Banks found not guilty

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County jury deliberated for almost three hours Thursday before acquitting a Wayland man charged with murder.

Joe Banks, 32, was accused of murder for the January 9 shooting death of Robert Jacobs of Wayland.

There was tight security at the proceedings because of alleged threats made against the defendant in the case. When the jury's verdict was announced, Jacobs' sister was removed from the courtroom after she reportedly commented, "you better get him out of the state, he killed my brother."

Banks, his attorney, Keith Bartley, and the jury were escorted from the courtroom by officers providing security.

An unidentified member of the Jacobs family fainted outside at the front entrance of the courthouse and was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

After two hours of deliberations, jurors returned and announced a verdict of "guilty of self-protection," which was not an acceptable decision since self-protection is not a crime.

Special Judge Kelly Asbury of Boyd County, who presided over the trial, explained to the jury that their decision was not plausible and the jury returned to deliberations.

In closing arguments, assistant commonwealth attorney John Mann claimed Banks shot Jacobs in cold blood and urged the jury to find Banks guilty of murder.

Bartley argued that Banks shot Jacobs in self-defense after Jacobs severely beat Banks as the defendant was trying to leave a party at Jacobs' home.

The commonwealth's case was hampered throughout the two-day trial because of the conflicting testimony given by most of its witnesses and by testimony that Jacobs' girlfriend and brother had tried to intimidate witnesses in the case.

Kentucky State Police detective Leslie Gannon testified that all the eyewitnesses to the shooting had

Election lawsuit settled

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Perry County judge has dismissed a civil lawsuit filed against Floyd Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and ordered the plaintiff, Dale McKinney, to pay Stumbo's legal costs.

Judge Doug Combs signed an order Wednesday which said that McKinney failed to prove his charges of vote fraud against Stumbo in the 1993 primary election.

Combs' order also criticized the state attorney general office's handling of the case.

McKinney was unsuccessful in his bid for the Democratic nomination for county judge-executive in the 1993 election. McKinney filed a civil lawsuit in June 1993, accusing Stumbo of election fraud.

"A review of the record in this case, however, reveals that not a single witness identified by the plaintiff offered any competent testimony that would lead this court to conclude that any of the allegations are true as to the defendant John M. Stumbo," Combs' order said.

In a footnote to the order, Combs said the court was "less than satisfied" with the attorney general's performance and blamed that office for delaying the conclusion of the case by refusing to become involved in the question of immunity for three witnesses.

"The plaintiff sought an order from this court to grant 'blanket immunity' from prosecution for any of

Sheriff says shortage found in office funds

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson has announced that approximately $25,000 in funds appears to be missing from his office, but that has not been confirmed by the state auditor's office.

All monies owed to taxing districts, i.e. the state, school board, county government, fire departments, were paid and the money is reportedly missing from the department's operating expenses, the sheriff explained.

"The money missing, if indeed it is, would be considered excess fees and would be owed to the fiscal court," Thompson said. "I don't feel like the money has been taken by anyone in my office. Elected officials are responsible for the public's money and that makes me personally responsible for it."

In May, Sheriff Thompson sent a letter to the state attorney general's office asking for an investigation of the sheriff's department "in reference to what appears to be a $25,000 shortage in the 1991 and 1992 property tax accounts, and also the 1989 unmined mineral account."

Thompson also asked the state auditor's office to audit his office in an effort to find out how much money may be missing.

When asked why he was announcing there was a shortage in his office before a state audit is complete, Thompson said he felt it was the right thing to do.

"I feel like the public has a right to know," Thompson said. "If there is a

Dispute continues at PCC

by Janice Shepherd

Two members of Prestonsburg Community College's Advisory Board are claiming chairmanship of the board.

The head position is being claimed by H.D. Fitzpatrick, who chaired the meeting to elect officers of the board on September 15, and by Paul Gearheart, who claims that he was elected by a majority vote.

Gearheart's election to chair the advisory board came into question after Fitzpatrick proclaimed the September 15 meeting adjourned. Fitzpatrick and three board members left the meeting.

The meeting went on without the participation of the four members and Gearheart was elected to the chairmanship by the four remaining members, O.T. Dorton, Jean Hale, Paul Gearheart and John R. Triplett.

Paul Van Booven, an attorney with U.K.'s legal department, said that if four members were present at the time of the vote, then a quorum was represented, and the advisory board has a new chairman. Van Booven said the four constituted a quorum because Robert's Rules of Order defines a quorum as a majority of voting members.

Van Booven said the advisory board consisted of seven voting members and two non-voting members, and that the four members represented the majority.

The adjournment had been called by Fitzpatrick in order for him to seek advice from U.K.'s legal department regarding the voting rights of the faculty and student representatives for board chairman. The discord began when board member Daniel Greene nominated Fitzpatrick for another term as chairman and John Sammons seconded the motion.

Board member John R. Triplett, an Inez attorney, interrupted and said

Sammons had no authority to second the motion. Triplett quoted KRS Section 164.600, Item 2 that states:

"Each local advisory board shall consist of nine members, seven of whom shall be appointed by the governor. The other two local advisory board members shall be one non-voting member of the teaching faculty and one non-voting member of the student body. An appointed member's term is four years; however, when appointing the initial members of a local advisory board, the governor may appoint some members for terms of less than four years."

Triplett then nominated Gearheart for the chairmanship.

In a tape recorded version of the minutes, Sammons asked the board to check with the university's legal department to see if a precedent had been set regarding voting rights.

Triplett said he brought up the (voting rights), because "it was obvious we have a contest here and I don't want anyone to be confused about who had the right to vote."

Sammons questioned Triplett's ethics in challenging his vote at that particular time. Earlier in the meeting, Sammons had seconded a motion to accept the minutes and also voted for two motions without being challenged.

Board member Daniel Greene then said he would be willing to come forward with the question of tampering with the board election by the PCC president, Dr. Deborah Floyd.

Triplett asked for a second to his motion to nominate Gearheart and received it from board member Jean Hale.

Fitzpatrick said it was his understanding that the faculty and student representatives could vote and called for motions to adjourn until that issue could be resolved. Triplett told Fitz-

Martin park off-limits

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

No trespassing signs have been posted at the boundaries of the Martin mini-park by Mayor Raymond Griffith, who recently acquired rights to the property, and residents are wanting to know why.

At Wednesday's city council meeting, Mary Jenkins asked about the future of the park, which is used as a walking track.

The mayor, however, said that he has not decided what to do with the property—sell it or lease it to the city.

"I'm going to close the park," Mayor Griffith said. "I don't intend to let it go for a dollar a year like it has been. It's for sale if the city wants to buy it."

Jenkins said that many residents

Teacher sues board

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

A Floyd County Chapter I teacher, seeking to return to a full-time job at Duff Elementary, filed suit against the Floyd County Board of Education in circuit court September 21.

Cindy Thorpe Pack, who was Chapter I teacher at Duff Elementary during the 1993-94 school year, was assigned half-time duties at Duff Elementary and Maytown Elementary as Chapter I teacher for the 1994-95 school year.

In the legal action, she alleged that the board of education failed to comply with Kentucky law regarding receiving written notification of a transfer or reassignment. Pack said Superintendent Stephen W. Towler did not give written notification to her or to the Floyd County Board of Education that he would reassign her to another school.

Pack said she should have received written notification of the assignment prior to the July 15 deadline as required by law. Instead, she learned about her new assignment in the Floyd County Times, she said.

Pack has asked the court to issue a permanent injunction restoring her to her former position as a Chapter I teacher with full-time duties at Duff Elementary School.

Sage of Cow Creek

by Aileen Hall
Contributing Writer

Woodrow Wilson Burchett is a most unusual man. His personality has more sides than the stalwart mountains that rise and turn and wrap themselves around his beloved Cow Creek home. Like the mountains, too, he is upright and solid with roots running deep into his ancestry and the heritage he treasures.

Born with a rare wit, Burchett, an attorney, can find some spark of humor in almost any situation.

This special trait once prompted Judge David Francis of Warren County to say, "Either more funny things happen in Floyd County or Woodrow Burchett is the best story teller ever."

Many of his stories involved court cases and the surprise responses of defendants or clients. Once as he was stating the case of a client in court, the man arose from his seat and said,

"Woodrow, I declare, I believe you're talkin' agin' me."

His knack for story-telling made him a popular delegate to the annual convention of the Kentucky Bar Association where he became known as the Sage of Cow Creek.

He sometimes joined forces with fellow humorist Judge James Gillenwater of Barren County and about ten years ago they planned an evening of entertainment called the "Burchett/Gillenwater To-Do." This also became an annual event where they shared their favorite yarns, and other attendants could perform with their own particular talents.

Phillip "General" Patton, an attorney from Glasgow, played a guitar and sang; Dan Taylor, a criminal lawyer from Louisville, played 14 different harmonicas; Judge David Francis of Bowling Green also played a harmonica; and David Holwerk, an

Mountain drug task force honors officers

by Michael Lynn Huff
Staff Writer

Pikeville's City Police force Thursday became the latest law enforcement agency to join a unified fight in Eastern Kentucky against trafficking in illegal drugs.

At a meeting of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force Thursday at Jenny Wiley State Park, Pikeville City Police asked to become part of the task force. Task force members gave the request unanimous approval, but the Floyd County Fiscal Court, the Hazard and Prestonsburg City Police departments must also approve the request.

The task force, formed in September 1993 to combat drug trafficking, has been active in six counties: Perry, Knott, Letcher, Magoffin, Floyd and Pike. According to Rod Maggard, Hazard City Police Chief, the task force is the best thing to happen to the local, smaller police agencies.

"They've been so successful in their short time in existence," Maggard said. He explained that they are successful because the task forces supplies more officers to different areas, including those not in their regular jurisdiction, that are crucial, since manpower is very limited in certain areas encompassing task force activity.

Among the organization's officers present were Rod Maggard of Hazard; Steve Tackett, Commonwealth Attorney for Perry County; Paul Hunt Thompson, Floyd County sheriff; Darrell Conley, Prestonsburg Police chief; Chalmer Wireman, Magoffin County Sheriff's Department; and Les Boyette, Pike County Sheriff's Department.

Other items on the meeting's agenda included various budget issues of the previous fiscal year that ended in July, 1994. Those financial issues included state and federal grants for computer supplies, squad use the park and commented that city funds have been spent on the facility. "We use the park quite often," Jenkins said. "We have a nice facility and it should be used. I'm concerned about what's going on. Our tax money has been spent on it."

Councilman Everett Akers said he felt it would be illegal for the city to lease or purchase the property from the mayor and commented, "the mayor don't want to donate to the kids."

The mayor said that there is no liability insurance on the property and that is why the signs were posted. City attorney Tim Parker said that he felt the city could strike a deal with the mayor if the venture was publicly discussed.

Akers then asked the mayor how much he wanted for the property. "I don't know," Mayor Griffith said. "I'll talk to you about it later on."

Discussion on the issue ended and council took no action.

In other business, it appears that the city's problems with the cash flow in the water and sewer department are coming to a head with comments that the City of Prestonsburg may cut off service to the town for non-payment and bond holders are threatening to take the system over.

Mayor Griffith informed council that the city owes approximately $14,000 to Prestonsburg for water service and asked for their advice on the situation.

After about an hour of debate—which included suggestions to let Prestonsburg cut off water service to raising water rates by $15—councilman Akers agreed to talk to Prestonsburg Utility Manager Bill Harvey Howard and explain that council wanted to pay all the department's debts, but first it needs to be determined what is owed to various creditors.

Council is awaiting the results of an audit being done by Flo Bartrum. Council nixed a suggested to dip into the city's certificates of deposit to the tune of $30,000 to get the department on its feet financially.

Council agreed to take $5,000 out of the general fund to pay for liability insurance on the sewer plant and a financial obligation concerning the construction of the new plant.

Council has discussed the financial decision of the water department since taking office in January, but no decision on how to cure the financial woes have been found.

Parker told council that bond holders have threatened to take over the department because of their concerns about the financial management of the department.

Council held no discussion on that issue, but a special meeting has been called for today (Friday) at 6 p.m. at city hall.

Also Wednesday, council postponed discussions on a code of ethics.

car acquisitions and maintenance and money for drug transactions for evidence.

Frank Fryman, director of the task force, read the budget report for the previous fiscal year. He announced there were no outstanding debts on the part of the organization.

Fryman handed out awards to task force officers displaying outstanding service and performance. The officers were praised by Lexington's Victim/Witness Coordinator for the U.S. Attorney's Office, Danny Smith.

"Traditionally, we don't see this type of group spring up out of rural Eastern Kentucky," Smith said. "I think they've done a fantastic job. Just listening to the number of cases they did gives you an indication that these people are very serious about this. These are people who live here and they know this part of Kentucky better than anybody."

First Assistant U.S. Attorney Mariana Clay said she thought that the obtaining of additional police departments and offices is essential in keeping organizations such as the Mountain Area Drug Task Force ones to be reckoned with by drug offenders.

"I believe that as times change, there has to be an increase in activity by law enforcement to match any activity in the area," Clay said.

Greene to receive award

Daniel Greene, who has provided Floyd County students with a second chance at education through David School, has been named a recipient of the Mountain Spirit Award.

Greene will receive the award at ceremonies on October 12, at 7 p.m., at Natural Bridge State Park. During the presidential administration of George Bush, Greene was named as one of Bush's Points of Light.

The Mountain Spirit Award was created in 1987 by the Christian Appalachian Project to highlight successes in fighting poverty in the Appalachian region and to encourage both innovation and continued use of proven methods to resolve the region's problems.

The Christian Appalachian Project chose five individuals and one organization that have been actively involved in improving the conditions of life for Appalachians at the community level.

Dr. Mary Fox of Pikeville was also named a recipient of the award for her work to improve health care for Eastern Kentuckians through direct care and an extensive educational outreach which teaches preventive care and an awareness of vital public and personal health care issues.

Forward in the Fifth, based in Berea, will also receive a Mountain Spirit Award during the ceremonies for its positive impact on education.

changed their stories several times throughout the investigation.

Twins Matthew and Michael Cline, who saw the shooting, changed their stories several times on the witness stand. The Cline brothers said that Jacobs' girlfriend, Renee Sexton, had went to their home months after the shooting and asked them to lie when the case went to court.

Earl Bryant, who was also at the party, testified that Larry "Kato" Jacobs, the victim's brother, threatened to kill him if he testified at the trial.

The commonwealth did not indicate if any charges would be filed against Jacobs or Sexton relating to the Clines' or Bryant's testimony.

Banks took the stand Thursday in his own defense and said that he shot Jacobs after he was beaten by Jacobs and one of the Cline brothers.

Banks said he fled the scene because he was afraid Jacobs family, who lived nearby, would come to the residence and that he left to seek medical treatment for his injuries.

Banks was treated for facial lacerations, a broken nose, a concussion and various contusions at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital after the shooting.

All the witnesses testified that Jacobs hit Banks first as he was trying to leave the party at the victim's home.

The commonwealth conceded that some of their witnesses had been caught up in lies, but argued that Banks should have called the police after the shooting and turned himself in if Jacobs was killed in self-defense.

Jacobs was shot one time just under the right ear with a .38 caliber revolver. He died later that day at the U.K. Medical Center in Lexington.

Banks testified that the gun discharged three times while the two were struggling to gain control of it.

shortage, I have invited the attorney general to investigate and I expect a full investigation to clear the integrity of my office. The state audit is almost complete and it appears to show our figures to be correct.

"Our audit did not locate (the monies), maybe the auditor's office may be able to locate it," the sheriff continued. "If they can't, then I am responsible."

In his letter to the attorney general, the sheriff said that while his wife was working in his office last April, she told him that she felt there was a shortage in the department's fee account.

"I awaited the auditor's report on the 1992 tax account, which did not show any discrepancies," Thompson's letter said. "By September, I had determined that all taxing authorities had been paid the full amount. . . Although I could find no problems, I still felt uneasy about the monies, because of the responsibilities that accompany the office of sheriff and the repercussions of mishandling tax money."

Thompson said that there was no shortage reflected in last year's audit of his department.

A call last week to accountant Mike Spears, who worked for Stephen Allen C.P.A. and did last year's audit for the sheriff's department, was not returned.

A letter dated May 31 to the sheriff from Edward Mercer, director of the special investigations division of the attorney general's office, said that after the issue has been reviewed with the auditor's office, Thompson would be contacted.

The sheriff said that accounting procedures have been changed regarding tax collections by making daily instead of weekly reports. He said he felt the problems were due to inadequate procedures, rather than money being taken from the office.

When asked if he took the money or if it was used in last year's re-election campaign, Thompson denied that claim, but said people will think what they want to.

"People that know me, know I wouldn't do that," Thompson said. "People that don't know me or like me will choose to believe that or believe the worst. I requested the attorney general to investigate. I don't mind them coming in."

Regardless of the amount, if any, that is determined to be missing, Thompson is personally liable to repay it.

"Elected officials should be held accountable for the money they handle," the sheriff said. "I accept that responsibility and should be held accountable for this. At the same time, since I've been in office we've collected between $27 and $28 million in taxes."

Thompson said that the auditor's report is expected to be complete within 60 days. He added that the state auditors have been very cooperative in assisting his office.

The state auditor's office could not be reached for comment.

editor of the Lexington Herald-Leader, played a guitar and sang ballads he had written. There have been many other participants, and the "To-Do" continues even though Judge Gillenwater has died and Burchett was not able to attend this past year.

Born March 16, 1911, at Woods, Kentucky, he is the only son of the late Dick and Amma Burchett. His only sister, Patsy Burchett Preston, was born after he went away to college so they didn't grow up together. She died in 1962.

Woodrow's parents were hard-working mountain people who cultivated the land that, after 200 years and several generations, is still a family treasure. His mother served as postmaster at Woods for several years. She also ran the family home and helped with their grocery store. She was a strong woman who taught her children to work and to value Christian principles.

His father was an enterprising citizen who had several vocations. He was a school teacher, sawmill operator, farmer and justice of the peace. He traded horses, swapped knives and dispensed advice to the people who sought him out.

Both parents were gifted in hospitality and many visitors found a welcome in their home. One who stayed overnight many times was a young attorney, Fred M. Vinson of Louisa, who went on to become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. When he would come to Prestonsburg to try land cases, the work was sometimes prolonged and poor roads made it difficult to return home every night. He was invited to share the bedroom of the Burchett's young son. On his first evening there, he saw eight-year-old Woodrow kneel by his bed and, thinking he was saying his prayers, he knelt to join him. Woodrow glanced over and said, "If you're doing what I'm doing, we're in big trouble. The bed chamber is over here."

The elder Burchett loved hearing the lawyers argue big court cases and often took young Woodrow along to the courthouse where Claude Stephens was a prominent attorney. Stephens had a great head of bushy hair that bounced as he threw his arms in his persuasions to the jury, and Woodrow sat fascinated by the able jurist thinking his profession was the greatest of all.

It was during these years that he sometimes heard a visitor express to his father, "You know, Dick, a poor man's got no chance down there at the courthouse." Woodrow determined that if he could become an attorney, a poor man would indeed have a chance; and through the years many people who couldn't afford legal assistance benefited by this promise he made to himself.

Woodrow's education was attained through Prestonsburg Grade School, Pikeville High School, the University of Kentucky and the UK School of Law. He taught four years in the Floyd County schools and served one year as principal of the Harold Grade School before starting his law practice in Prestonsburg in 1933.

It was in 1936 that he won the hand of his dream girl, Narcie Elizabeth Sturgill of Hindman. Their marriage has been an enduring love story and, after 58 years, they still look forward to each day together. They enjoy their children and their children's children, along with the comfortable features that make their home a haven. There's the faithful dog, Goldie, who sees each visitor in or out, the assorted flowers that grow in profusion and the beautiful birds that frequent the feeders outside their windows.

For most of his sixty-year law practice, Woodrow ate lunch in his office, a lunch Narcie had prepared for him. There were, he said, two reasons for this. First, it was difficult to eat in a public restaurant without people interrupting to discuss some case they had in court. But more importantly, Narcie packed a more delicious lunch than he could find in town, and he looked forward to the little notes she would enclose with his food. Sometimes it was a love note, sometimes a Bible verse or a comment, but it was a personal communication between them that he anticipated more than dessert. And often, as he ate, a mockingbird would visit outside his window and sing as if it, too, had been sent by his wife.

Woodrow and Narcie are a family-oriented couple who maintain a rare closeness with their offspring, down to the youngest great-grandchild. Their three children are Woodrow Jr., who is married to the former Lora Jean "Pud" Music and lives in Delaware, Ohio; Sarah Elizabeth "Sally" who is married to Robert Allen and lives in Prestonsburg; and Martha Ann, who is married to Charles Hart of Anchorage, Kentucky. There are seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The Burchetts have been active members of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church in Prestonsburg for 48 years where he has served as trustee, finance chairman, Sunday School teacher and solid supporter. He might joke about politics, his friends and many things, but he displays a rare seriousness about his church saying simply, "It's an important part of my life."

His father/citizen role led to many involvements including one with the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of America. He served for several years as a scout master, was president of the Floyd County Council and a member of Lonesome Pine Council.

Early in his career, Woodrow was elected city attorney for Prestonsburg and, after that, for three successive terms as Floyd County Attorney. For eight years he was Floyd County Chairman of the Democratic Party.

His law office in Prestonsburg adjoined that of fellow attorney Bert Combs and their mutual regard developed into a solid friendship and political partnership. It was an alliance that lasted until Combs' death in 1991. When Combs served as governor, he appointed his Floyd County ally to the Public Service Commission where he served part of the time as chairman. He was reappointed to the PSC by Governor Ned Breathitt, and that term continued for a few months into the tenure of Governor Louie B. Nunn. Governor Julian Carroll appointed him to the Kentucky Harness Racing Commission, as did Governor John Y. Brown Jr.

For almost 60 years he has been active in Kiwanis where he served one term as Lieutenant-Governor of the Kentucky/Tennessee District. In the early 50's he decided to spice up a December program with his own brand of humor, and he made some 'tongue in cheek' predictions for the coming year. This proved to be such a popular feature that, for 43 years, it was an annual event that expanded to Kiwanis clubs in Paintsville, Ashland and Lexington.

Among his more gentle comments was the line, "About the age of 50 is when a man is feeling his oats and corns at the same time." He observed more seriously that "prosperity has ruined more people than poverty." But the audiences enjoyed most his political candor such as the suggestion that a certain senatorial candidate would be defeated "even if he ran unopposed."

A favorite Burchett story concerned an old fellow in his sixties who had married a girl in her late teens. They had walked into his office one day, the wife obviously expecting, and said, "We have a problem. It's about time for our baby to be born and the hospital tells us Medicare won't pay for the delivery."

"We'll do some checking," he told them, "but we may have to get some help from Carl D. on this one." He contacted the hospital but their spokesman was adamant. Medicare was for the care of the elderly and not the delivery of babies.

He then called the able Congressman Carl D. Perkins who agreed to take up the cause. In a few days the hospital called to say Medicare would cover the cost after all. The man was so pleased he told Woodrow, "If it's a boy, I'm going to name it after you."

Some weeks had passed when he saw the couple come into the courthouse carrying a small bundle wrapped in a blue blanket. "What's his name?" he asked them. "Now, Woodrow," the man began, "I really did want to name him after you, but the little wife here had another choice and I couldn't go against her." Pressed again about the name, as though it mattered a great deal, the new father said, "We call him Carl D."

If you ask Woodrow Burchett about the high point of his career, he will tell you it was his sixty-year law practice—the day in, day out dealing with people one on one, of sharing a mutual regard with his clients and the satisfaction he got from representing their interests. He was confidante and appointee of four different Kentucky governors, friend and ally of several national leaders, a sought after speaker whose humor is a treasure, and yet it was the role of attorney he envisioned as a child that meant the most to him.

Since his retirement in 1992, several state and national leaders—and a few media personalities—have found the path to his door, and each goes away feeling the time together will be remembered as a special visit. His keen wit has not diminished, and his interest in the world about him has not waned.

The Sage of Cow Creek is at peace with himself, with the friendships life has accorded him and so many good times to reminisce about. When the sun comes up over Buffalo Mountain to reflect in the stream called Cow Creek, he walks out toward the barn and looks at his horses down in the meadow. "I built a house here," he says, "and never was made to leave."

Medical school is project worth supporting

Paintsville and Johnson County have been lucky when it comes to education. The Johnson County and Paintsville public school systems and Mayo State Vocational-Technical School have all been on the receiving end of statewide praise and attention.

We now have an opportunity to be the home of only the third medical school in Kentucky. The project is something we all should get behind.

Paintsville attorney Chad Perry is spearheading the project and has already contributed $1 million of his own money to get it off the ground. Once the plans are approved by the American Osteopathic Association—and there's no reason they shouldn't be—Perry will begin seeking federal money and private funds for the medical school.

Perry's reasons for wanting a medical school in Paintsville is simple: He wants Eastern Kentucky medical students to study in the mountains and then stay here when they become doctors. He knows that once our aspiring physicians leave the region to study, there is little hope that they will return and set up practice.

His idea is one that should have been pursued years ago by UK, U of L and others. State officials have always expressed concern about the lack of health care in Eastern Kentucky, yet they have done little to help the situation. When it comes to action, it's up to Eastern Kentuckians themselves to get things done.

That's what Perry is trying to do, and he's obviously serious about it. I don't know of too many private citizens who would shell out $1 million for a non-profit project.

He's doing his part, so now it's time for us to do ours. How can we? By simply embracing the project as something that can happen, not by dismissing it as something that could happen but never will.

Perry himself said it best: "I don't want people to think its an impossible task. Success breeds success."—The Paintsville Herald

Give 'em all a chance to smile

Editor:
Picture this. A very excited little boy during a hotly contested game runs up to his coach and pleads to be put into the big game.

The boy says, "Coach, put me in. Put me in, please."

The coach replies, "Bud, you want to win—you want to win this game?"

"You bet, coach. You bet!" says the boy.

"Then go on over there and take a seat," the coach replies.

What's wrong with this picture? You could write a sermon about what's wrong with it! In a nutshell, though, it's sending a message to our kids that winning is everything, and it's not!

This is becoming all too frequent at all levels of little league and grade school sports.

Hey, what's wrong with giving little league sports back to the kids, after all, this isn't big time college sports or the NFL.

Coaches, let's give all kids (forget their talent level) a chance to compete. It makes everyone feel good.

After all, winning isn't everything, kids and smiles are!

High prices and poor quality pose problems for U.S. tobacco exports

As if they needed one, here's yet another reason for Kentucky farmers to kick the tobacco habit and seek other cash crops: Foreign cigarette makers have expressed dissatisfaction with both the price and quality of U.S. tobacco.

U.S. tobacco exports in recent years have helped offset a decline in domestic sales as a result of fewer Americans smoking. However, the value of total U.S. tobacco exports fell a whopping 21 percent last year to $1.3 billion.

Comments from representatives of foreign buyers who recently met with U.S. tobacco growers and producers in Raleigh, North Carolina, indicate that exports may continue to decline.

One reason is price. Top-quality U.S. tobacco costs about $1.80 a pound, compared with about 90 cents per pound for top leaf from Brazil and Zimbabwe.

U.S. leaf has always commanded a higher price than tobacco from other countries because it traditionally has been considered the world's benchmark for flavor and consistency. But the cigarette makers said American producers have allowed their standards to slip in recent years while the quality of the leaf from other countries has improved substantially.

All this does not bode well for farmers who depend on tobacco for a large chunk of their income.

Still, some tobacco supporters ignore the statistics.

"We've been hearing these same kinds of complaints from them for years while they've continued to buy our tobacco," said Bob Jenkins, president of the Farm Bureau Federation of North Carolina, of the concerns raised by foreign buyers.

It is incredible that anyone could make such a comment when tobacco exports have dropped by more than one-fifth in only one year. That alone should be fair warning or more trouble for tobacco. —The Daily Independent (Ashland)

Relics of past being left behind with technology

Growing up, I always heard the stories of how everything was different when my parents and grandparents grew up.

Stories of one-room school houses filled with kids of all ages were common, and everybody walked to school, rain, snow or shine.

Listening to these stories, I wonder what kind of yarns my generation will spin to the youngsters when we're old and gray.

With the computer age growing at an incredible rate, and the information superhighway getting more traffic, it is interesting to think about what the future will hold.

Will future generations be amazed that while in school, we didn't have computers at every desk and had to write all of our assignments on paper? Perhaps the notion of having to go to a library and file through book after book for information will seem ancient.

Today, a few one-room school houses still stand in empty fields. Most are old and abandoned, with broken windows, but they are still a reminder of a time that has now passed on, like relics of an almost forgotten age.

I wonder what will be left behind from the present.

Perhaps libraries will be a thing of the past once the information superhighway becomes a household commodity.

After all, why go look something up when all the information you need is right at your fingertips and only a phone call away.

Technology is a rapidly growing monster, and it is interesting to see what the future will bring in the area of education.

Look at what a profound difference there is between schools now and in the days of the one-room school houses, and just imagine what 50 or 60 more years may bring.

By that time, the one-room school houses will be a true relic if any are left at all.

I think that the ones left should be preserved, because they are priceless pieces of history.

They are a reminder of the way things once were and of a lifestyle that is gone.

Then, years and years down the road, we can look back with wonder and appreciate how far we've come.—The Big Sandy News

COLLEGE AND THE JOB EQUATION

by Kenneth Eskey
Scripps Howard News Service

One of the myths of economic one-upmanship is that anything less than a four-year college education is a ticket to a dead-end job that pays poorly and has few fringe benefits.

We buy into this bachelor's-degree-or-bust point of view because we're bombarded with statistics showing that, on average, college graduates earn nearly twice as much as high school graduates and the gap is widening all the time.

What's missing from the equation is the fact that, in many occupations, it doesn't take four years of college to get a good job.

Despite our love affair with higher education, not everyone is eager, or qualified, to become a doctor, a lawyer, an engineer or a business executive with a gold-plated MBA.

Nor is there any reason to believe that a lackluster student who drifted through four years of college has better credentials than a more motivated student with two years of technical training.

The great accomplishment of the community college movement is that it takes young men and women who either can't afford a four-year education or did poorly in high school and turns them into skilled technicians who have no trouble finding jobs.

Many of these jobs require skills much in demand during the 1990s, as shown in a survey of more than 400 schools by the American Association of Community Colleges.

The survey found that graduates with two-year associate degrees often earn more money to start than graduates of four-year colleges with bachelor's degrees. One example: Dental hygienists start at salaries approaching $30,000 a year.

Two-year graduates with associate nursing degrees earn $25,000 to start. Allied health sciences, such as occupational therapist assistant, physical therapy assistant and radiologic technologist, start in the $20,000-$30,000 range.

Biotechnology—combining computers with biology—is paying salaries averaging nearly $24,000 to start.

The advantages of technical training are so obvious that a contract negotiated this year between Nynex, the telephone company for New York and New England, and the Communications Workers of America encourages workers to earn a two-year degree.

Employees can spend one paid day a week learning new skills, with the guarantee of a $50-a-week raise after graduation. Those employed for five years or more qualify for up to two years of education leave, and up to $10,000 a year for tuition.

The impact of community colleges on industrial towns is documented in a new book, "Company Town Shutdown," by Martha Turnage, published by Berwick Publishing in Annapolis, Md.

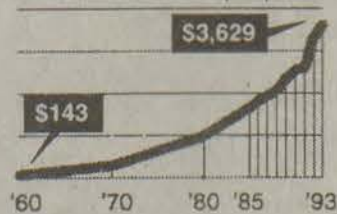

The book describes the shutdown in 1971 of the Olin Corp. soda ash plant in Saltville, Va., blotting out more than 900 jobs in a town of 2,500 people and a region of only 12,000. Generations of workers, many with little education, earned a good living at the plant.

To cushion the blow, Virginia Highlands Community College, 23 miles away, set up a job preparedness center in Saltville, helping jobless workers—many of them in their 30s and 40s—to earn high school equivalency diplomas and offering job placement services and classes in welding, drafting and shorthand.

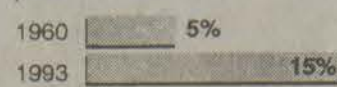

The bottom line is that Saltville, once a potential ghost town, has bounced back, thanks in part to a community college that gave the town a lift when most outsiders had written it off.

Harless wants plea set aside by judge

A Martin County man who pleaded guilty to manslaughter and is serving time for the 1991 DUI-related death of a 14-year-old Boons Camp boy has asked a judge to set aside his conviction.

Tony Allen Harless says his guilty plea to first-degree manslaughter in the death of Jonathan Jason Smith was not "knowingly, voluntarily nor intelligently entered" in Johnson Circuit Court. Harless also claims his rights to due process, equal protection and effective assistance of counsel were denied.

Police said Harless, of Tomahawk, was drunk when his pickup truck hit Smith's motorcycle at Boons Camp on September 7, 1991. Originally charged with capital murder, Harless pleaded guilty to first-degree manslaughter on October 13, 1993, and was sentenced to 10 years in prison.—The Paintsville Herald

Convicted killer sues ex-attorney

A convicted murderer is seeking more than $4 million in damages from his former attorney, claiming he was denied effective counsel at trial.

William James Crockett McNeeley of Martin County claims in a lawsuit filed last week that Paintsville attorney L.E. "Ed" Spencer "failed and/or refused" to effectively represent him in his September 1992 murder trial in Johnson Circuit Court.

Spencer denied the allegations Monday, saying he will file a motion asking that the lawsuit be dismissed.

"As far as the allegations are concerned, they aren't true," Spencer said.

McNeeley was convicted of murder and is serving a life sentence for the January 20, 1992, stomping death of 2-year-old Sherman Jay Newsome in Martin County. The trial was moved to Johnson County after an impartial jury could not be seated in Martin County.

The conviction, which set off a melee by McNeeley's family at the Johnson County courthouse soon after the verdict was read, was upheld in March by the Kentucky Supreme Court.—The Paintsville Herald

Harlan coal operator's group is disbanding after 78 years

About three weeks after its 78th anniversary, the Harlan County Coal Operators Association will close its doors Friday. President Jay Barlow said Tuesday it's a sign of the times for small mining companies.

"The great majority of them can't afford it anymore," said Barlow, who has led the industry group for 13 years. "And those that have survived...are contracting to the larger operators now. That's the only way they can operate now."

Barlow said he thinks his was the oldest continually operating coal company group in the country. It was founded on Sept. 12, 1916, a year before the National Coal Association was started in Washington.

When Barlow signed on in 1981, the group had 40 members. The decision last week to shut down was made by the six remaining voters.

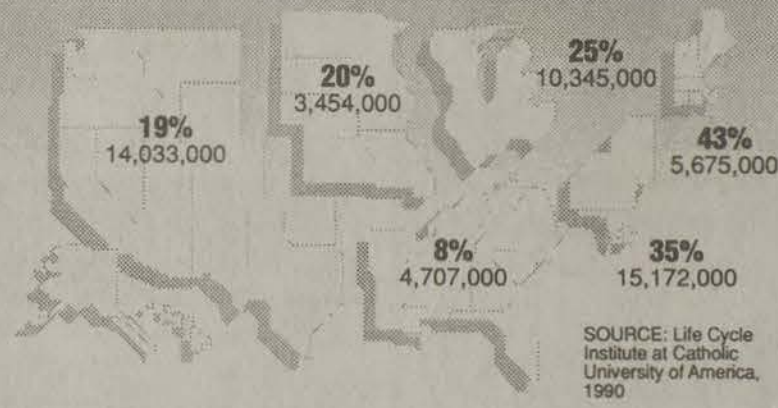

Barlow said the group's decline mirrors the industry's.

"When I came here, there were about 400 permitted mines in Harlan, Bell and Knox counties," said Barlow, who worked at a coal tippie during high school but spent much of his career in politics. "And now I doubt seriously if there is any more than 40, and I would say not many more than 20 in operation."

The association's early efforts were to regulate railroad rates. But as time wore on, Barlow said the group got involved in lobbying for or against legislation that would affect the coal mining industry.—Associated Press (The Courier-Journal)

the witnesses expected to testify... Combs' footnote said. "However, this court ruled that the statute grants no such power to the trial court, although it did withhold its ruling for an uncomfortable lengthy time... In an effort to remove this hindrance to a complete and final adjudication, this court requested on three separate occasions for the Office of the Attorney General to do a hands-on consideration of the need or benefit of possible immunity..."

"The Office of the Attorney General refused to do so, and limited its involvement to the filing of memorandums," the footnote continued. "This refusal in itself has long delayed this court's ability to proceed... A simple interview with the one witness continuing to seek immunity could have quickly freed this litigation to move forward. This observation in no way should be interpreted as an opinion of this court that had immunity been granted, there would have been any different outcome other than a ruling favorable to the defendant, John M. Stumbo."

Three witnesses in the case, Calvin Howell, Velma Banks and Kenneth Roberts invoked their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination during depositions in the case.

McKinney's attorney, C.K. Belhasen, asked that the witnesses be granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for their testimony.

Judge Combs ruled that witnesses in a civil case could not be granted immunity from prosecution.

Stumbo's attorney, Arnold Turner Jr., said Thursday that his client has been vindicated.

"This one-year procedure has been like trying to nail Jell-o to the wall to determine what McKinney said happened," Turner said. "Once we finally locked him in to naming all the witnesses that he knew of, they would not support his claims. Not a single one testified to any facts as to McKinney's charges against Judge John M. Stumbo."

Belhasen could not be reached Thursday for comment.

Dispute

patrick he had no authority to adjourn the meeting, but Fitzpatrick said he did and asked for a motion to adjourn.

At this point in the meeting, student representative Charles Raleigh Nelson expressed his disgust at the proceedings.

"If the letter of the law is what we go by, then the spirit means nothing, and if neither of us are voting members, there's no reason why we should be sitting at this table. We should be out in the hall looking inside because we have no voice," he said.

Greene also expressed his concern at the turn of events.

"What's been happening here at the board is the same thing that's been happening at the college," he said. "We're going to open up a hornet's nest and all of us are going to live to regret it."

Chairman Fitzpatrick called for a motion to adjourn the meeting. The motion was made and seconded, and Fitzpatrick said the meeting was adjourned. No vote was taken.

He then apologized to the faculty and said he was shocked at the events that had taken place during the meeting, and again announced the meeting was adjourned.

A board member then said he would like to go ahead with the vote for Gearheart, but Fitzpatrick said the meeting was already adjourned and he and three other members left the table.

The voting continued and Gearheart was elected by four votes.

Gearheart later sent a letter to advisory board members announcing a special meeting on October 3. Gearheart had signed the letter as chairman of the board.

Thursday, H.D. Fitzpatrick sent a letter to board members denouncing Gearheart's claim to the chairmanship.

"As a result of the September 15 meeting and all of the legal technicalities associated with it, I am still chairman of the P.C.C. Advisory Board."

"I do not recognize any actions taken by the board members following my adjournment of the meeting as official actions of the P.C.C. Advisory Board," Fitzpatrick said.

He also expressed doubt at the accuracy of the written minutes and has requested a meeting with U.K.'s Chancellor Ben Carr.

Greene agreed that the issue needs further study.

"The legal department at U.K. must not only review the letter of the law, but more importantly, the spirit of the law," said Greene Thursday after he learned about Van Booven's opinion. "They have only given an opinion on typed minutes which have grave omissions. The tape has been secured and a complete and accurate transcription can be reviewed."

Breakfast, anyone?

Cook up a storm at South Floyd

by Jennifer Mullins and Margie Gibson

A tornado of aromas filled the air at South Floyd High School Thursday, September 8.

The aromas that drifted from the food labs were produced by the Commercial Foods II advanced class. With the help of Ms. Mitchell's mother, Golda Derossett, who demonstrated biscuit making, the class prepared a full-course breakfast.

The breakfast consisted of gravy, biscuits, eggs, sausage, bacon and fried apples. Marty Johnson and Bo Rogers helped the guest, Mrs. Derossett prepare the gravy. Derossett did the biscuits by herself.

Julena Isaacs prepared the eggs. Julena also helped Mona Rogers prepare the sausage. Three girls, Jennifer Mullins, Margie Gibson and Kelli Kidd, teamed up to prepare the bacon. Belinda Walker, Donna Tackett, Tad McGuire, and Bryon Gayheart prepared delicious fried apples.

These students will be catering events throughout the school year. These students will also be co-oping at local businesses during the second semester.

Editor's Note: As a service to the many clubs and committees that meet in our community, the Floyd County Times' Community Calendar will post meeting and public service announcements. Articles for the Community Calendar must be submitted in writing to the Times no later than 5 p.m. Monday for Wednesday's publication or 5 p.m. Wednesday for Friday's publication. These cannot be taken over the telephone.

Judge Sara Combs attends National College

Judge Sara Combs of the Kentucky Court of Appeals recently completed studies at The National Judicial College at the University of Nevada.

Judge Combs is currently the only woman serving on the state's second highest court. She was appointed to the court in February by Gov. Brereton Jones.

Judge Combs, 46, made Kentucky history in 1993 when she became the first woman to ever serve on the Kentucky Supreme Court. After serving on the Supreme Court, and now the Court of Appeals, she has over a year's experience on Kentucky's two highest courts.

Judge Combs described her recent studies as "intense training, geared toward honing the skills and knowledge of appellate judges across the United States."

Scott and Hall are wed

Krystal Lynne Scott, daughter of Bruce and Kathy Scott of Garrett, and Kevin Jerome Hall, son of Anna Stone of Estill, and Palmer Hall of Cleveland, Tenn., were united in marriage July 16, at the Wayland United Methodist Church with the Rev. Troy Poff officiating.

The bride's attendants were Angela Barnette, maid of honor, Jennifer Mullins, Angela MacElhose, Valerie Hall, and Chantal Reed. The flower girl was Brittany Bartrum.

The groom's attendants were Lee Stanifer, best man, Brian Wallen, Randy Bentley, Eric Hall, and Eddie Stone. The ring bearer was Jon Vanderpool.

Mrs. Hall is a graduate of Allen Central High School and is in the nursing program at Morehead State University.

Mr. Hall is a graduate of Allen Central High School, Nashville Diesel College, and is employed by Wayne Supply Company of Pikeville.

After a wedding trip to Tennessee, the couple now reside in Garrett.

Commodities to be distributed in October

The Big Sandy Area Community Action Program Inc. will be distributing USDA Commodities on Wednesday, October 5, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., or until commodities are gone. Distribution will continue on Thursday, October 6, during the same hours at the Community Action Office or until the supply is gone.

The distribution locations are Mud Creek Clinic, Grethel, and the swimming pool building, convention center, at Allen Park.

Commodities to be issued are apple juice, orange juice, beans, cornmeal, and peanut butter.

Persons will be limited to picking up commodities for themselves and two other households. All persons picking up commodities for another household must have the following information before commodities will be released to them: the social security card for the person the commodities are being picked up for, also acceptable is a Medicare card, or driver's license; and a signed, dated statement from the person giving permission for you to pick up their commodities. This statement must also include the number in the household, total household income for the previous month (September) and complete address.

Please bring a bag or container.

Young Authors

Ryan Taylor Mitchell

The Floyd County Times and the Department of Instruction of Floyd County Schools jointly feature the student work of Ryan Taylor Mitchell, a Primary III Young Author's winner from Donna King's class at Stumbo Elementary. Ryan is the son of Taylor and Tracie Mitchell of Beaver. His book, The Five Terrific Karate Kids, was the winner in the Primary III non-illustrated book competition. His work is printed with permission.

THE FIVE TERRIFIC KARATE KIDS

by Ryan Mitchell

Once upon a time there were five Terrific Karate Kids. Their names were Joe, Ryan, Tony, Lisa, and Megan. They had to defeat Sam the Snake. He had slimy leather skin and big sharp teeth. He was also big and smelly. The Karate Kids were called to rescue Joe from Sam the Snake.

Joe had been shopping at the market when Sam the Snake robbed the store and took him prisoner. The karate kids started hitting the snake with their swords. It didn't do any good because he was made of metal. The Karate Kids had no choice. They had to fight the snake.

They were getting ready for the battle. The karate kids fought the battle and won. Joe was OK. Sam the Snake was reformed, he no longer was a bad guy. The Terrific Five had won again.

PCC program changes name

Pikeville College will host "An Appalachian Christmas Bazaar" on Friday, December 2, and Saturday, December 3, in the Pikeville College gym, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. The event will raise money for the Scholarship Fund.

The Christmas Bazaar will be a festive, fun-filled event for the entire family. Pikeville College students have organized a food court with seated dining area. Pictures with Santa

New principal

Frank Smith brings a wealth of educational experience to his new position as principal of Auxier Elementary. Smith taught one-half year in a two-room school in Knott County, 12 years as head teacher in a five-room school in Breathitt County, and 20 years as K-8 principal at John T. Arnett School in Magoffin County. His last position before coming to Auxier was as principal at Herald Whitaker Middle School in Magoffin County. When asked why he chose to become principal at Auxier, Smith said he greatly appreciated the "small school with a relaxed atmosphere."

What's in a name?

Actually, quite a lot, according to the participants of the Homemaker and Single Parent Career Development Program at Prestonsburg Community College.

The program, formerly known as the Single Parent and Homemaker Career Development Program, chose to alter the order of its title to place emphasis on the Homemaker component.

The name change was recommended by program participant Shirley Freeman. "I thought it would bring more people into the program," she explained.

According to Jean Rosenberg, program director, the participants felt the old name gave the false impression that one had to be single in order to participate. However, that's not the case.

"Participants can be married or single, female or male," Rosenberg explained. "We do want to emphasize, however, that single parents who are struggling to juggle child-rearing, maintaining a home, work and educational advancement all on their own are particularly welcomed. In addition to financial assistance, our program also offers emotional support, which is something single parents sometimes find in short supply."

Married participant Betty Williams also appreciates the emotional support, noting that she has returned to the classroom after being out of school for 27 years.

Corinna Bailey, a married mother of three agreed. "The emotional support is just tremendous. Without it, I wouldn't be here."

Bailey came to the program after obtaining her GED through a program at Clark Elementary sponsored by the David School. Once she obtained her diploma, though, she wanted to continue her education. She found a home at PCC. "I hope to go into nursing or become an EMT paramedic," Bailey said.

The program also helps raise participants' educational aspirations. "I had planned on being a paralegal," participant Sherry Arms stated, "but now I plan to attend law school and become a lawyer."

Arms' husband is disabled and the couple support two children. I couldn't support my family and maintain a home on my $5-an-hour job, Arms said. She found the Homemaker and Single Parent Program after the welfare office enrolled her in the JOBS Program which, in turn, referred her to Rosenberg.

Arms notes that she has completed four semesters, maintains a grade point average of 3.67 and is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, an honor society for two-year colleges.

The program participants are now attempting to establish a more formal organization by forming a campus club with elected officers. They also hope to encourage more active participation among the 500 program participants with scheduled monthly meetings and a variety of guest speakers on topics of particular interest to homemakers and parents.

For more information about the Homemaker and Single Parent Career Development Program at PCC, contact Jean Rosenberg at (606) 886-3863, Extension 243.

Berea hosts Opportunity School

Berea College is accepting applications for the winter session of its New Opportunity School for Women, a free education and career exploration program.

The session, which is open to women 30-55 years of age who have not completed college, is scheduled January 29-February 18.

Participants must be of low income, have a high school diploma or GED certificate, and demonstrate motivation and an eagerness to learn.

Rooms and meals are provided at no costs and grants for travel and child-care may be requested. Children cannot accompany their mothers to the campus.

Pikeville area YMCA begins superfund drive

The Pikeville Area Family YMCA recently announced it has begun a superfund drive to raise $250,000 more by October 17 to maximize its grant request for additional UDAG funding of $320,000. The UDAG grant will match YMCA funding 2.5:1. Both the superfund drive money and matching UDAG money are needed to complete the project without scaling it back.

"We now find ourselves working against the October 17th deadline date for UDAG applications rather than the completion date next year for matching funding," said Dennis Rohrer, chairman. "We have begun an emergency Superfund Drive to raise the necessary matching funds before October 17th, the existing closing date for grant applications. The fund drive will include a public auction, phone-a-thons and requests for more donations from the public, businesses and community groups.

These pledges, which can be used as matching funds, can be extended out over a five-year period allocating a specific amount for each year. All contributions, whether in-kind or cash, are tax deductible and can be used as matching funds enabling the YMCA to qualify for more UDAG money. The YMCA serves Pike, Floyd and other surrounding counties.

Anyone interested in helping the YMCA raise the needed $250,000 before its October 17th deadline is asked to contact the YMCA at 432-8963 or 437-9551.

UK students should register by November 18 to avoid late fee

All currently enrolled University of Kentucky students who plan to attend the 1995 spring semester should register November 1-18, according to UK registration officials.

Students who do not register by November 18 must late register beginning January 11 and pay a non-refundable $40 late fee.

"Students should register in advance because they will have a much better chance of getting the classes they need and want and they'll avoid the $40 fee," said Lisa Collins, assistant registrar for registration.

Before registering, undergraduates must receive academic advising. Students registering in November should use UK-VIP, the telephone registration system, during their three-day registration priority window assigned to them.

Those who do not register in advance may not register until the first day of classes. "We give students currently attending UK first priority—they're first in line," Collins said. "Also, if they go ahead and advance register, they have more of an opportunity to adjust their schedules."

If students have problems with registering in advance, they should contact the UK Registrar's Office at 257-7173.

Jeff Foxworthy in concert at MSU

Comedian Jeff Foxworthy will appear in concert at Morehead State University's Academic-Athletic Center on Monday, October 3, beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale now at the Big Sandy Extended Campus Center in Prestonsburg. Accompanying Jeff Foxworthy will be special guest BlackHawk. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2071.

Trophies for excellence

Auxier Elementary students displayed two trophies their school has won for excellence in attendance. Auxier showed the greatest improvement in attendance from 93.3 to 95.5 percent for the 1993-94 school year. Auxier also won the best attendance (95.5 percent) for small schools. The students and staff said they plan to exceed this record this year. Students pictured, from left, are Samantha Cross, Shelly Greathouse, Chris McCowan, and Sherry Howell.

Collectors

Seventeen students from Pat Burke's class at Auxier Elementary have been identifying trees and collecting leaves. Bobby Osborne and Arlinda Craft won prizes for the best leaf collections.

Adrian Hall retires from Alice Lloyd College

Adrian Hall will retire from his position as Associate Director of Admissions at Alice Lloyd College on September 30. Hall came to the college 17 years ago after working in the public school system for several years. He began his career at ALC as Admissions Counselor and has also performed public relations and development work during the course of his tenure.

Hall reflects on his career at the college saying, "When I came here I had only planned to stay for a couple of years. But once I began working here it was hard to leave. My career at ALC has been very satisfying. I like to refer to it as the ice cream topping on cake. However, I feel it's the right time to retire."

Robert L. Braden, a 1987 graduate of ALC and current Admissions Counselor at the college, will replace Hall as of October 1. Hall recruited Braden to play baseball for ALC and they have shared a close relationship since their first meeting. "I don't like to think that I'm replacing Adrian," commented Braden. "I feel he is irreplaceable. I will only try to be what he would expect me to be. I've got big shoes to fill."

Multimedia projects at South Floyd

South Floyd High School students are in the process of doing two multimedia projects for the school year. These projects involve a video yearbook and a video program for announcements and programs within the school.

Under the leadership of Paul Fletcher and James Staggs, the students are now filming footage for a video yearbook. The students have been filming classroom activities, lunch, pep rallies, athletic events and general shots of the campus.

The students will continue to collect footage until the spring of this year. Then they will use the equipment in the technology department to edit the footage and come up with a two-hour video which will be for sale at the end of the school year. The price for the video has not been set, but a price of $20 has been suggested. The video will contain many of the same items as found in the regular yearbook. The class has drawn up a list of items that will go into the video, and they will be adding to the list as the year goes on.

Other students in the technology class will be preparing news reports to be aired over the channel one equipment to all students in the school. Day-to-day announcements that are normally made on the PA system will be broadcast by this class on the days they operate.

Al Osborne, principal at South Floyd, showed a sample of the video to Appalachian Educational Laboratory (AEL), and they were excited about the work being done in this area of South Floyd.

PLAY BALL, BOYS!

If anyone had told me that there would not be a World Series this year, I would have called them a liar. Maybe not to their face because I'm not that nifty, but that's what I would like to have done.

I find it incredible. Life without a World Series is like living without running water, toilet paper, NutraSweet, T.V., automatic transmissions, telephones, and credit cards; those essentials that have come to mean so much to us mortal souls.

As a person who grew up in the house directly behind home-plate of Charlie Adkins Field, I know a little bit about baseball, but that was before talented players received annual salaries that exceeded the normal person's lifetime earnings. And I'm not knocking the salaries either. I mean, you're listening to a woman who would pay big money—and has—to attend a Johnny Mathis concert. But somewhere, something went awry.

How could we have known that someday baseball season would have come to a halt as we sat on the bleachers watching the Little League Tigers play the Reds? Or the high school Tigers play Prestonsburg? As the season progressed we watched Tucker Daniels and his group play other teams as well as watching lots and lots of adult softball. During one particular softball game, my father slid head first into second while wearing a pair of Bermudas. The rest of the summer his teammates referred to him as "ole cherry knees."

Whatever happened to having a good time and playing for the sake of the sport? Of course we can't expect the players to entertain us for nothing. And, I personally think that as long as people will pay the price to see their favorite team, that's their decision. Unfortunately, foregoing the World Series was not what I thought the players would do to the fans.

Sometime during these long negotiations, somebody forgot the adoring fans who supported their teams during good times and bad. Fans who spent their summer vacations at ball parks all across the nation. Hard working people who packed the kids in the cars and spent a month's salary for tickets and food just so their families could see a real live baseball game and cheer their teams onto victory. These faceless individuals who never got the opportunity to sit in the front row seats but eyed their heroes through binoculars from the nose bleed sections.

This past week Dodgers pitcher, Orel Hershiser, stated that he believed the fans would come back after the strike ends just like people come back to a restaurant after it's reopened if they like the food.

Sadly or fortunately enough, whichever way you see it, the fans probably will return because they love it. The fans aren't the ones who abandoned anyone. Yet, the fans are the biggest losers.

I don't understand everything that's happened, I just know that I don't like the results: a baseball-less October.

Yes, we are a spoiled nation.

Up and coming star

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

When Angie Collins Shepherd was born with a cleft palate, doctors predicted she would never talk. Over the years, she has proven them wrong, and these days she's even winning awards with her voice.

Tomorrow night, October 1 on WYMT-TV, Shepherd will accept the grand prize, a recording session valued at $2,000, from A Night Out Productions. Over 200 contestants competed at auditions held throughout Kentucky this summer.

Caleb Warner of Beattyville won the second place prize, a trip to Nashville, and Troy Burchett won the third place prize, a guitar.

Earlier this summer, Shepherd won the first Night Out Competition held at Jenny Wiley Lodge. Each competition was aired on WYMT on Saturday nights, and when Shepherd's performance was seen by WYMT viewers, the station received numerous calls to have her sing again.

Shepherd and her brother made many trips to the TV station to record various performances. Often, the two would be in the studios recording in the wee hours of the morning, sometimes until 5 a.m. The studio would then include Shepherd's performance when it aired the various competitions. She also traveled to the various Night Out competitions and was the opening act.

The competition, which was held over a period of four months, was narrowed to 16 finalists, who then competed at the last competition held at Sweet Hollow Resort in Corbin during a fall festival there.

"The competition was stiff," said her brother, Lee Collins. "She had a lot to go up against."

Shepherd knew her performance had to be top-notch because the judges were professionals and used to working with the best.

John Rigs, who is the voice viewers hear on the Ralph Emery Show, Nashville Now, and Gary Beaty, who is better known for his show Video PM on TNN, were among the judges.

During a practice session, Shepherd gave it her all and after the performance collapsed in a chair. While she was getting her breath back, a young man came to her and gave her a card. The man said he had been asked to present the card to her, and then he left.

It took a while, but finally Shepherd and her family realized what was happening. Ronnie Cochran, a member of the Billy Walker Band scheduled to Shepherd, but it will take major money to make that come true, said Collins.

The first step is to record the demo tape of original songs, the prize she won from a Night Out. Collins plans to use that tape to get Shepherd into Nashville's record producers' offices.

"If we can get her in the doors — once she gets in and people hear her sing, they're hooked," Collins said. "(People) say she makes the hair stand on their arms and that she gives them chill bumps."

He also plans to air the demo on the radio and said the tape should be ready by the end of October.

Collins is looking for a manager for his sister. "One who will care about her the way her family does," he said.

Collins and Shepherd come from a musical family. Her father, the late Willard Kimble Collins could play anything, she said. Both Collins and his twin brother Roger can also play various musical instruments, so the younger sister became used to the sound of music around the house.

"I love to sing," she said. "I've always loved it."

When she was three and her father would play the guitar, Shepherd would try to sing, but no one could understand what she was saying, said her mom, Maggie Collins.

At the age of five, she gave her first public performance. She sang at the Auxier Free Will Baptist Church.

She has had to overcome a lot of obstacles to step into the musical spotlight. She underwent her first operation at the age of seven weeks. Over the years, she has had 12 operations to correct the cleft palate that paralyzed her voice.

Shepherd said she had a lot of problems with her speech, so she would go into her room and practice, practice, practice.

That practice is paying off, and Shepherd is going after her goal — to get a recording contract and become a star.

Later, when she finally talked with him, Cochran, who works a lot with the Grand Ole Opry, told her that she had a voice that would lead her to stardom. Cochran wants to cut an album with

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

According to a notice in U.S. News & World Report in July, a new book by San Diego researcher Thomas T. Samaras criticizes the negative environmental effect of Americans' historically increasing height. Taller people require significantly more of the Earth's resources, writes Samaras. He recommends controlling children's diets to make them shorter and says the ideal adult would be 5 feet tall and weigh 110 pounds.

COMPELLING EXPLANATIONS

— In April in Savannah, Ga., Robert Palmer, 44, was charged with burglary after removing a window pane and entering the home of Joseph Palmer. He denied any motive of mischief and said he broke in only to ascertain whether he was related to Joseph.

— In Dallas in June, lawyer Brian Loncar defended against his indictment for bigamy by saying he did not believe his second marriage was valid because the wedding was performed in Las Vegas by an Elvis Presley lookalike, that it was a "phony deal." Countered the prosecutor, "Not necessarily. Not in Las Vegas."

— Five Florida counties have recently taken out all television sets for jailed inmates, in order to deter crime. Said a Clay County sheriff's deputy, "Knowing there's no television here, maybe they'll think twice before committing a crime." Said the Jacksonville sheriff, "If people want to watch football on TV this fall, they better not get arrested."

— Clint Johnston, 69 and blind, told authorities in Mountain Home, Idaho, in August that the recent charges against him for having consensual sex with two 12-year-old girls should be dismissed. Johnston said that since he could not see the girls, he did not know how young they were.

— Often-unsuccessful Arkansas political candidate Dan Ivy, who had just switched from Democrat to Republican, was accused recently by his wife, Sarah, in divorce papers, of beating her. Dan denied the charge in July and countercharged that Sarah, who like Dan weighs more than 200 pounds, recently physically beat him because of his decision to switch parties. Dan's attorney explained that Sarah was angry at her husband's change of party because a Republican "has increased pressure" to have a good family life.

WHAT GOES AROUND, COMES AROUND

— In December, Marcus Melton, author of the book "Nice Guys Don't Get Laid," which encourages mild, virtuous men to act like rowdy, macho hell-raisers, confronted two men who were harassing a patron in a bar in Traverse City, Mich. They beat Melton up, leaving him with a black eye and a cut that required four stitches.

— In August, a television station in Jacksonville, Fla., which had been carrying Rev. Jerry Falwell's "Old Time Gospel Hour," suspended the show, and threatened to cancel it altogether, because of Falwell's sexually explicit references describing the alleged foibles of President Clinton.

— The French newspaper Le Parisien reported in November that a black man, who was the victim of racist remarks from an elderly woman in a Vienna, Austria, train station, snatched the woman's train ticket and ate it. Transit authority rules specify that a passenger without a ticket must pay a hefty fine.

— Union City, Calif., police arrested Gardner Forster, 32, in January after he fled, nude, from a burglary scene after hiding in the homeowner's closet. Forster leaped over a fence but landed in a neighbor's cactus garden and Still wearing the pearls Peter treated with the hallucinatory agent, Laura struggled not to listen to Peter's voice. Mike answered the "call" he'd been expecting. Tony overheard the nurses identify Kristen DiMera as the woman having an affair with John. Wait To See: Mike faces another dilemma.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Sean followed up on Luke's hunch about Bradley Ward's death. Katherine crashed the Quartermaine family discussion to denounce each of them. Felicia told Tony she's pregnant and his brother, Frisco, might be the baby's father. Damian thanked Lucky for saving his life in the catacombs. Miguel and Lily talked about their painful past. Wait To See: Ned comes to a new emotional crossroads.

GUIDING LIGHT: Alan suggested he and Roger become partners to win back Spaulding. Holly realized Ross knew Alan's plan regarding Blake. Vanessa reeled at learning the man with whom she had a summer fling is Bridget's brother. Alan overheard Vanessa ask Matt to return the scrimshaw keychain. Tangie and Alan-Michael found the person who attacked her in Cutter's mugshot book. Alan revealed himself to Holly, and asked her to persuade Roger to be his partner. Ross found Blake outside Alan's cottage, where she followed the man she believed is Tangie's boyfriend. Wait To See: Nadine becomes closer to Carroll.

LOVING: Gilbert caught Curtis snooping in Jeremy's personal things. Despite Gilbert's threats, though, Curtis was determined to learn the cause of "Jeremy's" strange behavior. Steffi reacted to Clay's rejection by losing even more weight, leading Cooper to ask Angie to help her. Dinah Lee confided to Trucker that she felt uneasy around Jeremy. Clay accused Cabot of punishing him because he's not his true son. Frankie and Charlie tried to get Angie to take a vacation. Wait To See: Gilbert continues to "move in" on Ava.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Bo questioned Todd about the second attack at Llanview hospital before letting him visit his ailing father. Dorian was determined to learn more about David's mysterious real estate deal. Nora confronted Jimmy and warned him to stay away from Rachel. Asa was upset that Clint and Cord wanted to get out of going to Alex's dinner party. Sloan devised a way to keep Viki from knowing the truth about his condition. Wait To See: Marty continues her campaign against Todd, but with a surprising result.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Ryan reassured Nina he was curious about Victoria's centerfold, and that his ex wife posed no threat to their marriage. Chris later arrived to find Nina having severe cramping pains. Victoria's attitude about the centerfold changed when people in a restaurant made rude remarks to her, leading Cole to deck one of them. Sharon worried about her mother's health and considered taking a second job. Nick told her he won't return to Europe because she asked him to stay. Dru told Neil she's pregnant. Wait To See: Ashley gets more information about Mary Jo (Marilyn.)

COUNTRY CHATTER

Q. Dear Rhonda: I live in Canada and I'm not that up to date on C&W music. However, I love a new CD that I purchased titled "Not A Moment Too Soon" by Tim McGraw. How popular is Mr. McGraw? Is he related to the former New York Mets star relief pitcher, Tug McGraw, and could I have a little background on him? Thanks, Terri K.

A. Tim's album has been a smashing success, remaining on Billboard's Top Album Charts for over 28 weeks. He has also succeeded as a crossover artist hitting Billboard's Hot 100 Singles with great cuts from his album—most notably "Don't Take The Girl" which has certification for sales of over 500,000.

Tim, indeed, is the son of former Met great Tug McGraw. Tim's career started in 1989 when he moved to Nashville and teamed up with Joe Diffie. Today, these two up-and-coming stars are the pride of Dixie (and apparently Canada as well!).

RHONDA RECOMMENDS— In my book, "Tippin Is Tops!"—Aaron Tippin, that is. I am so thrilled that this absolutely gorgeous and talented singer/songwriter is releasing his fourth album on November 9th. The title is "Looking Back At Myself" on the RCA label. While I haven't actually heard the new release as of this writing, the word "found towns is it will be his best effort yet. Mark your calendar, dear readers, and hit the record stores on that day—I certainly will be there, first in line!

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Business interests run smoothly but a financial matter may concern you this week. You may find communicating with family members difficult early in the week. Try to make amends by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You may be struck with a sudden urge to travel somewhere you've never been before. Meeting close associates halfway is important this week. For the weekend, social interests aren't especially favored.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You work best this week from behind the scenes. Because of this, it's not the best time for presenting your ideas to superiors on the job. Minor differences in outlook with loved ones are likely.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A partner has an unusual suggestion that may not appeal to you at first. However, upon further reflection, you just may begin to see its merits. A particular friend isn't much fun to be with this week, so avoid that person.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An innovative approach gives you the answers you seek in business. Concern about a money situation may dampen your mood for socializing. Follow your instincts. A weekend at home isn't a bad idea right now.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An offbeat entertainment will prove enjoyable, although you may have your doubts about it at the onset. A work problem left over from last week still concerns you. However, by week's end, all will be worked out satisfactorily.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Problems relating to work may still be on your mind during the evening hours and on the weekend. However, avoid a tendency to brood and snap at family members as a result. Be leery of those who would take advantage financially.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Being set in your ways could work against reaching agreements with others. Instead, be open to new ideas and examine each one objectively. Extra duties or expenses may arise in connection with a home matter.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Things move right was easily subdued.

—In August, Edward Musgrove, 32, attacked his estranged wife as she began an evening route as a Los Angeles bus driver. He grabbed the steering wheel, causing the bus to veer off the road, hit a tree, and crash into a brick wall. The wife was not injured, but Musgrove was hurled full-force through the windshield into the wall and was decapitated.

THE WEIRDO-AMERICAN

In June, the County Medical Examiner in Knoxville, Tenn., Randall E. Pedigo, was shot after he pulled a loaded gun on law enforcement officers who confronted him at his home on a charge that he had molested a teen-age boy the night before. A search of Pedigo's apartment turned up 97 guns along with photos of nude, underage boys, some of which were taken, the police allege, after Pedigo had drugged them or had convinced them that the photos were for "medical research."

LEAST COMPETENT PERSON

In February, about a year after one of the World Trade Center bombers returned to the rental agency to get his deposit back on the van used in the explosion, Memphis, Tenn., police arrested a 21-year-old man for burglarizing a home. The man had left a pair of sneakers behind and had returned several hours later, knocked on the door, and asked the homeowner, "I was wondering have you all seen my shoes? They are red and white Nikes."

JCHS now has USS swimming; other notes

Just some notes from pieces of paper in my camera case.

• Steve Cummings called to inform me that Johnson Central High School is sanctioned under the United States Swimming Program.

Cummings said that anyone who is interested in the swimming program is invited to join up.

"We have swimmers from Pike County, Magoffin County, here in Paintsville and around the area," he said. "The program is open to anyone who is serious about quality, competitive swimming."

The swimming program will start on October 4 and will run through March. The swimming program at Johnson Central has produced two swimmers who are presently competing at the collegiate level. Colleen Murphy is swimming for the University of Louisville while Brian Sperger swims for Morehead State University.

For more information on the swimming program, call the pool area at (606) 789-2511 or Cummings at (606) 297-2044.

• The American Wrestling Federation will move its rings into the Allen Central gym on November 5 for a night of some of the awfulest wrestling you have ever seen.

The AWF will come to the J.E. Campbell Arena to help the Allen Central Ridge Runners Club raise money for much needed track and field equipment.

The card for the event will be announced later.

• Pam Brooks sent me the following fax: The Betsy Layne Junior Pro basketball league will hold sign ups on Sunday, October 2 and again on October 9 at the Betsy Layne High School gym (The Hill) from 3 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Tryouts for all players will also take place on October 9. Even if a player participated last year, he must sign up and tryout.

Ballplayers and cheerleaders ages five through 13, with September 1 as the league age, are encouraged to attend. Participation fee is $15 for the first child and $10 for each additional player in the same family. Please bring birth certificates.

• I enjoyed the district golf tournament played at both the Jenny Wiley and Allen courses.

Congratulations to Brett James for winning the medalist award for his second consecutive year.

Also, congratulations to coach Gordon Parido and the Prestonsburg Blackcats for winning the district title two years in a row.

This James kid can flat play golf. I suppose it was the expertise of his dad (Freddie) that made him outstanding. Or was it mom?

Amanda Reynolds of South Floyd won the medalist in the women's play. We say congratulations to Amanda, as well.

Susie Davis, women's golf coach at South Floyd, was the tournament's manager. Susie did a great job and the awards were really nice.

Coach Jim Rose wanted me to mention some people who went out of their way to help with the tournament.

One was Mike Auxier of the Allen course where all the teams got together for the awards presentation. Mike is always willing to go out of his way to help out. Also, a thank you to Jim Kennedy over at the Jenny Wiley course.

Week Six....

South Floyd hosts Jenkins; Monday Night Football debuts

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Five weeks remain in the high school football season as action resumes around the county tonight. For the first time this season, none of the teams will be playing games outside the county.

Only Allen Central was on the road this week, traveling to Betsy Layne for a county matchup.

The past three weeks haven't been kind to the county teams—they have failed to win during the three-week period.

Prestonsburg, who was off this past Friday night, goes back on the gridiron tonight when they host the Shelby Valley Wildcats in a big district game.

The Blackcats have dropped their only district game thus far this season, which was a 10-7 loss at home to Whitesburg.

Jenkins at South Floyd

South Floyd stays home to host Jenkins in a district game tonight. Like Allen Central, the Raiders are looking for win number one.

"I know that we haven't won a game this season," said Raider coach Donnie Daniels, "but this is a good football team. They play hard and give it all they have."

The Raiders will host Tim McCoy's Jenkin Cavaliers. Jenkins is in the thick of a district race with Pikeville.

Coach McCoy says that the Cavaliers are a young ballclub this season and he thinks that a win at South

Floyd would be a big one—district-wise.

"Right now, we are fortunate to be where we are," he said. "I think that if we can win at South Floyd, then we will be in real good shape for a playoff berth."

The Cavaliers were hosts of their first playoff game ever last year and are expecting to make a second straight appearance in the regionals this season.

While this may not be your traditional Jenkins team, Coach McCoy still has the players to move the football.

Jenkins is quick out of the backfield with two scatbacks like Mark Cvetnich (5' 8", 145) and Brian Damron (6' 1", 175). Both runners are quick to the hole with excellent speed and moves.

Quarterback Ryan Gallion, who rarely throws the football, was two for three against Allen Central last week. Both receptions went to back Shaun Williams (6' 3", 233), who is the Cavs' power runner.

Pass coverage has been a problem for the Cavaliers as shown in the game last week against Allen Central. The Cavs allowed the Rebels to get 385 yards through the air.

South Floyd quarterback Justin Ray will be looking at that film clip and will be looking for his receivers down field.

The Raiders, despite being winless, have put the points on the scoreboard. The defensive side of the football has been the concern for the Raiders.

Salisbury first Times' football contest winner

Millie Salisbury of Harold is the first winner in the Bob Harmon Football Contest that began running last week in the Floyd County Times.

Salisbury was a perfect 12-0 for the first week and received a check for $50 for her effort.

There were several participants who were close to perfect, finishing 11-1.

You could be a winner in the contest, but you will never know unless you enter.

Prestonsburg repeats in district golf

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

After a fast start in the first round, Brett James came back from a slow start in the round two of the 58th District golf tournament, and fired a 4-under-par 64 to help lead the Prestonsburg Blackcats to a second straight district golf title.

The tournament setting was split between the Jenny Wiley and Allen golf courses.

James won the medalist with the lowest total for the 18 holes. It was his second title in as many years.

James, who shot a 31 in the first round, got the back nine off to a rather rocky start on the number one hole. His drive rolled up the fairway as he picked up a bogey. He would rather forget the first hole.

"I had some jitters coming into the second day," he said. "I was raising up off the ball and I took a bogey on that one."

James came back on two and three with a birdie on each and settled back into his game.

"Those two birdies got me back into the groove," he said. "After that, it was just keeping it in play and putting it on the green and two putt," he said.

The Blackcat golfer, who plays every day, said that he was pleased with the way he played in the two-day tournament.

"I was nervous the first day," he said, "after coming off winning the medalist last year. There was a lot of pressure on me, but I was well pleased with the way I played. I just came out and had a good first day."

James' 3-under-par 31 was an outstanding start, but still there was pressure from three other golfers. Wesley Samons of Prestonsburg was just two strokes off with a 1-under-par 33 to put pressure on James.

But Betsy Layne's Toby Newsome was close behind with his even-par 34. Bryan Allen shot a 1-over-par 35 for fourth place after the first round.

James took a one-stroke lead over Samons to the second hole in the second round where he birdied. Samons was even on two to give

James a three-stroke lead.

James then birdied the third hole while Samons was even to take a four-stroke advantage. After that, James just kept the ball on the greens and putted out.

Samons finished second for the medalist with his 1-under-par 67. Newsome was two over with a 70. Allen finished with a 76.

James said that he needs to prepare for next week's regional meet at the Paintsville Country Club.

"I need to try to get ready," he said. "I plan to play every day at Paintsville for the rest of the week. I'd like to go down to the state this year."

Betsy Layne finished second in the district tournament. The Bobcats scored a 316 to place second.

For the women's division, South Floyd won the district title with a 554 over Allen Central's 593.

Amanda Reynolds of South Floyd took home the medalist award for the ladies with a 122. Reynolds, who is new to the game, shot a 60 in the first day of play and finished with a 62 the second day.

"I was shocked to learn that I had won the medalist," she said after the tournament. "I just started playing golf back in June. I never did pick up a club until then."

"I just can't believe I shot that well for 18 holes. But I guess I did," she said.

Reynolds said that she was not sure about the Paintsville course for the regional tournament.

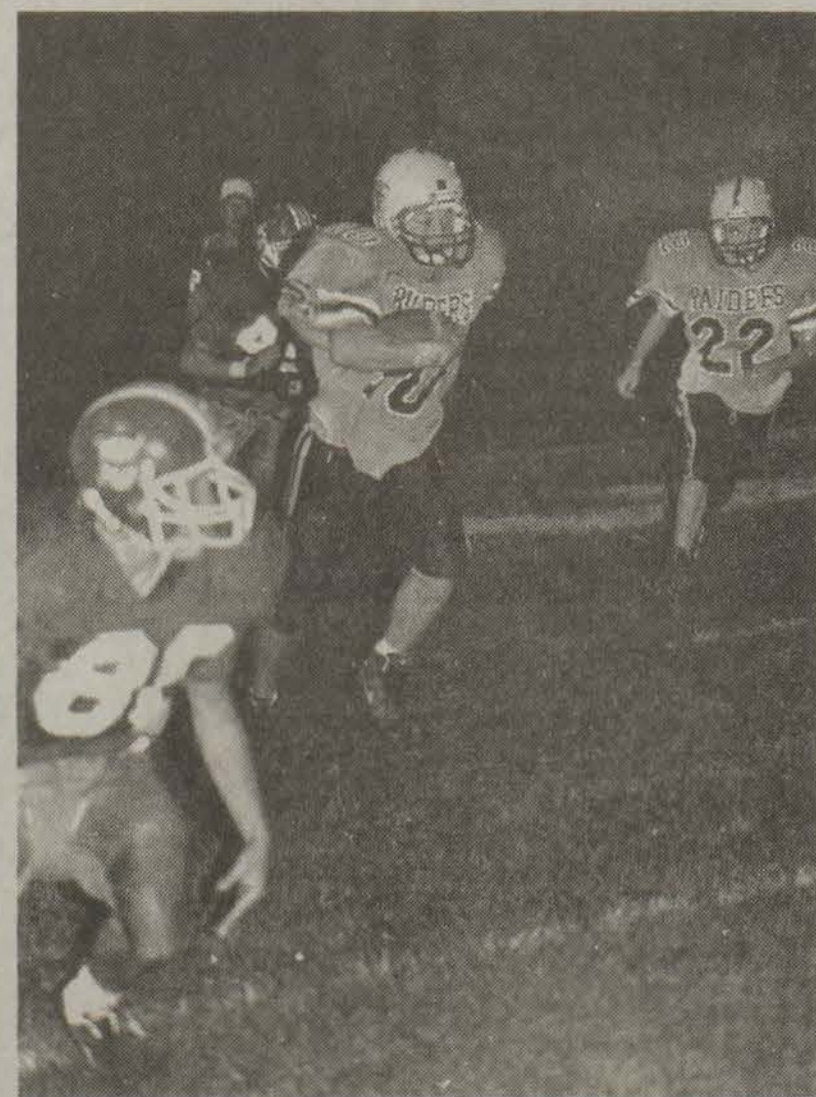

"Paintsville will be a tough course to play," she said. "I had most of my

Fleming-Neon edges South Floyd 28-20

Wright rushes for 159 yards, scores two touchdowns

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was an upset coach Donnie Daniels who watched as his South Floyd football team fell at Fleming-Neon last Friday night.

The Raiders lost 28-20 at Neon, and it wasn't a pretty way to lose, according to Coach Daniels.

"Chad Stone laid across the goal line and they never would call it a touchdown," said the veteran coach. "Then the way they ended the game was a mystery."

With eight seconds left on the clock, the officials picked up the football and declared the game was over.

"I had one more timeout left," said Daniels. "They never explained to either coach why they called the game. They just ran off the field and got in their cars and left."

The loss dropped the Raiders to 0-5 on the season and 0-3 in district play.

Adam Wright rushed for 159 yards for the Raiders and scored two touchdowns. Chad Stone carried the ball 23 times for 132 yards.

Quarterback Justin Ray completed three passes for 45 yards passing. Kevin Johnson had two receptions for 34 yards. Wright caught one pass for 11 yards.

Once the Raiders got inside the Pirates' 20, a penalty flag seemed to be thrown.

"What got me was that when we would get inside their 20, we were getting clipping or holding penalties that would drive us back. But they were the same plays we were running in the middle of the field," said Daniels.

South Floyd held the lead once and that came in the first period when they went ahead on a touchdown by Wright for a 6-0 lead.

Neon came back and went ahead 8-6 on a TD and two-point conversion. In the second quarter, the Pirates led 16-6 before Wright scored again in the third period after a goal line stand by the Raiders.

Wright then tackled the Neon quarterback in the end zone for a safety to make it a 16-14 game.

"We got the free kick and ran the ball down their throats to the 20-yard line," said Daniels.

The Raiders moved from the 50 to the Pirates' 8-yard line. But three consecutive clipping calls against the Raiders made it a second-and-50. South Floyd failed to recover.

Neon made it 22-14 in the third period. They went on top 28-14 when Ray had a pass intercepted and ran back for a touchdown.

South Floyd scored their final touchdown with 10 seconds left in the game when Chad Stone scored on a run.

"Our kids have played hard the last couple of weeks," said Daniels.

"This is the most frustrated that I have been since I was at Allen Central."

Kevin Johnson led the Raiders' defense with three solo hits, two assists and a safety.

South Floyd will host the Jenkins Cavaliers tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Players, cheerleaders urged to sign up for Betsy Layne junior pro

The Betsy Layne Junior Pro Basketball League will conduct sign ups for the upcoming basketball season at the Betsy Layne High School gym (The Hill) on Sunday, October 2, and again on October 9, from 3 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Tryouts for all players will be held on Sunday, October 9. Even if a player participated last year, he is still required to sign up.

trouble with the number eight hole here at the Allen course, and at Jenny Wiley, of course, it was number five." Reynold said that she enjoys the game of golf.

"This was a good tournament," said Susie Davis, golf coach at South Floyd, which was the host school. "We had beautiful weather, praise the Lord, and the rain held off today (Tuesday)."

"Most of the girls out here are all beginners and they play slower than the boys.

"We switched out between the two courses and played one day at Jenny Wiley and the other here at Allen. That gives the girls a different terrain to work with in 18 holes and better prepares them for the Paintsville course," she said.

Davis said that she would love to see all four high schools in the county field a golf team.

"Girls are a little bit hesitant in playing," she said. "They feel they are the only ones out here that can't play. But they have to start somewhere.

"Most of my girls hadn't touched a club until June 15. They took lessons during the summer. Then when school started, I worked with them some.

"We've come a long way, but we have a long way to go," said Davis.

South Floyd coach Jim Rose said that the county has some outstanding future talent.

"We have about 10 to 20 young men out there that can shoot in the 60s," he said. "That's a plus for the golf situation in the Floyd County. I'm looking forward to the regionals to see how Prestonsburg will match up with some of the other teams.

"We had a great race for the medalist," said the Raider coach. "The two kids from Prestonsburg, James and Samons, are outstanding golfers. James shoots a 64 and Samons comes in with a 67.

"Toby Newsome at Betsy Layne is a super golfer as well. Bryan Allen is another one who is an outstanding golfer. These kids are great for our county.

"Then we have four or five off the second group who are going to be good," he said. "I'm real pleased with the progress we have made."

Neon still has Coach Daniels scratching his head. Daniels said that the officiating at Neon left a lot to be desired.

"The fans at Neon called many of the penalties that were called against us," he said. "We had to score one touchdown three times before the officials would count it."

Chad Slone, outside of the Pikeville game when he was hurt, has had a strong first half this season. The halfback carried for 132 yards versus Neon last week.

But the emergence of Adam Wright out of the backfield has been a big plus for the Raiders. Wright carried the football for 159 yards against Neon and scored two touchdowns.

Look for the Raiders to mix their offense tonight by running, as well as by passing, the ball. If Slone and Wright can get the blocking from the offensive line, the Raiders could run all night.

Monday night football...

Monday Night Football won't be limited to just the NFL. This Monday night Prestonsburg will host Betsy Layne at the Prestonsburg stadium.

Coach John Derossett, who spent several seasons on the Blackcat sidelines, will bring his team to the Cats' lair in an offnight for high school football.

Coach Bill Letton's gridironers will play their second game in four nights after being off last week.

This is a friendly rivalry between two outstanding coaches.

In the series between the two teams that began in 1981, Prestonsburg leads the series 12-1. In 1985, under then-coach Chuck Williams, the two coaches never met. The series resumed in 1986 when Betsy Layne posted a 12-8 win over the Blackcats.

Since then, Prestonsburg has reeled off seven consecutive wins over the Bobcats.

PIGSKIN PICKS: WEEK SIX

This Week's Picks

- Kentucky at Auburn
- West Virginia at Missouri
- Minnesota at Indiana
- South Carolina at LSU
- Wisconsin at Michigan State
- Washington State at Tennessee
- Colorado at Texas
- Wyoming at Nebraska
- Georgia at Alabama
- NY Giants at New Orleans
- NY Jets at Cleveland
- Green Bay at New England

This Week's Consensus

- Auburn
- West Virginia/Missouri (tie)
- Indiana
- LSU
- Wisconsin
- Tennessee
- Colorado
- Nebraska
- Alabama
- NY Giants
- Cleveland
- New England

A four way tie exists at the top. Kari, Susan, Scott and Jenny continue to cause a log jam at the top. Jodi continues the climb upward and Jimmy "Global" Goble finds himself on row two looking at row three. The consensus is that the Kentucky Wildcats will fall once more (so what's new) as the War Eagles will rule. No local games. Too easy. Alabama wins over Georgia while Nebraska is a large favorite over Wyoming. Tennessee will comeback and win over Washington State. On the pro level Cleveland will win number four with the Jets coming to town. New England is much improved and will win over Green Bay.

Also, thanks to Steve Newsome and the good folks at the First Guaranty National Bank for donating the awards.

• Coach Rose, along with Coach Parido, named their top 10 regional basketball teams. In order, they are: Paintsville, Allen Central, Johnson Central, Prestonsburg, Shelby Valley, Pikeville, Belfry, Elkhorn City, Pike Central and Magoffin County.

Coach Rose wanted to rank Prestonsburg number two to put pressure on the Blackcats. But since Keith Henry wasn't there, they voted to name Betsy Layne number two.

"They all know better than that," said Henry, upon learning about the plot.

• Oh yeah, here's this note that I wrote to myself after arriving home following the district golf meet:

Needed: Basketball schedules for all boys and girls basketball teams.

• Old news: Coach Parido brought out the newest member of his household, and the real boss, to a junior varsity game the other night. She's only six months old and a doll. No doubt she will be at the basketball games.

JAMERSON HOPITALIZED...

I suppose everyone knows by now that former Wheelwright principal and football coach Shorty Jamerson is in the Saint Joseph Hospital in Lexington.

Shorty has been a big part of Floyd County academics and athletics.

Your prayers for him would be very much appreciated by the family.

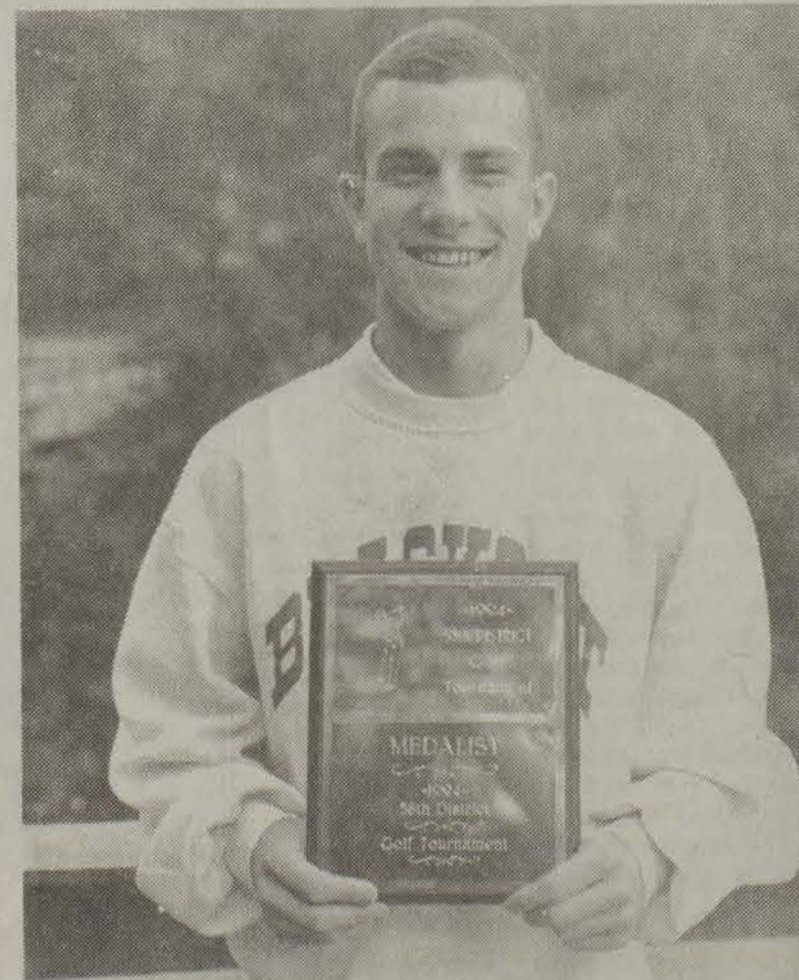

If you could, would you send Shorty a get well card in care of the St. Joe Hospital. He is in room 576, bed one.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone, and be good sports. This Sunday would be a great time to start taking those kids to Sunday school and church. You'll be glad you did.

Risner scares Wildcats, but could miss game...

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The year was 1991.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats had just dropped their fourth consecutive game at home against the Belfry Pirates to fall 0-4 on the season.

Coach Bill Letton was in his second year at the helm of the Blackcat program. He didn't panic at the 0-4 mark, and the confidence the coach showed in his players was rewarded when they reeled off six consecutive wins to finish 6-4 and earned a berth in the playoffs.

Tonight, Prestonsburg brings a 1-3 record, along with a 0-1 district mark, as they host the Shelby Valley Wildcats, a team to whom they have never lost.

Coach Tom Searcy will return his entire front line on defense led by senior Matt Bartley (5'8", 176).

Prestonsburg, after a week away from the gridiron, hopes to duplicate the season they had in 1991 when they won their last six district games.

The streak started with Betsy Layne and continued at Shelby Valley where the Cats posted a 26-12 victory.

Thomas Ratliff, QB, and a senior, is a concern of the Wildcats. Ratliff is an excellent option quarterback and the quarterback-keep play concerns the Shelby Valley coach. "It's hard to stop," said Searcy. "It confuses the defense to the point that they tackle the wrong kid."

Robbie Risner will run at a half-back slot and Coach Searcy says that he is as much concerned about Risner as he is Ratliff.

"Risner is a hard nose runner," he said. "He scares us."

Risner, along with Mike Shepherd and Blake Leslie, give Prestonsburg, what Coach Searcy terms, "good balance."

Larry Morris will lead the Prestonsburg defense, along with Tim Lewis, Jason Spencer and Paul Collins.

Receivers for the Blackcats will be the dependable Ryan Ortega and sure-handed Clint Shutts.

Coach Letton's Scouting Report

"Shelby Valley is similar to us as a football team," said Letton. "They have two good backs (Jeremy Johnson and David Finch). They will get in their pro set and run a lot of counters. They like to roll and pass the football.

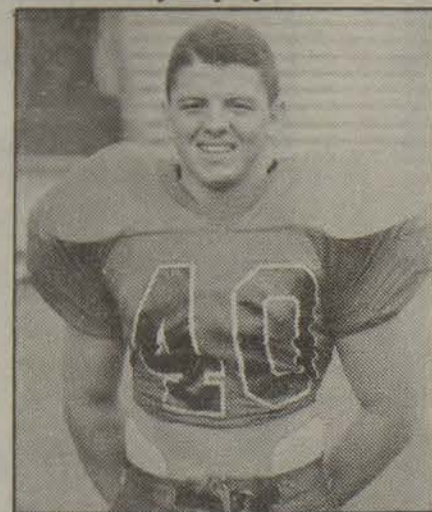

"They will put eight men on the line to stop the running game. We do that. Shelby Valley has good quickness and has good size on the offensive line," he said.

Injured list...

Coach Letton said Robbie Risner could miss tonight's game because of an injury. "We'll just have to wait and see about Robbie," he said. "Robbie hurt his ankle in practice and we'll just have to wait and see."

The Prestonsburg coach said that outside of the normal bruises, the team is ready to play.

Searcy: "Prestonsburg's record deceiving"

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Shelby Valley Wildcats know what is in store for them when they face the Prestonsburg Blackcats in district football action at the Prestonsburg stadium tonight.

Shelby Valley coach Tom Searcy said that stopping Prestonsburg's multiple offenses and defenses will not be easy.

"They have four or five different defensive sets that they run, but each one looks different," he said. "We will definitely have to adjust out there."

Shelby Valley is currently 3-2 overall on the season and is currently in third place in the district race with a 1-1 record.

The Wildcats will be looking for ways to avenge last year's 47-0 shutout at home against Prestonsburg.

The Blackcats will be facing the Wildcats after a week off to rest the injured and get some bruises taken care of.

Coach Bill Letton's ballclub is 3-0 against Shelby Valley. The two clubs first met in 1991 after the districts were realigned.

Coach Searcy's Scouting Report...

"First, I want to say that Prestonsburg's record (1-3) is a deceiving record," said the Wildcat coach. "They have played four very good football teams in the first half. Their record is no indication of what kind of team they are."

"They will run about 10 different formations on you and we will have to spend a lot of time figuring out what they are running," he said.

Coach Searcy likes the looks of the Blackcats' quarterback.

"Thomas (Ratliff) is an excellent quarterback," he said. "He is very good at reading the option and our defense must make the adjustment."

"Larry Morris — what can you say about him? He is a tremendous linebacker and we will have to pick up his stunt. Prestonsburg is a strong team that likes to throw the football."

A look at the Wildcats...

Sophomore quarterback Mike Hall (6'1", 180) has progressed as the Wildcats signal caller. Coach Searcy likes the way he has come along.

"Mike has shown maturity every time he goes on the field," said the Wildcat mentor. "He came out last year and learned our system and I am real happy with him."

Speed, speed and more speed. That describes the ability of senior David Finch (5'10", 175).

"David plays the linebacker position for us. He's a good kid and plays hard. He likes to hit hard on defense and just goes out and gets the job done for us," he said.

Senior Jeremy Johnson (5'11", 180) will run at one half-back slot. He doesn't have the speed, but Coach Searcy likes his competitiveness.

"Jeremy has some very good moves," he said. "He doesn't possess great speed, but he has very good moves. Jeremy sees the field well and reads the defenses."

Johnnie Alvin (6'2", 216) is one wideout for the Wildcats. "Johnnie has the best hands for a receiver. Good soft hands," said Coach Searcy. "It is his first year and he is doing a good job for us."

Jeremy Bell will be the other receiver and, as Coach Searcy said, "is the second fastest on the Wildcat team. "He catches the ball well," he said.

Floyd County Schools General Information

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

KINDERGARTEN

Children are required to successfully complete kindergarten before they enter the first grade. The following are entrance requirements for kindergarten:

1. Must be five (5) years of age by October 1.
2. An official full-size copy of the student's birth certificate.
3. A valid Kentucky immunization certificate (EPID-230).
4. A medical examination on the Kentucky Department of Education approved form (KDE 1671-410).
5. A tuberculin skin test (CH-91A).
6. Entrance to the sixth grade requires a second dose of MMR (measles, mumps, rubella) and present an updated immunization certificate.

ADMISSION TO HIGH SCHOOL

A student will be admitted to his school when that student has completed the prescribed elementary program of studies and has received a certificate of completion from either a public, private, or parochial school. This certificate must be signed by the teacher or teachers under whom the program was completed.

TRANSFER STUDENTS

All transfer students seeking to enroll in the Floyd County Public Schools must provide the following documents prior to being enrolled:

1. Transcripts from previous schools attended.
2. A Kentucky immunization certificate (EPID-230).
3. A tuberculin skin test (CH-91A).
4. A medical examination (KDE 1671-410).
5. An official full-size birth certificate.

GUIDANCE

A full program of guidance counseling is available to all students in the 7th & 8th grades and high schools in Floyd County. Services include aptitude testing, career planning, scholastic and social counseling, assistance in securing scholarships for high education, academic planning and referral to other agencies.

VISITORS

A close relationship between the home and school is very important. We want to encourage parents and citizens to visit our schools. It is suggested that arrangements be made in advance with the principal. Also, when visiting a school, all parents and visitors are asked to check in with the principal's office.

ATTENDANCE

The progress of a student depends greatly on punctuality and attendance. There is a direct relationship between attendance and achievement. The Kentucky Compulsory School Law (KRS 159.010) requires each parent, guardian, or other person residing in the state and having in custody or charge of any child between the ages of six and sixteen shall send the child to a regular public day school for the full term that the public school of the district in which the child resides is in session, or to the public school that the Board of Education of the district makes provision for the child to attend.

Regular school attendance is essential for a student to achieve maximum progress. Parents are urged to make every effort to see that their child attends regularly and on time.

OPEN RECORDS

Parents have the right to examine their children's official records, including grades and achievement test scores. Also, records of the Floyd County Board of Education, except those specifically exempted by the Kentucky Revised Statutes and the Family Rights and Privacy Act, are open to public inspection at the central office or any school office where records are housed throughout the district. Provisions and regulations for record inspection are available from each school principal or in the superintendent's office.

HAZARDOUS WEATHER

When you are not sure whether school is in session because of hazardous roads, listen for a closing announcement on Floyd County radio stations and area television stations between 6:00 and 7:30 a.m. Please do not call the administrative offices or the radio and television stations.

Rather than closing school, the system may have school open on a one or two hour delay when roads are clearer. A delayed opening will also be announced in the same manner.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Students who qualify may attend Floyd County Technical High School on a full-time or a half-day basis. Students may choose from a number of programs including principles of technology, health careers, auto mechanics, electronics, carpentry, machine shop, mine maintenance, welding, secretarial, and clerical.

COMPLIANCE WITH TITLE IX, TITLE VI, AND SECTION 504

It is the policy of the Floyd County Board of Education and all Floyd County schools not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, religion, marital status, sex, or handicap in employment, educational programs, or activities as set forth in Title IX, Title VI, and Section 504. Any persons having inquiries concerning the Floyd County Schools compliance with Title IX, Title VI, and Section 504 is directed to contact Floyd County Schools, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, telephone (606) 886-2354, which has been designated by the Floyd County Board of Education to coordinate the District's efforts to comply with Title IX, Title VI, and Section 504.

EXCEPTIONAL CHILD EDUCATION

The Floyd County School System offers a wide range of special education programs and services for handicapped students of school age.

Examples of types of programs offered are those for students having physical, mental, emotional, behavioral, communication, and learning disabilities.

Most handicapped students, based on individual skills and needs, are able to spend part of each day in the regular education program.

All instruction is provided by a certified teacher, with the assistance of classroom aides in selected programs.

Appropriate education and evaluation services are provided for students at no cost to the parent. Students may be referred by school staff. After the evaluation is completed, a special placement may be recommended or a remedial plan may be developed.

Parents are a vital part of every stage of the evaluation and placement process. Parents are encouraged to contribute helpful information and insights about their child and must give their permission before initial evaluation and/or placement can occur.

Martin named School Nurse of the Year

by Geoff Belcher
Floyd County Schools

At its annual conference in Frankfort, the Kentucky Association of School Health presented Floyd County Schools' Health Services Coordinator/School Nurse Jennifer C. Martin, R.N., the Kentucky School Nurse of the Year Award for outstanding professional contributions.

Kentucky Department of Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen offered Martin his personal congratulations after the conference.

Terry Vance, consultant for school health services for the Kentucky Association for School Health, said Monday that Martin was awarded the honor after a lengthy selection process that examined her work experience, educational background, community involvement and her role and accomplishments as a school nurse.

"Jennifer was by far and large the best qualified and the best choice that we as an organization could make....," Vance said. "She just does a wonderful job... (and) she has one of the most unique and progressive programs in the state of Kentucky...."

Among her many other accomplishments, Martin has served on the Kentucky School Health Services Task Force to assist in recommending changes for the Comprehensive School Health Regulation; and developed a Floyd County Health Task Force to implement health policies and develop a bloodborne pathogen plan; conducted regular home/field visits with area social workers and family/parent resource directors to ensure district school children are provided with a safe, healthy, happy home environment.

"I'm overwhelmed and I'm proud that I did win the Kentucky School Nurse of the Year," Martin said, "and even more so that I could bring the honor back to Floyd County Schools. But I would be remiss if I didn't thank Dr. Stephen Towler, a superintendent who has supported health services; the Floyd County Board of Education for their constant concern for the health and wellbeing of Floyd County's children; Mr. Gary Frazier, deputy superintendent for instruction, who has been in battle with me during many meetings; the principals; the resource center directors; parents, for their willingness to cooperate; and the Floyd County Health Department."

School nurse of the year

Jennifer C. Martin, Floyd County school nurse, was named the Kentucky School Nurse of the Year by the Kentucky Association of School Health. Martin has been actively involved in developing health programs for both students and staff in Floyd County schools. Pictured with her is Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen.

Student writes way to top at Governor's Cup tourney

dent writing her way to the top.

Lorrie Patton, 14, an eighth grader at McDowell Elementary, defeated approximately 85 other students from around the state to place first in the Governor's Cup Competition 1994 State Finals, English Composition category.

Patton is the daughter of Joy Patton and Floyd County Board of Education member Edward Patton Jr. She is the captain of the McDowell Elementary Academic Team; is the president of Beta Club; plays saxophone in the McDowell band; participates in the school Forensics program; is a cheerleader; and participates in the talented and gifted program with a 3.9 grade point average.

In previous English competitions, Patton placed first in the region and fourth in the district and has placed in competitions in the last three years.

KERA and KIRIS lead education in new direction

The "simple" explanation we've all been waiting for:

For many, many years, the students in Floyd County were given annual "achievement tests" to measure what they knew. Kentucky's new performance-based assessments measure not only what the students know, but also what they can do with that knowledge.

The old "achievement tests" were all multiple choice questions and often students guessed at the answers. The KIRIS (Kentucky Instructional Results Information System) requires that students apply knowledge in situations they will face throughout their lives.

In the new assessment program, no child fails. Instead, the assessment results place him or her into one of four performance levels: Novice, Apprentice, Proficient or Distinguished. The lowest level, Novice, recognizes the child as a beginner, not a failure.

The assessment measures both student progress and school success. Schools will be evaluated on the progress students make from one assessment period to another. Schools that do well will be rewarded. Schools that do not do well will be helped in their efforts to improve.

KIRIS is a new approach to ensuring that students get the education they need to succeed in life. One of the goals of KERA is to help students make a smooth transition from school to the world of work and to become a responsible member of society.

No longer will Floyd County students be given the old "achievement tests." The mission of our schools is to provide the essential educational foundation that will produce self-directed, life-long learners who will be able to meet challenges, make decisions and function effectively in a complex and ever-changing society.

The old system did not adequately help us meet that goal, but KERA and KIRIS are leading us in a new direction.

Morning madness

Is the morning routine at your house busier than a three-ring circus? Is the rush to help your kids bathe, dress, and find their homework leaving you feeling frazzled? Here are a few ideas for managing morning madness.

1. For kids who are hard to awaken, try an alarm clock. Be sure it's set each night, and place it across the room so they must get up to shut it off. Most children respond well to this new responsibility.
2. Set the breakfast table and make lunches the night before. Keep menus simple. Breakfast can be cereal or toast, fruit, and milk.
3. Lay out clothes the night before. Avoid last-minute problems by checking often for loose buttons, rips, or stains.
4. Set aside a place near the door for books, lunches, and homework. This saves looking for a lost book while the bus driver leans on the horn outside.

5. Take baths at night. It saves time and helps children unwind after a busy day.

Whatever routine you use, beat morning madness by staying organized. And be sure the children share in the responsibility. ♥

PARENT TO PARENT

WHO'S TO BLAME?

Last year, my daughter Kara refused to take responsibility for anything. She blamed other children when she got in trouble. And if she did poorly on a test, she'd say nobody would help her!

This summer I read Children the Challenge by Rudolf Dreikurs. Now I see why Kara never took responsibility for her actions. I had been coming to her rescue and "protecting" her. She never felt the consequences for what she did wrong!

If she left her lunch home, I'd bring it. When she didn't do her chores, I'd remind her and then do them. When Kara and her stepsister got into an argument, I'd settle it. I thought I was helping, but instead I was keeping her from learning responsibility.

Now, things are different. If Kara makes a mess, she cleans it. If there's arguing, the kids must try to work it out themselves.

Kara is learning that she's responsible for her actions. Still, I have to remind myself not to rush to school if she forgets homework, lunch, or permission slips! ♥

PART 4 - EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

During 1993-94, Floyd County completed the second year of a management assistance improvement plan under the auspices of The Kentucky Department of Education. Significant improvements were completed in the areas of governance, instruction, building maintenance, construction of new buildings administration, special education, and other areas of district management. The State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education commended the district for the significant improvements.

1993-94 was the fourth year at KERA in Floyd County as it was for all 176 districts in Kentucky. The major strands of this new law such as the primary school, school-based decision making, technology, and the new testing program have all been implemented with Floyd County being in the forefront in many areas. KERA has made a significant difference in Floyd County in more ways than can be described in this summary, but suffice it to say that many facets of the school district operation are different than they were just a few years ago.

During the next year, we plan to concentrate on parental involvement and make 1994-95 the "Year of the Parent" in Floyd County. If we could wave a magic wand and make one thing happen to make KERA a success - it would be to increase meaningful parental involvement in all of our schools. We intend to make that a major goal of all twenty schools. We intend to make that a major goal of all twenty schools for 1994-95 in Floyd County.

KIRIS ASSESSMENT

BY PHIL PAIGE
DIRECTOR, SECONDARY EDUCATION &
ASSESSMENT

Student motivation and KIRIS Assessment

Student attitudes certainly influence the quality of response on performance-based assessment. In high-stakes testing, the importance of student motivation is crucial.

Listed below are some strategies used to motivate students throughout Kentucky.

- Constant messages from all school staff reinforce the importance of the test.
- Principals hold class meetings, especially with accountability grades, to explain the test and set the school tone.

- Provide a reward based on the teacher's perception of the student effort on the assessment. Examples of rewards—field day, dances, movie hour after tests are completed, no homework night.

- Create a supportive testing schedule. Morning testing only—provide refreshments.

- Faculty members scan answers after the first test session. Frivolous responses are reported to the principal. The principal's attention may serve to grab the attention of the individual and the class.

- Use the competition factor: challenge the class to exceed last year's class. Schools may wish to purchase a plaque to display scores for each year.

- Copy the student's response and score locally for a class assignment grade. Be sure to follow KDE guidelines for copying items.

Not all strategies will work with all students, but increasing student interest can only raise scores.

Parents should be aware of the following about the writing process approach as the Floyd County Schools improve our assessment goals:

1. The process approach derives from educational research and the observation of writers.

2. The class is process-oriented rather than product-oriented. Therefore, finished work will not be as frequent as parents may expect.

3. The work of curriculum is focusing, writing, editing, clarifying and revising, followed by final polishing which centers on spelling and punctuation. As students add to their knowledge of spelling and grammar, their "invented spelling" will accommodate this increased information.

4. During the writing, the student has conferences with the teacher or with other students. He then revises his piece, using their suggestions and questions to guide his changes.

5. Parents can help support this approach by talking with their children about their ideas, encouraging them as writers, and being patient while waiting for finished products.

Technology program forges ahead

by Harold Burchell
Floyd County Schools

The Floyd County School system's technology program is currently in Phase II of a five-year plan. During this phase, a Staff/Student Production Center will be installed at each of the fifteen elementary schools.

This center will be used by the teachers and students in grades four through eight, with emphasis given to grades four and eight for portfolio work.

The new lab consists of ten EduQuest mod 40 computers and one Epson Dot Matrix printer. The software chosen for the production center is Microsoft Windows, Microsoft Works and Microsoft Publisher.

Microsoft Windows is a menu-driven program recommended by the Kentucky Educational Technology System (KETS).

Microsoft Works is an integrated package consisting of a wordprocessor, spreadsheet, database and a WordsWizard program.

Using this program, a student will be able to write a piece of work utilizing numerous type styles (fonts) and different type sizes, combining them with charts and graphs from the spreadsheet program to produce higher scoring portfolios.

The Publishing program gives the teacher and student an opportunity to do desktop publishing, to produce a school newspaper, a more sophisticated portfolio, business forms, banners, certificates or flyers sent home to promote the school's activities.

The training needed to learn the new software is being scheduled at each school by the principal or school technology coordinator (STC). Each school is receiving six hours of initial training.

The training is occurring after school from 3 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Additional training will be conducted at the request of the individual schools.

Floyd County Schools Director of Technology Harold Burchell oversees periodic computer and technology training courses for school personnel.

Q & A

Q: I want to get off to a good start with my child's teacher. What do you suggest?

A: First, make contact with the teacher as soon as possible. Most schools have an "Open House" night in September where you can meet the staff face-to-face.

Also, consider writing a short "hello" note to introduce yourself. Share a few of your child's strengths and interests, as well as areas where help is needed. You'll save the teacher weeks of trying to learn what you already know.

Continue to keep in touch by attending parent-teacher conferences and writing notes. By working together as a team, you'll strengthen your child's chances of success and prevent unpleasant surprises at report card time. ♥

GAMES PEOPLE PLAY

Writing activity

Your child will need a binder filled with construction paper or a spiral-bound sketch pad.

Have him gather pictures, birthday cards, movie ticket stubs, postcards, programs, and other special things. He can paste them into a "scrapbook" with a glue stick.

Encourage him to write or draw about the items he pasted in his book, dating each entry. He can also liven up the pages with photos, jokes, and short notes to make this a wonderful collection of treasured memories. ♥

Chapter One

by Susan Compton
Director of Federal Programs

Instructional reorganization for an effective Chapter 1 program

Educational Reform is adding a new dimension to the considerations of how Chapter 1 can best meet the needs of low-performing students.

Among the changes to consider are the following:

- 1. An emphasis on meeting the needs of all students to a greater extent within the regular classroom setting.
- 2. Encouragement to group students heterogeneously for integrated thematic instructional projects, interactive learning, peer learning and cooperative learning.
- 3. Vast upgrades in the type and amount of technology available for instruction and school management.

4. Increased cooperative teaching arrangements (such as team teaching and collaborative teaching) to support the other changes.

5. Teacher empowerment and movement of decision-making closer to the level of instruction.

6. Additional time for collaborative planning by the teaching staff.

7. More use of the extended day, extended week and extended year models for enhanced instructional opportunities.

8. Emphasis on the connection between school and the family resource center where a variety of non-instructional services are available.

9. Lowering of the age when schools begin to provide services to children.

10. Adoption of the "effective school" practices in place of the former "excellence" movement.

11. Systematic, on-going assessment of performance which directs curriculum and instructional decisions and informs teachers, parents and students of current achievement levels.

12. Greatly increased parental involvement in the actual instructional programs of the schools.

13. Increased emphasis on the development of the principal as an instructional leader in addition to administrative responsibilities.

IEP Development Training

Dr. Stephen Towler administers new IEP training to teachers from Floyd County Schools.

(IEP) Development Training, teachers and administrators learned new methods of teaching and guiding children with learning and/or behavioral disorders and are now considered "district trainers."

Each of those certified in EP training will join with another trainer to instruct every primary, middle and secondary school teacher in the Floyd County School System, Towler said, until "every warm body in the system has been trained in this program."

For more information on the IEP Development Training Program, please contact Brenda Fish at 886-3014.

While KERA is changing the way our children learn, the Floyd County School System is changing the way its educators teach— particularly the way they teach children with special needs.

Director of Special Education, Brenda Fish oversees the county's IEP program.

About fifty certified Floyd County School personnel, including principals, teachers and Superintendent Dr. Stephen Towler, underwent intensive training last week under the watchful eye of Exceptional Child Consultant Ogie Slone.

SYSTEMIC REFORM

These Initiatives are the heart of the Kentucky Education Reform Act. Acting together they will help ensure that all children succeed in school.

He killed them and he ate them!

It was the crime of the century, the stuff of fairy tales and bad dime novels. Someone had killed and cannibalized two of the famous Three Little Pigs. Someone had to pay, and the fall guy pegged to take the rap for it was the biggest hood in town: The Big Bad Wolf.

Judge Alyson Layne, an ungraded primary student at Clark Elementary, banged her gavel and called the court to order as Bailiff Nathan Blackburn, age six, escorted the accused into the room.

Although the trial was merely a KERA-influenced culminating activity for the class's unit study in fairy tales, Prosecuting Attorney/Student Teacher Jeanne Caudill said, by blowing their houses down," Caudill said. "Then he ate them."

know why because she, personally had never served him pigs at home.

Katie Hale, student, reporter and eyewitness to the crime, testified that on the day in question, she had seen Wolf "huff and puff and blow their houses down," after the pigs had refused his cries of "Little pig, little pig, let me in."

On the stand, Wolf crumbled:

"I sneezed and I blew their house down," Wolf said. "I didn't mean to... I ate them because I was hungry... (and) 'cause I didn't want my neighbor's house to stink."

Judge Layne, who along with the rest of the class had studied the law personally under Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill prior to the trial, pronounced Wolf guilty and sentenced him to life imprisonment in the Wolf County Jail.

Other participants in the trial included: arresting officer Larry Vance; Wolf's doctor Kyle Ousley; court reporter Michael Nelson; Third Pig Brandi Pack; original Third Pig Joseph Gilliam; jurors Jessica Prater, Charity

Fitzpatrick, Shane Miller, Brittany Montgomery, Angelina Evans and John Crager; and spectators Stephanie Slone, Ashley Slone, Beth Allen, Dallas Music, Louis Montgomery, Chris Robinson and Christina Broome.

Wolf was led to jail amidst angry cries of "Guilty! Guilty!" by trial spectators, but was immediately released on early parole for math class.

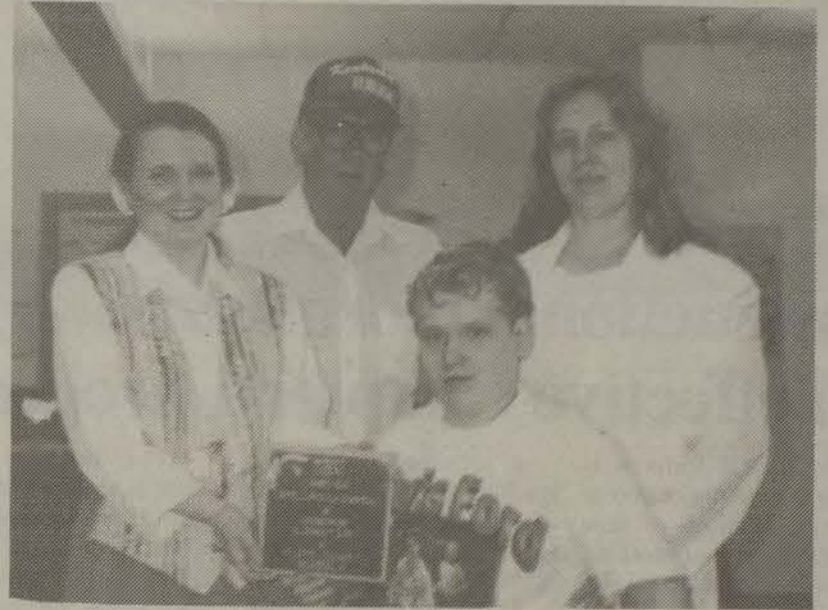

"Not only did he blow their houses down," Caudill said in closing, "but he ate the first and second pigs... just like they were a big ol' cheeseburger."

Defense Attorney/Primary Teacher Debbie Hicks countered that the wolf had merely gone to the pigs' houses to borrow a cup of sugar and had only by accident blown their houses down when he began sneezing uncontrollably.

Primary student Brandy Perry, Wolf's grandmother, was the first witness. She corroborated testimony that Wolf had gone to borrow sugar from the pigs that day to bake her a birthday cake and that he had indeed had a cold that may have caused a sneezing fit. On cross-examination, however, she admitted that he did in fact eat two of the pigs, although she didn't she still intended to see that justice was done and that Billy Joe Hicks— a.k.a. The Big Bad Wolf—would pay for the pigs' untimely demise.

"Mr. Wolf killed the pigs

Cook wins spelling bee

by Geoff Belcher
Floyd County Schools

He may not have received a deluxe, all-expenses-paid vacation to the "Caribbean," but Osborne Elementary's Brent Cook didn't feel like he got "stung" either.

Cook, a 13-year-old seventh-grader from Bevinville, emerged the victor from heated competition at Floyd County Schools' annual county-wide spelling bee at Adams Middle School by correctly spelling the word

"Caribbean."

Cook, the son of Louie and Perlene Cook, faced strong opposition from all challengers, including runner-up Andrea Griffith, of Allen; and second runner-up Matthew Caldwell, of McDowell, who fell only in the final seconds of the competition.

Other students representing their schools in the county-wide bee included Elizabeth Blackburn, of Prestonsburg; Amy Keathley, of Harold; Jessica Rae Hale, of Prestonsburg; Lindsey Johnson, of Melvin; Teresa Jarrell, of Banner; Alicia Shell, of Betsy Layne; Miranda Stone, of Martin; Brandon Vanderpool, of Hippo; Kelli Newsome, of Grethel; Letisha Yates, of Eastern; Tina Spradlin, of Prestonsburg; and Jesse Roberts, of Prestonsburg.

All participants in the bee received special plaques for being spelling champions from their respective schools. All awards were donated by Floyd County Schools' Writing/Language Arts program.

Floyd students rocket into the future at 2nd Annual Technology Showcase

Floyd students rocket into the future at 2nd Annual Technology Showcase

Floyd County students proved they were ready for the next century and beyond at the 2nd Annual Floyd County Schools Technology Showcase.

Designed and orchestrated by Floyd County Schools' Technology Coordinator, Harold Burchell, the Technology Showcase offered parents and community leaders a hands-on demonstration of the advanced technological resources Floyd County students now use everyday in the classroom.

Among the exhibits set up and demonstrated by the students themselves were a scale model of the space shuttle Challenger, sophisticated movie-making and special effects computer programs, desktop publishing displays, and a working robotic crane that earned Prestonsburg High School/Floyd Technical High School student Tim Johnson statewide recognition.

Kentucky Department of Education officials on hand for the event included Associate Commissioner of Technology Don Coffman and Director of Support Services David Couch.

"We've shown tremendous progress here," Coffman said. "We see students actually showing projects that have been implemented (in the) schools.... I see evidence... here in Floyd County that the students are embracing technology as a learning tool...."

"You look at this as compared to other schools in the state," Couch added, "some other schools are doing it but you can really feel the excitement here...."

Forensics Teams hold their own

by Patricia Watson

Sixty-four schools from throughout the state competed in Forensics competitions at the Kentucky High School Speech League's annual state competition, March 24-26 at Bowling Green.

Semi-finalists were named after the initial three rounds, and the results yielded students from four Floyd County schools, including Adams, Betsy Layne, Harold and Martin.

Student finalist postings proudly displayed Harold Elementary student Brandis Bradley as our sole remaining contender.

After a tough round of finals competition, Brandis received fourth place in the state for her storytelling performance. She defeated 59 other competitors in her category.

Semi-finalists from Floyd County district schools included: Wes Fugate and Les Fugate from Adams; Kitty Swiger, Jessica Stumbo, Crystal Williams and Brittany Blankenship from Betsy Layne Elementary; Brandis Bradley and Sarah Click from Harold Elementary; and Carlie Ratliff, Brandy Samons and Jesse Robinson from Martin Elementary.

Congratulations to each of the students and coaches for a successful first competition at state.

Jerry Lafferty Jr., Prestonsburg High School Forensics Coach, received congratulations from Sally Miller, South Floyd Coach. Lafferty was named high school "Coach of the Year!"

Harold Elementary's Forensics Team took junior level, district FIRST place honors for the 1993-94 school year. Coach for the team is CaSandra Williamson.

Patricia Watson (left) presented Darlene Swiger, from Betsy Layne, a Forensics parent/judge, a personalized certificate and a T-shirt in appreciation of her work throughout the 1993-94 school year.

Prestonsburg High School's Forensics Team took senior level, district FIRST place honors for the 1993-94 school year. The team is coached by Jerry Lafferty Jr.

John Williamson, Cumberland Regional Director, congratulated CaSandra Williamson, Harold Elementary coach, for her recognition of junior level, "Coach of the Year!"

Interacting with Floyd County Forensics students were Poetry Alive! performers, Dana Rhodes and Rita Richfield Good. The production was made possible through shared funding from the Jenny Wiley Educational Outreach Program and Floyd County Schools Forensics Program.

WORKING TOGETHER FOR SCHOOL SUCCESS

SHORT NOTES

Respect for the teacher

Your children will like some teachers more than others—and so will you. Still, make sure they show respect for every teacher. And avoid criticizing teachers in front of your children. Help them look for good points instead.

Good habits start early

National survey results: Of every 5 adults who use the public library, 4 of them also used it as children. Drop by your library soon—and take the kids!

Focus on the positive

Do your children get more attention from misbehavior than from good behavior? Why not write down the “nice” things you see them doing, and post them on the refrigerator. Example: “Paul helped the baby when she dropped her bottle.”

Worth quoting

“The price of greatness is responsibility.” Winston Churchill

Just for fun

“Haven’t you ever heard of inflation?”

Start smart

With good reading habits

Are your children off to a good start this school year?

They are if you see them enjoying books in their spare time. Why? Because a strong interest in reading makes a big difference to school success.

Listen to what several parents have done to “hook” their kids on reading:

Reading aloud

“One of the best decisions I ever made was to set aside 15 minutes a day to read to my children. We choose a good children’s book, snuggle up on the couch, and start a new adventure. We laugh together, we cry together, and we feel close. Besides enjoying some great books, their schoolwork has really improved!”

Family reading

“Every night, my daughter sees my wife and I reading in the family room. The room is filled with newspapers, magazines, and books. When we come across something interesting, we tell her about it. Now, my daughter loves to read library books on her favorite subjects—horses, dolphins, and soccer.”

Make time for reading

“My kids used to spend so much time watching TV, they had little time for reading and rushed through their homework. Now I limit them to 10 hours a week—including movie rentals. They’ve learned to use their imaginations to entertain themselves, and that includes reading a lot more.” ♥

PARENT INVOLVEMENT

You can make your child’s school even better by sharing just a little of your time. Here are a few ideas:

- Help out with a PTA or PTO project.
- Read your favorite children’s books aloud.
- Tell about your career, hobby, or travels.
- Help in the library or health room.
- Work with students who need extra practice.
- Write down stories that students dictate.
- Call other parents when needed.

When you volunteer, it’s a way of saying to your child, “I value education, and I’m working to make it better.” No matter what kind of help you give, it’s the children who benefit the most.
