Floyd man's death tied to fire at lodge

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

A fire at Wayland destroyed the James W. Alley Masonic Lodge Sunday morning and indirectly led to the death of a Wayland resident.

Winfred Bentley, 71, of Wayland died Sunday morning, the victim of an apparent heart attack. Bentley had become upset when he saw the flames coming from the James W. Alley Lodge located near his home. Fearing that his home was in danger, he evacuated his invalid mother-in-law from his home and was trying to retrieve his medicine when he suffered a heart attack, relatives said. Bentley was the father-in-law of Garrett Fire Chief Bruce Scott, who was battling the fire.

Fire was shooting out of the Lodge when Wayland Firefighters arrived on the scene around 2 a.m. Sunday. The second floor of the building was totally involved. The lower floor sustained water damage and the ceiling collapsed. The building was a total loss, said Wayland fire Chief Sam Bentley, a member of the Lodge.

Records of the Lodge were protected in a fire-proof safe, said Danny Francis, Master of the Wayland Lodge and a Garrett firefighter. Prized photos of past masters and donated items in the Lodge were destroyed, Francis said.

Members of the Garrett, Maytown and Martin Fire Departments assisted Wayland firefighters in bringing the blaze under control. Bentley praised the area departments for lending a helping hand.

Barry McKenzie, Kentucky State Police arson investigator, is investigating the incident. Arson is suspected.

Kentucky State Police are also investigating a fire that destroyed the Cow Creek home of Janie Goble Friday. Goble was not at home when the fire occurred, said Jim Caldwell, Cow Creek Volunteer Fire Chief.

The fire department was called to the scene around 8:40 p.m. The interior of the one-year-old home was gutted, Caldwell said. Lack of manpower and a heavy downpour at first Prestonsburg firefighters put out a fire on the loading dock of the old Hecks building Saturday. The fire was accidentally ignited by two juveniles who were shooting fireworks. The juveniles reported the fire when they were unable to extinguish it. The fire was one of several throughout the county keeping area fire departments busy during Labor Day weekend. Folk Fest to mark 28th year

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

The 28th annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival, set for 7 p.m. September 11 at Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheater, promises to be an evening of entertainment that celebrates our mountain cultural heritage.

The folk festival was founded by the late Edith Fitzpatrick James for singers, dancers, tale-tellers, poets, musicians and craftspeople to share and to perpetuate the lore of the southern mountains.

James, a Prestonsburg native, left the mountains to study music and pursue a singing career. But her love for the mountains drew her back. Soon after her return, she began a lifelong study of traditional or "folk" music. She began collecting folksongs and putting many songs which had never before been written down into musical notation. Later, Sarah Gertude Knott worked with James on what they conceived as a regional festival, and so, in 1965, the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival was born.

This year, local performers will include traditional folk ballad singer Dianna Donahoe, country singer Rob McNurlin, American folk artist Johnda Poynter and saw-player Homer Ledford of Winchester. Performances will feature bluegrass, country, gospel and traditional ballads. Other attractions will include dancing, storytelling and puppet shows.

Ticket prices for this year's festival are: adults, $3; senior citizens, $2; students, $1.50. Children under 12, free. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

School fund-raiser raising eyebrows among officials

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With more money than ever before being pumped into Floyd County classrooms, school officials were surprised to learn Tuesday about a fundraising effort going on at Prestonsburg Elementary.

On Friday, Prestonsburg Elementary students were given a packet which contained items to be sold for the school's "Fall Fundraiser." There was no explanation in the packet what the funds would be used to purchase.

Prestonsburg principal Gwen Harmon said Tuesday that a report that the money raised would be used to buy instructional materials was incorrect and that the money would go toward purchases of televisions, video cassette recorders (VCRs), air conditioners, classroom furniture and window shades.

Gary Frazier, deputy superintendent for instruction, said Tuesday that money allotted for instructional materials is "an admirable amount" this year and that fundraisers should be avoided. Frazier said that per pupil spending for instruction this year is $125, compared to $75 last year.

"The whole purpose for earmarking money for instructional purposes on a per student basis was to eliminate fundraisers," Frazier said Tuesday. "Unless the principal and the principal and the (site-based) council deem it absolutely necessary, I think it should be avoided."

The Floyd County Board of Education adopted a policy earlier this year which prohibits schools from conducting fundraisers to raise money for school's instructional program unless it is "part of the curriculum such as salesmanship training, or school activities."

At a Prestonsburg Elementary teacher's meeting Tuesday, Harmon said that the fundraiser was necessary to buy equipment, such as VCRs, televisions and new classroom furniture, not provided by the board of education.

"The library does get audio visual money, but it's not enough," Harmon said. "We were told by the board not

Site work on the elementary 21-classroom addition at Betsy Layne began last year and the district has spent approximately $450,000 on the project.

The LPC report recommended that the local board proceed with the classroom addition project. Jim Parks, spokesman for the Kentucky Department of Education, said Tuesday afternoon that the management committee decided to send the plan back to the local district for a "consensus" between the local board, the LPC and the community.

Floyd County superintendent Steve Towler, who attended Tuesday's management committee meeting, said the local board will have to address the issue quickly in order to meet a September 1994 deadline to obligate past state monies for school construction from the School Facility Construction Commission (SFCC).

"We are going to have to have a special meeting to look at all issues on the plan," Towler said Tuesday. "We may need to reprioritize our building projects. We have to resolve the matter and get moving quickly on other projects to obligate our funds by September 1994."

Towler said that approximately $7 million is available in SFCC funds for the funding cycles from 1988-1992. He said that school projects on the district's priority list for the remaining SFCC funds include an addition at Adams Middle School, a gym at South Floyd High School and

Truck ban in effect on portion of Rt. 23

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Coal truck traffic through the city of Paintsville will come to a screeching halt soon, following the enactment Tuesday, September 7, of a ban on extended-weight traffic on a seven-mile stretch of Route 23.

State Transportation Cabinet officials confirmed Tuesday that the traffic ban had actually begun on Friday, September 3, but enforcement would be postponed until this week.

Trucks carrying more than 80,000 pounds will be required to detour around Paintsville indefinitely, using one of two alternate routes. Those routes include Route 3, near Auxier, to Inez and Route 645 which re-connects with Route 23 near Ulysses in Lawrence County. Truckers may also follow Route 114 to Salyersville, then take Route 460 to its intersection with Route 23 north of Paintsville.

The extended weight ban was requested in a resolution adopted by Paintsville's city council as an effort to alleviate traffic congestion in that city. It was also sought after a bridge spanning the Big Sandy River near Hager Hill was deemed unsafe for overweight vehicles.

Denton Bilter, supervisor for the Pikeville office of the state Transportation Cabinet, said Tuesday his office would erect signs, hopefully this week, identifying alternate routes to be used by extended weight vehicles. Neither Bilter nor transportation officials in Frankfort were aware of any other measures planned to enforce the ban, but Paintsville Mayor John David Preston said he may post city police officers at the city limits to "turn them back."

The ban will likely become a moot issue when new Route 23 is completed between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, but that construction is expected to take another two years.

Board moves meet ahead one week

September's regular monthly meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education has been rescheduled for Tuesday, September 14, at Duff Elementary.

Floyd superintendent Steve Towler said Tuesday that the meeting had been moved up a week from September 21 because of a scheduling conflict for school board members.

Towler also said Tuesday that a special meeting of the board could be called before the September 14 meeting to address the district's school facility plan.

The September 14 meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

Primary foes get dates with court

A decision could be issued next month in a lawsuit filed against Floyd County's Judge-Executive and the county's board of election officers by the Democratic challenger in May's primary election.

Dale McKinney, who challenged Democrat incumbent John M. Stumbo in judge-executive's race, sued Stumbo and the county election officers after the May Primary claiming that voters were bribed and voting machines were tampered with.

McKinney's attorney, C.K. Belhasen of Paintsville, said in a press release Tuesday that special Judge Charles Lowe of Pikeville is expected to rule on the case next month.

"The trial will be conducted in Floyd County, with the witnesses' testimony to be recorded (on) videotape," Belhasen said in the press release. "Judge Lowe will then review the tape and render a decision sometime next month."

Tuesday's announcement came after a status conference on the case last Friday in Pikeville, Belhasen said. Judge Lowe reportedly ordered that McKinney begin taking proof in the case within the next 20 days and Stumbo will have 15 days thereafter to respond. McKinney will then have three days to rebut Stumbo's evidence.

In his lawsuit filed in June, McKinney alleged that Stumbo had organized a "slate" of candidates for the election who pooled their money and used those funds to bribe voters on election day.

McKinney also claimed that several employees, close family mem-

Pest mess at Betsy Layne gets fast fix

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A health hazard at Betsy Layne Elementary caused by numerous fly larvae located on a walking path used by students apparently has been corrected.

Betsy Layne principal Fonzo Akers said Tuesday that several parents became concerned Tuesday morning after they noticed fly larvae around two garbage dumpsters located next to the lunchroom building and near the primary mobile classrooms.

"It was a mess," Akers said. "Two or three parents were upset about it and I guess I don't blame them. The dumpsters were full and they (solid waste workers) came and emptied them. The dumpsters will be moved across the parking lot."

"Woman to woman 1993"—Teleconference on breast cancer

Woman to Woman 1993 is a teleconference about breast cancer for women all across Kentucky. It will be broadcast on September 25, 1993, from the Perkins Building at Eastern Kentucky University (EKU) in Richmond to sites in Ashland, Columbia, Corbin, Fort Knox, Glasgow, Highland Heights, Louisville, Madisonville, Owensboro, Paducah, Paris, and Prestonsburg via KET's Star Channel. Call 1-800-4-CANCER, the Cancer Information Service, for details on the program and the location closest to you. Please register by September 10.

The theme of Woman to Woman

1993 is Breast Cancer: Whose problem is it? What can we do? The special guest speaker will be Cathy Masamitsu from ABC's "Home Show." She will talk about her personal experience with breast cancer. Other speakers will include: Dr. Harold Freeman, surgeon, Harlem Hospital, New York, and past president of the American Cancer Society; Dr. Elizabeth Amin, radiologist, James Graham Brown Cancer Center; and Dr. John Cronin, medical oncologist, Lexington Clinic. Luncheons, fashion shows, panel discussions and workshops will follow this morning program at EKV and at most of the other sites.

This will be the fifth Woman to Woman conference held in Kentucky since 1986. Conference chair Arlayne Francis and other members of The Thursday Group, a breast cancer support group in Central Kentucky, began planning and organizing the event more than a year ago, with help from the Kentucky Cancer Program, American Cancer Society and Kentucky Department for Health Services. The planners decided to regionalize this year's conference in order to make it available to rural women and to those who would be reluctant to travel to the Lexington area. A true Woman to Woman bond will still be created, however, since every participant will be seeing the same morning program, whether in Ashland or Paducah, thanks to the Star Channel teleconferencing technology. The regional meetings will be small enough to maintain the warm personal nature of the original conferences, a climate which was threatened by the growing popularity of the event. In 1988, co-founders Rosemary Graves and Doris Rosenbaum joked that they might have to rent Rupp Arena for the next Woman to Woman.

Any location that has access to KET's star channel can receive the Woman to Woman program. The signal, which can be picked up throughout the United States by anyone with a good Ku dish, will be on Spacenet 2 transponder 23 upper. The video frequency is 12080 megahertz; audio subcarrier frequency 6.8 megahertz.

EKU program helps Appalachian students succeed in allied health fields

Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, has received a $335,550 federal grant to attract disadvantaged students from Floyd and 48 other Eastern Kentucky counties to its allied health programs and prepare them for productive careers in a region beset by acute health care shortages.

The Health Careers Opportunity Program (HCOP), funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration, Division of Disadvantaged Assistance, will enable Eastern to recruit 30 eligible, disadvantaged Appalachian students into allied health disciplines for each of the three years of the project.

Students have the choice of four baccalaureate degree programs, Environmental Health, Health Information, Clinical Laboratory Science and Occupational Therapy, as well as three associate degree programs, Medical Assistant, Clinical Lab Technician and Health Information Technician.

"This is not a program to build enrollment," Daugherty said. "It's a program to extend a helping hand in preparing students in the sciences, mathematics and study skills," said Dr. Patsy Daugherty, project director. "We'll consider high school seniors, as well as non-traditional students.

"Our hope is that they will return to the Appalachian area to help provide health care," Daugherty added, noting that 34 Kentucky counties are "medically underserved" by federal definition.

EKU/HCOP will assist disadvantaged students by providing:

 financial aid information and assistance.

 a summer enrichment program of learning activities, including field trips to clinical sites.

 supplemental instruction in "at-risk" courses such as chemistry, mathematics and biology.

 intense advising/mentoring.

Prior to their first semester in HCOP, students will receive a stipend to participate in a six-week, non-credit summer enrichment course designed to acclimate them to campus life and lay the groundwork for the academic work that awaits them.

"One of the good things about the program is that we won't just turn them loose after the summer program," Daugherty said. "We have part-time instructors and teaching assistants lined up who will actually attend the classes that HCOP students are taking and give these students extra instruction.

Information sessions on the new program will be held later this school year in high schools around the affected 49-county area. Students selected for the program must have a high level of motivation toward a career in one of the allied health professions, as evidenced by interview, high school references, and/or a written autobiography. Their academic record must also be predictive of success in an allied health major.

For more information about the program, high school students should see their guidance counselor. High school graduates may call Daugherty at (606) 622-3576.

Eastern Kentucky University is a comprehensive university serving about 16,500 students on its 560-acre Richmond campus, throughout its 22-county service region, and beyond. EKV's College of Allied Health and Nursing produces more professionals at the undergraduate level than any other such program in the state.

bers and "others associated with Stumbo's campaign" were installed as election officers who presided over the election in many precincts. Their presence at the polls "intimidated voters and prevented a free choice of candidates," McKinney charged.

Also during the May primary election, several voting machines malfunctioned and, in some cases, paper ballots had to be used. McKinney claimed that the machines had been sabotaged.

McKinney contended that he should be declared the winner of the May primary election.

Representatives from state Attorney General Chris Gorman's office inspected the machines and determined the age of the machines, not sabotage, caused the malfunctions.

Judge-Executive Stumbo said in June that McKinney's lawsuit read like "a David Koresh sermon" and it was a "desperate act by a desperate man."

Pest mess

Russ Wallace, a field inspector for the Floyd County Health Department, went to the school Tuesday to investigate the complaint.

"In my opinion, it was a health hazard," Wallace said. "There were too many maggots literally crawling all over the place. Mr. Akers was very obliging and the problem is in the process of being corrected. The dumpsters were emptied and disinfected. I'll be making a follow-up inspection next week."

Wallace said that he felt the situation was a health hazard because the live larvae were located on a path that children walked back and forth across and the children could be exposed to diseases that adult flies can transmit.

Ned Bush, safety coordinator for the Floyd County school system, said Tuesday that he felt adult flies were more of a health hazard than fly larvae.

"It's not a good situation and it's probably already been corrected," Bush said. "I know it will be by tomorrow, if I have to do it myself."

Akers said that the dumpsters at the school are emptied on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

No strings attached

by Scott Perry

It doesn't matter if it's legally okay to send elementary students out to hawk novelties to raise school funds.

It's still wrong.

It doesn't matter that these youngsters can win "valuable prizes" for their salesmanship.

It's still wrong.

When the state Supreme Court ruled that every child in Kentucky should have an equal opportunity at a quality education, the Justices said nothing about kindergarten students selling candy to pay for it.

When the state legislature enacted the largest tax increase in history to underwrite education reform, they didn't include a requirement that first-graders peddle wrapping paper to help out.

When the Kentucky Education Reform Act put an emphasis on parent-child cooperation as a key element for learning, the law made no reference to establishing home shopping networks.

This week a letter went out to parents of Prestonsburg Elementary students promoting the school's "Fall Fundraiser."

A note from the principal went out later noting the funds raised would go toward the purchase of televisions, VCRs, tables and chairs.

So this week bands of little salespeople, some who have not yet learned to tie their shoes, will be out peddling their goodies so their school can have all the quality education their little hands can scrape up.

We should all be proud.

Maybe after the funds are raised and all the nice new equipment is purchased, we can quit sending our kids home with sales order books and give them something that will truly be rewarding...

An education with no strings attached.

"OF COURSE MY DISGUST WITH CLINTON'S TAX PLAN IS RETROACTIVE TO JANUARY 1ST AS WELL."

Outraged at school board

Editor:

I, as a parent of Betsy Layne Grade School students, am very, very outraged at what the school board has the nerve to try and pull.

I can't believe that they have the interests of our students at heart when they are trying so hard to cancel our new school, which we so badly need as soon as possible. Not eight years from now!

Are we, as parents, going to back down and get knocked back to the bottom of the school list again for a new school? Then, we will have to fight for how many more years before we get another chance? When, when I ask, can Betsy Layne parents get some peace knowing their kids are in a warm building changing classes, or going to the restroom and not outside from trailer to trailer in the rain and snow?

When will our parents get some peace of mind with the school board members we elected? And the election is coming up soon. And the contractors will start and hopefully finish our school some day. I hope everyone who reads this will call your board members and express your opinion. Nicely, please.

Help us with this fight for our children and their safety, please. Betsy Layne P.T.O. would like to thank all the parents for their support and ask you please, if you're not involved yet, help us for your children, grandchildren, family's sake. Get involved and stay involved. Do it for our future and our kids today.

Proof of insurance

Editor:

I read your story about the great fire at the city of Allen, April 24, 1924, which burned up most of the town.

There was one little incident that happened that day I'd like to tell you about. I lived at Martin and my father Ernest Boyd worked for the C and O railroad yard at that time. A Regular Baptist preacher, Alex Allen (who resided in Allen), had his wife in the old Beaver Valley Hospital in Martin. She was real sick. They ran big malley engines with water in them from Martin to try to put out the fire. My father and preacher Allen and others climbed on top of a box car going to Allen. Preacher Allen was down on his knees praying. A man said, "Preacher, where is your insurance?"

Preacher took from under his arm his Bible (which he often carried) and quoted him a scripture and said "That is where my insurance is!" Every house around preacher Allen's home burned, but his was left standing.

Two or three days later Mrs. Allen passed away. When she died, he brought her body back to their little home. You would have had to see this house to believe it. Nothing but the great power above could have saved that house. Brother Allen had the kind of insurance we all need. I am 85 years old and I'm sure there are others my age who still remember.

Indecent proposal?

Editor:

I recently read about a national organization called Good Tidings and its many spin-off support groups for women and priests who fall in love. Falling in love is normal and priests are not exempt from this healthy, affectionate experience, but I disagree with the reasoning and the goals of these groups.

The report stated that one of their primary goals is to give the priests an ultimatum, to either leave the priesthood and get married or give up the relationship. This is an indecent proposal and a cruel, sinister attack on the priesthood, with women being used as bait. I also see selfishness,

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

The Guv has set his sights on downsizing state government to stave off the red ink, directing his attention first to the state's payroll which is top-heavy by about 2,500 people.

Cutting those jobs from the payroll will save an estimated $63 million a year, state bean counters claim, and bring employee numbers in line with the law.

It seems that back in 1982, a law was enacted which capped state employment at 33,000 but since then budget-makers have been able to "waive" the ceiling.

Come again?

How do you waive a law and can the rest of us get in on the act?

We've all been taught that ignorance of the law is no excuse, but it would appear that ignoring the law is okay when a particular statute doesn't fit in with day-to-day plans.

In Kentucky, it seems that rules are made to be broken...literally.

It's really hard to imagine that the state will really save anything by slicing its workforce.

Most agencies...at least the important ones...are already understaffed and unable to provide the quality service taxpayers deserve.

We noted sometime back that social workers who provide help to the poor are so short-handed that they can no longer guarantee that needy children will be protected from harm.

State police numbers are down, too, which means none of us are guaranteed protection under the law.

Still, there are plenty of bums and political hacks drawing checks every month from the taxpayers' pocketbooks and they need to be exorcised from the system.

The sooner the better.

We don't mean to sound chauvinistic, but this deal with women who choose to keep their birth names (we didn't say maiden names) after they marry as a statement against male-domination is just a tad bit goofy.

If women don't want to take their husband's last name when they're wed that's just fine, but it's hard to figure how they find any liberation by maintaining their birth names.

Those came from their fathers, didn't they?

Head ache?

Eyes itchy and watery?

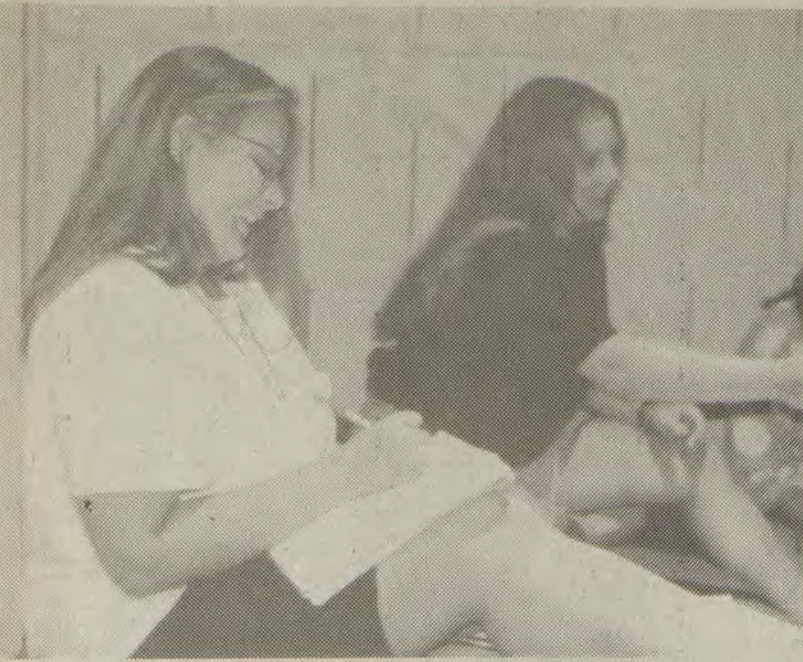

Having trouble breathing?

The medical folks tells us those are sure signs the fall allergy season is upon us.

Of course, they haven't decided yet whether we're allergic to ragweed or all those politicians scurrying around for votes, but it's probably no coincidence that our heads begin to clear up just after the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November when the frost is on the pumpkin and the campaigners settle in for a long winter's sleep.

Then in the spring everything old is new again...

Achoo!

Low-tar smoke, no help in fighting lung cancer

Contrary to what many people may believe, the brand of cigarettes that smokers choose has little or nothing to do with their true exposure to tar and nicotine.

According to a new study published by the American Lung Association, researchers who analyzed saliva and breath samples from 300 smokers found that subjects who smoked low-yield brands had carbon monoxide (CO) and cotinine levels that were barely distinguishable from smokers who used high-yield brands. Cotinine is a byproduct of nicotine.

According to a new study published by the American Lung Association, researchers who analyzed saliva and breath samples from 300 smokers found that subjects who smoked low-yield brands had carbon monoxide (CO) and cotinine levels that were barely distinguishable from smokers who used high-yield brands. Cotinine is a byproduct of nicotine.

These findings raise serious questions about the relevance of tar and nicotine data published by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). These data are often cited in tobacco advertisements implying that there are health benefits associated with low-tar and —nicotine cigarettes. A recent Gallup survey, conducted for the American Lung Association, the American Heart Association, and the American Cancer Society, showed that most Americans interpret these ads to mean that low-yield brands are safer, less addictive, and healthier.

"This study confirms that there's no such thing as a safer type of cigarette," said Lung Association President Dr. Alfred Munzer. "Ads touting low tar and nicotine yields are deceptive and ought to be banned."

"If you're trying to predict the ultimate exposure that people get from cigarette smoking, I'd say that the FTC data aren't at all useful," says Dr. David Coultas, lead author of the study which was published in the August American Review of Respiratory Disease.

"FTC data are obtained by smok-

New faces, new friends

Approximately 260 new students visited Alice Lloyd College during orientation July 23-24. Those attending from Floyd County were Chris Murrell, Christina West, Kenneth Scarberry, Leah Laferty, Shnae Anderson, Patrick Dameron, Terry Triplett, Myra Patton, Christopher Tackett, Stacie Moore, Cephas Slone, Chris Lafferty, David Baker, Georgia Huff, Christopher Bailey, Kevin Conley, Rachel Childers, and Michael Goodman.

EKU program helps Appalachian students succeed in allied health fields

Eastern Kentucky University has received a $335,550 federal grant to attract disadvantaged students from Floyd county and 48 other Eastern Kentucky counties to its allied health programs and prepare them for productive careers in a region beset by acute health care shortages.

The Health Careers Opportunity Program (HCOP), funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration, Division of Disadvantaged Assistance, will enable Eastern to recruit 30 eligible, disadvantaged Appalachian students into allied health disciplines for each of the three years of the project.

Students have the choice of four baccalaureate degree programs, Environmental Health, Health Information, Clinical Laboratory Science and Occupational Therapy, as well as three associate degree programs, Medical Assistant, Clinical Lab Technician and Health Information Technician.

"This is not a program to build enrollment," Daugherty said. "It's a program to extend a helping hand in preparing students in the sciences, mathematics and study skills," said Dr. Patsy Daugherty, project director. "We'll consider high school seniors, as well as non-traditional students.

"Our hope is that they will return to the Appalachian area to help provide health care," Daugherty added, noting that 34 Kentucky counties are "medically underserved" by federal definition.

EKU/HCOP will assist disadvantaged students by providing:

- financial aid information and assistance.
- a summer enrichment program of learning activities, including field trips to clinical sites.
- supplemental instruction in "at-risk" courses such as chemistry, mathematics and biology.
- intense advising/mentoring.

Prior to their first semester in HCOP, students will receive a stipend to participate in a six-week, non-credit summer enrichment course designed to acclimate them to campus life and lay the groundwork for the academic work that awaits them.

"One of the good things about the program is that we won't just turn them loose after the summer program," Daugherty said. "We have part-time instructors and teaching assistants lined up who will actually attend the classes that HCOP students are taking and give these students extra instruction.

"We have had a number of students who take longer than average to get through our programs, and often the problem is the introductory science and math courses," Daugherty said. "The supplemental instruction addresses that."

Because of the special assistance, Daugherty expects students to advance through the allied health curriculum at an 80 percent retention rate, higher than the national average.

Information sessions on the new program will be held later this school year in high schools around the affected 49-county area. Students selected for the program must have a high level of motivation toward a career in one of the allied health professions, as evidenced by interview, high school references, and/or a written autobiography. Their academic record must also be predictive of success in an allied health major.

For more information about the program, high school students should see their guidance counselor. High school graduates may call Daugherty at (606) 622-3576.

EKU open house is September 23 in Prestonsburg

Prospective college students and their parents will have a chance to learn more about college life at Eastern Kentucky University on Thursday, September 23 during EKU's Open House in Prestonsburg.

The event, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, will give students and their parents an opportunity to talk to academic representatives and persons from EKU's admissions and financial aid offices.

"We've found that this kind of personal contact is a tremendous help to students who are trying to finalize their college plans," said Les Grigsby, director of admissions, adding that EKU representatives would discuss the University's 160 degree options and numerous financial aid opportunities.

"And we can also discuss what life is like on the campus—what goes into the EKU experience," Grigsby said.

Students and parents from Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Johnson and Martin counties are urged to attend.

Grigsby added that many prospective students and their parents are surprised to learn that about 70 percent of EKU students receive some type of financial aid. The average annual award is about $2,600.

For more information about EKU's Open House in Prestonsburg, contact EKU's Division of Admissions at (606) 622-2106.

PCC fund drive announced

State budget cuts have taken their toll in the last few years, so Prestonsburg Community College is launching its own local fund raising campaign with full support of University of Kentucky officials.

UK President Dr. Charles Wethington and Dr. Ben Carr, chancellor of the UK Community College System, joined members of PCC's Advisory Board on August 26 in endorsing the plan to raise seed money between September 1 of this year and August 1994 for four projects.

The projects are a Regional Center for Health Education and Wellness at the Prestonsburg campus; a Regional Classroom and Technology Center, replacing the present Pike County Campus; Rural Technology Resource and Telecommunications Centers in Prestonsburg and Pike County; and a general endowment fund.

Wethington indicated he supports the college's leadership and the four projects.

"Certainly, I will be supportive," Wethington said. "I believe Prestonsburg Community College is primed to go on and take the next step."

He particularly praised the plan's reliance on community volunteers to head the fund-raising effort. "I don't have any question about (the campaign's) success," he said. "The broad-based, volunteer-driven approach is a process that works."

The university president also praised the college's planning process, which included seeking input from students, faculty, advisory board members and community leaders.

"Ditto," was Carr's response. "I have no doubts that we'll be successful in this effort." The head of the community college system pointed out that all 14 of the two-year colleges are engaged in fund raising campaigns, a cooperative effort called "Partners in Progress."

PCC is among the first to get a campaign underway. The local theme is "Reaching for the Stars" and is termed the "STAR Project."

PCC President Dr. Deborah Floyd presented the projects to the board and university officials and indicated the planning process began in 1991.

Development director Page Estes outlined the campaign to the audience. She said the key to its success is getting volunteers involved in soliciting donations. The volunteers, she said, will come from the college staff and from community leaders in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, the college's five-county service area.

The college will soon begin to accept volunteers to serve on campaign committees, said President Floyd, who reported to the advisory board on the college's progress in fund-raising and on fall enrollment which appears to be up.

Earlier in the day, Floyd led the UK officials on tours of the college's main campus in Prestonsburg and its Pike County Campus in Pikeville.

Wethington told the group at the evening meeting that he was "impressed with what the college looks like," referring to the Prestonsburg campus. "It looks as if you're proud of what you've got."

The college's two small buildings in Pikeville, however, led him to conclude that "a facility in Pike County is desperately needed."

Chancellor Carr warned that the changes taking place in the community college system, particularly at PCC, will be "stressful," but he advised, "You should become students of change, proponents of change and don't be afraid of change."

The advisory board's next meeting is set for November 4 at 7:30 p.m. in Prestonsburg.

Board members in attendance at the August 26 meeting were Chairman H.D. Fitzpatrick Jr. of Prestonsburg, O.T. Dorton and Robert Conley of Paintsville, Jean Hale of Pikeville, John R. Triplett of Warfield, Chalmer Frazier of Prestonsburg, faculty representative John D. Sammons and student Rachel Ousley.

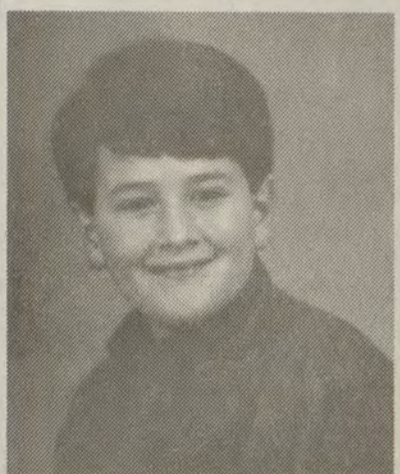

Representing the Pike County College Educational Foundation Board were Thelmer McClanahan of Pikeville and former PCC President Dr. Henry Campbell.

Attending from the Big Sandy College Educational Foundation Inc. were Raymond Bradbury, Frank Fitzpatrick, William G. Francis, Will Kendrick, Burl Wells Spurlock, Dr. Rodney Handshoe, all of Prestonsburg; Drs. Chandra and Mahendra Varia of Martin, and Tim Weddington of Salyersville.

Law school student

Tammy S. Meade, of Printer, has been accepted for admission to the Salmon P. Chase College of Law for the Fall 1993 entering class. She is a 1988 graduate of McDowell High School. In 1992, she graduated cum laude from Morehead State University receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree in history. During the past year, she was employed by the Rowan County Board of Education while pursuing a master of arts degree. While attending Morehead State University, she was a member of Phi Alpha Delta and Pi Gamma Mu. She is the daughter of Dollie Meade and the late Walter Meade of Printer.

Ninth birthday

He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Westfall Sr. of Ivel and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ratliff of Allen. He is the great-grandson of Mag Steele of Allen and Larkie Stephens of Pikeville.

Prizes, awards to highlight annual car show at Martin

by Ed Taylor
 Sports Editor

New ideas will be incorporated into this year's First Guaranty National Bank's Red, White and Blue Car Show.

A grand prize of a $1,000 savings bond will be awarded to the Best of Show this year and that is just a tip of what car enthusiasts can take home at this year's event to be held in Martin October 16 at the bank's parking lot.

"We're busy getting things together," said show director Tina Mills. "We're looking to having a big show and a better one this year."

Mills said that while the Kentucky Opry will not be on hand, there will be entertainment for the crowd. Reels on Wheels DJ Bruce Higgins from Louisville will be on hand to provide music from the '50s and '60s, as well as the latest hits of today.

"I heard him at a wedding reception," said Mills, "and he is really good."

There will be something for the kids this year, also. "Barney" will be in attendance and the kids (and adults) can have their picture taken with Barney, receive some candy as well as a free coupon for ice cream at the Dairy Queen, all for only $5.

Also for the youngsters and adults, a model car show will highlight the evening. The contest is open to everyone and there will be a $1 entry fee. The winner of the model car show will receive a $50 savings bond as well as a trophy.

Those who remember the days of the "hoola hoop" can relive those days by entering the "Hoola Hoop" contest for all ages. A $50 savings bond and a trophy will be awarded to the individual who can keep the hoop going. Just $1 to enter.

A face painting booth will be set up for those who want a change in how they look. Chances will be sold at the show for a drawing on four directional (another name for fancy) wheels and tires, or the winner can take home cash instead.

Mills said all trophies will be awarded after the parade and a picture of the winning car will be placed on next year's sweatshirts.

"People are always asking 'who won,'" said Mills. "This year we will have a place for the winner to drive his car and they can see who won. Then we will put the winner on the front of next year's sweatshirts."

Clogger, line dancers and other events are planned for one of Eastern Kentucky's largest car shows. There will be fun in store for everyone and the show promises to be the best yet.

If you are a car show nut like most of us, you want to mark October 16 on your calendar and be in Martin for the event of the year.

Blackcats' Ratliff could miss Whitesburg game, maybe more

by Ed Taylor
 Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Blackcats faced the South Floyd Raiders this past Friday night minus their starting quarterback Thomas Ratliff. Ratliff was diagnosed as being a diabetic and was hospitalized after doctors discovered his sugar level reached 948.

The diabetes was diagnosed when Ratliff had four wisdom teeth cut out last Monday, according to his mother Joyce Ratliff.

"He just kept getting worse and worse," she said, "and we took him to the doctor."

Ratliff is home now and "doing good," his mother said. "He went back to school but I've worried about him," she stated. "He is doing good but seems to be depressed about it."

Doctors said that Ratliff can lead a normal life with the medical problem, but that he will be limited as to what he can do.

"The doctors said that he could still play football," his mother said. "He will have to take some classes with a dietician and learn some things about it. He needs to learn when he gets weak that he needs to eat something."

Exercise is the best thing for those who have diabetes, said Mrs. Ratliff.

"The doctors said that if he just sits down it would get worse."

The biggest thing for Ratliff is to know what he can and cannot do.

"Coach (Bill) Letton has been super about it," she said. "He came down and visited Thomas three times in the hospital and said that he wanted to know more about diabetes and took home a kit with him."

Letton said that it was a day-today situation with Ratliff and he is waiting to talk with the doctors.

"We'll sit down and talk with the doctors about Thomas," said Letton. "I think he will be back in the lineup. We'll let them tell us when he will be ready."

Coach Letton said that Ratliff had picked up 10-12 pounds of the weight he had lost.

"He thinks his athletic career is over," said his mother. "He just needs to rest awhile."

Ratliff's mother said that they had thought at first the reason he was tired was because of the loss of potassium.

"I thought with practicing two times each day that was what was wrong with him," she said. "But we had to learn the long, hard way."

"With his teeth bothering him, they thought it would be best to have them taken out before the team was to play a crucial game."

Ratliff is a gifted athlete who loves the game of football. Ratliff was impressive in his first game when he guided the Blackcats to a 43-0 win over powerful Clay County on the road.

If there is anyone who can come back, it will be Thomas Ratliff. This year, he will be behind center calling out the cadence for the Blackcats. Until then, Coach Letton said that the team will continue to use Keith Marsillett at quarterback.

TO THE FAMILIES OF PRESTONSBURG:

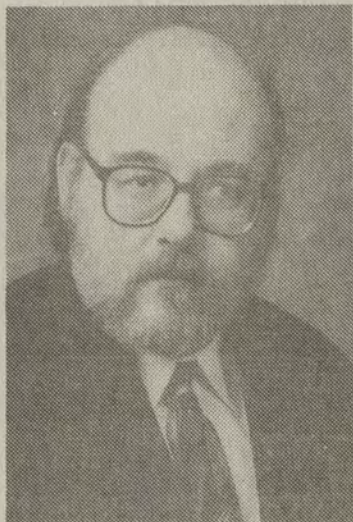

As the November election rapidly approaches, I have had an opportunity to talk with many people in Prestonsburg about their concerns for the future of our town. Several topics have been brought to my attention, and I hope to address all of them before the election.

One of the main issues seems to be, "What can be done to help the downtown section of Prestonsburg flourish?" I would like to mention some ideas I have regarding this section of town.

1. To attract business to our downtown area, I will propose the removal of the remaining parking meters. Little income is derived from this source (less than $250.00 in an average month). The good will created between the city, business community and patrons will more than make up for the loss of this income.
2. Aggressive steps will be taken to secure an adequate storm drainage system for the city. During heavy downpours, many streets become impassible, and damage occurs to many homes and businesses. This must be corrected and can only be done with help and funding from Washington. This is also true for several public works projects our hometown could use.
3. For BOTH the city's and county's sake, Prestonsburg needs to remain the county seat and everything needed to keep the courthouse "Government Center" in Prestonsburg MUST be done. The area known as "downtown" has evolved into a service oriented professional center augmented with specialty shops and restaurants. The addition of the center to this downtown WILL stimulate new growth and give the WHOLE area a needed shot in the arm.

I believe all three of these points are important and relevant to our town, and if elected I will make sure that these projects are addressed to make our town a better place for us to live and raise our children in.

Sincerely,
George P. Archer

Morris leads junior varsity Blackcats past South Floyd

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Jon Morris rambled for 137 yards on 13 carries to lead the Prestonsburg junior varsity Blackcats to a 24-6 win over the South Floyd junior Raiders Monday evening at Wheelwright's Brackett Field.

Morris scored two touchdowns and ran two conversions plays also. Jason Pack had an interception and returned the football 16 yards for a TD.

An off-sides call on the junior Raiders led to the first score for Prestonsburg. The Blackcats were faced with a fourth and two situation when a long cadence count by quarterback Mike Castle drew the Raiders off-side and gave Prestonsburg a first down.

Actually, it was two breaks for Prestonsburg that set the 15-yard touchdown run by Morris. Prestonsburg had fumbled the football but did recover it on the 20-yard line.

Morris ran the two-point conversion to give Prestonsburg the 8-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Prestonsburg looked as if they were on the board again when Morris ran into the end zone from 27 yards out. But the touchdown was nullified on an off-side call against the Blackcats.

Morris scored again on a 4-yard run but once again a personal foul against Prestonsburg brought the football back. South Floyd held the Blackcats on a fourth down play and took over the ball on their own 13.

Deep in their own territory, Raider quarterback Scotty Johnson was forced to put the ball in the air. Jason Pack picked off a Johnson pass on a fourth and 11 play and returned the ball 16 yards for the touchdown. Morris scored the conversion and Prestonsburg led 16-0.

Early in the third period Prestonsburg made it a 24-0 game when Morris hit pay dirt on a 43-yard scamper. He added the two extra points.

The Raiders avoided being shut-out when Johnson connected with Brian Triplett with a 21-yard pass to make it 24-6.

Eric Moore carried the football eight times for South Floyd and rushed for 42 yards. South Floyd lost the football twice on interceptions and once on a fumble. Prestonsburg fumbled the ball four times, losing it three times.

All-State team

Ashley Nicole Tackett, daughter of Paul and Anita Tackett of Teaberry, was chosen as a member of the Kentucky AAU 14 and under All-State team. Only 12 players from the state are chosen for these honors. Tackett averaged over 14 points a game and pulled down eight rebounds per contest.

Floyd County declines in infant mortality rate

Floyd County's 1992 infant mortality rate fell from 1991's 4.9 deaths per 1,000 live births to 3.0 deaths, well below the state's average of 8.3.

Floyd County mothers gave birth to 663 babies in 1992, and only two infant deaths were recorded, according to statistics released by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Fifty-six counties in Kentucky recorded a decline in infant mortality rates. The infant mortality rate is the number of babies per 1,000 live births who die before their first birthday. It is considered a major indicator of a society's overall health status.

Kentucky's infant mortality rate has fallen steadily since 1960 when the rate was 27.8.

In 1992, Kentuckians gave birth to 53,655 infants of whom 444 died. These numbers compare to 53,703 births and 472 infant deaths in 1991

Gynecologic Oncologist joins Highlands staff

Paul D. DePriest M.D., Gynecologic Oncologist has joined the medical staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center. Dr. DePriest is Board Certified in Obstetrics and Gynecology with a subspecialty in Gynecologic Oncology.

Gynecological cancer has often been called a "silent cancer," showing no obvious signs or symptoms until late in the development stages. Early detection and treatment are the best weapons against this deadly disease.

Dr. DePriest is an assistant professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Kentucky. He will see patients in the medical offices at Highlands through the Outreach Clinic Program. Patients will be seen by physician referral.

Dr. DePriest was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana. He received his Bachelor's Degree from Eastern Kentucky University. He received his Medical Degree from the University of Kentucky College of Medicine. the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

He is a member of the Kentucky Medical Association and is also on staff at Central Baptist Hospital, Humana Hospital and Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington.

Having a Gynecologic Oncologist on staff at Highlands means that patients with gynecological cancer will be able to receive treatment, including chemotherapy or specialized surgery if needed, without having to travel to Lexington which can often be very uncomfortable for these patients.

when the infant mortality rate was 8.8.

The continuing decline in the number of infant deaths is due to a cooperative effort between public and private medical professions, said Dr. Patricia Nicol, director of the Department for Health Services' Maternal and Child Health Division.

"The impact on infant mortality — either positive or negative — comes from a variety of sources," she said. "To find reasons for the decrease in the rate, we can look to the public prenatal and well-child care provided by health departments in every Kentucky county."

"We can look to the hundreds of private physicians who have worked with their patients to bring about a decline in the rate. And we can look to the improving medical care of critically ill newborns, especially at hospitals in Louisville and Lexington."

Nicol said that with Medicaid coverage for pregnant women plus the availability of prenatal care for low-income women at health departments, there are no longer financial barriers to early and adequate prenatal care, the most important factor in having a healthy baby.

However, a figure disturbing to state officials is the number of women who do not get early prenatal care or get none at all. Of mothers whose babies died, 36 percent of them received prenatal care after the first trimester or received no care at all.

Early and adequate prenatal care can help prevent low birth-weight and premature births, Nicol said. Prematurity is the leading cause of infant death — causing 26 percent of the 1992 deaths.

Of babies who died in 1992, 52 percent of them were low birth-weight.

Births to teens were also down as was the infant mortality rate among infants born to teen mothers. In 1992, 8,891 babies were born to teens; 96 of these infants died, producing a 10.8 infant mortality rate. In 1991, the comparable figures were 9,380 live births, 116 deaths and a 12.4 rate.

The 1992 infant mortality rate for the Big Sandy Development District was 7.9.

Remember When...

REMEMBER SEPTEMBER 1973

Church bomb kills four children
September 15 was the annual Youth Day at Sixteenth Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama. Four anxious girls, dressed in their Sunday best, met in the church basement to discuss the service they would help run later that morning. The service never took place. Before Sunday School ended, a bomb planted in the basement ripped through the church killing all four youngsters and injuring several others in the predominantly black church. Racial tensions were already high in Birmingham that September because of ongoing arguments over school integration. Governor George Wallace had denounced federal intervention in state affairs and used National Guard troops to block the entrance of Birmingham's elementary schools. It was the adults who debated and traded threats. On this day in September 1963, it was the children who paid with their lives.

NEWSMAKER OF THE MONTH

With a presidential election the next year, the Republicans were looking for someone to lead the GOP against incumbent John F. Kennedy. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, William Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan were all mentioned as possibilities by party officials. Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, however, seemed to generate the most enthusiasm among the rank and file. A September rally in Los Angeles brought 40,000 Goldwater fans to Dodger stadium.

MOM'S EXHAUSTED, DAD PASSED OUT.

The odds are 54 million to one, but it happened twice in one week in September 1963, once in South America and once in South Dakota. Quints! The Prietos of Venezuela and the Fischers of South Dakota had their own private population explosions as both families welcomed a set of quintuplets. Both mothers and all ten babies were healthy. Mrs. Fischer found out the big news by x-ray just three days before delivery.

OVERPAID ATHLETES?

Willie Mays and Arnold Palmer became the highest paid athletes in their respective sports. The San Francisco Giants paid Mays $105,000 per year, while Palmer became the first professional golfer to win more than $100,000 in a year. Other athletes supplemented their incomes by endorsing products. Who better to pitch $5.95 Manhatten shirts than ace pitcher Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers?

NEW ON TELEVISION

The new season brought a variety of programs to the nation's television viewers. The success of "The Beverly Hillbillies" inspired another entry in the rural comedy category. Hooterville was the setting for "Petticoat Junction," the story of widow Kate Bradley and her three beautiful daughters, Billie Jo, Bobbi Jo, and Betty Jo. If that wasn't enough Joes, add Uncle Joe ("he's amoving kind of slow") who helped the ladies run the Shady Rest Hotel. At the other end of the sophistication scale, Gene Barry starred as Amos Burke, millionaire police detective, in "Burke's Law." When called out on a case, Burke usually had to leave behind a disappointed beauty while he traveled to the scene in his chauffeur-driven limousine. Ray Walston played a stranded Martian in "My Favorite Martian." Only his rescuer Tim O'Hara (Bill Bixby) knew Uncle Martin's secret. Another man with a secret was Richard Kimble, "The Fugitive." David Janssen starred as a doctor wrongly convicted of murdering his wife. While on his way to prison, an accident allowed him to escape. For several years the fugitive searched for the real killer, the One-Armed Man, while a relentless Lt. Gerard searched for the fugitive.

New Adult Readers

My name is Rosie Hall. I grew up in Honaker. I went to school at Harold to the sixth grade. I remember my first school dress. It was made out of old feed sacks. It was blue with white flowers. My daddy was a coal miner.

There were seven kids and my mam and uncle made mining timber to help raise us kids. So I had to quit school to take care of the baby one. My mommy said I was like a mother to him.

I was fifteen when I got married. I have four kids now.

Now I go back to school at Big Mud Creek so I can get an education that I need. Without a GED I can't get a job. I want my kids to go get the education that they need.

So talk to your kids about school. Tell them to go on through school so when they get out they can find a job.

I think parents should help their kids while they're in school. If they can't help, find someone who will help them. While your kids are in school you can go to school and get your GED. I'm 36 years old and I've been out of school since I was 16 years old.

How would you feel if your child asked you a word that you didn't know?

Editor's Note: Rosie Hall is a student of the Mud Creek Literacy Class.

Davey Crockett searches for a wife

Davey Crockett is one of America's most famous folk heroes. From a humble beginning he went on to become a United States Congressman who received consideration as a presidential candidate before dying at the Alamo.

His father, John Crockett, owned a tavern in an area known as Mossy Creek. It was located about ten or twelve miles north of Dandridge, on the early road from Knoxville to Washington, near presentday Jefferson City, Tennessee.

In the late 1790's, the senior Crockett hired out his 12-year-old son to Jacob Siler, a man he had met the preceding day. He assisted Siler in herding cattle to Rockbridge County, Virginia, a distance of four hundred miles. Siler attempted to keep Davey in his employ by force after their return. Young Davey stole away in the night and hitched a ride to his father's home with a band of travelers.

Afterwards the youthful Davey Crockett bound himself to debtors of his father on several occasions to liquidate his debts. He worked six months to pay a thirty-six dollar note to Abraham Wilson and another six months for John Kennedy, a Quaker, to erase a forty dollar debt.

Davey proved to be a good worker and, following his period of servitude, he presented his father's promissory notes to him. The elder Crockett cried tears of gratitude.

The youthful Crockett, his garb thoroughly tattered following his year of work, then returned to John Kennedy to work in order to acquire money to buy new clothes.

The Quaker's niece came for a visit during his period of servitude and Crockett had his first experience with love.

"I reckon no poor devil in the world was ever cursed with a love such as mine," he wrote years later while serving in the United States Congress. "I found myself head over heels in love with this girl."

The youthful Crockett was struck to the extent that he couldn't talk to her.

"I was afraid to begin a discussion," he said. "My heart would begin to flutter like a duck in a puddle. If I tried to speak, it would get right smack up in my throat, and choke me like a cold potato."

"I finally concluded that I must die if I didn't try to speak till my heart would get out of my throat one way or 't other."

Davey approached her and after several false starts he was able to confide that she was "the darling object of his soul and body."

When she told the youthful Crockett that she was engaged he experienced an acute case of melancholy.

"This news was worse to me than war, pestilence, or famine; but I knew I couldn't help myself. I tried to cool off as fast as possible; but I had hardly safety pipes enough, as my love was so hot as mighty nigh to burst my boilers."

Davey surmised that his loss and headache was due to a lack of schooling. He had attended only four days of school in his entire life and didn't know a single letter of the alphabet. He immediately began a program of self improvement and agreed with Kennedy to work two days each week for his board and four days of schooling. The Quaker had a married son who taught school nearby.

Crockett applied himself diligently for several months before deciding that he could not get along any longer without a wife.

"I found a family of very pretty little girls that I had known when very young," Davey wrote. "I got to loving one of them as bad as I had loved the Quaker's niece. I would have agreed to fight a whole regiment of wild cats if she would only have said she would have me."

When Davey finally asked Margaret Elder for her hand she gave him an evasive answer. He kept pressing her for a positive answer until finally she relented and said she would become Mrs. Davey Crockett. He went to the Dandridge courthouse and got the necessary license.

But when the wedding day arrived, he found that his would-be bride had decided to marry the following day—to someone else.

"This was as sudden to me as a clap of thunder on a bright sunny day," Crockett wrote. "It seemed more to me than I or any human creature could endure. It struck me perfectly speechless for some time and made me feel so weak, that I thought I would sink down."

After this disappointment Davey thought that there was no mate for him.

"I thought that I was born odd," he wrote, remembering his depression. "I thought I would always remain so, and that nobody would have me. I had no peace day or night for several weeks. My appetite failed me and I grew worse and worse every day."

"They all thought I was sick and so I was. But it was the worst kind of sickness—a sickness of the heart which was brought on by disappointed love."

Editor's note: Davey Crockett finds a bride and rushes to the altar in Jadon's From the Mountains next week in the Floyd County Times.

*Jadon Gibson, a graduate of Wheelwright High and Alice Lloyd College, is a free-lance writer from Harrogate, TN. His column, From the Mountains, is a regular feature in the Floyd County Times. His writings are both historical and nostalgic in nature. Don't miss a single column.

Cooperative education

Officials of Prestonsburg Community College and Kentucky Tech plan to work together to provide a personnel training program for RND Design Inc., a California-based company that is scheduled to open a facility this fall in Martin. Meeting recently to discuss the training proposal were, from left, Danny O'Neal, education consultant for Kentucky Tech's northeast region; Robert Campbell, director of continuing education and community service at PCC; PCC President Dr. Deborah Floyd; and Howard Moore, regional executive director of Kentucky Tech.

Pikeville Methodist Hospital receives accreditation

Pikeville Methodist Hospital has achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations as a result of its demonstrated compliance with the Joint Commission's nationally recognized health care standards. The Joint Commission on-site survey of Pikeville Methodist occurred in February.

The mission of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations is to improve the quality of health care provided to the public. The Joint Commission develops standards of quality in collaboration with health professionals and others and stimulates health care organizations to meet or exceed the standards through accreditation and the teaching of quality improvement concepts.

It accredits more than 5,400 hospitals and evaluates and accredits more than 3,200 other healthcare programs. An organization voluntarily undergoes a survey by a full team of Joint Commission experts every three years.

Kentucky Housing Corporation lowers mortgage interest rate

Kentucky Housing Corporation announced recently that effective immediately its current mortgage interest rate for low- to moderate-income first-time homebuyers has been reduced to 6.50 percent, fixed for 30 years.

According to Cheryl Harp, director of Homeownership Programs for Kentucky Housing Corporation, "This rate reduction demonstrates KHC's efforts to provide more families than ever before with the means to enter into homeownership." Because these low-rate funds are limited and on a first-come, first-served basis, Harp recommends that interested potential homebuyers contact a local participating lender soon for more details.

To qualify for this special rate, individuals or families are evaluated by income according to family size. The maximum purchase price of a newly constructed home is $67,000, with an existing home being no more than $64,000. All loans will be FHA or VA insured.

For potential homebuyers having problems accumulating funds for the required downpayment and closing costs, Kentucky Housing Corporation offers a mortgage assistance program called EPIC (Equity Partners Investing in the Commonwealth). Under the EPIC Program, homebuyers can borrow up to 60 percent of their downpayment and closing costs (up to $3,000) at a 3.5 percent interest rate for a term of seven years.

For more information on home loan financing, EPIC or a local participating lender, contact Kentucky Housing Corporation's Homeownership Department at (502) 564-7630, (800) 633-8896 or (800) 247-2510 (for the hearing impaired only).

According to the American Heart Association, 45 percent of all heart attacks occur in people under age 65, and five percent occur in people under age 40.

What's the "beef" about the beef?

If you are considering buying meat in bulk, the Better Business Bureau of Central & Eastern Kentucky, Inc., advises caution in choosing the supplier that will best fit your needs.

"There are many legitimate firms that offer bulk meat, or freezer food plans," explains BBB President/CEO Tracey McLarney. "However, consumers should be familiar with industry terms and practices to protect them from unscrupulous, fly-by-night firms to which they might fall prey."

Carcass beef is normally sold by its "hanging" weight. This weight includes approximately 25% fat and bone. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has developed voluntary grades for quality and yield of carcass beef. Quality grades relate to tenderness and flavor and include, in decreasing order, USDA Prime, Choice, Good, Standard, Commercial, Utility, Cutter and Canner, with Prime being the most flavorful grade.

"Consumers should disregard any other descriptive meat terms other than government grading," warns McLarney. "For example, 'U.S. Fancy,' 'USDA Grade A,' and 'Premium' are not government grades."

The Better Business Bureau further advises consumers to:

- * Understand all costs that are included in the price per pound such as processing and finance charges. Don't be influenced by a "free" bonus offer of pork chops, turkey, chicken, etc. Their cost may be included in the price of what you buy.
- * Arrange to select meat and have it cut on the same day while you are present. Most reliable dealers will allow you to be present when your selection of meat is cut and wrapped.
- * Be cautious of such phrases as "beef bundles," or "steak packages." Make sure the representative specifies in writing the USDA grade, the type and the quantity of the various cuts.

* Read and understand the terms of the contract before signing.

There is approximately 30 acres of bottom and cleared land, the rest being wooded land. There is a 5-room modern house of frame construction, and a 4-bent combination barn and also 2 old log home buildings. There is a tobacco allotment for 1993 of 3,821 lbs. which is reserved for this year. There is approximately 40 acres on the East side of Nickell Road. TRACT #2, 40 acres more or less, unimproved, reserving the right to group and offer as a whole. If you are interested in a farm that has great potential for both farming purposes and/or sub-dividing, we invite your inspection. Make your arrangements and be at the auction. For further information, contact the selling agent.

Take Mt. Parkway to West Liberty Exit, then #191 to Daysboro, turn right to farm. Take HWY #191 to Hazel Green, then East to Daysboro, turn left. Or HWY #203 North from Hazel Green, turn right on Nickell Road, go approximately 3 miles. Auction arrows will be posted.

PROTECTING OUR WILDLIFE

Wetlands Conservation Saves Wildlife

(NAPS)—Making a splash with many Americans concerned about saving wildlife—as well as our health and our economy—is a plan to preserve our wetlands.

Wetlands—marshes and swamps—are the single most productive source of life on earth, ecologists agree. Perhaps no other single natural resource provides us with so many benefits:

- Cleaner water in lakes and rivers.
- Drinking water, thanks to recharged groundwater.
- Protection from flooding and soil erosion.
- Commercial and recreational swimming.
- Boating, swimming and other outdoor sports.
- Habitat for 600 wildlife species, many endangered.

Unfortunately, for the past 200 years, laws and policies which encouraged filling and draining wetland areas caused the destruction of more than 100 million acres of wetlands in the U.S. Wildlife numbers, especially waterfowl, have diminished as wetlands have disappeared.

Federal and state governments and private organizations have tried to abate further losses by purchasing wetland acreage. However, 74 percent of the remaining wetlands in the continental U.S. are found on private property, primarily farm land.

The cost of taking this land out of agricultural production is simply too high. That's why Ducks Unlimited, a conservation organization with over one-half million members, is working with private landowners to enhance their wetlands and ensure continued use of their property for agriculture.

Conservation-oriented farming methods help landowners preserve wetlands for wildlife and improve productivity and profits as well.

Hundreds of landowners enrolled in Ducks Unlimited's Private Lands Program have already enjoyed such welcome results as better weed control, higher crop yields, improved grazing pastures and more waterfowl and wildlife—and such projects can be implemented at little or no cost to the farmer. Successful projects include:

- On the Great Plains, low annual rainfall can leave ranchers with parched, depleted grasslands and serious soil erosion problems on croplands. To enable landowners in North Dakota to try out a sustainable method of livestock grazing, Ducks Unlimited provided fencing and water development to ranchers who, in turn, agreed to divide pastures and rotate livestock to avoid overgrazing at specific sites. Rotating pastures allows grass to improve and helps retain moisture. Ranchers using this method report overall improvements in the quality of their pastures.

In California's Sacramento Valley, Private Lands biologists are working with rice farmers to demonstrate how flooding techniques will help them comply with new state environmental laws. To demonstrate an effective alternative to burning remaining crop stubble, Ducks Unlimited helped build a "rice roller" to flatten rice stems into the mud after harvest. The group also assisted with the timing, duration and depth specifications to flood the rice fields during growing season. Winter flooding decomposes the rice stubble and at the same time creates needed habitat for water fowl.

Pointers On Pets
Fleas For Two

Eye muscles may move an incredible 100,000 times or more a day.

(NAPS)—When your cat or dog gets fleas—and a large number do, despite the greatest precautions—chances are the fleas will get you, too.

Fortunately, you can best those pests in ways that are pleasing to both your pet and your eye. One way is to get the new "Color-Full" All-Season Flea and Tick Collars now available at local stores.

"Flea collars really do help protect pets against fleas and the problems they can bring. But just because they work doesn't mean they have to be dull and boring. So we added color," explains Dr. Herbert Lapidus, director of research and development and temporary pet colorologist for the Scratchex Pet Skin Care Center.

"Though pets may be color blind, or have limited color perception, their owners clearly are not. Even when it comes to pets, there's always an inherent meaning to color, that while not acknowledged by the consumer, is nonetheless an influence in choosing a particular shade. Pet owners that chose red as their favorite pet color invariably described the pet's behavior as perky, active, fun," explains Lee Eiseman, director of the Eiseman Center for Color.

Many people are pleased to be able to dress up their pets in colorful collars. "I choose colors for myself that flatter me and make me look good and get compliments...my pet deserves the same," said one pet lover.

According to a survey, most people choose a collar color that enhances the animal's color and that the owner clearly identifies with the pet.

IT'S A FACT!

To get a Dino Den vinyl tent playhouse for children (retail value $35), send a check or money order for $14.95 plus $5 for postage and handling with five proofs of purchase from Del Monte fruit, vegetable and tomato products to: Del Monte Dinosaur Den, PO Box 6621-PR, Maple Plain, MN 55592-6621. Offer good until Dec. 31, 1993 or while supplies last.

"Due to the complex changes that occur with aging, older patients require more specific anesthesia management approaches and techniques during surgery," says Linda L. Callahan, CRNA, MA, president-elect of the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists.

A few years ago, we began an aggressive campaign to be the very best we could be. And that didn't just mean cosmetic changes to the hospital. It meant major investments of both time and money to enhance and improve our staff and facilities.

To complement the group of expert physicians, nurses and staff members already here at King's Daughters' Medical Center, we sought out and recruited top specialists from all over the United States.

We also made an investment in our facilities and equipment to help our staff perform their jobs better. A state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization lab. A CT scanner. A triple-head nuclear medicine camera. And laser surgery equipment, just to mention a few.

We've brought it all together. Right here. Right now. The finest equipment and professionals.
