Two jailed for unlawful transactions with minors

Two Floyd County men were arrested Wednesday in separate investigations and charged with having inappropriate sexual contact with minors.

Martin City police and Floyd County sheriff's deputy lieutenant Ricky Thornsberry arrested Delbert "Deberg" Thompson, 58, early Wednesday morning and charged him with two counts of first degree unlawful transaction with a minor. Thompson was also charged with possession of marijuana, cultivating marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Lieutenant Thornsberry said

Wednesday that Martin police officer Aaron Kidd saw Thompson pick up two juvenile females at approximately 11:30 p.m. Officers followed Thompson to his residence in Martin and then notified Thornsberry.

A search warrant was obtained and officers Kidd, James Slone, James Burke and deputy Thornsberry found the two juveniles hiding outside Thompson's residence under a staircase, Thornsberry said, and the two girls had apparently been drinking alcoholic beverages.

Inside Thompson's home, officers found what appeared to be 25 marijuana plants growing in a planter; a marijuana cigarette and two marijuana "roaches"; an assortment of alcoholic beverages and two sets of scales.

A warrant for Thompson's arrest alleged that he gave the juveniles alcohol and drugs in exchange for having illegal sexual contact with the 17-year-old and 15-year-old girls.

Thompson was arraigned on the unlawful transaction with a minor charges Thursday and was placed under a $25,000 property or 10 percent cash bond.

In a separate search Wednesday afternoon, Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and lieutenant Lloyd Powers arrested James "Jim" Hall, 78, of Wilson Creek and charged him with use of a minor in a sexual perfor-

Sanders, Burchett nominated for post

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Two Floyd County attorneys have been recommended to Governor Brereton Jones for an appointment to fill the vacancy of Division I circuit judge.

A judicial nominating committee met with Chief Justice Robert Stephens in Prestonsburg Wednesday to review the two applications for the post and recommended that Steve Sanders and Paul Burchett be considered for the job.

Sanders is an attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund in Prestonsburg.

Burchett is a Prestonsburg attorney and a candidate for the circuit judge post in the November General Election. Burchett and District Court Judge Danny Caudill will vie for the seat in November.

Escape, cocaine cases waived

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The case of a 22-year-old Wheelwright man charged with trafficking in crack cocaine and cocaine has been waived to the grand jury.

Bobby Hood is facing five felony drug charges after he allegedly sold undercover officers of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force crack cocaine and cocaine on several occasions.

At a preliminary hearing Wednesday in Floyd District Court, Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson testified that Hood sold eight-balls of the illegal drug to officers several times during March. An eight-ball is approximately three and a half grams of the drug.

Sheriff Thompson testified that Hood was arrested after task force

Grand jury returns 13 indictments:

No response yet from AG on probe request

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A request by a Floyd County Grand Jury for the state attorney general to investigate the county's solid waste program and allegations of public corruption has not been received in the attorney general's office.

A spokesperson for the attorney general (AG) said Thursday afternoon that the attorney general's office had not been notified of the grand jury's request.

Earlier this week, Ed Lynch, spokesman for the AG, said that they cannot proceed until a request is made to that office.

Floyd County Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt could not be reached Thursday to determine if the grand jury's request will be or has been forwarded to the attorney general.

On Monday, the grand jury's final day in session, the panel issued its report and asked for a full-scale investigation into any possible criminal activity concerning the solid waste department. They also asked that Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill impanel a special grand jury to investigate the solid waste office.

Judge Caudill said Tuesday that it would be premature to seat a special grand jury until state auditors have completed a review of the solid waste department's books. That probe is expected to be completed in about two weeks.

Grand jurors also requested that the AG's office investigate allegations of public corruption and vote fraud.

Last week grand jurors returned 13 indictments involving wanton endangerment, drug trafficking and arson charges.

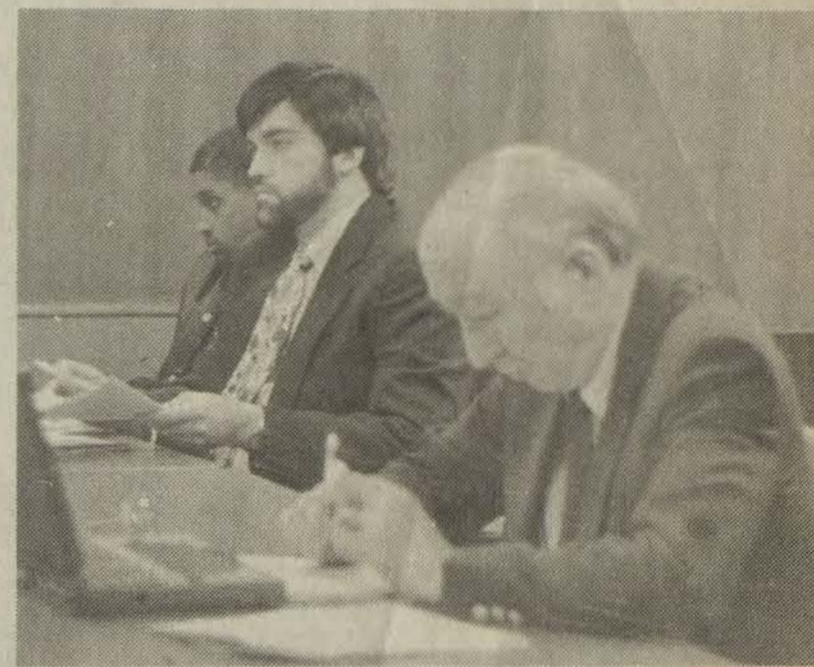

Indictments returned Thursday, no ages or addresses available:

- John Slone, first degree wanton endangerment.
- Joe Hopkins, three counts of trafficking in a Schedule I non-narcotic substance; two counts of possession of a Schedule II narcotic; trafficking in a controlled substance within a 1,000 yards of a school; and obscuring the identification of a machine.
- Donnie Hatfield Jr., theft by unlawful taking.
- Eddie Williams, theft by unlawful taking.

- Roy Ousley, operating a motor vehicle while impaired, fourth offense.
- Steven Walter, flagrant non-support.
- Charles D. Sexton, second degree assault.
- John Slone, first degree wanton endangerment.
- Sam Shepherd, second degree arson.

- Joe Fraley, second degree arson.
- William Joe Skeens, second degree arson.
- David DeRossett, second degree forgery.
- Mary Gearheart, second degree forgery.

Note: An indictment is not indication of guilt, but a determination by a grand jury that the case merits further judicial review.

Crack case goes to grand jury

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

A community-wide effort to spruce up Prestonsburg kicks off today, April 1, and will continue through the month.

The spring clean-up, a joint project between city government and the Prestonsburg Woman's Club, will offer some special services for participants and will serve as the starting point for a program sponsors hope will become a year-round campaign.

During April, the Prestonsburg sanitation department will offer free trash collection on the same schedule used for residential garbage pick ups. The city has also made arrangements to have junked autos removed, free.

In conjunction with the trash clean up effort, the Prestonsburg Woman's Club is initiating an "Adopt-A-Block" program, modeled after the state's Adopt-A-Highway litter control project, which the club hopes will encourage businesses and homeowners to participate in the beautification plan.

To volunteer for the Adopt-A-Block program, call city hall at 886-2335. The city will provide garbage bags and trash pick ups. For more information, contact Boots Adams, chairperson of the Woman's Club's Community Improvement Committee, at 886-6119 or 886-9518.

Rogers will host town meeting here

Congressman Harold Rogers will set up shop in Prestonsburg next Wednesday, April 6, to discuss a variety of issues with his 5th District constituents.

Rogers will hold his "town meeting" at the Floyd County Circuit Court courtroom, division two, located in the old Korner Drug building in downtown Prestonsburg. The meeting begins at 3:30 p.m.

Rogers said he would be available to "answer questions and hear concerns about issues such as health care reform, social security, crime, economic development or any other issue important" to 5th District residents.

Sowing seed and doing good

Rev. Mark and Reed Volk of Pleasant Home Baptist Church held up the prosthetic leg, a leather boot with a broken wooden foot, that the two brought back from their recent mission trip to Romania. Rev. Tackett said about the trip, "We sowed a lot of seed and did a lot of good."

Floyd missionaries offer Romanians a leg up then come home with the leg

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

When pastor Mark Tackett and layman Reed Volk of Pleasant Home Baptist Church on Lancer/Water Gap Road near Prestonsburg went on a three-week foreign mission trip to Romania on February 20, they took with them $30,000 worth of medicine and medical supplies donated by area medical personnel in Floyd, Martin and Pike counties.

The pair was on a mission of mercy, dispensing medicine and the Gospel to a people in need of both.

Little did they know that they would bring back with them the hopes and dreams of one Romanian man who needed a miracle.

And an artificial leg.

Rev. Tackett remembers well his encounter with the man. "I was preaching at a church and the people were sharing their maladies and misfortunes," Rev. Tackett recalled. "This man had so much hope. He had saved money a long time for a prosthetic leg from the knee down, which was six month's wages (about $300). He got it and it broke in the first week.

"He was just begging," Rev. Tackett continued. "He shared with us what bad shape he was in and how hurt he was and he asked, 'Would we bring the leg back to America or send him another leg?' He had so much hope and confidence. The pastor of the church had introduced us as Americans who had come to help. The man told us, 'If you have come this far to help, make a commitment to help me. I cannot afford another leg.'

"There was no way to refuse him. I said, 'Absolutely, we'll take the leg back. I don't know anything about it (getting a prosthesis fixed), but in the name of the Lord, we will try to help you.'"

When Rev. Tackett returned home on March 10, he had with him the artificial leg, a crude prosthetic device that consists of a brown leather lace-up boot supported by bands of metal with a wooden foot attached. "It looks like something that came from the (American) Civil War era," Rev. Tackett commented, adding that he had found someone to fix the device. "A blacksmith in Johnson County said that he will redo it for us."

Rev. Tackett said that he isn't sure about what to do after that, admitting that the solution to the problem is beyond his field of expertise. He and Volk will probably take the redone prosthesis to an artificial limb manu-

Series examines misconceptions of modern health care

The power of technology has provided us many powerful tools to enhance the human condition. Unfortunately, many professionals practice in an isolated world of ground-breaking bioscience and technology while ethical and economic questions are frequently ignored.

Developed and produced over a five-year period, Medicine at the Crossroads looks at disturbing trends in health care all over the world, examining the imbalance which is decried most vehemently within the medical community itself. This eight-part series, beginning at 10:00 p.m. Sunday, March 27 on KET, offers a penetrating look at such facets of modern medical science as doctor training and patient care, medicine at the beginning and end of life, high technology and "miracle" drugs, and the new emphasis on total health.

Reform abusers first

by Scott Perry

Maybe we're oversimplifying a complex situation, but it seems that all this talk of reforming one government program after another is sailing right past one important area of concern.

Abuse.

When we debate containing costs for things like Worker's Compensation, health care and welfare, where do we find any proposals to deal with the costs of out and out fraud?

How many millions of dollars in public assistance funds are going to people who don't deserve or qualify for them?

How many bogus claims for Worker's Comp are Kentucky employers paying for?

How much of our annual costs for medicaid and medicare go toward fraudulent claims and how does that affect health care expenses?

Make no mistake about it, our system of public assistance is riddled with abuse and it's costing us plenty.

Enough, we suspect, to justify the creation of a special task force or maybe even a special police force to root it out.

The point is, we can't have real reform until we put a stop to waste.

We can't possibly meet the needs of the truly needy until we do something about the unscrupulously greedy.

If it's a free ride they want, let's give it to them in proper fashion. Through prison bars.

Realtors association endorses HUD's program

Editor:
We stand firmly behind HUD's decision to lower the mortgage insurance premium change to home buyers who use the FHA single-family program. Transaction costs have always been a major barrier to home ownership, and this action attacks the problem head on.

HUD's decision is truly significant. We estimate that lowering the premium from the current rate of 3.0 percent to 2.25 percent will open up home ownership to between 200,000 and 270,000 additional households nationwide who would otherwise have been closed out.

We congratulate the department and FHA for finding a balance between housing affordability and the financial solvency of the insurance fund.

The department also has made a wise move in revising FHA's (203)k loan program. By streamlining this product and making it easier to use, HUD will help the program realize its potential as a major rehabilitation financing tool.

We look forward to working with HUD to implement the FHA changes announced today. It is clear that the Clinton administration realizes the importance of making FHA a major vehicle for promoting home ownership among low- and moderate-income American families.

Auxier resident cites magistrates salary and lack of service

Editor:
In my recent letter to the Editor explaining the lack of service in Auxier of our magistrate Gerald Derossett, I said he earned $32,000.00 a year salary as do the other three magistrates.

The magistrates work two hours a month attending fiscal court meetings at a salary of $32,000 that equals $1,330 an hour. I'm sure a majority of the people caught the error. President Clinton's salary exceeds that but very little, I suppose.

At that salary we expect service, not arrogance, antagonism, vindictiveness, intimidation.

We will be at the next fiscal court meeting on April 15, at 10 a.m. and urge all citizens to be there. They are our servants. As such we need to be aware of their actions.

Working together for children

Editor:
This April is Child Abuse Prevention Month. Each of us should make a personal commitment to find ways to end this tragedy. Last year more than 173 children in Floyd County were involved in substantiated abuse cases.

The National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse, The Kentucky Council on Child Abuse, and the Department for Social Services are calling on local organizations—professional, business, religious, volunteer and educational—to end abuse in their communities. We are asking individuals including parents, teachers, counselors, social workers, neighbors, friends, business owners and relatives to make a personal commitment to intervene where necessary to prevent child maltreatment.

We should each take a step to assure that growing up is a safe journey for all children. Here are a few suggestions: give a stressed parent you know a "breather," encourage an abuser to seek counseling, reach out to a family in need.

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

It's your right

There is a move afoot, and if you listen really hard, you can hear its rumbling turning to a roar.

A small group of citizens is banding together to ask for what they believe is right in the way of county spending. They have come with a long list of items they will be addressing in the coming months.

Will they get everything they want?

Certainly not.

Should everything they want be granted?

Probably not; we'll have to hear all their proposals before we pass judgment.

But what is positive about the movement is that citizens are getting involved in the governmental process.

Time and time again, it has been proven that it only takes a few people willing to expend the energy needed to get things changed. When enough voters yell, elected officials listen.

They should. We, the taxpayers, are their employers.

But listen more closely.

The resounding message of this group is that you, your family and your neighbors should be attending fiscal court meetings if you're not completely satisfied with the way things are currently being done.

Of course, it is not possible for everyone to take time out of their day-to-day lives to attend each and every court meeting. But that should not prevent you from staying informed, writing or calling your magistrate, and attending when possible.

Put your ear to the ground. That murmur you hear is the beginning of what could be the reform of county government. — Appalachian News-Express, Pikeville

Tobacco tantrums

Those who watched the house debate over smoking policies for public buildings this week have to be asking this question: Are Kentucky lawmakers loyal to a fault, or are they just incredibly stupid?

Once again, House members distinguished themselves by proving they are so blindly supportive of the Tobacco Institute that they can't see what's going on around them.

Less than a week after the U.S. Labor Department proposed a ban on smoking in all workplaces, the esteemed Kentucky House of Representatives voted to make it illegal to outlaw smoking in government workplaces here. Never mind the logistical problems, the cost in human misery, the cost to small communities that try to accommodate those bothered by smoke. Never mind the fact that many communities have already made some buildings smoke-free.

All that mattered was this: "There are 1,600 tobacco farmers in my home county," said Rep. John Will Stacy of West Liberty. "Those are the people we're trying to help."

It's hard to imagine how opening up all state and local government buildings to smoking is going to help the tobacco farmers in Kentucky.

Yet that pitiful argument carried the day. Rep.

Drew Graham, chairman of the Tobacco Task Force, laid out the case: "We realize the international tobacco threat is beyond our control," he said, touching for the briefest moment on the real problem farmers face — foreign competition. But, he continued, we can take this step.

That's like giving up on the war against cancer and concentrating instead on pimples.

Someday, the legislature's so-called "tobacco boys" will realize that their defiance does nothing to help the tobacco farmer. Real help will come only after they open their eyes and see where the industry is going (overseas).

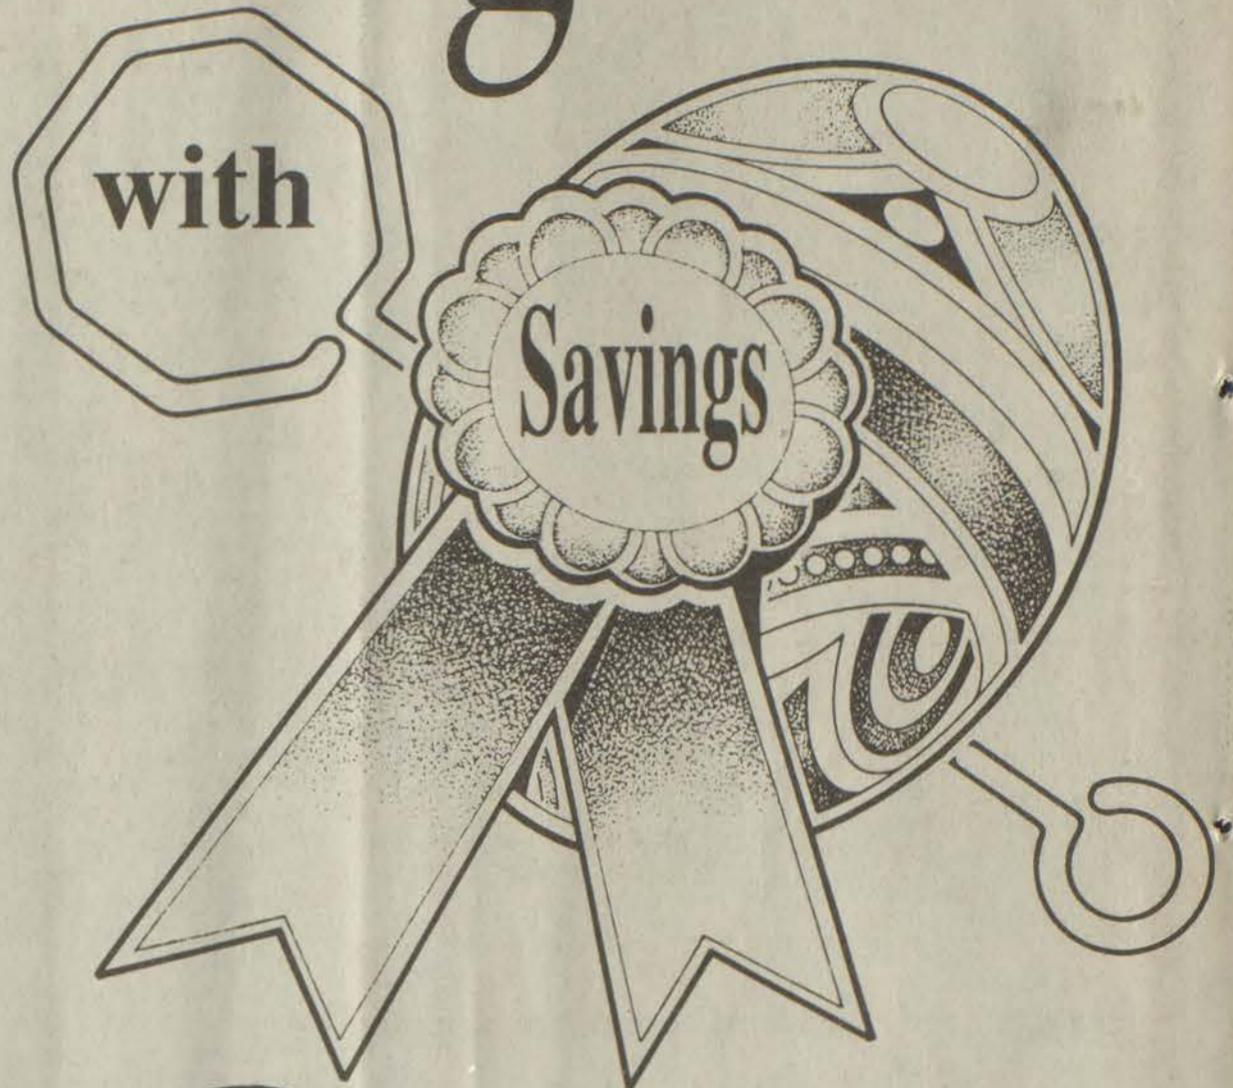

Of course, that would require real work and the tobacco boys aren't ready for that. It's much easier to cluster together and talk about tobacco's distinguished past than to face the problem of its not-so-distinguished future.

Either the Senate or the Governor must reject this witless bill. — Louisville Courier-Journal
