State says one-bid is a no-go for project

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school officials apparently violated state law with Monday's award of a one-bid construction contract to the construction manager of a school project, but that move should not delay a scheduled June 15 bond sale.

At Monday's board of education meeting, board members voted to award a $56,650 hoisting contract for the Betsy Layne Elementary classroom addition to Martin Engineering, the company that is employed to provide construction management services on the project.

Last month when bids for the classroom addition project were opened, only one bid was received for the hoisting package. In accordance with a board policy, the hoisting services were bid for a second time and, again, only Martin Engineering's bid was received on the project.

Under Kentucky Revised Statute 162.066, "...the construction manager shall not award construction contracts to any company which the manager owns or in which the manager has a financial interest if less than two bids are accepted."

Jim Osborne, the school system's chief of operations, said Tuesday that he was unaware of the state law and it appeared that the contract could not be awarded.

Osborne said that Sam Martin,

Suspect surrenders to police on charge of drug trafficking

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An Auxier man wanted on drug charges turned himself in Monday morning to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

William "Ray" Johnson, 22, was wanted on charges of cultivating and trafficking in marijuana in connection with a raid on his home last week.

Last Thursday, members of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force, the Prestonsburg Police Department and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department executed a search warrant at Johnson's home and found six marijuana plants growing on his property. They also found various pieces of drug paraphernalia.

Officers arrested Harvey Patton, 42, of Green Acres, Thursday in connection with the search of Johnson's home. Patton was charged with trafficking in marijuana within 1,000 yards of a school after allegedly selling marijuana to an undercover task force officer.

Johnson was charged with cultivating marijuana and trafficking in marijuana within 1,000 yards of a school.

Johnson was released on bond shortly after his arrest.

Four-year-old flags down help; leads to injured dad

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Four-year-old Hailey Scarberry stood alone on a dangerous, curvy highway at Turkey Creek the early morning hours on May 27. She was "covered in blood." In a ditch at her feet lay her father, critically injured.

Hailey thought she was "going to Mamaws" that morning. Instead, she took a trip into a nightmare.

Just a few minutes before the nightmare began, Hailey and her father were returning home from a friend's house. Her home was less than 100 feet away when the jeep her father was driving struck a clump of dirt, causing it to veer out of control. The driver's side of the jeep struck the hillside and bounced off. Hailey's father, Malcolm Scarberry, was flung from the topless jeep and into a ditch.

The jeep landed on top of Scarberry, hit the hill again, rolled across the highway and plunged several feet down a steep hill, said Hailey's mother, Leitha.

The four-year-old child was still inside, buckled into the passenger's seat.

When the jeep came to a stop, Hailey heard her father screaming her name. Somehow she wiggled out of the seat belt.

Hailey searched for her father. She grabbed clumps of weeds and poison "ivee" to pull herself up the steep embankment.

When she finally reached the top of the hill, she ran across the road and found her father in the ditch. He needed help and she knew what she had to do because she had "watched it on a stranger movie," a television special that told children how to get help if they were abducted by strangers.

"And I did," she said recently as she searched through the keys she had been jingling. "Here's the keys we wrecked with," she said.

On Turkey Creek Road that morning, Hailey pointed her right index finger and clenched the fingers of both her hands tightly around it, waiting for a vehicle to swing around the curve near where she was standing. When a truck, and then a car approached, Hailey wiggled her index finger toward the vehicles. Both stopped.

One of the drivers, Mary Terry, was on her way to work at Martin Elementary where she is lunchroom

Board splits over pact for bus drivers

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It appears that it's back to the bargaining table for the Floyd County School System's bus drivers following the school board's failure Monday night to ratify a driver contract with the United Steelworker's Union.

Union representatives and school officials have been working on the three-year contract for bus drivers over the past five months. Both sides said Monday that they felt they had an acceptable agreement.

But the board deadlocked in a 2-2 vote on the issue and board chairman Ray Brackett suggested union officials come back at the June 20 meeting when a full board would be in attendance.

Board members Brackett and Eddie Patton were in favor of the contract, but board member Dolores Smith wanted more time to review the proposal and Brent Clark was in favor of a one-year agreement.

Union organizer Ernest Thompson told board members that bus drivers would not vote for a one-year contract and called the proposal a "good first agreement."

Patton, who participated in the contract negotiations, recommended to fellow board members that they accept the contract.

"Since this started last November, no bus drivers have brought their complaints here," Patton said. "They have held up their end of the bargain and acted in good faith. I can recommend this to you."

Superintendent Steve Towler agreed and said it was a contract both sides could live with.

Clark said he thought a one-year deal was being negotiated and he

Burchett is chosen to fill vacancy in circuit court post

A Prestonsburg attorney has been named to fill the vacancy in the Division One Circuit Judge's seat in Floyd County.

Governor Brereton Jones announced on Friday that Paul P. Burchett, who is also a candidate for the post in November, would replace Judge Harold Stumbo, who died in January.

Burchett and Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill will face off in the November general election to serve the remainder of Stumbo's term which ends in the year 2000.

Burchett said Tuesday that it has been one of his goals to be circuit judge.

"I'm very pleased the governor appointed me to be circuit judge," Burchett said. "It's been my desire to be circuit judge for probably about 15 years."

A swearing-in ceremony is planned for July 1.

New track is named 'Thunder Ridge'

By Matt McCarty
Staff Writer

With less than a month to go before the start of the racing season in Prestonsburg, Clyde Woods, a co-owner of the new harness racing track, announced the name of the track will be the Thunder Ridge racing and entertainment center, last Friday, June 3.

Keith and Kathy Smallwood were also named the winners of the $500 prize in the Name Game, which was a contest used to name the track. The track, however, was unable to use any of the suggestions in the contest.

Thunder Ridge, which will begin harness racing on July 3, one day after the Red Mile closes, will feature one "premier" stakes race that should bring in top quality horses.

"Everything is going to be ready to go (by July 3)," Ed Cain, the track manager, said. "There's no doubt manager.

"At first, I thought there had been a fight," Terry recalled. "I saw a man in a truck and a little girl standing there. She was dirty and had blood on her."

"I stopped and the man (in the truck) yelled that there must have been an accident. He didn't know what happened. He stopped because he saw the little girl beside the road."

"We couldn't see any vehicle. The little girl was crying. She was scared. I picked her up and I talked to her. I asked her questions. She said they were in a car wreck and she had climbed up the hill."

"She told me her daddy was laying in a ditch."

Hailey took Terry and the man to the ditch and pointed to where her daddy lay injured.

"She was standing beside him. He was in really bad shape. I don't know if I would have seen him (without Hailey stopping the vehicles). It was a little foggy that morning," Terry said.

"Once he said 'where's my baby,' I told him 'I've got your little girl and she's fine.'"

"Hailey was so brave. She told me everything. She must have had blood on her from hugging her dad. She wasn't cut. She just had a seat belt mark on her."

"I had a bruise and a little scratch right here," Hailey said later, pointing to a place on her neck. "But it went away and the scratch did too."

When Hailey told Terry her name, Terry thought she knew the family because Scarberrys lived near the accident site.

"I asked her if her mom's name was Leitha," said Terry. Leitha had graduated with Terry's twin daughters Paula and Pamela.

Hailey told Terry that her mother was at work. "She's at the hospital," Hailey said.

Terry took Hailey to the nearby home of Debbie Bailey and asked Bailey to call an ambulance. Terry called Hailey's mother at Highlands Regional Medical Center and assured her that the child was fine, but she also told her that Malcum was lying in a ditch, seriously injured.

Terry took the child to Wal-Mart and bought her Jasmine and Aladdin dolls before taking her to relatives.

"I just wanted to do something nice for her," said Terry, who gets emotional when she remembers the incident. "She's just a sweet little kid and I thought it would take her mind off her daddy."

"Her mother brought her down to the lunchroom to see me recently. She gave me a great big kiss and told me she thanked me."

Malcum Scarberry was transported to Our Lady of the Way Hospital and then transferred to the intensive care unit of the University of Kentucky Hospital. He is listed in critical, but stable, condition.

Hailey wants to visit him but isn't allowed.

"When I went to see him, they wouldn't let me see him. He had those tubes on and they thought it would scare me," she said.

Hailey saw her father in the emergency room and became very upset, her mother explained. "Hailey and her father are very close. He babysits with her when I work. He has roosters and she helps him take care of them."

Hailey remembers the accident as a "dream," a dream that won't end until her father comes home.

Cory Patrick Allen celebrated his sixth birthday on June 4 with a party at McDonald's in Prestonsburg, which was attended by family and friends. He is the son of Susan Allen of Prestonsburg and Joe Allen of Corbin.

Kunath and Music to wed

Mr. and Mrs. James Kunath of Endicott, Ky. proudly announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Bobbi Kunath, to Terry W. Music of Prestonsburg, Ky., son of Ella Music Sammons and step-son of J. S. Sammons. The wedding ceremony will take place on Saturday, June 18, 1994, at St. Martha Catholic Church on Watergap Road in Prestonsburg. Friends and family of the bride and groom are cordially invited to attend. The ceremony will commence at 2:00 p.m. A reception for the bride and groom will be held at the church shortly after the couple are united in holy matrimony. They will reside in Allen, Ky. after a honeymoon at Myrtle Beach.

State will decide next month if schools require further management assistance

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

State school officials will back in Floyd County next month for a review to determine if the state should relinquish some of its control over the district.

Prior to Monday's board meeting, local board members met with Sandy Gubser, of the state's office of management assistance, to discuss progress the district has made and what areas still need improvement.

Details of that meeting are not available because the media was not notified of the session, an apparent violation of the state's Open Meeting Law.

After the discussion with Gubser, board members said they were under the impression that the press had been notified of the meeting.

Gubser said after the meeting that state officials will conduct a review of recommendations made by the state after an extensive investigation into the district in 1992. She said state officials will determine what further assistance is needed in the district, if any, after next month's visit.

In a report given to the board Monday, state officials said that "significant progress" has been in the district's maintenance and physical plant operations. Also, school officials have advanced the budget development process to incorporate individual school needs.

One area which remains incomplete is the development of a process to inventory the district's assets. The report said an inventory system is expected to be implemented in the fall.

In the spring of 1992, a team of state school personnel came to Floyd County for a week-long review of operations and procedures. The investigation produced a list of 89 recommendations for improvement in the system. Board members have been working since the fall of 1992 to correct the deficiencies.

Drivers

asked that a no-strike clause be inserted in the agreement.

Union representative Alan Whicker told Clark there would be no problem adding a no-strike clause, but disagreed that it was understood it would be a one-year contract.

Whicker added that a clause in the contract provided for both sides, if they agreed, to review the proposal annually if problems developed.

Clark was not swayed and the issue is expected to be addressed at the June 20 board meeting.

Under the proposed contract, bus drivers would receive a three percent increase the first year and salaries would be reviewed each year. The contract also addresses seniority; grievance procedures; and school trips.

In other action Monday, board members voted 3-1 to rebid the contract for a $500,000 classroom addition at Adams Middle School.

In the first round bids, Elliot Contracting was the apparent low bidder with a $590,000 offer to build two classrooms and a technology lab. The only other bidder was Commonwealth Building and Construction with a bid of $664,254.

Board members were concerned because the project came in about $80,000 over original estimates.

Architect Randy Burchett and superintendent Towler told board members that if the project was re-bid it could not be included in a June 15 bond sale. Burchett added that project costs could also come in higher after the second bid round.

Board members Patton and Brackett changed their minds and moved that the low bid be accepted, but the motion failed on a 2-2 vote.

Also Tuesday:

- the board approved a 5.6 percent fee schedule for the architectural firm of Johnson/Romanowitz for the renovation of Prestonsburg High School;
- the board approved the effective schools plan for Melvin Elementary;
- Louie Cook asked that school officials work toward getting the regional and state spelling bee competition reinstated;
- the board voted that a copy of the working agenda be made available to the media on the Friday before the Monday board meeting; and
- Lance Blackburn asked board members to carefully review the three proposed sites for a new Betsy Layne Middle School.

Board member Phyllis Honshell was absent from Monday's meeting.

Local ambulance service offers additional service

Respond Ambulance Service, of Watergap Road, received approval from the Kentucky Medical Licensure Board on April 19 to add Advance Life Support (ALS) to its emergency care services.

Respond added the service after it met all state requirements from the licensure board, said Duane Branham, director of the ambulance service. Respond is the first to meet the state criteria and to offer this level of care to Floyd County citizens, Branham said.

Advanced Life Support offers a higher level of emergency care in the pre-hospital and environment by utilization of paramedics in addition to emergency medical technicians, Branham said.

In addition to Basic Life Support services, Respond Ambulance Service now can offer, through the use of paramedics, such services as advanced patient assessment; establishment of intravenous (I.V.) fluids; monitor heart rhythms with an electrocardiograph (EKG); administer defibrillation (electric shock) to restart an arrested heart; administer many types of emergency medications; advanced airway management techniques (tracheal intubation), as well as other ALS services allowed by the state, Branham explained.

Between the time it was approved for ALS and May 30, Respond paramedics responded to 114 calls. The unit receives its medical control through Highlands Regional Medical Center and Dr. Brizendine.

about that. We'll just be fine tuning after that."

The track will have harness racing every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday until the track closes in mid-September. In all, there will be 46 days of racing this season.

The center will also be the site of simulcast racing, NasCar sanctioned stock car races, horse shows and concerts. Simulcasting will begin July 15 and will be held year round.

"The fruits of our efforts are about to be recognized," Woods said.

Thunder Ridge will be able to draw several of the horses that race at Red Mile which will make Thunder Ridge's quality "very comparable to the Red Mile."

The averages purses each day will be about $12,000, Cain said.

Developmental delays information on children available to doctors

Kentucky physicians who work with children can now order valuable information from the Cabinet for Human Resources about a system of intervention services for children from birth to 3 years of age who have developmental delays.

The First Steps physician technical assistance papers are available from the departments of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services and Health Services free of charge, but there is a limited number.

"The First Steps information packet is an excellent resource for pediatricians and family practitioners because it explains the intervention system and the physician's role in it, plus it gives practical suggestions to assure that medical factors are addressed in planning early intervention," said Lynne Flynn, acting director of the Division of Maternal and Child Development.

"This information will help physicians know who is eligible for the Kentucky Early Intervention Services and how and where to make a referral for these services. Children with disabilities, and developmental and behavioral problems now represent up to 20 percent of patients in the average pediatric office practice," she said.

"Physicians have key roles in the early detection of developmental delays or potential problems so that the child can get services as soon as possible," Flynn said.

"To maximize the benefits a child can receive from this early intervention program, physician participation and collaboration is critical," she said.

To order the First Steps Physician Assistance Papers, write the Cabinet for Human Resources pamphlet library at Frankfort Habitation Inc., 3755 U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, KY 40601 or call (502) 227-9529.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Just do it!

by Scott Perry

Okay, we're convinced.

The Guv has persuaded us that he's not, as they say in poker circles, betting on the come when he says there will be enough money to pay for his wish list of state construction projects.

Being a fiscal conservative and an adamant no-new-taxes kind of fellow, we hesitated to endorse the Governor's plan because it first called for new taxes and then was based on the speculation of economists that surplus money would be available in the future.

Neither of those ideas were attractive.

Lately, though, the Guv has hummed a few new bars that might just make us change our tune.

Jones says the bond sale for new construction projects won't, in fact, increase the state's debt because other bonds will be paid off soon.

That, plus projected surpluses and a commitment to maintain a $100 million reserve to offset any downturn in the economy should, Jones says, be more than enough to pay for his building proposals.

Okay, we're sold.

New jobs will be created during the construction and renovation work the Guv has planned.

More new jobs will be available once they are completed.

Old jobs will be retained, and some of the proposed projects, like the golf course at Jenny Wiley, will generate revenues of their own.

We believe.

And as a convert, we recommend that our legislators end the debate, the stonewalling and the bean-counting over financing the whole shebang and take the advice that has become so popular among the younger folks.

Just do it!

Marijuana and health care reform

Editor:

Governor Jones has vowed to work on health care reform proposals so that all Kentuckians receive high-quality health protection, but does he take into account patients undergoing chemotherapy treatment for cancer and AIDS, or those blinded by wide angle glaucoma?

AIDS and cancer patients have a longer chance of survival with the use of cannabis as it increases their appetite and ability to combat the side effects of chemotherapy treatments. And pressure caused by wide angle glaucoma is greatly reduced by the use of cannabis.

Gubernatorial Candidate

Gatewood Galbraith foresees the need of cannabis as a medicine, and advocates its use. By focusing, this could be an opportunity to prove that all who suffer deserve better medical treatments, but is our foresight broad enough to understand the needs of AIDS patients?

The mystery of child-rearing

By Judith Clabes
Scripps Howard News Service

"If you bungle raising your children, nothing else much matters in life."

Those words of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, by all accounts a single parent who did not bungle raising her children, will be immortalized.

They strike at the heart of every loving parent who wants nothing more than to raise good children. They capture the hopes that our children embody—from the happy anticipation of pregnancy, to the euphoria of birth, to the trial-and-error of the growing-up years, to expectation of security in old age.

They summarize how concerned parents every day assess their personal worth.

There isn't any job a devoted parent wants to do better. Yet child-rearing is the hardest job we do, and it is inherently high-risk.

Oh, sure, we know the basic ingredients for success. Lots of love, but not too much. Lots of discipline, but not too much. A healthy measure of values. Participation, interest, concern, guidance. Listening and hearing. Talking and communicating. Teaching and counseling. Cheering and coaching. Setting standards. Being there.

Parents mix the ingredients in various measures to try to get the recipe just right. Then they find that what worked on one child doesn't necessarily work on the next—and that's where the unknowns come into play.

There are plenty of unknowns these days, and they're scary because so many are beyond a parent's control. Peer pressure. The influence of movies and music, drugs and violence. Instant mass media. Affluence or poverty. Society's heroes and society's values. Too many to mention, and so many to counter.

So while no responsible parent wants to bungle the most important job going, it just isn't as simple as that.

Consider the tales of two teens, told in two separate but dramatic newspaper stories recently.

One is the story of Tony, an 18-year-old high school senior, who—by all appearances—had absolutely nothing going for him. His family life is a mess. He barely remembers his father. He was once taken from his mother because of abuse. He had an older brother on drugs. His sisters were in and out of runaway shelters and became unwed mothers. Three of his four siblings dropped out of high school. Tony himself has been to seven different schools. He failed seventh grade.

To anybody who was looking it seemed that Tony was doomed to the same loser track his siblings took.

Today, Tony and his mom are homeless. They live here and there, with relatives sometimes, surviving on a couple of hundred dollars worth of food stamps each month. A caring teacher picks up Tony for school and another sees that he gets wherever home is. Yet when Tony graduates from high school in a few days, he'll be taking his 4.0 grade-point-average and his perfect attendance record straight to Yale, paid in full. He will be the only graduate ever of his high school to go to Yale.

What happened? Tony happened. About the ninth grade, Tony decided he would take control of his life and "refuse to lose." He became a track star, the senior class president, an academic star, vice president of the Honor Society.

He dreams of being an astronaut, a genetic engineer and a writer—all at once. He was a kid who didn't want to be a "nobody."

"I am proud of where I came from, though," he said. "Because I know where I am going—to success."

The other is Clay's story. Clay was a lucky boy. He was born to caring, affluent, well-educated parents who lived in a fine house in a fine, safe suburban neighborhood. Anything he wanted, he had. His two sisters adored their big brother, who was an excellent student, a whiz at computers—on the college track.

His dad was a well-paid executive of his own business. His mom quit teaching to stay home with the children. Both parents took an active interest in their kids' school and extracurricular activities; they showed up at PTA and ballgames and horse shows and all that. Clay's dad took him hunting. The family went to church together.

In his 17th year, something happened. Clay got depressed; he lost his girlfriend; he dressed in black and became fascinated with weapons. Maybe, his friends say, he tried drugs. When he got into some trouble at school, his parents did what parents do—they grounded him. They took away his telephone and his car and confined him to his room.

Then, one warm spring morning, Clay woke up early, got his father's .38-caliber semiautomatic handgun from the Jeep Cherokee, shot to death his mother, father and two sisters as they slept, went to school, and held his math class hostage until an assistant principal talked him out of the gun. Clay said he'd had "a very bad day."

Today, instead of looking forward to a nice summer with his nice family, instead of a future that includes college and career and family and success, Clay is in jail awaiting trial on four counts of murder. And his family is awaiting burial.

"No one is going to make any sense out of this," said the family's minister.

He's right.

No one can make any sense out of the great failure of Clay's life—or the great success of Tony's. We can only be sad about one—and rejoice about the other.

Parents are only part of the equation. While none of us wants to bungle it, we're not quite certain how that's done—or how it isn't.

Editor's note: Clay's case has not yet went to trial and Clay has pleaded not guilty to the murders.

Coffee ☕ Break

by Scott Perry

Kentucky's Republican Party leadership is demonstrating the same sort of puritanical narrow-mindedness that cost their party the White House last election and which threatens to stymie the momentum the party has picked up in recent elections.

For some reason, the Kentucky GOP has decided that abortion, or rather opposition to it, is the single most important defining point for party membership, and leaders have adopted a resolution saying so.

Now there's an example of hypocrisy at work.

The Republican Party was founded on the principle of individual rights; that less government was better government.

Beyond that apparent contradiction, there's one important question the leaders of both parties need to answer.

What does abortion have to do with government?

The conclusions are in on a study that tends to prove a point we've been trying to make in this column for the past ten or twelve years.

School consolidation is one big boo boo.

We've claimed to the point of obnoxiousness that bigger isn't necessarily better when it comes to educating our kids and the academic stats have routinely supported that point.

Now, The Pritchard Committee for Academic Excellence has dispelled the myth that consolidation has been a money-saving device.

The Pritchard study suggests Kentucky hasn't saved anything by combining small schools into larger ones and the consolidation effort that began in the 1960s has, in fact, failed to produce better, more efficient schools.

Pardon our smugness, but we've got one more thing to say on the issue...

Told you so.

From the mailbox...

Here's an honest to goodness request from an Indiana reader who asks us to "put an ugly rumor to rest."

A co-worker has apparently advised the letter writer that "all the people from Eastern Kentucky are inbred" and that explains "their strange appearance."

Okay, we can nip that rumor in the bud.

Our strange appearance isn't from being inbred, it's from cornbread.

You are what you eat, they say.

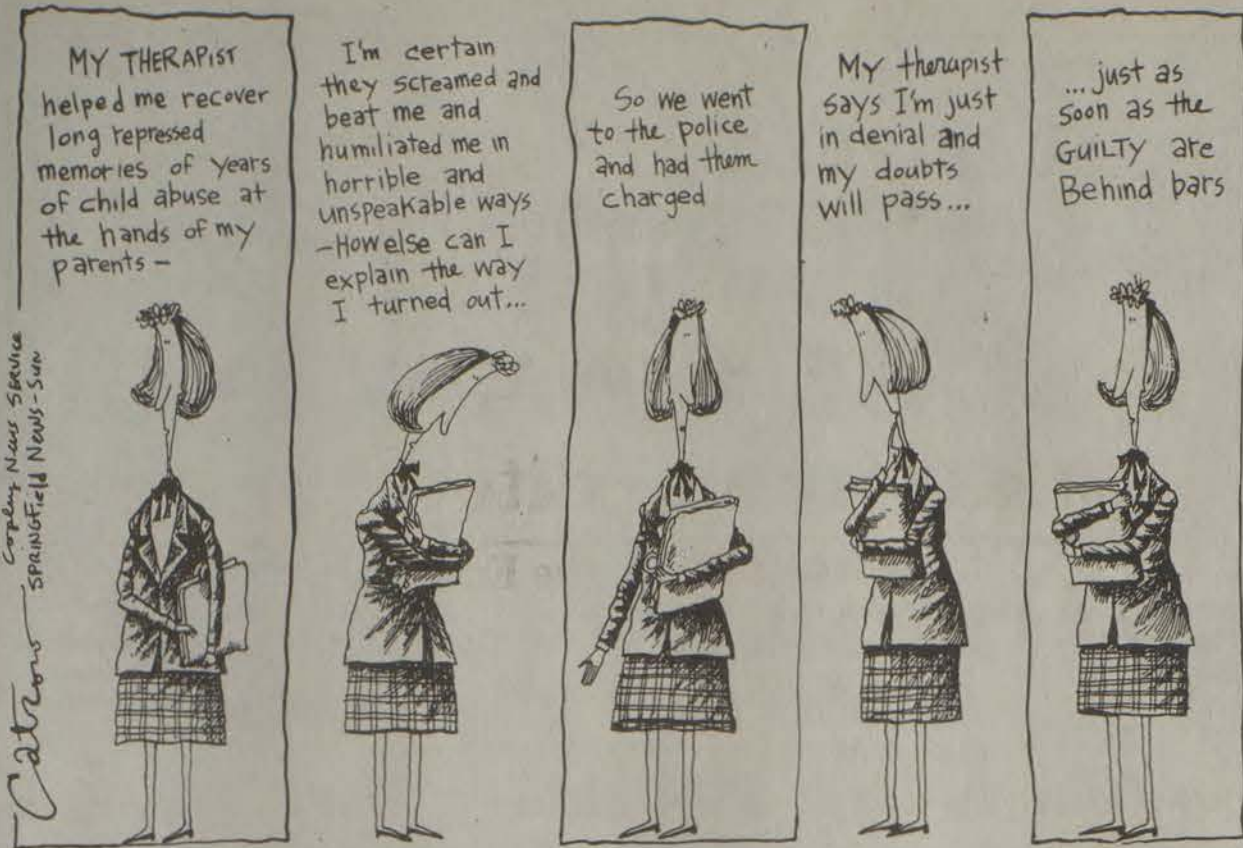

Our letter writer's pal must have dined on one too many road apples.

A couple of recent elections have offered proof that American voters think law breaking is not a hindrance to law making.

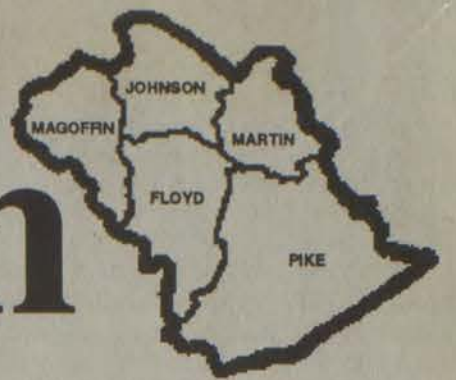

Oliver North, who admitted to breaking the law in the Iran-Contra hubbub, was awarded his party's nomination in a special Senate race in Virginia.

Dan Rostenkowski, meanwhile, easily won his primary bid for re-election in Illinois despite considerable evidence that he abused his office.

They may be crooks, they may be professed crooks, but they're our crooks. What a way to run a country.

TAXING TIMES FOR SMALL BUSINESS

by Karen Kerrigan

In selling his record tax hike to taxpayers last year, President Clinton re-cycled a classic ploy; divide the taxpayers through class-warfare rhetoric so the little guy feels like someone else is taking the hit. His "soak-the-rich" plan was supposed to make up for the massive inequities of the Go-Go '80s, the so-called "decade of greed."

Mr. Clinton got his massive tax hike through by a bare one-vote margin in each House. Now many small business owners in America are paying the price. And, as we now know, all taxpayers are paying dearly as well.

The 1994 tax season raised the ire of small business owners across America, perplexed at how they suddenly became "rich." The average small business owners in America do not characterize themselves as wealthy, but rather as ordinary Americans who are just trying (very painstakingly) to pursue the American dream.

How did hundreds of thousands of small business owners suddenly become the nation's rich? A quick look at the proportion of taxpayers affected by the Clinton tax increase who are also small business owners provides the answer.

Approximately 80 percent of all American businesses file taxes as individuals who are organized as Subchapter S corporations, partnerships, or sole proprietorships. While the Clinton administration claimed that its tax increase would impact only a fraction of small businesses, at least two-thirds of small business owners who filed in 1991 as individual taxpayers are subject to Mr. Clinton's "soak-the-rich" scheme.

Mr. Clinton's tax hike, which forces small business owners to make reparation for all of their productive economic activity in the "decade of greed," will have a chilling effect on economic growth and job creation for years to come. Though small business is shouldering the direct impact of the tax hike, all taxpayers will be squeezed by the burden put on American small business.

The new tax burden on small business owners is already felt by consumers in the form of higher prices. While large corporations have a greater ability to absorb higher taxes and increased government regulation, small business owners are limited in how they can spread the cost of a tax increase. Higher prices are a sure, albeit unpleasant, option—an option that Bill Clinton has already endorsed.

At his Kansas City town meeting, Mr. Clinton showed his bias towards passing on the costs of his tax hikes and mandates to consumers. Mr. Clinton told the CEO of Godfather's Pizza, Herman Cain, to raise the price of pizza by 2 percent when Mr. Cain raised his concerns about the new costs associated with the employer mandate (a tax by another name) in the Clinton health-care plan.

The markets are signaling a fear of inflation for good reason. If every business owner in America—the butcher, the baker, or the pizzamaker—must raise prices to pay for Mr. Clinton's health-care mandate/premiums/taxes, inflation will skyrocket.

The most severe consequences of Mr. Clinton's tax hike will be the lost opportunities for budding entrepreneurs to create more new businesses and new jobs—something America needs more of, not less. This is the devastating human cost of punishing small business owners, their current employees, and Americans looking for new and better jobs. Current employees of small businesses may experience static or lower wages as a result of the tax hike, and those looking for jobs in this sector will have great difficulty.

The engine of economic growth and job creation is the prosperous small business owners—precisely the individuals targeted for Mr. Clinton's punishing taxes. According to Dun and Bradstreet, 80 percent of new jobs in 1993 were created by businesses with 100 or fewer employees. The small businesses in this category are the ones with expanding operations; they need incentives, not disincentives, to implement their growth plans.

Fewer new businesses will be created by risk-taking entrepreneurs due to the erosion of a fundamental free-enterprise concept called risk and reward. Without risk and reward, you have killed the spirit of entrepreneurship in America.

As the United States began its recovery from the Bush tax hike, a ripening business cycle was ready for pro-growth, pro-jobs policies to set the course for a study—not fragile—economic comeback. While the Clinton White House is claiming full economic recovery as evidenced by 2 million jobs created in 1993, true standards of widespread economic recovery have already been established. Ronald Reagan—whose low-tax and deregulating policies symbolized the nation's greatest economic expansion in history—created 4 million jobs in one year, mostly by small business, between 1982-1983.

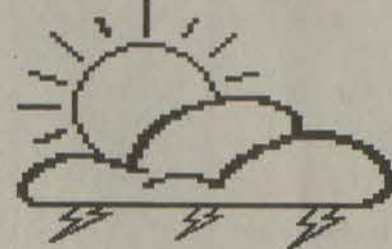

Instead of targeting middle-class business owners for another round of tax increases, Washington should look at history. When tax rates are lowered, government collects more tax revenues and America prospers.

Political leaders throughout history have experienced mixed results when attempting to hide tax increases on all Americans through the use of unwilling accomplices. Even inanimate objects, such as tea, were used by King George in the hope that American colonists would not see through his scheme to extract the wealth of the colonies for the greater glory of mother England.

The rebellion born of King George's tea tax should be a reminder to all tax-raising politicians. As we have seen in states across the nation, the citizens, led by small business owners, have begun another American Revolution. Only this time it utilizes the ballot box instead of a box of cartridges. Term limits, tax-cap and tax-limitation initiatives and mandated voter approval of tax hikes are the weapons of this second revolution.

The American people are not fooled. While Mr. Clinton may think that his plan to divide the taxpayers worked last year, most taxpayers believe that government spends, wastes and taxes too much. That's precisely the reason they are uniting to reform, and place limits on, a government that cannot restrain itself from digging deeper into all taxpayers' pockets.

Black prisoner's isolation claim denied by judge

An inmate's claim that the state unfairly isolates black prisoners in predominantly white areas is baseless, a Department of Corrections spokesman said last week.

Tony Prather, 36, of Paducah in far Western Kentucky, is an inmate at the Otter Creek Correctional Center at Wheelwright, in far Eastern Kentucky. He filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

"Blacks are being treated unfairly by being classified too far away from home, to communities where there are no blacks and the white ratio is overwhelming over the blacks," he said in the suit, filed May 24.

"In all the Eastern Kentucky prisons, the majority of the black population are at least 150-500 miles away from home," the suit claimed.

The suit names the Corrections Department, two managers in the agency's classification branch, and the acting director of the Wheelwright facility, a privately run prison that opened in August.

But department spokesman Michael Bradley said race doesn't affect assignment of an inmate.

"We have what is called an objective-based classification system," he said. Inmates are given scores based on their security risk, type of crime, history of escape, disciplinary problems and other factors, he said.

"We transfer them based on available beds." Judge Magistrate Peggy Patterson, who was assigned to the case, indicated that she would recommend the suit be dismissed. She said Prather failed to cite a constitutional basis for his claim.

Bradley said the department is waiting to see whether Prather files any more motions before responding to the suit.

Prather was convicted Dec. 9, 1988, in McCracken County of first-degree burglary and of being a second-degree persistent felony offender, Bradley said. He was sentenced to 25 years but is eligible for parole in December.—Lexington Herald-Leader

Students charged with arson at school

Four high school students have been charged in two separate incidents for allegedly setting fires at Millard High School last week.

No injuries resulted from the incidents that occurred May 24 and 25 in a girl's bathroom at the school.

Kentucky State Police arson investigator, Detective Barry McKenzie, said the students were charged with first-degree arson for starting a fire with the intent to damage a building, knowing the building was occupied.

McKenzie said he learned of the fire that occurred on May 24 after he was called in to investigate the second fire.

A small quantity of carbide or "dynamite rocks," was confiscated from one of the students after the first fire.

School Principal Robert Wright said the second fire produced a lot of black smoke, but was extinguished in just a few short minutes, thanks to the quick action of ROTC instructor Bennie Damron. The fire department was also called in. Wright said he did not know the cost of the damages.

Students were not evacuated from the building since the fire was contained to one room, but students were asked to stay in classrooms until the smoke cleared.

"Their safety was first in mind," he said. In addition to the charges filed against them, the students have been suspended for the rest of the semester.

The incidents were isolated, according to Wright who said, "Most of the students don't want that going on in their school."—Appalachian News-Express

Coal operator pleads guilty in death of miner

An Eastern Kentucky coal operator pleaded guilty yesterday to safety violations that led to a fatal roof fall.

James W. Blackburn, 42, of Regina, pleaded guilty to five counts in U.S. District Court at Pikeville. His former partner, Aaron Justice Jr., 42, also of Regina, pleaded guilty to two charges. Blackburn was charged with failing to shore up the ceiling at the Miller Branch Enterprise No. 1 mine at Gulnare before sending miners in to clean up a roof fall Dec. 4, 1991. A second roof fall occurred during the cleanup, killing miner Timmy Ratliff.

Blackburn was also charged with falsifying coal dust samples, failing to hang ventilation curtains, turning off a ventilation fan and deflating explosives without drilling bore holes.

Justice pleaded guilty to falsifying the dust samples and failing to hang the ventilation curtains. He was not involved with the mine when the roof fall occurred, Assistant U.S. Attorney H. Davis Sledd said. Sledd said the men face up to a year in prison and a $100,000 fine on each count. Sentencing was set for Aug. 9.—Lexington Herald-Leader

Autopsy planned after baby found on floor dies

State police are investigating the death of a 7-month-old Eastern Kentucky girl who apparently fell out of her mother's bed.

Kasey Breanne Hall of Topmost in Knott County was pronounced dead on arrival about 2 a.m. Monday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in neighboring Floyd County.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson said the mother, Christina Hall, told him she fed the baby and laid her beside her in the bed around 9 p.m. Sunday.

"She woke up (around 12:45 a.m.) and discovered the baby was no longer beside her," Nelson said. "And she got up and discovered it was laying in the floor face down."

Nelson said Jeff Hall, the baby's father, started CPR while Christina Hall called for an ambulance. Nelson said the baby never responded.

An autopsy was scheduled in Louisville, but Nelson said preliminary results probably wouldn't be ready until Tuesday, June 7. He said a preliminary examination showed only a bruise on the girl's left arm. No charges have been filed.—Louisville Courier-Journal

'Old Glory' stirs individual spirit; symbolizes America's past, present, future

by Bruce Thiesen

In my frequent travels I often stop to gaze upon the flag of the United States of America flying proudly in cities, towns, villages and parks.

What American doesn't feel a special sense of pride when our young men and women in uniform are seen proudly carrying the American flag with them in Kuwait, Somalia, and countless other foreign locations?

What is it about our flag that makes it more than just pieces of cloth sewn together?

It's the symbolism. In every nation there is a reason for every element that appears as part of that nation's flag. That symbolism reflects the history and heritage of the nation. America and her flag are no different.

American citizens set out to create a flag that held special meaning soon after the ties with England were severed. True to form, the American flag has been the focal point for spirit-stirring memories.

The flag of the United States of America symbolizes the glories and greatness of the historic past . . . the duties of the present . . . and the hopes of the future.

What would "Old Glory" say to us if it could talk? Franklin Lane, Secretary of Interior in 1916 on the first Flag Day, shared his idea with more than one thousand employees that day:

"... I am all that you hope to be, and have the courage to try for... I am song and fear, struggle and panic... I am the day's work of the weakest man and the largest dream of the most daring... I am the Constitution and the courts... I am the battle of yesterday and the mistake of tomorrow... I am the mystery of the men who do without knowing why... I am the clutch of an idea and the reasoned purpose of resolution. I swing before your eyes as a bright gleam of color, a symbol of yourself, the pictured suggestion of that big thing which makes this nation."

Old Glory IS something special, the living symbol of our great land.

Nothing has changed in the 78 years since that first Flag Day. Today—Flag Day 1994—all Americans believe that our flag remains something special. And nearly 80 percent of them want that symbol protected. A symbol of our nation's past . . .

present . . . and future.

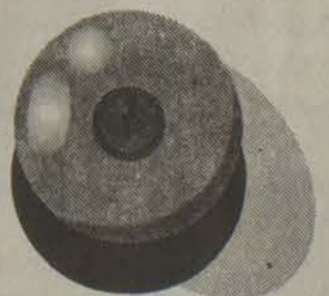

Americans from every city—from every occupation and educational level—and from every ethnic background—are standing proud today to say—we want a constitutional amendment to protect our flag from physical desecration.

America faces a multitude of problems. We are a nation that many believe is suffering from moral decay—a loss of spirit.

If America is suffering from a loss of spirit, then it is up to American citizens to begin to renew that spirit on Flag Day 1994. I invite you to join the Citizens Flag Alliance—a growing coalition of Americans continuing a "quiet revolution" to protect the flag of the United States from acts of physical desecration.

Won't you help rekindle the belief in the land, the people, and the flag of the United States of America? Support of a constitutional amendment to protect the flag of the United States from physical desecration is an important step in the process.

Old Glory is something special. Look around you at the American Flags flying proudly. Watch them for a moment, and as you do, remember that those stars and stripes symbolize more than 200 years of freedom.

One-bid (Continued from page one) owner of Martin Engineering, disclosed to school officials that he would be bidding on the hoisting package. Osborne added that it was his understanding the bid would be acceptable if Martin disclosed his intention to bid on the package.

Mark Ryles, director of facilities management for the Kentucky Department of Education, declined to comment on board's decision, saying he had not received the documentation from school officials.

Speaking in general terms, though, Ryles said that his office discouraged the practice of allowing construction managers to bid on trade contracts connected with projects which they are employed as construction managers (CMs).

"We think it is a conflict of interest," Ryles said Tuesday. "We're going to start flexing our muscles in that area. In general, we ask districts not to let CMs bid on projects (where they are working as the CM). We can't force them to do that, but we encourage them not to."

After reviewing the statute, Ryles said that the department could not approve any contract awarded to a CM if less than two bids are received.

"We won't be able to approve that (contract)," Ryles said. "We will certainly be upholding the statute."

Osborne said Tuesday that school officials "knew it was a conflict, without question" for Martin to bid on the hoisting contract, but he felt it would be allowed because Martin disclosed that he would be submitting a proposal.

School officials have scheduled a June 15 bond sale which would include the Betsy Layne classroom addition. Ryles said that the district should be able to proceed with issuing the bonds for Betsy Layne.

"We can probably work around it," Ryles said. "We could pull the hoisting package out and provide an estimate for (the cost). If there is any way to be flexible, we will."

Osborne agreed that the violation should not postpone the bond sale for the project.

Advice on how to resolve the issue will be sought from board attorney Cliff Latta, Osborne said.

Summer fun can become dangerous when alcohol and water are combined

Summer means outdoor activity for many Kentuckians, especially on the state's waterways, but that good time can be spoiled and even end tragically for people who use alcohol while enjoying water sports.

"While boating, water skiing, swimming and fishing are supposed to take your mind off work, that doesn't mean your mind can go on a total vacation while participating in these activities," said Mike Townsend, director of the Division of Substance Abuse in the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

"It's important to use safety precautions because water sports can be dangerous, especially when combined with alcohol."

Each summer Kentuckians pick up the newspaper to find people who have drowned or been injured while participating in water-related recreation. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources reports that in 1993 nine people died in boating accidents and 31 died in non-boating water-related accidents in Kentucky. According to the Boat/U.S. Foundation, more than 50 percent of all boating fatalities in the United States involve alcohol.

"Most people who indulge in alcohol while doing water activities don't realize the danger they put themselves and other people in when they mix alcohol and water," Townsend said. "Alcohol consumption affects a person's balance, judgment and physical abilities, which can lead to problems such as falling overboard, behaving recklessly and slower reaction time."

Alcohol consumption also impairs a person's vision, making it difficult to judge depth perception, the speed and distance of other objects, and peripheral vision. All these abilities are needed when operating a boat.

Drinking alcohol while participating in water sports also has some dangers that are not present on dry land. For example, the effects of wind, motion and glare while riding in a boat over a long period of time can cause "boater's hypnosis," which slows a person's reaction time almost as much as alcohol. Alcohol intensifies the effects of "boater's hypnosis" making boating, and particularly driving a boat, dangerous.

Alcohol also can cause people to become disoriented in the water. A sober person who is swimming or falls into water can become disoriented about which direction is up when water enters the ear. When this happens to a drunk person, the confusion is intensified and may cause the person to swim down instead of up to the air.

"Join Hands With Us" seeks families for abused, neglected kids

"Join Hands With Us" say Governor Brereton C. Jones, foster parents organization leaders and Kentucky Social Services Commissioner Peggy Wallace.

Their voices and faces are leading a campaign to find more families willing to shelter and nurture Kentucky's abused and neglected children.

"More than 3,000 Kentucky children have to be removed from their homes because of neglect and abuse every year," Governor Jones said. "Along with this trauma, many have to be separated from their brothers and sisters, or moved to distant communities and schools because we don't have foster homes in their areas, or families that can take sibling groups."

"To find more foster families in all areas of the state, we are asking Kentucky citizens, churches, organizations and the media to 'Join Hands With Us' in intensified efforts," the governor said.

There are ongoing local activities to support foster families, and the first statewide picnic for foster families is scheduled for June 11 at Lake Cumberland State Resort Park, co-sponsored by the Department for Social Services and the Kentucky Foster Care Association. Parent training conferences, workshops, and local events are held throughout the year.

"We take a lot of training in all aspects of our kids' lives; we are not paid babysitters," said Joreena Henderson of Greensburg, president of the Kentucky Foster Care Association.

Joreena and J.T. Henderson and Scott County foster parents Ruby and Bernice Harris appear on the "Join Hands With Us" recruiting poster along with Governor Jones and Wallace.

Since 1978, the Harrises have been foster parents for about 25 young children with them from two months to more than two years. They have adopted a girl who had joined them at age one week and is now 15.

"Our two daughters just grew up with our foster children as our changing family, and it has done wonders for all of us," Ruby Harris said. "Our church treats all the kids as our family like we do, and we all get a sense of giving something back in sharing a part of our lives."

"I tell the children, 'You only have one mom and dad, and we're just filling in.' The greatest thing for me is when the moms or dads get their lives straightened out and the children are able to be with them again."

The Hendersons have nurtured 34 foster children over the past eight years and currently have two young boys and four teen-age girls, one with a baby. The entire family will vacation at the beach in South Carolina in June.

Henderson says they have always had lots of support from her mother-in-law, her sister and nieces as well as their own children, now 19 and 21.

Henderson recently attended the National Foster Parent Association Conference in Grand Rapids and said she came back "rejuvenated to realize that Kentucky is in the forefront of some of the things that are going on."

While other states have clearly stated foster children's rights, they are just beginning to work on statements of rights of foster parents, she said. "They are talking about things we take for granted, like being respected and asked to come for (social worker or teacher) conferences, asked to go to court and speak as one of the team members for the child."

She added that, "Other states were really surprised to hear that we meet with Peggy Wallace once a quarter as an association."

"The commissioner listens and responds back with a letter on what's happening with our agenda items. I found that in many states, the foster parents don't know who their commissioner is."

For more information about foster parenting, call 1-800-232-KIDS or the foster care recruiter at a local Social Services office.

At The Cardiopulmonary Institute, Arteries Aren't All We've Been Opening

It's been a successful operation, to say the least.

In just a little more than two years, the Cardiopulmonary Institute at King's Daughters' Medical Center has emerged as a major regional cardiology center. And as our reputation has grown, so has the demand for our services. So we've expanded our staff and facilities to bring high quality cardiopulmonary care to even more people who need it.

We've added a second cardiac catheterization lab, along with its own team of highly trained specialists, to meet the increased demand for diagnostic and interventional procedures.

We've also recruited a second open-heart surgery team, led by a surgeon from the prestigious Deborah Heart and Lung Center in New Jersey.

Finally, we've opened an angioplasty observation area, to provide highly specialized nursing care and continuous monitoring of patients recovering from angioplasty.

To find out more about our services, just call (606) 327-4652. You'll find the expansion of the Cardiopulmonary Institute at King's Daughters' opens up even more opportunities to get the care you need, close to home.

We've opened a second cardiac catheterization lab and added a second open-heart surgery team to provide quality care, close to home.

Obituaries

Dr. Winston Layne Burke

Dr. Winston Layne Burke, 68, formerly of Prestonsburg, died Sunday, June 5, following an illness of several months.

Born June 6, 1925 in Prestonsburg, he was the son of the late Edmund R. and Grace Layne Burke. He was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg. He was a graduate of Prestonsburg High School, Marquette University, and the University of Louisville School of Medicine. He did his internship at Good Samaritan Hospital prior to setting up private practice in Corbin in 1956. In 1960 he relocated to Lexington and set up practice where he stayed until his health failed.

In World War II, Dr. Burke served in the United States Army Air Corps receiving his pilot wings at Turner Field, Albany, Georgia. In 1946, while serving at Trux Field in Wisconsin, he married Jayne Probst, who survives.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, Kentucky Medical Association, Kentucky Academy of Family Physicians, Fayette County Medical Society, Lexington Flying Club, and the Bluegrass Sportsman's League, where he served as president of the Casting Division. He was a past president of the American Casting Association, an F.F.A. Medical Examiner, a member of the Governor's Commission for Medical Services, and a member of the National Aviation Hall of Fame.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by three sons, James Robert Burke of Morehead, John Russell Burke of Versailles, and William Layne Burke of Humble, Texas; one daughter, Jan Elizabeth Steele of Franklin County; one sister, Alice Gray Buchannon of Lexington; three brothers, Edmund R. Burke of Shelbyville, William B. Burke of Paris, and Lucien F. Burke of Lake Oswego, Oregon; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be Thursday, June 9, at 1:30 p.m., at the Southern Hills United Methodist Church with the Rev. Robert Nelson officiating.

Burial will be in the Bluegrass Memorial Gardens on Harrodsburg Road, under the direction of Milward Funeral Home.

Serving as pallbearers will be Barry McConathy, Ted Critchfield, James Cunningham, Marshall Allen, Dr. James E. Butler and Harold Buchignani. Honorary pallbearers will be Drs. Robert Burkhart, William Burkhart, George Gumbert and Harold Faulconer and Joseph Pace and Charles Kragel.

Seventh-day Adventists Believe...

Man and woman were made in the image of God with individuality, the power and freedom to think and to do. Though created free beings, each is an indivisible unity of body, mind, and spirit, dependent upon God for life and breath and all else. When our first parents disobeyed God, they denied their dependence upon Him and fell from their high position under God. The image of God in them was marred and they became subject to death. Their descendants share this fallen nature and its consequences. They are born with weaknesses and tendencies to evil. But God in Christ reconciled the world to Himself and by His Spirit restores in penitent mortals the image of their Maker. Created for the glory of God, they are called to love Him and one another, and to care for their environment.—Fundamental Beliefs, 7.

Cook wins spelling bee

by Geoff Belcher
Floyd County Schools

He may not have received a deluxe, all-expenses-paid vacation to the "Caribbean," but Osborne Elementary's Brent Cook didn't feel like he got "stung" either.

Cook, a 13-year-old seventh-grader from Bevinsville, emerged the victor from heated competition at Floyd County Schools' annual county-wide spelling bee at Adams Middle School last week by correctly spelling the word "Caribbean."

Cook, the son of Louie and Perlene Cook, faced strong opposition from all challengers, including runner-up Andrea Griffith, of Allen; and second runner-up Matthew Caldwell, of McDowell, who fell only in the final seconds of the competition.

Other students representing their schools in the county-wide bee included Elizabeth Blackburn, of Prestonsburg; Amy Keathley, of Harold; Jessica Rae Hale, of Prestonsburg; Lindsey Johnson, of Melvin; Teresa Jarrell, of Banner; Alicia Shell, of Betsy Layne; Miranda Slone, of Martin; Brandon Vanderpool, of Hippo; Kelli Newsome, of Grethel; Letisha Yates, of Eastern; Tina Spradlin, of Prestonsburg; and Jesse Roberts, of Prestonsburg.

All participants in the bee received special plaques for being spelling champions from their respective schools. All awards were donated by Floyd County Schools' Writing/Language Arts program.

Prestonsburg High concert band rates "Excellent" in state festival

The Prestonsburg High School Concert Band participated in the Kentucky Music Educator's Association District 9 Concert Band Festival. The band, under the direction of Keith Coleman, received an overall rating of "Excellent." This rating is the result of combining the scores of four different college band directors who serve as adjudicators and evaluators. Participation in the festival is an important indicator of a program's strengths and allows the band director to incorporate recommendations from the judges into the task of improving the band.

A highlight for the Prestonsburg Band was the awarding of a "Superior" rating in the category of sight reading. In this event the band is given a piece of music that they have never played before. The director then has five minutes to try and help the band create a performance without prior rehearsal. A "Superior" rating is the highest rating possible.

The festival is an event whose format fulfills many of the aspects of KERA. Each group is evaluated against a musical standard, not against each other. There is no competition, so that there is no first or last place. Each band receives feedback which can help to improve the overall quality of the program.

Old times remembered

Tramble Turner (right) served as postmaster at Wayland during the 1940s. Turner and his wife, along with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Turner of Chattanooga, Tennessee, attended the celebration at the Wayland Post office.

Wayland Post Office marks 80 years of loyal service

Wayland, a booming coal town before World War II, is centered at the junction of Kentucky 7 and 1086 and the confluence of Steele and the Right Fork of Beaver Creeks, 14 miles south of Prestonsburg.

In 1913, the Elk Horn Coal Company opened a mine and established the town, which was named for the U.S. Senator Clarence Wayland Watson of West Virginia, and president of the Consolidation Coal Company. The post office was established May 18, 1914—80 years ago—with Louis Martin the first postmaster.

On May 18, several former postmasters, officers-in-charge, clerks, and descendants of former postmasters, returned to Wayland to help celebrate the post office's 80th birthday.

Mike Campbell, postmaster of Hindman, joined postmaster, Genevieve Combs in welcoming honored guests. Attending the celebration was a former postmaster in the 1940's, Tramble Turner of Allen, along with his wife and son, Joe, and his wife from Chattanooga, Tennessee. Also present was Tramble Turner's brother, Ezra, a resident of Wayland, who was a clerk at the Wayland Post office approximately 1926.

Patricia DeCoursey of Hindman, whose father, Ben Shephard, was postmaster in the 1930's, met many old friends and reminisced about old times with some other classmates. DeCoursey also had a brother-in-law who was a former postmaster of Wayland, Ameredith DeCoursey. Attending in his honor were his brother Gene DeCoursey and daughter Genia Hall, both of Wayland.

Many other friends and relatives came by to visit and join in the celebration.

The post office was decorated with pictures of the history of the town of Wayland. Many depicted its history as a mining town with the railroad running through town, the company store, the post office, and many showing Wayland when the town was covered by flood waters.

Bluegrass State Games offer something new in 1994

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

What's new in 1994 in the Kentucky Bluegrass State Games that's scheduled to start July 29 in Lexington?

Look at this!

• Three-on-three basketball (everyone loves this game) has a new Youth Division for young people from ages 6 to 17 years old. Lexington Catholic basketball coach Danny Haney will head up the Youth Division Sports Chair.

• Soccer will have a new open division for both mixed and girls' teams.

• Kentucky Educational Television will provide statewide coverage of the opening ceremonies and a highlights telecast on the Monday after the games.

• The program to provide free scholarships for financially disadvantaged youth has been expanded statewide. Two-hundred scholarships will be given across the state.

• Individuals can now enter more than one sport if the sports schedules allow.

• Sam Dunn is the new Executive Director. Fred Hynson, Executive Director of the Kentucky Recreation and Parks Society, has joined the Games' Board of Directors.

• This is the 10th anniversary of the Games.

Here are some entry deadlines of interest:

• June 24 - Equestrian (dressage and combined test), soccer, softball and tennis.

Errors, walks haunt Betsy Layne in 10-4 loss to Corbin Redhounds

Newsome, Clark, Ousley named to All-Tournament

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Corbin Redhounds ended Betsy Layne's dream of reaching the final four in the Kentucky State Baseball Tournament after posting a 10-4 win over the Bobcats. The two teams met in the championship game of the Section 4 playoffs at Pikeville last Thursday evening.

What got Betsy Layne to the championship game — defense and pitching — haunted the Bobcats as they closed the season with a fine 25-13 record.

Starter Derrick Newsome and reliever Barry Clark had problems finding the strike zone against Corbin as they issued six base on balls in the game. The defense wasn't sharp either as they committed an uncharacteristic seven errors.

Of the six walks, four came in to score, adding to the saying that base on balls will come back to haunt a pitcher.

Newsome went the first inning and a third as he allowed five runs on five hits. He walked three batters and did not strike out a hitter.

Corbin used its speed on the base paths in the first two innings which netted them a 5-1 lead. The Redhounds stole four bases in the first two innings and scored each runner.

Corbin put two runs on the scoreboard right out of the gate as David Parsons walked with one out, stole second and scored on Jody Mouser's RBI single.

After Mouser stole second, Jason Siler singled him home for a 2-0 score. Siler was thrown out trying to steal second base. Marcus Fox doubled, but was forced at third for the final out.

The Redhounds added three in the second against Newsome. Patrick McCowan tripled in one run and scored when the throw from right field was missed by third baseman Shannon Newsome.

Parsons walked, stole second and scored on Mouser's second hit in as many innings. Mouser's hit greeted Barry Clark when he came on in relief of Newsome.

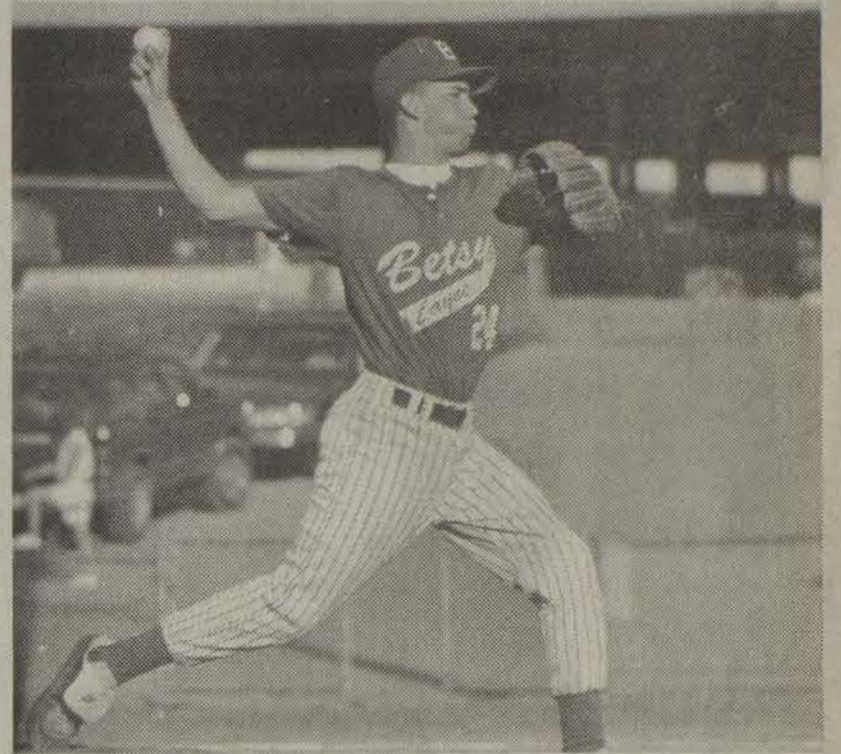

Betsy Layne got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the second on three consecutive singles by Scott Ousley, Willie Meade and Keith Hamilton.

Ousley singled with two out and Meade followed with a bouncer up the middle. Ousley came around to score on Hamilton's rope down the left field line.

Corbin continued to take advantage of some sloppy fielding by the Bobcats and control problems on the mound. Clark walked Brian Angel to start the third and Duane Evans hit what appeared to be a tailor-made double play ball to third. Newsome, in his haste to get the twin killing, muffed the ball for an error. Both runners were sacrificed up and Evans scored on a passed ball to make it 6-1.

Versatile Castle has bright baseball future

Mr. Versatility

Brandon Castle was playing at second base in this game although he can play at any position on the field. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It's a rarity today to find one baseball player with so much talent bundled up into one body. But a Betsy Layne freshman (sophomore next season) is all that, and much more.

As a member of the Betsy Layne Bobcats' 15th Regional champions and runner-up in the Section 4 tournament, Brandon Castle has been used at almost all positions at one time or another.

Whether he is at first, second, short or third, his love for the game comes through.

Here is a young man that has a bright future ahead in the game of baseball. He plays each position as though he is a veteran and plays it well.

A solid defensive player, Castle can hit for power or average. He swings a surprisingly strong bat and can reach the fences as demonstrated during the past season when he busted out six home runs.

While mostly used in the infield, he can also roam the outfield and, if needed, don the "tools of ignorance" and play the catcher's role.

But what makes him even more versatile is his ability to go to the mound and turn in a stellar performance. While the Bobcats were rich pitching wise this season, Castle was used by Coach Junior Newsome in a relief role.

Even though the high school season has ended, you will still find Castle fielding grounders, striking out opponents and, yes, clubbing some home runs in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League at the Allen Park.

Three years from now, no one will be surprised if his name is called out in a major league draft, much like Brad Tiller of Sheldon Clark this season.

Barring any injuries or such, Castle is definitely going to be one of the top baseball players to come out of Floyd County.

Many fans around the area found it hard to believe that he was just a freshman at Betsy Layne.

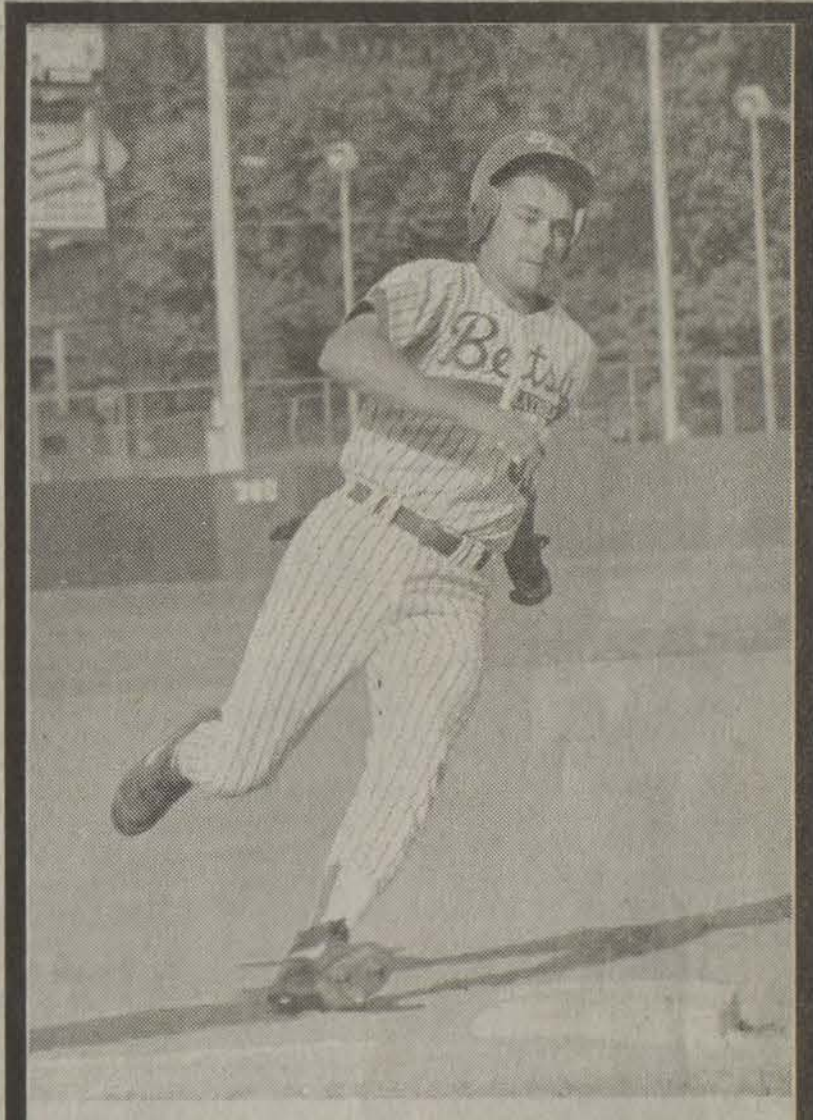

It is just a pleasure to watch this kid play baseball. You feel that something exciting is going to happen when he comes to the plate.

In the seventh inning of the championship game against Corbin, I got just that feeling. That feeling was confirmed when the ball sailed over the center field fence for a solo home run.

I look forward to the next three seasons that Castle will be on the diamond for Betsy Layne. He will be a team leader, even though he appears shy at times.

He has gained the respect of his fellow players as a frosh and will be counted on for team leadership next season.

There is more, much more that can be said about Castle. But here is one trait that I really like about him: he doesn't argue or complain. He goes out and plays hard each and every time. He gives more than is asked of him, because he simply loves the game. That will take him far. He is a complete player with a very positive attitude.

Offensive threat

Betsy Layne freshman Brandon Castle has proven to be a pitcher's nightmare as he has hit the long ball and has run the bases well. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WISHES...

Belated happy birthday wishes are extended to Betsy

Layne's Shannon Newsome who turned 18 on June 9. Newsome has been a reason for the huge success of the baseball program at Betsy Layne.

NBA FINALS....

What a matchup between Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks and Hakeem Olajuwon. Of course, as of this writing, the Knicks had yet to get rid of the pesky Indiana Pacers.

But, if the Knicks should be so fortunate, what a battle between the two big men. I am rooting for the Pacers. I would like to see Indiana come out and win the whole thing.

If not, then as a Pat Riley fan, I will root for the Knicks despite having Ewing on the team.

COACH MIKE K, RIGHT CHOICE...

I was glad when Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski turned down an offer to jump to the NBA. College basketball needs coaches such as Coach K. He is a credit to the game.

TWO OHIO STATE STARS TO UK?

Could it be possible that with Ohio State headed for probation, that two of its top guns will vault to UK this coming season? With the school on probation by the NCAA, the two would be immediately eligible.

Will it happen?

RON GANT TO REDS?

Another question mark?

Is Ron Gant interested in playing for the Cincinnati Reds?

If the former Atlanta Brave decides that is what he wants to do and is ruled medically sound by the doctors, then Gant could be a big boost for the Reds come September and they are still in the chase for the Central Division.

That would allow the Reds to shop an outfielder and perhaps unhappy Tony Fernandez for a front line pitcher.

But the way the Reds do things, I wouldn't be surprised if the next news from Riverfront is that they signed (gulp) Mitch Williams.

Jose Rijo said that he would become visibly upset if he is passed over in his next scheduled start despite having problems physically. Trade the bum!

• Paul O'Neil, former Red, leading the American League in hitting.

• Greg Swindell, former Red, 5-1 for the Houston Astros

Others that have graced a Reds' uniform are having a good year.

BLUEGRASS STATE GAMES...
If you register for the Bluegrass State Games in July, let me know what event you will be participating in. I try and cover everyone that takes part in the Games, but sometimes I am surprised to learn who actually does compete.

Just give me a call and inform me!

SPOILED PLAYERS!

Did you catch the photo of Seattle manager Lou Pinella sweeping up water in front of the dugout after Edgar Martinez looked stupid smashing the water cooler? Wow, what's next?

BANQUET CIRCUIT...

The Allen Central Boosters Club hosted a banquet last Sunday in honor of the school's track and field team.

Awards were passed out in recognition of some individual accomplishments.

KY/TENN ALL-STAR GAME

Two Prestonsburg football players will dress for the big show in Memphis, Tennessee when the Kentucky/Tennessee All-Star game takes place.

Seth Hyden and Kyle Fitzpatrick will represent the Blackcats in the prestigious game. We wish both players the best of luck and know they will be good ambassadors for Floyd County.

PUT ON HOLD...

The opening of the new school in which Dilce Combs and M.C. Napier would share, Perry County Central, will not open until 1995.

What does that all mean? Napier and Combs will have to go through all the good-bye routines again.

VACATION 1994...

Yours truly will be on vacation this week (or at the state baseball tournament). All games and scores should be addressed to Janice Shepherd (she loves to do sports).

She is very sweet, kindhearted and anxious to hear from you.

So don't hesitate to call her or just drop in and see her. She's never too busy to see you!

Until (?) good sports everyone and be good sports.

Head for home

the fourth as Corbin struck for two after the first two batters had been retired on routine fly balls.

Siler bounced to second baseman Derrick Newsome in what appeared to be a routine play. But Newsome threw high to first baseman Brandon Castle and brought him off the bag for a throwing error.

Things got worse. Shortstop Chris Potter missed an easy grounder to short and Clark walked Angel to load the bases. Evans grounded to third, but Shannon Newsome couldn't make the play and a run scored. Fox scored on Daniel Harris' fielder's choice.

Corbin starter Jeremy Lankster ran into some control problems himself in the Bobcat fourth. He walked the first three batters he faced to load the bases before being relieved by Angel.

Angel then hit Meade with a pitch to force in Clark. But the Bobcats were unable to take advantage of the scoring opportunity and went out without any more damage. Hamilton fanned, Derrick Newsome skied to center and Chris Potter grounded to first to end the inning.

Clark got Corbin in the fifth and sixth innings without any trouble but the Redhounds did add two in the top of the seventh on two hits, a walk and an error.

Castle got the Bobcats final run with a long drive over the center field fence with one out in the inning. Shannon Newsome singled and Doug Keathley, pinch hitting for Hunter, reached on an error at third. But Angel got Ousley on strikes to end the game and the season for the Bobcats.

Lankster was the winning pitcher working the first three innings. He allowed two runs on three hits while walking five. He had one strikeout.

Angel, in relief, gave up two runs on four hits. He walked no one and struck out four. He hit one batter.

Clark worked the final five and two-thirds for the Bobcats allowing five runs on three hits. He walked three and fanned two.

Betsy Layne left the bases loaded in the fourth and stranded nine runners in the game.

Shannon Newsome, Clark and Ousley were named to the Section 4 All-Tournament team.

Corbin's Mouser was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player. He collected three hits and had three runs batted in against Betsy Layne

• July 1 - Gymnastics, soccer (adults), and volleyball.

• July 8 - Archery, basketball, canoeing/kayaking, chess, croquet, cycling, darts, diving, equestrian (hunter and saddle seat), fencing, golf, horse-shoes, karate, racquetball, shooting, swimming, table tennis, track and field, and wrestling.

The philosophy behind the Bluegrass State Games is to provide Kentuckians of all ages and skill levels a wholesome avenue for positive development through sports and physical activity; and to promote and develop local amateur athletics; to provide the amateur athletes an opportunity to showcase their talent and receive statewide recognition.

The Games are under the auspices of the Commonwealth of Kentucky with the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government as the organizing agency.

Former Governor Martha Layne Collins started the Games in 1985 with the idea that was presented to her by a former Olympian.

HOW TO ENTER THE BLUEGRASS STATE GAMES...

Are you an athlete and wonder if you still have it? Or are you very active now and know that you still have it? Prove it!

Now is your chance to "Get in the Games." The 1994 Bluegrass State Games will be held July 29-31 in Lexington. Twenty-five sporting events await Kentucky amateur athletes of all ages, skill levels and abilities.

Here are the factors that determine eligibility for the BGS.

• Participants must be residents of Kentucky for at least 30 days prior to the date of the competition they wish to enter. College students and military personnel who usually reside in Kentucky or attend a Kentucky college or university are eligible.

• Age groups and gender requirements for each sport are established by the sport's national and state governing bodies. The athlete must be prepared to present a valid Kentucky driver's license or a birth certificate (or copy) on site.

• Competition is open to all Kentucky athletes meeting the amateur requirement of the state and national governing body for each sport.

• Individuals with any type of disability may compete in any of the Games' events. These individuals will compete with non-disabled participants when ability levels are comparable. If the athlete feels that his/her ability level is not comparable with non-disabled participants, he/she will compete against other participants with similar disabilities provided enough entries are received to hold competitions.

HOW TO ENTER

After obtaining an entry booklet, look up the sport and division that interest you to determine eligibility requirements, event codes and other information.

Be sure to fill in each space on the application form.

Read and sign the medical consent and waiver on the application form. If you are under 18 it must be signed by a parent or guardian.

Pull out the application form and enclose it with your check or money order for the required fee made payable to Bluegrass State Games, and mail to Bluegrass State Games, Box 1463, Lexington, KY 40591-1463.

• You may enter more than one sport.

• Follow-up information will be sent to you approximately 1-2 weeks prior to the Games.

Four in fourth breaks 4-4 tie

The Martin Cardinals had a big week in the Beaver Creek Little League, winning three games by a combined score of 39-7.

They opened the week last Tuesday with an 11-4 victory.

The Cardinals got four runs in the fourth inning to break a 4-4 tie. The big hit of the inning was a two-run triple by Tim Davis.

They added three insurance runs in the fifth to hold on for the win.

On Thursday, the Cardinals only needed three innings to take care of the Pirates, posting an 18-0 win.

In the first inning, the first five batters reached base and scored with Bigun McGlothen striking the big blow with a three-run triple. Heath Scott had three doubles in the contest and knocked in four runs.

Against the Blue Jays on Friday, the Cards trailed 3-2 heading into the top of the fifth inning, but scored eight runs over the last two innings to post a 10-3 win.

In the decisive fifth inning, McGlothen singled in two runs and Brandon Click tripled in McGlothen. Scott and Dwight McKinney each walked before stealing second, third and home. Scott had six stolen bases in the game as he walked all four plate appearances.

Risner was 2-2 for the Blue Jays with a run scored and Turner was 3-3 with a pair of singles and a home run. Turner, however, was called out on the homer for touching the first base coach.

Plans to build baseball field going, going, gone

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A plan to build a baseball field at Cracker Bottom near Martin sounded good to school board members at Monday's meeting, but the $329,000 price tag didn't.

Board members declined to give the go ahead to build Frazier Field to be used as Allen Central High School's home baseball field after an architect and engineer laid out the cost to develop the site and build the facility.

Gary Frazier, deputy superintendent for the school system, offered earlier this year to give the school system an eight-acre site at Cracker Bottom to build the baseball field, provided that it always be used as a baseball field.

Architect Randy Burchett and engineer John Reed laid out the plan for board members Monday and estimated it would cost over $300,000 to build a top-notch facility.

Board members hesitated to approve proceeding with plans, citing greater needs in the school system and the lack of a plan to upgrade athletic facilities throughout the county.

Board member Eddie Patton asked superintendent Steve Towler to consider temporarily hiring an athletic director to look at all the facilities in the county and develop an improvement plan.

Patton also suggested that school officials meet with members of the fiscal court and the Big Sandy Area Development District to see if any grant monies are available to make improvements at the county's athletic facilities.

Towler told Patton that he would be recommending the district employ an athletic director this year to assist school-based athletic committees. He added that a director could also assess the district's needs for athletic facilities.

Board member Brent Clark commented that he could not vote for the project because there are 44 classrooms housed in trailers in his district.

"It's a very honorable project," Clark said. "My heart goes out to you. But it would be very hard for me to vote on. Maybe it can be a priority on down the road."

Board member Dolores Smith agreed saying, "Our needs are so great, I don't see how we can expend that amount of money right now."

With fairy tale over, Olajuwon, Ewing center of attention

The clock has struck midnight. Cinderella has gone home from the ball.

Challenges from the Indiana Pacers and the Denver Nuggets made this year's wide-open NBA playoffs even more interesting. However, when the dust settled, the two teams left standing were the proven contenders. The New York Knicks and Houston Rockets face off in one of the more interesting, and evenly matched series in recent playoff memory.

Tigers split two

The Cubs scored eight runs in the second inning to push their lead to 11-1 as they held on to down the Tigers 13-6 in Martin Pee Wee baseball action last Wednesday.

In the eight run second inning, the Cubs sandwiched a Justin Allen triple and an Austin Francis homer between four doubles to provide most of the damage in the inning.

In the bottom of the first inning, the Cubs got a leadoff home run by Paul Francis while Austin Francis and Brett Whitaker also came around to score to give the Cubs the early 3-0 lead.

The Tigers, however, cut the lead to two in the top of the second as Shannon Sizemore doubled before coming around to score.

The Tigers managed four more runs in the fourth and one in the fifth, but it wasn't enough as the Cubs held on.

It was a different story for the Tigers Saturday though as they bounced back to beat the Dodgers 28-3.

Heather Castle, Alex Patton, Sizemore and Dee Mullins were all 4-4 from the plate with four runs scored.

The turning point in the game was in the second inning when the Tigers scored 16 runs. They got six in the first and third innings.

The Cubs plated three runs in their half of the third to round out the scoring.

The Tigers were also in action this past Tuesday as they battled the Colonels.

Reception this Sunday for Duff retirement

There will be a retirement reception for Birchell Duff at the Allen Central High School gym, Sunday, June 12 at 4 p.m.

The reception will be open to everyone.

well, Kenny Smith. New York — John Starks, Derek Harper. These matchups are extremely close. Each team has a streaky scorer with attitude (Maxwell/Starks) and a somewhat slow-footed point guard with good shooting range (Smith/Harper). Give the edge to Houston offensively and to New York on the defensive end of the floor.

Forwards: Houston — Otis Thorpe, Robert Horry. New York — Charles Oakley, Charles Smith. Again, even. Thorpe and Oakley are the cagey vets, always willing to dive for a loose ball, provide constant rebounding, and keep their teams fired up. At small forward, Horry's definitely been the more consistent of the two, though he tends to fade at times. Smith, when on, is an excellent player, but he often looks lost in the Knicks' offense. Slight edge to Houston.

Center: Houston — Hakeem Olajuwon. New York — Patrick Ewing. The marquee matchup. It's been a long time since two center dominated teams went toe to toe. There are no secrets between these two. They've been dominating the league for years, but only Olajuwon has had a chance (1986) to win a title. Both feel that their best years are gone and know there may be few enough chances to be back in this spot. Look for some of the best bump-and-grind post play in a playoff series in a long time. This matchup's a push.

Bench: Houston — Sam Cassell, Carl Herrera, Scottie Brooks, Earl Cureton, Mario Elie. New York — Anthony Mason, Hubert Davis, Herb Williams, Greg Anthony, Anthony Bonner. The Knicks rely much more on their bench, especially on the big three of Davis, Anthony, and Mason. For Houston, only Cassell and Elie have been consistent contributors. The edge here to New York, which might become big as the series wears on.

Coaching: Houston — Rudy Tomjanovich. New York — Pat Riley. Riley got rings. Rudy got no rings. Edge to the Knicks.

What to look for: Houston, like most Western Conference teams, loves to steam up and down the floor, shoot threes, and run up the score. New York is, once again, a throwback. Pick and roll. Grind it out. Rebound. In a seven-game series, it's hard to overcome good defense and great coaching. Look for the Knicks to gradually wear the Rockets down, using their bench and the fire that Ewing's been playing with lately. It's the Knicks' series to win, and they'll do just that.

New York in six.

Hall leads Astros past Cubs 6-5 in little league action

Chris Hall struck out the side in the top of the sixth and then scored in the bottom of the inning to help lead the Astros to a 6-5 victory over the Cubs in Harold-Allen-Prater Little League action last Thursday.

After Hall received a one-out walk in the sixth, Aaron Swiger delivered a double that brought Hall home for the winning run.

The Cubs had tied the game at five in the top of the fifth on a walk, hit batter and error.

Jonathan Tackett led off the inning with the walk and one out later Jacob Carroll was hit by a pitch. Leroy Adkins connected for a double that scored both runners and he advanced to third on an error. He scored on a Ryan Hall single.

Hall picked up the win for the Astros in relief of Nick Spears. Hall pitched the latter three innings, allowing four runs on five hits with two walks and seven strikeouts. Spears worked the first three innings. He allowed one run on a hit, walked one and also struck out seven.

Brook Keathly started the game for the Cubs, but gave way after three innings to Brandon Newsome, who suffered the loss.

Keathly gave up four runs on six hits, while walking three and striking out two. Newsome gave up two runs on two hits, had three strike outs and issued eight base on balls.

The Astros opened the week much the same way as they downed the Reds 23-7. The Astros led 12-6 heading into the sixth inning, but added a few insurance runs to round out their scoring.

Brandon Hansford went the distance for the victors, allowing seven runs on eleven hits, fanning eight, and walking none.

Shannon Williams took the loss for the Reds. He allowed 11 runs and 11 hits over three innings of work while walking six and striking out five.

The Astros were in action again this past Tuesday against the Dodgers and will do battle with the Indians on Friday, the last day of the regular season.

The Reds and Cubs played on Monday, and the Reds will match up against the Indians Wednesday while the Cubs will face the Dodgers on Thursday.

UK making plans minus Allen Edwards; only 91 days until UK-UofL

The University of Kentucky's basketball braintrust is making plans that do not include Allen Edwards. Seems the Miami Senior graduate did not improve his last qualifying test scores enough to make the coaches optimistic that he will be available in 1994-95.

If point guard prospect Edwards does not qualify on his next test attempt, UK will try and farm him, bank the scholarship and hope sophomore Anthony Epps progresses even faster than he did a season ago.

Not a 40-minute player, Epps's relief man next season? Could be sophomore Jeff Sheppard, Or. (ready for this?) Rodrick Rhodes.

UK's point guard dilemma is magnified when Wildcat fans note that regulars return at four other positions and potential is there for Da Coach's opening line, "we gotta find somebody to get 'em the ball."

Postscript: There is optimism 6-8 Antoine Walker is on track to pass his test and qualify to play as a freshman. Stay tuned.

UK-UofL FOOTBALL, ETC.

Only 91 days till the Kentucky-Louisville game at Commonwealth Stadium.

While Bill Curry tries to solve a quarterback problem, from the broadcast side of UK's football saga, Charlie MacAlexander has been moved a little nearer the cliff's edge. Host Communications announced last week that Charlie "That's exactly right, Ralph" Mac will free lance as part of the delayed television team.

Said in this space seven months ago that MacAlexander would be quietly phased out by summer.

Ralph Hacker will return on network radio play-by-play and I have a hunch the Man Who Followed a Legend is going to be improved. Better prepared and more in tune with the peculiarities and nuances of football. More familiar with the rules too. He better be.

Who will be Hacker's Pancho? Jeff Van Note, ex-UK and Atlanta Falcons star has been mentioned.

"Despite the rumors and speculation no way that's going to happen," an in-the-know Lexington source said last week, pointing out that Van Note is solid as color analyst for the Falcons.

Other possible candidates—Derrick Ramsey and Sonny Collins have expressed interest.

Curious, how the decision-makers on this one have never exhibited the one two-pronged quality that produced such remarkable success at CBS. A sense of daring and a sense of humor.

The people at CBS had both two decades ago when they picked John Madden. No broadcast experience, not a particularly good voice, and certainly no glamor image.

But Madden became the Kural of NFL Football because he looks like a couch potato and sounds like a guy at the gas station. His genius is he understands what Everyman wants, he makes us laugh, and knows when to shut up.

Psst, Jim Host, you listening?

JOE B. HALL QUOTABLES

Guesting on a Louisville television sports show Sunday, ex-UK Coach Joe B. Hall shared some interesting reflections.

• Does it bother him that so many of his players (All-Americans)—Kevin Grevey, Kyle Macy, Jack Givens, Kenny Walker and others do not have their numbers retired and hanging in the Rupp Arena rafters?

"Not really. Their names and numbers will be up there eventually. They know what they accomplished. Right now you can go around this state and find more kids named after Kevin and Kyle than anybody can imagine."

• Would he have retired if his team had beaten Georgetown in the 1984 Final Four and gone on to win the NCAA title.

"In a minute," he said.

• How does he feel about the state of college basketball today?

"I like the 3-point line and the (shot) clock. We didn't have those when I was coaching. I like both of those. I think the game is moving closer to the professional game and I don't like that much. It's too physical."

• Life after coaching?

"Coaching was so time consuming. Time doesn't seem to go by quite as fast now. I probably spend more time with my grandchildren than I did with my own kids."

Footnote: When the upcoming season tips off it will be 10 years since Joe Hall retired from coaching.

UH-OH, PITINO

Hate to write this, but after viewing a Sportswriters roundtable TV segment from Boston last Sunday, don't be surprised if Rick Pitino's name and an NBA job shows up in the same sentence again soon.

Bob Ryan, a Boston Globe writer, touted as the master on NBA things, says the Celtics front office is in disarray and the team will be "worse next season than this year."

"Chris Ford is a lame duck coach," Ryan says, adding that the team also needs to replace Dave Gavitt as general manager.

Ryan stopped short of naming candidates, but a coaching job and general managership openings on a Boston Celtics franchise that's dragging the bottom. Uh-oh.

To add a perspective spin, the New Jersey Nets have courted Mike Krzyzewski. And Coach K said "no" to the Portland Trailblazers at a press conference last week.

Before Coach K's announcement, Rick Pitino had predicted Duke's coach would take the Portland job.

Footnote: Portland has put out feelers to Nolan Richardson as well. Stay tuned.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE & CALL

Ken Ward of Lexington wrote to share information about a Sports In Ky. inquiry about Kentuckians in Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Note: I had listed Earle Combs (Pebworth, Madison Co.) and PeeWee Reese (Ekron, Meade Co.).

"I started to write you about Bobby Veach (Detroit Tigers) (occasionally spelled Veatch)," Ward writes. "Apparently Bobby never made it into the Hall of Fame, but should have. The Kentucky-born player definitely deserves more acclaim that he received. Veach was known as 'Chig' when he lived in McLean County."

Born at Island, Ky. in McLean County, Veach is not in the Hall of Fame, but certainly had Hall of Fame credentials. The Baseball Encyclopedia shows Veach had 2,064 hits, 393 doubles and 147 triples, 1,166 RBIs and 195 stolen bases in 14 seasons, 12 with Detroit. Lifetime average: .310.

From 1912-23 Veach was part of one of baseball's legendary outfielders. As the Tigers' left fielder, he played next to Ty Cobb in center and Sam Crawford in right (until 1917), then Harry Heilmann. He was traded to the Red Sox, then the Yankees.

Footnote: Bobby Veach pitched two innings for the Tigers in 1918, allowing two hits and two walks.

COMMENT: Thank you for writing.

Don Cottrell, Orlando, Fla., formerly of Georgetown, telephoned to offer a correction on a recent column. Ex-UK star Jack Givens is a broadcaster with the NBA Orlando Magic, not the Miami Heat.

WORTH REPEATING DEPT.

Mark Grace, voted most popular Cub by Chicago fans the last two seasons, doesn't sound like a play-for-pay type. "From my heart, I've made it very public that I want to stay a Cub the rest of my career. If it happens the Cubs don't want me back—and I'm beginning to see some signs there—that'll break my heart."

And so it goes.

Smokey Mountain Wrestling returns to Johnson Central

Smoky Mountain Wrestling returns to Paintsville on Friday June 10, at the Johnson Central High School Gym. This show is a School's Out Special with all kids 12 and under getting in for only $2.00.

In the main event, a Lights Out Piledriver match will decide the Smoky Mountain Tag Team Titles as the champions, Chris Candido & Brian Lee with Tammy Fytch, will put their titles on the line against the former champs, Ricky & Robert, The Rock & Roll Express. The only way you can win this match is to pile drive your opponent.

In a special event for Paintsville, The Wild Eyed Southern Boy Tracy Smothers takes on Bruiser Bedlam, managed by Jim Comette. This match will be a first ever Coal Miners Glove Match. Bruiser has been running over the competition in Smoky Mountain Wrestling, and Tracy feels that a Coal Miners Glove Match in the heart of coal country will put an end to Bedlam's rain of terror.

Returning to Paintsville will be The Dirty White Boy who will go up against newcomer Kendo the Samurai. Samurai was brought in to Smoky Mountain to get rid of the White Boy, and so far has caused an injury to his left eye. DWB is hoping that Paintsville is where he will get his revenge.

In a tag team contest, The Thrillseekers return to go up against the team of Well Dunn.

So don't forget, Smoky Mountain Wrestling, Friday, June 10, at the Johnson Central High School Gym. Tickets are: Ringside $8.00, General Admission $6.00, and kids 12 & under in G.A. $2.00. They can be purchased at the Paintsville Fire Dept. Station 1.

Belltime is 8 p.m.

Reds will hold tryout camp at JCHS June 11

A tryout camp for baseball players will be conducted by the Cincinnati Reds on Saturday, June 11, in Paintsville, Kentucky at the Johnson Central High School baseball field. The camp is open to all boys 16 to 22 years of age. High School sophomores and juniors are especially urged to attend.

Reds Special Assistant, Gene Bennett, will be in charge of the workouts, which are scheduled to start promptly at 9:30 a.m. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and all players participating in the workouts must be registered prior to the 9:30 starting time. Bennett will be assisted by Reds scouts Don Moyer, Fred Hayes, Dave Bennett, Fred Brisker, Bob Kouns, Don Hill and Dick Smith.

All eligible players are requested to bring their own uniform, glove and shoes. The Reds will furnish all other equipment. In addition, each player will be responsible for his traveling and living expense, if any, unless signed to a contract with the Cincinnati Reds organization.

Players must be 16 years of age to be eligible to participate and all American Legion players must bring written permission from their Post Commander or their Legion Coach in order to try out. Also, any player who is under twenty one years of age, must bring with them a written release from a parent or legal guardian accepting full legal liability in order to workout. NOTE: No exception.

Several of the players now playing baseball in the Major Leagues were first seen at tryout camps such as this one and any boy seriously interested in playing professional baseball should make every effort to attend this camp.

Cibola 10-202

Associated Designs-Eugene, Oregon

Ten-foot-high ceilings throughout give an airy, spacious feel to the Cibola, a mid-size family home with a sunny Southwestern flavor. A wealth of windows line the rear-facing walls, creating exceptionally bright family living areas.

At the heart of the plan is a wide open great room with a fireplace. Light streams in through French doors, slender windows flanking the doors, and through an expansive window bay in the kitchen. Transom windows cap these and most other windows throughout the house.

If your family likes to cook together, this kitchen is a dream. It's got counter space on four sides, and a work island with built-in cook top right square in the center. The sink faces onto a court that spans most of the rear. Other features include: a built-in oven, microwave and dishwasher, a long eating bar and a step-in pantry.

Sunlight spills into the vaulted sun room from three angles. The two exterior walls are more glass than anything else, and the room has five skylights. French doors separate the sun room from the formal dining room.

Outfitted with a secluded sitting area, the master suite serves as a welcome adult retreat. Other amenities include a huge walk-in closet, and a private bathroom with a skylight, two basins, a shower, and a soaking tub.

Utilities and a small powder room are adjacent to a three-car garage with shop and storage. Three secondary bedrooms share a bathroom. The room closest to the entry could be used as a home office, study, or guest room.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, Ore. 97402. Please specify the Cibola 10-202 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 150 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Seminar set for small businesses at Pikeville bank

Morehead State University's East Kentucky Small Business Development Center and Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company will sponsor a "Marketing for Non-Marketers—Marketing 101 For Small Business" seminar on Tuesday, June 14, at the training room at the bank.

Completing a solid marketing plan and the importance of advertising are among the topics to be covered. There is no charge for the program which will run from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

The speaker for the program will be Dennis Hillen, senior vice president in charge of marketing and human resources and development at Pikeville National Bank. He also serves as vice president in charge of marketing for the Pikeville National Corporation, one of the state's largest bank holding companies.

The number of participants will be limited to the available space. Additional information and pre-registration are available by calling Morehead State's EKSBDC at 432-5848 or 432-1414. Special arrangements will be made for the disabled when requested in advance.

The East Kentucky Small Business Development Center is partially funded by the U.S. Small Business Administration. All training programs are available to all individuals without regard to race, color, sex, creed or national origin.

Henry, Akers to wed

Robert W. Witten of Sitka and Phyllis A. Henry of McDowell announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lisa Lynn Henry to Gregory Lee Akers, son of Leroy and Betty Akers of McDowell.

Miss Henry is a 1991 graduate of McDowell High School and is attending Prestonsburg Community College. She is employed by First National Bank of Paintsville.

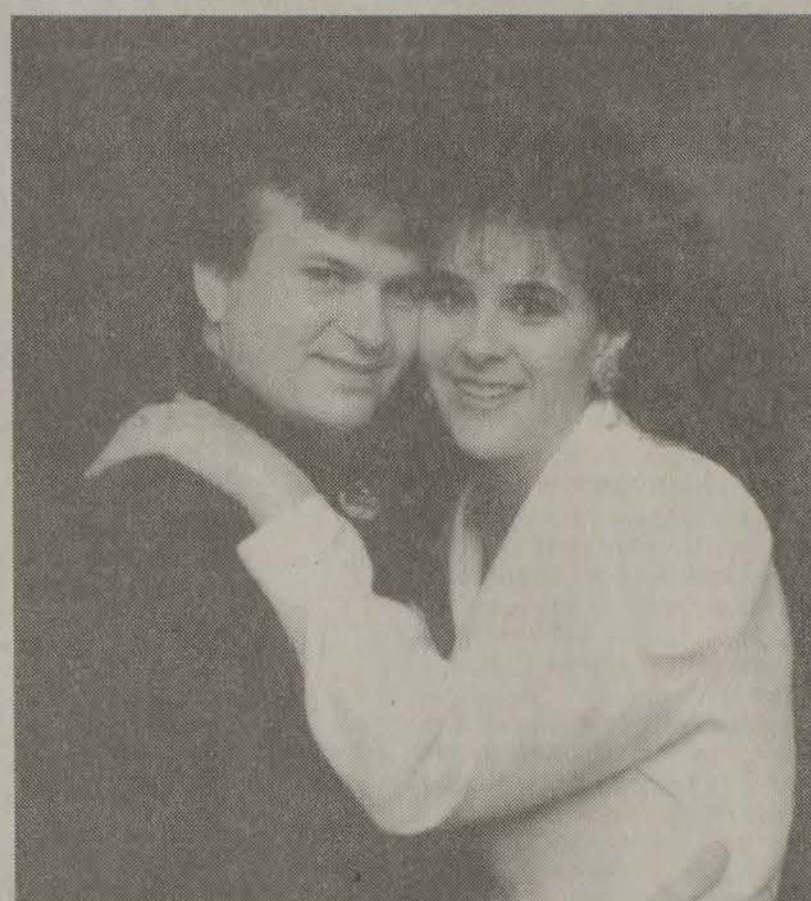

Mr. Akers is a 1986 graduate of McDowell High School and is employed by Sandy Valley Explosives of Allen.

The wedding will be held Saturday, June 11 at 5:30 p.m. at the McDowell First Baptist Church in McDowell.

Fitzpatrick-Collins to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Micheal C. Fitzpatrick of Garrett, are proud to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Crystal to Ronnie Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Collins of Langley, on Saturday, June 19 at the Hueysville Church of Christ. The gracious custom of an open house will be observed with a reception following in the fellowship hall at the church.

Greene, Bowling to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greene of Prestonsburg announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Pamela Anne to Ronald Greg Bowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Bowling of Anville. Ms. Greene is a 1988 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and a 1993 graduate of the University of Kentucky with a degree in Elementary Education. Mr. Bowling is a 1985 graduate of Jackson County High School. He is currently employed with Flav-O-Rich of Lexington. The couple will reside in Lexington. The ceremony will be Saturday, June 18, at 4:30 p.m. at Bonanza Freewill Baptist Church on Abbott Road. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed. A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony in the church annex.

Fourth of July fireworks:

Teen-age boys are at highest risk of vision loss

Dominic, 15, had his left eye removed after a bottle rocket shot off by a friend struck his face and exploded.

Close to 10,000 people are injured by fireworks every year, with half the victims younger than 16. Dominic is in the highest-risk group for fireworks injuries: 13 to 15-year-old males, playing at home with friends.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology encourages everyone to leave the handling and detonating of fireworks to professionals at public fireworks displays.

"There are three main types of eye injuries caused by fireworks: Burns to the eye or eyelid, bruising and actual penetration of the eye," explained George Blankenship, M.D., professor and chair of the department of ophthalmology at Penn State University.

Bottle rockets are responsible for 82 percent of fireworks injuries: Smaller rockets travel from 35 to 75 mph, while larger rockets reach speeds of up to 200 mph. They fly erratically, explaining the high incidence of bystander injuries. The bottles and cans used to launch them often explode, showering fragments of glass and metal.

"The injuries can scar the cornea, the clear front coating of the eye," Blankenship added. "Imagine a windshield that loses its transparency and there's no wiper to clear it off. A corneal transplant is needed to restore vision."

Even those fireworks perceived as safe can cause painful eye injuries. Sparklers, which are often held by young children, burn at 1800-degrees Fahrenheit, nearly hot enough to melt gold.

With at least 70 percent of fireworks injuries occurring to bystanders, everyone is at risk when amateurs handle fireworks.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology recommends that everyone handling fireworks observe these basic safety guidelines:

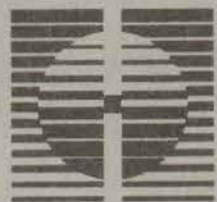

- Use only legal devices. Legal fireworks are printed with the manufacturer's name, address and a cautionary label. A firework lacking this information is very likely to be illegal. Never attempt to make your own fireworks.
- Never allow children to handle explosive fireworks.
- Always wear glasses or safety goggles when lighting fireworks. Spectators at backyard fireworks displays should also consider wearing protective eye wear.

- Never put firecrackers under tin cans, clay pots or in bottles. Vessels can shatter in the explosion and hit the eyes.

- If an injury does occur, do not press, rub or touch the eye; seek immediate care at a hospital emergency room.

your TELEPHONE CONNECTION

by Tom Tucker
Manager
South Central Bell

Now is the time to order our custom features!

Looking for more control over your telephone service? Pick up the phone and call today to order optional features from South Central Bell.

"Why should I order now?" Because there's never been a better time. You can take advantage of an unprecedented special offer on many of our optional features.

If you order any time before December 31, we'll waive the service connection charge! That's right—you've got the rest of the year to order and save. Residence customers can save $15.50, and business customers can save $23.50!

South Central Bell has never before offered a service connection charge waiver period of six months. Why are we doing it now? Because we want you to try our optional features and see for yourself just how helpful they can be!

Three of the features available to you are listed below:

- Call Waiting: When you're on the phone, a special tone alerts you that another call is coming through. You can place one call on hold while you take the other, so you won't miss important calls.

- Call Forwarding: When you don't want to miss your calls but have to be away from your home or office, Call Forwarding is the answer. Calls can follow you to a number where you can be reached or where someone can answer for you. This gives you extra security as well, since callers don't know if your home or business is unattended.

- Three-Way Calling: You can talk to two other people at the same time on one phone line. Makes it easy to set up three-way calls for making plans with family, friends or business associates.

These and other great optional features can be ordered any time before December 31 with no service connection charge. But why wait? Call today! Residence customers can call 557-6500, and business customers can call 557-6000. There's no charge for calling either number.

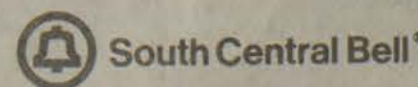

South Central Bell plans ahead to ensure the reliability of telephone service

Kentucky is no stranger to powerful, destructive storms in the spring and summer seasons. That's why South Central Bell plans ahead to ensure your telephone service will be reliable—before disaster strikes.

South Central Bell maintains a carefully crafted blueprint for sustaining critical business functions in the face of natural disasters or other potential disruptions. Our dedicated and highly-trained employees maintain a round-the-clock watch on the health of our network.

Remember the paralyzing winter storms of last January? When many businesses and services were out of action, South Central Bell's network remained reliable. Only a handful of customers statewide experienced any disruption of service during the heavy snows. Our employees worked night and day to restore service to those customers who did experience any problem.

Just because the temperature is now at the other end of the thermometer doesn't mean that we've relaxed our vigilance. You can count on South Central Bell to do what it takes to maintain the reliability of your telephone service—even in the worst extremes of weather.

CHANNEL HOPPING: A REAL WORKOUT
While channel hopping the other day, I flipped across a body-building competition on ESPN. This one guy was turned away from the camera and his back was rippling like a coffee sack full of crawling door knobs. I didn't realize just how many muscles a body could build.

Of course, he looked like he was ready for a greased pig contest and was all slick and shiny, but it still amazed me at how he could flex every little muscle and how they showed up on the camera.

I suppose one would have to admire the hard work and dedication involved in getting this way, but I don't think I'd ever want to (not that I ever could, of course) look like that.

There was a time, however, back before ESPN, or even TV for that matter, that I seriously considered going into body building myself. You see, just like every other kid I read comic books with a passion and nine out of every ten of them had a big full-page ad inside the back cover urging us to enroll in the Charles Atlas body-building course.

I'd be rich today if I had a dollar for every time I read the little cartoon strip about the big guy with muscles who kicked sand into the face of the puny guy with the caved-in chest and the pretty girlfriend.

The little puny guy with the caved-in chest would just have to sit and take it, and his girlfriend would have little black lines drawn across her face, indicating that she was embarrassed. But not to worry! The little guy with the caved-in chest was, no doubt, a comic book reader, too, because he discovered the Charles Atlas ad and mailed in his coupon.

Then, in the last frame, in what appeared to have been an instant transformation but in real life probably took up to four or five days, the little guy would still have his same ole head, but now it sat atop a body just like the first guy with all the muscles—except even better. Then when the first guy would come along kicking sand, the once-puny guy would jump up and mash his mouth. The once-puny guy's girlfriend would sit and smile proudly.

I'd sit and look at that picture of Charles Atlas flexing his muscles and wearing his leopard-skin trunks, and try to imagine my ten-year-old head on his body and wonder if it'd be worth the effort on my part to try to raise enough money to pay for the course and send off for it myself. I can't remember what it would have cost me, but I do remember thinking that I'd have to gather up a right smart bit of pop bottles and scrap iron before I could ever come up with that much.

Somewhere along the way, though, I guess I lost interest in developing my own personal caved-in chest and apparently pursued other interests. (Incident-

The Floyd County Times

Lifestyles

Sweet William is life of the senior party

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

At 92 years old, William Wilson is still a go-getter. Every weekday Wilson can be found at the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center at Archer Park, his cheerful presence like tonic to those around him.

"He's an uplifter," said Patsy Evans, director, during an interview at the center.

When he's not here, we're sad. When we are down, he picks us up."

And that's exactly what Wilson tries to do. The former Pentecostal minister is part counselor who listens to those who are troubled: "I talk to them if they are troubled or depressed and I tell them how to get out of it," he said.

And he's part comedian who entertains his friends at the center with his amusing observations and his piano playing.

"He says he is going to get married when he is a hundred," Wanda Elste, who drives a bus for the center, said. "He has proposed to half a dozen ladies here, but he says he has to wait until he is a hundred to marry."

"I have to wait to save up money," is Wilson's answer.

Wilson, who has never had a piano lesson, also plays the piano at Mountain Manor Nursing Home when he and other adults from the center go there to sing for residents. Wilson also presents a devotional.

"The residents really appreciate it," Evans said. "I helped take first prize (in a singing contest) at the nursing home," he said. "The judge said I was the oldest man she ever saw who played the piano."

Wilson is no stranger to volunteering at nursing homes. When he moved to Floyd County in 1977, he was 76 and a volunteer chaplain at Riverview Manor for two and a half years. There he led devotionals and comforted the sick.

Wilson said that he had no health problems himself until six years ago. Arthritis, coupled with a painful bout of shingles, left him crippled in one leg. He relies on a cane to get around.

"My doctor said I had the blood pressure of a 35-year-old man until I got arthritis."

But health problems have not kept Wilson from the center, which has become his second home.

"I come to the center every day, five days a week," he said. "I hate to see Saturday come. I quit driving when I was ninety. I ride the bus to the center."

Johnny Evans, a center bus driver, picks Wilson up at his home at East Point. "He says he gets up at four every morning and fixes himself a bite to eat," Evans said. "He forgets and lays back down and I have to wake him up. But he's dressed and always ready to go. Even that early in the morning, he's cheerful."

Wilson's cheerfulness is perhaps due to his triumph over a hard upbringing.

Wilson was born in 1901 at Knox County, one of eight children.

"I was the baby one in the family," he said.

"My father was a carpenter. During the Gold Rush time, his two brothers went to California and struck gold. My father went to California and got a job with his brothers.

"My mother said that he drove 14 mules and he loaded 200 pounds of wheat in bags in a car. When he came back home, he was drawn way over.

"He was in his fifties and he died. He left my mother with eight children.

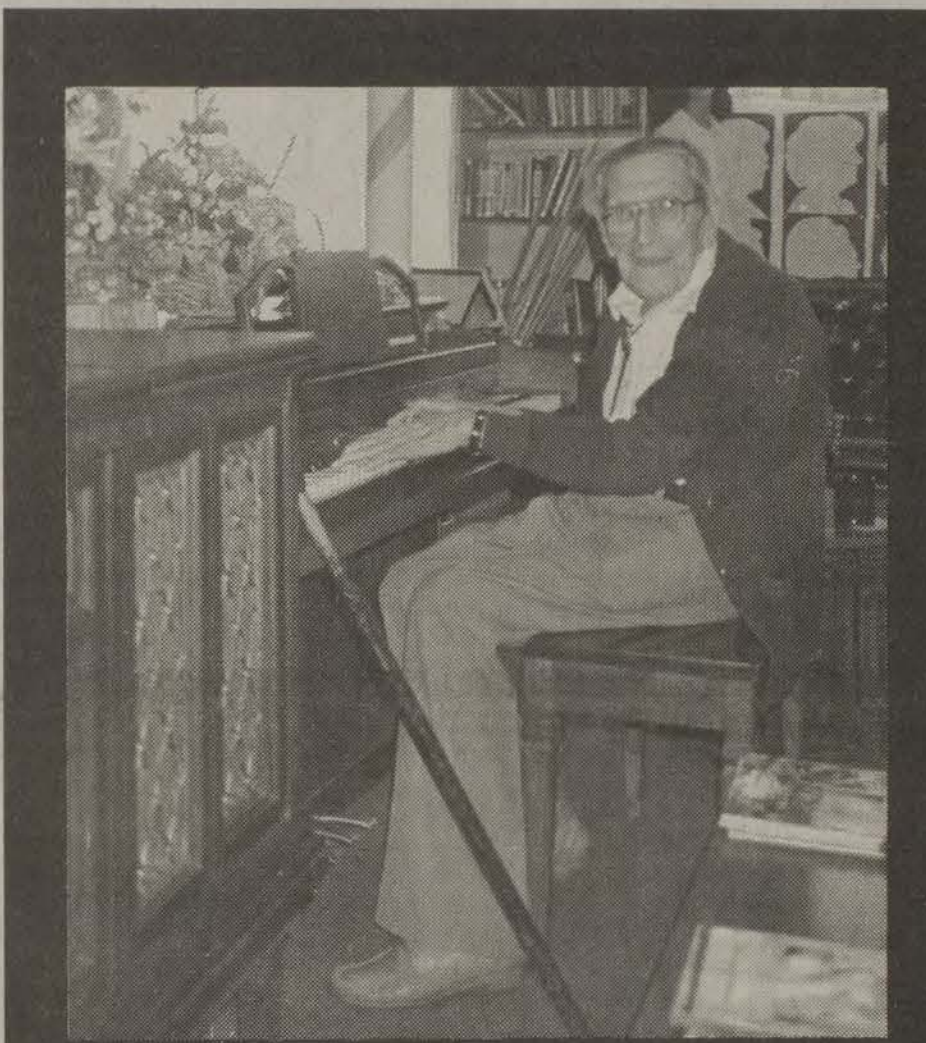

"Women couldn't get a job like they can now," Wilson said.

"She drove four yoke of oxen and pulled logs out of the mountains for five dollars a day. Then they would put the logs in the river " to float to market.

While their mother worked, his five sisters took care of the family.

"We lived on a farm in Knox County," he recalled. "My older brother ran the farm. I went to work when I was 10 years old in the coal mines and I stayed in the coal mines."

Wilson lived with one of his sisters and a brother-in-law "who were good to me," he said.

An uplifter
William Wilson loves to have his friends at the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center gather around and sing while he plays the piano. His favorite songs are hymns. (photo by Polly Ward)

"My sister had a good education and she taught her husband how to read and write and cipher. My brother-in-law became foreman and I had a good chance for a good job.

Then Wilson got into what he calls "bad habits" that nearly ruined his life.

"I got to drinking and got into a bad habit of gambling. I was about 14 years old..."

He admitted he cheated, using crooked dice and marked cards.

At 18, he married Eva Cebell, a girl he met in school ("I only went to the third grade," he said), and the couple started raising a family.

We had eight children, five girls and three boys, the same as my mother and dad."

His three sons went into the Army during World War II. Wilson and his wife and daughters moved to Michigan where he found work in a machine shop. Later the plant made automobiles. He was employed there until his retirement.

When he was forty years old, he was converted. He said he lost all desire to drink, gamble and smoke.

"My name used to be Wild Bill. Now it's Sweet William," he said, grinning.

He also founded a church.

"After I was converted, God called me to preach the gospel. I built a church at Ypsilanti, Michigan. I was pastor 25 years. I started with a burden and only had 25 cents in my pocket. People gave me money to help build the church. I never asked for money."

His children and wife took part in his ministry.

"We all played music in church. We were a happy family. We played guitar and mandolin."

His four sons returned safely from the war and eventually all of his children married. His wife died about 30 years ago, after 48 years of marriage.

He retired from his church work and preaching and fifteen years ago, he moved to Floyd County where one of his daughters and a granddaughter live.

Four daughters are still living, but he has only one living son, who is 73 years old and is a resident of a nursing home in Battle Creek, Michigan.

"I've got over 100 grandchildren and great grandchildren," he said. "I have five generations of family in Texas, five in Floyd County and five in New York state. They all have a good education and good jobs," he said proudly.

And what is his secret to living to a ripe old age? "Obey your parents in the Lord," he said. "I was good to my mom. I just loved her. She was a hard worker."

"A chance to become somebody"

by Chad Stephen Chesner

Job Corps has changed my life in many ways. It changed the way I look at things. It also gave me a chance to really become somebody.

Before I came to Job Corps, I was living with people I didn't know. I traveled to other states by hitchhiking and made friends who sometimes had trouble with their family. They, the friends I made, would tell their parents I was new to the state and didn't know anybody there. The parents would sometimes ask me to stay at their house until I found a job and a place of my own.

Sometimes I would live with friends whose parents are drug addicts, prostitutes, and pimps. I would live in shelters and sometimes with all walks of life.

I wanted to get life on track. I knew that no one would help me unless I helped myself first. I saw the number for Job Corps on television and wrote the number down. About three weeks later I was still deciding if I should call the number or not. Finally, I decided to call the number because everything seemed to be going wrong. I felt that Job Corps was my last chance.

When I called the Job Corps number the receptionist I spoke with was very kind and was able to answer all the questions I had about the program. She gave me information I needed and then some information I didn't need. She gave me a list of numbers in the area where I was staying and urged me to call at least two of the numbers she had given me.

The first number I called was Earle C. Clements Job Corps. They gave me a list of skills that they had to offer. I couldn't hear the person on the other end of the phone because he wasn't speaking clearly. After I hung up the phone I decided to call one more number.

The second number I called was the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center. When I called Carl D. Perkins, a man answered the phone speaking clearly. He answered the phone like he really cared. He was very polite and that meant a lot to me. He read off a list of skills that they had to offer. Then I asked him if there was any way I would be able to get a brochure telling me all about Carl D. Perkins. He said he would see what he could do and then asked me for my address. After getting off the phone with him, I felt really good about calling.

About four days later I received mail from Carl D. Perkins. I opened the mail and read the brochure. I called the Job Corps number I saw on television to make an appointment to go to Job Corps.

When I arrived at Job Corps everybody was nice. Then after a while some of the other students started pushing me around. I felt like it was a test because I was the new student. About a week later they stopped.

I came to Job Corps to get a skill in carpentry and my G.E.D. After eight months I received my GED, and my carpentry skill. I felt great.

Now I want to go to college to become a counselor and work with kids who have trouble living at home. I want to show them that there are people out in the world who really do care.

Job Corps really changed my life. It gave me the hope I lost a long time ago, and never found until now. Thanks to Job Corps, I now can say that I have a brighter future to look forward to.

(Editor's Note: Job Corps will hold an open house June 23.)

Close to HOME
by Joe Adams

THERE'S MUCH ONE CAN READ INTO THIS STORY

Reading is fundamental, but sometimes it's not so fun.

Especially for a parent.

Our daughter isn't two yet, but we've been reading to her even before she would sit still long enough to listen.

We didn't want her to miss the boat.

So we read her stories about boats. And birds. And teddy bears. And rain and anything else that might help her figure out what this big old world is all about.

Now she loves books.

And she loves to tell us about it.

"Read the story!" she says.

"READ the story!" she demands.

"READ THE STORY!" she yells.

There's no escape.

We hear it at breakfast, lunch, dinner and every point in between.

I don't think this is what we had in mind when we decided to promote the joys of reading with her.

DRIVING US DAFFY

Our daughter's turned into a mean story reading machine.

She's like a little human megaphone that slips up behind you just when you are about to relax and blows your nerves into overdrive.

"Read the story! Read the story! Read the story!" she says.

She wobbles over my way, flips her book to me, and plops into my lap.

"Read the story! Read the story! Read the story!" she says.

"OK, young lady. We'll read the bird book again," I say.

The book's title, "Now I Know Birds," applies well to daddy.

Daddy's thumbed through the thing so many times that he's becoming a bird expert.

I'm sick of starlings, bluejays and cardinals. But, of course, she isn't.

"Birds," she says to me. "Baby birds."

"That's right, we've got all kinds of baby birds in this book," I tell her.

I start to read her the first page but finish abruptly when she turns the page on me.

"Owl! Owl! Owl!" she says to me.

"That's right, an owl. Now let's get back to the story," I said.

But that's the strange part.

We don't always get back to the story.

As often as not, she wants to tell me what she sees.

And I have to acknowledge her.

If she says "nest," I must repeat it to her.

If not, she'll pound my brain with the word and jack up the volume until I do.

Sometimes I get the impression it isn't really the story she cares about anyway.

I've only read them to her a thousand times. She knows them by heart.

In some cases I sense it's just being with me that she wants.

And that part of this story I like very much.

WRITING OUR OWN STORY

I'm not used to having a little girl around, and I haven't always been sure just how to win her affections.

Her mother spends more time with her than I do. And our daughter doesn't always react the way I want her to when I approach her.

"No," she'll say when I reach to pick her up.

"Mommy, hold me."

When it's bath time, it's usually "Mommy bath." She won't even let me put her shoes on at times.

"Mommy, shoes on," she'll say.

But reading stories has given me hope.

Our daughter doesn't hesitate to ask me to do it. Sometimes I'm her first choice.

Daddy gets a little equal time for a change. It's exciting to see her confidence grow as she learns new words and identifies new pictures.

And it's gratifying to be thought of as something more than the guy who can only do things when mommy isn't around.

Her persistent request of "Read the story! Read the story!" gets tiring.

There are plenty of times I would like to say "Not again! Not again!"

But I'm trying to remember that it likely won't be long until she stops making the request.

Her brother has, even though he's only 4 years old.

She'll develop other interests long before she starts to read. She might not want me to hold her without a story being part of the picture.

Pass that bird book over here again!

Kim's Korner

Well, it's been over a week since you readers got triple the columns on the Bill Clinton subject, guess that was a proven fact of how "hot" the topic was, huh?

by Kim Frasure

But, if you don't mind I'd like to share an example here of yester-years just to prove a point of how extreme this country's morals have indeed changed, in reference to those columns.

In May of 1987 a screeching halt came flashing across the wires—T.V., radio and newspapers—that 1988 presidential candidate Gary Hart was monkeying around with Donna Rice on a yacht (named appropriately Monkey Business).

A snapshot of Rice seated on so cozy on Hart's lap flashed before our very eyes. And, Hart's hopes for the presidential seat were demolished.

Even though, as some these days try to convince us that what goes on behind "closed doors" (so to speak) is not of any importance on how this country is run, it was very important in the 80s. It was called immoral action of a presidential candidate. And, may I also remind you Hart's wife, Lee, was loyal to the very end, believing the rumors on her husband were ridiculous.

Hart, as a good friend of mine pointed out last week, could have very well been one of the finest presidents we may have known.

Yet, when his Monkey Business hit shore, his political business went down the drain.

Catch my drift?

Part II

Fair-free from bias, dishonesty or injustice. Proper under the rules: Webster's Dictionary.

Such a small word to have such a large meaning—don't you agree?

Well, in case you do, let's talk about what's fair and what's not.

To children most always, unless a situation is in their favor, "It's not fair!"

But as they grow older, they usually get a normal understanding of what really is fair and just.

Sometimes though, in our normal everyday living, even as adults, we tend to run up on a situation that's not only unjust, but yep, you guessed it, it's certainly not fair.

And when this happens, it hits you like a big ol' Mack truck square in the face.

Yes, you walk around in amazement, flabbergasted, with a look like a pug bulldog on your face in total disbelief.

Now, the big question! As adults when this occurs what is a person to do?

(A) Sit back, think over the situation, let the person who committed the crime of being unfair and unjust go on like nothing ever happened; or

(B) Stand up and let your voice be heard.

It ain't over, till it's over! Well, my dear readers, I will admit I am one of those people who would most certainly choose (B).

Especially if the situation involved one of my children. And let's face it, 99.9 percent of any given time it will.

This new KERA program preaches "All children must be treated equal."

So, "no more" can we as parents worry ourselves that our children may be treated differently because of simply "who" they are!

No more will we have to worry that they will be classified as A, B, C, or D groups. But, maybe, 1, 2, or 3.

No! Every single child will be equal.

A good system? Yes, you bet your sweet bippy it is.

Will it work? We'll see. Will every single child be treated equally? Think about it, and not with your head in the clouds either.

No maam, they most certainly will not.

And if you think otherwise, I suggest it's time to wake up and smell the coffee!

There are many individuals our children deal with on a daily basis and just as many different personalities, and values.

No two people see the exact same thing, not in my girls or your children.

So, as parents are we ready to believe in a system that wants us to believe that our children will be treated exactly the same, and sit back with our heads in the clouds?

Or, do we get involved and help this system—along and see that it does indeed work?

You bet we do! Hey, it's only fair. Till next week.

John Graham Chapter DAR national page

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was represented at the 103rd Continental Congress, April 18-23, 1994, Washington, D.C., by Angela Merritt Eichenbrenner. She served as national page and delegate from John Graham and from the Kentucky Society.

Eichenbrenner carried the Kentucky Flag on opening and closing nights of Continental Congress held in Constitution Hall—a national Historic Landmark, as Honor Guard, as Credential's Page, and page for the Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio, and Michigan reception and banquet.

Kentucky was among the 22 states honored and approved by the Department of Defense as a commemorative community for the 50th anniversary of World War II; Postmaster of Washington, D.C., honored the Congress with a special postal cancellation which was designated for use each day during the session; David Allen Chapter, Campbellsville, was recognized for having 100 Constitution Week proclamations, and Hindman Settlement School received $47,168 from the Treasurer General's fund.

Among the approximate 5,000 DARS attending from Kentucky, United States, Canada, Mexico, and oversea chapters, Kentucky State Regent, Mrs. Thomas R. Ross, Ashland, gave the Kentucky report at State Regents' Night. As delegate, Eichenbrenner voted on 13 bylaw amendments.

Eichenbrenner, who resides at Poquoson, Virginia, along with her husband James, who is stationed at Langley Air Force Base, and their two children, is the granddaughter of the late Ed Merritt, and daughter of the late Rex Merritt. She joined the chapter under Revolutionary Soldier John Graham.

Woman's club installs officers

The annual installation dinner for the Prestonsburg Woman's Club was held on Thursday evening, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. at the club house at Archer Park.

Dianne Clatworthy, president, conducted the meeting.

The group joined in the "Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag."

Following the blessing by Sue Martin, a covered-dish dinner was served to members and guests.

Garnett Fairchild gave a report on the state convention of Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, held in Lexington, April 27-28-29-30. This was a special centennial celebration which she, Burieta Gearhart and Joyce Short Allen attended.

At the convention Fanny Runnels and Alice Harris were recognized as fifty year-plus members.

President Clatworthy presented Charlotte Gillum, vice governor of the seventh district of Federation of Women's Clubs, who installed officers for the 1994-95 club year.

Installed were Joyce Short Allen and Drema Miller, co-presidents; Sandy Burchett, first vice-president; Julie Paxton, second vice president; Sue G. Martin, third vice president; Linda Lamar, treasurer; Donna Carol DeRossett, recording secretary; Jane Bond, corresponding secretary. These officers and the club's publicity and membership chairman will constitute the executive board for the club year 1994-95.

Past president Clatworthy presented the gavel and president pins to the vice presidents.

They each addressed the group, asking for everyone's cooperation.

Hostesses for the event were Boots Adams, Chm., Nancy Martin, Eileen Burchett, Joyce Allen, and Ruth Hall.

Tables were decorated with spring flowers and yellow candles. The theme "May Festival" was carried out with the decorations.

The next meeting will be the first, Thursday in September. Frazier, former governor at the seventh district, Leola Cole, Charlott Gillum of Salyersville, Ann Alley, Mable Lineburger, and these members: Diane Clatworthy, Lida Howard, Joyce Short Allen, Nancy Martin, Eileen Burchett, Drema Miller, Judy Burchett, Sue G. Martin, Sara S. Goble, Garnett Fairchild, Alta H. Leslie, Turp Combs, Lillian Baldrige, Sandy Burchett, Fanny Runnels, Eve May, Lois George, Linda Lamer, Jane Bond, Maxine S. Bierman, Rebecca Rasnick, Mable H. Brown and Jane Wallace.

Sunshine Lines

by Beverly Carroll

Senior citizens, this week in Sunshine Lines, we are continuing our discussion on topics relative to this series entitled, "Preparing For One's Own Future." Today we will discuss the "Power of Attorney" and the "Durable Power of Attorney." These are very much alike, yet there is a subtle difference. This difference, if overlooked, not fully understood, or ignored, could make a big difference in one's personal wishes regarding one's future health care, should one no longer be able to make health care decisions for one's self.

Before we discuss the similarities and the differences between a "Power of Attorney" and a "Durable Power of Attorney" I want to point out that it is not mandatory, in the state of Kentucky, that one have legal intervention when preparing either document, however, I want to emphasize that although it is not presently required, it is advisable and highly recommended that you consult an attorney before granting a Power of Authority or a Durable Power of Attorney to anyone.

A "Power of Attorney" is your granting to someone else legal authority to manage some or all of your personal affairs and business matters. The person, to whom you give the Power of Attorney, can act on your behalf, without your presence, or even without your knowledge, in those areas you designate in the document. His or her control, or power, should be clearly defined when you appoint a Power of Attorney.

In your document, you might want to give your Power of Attorney permission to do one or any combination of things. As an example, in regard to your finances you might want to give your Power of Attorney permission to make deposits, make withdrawals, invest your money without your knowledge or oversight, write checks against your account for your bills, etc. But, you may not want your Power of Attorney to have access to your safety deposit or lock box. You may want your Power of Attorney to sell all of your real estate, or only designated portions of it, or none of it. For your own protection, and the protection of your resources, your document must be very explicit.

You can give very broad power to a person, allowing him or her to handle all of your financial affairs, or you can give very limited power in very specific, well-defined areas. You can also limit the time that the power exists or you can designate that this power be binding until your death. You should be very careful in selecting your attorney-in-fact, or the one to whom you grant the Power of Attorney, and you should be extremely careful in defining his or her powers. This is why I feel it is to one's own best interest to incorporate the services of an attorney even though, at the present time, it is not required by law that you do so.

Your Power of Attorney must be in writing and signed by you. It can be prepared without witnesses. It should be notarized. If it is used to transfer real property, it must be notarized and recorded with the deed in the County Clerk's office.

You have the right to revoke or terminate the attorney-in-fact or "Power of Attorney" at any time by informing him or her that the power(s) you previously granted have been terminated. You should send copies of the revocation to anyone who has seen the document or with whom the attorney-in-fact has done business on your behalf.

The chief difference between a "Power of Attorney" and a "Durable Power of Attorney" is that the Durable Power of Attorney addresses health care issues. Under Kentucky law the document may state that it shall not be terminated on disability of the principal (you). This kind of power, known as a "Durable Power of Attorney," will continue after the principal's (your) incapacity. Though it is possible to have a document prepared to combine your personal and business affairs and your health care issues, the two should not be incorporated into one document without assistance from one's trusted attorney.

You can create a Power of Attorney that will go into effect only in the future and only if you should become unable to manage your own affairs. Such a document should be carefully written to specify what you mean by "unable to manage your own affairs" and it must give the power to make that decision to a person other than yourself. Again, I re-emphasize, it is advisable to consult a lawyer before granting a Power of Attorney or Durable Power of Attorney to anyone.

Rebekah Lodge contributes to visual program

Miriam Rebekah Lodge members met May 17, at 7 p.m. Several members were reported as being sick or having sickness in their families. Members said they would add these families to their prayers.

Communications and bills were presented and action taken on them. A report was given on the visit to Mt. Manor Nursing Home on May 15. Members said they enjoyed the singing and visiting with the residents there.

The members voted to make a monetary contribution to the International Visual Research Program.

Birthday greetings were extended to Claudine Johns.

Members present for this meeting were Noble Grand Hope Whitten, Wanda Elste, Paulena Owens, Lorena Wallen, Claudine Johns, Judy Johnson, Susie Clifton, Violetta Wright, and Mabel Jean LeMaster.

John Graham Chapter DAR

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Monday, May 9, noon, for a luncheon-business meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Regent Betty Jean Conn presided.

Opening rituals were conducted by chaplain pro-tem Virginia Goble, the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the USA led by Pam Wohlford, the American's Creed by Frances Brackett, and the President General's message by Wohlford. Fannie Runnels led the invocation for lunch.

Secretary Brackett read a thank-you note from the family of Mary Auxier Ford who passed away March 7, 1994. She read a letter mailed to John Graham members that suggested donations be made to the February 28—Living Memorial Fund, Floyd County, Inc., in honor of member Virginia Goble whose three children drowned in the 1958 bus accident. She read correspondence from Ron Vanover, Director of Recreation, at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, with correspondence from Dewey Lake, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the Kentucky Division of Forestry, on the Steve Brackett Memorial Trail.

The regent announced that member Mae Kendrick's granddaughter, Leslie Kendrick, East Point, had been named a 1994 national merit scholar; that Olga Auxier Preston's son, John David Preston, had been elected Kentucky senator, and that her great-granddaughter, Beverly Moore, Ashland, had been named a Governor's Scholar.

Brackett announced that camp services will be held by Allen Baptist Church minister French Harman and members each Sunday at 8:30 a.m. from Memorial Day through Labor Day for visitors and the community at large at the Josie D. Harkins one-room school, designated in 1992 as the last one-room school used in Kentucky, and moved from Daniel's Creek to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park during the 1792-1992 Kentucky Bicentennial Celebration. The first service will honor the late Lewis Campbell with a tree-planting and a picture of him hung in the school.

Campbell, who lived at Allen, was one of the founders of the Daniel's Creek Mission, and had served as principal of Allen, Prater, Dwale, and Daniel's Creek (Josie D. Harkins School) Elementary schools, simultaneously. He had also served Floyd County Schools as transportation director, and, while principal at Weeksbury when the school burned to the ground, he managed to save every child in the building.

The regent announced that Brackett, Sixth District Director, and Fannie Runnels, DAR Corresponding Secretary, will attend Hindman Settlement DAR Homecoming Friday, May 20.

The next regular meeting will be held Tuesday, June 14, at noon, at May Lodge. Margaret Collins will present the Flag Day program and Continental Congress resolutions will be reviewed.

Farm & Family

Turning miners into farmers

That's one of the challenges Richard Barnhisel confronts as he works with coal companies, helping them turn mined land back into farmland. Barnhisel, an agriculture professor at the University of Kentucky, assists the coal industry in the complicated process of restoring Kentucky soil that has been used for surface mining, or strip mining. "The people that are mining the coal are mandated to return the soil to the productivity it had before it was mined," he says. "We're trying to use farmer technology—what farmers know about agriculture and getting this information to the coal industry."

In an effort to preserve the country's prime farmland, the federal government requires the coal industry to actually grow crops on the land after they've excavated the coal. In order to fulfill its obligation, a company must successfully raise corn and other crops for three consecutive years after the soil has been replaced. Barnhisel says corn is the test crop because if the company's land can produce it, they have successfully overcome compaction, one of the biggest hazards of surface mining. "Corn is the most difficult crop to get to yield, it's the most sensitive to compaction."

Compaction refers to soil that has had the air squeezed out of it and in which the rich topsoil and barren subsoil have been mixed together. "The biggest challenge is getting the soil back with minimum compaction," Barnhisel says. "That's what we're focused on more than anything else." Given the enormity of the trucks, draglines and other vehicles used to mine coal, there's almost no way to avoid compacting the soil. "If you drive on soil with 100 tons of weight in those tires, you're going to have compaction."

Even after restoration efforts, the land will require more fertilizer than before to replace the soil's natural nutrients that are displaced by mining. Topsoil is the richest level of soil, Barnhisel explains—"That's why you don't want erosion because you're losing your best soil." Normally, "A plant can get all the fertilizer it needs from the first six inches of soil." As a result of soil shifting, farming costs on restored land will likely be "a little bit higher" than before the mining, he says.

Cost is a major factor in this equation for farmers and the coal industry. Companies stake huge investments on the profit they expect to earn from coal mined on prime farmland, which is defined as land that has been farmed five out of the last 10 years from the time the company acquired the option to mine. "Prime farmland is the most expensive farmland to mine," Barnhisel says. The coal companies must first put up expensive bonds to ensure the restoration of the land. Then the reclamation process itself is time-consuming and costly. "It costs a company $10,000 to $20,000 an acre to reclaim prime farmland," he says.

Ideally the transformation from farmland to mine and back takes about seven years. The process often lasts longer because the coal industry's crops—like the crops of any farmer—are vulnerable to weather, insects and other variables. Still, Barnhisel says, paying back the land is a delicate procedure and an extra year or two in the restoration process is worth it. "If it's not done properly," Barnhisel says, "it may take centuries."

John Fox Jr. joins pursuit of dreaded Flemings

by Jadon Gibson

John Fox, Jr., the famous author who wrote 'Trail of the Lonesome Pine' and 'Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come,' was a member of the volunteer police-guard at Big Stone Gap, during the time that Talt Hall, the Red Fox, and several other badmen were brought to justice.

He was having breakfast in a Big Stone Gap, Va., hotel, in the spring of 1894, when he heard news that the "wily old Daddy of the Flemings" had been captured and his sons, Cal and Heenan, were hemmed in.

The noted author dropped his knife and fork and scurried to pay his bill and get underway. As a member of the police-guard, he would be needed near Pound, Va. The Flemings weren't expected to give up easily. A shootout was imminent.

Several mountaineers in the Pound Gap area volunteered to help the posse find the Flemings. Later in the morning they engaged them in the fierce shootout which left the brothers wounded.

It was hot as John Fox Jr. rode to the site of the gunbattle at the head of Pound River. He described the area as "a wild, beautiful, lawless, region that harbored the worst desperadoes of Virginia and Kentucky. They do their mischief in each state and then hide across the state line to avoid the law."

The famous author came upon a double log cabin with windows covered by hanging quilts. "Who lives here?", he asked as an old woman appeared in the doorway. Her answer startled him.

"The Flemings lives hyeh," she answered, quietly. Of all cabins, John Fox Jr. had stopped for directions at the home of the culprits.

"Whar air ye from?" she asked. After answering that he was from Big Stone Gap, she asked if he had been part of the earlier raid in search of her sons. He said that he hadn't.

Her throat was so big it looked as though she had a goiter and it shook when she laughed as she reflected on the raid by the lawmen.

"One fool feller stuck his head up into the loft and lit a match to see if my boys was up thar," she explained. "He lit a match! He wouldn't 'a had no head of my boys had been up thar."

Her huge throat shook again as she laughed. Then she became somber as she lit her pipe and started to speak.

"I reckon you know my boys is hurt, maybe even somewher dead in the woods by now," she spoke matter-of-factly. "Ef you git hold of 'em I wish you wouldn't harm 'em."

The three women and two children in the cabin watched as John Fox Jr. left after drinking a glass of buttermilk which they had given him.

After leaving the Fleming cabin, John Fox Jr. rode for another hour before coming upon other members of the posse and police-guard. The men were armed with Winchester and other weapons. They guffawed at the "ridiculous" little .32 Smith & Wesson pistol which the author carried.

"Gooseneck" John Branham, nicknamed for his long neck, gave him a two-foot long pistol and a faded slouch-hat to wear. The hat belonged to Hennan Fleming and had been worn by him until it was jarred from his head when a shot shredded his shoulder earlier that morning.

Shortly the posse came upon a cave that the Flemings had used earlier as a hideout. They found several blankets, bits of ham and a bag of meal. Nearby, on the roadside, they found a large pile of shavings which came from many hours of idle whitening.

Half an hour later, after traveling down a deep ravine and up a long slope, the posse arrived at the scene of the shootout that left the Flemings wounded earlier that morning.

Shortly thereafter the men arrived at the cabin where the Flemings had paused for coffee and food. The woman of the cabin spoke of their injuries.

"Heenan's shoulder was all shot up an' I coulda put my hand into the hole in Cal's back," the woman said. "Cal was groanin' a good deal an had to stop every ten yards or so 'cause it was apainin' him so bad."

They went on hurriedly in search of the Flemings. Later in the day they found the sheriff and joined the remainder of the search party.

Harold academic team ends year with success

Phelps, Feds Creek, Paintsville Inez, McDowell, Allen, and Auxier—What do all of these towns have in common? They are all places to which the Harold Academic Team has traveled for competitions. The season started in mid September, and was finally completed in early May with an EKAC McDonald's Tournament.

There are thirteen students who make up the Harold team: Britt Coleman, Steven Jacobs, Angel Lawson, Jennifer McKinney, Adam Newman, Jason Salisbury, Misty Stevens, Jessica Flannery, Rena Kidd, Beth Lawson, Brian Parker, Kristy Stevens, and Brooke Tackett.

The academic team competed in two leagues this year, the East Kentucky Academic Conference and the Jenny Wiley Academic Conference. Both leagues provided much practice for the Harold Academic team, which prepared them for the Governor's Cup Competition. In total, the team spent ten Saturdays and four Thursdays competing, during which they acquired much knowledge and several awards.

In the EKAC league, Harold students competed against teams from Pike, Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin counties. The team got off to a slow start, losing four out of the five first Quick Recall games. Yet, as the season progressed, the team improved greatly. During the next three Saturday competitions, Harold defeated all but one school in the remaining Quick Recall competitions. This resulted in finishing as one of the top teams with a record 8-5.

In the area of Written Assessment, Harold was also quite successful. The team consistently placed students in the top four in the areas of Math, Social Studies, and Language Arts. Also, on several occasions, many of Harold's Written Assessment team placed in the top ten. The students who placed in the top four consistently, thus earning points for their team were: Steven Jacobs—Social Studies, Misty Stevens—Language Arts and Math, and Adam Newman—Language Arts.

EKAC ended the season with a tournament at Johns Creek. At the end of the day, it was obvious that the team had represented Harold well. They didn't finish the year the way that they had begun (in defeat). The Quick Recall team finished 3rd. Two students were successful in placing in the top four in the area of Written Assessment. Steven Jacobs placed 1st in Social Studies and Jennifer McKinney placed 4th in General Knowledge. The points accumulated by the team by the end of the day were enough to give them 3rd place overall.

Harold's Academic team met with much success as the Jenny Wiley League season began in November. The Jenny Wiley League consists of the teams from Floyd county. Several students ranked in the top four slots: Misty Stevens and Angel Lawson in Math; Adam Newman and Misty Stevens in Language Arts; and Brian Parker in Social Studies and Science. An added piece of excitement for the team was that the Quick Recall team was undefeated in the league this season.

Probably, the highlights of the year came about during the time spent competing in the KAA Governor's Cup Competitions. This consisted of District and Regional competitions, with the top teams advancing to the State Governor's Cup Competition held annually in Louisville. District competition was a total success for the team.

QUICK RECALL: 1st FUTURE PROBLEM SOLVING: 1st OVER-ALL: 1st

The following students finished in the top four, resulting in advancing to Regional competition.

• MATH: Angel Lawson and Misty Stevens

• SOCIAL STUDIES: Steven Jacobs, Beth Lawson, and Brian Parker

• SCIENCE: Jennifer McKinney and Brian Parker

• LANGUAGE ARTS: Misty Stevens and Adam Newman

• GENERAL KNOWLEDGE: Jessica Flannery

The entire team then advanced to Regional competition, where again, they did well.

QUICK RECALL: 2nd FUTURE PROBLEM SOLVING: 2nd OVER-ALL: 2nd

Two students placed in Written assessment; Steven Jacobs and Adam Newman. These two young men, along with the Quick Recall and FPS teams traveled to Louisville in March to represent Harold at the State Governor's Cup Competition. In Quick Recall, Harold Elementary advanced to the 2nd round after defeating J. Stuart Middle School, the #1 seated school from Louisville. Adam Newman ranked in the top twenty students from across the state. Also, the Harold FPS team ranked in the top twenty.

Harold Academic team

Recent, eight members of the Harold Academic team, coached by Bonnie Ward, traveled to Shelby Valley High School to the awards banquet for EKAC (the East Kentucky Academic Conference).

In this conference, Harold competed with teams from Pike, Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin counties. Although the competition was difficult, Harold's team still stood its ground. Three members of the team accumulated enough points to be one of the top seven students from each subject area, forming the All Conference Teams. In Language Arts, two students from Harold helped from the All Conference Team; Misty Stevens and Adam Newman. Steven Jacobs was a member of the Social Studies team. Also, in Mathematics, Misty Stevens ranked in the top seven, placing her on the Math All Conference team.

Also, at the banquet, subject trophies were awarded to the teams which had accumulated the highest number of points in each test area. Harold received three trophies; first place in Language Arts, fourth in Mathematics, and fourth in Social Studies. Several other students helped in the accumulation of points for these trophies, although they didn't place in the top seven. Language Arts tests were taken by Misty Stevens, Adam Newman, Jennifer McKinney, and Angel Lawson. Steven Jacobs, Brian Parker, and Beth Lawson took tests in the area of Social Studies. The fourth place Math trophy was earned by Misty Stevens, Jennifer McKinney, Angel Lawson, and Jason Salisbury. A trophy was also given to the top four teams overall. The points accumulated in Written Assessment and victories in Quick Recall decided the overall teams. Harold received a fourth place overall trophy.

Heritage on the Hill

Clodeen Prater, Dianna Akers, Charles Duncan learned about Appalachian cooking as Patsy Evans, director of Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center, watched.

Days of wonder on "the hill"

Two special events were held at Betsy Layne High School during the month of April. Students got a chance to think about their future with Career Day. They also got a chance to reflect on the past when Heritage on the Hill was held.

More than fifty members of the community, jobs ranging from store managers to doctors, came to share their career experiences with the students. Each student got a chance to spend thirty minutes with the three careers of their choice where they could ask questions about the career.

Betsy Layne High School was honored to have four special guest speakers: Greg Stumbo, state representative, Janet Stumbo, Supreme Court Justice, Charles Neeley, Dept. of Transportation, and Dr. Deborah Floyd, President of Prestonsburg Community College.

Heritage On The Hill was a day for the students to learn more about their heritage in Appalachia. Senior citizens from Betsy Layne, Prestonsburg, Johnson County, Martin, and Wheelwright came to share their wisdom with students, as well as faculty.

Conservation efforts

The Duff students encourage everyone to help protect and conserve our precious Earth!

"Duff Elementary participates in Earth Day"

In remembrance of Earth Day, Friday, April 22, the students, faculty, staff, and parents of the James A. Duff Elementary School participated in Earth Day.

An on-going beautification process was begun a couple of weeks ago at Duff and will continue.

Landscaping was begun by contributions of truckloads of dirt by Randy Martin, a Duff Elementary parent volunteer and tilling was done by Fred Shepherd, Duff Elementary friend. Marvin Salisbury constructed new flower boxes, being assisted in completing these by the 8th grade boys.

Each student in every class K-8 either brought or were given a flower to plant.

Supporting this project were: the Duff Family Resource Center, K-Mart in Paintsville, Unique Floral at Stone Coal, Mountain Comp. Care Greenhouse in Prestonsburg.

Assisting, donating and/or volunteering for Earth Day were David Crisp of Crisp Landscaping in Prestonsburg and Ann McQuire.

Earth Day activities at Martin Elementary School

In celebration of Earth Day, the students of Martin Elementary participated in many activities during the week of April 23-April 27. Some of the activities were:

Bumper Stickers Designing in which the students designed their own bumper stickers using an Earth Day theme. Mr. Shepherd, art teacher, helped the students with this activity. The bumper stickers were judged and the winners are as follows:

Primary: Winners were Casey Bartrum and Shaun Sexton.

4th and 5th: Winners were Joey Chad Samons and Polly Crum.

6th through 8th: Winners were Josh Stanley and Amanda Cole.

Recycle Day was held on Friday, April 29th. Students recycled materials in many creative and imaginative ways. Their creations were put on exhibit in the school library. Winners for this educational and enjoyable event were as follows:

Primary: Joseph Ratliff, Stacia Slone, Terry Mullins, Eric Porter and Lindsey Anderson.

4th and 5th: Deanna Mullins.

Other activities that were enjoyed by the students were Green Day where everyone dressed in as much green as they could, Raptors Rehab Presentation, and many videos on ecology and the rain forest were shown during library visits and the classrooms. Students at Martin learned about ways to save our planet and had fun at the same time.

County Kettle

BURRITO BURGERS

6 tablespoons A.1. Steak sauce
1 (4-ounce) can diced green chiles
3 tablespoons dairy sour cream
1 pound ground beef
4 (6 1/2-inch) flour tortillas
1 cup shredded lettuce
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (2 ounces)
Shredded Cheddar cheese, for garnish

In small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons steak sauce, 2 tablespoons chiles and sour cream. Cover; chill until serving time.

In medium bowl, combine ground beef, remaining steak sauce and chiles. Shape mixture into 4 (4-inch) oval patties. Grill over medium heat for 5 minutes on each side or until done. Place lettuce in center of each tortilla; top each with burger, prepared sauce and cheese. Fold edges of tortilla in like a burrito; garnish with additional shredded cheese. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings

MEDITERRANEAN BURGERS

1/2 cup feta cheese (2 ounces)
1/4 cup A.1. Steak Sauce
2 tablespoons sliced ripe olives
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 pound ground beef
4 regular pita breads
4 lettuce leaves
4 tomato slices

In small bowl, combine feta cheese, 2 tablespoons steak sauce, olives and mayonnaise. Cover; chill until ready to serve.

Shape beef into 4 patties; grill over medium heat for 5 minutes on each side or until done, brushing with remaining 2 tablespoons steak sauce. Split open top edge of each pita bread. Place 1 lettuce leaf in each pita pocket; top each with burger, tomato slice and 2 tablespoons prepared sauce. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings

BLACKENED BURGERS

1 pound ground beef
5 tablespoons A.1. Steak Sauce
4 teaspoons coarsely cracked black pepper
4 kaiser rolls, split
4 tomato slices

In medium bowl, combine ground beef, 3 tablespoons steak sauce and 1 teaspoon pepper; shape mixture into 4 patties. Brush patties with remaining steak sauce; coat with remaining pepper.

Grill burgers over medium heat for 5 minutes on each side or until done. Top each roll bottom with burger, tomato slice and roll top. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings

SUPER CHEESEBURGER

1 pound ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green bell pepper
1 tablespoon margarine
2 teaspoons all-purpose flour
1/3 cup milk
1/3 cup diced processed American cheese (1 1/2 ounces)
1/3 cup A.1. Steak Sauce
1 cup shredded lettuce

In medium bowl, combine ground beef and onion; shape mixture into 1 (7-inch) patty. Set aside.

In medium skillet, over medium heat, cook and stir green pepper in margarine until tender-crisp; blend in flour. Gradually stir in milk; cook and stir until mixture thickens and begins to boil. Reduce heat to low; add cheese, stirring until melted. Stir in steak sauce until blended. Keep warm.

Grill blended over medium heat for 7 minutes on each side or until done. Arrange lettuce on serving plate; top with grilled burger and cheese sauce. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 4 servings

SAVORY STUFFED TURKEY BURGERS

1 pound ground turkey
1/4 cup A.1. BOLD Steak Sauce
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 cup prepared herb bread stuffing
1/2 cup whole berry cranberry sauce
4 slices whole wheat bread, toasted
4 lettuce leaves

In medium bowl, combine turkey, 2 tablespoons steak sauce, onion, thyme and pepper; shape into 8 thin patties. Place 2 tablespoons prepared stuffing in center of each 4 patties. Top with remaining patties. Seal edges to form 4 patties; set aside.

In small bowl, combine remaining 2 tablespoons steak sauce and cranberry sauce; set aside.

Grill burgers over medium heat for 10 minutes on each side or until done. Top each bread slice with lettuce leaf and burger. Serve immediately topped with prepared cranberry sauce mixture. Makes 4 servings

AMERICA'S FAVORITE CHEDDAR BEEF BURGERS

4 curly lettuce leaves

In small bowl, combine mayonnaise, steak sauce and horseradish.

Cover; chill until serving time.

Shape ground beef into 4 patties. Grill burgers over medium heat for 4 minutes on each side. When almost done, top with cheese; grill until cheese melts. Grill Canadian bacon over medium heat for 1 minute on each side or until heated through. Spread 2 tablespoons sauce on each roll bottom; top with burger, warm Canadian bacon slice, lettuce leaf and roll top. Serve immediately with remaining sauce for dripping. Makes 4 servings

A.M.S. chapter I teachers recognized

On April 25, A.M.S. Chapter I teachers received an award in Lexington recognizing them as one of the top 25 in the state of Kentucky.

Mrs. Janice Allen, principal, and Chapter I teachers, Mrs. Stratton, Mrs. Parker, and Mr. Hamilton were on hand to be recognized for this award.

The A.M.S. Chapter I program has undergone numerous changes this year. The teachers are collaborating with regular teachers to ensure instruction for Chapter I students without them leaving the regular classroom. Through this concept, positive changes have affected our total program.

Toyota's Kentucky plant named best in North America

Already renowned for producing top-notch quality cars, Toyota Motor

Manufacturing, U.S.A., Inc. (TMM) continues to establish even higher standards.

For the second year in a row and the third time in five years, TMM has earned the Gold Plant Quality Award based on results of the 1994 J.D. Power & Associates New Car Initial Quality Study. The gold award, created in 1990, recognizes TMM as the highest-quality auto manufacturing facility in North America. TMM earned gold in 1990, silver in 1991, bronze in 1992 and gold in 1993.

J.D. Power, a marketing information firm, ranks cars and plants by polling customers during the first 90 days of ownership to determine the number of problems in their new cars. The Toyota Camry, made predominantly at TMM as well as Japan, registered 63 problems per 100 cars, an improvement of seven problems over 1993. The industry average is 110 problems.

Based on this year's results, the Camry placed first among car models in the upper middle segment and eighth overall among all car models.

Joining the Camry among the top 10 models with fewest reported problems are five models made by Toyota and Lexus, which is Toyota's luxury division. Four are made by Lexus, including the top three, and the fifth is the Toyota Tercel.

Also in the top 10 is the Geo Prizm, made at a Toyota-General Motors joint venture in California called New United Motor Manufacturing, Inc. (NUMMI).

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT

C. A. NO. 91-CI-038 DIVISION NO. 1

Pikeville National Bank & Trust Company...Plaintiff VS. NOTICE OF SALE Berman Newman and Teresa Newman...Defendants

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the April 19, Term, 1994 in the above styled cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 23rd day of June, 1994, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, upon the terms of the successful bidder paying cash, or making a deposit of 10% of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for 30 days, the following described property, to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying in Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky, and more particularly described as follows:

Starting at county road at the entrance of the cemetery aligning with a steel post (marker) running with the cemetery road west 250 ft. to a corner marker (steel post), thence running east straight in line to a corner post of Jack Perry's line, thence turning North with Jack Perry's line (chain fence) 53 ft. to a corner, thence turning east and running 50 ft. to a corner, thence turning North with road 85 ft. to a place of beginning.

Being the same property conveyed to Donald Lee Johnson and Linda Faye Johnson, his wife, by General Warranty Deed, dated and recorded March 18, 1991, in Deed Book 345, page 407, records of the Floyd County Clerk's Office.

This property is sold subject to property taxes due Floyd County, Kentucky.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be Fifteen Thousand Seven Hundred Sixteen and Twenty Hundreds ($15,716.20) with interest at the rate of 24% per annum, with interest accruing at the rate of $10.47 per day from March 23, 1993, including the costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale and an attorney's fee of $500.00.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-5173 Major Revision No. 5

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.070, notice is hereby given that Buck Coal, Inc., 415 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653 has applied for a major revision to an existing underground coal mining and reclamation operation located 1 mile north of Craynor in Floyd County. The major revision will add 4.5 acres of surface disturbance, will underlie an additional 20.0 acres and will reclassify 9.9 acres of underground mining acres to surface mining acres making a total area of 932.7 acres within the revised permit boundary.

The proposed major revision area is approximately 1 mile west from KY 979's junction with Hamilton Branch Road and located southeast of Hamilton Branch. The latitude is 37° 27' 17". The longitude is 82° 39' 47".

The proposed major revision is located on the McDowell U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be affected by the major revision is owned by The Elk Horn Coal Corporation and Carmel & Walker Tackett. The major revision will underlie land owned by David Akers, Anna Newsome, Emit Howell - Heirs, Rockbridge Coal Co., Charlie Howell - Heirs, and Gustavia Howell.

The major revision proposes to reclassify underground mining acres to two (2) new face-up areas in the Elkhorn No. 1 seam and contour mining in the Elkhorn No. 3 seams. Also, acres are being added for with associated roads, pond, spoil fills, refuse fills, and additional underground mining acres in the Elkhorn No. 2 coal seam.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 2705 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date. 11.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-0238, Major Revision 2

In accordance with KRS 350.070, notice is hereby given that Progress Land Corporation, Barnett Tower, One Progress Plaza, St. Petersburg, Florida 33701, has applied for a major revision to an existing surface coal mining and reclamation operation located 0.25 miles East of Wheelwright in Floyd County. The major revision will not add any surface disturbance acreage or underground acreage to the permit area. A total area of 12.40 acres within the permit boundary will be unchanged.

The proposed major revision area is approximately 1.10 miles south from State Route 306's junction with State Route 122 and located 0.25 miles east of Otter Creek. The latitude is 37° 20' 18". The longitude is 82° 43' 09".

The proposed major revision is located on the Wheelwright U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map.

The surface area to be affected by the major revision is owned by Progress Land Corporation and the U.S. Corrections Corporation.

The major revision proposes a Post-mining Land Use Change to Industrial/Commercial for 6.52 surface acres.

The major revision application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 1346 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653-1468. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date. 11.
