Debris to be ·buried

by Alisa Goodwill Staff Writer

The question of how to safely dispose of materials contaminated by histoplasmosis from the old fire department building is no longer a question, but a matter of when.

A recommendation for disposal of the debris was made by Dr. Reginald Finger, an epidemiologist with the division of epidemiology in Frankfort, got the approval Monday from Frankfort.

Histoplasmosis is a fungus that is contracted by contact from dried spores of bird and bat droppings. Histo is not contagious and is endemic to the area.

The debris is currently at a dumpsite within city limits near Prestonsburg's Public Works Department. The debris was taken there originally to be mulched for land-• scaping areas around the city.

Finger recommended the debris be buried under three feet of dirt and the area remain undisturbed for 12-16 months.

A part of that recommendation is that whoever works on the disposal process must have already skin-tested

The health inspector gave the business 10 days to correct the problem or he would issue a notice of closure. He also recommended that business manager James McCoy check with the Prestonsburg Fire Department and building inspector regarding possible code violations for screen doors.

Bailey paid a follow-up visit to the establishment on June 21 and discov-

McCoy said he "had to wait in line for a man to come up and put the screen in the door." During the time he waited for the public hearing to be held, the screen had been installed and Larry Adams, Prestonsburg building inspector, had approved it, McCoy told Wallace.

Jurors may report next month on Hammond probe

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Federal officials are remaining tight-lipped about a probe into the personal financial dealings of Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond after federal grand jurors in Ashland heard from two more witnesses Wednesday.

Two former employees of Hammond's private law firm appeared before a federal grand jury Wednesday morning. In June, grand jurors heard from witnesses who worked in Hammond's private law firm and who worked in the county attorney's office.

The grand jury could issue a report on the investigation when it reconvenes on September 20 in Ashland.

Hammond's attorney, Bernard Pafunda, confirmed in June that his client is under investigation by federal officials and that the probe is related to Hammond's personal financial affairs.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agent Steve Stacy was at the grand jury proceedings Wednesday, but Stacy declined to comment on the case.

Stacy also appeared before the panel in June and arrived at the federal courthouse in Ashland with boxes of documents that appeared to be related to the case.

Officials will neither confirm nor deny if the probe includes any matters related to the operation of the county attorney's office.

In May, federal agents issued approximately 30 subpoenas in Floyd County, most of which were reportedly for documents. Agents also apparently requested records from two local banks, but bank officials would not confirm records had been subpoenaed.

Meanwhile, a special state grand jury sitting in Floyd County expects to finish its probe into allegations of government corruption by the end of August.

Larry Fentress, with the state attorney general's office, said Monday that grand jurors should complete their investigation into the finances of the county's E-911 service; allegations of vote fraud in the 1993 May primary election; alleged criminal violations in the solid waste department; and monies reported missing from the Floyd County Sheriff's Office.

• to discuss fire districts

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Floyd County's Fiscal Court is expected to begin drawing lines for fire taxing districts today (Friday), which is a key element in getting an E-911 service on line in the county.

Under a proposal to be discussed by the court, the creation of new taxing districts for the northern part of the county would be necessary to ensure total fire protection for the county and facilitate the implementation of an E-911 service.

Also, the court will review a schedule of planned public hearings on the fire taxing issue.

The tentative meeting schedule is as follows:

Wallace said the restaurant, which did not have a name, was apparently operating in conjunction with an ar-

Bailey said he had noticed that work was being done on the Somerset building and had also realized that McCoy could only do what his company told him to do. Bailey said McCoy probably did not realize that additional time was available for the corrections if McCoy had explained the situation and asked for more time.

Wallace recommended that Bailey inspect the business to be sure corrections had been made and that the company be put on a one-year probation. During that time, Bailey will inspect the premises at least once every six months, instead of the usual once a year inspection.

Wallace also asked Bailey to monitor the facility periodically throughout the probationary period.

Wallace's recommendations were approved by Floyd County Health Department director Carol Holbrook this week. The probationary period will end August 8, 1996.

A new foundation

Eight-year-old takes steps to build hospital

by Polly Ward Times Feature Writer

An eight-year-old Maytown girl was the center of attention in the county court clerk's office last Friday afternoon, August 11, when she presented County Court Clerk Carla Boyd with articles of incorporation for a new hospital foundation in Eastern Kentucky.

Suzanne Elizabeth, who was accompanied by her mother Janie Bailey-Bamer, filed the document in behalf of the non-profit corporation, Eastern Kentucky Children's Hospital, Inc. The filing was the first official step in a grassroots effort to build a comprehensive medical facility for children in the region.

For Suzanne, who has cerebal palsy, having a children's hospital close to home would mean no more arduous trips to hospitals in Lexington and Louisville to see specialists and to receive therapy.

It could also mean the difference between Suzanne remaining in a wheelchair or walking.

"Suzanne is a quadriplegic who may or may not have the ability to walk," her mother said. "(Doctors at) Shriners (Crippled Children's Hospital in Lexington) say she can. But it's hard to get down there at Lexington."

As it is, Suzanne visits the Shriners hospital once every two weeks. She also has appointments with pediatric cardiologists at Kosair Children's Hospital in Louisville every six months. She also see a pediatric cardiologist in Pikeville. Her mother said that Suzanne's cardiologists in Louisville come to satellite clinics all across Kentucky, except Eastern Kentucky due to a lack of adequate facilities. The clinic farthest East is at Somerset, in Pulaski County, Janie said, and that is still

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Over the years there has been a decline in the number of communities that fit the description of small town America, but past and present residents of Wayland are working to keep that concept alive by hosting a homecoming event Labor Day weekend.

To commemorate the event, the U.S. Postal Service has authorized a special postmark which can be obtained September 1 and 2. The special cancellation mark has the image of a wasp imposed on a W between the numbers 9 and 5. It also has the slogan, "Wayland Homecoming Station" as part of the overall mark.

The wasp character refers to the mascot used for athletic teams at the schools in the town and players were known as "Wayland Wasps."

One of the most well-known athletes from the town is "King" Kelly Coleman, who was a basketball standout throughout the state and the nation. Coleman is still

Red, White and Blue could be biggest yet

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

"1995 Red, White and Blue Days -- honoring the past, reaching for our future.

The slogan for the 25th Red, White and Blue Days says it all as memories from the past will be relived when the annual Red, White and Blue Days kicks off on October 16 at Martin.

The Red, White and Blue committee has expanded the event to include a full week of activities at different sites throughout the county, according to chairperson Walter "Clyde" Dingus.

We need to let everyone know that this is going to be the biggest event since the Red, White and Blue first started in 1970," Dingus said. "Marcella Bailey would be proud to know that the 'little children' are still the focus of the parade and patriotism will abound in Floyd County that day."

Bailey founded the festival to honor America's veterans with their own special patriotic day.

Each year the Red, White and Blue Days committee salutes veterans of past wars, and this year's salute will go to Vietnam veterans.

Something new this year will be Marcella Bailey's RW&B Field Meet to be held at Prestonsburg's Thunder Ridge. According to Dingus, all proceeds from the meet will go to the newly-formed Eastern Kentucky Children's Hospital Foundation.

"It will be a hospital for all the kids in Eastern Kentucky," said Dingus.

Some events kick off earlier than the festival's scheduled date of October 16. On Monday, October 9, the annual Miss Red, White and Blue pageant will be held at the convention center at Jenny Wiley State Park. The pageant will be countywide.

Categories for the pageant include Baby Miss RW&B (ages three and under), Miss Petite Red, White and Blue, Miss Junior RW&B, and Miss Red, White and Blue.

Miss Petite, Miss Junior and Miss RW&B categories are open to school representatives and their escorts.

Parents will become involved in this year's pageant. They will be asked a two-hour drive.

Janie, who is one of the nonprofit corporation's three board of directors, decided to push the idea for a regional children's hospital "because of Suzanne," she said. "I am so tired of going back and forth to Lexington and Louisville for medical needs for my child."

She also knows that there are other families in the region who would benefit by having a children's hospital nearby. "It takes three and a half hours to drive to Louisville and then there are the overnight accommodations and food expenses. The trip is hard on kids.'

Janie said that the region needs to have a children's hospital as a central point for medical services, including primary care, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech and language development and women and children services. The medical center, whose tentative location would be at Allen, would be a facility for satellite clinics held by specialists at Kosair, Shriners and other hospitals.

The mother said that she first conceived the idea for a children's hospital about eight years ago when Suzanne, then an infant with serious heart problems, was in the hospital. "I thought about it one night when I was at a Ronald McDonald House in Louisville," she said. "We need services like this in Eastern Kentucky. I came home and told my mom and she said, 'Go for it."

Janie's mother was the late Marcella Bailey, who created the annual Red, White and Blue Day celebration in 1970.

Janie kept the idea of a children's hospital in the back of her mind while she went on with her life.

"I tried to cope with a child with multiple disabilities and my job. Then I decided to sit home and do this for the future. I'm going to devote my energy and money to the hospital, my mother did for Red, White and Blue Day."

Janie consulted William G. Francis, a Prestonsburg attorney, and Steve Pack, a certified public accountant in Prestonsburg, about her vision for a hospital. The three agreed to serve as the initial board 285-3657.

of directors for the hospital foundation. Francis drew up the articles of incorporation, and Pack is handling the financial aspects of the project.

"I told her I would help her get the corporation off the ground," Francis said. "I'm donating my time and expertise." He added, "I think it is an excellent opportunity to provide services for children in Eastern Kentucky."

Pack said that he will be involved in the initial budgeting of the project. "The hospital is something that is needed here," he said. "I'm doing the paperwork necessary to get it off the ground. I'm filing the paperwork with the Internal Revenue Service to make the foundation a tax exempt status organization. Anyone who makes a charitable contribution will get it off their taxes."

Janie said that her efforts to build a hospital in Eastern Kentucky does not mean she doesn't appreciate the services of the Shriners or Kosair hospitals. She paused during the interview and helped Suzanne out of her wheelchair to demonstrate how Shriners had helped her daughter. The child could walk by holding unto her mom because doctors at the Shriner's hospital had put casts on her legs. The Shriners also provided Suzanne's wheelchair and other equipment.

But the mother pointed out, "We need to keep our resources here. There is a need."

She added that the drive to build a hospital "needs to be an Eastern Kentucky effort. We all need to pull for the same goal. If we pull all of our resources together, we can do this.'

The first scheduled fund-raising event is a Motorcycle Field Meet that will be held on October 19 through 20 at Thunder Ridge Racing and Entertainment complex. Kentucky Vietnam Veterans Motorcycle Club and Kentucky Highway Men will help host all technical field event meet activities. Gate proceeds will go to the Eastern Kentucky's Children's Hospital Foundation, Inc.

The health department inspector did not know how long the restaurant had been in operation.

Wallace said individuals who want to open a food service establishment "can't just pick a building and put a sign up." Certain steps have to be taken to ensure public safety, including hiring a licensed plumber to develop plans for plumbing. Those plans include the installation of a handwash sink, a three-compartment sink for washing dishes. The plans must be positive for histo. City Attorney Paul Burchett said the disposal process will begin when the city finds someone who has already been exposed to the disease and who can also operate the equipment needed

In the meantime, the city is keeping the area wet, to keep the spores from becoming airborne, and have blocked off the entrance to the dumpsite.

The recommendation to bury the contaminated material was made during a meeting last week Thursday between Johnnie Ross, environmental inspector for the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection; city officials; representatives from the Floyd County Health Department and other interested parties.

Ross said during the meeting a lot of different possibilities were discussed, but the group chose Finger's recommendation for on-site disposal.

"Since this is an air borne disease, burying the waste deep enough will prevent the spores from becoming airborne," Finger said.

This is more of a practicality decision than one based on science, he added.

Finger said that there is no risk from driving by the site, but people do need to stay out of the dump area.

Ross said the city was granted an oral emergency permit from Frankfort based on Finger's recommendations to bury the contaminated de- Blackburn. bris.

A verbal permit is more stringent than a written permit because the city must follow specific guidelines, he added.

The city must now respond to the five days. The city must tell specifically how the waste will be handled, Ross said.

However, the city does not have a about running out." lot of latitude, because this is an emergency situation, he added.

The city has done whatever was asked of them and has done it quickly, he added.

Since July 13, seven people have been diagnosed with acute cases of histo/pneumonia. Only one of those cases was confirmed by lung biopsy.

The seven people include five construction workers, who contracted the disease while tearing down the old building, and two city workers.

One of the city workers, Forrest Bentley, an equipment operator for Prestonsburg's Public Works Department, contracted the disease while operating a backhoe inside the building and hauling the debris to the dumpsite.

The other city worker is Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom

"We now have a social problem," Sikder said. "The problem is the medication is so expensive and these folks will need help."

If the medication is not taken while the disease runs its course, more severe lung and respiratory problems can occur, she added.

Sikder said that there is now a total of fifteen histo cases, but other than the seven acute cases, everyone else has mild cases.

Those with mild cases were not admitted to the hospital and some do not need any treatment, she added.

Gas prices puzzling

Editor:

For the past 25 years I lived in Northeast, Ohio. When I retired I moved into this area.

I am very puzzled why gas prices are 15¢ to 20¢ higher, when we are only 70 miles from the refinery. We took a trip to Lexington and found gas prices to be comparable to what we were paying in Ohio. It seems to me something isn't right.

Here we are in a locality where the coal mines are all but shut down and a considerable amount of the people are in the low-income bracket. Why should we pay higher prices than people do in other areas?

Woods family thankful for prayers for son

Editor:

Floyd and the surrounding counties who took the time and the love to say a prayer for our son.

We are the parents of Stephen Woods. For those of you that do not know Steve personally, let me tell you a little about him. Steve was born over twenty-six years ago with a severe heart problem. At the age of six months he had open heart surgery.

Steve went to school here in Floyd County. After high school he went to Pikeville College and received a degree in accounting. Steve is married and has a son that will soon be three Dana, the Lord visited them and they were saved.

After returning home Steve had heart failure. Upon returning to the hospital and after tests were run Steve was told he was in need of a transplant for his heart.

After two years of waiting Steve now has a new heart. During his operation and the weeks that have followed, we again received word of the many prayers that went to Heaven for our son.

We want each of you who prayed even the smallest prayer for Steve, to know how thankful his parents are to you. Without your prayers we do not believe Steve and his wife would have been saved. We also do not believe his operation would have been the success that it was. We certainly believe in prayer because prayer has brought a miracle into our lives and the Christians that prayed those prayers can say "We have done the Lord's work." Steve is at home with his family and doing quite well. Thank God for a miracle.

We must also thank the wonderful We would like to address this let- staff of doctors, nurses, and all the ter to all the wonderful people in rest of the wonderful people at the University of Kentucky Medical Center. Their faith and hard work had much to do with Steve's medical success.

Thanks Rosenberg and single parent program

Kappa Honor Society's initiation ceremony at Prestonsburg Community College, Jean Rosenberg was honored with an arrangement of flowers and an appreciation plaque. Also, she received a standing ovation from those in attendance. Not coincidentally four of the five PTK officers and seventeen of the new inductees are among the over five hundred active members who receive various on-going services ranging from one-on-one counseling to referrals to other agencies from the Homemaker and Single Parent Program at PCC.

In conclusion, I would like to say "Thanks" to Rosenberg, Prestonsburg Community College, and the Homemaker and Single Parents' Program. As a non-traditional PCC student, I know I have access to a program that will support me as I study for my teaching degree.

The spring after Steve finished at Pikeville College Steve's condition got worse. Soon he was scheduled for his second heart operation. It was during the time Steve was in the hospital that we began to realize the strength that faith can have. Many friends would greet us with "Our church held special prayer for Steve Sunday." People we did not know would ask if we were Steve Woods' parents and that they had attended a service where prayer was asked for Steve. After the operation, Steve was visited by Preacher Manford Fannin, our pastor. While Manford was holding prayer with Steve and his wife

I would like to thank Jean Rosenberg, director of Prestonsburg Community College's Homemaker and Single Parent Career Development Program, for the support, encouragement, and advice which I and others have received.

As a non-traditional student, wife, and mother, I found that balancing a college career and family was a totally new and demanding experience. The Homemaker and Single Parent Program at PCC has helped me to cope with the many demands in my life.

Senator Bailey speaks at JOBS regional meet

A Kentucky senator and a representative from U.S. Representative Hal Roger's office spoke at a Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (J.O.B.S.) regional meeting held Thursday at the Mayo Vocational-Technical school.

The J.O.B.S. program serves AFDC (welfare) recipients by placing them in part-time positions with non-profit agencies so they can obtain work experience training.

Senator Bennie Ray Bailey and Jeff Speaks both spoke briefly to area employers and AFDC J.O.B.S. participants about legislation that affects health and welfare programs.

"Health care and welfare reform are intertwined and to adjust one, the other is affected," Speaks said.

Speaks said proposed block grants would replace federally funded programslike AFDC, but the states would still receive the same amount of money

These grants would come with certain requirements and guidelines, but different states could decide what was needed most in their state, instead of the federal government deciding.

Bailey said welfare would not be a problem in Appalachia if it was developed.

"For example, if the people of this area spent 75 percent of what they spend now on health care in this region instead of going to Lexington, jobs would be created here," Bailey said

Several officials with the cabinet of human resources in Frankfort, all of the local J.O.B.S. program staff serving Martin, Floyd, Johnson, and Magoffin counties and over fifteen area employers and twenty AFDC J.O.B.S. participants attended the meeting.

The local program serves more J.O.B.S. participants than any other program in the state.

monthly has increased slightly from vices. nearly 117,600 in federal fiscal year than 6.8 million women, infants and children have participated monthly in the WIC program in this federal year to date. About 79 percent of Kentuckians who are eligible for the WIC program are enrolled.

WIC is a health and nutrition program that provides nutrition assessments and education, nutritious foods, and referrals for other health services to women who are pregnant, postpartum or breastfeeding, infants, and children under five years of age.

To qualify, participants must be at nutritional risk and in a family that is at or below 185 percent of the federal poverty level. For example, a family of four with a monthly income of $2,336 would qualify under program guidelines.

Participants receive WIC checks for the purchase of specific nutritional items such as milk and cheese, iron-fortified infant formula, vitamin C-fortified natural juice, iron-fortified cereals, eggs, dried beans, peanut butter, tuna fish, and fresh raw carrots.

"Proper nutrition is very impor-

"Many serious health problems 1994. Nationally, an average of more can be prevented with proper nutrition. Both financial and physical costs can be avoided through early care."

Several Kentucky health status indicators improved from 1983 to 1993 because of the WIC program. The number of children with anemia dropped from 28.2 percent to 17.1 percent, the number of underweight children decreased from 3.6 percent to 2.8 percent, and the number of low-birth weight babies fell from 11.4 percent to 8.8 percent, Miller said. National studies of the WIC program have shown that WIC significantly increased the head size of infants whose mothers received WIC foods during pregnancy. Head size normally reflects brain growth. In addition, pregnant women who participated in WIC had fewer premature births, and sought prenatal care early in pregnancy.

The program is open to all persons and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex or handicap.

To find out if you or your children are eligible for WIC, contact the Floyd County Health Department.

Board reverses earlier decision on girls basketball

After a petition, signed by 12 of the county's 15 elementary school principals, was addressed to then-school superintendent Dr. Steven Towler, the school board reversed an earlier decision to play the girls grade school basketball season while the grade school football program was in progress during September and October.

Petitioners said they felt the "concept to be inappropriate because of expenses; facility acquisition; extended personnel hours, etc."

The problem with the concept of continuing to play girls and boys schedules together is that the girls are short changed in playing a JV game. The format has been to play a boys JV game, a girls game, and a boys A team game.

Many of the younger girls who play grade school basketball sit on the bench most of the time. When they get to the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade level, they have either gotten disgusted and quit or have little or no experience playing basketball.

When confronted in high school, many of them just drop the sport because of the lack of instruction in the game.

Eventually, this will catch up with our high school programs. Many high school areas no longer have junior pro basketball, and that is

Pollio, Jones join EKU basketball staff

Eastern Kentucky University men's basketball coach Mike Calhoun has announced that Marty Pollio and Byron Jones will serve the coming season as EKU's two full-time assistant basketball coaches.

Pollio, who will be beginning his third season at Eastern this year after serving 1993-94 as a graduate assistant and 1994-95 as part-time assistant basketball coach for the Colonels, and Jones, who played one season at Eastern, completed their masters degrees this summer to meet the required teaching load that accompanies the coaching position.

Pollio, a 1993 graduate of Indiana University, worked for coach Bobby Knight and the Indiana basketball program as a student manager from 1989-93. While associated with the IU basketball team, the Hoosiers advanced to three Sweet Sixteens, two final eights and made one Final Four appearance.

becoming evident with each season of girls high school basketball.

Playing a separate schedule from the boys would mean the girls could play a JV game and give those who see little (or no) playing time a chance to develop their skills under game conditions.

I realize the principals who signed the petition want to be home as much as possible — that is understandable. But when three games, and at times four games, are played the hour is late when the kids get home. Therefore, the principals are there long hours anyway, so why not just break it up into two sessions? How about designating a responsible school official to help take in part of the games?

Other counties surrounding us play separate girls schedules. It allows high school coaches to take in most of the games and help coordinate the programs. But, we have to be different -- just like in everything else.

"I'm very satisfied with my decision to attend Pikeville," said Clark. "My mom is excited about me going there. It is close to home to where she can come and watch me play. She liked the coaching staff and the school."

Coach Baird said that Clark captured his attention even before she got into high school.

"I first noticed her when she was In the eighth grade and playing for Betsy Layne," he said. "Betsy Layne came up here when I was an assistant at Pikeville High School and beat us. So I kept my eye on her the last three seasons since I became associated with Pikeville College."

Coach Baird said that Clark was the kind of student that Pikeville College likes to recruit.

"I was very impressed with the way she handled herself," he said. "She's a team player and encourages her teammates. She is a very good student and those are the kind of people that we look for."

Baird said that with so many skilled pitchers returning, Clark will be used at the first base side.

"That's her natural position," he said. "She can play the outfield for us but, mostly, she will be at first base. She is still having to adjust to fast pitch and is making a good adjustment. She is going to be a tremendous asset to our team and see a lot of cause of the conflict it causes. Basketball Notes...

August is the last month to apply for rotenone treatment for farm ponds. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) will supply rotenone to land owners at cost, but applications must be received by the September 1 deadline.

Rotenone and other inert ingredients compose a biodegradable chemical specifically used for eliminating undesirable fish populations.

The best time to use the chemical is during the first week in September. However, rotenone can be used the week before or the week following.

If you are having trouble with overpopulation of a certain fish species or just want to restart your farm pond from scratch, rotenone could be the answer. Remember, the objective for using rotenone is to completely kill all the fish in the pond. For questions or consultation, call (502) 564-3596 for the name and phone number of the fishery biologist in your area.

Majority Floor Leader of the Ken- and 1990. tucky House of Representatives Gregory Stumbo is supporting legislation proposed for the 1996 General Assembly that allows Kentuckians to carry concealed weapons.

"It is an issue of great popularity in Floyd County," Stumbo said. "I am a long time advocate of personnel protection and this is certainly a time in which self preservation is important to the average citizen."

Crime is at an all time high in the United States and citizens have a right to a feeling of security until this surge of violence can be contained, Stumbo pointed out.

Only Kentucky residents living in the Commonwealth longer than six months can qualify for a license. Other eligibility requirements include accountability of the applicants present mental condition, not being a convicted felon nor a fugitive from justice or dishonorably discharged from the armed services.

The proposal stipulates that all individuals seeking a license to carry a concealed weapon must successfully complete a firearm safety course. Those safety courses can be offered by law enforcement officers, through the Nation Rifle Association or other governmentally approved hunter safety courses. "This is an important aspect of the plan," Stumbo said. "It adds a great deal of credibility and personal safety to the entire concept." The bill does, however, prohibit a permit holder from carrying the weapon into sensitive areas such as schools, courtrooms, police stations and General Assembly meetings.

The National Rifle Association According to the bill, those who has also embraced the concept of the wish to carry a concealed weapon legislation. Stumbo said, "It is indeed must secure a license that can be a bill to meet the needs of the nineties."

Kentuckians alerted about mosquito outbreak in Illinois

The outbreak of a mosquito-borne disease in a neighboring state, has prompted a public health alert.

The Floyd County Health Department was recently notified by the state that 11 people in Illinois have been diagnosed with St. Louis Encephalitis, a mosquito-borne disease.

The Floyd County Health Department Director Carol Holbrook said although there have not been any cases reported in Kentucky, Kentuckians need to take precautions.

Precautions that are helpful for personal protection are eliminating mosquito breeding grounds, limiting outdoor activities from dusk to dawn, using insect repellents and maintaining window screens.

Mosquito breeding grounds include standing water in puddles, drainage ditches, bird feeders, old tires, and trash.

Public meeting to hear comments, questions on the state's tax system

The Kentucky Commission on Tax Policy has scheduled public meetings to hear comments and questions from Kentucky citizens about the commission's review of the state's tax system.

One of the meetings will be

Contributed by the Salyersville Independent

Federal funding has been approved that will allow the city of Salyersville to finalize plans to upgrade its sewer system.

Rural Development The Administration's Rural Utilities Service, a branch of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has awarded the city a grant of $525,000 combined with an approved RDA loan of $550,000 that will go toward funding the estimated $1.6 million project.

The RDA grant and loan was announced by U.S. Representative Harold "Hal" Rogers.

The balance of the funding will be in the form of a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) grant assistance in the sum of $569,185. In its July 23 meeting, the Salyersville City Council approved a customer increase of 20 percent on monthly sewer bills, but will not effect customer's water bills. Sewer bills are based on the amount of water used each month by the customer. The increase will go toward paying off the RDA loan over a 30year period.

Around the Region

The sewer system renovation project is targeted toward modernizing and expanding the city's wastewater (sewage) treatment plant and rehabilitating portions of its collection system to eliminate inflow and infiltration.

According to a copy of a grant application submitted for the CDBG grant assistance by the Big Sandy Area Development District, who has been contracted by the Salyersville City Council to administer the project, the local wastewater treatment system has experienced steadily increasing problems in the past few vears.

Because inflow and infiltration problems cause the plant to routinely operate over capacity, and because mechanical inefficiencies and excess flow have caused violations of Kentucky Pollutant Discharge Elimination Systems (KPDES), the city remains under an agreed order and tap/line extension ban, causing further economic hardship on the town.

A number of unserved residences and several commercial establishments reportedly are unable to hook onto the system until upgrade is complete.

The renovation project will make it possible to provide for future capacity at the treatment plant. It proposes to increase the treatment capacity at the plant's influent lift station; retro-fix exiting clarification to increase capacity to 300,000 gallons per day (six times the current capacity); add a new parallel activated sludge process to further increase capacity by 150,000 gallons per day, and rehabilitate 7,710 linear feet of collection lines and a river crossing.

The Salyersville wastewater (sewage) treatment plant, located near the foot of Ivy Point Hill on West Maple Street, was built in the early sixties with an original capacity of 20,000 gallons per day. In 1977, the city completed a 201 facilities plan which called for construction of an additional capacity. In 1986, under the direction of Mayes, Sudderth & Etheridge Engineers, Salyersville completed a $1.1 million project to expand the plant's capacity by 50,000 gallons per day.

The current project does not include extending a collection line to the May Industrial Park, near the Mouth of Elk Creek.

Construction bids on the project are tentatively scheduled to be advertised in about five months, according to Brenda Powers, Big Sandy Area Development District staff member, who is serving as project representative for the ADD.

Nesbitt Engineers of Lexington are serving as project engineers.

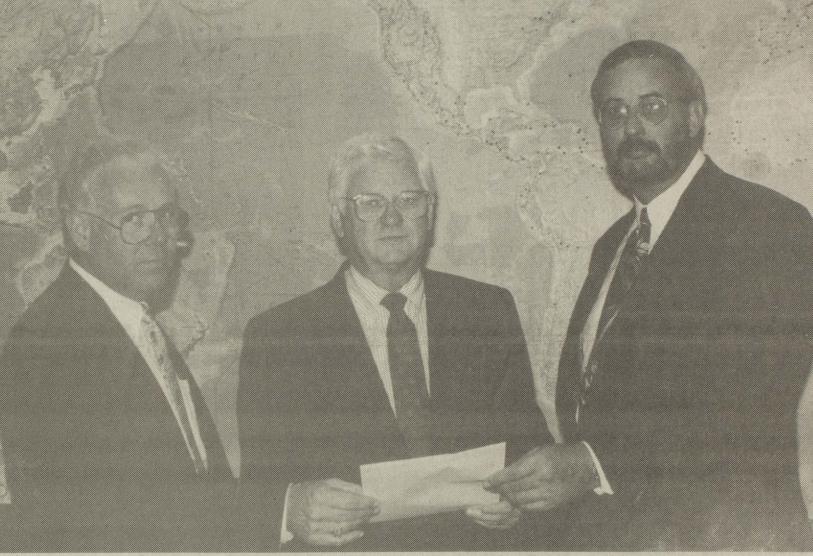

Morganto prosecute in Nelson murder

by Tony Fyffe Paintsville Herald editor

Attorney General Chris Gorman has appointed two of his assistants to prosecute the Martin County man accused of killing East Point resident Jeff Nelson.

Assistant Attorney General Luke Morgan will serve as lead prosecutor in the case against Tim Maynard of Pigeon Roost, Commonwealth's Attorney Anna Deskins Melvin said Tuesday.

Special prosecutors were appointed because Melvin withdrew from the case, citing her friendship with Nelson's parents, Fred and Pam Nelson of East Point. Morgan is also handling another high-profile case in Eastern Kentucky: the sexual abuse trial of former Lawrence County Clerk Gallie Isaac Sr. Morgan could not be reached Tuesday to comment on whether he will seek a capital-murder indictment against Maynard. He was reportedly meeting Tuesday with state police to discuss the case. The Martin County Grand Jury is scheduled to hear the case next Wednesday. The panel will release its report next Friday. Nelson, 21, was fatally stabbed on the early morning of June 29. His body was found July 8 near a strip mine in Martin County. Maynard, 26, was seen leaving a Prestonsburg nightclub with Nelson on June 28. He was arrested July 15 and remains lodged in the Boyd County Detention Center in lieu of an $800,000 cash bond.

Paintsville Lake leaders meet with Rogers

U.S. Representative Harold "Hal" Rogers (center) met with Dan McKenzie and Wickliff Moore recently in his Capitol Hill office. McKenzie and Moore are President and Vice-President of the Paintsville Lake Historical Association. Groundbreaking rescheduled for new Weather Forecast Office in Jackson

The National Weather Service has re-scheduled the formal groundbreaking ceremony for the new Jackson Weather Forecast Office (WFO) to 3 p.m. Friday, September 1. Originally scheduled for August 18, the ceremony marks the beginning of construction of the new WFO serving Southern and Eastern Kentucky, located at 1329 Airport Road.

Kentucky 5th District Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers, NWS Di-rector Dr. Elbert W. "Joe" Friday Jr., and local dignitaries will deliver remarks prior to the groundbreaking.

"Representative Hal Rogers has been instrumental in ensuring that Jackson receives a weather forecast office and I look forward to attending the groundbreaking event with him," Friday said.

"I am very pleased that this more sensitive and powerful radar will finally have a home in our region," Rogers said.

With the terrain of southern and eastern Kentucky, it is vital that we get the best coverage possible in Jackson, protecting our families from disastrous weather and flash flooding."

Congressman Rogers and Dr. Friday will be joined by local dignitaries. Marvin Maddox, the Weather Service's state manager for Kentucky, will serve as the master of ceremonies for the event.

The Weather Service will construct a 2,900-square-foot addition to the existing office on Airport Road at Julian Carroll Airport. An 80-foot radar tower topped by a 38-foot radome will be located approximately one-quarter mile east of the office.

MSUCorps to share funding

Morehead State University's MSUCorps is one of nine programs in the state to share $2.5 million in federal funding under the national service initiative, AmeriCorps.

Governor Brereton C. Jones visited the MSU campus last week to announce the 1995-96 funding of $427,800 for the University's program which will enable MSUCorps to serve additional Eastern Kentucky counties.

Noting that Kentucky's Ameri-Corps programs had received $2.5 million this year in comparison to the 1994-95 figure of $1.4 million, Jones said that this was a result of the state's successful efforts over the past year. In accepting the grant on the University's behalf, MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin said that the AmeriCorps and MSUCorps programs exemplify the ideals of people helping people.

At its inception last year, MSU's uled for completion in June 1996. Marshall said Weather Service staffers plan to occupy the addition in July 1996.

The Weather Service modernization program is based on new technology and knowledge in the sciences of meteorology and hydrology program, one of six in the state, received a $239,177 grant from the Corporation for National Service through Kentucky's Community Service Commission.

MSUCorps, launched in fall 1994 as a three-year effort, is designed to improve the level of educational success by high risk school children through a comprehensive program of tutoring, mentoring and other services to those students and their families

This year, the University's program will serve 13 counties, rather than eight as in last year, working through 30 Family Resource and Youth Services Centers in those counties

New service counties include Boyd, Elliott, Fleming, Johnson, Lawrence and Morgan, while efforts continue in Bath, Carter, Lewis, Magoffin, Menifee, Montgomery and Rowan.

Revitalization plan for Pike

The Pikeville Main Street Program announced recently its plans for the production of a "Revitalization Plan" for Downtown Pikeville.

This plan will include streetscape improvements, facade improvements, lighting, utilities, parking, etc.

The goal will be to restore the older Downtown to its original grandeur while making the new blend in perfect harmony.

Main Street Executive Director Paula Thompson stated that "the unique part of this plan will be that it is our plan.

"It will be developed from input given directly to consultants by members of our community during a host of town meetings and public hearings."

Pikeville's very own Summit Engineering has been chosen to produce the plan.

Pikeville Main Street will be working closely with Jack Sykes and Chris Chrismas gathering information and > channeling it into a workable plan. The first public meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, September 12. There will be two sessions that day, the first at noon at Pikeville City Hall and the second at 7 p.m. at the Pike County courthouse in the fiscal court room. Everyone is invited and en> couraged to attend. Thompson emphasized the importance of a well planned and executed downtown revitalization plan because "downtowns provide a significant amount of jobs and income for the local trade area residents, provide tax revenues that support local government services received by other parts of the community, and act as the focal point for the many aspects of life in the entire community."

Maysville woman killed in accident in Paintsville

Wanda Sadler Meyers, 56, of Maysville, died in a traffic accident at Paintsville in Johnson County last Friday night.

Meyers was a passenger in a 1990 Ford Tempo driven by Lillian Parker when the accident occurred around 9:40 p.m. Parker, who was traveling north, attempted to turn left on KY 201, when she lost control of the vehicle.

The car left the road, traveled through a yard, and came back across the highway, striking the hillside, according to Kentucky state Police reports.

Meyers was transported to Paul B. Hall Medical Center where she was pronounced dead by Johnson County Coroner J.R. Frisby.

The accident is being investigated by Trooper Billy Meade.

No alcohol was involved in the incident and state police offers could not determine if Meyers had used a seat belt.

City soapers come clean with cop

Two teen-agers were cited last weekend with soaping a city water fountain, police said.

Melissa Cavins, 18, of Auxier, and a 17-year-old Paintsville juvenile were charged with criminal mischief by city officer Bill Conley

According to the complaint, the juvenile was driving a vehicle on Broadway Avenue at 1:35 a.m. last Saturday. She stopped in the middle of the road and Cavins got out and threw liquid soap in the city fountain.

After being stopped by Conley, both teens said they would pay for damages to the fountain, the officer said.

The women are scheduled to appear in district court September 11, records show. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

Taylor charged with assault

William L. Taylor, 34, of Swamp Branch, was arrested July 29 for second-degree assault for allegedly beating up another man, court records show.

According to the complaint, on July 24 Taylor beat Cubbie Hannah of Swamp Branch, a neighbor, and caused serious physical injury. Hannah required emergency hospital treatment and an overnight stay, the complaint charged. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

Tammy Oney was charged with second degree forgery and first degree complicity for having "helped, assisted, conspired with, or made no effort to stop Sammie Oney when she committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking."

John Kolanz and R. Berl McCoy, Lexington attorneys, are representing Sammie Jo Oney and Tammy Oney respectively. Attorney Dan Rowland of the Commonwealth Attorney's Office in Floyd County is in charge of prosecuting the case. A pretrial date for the Oney case has been set for August 31. Officers also reported recovering a Polaris 4-wheel all-terrain vehicle on the property of the Shepherds, that reportedly had been stolen in Montgomery County.

The man and woman were lodged in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Paintsville until Monday, August 14. They reportedly were freed on bond following an arraignment, but the amount of their bonds could not be learned by press time.

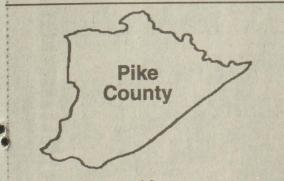

It is expected that they will be bound over to the Magoffin County grand jury. (Information provided by the Salyersville Independent)

Ratliff gets 10-year sentence

A jury has recommended a 10-year sentence for a Shelbiana man charged with assault and possession of marijuana following a traffic accident last August.

Clifford D. Ratiff, 40, was found guilty of seconddegree assault, a Class C felony, punishable by five to 10 years in prison. He was also found guilty on lesser charges of fourth-degree assault and wanton endangerment.

The three-car accident on U.S. 119 at Buckleys Creek seriously injured one person and left four others with minor injuries. In a Kentucky State Police arrest report, Ratliff claimed he "kept falling asleep," and "was on prescription drugs prescribed by a doctor."

Police reports also noted that marijuana and prescription drugs were found inside Ratliff's vehicle.

Lab reports showed the presence of marijuana in urine samples and various amounts of at least four different drugs in blood samples, according to Commonwealth's Attorney Ron Burchett, prosecutor in the case.

Ratliff will be formally sentenced within the next six weeks and will be required to serve at least two years of the 10-year sentence before he is eligible for parole. (Information provided by the Appalachian News-Express)

October 2. They were scheduled to stand trial in U.S. District Court in Pikeville on August 7.

The seven were indicted in October of 1994 in a case in which a Magoffin County Circuit Court awarded Pike County resident Mark Bartley $3.8 million from a 1988 auto accident. The award eventually was reduced to $1.2 million in a settlement. Following the indictments, Magoffin County Circuit Judge Robert Morgan reversed the decision on the award and ordered the plaintiffs to return the money they had collected. There is no record that the money has been reimbursed.

Charged in the alleged jury-rigging scheme are Magoffin Circuit Clerk Roger Gullett, former Magoffin County Jailer Colin Ray Jackson, jury members Debra Helton and Homer "Bill" Dodd May, along with Pike Countians Donald Epling, a witness in the trial, Mark D. Bartley, the lawsuit's plaintiff, and his father Eppie Bartley.

Two other Magoffin County residents charged in the alleged scheme, former Sheriff Thomas R. "Skip" Salyer, and Bobby Earl Arnett, a jury member, pleaded guilty to conspiracy in February. They are awaiting sentencing by Federal Judge Joseph Hood. (Information provided by the Salyersville Independent) reinstated, lashed out at the prosecutor involved in her case claiming he acted in an "illegal and outrageous" manner.

Dr. Diane E. Shafer, of Williamson, West Virginia, said the only reason she was practicing medicine today was because the wheels of the judicial system finally turned in the direction of the truth.

Shafer's license was revoked in 1994, after she was convicted of bribing a public servant. That conviction was reversed by the Kentucky Court of Appeals because Shafer claims prosecutor Wes Faulkner had a personal vendetta against her and acted in an illegal manner.

Shafer said Faulkner illegally withheld a Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure settlement from the court and also placed a witness on the stand against her, knowing the witness was mentally incompetent.

Shafer, who already has a medical practice in Williamson, West Virginia, said her patients have returned by the hundreds since her reinstatement. (Information provided by the Appalachian News-Express)

Accident victim identified

The body of a man involved in an August 3 traffic accident has been identified as that of Randy Joe Coleman, 25, of Phelps.

Coleman was traveling north on Ky. 1490 when the accident occurred and apparently crossed the center line into the southbound lane.

According to a press release from the Kentucky State Police, Coleman's vehicle struck a semi-tractor trailer head on. Both vehicles became engulfed in flames.

Coleman was pronounced dead at the scene by Pike County Coroner Charles Morris. The driver of the tractor trailer, William Mullins, was treated and released at Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

The accident is still under investigation by troopers Tim Dials and Willie Herald. (Information provided by the Appalachian News-Express) Medicare/Social Security Investments Organization

How to join the co-op

Persons interested in the co-op can place a trial order without joining. If a person wishes to join after receiving his/her first order, he pays a non-refundable $10 membership fee. In addition, a $3 surcharge is added to the first ten orders. This amount will be refunded if a person should ever withdraw his membership.

Ordering meetings are on either the third or fourth Tuesday of each month at Pikeville College in Room 307 of the Armington Science building and at the Paintsville library in Johnson County. Floyd County co-op members call in their orders to Alex Nichols at Pikeville College.

For more information about the co-op, call Norma Davis at 874-2873 or Debbie Bailey at 587-2443. In Pike County, call Mary Lou White at 433-1760; Johnson County, call Barry Adkins at 789-6008.

over. They unload the truck and organize the food on tables in the fellowship hall and then they collect their individual orders.

The truck belongs to the Federation of Ohio River Cooperatives (FORC), a natural foods wholesaler, that offers food buying clubs the opportunity to purchase high quality foods, vitamins, health care and household products at reduced costs. FORC, like other co-op food warehouses, minimizes fancy packaging which reduces costs. The warehouse also offers fresh produce. And the fact that local co-op members pool their orders and do their own paperwork-ordering, biling, collecting payments and keeping recordsalso cuts down the cost.

"It's a cooperative thing," said member Barry Adkins of Paintsville. "People have to donate time.

The co-op works like this: Every four weeks a brief meeting is held at which members place their orders selected from a catalog provided monthly by FORC. If a member cannot attend the meeting, his order can be called in to the coordinator.

Two weeks later the truck arrives at the church and the orders are picked up. Members get discounts based on their participation in ordering meetings and pick-ups. Since every member is a part owner in the co-op, the more work a member does, the more money he saves.

The Good Day Food Club, which is one of 4,000 non-profit co-ops in the United States, has members from Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Pike counties and has been in existence for about twenty years.

Magoffin countian Diane Yoder, who is treasurer, said she is in the co-op because "it means getting wholesale food that is healthy for you, and a lot of it is organic."

Julie Kerber and her husband live in Johnson County and have two young children. "I feel we eat healthier," she said about her family. "We are more aware of what we put into our bodies. The biggest advantage of the co-op is that we are getting food we can't get locally, such as brown rice, and tofu. You can order nuts, fruits, and candies that are carob, and whole wheat cereals and stuff. It's also a way to meet people with the same interests and to get to know folks."

Co-op member Norma Davis, of Banner, said that the co-op "is like having a health food store at your fingertips. We can get fresh organic produce such as carrots and potatoes. And you can get organic juices, and baby food. Heart patients can get low-cholesterol, no-fat veggie burgers, no-fat hot dogs and soy cheeses that are really good. It's got a lot of lowsodium and no sodium products, too. It is absolutely wonderful food." Yoder said that the co-opis open to everyone and welcomes new members. "The more members you have, the cheaper you can get your food," she said.

News of the Weird by Chuck Shepherd

Russell Herman died of cancer at the V.A. hospital in Marion, Ill., in August 1994 and left a will bequeathing "trillions" of dollars to various institutions and people who are now demanding to be paid. Herman believed that he was a "deep cover" CIA agent involved in drug smuggling and that his estate was therefore due trillions of dollars in government compensation, and his wife and other claimants and potential claimants (many of them right-wing and militia types) have filed papers in Gallatin County, Ill., where the will was processed, charging a government coverup. Among the beneficiary causes are a municipal rehabilitation in Cave-in-Rock, Ill. ($2.4 billion), and the fight for "states' rights" ($189 trillion). Also, Mrs. Herman has an 1875 Peruvian gold certificate that she says would be worth trillions if only the government would let her cash it in.

CULTURAL DIVERSITY

-- The Washington Post reported in May that a religious campaign on women's wigs is being waged in Jerusalem, with "ultra-Orthodox" Jews declaring that the wig is an insufficient covering for the head of a married woman and that a woman wearing a wig is "preparing herself for hell," in the words of one public slogan. Another wall message announces, "When the Messiah comes, the first thing he will do is eliminate the wig."

-- A Tokyo fabrics worker, Keiko Yoshida, 32, announced in April that she had invented women's underwear that will automatically shred itself in extremely hot water. She believes it will be a big seller because the government recently required garbage to be packaged in transparent bags, making traditionally modest Japanese women wary of actually throwing out their old underwear

-- According to a New York Times report, one of the hottest selling Christmas gifts last season in Japan was a child's version of the electronic organizer -- because it contained not only calendars and phone directories, as the adult models contain, but also a "virtual pet" computer program so that Japanese kids can "play with" dogs and cats in the many apartment buildings that ban pets.

-- Wild Blue, an indoor beach park in Yokohama, Japan, reviewed by the Baltimore Sun in a June story, is host on a typical weekend day to 4,000 people who pay about $46 to get in, plus steep rental prices for beach chairs and bodyboards. Among the "perfect" features: 90-degree "weather," 86-degree artificial waves, 86-degree artificial sand on a rubberized floor, and time-controlled sunlight to simulate peak tanning as well as sunsets. Said visitor Akihito Nakayama, "It's artificial. That's why we like it."

-- The visitors' policy at Providence St. Vincent hospital in Portland, Ore., is similar to many: no more than two at a time in a patient's room, two waiting outside, four waiting in the lobby. In March, the hospital ejected 60 Gypsies who had come to help heal a 55-year-old woman. Her nephew said he thought the Gypsies were exercising restraint by not bringing along all 200 family members.

-- In March, Pakistani stock brokers led 10 goats through the Karachi Stock Exchange out to the parking lot, where they were slaughtered in a sacrifice intended to end the recent slide of the exchange. At the next morning's opening, the exchange's index continued to fall-12.57 points to a 16-month low of 1,683.

JUST CAN'T STOP MYSELF

-- Jerome Sly, 51, was arrested in Findlay, Ohio, in April and charged with stalking a woman he had met only once, in 1964. He had recently sent her roses and a stack of letters he had written after tracking her down from an obituary of her mother. Though he had not seen her for 31 years, he had certainly been thinking about her: In Sly's house, police found 62 gifts for her (Christmas, birthday each year), champagne and toasting glasses and a pair of wedding rings.

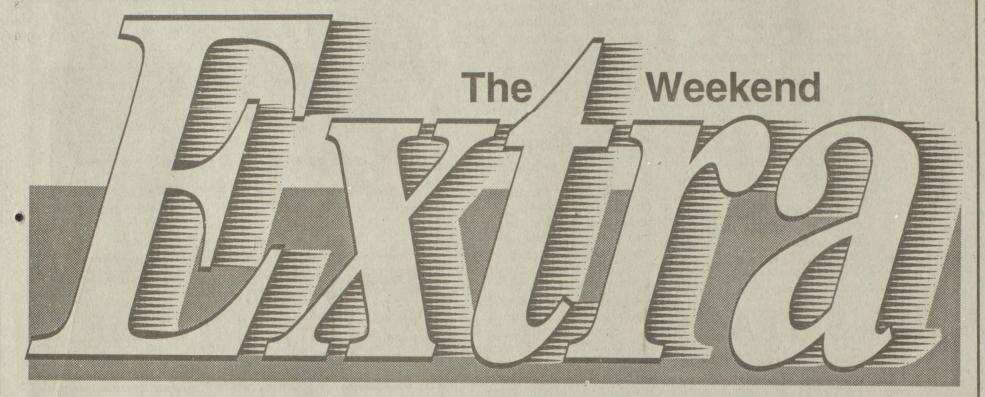

-Eric P. Wilson, 40, was convicted of burglarizing a home in Roanoke, Va., in March. He was done in by his obsession with shining his shoes, which he does several times a day with the polish and personalized cloth he carries with him. Wilson had paused during the burglary to polish his shoes and accidentally left the rag and fingerprinted can of polish behind.

-- In August in Leonia, N.J., Kevin Simpkin, 27, was arrested and charged with stealing a Snapple beverage delivery truck while dressed in a Snapple driver's uniform and Snapple T-shirt. He had recently been fired from his job at a Snapple office because he was allegedly stealing the merchandise. After interviewing him, police Lt. Arthur Greiner said that Simpkin "just has an uncontrollable appetite for Snapple beverages."

MISCELLANEOUS ELOQUENCE

According to the New Orleans Times-Picayune's June roundup of wisdom from the just-completed session of the Louisiana legislature, Rep. John Travis of Jackson, La., said (when opposing an apparently popular measure): "I can't believe that we are going to let a majority of the people decide what's best for this state.'

My OLD KENTUCKY HOME

My husband, granddaughter and I spent a pleasant weekend with friends in Bardstown, site of the original "Old Kentucky Home" made famous by Stephen Foster.

It wasn't my friend's intention to move her family from the hustle and bustle of New Jersey specifically to this historic area; although, the idea of rearing her children on a Kentucky farm in the heart of the Bluegrass was always a dream she had envisioned since early childhood. When the opportunity presented itself, Joni jumped on it like a wild bronco.

If one met Joni Edwards-Partington, one would not mistake her for a home-grown, backto-nature, country type of girl. The only thing that would throw you about her being model material is her pregnant condition. A New York Fifth Avenue wholesale garment industry executive, Joni wears contemporary selections that reek of New York, London and Paris. Everything about Joni is up-to-date chic from her short cropped stylish hairdo to the tip of her pedicured toes.

Now that I have clearly established how little Joni and I have in common, I will tell you that her home is located 10 miles from where Stephen Foster wrote some of his most memorable songs, particularly our nationally known state song, "My Old Kentucky Home." She lives with her gracious husband, Harry, along with their two children, Jessica and Becca, a mule named Jack, four goats (one of which is named Pixie), two cats and four dogs. They reside in rustic splendor in a contemporary, three-story, wooden home with surrounding windows on 48 acres of undeveloped farm land, (I am told that five horses can qualify them for farm status.) This is a glaring difference from their former residence near beautiful downtown Patterson, New Jersey, located across the river from the Big Apple. I told Joni that I found this ironic because now her family lives only 3 1/2 hours from Apple Day. I don't think she got the connection.

We arrived on Saturday only 12 hours after the untimely and gruesome demise of a pregnant goat. It seems as though Wendy, the coon dog, chose not to ignore a butting by the stubborn critter and made short work of her, along with the assistance of the other three dogs. Joni was still upset by the incident and exacted revenge by ignoring the canine creatures and discussing ways in which she could dispose of the main culprit without doing it herself.

Within hours of our arrival, Jessica, the eightyear-old, took my granddaughter, Malorie, and myself on a guided tour of the "Secret Place." The "Secret Place" was similar to places I used to go to with my grandfather and cousin when I was small. It was a creek bed, lined with moss covered rocks filled with crevices where children could climb and play for hours. There was also wild mushrooms covering the creek bank and grapevines that hung ominously from the trees, casting shadows on the shallow stream bed. The aroma of honeysuckle penetrated the air as we trekked down the creek bed, and even in the 90 degree heat, the water flowing slowly through the low creek bed made the "Secret Place," the coolest place on Earth to us fearless travelers.

Alison Krauss has been called the Grand Ole Opry's songbird. At 23, she is the Opry's youngest member.

With an intoxicatingly sweet voice as pure as mountain air and as sublime as the texture of a rose petal, she sings with a clean acoustic sound that feels both nostalgic and innovative. Her publicity sheets say she is blessed with more natural talent — she sings like an angel and saws a devilish fiddle — than Nashville typically knows how to handle.

People magazine credits Krauss and her band, Union Station, with ushering Bluegrass into the '90s. Although, Krauss often sings remakes of other people's music, including the Beatles' "I Will," and Keith Whitley's "When You Say Nothing At All," her versions are so arrestingly good they almost make you forget the tunes' origins.

The young performer was nominated for three Grammy Awards this year, including one for her rendition of the gospel song "I Know Who Holds Tomorrow." Her five albums have sold more than 500,000 copies.

Although her parents say Krauss was an indifferent violin student, she won fiddling contests before she was a teen. Krauss has also been performing with a band since the age of 12. John Pennell, guitar player and song writer, and two of his musician buddies decided to start a bluegrass band about 11 years ago. When the musicians heard about an 11-yearold who could play a torrid fiddle, they arranged an audition for her. Her fiddling "blew them away" on the first song, People magazine reported in its 1994 fall collector's edition. The group became the Silver Rail and began performing in clubs.

Pennell was a Ph.D. candidate in music competition and Krauss credits him with changing her focus on Bluegrass. She recorded 14 of Pennell's songs.

Last year, Krauss and her Union Station band toured with country superstar Garth Brooks. This year, Krauss is fast becoming a superstar herself. She is one of three headline performers for the Autumn Jam III concert to be held in Pikeville on September 23.

• Tickets are available at all TicketMaster centers or by calling 1-800-680-5928.

Alison Krauss will appear in concert during Autumn Jam III at the Bob Amos Park in Pikeville. The concert is sponsored by Happy Mart, Pepsi and Ashland Branded Gasoline. Proceeds will be divided among Pikeville Methodist Hospital's Cancer Care Center, Pikeville College and the Pikeville City Park Revitalization Fund.

Critic's Corner by Michael Greene

An Awfully Big Adventure

This is Hugh (caught with his pants down) Grant's latest flick, in a veritable flurry of same since his brilliant "Four Weddings and a Funeral" launched him into America's consciousness.

The movie centers around a young Liverpudlian (you know, someone from Liverpool, England) working-class girl, Stella Bradshaw (Georgina Cates). Bored with the dreariness of post-war England, she yearns for the exciting life on the stage. Toward that end, she moves heaven and earth in order to garner the job of apprentice at a Liverpool Playhouse. The director, Meredith Potter, (Grant) is known well enough, but the consensus apparently is, he's not good enough for London and is destined to die in the 'boonies, as it were. The company he directs is full of losers and dreamers and third-rate actors.

Star-struck Stella falls madly in love with Meredith. Alas and alack, as fate would have it, the stalwart director doesn't like girls. He does, though, like boys (surprise, surprise when it comes to the theater!).

Leading man P.L. O'Hara (Alan Rickman) comes back to the group after years of banishment due to some scandalous goings-on to portray Captain Hook in the company's Christmastime offering. He spots Stella and a great lust is born. Once he decides to seduce her, the poor girl is a goner.

There are a lot of twists and turns here as Stella comes of age, as they say, and many of them are almost macabre. The film is rather bleak in outlook and sardonic, for my taste. Yet, it's still a very welldone work, despite its pessimistic tone.

Grant is brilliant as ever and Cates is, for lack of a better word, interesting. Her career should shape up nicely if she can stop running through her scenes like a freight train.

All in all? I'd say the flick deserves 2 1/2 stars. I wouldn't exactly rush to see it if I were you, but somewhere along the line, I'd like to be able to say that I did, indeed, view it.

HOME TIPS

GOOD AND QUICK-I have a simple way to make gravy. Use a small wide-mouth glass jar with a lid and put flour or cornstarch in it. Run tap water until very hot, add it to the flour, immediately cover with the lid and shake vigorously until the flour is dissolved; add slowly to the simmering drippings. Season to taste.

I can't remember where I first heard this, but most likely it was from the great ranch wives from the sand hill country in northwestern Nebraska. Janie R., Baltimore, Md.

EATYOUR VEGGIES-Here's a tip that saves time and money. In the summer when vegetables are plentiful and cheaper at the stores, I get a few bunches of celery, onions and several green peppers. I wash them, cut them into pieces and put them in a large bowl. Then I get out my food processor (or blender), grind them up, mix well and put the mixture in small plastic bags and put the small bags in a large freezer bag.

Whenever I am making meatloaf, sloppy Joes, vegetable soup, spaghetti sauce or meatballs, I just reach in the freezer bag and take out one or two bags, microwave and it's ready in seconds for the recipe.

It sure saves a lot of extra work and time. You can even add fresh parsley and garlic when making this

Tony comforted her, but still stuck to his diabolical plan. Marlena was troubled by Sami's timing in breaking up Carrie's wedding and reached out to an unlikely ally. While Austin wondered how he could have slept with Sami, Sami warned Lucas to get rid of Lynn as a threat to their plans. Jack went to Aremid to find evidence to expose Peter. Alex found a powder box in Ava's drawer, similar to the one that was involved in Stacey's death. Another Corinthian was killed. Wait To See: Confusing clues create a disturbing twist in the investigation

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Luna told Dylan and Andy of her premonitions involving Dylan and Luis. Carlotta tried to persuade Cristian not to avenge Eddie's attack. Kelly praised Joey on how well he handled Niki. Meanwhile, Clint was concerned about not being able to help Viki. Dylan was lured to the community center. Luna followed with Dylan's crystal. A shocked Antonio saw Luis shoot Luna. He then shot and killed Luis. Alex warned Nora she had better support her campaign. Wait To See: Luna's fight for her life causes Max to undergo a major change.

YOUNG AND THE REST-LESS: The shelter's counsellor was unable to get through to a crying, disheveled Amy. Ryan reassured an unhappy Victoria with a comforting hug. Meanwhile, Nina returned and was startled to hear Victoria's voice answering Ryan's phone. Nick blew up at Nikki when she asked him if Sharon were involved in Matt's shooting, and ordered the jail guard to throw his mother out. Hope continued to feel left out of Victor's family and told him she was returning to the farm with their baby. Jack tried to get Dr. Tamita to tell him what kind of medication he prescribed for Luan. John offered Mamie financial support, but she told Olivia she wanted his love, not his money. Phyllis saw the flowers in Chris' office, and pocketed Paul's card asking her to come to Hawaii with him. Wait To See: Phyllis must act against another perceived threat to her marriage.

Amid this idyllic setting was deafening silence. Nothing from the outside world violated the peace of their much-sought-after haven. And though there were telephones, they never rang. It was eerie. Jimmie kept expecting me to go into withdrawal. For 24 uninterrupted hours, we did not have contact with the outside world. My sister, Amanda, and her husband, Willy, were also guests, so I had not severed all my connections with the outside world. We also drove into Bardstown for soft drinks at the Wal-Mart so I knew I had not crossed over into the Twilight Zone.

Sunday afternoon when we left, they were washing dogs, feeding goats and harvesting undusted tomatoes from the garden. They waved to us and as we rounded the curve that passed by the garden; we noticed that the scarecrow was wearing a fashion design by Brooks Brothers. Joni's going to make a country girl after all.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The week brings new insights about a financial concern. However, work interests are very favorable now, so take advantage and accomplish all you can. Something at home could upset you this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll have more time to spend with children or a romantic interest this week. Happy social developments come about later in the week but you must be careful not to overdo. You need your rest. This weekend, pay attention to rules of traffic.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A humanitarian interest could take up more of your time now than you can spare, but it's important to you. Others will react with understanding and could even pitch in to help. Be tactful with superiors.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You find your popularity is on the upswing now. In your quest to find something different this week regarding entertainment, you could do something risky. Keep your feet on the ground. This weekend, you're impatient with loved ones.

mixture. Ginny T., Henderson, Nev.

KEEP IT CLEAN—A good way to clean the vents on your hair dryer is to use the narrow attachment on the vacuum cleaner. Most people don't realize that cleaning those vents greatly prolongs the life of the appliance, thus saving money. Dottie W., Omaha, Neb.

PUMP IT UP—With everyone being environmentally aware now, I know we're all using pump hair spray instead of aerosol.

Instead of getting frustrated when the hair spray pump sticks, just remove the top pump part of the bottle and soak it in hot water. You'll be able to use it with ease. Hannah C., La Grange, Ky.

NEAL McCOY

BORN: Neal was born in Jacksonville, Texas in 1959 under the name of Hubert Neal McGauhey, Jr.

MARITAL STATUS: Neal is married to the charming and beautiful Melinda McCoy and they have two children named Miki and Christian

HOBBIES: Neal is very into horse racing and spending time with his family

THE EARLY DAYS: Neal was discovered while working in a mall after he finished high school when someone heard him singing as he was racking shoes. Not only did this help Neal's professional career, but also his personal life. Melinda, his wife, came into the store to buy shoes and that's how Neal met the Missus. The McCoys have been happily married for over 14 years.

MUST BUYS: The following LP's titled "No Doubt About It,' "Where Forever Begins," and "At This Moment," all from Atlantic Records.

You're involved now with certain home improvements that you had been putting off. Don't be too shy to ask for help from family members. Persistence leads to a career success. Watch arguments over money.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your communicative skills are tops now. You and a partner reach important agreements which bode well for the future. Utilize patience in the workplace with a cantankerous coworker. Social opportunity arises this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Chances to improve your income arise but you must be on the alert to spot them. It's also a wise idea to discern the good ideas from the zany, getrich-quick type. A new approach leads to career gains. This weekend finds you arguing with loved ones.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're more sure of yourself now on the job and proposals you make get good responses from higherups. A new start is on your agenda. Later, the accent's on teamwork. Personally, don't force an issue with a friend

A Kid In King Arthur's Court

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A major business development is in the works now and it has some positive effects for you and yours. Some have the urge to redecorate this week. Don't allow tensions among family members to escalate into an argument.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A new cultural interest has you fascinated. However, pay attention to tasks at hand so you don't fall behind in your work. A new adviser is about to enter your life. Enjoy socializing this weekend, but avoid a romantic spat.

AOUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You happily find you have a bit more money at your disposal now. However, don't go hog-wild and spend foolishly. Perhaps it's a good idea to look into how to make this money grow. The work week is very productive for you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Contracts signed now or agreements reached are favored. This enables you to lessen tension between you and a competitor. Distant matters prosper this week, but keep peace with family members.

by Bill Stephani arry threw a green ball of yarn at Jack. Then he threw a yellow one, then a red one. The balls of yarn were soft, and he knew they wouldn't hurt Jack. Even so, Jack shouted, "Now cut that out!"

Barry and Jack spotted shelves of colorful paper, bright markers and scissors. "This reminds me of Grandma Bonnie Bunny's house," said Jack. "She used to show me how to make aw kinds of things."

Jack took a marker and drew a picture of a clown on a piece of paper. He handed the paper and a pair of scissors to Barry. With a big toothy grin, Jack said, "Now cut that out!" So Barry did.

Jack showed Barry how to make things so they could look like special people. Barry became a pirate with a black patch over one eye, and Jack was a king with a paper crown. What a great time they were having!

Then Barry remembered it was Thanksgiving. He made an Indian headband with a feather in it for Jack, and Jack made a Pilgrim hat for Barry. They found candy bars and chips to feast on and pretended it was the very first Thanksgiving.

Barry put his hand on Jack's shoulder and said, "Thanks for the great hat."

"You're wewcome," said Jack. "Thanks for the headband."

They gave thanks for their wonderful new friendship. Somehow Barry and Jack knew they would be friends forever.
