City will get last laugh on violators

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

If you've found yourself laughing all the way to the wastebasket with those city parking tickets, listen up.

It's not funny anymore.

That's the word from Prestonsburg City Hall, where ignoring the laws—particularly city parking laws—will no longer be an acceptable practice.

"It's been a joke in the past to get a ticket for a parking violation," Mayor Jerry Fannin said Thursday. "People were just throwing them away."

Fannin said the city will step up enforcement of parking rules, especially those which apply to handicapped parking zones and fire lanes.

"If you get a ticket, you have the option to pay it or go to court," Fannin said. "We're going to strictly enforce all parking laws and come down hard on violations of handicapped or fire zones."

The mayor added that stepped-up enforcement of all revenue-producing regulations—including those for garbage collection and occupational taxes—could be expected under his administration.

Elkhorn City man faces drug charges

Airport issue a non-issue for new mayors

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

The off-again, on-again debate over the future of Combs Field is apparently off, again, but it could be on, again, too.

For the first time in at least four years, the board which oversees operation of the Paintsville-Prestonsburg airfield has a full cast of members. And, the fact that they are all pilots would suggest that the scales have been weighted against a proposal to convert the airport to a regional industrial site.

That's not necessarily so, said the new mayors of Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Combs Field was as much a battleground as it was an airport during the final years of the terms for Prestonsburg's Ann Latta and Paintsville's John David Preston, both of whom left office on December 31.

Beginning in late 1990, Latta and Preston promoted an idea to transform Combs Field into a site for industrial development. That plan drew the endorsement of the Big Sandy Area Development District's executive board, which includes county judge-executives from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties.

It also caused a flurry of legal action and created a furor among area pilots.

A pilots' association at Combs filed suit in 1991, challenging Preston's appointments to the board and contending that the Paintsville mayor and Ann Latta were parties to a "conspiracy" to close the airport. The case wound its way through the courts to the state Court of Appeals, which ruled in February 1993 that mayors of the two cities had the legal right to appoint airport board members without first gaining approval from their respective city councils.

Practically every effort up to that time to study the airport's potential as an industrial site drew opposition. Officials with American Standard threatened that conversion of the airstrip could jeopardize the manufacturing company's Paintsville plant to the point officials might consider moving its operation elsewhere.

When city councils in Paintsville and Prestonsburg directed a joint Paintsville-Prestonsburg Industrial Authority to conduct a feasibility study on the airport site to determine its best future use, Prestonsburg city councilman Jerry Fannin filed suit against the authority to stop the study. The proposal was never funded and the study has not been done.

Fannin is now mayor of Prestonsburg. He said Thursday that his policy concerning the airport is basically the same. If a company expresses an interest in the site he would favor its transformation for industrial, job-developing purposes. Until then, he said, it should remain an airport and other options should be explored.

Paintsville's new mayor, Robin Cooper, echoed those sentiments. His Three area leaders talk women's issues

Former Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta will be one of three Kentucky women leaders featured on WYMT-TV's talk show "Issues and Answers: The Mountain Edition."

Latta will appear with Pike County Judge-Executive Donna Damron and Harlan County Judge-Executive Delzina Belcher. The women will discuss their roles as women in leadership positions and issues they face.

The show will air Monday, February 21 at 7 p.m. on the Hazard television station. WYMT new anchor Tony Turner is the host of the program.

Musical judge drawing out-of-court audience :

A song in his heart, a gavel in his hand

Fiddle-playing judge

Guests at May Lodge think the small, wiry folk musician playing the fiddle in the foyer is part of the paid entertainment. He isn't. He is a judge. When he doesn't have a fiddle in his hands, he has a gavel.

Administrative Law Judge Lawrence Pauley, 64, of Huntington, West Virginia, comes to Floyd County at least once a month. During the day, he sorts fact from fiction when he presides at hearings involving Social Security disability claims.

At the end of the day, he lays aside the courtroom drama and picks up his music to relax, though being an administrative law judge doesn't make him as tense as the days when he was an attorney presenting his case before a jury.

"Judges don't have that problem," Pauley said. "Judges cause lawyers to have that problem."

Pauley just can't keep his hands off his fiddle, banjo or guitar. When he starts playing, the listeners start gathering.

He didn't start performing before groups at the Lodge. It just happened. He began simply, by picking his guitar or his fiddle in his room at the resort. Thinking of his fellow travelers, he would always put away his music before dark. Except for one night he'll never forget when a guest began pounding the walls.

"Playing the fiddle becomes an obsession," Pauley said. "The longer I play it, the better it sounds and I hate to put it down. After an hour, I don't want to quit."

"Playing the fiddle becomes an obsession. The longer I play it, the better it sounds and I hate to put it down."

So, the next time he picked up his music, he moved out to his balcony, eventually moving down the Lodge's breezeway. Crowds began gathering.

Someone came along and stopped to listen. And then, someone else asked him to sing a particular song. Pauley looked out from his musical reverie and realized more people were gathering around him. Then the requests began, one after another. Before he knew it, 11 o'clock had rolled around and 30 to 40 people had gathered on the breezeway.

During his visits in the winter, he takes his music indoors, near the fireplace, and folks still stop to listen. Though not as many, he explained, because there are more tourists in the summer.

Pauley developed an interest in the guitar around the age of 15. He saved his money, bought a used one and learned to play. During his early years, no one in his family could play a musical instrument, though they liked to square dance and often played country music on a Victrola.

He continues to play the "back porch" country music that he learned then. "I don't like the lyrics of the new music. I don't like the rock beat," he said.

He thinks the influence of Bluegrass, rock, soul and pop caused country music "to splinter."

Authority is one short of a quorum but business goes on

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With less than a quorum of Floyd County's Development Authority present Wednesday, the validity of actions taken during Wednesday's meeting could be questionable.

Three members of the six-member board were absent from Wednesday's meeting, but board member H.D. Fitzpatrick said he had those members' voting proxies.

Burl Wells Spurlock, Julius Martin and Raymond Bradbury were absent. Dolores Smith, Paul Gearheart and Fitzpatrick attended the meeting.

An aide with the state's Legislative Research Commission said Thursday that according to the Masons Manual of Legislative Proceedings, a quorum of a membership of any deliberating body must be present to transact business. That rule would not apply, though, if the issue of how many members constitute a quorum was specifically addressed when the agency was created.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court created the development authority by ordinance on November 10, 1989. In that ordinance a quorum is defined as four members of the board. The issue of a voting proxy is not addressed in the ordinance.

Floyd County Finance Officer Deloris Dings said Thursday that ordinance has not been amended by the fiscal court.

There were no major issues voted on at Wednesday's meeting, only routine financial matters.

Woman gets eight years for first degree robbery

A Floyd County woman who allegedly kidnapped a Turkey Creek man last year and tried to get the man to empty his checking account pleaded guilty this week to first degree attempted robbery.

Rhonda Vanco, 33, of Prestonsburg, entered an Alford plea Monday before Floyd Circuit Judge

John David Caudill. Under an Alford plea, a defendant does not admit guilt, but feels there may be enough evidence to convict them of a crime.

Judge Caudill sentenced Vanco to an eight-year prison term and she will have to serve at least half of her

"It doesn't fit my definition of country music," said the balladeer.

To Pauley, country music is defined by such performers as Jimmy Rodgers, who died in 1933. "I learned to play by listening to Jimmy Rodgers' records," he said as his fingers lightly stroked the fiddle's strings.

The tunes from his fiddle float listeners back into bygone days to the very beginnings of country music when folk ballads would wring the heart. His music is a warehouse of Appalachia, said Arthur Rodgers of Louisville.

"That's how I got to know Eastern Kentucky," said Rodgers, a self-proclaimed "city boy."

"Eastern Kentucky was a new experience for me," he said. "But I received an instant history lesson (listening to Judge Pauley). Everyone should have to listen to him."

Rodgers, who works in the attorney general's office investigating welfare fraud, expressed amazement at Pauley's tireless ability to keep performing. "One evening I stayed to see when he'd wear out. He wore me out," Rodgers said.

Some of the songs Pauley sings are his own. His autobiographical song, "Wait For Me," won a certificate of merit in 1991 in a Billboard Music contest.

Pauley said he wrote the song because he's always been "just a step ahead" of his wife and she has been saying "wait for me" since their wedding day. When the music began and he and his wife prepared to walk down the aisle during prayer meeting, Pauley was a couple of paces ahead of his bride. She grabbed his sleeve, stopping him in his tracks and said "wait for me."

Pauley also writes poetry about his experiences as a child growing up along Mud River in Lincoln County West Virginia. He hopes to publish his poetry. What will be the name of his book? "Mud River Tales, of course," Pauley said with a contagious chuckle.

If presiding at hearings about Social Security disability claims in several counties, writing poetry and songs, singing, picking and fiddling aren't enough activities to keep Judge Pauley busy, then add repairing old musical instruments to the list. He takes pleasure in the challenge of reviving the life of fiddles.

Pauley carries with him a picture of an old broken fiddle. The instrument, pictured with its top and bottom laying almost one on top of the other, looks like something that belongs in a garbage heap, not in the hands of a talented musician. Pauley bought the fiddle for $15; the owner wanted $75. He spent many hours patiently putting the fiddle back together. Today, it looks like new, and he carries it with him on his trips to Prestonsburg.

"It's the best sounding fiddle I have," he said, running the bow across the fiddle's neck and beginning another musical tale of Appalachia.

Airport

recent appointments to the Combs board include three pilots. One of those is American Standard plant manager Ron Belhasen, who has been a vocal opponent to the idea of using Combs field for industrial development.

Cooper said Wednesday that he had polled all three of his eventual appointees prior to naming them to the board and that all three responded alike.

"They assured me," Cooper said, "that if there is any sincere industrial prospect interested in the site they will take steps to see that it is used for that. Until that happens it is an airport and it should be run as an airport," he added.

Fannin said he had not discussed the issue with his appointments to the airport board, but his personal opinion was similar to Cooper's.

"If something comes along that would offer a whole bunch of jobs, I wouldn't stand in the way," he said.

Fannin said, however, that Combs should not be the only site considered for development. He noted that American Standard had proposed the use of some of its property in Johnson County for industrial development and added that "if we look around, we may find that we have a whole lot of other sites available."

Despite his opposition in the past, Fannin, who held his election victory party at Combs Field, said he would now support a feasibility study at the airport to determine its future and to get some answers on several questions.

"Do we actually, legally own this property?" he asked. "I've never seen a deed."

Cooper also endorsed a revival of the study and said he would be willing to ask his appointees to research the issue and to adopt a resolution setting down in writing the terms that would permit eventual industrialization of the site.

Meanwhile, both Cooper and Fannin will attend a meeting Monday at American Standard with state officials, where the extension of sewer lines to the airport and beyond will be among the topics discussed. Any industrial development in the area of the airport could hinge on the outcome of those discussions, both said.

Auditions for 30th season at Jenny Wiley theatre

Jenny Wiley Theatre's 30th season is just around the corner and if you want to be part of the action, make plans now to attend auditions.

Local auditions for this season's productions of Peter Pan, Carnival, The Gin Game, and A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum will be held on February 25 from 3:30 until 8:00 p.m. in Room 155 of the Johnson Building at Prestonsburg Community College. This is an open audition for all acting positions, including children ages 8 to 14 for parts in Peter Pan (many are needed, some speaking roles available) and youth aged 17 and over for the Apprentice Company. Technical Staff positions and Orchestra/Musician applications will also be accepted.

Auditions will be on a first come first served basis. Sign up sheets and applications will be available at the audition. Those auditioning may bring a photo and resume of theatre experience, if these are available. Auditioning actors should prepare one song which best shows off their voice and a one minute speaking piece from a play, movie, or poem to demonstrate their ability to memorize and act.

This year circus-type acts are needed for Carnival. A variety of acts are sought, not just gymnastics, but unusual and colorful acts. Now is the chance to get that dancing dog on the stage.

These auditions are the first of a series of national auditions for roles in this season's productions. Additional auditions will be held in Louisville, Kentucky at the Kentucky Center for the Arts on February 26 from 12:00 until 4:00 p.m., in New York City on March 17 at Nola Studios on West 54th Street from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., and at Tufts University's Leir Hall in Medford, Massachusetts on March 19 through 21 at the New England Theatre Conference.

If you have any questions, call 606-886-9274, Jenny Wiley Theatre is an equal opportunity employer.

Vietnam vet to speak at PCC

Vietnam veteran David Paul Trimble of Auxier will be the featured speaker for the forum on "Vietnam Revisited" set for Tuesday, February 22, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Trimble, who was 19 at the time, served in the 101st Airborne Division during 1971-72, first as a gunner and then as a communication specialist. He recalls one battle in which 25 percent of his unit was killed in less than an hour, including his best friend.

Trimble has a service connected disability and has spent 10 years in psychotherapy at Veterans Administration hospitals. He suffers, he said, from post-traumatic stress syndrome, apparently a common condition among veterans of the Vietnam War.

He is a member of the Vietnam Vets Motorcycle Club USA and has been affiliated with other veterans organizations. He has also spoken to a variety of groups, including a seminar at Marshall University in Huntington, West Virginia.

The program runs from 6 to 8 p.m. in room 132 of the Johnson Building at PCC. Free and open to the public.

sentence because she used a pellet gun during the crime.

On May 27, 1993, Vanco reportedly went to the business place of Mike Taylor at Turkey Creek and asked him to fix a flat on her vehicle because she was pregnant. When Taylor was driving Vanco to her vehicle, the woman reportedly pulled a gun and demanded that he drive her to the First Guaranty Bank.

When Taylor pulled into the bank parking lot, he fled the scene to Jacobs Cigo where he phoned the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Vanco was later arrested at Zippies Pizza in Martin.

Executive director Darrell Gilliam reported that RND Inc., a lighting manufacturing company at Langley, has contracted with nine Wal Mart stores to sell the outdoor lights produced by the company. Gilliam added that company owners are also "working on" several Wal Mart stores in Tennessee.

"All in all, RND is going pretty well," Gilliam said.

In other business Wednesday:

• Board member Fitzpatrick recommended that Gilliam explore an option for developing and expanding local collegiate agencies. Fitzpatrick said that having a college education is very important and that a center for higher education should be developed in Floyd County.

• Gilliam reported that Kentucky's booth in a trade show in California last month was visited by representatives of big industries. He added that he felt that Floyd County has a good chance to sway two or three of the companies to locate their companies in the county.

• Gilliam told the board that Floyd County should receive a seven percent increase in coal severance tax monies from the state. It was first estimated by state officials that 12 percent of the tax dollars would be returned to the county.

• A Veterans' Administration nursing home for the eastern part of the state is still "alive," Gilliam said.

The next scheduled meeting of the authority is Wednesday, March 16 at 4 p.m. at the courthouse annex.

eligible for an annuity when you're ready to retire, don't worry. Your railroad wages will count toward your Social Security if you had less than 10 years of railroad service, "according to Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area." Generally, wages from railroad employment are not counted for Social Security because railroad employees have a separate retirement system that is administered by the Railroad Retirement Board. "But, if you have fewer than 120 months of railroad service," Kelly said, "your railroad credits are transferred to Social Security upon retirement and combined with your wages (or self-employment income). Those combined railroad and Social Security earnings will be used to determine your Social Security benefits." Social Security recently added Railroad earnings to the statements it provides individuals who want to check their earnings record or get an estimate of their Social Security benefits. "You can get an estimate by calling Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, to ask for a Form SSA-7004 (Request for Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement)," Kelly said. "Complete and mail the form in the envelope that accompanies it. Your Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement should arrive 4-6 weeks after Social Security receives your request." If you have a question about Railroad benefits call 304-529-5561. The Railroad representative will answer your questions and give you an appointment, if necessary.

Don't panic...yet

by Scott Perry

Geez, lighten up, will ya?

From the response we've received to a blanket mailing of letters to Floyd County public agencies, you'd think we'd demanded their appearances before the Inquisition.

So, before we get any more snooty replies to our correspondence, let us explain.

Kentucky Open meeting laws (thank-you for the little booklets Mr. Hammond, but we've had a good handle on the rules since the law was enacted in 1974) require that we, the media, be notified of all special meetings of all public agencies.

We, the media, have some obligations under that law, too.

The statute says notices of special meetings are to be sent to "each media organization which has filed a written request...to receive notice of special meetings."

So, a week or so ago we mailed out our written requests to every agency we could think of public, or not. It's our policy to do that with each county-wide election.

Some newly elected officials aren't familiar with open meetings and open records laws.

Some long-seated public officials don't think they have to pay them any heed.

Anyway, we've done our part, by registered mail.

We haven't accused anyone of doing anything wrong...yet.

We haven't stepped on anyone's toes...yet.

So, don't get your shorts in a wad...yet.

In the meantime, we recommend that all public officials take a little time to review Kentucky Revised Statutes 61.805 through 61.884.

Those laws cover all the rules and regulations governing open meetings and open records.

If you don't have access to law books, perhaps the county attorney will provide you one of his little booklets.

Or, you can have the two he's so fond of saying he gave to us.

We don't need them.

We've had the statutes memorized for 20 years.

Test us some time and see.

Mother pleads for information about son's killer

Editor:

It has been over a year ago now. Does anyone remember a young man, Walter Cropper, who was taken from your town and murdered on September 20, 1992?

Does anyone care that a murderer might go free to murder someone else's child? Maybe this time it will be a local child, not just a child from the Job Corps Center whose mother lives in Florida so you don't know her and you don't know her pain.

I used to do that, see a story on television or in the newspapers about a child being murdered, and I would think "oh God, that's terrible" and then go on about my business. Now I see it or read it and I feel the terrible pain that those parents are feeling, because it happened to me.

Please, all of you parents, take five minutes to look at your children and think about never being able to hold them again, to touch their hair, see their smile, to tell them how much you love them. Live with my pain of knowing my child was shot and left in the woods for nature and animals. I don't know if my son suffered or died quickly.

Does it change things for you?

Someone in your town knows who killed my son. Someone could help me bring this person to justice. Not all Job Corps students come from rough backgrounds or are sent there by the courts; most of them like my son, wanted to go there to learn a trade, complete his education. Walter was a shy young man, and didn't do well in high school because of learning disabilities. At Carl D. Perkins Job Corps, he excelled, he learned to be a leader. He was loved by students and staff alike I know because I went there; I met those people.

I felt their love for Walter and also their love and pain for me, as Walter's mother.

Folks, this is the 1990s. My son was white, but it doesn't matter if your white, black, pink or purple, those children, and they are children, are there for a reason and for most of them, it's for an education.

I will say, as a white person, dealing with your vows was the first time I have ever dealt with prejudice, because my child was a student at Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center. Let me tell you, it was a terrible feeling.

Add that feeling to the loss of a child.

We are people. My husband is in the Air Force and I am an accountant. We don't have the money to offer rewards or pay for television advertising. Walter has two sisters and a brother who are in therapy now, learning to deal with the loss of their brother. Walter's father in Massachusetts has lost the will to live because Walter was his only child, his only son. Walter's murder affected many lives and left many victims.

You don't know me, but you could have been me. Please, someone knows. Go to the F.B.I. or to the sheriff's department or, if you want your information kept confidential, contact me. I will keep your name confidential.

My heart still cringes in horror at the thought of the pain and terror that Walter must have felt in the last moments of his life. Please help me stop this person now, before it happens to your child, grandchild or neighbor's child. My son is gone. I can't change that. But I will not rest until his killer is brought to justice and stop him before he destroys another life, another family with your help and the Lord's help.

God bless you,

Garbage, garbage, garbage! Shame, shame!

Editor:

In 1979, before garbage collection was imposed on the taxpayers of Floyd County, I told the people of Floyd County how to eliminate most of the garbage in Kentucky.

How? The state legislator should pass a law to ban plastic containers for milk, Clorox and pop by having returnable containers.

Will you listen to me? Flood you state senator and representative with calls or letters to pass a law banning plastic containers.

Why are we so ignorant? All paper can be burned in a county incin-

What others are saying

What others are saying Curtains for this theater

Kentucky's House added some more wind to Majority Leader Greg Stumbo's campaign of bluster against Education Commissioner Tom Boysen. It passed his House Bill 97 by a vote of 60 to 35. But now that everybody's had their fun, the Senate should follow through on its intention to let the air out of this bad bill.

Even if the Senate were to pass it, HB 97 wouldn't really do much anyway. It pretends to give the Senate power in appointing a state education commissioner, but there are obvious ways to circumvent the legislation. Even Rep. Stumbo admits that.

So passing HB 97 was, as House Majority Whip Kenny Rapier said afterward, just "theater." It was also a petty and petulant way for those with complaints about education reform to send a message.

"I am not happy with Tom Boysen, and I hope that rings out loud and clear," said Rep. Pete Worthington in a speech to the House.

Of course, as Rep. Ernesto Scorsone pointed out, messages are better sent by phone or mail, or even by singing telegram or Goodyear blimp. Cluttering the statutes with meaningless legislation aimed at one individual serves no one.

Plus, even as a message, HB 97 is off. It would require the education commissioner to be politically accountable to the legislature, despite the fact that one of KERA's most important accomplishments was to protect education from just this kind of political pressure.

Rep. Stumbo supported that idea four years ago, when KERA was passed. Since then, however, the schools in his district have been judged inadequate and have been taken over by the state. That did not make Rep. Stumbo a happy man. Certainly that wouldn't have happened in the good old days of political influence.

But, of course, it was the good old days of political influence that KERA set out to end. Rep. Stumbo's mischief probably won't result in any real damage to KERA. But it certainly hasn't helped.

Good people, good law

Local ethics codes need financial disclosure. When you repeat a cliché often enough, some people are going to believe it's true. Maybe that's why politicians always argue that "good people" won't seek or accept positions of public trust if they are asked to abide by a few simple standards of ethics.

We heard this last year when the debate concerned legislative ethics reform. We're hearing it again now that the issue of the moment is local government ethics.

A recent Herald-Leader survey of 111 county judge-executives found that 59 percent of them were opposed to requiring financial disclosure by local officials. One of their main arguments was that financial disclosure would keep "good people" from running for local offices or accepting positions on such panels as planning commissions.

This argument is, well, hogwash. If the phrase "good people" has any real meaning, it must refer to the kind who will serve the public interest instead of their own personal welfare. And such individuals have nothing to fear from financial disclosure requirements—or from any other reasonable ethics rules.

The kind of financial disclosure we're talking about doesn't require that public officials tell the world their annual income or their net worth down to the last penny. It asks the officials to identify sources of income above a certain level, say, $5,000. It asks the officials to identify businesses in which they have more than, say, a 5 percent ownership interest. It asks for a list of the officials' property holdings worth more than, say, $10,000.

People who have nothing to hide aren't going to be scared away by this kind of financial disclosure. Even good folks who don't want their neighbors to know how much they're worth can recognize that the minimal loss of privacy caused by such reporting requirements is a small price to pay for honest government.

That's what this issue is all about—honest government. The only people who have to worry about financial disclosure, or other ethics rules, are those who want to use a position of public trust to enhance their own private business interests. It becomes more difficult for these folks to indulge in their skulduggery when the public knows what their business interests are.

Kentuckians need to remember this as local governments across the state prepare to write their own ethics codes. Since the General Assembly didn't set any minimum standards for those codes, it's up to the voters in each community to ensure their governments adopt adequate rules. One of those rules should be a reasonable financial disclosure requirement. It's something the good people of Kentucky should demand.

"The children are waiting"

Editor:

In the next few weeks the Kentucky Legislature will act on House Bill 408. This unique House Bill will determine the future of Kentucky's children and families. Exactly what is House Bill 408 and why is it important to us?

The passage of House Bill 408 will provide full implementation to the Kentucky Early Intervention System. This system is a statewide, comprehensive system of early intervention for children ages birth through two years old with disabilities and their families. Currently, all eligible children and their families have a right to evaluation and assessment services, service continuation, family service planning and applicable due process safeguards at no cost to the family. These services, in large part, are provided with federal incentive funds.

Without legislation this spring in support for House Bill 408, these services for children and families are likely to decrease dramatically. With passage of House Bill 408, services for children and families will increase to include: developmental screening services, transportation services, respite services, family services, health services, nutrition services, occupational therapy services, physical services, speech and language services therapy services, sensory development services (vision and hearing), developmental intervention services, assertive technology devices and services, program evaluation and monitoring and service coordination.

A yes vote for House Bill 408 will decrease the need for costly special education and social service programs. The most ready to learn children are when they enter school, the more likely it is that students will graduate from school ready to become contributing members of society. I urge all Kentuckians to call 1-800-372-7181, to request commitment for House Bill 408. The children are waiting, the time is now!

Help preserve the environment with House Bill 523

Editor:

About five years ago, an oil company drilled an oil well in the spot I was going to build a house for my family. No amount of persuasion on my part could have gotten them to drill somewhere else on my land. I knew they owned the minerals, but I didn't know that they could do anything they wanted with the surface land.

My wife and I worked hard for 15 years to build a new home and the oil company took our dreams away from us. I thought there would be laws to protect me as a surface land owner.

I found out the hard way that Kentucky's laws do not prevent inconsiderate and irresponsible oil and gas companies from ruining people's property. Fortunately, a bill is not in the Kentucky legislature which will give surface owners more say in oil and gas drilling operations on their land. HB 523, sponsored by Rep. Clayton Little, is coming too late for me, but it might help you. If you don't own the minerals under your land, or if you just want to help preserve Kentucky's environment, you should call your state legislators today. Tell them to get behind HB 523 and push as hard as they can.

For more information about HB 523 call Kentuckians For The Commonwealth (KFTC), a citizens group that helped put HB 523 together, at (606) 886-0043.

Court asked not to review broad-form deed case

Attorney General Chris Gorman and the attorney for an Eastern Kentucky widow asked the U.S. Supreme Court Wednesday not to review a case that challenges the state's interpretation of broad-form deeds.

The Kentucky Coal Association, joining a group of mineral owners, wants the nation's highest court to review a Kentucky Supreme Court decision from July that upheld the 1988 Broad-Form Deed Amendment to the state Constitution.

The amendment reversed decades of lower-court decisions allowing the mineral-rights owner to use whatever means necessary to get at the coal. Industry officials say allowing surface-land owners to prohibit strip mining where others own the mineral rights is an illegal "taking" of private property.

The case revolves around a 1982 lawsuit against Garnett Ward, of Boones Camp in Johnson County, to stop her from interfering with proposed strip mining on her property.

Gorman and John Rosenberg, director of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund in Prestonsburg, argued in a response mailed Wednesday that no property was taken from mineral owner William Harding and other heirs. That is because the original 1910 deed was executed before strip mining was contemplated.

"If strip mining is the only practicable way to recover the minerals on the property, then obviously the mineral rights were essentially worthless when originally purchased," he wrote. "Petitioners have lost nothing."

Rosenberg also noted that the lawsuit does not actually challenge the constitutionality of the amendment, "which is and continues to be the law of Kentucky now governing the interpretation of mineral severance deeds such as the one in this case."

The coal group argued that the ruling was a "taking" because it represented "a sudden change in the law." Rosenberg said that argument was flawed.

Because of constant legal challenges, "the right to surface mine under a broad-form deed in Kentucky was not, and never has been, a settled legal issue," he said.

"Petitioners have the same opportunity to mine coal by deep mining methods, as originally contemplated, and clearly the alleged 'right' to strip mine 'was not part of their title to begin with,'" he wrote.

Rosenberg said the high court has never recognized the concept of "judicial taking" and should not hear this case. He said the mineral owners should sue the commonwealth if they want relief.

"There is no prohibition against a state taking private property," he said. "The federal constitutional remedy is not an injunction against the law taking effect, but a lawsuit to obtain just compensation for any taking."

The U.S. Supreme Court will probably decide in March whether to hear the case, Rosenberg said. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Sixth grader suspended

A Magoffin County sixth grader was suspended from school Tuesday after he told officials he brought a pistol to school last week. The boy, about 11 or 12, said he became scared later and threw the gun into a creek that runs past Middlefork Elementary School on Ky. 30 near Salyersville, assistant superintendent Jerry Arnett said. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Teacher's hearing scheduled

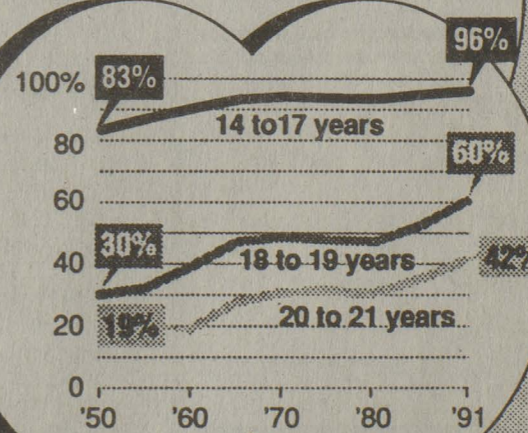

The state teacher's standards board has scheduled a hearing for April 11-12 on whether to revoke the certificate of a Pike County educator who was charged nearly six years ago with sexual misconduct charge before the Education Professional Standards Board, said Roland Goddu, the board's executive secretary. Goddu declined to release details of the complaint. — Lexington Herald-Leader

For more information or to register, call 285-5181 ext. 388.

Nova special traces human ancestry

"In Search of Human Origins," a new three-part documentary presented by Nova, explores the tangled tale of how we became Homo sapiens. The evolutionary epic begins on KET at 8 p.m. Monday, February 28.

Reaching back more than three million years to a human ancestor nicknamed "Lucy," who resembled an ape yet walked upright, "In Search of Human Origins" looks at how and why we developed the traits that mark us as a species. These include an upright gait, large brains, tools, fire, language, and culture.

Hosted by Donald C. Johanson, the noted anthropologist who discovered Lucy, the program begins with the story of this ancestor who died about 3.2 million years ago. In 1974 she came to light as a fossil, and her bones have revolutionized the way scientists think about our earliest ancestors. Johanson takes viewers to the site where he discovered Lucy along with evidence of the extinct world in which she lived and died.

In part two, airing at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday, March 1, the program looks at our scrawny ancestors of two million years ago, who were unlikely to have lived by hunting. More plausibly, they were scavengers, surviving off the kills of big predators. Johanson and a colleague demonstrate how it may have been done by finding, stealing, or otherwise scavenging leftovers in the wild. Cleverness counts for a lot in this lifestyle, which may help explain the origins of human intelligence.

Friends of May House to meet

FEBRUARY FIASCO

Although the year began on a positive note, it has been downhill ever since.

In all probability, you're as sick as I am of the way things have been going. Yes, it's been a long time since I've been as disgusted and tired of the way events have transpired. The ugliest time occurred during the first part of the month. Remember how dirty and sloppy it was? And if memory serves me correct, nobody looked very well either. Maybe everyone had the "blahs" or were recovering from a horrible bout of that virus which nearly took half the population out of circulation permanently. There were rumors from other parts of the United States that we Kentuckians just didn't know how to deal with adversity. That's right, folks. We were laughed at and talked about unmercifully. Can you believe that as tough as we are our fellow countrymen would actually accuse us of being unable to withstand a minor setback when we have fought every handicap imaginable and battled back to victory? We have been shutout, shutdown, and shut-up every step of the way and still managed to come out to the good.

In view of the backlash, it has been unbearable. Kentuckians are good, solid "grassroots" people who don't deserve the treatment they have been receiving. They rally for a cause and support each other when the chips are down. Even when there were "periods" when it looked as if things were going to improve and the sun was going to shine, we got our lights "put out" and were mowed down in the stretch. (And wearing boots didn't improve matters one iota.)

What makes things worse is that it doesn't appear as if anything is going to get better soon. Everybody is lethargic and awkward acting. And future forecasts don't look encouraging. How much more drab and dreary can be expected? I can't remember when we have endured such a bleak period, and it doesn't look as if there is any end in sight. The way it looks now, anything would be an improvement. But if we can live through this, we can survive anything.

As hard as it is to believe people have reminded me of a time when things were much worse; a time when nobody was sure what disaster would befall us next. Yet, we persevered. And while we might not have come out smelling like a rose, we were none the worse for the experience. In fact, for a while it made us stronger.

Regardless of how we feel about everything, nothing lasts forever and this, too, shall pass. I know that any day now, someone will take the ball and dribble it right down the middle, and we'll all have that Wildcat center we've been dreaming about all year long.

Now, if only the weather would break.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND Extra

The dark history of First Dogs

By Mike Capuzzo

To the more than 5,000 "Wild Things" readers who have sent letters (and heartwarming stories and pictures of their dogs!) urging President Clinton to adopt a mutt, I have good news and bad news.

The good news is, your letters focused national attention on the president's misguided attempts to buy a purebred golden retriever and the need for all Americans to adopt their dogs from shelters. (The Los Angeles Times credited "Wild Things" readers with creating a White House scandal: "Puppygate.")

The bad news is, President Clinton has decided for now not to adopt a dog.

"Thank you for sending petitions encouraging me to adopt a dog," Clinton wrote on White House stationery, responding to the "Wild Things" Bill Clinton Adopt-a-Mutt Campaign. "I admire your Adopt-a-Mutt program, and I know your efforts will help many animals find loving homes. While I am not currently seeking to own a dog, I appreciate your suggestions."

But the additional GOOD news is, President Clinton has decided not to let a dog live in the White House. With Feb. 21 being Presidents Day, "Wild Things" has examined the history of First Dogs and concluded, as a wise man once said, "Never raise your puppies to be First Dogs."

George Washington, whose birthday we celebrate this month, had 34 hunting dogs, including DRUNKARD, TIPSY and SWEETLIPS. We're not making this up. At the end of his presidency, Washington wrote in his diaries, "On the one side I am called upon to remember the parrot, and on the other to remember the dog. For my own part I should not pine much if both were forgot." True, this is not

Truth, Justice & the American Way

by Geoff Belcher

A CRYBABY BY ANY OTHER NAME

Excuse me, please, but I'M SICK OF HEARING ABOUT NANCY KERRIGAN AND TONYA HARDING.

But no. We have to have the scandal of the week. Personally, I blame Geraldo Rivera.

Once, long, long ago, back when the so-called "media" actually concentrated their concerns on the so-called "news," the American people were forced to sit through boring, bland rehearsals of government corruption and death and famine.

Then ol' Geraldo came along, saw a copy of "The Weekly World News," and said "Hey, I think they've got something here."

So now we're treated nightly to boring rehearsals of who said what to whom, who did what to whom and with what appliances and who hired whom to whack whom with a lead pipe.

Oh, the scandal of the week started off simply enough.

It was all about sex. Gary Hart played patty-cake with Donna Rice. Jim Bakker broke a few vows underneath the pulpit with silicone queen Jessica Hahn.

But then things got more complicated.

The Righteous Anita Hill accused the Self-Righteous Clarence Thomas of various inappropriate behaviors with Coca-Cola and that guy from the fish restaurant, whatzisname, Long John Silver. Then we had Amy "Long Island Lolita" Fisher and Joey "I'm Not A Pedophile" Butthead vying for air time and royalty right with all the TV networks.

Then we had those cut-ups the Bobbitts. I'd make another cutting comment about them, but what's the point, really?

Now we have Nancy Kerrigan and Tonya Harding.

Please allow me to clear this up: Yes, it's awful that somebody tried to keep Nancy Kerrigan out of the Olympics.

Yes, it's awful that it may have been one of her fellow American athletes.

Yes, I think the U.S. Olympic Committee was right in allowing Tonya Harding to compete, "Innocent until proven guilty," and all that jazz, but it seems to me that she DID admit to lying to the FBI in their investigation, and it seems to me that a certain state legislator just bit the big one over that very same charge.

Still, if she ain't been found guilty, she should be considered innocent.

But personally, even if ol' Tonya's allowed to compete, I'd rather not see Nancy Kerrigan at the Olympics.

See, the Olympics used to stand for greatness. For honor. For discipline. For patriotic fervor.

Countless past Olympic athletes have suffered great tragedies and personal injury, yet persevered with an almost Stoic resolve.

In the 1990 Summer Olympics, for instance, diver Greg Louganis—before million of breathless viewers—bashed his head on a board and had to get nine stitches. He finished his routine and went on to win the gold.

Nancy Kerrigan gets a boo-boo on her knee and she's bawling all over our television sets 24 hours a day.

Doesn't seem right to have a cry-baby win a gold medal for anything, but she probably will just because of all the publicity.

And Tonya, well, with any luck, she may end up on a special episode of Geraldo.

Poperri
by Scott Perry

Well, the six-week rebellion appears to be over.

That's about how long the public outrage lasted over garbage rates and other various and sundry governmental missteps.

Ah, peace and quiet.

Maybe a break in the weather diverted everyone's attention away from garbage, literally and figuratively, and they'll get back to griping once the skies cloud over again.

Maybe everybody has just grown tired of harping on the inadequacies of local government and have decided to shift their attention to more pressing concerns.

Like high school basketball officiating.

Say, that gives us an idea.

You know those beer commercials where they combine two totally incompatible activities—like a dog show and auto racing to produce wiener dog drag racing?

Well, what say we give that a whirl here.

We'll combine fiscal court meetings with high school basketball.

Court members can dress up in the zebra suits and whistles.

Taxpayers get to be the fans in the stands.

Every time the "refs" make a call, the "fans" can boo them off the court or, at the very least, cuss them 'til a fly won't light on them.

That's the American way and, the most logical means of getting the public involved in their government.

A garbage rate hike may cause a few arched eyebrows among the populace, but a referee is guaranteed to tee off at least half of the crowd.

And they aren't likely to forgive and forget too soon, either.

We know people who are still griping at the refs for erroneously allowing Ernie Grunfield to take that foul shot which gave Tennessee a win over the Cats.

That was fifteen years ago for crying out loud.

Neither elephants nor sports fans ever forget.

But taxpayers?

Forget what?

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

In January in Montreal, Quebec, Judge Raymonde Verreault sentenced a 37-year-old man to only 23 months in prison for a series of sexual assaults from 1989 to 1991 on his step-daughter, who was 9 years old when the attacks started. Verreault, who is female, said the mitigating factor for the light sentence was that the man had "spared the victim." Said Verreault, because the assaults had been by sodomy and not "normal" intercourse, "(the victim) retained her virginity, which seems to be a very important value in their religion (Muslim)."

FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

— South Korea's Samsung Electronics Co. announced in November that it had invented "Bio Television" — a TV set that converts a television's ordinary electromagnetic beams into waves that have an effect similar to that of sunlight on nearby plants and animals. In tests, the longevity of fish, and the freshness of flowers, increased by from 50 percent to 100 percent when they were near the Bio TV.

— In the December, Behavioral Neuroscience journal researchers at Rotterdam's Erasmus University reported that injecting a certain hormone into young heterosexual male rats made them attempt to mate with males each day at dusk but not at other times.

— In December, Rory Thompson, 57, was granted a patent for a device that permits viewers to see an ordinary color TV, or computer screen, in three dimensions. Thompson developed the device in Risdon Prison Hospital in Hobart, Australia, where he has lived for 10 years. He was declared insane following a 1984 conviction for killing his wife and flushing parts of her body down a toilet.

— In January, several students in Keota, Okla., accused their industrial arts teacher of forcing them to hold live wires as a way of learning about electricity.

— In December, Paul Hernandez, 56, died in Miami from head injuries suffered 32 years earlier. Hernandez was part of the U.S.-backed "Bay of Pigs" invasion of Cuba in 1961 and had suffered frequent seizures since then as a result of a gunshot during an ambush by Cuban soldiers.

— In December the Associated Press reported on research conducted by Dr. James M. Dabbs, a psychology professor at Georgia State University, to determine personality by examining hormones. Dabbs prefers using hormones found in saliva rather than in blood because it is easier to get subjects to spit. "Dr. Spit," as Dabbs is known, said he is a pioneer in the field because other researchers might view working with spit as "unseemly."

— Neurologist Dr. Angelika Hahn of the University of Western Ontario told the Associated Press in November that a genetic cause has been found for "startle disease," which makes victims overreact when startled, even to the point of becoming stiff and falling over. Because victims are unable to break their falls, they are vulnerable to bone fractures.

— In July, research entomologist Gene Lamire of Naples, Fla., set up the nation's first mosquito-trapping program that uses the tantalizing fragrance of "cow's breath" as the lure. Building on research from Africa, Lamire installed 42 traps containing the synthetic chemical Octenol, which mosquitos evidently find irresistible. Within the first month, "millions" of mosquito carcasses were found in the traps.

CRIES FOR HELP

In a recent medical journal article, five Phoenix, Ariz., physicians reported the case of a 34-year-old man who manually forced a ballpoint pen through his right eye in an apparent suicide attempt so that only about one inch of it was sticking out. The physicians' literature search yielded a dozen other cases of "self-inflicted, nonmissile, penetrating, intracranial injuries," involving nails, a steel spring, a hook pin and an awl.

LEAST COMPETENT REACTIONS TO WINTER

— To thaw the frozen pipes in his house in Farmingville, N.Y., in January, John Porter backed his car up against an open window so the exhaust could warm up the basement. Shortly afterward, Porter, his wife, and their three children had to be rushed to the hospital suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning.

— George Gibbs, 23, suffered second- and third-degree burns on his head in Columbus, Ohio, in January. He had diagnosed his car's problem as a frozen fuel line, which he thought he could correct by running warm gasoline through it. He then tried to heat a two-gallon can of gasoline on a gas stove.

Bridget consulted Ross about her legal rights to Peter now that the adoption circumstances had changed. A-M found a letter from Hart to Jenna.

LOVING: Buck stole money from the Rodeo Bar to pay part of his debt to Leonard the loan shark. Egypt replaced the stolen money. Unaware of her real agenda, Buck agreed to fly her out of town without filing a flight record. Realizing that Casey was a very real part of Ally's life, a distraught Cooper turned to Tess for comfort. Angie blamed post-traumatic stress disorder for Curtis' insistence that he saw a supposedly comatose Dante wide awake.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Chris told Silva if Danny wants a divorce, he'll have to file for it. First Cole, then Ryan, turned down Victoria's request that they go away with her. Mary told April she dreamed of seeing Paul, April and Heather reunited as a family. Robert made flight reservations for Genoa City. Nikki told a stunned Kay that Victoria's marriage to Cole was annulled.

SOAP UPDATES

ALL MY CHILDREN: Dimitri lashed out at Kendall for bringing Richard Fields to court. Despite Anton's plea that she tell the truth, Kendall testified that she never told Erica that Dimitri seduced her. Alec, fearing Gloria might commit suicide, begged her to choose him over Adam but Gloria insisted she wanted to spend her life with her husband. Alec later warned Stuart it would ruin Gloria's life if he told Adam what he knew about his (Alec's) attempt to oust Erica and take over Enchantment. After confessing she had spent a night with Alec, Gloria begged Adam for his forgiveness. Wait To See: Jack is stunned by a revelation in court.

ANOTHER WORLD: Carl made a risky move, realizing it could cost him Rachel's love. Later, Rachel told Cass she had new information that will clear Mac's name. John saw a different side to Spader when he confronted him about his sudden change of mind. Kelsey was devastated when John had a nightmare and called out Sharlene's name. Vicky planned to marry Ryan before her baby's birth. Felicia was thrilled to see Lorna waiting for her at home, but was puzzled at Lorna's treatment of Victor. Josie struggled to separate herself from Bonnie. Wait To See: Rachel makes her decision about Carl.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Eduardo was horrified to learn Damian called in the FBI to investigate Lily's disappearance. Holden told Tom he was with Lily the day before she vanished. Ned felt guilty when he saw Connor suffering from the crime he had committed. Shannon showed a concerned Lisa proof that Duncan loved her. Hans placed a threatening phone call to Damian. Courtney rejected Andy's warnings not to search the marina for clues to Lily's whereabouts. Samantha and Craig got to know each other better. Wait To See: Jessica makes a decision about her marriage to Duncan.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Brooke agreed to return the company's control to Eric if she could go to Europe with Ridge. Macy told Karen of Connor's concern that she (Karen) could become pregnant because he didn't use a condom the night before. Upset with Sally's efforts to match her up with Anthony, Macy fibbed about not being interested in him. In need of a new place to live, Anthony accepted Sally's offer to share her home after learning that Macy visited frequently. Darla was worried when Sally said Anthony's acceptance meant he wanted to spend more time with her (Sally).

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Marlena told John Isabella was his daughter. Realizing Kristen was still unsure about marrying Tony, even after learning John fathered Isabella, Stefano put his next plan into operation. Believing Stefano was trying to flee in his car, John shot at the tires and was shocked to see the auto explode into flames. A distraught Kristen agreed to fulfill DiMera's

"last wish" and became Tony's wife. Alan was worried that Carrie might be able to identify him as her attacker. Mary lied that she had destroyed the shoes Kate threw into the trash. Wait To See: John's efforts to find his past could threaten his baby's life.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Ryan was sent to a maximum security facility after his unsuccessful effort to bomb Mac and Felicia's wedding. Felicia rushed to General Hospital after learning of her daughter, Maxie's, illness. Karen, with the help of an orderly, tried to assist a frantic drug addict. Sean was unable to find evidence in Alan's tuxedo that would link him to Ray's murder. Luke played a romantic game with Laura on Valentine's Day.

GUIDING LIGHT: Roger told Nick he'll drop charges against Billy if Alex dropped fraud charges against him. Alan-Michael invited Lucy to his home. However, his plans for the night changed when he overheard her on the phone with Buzz and realized she was a virgin. Pauly showed interest in Eleni's Valentine's Day gift.

First Dogs

how we define the term "dog-lover" today, but America was a much different place then, in that the NBA had only three Atlantic Division teams and dunking was illegal.

Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday we celebrated on LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY, had a loyal yellow dog named Fido, but Lincoln pawned Fido off on a friend when he left for the White House, according to Niall Kelly in "Presidential Pets" ($10.95, Abbeville Press). Lincoln went on to save the Union; Fido went to live with John Eddy Roll in Springfield, Ill. Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth; Fido was stabbed to death by a drunken man in a psychotic rage.

(The 19th century was particularly hard on First Dogs, says celebrity-dog expert Lynne Hamer. Rutherford B. Hayes' greyhound, Grim, was hit by a train. Several of Ulysses S. Grant's dogs were apparently killed by White House staffers until the president got a Newfoundland pup named Faithful and threatened to dismiss all White House employees if the dog died. Faithful lived a long, happy life.)

Lyndon B. Johnson is best remembered for the Great Society, the Vietnam War and for picking up his two beagles, Him and Her, by the ears in an April 1964 meeting with bankers. When his approval ratings plummeted, the president growled, "It's good for them." In 1966, Him was struck and killed by a car while chasing a squirrel around the White House grounds. Her died on the operating table as veterinarians tried to remove a large rock she had swallowed.

But history reserves the lowest place for presidents who tried to EXPLOIT DOGS FOR POLITICAL GAIN.

William Henry Harrison, who was raised in a Virginia mansion, used a phony log cabin as the central image of his campaign, complete with a campaign lithograph showing a phonied-up FAITHFUL DOG happily greeting a ONE-LEGGED SOLDIER outside the log cabin. Harrison died of pneumonia a month into his first term.

James Garfield, flaunting his robber-baron, anti-government bent, gave his First Dog the name Veto. Garfield lost the veto power nine months into office, when he was assassinated.

Warren G. Harding never missed a chance to divert attention from the Teapot Dome scandal by trumpeting the virtues of his fine Airedale, Laddie Boy, who even gave "interviews" to reporters. Harding died mysteriously in San Francisco and went disgraced into history as the worst president of all time. Laddie Boy is remembered as the finest member of the Harding administration.

Herbert Hoover was so cold and humorless that his advisers sent thousands of copies of a friendly shot of Hoover with his great German shepherd, King Tut, to voters. It worked, and the "dog-lover" was elected. Alas, King Tut died, a frail, shrunken version of himself, from overwork after he tried to guard every White House checkpoint.

Richard Nixon named his Irish setter King Timahoe—Timahoe for an ancestral Irish village, and King because "if he's the presidential dog he will be treated like a king, won't he?" Nixon said. Outraged Americans, who thought they'd elected a president and not a king, forced Nixon to change the name to simply Timahoe. Timahoe became the first dog in history to leave the White House with a master who resigned.

Samons scores 22 as Adams repeats as county champs

It was action personified during the finals of the Floyd County Grade School Basketball Tournament held Wednesday night at the Shag Campbell Arena at Allen Elementary.

In front of a near-capacity crowd, the Maytown Lady Wildcats posted a 47-38 win over a very good Allen Lady Eagle team.

It was a noisy group that showed up to cheer for their teams. Crystal Martin and Dalenda Howard combined for 31 points to lead the Lady Wildcats in scoring. Martin led all scorers with 19 points and Howard tossed in 12.

Tiffany Warrix led the Lady Eagles with 13 points. Brandi Lawson scored eight points before fouling out. Shalena Lewis had nine points.

Maytown rolled out to an 18-point lead in the third quarter as they went on an 8-0 run to build the 35-17 lead. A three-point play by Warrix and a free throw from Toni Robinson made it 37-21 after three quarters.

In the third period, Allen went to work and got back into the game by outscoring Maytown 10-2 to close to within eight, 39-31. Lawson started the rally with two free throws and a layup. She was fouled on the basket underneath but misfired from the charity stripe.

With 3:36 left in the game, Robinson scored a rebound basket and Warrix drove the length of the court after making a steal to make it 37-29.

Martin scored for Maytown to keep the lead at 40, but Robinson scored and was fouled for the 39-31 score. She missed the free throw and Jennifer Brown completed a three-point play at the other end to extend the lead back to 41, 42-31.

Consecutive baskets by Lewis and Jessica Clark narrowed the margin to seven, the closest the Lady Eagles had come in the second half.

Martin hit a short jumper and it was a 44-35 game. But Allen wasn't ready to quit as Warrix went to the basket for two and was fouled. Warrix missed the free throw, but Valeria Stapleton was fouled on the rebound.

She hit one of two to make it a 44-38 game.

Maytown kept the ball in the hands of Martin, an eighth-grade forward, who hit three of six free throws down the stretch to put the title in the Maytown trophy case.

Allen led 8-7 after the first period on a short jumper by Warrix. Maytown ran off the first nine points at the start of the second quarter to take a 16-8 lead. Allen trailed 20-14 at the half.

The Lady Eagles experienced some cold shooting at the start of the second half. Allen could only muster

Organizational meeting slated for Babe Ruth League Sunday

Floyd County Babe Ruth president Harold Case announced that the league will be holding its first meeting this Sunday at the Convention Center at Stumbo Park in Allen.

All coaches, players and parents are urged to be in attendance. The league will hold election of new officers for the upcoming season.

"The meeting is open to whoever is interested in being there," said Case.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

The Shag Campbell Arena was filled to capacity and spectators lined one endzone as the championship game of the boys' Floyd County Grade School Basketball Tournament was set to tipoff at Allen Wednesday night.

The huge crowd (estimated at 700) witnessed the Adams Blackcats repeat as county champions when they rolled past a strong John M. Stumbo Mustang team, 72-41.

It was the third time in the past four years that Adams has won the tournament. Martin won three years ago.

It was a smooth-operating Adams team who had little trouble repeating the championship. The Blackcats only difficulty came in the semifinal game with Maytown, whom they trailed at one time by 10 points.

Wesley Samons, the spark plug of the Adams team, tossed in 22 points and seventh-grader John Ortega added 13. Both players sat out most of the second half.

Stumbo, also a very strong basketball team, was led by Neil Newsome's 15 points. Brent Tackett added 11. Surprisingly, Kenneth Johnson was held scoreless in the championship game.

Samons did more than just score for the Blackcats. He came away with nine steals off the Blackcats' tenacious full-court pressure defense. Samons also dished off eight assists in the game and had eight rebounds.

Ortega had seven steals and five assists. He also pulled down four defensive rebounds.

Turnovers against the Adams' press hurt the Mustangs as they had 23 turnovers in the game. Adams came out strong with the mid-court trap and was off to the races as they led 17-9 at the first stop.

Ortega took a pass from Samons and went in for an easy layup to start the game at 2-0. From that point on, Adams never looked back.

Stumbo stayed close in the early going of the first quarter. The game was tied once at 2 on a layup by Newsome. Adams led 6-2 before Russell Hall made it a 6-4 game. Two consecutive turnovers by Stumbo resulted in a 15-7 game.

The third quarter was a disaster for the Mustangs. They had four consecutive turnovers and Adams converted all four into baskets as they marched to a 54-26 lead.

Stumbo did stay on the boards with the taller Blackcats, but was unable to convert some easy shots down low as they grabbed several offensive rebounds.

Stumbo trailed 23-10 in the early going of the second quarter and did rally with a 7-0 run of their own to trail by only six, 23-17. Tackett had five of the seven points and he completed one three-point play. A layup by Tackett cut the lead to six, 25-19, but Adams went on a 10-0 spurt that netted them a 35-19 halftime lead.

Adams' coach Jack Goodman, ran his bench into the game in the fourth quarter and Coach Gary Newman emptied his bench as well.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WISH TO...

A very fine basketball, football and baseball player. Yes, he's all three and he just turned 12 years old this past Tuesday. I'm speaking of my good buddy Bradley Brooks of Betsy Layne. Bradley shoots hoops for Harold Grade School, runs the football in the Betsy Layne program and collects base hits in the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League.

He also was just selected to play on the Betsy Layne Junior Pro All-Star team.

So, Happy Birthday, Bradley!

SURGERY IS NEEDED, BUT...

A get-well quick wish to Shanna Clark of Betsy Layne. Shanna, who had to sit out the basketball season at Betsy Layne, was scheduled to undergo knee surgery yesterday (Thursday) and we want her to know that we have her in our prayers and that we wish her a speedy recovery.

Shanna is a tough one and will overcome this little setback. There's more to life than athletics. A healthy knee is one of them. Keep your chin up Shanna. You'll be there next season better than ever.

WOW! DID YOU CATCH IT OR...

Were you one of those Kentucky fans who figured that staying up late to watch a blow-out was not your way of having fun Tuesday night?

Many have told me that they either gave up on the Cats or watched something else, like roller derby. By switching channels or going to bed early, they missed the greatest comeback in NCAA history and just think, it was our Wildcats that did it. Not Duke, North Carolina, the Hogs or "Dores" — but Kentucky!

I've said it before and I'll repeat myself. Jeff Brassow should see more playing time. He played well against Syracuse but Pitino took him out. Had he stayed in, I believe UK would have won that one, leading by five points.

Hey, let's put him in the starting lineup. Remember, he is the last of the "Unforgetables." Well, he played with the group. He won the Maui Classic with his hustle. He deserves more playing time.

Who would you take out? How about Jarred Prickett, Rodrick Rhodes or Travis Ford.

Travis? Yes, Travis. He hasn't contributed in a long time and is a marked man. Brassow could move to small forward, Delk at the point (gulp) and just let them freelance all over the court. They don't run any kind of offense anyway.

It was a great game, though. I taped the game and watched it again, knowing that I had to get up early the next morning. Well, it so happened that it was already morning and getting up time was only four hours away.

Great, great, great game!

DISTRICT TOURNAMENT...
At the recent district tournament meeting (held at Fazio's) this past Tuesday, Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido came up with a suggestion that makes sense.

Coach Parido made a motion that the girls' district championship game and boys' district championship game be played on separate nights. The boys' finals could be held on Friday night and the girls' finals on Saturday night or in reverse order.

Think about it. The extra night would be beneficial in this way: Another night at the gate. More revenue that is needed. Also, it would help solve some of the parking problems at the Betsy Layne gym. And thirdly, the All-Conference trophies could be passed out without worrying about taking too long.

It's a solid idea! Way to go, Coach P. Kelsie Elaine must have inspired him with that one.

On the subject of the All-Conference trophies being withheld until a later time, Jeff Meek, of WKKZ radio fame, has a suggestion. Give the All-Conference trophies out the night of the semifinals.

If trying to save time is the problem, how about this: Forget cutting the nets, which seems to take an eternity to accomplish, and get on with giving out the trophies.

There is too much beating around with other things before the awards ceremony is started. Just have someone take down the net at one end, give it to the winners of the girls' division and give the other one to the boys' winner. If they want to butcher it up and divide the spoil, they can do that later. I'm sure that the players would rather have the trophy than a piece of a string.

Don't cheat the players out of their moment of being presented the award that they worked so hard for all season.

Have you ever watched players as they come onto the floor, after hearing their name called, to receive an award that recognizes them as members of the Floyd County All-Conference team? That is a big moment for these kids. The cameras are flashing, and the video cameras are recording the event for viewing by future children.

I've seen all this in year's past. They love it. It would not be the same if the trophies were awarded at another time. It should be done at the district tournament in front of the large crowd that is there. Mom and dad, along with grandparents, brothers and sisters are in attendance for this special moment in these player's lives. Don't take that away from them for the sake of saving time or worrying about someone being hurt because he or she did not make it.

I know the issue was voted on and passed, but you school delegates can undo it. This moment is for the players, not for the coaches or anyone else.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone, and go to church Sunday.

Five will vie for Homecoming Queen at ACHS

Five very lovely young ladies will compete for the honor of being crowned Homecoming Queen at Allen Central tomorrow night (Saturday) when the Rebels host the Sheldon Clark Cardinals.

Competing for the coveted title will be: Marsha Brown, daughter of Wanda and Tommy Brown of Hippo; Hope Ashlee Fraganeno, daughter of Emma and Arthur Fraganeno of

Eastern; Amy Moore, daughter of Barbara Moore of Garrett and the late Lawrence Moore; Megan Manns, daughter of Roy and Sandy Manns of Hueysville; Cathy Twiss, daughter of Frand and Virginia Hall and the late Charles Twiss of Langley.

Class representatives include: Allison Hall, junior attendant and the daughter of Thomas and Barbara Hall of Martin; Amanda Holbrook, sophomore attendant and the daughter of Linda Everage of Martin and Gary Holbrook of Prestonsburg; Tara Shepherd, freshman attendant and the daughter of David and Kathy Shepherd of Hueysville.

Lady Rebels overcome shaky start; Samons post 52-40 win over Prestonsburg

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Senior Marsha Brown scored a game-high 19 points to lead an Allen Central comeback and victory. The Allen Central Rebels won their second conference game of the season, 52-40, over the Lady Blackcats of Prestonsburg.

Brown had scored her career high when she tossed in 47 points against Millard the night before.

Jamie Clay, looking more like a player who never had knee surgery, tossed in 16 points to lead the Lady Blackcats. Clay had just returned to the Prestonsburg team after missing most of the season.

Allen Central went on a 12-3 run in the third period to overcome a vastly improved Prestonsburg team.

Prestonsburg led 22-20 at the half behind the play of freshman Heather Collins, Misty Price and Clay. Clay hit a three-pointer to start the quarter and then with 6:28 left, scored on a layup to make it a 12-7 game.

Allen Central took a six-point, 18-12, lead with 11 unanswered points. Euler Robinson started the run with a three-pointer out of the corner. Brown scored on consecutive layups following two Prestonsburg turnovers.

Disappointed in the way her starters were playing, coach Bonita Compton went to the bench and did some wholesale substituting. Prestonsburg took advantage and raced out to a 22-19 lead on a rebound basket by Price and two free throws by Collins.

Both teams were cold in the opening quarter. Prestonsburg got a trey from Clay and a short jumper from Price to go ahead 5-2. Brown hit a three-pointer to tie the game before Clay's 18-footer gave Prestonsburg the 7-5 first quarter lead.

Amanda Samons tied the game in the second quarter with a rebound basket. She was fouled on the play but missed the charity toss. Clay's layup made it 12-7 before the Lady Rebels went on their run.

Allen Central led 34-28 after three quarters.

A basket off a rebound by Crystal Layne pulled her team to within three of the Lady Rebels until Allen Central went on an 11-3 run to seal the win. Prestonsburg could only manage two free throws in the final 1:33.

six, as did Brian Fitzpatrick, who drilled two three-pointers.

Bailey, Willis, Stumbo, and Fannin each scored two points apiece.

Adams received the championship trophy with Stumbo winning the runners-up. The team free throw trophy went to Adams Middle School which had a team percentage of 73. Samons won the individual free throw trophy, hitting 82 percent from the charity stripe.

The first place cheerleaders trophy went to Adams also, and the Allen Eagles cheerleaders placed second.

The Melvin Cougars and Maytown Wildcats were presented trophies as semifinalists.

Adams finished the season with a perfect 22-0 record. The Blackcats won the Right Beaver Classic, the Rowan Invitational as well as the Section IV tournament.

Betsy Layne continues to roll with 58-46 win over Paintsville

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Bill Newsome's Betsy Layne Lady Cats may be on course to establishing an all-time won and lost record for girls basketball at Betsy Layne.

The Lady Cats went to 16-4 on the season with a 58-46 win over the Lady Tigers of Paintsville.

While the Lady Cats won, Coach Newsome feels his team could have played better.

"We seem to play according to our competition," said Newsome. "That's not to say anything against Paintsville, but they are a young team and if the opposition doesn't play well, we don't either."

Misty Clark led the Lady Cats with 17 points. Dee Dee Martin tossed in 15 and Chrissy Johnson scored 10. Misty Johnson and Rhonda Conn rounded out the Lady Cats scoring with eight points each.

Paintsville was led by a trio of scorers, but neither scored in double figures. Beth Blakenship, Karen Hall and Cassie Cooper each scored nine points with Susan Russell netting seven.

Betsy Layne raced out to a 17-9 first quarter start and went to the locker room with a 33-20 advantage.

"I was pleased with the way we played," said Newsome. "We played a lot of players again, but some of them didn't score."

Martin had 10 rebounds for Betsy Layne and dished off two assists. Misty Johnson pulled down eight boards and had three assists.

Betsy Layne (16-4) will entertain the Johnson Central Golden Eagles Monday night.

Pikeville to be site of umpire school

Former professional umpire Vic Travis, along with Mondo Angelluci, will conduct the Kentucky Umpire School at Pikeville High School on Sunday, February 20.

The school will run from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. and it is a required class for those interested in umpiring high school baseball this season. The cost is $30 per person.

up three points in the first four minutes of the third period as Maytown went on a 15-3 spurt in building the 18-point advantage.

Other scorers for Allen were Robinson finishing with five points and Clark two. Stapleton tossed in one.

For Maytown, Jessica Martin netted eight points and Jennifer Brown scored six. Jenny Wells added two points.

Allen Central conference champs after win over Prestonsburg

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was jubilant Allen Central following who celebrated while Prestonsburg was stunned after a 79-70 setback at the hands of the Runnin' Rebels.

The two teams met in what turned out to be a showdown for first place in the Floyd County Conference standings. With the win goes the number one seed in the upcoming district tournament.

With the victory, Allen Central repeats as conference champions and will look to repeat by winning a second consecutive district title.

Jason Martin had the hot hand for the Rebels when they needed it. He pumped in 22 points before fouling out late in the fourth quarter. Jeremy Hall, who was quite in the early going, woke up everyone when he drilled three three-pointers in the fourth quarter. His trey with 3:34 left in the game gave Allen Central a 70-66 lead.

To say that Phillip Patton has improved tremendously since the season began is an understatement. The inside play of Patton was what kept the Rebels as close as they were in the first quarter. Patton completed two three-point plays to keep the Rebs close. He finished the game with 16 points.

It is hard to find words that would describe the play of Prestonsburg's Cory Patton or the effort of Toby Robinson. Reitz led all scorers with 31 points as he continued to have a hot shooting hand.

Pikeville falls to Betsy Layne, 78-48; Clark scores 20, four assists

Coach Bill Newsome is happy with the way his Betsy Layne Lady Cats are playing now that tournament time is drawing close.

Misty Clark continues to be the floor leader. She tossed in 20 points to lead Betsy Layne past Pikeville 78-48 Monday night.

Clark, who has hit in double figures the last five games, also had four assists.

Dee Dee Martin, despite being in foul trouble, managed to score 17 points and pull down eight rebounds. Martin had four personal fouls in the first half and saw limited action.

"They really played great together tonight," said Coach Newsome. "They came out red hot. Misty hit those four treys that really got us started."

Laura Sohn led Pikeville with 19 points. Jamie McKenzie finished with 11 points and Sunny Phillips added 10. Beth Boyd netted eight.

Rhonda Conn finished with 12 points for Betsy Layne. She pulled down eight rebounds. Off the bench, Melenda Gearheart (not Heather) had seven points and eight boards.

Christy Johnson did not score, a rarity, but contributed other ways. Johnson had nine rebounds and gave the ball for seven assists.

Heather Gearheart (not Melenda) had a strong floor game with four points, six rebounds and two steals.

Jessica "Instant Offense" Hamilton netted five points. Misty Johnson totaled six points, five rebounds and three assists.

Betsy Layne improved to 15-4 on the season after having already won the conference title with a perfect 6-0 record.

Robinson looked as if he was destined to set an all-time three-point record as he was unstoppable in the first period. He buried five three-pointers in the opening quarter, but had to depart the game with 1:47 left with two fouls.

Robinson returned in the second period but could not pick up where he left off, mainly because of the different defense the Rebels played.

Prestonsburg took a 63-60 lead with less than six minutes to play in the game, on a three-pointer by Reitz. A short jumper by Martin and Hall's second three-point basket of the fourth period, gave Allen Central their first lead at 65-63 with 4:23 left to play.

Reitz nailed another trey and gave the Blackcats' final lead of the contest, 66-65.

Allen Central then went on a 14-4 spurt to win 79-70. Martin hit a 10-foot jumper to start the run and Hall's two free throws with 23 seconds left finished it.

Robinson had a short jumper for Prestonsburg, but the Blackcats could not get any offense going in the final quarter as Reitz had three treys and a free throw the rest of the way.

Steve Turner was absent from the Rebels offense, finishing with just four points. But the 6' 5" forward pulled down eight rebounds.

Prestonsburg blew out to a 24-12 first quarter lead. Robinson was brilliant in the initial period. A layup by Thomas Ratliff and a trey by Ryan Ortega staked the Blackcats to a 5-0 lead. After Martin put the Rebels on the scoreboard, Robinson buried consecutive three-pointers for a 11-2 game.

Three consecutive turnovers by Allen Central saw Prestonsburg extend the lead to 19-9 and Robinson's trey, along with a rebound basket by Martin, Newberry put Prestonsburg up 12 at the first stop.

Allen Central extended their defense beyond the three-point arch and trapped half court in an effort to silence the Blackcats' long-range shooting. Kevin Stumbo was the spark Allen Central needed. He came off the bench and scored five unanswered points, plus he led the Rebels' defense as they clawed their way back to six points, 38-32, at the half.

Martin's short jumper and three-point basket to start the third period put the Rebels right back in the game at 38-37. Reitz hit a three-pointer and Patton came back with a rebound basket as the two teams stood at 41-39.

Ratliff and Patton got into a shoving match and each was assessed a technical foul. The infraction seemed to wake up the Blackcats since Ratliff went to the bench. Prestonsburg went on a 9-2 spurt that netted them a 50-41 lead.

Allen Central extended their defense out and went on a 9-0 run to tie the game at 50.

J.P. Skeans hit a layup and Reitz a 15-footer that gave Prestonsburg a 58-55 led after three quarters.

The game was last tied at 60 early in the fourth quarter until Allen Central took the lead for good at 67-66. Robinson, who started hot, scored only six points over the next three quarters to finish with 21 points. No one else was close to double figures for Prestonsburg after Reitz and Robinson. Newberry finished with four points.

Stumbo tossed in 10 points for Allen Central and came up with some very strong defensive plays that got him three steals. Two of the steals were key ones in the fourth quarter. With 2:29 left in the game, Stumbo picked Ortega's pocket, scored on the play and was fouled. He hit the free throw that gave Allen Central a 73-66 lead.

Prestonsburg falls to 11-12 overall and finishes 4-2 in the conference. Allen Central improves to 19-6 on the year and win the conference with a 5-1 mark.

Allen Central will host the Sheldon Clark Cardinals Saturday night in their annual Homecoming. Prestonsburg will play tonight at Whitley County and will face Wayne County at Whitley County Saturday night.

Betsy Layne parents, students talk about alcohol abuse

Talking with parents

The Maytown Family Resource Center sponsored a parent component "Talking With Your Kids About Alcohol" (TWYKKA) course. The resource center recruited parents from the community to take the course and the parents of students in the TWYSAA eighth grade class. The parent class was instructed by Greg Ratliff of Southeastern Counseling and Rose Adkins of Lee Consulting. The course consisted of four nights of classes.

Talking with kids

The Maytown Family Resource Center sponsored a "Talking With Your Students About Alcohol" (TWYSAA) program for the eighth grade class. The class was instructed by Lola Brashear with the Title V Program. This course is designed to reduce the risk of students using alcohol for a lifetime.

Betsy Layne students compete for the gold in school read-a-thon

Betsy Layne Elementary is involved in a program called "Books Across America."

The centerpiece of the program is a schoolwide read-a-thon during which students chart their personal reading progress on a colorful bulletin board. The board depicts a map of the United States, highlighting the participating states and a pathway from start to finish.

Each school participating is linked with a partner school in a partner state. Partner schools read together to reach a common goal. Betsy Layne's partner school is Barnes Elementary in Owasso, Oklahoma.

As students progress through the read-a-thon, they receive small incentive awards.

All students who complete the read-a-thon will receive a gold medal in a special ceremony at the end.

One of the most exciting and motivating aspects of the program is the "Principal's Challenge." At the beginning of the read-a-thon, a principal may choose to issue a challenge to the student body to read a specific number of pages. If the school meets the challenge, the principal must perform.

B.L. students take forensics' top honors

Betsy Layne Elementary students won top honors at Forensics County Competition.

Justin Ferrell won first place in the public speaking category. Jessica Stumbo and Kitty Swiger tied with Alisha Shell and Kurstine Adkins for first place in duo acting.

In poetry, Crystal Williams took first place. Alisha Shell came in third and Kurstine Adkins placed fifth. Natasha Stewart placed second in prose.

Crystal King and Brittany Blankenship won second place in improvisational. Aaron Rogers placed third in solo acting, and Josh Allen won fourth in demonstration.

I Saw a Rabbit

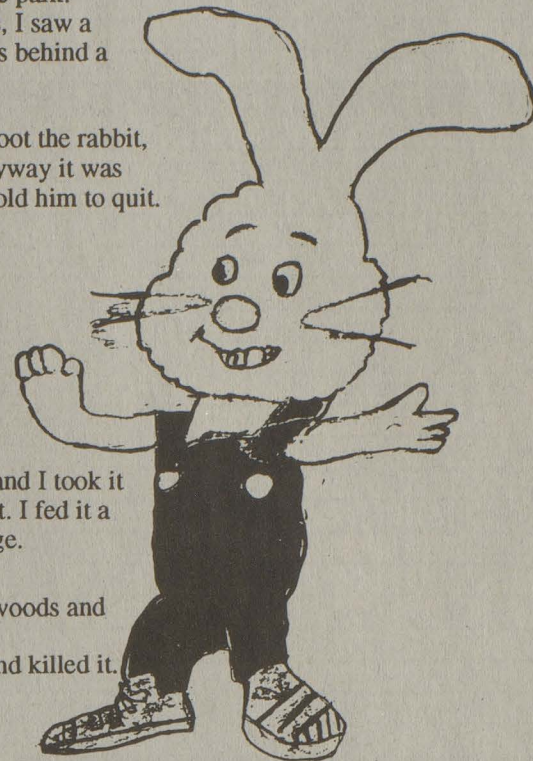

One day I went to the park. While I was down there, I saw a little white rabbit. It was behind a tree.

A man tried to shoot the rabbit, but he missed it. Anyway it was rabbit season and I told him to quit.

I caught the rabbit, and I took it to my house and I fed it. I fed it a carrot and some cabbage.

Later I took it to the woods and let it go. The same man shot and killed it.

Think about it

by Sheldon Lee Compton

A tree dies in Brooklyn

Every year it has been something of a tradition for me to shoulder the fabled axe and make the long journey into the land of the pines to strike down my helpless enemy, the tree, for the sake of Christmas joy. Sound drastic? Now that I've thought of it, it is something that could be looked at as drastic. Many of us have cut trees down or stepped on a flower or plant. Have we killed something by doing this when in fact this tree or plant does not breathe or move, yet lives and grows and can die?

It is a question that can be answered correctly one way or the other, I suppose, but there are other ways to look at the "life" of a tree. If I were to chop down a tree not only do I take the gift of growing from this powerful and silent life, but I also would be taking the homes of many animals such as squirrels, birds, and thousands of insects.

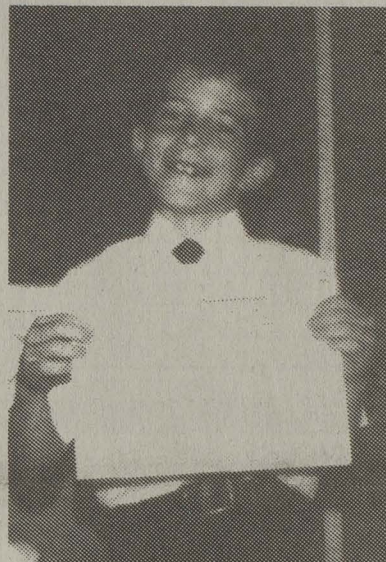

This point of view may sway you to the defense of the trees but don't act so fast because there are other ways to see it. What if nobody had ever harmed a single tree upon the face of the earth? Where would we be without houses? I suppose we would just be living in trees as one of my English teachers, Mrs. Woody, often said.

I could go on in circles about this for days and still nothing would be changed. We would still have to chop down trees in order to survive but in my book a tree is as alive as you or me. I'm not saying that a person should be convicted of murder for getting a live tree for Christmas but I am saying that the fact that trees are living things should not be argued.

There are many ways to save trees other than to lay down the axe all together. For instance, the paper I wrote these very words on was one-hundred percent recycled paper. To be honest, I've never really been a "Save the Trees" kind of guy, but in order for you to understand where I'm coming from with all of this just humor me for the next few minutes.

Let's just say that trees have feelings. What other feeling could they possess but the happiness of stretching their branches out to the sky and soaking in the sunlight for their soft leaves and the pleasure of a hard rain seeping through the ground finding their roots, the very heart of their existence? Why strip the life from something that asks only for the sun to rise in the morning and the rain to quench its thirst? Trees ask so little of us, so why must we take so much? Think about it.

Young Authors

Randall Hughes

The Floyd County Times and the Department of Instruction of Floyd County Schools jointly feature the student work of Randall Hughes, a primary Young Authors' winner from Mrs. Coyette Lawson's class at Betsy Layne Elementary. Randall is the son of John and Arlene Hughes of Ivel. His book, When I Saw a Rabbit, printed with permission, was the winner in the primary "Illustrated" book competition.

Randall was a room winner, a school winner, and a county-wide winner for the 1992-93 school year for his book. He received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond at a spring awards ceremony. Approximately, 5,000 elementary and middle school students participated in competition throughout the county.

Fruits of victory

Debbie Watkins and Kathy Zik, chairpersons for this year's citrus sale at Our Lady of the Mountains School in Paintsville recently announced the top three sellers for this event. Jamie Zik, right, earned a stereo for being the top seller. Alex Hieronymus, left, was awarded a camera for selling the second highest amount, and Elaine Ousley, third highest seller, center, received a walkman for the fruits of her labor.

Science Screen Report

Help for people with visual impairments

There are 42 million people worldwide who suffer from total or partial loss of vision and are defined as being blind. This issue of SCIENCE SCREEN REPORT explains how the human eye works, examines some of the major causes for blindness, and looks at how medical science and technology are being used to help people with vision problems lead richer and more productive lives.

Traditional aids for the blind, including Braille and guide dogs, are presented along with advanced space age image processing technologies. Other low-tech aids, such as improvements to public buildings, are also explained.

SCIENCE SCREEN REPORT is an educational video series produced in cooperation with the National Science Teachers Association. This award-winning series present the most recent developments in science and technology in a format designed for junior and senior high school students, and is distributed to the Floyd County School District by Cosetta Newsome, Coordinator of Title II and by a grant from Consolidation Coal Corporation.

SUMMARY OF PROPOSED ORDINANCE BY CITY OF WHEELWRIGHT

The following is a summary of a proposed Ordinance No. 1994-001 for the city of Wheelwright, Kentucky, prepared in accordance with KRS 83A.010:

The proposed ordinance shall amend certain sections of Wheelwright City Ordinance No. 1979-001, as amended by Ordinance Nos. 1981-005, 1986-001 and 1989-003, relating to the creation, duties, authority, responsibilities and structure of the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission.

The proposed ordinance will eliminate the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission's authority to select the chairman of the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission. Instead, the authority to select the chairman of the city utilities commission shall be vested in the Wheelwright City Commission, who shall select the chairman from among one of the utilities commission members by majority vote. The chairman of the utilities commission shall be required to act as a liaison between the Wheelwright City Commission and the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission and he, or a representative, shall be required to be present at all regularly scheduled meetings of the Wheelwright City Commission to report on the activities of the utilities system.

The proposed ordinance will make any action taken by the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission dealing with the hiring and discharging of employees; the fixing of compensation for employees; and the management and operations of the utility system subject to the approval of the Wheelwright City Commission.

The proposed ordinance will require the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission to obtain prior approval from the Wheelwright City Commission for any expenditures over the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) which is not required for the day to day operations of the utilities system.

The proposed ordinance will require the Wheelwright City Utilities Commission to deliver five percent (5%) of its net profit at the end of its fiscal year to the city of Wheelwright's general fund to be utilized solely for police, fire and park expenditures. The transfer of said funds shall not be required if it will cause the utilities system to be delinquent upon any indebtedness or breach any term or condition of any bond issue or loan obligation.

I hereby certify that this summary was prepared in accordance with KRS 83A.010.

Did You Know?

Vintage Tractors In 1994 Calendar

This 1930 Baker, selected as one of 15 classic tractors in a 1994 calendar, is from Illinois.

(NAPS)—The next time you pass a farm, or watch a parade down Main Street, that beautifully restored tractor you see may be better known than you realize. Not only is the restoration and preservation of vintage tractors one of the fastest growing "sports" in the country, but a calendar which features these classic tractors has become a hot item.

The 1994 version of the Dupont Classic Tractor Calendar features 15 beautifully restored farm tractors from 11 states and Canada, including a 1918 Case 9-18 on the front cover, and a 1940 Farmall M (with the first commercially built no-till planter) on the back cover. Each month a different, full color beauty is highlighted, starting in December 1993 with a 1915 Aultman Taylor.

This is the fifth year Dupont Agricultural Products has produced this calendar and again, soybean oil ink was used to print it. Several tractor makes that have not appeared on the four previous calendars are featured in the upcoming edition. These include an Imperial (made in Canada), Baker, Eagle, Aultman Taylor, and Huber. The oldest classic is a 1914 Allis-Chalmers 10-18. This three-wheeled tractor was the first built by Allis-Chalmers.

The large, full-color calendar is now available, along with a professionally produced videotape of the owners talking about the unique characteristics of their tractors, which they start and drive.

For information about the calendar, video and poster, call (800) 4-FARMS 1.

THEN & NOW!

Printing Through The Ages

(NAPS)—Since man first scratched letters on clay tablets and papyrus, the search has been on for a better way to bring the printed word to the people.

Then: While printing was first developed in China during the eighth century A.D., German entrepreneur Johann Gutenberg invented the first popular printing press around 1450. Made from an old wine press, the block printer took five years to print 200 copies of the famous Gutenberg Bible.

In 1814, Friedrich Koenig of Germany invented the first steam-powered printing press, an initial step toward automating the printing process. In 1846, American Richard Hoe invented the rotary press, which greatly decreased the time it took to produce printed copies. Another big leap forward in the world of printing came in 1977, when the first laser printer was introduced by Xerox. The price tag: $350,000!

In 1984, Hewlett-Packard introduced the first desktop laser and the first desktop inkjet printer, making top quality printers affordable enough for individual users.

Now: Today, this nation churns out about 600 million pages of computer printouts, 76 million letters and 24 million documents each day. The world's leading maker of printers, Hewlett-Packard Company, marked its 20 millionth desktop printer shipment in 1993.

Coming: In the near future color will become as common an attribute in desktop printing as bold and italics are today. Lightweight, compact printers will provide greater portability to workers on the move.

Laid end to end, the tracks of the world's main railroads would stretch about 800,000 miles—some 3 1/3 times the distance from the earth to the moon.
