tutor. I love it," said Robyn. She is well-prepared to be a positive influence on other students. This year, Robyn was one of the top 50 sophomores on campus tapped for Lambda Sigma, a sophomore honor society. She is also a member of the freshman honor societies, Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta.

Robyn assists UK in its recruiting efforts as a member of Collegians for Academic Excellence. During March and April, when top seniors from state high schools are invited to UK for Merit Weekend, Robyn and others act as mentors and guides for the visiting students.

Chances are, she can help put to rest any fears about being on a large campus. Robyn said there are more students in her UK chemistry class than there were in her senior class back at Allen Central High School.

"It seems like a lot of kids at home don't think they can make it at UK," said Robyn. "But it's not how large a school is on the map; it's how big you want to make it."

Robyn is the daughter of Tom and Gwen Williams of Martin.

PUTTING YOU LIFE ON HOLD

We have finally allowed the telephone companies to take complete control of our lives. Thanks to the services now offered through Ma Bell, Sprint and MCI, "Call Waiting" gives telephone users the freedom of receiving a phone call while another conversation is already in progress.

This is a wonderful concept, but it could be what is contributing to low self-esteem, severed friendships, and temporary insanity.

"Hi, Jean," I said when I telephoned my friend one day last week. "How's it going?"

"Not so hot, but..." At this point, my telephone begins to beep letting me know that I am receiving another call.

"Excuse me, Jean, I'm expecting a call from J.R." I then click over to the other call. In the process of clicking back to Jean, I realize that she has to be thinking, "If she was expecting another call, why did she call me?" And I'd agree with her. That's logical thinking, but J.R. might call and he might not. What if it were Ed McMahon calling to say I had won a million dollars?

"Jean, it was nobody," I say. "Now where were we?"

"You asked how I was feeling."

"Oh, yeah. And you said..." Once again the phone beeps. "It might be for Jimmie. Let me get it." This time before I click back over to Jean I remember that I called her and realize how insensitive "Call Waiting" is. How terrible to call someone then put them on hold while you click over to take a call that implies you might consider it more important than the call you made in the first place. In other words, when you click over, you are subconsciously sending a message to the person on the other end that they aren't as important as the person who just beeped in.

"Jean, I apologize," I say when I finally get back on the line. "But that was Amanda in Indianapolis."

"Oh, that's all right," Jean reassures me. "I didn't have anything better to do. I could have finished fixing dinner. I was doing that when your call interrupted me, but that was hours ago. Don't worry."

At this point Jean's telephone beeps and I'm left hanging on the other end. She immediately clicks back over and says, "Surie, I'll get back to you." In my mind, what she is really saying is that there's someone on the other end she'd rather talk to. Someone who is a better listener or a nicer person. Someone considerate and more intelligent to talk with. In other words, the kind of person she'd rather be talking to than me.

Personally, I think the telephone companies knew this type of situation would arise so they invented 3-way calling. Now when I call Jean, if she says she has to hang up to call her mother I say, "Hold up! I'll call her, and we can all talk at the same time. No sense in wasting another call." I'm sure Jean feels lucky to have a friend like me.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND

It will be a night of rap and rhythm and blues music at Morehead State University's Student Government Association-sponsored concert on Monday, April 12.

Scheduled to perform at the University's Academic-Athletic Center beginning at 8 p.m. are Naughty by Nature, Run DMC has a Top 10 hit, "Down with the King." This group achieved popularity in the '80s when its album "Walk This Way" sold more than a million copies.

Although new to the pop charts, Jade is becoming a recognized and Jade.

Recipient of the American Music Award for Best New Rap Group in 1992, Naughty by Nature will make a stop at MSU as part of its spring tour. The group also was nominated for best Rap Performance, Duo or Group at the 1992 Grammy Awards and presented "The Source" magazine's New Artist of the Year 1991 award.

The trio members, all in their early 20s, received national recognition with their first single "Down Wit O.P.P.," which sold a million copies. "Hip Hop Hooray" is a current Top 10 pop hit on the Billboard Hot 100 and a new single, "Everything's Gonna Be Alright," has been recently released.

Considered one of the biggest names in the rap industry, Run DMC also name on the music scene with tremendous speed. The three female singers have a Top 10 hit in their rhythm and blues "Don't Walk Away." Tickets, on sale now, are $15 (reserved seats) and $12 (bleachers) for the general public. The cost for MSU students is $10 (reserved) and $8 (bleachers). Tickets may be purchased at MSU-Licking Valley Extended Campus Center in West Liberty; MSU-Ashland Area Extended Campus Center; Martin's Department Store and Peoples Store in Morehead and on campus at the Student Activities Office in the Adron Doran University Center.

Additional information is available by calling MSU's Student Activities Office at (606) 783-2071.

Well, the plastic-egg trees are blooming again and the Cadbury Bunny commercials are running full-steam, so it must be Easter.

And of course Easter is, in my opinion, one of our better holidays. After all, ol' Peter Cottontail still delivers a basket to my address every year, thanks to my dear, kind, loving parents and my dear, kind, loving wife, who made some sort of arrangement with him to keep me on his list even though I'm now old enough to vote, drink and have my car insurance rates lowered (don't tell anybody though, because they either paid him off or falsified my birth records to make him think I'm really only as old as I act, and I'm pretty sure that the whole thing either constitutes fraud or graft, and I really don't want anybody to go to jail just so I can munch on some marshmallow duckies every year).

Yep. Easter's pretty spiffy, although it's no secret that the whole thing was started a few years ago by unscrupulous little bunny rabbits so they could make a tidy profit and make themselves out to be big heroes to all the little kids, what with ol' Pete hoppin' down the bunny trail and delivering hyperactivity-fueling, tooth-

Truth, Justice, and the American Way

by Geoff Belcher, staff writer decaying chocolate to all those innocent, unsuspecting children of innocent, unsuspecting parents.

And you can't tell me that the American Dental Association didn't have something to do with it. Still, this is America, so you've gotta figure that if a holiday's gonna be successful, there has to be a profit-motive somewhere.

I mean, how many kids do you know who lie awake in breathless anticipation on Arbor Day Eve, joyfully awaiting the arrival of Phil O'Dendron, the jolly Arbor Day Elf who travels all over the world in his magic log-flume delivering acorns and saplings to all the good little boys and girls?

None. Ain't no money in it. Don't get me wrong, though. I'm not trying to be cynical.

And I'm certainly not begrudging the rabbits one penny. I mean, after all, for centuries their ancestors have been down-trodden, being kept in cages and made into coats and fricasees and the like, until one one day one of the little buggers stood up and said "No more, brothers! No more shall we stand for the non-fuzzy tails (the rabbit-term for "people,") herding us into slavery and cutting off our tootsies for their #@%* keychains!!! From now on we shall be in charge and we shall rake in the cash, even if it's only for one day a year!!!!"

And so, utilizing the aid of Bugs the Great, the first of their race to break the chains of bondage and gain respect and merchandising royalties from the non-fuzzy tails, the rabbits rose up and took their place in the halls of money-making greatness (Bugs, of course, used his power and influence to get his fellow rabbit-kind good publicity, and also to get them into the better restaurants and nightclubs, although some of the more militant rabbits, such as Bunny X, still accuse him of "selling out to the non-fuzzies").

To this day, though, historians and anthropologists are still puzzled as to why the rabbits chose the egg as their symbol of liberation.

Some have theorized, of course, that the egg represents rebirth, but I think that the rabbits chose it not only for its profit-potential, but also for its confusion-factor, because my earliest childhood memory of the egg, other than hunting for 'em and eating 'em with ketchup, is the time I asked my dad where babies come from, and, after he got over his choking fit, he told me "Well, son, babies start out as an egg in the mother's belly," and my Aunt Teresa just happened to be about eight months pregnant at the time and I thought to myself "Jeez-o-mighty, that must be one heck of an egg." Fortunately, I only had to wait another month to find out she wasn't giving birth to Big Bird.

Anyways, Easter's almost upon us now, so you boys and girls out there better say your prayers and do what your parents tell you so Mr. Cottontail doesn't do what he does to bad little boys and girls and hide an egg really good somewhere in your bedroom so that you can't find it until it rots and smells the place up so bad that you have to repaint and throw away your Ninja Turtles sheets.

Me, I'm being extra nice, and of course I'm leaving out his cookies and Budweiser, just the way he likes 'em.

I just can't wait for Arbor Day.

Poperri

by Scott Perry

Ah, spring. That most enjoyable time of the year when the trees begin to bud, the chatter of birds greets the morning and the mothers of small boys are heard polishing up on the obscenities they'll hurl at Little League umpires, coaches and each other during the upcoming season. If you have never attended a Little League ballgame, you have missed one of nature's most amazing phenomena.

Women who could easily be mistaken for the personal secretary to the Pope are transformed by called strikes, which may or may not have caught the corner of the plate, into bile-spitting Gorgons who could with a sideways glance turn an entire opposing fan section into stone.

When I was a Little Leaguer, mothers were barred from the ballpark. Not because they rode the officials, but because they tended to make a fool out of you. Back then, moms didn't know the difference between a pop fly and popcorn, but they did know that grass stain was murder to get out of a white pair of pants.

A successful slide into second might get you a round of applause from your teammates, but it was certain to get a "I JUST WASHED THOSE PANTS!" out of your mom.

Things are different now. Women know a lot more about sports and they have infiltrated a club once exclusive to men. Political correctness dictates that women should have equal access to cussing out referees and umpires.

My own mother, who used to carry a bar of soap in her pocketbook for those frequent occasions when I needed a good mouth-cleansing, has been known to inject some colorful adjectives into the play-by-plays these days, just to fit in, I suppose.

I sat next to a member of the club during a recent UK basketball game.

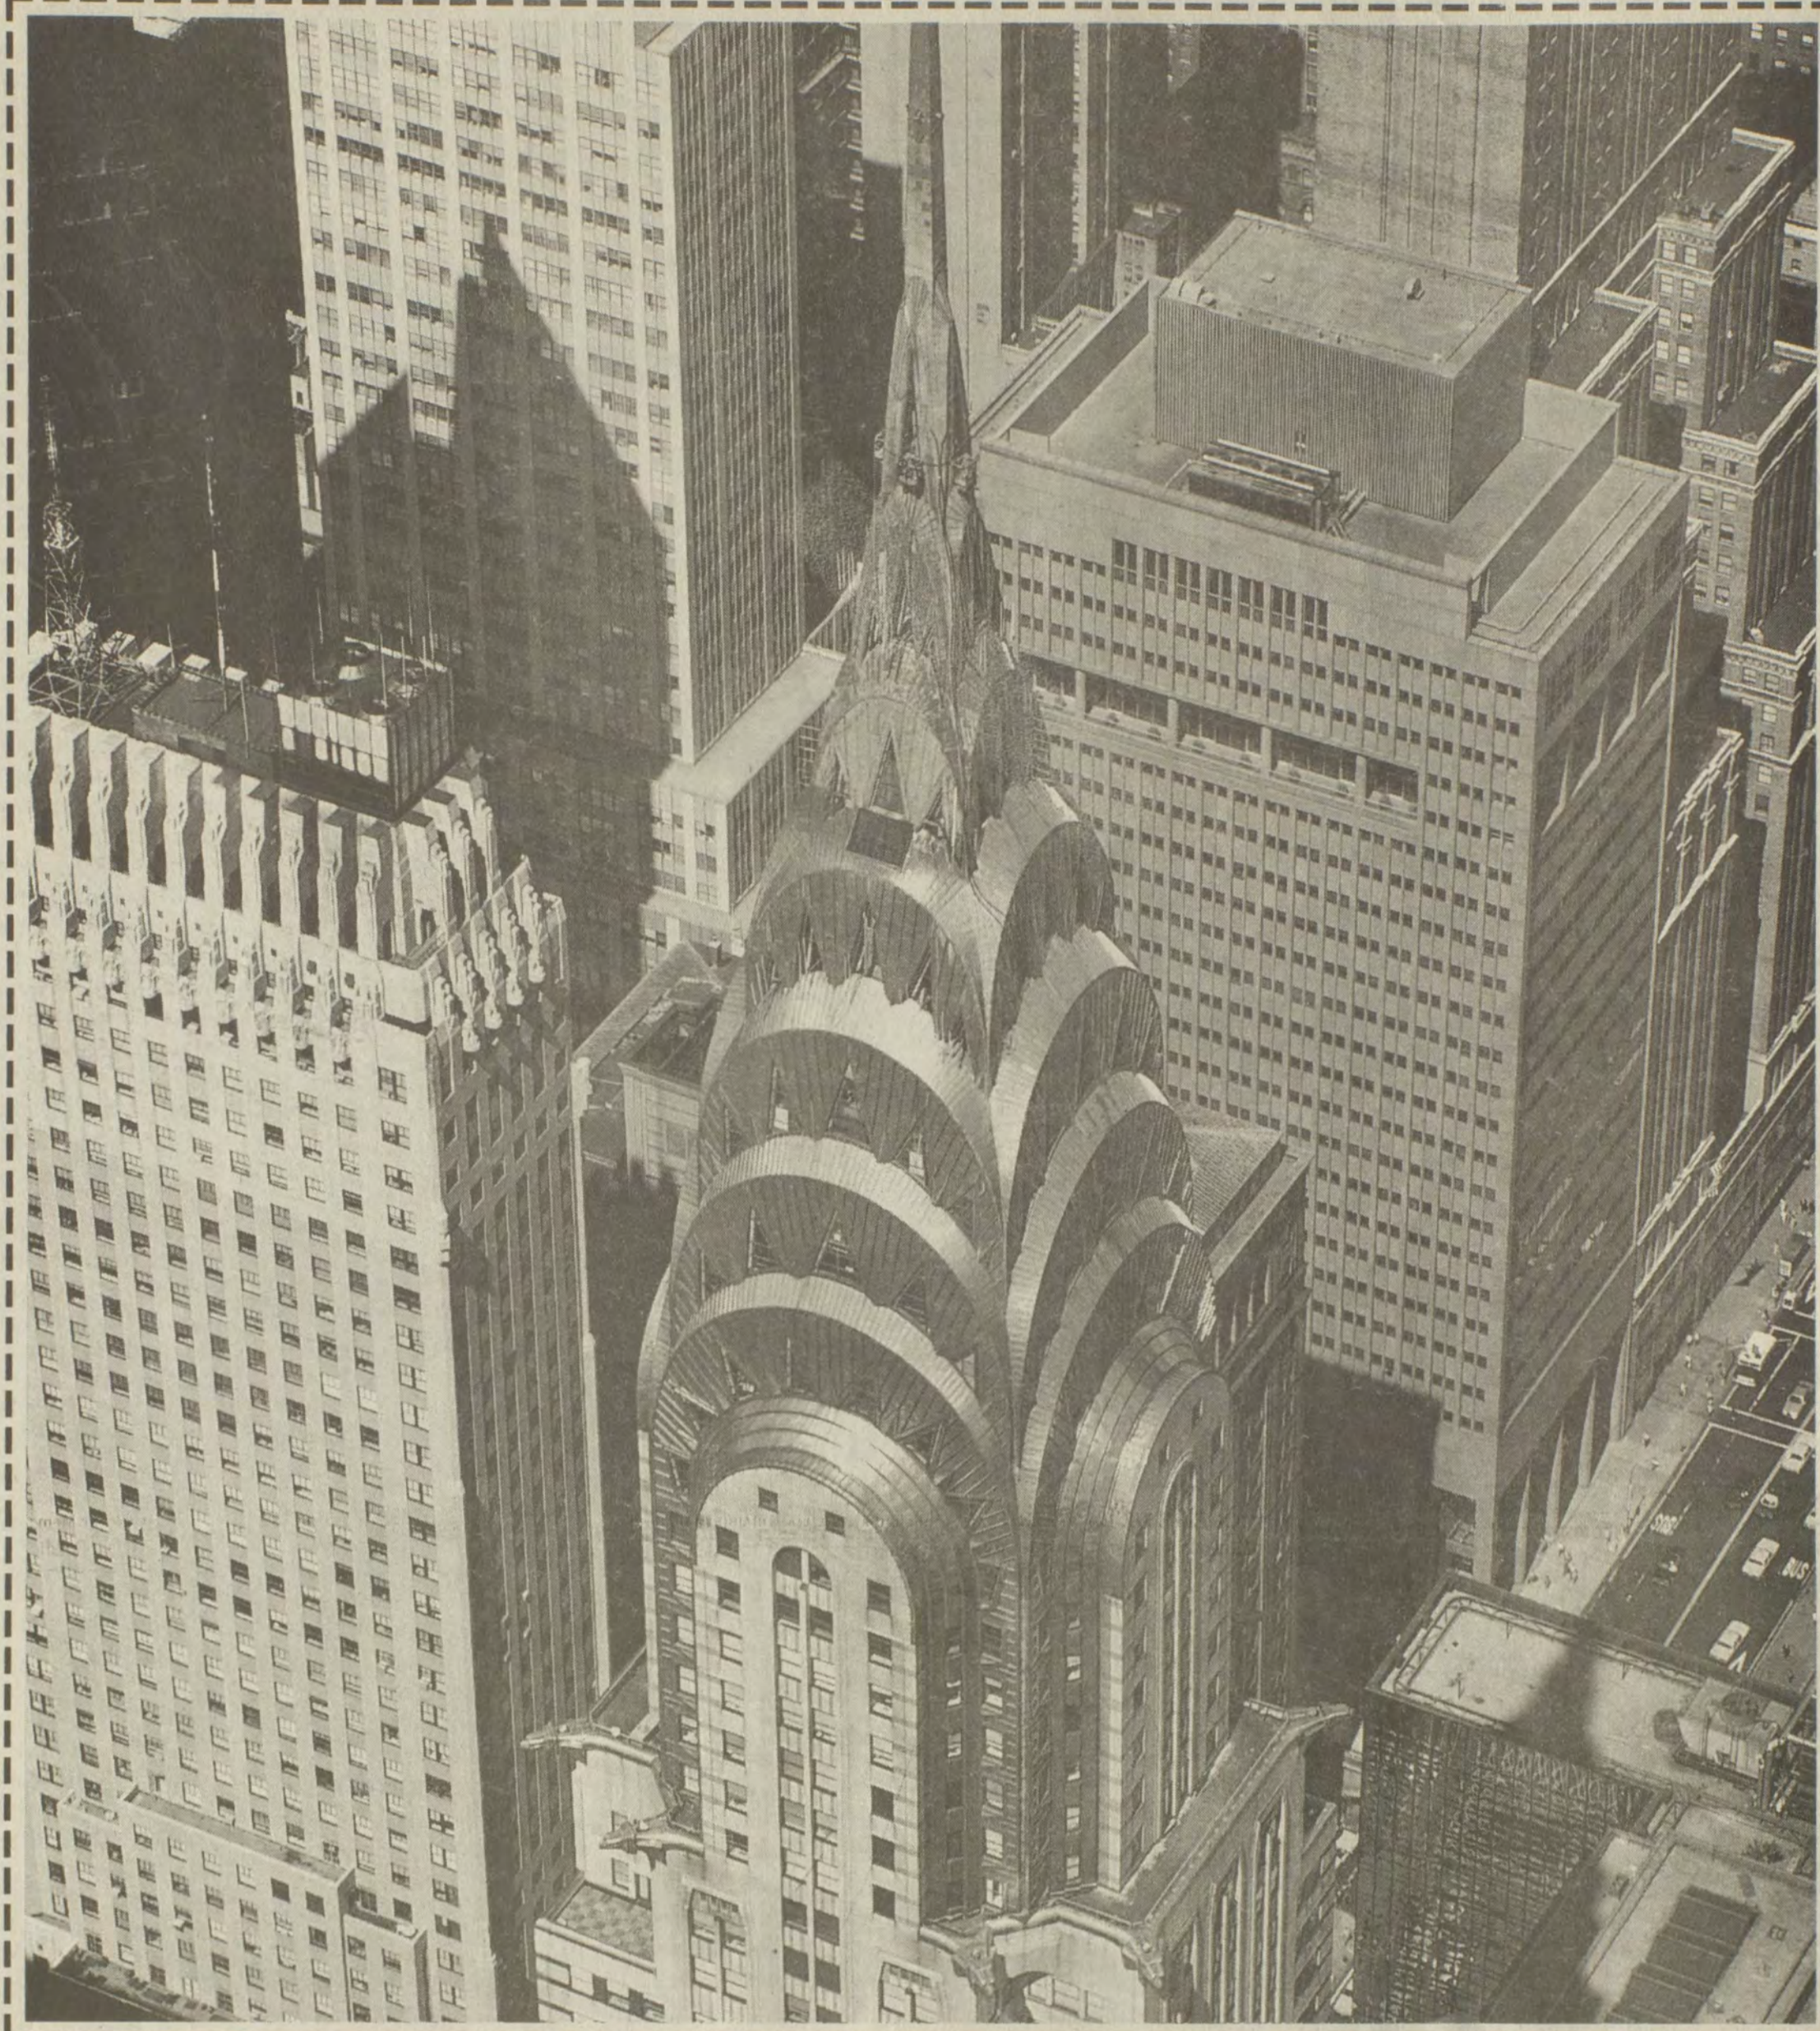

Her aristocratic not-a-hair-out-of-place appearance had me fooled for awhile, but I realized my error in judgment just as soon as the ref missed his first call...

"YOU @#$%^&* BLIND #@$%$#&, DON'T YOU KNOW A $#@%^& WALK WHEN YOU SEE ONE?!?!" she said before returning to our original conversation which had something to do with her son entering the priesthood or something.

None of the men in our section seemed the least bit surprised or embarrassed by this outburst, though we all looked at the knees of our pants to make sure they weren't grass stained.

She was somebody's mom, after all.

Could have been any of ours.

If you think you have to go to a big city hospital for the right care, just come to King's Daughters' and tape this to your window.

There's a common misconception that when it comes to health care, bigger is better. The bigger the city, the better the care.

Not so. In fact, there's a hospital right here in Ashland that soundly disproves that theory. King's Daughters' Medical Center.

We've gone all over the country to find and recruit top doctors and nurses. And to help them do their jobs better, we've made quite an investment in the latest diagnostic tools.

A state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization laboratory. On-site magnetic resonance imaging (MRI). A new CT scanner. And a triple-head nuclear medicine camera for diagnosing heart problems.

Now, while you might not know what all this equipment does, we can assure you that having it puts us on par with the leading medical centers in the country. And helps us give you the best care we can.

King's Daughters' Medical Center
The RIGHT CARE. RIGHT HERE.

So, don't get us wrong. We understand there are some things you can only find in big cities. However, the right health care isn't one of them.

SOAP UPDATES

ALL MY CHILDREN: Jack was surprised to see Laurel babysitting for Timmy and Amanda. Later, Jack and Laurel admitted their love for each other. Dixie took Junior to Pigeon Hollow to sort out her feelings about Tad and Brian. Brian, meanwhile, moved into Myrtle's rooming house. Edmund walked out on Brooke after she defended Tad for intruding on them. Brooke agreed to let Tad become Jamie's legal father. Erica caught Kendall eavesdropping on her conversation, and also found a newspaper clipping of herself with Bianca among Kendall's paperwork. Tad shocked his family when he showed them the mansion he bought in Pine Valley. Wait To See: Kendall's behavior becomes increasingly curious.

ANOTHER WORLD: On television, Grant announced that Spencer was behind the threats to stop his wedding to Vicky, cutting out Jake's planned announcement that Carl was the culprit. Frankie was arrested for Douglas' murder. An emotionally distraught Frankie finally reached Cass (Christy had unplugged his phone) who rushed back to Bay City where he and Ryan got her out of jail. Amanda took Alli to see Sam in New York, hoping they can save their marriage. While searching the Carson house, Cass made a startling discovery. Frankie tested Christy about the night she shared with Cass in New York. Wait To See: Spencer's revenge begins.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Royce tried to stop Roberta, Michael's sister, from reopening the case about her brother's death. Kirk taunted Lucinda by telling her that Lily gave him and Connor her Walsh stock. Neal told Scott she would prefer disposing of Michael's ashes herself, and not leave them to the police. Jim Lundigan called Tom as his first witness for the Grand Jury. Royce was furious when he learned Lucinda planned to take the Meridian account away from M&A when the contract was up. Edwina was horrified when Evan told her Rosanna knew the truth. Fiona and Lamar arrived just as Jessica and Duncan's baby arrived. Josh, Valerie, and Angel's brothers, Barclay and Stephen, arrived for her wedding to Seth. Wait To See: Tom and Margo deal with the Grand Jury's decision.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: As Sally prepared for her show, Jack arrived and said he would walk out for good unless she cancelled plans to show the Forrester gown. Taylor asked Ridge to consider having a baby of their own. While eavesdropping on the intercom, Sheila heard Eric welcome Lauren and say he planned to introduce her to Sheila. Lauren looked around the infirmary, and was startled to find a copy of the photo of herself and Brad. Suddenly, Sheila appeared, warning her that if Lauren blew her cover she, Sheila, would show the picture to the judge, and Lauren would lose custody of young Scott. Wait To See: Lauren's decision could put her life in danger.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Marlena was upset to learn that his ultimatum forced Carrie to break up with Austin. Jonah helped a cab driver deliver a passenger's baby. Austin, hoping for a permanent job on Jennifer's show, did a human interest story on the mother, a homeless teenager named Wendy. Bo urged Carly to move into Lawrence's house to help strengthen the bond between her and Nikki. Billie won Bo's jacket in a card game. The stain on the back led him to search for the tagger who spotted him on the pier the night Cash was beaten by the faux Bo. Meanwhile, Bo's lookalike dropped in on the poker game, sitting opposite Billie and Jack. Victor was curious about the 17-year-old newspaper clipping in Kate's briefcase. Wait To See: John faces a difficult decision that could change Marlena's life.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Everyone gathered around Dr. Steve Hardy (John Berardino) as he celebrated 30 years of service at General Hospital. Tracy got a court order to keep Paul away from her and her son. Felicia and Mac came to a frightening conclusion about Ryan. Despite Monica's pleas to forget the past, A.J. refused to forgive his father for bribing Nikki to leave on their wedding day. Karen's plans for college may be ruined forever because of Jason's decision. Wait To See: Felicia and Mac face a terrible decision.

GUIDING LIGHT: Roger warned Mindy he'll hurt the Lewises in a way they'll never forget unless Billy stopped interfering in his relationship with Hart. Buzz hit a nerve with Jenna after telling her she's not his priority; Hart is. Mindy, upset that Nick could think she smashed Eve's windshield (Eve did it herself) threw him out of the lighthouse. A newly divorced Eleni, and Frank, told Harley and Mallet they were engaged. Nadine was shocked to learn Peter was Hart's son and Roger's grandson. Mindy sought counseling from Dr. Lyndon to help her cope with Eve's mind games, and her inability to move on. In New Orleans, Nick was stunned by Eve's behavior. Wait To See: Harley's search for her father takes an unexpected turn.

LOVING: As Trisha left to see Trucker, she was carjacked, and wound up in a fiery crash. Meanwhile, Clay arranged a romantic evening for Curtis and "Betty," and was stunned to learn that his son's mystery woman is Dinah Lee. A devastated Trucker identified Trisha's locket at the scene of the car crash. Gwyn broke the news to a shattered Clay, and then summoned Curtis to the mansion to tell him the news. He wondered about the anxious message Trisha left on her answering machine before her death. Buck made a mysterious phone call. Wait To See: Clay makes an important discovery.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Tina threatened Asa when, obeying Cord's wishes, he refused to let her take C.J. and Sarah home. Alex, who tried to frame Tina so she can have Cain for herself, hit Asa over the head. Recalling her threat, Asa believed Tina had assaulted him, and she was warned not to leave town. Max and Luna discussed marriage. Viki and Sloan discovered they were both passengers aboard a cross-country train ride. Cord found Angela Holliday, Cain's former partner-in-crime and now an evangelist, who refused to give him information about Cain's past. Wait To See: Cord finds something puzzling about Cain.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: After an exchange of gunfire, Paul was unharmed, but Michael was shot in the chest. Paul pulled him off Cricket who, although in shock, told him Nina was tied up in the bathroom. Danny went to the hospital where he began mishandling Michael, threatening to kill him if he ever came near Cricket again. Molly refused to tell Brad about Sheila's involvement in the photo of him and Lauren in bed together. Jill told John they were going to have a baby. He reminded her he had a vasectomy because he didn't want to raise another family at his age. Douglas reminded Victor of Eve Howard's claim that he's the father of her son, Cole. Ryan decided to end his marriage to Victoria, who agreed he'd be better off without her since she's unable to make love to him. Wait To See: Nikki begins to reassess her feelings for both Jack and Victor.

We've been looking into breast cancer in eastern Kentucky. We're finding it and we're treating it, too.

We've been making screening mammography and breast cancer education available in eastern Kentucky since 1987. Today, as part of Kentucky's Low Income Cancer Screening Program, we serve health departments in 11 counties. Highlands Breast Center and Cancer Program, in close cooperation with the Kentucky Cancer Program and Markey Cancer Center, has in fact become a model of cancer prevention, detection and treatment. While others are looking into it, we're doing it. Ask your doctor or call for information.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

In the series of stock-picking contests run by The Wall Street Journal -- in which professional stock analysts match wits with Journal employees who throw darts at company names on the stock market tables -- the dart-throwers trail by only 18 to 15. Results of the latest contest, announced March 4, saw the dart-throwers' "portfolio" gain 15 percent while the professional analysts' stocks fell by 26 percent.

UNCLEAR ON THE CONCEPT
-- School officials in Suffolk, Va., suspended an 11-year-old boy in January after he broke the school rule against carrying weapons onto school grounds. The boy's weapon of choice was a toy gun charm, 1 1/4 inches long, purchased for a quarter from a vending machine. Administrators said expulsion was in order because the boy wielded the toy as if it were a gun.

-- In February, an arbitrator ruled that officials at Fort Campbell, Ky., must reimburse a civilian employee who had been suspended from work without pay for five days for illegally using a government truck. The government had originally proposed to suspend him for 30 days, but reduced that to five. However, the arbitrator ruled that the law requires a minimum suspension of 30 days, and thus, the government must reimburse him for the improper five-day suspension.

Three-way calling is the best way to determine if the person you called really wants to talk to you. Last week on my nephew's birthday, I called him and put Mother on the line with us. After I finished talking to him, I said I'd sign off and let Mother talk to him a few minutes. When I hung up, the connection was severed and Mother had to call my nephew back on her own line. Mother has forgiven me, but she has implied that I need to pay her for the call.

Despite all the telephone companies have done to make our lives easier, they have out-done themselves with the new T.V. phone. I can't wait to be able to afford one of those. What person wouldn't want another person to see them when they crawl out of bed in the morning? I don't know about the rest of you, but my husband has to take Dramamine before he looks at me in the A.M.

Yes, folks, the telephone companies are the biggest contributors to making us feel inadequate, and we pay them big bucks to make us feel that way. So if any of you call me, and I'm not home—leave a message. At least my answering machine will talk to you.

-- In September, a federal judge in Alexandria, Va., ruled against a woman who had failed the exam for her public school teaching certificate. Sofia P. Pandazides, 26, claimed the test was unfair and that she should have unlimited time to take it because she is "learning impaired."

-- In December, director Ken Anakin wrapped up work for an Italian production company's film that Anakin said will show the human side of Genghis Khan, the 13th-century Mongol warlord known for his cruelty. "The other side," said Anakin, "is more like a country boy with a peasant mentality."

-- The New York Times reported recently that the Environmental Protection Agency, asked to officially respond to a congressional report charging that the agency uses too many outside contractors, paid a contractor $20,000 to write the response.

NEW HOUSING STARTS
-- This month, near Harrisburg, Pa., former welder Violet Hobaugh, 76, begins her second year of residence in a 5-foot-by-5-foot treehouse, according to a report from the Knight-Ridder news service. The state Department of Transportation cut down an adjacent tree to widen Highway 22, and Hobaugh fears that if she leaves the tree the state will fell that one, too, which Hobaugh says protects her house from cars that careen off the road.

-- In February, Antioch, Calif., artist William Leroy, 39, declared the eucalyptus tree in which he had been living in a week-long protest to be his official address. Several days later, he began receiving mail there from supporters, who join him in urging that the city not destroy the tree. Leroy can be reached at 604 1/2 Eighth St., Antioch, Calif. 94509.

-- As of early March, police in Newcastle, England, had not captured the "Hole in the Wall Boy," believed to be about 13, who lives in tunnels and air-conditioning ducts and comes out to rob and terrorize residents of a local housing project.

-- The Associated Press recently reported that Ernest Dittmore had completed 18 years of sleeping in a 4-foot-by-10-foot hole in the ground on his property in Troy, Kan. When Dittmore's house burned down in 1974, he began to spend nights in the hole, and when neighbors chipped in to buy him a trailer to live in, he moved his possessions into it but continued to spend nights in the hole, which he says is "a lot easier to heat."

-- In December, a court in Oslo, Norway, ruled that Oslo University did not have to admit a current student, a 39-year-old astrophysics major, to class until he bathes. The man has been living in a cave near the campus for 14 years and had sued the university for $470,000 for denying him access to an exam. He said the case was about "my right to decide how I want to live" and "not about whether I smell bad or not," but the court said it was the latter.

CREME DE LA WEIRD
Tambov, Russia, businessman Vyacheslav Golovin told The Washington Post in March that the key to his city's future may lie in making a Western-style tourist attraction out of the local cemetery, where thousands of German, French, Japanese, American and Russian prisoners died during the Stalin era. He said the local prison camp had been shrouded in such secrecy that "thousands" of families do not yet know that their relatives are buried in Tambov and that they would be excellent targets of an advertising campaign. He admitted that the idea is controversial in Tambov: "We don't care about our own dead, so why should we care about outsiders?"

LEAST COMPETENT PEOPLE
The Los Angeles Times reported in February that station KCBS-TV recently carelessly edited two drug-sale news stories, one of which might have led drug dealers to retaliate against a woman who agreed to be interviewed on TV only after the reporter guaranteed to protect her identity. However, the broadcast left several telltale clues, including the interviewee's age and occupation, the color of her blond hair, the inside of her apartment, her first name (inadvertently mentioned by the interviewee but not edited out by the station), and a view from a window that made obvious where the interviewee lived. Three days after the broadcast, a Molotov cocktail was thrown through the interviewee's window.

THE DIMINISHING VALUE OF LIFE
A 39-year-old man was gunned down by a friend in his home in Dayton, Ohio, in January, after an argument over whether light or dark liquor was better and who could drink the most.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be more understanding of those around you. They want to please, but the full moon could create a problem or two. Anyhow, making up is fun, especially when it's you being kissed up to. Plan on a romp this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Plunge into work and handle what no one else can. Your efficiency is tested. You gain your just desserts by the weekend when you have plenty of time to savor them. Others seek you out big time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be more direct with a project that is close to your heart. Ideas flow left and right. Streamline red tape, so you have more time for fun. Don't worry about the loving admirers. They are all around you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be aware of your options this week. You must take care of you and yours first. Understand more of what it is you want, and then you can make it happen. Unfortunately, you may have to work way into the weekend as you get so distracted during the week.

LEO (July 23-August 22) The pace may be hectic and there may be much to do, but trust one thing, you need to talk through a recent misunderstanding. Once this is cleared up, you are centered. Accomplishment is the name of the game, and you get to savor the trophies all weekend long.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Be more energetic when it comes to what really counts to you, and don't let another call the shots. Give yourself a pep talk and zero in on what you really want. Count on a cozy, snug weekend for two at home.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) You are so full of vigor, you could overwhelm those around you. Be more aware of what makes your life work. Visiting with a pal proves to be a wonderful weekend pastime. No time like the present to catch up on news!

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Much of the week is spent reflecting and planning, or it should be. Don't move until you are absolutely sure as to what it is you want. You indulge yourself and another all weekend long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Count on a busy week, when you need to attend many meetings, be social and make the most of the encounters. You may need to question another's motives. When you decide to take action, it will be just in the nick of time.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Show off your stuff this week as you take care of responsibilities and handle what must be done with care. There are many reasons for celebration and fun, even before the weekend. So make the most of any excuse for a romp.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) Check out what's going on behind the scenes at work. You come up with vital solutions and new understandings. Many could be in awe of what you are about to do. Others wish just to know you. In this spirit, you soar into the weekend.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Close encounters of a practical, material nature, as well as a loftier, spiritual nature, are highlighted this week. Tune into your higher self as you come up with incredible ideas and loving wisdom. Know you are in prime shape to take the reins of power and desire.

Moose are the largest of all deer. Some males stand 7 1/2 feet high and weigh about 1,800 pounds. Their antlers alone may weigh 60 pounds.

Dear Abby

Mother died alone because she did not have full I.D.

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago, I lost my mother. She was the victim of a traffic accident. Her sudden death stunned our family. The worst part of it is that she lay in the trauma center—only a few miles away—and we didn't learn of the accident until she had been dead for several hours. She had a personal ID card with her, but nothing to specify whom to call in case of emergency. The police found my name only after they went to her apartment and talked to her neighbors.

Abby, please urge your readers to carry with them, at all times, some form of identification along with the telephone number of whom to notify in case of an emergency.

I refer to people who drive to work, to joggers, walkers, bicyclists. Mom, sew a little name tag in your son's shirt before you send him off to school. Grandpa, carry an emergency notification card in your pants pocket, even if you're only going down to the corner to pick up a newspaper. If, God forbid, something happens to you (a stroke or heart attack), the emergency room staff will be able to summon a person who cares about you, so you won't be alone. And those who love you won't be denied the chance to be there with you when you most need them.

MARGARET'S DAUGHTER,
POMPANO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR MARGARET: Thank you for reminding me to remind my readers to always carry the name (or names) of next of kin or a person to contact in case something happens to you.

DEAR ABBY: There seems to be a question regarding couples living together before marriage.

I am an associate professor at San Diego Mesa College, and the experience of two of my students proves that living together is no guarantee of a successful marriage.

This pair had lived happily together for several years before they got married. After the marriage, the young woman was miserable. Her husband, you see, had different expectations of her role as a wife than he had of her role as a mistress.

ROGER A. GEE

YOUR CHUCKLE FOR TODAY: A schoolteacher asked her students to name the two books that have helped them the most. One bright pupil replied, "My mother's cookbook and my father's checkbook."

BASS FISHERMEN SHOULD USE SUNSCREEN REGULARLY

Doctors suggest anyone spending a lot of time outdoors in the sun should use a protective sunscreen regularly. This includes bass fishermen.

"If you don't think bass fishermen can get skin cancer, guess again," says bass tournament pro Charlie Reed, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and winner of the 1986 Bass Masters Classic.*

"For years I worked outdoors and never used a sunscreen. I never wore a cap. either. I really thought I was immune, that my skin wouldn't burn. Then I noticed some small sores on my face and neck that wouldn't heal. "They were the first stages of skin cancer, and I had to have them removed by a dermatologist."

Ever since, Reed has been a firm believer in the use of protective sunscreens, and while he still spends many hours on the water as a fisherman, he has not had any additional skin problems.

Doctors now believe the effects of strong sunlight on unprotected skin are cumulative, and that it usually takes years for skin cancer to appear. Strong sunscreens and protective clothing are the best precautions for fishermen to take.

"I use a strong 30-power sunscreen I put on in the morning before I start fishing," explains the Johnson pro, "and that's the only time I use it. The higher power sunscreens don't provide more protection, they just last longer."

"Don't wait until the sun is really hot and bright to put sunscreen on, either," he advises. "Put it on right after you finish shaving or before you leave the house so you don't have to stop later, and make certain you apply some to your ears and back of your neck, as well as to the rest of your face, arms, and legs."

Reed is rarely found without a cap these days, either. While baseball-style caps are the standard among bass anglers, Reed cautions fishermen to make certain they use a cap in which the underside of the bill is dark rather than light. A light-colored bill will reflect light off the water and can cause severe sunburn.

"If you have fair skin, I also recommend wearing trousers and long-sleeve shirts, too," he adds. "You can start your fishing day in shorts but even with a good sunscreen I suggest protective clothing if you're susceptible to sunburn."

"I just don't think you can be too careful."

If it has been a while since your outboard has had a tune-up, consider scheduling an appointment with your Evinrude or Johnson dealer later this fall or during the winter. Don't wait until April or May when service departments at most dealerships are swamped. Service managers often offer off-season specials this time of year.

FISHING TRIBUTARY CREEKS BEST BET FOR AUTUMN BASS

Bass anglers know one of the most reliable places to locate autumn bass is in the backs of tributary creeks, but not many fishermen realize why these are such good spots.

"It all depends on baitfish migrations," explains Texas guide and Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member Randy Fite. "No matter what time of year you're fishing, if you locate baitfish, you'll find bass."

"In the fall months, the baitfish move into the creeks, and the bass follow."

The reason baitfish make such a migration, explains Fite, is to take advantage of cooler, better oxygenated water. During the summer, lakes gradually become warmer and warmer and oxygen levels generally decrease. By late summer this can become critical.

"The coolest water will be in those tributaries that have a slight current," notes Fite, "and naturally, moving water like this will have more oxygen. Both gizzard and threadfin shad will leave the main lakes in late summer and migrate into the tributary creeks in search of these better conditions, and eventually, they'll move all the way to the backs of the creeks."

"The bass make this same migration a few days behind the baitfish, and stay there as long as the bait does."

Because of the improved water conditions, the Johnson pro continues, both baitfish and bass are more active. The bass begin feeding heavily, as if in preparation for the approaching winter, and readily hit artificial lures.

"This is why fast-moving lures, such as spinnerbaits and crankbaits, are such good lure choices," says Fite. "The bass are striking by impulse at lures that come anywhere close to them."

The autumn feeding frenzy can continue for several weeks, according to Fite, but begins to slow down when weather fronts have cooled the water and forced the baitfish out into the deeper channels. The shad gradually migrate out of the creeks and may school over deeper structure near the mouth of the tributary.

"Again, the bass follow the migrating baitfish," says Fite, "but this time, as the water gets colder, the bass become less and less active. They concentrate in large schools near the shad, but finding them is much more difficult."

"This is why autumn fishing is probably some of the most enjoyable fishing of the year. It is not really difficult to locate the bass because you know they're going to be in the tributary creeks, and if you throw a spinnerbait or crankbait around heavy cover, you'll get strikes."

Fite suggests fishing tributaries on the upper end of a lake early in the fall because these are more shallow and will cool first. Gradually, as the season progresses, he advises moving to other deeper tributaries on the lower end of the lake.

To help keep your outboard motor running smoothly all season, OMC recommends the use of OMC Engine Tuner. Available in a 13-ounce spray can, OMC Engine Tuner removes gum and varnish build-up and cleans excessive carbon deposits from rings, pistons and ports when sprayed through the carburetor of a running motor. It is available at most Johnson and Evinrude outboard dealers.

but was unable to move them around as Ousley went out to centerfield and Castle skied to right.

Then in the bottom of the fourth, Cumberland pushed across four runs on only one hit, to make it 8-2. Two walks in the inning coupled with an error at first base proved costly to Betsy Layne.

The Bobcats got their final two runs in the seventh on a lead-off walk to Derrick Newsome. Chris Potter doubled, his second hit of the game, sending Newsome to third base. Bud Kidd drew a walk to load the bases with Bobcats. Shannon Newsome singled home Newsome and Potter to make it 8-4. Willie Meade then struck out, Clark grounded to first and Collins fanned to end the game.

Betsy Layne evened their season record at 5-5.

Potter, Ousley and Shannon Newsome each had two hits in the game. Potter and Ousley had the only extra base hits.

Betsy Layne will face Pikeville in a doubleheader Monday evening at Pikeville. The Bobcats will travel to Paintsville Tuesday to face the Tigers.

1994 trout stamp design awarded

Terry Doughty of Brookfield, Wisconsin has been named as the winner of the 1994 Kentucky Trout Stamp Design competition, according to Barbara Pulliam, contest coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

Doughty's painting of a brook trout was selected by a panel of five judges with expertise in artistry, ichthyology, trout fishing and reproduction quality. The painting earned Doughty $450, and will be used for next year's trout stamp license.

First runner-up in the contest was Len Rusin, North Tonawanda, New York and second runner-up Robert E. Mitchell of Hornell, New York.

Track meet

Kevin Allen running in at 26:35 for third place.

Jason Samons placed fourth at 27:21 and Joey Brown ran a 29:00 for fifth place. Fitch was sixth at 29:19.

Todd Howard, a seventh grader at Maytown, placed first in the men's 3200-meter run. Howard had a time of 12:17 in taking the top spot. Josh Patton, who is a new runner this year at Allen Central, placed second at 12:18. Patton's performance was a surprise to Jamerson.

"He will definitely be a top runner for us this year," said the Allen Central coach. "He will run the two-mile relays and also the 3200-meters."

Kenny Bradley placed fourth in the event with a time of 14:06. Fifth place went to Curtis Webb at 15:02. Chris Damron also ran in the event but no time was recorded.

In the 400-meter run Estill Stumbo placed third with a time of 1:02.81. Samons came in right behind him with a time of 1:05 for fourth place. Thomas Jenkins, a first year runner, tied with Chris Halbert for fifth place with a 1:05.07.

In the half-mile, Kevin Stumbo posted a 2:20 for second place in the run. Third place went to Kenny Scarberry with a time of 2:30. Dan Stumbo placed fourth (2:32) and Mike Elzokari was fifth at 2:35.

Mark Varney ran sixth at 2:45. Cory Heintzelman posted a time of 3:00 as did Jonathan Scarberry. Chris Damron, a fifth grader, had a time of 3:40.

Elzokari was second in the men's 1600-meters. Elzokari came in at 5:43 with Howard just behind him at 5:54 for third place.

Fourth place went to Bradley at 6:24 and Jay Harvey sixth at 6:27. Wade Damron had a time of 6:28 and Chris Damron ran in at 7:23.

The Allen Central's relay team of Trevor Fitch, Joey Brown, Kevin Allen and Jason Samons finished first in the 400 relays. The team posted a time of 49:07 for first place.

In the mile relays, Scarberry, Dan Stumbo, Chris Halbert and Jason Samons placed first at 4:16.08. Allen Central's second relay team placed second with a tie of 4:32.65. The team consisted of Joey Brown, Rondel Stewart, Matt Varney and Thomas Jenkins.

A third team of Shawn Robinson, Justin Salisbury, Chris Bailey and Levi Wells placed third in the 1600 relays.

Steve Akers, normally a pole vaulter, ran third in the men's 110 hurdles. Akers recorded a time of 21:30. Fourth place went to Gary Webb with a time of 21:45. Justin Salisbury placed fifth in the meet.

It was a strong 3200-meter relay team that took first place with a time of 9:44.06. Scarberry, Dan Stumbo, Josh Patton and Todd Howard made up the team.

The team of Bradley, Elzokari, Kevin Stumbo and Scarberry placed second in the run with a time of 10:07.09.

In the 300 hurdles, Estill Stumbo placed third with his time of 54:35. Justin Salisbury was fourth and Jason Samons came in fifth.

A special event was held for those who normally take part in the field events. The Fat Man 40 saw Shawn Robinson take first place. Dave Gilliam finished second and Levi Wells placed third. Fourth place went to Chris Bailey and Kevin Thacker placed fifth.

Jamerson said that Jenkins would be a good runner for his squad once he learns how to run the hurdles.

"Elzokari will be dangerous in the mile once he learns some things," said Jamerson.

years. There is not that real solid support on the administrative level that there should be.

Floyd County athletics need that one person in place to oversee the athletics in the county, not a committee that will have problems getting along. It will not work. Hard feelings will be had over the whole issue.

What happens if the issue fails? The answer given was that we will have to go back to what we were doing before.

While we hope that such a move would work, from this side we cannot see how it can with so many different personalities involved. There has to be that one who will stand by the principles drawn up by the board to govern athletics in the county, and oversee the whole operation.

Jenny Wiley golf course is listed on "Lung Card"

The American Lung Association of Kentucky's popular Kentucky Golf Tour Card is a decade old this spring, and in celebration, the health agency is offering the biggest and best golfing package in the card's ten year history.

The 1993 Kentucky Golf Tour Card lists 94 participating Kentucky courses which are waiving their green fees for each cardholder. Some courses offer multiple rounds. On this year's course list are clubs in and around Floyd County, including Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Prestonsburg.

According to professional golfer and trick shot artist, Buddy Demling, honorary chairman of the project, the golf tour card has become so big, it's actually not a card, but a booklet this year.

"At the nominal price of $30, a golfer couldn't find a better bargain anywhere in Kentucky," he said. Demling invited golfers to "take a swing" at lung disease while they enjoy playing the many fine courses all across Kentucky. Card use is good now through December.

As an added bonus for 1993, the Lung Association is offering a super foursome special -- buy three cards at the regular price and receive the fourth one free. The cost per golfer would then be only $22.50.

The Kentucky Golf Tour Card entitles a golfer to one or more 18 hole rounds at each of the participating courses. The privilege of playing some of the finest public and private courses in Kentucky plus the satisfaction of fighting lung disease -- the third leading cause of death in the United States.

Cards may be purchased by calling the American Lung Association of Kentucky at (502) 366-2652 or toll free, 1-800-366-5864. They may be ordered by sending a check for $30 ($90 for the foursome package) to the American Lung Association of Kentucky, P.O. Box 9067, Louisville KY 40209. Credit card orders are accepted.

The Race for the PPG Cup

When the auto-racing season winds to a finish each year, the race for the Indy Car World Series PPG Cup revs up and gives an added measure of excitement to the series. As well as providing its winner with incalculable prestige, the PPG Cup also carries a $1 million prize.

While the points system used to determine the cup winner is simple, it does a stand-up job of picking the driver who deserves the title of season champion. Its principal attributes include promoting full series participation and giving equal weight to each race.

Points distribution in each of the season races (this year, there were 16 contests) goes like this: The winner gets 20 points; second place, 16; third place, 14; fourth place, 12; fifth place, 10; sixth place, eight; seventh place, six; eighth place, five; ninth place, four; 10th place, three; 11th place, two; and 12th place, one. One point also is awarded to the fastest qualifier and to the driver who leads in the most laps.

Some sports average points or consider only a prescribed number of a player's best events. In tennis, for instance, a player's best 14 tournament results are totaled and weighed according to the ranking of the player's opponents and the relative importance of the tournament. The overall result of this system is that a player can pick and choose the events that favor him or her and skip the rest. In the race for the PPG Cup, however, a driver can't afford to skip a single race and forsake a chance at a possible 22 points.

This equal weighing of events also means that no one race, regardless of its prestige, holds more importance than another. Therefore, each of the four track situations (super speedway, short oval, and permanent and temporary road races) are emphasized. A driver must find a balance in the four disciplines to stand a chance at being the champion. While I excel on ovals, I couldn't ignore road tracks in becoming the 1979, 1981 and 1982 CART champion. My teammate on the Marlboro Racing Team Penske, Emerson Fittipaldi, a former Formula One champion, had to broaden his talents to become the Indy Car champion in 1989. Bobby Rahal, who's done so well this year, is a consistent performer in all situations.

Just as in baseball, it's consistent performance over the long haul that wins the PPG Cup. We used to figure that averaging fifth place would assure a championship. In recent years, it's gotten much tougher. Michael Andretti averaged third in winning last year.

Injuries can wreak havoc on a driver's season. Not finishing a race also will put an awful dent in your score. That's what makes those 500-mile races so dicey. There's often a tendency on a driver's part to think maybe he should hang back and make sure he finishes in order to protect his season points total. But when it comes right down to it, any race-car driver worth his salt is going to go all out to win every time he starts his engine.

Rick Mears, a four-time Indianapolis 500 winner and three-time CART national champion, drives for Marlboro Racing Team Penske.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE Pursuant to Permit No. 636-5131

In accordance with KRS 350.093, notice is hereby given that J.R.M. Coal Co., Inc., P.O. Box 320, McDowell, Ky. 41647, has applied for a Phase I bond release on permit No. 636-5131, which was last issued on May 27, 1992. The application covers an area of approximately 3.54 surface acres and 157.00 underground acres, for a total permit area of 160.54 acres. The permit is located 1.5 miles East of Orkney, in Floyd County, Kentucky.

The permit area is approximately 2.25 miles Southeast from State Rt. 1929's junction with State Rt. 680 and lies 0.6 miles East of Frasure's Creek. The geographic center of the permit is latitude 37° 25' 36", longitude 82° 42' 40".

The bond now in effect for the permit consists of two certificates of deposit for $14,400.00. Approximately 60% of this bond is to be released in this request.

Reclamation work performed includes: sealing of mine adits, backfilling and grading, and site seeding, completed on or about November 19, 1992.

Written comments, objections and/or requests for a hearing or informal conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 by May 25, 1993.

A public hearing on the application has been scheduled for June 1st, 1993 at 2:00 p.m. at the Prestonsburg Regional Office, 1346 South Lake Dr., Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. The hearing will be cancelled if the Department does not receive public comment within the time frame stated above.

NEWS OF HEALTH

Protecting Your Skin From The Sun

New York, N.Y., (NAPS)—There's more than a glimmer of good news about the bright idea of protecting yourself from the sun's ultraviolet rays. Fashion seems to have taken the health warnings to heart. Slathering on baby oil and sunning for hours with a reflecting visor is out. Tanning lotions of SPF 15 and higher are in.

Now, here are more hints to help you survive the harsh, drying effects summer with its sun, swimming and frequent showering can have on your skin.

- Limit sun exposure to early morning and late afternoon when the sun's damaging ultraviolet rays are not as strong. Gradually build your tan, starting with no more than ten to 20 minutes per day.
- Apply a suntan lotion with an SPF of at least 15; reapply after swimming. Watch out for indirect exposure to the sun, reflected off sand and water. Ultraviolet rays also penetrate clouds, so cover up even on overcast days.
- Wash with a mild cleansing bar. Four out of five dermatologists and pediatricians recommend Dove, a mild, non-soap cleansing bar that contains one-quarter moisturizing cream. Extensive clinical research over the past three decades supports this medical wisdom. In fact, in a study that specifically examined subjects with sunburn, Dove caused less redness and was rated as milder and smoother to the skin than well-known mild soap. After showering, apply a moisturizer.

To protect the skin you're in, wash with a mild cleansing bar and apply moisturizer after showering.

- Drink plenty of water to restore moisture during and after sunbathing or exercising. Caffeine and alcohol are drying agents and should be consumed in moderation, if at all, especially during hot weather.
- Maintain a balanced diet that supplies essential vitamins. Eat high fiber foods and lots of fresh fruits and vegetables daily to ensure that your skin gets vital fluids and nutrients it needs to stay smooth and supple. Vitamin A, found in dairy products and carrots is particularly important to the skin.
- Get enough sleep. Fatigue is damaging to the skin because it impedes circulation.
