Legal limits on audience may be illegal

Fiscal court can't comply with one law without violating another

by Scott Perry Times Editor

Public access to a cramped Floyd County Fiscal Court meeting room has traditionally been assigned to a first-come, first-served basis, but recent interest in court proceedings for the expanding audience.

While state Open Meeting laws codes, he said. require court meetings to be held at places and times "convenient to the public" and in facilities which "allow effective public observation," state fire regulations designate maximum occupancy rates for public facilities.

The fiscal court's meeting room at the courthouse annex appears to conflict with both.

Court asked to resolve conflict debate

by Scott Perry Times Editor

A member of the Floyd County Development Authority has asked the courts to decide if her membership on the authority board represents a conflict of interest.

In a complaint filed February 17 against Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond, authority member Dolores Smith asked that the court issue a declaratory judgement that she has not violated state law and that she has "fully complied" with the development authority's policy concerning conflicts of interest.

A dispute between Smith, a principal in R&S Body Company at Allen, and Hammond erupted in September, edy the violation. 1993, when, the complaint contends, Hammond "challenged the propriety of Mrs. Smith's membership on the authority."

Hammond has contended that the authority has deliberated issues involving R&S Body and that Smith's relationship with that company conflicts with her membership on the board.

Smith argues in her request for a declaratory judgement that she has fully disclosed her interests in R&S Body and that she has never taken part in authority discussions or actions on matters concerning that com-

City fire marshal Larry Adams, responding to questions concerning crowd size limits in the fiscal court meeting room, officially affixed the maximum occupancy this week at 35

Adams said his measurements indicated room for 29 seats and an area could force the court to make room large enough for six people to stand. Any more than that would violate fire

But, the court has no legal right to limit the size of its audience and Adams said Open Meetings laws should apply before he is required to enforce occupancy restrictions.

"Under normal circumstances," Adams said, "the meeting room has been large enough to handle the number of people who wished to attend the fiscal court meetings. But it appears that interest in those meetings is growing."

Adams said the court should be required under Open Meeting laws to accommodate those people but, should they not comply and should larger crowds continue to attend the court meetings, they "would be told to get another room" to comply with occupancy limits.

At the court's February 18 meeting, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said the fiscal court was designing a larger meeting room to be included in a proposed new county government center, but he said no larger facilities were available now to accommodate larger crowds.

State law provides the public a means to enforce Open Meeting requirements, too.

Ballpark costs may be out of the park

Costs could soar as high as $200,000 to build a baseball field at Allen Central High School and that doesn't include the price for a running track and football field.

If supporters of the baseball field project can drum up enough in-kind work from local coal companies, the cost could drop to approximately $100,000.

The Floyd County Board of Education, however, has not committed itself to the baseball field project.

During a meeting Thursday at the school district's central office, Chief of Operations Jim Osborne and track project architect Nick Feldman met with school officials and Allen Central parents to discuss the situation.

Feldman explained that in order to construct a baseball field behind the high school it would require moving approximately 148,000 cubic yards of soil which would cost at least $200,000. Feldman added that in order to create the field, areas of rock would have to be blasted from the site, which may not be possible because it would be so close to the high District Two Magistrate Jackie

A letter purportedly written on behalf of the Floyd County Education Association criticizing State Representative Greg Stumbo apparently was not approved by the membership of FCEA.

Missing truck thought taken by escapees

Two escapees from the Otter Creek Correctional Facility at Wheelwright last weekend apparently stole a logging truck near Ligon hours after leaving the facility, officials said Wednesday.

Lieutenant Lloyd Powers with the Floyd County Sheriff's Department said that a confidential source told him this week that the two men stole a black Chevrolet flat-bed truck with an orange boom early Sunday morning in Ligon. The Kentucky license plate number is 2CD-291.

The owner of the truck did not report it missing until three days after the escape, Powers said. Powers and Kentucky/State Police detective Joel Newsome discovered the additional information Wednesday afternoon.

Kennedy's most seen the state's plan for the cleanup, enduring legacy, the Peace Corps. In his inaugural speech in 1961, Kennedy called the country to action:

"To those people in the huts and villages of half the globe struggling to break the bonds of mass misery, we pledge our best efforts to help them help themselves...And so my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you-ask what occurring radioactive material site. you can do for your country."

Since the first group of volunteers left our shores to serve in Ghana, over 140,000 Americans have given of their time and of themselves to help people in more than 100 countries in the developing world.

And as times have changed, so too has Peace Corps. More than 10 percent of volunteers are over the age of 50 and 13 percent represent minority groups. While the first volunteers served primarily in educational programs, volunteers today can work in additional areas such as health and nutrition, agriculture, business and technical trades.

Peace Corps programs have also expanded to cover new territory and respond to new problems. In 1988, Peace Corps signed its first agreement to place volunteers in AIDSrelated projects. The following year, 120 volunteers brought Peace Corps to countries in Eastern Europe. And in 1992, volunteers left for Russia, Ukraine, the Baltics and other countries of the former Soviet Union.

The spirit of volunteerism continues to rise and enables Peace Corps to reach its three goals: to provide countries with skilled men and women, to make friends for the United States around the world and to promote a mutual understanding between the U.S. and other nations.

Currently, 6,400 volunteers are serving in 93 countries. Volunteers serve for two years in countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Carribbean and Eastern Europe. For more information about Peace Corps, call toll-free 1-800-241-3862.

Swimming in quicksand

by Scott Perry

Whatever happens in the final analysis, one point is abundantly clear in the quagmire at Allen Central High School.

Nobody did their homework before work was started on the construction of an athletic track.

We argued from the beginning that the track was a bad idea, not because we are opposed to track and field, but because we are opposed to building athletic facilities when academic facilities are so desparately needed.

The board of education thought otherwise and pushed the track project through.

Now, the bills are piling up and so are the problems.

Baseball has been "sacrificed" at ACHS this year and relocation of what was a perfectly good diamond will cost at least as much as the initial cost estimates of the track alone.

Thousands of dollars of work donated by ACHS sports boosters has been relegated to the scrap heap.

All for a track that may or may not be finished in time for the spring meets and which may or may not meet the specifications for hosting a regional event.

The board will likely have to cough up another sizable chunk of change from its local dollars to fix everything back.

That means some other program or some other activity will be "sacrificed."

It seems as though every time the Floyd County Board of Education embarks on a construction project it's like swimming in quicksand.

The harder you try to get out, the deeper you go.

Eventually you just get swallowed up.

You'd think by now, with years of construction troubles under their belts, the board would have learned to watch their steps.

Sadly, they have not.

I am advising parents and grandparents who are unhappy with the ungraded primary to call 1-800-372-7181 to contact their Senator and Representative to express their opinion on this bill. I am telling them also to call 1-800-582-4557 to determine the status of the bill.

The 1994 Legislature needs to be aware that they will have to assume full responsibility, if failure to pass this bill will cause some primary teachers to decide that the stressrelated health problems are too high a price to pay and leave the classrooms and quit teaching. These will be teachers who love to teach and are concerned about the students. They will leave with a heavy heart. I have talked to some of them.

Another concern that needs to be addressed, is the large number of parents who are planning to homeschool their children or place them in private schools if a change isn't made. This should cause real concern in the Department of Education.

I personally am concerned for the parents who are not at home to homeschool their children and who cannot afford to send them to a private school.

Schools that wish to continue the ungraded primary system should have that privilege. Schools that wish to return to the graded primary system should have that privilege. They can gradually phase in some of the objectives of the ungraded system that they think are important. A good teacher always finds ways to do this.

I urge you to co-sponsor and vote 'Yes' on HB 187. I personally know many, many parents and teachers who will be grateful to you.

Heart groups sound alike, but are different

There is some confusion within our community that warrants clarification. An organization called Heart tucky household and is designed to Support of America is soliciting funds in our communities. The problem is that many of our residents do not realize that the donations made to this "sound alike" organization do a valuable educational and cultural not support the mission of the American Heart Association. The Heart to pledge your support. You will be Support of America has no local vol-

For nearly 30 years, each February has been named American Heart Month by presidential proclamation. And for even more years volunteers have walked their blocks during February collecting donations and distributing educational material for the American Heart Association. This year Heart Support of America is also soliciting during February.

The American Heart Association takes great pride in the work it accomplishes through the efforts of more than 25,000 volunteers across Kentucky. The American Heart Association is committed to funding cardiovascular research and education, with less than 20 percent of Kentucky Affiliate expenses going toward administration and fund rais-

Heart Support of America, on the other hand, admits unusually high administrative and fund raising cost of 70 percent. They admit their educational efforts are in disseminating information in fund raising appeals.

There is no connection between the American Heart Association and Heart Support of America. Yet we have received a number of inquiries and want to caution anyone receiving solicitations to closely scrutinize the organization before giving.

Editor:

This year KET is celebrating its 25th year of broadcasting quality programs for Kentuckians. I can think of no better way to mark this occasion ing its annual membership drive, to be held March 5-20.

Although there are many worthwhile organizations, few can match KET in the depth and breadth of services and programs it provides.

KET delivers quality children's programs, in-depth news coverage, and incisive documentaries.

KET enables adults to get high school diplomas and build their reading skills. It helps children start school ready to learn; offers advanced high school science, math and language courses, which would otherwise be unavailable; and allows non-traditional students an opportunity to gain college credit via television.

"Missing" cheerleader knows true meaning of "cheer" at PHS

Editor:

This is in response to Ed Taylor's editorial about "Where are they?"

One missing Blackcat cheerleader happens to be my niece. Myself as well as other family members have supported and watched her work hard from elementary school till now; as with any athlete, so that when she entered high school she could participate and be a part of her school.

Webster Dictionary defines cheer as a happy state of mind; a cry of applause; to give comfort and reassurance to; joyous; in good spirits. Leader—to guide by influence; to be the best among; to show the way; being first. Being a cheerleader sort of lost its true meaning.

As with any group or organization you have rules and regulations for each individual to follow, "right?" "Wrong." Could there be a "problem?" I think so. The system has let another child down.

I cannot speak for the other "four missing cheerleaders," but for anyone who is concerned, my niece is "not missing," she is still among the student body at Prestonsburg High School and she has found the true meaning of cheer. As for leader she will always be first with her family.

I want each of these girls and the ones in past who are "missing" to know that they have not been forgot-

Thanks Ed for noticing and giving than with a contribution to KET dur- an angry aunt and supporter the opportunity to sound-off.

Weak standards? Judge-executive poll indicates little desire to enact stringent ethics codes

Judging from the results of a recent poll of Kentucky judge-executives, many of the codes of ethics that local governments are required to enact this year will be weak.

Many of the judge-executives surveyed by the Lexington Herald-Leader expressed little interest in holding elected and appointed officials to the highest standards of conduct.

A bill enacted by the Kentucky General Assembly requires all local governments to enact codes of ethics by January 1 or face a loss of state funds. However, the law does not specify what the codes should say other than that they must deal with financial disclosure and nepotism.

In our view, full financial disclosure should be required of all elected officials. People have a right to know whether their elected officials have a financial interest in the decisions they

However, 59 percent of the judge-executives said they oppose requiring local officials to release information about personal finances. Many said an official's financial interest is nobody's business. They're wrong. It is the people's business if an elected official votes to direct county business to a business in which he has a financial interest.

The judge-executives also said financial disclosure would scare off many good candidates from public office. However 103 of the 111 said they would have run even if required to release their finances. So much for that argument.

The original ethics code proposal called for candidates and their immediate families to disclose the source of any income above $5,000; the name of any business in which they own at least 5 percent; and the location of property holdings worth $10,000 or more. Those standards—stripped from the final version of the bill—should be the minimum required by local ethics codes.

Even more telling, half the county chief executives opposed banning businesses owned at least in part by officeholders, their families or partners from doing business with the county. Any ethics code that does not do this would hardly be worth the paper it was printed on.

The Herald-Leader poll did not address the issue of nepotism, but with spouses and children of elected officials holding jobs in most Kentucky counties, the chances of fiscal courts enacting ethics codes banning the hiring of family members range between slim and none

We repeat what we said earlier in this space. If counties and cities are to enact meaningful codes that will require the highest standards of conduct from their elected and appointed officials, the people must demand it. The poll makes it clear that many elected officials are not about to enact tough ethics codes on their own.

'The FBI will be calling...'

After a highly successful raid on state government, the FBI has apparently packed its bags and is heading to the "Little Kingdoms."

In the wake of last week's arrests of the Lee County sheriff and 24 other Eastern Kentuckians on drug related charges, V. Dave Kohl, special agent in charge of the FBI in Kentucky, indicated that local government may be the next target of the

"The FBI will be calling, and this is one of our first knocks," Kohl said after Lee County Sheriff Doug Brandenburg and others were arrested last Friday

Last year's BOPTROT investigation resulted in the conviction of dozens of state officials, including former state Sen. David LeMaster of Paintsville. Local government should be easy pickings compared to that complex probe.

That is obvious in the arrest of Brandenburg. He is the second consecutive sheriff in Lee County to be charged in a FBI investigation. The first, Johnny Mann, is serving 24 years in prison on drug charges. Drugs, however, should not be the only thing the FBI should concern itself with during its local government probe. Other areas—improper purchasing procedures, use of tax money, abuse of office-should also be addressed.

If BOPTROT was the code name for the FBI's investigation of state government, what will they call the local probe? There is an abundance of possibilities, some of which cannot

Audit county office

Local government has been the subject of several bills during the current session of the General Assembly. One, advocated by State Auditor Ben Chandler, should become

It requires an audit every four years of each fiscal court, county court clerk and sheriff in Kentucky. Who performs the audit—the state auditor's office—is the center of debate

Chandler thinks the state auditor should conduct them, saying some local CPAs don't have the expertise and knowledge. This is not true in Johnson County, where an audit a couple of years ago by a private firm uncovered mishandling of money in the county's solid waste program and resulted in the indictment and conviction of two solid waste officials.

No good citizen would argue that audits of local government are not necessary. However, maybe the bill should be amended to allow the state to contract with local accounting firms to perform the audits. If the auditor's office is concerned about the integrity of the firm, then it could do the

The point is, audits need to be done. Plain and simple. I hope the debate over who should do them doesn't spell disaster for this bill.

-Letters

God told me that it would come about in mysterious ways, but that it would all fall into place. For one reason or another the large business who lent a helping hand in past years failed to do so this year.

On December 10, I made a phone call to the business checking to see if Phi Theta Kappa members could pick up the gifts that day. I was told by the contact person that the sixty-five names had not even been distributed yet. What else could I do but make a quick decision to extend the time? We did not want that many unfilled names back at that late-date.

Again I made a phone call on December 17 to OK that day's pickup of gifts. Again, the same story was told-the names were still not distributed. My heart fell to my feet. Only one child has a present from this establishment. What on earth can I do now? The five social agencies are coming Monday, December 20 for their pick up of these gifts. And the checking, sorting, and double checking has yet to be done. Have we failed in this endeavor? Would sixty-five pairs of twinkling eyes not be lighting up on Christmas morning because of this? Oh, yea of little faith!

I had the pleasure of two of my best friends company for lunch that day. Their names are Betty Boyd and Wanda Justice. I mentioned this devastating situation to both of them, then returned to work. They stayed behind making preparations for a miracle to happen. They started asking for donations from Jeff Fleming, manager of Pizza Hut. He donated covered plastic cups and coloring books for our kids.

Betty made stops and Wanda made phone calls. Christian Appalachian Project donated two sets per child of the most wonderful books ever printed. They also gave toothpaste, tooth brushes and cookies for each child. Robin Harris of Velocity Market donated candy canes and grocery bags. Wal-Mart gave wrapping pa-

Wanda got the promise from a sizable business for next year's event. Betty spent many hours and much gasoline money from her own pocket gathering all of these goodies. She begged her family members for money to buy for the kids not yet old enough to read books. She bargain hunted for appropriate gifts for the remaining names and ages.

We had three different wrapping sessions and one combining session prior to these gifts being intertwined with the gifts already at our school. It took two cars to get these sixty-five bags of presents to school on Monday morning. A special thanks is in order to Rick and Vickie Ellis for helping with this. Also a big "thank you" needs to go to Tim Cooley, Dickie Johnson, and Bill Fitzwater at Prestonsburg Community College for unloading these gifts.

Phi Theta Kappa members, faculty, staff, students, advisory board members and friends of Prestonsburg Community College all helped to make this Circle of Love happen.

Neither Betty nor Wanda did this work in search of public recognition. They did it from the goodness of their hearts. They each are truly unsung heroes and deserve a pat on the back and a loud "yeah" for a job well done. Without them the circle would not have been complete. Now an additional 230 plus children's eyes will sparkle on Christmas morning.

And now for a partial story that is printed in an edition of each years Enquirer called Is There A Santa Claus? written by eight year old Virginia O'Hanlon to the New York Sun newspaper in 1897:

The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of children.

To Betty and Wanda—a deepest heartfelt "thanks a bunch" for making glad the heart of children. You both are truly unsung heroes!

Breathitt judge's lawyer says attempt to oust Henson is political vendetta

Prestonsburg lawyer Ned Pillersdorf, representing Breathitt County Judge-Executive Nim Henson said Wednesday that an attempt to force Henson out of office is designed to put a political rival into office.

But Breathitt Commonwealth's Attorney Mike Stidham, who has filed a lawsuit to remove Henson, said there's no political motive behind the move.

In the case, which is set for a hearing today, Stidham contends that Henson did not file a required $50,000 performance bond until four days after he took office—an apparent violation of state law.

The law requires that county officials such as Henson must post the bonds "on or before" the day they take office. If an official violates that provision, the law says, "his office shall be considered vacant, and he shall not be eligible for the same office for two years."

Stidham said he is merely following the law, not executing any political vendetta. As proof, he noted that he has filed a similar lawsuit against Powell County Clerk Sherry Bowen, whom he said he has never met. Any officials in his district who have not filed proper bonds will be subject to the same action, said Stidham, whose district includes Breathitt, Powell and Wolfe counties.

"I've found that trying to do your job and politics don't mix," he said.

Stidham and Henson, who are both Democrats, were not political allies during the most recent county elections.

Stidham is an ally of former sheriff Dean Spencer, who lost to Henson in the Democratic primary for judge-executive last May. After Spencer left the sheriff's office, Stidham left the sheriff's office, Stidham hired him to work as commonwealth's detective.

Their allegiance has prompted speculation that Stidham may be trying to clear the way for Spencer to become judge-executive, said Ned

If Henson is ousted, a new judge-executive would be chosen in a special election after the local parties nominated candidates. Pillersdorf said the Breathitt Democratic committee would most likely nominate Spencer. The Democratic nominee would be favored in the heavily Demo-

Spencer could not be reached for comment Wednesday. But Stidham said there was no such plan to put him in office. "He's expressed no interest to me in the county judge's office,"

Spencer was one of four Eastern Kentucky sheriffs arrested on drug and extortion charges in 1990 as a result of an FBI sting. He was the only one acquitted of all charges.

Pillersdorf said the little-noticed law requiring timely bonds may put several other county officials in similar situations.

Forest fires destroy 30 acres of woodland

Smokey the Bear and his ranger friends worked overtime in Lawrence County over the weekend as rampant forest fires destroyed more than thirty acres of prime woodland.

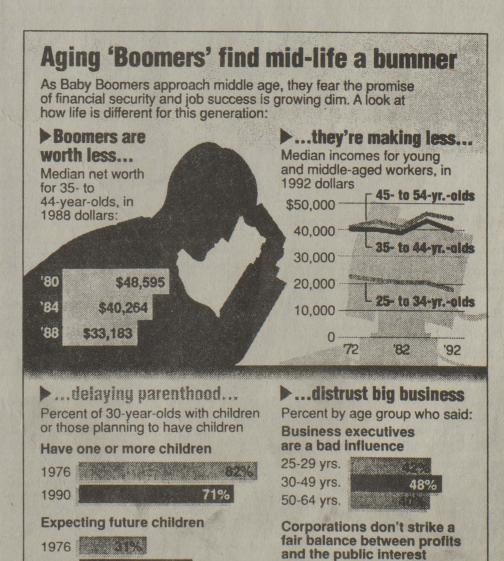

Assistant Chief Paul Yates of the Fallsburg Area Fire and Rescue Department said Monday that five Fallsburg firefighters accompanied Kentucky Division of Forestry rangers to battle a fire at Little Laurel near the Martin-Lawrence County

The fire apparently began at an abandoned coal mine and spread to destroy at least ten acres of timber before being brought under control,

Also on Saturday, a Division of Forestry spokesperson said, rangers battled separate blazes at Chapman and Hatfield Branch. Fifteen acres were lost at Chapman and five at Hatfield Branch, the spokesperson said.

The respective causes of all three fires are still under investigation.

TONYA'S A HARD'UN

t's a sad state of affairs that has resulted in Tonya Harding's name being almost synonymous with such villains as Manson, Dahmer, and Judas. The mere mention of her name evokes some type of comment from practically every person alive.

Personally, I have a soft spot in my heart for Tonya even though she might have had prior knowledge of the vicious physical attack perpetrated against rival skater, Nancy Kerrigan. This softness became apparent when I began to view Tonya as a victim. My heart bleeds for children, who for some reason or another don't have equal opportunities, particularly in America where wealth and poverty stare each other in the eye. Children from ghettos, broken homes; children who don't get enough to eat; and for those who are abused by their parents. Children who never have the comfort of a warm bed or receive a kind word. From all media accounts, Tonya falls somewhere in between.

Every article you read talks about Tonya being a trash talking, cigarette smoking, pool playing, bleached blonde, trailer park toughie that would do anything to win an Olympic medal, even at the risk of maining the competition. Other statements made have been that she wasn't polished, sociable, nor sophisticated. On the other hand, the media describes, Nancy, as being a beautiful, clean-cut, ingenue, from a nice family; thus alluding to the fact that Nancy deserves the medal. However Nancy Kerrigan comes from a loving, caring family that stands staunchly behind her. While Tonya's mother is noticeably absent and her estranged father has agreed to talk about his famous daughter only for a price.

Most people reared under the same conditions as Tonya would not have a chance, yet Tonya did everything she could to overcome her background and rise above it. Clawing and fighting every step of the way; confronting one obstacle after another and winning.

If I didn't know better, I'd think Tonya was an Eastern Kentuckian. Everything that has been said about us is now being said about her. And in a lot of ways, I can see the comparison. At least in the media's mind. Even if she is proven to be an accomplice in the attack on Kerrigan, that in no way impairs her ability to skate. Just like the way we talk should in no way impair our ability to think.

Maybe if we could trace Tonya's ancestry back far enough, we might discover that she's a relative of the Hatfields or McCoys. The media could have a field day with that information. At least there would be a method to this madness. The headlines might read "her genes made her do it." Certainly her mother would have to have some connection with Eastern Kentucky or she couldn't have neglected Tonya the way the media has depicted. One thing for certain and two things for sure, her husband, Jeff Gillooly is not from Eastern Kentucky. That name is not indigenous to the mountains.

In my heart, I hope Tonya is innocent. For her sake and

ditor's Note:
Geoff is an emotional wreck
right now, so we've asked our resident psychologist, bon vivant and man-abouttown Dr. Bubba to fill in this week. For those of you who aren't familiar with his work, Dr. Bubba is a retired professional wrestler-turned advice columnist/ millionaire philanthropist/ international sex symbol/ world-renowned author and fitness guru.

Sorry ta break the news ta you folks like this, but this here's prob'ly the last edition o' "Truth, Justice and the American Way" ya'll ever see Likewise with mah column "Ask Dr. Bubba," now syndicated in ever' country in the Western hemisphere.

The Belcher kid got a new gig workin' fer the school board an' Ah'm goin' with 'im an' we prob'ly ain't gonna be allowed ta write fer this here newspaper no more.

He'd tell ya 'bout it hisself, but he's real broke up about it right now, so he asked me tuh explain it in muh own patented, sensitive fashion. Basically, OUR KIND AIN'T WANTED HERE NO MORE!!!

Nah, just kiddin'.

Ever' body's been real nice about it; they just ain't sure if'n we're gonna be able to handle the pressure o' workin' a new job AND still write our columns.

That's 'bout it, kids. And remember we love you very, very much.

Poperri

There comes a time in every man's life when he must look adversity and pain square in the eyes, grab the bull by the horns and say those four words that his pride would never before allow to be spoken...

PASS THE BEN GAY!!!!

Life teaches us many valuable lessons.

Like a 40-year-old should never let his masculine ego take the place of common sense.

Unfortunately, by the time most of us learn the lesson, we're already in traction.

Or walking with a limp, like I am after accepting a challenge from a gang of six, seven and eight-year-olds to a game of basket-ball.

The outcome of the game, of course, was never in question.

My sizable height advantage and the fact that about half the other team couldn't muster the power to get the ball to the goal assured me of victory.

But then, knowing this bunch of hooligans like I do, I suspect the outcome of the game was never really important.

They were much more interested in seeing how long it would take before I experienced a total physical collapse.

They must have even placed bets on it, because every few minutes they'd call time out, get into a huddle and exchange what appeared to be money.

Probably they were betting on how many different shades of red my face would turn during the course of the action.

A couple of the littler ones must have gone broke because they opted out of the game for the teeter totter long before the final buzzer (or, I should say, my last gasp) was sounded.

Anyway, what I thought was their awe at my amazing court prowess, picks and rolls, reverse layups and net-swishing threes was really just their way of fattening the hog for the slaughter.

After the game, as I lay dying, they sold tickets to the neighborhood.

See the corpse for just a dime.

The Floyd County School District has announced that it will participate in the 1993-1994 National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), which will provide the country with information on the reading, proficiency and U.S. history and world geography knowledge of American youth.

Creative, innovative, and cooperative are three words that can describe the new chapter I format at AMS this year.

The Chapter I program has undertaken a new challenge, collaborative teaching. Mrs. Stratton, Mrs. Parker, and Mr. Hamilton, Chapter I teachers, go into classrooms and give Chapter I students individual help and group instruction. This approach keeps students from being labeled Chapter I students.

It also gives the teachers a common planning time with regular classroom teachers to ensure students get the instruction they need to help them reach learner outcomes and goals.

Think about it

The great escape

What a great idea it was to put a prison in Wheelwright! More jobs for the people. It finally put us on the map, and now we have a few more convicts running loose perhaps in our own backyards, one of whom was doing time for a manslaughter charge.

That's right—three inmates have escaped from the prison in Wheelwright, but you can honestly say that it has been the first escape from the prison since it was built way back in the fall of '93.

I could care less about what affect this has on the prison. After all, I don't plan to stay many nights there in the near future. What I do care about is if there is a raving murderer hiding beneath my porch ready to spring when I go to take the trash out. Am I going to have to pack my shotgun on one shoulder and the trash on the other and play cloak and dagger all the way to the trash bin and back?

Nobody has seen these on-theloose convicts since their departure from the 5 to 10 Inn so what are we to look for? Well, taking from the little I know, I've made a list of some of the signs that might give them away.

·If someone offers you a rather large, steel friendship bracelet, hurriedly refuse the offer.

•If you go to take the trash out and the garbageman has a bigger gun than you, don't hang around to find out what kind of game he hunts.

•When the door-to-door license plate salesman start knocking on your door, it's time to get out the big

Those are just a few tips I thought might be helpful until this thing blows over or blows up, whichever one comes first.

more step in fine tuning their game when they traveled to Phelps Tuesday night to face the Hornets.

Chris Potter poured in 21 points to lead the visitors to a solid 82-54 win over Phelps. Potter hit two threepointers in the contest. Derrick Newsome added 14 points and point guard Keith Hamilton finished with 13 points, which included three treys.

Betsy Layne evened their overall record 12-12 on the season.

The Bobcats owned a six-point lead at the half but, according to Coach Henry, they were a different team in the second half.

"We played much better the second half," said Henry. "We made a couple of adjustments at the half and it worked for us.'

One of those adjustments was going to a more run and jump, man-toman defense. Phelp's guards were unable to handle the change in the second half and Betsy Layne began to pull away.

"Their guards were just inexperienced and didn't handle the basketball too well," said Coach Henry. "We just kept playing hard and our shot selection was better the second half.

Rebels to close regular season on road against Jenkins Friday night

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

The Allen Central Rebels, hoping to pull off a big win on the road at M.C. Napier, found the Navajos more competition than they really wanted. Napier buried the Rebels with their inside game, along some help from technical fouls.

The loss had Rebel fans shaking their heads and wondering why they even make the trip to Hazard "when you know you're not going to get a break."

Well, there will be no more trips to Napier as the Navajos said good-bye to the school in their final home game. Napier will consolidate with Dilce Combs next season to form Perry County Central.

Turnovers were a problem for the Rebels throughout the game and their matchup zone didn't seem to affect the Navajos at all.

Hot-shooting guard Hurley Combs and forward Robbie Thompson made it look easy as they combined for 50 points in handing Allen Central only their seventh loss of the season. The Navajos continued to be the topranked team in the 14th Region, improving to 25-3 on the year.

Combs tossed in 24 points and Thompson finished with a game-high 26 to top the Navajos' scoring. Combs slashed through the Rebels' defense and when he was checked, dished the ball off to Thompson or forward Mike Ritchie. Ritchie finished with 10

BIRTHDAY WISHES...

Allen Central's Amanda Samons will celebrate her 15th birthday Monday. Amanda plays for the Lady Rebels and is going to be a fine basketball player. Happy birthday, Mandy!

Also, birthday wishes go out to another John Pelphrey look alike -- John Moore. Moore performs for the Allen Central Rebels and he will turn 16 Monday. A big Happy birthday, John.

BAD NEWS HITS CAMP...

It appears that Jessica Hamilton will be lost to the Betsy Layne Lady Cats for the remainder of the season. Jessica injured her knee in a junior varsity game Monday night against Johnson Central.

The loss of Jessica will be a major loss for the Lady Cats, who are solid regional contenders. Jessica was "instant offense" when she entered the game.

Jessica, keep your head up and hang in there. You'll be back!

WORDS FROM THE PAST...

Don Handsford knew what he was uttering when he said, at the final home game last year, that the Allen Central Rebels had played their last game on their baseball field.

"Take a good look at it (the field). This will be the last time you see it," Hansford

It is a fact! The field is in very great danger of not being part of the Allen Central campus. On-going problems still hold up the development of the new field located behind the high

Even the track and field facility looks to be just an idea that will not become a reality. What a shame! Why do things have to be the way they are in our county? Why do our kids have to do without because we can't seem to do things right?

WAS PUNISHMENT TOO MILD? What do you remember most about Kentucky Wildcat basketball the past two weeks? The 31-point comeback or the fact they cheated to win over Vandy?

So, the Kentucky Wildcats basketball team has resorted to cheating to win basketball

I am a Kentucky fan. And I consider myself a strong fan. I'm like everyone else when it comes to the close games. I can't stand to watch them at times.

I did stay up with the Cats to witness their "miracle" comeback against LSU. I was so proud of the way this team did not fold. They played very hard the last 15 minutes of the game and pulled a thrilling victory. I have watched the game five times since then.

One thing I noticed was they did not have to cheat to come from 31 points down to win, but just played hard-nosed basketball.

Against Vanderbilt though, the Wildcats had to replace two players at the free-throw line to insure a win over the Commodores.

Has it come to the point that Kentucky has to cheat to win? Many people remembered the great comeback that Kentucky had against LSU. Now, the last thing that will be remembered is that to win they cheated against Vanderbilt.

My hat is off to Rick Pitino for his suspension of the three players -- Travis Ford, Gimel Martinez and Jarod Prickett. But is a onegame suspension sufficient for the crime? I think not!

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

The three suspended players need to realize that kids look up to them. They are heroes to many who dream of playing for the Big Blue. Is that the kind of image they want to create and leave, cheating to win?

Once again the Kentucky image has been tainted. The three players found it to be funny, amusing, yes, even hilarious. Pitino thought otherwise and took the right course, except he should have been sterner.

Makes you want to root for the Vols doesn't it? Nahhhhhhh!

NOT INTENTIONALLY...

In our article on the Prestonsburg Football Banquet, we failed to mention that Kyle Fitzpatrick also was chosen to play in the upcoming Kentucky/Tennessee All-Star game in Tennessee.

We failed to mention it because we did not have any knowledge of his selection. Word of mouth informed us about Seth but we received no word about Kyle. It would have been nice if we were provided with stats on both players and a news release of the selection. But there was never an official

We are happy for both players and I know that they will be great ambassadors to Prestonsburg High School and the Eastern Kentucky area. I wish them well.

14TH REGION OFFICIALS LEAVE A LOT TO BE DESIRED...

Basketball officiating has been a much discussed subject this basetball season.

And the conclusion that has been drawn is that it has been slim pickings when it comes to finding quality officials this year. I have always bragged on the better officials in the 15th Region, but even there, the quality has been down. But I haven't seen any officials as bad as the 14th Region officials that I witnessed at M.C.Napier Tuesday night. Now I will confess, that I haven't seen all the officials in the 14th Region. And I am sure that there are one or two good ones, but the ones that I have seen have been weighed and found wanting. Until next Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports, even to the officials. Take your kids to Sunday School this Sunday. You'll be glad you did.

Leveridge's two free throws at DR. W.C. THORNDYKE :01 sink Prestonsburg, 87-86

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

David Leveridge must have had ice water in his veins as he stepped to the free throw line with just one tick left on the clock. Dilce Combs trailed the Prestonsburg Blackcats 86-85 when Leveridge was fouled.

Leveridge looked as if it was just a routine trip to the stripe rather than a nail-biting one. He sank both tosses to give his team the one-point vic-

Dilce Combs placed three players in double figures in the victory, and got strong support from the bench in posting the win.

The loss was Prestonsburg's fourth straight defeat and they dropped to 12-15 on the season.

The Blackcats had rallied back from a 76-68 deficit to take a fourpoint, 80-76 lead with less than four minutes to play. Cory Reitz led the spurt with eight points. Reitz hit a jumper to give Prestonsburg a 77-76 lead and then completed a three-point play for the four-point advantage.

Back-to-back baskets by Harold Brashears and Leveridge tied the game at 80-80. Clint Shutts slipped through the Dilce Combs' defense for a basket and Ryan Ortega hit two charity tosses with 1:51 left to give Prestonsburg a four-point lead, 84-

Andy Combs, who only had seven points in the game, scored five of them in 42 seconds to give Dilce Combs the lead at 85-84. Combs hit a three-pointer and a short jumper with 1:09 left.

Thomas Ratliff went to the free throw line with 25 seconds left, but missed the front end of the bonus shot. Combs duplicated Ratliff's feat for Dilce Combs and Toby Robinson scored with just four seconds left to send the Blackcats out in front 86-85. But Leveridge ended the game with his two charity tosses.

Robinson got Prestonsburg in front at the onset of the game when he buried a three-pointer. But that would be all for Robinson until the third period when he picked up two early first period fouls and was relegated to the bench, not to return until the sec-

The score was tied at 8 until Prestonsburg took a 16-13 lead on two field goals by Reitz and a Ratliff layup. A 9-2 run gave Dilce Combs a 22-21 lead after the first quarter on the strength of Harold Brashears' scoring. Brashears scored nine of Dilce Combs' first 11 points as he had his way in the first quarter.

Jason Martin, Allen Central, went strong to the basket for two points as M.C. Napier's Brandon Combs held his ground. Martin scored 11 points in the game but his team dropped a 96-68 contest to the Navajos. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Martin was visibly upset over the officiating and was hit with the technical. Steve Turner was whistled for his second foul and it drew Martin's protest. Thompson hit one of two for the personal foul and Combs connected on the two technical fouls. The Navajos were off and running with a 24-16 lead.

They extended the lead to 12 on a 6-0 spurt that was highlighted by a Thompson dunk. Napier took a 44-31 halftime lead.

Patton was very aggressive under the basket for Allen Central and scored often when he got the ball. Jenkins, using his jumping ability and quickness, made his tracks to the Jason Martin was called for a flagrant foul in the fourth period and was sent to the bench. That brought on a discussion at midcourt.

Hall had his pocket picked twice and frustration set in the junior point guard after that.

The final 28-point margin was the largest of the game for the Navajos. For Allen Central, Samons finished with five points. Jason Bevins added four as did Turner. Kevin Stumbo scored two.

Standing at the free throw line was a bit one-sided. The Navajo's went to the stripe for 39 attempts to Allen Central's 19. The Rebels hit 11 of their attempts while Napier connected

Lady Blackcats finish third in conference with 65-51 win over South Floyd

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

The stage has finally been set for the girls bracket of the 58th District Tournament that gets underway next Wednesday at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse in Betsy Layne.

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats and South Floyd Lady Raiders met at South Floyd this past Wednesday night to settle who would be the third place team. Prestonsburg won over the Lady Raiders for the second consecutive time to finish third in the conference.

Had South Floyd defeated the Lady Blackcats a tie would have existed, and it would have taken a flip of the coin to determine the third seed.

Prestonsburg coach Bridget Clay was pleased with the way her team performed at South Floyd and feels that things are beginning to click for her ballclub.

'We looked good in winning and I feel that we are finally coming together as a team. We're starting to do things that we have tried to all season; things that we need to do," Clay

Three players scored in double figures for Prestonsburg. April Newsome buried three three-point baskets in the second quarter to finish with a game-high 20 points. Jamie Ratcliff was a close second with 19 points and freshman Crystal Layne netted 15.

Jamie Clay, who returned to the team a month ago, went down in the second quarter, causing some concern to Coach Clay. But the Prestonsburg coach said that she reentered the lineup in the fourth quarter "and busted a three-pointer.'

Clay and Heather Collins each scored four points. Misty Price added two and Jennifer Miller scored one.

South Floyd raced out to a 17-8 first quarter lead as Prestonsburg was caught standing around. Coach Clay didn't like what she saw.

"We weren't ready to play in the first quarter," she said. "We looked confused on defense early. We made some adjustments for the second quarter. Crystal and April were outstanding in the second quarter.'

we pushed the ball more."

Newsome returned to the court in the second quarter and hit her three treys as she pumped in 12 points in the period. The defensive adjustment for the Lady Blackcats proved to be a good move as the Lady Raiders could only score seven points in the second stanza against Prestonsburg.

'We tried different things in the second quarter," said Clay. "We played hard and I was well pleased."

The defensive effort continued for the Lady Blackcats as South Floyd only scored six points in the third period. Prestonsburg led 43-30 after three quarters.

Clay said that her team has some healing to go "with four kids in ice

"We're just trying to hang in there,"

Ratcliff pulled down 10 rebounds for Prestonsburg with freshman Heather Collins gathering in seven.

Rhonda Thornsbury led the Lady Raiders with 12 points. Susan Stephens added 10 and Staci Shepherd finished with eight. Crystal Newsome scored seven while Krystal Isaac, in an off-night, finished with Tiffany Compton tossed in four with Canidia Hamilton and Lori Tackett scoring two each.

South Floyd dropped to 3-17 on the season and will host Knott County Central Saturday night.

The Lady Raiders take on first place Betsy Layne in the first round of the 58th District Tournament, Wednesday night.

Prestonsburg completed their regular season Thursday night. The Lady Blackcats will take on Allen Central Thursday night in tournament play.

Second Season begins March 2-4. Watch for special pullout Wednesday, March 2

March Madness

District is still to be determined.

Shelby Valley or Pike County Central could still be the number one seed. That will be determined when Pike County Central and Millard meet in the final regular season game.

If Millard knocks off Central, then the top seed will go to Shelby Valley and Millard will become the third seed and Pikeville the fourth. If Pike Central is victorious, then the top seed will go to the Hawks with Millard the fourth seed and Pikeville the third Shelby Valley will play Pikeville in the district and Millard will go against Pike Central. Upsets! There could be a couple here.

In the girls' 59th District, the pairings are settled with Pikeville taking on Shelby Valley on Wednesday, March 2. Pike Central will face a strong Millard team on Thursday, March 3, with the championship game scheduled for Friday, March 4.

60th District

The Elkhorn City Cougars are the district's top seed and a strong favorite to come out as the winner.

The other three teams include Belfry, Feds Creek and Phelps. Pair-this time, the seeding in the 59th ings for the 60th District haven't been lev Lady Wildcats in the 59th District determined.

> For the girls in the 60th District, only three teams will compete for the title since Feds Creek is not fielding a team. Belfry, Phelps and Elkhorn City will battle for the crown. Look for a Belfry/Phelps showdown in the

You would think that at this time of the year and with the tournaments scheduled to start next week that it would all be clear as water. But instead it's mud. Stay tuned!

In the 57th District, look for Johnson Central to upend Magoffin County and Paintsville to have their way against Sheldon Clark.

It will be a Johnson County showdown with the Tigers emerging as district champs.

Johnson Central and Paintsville girls will create another Johnson County battle with Johnson Central the winner.

The 59th District will be a strong one and Pikeville could be the sleeper here. The Panthers are always a strong tournament team and could be the one that takes out Shelby Valley early. But don't look for it as the Wildcats will prevail to meet Pike Central in the finals. It will be the Wildcats over

You have to like the Shelby Val-for the girls. Of all the four districts, as March Madness! this one is going to be tough. Shelby Valley will have no trouble with Pikeville but may find either Pike Central or Millard a little more resis-

Shelby Valley will face Pike Central in the finals and will come away as a district winner.

60th District

Randy McCoy's Elkhorn City Cougars are certainly in an unparity district. The Cougars will have little trouble with whomever they play. However, Belfry, Phelps or Feds Creek will have their hands full with the Cougars.

Elkhorn will face Belry in the finals and will win it hands down.

The girls' 60th District will be a different story. Both Belfry and Phelps boast strong teams and should meet in the finals. Belfry has it all to win the whole show and will come away with a win over whomever they face in the finals.

What about the 58th District? Again, stay tuned!

Of the eight teams that will come into the 15th Region tournament at Allen Central, any one could be in Louisville the following week

Betsy Layne's starting center Brain Hunter returned to the starting lineup for the Bobcats but saw limited playing time. Hunter is nursing a sprained ankle that has slowed him down. But, Henry says that it is time for Hunter to play ball again.

'We have gotten to rest Brian some these past few games," said Henry, "but that's all over now. It's time to play some basketball."

Barry Clark, Mark Ousley, Rocky Newsome, Hunter and Meade scored four points each for the Bobcats.

Betsy Layne, who finished third in the Floyd County Conference, will host the Sheldon Clark Cardinals on Senior Night this Saturday night.

The Bobcats will face Prestonsburg on Thursday, March 3, in the first round of the 58th District Tournament.

Are Free Radicals Eating Away Your Cells?

By Betty Kamen, Ph.D. (NAPS)—These days it seems everybody's taking antioxidant vitamins like C, E and beta-carotene. But the newest free radical fighter is the essential trace mineral zinc:

Free radicals are highly reactive molecules that literally eat away at our cells and genetic material. They are implicated in some 60 age-related diseases, including cancer, heart disease and premature aging.

Free radicals result from exposure to alcohol, tobacco, pesticides, radiation and other pollutants. They are also by-products of normal cell metabolism. If free radicals are produced faster than the body can neutralize them, free radicals become highly toxic.

How Zinc Fights Free Radicals

The body uses antioxidants to detoxify free radicals. The exciting news about zinc is that it not only helps eliminate harmful free radicals, zinc helps prevent them from forming.

Zinc is an essential part of superoxide dismutase (SOD), a powerful antioxidant so important it's the fifth most common protein (of more than 100,000) produced by the body. By preventing oxidation, zinc protects vital bio-molecules called sulfhydryl compounds from turning into free radicals. Further, zinc competes with prooxidant metals (iron and copper) for binding sites. decreasing their ability to form free radicals.

zinc is important for proper immune function and has a protective, antioxidant role in the body.

Zinc also helps limit the production of free radicals produced naturally by the body. A recent study at the University of California showed that people taking a zinc monomethionine supplement significantly reduced excess levels of superoxide free radicals produced by white blood cells. Daily Dose of Zinc

Because our bodies contain a mere one to two grams of zinc, there is a very delicate balance between the amount of zinc consumed each day and the amount that can cause symptoms of zinc deficiency. Mild or even marginal zinc deficiencies can affect the quality of hair, skin and nails, sex drive, taste and smell, and perhaps most importantly, immune function.

While the adult RDA for zinc is 12 to 19 milligrams per day, individual requirements can vary depending on age, sex, diet, climate, stress, infection and level of physical activity.

Unfortunately, current healthful recommendations for diet and exercise can actually deprive the body of zinc. A high-fiber meal can tie up more than 97 percent of the zinc consumed, and aerobic exercise actually increases zinc losses from the body. Foods rich in bioavailable zinc include meat, liver, nuts, eggs and seafood, especially oysters. Unfortunately, these are some of the richest sources of fat and cholesterol. Taking a zinc supplement may be the most prudent and effective way of insuring adequate intake.

It's important to note that moderate amounts of good quality zinc are absorbed far better than large amounts of poor quality forms like zinc sulfate or zinc oxide. When choosing a supplement, look for chelated zinc, especially zinc monomethionine. Research shows this form is easily absorbed and utilized by the body, even in the presence of dietary fiber and phytate. Zinc monomethionine also provides the amino acid, methionine, another potent antioxidant.
