This is March. It's basketball season. Time for the Big Dance.

And, Allen Central is going to the ball. When the Rebels take the floor next Wednesday evening at Louisville's Freedom Hall, it will mark the first time the Floyd County school has represented the 15th Region in the prestigious Sweet Sixteen high school basketball tournament.

Ordinance would give public a say

Proposed waste * collection vehicles; and prohibit the law requires public hearing on rate hikes

by Scott Perry Times Editor

Floyd County's besieged solid waste commission would be eliminated and replaced with a single solid waste coordinator who would answer directly to the fiscal court under an ordinance proposed by the court-appointed custodian of the solid waste academic contest

The ordinance, drafted by custodian Bob Meyer, would clarify the county's intent to establish mandatory participation in the program and would provide the fiscal court exclusive authority to set rates and oversee the waste disposal system. It would also allow for public input before rate increases could be enacted.

In a report issued earlier this month, Meyer suggested that the ordinance was necessary to replace one adopted in 1980 because of widespread confusion over the requirements of the existing solid waste law.

"Public perception that the (current) system is not mandatory is supported by the large volume of customers who claim that they have never received garbage services and consequently refuse to pay their bill...," Meyer wrote in a March 9 report to Circuit Judge John David Caudill. His solution to that problem was a recommendation that the county adopt a new ordinance. Like the existing ordinance, the proposed law would allow the issuance of franchises for solid waste services to private companies that meet stringent requirements. It would also permit the development of waste transfer stations; set standards for unregulated disposal or burning of garbage.

The proposed ordinance requires the implementation of a system for recycling and proposes a system of collection points for residents whose homes cannot be serviced individu-

Council's apparent intent to hire an economic development director.

At Wednesday's authority meeting, board member H.D. Fitzpatrick suggested that board members talk with Mayor Jerry Fannin about the issue. Fitzpatrick said that it was assumed that city council would contribute funds to the authority to assist in attracting industrial development to the county.

"It seems to be a duplicate of what the county is providing," Fitzpatrick said in reference to the city's plan to said he would make it a point to call hire an economic development director. "If they're going to put money there, give it to us and we can make better use of it."

Ordinance

Other than re-emphasizing and clarifying the mandatory provisions of the county's solid waste plan, the most noticeable difference between the existing law and the proposed ordinance is in the management area. The existing program was established as a quasi-governmental corporation, operated by a board of directors known as the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission. That board has authority under the 1980 ordinance to set rates and regulations for operation of the agency.

The proposed ordinance would replace the solid waste commission with a solid waste coordinator who would be appointed by the fiscal court, which would determine the coordinator's specific duties. The coordinator would be responsible for the day-to-day management of the county's solid waste program.

The new ordinance would also address one of the most volatile issues currently plaguing the county's solid waste program by establishing a method for public discussion on rate changes.

The proposed law would require a public hearing at least two weeks prior to the effective date of any significant change in system rules and regulations, or whenever a rate change is to be proposed to the fiscal court.

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said Wednesday that the fiscal court had received a copy of the proposed ordinance, but he did not know if the issue would be discussed today, Friday, at the regular monthly meeting of the court.

MSU summer schedule revised

Morehead State University has revised its summer school schedule and will open its first summer session a week later than previously announced, according to Dr. John C. Philley, MSU executive vice president for academic affairs.

The action was taken to enable the region's public school teachers whose school year has been extended as a result of the severe winter to pursue their education, he said.

Under the new calendar, registration for Summer I will be conducted Monday, June 13, with classes beginning on Tuesday, June 14, and continue through Friday, July 8.

Registration for Summer II will be Monday, July 11, with classes starting the next day and continuing through Friday, August 5.

"When we originally set our 1993-94 calendar, it was impossible to foresee that Eastern Kentucky would have the kind of weather conditions it has faced this winter," Dr. Philley said.

"By changing our summer startup date, we are making it possible for teachers in our service region to stay on track with their educational goals," Dr. Philley added.

A worthy proposal

by Scott Perry

An ordinance which proposes to revamp the way the Floyd County solid waste program operates merits comprehensive review by the fiscal court for a couple of reasons.

First, the proposal would remove a layer of bureaucracy by eliminating the solid waste commission and it would put the responsibility for running the program where it belongs...with the fiscal court.

A single solid waste coordinator would be appointed by the court to handle day-to-day operations with duties prescribed by the court.

The second and most important reason for considering the new law is a provision that requires public hearings on any and all changes in the rules and the rates that apply to waste dis-

As the court has undoubtedly learned from the recent rate debate, the public has a keen interest in matters that affect their pocketbooks.

In the past thirty days, we have learned more about the condition of the county's solid waste program than we have since it was initiated in 1980.

We owe our new-found knowledge to court-appointed custodian Bob Meyer, who has waded around the politics and to the heart of the matter.

We knew going in that what Meyer would find would not be all good news.

But any news is better than none when taxpayer dollars are at stake.

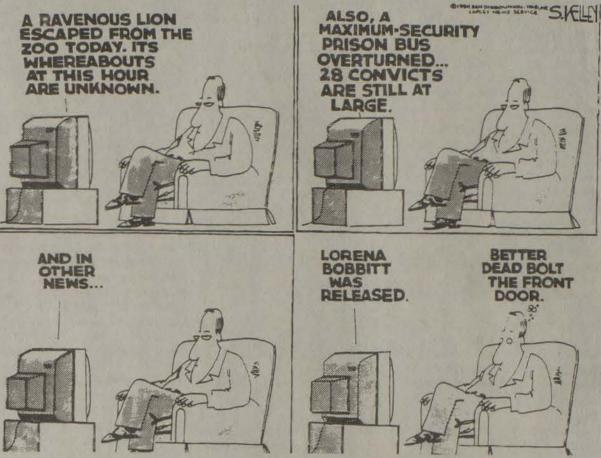

The county attorney, meanwhile, has taken issue with Meyer's appointment as custodian and, legally, he probably has the ammo to void that appointment.

If he succeeds, we'll probably be right back in the dark on issues concerning garbage dis-

But the court has another option. They can enact Meyer's proposed ordinance and appoint him or another with his high standards to the post of coordi-

And, they can open the door for public discussion on rates and regulations.

It's their move.

Health care plan is not a favorite of area seniors

As a member of the Seniors Coalition, I want you to know that most Seniors do not favor the Clinton Health Care plan.

Under the Clinton plan, senior citizens will surely face drastic cuts in Medicare coverage, lose their right to choose their own doctors, face long waiting lines, and possibly be denie life-saving medical treatment.

These matters are documented in a report, available at no charge, from the 2-million member Seniors Coalition. I urge you to contact the Coalition today at (703) 273-5449, get a copy of their report.

Legal battle over broad-form deeds comes to a quiet and just end

A 40-year legal battle over the use of broad-form deeds to mine coal came to a quiet, just end when the U.S. Supreme Court let stand a Kentucky constitutional amendment.

The amendment, overwhelmingly approved by Kentucky voters in November 1988, strikes a balance between those who own mineral rights and those who own the property on which those rights are located. The amendment came after decades of unsuccessful legal efforts to end an injustice that allowed owners of mineral rights through broad-form deeds to use any means necessary to recover those minerals-even if it meant damaging or destroying surface property owned by others.

The legal battle began in 1956 when the state's highest court ruled that broad-form deeds gave owners of mineral rights the authority to stripmine for coal over the objections of surface owners. During the next three decades, the Kentucky General Assembly approved several laws restricting the rights of mineral owners, only to have those laws declared unconstitutional by state courts.

Legislators finally concluded that the only way to restrict mining through broad-form deeds without violating the state constitution was to change the constitution; however, approval of the amendment did not end the legal challenge. Mineral owners claimed it violated their property rights. The U.S. Supreme Court's rejection without comment of their appeal apparently brings an end to the long court battle. Good.

The amendment does not deny holders of broadform deeds the right to claim their minerals. It simply says that they must use mining practices in use at the time the deeds were signed to recover those mineralsor get the approval of surface owners to use other methods. That's fair, reasonable and just.

Can't teach an old dog new tricks

You can't teach old dogs new tricks, especially if they're Democratic leaders in the Kentucky General Assembly.

In another blatant display of partisan politics, the House Democratic leadership last week punished Republicans once again for not voting the Democrats' way. Because they didn't support the health care reform act, some Republicans lost what are called "pork barrel projects" in their district.

The majority of these projects included renovations at state parks. These projects were taken away from the Republicans and the money was given to other projects in districts represented by Democrats who voted for the health care bill.

Democratic leaders can be a little hasty sometimes, but they are quick to correct themselves. For instance, when money was taken away from Ashland Community College because Republican Rep. Don Farley of Ashland voted against the bill, the Democrats suddenly realized that Democratic Rep. Rocky Adkins of Sandy Hook also represents a portion of Boyd, where ACC is located. The next day the funding was restored because Adkins supported the health care bill.

The same maneuvering occurred in 1990 when Republicans and some Democrats who voted against the now-infamous Kentucky Education Reform Act lost funding for similar building projects.

Democratic leaders don't deny playing politics. "It's the name of the game," said Rep. Marshall Long, the Democratic chairman of the House budget commit-

Kentuckians, though, should tell their lawmakers that they don't like this game. Wouldn't it be nice to see the General Assembly act in a courteous, respectful way. Doesn't a lawmaker have the right to vote the way he or she wants, and then not be chastised for doing so?

But, as previously noted, you can't teach old dogs new tricks. You can, however, throw them out of the dog house. - Paintsville Herald

The story of St. Patrick by Rev. David Powers, Sch.P.

On Thursday many people wore green, ate cornbeef and cabbage, and talked about the great potato famine that brought their ancestors over to this country in the middle of the last century. Yesterday was St. Patrick's Day, a national holiday in Ireland, and a much-celebrated feasting day in the United States. But there are still people in a divided Ireland seeking to destroy the very unity St. Patrick spent his life trying to build. So, just who was the man for whom the day is named?

Ironically, the patron saint of Ireland was born about 389 in Great Britain, most probably in a village in Wales called Bannavem, and was the son of Calpurnius Sucatus, a Roman-British municipal official, and Conchessa. At the age of sixteen he was kidnapped by pirates and sold into slavery in Ireland, where for six years he was assigned to care for a flock of sheep as its shepherd, probably in Antrim or Mayo. It was there that he learned the Celtic language, learned the science of prayer and contemplation, and was converted to the Catholic faith. Later he fled to France, where he became a disciple of St. Germain of Auxerre and visited his monastery on the island of Lerins, near Cannes.

He spent the next fifteen years of his life in Auxerre and was ordained a priest there about 417 AD. Pope Celestine I sent the venerable Palladius as a missionary to Ireland, but he died there within a year. Consequently, St. Germain ordained Patrick a bishop so that he could pick up the work started by Palladius. Patrick arrived in Ireland in 432. He traveled the length and breadth of Ireland meeting fierce opposition from hostile chieftains and Druids, whom he repeatedly overcame by miraculous means. One legend that is probably true says that he was once poisoned by jealous, Druid priests, but the poison had no effect; while another story that is probably not so true says that the Druids used serpents in their worship ceremonies, and to prove that there was only one, true God, Patrick took his staff and drove all the snakes in Ireland into

But the truth remains that he soon converted some of the chieftains, and he was very successful in adapting the gospel message to the Irish culture. For example, he is quite wellknown to have used the common, Irish shamrock as a means of explaining the mystery of the Holy Trinity, the unity between the three divine persons that are the one, true God. Again, it is ironic that in this day and age of northern and southern Irish terrorism, Ireland was the only country in Western Europe in which the early Church was established without martyrdom.

He visited Rome in 442, and in 444 founded the cathedral church of Armaugh, and it soon became the center of the Church's activities in Ireland. In the ensuing centuries Irish monks carried the Faith to England, France, and Switzerland.

A few years before his death, Patrick convoked a synod and turned over the government of the church to other bishops. It is believed that he died on March 17, 461, and was buried at Saul on Strangford Lough in Down in Ulster, where he had built his first church.

During his three decades in Ireland, he raised the standards of scholarship, encouraged the study of Latin, brought Ireland into closer relationship with the rest of the Western Church, and converted the Irish to the faith that they have so fiercely fought over and defended through the centuries. Although he was venerated in Ireland and England for many centuries, his feast was not listed in the Roman Calendar until 1632.

St. Patrick himself wrote in his Confession: "How did so great and salutary a gift come to me, the gift of knowing and loving God, though at the cost of homeland and family? I came to the Irish peoples to preach the gospel and to endure the taunts of unbelievers, putting up with reproaches about my earthly pilgrimage, suffering many persecutions, even bondage, and losing my birthright of freedom, for the benefit of others."

Like Saint Patrick, we should be grateful for our Christian heritage and strive not to harm, but to share with others the joy and the peace of our faith.

Suspects sought in drug store robbery

Kentucky State Police are looking for two men who robbed, at gunpoint, a drug store in South Williamson Wednesday.

One of the men entered the Family Drug Store in South Williamson around 8:35 p.m. and pulled a handgun on the 17-year-old son of the store's owner. The suspect then forced the teen to the back of the store where owner Larry Barnett, 38, was, Kentucky State Police records reported.

A second subject entered the store and tied up the younger Barnett. The suspects then forced Larry Barnett to put an undetermined amount of drugs into a box. The two tied up Barnett and left the store.

The suspects are described as white males. Estimated weight of one of the suspects is 140 lbs. He is described as being 5'7" and has long curly brown hair. He was wearing a checked flannel shirt and brown gloves.

The second suspect weighed 175 lbs. and was 5'10" tall. He was wearing a red shirt and black tennis shoes with white stripes. He also wore a Halloween mask of an old man with long white

Lawyer argues jailing executive would make iail a debtor's prison

Ajudge's order to jail a gas company president until he coughs up $2.1 million would turn the Pike County Detention Center into a "debtor's prison," a motion filed Wednesday with the Kentucky Court of Appeals claims.

The motion by attorneys for Larry Hunt, president of Pikeville-based Devco Energy Inc., seeks to prevent Pike Circuit Judge Charles E. Lowe Jr. from enforcing his February 25 order holding Hunt in contempt.

Lowe ruled that Hunt violated an August 2 agreed order to place the money in escrow pending the settlement of a lawsuit. The lawsuit, filed in 1992, by Devco founder Ray Carlson, accused Hunt and others of illegally stripping Carlson of his interest in the company.

Former 7th District U.S. Rep. Chris Perkins, an attorney for Devco, was ordered to appear today, Friday, before Lowe to explain why he shouldn't be held in contempt for allegedly lying to the judge about the case.

Hunt's whereabouts are unknown, and he has not yet been served with the order.

Devco's assets were sold last year to Global Environmental Industries Inc. of Austin, Texas, for 3 million shares of that firm's stock. Hunt was supposed to deposit 887,754 of those shares — or the equivalent of $1.2 million — with the Pike Circuit Clerk's office.

Perkins told Lowe during a hearing December 6 that Devco had not yet received the GEI stock. But records show Perkins had received 125,000 shares from Devco in October. — The Courier-Journal

You left a lovely wife and eight kids to

We still think about you every day, And we know it will always be that way. We think of the good times we shared, And then I remember the pain and agony you had to bear.

Daddy, I was with you all the way, Oh, how I wanted you to stay. But I didn't want you to suffer that way, And then we were kind of relieved when Jesus took you away. But sometimes we wondered why, And then I remember how you prayed

Oh, how we love and miss you so much, But one day we will be back in touch. Dad, when you died you looked better than you had in years, As I tried to choke back the tears. I remember you told me not to cry, When the day come to say goodbye. That you would be out of your suffering and pain, And that you had a heavenly home to

When I feel sad and start crying, Then I think of the reasoning for you

That you're with Jesus for evermore, And you're not in agony anymore. Daddy, that was a sad, sad day when we had to say goodbye,

But now I know why. God bless my daddy. Love, your daughter

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR UNCLE GORDON LEE CLARK

Gordon was much more to us than an uncle. He was with us from day one of our lives. He was more like a brother to us. He was definitely our best friend. Gordon always had a big smile and a twinkle in his eyes for us, or for anyone he met. He was a very special person.

Gordon lived for Jesus first, then his family and friends. He was a true child

Gordon was always there for his wife, children and grandchildren. He also was there for his nieces and their children, and he never did exclude any of us

We will never get over missing him. There will always be an ache in our hearts and a big void in our lives, because he is not with us here on earth

We will always wonder why this had to happen. Some day we will know the truth of this cruel and heartless deed.

Missed very much, (Buddy's girls)

My Funeral Message for Dad and Family:

IN MEMORY OF KENIS F. CLARK

1909-1994, husband of Martha Risner Clark, wife of 63 years.

February 25, 1994, Anchorage, AK

While I am physically so far away from your funeral today, I am close at heart. While your funeral services are in progress, I will be in Alaska walking along the ocean in the snow, wondering what you would have thought of this vast land and the mountains and ocean surrounding it and what you are feeling about us all down here.

Dad, I would never be able today to begin to tell you how much you are loved and missed. I know though that you are in a happier world today looking down at us. You are a whole and healthier person today then you had been on this earth. For this I am grateful. We all saw you suffer too much. Hopefully we will all be together again

I want to wish all my family the best today in my absence. I wanted to be there, but too many things keep me in Alaska. I, too, am very tired and the flight would be very exhausting. I will come home later to spend time with Mom and visit Dad's grave. I will have Kaye plant some rose bushes at your gravesite, Dad. You know that Kaye has your green thumb don't you?

Dad, I want to thank a few of the family for all that they have done for you and Momin these times wandered and was restless. Sister Jo, thank you for all the nice meals you cooked Dad and Mom, and for the years that you helped with Dad's feedings and care. Cousin Fed, thank you for all your visits to the house, the fresh foods you delivered and for loving your cousin so much. Mom needed your support, too. Aunt Rachel, thank you for being Dad's friend and helping these last five years daily with baths and moral suport. Novie, thank you for your daily calls to mother, good friends are hard to beat. Aunt Aggie, thank you for all the wonderful memories and being on the telephone daily with Mom, you are a good sister and good friend to Mom. Sister Shirley, thanks for all the wonderful foods you brought, the cleaning, the financial help and guidance. Brother Wayne, thanks for being there in the house at night to make Mom feel secure in the night. Thank-you Teen for being so good to sit with Dad. Thank-you sister Kaye for all the years in good times and bad for being there for Mom and Dad. Your kindnesses many and heart big. Brother Ray, thanks for the electrical help around the household and your visits home. Betty, I am glad that you got home in January and were there to help Mom in a bad time. Thanks! Larry, I am so glad that you, too, got home recently. Mom loves to see you come to visit. Thank you! Aunt Deli, I am glad you are in Kentucky. Mom's face lights up when you and Aggie come to visit. I understand the love for and between sisters. Thank-you Doctor Burchett for your home visits this month and your kind words to my mother. You did your profession and human kind a great service. I hope I left no one out. If I did be assured that Dad is appreciating all of us today and no thanks are necessary.

Mom-no thank-yous could be complete without saying so to you. You have epitomized the yows said at the marriage altar-for better or worse and in sickness and health. Mom, you gave to Dad so much love and care during his life and especially in his poor health. You gave 100 percent, neglecting your own health. You are a wonderful person, wife, and mother. I and the rest of the family are so proud of you, Mom. We are so glad you were there. Now, Mom, it is time for you to take better care of yourself, and family, it is time that we take better care of Mom.

Finally, I want to say something about you, Dad. You were a southern gentleman in every way. You were a gentle and loving father. I have wonderful thoughts of you today. I see you at the barn building a sled, shoeing a horse or mule, cleaning out the corn crib, raking hay, planting a tree, repairing fences. I can, too, see you walking around the curve and coming across the bridge all black with coal dirt after a long day in the mines. You were always quick to share a candy bar or cake from your lunch pail with your two young daughters. I see you at my bedside when I was sick. Your hands and touch so gentle. Thank you for that.

In later years, Dad, I can see you on your horse sitting so tall, on the road walking to church, or sitting outside on a bench talking to members of the family. You seemed happy and contented. I, too, see the love in your eyes that you had for Mom, Dad. You had wonderful sky blue eyes. We all learned something about love from you both. Your grandson, Barry, married a few days ago was proof of how a grandfather can influence the lives of his grandchildren by just loving them and setting a good example. Barry is like you in many ways, Dad. Don't worry too much about us, Daddy, we will be alright. We all have full lives to live—Mom, too. She will miss you greatly, but she has a great deal to keep her busy here. Aunt Aggie needs her daily telephone calls and laughter, and all your kids, grandkids and great-grandkids need her wisdom, strength and guidance. There are many yet unborn who will need to know her. She is a

We will all pitch in to look after Mom down here for you, Dad, as I am sure you will watch over her from above. Love us, Dad, as we will always love you. Walk in happiness up there Dad for we are glad that you are in a better, safer, and healthier world with loving people and God. Today, Dad, from me, your Glendora, I kiss your sweet face and memory from a far off place, but I am close. I will always be close to you. I see you, I feel you, I love you—Goodbye!

ow that scientific evidence suggests that our birth order might determine how we adjust as adults, being the second born of four girls is a pretty scary prospect. Somewhere in the dark recesses of my mind, I knew that our eldest sister, Melinda, was different. When I was barely six weeks old and she a mere nineteen months, she pulled me from my crib and dropped me on my head. (I know what you're thinking here, but it has never been clinically proven so forget it.) As I grew older, she abused me by twisting my hands and saying, "Doesn't she have the cutest little fingers." She'd also do this with my "cute little nose." Mother secretly hoped that one day I would be able to hold my own with Melinda, but since she grew to be five feet eleven inches tall, I never had the opportunity.

As the oldest, Melinda knows everything. At least she pretends to, and we let her continue with this fantasy because she's also the biggest. In sibling relationships, that's the general pecking order. Yet, the youngest of the brood also has a touch of know-it-all-itis, Amanda is the youngest. This is why we all babied her and gave into her every whim. By fulfilling her every need, she became ungrateful and spoiled. Her only ambition was to be the most beautiful woman in the whole world, and according to her husband - Amanda thinks she succeeded.

The third born, Jennifer, is the one that most people don't remember. There is a reason for this. No one ever saw her. She was merely an extension of my mother; her shadow. If my mother moved an inch, Jennifer made the move with her. Jennifer and Mother were so close, the federal government thought about issuing them the same Social Security number.

This is purely conjecture, but the second and third born children probably have the most problems. A second and third born didn't do anything first or last, A S.B., and T.B. (second and third born) didn't smile, walk, say "ma ma," or pattycake first. They were preceded by the "first" one or the "baby." Those are two tough acts to follow.

The first born has the most baby pictures, toys, adoring grandparents and has clocked more trips to the doctor than a hypochondriac, When Melinda was barely six months old, Mother rushed her to the Cleveland Clinic only to have the doctor diagnose a swelling of her nose as a "white head." On the other hand, Jennifer, the third born, fell out of bed when she was four years old and a neighbor had to tell mom three days later that Jennifer needed to go to the doctor because it looked as if her collar bone might be broken. It

The last born, "the baby," has lots of things, too. She has everybody else's toys because parents tell their children to "let the baby play with it." The only thing "the baby" lacks are baby pictures. By the time the baby comes along, the camera's missing or someone forgot to buy film. That's why we make up for it in other ways. "The Baby" goes everywhere with the older siblings, even if they're not invited. And the youngest, always, always, gets her way.

Somewhere in all this neurotic prattle is the omission of the fact that three months is about as long as I can go before I start to miss my siblings. With all their faults, I

Judds final concert

The women of country and a pop music legend make Saturday, March 19, a day of music on KET. Beginning at 5 p.m., KET presents Andy Williams in Concert at Branson, showcasing the famed crooner who has entertained audiences for almost 50 years.

In the special, Williams performs many of his greatest hits as well as two engaging medleys: a gospel tribute, backed by a choir, including "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands," and "Go Tell it on the Mountain," and a 1940s medley of classic big band standards, among them "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" and "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy."

Also featured are such Williams classics as "Moon River," "Canadian Sunset," "Call Me Irresponsible," and his familiar closing song, "May Each Day." The more than 20 Williams favorites included in this special serve as testimony to half a century of wonderful music.

Then at 8 p.m., KET presents a landmark television event: the farewell concert of country music's most famous mother-daughter duo in The Judds: Their Final Concert.

The Judds lived at the top of the country charts during their eight-year career, producing 14 number one singles and two double platinum albums, as well as receiving four Grammys. This concert from December 1991, which aired only on pay-per-view, serves as a retrospective of their music, spanning all their hits including "Give a Little Love," "Don't Be Cruel," "Love Can Build a Bridge," "Rockin' With the Rhythm," and "Why Not Me."

KET concludes the evening with a look at the top female country performers of the past and the present in a salute to The Women of Country, airing at 10 p.m.

Combining live performances by today's hottest country artists and interviews with the women who paved their way, this special traces the styles and influences that have been handed down to the current generation of country women.

Among those performing are Suzy
Bogguss, Emmylou Harris, Lorrie Morgan, Tanya Tucker, and Tammy Wynette. For the finale, MaryChapin Carpenter is joined on stage by 100 past and present women of country to perform her hit "The Hard Way."

The Judds: Their Final Concert was produced by the Ken Stilts Company.

Iowa child welfare officials have begun collecting past-due support from the paycheck of Rodney Darnell, 24, of Burlington, Iowa, on behalf of 7-year-old Eric Weber. A DNA test proving Darnell is not Weber's father was ruled "irrelevant" by authorities, as was the statement by the boy's mother, Elizabeth Weber, that Darnell was not the father. The state's case rests on a paternity ruling in 1987 that Darnell was the father, but he failed to attend that hearing because, he said, he was in high school at the time and had received no notice of the

If there's a month of the year more fun than March, we'd just like to know when it is.

What other month can give you sunny skies and 60 degree weather one day and two feet of snow the next?

What other month gives you a day when you can legally pinch anyone who isn't wearing something green?

What other month makes people in Kentucky forget how lousy things are in the world for as long as the Cats last in the NCAA tourney?

Heck, March is so much fun it even has a day set aside called I Want You To Be Happy Day.

And, don't forget St. Urho's Day, either.

Saint Urho may not be as popular as St. Paddy, but the folks in Scandinavia will never forget how he drove all the grasshoppers out of Finland.

Did you know that Jerry
Lewis was born in March?

He's a fun guy. So was Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

He's a funny-looking guy.

March also has National Goof-Off Day.

We're not going to tell you when it is, though.

Pick any day you like and don't do anything.

Next Friday, March 25, is National "Joe" Day.

That's a fun day when

That's a fun day when anybody with a strange name or just a name they don't like can call themselves "Joe" for 24 hours.

Wonder if Englebert Humperdink goes by the name "Joe" that day?

Hey, if we'd been named Englebert Humperdink
we'd be pushing for a National "Joe" Year.
Who'd name a kid
Englebert, anyway?

And, "Joe" Humperdink isn't all that much of an improvement.

The best thing about March, though, is the vernal equinox.

That's a fun day when Mr. Sun is positioned directly perpendicular to Mr. Equator.

We Average "Joes" call it the first day of spring.

Until the lawn mower was fixed, Lester did his best to keep the grass down.

The ritual of trading cars

Why is it that every time I get a bit of sunshine about the fact that I might actually get a nice car I always have Just recently (here I go again telling someone about it) I got an offer to trade my '89 Dodge Colt hatchback to a '65 Mustang. Now before you turn the page and check up on the obituaries, listen to how much better it gets. The Mustang has only 45,000 actual miles on it and it hasn't been tagged since '67. Now you may head back in it. But for some reason I just all A's-Sarah Allen, Thomas Green feel that I'm not going to get this. He told me about his berly Shepherd, Chad Slone, Lyndsay friend whom he had already talked to for me who had this classic 1965 Mustang and was willing to trade for my car. The questions that pop up in my mind is:

Does he know what an '89 Dodge Colt looks like?

What's wrong with the '65 that he's not telling me. Did a horde of rats die in the backseat?

Why am I driving to Indiana to trade cars?

I'll tell you why: Because it's a '65 and it's not going to be too many more years before a father can sit back and tell his son or daughter that he owned a '65 Mustang.

What I can't wait for is the time a discussion about cars comes up and I'm asked what kind of car I drive. When this pops into conversation, I will casually say that I own a Mustang and I'll say it in a way that let's people think you drive something that may resemble a tater wagon.

"What model is your Mustang?" They might say.

"It's an older model." By this time they are convinced you are driving a tater wagon. Then it's time to put on the final, sweet topping, "It's a '65."

Yes, it would be good almost too good to be true-that's why I'm not getting my hopes up about it. Besides, I'm starting to like my car. It may not be a Corvette or a Mustang, but it has a great place to hold my Pepsi. Should I really ask for more?

Dear Colin,

There's nothing like a nice warm bath to chill you out. I mean, it relaxes you even if the temperature of the water can confuse you.

That's exactly what's happening! Your body is sending confusing signals to your brain.

You Can even confuse your brain on purpose. This is a great thing to do with friends and family because other people can watch it and still be really surprised when it's their turn.

think about it first

Before you do the experiment, think about the steps you go through to fill up the tub, get naked and take a bath.

It goes something like this: Hand - turns on the tap. It gets warm.

Foot - stands on cold floor. It gets cold Hand - feels water as it gets hot. Hand gets warmer.

Foot - still on cold floor. It gets colder

Your hand gets used to being warm, and your foot gets used to being cold. Your brain gets used to it, too!

Bathwater will seem cooler to your hand and hot to your foot.

WHAT YOU NEED: 3 bowls big enough to put your whole hand in - ice water (with ice cubes) very hot water - room-temperature water

After 2 minutes, lift your hands out of the water and put them both in the middle bowl. Close your eyes. Try to tell what temperature the water is. Feel with your left hand. What temperature is the water? Now feel with your right hand. What temperature is the water? It feels both hot and cold at the same time. But how can that be?

GIRLS STATE TOURNAMENT March 16-19 Bowling Green, Ky.

CONGRATULATIONS TO the Allen Central Rebels and coach Johnny Martin upon winning the 15th Region basketball tournament this past Tuesday. I have known Coach Martin for several years and he always comes up with a strong tournament team. He is one of the finest coaches we have around the area and we are proud that he is at Allen Central. The Rebels will practice until they face Shelby County Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. in Louisville's Freedom Hall.

"I don't know anything about Shelby County," confessed the Rebel coach. "But I have friends in southern Kentucky that I can get information from."

Besty Layne played Shelby County (21-10) earlier in the season and defeated the Rockets in the Frankfort tournament.

Allen Central find themselves in the same bracket as Clay County and Louisville Fairdale.

"We can beat Clay County," said the Allen Central coach, " if we get to play them."

After the game Tuesday night, the crowd just didn't want to go home, and they kept celebrating. It certainly would be nice for the players, as well as the coach, to see that much excitment at all home

Allen Central had the largest following in the gym, but Pike County Central was a close second. The new school quickly won the hearts of the fans, and they supported them to the end.

Pike Central David Rowe is a class act. He certainly did a great job of coaching these two teams rom Mullins and Johns Creek and bringing them together.

The folks at Pike Central should be very proud of the job he and his staff have done. Joe Marson and Eddie Bevins has been a big help, Allen Central will lose four seniors from this year's team, but has some talented players waiting to take their place next year.

It was a great tournament. Lots of excitement. Jody Sword, David Bolen and Joe Back did a great job overseeing the events. There were no serious incidents and everything went smoothly.

The hospitality room was excellent. Those who had charge of that room were the most popular people in the gym. What a feast!

If only they wouldn't play that jungle music over the PA system - folks like to sit and talk with one another while they wait for the game to start. The music is cranked up so loud that you cannot, cannot hear the person sitting right next to you.

I heard a lot of people complaining about it - not just me. I suppose the younger generaton appreciates it, but it doesn't have to be so loud.

Well, I'll be in Bowling Green this weekend to take in the girls' state tournament. Then it will be on to Louisville for the boys' clas-

Someone asked me if I am looking forward to basketball season ending so I might get some rest.

I have logged a lot of miles and attended many basketball games. But, you know, I enjoy it. Sure I get tired, physcially. But I enjoy being around the kids and covering the games for them.

That's the fun part, giving them the recognition they deserve. We have some very fine kids in the county and I just want to do what little bit I can do for them. That is another thing that drives me. I appreciate them and the entertainment they provide me.

But high school baseball is on the horizon (March 28) and I look forward to that. I am just going to enjoy the boys state tournament and get ready for the cry, "play

Allen Central Rebels: region's best

Martin scores 27 as Rebels slip past Pike Central, 84-67

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Fans, players, teachers and parents started dancing and celebrating Tuesday night at Allen Central, and the celebration hasn't ceased yet.

The Allen Central Rebels and fans with a huge hug. had a lot to celebrate Tuesday night when they defeated the Pike County Central Hawks, 84-67, to win the Boys' 15th Region Basketball Tournament and move on to the Sweet Sixteen in Louisville's Freedom Hall. It was the school's first regional championship since its beginning in 1973.

The Rebels will face Shelby County (21-10) on Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Jason Martin tossed in a gamehigh 27 points to lead a scoring parade for Allen Central that placed three players in double figures.

It was the best game of the season for senior center Phillip Patton, who had a season-high 21 points and pulled down 13 rebounds. Patton dominated in the middle and took several Jeremy Hall passes for easy layups.

Hall finished with 19 points but dished off 15 assists. Senior forward Steve Turner turned in solid performance with eight rebounds and nine Freshman Thomas Jenkins scored only eight points but played a strong defensive game coming up with two block shots.

It was a big moment in the coaching career of Johnny Martin.

"A big moment for me and a big moment for everybody on Right Beaver Creek," he said. "It has been 21 years since the school came into existence and this is our first regional championship."

Allen Central took control of the game early and established a lead, but had to fight off a gamed flock of Hawks in the fourth quarter as they started flapping their wings in the final stanza. "Pike Central fought hard in the game," said Coach Martin, "and that's the reason they are here. They did a great job. They stuck to their game plan and we were fortunate that we scored 84 points on this team."

The Rebels posted the 17-point win but had to fend off a late surge by Pike Central. Allen Central led 56-48 after three quarters only to see the Hawks cut the lead to four, 58-54, with just over five minutes remaining. David Edmunds hit two free throws at the 4:48 mark for the second four-point margin, 60-56.

But Allen Central extended the lead out to seven, 63-56, on a threepointer by Turner with 4:21 left.

After a free throw by Bud Barnette, Allen Central went on an 11-2 run to go up 74-59 with 2:15 remaining to be played.

The Rebel fans smelled a victory and a state berth in the state tournament, but the Rebels had to finish business.

Allen Central took their biggest lead of 18 points, 79-61, when Hall connected on two free throws at the

Jenkins hit two free throws for the final margin of 84-67. Coach Martin began to run in his reserves and welcomed each starter back to the bench

The Rebels donned their longawaited tee shirts as "Allen Central, 15th Regional Champions."

"This team never gave up," said Martin of Pike Central's run at them in the fourth period. "They really had some fight in them tonight. We had some lapses at times but, I don't know, they lost their concentration.

You put it on our backs this year picking the Rebels number one. No one knows how hard that is to stay number one.

"We've had our ups and downs with the pressure and all but it's just great to win it all," he said.

The Rebels opened the game with a quick 6-0 lead on two baskets by Martin and Patton's lay in. They took a 13-4 lead on a three-pointer by Martin, who just played sensationally. Allen Central held an 11 point, 22-11, lead after the first quarter.

Matt Carter hit two three-pointers in the second period as the Hawks closed to within four, 29-25, of Allen Central in the second stanza.

Some heads-up play by Pike Central kept the lead at four, 37-33, at the half. Barnette scored on a layup with time running out. And a basket by Edmunds off a Rebel turnover narrowed the margin to four points before the half.

Pike Central never led in the game and the game was never tied. The Rebels built a 10-point lead in the third quarter, 50-40.

Coach Martin said that it wasn't a pretty game, but they all count.

over but she is still reaping awards. Brown is an All-State Honorable Mention in the Kentucky Associated Press All-State Girls Basketball team. The squad was voted on by sports writers and sportscasters across Kentucky. "That's pretty good," said Brown upon learning the news at the finals of the boys' regional basketball tournament Tuesday night. "I'm thrilled to be an honorable mention."

Brown was the team's leading scorer and carried the team to a second consecutive Class A regional title and a second appearance in the Class A State Tournament. "That was the most exciting time in my high school career," said

Brown. "Winning the Class A regional and going to Richmond (site of the state tournament) again. "I dreamed of winning it again (Allen Central won the regional last year). Beating Phelps by one point in the semifinals was the biggest win for me." But Brown also had some disappointing moments in her lustrous career.

"When we lost to Johnson Central in this year's regional (63-62) was the biggest disappointment for me," she said.

Brown has not only been voted to the All-State Honorable Mention team but has been named to play in the Ohio/Kentucky All-Star game on April 8 in Portsmouth. "It's great being on the team," she said. "I was surprised when the coach came and gave me a letter naming me to the Kentucky team. "It will be great playing with and against some great players. I'm happy to be going.

will have three practices before the "I'm going to continue my career playing at Alice Lloyd College," she Brown has never been one to let her size discourage her from playing basketball. "Coach always told me if you can dribble a basketball, you can grow. That's all I did, learn to dribble a basketball. "I am proud to have gotten to play on a good basketball team. I worked hard to get where I am now and it will take a lot more hard work to get where I want to go."

Brown made her mark on the basketball scene when she almost singlehandedly defeated Betsy Layne in the championship game of the Floyd County Grade School Tournament. Brown scored 42 points in the game.

Hall has big game!

sters three and under and up to nine years old. A big day is planned, and all the activities will get underway at 11 a.m.

Events include a water balloon toss and a relay race that will require participants to carry eggs. That should be very "eggciting." Participants will have to run to the finish line balancing an egg on a spoon (Dale and Rick could do that).

The biggest bubble contest is sure to be a delight as kids always like to chew the gummy stuff. Another fun event will be the "bean bag in the bucket contest" Four buckets will placed in order from closest to the farthest, and participants will toss bean bags into buckets, receiving a certain number of points for getting the bag into each bucket. (I know that Rick and Dale can do that).

Who can kick a ball farthest? That will also be a part of all the day's fun when the kickball contest is held.

Ever run a three-legged race? Well, the kids will have a chance to run their first, and mom and dad will not want to leave the video camera at home for this race where two participants will have one leg each tied together. Wow, what fun!

Hey, get ready for the Olympics. All kids are urged to take part in the 50-yard dash. Should be some future track stars previewed here.

Tentative events include the chicken chase (have to find a willing Clark picked up her fourth personal foul with 4:17 left in the third quarter and got number five at the 2:50 mark. It was a tearful Clark who walked off the floor for the last time.

After three quarters, it was a 45-21 game. Hamilton scored the next 11 points for Betsy Layne on some of her "swoop" shots. The Lady Cats hit five of six free throws near the end of the game to keep the score at the final margin of 67-41.

"We played some very good defense tonight," said Coach Todd. "Our game style is to force the other team into mistakes. We did that. We really didn't change anything for the game. We are a pressing team anyway."

"I think this team showed a lot of character," said the Betsy Layne mentor. "They could have folded and given up, but they didn't and played a strong second half."

Rhonda Conn scored first to start the third quarter and Martin followed with a layup. But two turnovers gave Ohio County a break with three layups and it was 36-17 game.
