PCC advisory board splits over chair

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Prestonsburg Community College's Advisory Board may or may not have a new chairman after a heated meeting of the advisory board on September 15.

In question is the advisory board's power to vote with less than a quorum of the full board present and the voting power of faculty and student representatives.

Board member Paul Gearheart was elected chairman after the meeting's chairman H.D. Fitzpatrick, board member Daniel Greene, faculty advisor John Sammons and student representative Charles Raleigh Nelson left the meeting. Fitzpatrick attempted to adjourn the meeting, according to the minutes, and those members left the room. No vote on the adjournment was called and none was taken, the minutes reflected.

Fitzpatrick called an end to the meeting to seek an opinion from the University of Kentucky's Legal Department when the voting rights of the faculty advisor and the student representative for selection of the board chairman were challenged by board member John R. Triplett, an Inez attorney.

The minutes state that Fitzpatrick was nominated for chairman, but do not indicate who nominated him.

Daniel Greene seconded Fitzpatrick's nomination.

Triplett nominated Paul Gearheart for chairman. That nomination was seconded by board member Jean Hale.

The written minutes do not indicate that a vote was taken at that time on either nomination, but Triplett pointed out to the board members that the advisory board's by-laws, identified as KRS section 164.600, Item 2, indicated that Sammons and Nelson were "non-voting members."

The minutes implied that Nelson had been elected on September 15, "apparently in preparation for the meeting."

A discussion followed Triplett's comments, which was interrupted by a sharp personal attack by Daniel Greene on the integrity of PCC's president Dr. Deborah Floyd, the minutes recorded.

"I raised my hand to be recognized to speak and then amidst much confusion and debate, when I was recognized, I made the statement that if all this back door politics continues, I will ask for an inquiry into the role the president has had in the manipulation of this upcoming election for board chairman," Greene said in an interview Tuesday.

"Immediately prior to conducting the election, John Triplett pointed

Board names committee to name board for arts

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Members of the Prestonsburg/Floyd County Public Properties Corporation appointed a committee Tuesday to appoint a committee to oversee the operation of the Mountain Arts Center.

At Tuesday's special meeting, corporation chairman Sam Blankenship named Paul Hughes, Estill Carter, Bob Meyer and himself to the panel which will visit several similar organizations in Kentucky and surrounding states to get an idea about how to manage the facility.

Hughes, who is on the board of the Kentucky Opry, the catalyst for the project, told corporation members that the issue of naming a governing body for the facility needs to be addressed soon.

Hughes suggested that the arts center board of directors consist of seven members, and that members can be reappointed to the board. Three board members should be appointed to a three-year term; two board members to serve a two-year term; and two members to serve a one-year term, Hughes said. He explained that his suggestion was modeled after a similar organization in North Carolina.

Carter agreed with Hughes, and said that the arts center project "doesn't happen without the Kentucky Opry."

The arts center is in the beginning phase of construction and is expected to be complete in 12-15 months, Hughes said.

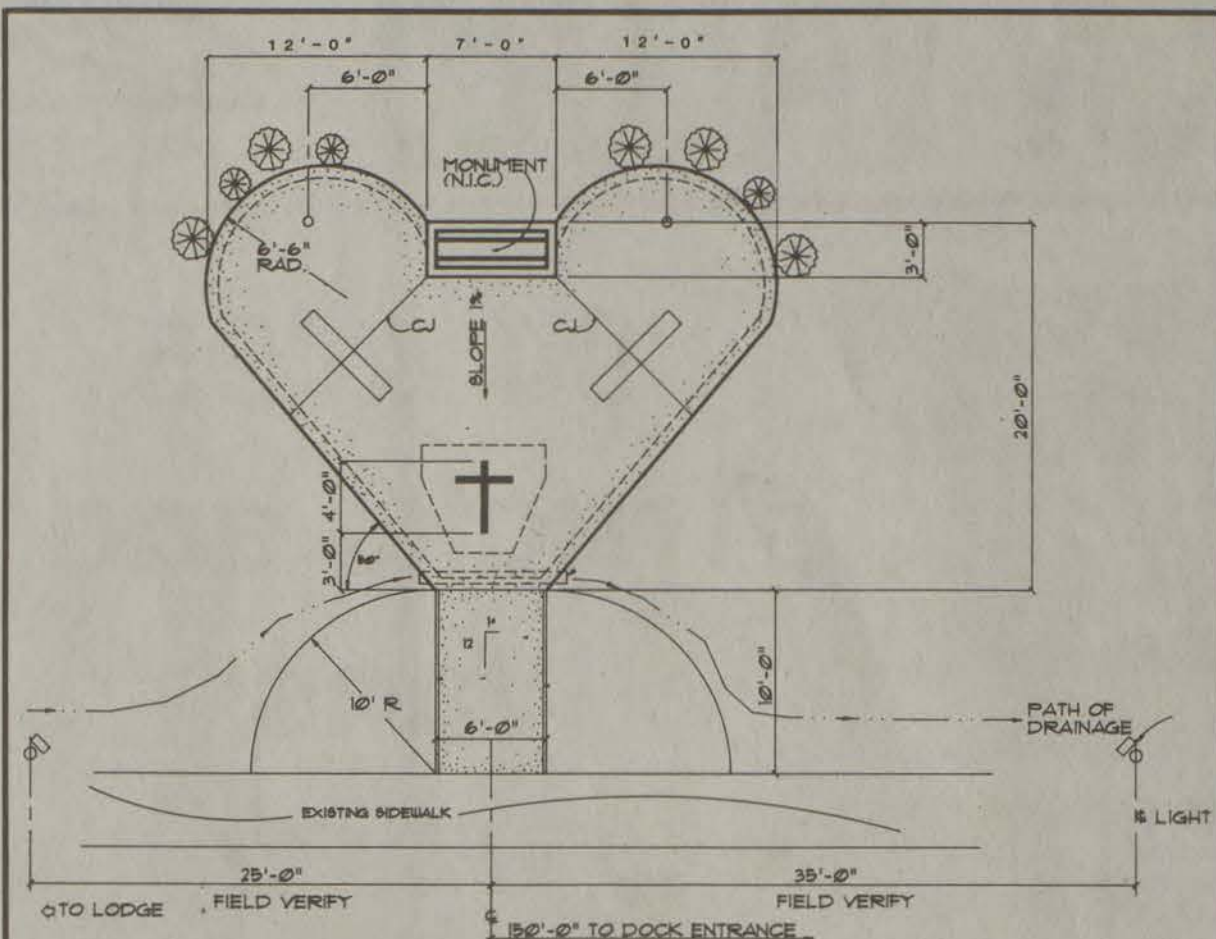

In other business Tuesday, board members heard from Billy Joe Hamilton, representing Baldridge Engineering, who explained that the construction site for the arts center had to be shifted 68 feet in order to get a proper grade to the building. Hamilton also explained the access road to the site would also have to be relocated.

The site shift could mean the elimination of a cul-de-sac for the project and cause the acreage of adjoining four lots to be recalculated.

The revision to the four lots is not expected to drastically change the acreage needed for an extended campus building for Morehead State University.

Blankenship said that MSU has an option for 2.2 acres of the site and

Memorial garden

Members of the Living Memorial organization are hoping that Floyd Countians will open their hearts and pocketbooks and donate to the construction of a memorial to honor the 26 school children and the bus driver who were drowned in a bus accident. Architect Randall C. Burchett designed the memorial at no cost to the group.

Shrine honors crash victims

At a ceremony held in February 1993 to remember the victims and the survivors of a bus accident in 1958, Prestonsburg attorney Woodrow Burchett said: "We have been through a season of shock, a season of distraction, and a season of hope. We are now ready for a season of remembrance."

That season of remembrance has begun.

Last week, the Floyd County Living Memorial organization received drawings from architect Randy Burchett depicting the design of the memorial to the 26 Floyd County school children and one bus driver who were killed when the bus they were in plunged into the Big Sandy River in February 1958. Twenty-one children survived.

Burchett's design of the memorial is a heart-shaped garden with a cross standing at the very heart of the memorial. Burchett, who offered his services free to the group, also designed a monument that will stand in the top center of the heart.

Ethics vote postponed, again

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg City Council postponed the second reading of a code of ethics Monday because no further discussion has taken place on the ordinance.

Mayor Jerry Fannin said after Monday's council meeting the issue was set to be discussed in a work session of the administration and personnel committee last week, but that meeting was not held.

That committee is expected to meet next week to discuss the code of ethics so that the issue may be placed on council's agenda for the October 10 meeting, Fannin said.

Fannin said that he had no problems with the code proposed, but added that some council members had "problems with the financial disclosure" clause.

Under the city's code, elected officials, candidates for election, members of the city's various boards and commissions and all non-elected officers and employees who have purchasing power would have to make certain personal financial disclosures each year.

The contents of the disclosures would include information that names each source of income that exceeds $5,000 for the individual and their immediate family members.

Also, the code would require that an individual, who is required to file the disclosure, identify the source of any business ownership worth more than $10,000 and name any business relationship inside or outside the state which is anticipated to do business with the city.

Prestonsburg's ethics code is a replica of the Kentucky League of Cities proposed ordinance, Fannin said.

The state legislature passed a law this year that requires all counties and municipalities in the state to have an ethics code in place by January 1, 1995.

In other business Monday, Mayor Fannin announced that city utility customers will be seeing about a $10 per month decrease in gas rates. Fannin said the utility commission will charge 50 cents less per 1,000 cubic-foot of usage.

Fannin added that the utility department plans a $1.5 million renovation and would not have to borrow funds to complete that project. The mayor did not offer details of the renovation project.

In other action Monday, council: held first reading of a cable television franchise ordinance that provides for a 15-year franchise with Rifkin Communications Partners which operates CableVision in Prestonsburg; authorized proceeding with repairs and a flood control project at Archer Park as explained by Jim Rospopo, district conservationist for

Robinson given a five-year prison term

A Floyd County man convicted of reckless homicide last month received the maximum sentence Friday in Floyd Circuit Court.

Special Judge Doug Combs of Perry County, sentenced Larry Robinson of Prestonsburg to a five-year prison term for running over William "Bucky" Rose on Memorial Day 1993.

On August 26 a jury deliberated for almost six hours before finding Robinson guilty of reckless homicide, but they were unable to come to an agreement on a prison term.

Robinson had developed a relationship with Rose's estranged wife, Mary, and had followed them to Banner on the day Rose was killed, testimony at the trial revealed, Robinson ran over Rose when Rose stopped his vehicle, got out and approached Robinson's vehicle.

Assistant commonwealth attorney Dan Rowland argued that Robinson was in a rage and killed Rose intentionally.

Robinson's attorney, Steve Owens, argued that his client panicked and stepped on the gas instead of the brake pedal.

Judge Combs said that he was imposing the maximum sentence because of the nature of the crime.

Under state sentencing guidelines, Robinson may be eligible for parole after serving 12 months in prison.

Owens said he would not appeal.

Fate of local child abuse advocacy office in limbo

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Although 482 cases of child abuse were reported in Floyd County last year, the Prestonsburg office of the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse closed this month and its fate is in limbo.

Jill Seyfred, executive director of the Kentucky Council of Child Abuse, said the Prestonsburg office closed after its regional coordinator resigned and after it received an eviction notice from the landlord.

Janie Beverly, Eastern Kentucky regional coordinator, resigned, effective September 16. Beverly said she resigned because she felt she was left dangling by the council's board of directors failure to rent an office. She has worked out of her home since the office closed September 1.

The regional coordinator had received a year's advance notice from the landlord, Ned Pillersdorf, that her office space was needed for his expanding law practice. Beverly said Pillersdorf tried to locate a larger office complex that would allow ample space for both his office and the Council's office, but he was unable to find a suitable location, and Beverly got her eviction notice in July.

Beverly said she attended board meetings and presented possible rental properties for the office, but board members would not approve any locations.

"They said we can't afford that," she said. "There was nothing in the budget this year for our office."

Seyfred said the board had a hard time raising funds and that it cost $26,000 to keep the Prestonsburg

Rosenberg will meet Clinton at the White House

At the invitation of President and Mrs. Bill Clinton, John Rosenberg, director of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, will attend a reception at the White House on Thursday, September 29.

The reception, which will be held in the State Room, will commemorate the 20th anniversary of the formation of the Legal Services Corps.

The Appalachian Research and Defense Fund was established in Prestonsburg in 1970 and Rosenberg served as its director. At that time, it was part of a two-state program. In 1973, it became a separate corporation and Rosenberg became director.

Rosenberg will head for the White House from Berea where he will meet Wednesday with the 62 people employed in the 11 offices he heads in Eastern and South Central Kentucky.

One relative too many

You knew it was going to happen. It was as predictable as a politician's broken promise.

From that day in early February when the General Assembly spit up a local government ethics law with no minimum standards, it was a mortal lock that some political subdivision in this fair commonwealth would propose legalization of the very activities ethics rules should outlaw.

When and where were the only questions, and they were answered last week in Martin County. By a 4-2 vote, magistrates there adopted a draft ethics ordinance that would allow each county official to hire one member of his or her family.

Sure, you can argue that a "one relative per politico" rule is better than no rule at all. But that's true only if "family member" is defined broadly to include an official's extended family. (The narrow definition — limited to spouse and minor children — used in some of these ordinances doesn't do much of anything to stop nepotism.) In addition, a "one relative" rule is an improvement only if the ordinance bars public officials from swapping favors by hiring each other's relatives.

But quibbling over the details of Martin County's pro-nepotism rule just shifts attention away from the real issue: That a ban on nepotism is one of the basic requirements of any real attempt at ethics reform. Public officials must not be allowed to use your tax dollars to support a jobs program for their relatives.

Martin County proposes to make nepotism a legal right of public servants, a right guaranteed in the official black and white of an ordinance. That yanks ethics reform inside out, turns it upside down and mutilates it beyond recognition. It's history. Meat. DOA.

But you knew this was going to happen. It was predestined when state senators and representatives, motivated by a mixture of pique (at being forced to enact an ethics law for themselves) and fear (of the courthouse crowds back home), produced a local government ethics law that invites cities and counties to legalize unethical behavior.

Martin County's magistrates simply accepted the invitation.—

Writer fears we are living in last days

Editor:
We are living in the last days, from every indication it seems, the way the earth is.

Tornadoes, hurricanes, earthquakes, volcanoes, floods like never seen, forest fires, wars, drugs, murders, disease, famines, the news on T.V. It's awful that children are starving. Something must be done. These children may be black, but they are as precious as any. God loves them, and so do I.

What will happen next?

Jesus told His disciples when they followed Him up on the Mount, I will go now, but I will return.

Some churches don't preach the truth. Perilous times, II Timothy 3:1, Ezekiel 38:19 and 20, Matthew 24:7. The Bible warns of times like this.

Rev. Charles Finnie preached in Rochester, New York in 1959, 1,000 were healed and most of the city found Christ as their savior. If there is no cross, there can be no crown.

Why don't folks believe in God?

I can't understand it; they seem to be afraid to believe in Him. Maybe because they never met Him.

I don't have much of this world's goods, not near enough to mention; but when I stand before the throne I expect to get attention and see Him smile and say to me "Well done my faithful worker; though you've not gained a multitude, you haven't been a shirker."

I will exchange my cross someday for a crown. Amen.
I hope this editorial will help some one along the way!

"A debt is a debt—pay your garbage bill"

Editor:
I was born and raised in Floyd County and proud of it. I moved away to Ohio for 33 years and moved back to the county a year ago.

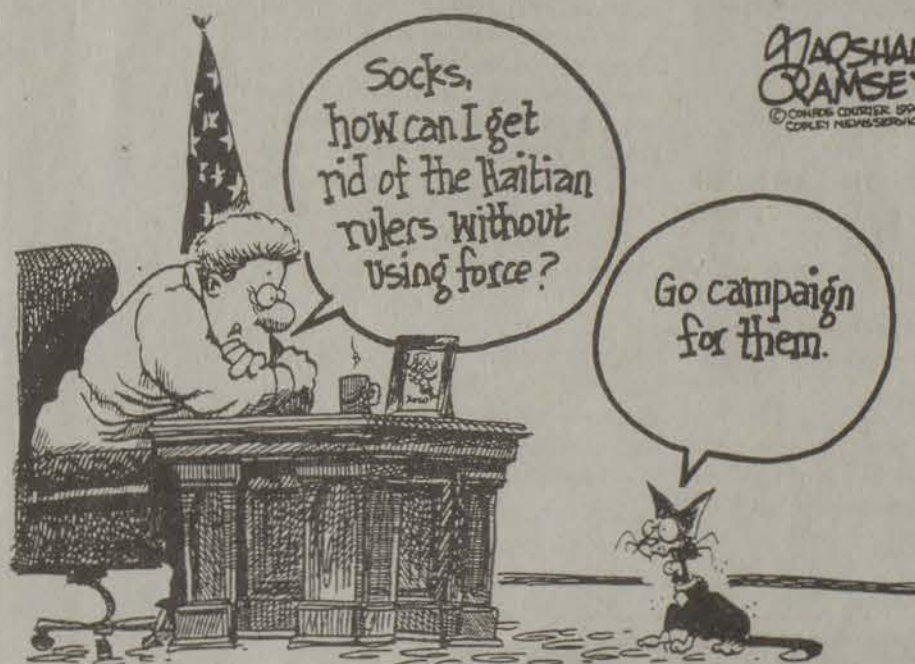

I paid my garbage bills to The Floyd County Solid Waste and Rumpke. Again, I read in The Times about the same old problem, 45 to 50 percent of residents will not pay for pickup. I know and understand. A few may not be able to pay, but the majority can.

If Rumpke stops pickup, no one else will be bothered with us and who can blame them. If you won't pay one company a debt you owe, you surely won't pay another for the same service.

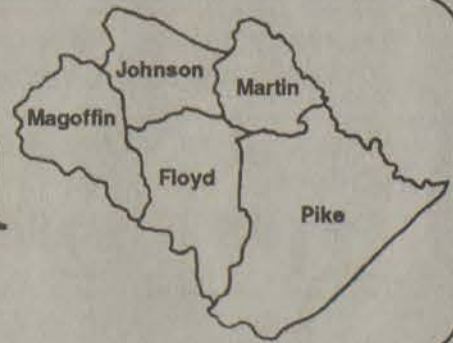

Property is sold for taxes owed. What is the difference? A debt is a debt. Every residence where garbage is picked up is owned by someone.

Ninety-five percent of the bad rap we get on the national news media is deserving. Wake up, Floyd County, and pay your garbage bill.

Pikeville woman dies in wreck

A Pikeville woman died Saturday night after a two-vehicle wreck at Taylor Hill on Johns Creek.

About 5:45 p.m., Eulah Mullins, 76, was driving a 1987 Chevy Celebrity west on Ky. 194 when the car hydroplaned, Kentucky State Police reports indicated.

Mullins lost control of her vehicle, crossed into the eastbound lane and struck head on with a 1974 Ford truck driven by Oscar Blackburn of Meta. Eulah Mullins and her husband Matt Mullins, 78, a passenger in the vehicle, were both taken to Pikeville Methodist Hospital and transferred to the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Eulah Mullins was pronounced dead there at 9:57 p.m.

Blackburn, who was wearing a seat belt, was also taken to the hospital. No seat belts were in use in the Mullins vehicle.

The accident remains under investigation by KSP Trooper John McMahan—Appalachian News Express

Magoffin schools drop idea of state takeover

Saying they want to deal with local problems at home, Magoffin County school board members dropped the idea of asking the state to take over the troubled district.

"We have got confidence in our county people," said board Chairman Randall Barnett. "We want to try to work it out on our own before that (a state takeover) takes place."

The Magoffin County School District has been in upheaval for most of the past two years, since state Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen filed charges against then-Superintendent Carter Whitaker and all five of the district's school board members.

Whitaker and the board resigned rather than face the charges, and Boysen appointed an interim board to serve until the November election. But according to Barnett, the problems didn't end there.

He said political powers have operated Magoffin schools in their own interests for so long that it's a way of life there. Barnett said he and the other four board members are trying to run a district "that will benefit the children...not the political people."

Twelve candidates are involved in heated campaigns to replace the five board members. Barnett and board member James Adams said the board considered the extraordinary step of asking the state to take over, in light of labor problems and rumors that have persisted since Whitaker left.

Adams said unfounded rumors about pay and other employee issues led to a case of "blue flu" last week, when several cafeteria workers called in sick. He blamed a threatened walkout by bus drivers on similar miscommunication.

Rumors about the district's fiscal stability have also caused problems, Barnett said. Teachers at one elementary school sent notes home with students, asking for donations to buy supplies. Adams said that the district is on solid financial ground and that the board hadn't been aware the school needed supplies.

Barnett and Adams said Saturday's meeting helped open lines of communication.

"We had a large meeting and a lot of people showed up and spoke their minds," Barnett said. "Under the old superintendent, a lot of people were browbeaten to the point where they wouldn't say anything."

State officials have said they're not even sure a district can request a takeover, but Education Department spokesman Jim Parks said the department would "take seriously" any request for assistance.

Adams said he doesn't think asking the state to intervene was ever a good option anyway. "I don't see that there is any reason for them to come in. It was just part of a discussion that we had about some problems we're having right now."

But Barnett isn't ready to drop the idea completely. "I really don't know what tomorrow will bring," he said.—Courier Journal

Martin ethics code would allow limited nepotism

Martin County officials could each hire one immediate family member under an ethics code given initial approval after Fiscal Court rejected a proposal to ban nepotism.

The ordinance would make the Eastern Kentucky county the first local government in the state to permit nepotism in a code of ethics.

The General Assembly enacted a law this year requiring city and county

Direct deposit now "preferred" method of payment

Direct deposit is now the preferred method of payment for Social Security, Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Black Lung beneficiaries, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area. "Beneficiaries with bank accounts will be paid electronically unless they specifically request to be paid by check," Kelly said.

Kelly said that current beneficiaries will continue to be offered the chance to switch to direct deposit.

At present, more than half of all Social Security beneficiaries receive payment by direct deposit. Direct deposit is safer, more reliable, more economical, and more convenient than receiving benefits by checks. Stolen checks, especially on a rural route, are a serious problem. With direct deposit you eliminate the risk of a stolen or lost check. Specific advantages include:

- There are no mail delays.
- Beneficiaries who travel do not have to make special arrangements to safeguard their checks.
- Direct deposit payments are traceable through the banking system. In the rare event of a problem, it usually can be resolved quickly.
- Problems associated with check cashing, i.e., proving identity, long bank lines, are eliminated.

"We are hopeful that direct deposit will eliminate the risk of loss and other problems for Social Security beneficiaries who depend on the monthly income for their basic needs," Kelly said.

Babbage discusses corporate reports

Floyd County corporations should check to see if the required corporate annual reports have been completed and forwarded to the Secretary of State's office, Bob Babbage said.

A total of 13,328 corporations are delinquent with their reports and have been mailed a 60-day notice, Babbage added.

Corporations failing to file the reports after receiving the second notice are subject to administrative dissolution by the Secretary of State according to Kentucky Law.

Agents for corporations can avoid reinstatement fees and dissolution by filing the required forms within the next 60 days, Babbage explained.

Babbage noted that the over 13,000 delinquencies were fewer than usual among the over 84,000 corporations which annually file reports with his office.

out the by-laws governing the advisory board, which outlined the voting positions on the board," Greene continued.

"This was put out on the table moments before the election was to take place, which basically blocked the faculty representative, John Sammons, and the student representative, Charles Raleigh Nelson, from voting," Greene said.

"Throughout the history of Prestonsburg Community College, those two positions have always voted. This was news to me (that they couldn't vote) and to several of the board members, as well as many of the faculty who were in attendance during the meeting. They have consistently voted for the last several years that I have served on the board.

"I feel an advisory board is endowed with the well being of the community college and the community, and the board should operate in consensus rather than one of lining up with particular votes on one side to block the other side. It's counter-productive.

"It does not foster full participation of key constituencies representing students, faculty and concerned community members," Greene said.

Greene said he is very disheartened by what happened during the meeting.

"I love the college. It's one of the finest groups of students and one of the most dedicated groups of faculty I've ever met.

"Mr. Fitzpatrick has done an outstanding job as chairman. He's always been supportive of the president and the faculty and has brought to the board a great deal of integrity and professionalism," he said.

Greene said Fitzpatrick postponed the election until legal advice could be sought from the university's counsel.

"Mr. Fitzpatrick further felt any continuing discussion on this matter was counter-productive and he brought the meeting to an adjournment," Greene said.

The four members of the advisory board then left the meeting.

After the departure of Greene, Fitzpatrick, Sammons, and Nelson, the remaining four board members voted and elected Paul Gearheart as chairman for the '94-'95 school year. Board members present during that voting were Paul Gearheart, O.T. Dorton, Jean Hale and John R.

Triplett. Board member Sammy Chaney was not present at the meeting.

Those four members do not constitute a quorum of a full board, Greene said.

"According to parliamentary procedures, a quorum is not based on a voting board, but on a full board. The full board does include the faculty and student representatives," he explained.

Greene said that when the bylaws were adopted in 1968, the board consisted of seven members, and four members would have been a quorum.

"The legislature added the faculty and student representatives. They do make up an integral part of the advisory board," Greene said.

At the meeting, Fitzpatrick and Greene indicated they would ask the University of Kentucky Legal Department for a ruling on whether Sammons and Nelson had a right to vote in the election for chairman of the board. Greene is also asking for clarification regarding the issue of the lack of a quorum.

In an interview Tuesday, John Sammons said that the written minutes are not a true reflection of the meeting.

"I think there's a lot of omissions," he said. "I think too many legal points have been raised due to the nature of the meeting that have to be cleared up before we can continue.

"Until someone proves to me otherwise, due to the technicalities involved in this issue, I do not consider that we have a new board chairman," he said.

A special meeting has been called for October 3 at 6 p.m. in the Johnson Administration Building, Room 132. On the agenda is the approval of the September 15 minutes, the appointment of a committee to revise the bylaws section on special meetings, and the election of vice chairman and secretary/treasurer.

The meeting is open to the public.

governments to adopt an ethics code by January 1 or lose state money. The codes must address standards of conduct, financial disclosure and nepotism. The law has drawn criticism because it did not establish minimum standards for the codes.

Martin County Judge-Executive Kelly Callaham said he wasn't surprised by Fiscal Court's rejection Monday night of his proposal to ban nepotism. "They just took offenses to it," he said.

Numerous counties and cities have begun working on the codes, but only Franklin County and the Johnson County town of Paintsville have enacted them, said Junior Wright, a state Department of Local Government official. Both codes prohibit elected officials from hiring relatives.

Callaham said some magistrates wanted no restrictions on the number of relatives that officials could hire, but the one-relative proposal was approved by a 4-2 vote.

Magistrates John Harmon and Oscar Jude Jr. voted against the revised code. Harmon has a son who works part time for the county's recreation department, but Harmon said he voted against the measure for reasons other than its nepotism restrictions.

"I think one member of your family is plenty," Harmon said.

In fact, he said, "I believe that nepotism (restriction) will be changed to zero" on Oct. 17 before the second vote on the ordinance.

Callaham's proposal also required officials and their spouses to disclose the source of any income over $5,000, but the magistrates raised the figure to $25,000.—The Courier-Journal

As I have been traveling through the county, I've met a lot of people who say "I've never been in court, what is the difference between Circuit Court and District Court?" I thought we would take a little time to explain the difference.

Most of us in Floyd County refer to "upstairs court" and "downstairs court." This is because the Circuit Court is located on the second floor of the courthouse and the District Court is located on the first floor. The jail is on the third floor and that is all we need to say about that!

District Court is the lesser of the two. It deals mostly with traffic tickets, misdemeanor cases and small civil cases like small claims court.

Circuit Court is the most important court any one of us will ever have contact with. Circuit Court handles the more serious cases, such as murder, rape, child abuse, robbery and burglary. Most importantly it handles drug cases and drug dealers. It also handles divorce cases, where decisions involving custody of children and domestic violence are concerned. Circuit Court handles property disputes, such as someone trying to claim your land and all cases involving $4000.00 or more.

A current Circuit Judge, who is a former District Judge, recently said "District court is not a training ground for Circuit Court, they are worlds apart." The job of Circuit Judge is important to all of us. I ask you to carefully consider which candidate has the experience necessary to make a good Circuit Judge, one Floyd County can be proud of.

Pikeville College announces campus landscaping project

As a means of continuing its campus beautification program, Pikeville College is announcing a project that will invite area citizens to become directly involved in the renovation of an important area of the college grounds.

The college currently is working with a local landscaping company to place 62 mature, flowering trees on the hillside facing Hambly Boulevard, between Record Memorial Building and Marvin Student Center. Many of the trees that once grew on this site had to be removed because of the construction of an addition to Record Memorial. Others were removed because they were deteriorating and might have become a danger to students.

The new trees, each of which will A Corps of Engineers fall forest fire prevention reminder

The Kentucky Fall Forest Fire Season will begin on October 1 and will run through December 15 of this year. During this period, the Corps of Engineers at Paintsville Lake is urging all park visitors to be extra careful with fire when visiting the lake.

The accumulation of dry ground litter combined with strong gusty winds and a careless person could result in devastation to the lake's surrounding forestland.

It is unlawful during the fire season to set a fire to any flammable material capable of spreading fire located in or within 150 feet of any private woodland or brush land, except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. to midnight, local time, or when the ground is covered with snow.

The Corps now reminds all visitors that at Paintsville Lake, fires are not permitted except when contained in fire grills designed especially for that purpose. When fires are built, care must be taken to completely extinguish them to prevent a restart that could get out of control. Smokers should also make sure that a cigarette is completely safe before it is discarded.

For additional information, contact the resource manager or ranger at Paintsville Lake at (606) 297-6312, Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. or write to: Resource Manager, Paintsville Lake, 807 Ky. Rt. 2275, Staffordsville, Ky. 41256-9011.

be six to eight feet tall, will be planted on both sides of the 99 steps and will be accented by appropriate shrubbery and flowers. They will include Canadian hemlocks, pink and white dogwoods, weeping Norway spruce, weeping cherry, Bradford pears, tanyo sho pines, and American redbuds.

The trees will be "sold" to the public for $150 each. This price includes the cost of the tree, all materials and labor involved in planting the tree, and accompanying flowers and shrubbery. Once the tree is planted, the college will assume responsibility for its care and upkeep.

When all 62 trees have been set in place, a large wooden plaque, containing a detailed watercolor painting of the hillside and a series of metal plates identifying each tree and its purchaser—or inscribed with a name and short message of the purchaser's choice—will be placed on the fifth level of the new addition to Record Memorial. Each of the trees in the painting will be numbered, and a corresponding number will appear on each of the metal plates.

"We're very excited about this project," says Gerri Kinder, director of external affairs at the college. "It allows the college and community to work together to help area young people get a quality education and to help make the city of Pikeville a more pleasant and beautiful place in which to live."

Mrs. Kinder also sees the project as a way for area citizens to pay tribute to relatives or friends who have had a special impact on their lives. "Each tree will stand as a living memorial. We want the hillside to become a place of honor in the years to come, and for each tree to be a beautiful reminder of someone very special, someone who is remembered with respect and love."

Mrs. Kinder says the trees also will be available to those individuals and groups who wish only to express their support for Pikeville College.

For more information about the beautification project or about purchasing one of the trees, call the external affairs office at 432-9326.

plus a brief history of the event, will be mounted on the stone monument, which stands about 4 feet high. The plaque also has 27 crosses to honor each victim.

The memorial garden will be located near the May Lodge and Wilkinson/Stumbo Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Park. Because of the narrow road and possible maintenance and vandalism problems, the memorial could not be placed near the site of the accident, said Virginia Goble, whose two sons, James Edward and John Spencer, and daughter, Anna Laura, died in the bus accident.

The monument will cost the committee $10,000 to build, Goble said. The group has raised $4,000 through donations and fund-raising activities. They need $6,000 more, and are accepting donations on a maple leaf quilt that will be given away at the Jenny Wiley Festival. The quilt, made by Becky Jarrell, whose children, Bucky Ray and Katie Carol were killed in the accident, will be on display at the Floyd County Library. Donations are $1. The committee will also hold a bake sale during the festival.

Donations may be made to Debbie Darby, P.O. Box 602, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, or by calling her at 874-2693.

As part of the Living Memorial, the committee has established a scholarship fund. Scholarships were awarded in June to Tonia M. Vance and Brandie L. Ousley.

Committee members are Francis Brackett, chairman, Ray Brackett, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Goble, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Darby, Mr. and Mrs. Linzie Hunt, Rev. and Mrs. Dan Heintzelman, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jarrell, Graham Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jack Darby, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keith Darby, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Vance, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Derossset, Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Estill Lee Carter, Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Allen, Zella Wells, Rev. and Mrs. Dave Flannery, Tina McFarland, Ned Pillersdorf, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stumbo and Johnny Ray Stumbo.

Fall is time for a flu shot

Crisp cool weather, fields of orange and gold, football and Thanksgiving are just a few of the things people look forward to with the approach of fall. Chills, loss of appetite, weakness, body aches, sneezing, coughing and a sore throat are of course something no one enjoys. Yet, each fall and winter hundreds of thousands of Americans are plagued with these symptoms of influenza.

Flu is the sixth leading cause of death in the United States. Flu-related pneumonia is the fifth ranked killer each year in people over 55. In 1991 (the last year for which figures are available), there were more than 129 million cases of flu nationwide resulting in nearly 250 million days spent in bed and almost 460 million days of restricted activity.

The best way to avoid getting the flu is to get a vaccination. That's why this fall the American Lung Association of Kentucky is launching a public information campaign to prevent flu by reminding people to get a flu shot.

The best time to get a flu shot is in October or November. Shots do need to be obtained annually since the virus strain that causes the contagious disease changes each year.

Flu shots are usually offered in a community through a variety of sources. How can you find out where to get a shot? The Lung Association recommends checking with your doctor's office, local health department, or pharmacist.

Shots are generally low in cost, plus Medicare now pays for flu shots. "This is a real boon since folks in the age range to qualify for Medicare are also in the high risk age group," said Lisa Newcomer, Health Education Director for the Lung Association.

According to the Lung Association, the category for those at high risk from flu includes anyone who: is 65 or older; has diabetes or a heart condition; suffers from asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis or other lung disease; or has any other serious medical problems.

needs to construct a 30,000 square-foot building.

Elimination of the cul-de-sac could make up for any footage lost due to the revision, Carter said, and should not affect MSU's plans.

The board voted for the engineering firm to draw an overlay showing the differences in land space and agreed to notify MSU officials of the change.

Also Tuesday:

- the board authorized the Big Sandy Area Development District, working with the engineers, to develop bid specifications and advertise for boring under a roadway, constructing a drainage ditch and to move the entrance to the facility;

- the board voted that the two front lots on the property contain no less than an acre of usable land and the back two lots be divided evenly; and

- the board agreed to revise the arts center budget on a recommendation by Big Sandy ADD representative Bob Meyer.

office open last year. The Kentucky Council on Child Abuse is a non-profit organization and receives funds from the state Cabinet For Human Resources, foundations, grants and special events. The Kentucky Council of Child Abuse's mission is to prevent child abuse, Beverly said. The council works to accomplish that mission through community programs, public awareness and advocacy.

Seyfred said the Council's board of directors was willing to rent another facility for the office, even though the rent was higher, but after receiving Beverly's resignation, delayed renting office space.

The board will look at hiring a full-time regional coordinator at its meeting in December, but will delay the decision to locate an office in Prestonsburg until January.

Projects through the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse will continue through the Lexington office, Seyfred said.

"We hope the residents won't see a drastic cut in services. We want to continue the wonderful work that Janie did, if that's possible. Janie, as an employee will be hard to replace," Seyfred said.

One project Beverly had organized before she resigned was a training workshop on preventing child abuse to be held in December for clerks, judges, attorneys, and anyone involved in the prevention of domestic violence and child abuse.

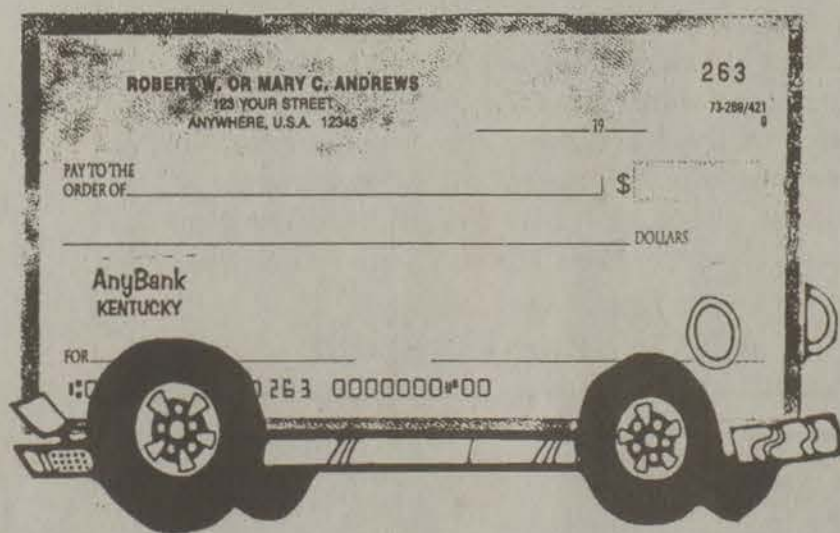

For more information about the workshop, or for more information about the prevention of child abuse, call the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse in Lexington at (606) 276-1299.

Clements named vice president of Human Resources for Consolidated

Consolidated Health Systems has named David Clements to the position of vice president of Human Resources.

Clarence C. Traum, president and CEO of Consolidated, stated, "Although this position involves corporate-wide responsibilities in all of our operations, the primary focus will be on the various Human Resources programs at Highlands Regional. Mr. Clements' extensive background in the field of Human Resources in both a corporate and a hospital setting will greatly enhance our overall employee programs."

Clements is from Omaha, Nebraska. He was a senior human resources executive for five years on the corporate staff for the Catholic Health Corporation, a system of numerous health care facilities with over 18,000 employees located in 13 states. In addition, Clements has more than nine years extensive experience in a 400 + bed medical center where he was directly involved in all areas of employee relations and in the development, implementation and management of compensation and benefit programs.

Clements has a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science/History from Hastings College in Hastings, Nebraska and has done post-graduate work in Public Administration at the University of Nebraska, in Lincoln, Nebraska.

When asked why he chose to relocate to a rural area Clements replied, "After many years of working in a metropolitan, big city atmosphere and spending many days of the week on a plane traveling to different facilities within our system, I wanted a less stressful lifestyle and really missed the day to day relationships with people in the hospital. I really enjoy working with the employees and look forward to being a part of the organization."

QUOTE OF THE WEEK...

In comparing Frank and Jesse James to two officials at the Fleming-Neon game Friday night, who were constantly throwing flags, South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels said: "I felt like a teller at a bank window with my hands up in the air."

BASKETBALL PRACTICE BEGINS
OCTOBER 15...

Football teams will begin the downside of their schedules this Friday night and basketball practice is scheduled to begin on October 15.

In talking with Allen Central coach Johnny Martin last Friday night at the football game, the coach said he is ready for basketball.

Coach Martin will return a strong ballclub this season, but may find the inside game lacking with the loss of all the tall timber from last year.

Prestonsburg will have a short, but quick, team. If you thought the Blackcats shot the treys last season, wait till this one starts. Coach Gordon Parido will have boys who are not too bashful about shooting the threes. The Blackcats could be a surprise in the region.

Betsy Layne will be just like the rest in the 15th Region —looking for some height.

Coach Keith Henry will be missing some key players from last season. The Bobcats return two starters from last season.

South Floyd will be young and inexperienced. But the talent is there for a solid team. Jelling, execution on offense, and hitting the boards will be (like all teams) imperative for the Raiders.

Coach Jim Rose will return some players who got to see playing time late last season. Don't count them out.

REBEL FANS SAY
THANKS TO MEEKS...

It was a happy group of Allen Central fans this past Friday night. Not because their team won (they didn't), but because Jeff Meeks of WXXZ fame brought in his crew to broadcast the game live.

Many of the Rebel fans were pleased that the Prestonsburg station's crew was on hand for their game.

Steve Jenkins, like other fans at the game, had his head phones on tuned in to the game while watching it live.

"Jeff does an excellent job of calling a game," said Jenkins. "I told him how much we appreciate him covering the game."

Why all the excitement over the coverage? Because Allen Central, like South Floyd, gets no radio coverage at all.

The folks at Allen Central say, "Thanks, Jeff."

PRESTONSBURG RETURNS TO ACTION...

After being off for a week from the gridiron, the Prestonsburg Blackcats return to the field to host the Shelby Valley Wildcats in a district game.

In fact, the remaining games on the Blackcats' schedule, with the exception of one game, are dis-

Let's talk basketball...

Paintsville Tigers, Allen Central in opposite brackets

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Depending on what camp you are talking with, the Paintsville Tigers and Allen Central Rebels are co-favorites to win the boys' 15th Region basketball tournament this season.

The Johnson Countians will tell you that there is no way that their Tigers can miss a Sweet Sixteen berth this year.

Coach Bill Mike Runyon returns a very, very talented ballclub that, on paper, has the appearance of a regional champion. But as many will tell you, the Tigers are going to miss the presence of point guard John Holbrook.

Allen Central, on the other hand, was hit very hard inside by graduation last year. The Rebels are the defending regional champions, but they return only two starters from last year's state team.

Jeremy Hall and Thomas Jenkins are the two returning starters for coach Johnny Martin. However, Kevin Stumbo made a big impression with his regular season play last year and in the state tournament.

The two ballclubs could get a shot at each other much sooner than the 15th Region tournament in March. The two ballclubs could meet in the championship game of the Class A regional that will be played at Pikeville.

The two schools drew separate brackets in the mid season tournament.

Allen Central, for the second consecutive year, drew Jim Rose's South Floyd Raiders in the opening game. Pikeville will play Elkhorn City in game two.

Paintsville faces Feds Creek in the lower bracket and Millard will square off against Phelps.

Fans from around the area are anxious to talk basketball and the talk usually includes the names of Paintsville and Allen Central.

Coleman tosses for 385 yards as Allen Central falls to Jenkins

Second-half adjustment cuts off passing routes; Stumbo scores twice

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

What Allen Central did well in the first half, they didn't do well in the second half. What Jenkins couldn't do well in the first half, they did well in the second.

Confused? Simple: Allen Central was hitting the receivers in the first half and failed to do so in the second.

Jenkins' coach Tim McCoy made an adjustment in his defense at the half and the Cavaliers shut down the passing game of the Rebels and posted a 46-32 victory to go 3-0 in district play.

"It was, basically, we were not getting in position in the first half against their passing game," said McCoy. "We made an adjustment and went to our 50 defense and were able to slow them down."

While Jenkins was having trouble with Allen Central passes, the Rebels went to the extremes in the second half on defense.

The Rebels slowed down the running game of the Cavaliers in the first half as they led 24-18 at the break.

But Jenkins came out in the third period and established the tempo by moving the football from the Rebel 42 into the end zone on a 16-yard touchdown pass from Ryan Gallion to back Shawn Williams. Brian Damron ran the two-point conversion to give the Cavaliers the lead for good.

But Coach McCoy said he felt his team wasn't focused when they arrived at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex.

"We had an attitude problem tonight," said Coach McCoy. "After last year, which got ugly at times, they thought Allen Central would lay down and they would run over top of them."

Allen Central lost 81-0 last year at Jenkins.

Jenkins took a 6-0 lead in the first period with 6:12 left to play. On first-down play from scrimmage, after the Rebels gave up the football, Mark Cvetnich galloped 66 yards for the game's first touchdown.

But it didn't take Allen Central long to tie the game when Coleman hit Estill Stumbo for a 27-yard completion and found split end Beau

The weather was perfect for the running of the second Paintsville cross-country meet at the Paintsville Lake last Thursday. Ten schools were represented as the boys got off to a quick start despite the gun not firing off. The Prestonsburg Blackcats won the meet for the second time in as many weeks. The meets are held each Thursday afternoon. Several of the teams will be going to Lexington for an invitational this weekend. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Robertson, Ratcliff place first in Paintsville meet

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Harold Tackett's Prestonsburg cross-country teams placed first and second in the Paintsville Cross-Country Meet held last Thursday at the Paintsville Lake.

Stewart Robertson posted a time of 19:14 to take first place in the men's division and to lead the men's team to a first-place finish.

Senior Jamie Ratcliff posted a time of 18:51 for a first-place finish for the women. The women's team finished second behind a good Paintsville squad.

Paintsville scored 29 points and Prestonsburg had 58 points for second place. Allen Central took third place with 85 points.

Prestonsburg placed first collectively as a team with 35 points for the men. The Blackcats had scored 26 points last week to win the first meet of the season. They are 2-0 on the year.

Allen Central took second place with 72 points and Lawrence County was third with 78 points.

The other finishers were: Paintsville, Feds Creek, Pikeville, South Floyd and Johnson Central.

Ryan Hardee, an eighth-grader who placed second to Robertson last year, had to miss Thursday's meet because of sickness.

Nathan Hardee, a senior, placed fourth overall in last week's meet. Hardee had finished third a week ago. Jessie Robertson, an eighth-grader, took eighth place with Jason Spurlock finishing tenth.

"Cross-country is much more challenging than football," said Spurlock. "I really like running cross-country."

Charlie Wallen, a sophomore, finished 12th overall with Joe Campbell, an eighth-grader, placing 15th. Matt Tackett, a sixth-grader, was 72nd.

"I don't think I am going to do to well today," Tackett said before the race started. Tackett's mom was in the audience.

Carolyn Jones, a junior, took 10th place for the women's team. Shelly Greathouse, an eighth-grader, was 12th overall.

"It was the first time that Shelly had ever run for us," said Coach Tackett. "She knows the course and how to run now. I look for her to move up the next time."

Heather Collins, a sophomore, finished 17th and Amber Leslie, sophomore, was close behind for 18th place. Jessi Burke, freshman, finished 23rd and Kelli Hansel, a sophomore, took the 25th spot.

"I think we will be able to send a team to the state this year," said the Prestonsburg coach. "Last year we

Racing resumes at Thunder Ridge with Skoal/Fast Lane night

After being plagued by rain for the last two weeks, stock car racing returns to the 3/8 mile dirt oval at Thunder Ridge Racing and Entertainment Complex this weekend.

Saturday night's Skoal Fast Lane Night at the races features a full program of racing as well as the Fast Lane Fast Dash for Late Model and UMP Modifieds.

The Super Late Models will make their first appearance since last month's $15,000 to win Thunder Ridge 100. The top drivers from five states will be on hand to compete in the $2,500 to win 35 lap feature as well as the $500 winner-take-all Fast Lane, Fast Dash for the top six qualifiers.

If a driver can complete a clean sweep of setting fast time, winning the fast dash, and winning the feature, he will take home a $3,200 payday.

The UMP Modified division will be competing in a full program of racing including a $600 to win 20 lap feature. In addition, the top six qualifiers will compete in a $300 winner-take-all Fast Lane/Fast Dash. Joining the late models and modifieds in Saturday's program will be Thunder N' Lightin' and Bomber divisions.

In addition to the full program of racing, the Skoal NASCAR Winston Cup race car and souvenir trailer will be on display throughout the evening. Also, race sponsors Skoal and Fast Lane will be on hand with product samples and door prizes.

Gates open for Saturday's races at 2 p.m. with qualifying for Bombers and Thunder N' Lightin' cars at 4 p.m. The Late Model and Modified divisions will take to the track at 6 p.m. with the first Fast Lane/Fast Dash taking the green flag at 7 p.m.

Grandstand admission prices for Saturday's races are $10 for adults

Robertson finishes third in Apple Day run

The 17th Annual Paintsville Apple Day 5K Run is in the history books but it will go in as a day of upsets.

Several of the top-seeded runners were surprised by the strong competition that showed for the prestigious race.

The top men's seed, Chris Fleming of Allen, and number two seed Stewart Robertson, found the pace of veteran Sandy Hook runner Martin Bess a little too much. Bess posted a winning time of 16:42 to nose out Phillip Caudill of Ashland and Robertson.

Caudill finished with a second-place time of 16:49 and Robertson was close behind at 16:58.

All three runners broke last year's winning time of 17:27 set by Randall Watts of Garner.

Bernie Carroll of Campton won the women's division with a time of 22:15, upsetting second seed Ashley Roe of Paintsville. Roe took third place with her time of 26:00. Kim Osborne was second overall at 24:30.

Fleming, who entered as the top seed in the men's division, placed fourth overall. Frank Stanley was seeded third and placed ninth. Rick Roberts was a fourth-place seed and had to settle for seventh place.

Robertson placed second in his age group of 15-19, behind Caudill. Roberts was third in the 35-39 age group. Fleming took first place in the 25-29 age group.

Crystal Martin, Allen Central, placed third overall in the 14-and-under division with a time of 28:47. Dreama Isaac was third in the 15-19 age group. Isaac had a time of 27:15.

Beverly Scissler of Prestonsburg placed first in her age group with a time of 27:15.

WXXZ to air Allen Central at Betsy Layne

WXXZ radio manager Jeff Meeks said that due to the positive response to his station carrying the Jenkins/Allen Central game last Friday night in the absence of Prestonsburg football, he will air the Allen Central at Betsy Layne game this Thursday (tomorrow) night. Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m.

"We are glad just to be able to do other Floyd County teams," said Meeks. "I felt good being at Allen Central last Friday night. We saw a good ballgame."

Meeks will do the play-by-play of the game.

It will be a busy week for WXXZ. The station will air the Shelby Valley/Prestonsburg district matchup Friday night and will return to Betsy Layne Monday night when Prestonsburg faces the Bobcats in an unusual Monday night game.

Allen Central

Tackett for a 42-yard touchdown pass to make it 6 even.

Jenkins powered their way through the Allen Central defense after an excellent kickoff return of 63 yards by Damron to put the ball at the Rebels' 24-yard line.

Chris Hall completed the drive with a 3-yard run that gave the Cavaliers the lead at 12-6.

The Rebels were determined to keep the ball in the air as they abandoned their ground game altogether. Quarterback Adam Coleman hit Estill Stumbo for a long gain, but a clipping call voided the completion.

But Coleman repeated the feat and hit Stumbo with a strike that covered 47 yards. He found split end Thomas Jenkins for a 17-yard completion that put the ball on the Cavaliers' 8-yard line.

On a rare running play, Josh Reeves fumbled the football at the two. The ball slipped into the end zone where Rebel center Jy Shepherd fell on the football for an Allen Central score to tie the game at 12.

With 9:54 left in the second period, Jenkins completed a 66-yard drive that concluded with Shawn Williams' 45-yard touchdown run that gave the Cavs the lead back at 18-12.

Allen Central, from their own 45, marched 55 yards for the 18-18 tie on a 7-yard touchdown pass by Coleman to Jenkins with 6:25 to play in the half.

The Rebels' defense stopped the Cavaliers for the first time in the half and Allen Central took over with 3:58 left to play in the second half. A clipping call on the Rebs on the kickoff pushed them back to their own 25-yard line.

Coleman hit Stumbo for 2 yards. Coleman found Jenkins for a 28-yard gainer, and a strike to Kevin Stumbo was good for a 36-yard pickup that moved the football to the Cavaliers' 9-yard line. After consecutive incompletions, Coleman found Kevin Stumbo in the end zone for the completion and a 24-18 Allen Central lead.

The lead lasted until halftime was over as Jenkins scored early to take a 26-24 advantage. Jenkins kept the lead to win 46-32.

Allen Central's final score came with 14 seconds left in the game. Kevin Stumbo took a pass from Coleman that covered 55 yards. A pass from Coleman to Stumbo completed the two-point conversion.

Coleman completed 22 of 40 pass attempts for 385 yards passing. Estill Stumbo had seven catches for 108 yards. Jenkins had 104 yards on six receptions.

Kevin Stumbo had four catches for 103 yards with Beau Tackett gathering in three catches for 57 yards. Gordon Reeves had two receptions for 13 yards.

While the Rebels were successful in the air, their ground game was another matter.

Allen Central carried the football nine times for a minus 50 yards. Seven of those carries were by Coleman and he was sacked six times for a loss of 50 yards. Josh Reeves carried once for a minus 1 yard. Tackett had one carry for a 1-yard pickup.

Coach McCoy said that he would like to see his team put together two good halves.

"We're a young team this year," he said. "And we have a long way to go. We play a different half of football each week. I would like to see us get a full game together one time."

Williams rushed for 138 yards to lead the Cavaliers' ground attack. Cvetnich had 103 yards, rushing with Damron finishing with 71 yards.

Gallion had two completions for 32 yards, giving the Cavaliers 357 yards on offense. Gallion was intercepted twice and the Cavs fumbled the football away twice. They were flagged for 40 yards in penalties.

Allen Central had 335 yards on offense and lost the football once on a fumble. Coleman was intercepted four times and the Rebels were penalized for 40 yards on six flags.

Allen Central did not attempt to run the football in the second half. After the change in the Cavaliers' defense, Allen Central failed to pick up a first down in the second half.

The Rebels had eight first downs in the game to Jenkins' nine. Jenkins could only manage three first downs in the first half to Allen Central's eight.

Mark Varney had two returns for 39 yards for Allen Central. Coleman had two for 49 yards while Estill Stumbo and Shane Blackburn had one each for 22 yards each. Gordon Reeves returned one kickoff for 11 yards.

Allen Central (0-5) faces Betsy Layne (1-4) this Friday at Betsy Layne.

Good for a score!

South Floyd's women's cross-country team competed at Paintsville Lake last Thursday evening. Team members include (not necessarily in order): Amanda Compton, Crystal Tackett, Jada Hall, Kristie Blevins, Cassie Hall, Tonda Floyd, Donna Sha Newsome, Stacia Stumbo and Tina Newman. just missed going, placing fourth in the regionals."

Coach Tackett thinks his teams are stronger this year and should make a strong showing in the regionals that will be held in Ashland on October 29.

Ratcliff was a distant winner in the women's division, crossing the finish line before Allen Central's Annie Harvey. She had an explanation for her second-place finish of a week ago.

"I got lost on the course," she explained, laughing.

Paintsville placed five runners in the top ten to take first place.

Kim Osborne(19:10) ran in third place behind Allen Central's Annie Harvey. Fifth place went to Ashley Roe (19:36) and Nora Lusk (20:09) placed sixth. Martha Kelly (20:13) and Cassie Cooper (20:35) finished seventh and eighth, respectively.

Dark side of baseball is exposed

by Leonard Larsen
Scripps Howard News

As sure as there's a baseball strike, there's a gush of nincompoopery about grievous national loss when the whole country is deprived of what's become major league baseball's everyday coarseness and excess.

Baseball's lapdog commentators feel called upon -- now as in the past -- to dust off condescending laments for the "faithful fans" whose boorishness nowadays often approaches that of the players.

Worse is the same intellectual foolishness that sets out for yet another time to tell us that our loss is beyond ball games not played, that it's actually damage to the national soul, a loss of some mystic perfection that's found only in major league baseball.

To read and listen to the intellectual sideliners who come out at the beginning of every season and during times of baseball crisis, football is just a game and so's basketball and hockey and soccer and every other team sport from water polo to potato-sack relays.

But baseball, they tell us from the sidelines, is more than a game.

It's not. Baseball is baseball, a game that can be exciting or dull, well played or poorly played, fine fun and interesting or a boring insult and a robber of your time, pretty much like other games.

It's not some lesson of life performed in the perfect geometry of a ball field whose divine dimensions were spelled out by a god who calculated all of it exactly right to last forever.

Baseball is a game, just a game like all the others and not a sub mystery of the meaning of life or of mortal man's struggle against nature and opposing pitchers who'll brush back mortal man if he crowds the plate to reach the curve that's down and away.

It's just a game and it remains a game, for all the romance with numbers and regurgitated oddball statistics that sideliners use to prove everything and nothing at all.

As if to show it's only a game, baseball is as badly infected as major league basketball and football with the cult of obscene celebrity in which conduct on and off the playing field is liable to and often does dip to the lowest common denominator.

It's a game in which players in the major leagues are not just boors but crybabies, perhaps when clubhouse luxuries aren't up to par or when the infield grass hasn't been mowed the way they like it and the dirt hasn't been raked just so.

The game is played -- and sometimes hardly ever played -- by highly paid athletes often so intent on the coolness of gloves and wristbands and diamond earrings and gold necklaces that any honest effort to play the game might diminish their practiced pose.

And it's a game in which those players are in the hire of wealthy dabblers who collect teams and players like earlier dabblers collected yachts and polo ponies, some seemingly interested now in baseball as a tax hide-away, a gold mine for crafty exploiters and a hunting ground for spectators.

These are the owners who plead hard times and poverty while other rich dabblers with the same financial intent fight to get in, willing to pay millions of dollars in bribes for expansion franchises into major league baseball's hard times.

With money following to most major league teams in amounts that any ordinary businessman would envy, the strike-launching demand by the owners is that players must aid poor owner management by accepting a lid on players salaries.

The owner logic is that a welfare system must be set up to support foolish baseball managements that have alienated hometown fans, discouraged TV owners and driven off advertisers, and that the players must bankroll the welfare.

Some of the gush that's been passed around during the baseball strike is actually pretty good advice, not that "more than a game" claptrap but suggestions that the mystical and perfect game can be seen in a lot of places, not just in major league ballparks.

One thing you might notice is that kids playing Little League ball and American Legion and high school and college ball and semi-pro baseball and minor league ball are rarely if ever the kind of boors that are now on strike against the boorish owners.

Unspoiled by the big leagues, they play it like a game, like it is.

Call before you dig

Getting ready to do some digging? If you're not careful, you could receive a bill for hundreds or thousands of dollars if you sever an underground utility.

Our bills to repair underground cables have run anywhere from $500 to $450,000.

Digging accidents are a major cause of utility and telecommunications service disruption, and there's no reason for that with services from agencies like Kentucky's BUD—Call Before You Dig—Center. One call to its toll-free number will alert South Central Bell and other member companies to locate underground utilities before you dig. That number is 1-800-752-6007.

In addition to being billed for damages for cable cuts, you could be fined up to $1,000 beginning January 1, 1995. That is when the new Kentucky Underground Facility Damage Prevention Act of 1994 will require all contractors to call the BUD Center and underground facility owners that are not BUD Center members before digging.

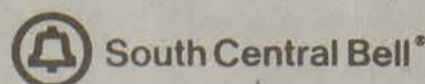

Never been a better time to try telephone features

Until the end of this year, you can try several of South Central Bell's Custom Calling services without paying the usual $15.50 connection fee. (Business customers' connection fee is $23.50.) There's never been a better time to see how South Central Bell can make your life a touch easier.

Custom Calling Services

- Call Waiting Lets you know someone else is calling when you are using your telephone.
- Three-Way Calling Lets you add a third person to your conversation.
- Speed Calling Lets you reach frequently called numbers by dialing only one or two digits.
- Call Forwarding Lets you transfer incoming calls to any telephone you can dial directly.

For more information on these or other South Central Bell features available to you, call your South Central Bell service representative toll free at 557-6500 for residential customers and 557-6000 for business customers.

A Look at Sports

(Continued from B1) trict games. Prestonsburg (1-3) will play an odd Monday night game this Monday night when they step out of the district to take on Betsy Layne at home.

The Blackcats have five district games remaining, and I say they will win all five.

After the grueling first four games, the Blackcats know what five of the next six games mean.

One optimistic person told me last week that Prestonsburg will make it to the final four (that means winning the regionals) and will play Danville at home in the final four.

I do believe that the region is wide open and any number of teams could win it, including Prestonsburg.

Lawrence County, Russell and Whitesburg have to rank there, also. Coach Chuke Williams has his Bulldogs playing some good football at Lawrence County. East Carter has been a surprise this season and they could win all the marbles.

South Floyd (0-5, 0-3) has three district foes remaining on their schedule. The Raiders will have to win all three to be in line for a playoff berth.

Elkhorn City (currently third) has two district losses.

The Raiders must face Jenkins, Elkhorn City and Allen Central in district matchups. Three wins would give the Raiders a 3-2 district record and at least a fourth-place finish in the district.

Pikeville and Jenkins are currently 3-0 in district play.

WEBB AT MCDOWELL, SPURLOCK AT CENTRAL...

It's good to see some standout basketball players of the past returning to take up coaching positions here in the county.

Henry Webb, who starred at McDowell and at Alice Lloyd, is coaching the boys' program at McDowell Elementary.

Kevin will be an assistant to Johnny Martin this year at Allen Central.

Both are fine young men and will be good for our programs.

RIDGE RUNNERS' FUND RAISER...

The Allen Central Track and Field Ridge Runners Club is holding line dancing classes October 3 and 4 at the Allen Central Gymnasium.

The classes will be from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. The cost is $3 per person. The proceeds will purchase equipment for the new track and field facility at Allen Central.

The Monday night dance class will be for beginners. More advanced dancers are welcome Tuesday night. Carol Allen is the instructor.

For more information, call Ina Robinson at 358-9560.

CALL-IN SHOW...

My good friend Rick Bentley, Sports Editor of the News-Express, is the host of a new sports call-in show over radio station WZOK (107.5).

The show airs every Sunday night from 6 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. The show will soon expand to an hour.

This Sunday night Rick will have local sports writers on the lines who will receive call-in questions. I was invited, but that is my church night.

Give Rick and the crew a listen. You will enjoy the show, I'm sure.

Until Friday, good sports everyone, and be good sports.

Caricature is rough truth.

Governor Jones proclaims Hunting and Fishing Day

Governor Brereton C. Jones recently proclaimed Saturday, September 24, as Hunting and Fishing Day in Kentucky to recognize the many significant conservation achievements of its sportsmen.

Jones joined a growing chorus of elected officials, communicators and a strong grassroots coalition of event organizers, stating: "Conserving our state's natural and wildlife resources is one of the most important responsibilities we have to this and future generations of Kentucky, and hunters and anglers were among the first to realize this responsibility nearly 100 years ago."

National Hunting and Fishing Day (NHF Day), now in its 23rd year, has recently seen a dramatic resurgence in public interest. This year the day focused on thousands of public events held at sportsman's clubs, shopping malls and outdoor fairs across America. "Though the reason for this impressive increase in attention and activity is not totally clear, were extremely encouraged," said Gary Kolesar, National Coordinator, "because it provides both sportsmen and the media with a unique opportunity to inform the general public about the value and relevance of America's outdoor traditions."

Last year, the governors of all 50 states issued proclamations to establish state Hunting & Fishing Days and a similar response is expected for 1994. President Clinton recently issued his second official National Hunting & Fishing Day statement, noting that "American sportsmen launched the modern conservation movement. Since that time, they have become America's most ardent and effective protectors of the environment..."

"Kentucky hunters and anglers...supported laws to stop the uncontrolled exploitation of wildlife and helped establish game and fish laws, enforcement and management practices," added Governor Jones. They also "suggested and supported laws to establish special hunting and fishing license fees and special taxes on their equipment to pay for conservation programs."

In 1993, Kentucky's 307,549 paid hunting license holders raised a total of $6,233,316 to fund wildlife conservation programs managed by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Hunting license holders also entitled Kentucky to $2,279,475 in federal funds for wildlife restoration and $801,173 for hunter education. The state's 633,950 paid fishing license holders raised $5,612,549 for fish conservation, entitling it to $2,695,508 for fish restoration.

"The conservation programs supported and financed by Kentucky hunters and fishermen have benefited hundreds of wildlife species from deer and wild turkeys to otters, bald eagles and songbirds—wildlife that all Kentucky can enjoy," said Governor Jones.

Additional information about National Hunting & Fishing Day can be obtained from NHF Day Headquarters, 11 Mile Hill Road, Newtown, CT 06470-2359, telephone 203/426-1320.

UK guilty on Dale Brown 'gifts'? Puh-leeze; Pitino fuming at Host?

Lemme see if I've got this straight...

Ex-UK basketball player Dale Brown accepted money and gifts from a friend of the family who fathered his sister's child. So grateful was Brown, he hired the man as an agent even though the fellow and his friends were not on an approved agents list by the NBA.

And the University of Kentucky is guilty of NCAA rules violations and might have to give back $550,000 from SEC and NCAA Tournament earnings?

Puh-leeze.

And the new car Rodrick Rhodes is supposed to be tooling around Lexington in? Facts are Rhodes went to his coach and UK athletic officials before applying for a loan and purchasing the automobile through an uncle who is employed by a carmaker.

Angered by Lexington newspaper accounts suggesting Rhodes' was a shady deal, a relative wanted to know "How come the newspaper guys didn't investigate last year when Travis Ford was driving a new car around?"

Hmm.

Let me crawl out on the same limb again. If the world has an ounce of honesty and integrity left in it—and sometimes I wonder—no legitimate NCAA rules violations are going to occur on C.M. Newton's watch.

PITINO 'BREAKFAST-GATE'

UK's basketball coach was livid after a fan scolded him for trying to profit ($18,000) from a children's school breakfast program.

State Commissioner of Education Thomas Boysen vetoed an advertising campaign which would have featured UK's coach encouraging youngsters to eat breakfast at school.

Pitino has a contract with Jim Host & Associates from which he receives a straight percentage from advertising projects not all of which he is consulted about.

"The kids breakfast deal never even came to his attention," a source close to the scene said last week. "If Rick Pitino had known about it, he would have done television and radio advertisements free."

Image-conscious Pitino was reportedly fuming with Host after being embarrassed by Breakfast-gate.

So, why didn't the UK coach set the record straight? Pitino apparently decided letting the mini-storm blow over was better than trying to explain.

UK RECRUITING

Kentucky may sign only one player during November's early window, 6-9 Oliver Simmons, a power forward at Nashville David Lipscomb.

But Rick Pitino is said to be "in good shape" to land three more during the April period.

Three?

Andre Riddick and Chris Harrison finish their eligibility this season. Pitino is calculating Rodrick Rhodes will make himself available for the NBA draft. And, Derek Anderson has agreed to be a non-scholarship player 1995-96.

As of now UK's recruiting focus is down to a dozen players "but 11 of them have not yet qualified," a source close to the program said last week.

A prospect that can play to Kentucky's advantage since some or all will be available in April. Meanwhile, when one or more completes ACT or SAT requirements, they can visit UK during the season, see a game in Rupp Arena.

Hunch here is, given his druthers, Pitino would most like to sign:

Ron Mercer, 6-7 swingman late of Oak Hill Academy. Mercer is said to be down to UK and Arkansas.

Luther Clay, 6-8 small forward at Maine Union by way of Oberlin, Oh.

Vince Carter, 6-6 swingman from Daytona Beach, Fla. Word is Pitino has gone to see him three times.

Others who have UK on their recruiting lists—6-9 Robert Traylor of Detroit, touted as college basketball's next best big man (probably headed to Michigan, Mich. State or Georgetown); 6-1 Stephon Marbury from Brooklyn, 5-9 (leaning to Georgia Tech); 5-9 Calvin Murphy Jr.; and (horror of horrors for Ralph Hacker) 6-9 Shareef Abdur-Rahim of Marietta, Ga.

Three juniors Kentucky is already in the hunt for—6-9 Tim Thomas of Paterson, N.J.; 6-2 Ronnie Fields of Chicago Farragut; and 6-9 Lamont Barnes of University Heights.

WHEN THE SCREEN ... GOES TO STATIC

"So, who do you think will be Kentucky's starting five this season?" a caller to WHAS's Sports Talk asked a guest last week.

Well... I said. And suddenly the screen went static. It was like My Old Kentucky Home and sign-off on KET.

With a jolt from Jock Sutherland, the computer 'came back up,' the names Tony Delk, Walter McCarty and Jared Prickett returned to the screen.

Whew. It's been a long summer.

UK STARTING FIVE I & II

UK starting five? Starting 10? Rick Pitino might have the luxury of two. Anthony Epps and Delk at guards, Walter McCarty and Rodrick Rhodes at forwards and Mark Pope in the middle.

Or, how about Jared Prickett and Antoine Walker at forwards, Andre Riddick at center with Allan Edwards and Jeff Sheppard in the backcourt?

Rhodes, if he has learned anything from two sometimes stormy seasons, should have a banner year. On the other hand, if the mercurial one gets off to another inconsistent start, he could become the finest sixth man in the college game.

JOCK SUTHERLAND

Rusty, but starting to get ready. That's Charles 'Call Me Jock' Sutherland, analytical voice of University of Louisville Cardinals basketball for WHAS. And unblinking antagonist of UK basketball fans "all over."

Last week it was my uh, good fortune to be in a WHAS-Radio studio with Jock and Van Vance taking caller questions about first, UK and UofL football for which I prepared, but soon enough, basketball for which I could not even (curses) think who might start for Kentucky this winter.

From Minnie in Indiana to Tim in Glendale, it was a laugh-in. Jock is a favorite sports 'character' of mine because he knows who he is, makes no pretense.

"I don't have the voice and I'm not any good on radio," he says. "I'm just me."

With Van Vance holding sway, it is enough.

Jock knows more about basketball than Dick Vitale and Al McGuire joined at the noggin with Dick Enberg. He understands sports folks because he is one. And he knows what fans really want when they listen and call—to be told something they can disagree with; and to be blithely dismissed as "just another one of those Go-Big-Blue-types."

Typically, Jock will lean back in his studio chair the way he did last week, grin at Van Vance and another guest, then wink, and roll his eyes up

Tough challenge for Archer Sports in Ky.

by Cliff Smith

With the season four games old, the 1994 University of Kentucky football team has been a surprising disappointment to coaches, fans, and commentators alike.

Unless some way is found to shore up its defensive line and linebacker corps, it could end the season 3-8 or even 2-9.

It began by losing to Louisville in everything except the final score: first downs 23-13, rushing yardage 215-197, passing yardage 215-116. Next it allowed Florida 592 total net yards (314-68 rushing advantage and 278-130 passing advantage). Then it gave up 650 yards and 8 touchdowns to Indiana, to say nothing of its latest contest with SEC foe South Carolina.

It didn't figure to be that way. Roger Sullivan and Robert Stinson at right defensive tackle are both 5th year seniors with 3 letters apiece. Last year, they were good against the run, less than that as pass rushers. Both have good size (Sullivan 6-4, 277; Stinson 6-4, 283) and strength. But they have been knocked off the line of scrimmage and/or effectively blocked out of the play consistently thus far this year. Opponents have run almost at will thru the right side of the defense.

Mike Schlegel, at left defensive tackle, has done some good things but again not what the coaches expected from him. Howard Carter, Jr., nominated for All-SEC honors at left defensive end, can forget league honors. He has failed to provide the leadership he was expected to give and has been largely ineffective, so much so his starting position is even questionable.

The linebackers, particularly the middle linebacker position, are too rarely making tackles, meaning that opponents are penetrating both the first and second layers of UK's defense.

In the first game against Louisville, free safety Melvin Johnson was the leading tackler with 12 stops. The next leading tackler was another defensive back, and two other defensive backs had as many tackles as any linebacker.

The scores simply reflect the worst UK defense in my memory. It has surprised nearly everyone, Coach Curry and Defensive Coordinator Mike Archer as much as anyone.

What is to be done? Mike Archer is about as good as they come as a defensive coordinator/coach. The adjustments he made during games last year helped assure some of UK's victories. The problem is that except for redshirt and true freshmen who show promise of being good ones in the future but may not be ready yet, it is his best defensive personnel who are being so badly beaten.

True freshman David Berringer (6-4, 281, 325 lb. bench press) has been moved up to play some at right defensive tackle. True freshman Lamont Smith (6-2, 215, 4.7 speed) is being carefully observed at linebacker. Other changes are likely or may have to be tried whether they work or not to be found out in the trying. It is not a desirable situation.

There have been some positives. The offensive line has consistently provided good pass protection and has begun to open a few holes for UK's talented running backs. It figures to do even better as the season continues, even though the opposition will be tough.

Antonio O'Ferral did a commendable job as quarterback in the Indiana game. Given time and clear trajectory to throw, his passes were mostly crisp and on target. Three of them went for TD's.

Isaac Curtis, with TD catches against Florida and Indiana, has shown the big play capability anticipated. UK has speed to spare among its receiver corps led by Clyde Rudolph (TD's against both Louisville and Indiana), Leon Smith, Randy Wyatt, Jaysuma Simms and Kio Sanford.

Brian Sivinsky made his first field goal attempt, a 48 yarder no less. Nicky Nickles' punting has improved from the first game against Louisville. Excluding one that was blocked, he averaged 44 yards per punt against Indiana. Kickoff returns are better than last year, though punt return yardage is minimal thus far.

The season isn't over yet, but it certainly hasn't been an auspicious start. Still, I am convinced better things are in store for UK's football Wildcats in the future, whether this year or not. More about this later.

(Cliff Smith is a freelance journalist who resides in Lexington.)

when a caller says "Yep, I'm a real big UK fan. I had a baby five weeks ago. Named him Travis."

Quietly, I wondered what the fellow's wife was doing five weeks ago, but Jock let the chance go by.

"This stuff ought to be fun," he says for the umpteenth time. "Most times it is fun, too."

This basketball season will be his 16th alongside Vance.

"Cain't wait," Jock twangs. "Absolutely, cain't wait."

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

Who's No. 1, really? Leon Puckett of Glendale (devoted Florida St. fan) writes: "Would it not be reasonable to assume that FSU, the defending national champion, should be ranked No. 1 in both polls as long as the Seminoles continue to go undefeated?"

"We all know Heisman Trophy winner Charlie Ward has graduated, but aren't great teams noted for defense as well as offense? Isn't scheduling also taken into consideration? Outside the ACC the 'Noles will play Miami, Notre Dame and Florida (all highly ranked). Is there any tougher schedule in college football?"

"Finally, 'my sources' in Tallahassee inform me that by the time junior QB Danny Kanell, and upcoming QBs Jon Stark and Thad Busby graduate, Charlie Ward will be a faded memory.

PS: No, I don't have a solution for UofL or UK, unless they could steal one of the aforementioned QBs.

COMMENT: As to reasonable assumptions—nobody said logic, winning streaks, defense and schedule have anything to do with polls?

Having been a poll voter, I know—writers and coaches—put far more stock in Sports Illustrated articles on cheating, and their friendships than who the best team might be.

This season, pollsters are:

1. In love with Tom Osborne (No. 1 Nebraska).
2. Consider Steve Spurrier (No. 2 Florida) a loud mouth jerk.
3. Believe No. 4 Michigan is poorly coached.

4. Think Joe Paterno (No. 5 Penn St.) is a sanctimonious dullard.

5. Suspect (know?) No. 6 Miami cheats.

6. Nobody likes Lou Holtz or No. 9 Notre Dame.

7. And feel betrayed by Bobby Bowden (No. 3 Florida St.).

That about explain how voting for No. 1 is done?

And so it goes.

STRIKE THREE
Now, I'll be the first to admit that I really don't understand all I know about this major league baseball strike. From what I've heard, however, nobody—or at least nobody I know—seems to care much one way or the other whether or not they ever play again.

Maybe the apathy from the fans stems from the fact that the general consensus seems to be that the whole mess is, as one reporter put it, the millionaires versus the billionaires. Then again, maybe it's simply because the football season is here and sports fans, being what they are, enjoy a good ball game regardless of whether the combatants are hitting it with a stick or kicking it.

I can't help, though, but think of my boyhood days in Muddy Branch and the role baseball played, both in my physical and social development. Of course, baseball then was merely a game played by children. I realize, too, that times have changed and that the 1940s are gone forever and so is my youth, and that neither can exist again except in my memory.

I can remember, though, when—as if by some prearranged signal—a couple of dozen of us would gather in the old schoolhouse bottom on those long summer afternoons to play ball. Whoever happened to be carrying the once-broken and heavily-taped bat would toss it to another player and they'd hand over hand, choose up sides.

One thing's for sure: I played a lot of baseball when I was a kid, and I enjoyed it. I wasn't particularly good at it, though, and I suspect that if we'd kept batting averages, a record of errors and other such stats, no one would ever have wanted me on their team. But, since it was only a game, we didn't. So, seldom did anyone ever fail to pick me because I wasn't much of a glove man or had fewer RBIs than someone else.

Therefore, I can remember with pleasure, and talk about my ballplaying days with a pride equal to that of the best-pitching, fastest-running and slickest-fielding Muddy Brancher of my day... or any other day, for that matter.

We played the game with a passion, but not only didn't we keep stats, we seldom ever kept score either. Scoring another run would simply mean we'd keep bats longer. Oh sure, someone would always attempt to keep track of who had how many runs, but it wasn't really official or anything.

"Is that 27 or 28?" Someone would ask.

"No, dummy. That's only 26," someone else would say. "Remember, Jimmy made an out. They's two outs you know."

"You're crazy! That's just one. That was last inning. Jimmy ain't batted this time, have you Jimmy?"

"I don't remember," Jimmy would say.

Jimmy didn't remember, because it didn't matter. You see, baseball, as I see it, was intended to be a

SMALL TALK LEADS FATHER TO BIG LESSON
The 80-year-old gentleman with the cotton-white hair grinned as he saw me and my toddler son walk past him.

I shook his hand as usual outside our church. We usually didn't say much more than "How are you?" This time was different.

"Good morning, young man," he said to me. "Enjoy that boy while you can. They grow up faster than you think. I didn't spend enough time with my kids when they were little and now I regret it."

He mentioned his years of long days at work, how making money seemed so important then. But his children grew up without knowing their father. His hard-charging blitz to get ahead put him behind with his family for the rest of his life.

"You can never get those days back," he told me.

Our chat abruptly ended when someone else spoke to him. That talk four years ago might have lasted four minutes at the most.

Thousands of other folks have talked to me since then and my brain erased most of those conversations long ago. Shucks, I'd forget my head most of the time if it wasn't attached to my shoulders.

But something about the way this man said what he said that day—the sadness in his tone, the dismay in the deep lines of his face—stuck with me.

Something I knew about myself told me I'd better let it stay there for good.

DRIVEN TO SUCCEED
I've always been the kind of person who had more drive than brains at times.

You've probably known people like me. Or maybe you might qualify as a "Type A" personality yourself.

At any rate, I only need five hours of sleep a night, and I'm lucky to get that much. I'm normally too excited about doing or starting something else to let rest get in my way.

When I was a 19-year-old freshman at Morehead State University, I worked 85 hours a week in two jobs with 17 hours of class. One of those jobs was being editor of the campus newspaper.

As disorganized as we were and as daring as I was back then, I once logged 51 straight hours on a special edition. I woke up on a Tuesday morning and didn't go to sleep again until Thursday. My girlfriend back then, the woman I later married, brought my meals to the office in brown paper bags.

"Joe, if you don't get to sleep soon," one of my friends told me during that stretch, "you're going to die. You're just going to die!"

It didn't happen, obviously. But by the time I hit the sack, the covers did seem to crawl toward me in waves.

Then there was the time a year later when I worked a full-time job, a part-time job and had 13 hours of class. From August through December I didn't take a single day off.

I slowed down some in later years, but I've still worked calendar months without days off. You could probably feed a small town with all the suppers I've had turn cold on me.

I'm starting to get the picture that what my two children want from me isn't a bigger home, a flashier car or even a new toy.

They just want me and my time.

"Don't work late, Daddy," my 5-year-old son will say to me before I head off on some mornings. I can't always promise him that I'll be home before he closes his eyes to sleep.

But I could assure him those words will haunt me when it's past time to come home.

Perhaps there are more pleasant sights in this world than seeing the faces of a 5-year-old boy and a 2-year-old girl light up when you get home.

But I haven't seen them yet.

I don't know that I ever will.

GIVING WHAT LASTS
My parents bought me a thing or two when I was growing up, but that's not what I've remembered most in the long run.

It's the rummy games my father and I played beyond midnight in our pajamas. The time my mother took me out for a burger to cheer me up in high school. That rare occasion my father went boating with me and how we'd listen to Freddy Fender songs on his 8-track tape deck.

Sometimes I wonder what my kids will remember about me when they grow up.

I know more late nights at work loom ahead. I know more home-cooked meals intended for me will go cold while I'm at the office.

And I know I'm bound to think of a wise old man's words from years ago:
"You can never get those days back."

He also presented each class member with a book of poems he had written over the years. All class members gave a brief account of themselves since graduation. Dr. Harry D. Stambaugh gave a tribute to all the outstanding, dedicated teachers who provided the class with guidance, love, and fear to stress the importance of an education. Driving tours from Prestonsburg to Hazard to Buckhorn Lake Begin your fall jaunt in Prestonsburg, home of Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, which is a great place to bed and board. Travel southwest on KY 80 to Hindman (on KY 160) and visit Hindman Settlement School on the forks of Troublesome Creek.

Founded in 1902, the school has folk dance evenings and workshops on Appalachian life and culture. The free tour includes the 1840s Uncle Sol's cabin and a slide presentation of folk artist Jean Ritchie.

Drive on KY 476 south through Fisty, Dwarf, and Bulan to Hazard, where you can tour the Bobby Davis Museum.

The hills of Eastern Kentucky are vivid with fiery fall hues, so enjoy them as you take KY 451 west to Buckhorn Lake State Resort Park.

Farmers could see tough times in next few years

by Becky L. Meadows
 KPA News Bureau Director

Kentucky farmers and lawmakers had better put the sides of their hands to their foreheads and look overseas if they expect to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again" anytime soon, according to a University of Kentucky agriculture expert.

If farmers think times are tough now, they have only worse things to expect in the next few years, Will Snell of the UK College of Agriculture told members of the state Tobacco Task Force recently.

"Yes, we do have problems," Snell said. "We're going to face some difficult times."

Snell predicted tobacco quotas in the state will continue to decline because tobacco stock on-hand has not dwindled at the rate it should. Each year, Kentucky's tobacco warehouses purchase tobacco from farmers and store it until large companies buy it, so tobacco grown and sold to warehouses this year may not be bought by cigarette companies or other groups until sometime in the future.

Snell's testimony before the task force was a continuation of gloomy predictions for tobacco's future that have some Kentucky tobacco farmers concerned. Tobacco is the state's main cash crop; last year, tobacco across the state sold for a total of about $900 million.

The future may be dark for the next year or two, Snell said, but it is not hopeless. Kentucky farmers and lawmakers need to develop more markets overseas to ensure a greater demand for Kentucky burley, he said. Kentucky farmers should also consider having a lower price for tobacco, an idea that usually makes some farmers frown.

"Obviously, with a lower price, you're going to move more on the market," Snell said. "But there are some farmers not willing to give a little on market price to get a marginal gain on quota."

If Kentucky tobacco farmers bite the bullet for the next year or two and take lower prices for their product to help clear out tobacco reserves, things could rebound afterward and return to normal, Snell said. Until then, farmers could invest more in other aspects of farming, such as livestock.

Rep. Lonnie Napier, R-Lancaster, asked Snell what types of alternatives Kentucky farmers have to tobacco.

"Recently a man from UK helped a young farmer in my district grow an acre of tomatoes. I asked the farmer, 'How many supermarkets will this one acre supply?' He said it would supply five counties.

"We cannot raise vegetables to do it," Napier continued. "It won't work. We cannot replace tobacco."

Sen. Virgil Moore, R-Leitchfield, told task force members how he had gone home several times during the regular session of the General Assembly this past spring to set tobacco. He had had a patch of tobacco die, so he set additional rows in his garden.

"Six weeks ago, I had declared my tobacco crop a loss," he said. "But today, I can say I'll harvest a fine tobacco crop because it rained six weeks ago. That's the kind of crop tobacco is."

Ladybird beetles gathering on sides of Kentucky homes

If Alfred Hitchcock had made a movie called "The Bugs" instead of the epic called "The Birds," he might have cast the ladybird beetle in the title role.

Ladybird beetles, a beneficial insect, arrived in Kentucky in large numbers last year and promise to visit the state again this year.

"Ladybird beetles do not bite or sting, are not carriers of disease and don't eat wood, but they can be a nuisance because of their proclivity to gather in large numbers on the sides of homes," said Ric Bessin, an extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Ladybird beetles are Asian in origin but have set up residence in the U.S. The first reported specimens in Kentucky were found in Hickman County in 1992; the first specimens recovered in the U.S. were collected in Louisiana in 1988. Their large numbers found in Kentucky last year suggest they favor the Commonwealth.

The ladybird beetle, according to Bessin, is an important predator of scale and aphid pests on trees in Asia. The oval, convex beetle is about one-third of an inch and sports up to 19 black spots on their pale orange wing covers. Some may have fewer or no spots, but they are the minority. The 19 spots are arranged with a row of five spots, followed by two rows of six and finally a fourth row of two spots; they are exotic looking.

Ladybird beetles congregate on the outside walls of homes in wooded areas in the fall, where they search for a site for overwintering. They usually select west and southwest sides of buildings for initial congregation sites.

Bessin points out that while the beetles are harmless, most people prefer that they not enter their homes. To keep them at bay, he suggests making certain that cracks along windows and doors are weather-stripped to prevent easy access. Ventilation openings in attics should be screened or sealed as appropriate.

Homeowners, however, should

Camp Shawnee fun

by Janice Shepherd
 Managing Editor

One group of young campers at Camp Shawnee this summer accidentally discovered an old-fashioned way to have fun — mud fights.

The mud slinging began after a group of boys had been swimming and a couple of them accidentally fell into a mud puddle. It looked like so much fun, the others jumped in, too, said Owen Wright, program manager at Camp Shawnee.

The mud fights were unplanned, but there were many planned activities for youth at the summer camp, including canoe and paddle boat rides, hiking, basketball, volleyball, and horseshoes. Campers began their day around 8:30 a.m. After showers, campers had breakfast in the dining hall, and then went, in groups, to their scheduled activities.

Of all the activities at camp, swimming was the highlight, according to the program manager. Trained lifeguards supervised the swimming, and children had to wear life jackets any time they were near the water, Wright said. Children also learned about water safety from the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Campers learned about Floyd County's Civil War history through a War Between the States Living History demonstration and lecture. They attended Jenny Wiley Theatre to see "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "Carnival," and they also went to the movies in Paintsville to watch "Angels in the Outfield."

Other activities included fishing trips, arts and crafts sessions, and tales around the campfire. One of their favorite stories was "some big made-up, wild tale about German Bridge one of the counselors made up," Wright said.

The camp, hosted by Christian Appalachian Project, was held throughout the summer in six sessions for children who had completed the first grade through age 14. Wright said 468 children attended camp from eight counties and 35 counselors and staff members supervised the camp.

The camp fee was $5, but was waived for any camper who couldn't afford to pay it.

The camp participated in the Kentucky Department of Education summer food program, and campers were served three meals each day.

"The camp is a fun opportunity. It's a chance for kids who couldn't afford to go away to camp, to stay here and enjoy all that camping has to offer," Wright said.

Future plans at the camp include building a house for the caretaker and his family. Wright is also looking at getting biology or science classes with environmental studies as part of camp activities. He also hopes to work with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Conservation leaders to promote conservation education at camp.

Fun with paddles

Campers at Camp Shawnee this summer discovered there are two ways to paddle, one with your hands and one with your feet. Owen Wright is program manager at the camp.

BREAKFAST-SKIPPING KIDS SELL THEIR BODIES SHORT

Well-nourished children are those most likely to achieve their optimal physical and mental development," says Ann Marie Stazenski, RD, LD, of the Dairy & Nutrition Council Mid East.

"Yet many youngsters in our community fail to meet daily requirements for essential nutrients, and skipping breakfast or eating a poor breakfast is often at the root of the problem," Stazenski added. "Kids who don't eat sufficiently can't achieve their learning potential."

Stazenski tells parents and educators at local elementary schools that, without a nutritious breakfast, it is difficult for a child to obtain the 40-plus nutrients needed on a daily basis. The national School Breakfast Program meal pattern is specially designed to include milk, meat, grains, fruits and vegetables to meet approximately one-fourth of children's recommended daily requirements.

"When they miss breakfast, for example, 75 percent of breakfast skippers fail to meet the recommended daily allowance for calcium," she said.

Children under age 11 should consume at least 800 mg of calcium per day—three servings of dairy products provide that. For those ages 11 to 24, the recommended calcium intake is 1,200 mg, or four daily servings of dairy products. A school breakfast program not only would help children meet those requirements but would help establish positive life-long eating habits, Stazenski pointed out. A study on children's breakfast habits conducted by The Wirthlin Group in January 1994 showed that 71 percent of the children surveyed had milk with every or almost every breakfast.

Adequate calcium intake is critical to bone health. "A lifetime of sufficient calcium consumption would help build peak bone mass in younger years and help decrease bone loss in adult years," she said.

A study published last August in the Journal of the American Medical Association showed that increasing calcium intake from 80 percent to 110 percent of the Recommended Dietary Allowance during adolescence may decrease the risk of contracting the bone-crippling disease osteoporosis.

"The future of our community rests with our children. We should take any measures to insure their health," said Stazenski. "Increasing participation in a school breakfast program would be a great start."

OLD-FASHIONED POTATO CINNAMON BUNS

An old-fashioned yeast-rising potato dough give these plump potato cinnamon buns their special tenderness. Home economists at KitchenAid developed the recipe for their Convection Oven Cookbook. The fan in a convection oven circulates air throughout the oven, saving energy by lowering cooking times and temperatures, which providing more evenly cooked dishes. These "convection confections" are filled generously with cinnamon and raisins and drizzled with a nut glaze. They're irresistible, especially when still warm from the oven.

POTATO CINNAMON BUNS

1/2 pound thick-skinned potatoes boiling water
1 cup milk
1/2 cup (1/4 lb.) butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 pkg. active dry yeast

1 tbsp. sugar
1/4 cup warm water (about 110°)
4 1/2 to 5 cups all-purpose flour
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
Cinnamon filling (recipe follows)
Nut glaze

In a saucepan over medium heat, cook potatoes in boiling water until tender when pierced (25 to 35 minutes). Drain, peel, and mash with a potato masher or press through a potato ricer; you should have 1 cup mashed potatoes.

Put potatoes in clean pan and gradually pour in milk, stirring, until mixture is smooth and well blended. Add 4 tablespoons of the butter, the 1/2 cup sugar and salt; warm over low heat, stirring, until lukewarm (about 110°).

In a large bowl, dissolve yeast and the 1 tablespoon sugar in warm water. Let stand until bubbly (about 10 minutes). Add potato mixture, 2 cups of the flour, egg, and vanilla; beat until smooth and well blended. Gradually stir in 2 cups more flour. Turn out on a heavily floured board and knead until smooth and elastic (about 15 minutes), adding remaining flour as needed to prevent sticking. Turn dough over in a greased bowl; cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled (1 to 1 1/4 hours). Meanwhile, prepare cinnamon filling.

Melt remaining 4 tablespoons butter. Punch dough down; knead just to expel air. Roll dough out to a 15 by 18-inch rectangle. Brush with 3 tablespoons of the melted butter and sprinkle with cinnamon filling. Starting at wide end, roll up, jelly-roll fashion; cut into 12 equal pieces, each about 1 1/2 inches thick. Place pieces, cut side down, in a greased 9 by 13-inch baking pan. Brush remaining 1 tablespoon melted butter over rolls. Cover and let rise in a warm place until almost doubled (35 to 45 minutes). Bake rolls in preheated 325° convection oven for 30 to 40 minutes or until richly browned. Meanwhile prepare nut glaze. Drizzle with nut glaze. Makes 12 rolls.

Cinnamon filling. In a small bowl, combine 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar, 1/4 cup granulated sugar, and 3 teaspoons ground cinnamon. If desired, add 1/2 cup raisins.

Cholesterol: Know Your Numbers

Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in animal products. Red meats, organ meats, whole milk dairy products and eggs are the primary sources of dietary cholesterol. Cholesterol is also manufactured by the body. Saturated fat, which is found in animal products and palm oils, are converted by the liver into cholesterol. For this reason you should limit your intake of saturated fats as well as cholesterol. A food can be low in cholesterol or even cholesterol-free but still be high in saturated fats. Commercially-baked cookies and crackers are examples of this. They contain no animal products, and therefore no cholesterol, but have added coconut or palm oil which are highly saturated.

Too much cholesterol or saturated fat can elevate levels of cholesterol in the blood, which increases the risk of heart disease. If two people are identical except that one has a cholesterol level of 240 and the other has a level of 200, the one with 240 has twice the risk of coronary heart disease (CHD). The risk of CHD significantly increases around cholesterol level of 195. Health professionals set the recommended level at 200 because they felt it would be easier to remember. Also, people under the age of 29 should have cholesterol under 180. This number has not been widely published in order not to confuse the general public.

Another factor to consider in recommending cholesterol levels is the breakdown of the types of cholesterol in the blood. The lower the ratio of LDL (the so-called "bad cholesterol") to HDL ("the good cholesterol") the lower the risk of CHD. A LDL to HDL cholesterol ratio of 3.5 or less and a total cholesterol to HDL cholesterol ratio of 4.5 or less is considered low risk for CHD.

The best way to control or reduce blood cholesterol is to reduce your intake of dietary cholesterol and saturated fat. Take the time to read nutrition labels very carefully. Exercising will increase your HDL levels, and stopping smoking will reduce LDL cholesterol and increase HDL cholesterol.

Knowing your number can help reduce your risk for CHD. It is widely recommended that your cholesterol level be checked at age 20 and five-year intervals thereafter. Your personal physician may recommend that you have it checked more frequently because of heredity or an elevated reading. Regardless of your current cholesterol level, you should prevent it from becoming a problem. Exercising regularly, eating a heart-healthy diet, and stopping smoking will help you maintain an ideal cholesterol level. Keeping your cholesterol in check is just one example of how self-responsibility is the key to reducing rising medical costs.

Tip of the Week: Use whole grain flour to increase fiber. I recommend that you start with a fourth of the flour being whole grain and each time, as taste allows, add a little more whole grain flour. Use common sense, bread will allow you to add more whole grain flour than brownies.

Helping senior citizens over hurdles and through bureaucratic mazes to receive benefits to which they are legally and rightfully entitled, from both the public and private sectors, is one of the responsibilities of the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens (KBCP). We are here for you, free of charge.

There is a long list of benefits we strive to get for deserving senior citizens. These range from the basic needs for daily living such as food, clothing, shelter, home repairs, and energy assistance to physical needs such as medical and dental care, glasses, and psychological support. Sometimes all a senior citizen needs to know is that we exist for them. Once they know we are here, they can take the information we give them, along with the suggestions we make, to get those things to which they are entitled. We are also here to help you work through any roadblocks you encounter with federal and state-supported programs, to mention a few, Medicare/Medicaid/Medigap, Spend down and SSI. Sometimes we must suggest legal intervention to protect your rights. There are competent attorneys and paralegals to assist you free of charge in many areas of need.

Next week we will discuss Legal Services and the role it serves in meeting the legal needs of senior citizens and low income people in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. If you are low-income, regardless of your age, you do have access to free legal representation in numerous priority areas.

Should you care to learn more about the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens, or if you have a need or problem we can try to help you resolve, call 886-3876 or toll-free 1-800-556-3876. We are here for you! There is no charge for our service.

Labor-management discussed at meeting

The Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee met Tuesday, September 20, at 6 p.m., at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Mike Dixon, representing the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, spoke about the union's apprenticeship program.

During the business session, Bruce Coleman, discussed grant funding and Rebecca Derossset, executive director, talked about the School-to-Work program.

At the August meeting of the labor-management committee on August 16, Ron Cyrus, secretary-treasurer of the Kentucky AFL-CIO, was the guest speaker.

Cyrus reviewed the history of labor management relations as a class system. This division created a lot of confusion in industry, Cyrus said.

Today, global competition has come to realize if U.S. industry is to successfully compete with the foreign market, both sides need to cooperate in a joint effort to improve labor management relations, the union representative said. To emphasize his point, Cyrus informed the group that a sizable Lexington construction project had been awarded a low bid to a firm in Mexico.

A major concern of business in recent years has been the astronomical rise in Worker's Compensation costs, Cyrus said. In 1986 Kentucky's unemployment insurance debt was $380,000,000 when Gov. Martha Layne Collins instigated a movement to solve the problem. The debt has been paid off, and Kentucky has surplus unemployment insurance funds of $400,000,000, he explained.

Cyrus also explained about major changes in Worker's Comp brought about by the legislature's passage of House Bill 928. Worker's Comp affected include the following aspects:

- HB 928 does not allow claims for stress problems unless they can be proven to be job-related.

- The term "physician" is more clearly defined.

- Medical benefits are allowed for duration of illness.

- RIB benefits will be paid directly to learning institutions, if a miner is still working at the mine.

•50 percent disability benefits have been extended from 425 to 520 weeks.

•When a disabled worker reaches 65, benefits are reduced to 40 percent.

•Attorney fee cap is $15,000.

One advantage of HB 928, Cyrus said, is that it offers an alternative to dispute resolutions. Companies can have their own Worker's Comp system through collective bargaining, thereby resolving their own problems, he said.

Cyrus said that as HB 928 is implemented throughout the state, Worker's Comp reform will lead the way to health care reform. Labor and management are working with government leaders to create a Health Care Alliance using competitive state funds.

A voluntary labor management board is in place, and its members are working on an affordable health care plan that will result in 45 percent savings to employers, Cyrus said.

The state AFL-CIO representative emphasized that labor management is a real part of U.S. industrial history. Labor-management will never die, Cyrus said. He advocated applying the Golden Rule to labor management relations to ensure that everyone would share the wealth.

After a question and answer session, the meeting adjourned.

Local auctioneer attends NAA national convention

Bill Gibson of Action Auction & Realty in Pikeville, was among the auctioneers from throughout the United States and Canada who attended the 1994 National Auctioneers Association (NAA) Convention entitled "INDY '94, Race to Excellence." The convention was held August 16-20 in Indianapolis, Indiana.

NAA conducted 33 workshops. Some of the subjects covered at this year's convention included conducting real estate, personal property, commercial/heavy equipment and agribusiness auctions. The increasing complexity of today's business world makes education programs like these indispensable.

In addition to NAA workshops, seminars were conducted by The Auction Marketing Institute, National Auctioneers Foundation, National Auctioneers Association Auxiliary and various vendors.

The 1994 Mens and Women's Division International Auctioneer Champions were selected during the convention, and three members were recognized for their contribution to their profession by their induction into the NAA Hall of Fame. James G. Murphy, of Edmonds, Washington, was installed as the 1994-95 president of the 5,900-member organization.

NAA, along with state associations, strives to improve the auction industry through professionalism, continuing education and improved communication. National Auctioneers Association is headquartered in Overland Park, Kansas.

Bill Gibson specializes in commercial and residential auctions in the Big Sandy area.

BRINGING UP BABY

Starting Baby Foods by Barbara J. Ivens, M.S., R.D. Nutritionist Gerber Products Company (NAPS)—Q. Are there some general guidelines to follow for starting my infant on baby foods?

A. The key to a healthy life is to start right. Age alone doesn't necessarily determine when a baby is ready to eat baby foods. Rather, the baby's weight, activity, appetite and developmental readiness should be considered in starting baby foods. Some general signs which may indicate the baby is ready to begin solid foods include:

- When the baby has almost doubled birth weight and weighs at least 13 pounds;
- When baby actively breast-feeds more than eight to ten times in a 24-hour period;
- When the formula-fed baby drinks more than a quart (32 ounces) of formula per day;
- When the baby often seems hungry;
- When the baby sits with support and has control of head movements.

These changes usually occur between the ages of four and six months. When your baby reaches the suggested weight, and shows one or more of the above signs, check with your health professional to see if the time is right to introduce baby foods. If you'd like additional information on infant feeding and care, call 1-800-4-GERBER.

FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOLS CHILD FIND NOTICE:

The Floyd County School District has an ongoing CHILD FIND campaign. The purpose of this campaign is to find any child or youth who resides in a home, facility or residence in the Floyd County School District and may have a disability and need special education. The District is looking for those children and youth, age birth and up to 22 years, who are not in school or those who are in school but not receiving the special education they need to have an appropriate public education.

The District will make sure any child or youth who has a disability, regardless of how severe the disability, is provided an appropriate public education at no cost to the parents of the child or youth.

Children and youth with disabilities means those who have hearing impairments, vision impairments, severe emotional disability, both deafness and blindness, health impairments, specific learning disabilities, mental disabilities, multiple disabilities, speech and language impairments, physical disabilities, autism, developmental delays, or traumatic brain injuries. In addition, children and youth with any disability which substantially limits a major life activity may receive modifications to allow them access to an appropriate education (Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, as amended).

Parents, relatives, public and private agencies employees, and concerned citizens are urged to help the District find any infant, toddler, child, or youth who may have a disability and need special education and related services. The school district needs to know the name and age or date of birth of the child or youth; the name, address, and phone number of his or her parents or guardian, the possible disability; and other information to determine if special education is needed. Letters and phone calls are some of the ways the District collects the information needed. The information the school district collects will be used to contact the parents of the child or youth and find out if the child or youth needs to be evaluated.

If you know of a child or youth who lives in the District, who may have a disability and is not receiving needed services, bring, telephone, or send information to: Brenda Fish, Special Education Director, 34 A Richmond Plaza, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Office hours are 8:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. The phone number is 886-3014, extension 222.

CHILD FIND activities will continue throughout the school year. As part of these efforts, the District will use screening information, student records, and basic assessment information it collects on all children and youth in the district to help locate those children and youth who have a disability and need special education.

Any information the district collects through CHILD FIND is maintained confidentially. Parents and eligible students have the right to inspect and review their educational records, as well as ask for changes in the records if they disagree with the information in the records. The District has policies and procedures for keeping information confidential. These policies and procedures are based on the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

The District keeps child and youth records in a secure computer system and in locked files in each school and the central office. Records are kept for at least seven years after they are no longer needed for education purposes. They are kept longer if there is an outstanding request to review them. The district gives notice before destroying the records by shredding them. The district obtains parental consent before disclosing information from the records.

Copies of the district's policies and procedures as well as information about disabilities and special education are available from Brenda Fish, Special Education Director, or the principal of each Floyd County School. If you know of someone who needs this translated into another language, given orally or in some other manner, contact Brenda Fish, Special Education Director, 34 A Richmond Plaza, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653 or phone 886-3014, extension 222.
