Floyd man is suspect in search for missing youth

Articles belonging to Swiss traveler found at Garth, police quiet on possible link to Job Corps murder

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Sheriff's deputies and Georgia authorities are searching for a Floyd County man who is wanted for questioning in connection with the disappearance of a 21-year-old Swiss man who was last seen in Atlanta on April 28, 1992.

Harry Eugene Hale, 46, who maintains a residence at Garth Hollow in Floyd County, is also wanted for questioning in reports of sexual assaults against young men in Florida, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Hale was arrested for driving under the influence by Kentucky State Police last June. He failed to appear in Floyd County District Court on January 19 to answer the charges. A summons was issued on January 19 for Hale to appear in court on February 9 to explain why he missed his January court date.

Hale gave a false birthdate and Social Security number to the officer at the time of his arrest in June.

A search of Hale's residence Tuesday evening turned up two cameras, a camera bag and an Amish quilt which are believed to have belonged to Christoph R. Zahn from Bolligen, Switzerland. Zahn was reported missing by a friend, Melanie Dolich of Deltona, Florida on May 21, 1992.

After the cameras and quilt were taken by police from the Floyd County home, a Cobb County Georgia magistrate issued an arrest warrant for Hale on first degree forgery charges for allegedly using Zahn's credit card after he was reported missing.

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, deputies Homer Neeley and Johnny Layne, Cobb County investigator Ken Janes, special investigator Lanny Cox from the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and two private detectives from Select Inc. in St. Simons Islands, Georgia executed a search warrant at Hale's Floyd County home Tuesday evening.

Sheriff Thompson found the camera bag containing the cameras in a closet in the home and found the quilt under a bedspread on what is believed to be Hale's bed.

There were black marks, which appeared to have been made with a marker, on the inside top flap of the camera bag and the word Switzerland written below the marks.

At the sheriff's office after the search, deputy Linzie Hunt shined a flashlight behind the black marks and officers could see where the name Zahn had been marked through with a marker.

Missing: Chris Zahn

Sheriff Thompson and deputy Neeley said the Cobb County Sheriff's Department contacted the Floyd County Sheriff's Department for assistance about a month ago.

Sheriff Thompson assigned the case to deputies Neeley and Johnny Layne. Deputy Layne located Hale's residence and reported that Hale had been seen in Floyd County in January. Layne said that Hale had worked for the Kentucky Lottery Corporation.

Based on the sheriff's department investigation, the police agencies coordinated a date to search the home.

A second search of Hale's Garth home was apparently conducted Thursday by Prestonsburg police and FBI agents.

City police declined to say if their search was intended to establish a link between the suspect and the September 1992 murder of a Carl D. Perkins Job Corps student.

The body of Walter Cropper, 21, was found October 3, 1992, in a wooded field off I-75 in Adairsville, Georgia. The victim, reported missing from the Prestonsburg center on September 20, had been shot to death.

One more is added to list for primary

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Another name was added last week to the list of candidates for the office of District Three Magistrate.

Clinis Hall of McDowell filed for that office last week as an independent candidate. Hall's name will not appear on the May Primary ballot, but his name will be listed for November's general election.

Floyd County Court Clerk Carla Boyd said Wednesday that in order for a candidate to be eligible for office on the independent ticket, the candidate must have been registered to vote as an independent prior to the November 1992 general election.

Boyd added that candidates filing as an independent have until August 3 to file for office.

Grand Jury to meet February 15-17

The Floyd County Grand Jury will meet February 15-17 at the Floyd County Courthouse.

Walk-ins may appear before the grand jury on February 15 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Persons seeking an appointment may call the commonwealth attorney's office at 886-1604.

Special session set

The Floyd County Board of Education will have a special meeting Tuesday, February 9 at 6:30 p.m. at Allen Elementary.

One topic to be discussed is a long-term facility plan developed by the district's Long Term Planning Committee.

Gas company seeks increase

by Geoff Belcher

Representatives from Equitable Gas Company met Wednesday at a public hearing in Frankfort with the Kentucky Public Service Commission in an effort to enact a proposed natural gas price hike, which could affect nearly 2,000 Floyd County residents.

The proposed hike would affect nearly 5,000 Equitable Gas Company customers in Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Martin, Magoffin, Letcher, Knott, Perry, Leslie and Lawrence Counties, a company spokesman said Thursday.

A sign of the times

Two men replaced the banner proclaiming simply "Why?" at the deadly intersection where Jimmy Howard Brewer, of Seagrove, North Carolina and 15-month-old Katherine Baker were killed in separate accidents. Wreckage thrown from Brewer's vehicle when it exploded still rests on the rock wall's embankment, more than 20 feet above the site of the crash. (photo by Geoff Belcher)

One man's fight :

A crusade for safety . . .

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The signs may have been taken down repeatedly, but the message remains the same—why? Why have the accidents at the new U.S. 23 and Route 1428 continued, killing two people and critically injuring four others.

Even more importantly, one Floyd County man asks, why hasn't the state taken the necessary measures to stop what he terms the "senseless slaughter."

The man, who prefers to be known only as "Anonymous," continues to place the signs proclaiming "Why?" on the rock cliff that provided an untimely end for Jimmy Howard Brewer, 34, of Seagrove, North Carolina, and 15-month-old Katherine Baker, of Clintwood, Virginia.

Brewer was killed at the intersection on December 30, when he drove his tractor-trailer through the intersection without stopping and struck the rock wall.

Baker was killed on impact on the night of January 30 when the vehicle driven by her mother, Kimberly Sue Baker, 31, failed to stop at the intersection and again, struck the rock wall. Kimberly Baker was badly injured and remains in the surgical intensive care unit at Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, West Virginia.

A second passenger in the Baker vehicle, Teresa Cottrell, 30, is still listed in critical condition in the intensive care ward at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Less than a week prior to the accident in which Katherine was killed, 19-year-old Matthew Mullins, of Jenkins, and Sam Bentley, 24, of Virgie, were seriously injured under almost exactly the same circumstances. Bentley remains in critical condition at Saint Mary's Hospital.

"The sign specifically says 'Why?'" the man said Thursday, "because that one word sums up every possible question: 'Why is the intersection designed like that?' 'Why isn't the state doing anything about it?' 'Why did a 15-month-old child have to die like that?' And most importantly, 'Why was there a third accident.'"

Although Kentucky Transportation Cabinet Chief District Engineer Denton Billiter said Tuesday that the state continues to place far more than the necessary safety, sign and alert devices at the site, the anonymous sign-maker disagrees.

"All they really need is some sort of illumination on the rock wall," the man said, "so that drivers can actually see it before they run into it. People are going to run stop signs.

In Wheelwright incident :

Prozac may get the blame

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Wheelwright man who threatened to kill acting Wheelwright Police Chief Bob Moore during a Wheelwright city commission meeting last month did so because he was under the influence of a drug called Prozac, his attorney said Wednesday.

Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf appeared in Floyd County District Court Wednesday for a preliminary hearing on behalf of his client, Rodney Thornsberry. Pillersdorf waived the hearing and District Judge Danny Caudill sent the matter to circuit court where a grand jury is expected to hear evidence in the case later this month.

Pillersdorf said if Thornsberry is indicted for wanton endangerment and first degree assault on a police officer with a weapon and the case goes to court, he will blame his client's actions on his taking the drug Prozac, a drug commonly prescribed to treat depression.

"I will defend his case by presenting evidence that the drug Prozac prevented my client from having a criminal state of mind (at the time of the incident)," Pillersdorf said.

Pillersdorf said he did not know how long Thornsberry has been taking the drug.

Thornsberry pointed a loaded gun to the head of Moore and threatened to "blow his... brains out" at a January 23 special meeting of the Wheelwright City Commission.

Moore and Thornsberry engaged in a struggle over the weapon and the two men fell to the floor. When the two hit the floor, about half of the 13 people attending the meeting fled outside the meeting hall.

Thornsberry left city hall and fled the scene in a vehicle. He surrendered himself to Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson later that same night. Thornsberry was taken to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital for treatment for a leg injury, apparently suffered during the struggle. Thornsberry was admitted to the hospital the night of January 23.

Moore went to the hospital on Monday to take Thornsberry into custody after he was discharged from the hospital. Moore did not have the proper paperwork and while the police chief went to obtain the necessary paperwork, Thornsberry left the hospital and went to the sheriff's office where he was later arrested.

Fire at legal firm still under investigation

John Bankhead, with the Georgia Bureau of Investigation Public Affairs office, said Thursday he could neither confirm nor deny that the investigation of Cropper's death had been linked to Hale. Bankhead said more information on the case could be available by today, Friday.

Court records show that Hale was convicted of first degree sexual abuse in Franklin County Circuit Court in 1981 for exposing himself and having sexual contact with a seven-year-old boy. He was sentenced to a five-year prison term.

Select Inc. was hired by Zahn's mother, Margrit Zahn, to investigate her son's disappearance.

Investigator's records show that Zahn had arrived in the United States on January 9, 1991 and stayed with various families along the East Coast. Zahn was to begin a bus tour of U.S. National Parks on May 9, 1992. Zahn called travel agent Ann Santilli in Orange City, Florida on April 27 last year to confirm the tour. He has not been heard from again.

Zahn's Euro credit card was used 31 times from April 30 through May 11, 1992 in areas surrounding Atlanta for motels, a gold chain, motorcycle tires, auto parts, liquor, men's cologne and clothing.

A surveillance camera at Mink's Liquor Store in Marietta, Georgia showed a man matching Hale's description purchase liquor on May 7, 1992 using Zahn's credit card.

On May 6, 1992, private investigators found where a person using the name Chris Zahn made three phone calls from the Comfort Inn in Villa Rica, Georgia. Two calls were made to Willie Musick of Carrollton, Georgia and one call was made to the CSX Corporation in Jacksonville, Florida.

Investigators and police detectives interviewed Musick, 19, and Oscar Turner, 19, on October 13 and the two claimed they had been approached by a man at Radio Shack in the Cumberland Mall in Atlanta.

The two said the man introduced himself as Christoph from Switzerland and added that the man used a "phony" foreign accent. The two boys said the man offered to help them get into the school in Switzerland and took Musick's phone number.

The report said that Hale had been fired from the CSX Corporation in Florida in June of 1991 for making obscene and threatening phone calls to a young man using his CSX business phone. The report said CSX officials had been contacted by a state trooper in Morgantown, West Virginia regarding Hale being a suspect in a sexual assault case.

On May 22, 1992, the investigator's report said that John McCallum, a homicide detective with the Jacksonville Sheriff's Department, said that Hale had been twice charged with making obscene phone calls to young men in 1990 and 1991.

The report said Hale was sentenced to pre-trial intervention and received treatment at Oaks Treatment Center in Jacksonville.

McCallum interrogated Hale concerning the calls, the report said, and Hale admitted his sexual preference was males between the ages of 15 and 25.

Jacksonville police say Hale was a suspect in a case involving a male hitchhiker who claims he was picked up by a man using the name Larry, the report said. The victim said he was given a pill by the man and the next thing he remembered was waking up in a ditch.

The investigation was discontinued when the victim left town, the report said.

In Morgantown, West Virginia, a young male reported that he had hitched a ride with a man in a red Ford Probe who gave him a pill purported to be some kind of narcotic. The victim reported that he had seen CSX documents in his assailant's vehicle. After taking the pill, the victim reported that he remembered nothing until he woke up in a ditch along side Interstate Highway I-79. He reported that he had been sodomized. The investigation ended when the victim left the area.

Investigators recommended that a search be made of Hale's premises and vehicle to look for evidence of forgery, credit card fraud, and sexual assault/abduction/murder of Chris Zahn.

Jacksonville police were searching for Hale Thursday and as of presstime he had not been arrested. Information submitted by Cobb County investigator Ken Janes to the Regional Organized Crime Information Center in Nashville, Tennessee said that Hale is a known pedophile, which is defined as an adult who has sexual desires for children.

Janes' report also said that Hale left his residence in Louisville abruptly in April 1992 and was known to have been in Atlanta, Georgia at the time of Zahn's disappearance.

Hale is described as being 6'1, 183 pounds with green eyes and grey balding hair. Hale is college educated, very intelligent and has worked as a developer of training films and he is an electronics expert.

Anyone with information about Hale's whereabouts is asked to call the Floyd County Sheriff's Department at (606) 886-6711 or toll-free 1-800-834-5430; the Cobb County Sheriff's Office at (404) 499-4668; the Georgia Bureau of Investigation at (404) 647-8151; or the Jacksonville Police Department at (904) 630-5747.

Dress rehearsal

Over 100 boy scouts and leaders converged on Alice Lloyd College this last weekend to earn merit badges, in repelling, swimming, and sports. The Lonesome Pine District of the Boy Scouts of America includes Knott, Letcher, Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin, and Martin counties. After sleeping on the floor, the scouts from about 10 troops were eager to learn new skills and just have fun. Dr. Samuel Gilmore, professor of biology at Alice Lloyd College, said that "The boys were very excited about putting on their helmets and learning how to scale down a cliff safely. We set up a learning station in the lobby of the Grady Nutt Auditorium. Once the scouts repelled a couple times they immediately asked 'When are we going to the real rocks and do this?'"

Childhood immunizations :

What you need to know & common misconceptions

by Dr. Sunil Abhyanker
 Pediatrician, and Pediatric Hem/oncologist
 Childhood immunizations

Immunizations against infectious disease has been highly effective in decreasing the incidence of diphtheria, measles, mumps, rubella, pertussis (whooping cough), polio and tetanus. In the past five years the introduction of vaccines against Hemophilus influenza type b (HIB) has also substantially reduced the incidence of this common childhood infectious agent. In spite of these significant advances, outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases still do occur and this has often been attributed to low rates of immunizations in younger children (i.e. less than 2 years of age). Most children are immunized completely by school age as this is often a requirement to enter school.

Schedule for routine immunizations of healthy children:

(From American Academy of Pediatrics)

At birth	HBV
2 months	DTP	OPV
HBV	HBCV
4 months	DTP	OPV
HBVC
6 months	DTP	HBCV
6-18 months	HBV
15 months	MMR	HBCV
15-18 months	DTP or DTAP
OPV
4-6 years	DTP or DTAP
OPV
11-12 years	MMR
14-16 years	Td
	HBV-Hepatitis B vaccine
	DTP-Diphtheria Tetanus & Pertussis
	OPV-oral polio vaccine
	HBVC-Hemophilus influenza type B conjugate vaccine
	MMR-Measles, mumps & rubella
	Td-Tetanus & diphtheria (for adults)
	DTAP-Diphtheria, tetanus & acellular pertussis

The major reasons for lack of complete immunizations in young children are:

- Failure to administer vaccines at health care visits because the health care providers are misinformed about contraindications or are unwilling to give 2 or more vaccines at the same visit.
- Inadequate health care delivery

Rate hike

Public Service Commission Public Information Officer Matt Rhody said Thursday that the decision, to be announced March 5, would probably be based only on information gathered at Wednesday's hearing.

Equitable advertised the proposed hike and subsequent hearing, which was attended by nine Equitable representatives and a lone company customer, though it had been advertised in every newspaper in every area that might be affected by it, Rhody said.

systems—esp. in rural areas.

- Lack of public awareness & education.

The following are some common misconceptions for not immunizing children:

- Mild acute illness, such as ear infection with low grade fever, or mild diarrhea in an otherwise well child.
- Current antibiotic therapy.
- Recent exposure to infectious disease.
- Family history of sudden infant death syndrome for children needing DTP vaccine.
- Family history of convulsions in children who require DTP or MMR vaccine.
- A previous reaction to DTP vaccine with only soreness, redness, or swelling or fever of less than 105 F.
- Prematurity.
- Pregnancy in mother.
- History of nonspecific allergies.

The only established reasons to withhold active immunization are concurrent moderate or severe illness (eg. that needing hospital admission); previous severe allergic reaction to a specific vaccine; severe allergy to egg protein or antibiotic, or live virus vaccines (eg. oral polio) are also not to be given during pregnancy or suppressed immunity (eg. patients on chemotherapy for cancer).

H. influenza type b conjugate vaccine (HBCV) is now routinely given starting at two months of age with completion by 12-15 months. This bacterium commonly causes ear and throat infections in children and until now the vaccine would be only given after 2 years of age. With the new vaccine the incidence of these common infectious has dramatically reduced.

Diphtheria, tetanus and acellular pertussis (DTAP) vaccine is a newer vaccine in which the pertussis component of the DTP is made from purified protein components of the pertussis bacterium (unlike DTP which is made from the whole cell). DTAP has the advantage of lower reactions and it is preferred for children with history of seizure disorders not associated with DTP vaccination. This vaccine is not yet freely available.

Hepatitis B vaccine is a safe and effective vaccine associated with very few side effects. Although most cases of hepatitis B occur in adolescence or adulthood through household contact, sexual contact, IV drug use or occupational contact, no risk factor can be identified in one third or more patients with hepatitis B. Universal immunization against Hepatitis B in infancy will be most effective because a lower dose of vaccine can be given to children and the immunity will last into adolescence and adulthood. The medical costs of caring and treating acute and chronic hepatitis B are very high; making vaccination against this disease a cost effective alternative of disease control. Future vaccines will combine the different vaccines to be given in infancy and will reduce the number of injections necessary.

Deaths

That's a fact of life. That doesn't mean they should have to die.

"I feel that some person or persons... in state government fears that if the state lights or paints the rock wall, they will be admitting some sort of wrong-doing... and maybe hurt themselves in the (impending) lawsuits."

James H. Jenkins, attorney of record for the family of Jimmy Howard Brewer, said Tuesday that he and his firm were "intensely pursuing all legal liability aspects" regarding Brewer's fatal accident.

"I intend to continue placing the signs at the intersection," the man said. "I don't care how many times they take them down, and I don't care if I end up going to jail over this.... I've worked in the medical profession for eleven years and I've seen accidents like this before, but one of this severity is very rare... and it doesn't need to continue.

"People have to know. Something has to be done."

Fire

According to a report filed Thursday by Kentucky State Police Detective McKenzie, Officer Mitchell Williamson of the Inez Police Department discovered the blaze at around 1:10 a.m. Wednesday in the McCoy, Marcum and Triplett Law Office at Inez.

McKenzie said that the building received heavy burn damage to the entire top floor and water and smoke damage to the bottom floor, which also housed the Martin County Pharmacy, owned by Michael S. Going. The pharmacy was completely destroyed.

The fire appeared to originate in the upper right rear area of the building. No injuries were reported.

The cause of the fire has not yet been determined, McKenzie said, but no sign of foul play has been found.

The incident is still under investigation.

Pike County resident endorses KET GED on TV program

"There were a lot of times when I thought about giving up, but your letters and phone calls made me believe that I could accomplish my goal. Thanks for all the help your staff gave me."

That is what Pike County resident Nikki Mitchell had to say in a letter to the KET GED ON TV staff after passing the GED exam. Mitchell is one of over 15,000 Kentuckians who have earned their GEDs after preparing with The KET/GED Series and the KET GED ON TV Program. Enrollment is currently under way for the next GED ON TV session which begins March 2.

The KET GED ON TV program is convenient for adults without a high school diploma who, because of lack of child care, transportation difficulties, conflicting work schedules, or other difficulties, need to prepare for the GED exam at home. KET began the program in 1975 to give Kentucky adults another chance to improve their education.

Each student enrolled in the KET GED ON TV program receives three workbooks which follow The KET/GED Series, a practice test prior to the actual GED test, and a certificate which pays the GED testing fee. Throughout each GED ON TV study session, students may call tutors at a toll-free telephone number.

The KET/GED Series, which is used nationwide, includes lessons for each area of the GED exam—math, writing, reading, science, and social studies. The series also includes programs which give test-taking tips and strategies.

Most of the KET GED ON TV graduates say they worked for their GED to find a better job, continue their education, or for simple self-satisfaction. If you are interested in KET's GED ON TV program or know someone who may be, please call 1-800-538-4433.

UK Mining Engineering student group wins top national honor

The University of Kentucky chapter of the Society for Mining, Metallurgy and Exploration has been named the nation's top SME student chapter for 1992.

Ten students from Floyd County are members of SME: Todd Justice, Kevin Adams, Kevin Houston, Thomas Nairn, Paul Horn, Chris Slone, Jason Storey, Allen James, Jody Wallen and Carter Hamilton.

The officers of the UK chapter will accept the award at the annual meeting of SME February 15-18 in Reno, Nevada, where they also will have the opportunity to tour a gold mine.

The chapter's activities last year included arranging technical meetings with speakers from industry and field trips to mines. Chapter members also worked as tutors to students in local eighth grade math classes.

Scholarships to UK's mining engineering program are available. For more information, contact Danny Belcher at 606-639-6275 after 5 p.m., or Richard Sweigard at UK at 606-257-2953.

Social insecurity

by Scott Perry

Nothing is likely to incite more debate, or fear, among Americans than a good, sharp stab in the pocketbook.

The current debate over Social Security is a good example.

Federal entitlement payments, of which Social Security represents a sizable chunk, are the largest expenses our deficit-spending government rings up each year.

If the deficit is to be controlled, it's logical to assume that entitlement payments must bear some of the burden.

But logic and Social Security seem to mix like oil and water.

One of the most consistently offered and routinely impugned proposals for deficit control involves caps on the growth of entitlement programs.

While that makes perfect economic sense, and is probably the only answer to eliminating this country's financial dilemma, it just ain't going to happen.

When prominent politicians like Senator Patrick Moynihan call efforts to cap Social Security a political "death wish," it's unlikely any meaningful action will be forthcoming.

The public, meanwhile, appears unable to distinguish between capping entitlement growth and what it perceives to be "reductions" in Social Security.

Entitlement caps aren't cuts, no one gets less, they are limits on how fast and how much those payments will increase.

Our aging population has every right to demand security, but our future is facing a deficit-fueled economic crisis that will be indiscriminate of age.

No pain, no gain, they say. If we don't act quickly and responsibly to resolve our budget crisis and cancerous deficit, all we will gain is pain.

—Letters to the editor—

Letters to the editor policy

Letters to the Editor are welcomed by the Floyd County Times. In accordance with our editorial page policy, all letters must include the signature, address and telephone number of the author. Letters must be received no later than 10 a.m. Tuesday for publication in Wednesday's issue and 10 a.m. Thursday for Friday's issue. Letters may be sent to Editor, The Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Letters may be edited for clarity and length.

Dead end road is becoming dead end

Editor:
In regards to the story "Baffles" in the Wednesday, February 3, issue of the Times, it doesn't take a card carrying genius to figure out why the fatal accidents are occurring at the intersection of new U.S. 23 and Route 1428.

Illuminate the intersection. Make the intersection so visible that a driver can see the cliff. In many areas of our state and country, there are intersections such as this, but they have lights to go along with the other visible regulatory signs.

I am not faulting anyone, and yes, it can be called human error. But something must be done to correct whatever errors are occurring. Don't put a dollar value on human life. Do whatever is necessary to stop the slaughter of life regardless of who is at fault.

It is time to stop hoping that motorists will realize that the road ahead is nothing more than a dead end, because that's exactly what it is, a dead end.

And that's no Barney!

Editor:
On several occasions across Kentucky, the Barney character and theme has appeared at both profit and non-profit organizations. While we at KET have no vested interest in the character other than providing the program on KET's schedule, please be advised that any appearance by a character identified as Barney either by name, description, or likeness is in violation of rights exclusive to The Lyons Group and Connecticut Public Television.

The real Barney is currently producing 20 new Barney & Friends episodes for PBS, which will begin airing in September. He is not making public appearances at present. Public television stations will be the first to know what his future schedule will be. Producing quality programs for PBS is his first priority.

Where false Barneys have appeared, parents and children have been soundly disappointed. Children know Barney's appearance and voice well enough to recognize fakes, and disappointing children in this manner is as reprehensible as is intention to profit from it. The Lyons Group, creators of Barney and holders of his copyright, are taking legal action in response to any and all false appearances. Further comment can be obtained by calling Beth Ryan, publicist at The Lyons Groups, at 214-248-6800 or Patrice Pascual, national publicist for Connecticut Public Television (coproducers of the series), at 301-927-1578.

Thank you for publishing this letter. Our intent is to keep our viewers informed and aware of any imitation Barney characters. The real Barney & Friends, by the way, airs daily on KET at 12:30 p.m. and Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Rein in the reprobates

If there was ever a story that explained how Eastern Kentucky works, it is staff writer John Voskuhl's report on the ownership of Benco Mining.

The crux of the matter is this: When the government determines that folks are behaving like reprobates, it bans them from mining coal. But people like that often find a way to stay in the business.

Mountain banker and bigwig-for-all-seasons L.D. Gorman, as well as Perry County Judge/Executive Sherman Neace, has been barred from mining as a result of past environmental violations. But Mr. Gorman has found a way to stay in the game.

If academics and reformers want to study how things get done in Eastern Kentucky, they should study this one. It illustrates how the Appalachian coalfields have been ruled, to these many generations, by powerful interests.

What you want, if you intend to run a coal operation unimpeded, is to remain out of sight when the government permits are granted, hidden from public responsibility. Later, you can buy into the business formally. And you want to have the local political/judicial system in hand, so that inconvenient things like enforcement of overweight coal hauling rules can be brushed aside. So, you bring in somebody like the county judge/executive. And to operate the business out front, you use a person with a fine public reputation.

Clearly we need a new state law to insure that public records on ownership of mines are updated when control changes.

We need to change the state law that requires only ownership "of record" to be on file. Coal firms should file records of "beneficial ownership," not just the names of those who can sit in the board room and vote.

And if the coal operators oppose this, their hypocrisy is as raw as an unreclaimed highwall.

They say the industry has changed. They say they want the rogues out of the business of mining coal. If so, they ought to support these changes. — The Courier-Journal

Watch, then phone

If you want some real, if unsettling, entertainment for the next few nights, watch Kentucky Educational Television's coverage of the special session on legislative ethics.

The performance of the members of the Senate State Government Committee on the nightly telecasts has said more about the need for ethics reform than any editorial or news story could convey.

After you watch democracy in action on KET, you might want to let your lawmakers know your opinion about ethics in government. It's easy to do, and it won't cost you a cent.

Just call the legislature's offices at (800) 372-7181 and leave messages for your senator and representative. The line is open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Lawmakers, here's your chance

This week begins a process in which the makers of Kentucky's laws will be put to the ultimate test. And you can bet their constituents will be keeping a close eye on them.

The occasion is a special session to consider laws that govern state legislators and local officials. It is the most important bill since the Kentucky Education Reform Act.

The ethics reform package contains a lot of proposals. While some need fine-tuning, most should become law.

How affective it will be will be determined by how serious our lawmakers are in cleaning up their image.

If the new law isn't worth the paper it's written on, they will have collectively spit in the faces of those who gave them their jobs. — The Paintsville Herald

Don't dismiss the truth about domestic violence

Let's hope that America's beaten women weren't the losers along with the Buffalo Bills on Super Bowl Sunday.

Last weekend, some women's rights activists found themselves on the defensive. They had to explain how they arrived at statistics that showed women were at greater risk of being attacked by abusive men on Super Bowl Sunday than on any other day of the year. They had no luck.

By Monday, they were saying their information was inaccurate and incomplete. It was an embarrassing revelation. Worse than that, it could undermine more than two decades of efforts to educate people about a crime that is an everyday tragedy.

The error indeed was unfortunate. It no doubt will cause future claims by advocates to be scrutinized carefully.

But the error should not obscure the facts. Wife-beating is epidemic in this country. On average, a woman is beaten every 15 seconds every day of the year. The FBI estimates that 6 million American women are beaten each year by their husbands or boyfriends; 4,000 of them are killed.

There is no evidence that football fans beat their wives or girlfriends more often than other men do. In fact, there is no stereotypical wife-beater. They are not all drunks, drug addicts or social misfits. They are all criminals, however, who beat their wives or girlfriends because they want to control them and they can get away with the violence.

This is the message that was at the heart of what domestic violence advocates wanted to communicate on Super Bowl Sunday: Domestic violence is a problem we need to combat every day. It has been with us since long before anyone dreamed up the game of football and, unfortunately, will be with us long after football season ends. — Lexington Herald-Leader

America needs your numbers!

There is a disturbing sound coming from some business offices around the country. It is the sound of the 1992 Economic Census from slipping to the bottom of the pile.

The 1992 Economic Census forms arrived in December, amid year-end closings and tax filings. Some accountants, controllers, even Chief Financial Officers may feel that a response from their company is not a high priority.

Don't believe it. Economic Census results are too important to be delayed. These are numbers we all need—on the job, for our communities, for public policy, even in our own finances. And every response is needed for an accurate total.

Current economic indicators from the federal government, including gross domestic product, retail sales and others that you may follow every month—some even in the pages of this publication—would not be there without the Economic Census.

Census facts and figures are the basic information needed for local planning and development.

Profiles assembled from census data guide communities as they work to maintain their economic base and attract new investment.

Businesses need Economic Census data to gauge current performance and plan for the future. The data helps firms develop business plans, compute market share, and locate business markets.

So, if you still have not completed the 1992 Economic Census form for your company, go ahead. Fill it out. Send it in.

Remember, it's required by law. Putting it off does not change the fact that you have to do it.

And if you are the boss, let your people know that you place a high priority on completing the Economic Census accurately and on time—by the February 15 deadline.

The Economic Census—not only does it show how America works, The Economic Census is Working for America. —Troublesome Creek Times

Board to officially begin work on WMS

The Martin County Board of Education has officially rolled up its sleeves to begin work on the multi-million dollar Warfield Middle School as they hired architect Jack Clotfelter and Martin Engineering to see the project through.

The board will pay $260,000 to Martin Engineering and Construction firm from Martin, who will oversee construction of the project. The actual school will be constructed by Jack Clotfelter, who will receive $36,000 in preconstruction costs (preconstruction costs usually run around $50,000) and five percent of the total cost of the school. Both contracts were tentatively accepted by the board, pending final approval.

The board also set aside $225,000 from the general fund in anticipation of assuming control of the Middle School property.—The Mountain Citizen

Amendment to policy concerning weapons in school pushed through

School districts across the state are reacting to the tragedy that occurred two weeks ago at East Carter High School in which a high school student shot and killed a teacher and janitor. At Monday night's meeting of the Martin County Board of Education, Chairman Garry Lafferty voiced the board's concern and pushed through an amendment to the board's policy concerning weapons in school.

Current policy says that students are prohibited from bringing to school firearms, fireworks, illegal knives (with blade over six inches long), or anything else that might be used as a weapon. Any student caught with such contraband is subject to suspension from school.

Lafferty and the board changed the policy to add "look-alikes," in reaction to an incident at a larger school in which a student pointed a plastic pistol at a teacher's head.—The Mountain Citizen

Defendant sentenced for threatening sheriff

Columbus Martin of Salisbury Branch in Knott County pled guilty in Breathitt County District Court on January 25, on three counts of terroristic threatening, according to Dawn Watts, an assistant county attorney in Breathitt County.

He was fined $350 plus court costs, sentenced to 120 days in jail, and put on probation for one year.

Martin also pled guilty in Knott District Court on November 16 to criminal mischief in the third degree for damaging a police cruiser that Knott County Sheriff Jim Amburgey was transporting Martin to Eastern State Hospital in on June 20, 1992. The Knott and Breathitt sentences involve the same incidents on June 20.

Martin was evaluated at Kentucky Correctional Psychiatric Center at LaGrange, and was found competent to stand trial.—Troublesome Creek Times

Kentucky towns ranked among best

Four Kentucky communities made an impression on an author who compiled a list of his top 100 small towns in the country.

Author Norman Crampton listed Danville at No. 40, Bardstown at No. 79, Pikeville at 85 and Somerset at 89 in his book "The 100 Best Small Towns in America," which was released Tuesday. Kentucky, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Indiana, and Minnesota had the most towns mentioned in the book with four each.

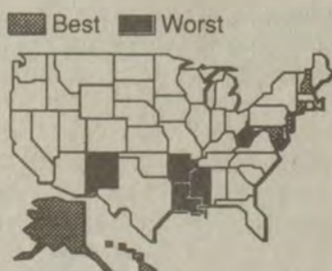

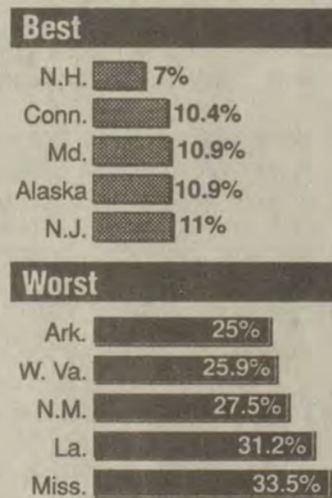

Crampton, a former journalist who is director of the Indiana Institute of Recycling in Terre Haute, defined small as a population of 5,000 to 15,000. In his book, published by Prentice Hall, he considered crime rates, natural beauty, institutions of higher learning, newspapers and medical care.—The Courier-Journal

Returning to the scene

Representatives of Patchett-Kaufman Entertainment were in Pike County yesterday to do research for a film on the now infamous slaying of Susan Daniels Smith by FBI Agent Mark Putnam. Commonwealth's Attorney John Paul Runyon and Det. Richard Ray showed the researchers where Smith's body was found. Runyon said the Los Angeles crew plans to make a film based on an upcoming book by writer Joe Sharkey. The filmmakers are Wendell Rawls, April Smith, and Dick Lawry.—Appalachian News-Express

KET program features Appalachian writers

During the week of the Appalachian Writers' Workshop, held each summer at the Hindman Settlement School in Knott County, writers and other participants share the images they've created of Appalachia. These varied images blend into one at the small mountain school at the forks of Troublesome Creek.

At the Forks of Troublesome, premiering on KET at 8:00/7:00 p.m. Monday, February 15, features writers Lee Smith, James Still, George Ella Lyon, Gurney Norman, Jim Wayne Miller, and Ed McClanahan at the 15th annual workshop, held in August 1992. In readings and interviews, the authors share their common belief in place—especially the place known as Appalachia—as a source of inspiration.

The program also features a brief history of the Hindman Settlement School, which has become a center for Appalachian literature.

The school was founded in 1902 "to provide an educational opportunity for the youth of the mountains and keep them mindful of their heritage." Since its earliest days, it has served thousands of students who otherwise would have been unable to attend any school at all.

Today, the Settlement School serves the region in other ways. A program designed for children with dyslexic characteristics which began with four students now serves 900.

And the Appalachian Writers' Workshop has "become a kind of mecca for people interested in the writing of this region," according to the school's director, Mike Mullins.

"Our literary tradition goes all the way back to Lucy Furman, a writer who taught here for many years," Mullins says. "Al Stewart, who started the writers' workshop, came here as a 5-year-old child and was one of Miss Lucy's little boys. James Still came here in 1932 as the librarian and 'two-legged bookmobile,' and, for the most part, he's been here ever since."

In At the Forks of Troublesome, Still reads excerpts from his novel River of Earth and is accompanied in music and song by Randy Wilson.

"Appalachia is that somewhat mythical region with no known boundaries," says Still. "If such an area exists in terms of geography, such a domain which has shaped the lives of men and women from pioneer days to the present and given them an independence and an outlook and a vision such as often attributed to them, I trust to be understood for imagining the heart of it to be in the hills of Eastern Kentucky, where I have lived and feel at home, and where I have exercised as much freedom and peace as the world allows."

Gurney Norman (Kinfolks, Divine Right's Trip) likens what has occurred artistically in the Appalachian region in the last 20 years to the Harlem Renaissance of the 1920s.

The difference, he says, is that the Harlem Renaissance was "confined to a section of a big city. We spread out over six states and many mountain ranges...So if we're going to have a movement and a renaissance, we're going to have to have a home, and Hindman Settlement School is that home."

The mark of this artistic flourishing, says Jim Wayne Miller (His First, Best Country; Brier, His Book), is that Appalachia and the people who live here "used to be defined by others; now we define ourselves."

For a long time, the rest of the world's definition of Appalachia was not always flattering. Harlan native George Ella Lyon (Come A Tide, Who Walked This Road) considers the influence outsiders' opinions of Appalachia have had on her.

While she was growing up, during the "War on Poverty" of the '60s, Lyon says, "the image of Appalachia was a place which had no culture. And the images were very negative.

"I had a sense that if I were going to be a writer, I'd have to go someplace else and start there," she continues. "It just took me a long time to find that the writing which spoke to me most was writing with a strong sense of place, and indeed, I had what I already needed—I had all the material I could want."

"In At the Forks of Troublesome, writers read from their works and provide insights into the sources of their inspiration," says KET Producer Guy Mendes. "But it's not just about writers; it's also about Appalachian culture, about the lives of the people in this mountainous region."

Workshop participant Leatha Kendrick describes her workshop experience:

"There's something mythic about crossing bridges, and when you come into the Settlement School and you get to the bottom of the hill, you cross Troublesome Creek on the little wooden bridge. And you literally enter a place. It's not a place that exists all the time; it's more like...Brigadoon—it sort of appears once a year and is there, and is real while it's there, but is not there the rest of the time."

At the Forks of Troublesome is a KET production; Guy Mendes, producer; Charlee Heaton, associate producer; James Walker, editor.

Local students at ECU are student teaching during spring semester

Six Floyd County students at Eastern Kentucky University are among 292 teacher-education students doing student teaching this spring semester.

ECU's College of Education places its student teachers in classrooms to gain practical classroom experience, said Dr. David Rush, director of ECU's professional laboratory experiences office. The student-teaching experience, which is required before a college graduate may be certified, follows on-campus instruction in teaching fundamentals, methods and subject-matter areas.

"We believe our students are well-prepared to be outstanding teachers," Rush said.

ECU students preparing for teaching careers also have the unique advantage of gaining practical classroom experience at Model Laboratory School, the only university-operated laboratory school in Kentucky. It is designed to provide educational experiences for future teachers that might otherwise be unavailable.

The student teachers are working at the secondary, elementary and middle school level, as well as in areas of special education.

Local student teachers, their address, and school assigned are: Raina Dawn Phillips, Betsy Layne, Cold Hill, London; Dwayne Johnson, Teaberry, Clark Middle School, Winchester, Cassidy Elementary, Lexington; Kristina Bevins, Printer, Madison Central High School, Richmond; April Brown, Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg; Breckinridge Elementary, Lexington, Tates Creek Middle School, Lexington; Brian Tackett, Brockton, Richmond; Model Lab, Richmond; Ted George, North Locust Hill, Lexington; Madison Southern, Berea.

Major Rose becomes captain, assigned commander at Hazard

Major Gary Rose

Kentucky State Police Commissioner Billy G. Wellman recently announced several transfers and promotions.

Major Gary Rose, Operations Division, reverts to the permanent rank of captain and assigned as commander of the Hazard Post. Rose is a resident of Floyd County and former Pikeville commander.

Capt. John B. Lile, commander of the Frankfort Post, has been promoted to major and assigned to the Professional Standards Branch as commander. Lile, 39, has been with the state police since 1974. He worked at the Pikeville Post and the KSP Academy where he was promoted to sergeant in 1981.

Lt. Kenneth Hardin, Elizabethtown Post, has been promoted to captain and assigned to the Mayfield Post as commander. In 1975, Hardin joined the state police and during his career has worked at the Pikeville and Elizabethtown Posts.

Shriners stress burn awareness and safety during National Burn Awareness Week, February 7-13

Burns are a leading cause of accidental death in children under 14 years of age, with the highest single risk group being children under two. But kids are not the only ones at risk. More than 2 million people are burned annually—children and adults.

Shriners are particularly interested in saving children from burn injuries. That's why each year Shriners join the Shriners Burns Institutes and the United States Congress in observing National Burn Awareness Week. This year, Burn Awareness Week will be recognized February 7-13.

In recognition of the urgent need to educate the public about burn prevention and fire safety, the Shriners Burns Institutes and the Shrine of North America offer these tips to help you and your family stay healthy and safe from burns:

- Purchase and use only paper matches and child-resistant lighters. Babies as young as 16 months old can manipulate cigarette lighters well enough to start a fire, and children under three years old can start a fire with a kitchen match (a "strike-anywhere" match). Many burn injuries to young children result from children using matches and lighters as toys.

- Teach your children that a match is a tool for adults, and should be used only for its intended purpose. Teach older children safe and proper method for lighting matches.

- Boiling water in the kitchen is the single most common cause of scald burns occurring in the home. Always keep children away from the stove when cooking, and make sure they are not in your path or nearby when carrying boiling water to the sink or counter. Using a "fill-through-the-spout" type of teapot to boil water will minimize the risk of a scald burn from boiling water.

In Beloved Memory Of

Olivia Nikole Hall

Who Passed Away on January 10, 1992

From standing on sidelines to reading a book,
She gave the world more than she took,
Her time to go came at a very young age,
She was just beginning to learn to give God praise.
Now her soul has been lifted by His gracious hands,
His reason for taking her, we do not understand.
As she goes to Him, her memory stays in our hearts,
And we live on with the sorrow of ever having to part.
I find comfort in knowing she is now free and safe from harm,
For she is being securely embraced in God's loving arms.
It warms my heart to know that we will one day meet again,
In one beautiful world, free from sorrow and sin.

Tenth Annual Tri-State Railroad Show, and Railroad Collectors Sale and Swap

Don Maxwell, Executive Director of the Collis P. Huntington Railroad Historical Society, Inc. and Paul Verespy, Recreation Director of Greenbo Lake State Resort Park, are announcing the tenth annual Tri-State Railroad Show and Railroad Collectors Sale and Swap weekend at the Park lodge and restaurant March 20th and 21st.

There will be many new displays and exhibits, including large N, O, and LGB layouts from Ohio, WV, and KY by some of the areas finest model railroaders, including those of the Huntington based Appalachian Model Railroad Club, art and photographic displays, steam and diesel locomotive excursion videos, slide shows, working model steam locomotive display, sales of railroadiana, free trip giveaways, antique gas engines, operating old time railroad hand car, and a Saturday evening concert by "E.J. Hollaway" professional country and western singer and a member of the "Lining Bar Gang".
A special attraction appearing for the very first time in our area will be the "Lining Bar Gang". The Lining Bar Gang, is a group of retired railroad workers from Buckingham County Virginia who remembers the way things used to be done before heavy machinery took over the endless duty of keeping the long steel rails aligned. Back then, before the mid-1950's, crews of sixteen men would align the tracks using heavy steel "lining-bars" and sheer strength, and Song was crucial in coordinating their efforts. They will perform outside the lodge Saturday afternoon at 1, 2:30, and 4 p.m., and on Sunday at the same times.

Greenbo Lake State Resort Park is located in Greenup County, Kentucky off Route 1, which is also the Grayson exit of Interstate 64, and is approximately 20 miles west of Ashland.

That's show biz

The students in the all-star chorus from Maytown, Allen and Martin Elementary Schools got a taste of the bright lights of show "biz" when CBS filmed at Maytown for an upcoming documentary about Billie Jean Osborne. They performed a section of the musical "Santa's Frosty Follies". Everyone was nervous but came away with a feeling of accomplishment for a job well-done. Maytown's chorus is currently getting ready to go into rehearsal for their current musical "Standing Room Only."

Floyd County student involved in media project

Seth Mullins, a senior at Floyd County Technical High School, has been involved in a media project centered on a documentary film involving the history and purpose of Floyd Tech.

The Appalshop in Whitesburg, accepted Seth for membership in the 1992-93 Appalachian Media Institute through which he completed a summer internship program last June. The program was designed to 1) cultivate student and community interest in various media forms, 2) provide the participants with the basic skills necessary to produce media projects, 3) encourage students to realize the value of education, 4) promote leadership skills and opportunities, and 5) provide the students with a vehicle through which they may speak about their individual and community concerns.

During the summer five-week program, Mullins, along with other students chosen for the media institute, became familiar with the elements of media production, including radio, video, film and sound recording. The students gained basic production skills through practical hands-on work with professionals.

During the course of the program, Mullins completed one documentary film based on an individual from Whitesburg, Belinda Mason, who had contracted the AIDS virus through a blood transfusion. The documentary included information concerning contributions made by Mason to the National AIDS Committee.

Honor Roll at Maytown

for the 3rd 6 weeks

Ruby Miller's 4th grade, 3.0-3.9—Sarah Adkins, Joshua Bailey, Kelli Campbell, Chris Childers, Kathy Conley, Timothy Burke, Nathan Duff, Brandy Everage, William Goodman, Jeremy Wayne Hayes, Radie Ramey, Megan Robinson, Amanda Tackett, and David Watkins.

Patty Maynard's 7th grade, 4.0—Liz Hoover, 3.0—Shawn Amburgey, Jennifer Brown, B. J. Caudill, John Goble, Kevin Goodman, Matthew Hagans, Tim Hagans, Todd Howard, Crystal Martin, Janet Miller, Jason Stone, Jerry Stanley, Curtis Webb and Cindy Stone.

In the completion of his documentary work concerning Floyd Tech., Mullins is being sponsored by Floyd Tech. instructor James Staggs who also attended the summer workshop at the Appalshop Center.

The Appalshop program itself is designed to encourage an interest in media production by sending students back to their schools after the summer workshop so that they can continue projects and enlist the assistance of fellow students.

By compiling information dealing with the student body of which he is a part, Mullins will be influential in sparking the interests of other students in becoming involved in the Appalshop media program.

Wait To See: Stephanie has a curious concept about friendship; Hannah reacts to news of Cooper's proposal.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: LeeAnn was devastated when Kevin called off a custody hearing after learning Jason had been arrested on drug charges. Jason insisted that Kevin's friends set him up. Asa paid Sonny to say she saw Max and Blair make love. The judge ruled for Asa, denying Blair a financial settlement. Asa was furious with Bo when he learned he bought the radio station. Blair took money from Dorian's safe and left town. Clint moved into the guest room and confronted Viki with a book of poetry Sloan gave her. A mysterious caller tried to reach Tina. Wait To See: Blair leaves some ghosts behind.

YOUNG & THE RESTLESS: During a meeting with Brandon, Victoria learned Victor was at the courthouse. They rushed over in time to hear Victor tell the judge the annulment should be granted. A furious Victoria warned her father if he didn't withdraw the petition she'd leave town with Ryan and never return. To Dru's surprise, Olivia admitted she still had deep feelings for Neil, but was committed to her husband and their child. Later, Dru was upset when Neil told her this was not the time to consider if he would ever feel about her as he had about Olivia. Rebecca told Michael it was time to pay up for what she did to discredit Danny in Cricket's eyes. Wait To See: Michael acts to keep his secret "safe."

Doctor's skill is not enough to save wife from cocaine

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, unknown to me, and at the urging of some "friends," my wife tried cocaine. Within months, in a night mare words cannot describe, she was severely addicted, and thousands of dollars had been spent to support her addiction.

A once gentle and loving wife and mother lied, stole and even prostituted herself for cocaine. In a terrifying incident while under the influence of cocaine, she held me at bay with a loaded pistol, threatening to kill me and the children!

A year later, I was forced to divorce someone I had truly loved, in a failed effort to save my family from financial ruin. Eventually, I lost my home and a medical practice that had taken me years to build, as I helplessly watched a once wonderful person lose her struggle to overcome the addictive power of cocaine.

As a physician, I have seen a lot of human suffering, but nothing can compare to the living death of cocaine addiction.

Abby, please tell your readers that someone who has been there has said, "Don't even try it!" I am signing my real name, but if you use this letter, please sign me ...

FLORIDA PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: You are to be commended for coming forward with your sad story in an effort to save others from the tragic fate your wife experienced.

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen my problem addressed in your column, or anyone else's.

As you can see by my business card, which I've enclosed, I sew for the public. I am an excellent seamstress, and while I do not enjoy doing alterations, it's good, honest money, and I'll take it.

Abby, what can I do about otherwise nice people (and acquaintances) who bring me garments to work on that are just plain filthy? I have worked on some garments that are so filthy, I've stopped to wash my hands after handling them.

Please do not use my name or town. It would be interesting to know how many other seamstresses have this disgusting problem, and how they cope with it.

REPULSED

DEAR REPULSED: People who expect you to handle filthy garments should be called and told, "Your garment is in need of being dry-cleaned—would you mind if I had it cleaned before working on it?"

DEAR ABBY: When someone gives a book as a gift, it would be very thoughtful if he or she would refrain from inscribing it—unless the giver is certain that the receiver does not already have the book, has not already read the book, and really wants the book.

If a book is not inscribed, it can be exchanged for another, or given to someone who might enjoy it.

GEORGIA BOOK LOVER

DEAR BOOK LOVER: That's an excellent suggestion for people who give books. Of course, this doesn't apply to a book personally inscribed by the author.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding" by sending a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Military installations of importance in state

While early military installations were built to protect settlers from Indian attacks, modern facilities in the Commonwealth serve as home to the nation's fighting forces.

In frontier times, fortified communities like Boonesborough were necessary to protect settlers from Indian attacks. Established in April, 1775 in present-day Madison County, Kentucky's first such settlement with stood numerous assaults, including 1778's Great Siege of Boonesborough. Historians have called the episode a major military victory, and credit the Boonesborough pioneers with saving the Kentucky frontier.

An early Army post, the Newport Barracks were built in 1804 at the juncture of the Licking and Ohio rivers in northwest Kentucky. Kentucky troops assembled at the Barracks in 1813 before heading to Canada to defeat the French and Indians at the Battle of Thames on October 5, 1813, thus ending fighting in the old northwest. Newport Barracks was also used as a military prison during the War of 1812, a training center for Mexican War volunteers, and a Union Army recruiting depot in the Civil War.

In 1942 Camp Breckinridge opened as an infantry training center in Union County, but served as a prisoner of war camp for 3,000 German soldiers from 1943-46. The camp resumed its training mission during the Korean War, 1950-1954, but was closed by the Army in 1963.

Fort Knox, first used for Army maneuvers in 1902, is best known as the site of the U.S. gold bullion depository. Located just north of Elizabethtown, Fort Knox became a permanent installation in 1916. Today the base is headquarters for the U.S. Army Armor School and the 197th Armored Brigade, a special tank brigade, and houses the Patton Museum of Cavalry and Armor, in honor of colorful General George S. Patton Jr.

Sprawling on the Kentucky-Tennessee border, Fort Campbell is home of the 101st Airborne Division, or "Screaming Eagles." The 101st was one of the first units deployed to the Persian Gulf in the Desert Storm Operation, where its members performed heroically. Elements of the 18th Airborne Division are also based at Fort Campbell, as well as the Army's Air Assault School.

Turner to start the second half, Stumbo recorded back-to-back baskets by Tackett. He gave the Mustangs a 21-18 lead with 4:35 left in the quarter. An exchange of baskets left the Mustang lead at three points, 23-20, with 3:50 on the clock. Adams went on an eight-point run, taking the lead back at 28-23 with 1:17 left in the third quarter. After a basket by Stumbo's Newsome with :55 on the clock, Adams scored on back-to-back baskets by Turner and Samons to extend their lead out to 32-25 heading into the final quarter.

Adams outscored the Mustangs 3-1 opening the fourth quarter and their lead was extended out to 35-26 with 4:55 on the clock. An exchange of points kept the Adams' lead at nine, 37-28, with 4:27 left in the game. Stumbo went on a 6-1 run behind a three-pointer by Newsome and a three-pointer by Vance as they cut the lead down to 38-34 with 3:25 left on the clock. After Adams' Hale hit the front-end of the bonus, Stumbo recorded a basket by Craig Johnson and back-to-back baskets by Vance as they took the lead, 40-39, with 1:15 remaining in the game.

After a basket by Adams' Hale put the Blackcats back out by one, Stumbo's Johnson hit a three-pointer to give the Mustangs the 43-41 lead with :45 left in the game. Adams' Turner and Samons hit four of four from the free throw line giving the Blackcats the 45-43 lead with :18 left in the game. Stumbo's Tackett tied the game at 45 with :10 to end the game as they headed into overtime.

In overtime, it was the Adams Middle School Blackcats show as they went on a tear and held the Mustangs scoreless through the extra 3:00 period. It was Samons scoring five points and Turner scoring four points that led them in the 11-0 overtime run to win the game 56-45.

Adams advances and will face the winner of the McDowell Daredevils/Maytown Wildcats game on February 9 at 7:30.
