Auxier school closure plan to be reviewed

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The closure of another small Floyd County school could be delayed if the district's local planning committee has a change of heart.

On the agenda for Saturday's meeting of the Floyd school board is a proposal to refer the Auxier school back to the LPC. The LPC has recommended that the school be closed.

At Monday's board meeting, board members voted to ask the LPC to Hearing is set on Medisin's request on testing variance

A public hearing is scheduled in March for comments concerning a permit for a medical waste incinerator in Floyd County.

Representatives from the Division of Waste Management will hold the hearing March 28 at 7 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College.

reconsider the decision to close Harold Elementary.

Students at Auxier and Harold elementaries posted some of the best state test scores in the district. As a result of those scores, the faculty at Auxier and Harold are eligible to receive monetary rewards from the Kentucky Department of Education. Two other schools in the county—Duff and Betsy Layne High School—are also eligible for rewards.

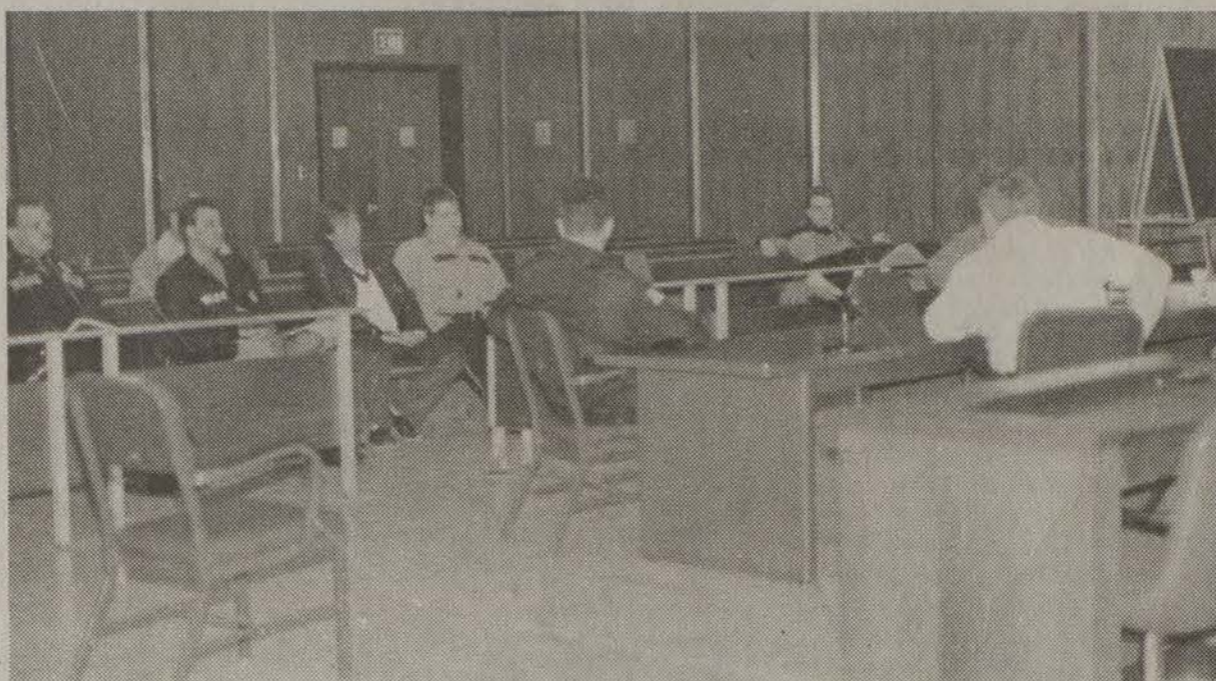

A large group of parents from Harold addressed the board Monday asking that their school remain open.

School officials planned to close the school at the end of the 1994-95 school year and send students to Betsy Layne Elementary. A 21-classroom addition to the Betsy Layne school is scheduled to be completed before the start of the next school year.

Auxier residents have lobbied the board in the past to keep the community school open. The group has made no public effort to fight the planned closure for the past several months.

Other issues on Saturday's agenda are budget revisions; staffing and funding allocations for schools; the Martin/Maytown and Prestonsburg High School renovation projects; a rental agreement for Prestonsburg Elementary; and property acquisition at Mud Creek.

The board will begin Saturday's session at 9 a.m. in the central office building in Prestonsburg.

Laying it all out

City, sheriff team up to cut costs of dispatching police

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

In an effort to cut expenses and to provide immediate access to a police information network, the Floyd County Sheriff's Department dispatchers are moving to Prestonsburg City Hall.

On Wednesday afternoon, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and Doug Wells, dispatching supervisor for Prestonsburg, met with city police officers from within the county to discuss the transition.

Wells and Thompson explained that the dispatching system would not change, except for the location of the evening services.

As a result of the move, sheriff's dispatchers will have immediate access to the statewide LINK, which is a law enforcement computer network from which officers can obtain various information. In the past, sheriff's dispatchers would have to call the city police department in order to obtain information needed by officers, such as car license plate registration and criminal background checks.

During the day, dispatching will still be provided by the office staff in the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Thompson also announced that each city for which his office provides dispatching service will be asked to contribute some funds to help defray costs.

The sheriff's department provides the service for the towns of Wayland, Wheelwright, Allen and Martin.

The monthly fee for the cities will be from $50 to $150, Thompson said. The city of Martin will be asked to contribute $150 per month because it has four full-time officers. The other cities will be asked to pay $50.

Allen police chief Virgil Conn volunteered that the city of Allen would be willing to pay $100 per month for the service.

"You're the only sheriff that has helped us with dispatching," Conn told Thompson.

Thompson said his office will con-

Committee recommends city employ a full-time attorney

The Prestonsburg administration/personnel committee met Thursday and recommended that the city hire a full-time attorney.

The recommendation came after figures for a full-time attorney were compared with the cost of a paralegal.

Mayor Jerry Fannin said the average annual cost of a part-time attorney for the last five years was $30,579.

If a paralegal was hired at $16,000 with benefits, the actual cost would be $21,000. In addition the city would still have a part-time attorney on retainer for $50 an hour or $1,200 per month.

In contrast, a full-time attorney could be hired at $36,000 a year. With benefits, the actual cost would be around $39,200 (retirement not included).

The recommendation, if approved by the full council at its next meeting, will put current city attorney Larry Brown out of a job. Brown has indicated that he would not accept a full-time position as city attorney.

"I've enjoyed representing the city for 11 years," Brown said.

Paul Burchett has apparently been recommended for the post.

Burchett was not available Thursday for comment.

Rain causes some flooding

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Steady rainfall in the county Wednesday and Thursday caused minor flooding near the Pike County line.

In the Johns Creek area of Floyd and Pike counties, some streams overflowed their banks and made roads impassable. Disaster and Emergency Services Director David Chaffin said Thursday afternoon.

Rain gauges were down Thursday at the DES office and Chaffin said he could not accurately report how much rain had fallen in the county.

If a front from Tennessee passed through the county Thursday evening, though, the additional precipitation could create more problems in Pike County, where flooding had already been reported, the DES director said. The front could miss the county, Chaffin added.

The Jackson Weather Station Thursday predicted cloudy skies—but no rain—for Friday.

Students teach teachers to teach during 4-H project

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Floyd County 4-H teens this week taught teachers to teach students how to teach other students.

The two-day training session for the teachers was part of Science Experiences and Resources for Informal Educational Settings (SERIES), sponsored by the Floyd County Extension Service and the Floyd County Board of Education.

Teachers received hands-on experience to incorporate into Floyd County classrooms. Some of the activities included learning how to do chemical experiments by using household chemicals; incorporating the study of entomology (insects) into the classroom; and discovering how plants and animals are dependent on each other.

In one demonstration, teachers formed a circle. Each educator displayed a name tag representing either an animal, a plant, or an element of the environment. Teachers had to toss a skein of yarn to the element that they were dependent on, such as a sunflower depended on soil to survive. Teachers, representing these dependent elements, kept the connecting string of yarn in their hands.

As the skein was tossed around the circle, it created a web. The instructor for the activity, Welsey Nelson, a student at Prater Elementary, explained to the teachers that this will show students how things are dependent on each other for their survival.

They also learned about the cycles of man and the cycles of nature.

"In our world there are many cycles: occurrences that repeat themselves. Night follows day, day after day, year after year. A robin lays an egg, which hatches and grows into an adult robin, which in turn can repeat the cycle through reproduction. Alu-

Floyd Coroner is appointed to state advisory commission

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson has been appointed to the state Justice Cabinet's Medical Examiner Advisory Commission.

The five-member advisory commission helps the Justice Cabinet set up criteria for coroners, assists with training programs, and works with the legislature to implement or change laws governing the medical examiner's offices.

When Nelson served on the commission from 1985-1990, he helped negotiate a change in law that impacted coroners' deputies. Due to the legislative changes in the law, deputy coroners could be paid a salary and reimbursements for their expenses.

Deputy coroners are paid a minimum of $200 per month, plus expenses, Nelson said. Floyd County deputy coroners are Glenn Frazier and Bluford "Buddy" Smith.

Nelson has been Floyd County Coroner for 13 years. His term on the commission will expire June 30, 1998.

Welfare reform debate begins

The first shot in what is likely to be a long and contentious battle over welfare reform was fired this week in Washington.

In a split along party lines, the House Ways and Means human resources subcommittee voted Wednesday to approve a bill that would, among other things, restrict welfare payments to unwed mothers who are under 18 years of age.

The reform measure would turn welfare funds over to the states, which would have wide discretion to design their own assistance plans for poor people.

The bill now goes to the full Ways and Means Committee, where additional debate is assured.

Task force to meet Monday

The state's 35-member Biodiversity Task Force will meet in Prestonsburg at 7 p.m. February 20.

The task force was formed by Governor Brereton Jones to develop a statewide strategy for conserving Kentucky's biological diversity, including the consideration of an endangered species law, ways to promote public understanding of the issue, and coordinating government agencies, universities and private programs to sustain diversity.

The task force will report to the governor this fall.

Monday's meeting will be conducted at the Big Sandy Area Development District office at Cliff, beginning at 7 p.m.

KSP investigation still open in death

A Kentucky State Police investigation into the death of a McDowell infant in January is continuing.

Eight-month-old Andrew B. Johnson died Thursday, January 19, after he fell into a 24-quart cooker containing mop water the evening of January 18.

The infant's mother, Margarita Dye, took the baby to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital where he was listed in critical condition and flown to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.

An autopsy performed by the Fayette County Coroner's office listed the cause of death as "asphyxia due to drowning."

Kentucky state police trooper Leslie Gannon said Thursday that the incident is under investigation, pending tests results but would not disclose what tests had been done.

Sheriff's office still not up to full steam

It could be April before the Floyd sheriff's department is back at full staff, but three employees were recalled to work Wednesday.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said Thursday that he hopes to recall two more employees by the end of the month.

The department now has two deputies who will primarily serve civil court process papers and one officer to work in the office. Office manager Chuck Hall was relieved of his bailiff duties and is back as office manager.

Thompson estimates that his department will be back up to full operation by April 1.

minum ore is melted and formed into a can, which is filled and then emptied, and then can be melted down again and turned into a new can," the lesson plan explained.

The teachers themselves are part of the cycle. The things they learn will be taught to teen-age students who, in turn, will teach the lessons to younger students, Chuck Stamper, county extension agent for 4-H/youth development, said.

Preparing for the teacher-training sessions has been a continual process, Stamper said. The 4-H leader has been working with some of the teens for about a year in the SERIES training.

SERIES began in California and came into Kentucky a couple of years ago, Stamper said. When he heard about the program, he brought it into Floyd County last year for a summer day camp at McDowell and Betsy Layne schools.

"I'm always on the lookout for things (teachers) can use," he said. "Our teachers are super. They've always gotten a bad reputation. When I first came here, all I heard was negative comments about them. These teachers are the best in the state. They're always searching for hands-on lessons."

Stamper received positive responses from the teachers and de-cidied to expand the program this year. The training program fulfills some of the requirements of KERA, he said, explaining that it was assessment based and multi-sensory.

Next year, he plans to take the program into every school in the county.

Fifteen instructors and twelve students participated in the workshop, held at the Floyd County Extension Office Wednesday and Thursday.

Teachers included Alberta Slone, Ernie Tackett, Lois D. Tackett, Ruby Miller, Less Howard, Stephanie Marsillett, Patricia Burke, Kevin Haney, Keith Henry, Angela Cochran, Sally Hotelling, Thema Crider, Bernadine Isaac and Sheila Vance.

Students serving as SERIES instructors were Brooke Campbell, Amanda Clark and Leslie Hopkins, all of Betsy Layne Elementary School; Nick Adkins and Charles Duncan, both of Betsy Layne High School; Sean Miller, Melissa Dye and Alana Allen, all of Prestonsburg High School; Ty Martin and Kim Partington, both of Adams Middle School; Wes Nelson of Prater and Sarah Conn of Harold.

Stamper said he has also learned some valuable lessons from the program.

"This has taught me a lot. I'm an English major. This has shown me how much we can learn by listening to younger people teach us."

"This has also taught me that there is no age barrier when learning about science."

Medisin

Mike Vance, director of Floyd County's Solid Waste Department, said Thursday that he wants to meet with state officials to determine if the request from Medisin conforms with the county's solid waste management plan.

Vance said that he did not have enough information on what Medisin officials are requesting to decide if it meets with the county's plan.

The notice of hearing says that Medisin proposes to utilize the autoclave portion of the facility to process 1,200 pounds of waste per hour. The existing incinerators will process incoming waste requiring incineration.

The notice lists the facility as disposing of waste from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, Perry, Harlan, Morgan, Letcher, Bell, Knott, Lewis and Fayette counties in Kentucky; Fayette, Logan, Beckley and Mann counties in West Virginia; and Wise County in Virginia.

The ash residue from burning the waste is disposed of in Mingo County,

West Virginia, according to the notice.

The medical waste company is requesting a variance from the weekly extraction procedure test, according to the notice.

"Medisin's request was based on the fact that they are required to test the ash pursuant to Division of Air Quality and Hazardous Waste regulations," the notice said. "The division will require quarterly testing or any time there is a significant change in the waste stream. The division has also added Dioxin and Furan as of concern constituents that needed to be tested."

Copies of the application and fact sheet are on file at the Floyd County Library and may be inspected there.

Investigative reports of fatal mine accidents available online

Reports recounting fatal accident investigations in mining can now be accessed via Labor News, the U.S. Department of Labor's electronic bulletin board.

These detailed narratives issued by the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) include background information, events preceding the accident, recovery operations, the actual investigation, contributing violations and a sketch of the accident scene.

"There are important lessons to be learned from each and every accident investigation," said Assistant Secretary for Mine Safety and Health J. Davitt McAteer. "The wider the audience for these reports, the greater the potential for accident reduction."

"These reports can serve as a useful training tool for mine operators, independent contractors and miners' representatives," McAteer added.

Currently there are 28 fatal accident investigation reports available on Labor News. Subsequent reports will be placed on the system as they are released by MSHA, and they will remain there for at least six months.

Labor News also affords quick access to current mining regulations, program information bulletins and policy memoranda. All you need is a personal computer and a modem. To access, dial the data line at (202) 219-4784, using settings N, 8, 1. To read the accident report files, choose "M" for the main library, "S" to select a library, then type "accident" at the prompt.

For further information about Labor News, contact Dave Dickerson, the system operator, at (202) 219-8831.

The move is also expected to improve the record of service of emergency protection orders, the sheriff said. Officers will now be required to make returns of service to the dispatching office so that the information can be entered immediately into the LINK.

Wells told officers that District Judge James Allen has requested that representatives from the attorney general's office meet with local law enforcement agencies and court workers to develop a better process to record service of protection orders.

Status of education reform initiatives focus of conference

Kentucky is leading the way nationally in education reform, Rexford Brown, senior fellow at the Education Commissioner of the States, told participants in a conference in Lexington recently sponsored by the University of Kentucky/University of Louisville Joint Center for the Study of Educational Policy.

In his keynote address, Brown lauded Kentucky's reform efforts. "Reform is progressing around the country at the school and the state policy level, but no one has put it all together the way Kentucky has," he said.

One reason Kentucky's reform efforts are unique is the state is footing the bill for the reforms, but several other states attempting education reform rely on corporations or foundations.

Kentucky also is leading the way in assessment through experimentation. "You are the risk-takers," Brown said.

Brown warned that education reform must stay in the spotlight to continue the efforts. "Without public dialogue, a constant churning of public discourse about education, reform gets into trouble. A lot of people are already tuning it out."

Four years after Kentucky leapt into education reform with the implementation of the Kentucky Education Reform Act, about 300 people, including policymakers, legislators, school administrators, researchers and education activists, gathered at the conference to examine how education reform is faring on six fronts: assessment and accountability, professional development, school-based decision making, teacher education, finance and the primary program.

The conference aimed to synthesize the research on education reform and look toward the future of reform, said Connie Bridge, co-director of the center.

Highlights of some of the panel discussions, which featured legislators, Kentucky Department of Education representatives, school administrators, and researchers, include:

Primary Programs: Teachers' attitudes are divided

Results of research on the success of the primary programs show the implementation of multi-age grouping continues to be the most controversial aspect. Many teachers report that has been the most difficult to implement and question whether it is educationally sound, but others report it to be beneficial.

"The most troublesome news is that teachers' attitudes toward primary programs are divided and becoming increasingly negative," Bridge said. "One-half said the primary program is not working well." But she said reforms must remain focused on the big picture.

Teacher Education: Teacher certification needs streamlining

The teacher certification process is too complex and cumbersome and needs to be streamlined, said Rep. Ernesto Scorsone, D-Lexington, chair of a state subcommittee on education policy.

He said alternative certification programs need to be further developed to bring teachers into classrooms who may not have followed the usual teacher education curriculum in college, but are otherwise qualified to teach children.

Gayle Ecton, superintendent of Henderson County schools, said alternative certification programs will help bring more minority teachers into the classroom, which is difficult in rural areas.

Assessment and Accountability: Reforms encouraging team effort

The KERA assessment system, despite some flaws that need to be addressed, is having a positive overall impact on Kentucky education, panelists agreed.

The school reward system is encouraging school administrators, parents and teachers to work as a team, said Rep. Anne Meagher Northup, R-Louisville.

The fairness of linking monetary rewards to improvement rates among schools, with no regard for demographics, was questioned by Robert Rodosky, executive director for research and demographics with Jefferson County schools.

With few national models, judging Kentucky's assessment system will be a "big question" in the future, said Joseph Petrosko, co-director of the UK/U of L Center.

History of coal mining in the Big Sandy part of our heritage, Dotson claims

Phyllis Dotson told members of the Big Sandy Area Labor Management Committee at their regular meeting on January 17 at the area development district office that she finds herself in the past as she travels the area, gathering oral history taped conversations with elderly former miners and their families. She said the intertwining of generations is evident in the information so freely given by these strong testimonies of a distant way of life, which may be foreign to most people—especially today's youth.

Quoting Russell Harmon, a past officer in Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David in Floyd County, Dotson said there was a sense of family in the coal mining community that fostered good will between labor and management on the job. Although work conditions were hard, everyone cooperated to the extent that prosperous times were enjoyed by all. A movie theatre, company store, clubhouse, and swimming pool were available to both supervisors and workers' families. According to Dotson, Princess Elkhorn established a train route from Prestonsburg to David to transport the miners. A taped interview of Mr. Harmon's wife, Geneva, revealed an active social life in the community at that time.

Dotson also presented taped conversations of Ernest Prater and Rufus Stephens, long-ago residents and workers in David. The group heard of a time when a fourteen-year-old boy could go into the mines and work like a man. Fathers led their sons into a job that promised high wages and a better way of life for their families. Young men eagerly sought employment in the mines all over the Big Sandy Area. Dotson urged the Big Sandy Area Labor Management committee to preserve the vital coal mining history of the area, to establish a coal museum, publish transcripts of oral history tapes, and take the program into schools to teach our children their heritage.

The Big Sandy Area Labor Management committee plans to work extensively with Dotson on the oral history project in 1995 to accomplish these goals.

The next meeting will be at the Carriage House in Paintsville, noon,

February 21, buffet luncheon, Dutch treat. Dr. Paul Craig, medical director, occupational health and environmental medicine, King's Daughters' Medical Center, Ashland, will speak on "New Workers Compensation Legislation and its impact." Members and the public are urged to attend. For information, call Rebecca DeRossett at 886-0510.

Morehead begins pilot program in fall

Morehead State University is embarking on a two-year pilot program in which all first-time freshmen will take an extended orientation class designed to enhance their chances for college success.

The new requirement takes effect with the fall 1995 semester.

The course, "MSU 101: Discovering University Life," has been offered since fall 1987 as an option.

Designed to ease the adjustment from high school to college, MSU 101 has three components—personal survival skills, academic survival skills and career/academic major exploration, according to Dr. Judy Rogers, MSU associate vice president for academic affairs and dean of undergraduate programs.

While providing a road map to various campus services, from residence hall policies to student government opportunities, the course also includes an activity on using the library. Additionally, class members are expected to attend a concert, sports event and a play as a group.

ALL SNORING SHOULD NOT BE IGNORED!

Experts estimate that half of the chronic snorers over 40 have episodes of obstructive apnea, when flapping soft tissue at the base of the tongue and throat block all air flow. For the person with apnea, it's as if someone sticks a giant cork in his throat as many as 300 times a night. Some people stop breathing for as long as a minute, and each year between 2,000 and 3,000 apnea sufferers die of cardiac arrest in the night.

How can someone tell whether a mate might have sleep apnea? Snoring is irregular. There are lots of sharp snorts and gasps. It is labored, at times explosive, and in severe cases it's just as bad no matter what the sleeping position.

To confirm whether a person has apnea requires an overnight sleep study. This is also referred to as a polysomnogram. Most insurance plans require a sleep study showing apnea or another underlying medical condition before they will cover the cost of surgery and other treatments for snoring.

Untreated apnea can contribute to high blood pressure, enlargement of the heart, and increased risk of stroke. And because this sleep is so tormented, apnea sufferers are always tired. An estimated 20% have had car accidents as a result of falling asleep at the wheel. And, in all, experts say 20 million Americans have apnea but don't know it.

Call Patricia, 358-2381, to schedule a consultation to discuss a new, highly effective, office laser procedure for the treatment of snoring!

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Places of the heart

by Scott Perry

There's a brick in my bookshelf at home that is all that's left of the elementary school I attended many long moons ago.

It's not much to look at.
Just a brick.

It doesn't mean much of anything to anyone else in the family but me, and even much of that relevance has been washed away by the tides of time.

Every now and again, though, I'll look at that brick and see the past.

I'll see the youthful faces of people I once knew.

I don't remember all their names. But I can remember the times we spent together.

There we all are, in the auditorium. The voice on the loudspeaker is telling us that President Kennedy is dead.

There are much more pleasant memories, I'm sure.

Come to think of it, almost all my memories of that time have that old school in them.

So, what's this fit of nostalgia got to do with anything, you're asking yourself right now.

Nothing much.

It's just our way of impressing upon those who have the power to decide if old schools should give way to new ones, that these places aren't just buildings.

They're places of the heart.

And, they are the hearts and souls of the communities they serve.

They're places that build minds, bodies and a togetherness that transcends mere bricks and mortar.

Best of all they build spirit, character and identity.

We'll never again see that old school we wandered through so many years ago except in those images our fading memory allows us to recall.

We'll never forget what that school meant to us, our neighborhood and our community.

We still have our brick to remind us.

But, it's just a brick to everyone else.

That's too bad.

School bus on bad road could result in injury

Editor:
I'm writing you concerning our roads here in Floyd County.

I live in Rough and Tough Hollow which is in David, and our road is one of the worst in our county.

We can't get gravel or hardly get it graded unless someone dies up here and is buried. Our school bus has to be ready to fall apart from hitting all the holes in our road. I think this could cause serious problems to our bus, due to all the bumpiness and roughness it goes through every day. Last year the bus went over the ditch and hit the hill. This was due to our poor road conditions. We, the passengers, are scared that the roads may get even worse and we might slide over the other side where nothing can catch us and all of us may get hurt.

Every one of the smaller roads close to my house had been blacktopped by now, but we cannot get anything done to our road.

My mom, dad and everyone else that lives up here calls our magistrate, and he never returns our calls; so, we don't have any other thing to do but call more.

I am writing this letter trying to get something done to our road.

Now! Where do we turn?
Please help!

Times sports reporting leaves parent wanting

Editor:

I was never so disappointed in our paper, The Floyd County Times, on the coverage of grade school junior training league, training league and junior varsity. I, as a parent of a junior training league player, think the coverage is great of our local schools except for leaving out the little guys.

Referring to your Wednesday, February 8 paper, the final league standings you printed were incorrect. The finals will be played Sunday, February 19, at the Betsy Layne Grade School dome.

And, where was our Floyd County Times when Betsy Layne Junior Training League Green Celtics won Mountain Christian Academy's tournament? These Celtic players played long and hard to win this tournament and hoping to win Betsy Layne's.

But, you already have us losing to second place. Let me remind you, most of our best basketball players in the world start at level zero at the junior training league stage and learn and move up in life as years go on. So, please give the little ones some more attention! They deserve it as much as the grade school and high school players.

These are our future leaders of the world. Let us give them the attention they deserve to do better and be stronger.

Also, a mention of the cheerleaders or their names or something would be nice!

Term limits are needed for government reform

Editor:

Recent news accounts do not bode well for Kentucky: The legislature approved $67+ million of additional debt. Over 60 county judge executives received an "after midnight" reprieve from the legislature which changed a perfectly good law in order to keep careless judges in office. The legislature is still recovering from recent scandals and investigations.

Meanwhile, Kentucky continues to be one of the worst states for the number of teens not in school and not in the labor force. Didn't out elected officials get any message from the November 1994 elections? Where are their priorities? How well do they really understand the needs of Kentuckians?

A citizens' movement, in which the residents of Floyd County can participate, has been established to better address the needs of Kentuckians. This movement is called Kentucky Term Limits. One of the first steps we will take is to establish term limits for our federal, state, and county elected offices. According to surveys, approximately 80 percent of the national population supports term limits. 25 million citizens in over 22 states have already adopted term limits. The purpose of term limits is simple: to return government to the people, so that the many, and not the few, are involved and represented. It is time to limit the incumbents who fail to limit their power and perks. It is time to replace assemblies of career politicians with citizen legislatures as envisioned by the founders of our constitution. Finally, it is time to elect citizens, who will not become arrogant in their conduct over many terms, but will faithfully perform their duties with humility, honor, and servitude over limited terms.

For more information on how your readers can immediately become involved in Kentucky Term Limits, write to Steve Roth, P.O. Box 289, Alexandria, KY 41001. Please include a phone number. If there is not enough time to send a letter, call me at (606) 635-0273. Thank you.

Conservation biology class offered at PCC

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Dr. John Shiber and PCC for finally providing a course of substance which everyone can benefit from.

I am speaking of "conservation biology" (BSL 116), a new, three-credit course which Dr. Shiber introduced this academic year. (PCC is one of only two community colleges in the state which is offering it.) Anyone who cares for the health of our community, nation, and world should take it. I recommend it especially to people going into the teaching field, because they will have the great responsibility of educating our kids about this.

Just what is "conservation biology?" Simply, it is the study of protecting life on our planet. It concerns us all and awakens us to the reality that man is destroying plants, animals, and other organisms, chiefly by destroying their habitats, all over the world. It helps us to understand that we, as citizens, can do a lot right here in our own backyard to conserve habitats, by preventing activities which

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

The case for voting 'no'

With a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget approaching a vote in the Senate, the Republican National Committee has targeted several Democratic senators in an ad campaign. Kentucky's Wendell Ford is among those on the list for this special attention.

Ford is (to put it mildly) an experienced hand in Washington, capable of making his own decisions without any help from the GOP or anyone else. But with the pro-amendment voices ringing so loudly at the moment, it can't hurt to remind him of two good arguments against this amendment.

Leave the Constitution alone. Yes, reducing federal spending is important. But it's not important enough to write into the Constitution of the United States. That marvelous document has worked so well because it is a framework of principles, not a laundry list of specifics. Amending the Constitution to meet a specific, short-term need is bad policy. Protecting it from such amendments is an honorable act.

Even if you want to vote for a balanced budget amendment, this isn't the one to approve. If it were to become law, the federal government wouldn't be able to borrow money for long-term public investments such as roads. At the least, the amendment should create a separate capital budget such as Kentucky and most other states use. Paying as you go on operating budgets make sense. Doing so for capital needs is short-sighted to the point of foolishness.

There are other arguments against the amendment, such as its potential effect on Social Security, that Ford and other Democrats might find more persuasive than we do. But no senator has to look very far to find a reason to vote against this amendment in good conscience—and with confidence that such a vote is easily explained to the folks back home. —Lexington Herald-Leader

Proof, if you need it

An internal Transportation Cabinet audit has verified what most Kentuckians have always known, or at least suspected: Who you know is all-important when you want to get a road paved in Kentucky.

Forget fiscal court. Forget your district highway engineer. It's more important to get in good with the governor's contact man in your county, because decisions on which roads a county paves have more to do with patronage politics than with need.

The facts, the figures, the anecdotal evidence of the audit are all there for anyone to see. Anyone, that is, except Transportation Secretary Don Kelly. He denies the role of patronage politics in road paving. He might as well deny the existence of the sun, the moon, and the stars.

The audit quotes Bill Davenport, chief engineer for the district office based in Madisonville, as saying 20 percent of the money spent in each county was reserved by the "governor's office" to be used at the discretion of county patronage contacts.

In Pulaski County, according to the audit, the state paved a private road on land owned by a supporter of Gov. Brereton Jones. The paving was done at the request of Oscar Hornsby, Jones' contact man for the county.

Hornsby recommended 12 paving projects in the county last year. All 12 were approved by the Transportation Cabinet. By contrast, only six of 10 projects submitted by the fiscal court and the cabinet's own district office were approved.

This, of course, is not the way government should work. Decisions on county roads should be made by fiscal courts. After all, that's one of the reasons we elect them.

Sure, favoritism and politics can come into play with fiscal courts, just as it does with patronage contacts. But fiscal court members can be held accountable for their decisions by a county's voters; the local contact for the governor really isn't accountable to anyone. Of course, that's the whole idea, isn't it? —Lexington Herald-Leader

Drive safely!

Coal still litters the roadside at the intersection of Ky. 3 and U.S. 23 as a reminder of the tragedy that took place there last week.

Another life was taken.

Although Thursday's accident was the first fatality at the intersection since traffic lights were installed, the site is still one of the most dangerous in the area.

Most of the accidents involve coal trucks that are going too fast or cannot stop in time, but the blame doesn't lie solely with them. There is a steep grade coming off the hill, and sometimes there is equipment failure, but for the most part the accidents occur because the speed limit or traffic lights are disregarded.

Some safety measures should be taken at this area to try to prevent future accidents. —The Big Sandy News would endanger them.

As a starter, Dr. Shiber gives a "pre-test" to the students enrolled in the course. This is to see how much we already know about environmental matters, especially about wildlife habitats and their threatened status worldwide. After the course is over, he will give us a "post-test" to see just how much we have learned.

The topics he covers during the course include defining conservation biology and what caused it to evolve into a major field of study. He discusses biodiversity (the great variety of life on Earth) and why it is essential to the planet. Solutions and strategies on how to establish protected areas for species and how to help restore the environment to a more healthy condition are talked about, as well as what national and global agreements there are which mean to ensure conservation and protection of species and habitats.

Dr. Shiber's class is about the most relevant course I have ever taken. Even Governor Jones is involved in conservation biology. On Monday, February 20, his new "Biodiversity Task Force" Committee will meet at the Big Sandy ADD to discuss the problem of protecting our wildlife with the public. (Did you know that in Kentucky there are seven plants and 28 animals on the endangered species list?) The task force will discuss with us the need for us to protect what we have and make things better for our state. The survival of wildlife and their habitats is linked to our survival. I hope many people will go.

I encourage people to take conservation biology with Dr. Shiber. They will learn a lot. And what they learn will stay with them always. Also, it is knowledge we can use. It will help us and our loved ones make intelligent decisions that concern the fate of our city, state, and country, with respect to industrialization, urbanization, and all those other "izations" that affect our environment. Maybe, through our efforts, we can guarantee the physical, mental and spiritual wellness and fitness of our children and the future generations!

Floyd County loses big fan; Hoss to be inducted in KHSAA Hall of Fame March 14

Floyd County lost a favorite son this past Wednesday morning (2 a.m.) when Birchell Duff passed away at his home.

Birchell was one person who loved Floyd County sports and he loved the kids in the county.

He will be missed, I'm sure. His health had deteriorated over the past three days.

He was an avid golfer. It was always good to see him and Pat on the links together. She was always there for him and with him.

Once Pat, Birchell and their son Todd entered a golf tournament together. They will have those special moments to remember.

Both were very close and I just enjoyed being around them. Last month, I covered a game at Pike Central (Johns Creek) and there they both sat.

We will always remember his solutions to the zone press, the trapping defenses and how to shoot a free throw. He loved the Allen Central Rebels and all the kids at the Right Beaver school.

"HOSS" HALBERT MAKES AN APPEARANCE

"The Legend," Denzil "Hoss" Halbert was at the Allen Central/Prestonsburg game this past Tuesday night. Hoss looked good and is anxiously awaiting his induction into the KHSAA Hall of Fame March 14 in Lexington.

Hoss said that he had many to thank for his Hall of Fame selection but wanted to thank, "my wonderful family, my players, cheerleaders, managers and other support personnel."

"I would be remiss if I didn't thank Gordon Moore, Mike Reitz, Wayne Martin and Kenny Rice," he said.

There will be a reception from 6 p.m. until 7 p.m. on March 14 at the Merriott for Hoss. The dinner and banquet will begin at 7 p.m. and no speeches will be made.

"Someone spoke the last time and he talked 30 minutes," Hoss said.

Well-known columnist Earl Cox will emcee the event and each inductee will be introduced by video.

"I had to send them some pictures of me," said Hoss, "so they could make the video."

Kinzer Drilling will be the corporate sponsor for Hoss at the induction.

"Many thanks to Kinzer Drilling for their help," said the former Martin mentor. "Jerry, Terry and Debbie were Purple Flashes."

A ticket order form for the induction is located in this sports section. If you want to be part of this special event for a very special person, fill out and mail or phone your ticket order in.

NO ALL-DISTRICT, ALL-CONFERENCE TEAMS

I really am saddened by the fact that there will be no Floyd County All-District or All-Conference teams named this year at the 58th District tournament, because "the coaches can't take the heat."

We have always had these two special squads and it has traditionally been the highlight of the basketball season.

I can't believe that we have come to this point in our athletics. I can't believe that we are saying to the kids that "it doesn't matter how well you play, there is no reward for you after it is over."

Now, to be fair, in a way I can see their point after the way some parents act at times. But coaches take heat over everything else and survive so why not go on with this?

Some of the old coaches in the county just can't believe it is hap-

58th District Tournament gets new twist

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The 1994-95 high school basketball season has just nine days to run and then the kickoff to March Madness will begin.

In Floyd County, that means the start of the 63rd 58th District Tournament, a classic that began back in 1932.

This year's classic will get an earlier start. And there will be no all-conference or all-district teams selected this year, according to a committee that split on the matter.

The tournament has traditionally begun on a Wednesday night and run through its conclusion on Saturday night.

But this year a new twist has been

No all-conference, all-district teams will be named added. Tournament manager Al Osborne (South Floyd school principal) recommended to the committee that the event begin on a Monday night (Feb. 27) and conclude on Friday night (March 3).

Osborne cited parking problems at South Floyd High School, the tournament site, as reasons for starting earlier than normal.

The tournament will begin with the first round on Monday, February 27, with a boy/girl doubleheader. On Tuesday, February 28, the first round will be completed in a boy/girl doubleheader (semifinals).

The girls will then play their championship game on Thursday, March

2, while the boys will conclude their championship on Friday, March 3.

Allen Central Athletic Director David Bowling opposed the move, but the committee gave its approval to the format.

Discussion was held on the subject of naming an All-Conference team and All-District squad with the vote resulting in a 2-2 tie. Mr. Osborne, chairman of the meeting, cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of not having either an all-conference or all-district team, breaking tradition that has long been part of Floyd County basketball.

Athletic Directors from Allen Central and Betsy Layne (Bowling and Junior Newsome) voted in favor of continuing the tradition, while South Floyd and Prestonsburg (Jim Rose and Gordon Parido) voted against it. Osborne then broke the tie.

"I don't want to have to name who on my team will be on the teams," explained Betsy Layne coach Keith Henry. "I don't think we should have one."

"I never have liked individual awards," stated Parido. "I think if we take away the individual awards for the kids, then we shouldn't have one for the Coach of the Year."

"I just don't like it," said Coach Rose. "I don't want to take the heat over who doesn't make it."

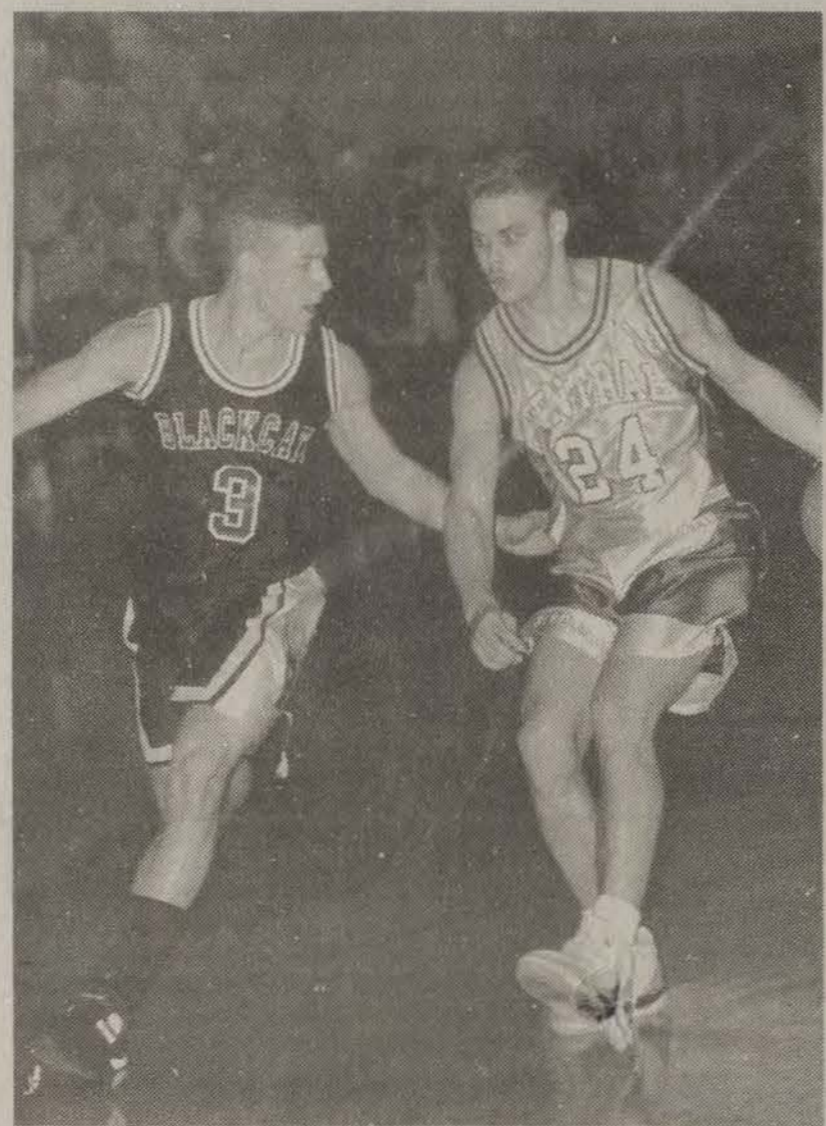

Last year, an all-district team was named and recognized after the championship games of the tournament. The all-conference team was named, but not revealed until after the regional tournament. A special banquet was set up then to recognize the all-conference team, but the ceremony turned out to be a bust.

"I think we should have it," said Allen Central girl coach Bonita Compton. "There will be a lot of upset parents out there if we don't. I'm for having it."

"I'm willing to take the heat in order to have it," said Bill Newsome of Betsy Layne. "Why break tradition?"

It appears that the history of these two special teams has fallen by the

Betsy Layne ends 12-game skid with 53-19 win over SF Raiders

Betsy Layne coach Keith Henry was glad to see something positive happen to his ballclub after suffering through a disappointing season thus far.

The Bobcats turned back the South Floyd Raiders Monday night in the second game of a girls/boys double header.

Stevie Johnson and Chris Hamilton combined for 24 points as Betsy Layne defeated South Floyd 53-49 in a strong finish.

The score was tied at 49 when, with 1:08 left to play, Johnson stole the ball from Ryan Hamilton, spotted Chris Hicks breaking for the basket, and lobbed the ball in the air. With one motion, Hicks grabbed the ball and laid it off the glass for a 51-49 Betsy Layne lead.

"Chris has come a long way for us," said Coach Henry. "First of the year he was wild because he hadn't played any basketball since grade school."

"Now, he has some athletic ability. He is one of the hardest working kids we have. He never says anything. He's been super."

"One thing I found out about him is he is a defensive stopper," he said. Scott Little could have tied the game but missed a wide open layup. In a scramble for the basketball, Derrick Newsome fouled Little with 19 seconds to play.

Little missed the front end of the bonus shot and Johnson came away with the rebound for Betsy Layne. He was fouled by Little and sank two free throws with 15 seconds left to give the Bobcats a 53-49 lead.

Little was sent to the free throw line with eight seconds left to play but missed the first attempt from the charity stripe and time ran out.

Betsy Layne was in control of the game until the last three minutes of the third period.

The Bobcats held a 37-30 advantage with 3:33 left to play. But South Floyd went on a 10-0 run that netted them a 40-37 lead after three quarters. Coach Henry said the switch in leads was a mystery.

"That has happened to us in every game," he said. "Every game we have this year, we had a three or four minute span where, no matter what we do, it goes wrong."

"We had the (Justin) Ray kid on Derrick. We tell Derrick to take him down low and post up. We make a soft bounce pass inside and it's in the 'dirt' and they steal it and go down and score."

Hamilton's layup started the 10-0 spurt and Little's layup at the 1:12 mark gave the Raiders the lead at 38-37 and Little connected on two free throws with just four seconds left to make it a 40-37 game.

While the three minute letdown for Betsy Layne was not damaging, Henry thought a time-out helped settle his ballclub down.

"We got through that span tonight without a lot of damage being done," he said. "We took a time-out and

Allen Central conference champs

Jenkins scores 26 in 101-86 win over Prestonsburg

In a very physical matchup, the Allen Central Rebels repeated as Floyd County Conference champions after defeating the Prestonsburg Blackcats 101-86 Tuesday night at the J.E. Allen Arena.

It marked the third consecutive year the Rebels have won the title.

Allen Central finished 6-0 in the conference and Prestonsburg placed second at 4-2.

"I'm tickled to death with this team," said Rebel coach Johnny Martin. "To go 6-0 in the conference — you just don't go undefeated in Floyd County, I don't care how good a team you have."

Senior Kevin Stumbo and sophomore Thomas Jenkins scored 25 points each and senior point guard Jeremy Hall tossed in 22 points to lead a strong offensive night for Allen Central.

But the big effort came from the inside in the persons of junior Jason Bevins and sophomore swing man Jason Baker.

"Both played well for us," said Coach Martin. "Jason (Bevins) got off to a slow start and I took him out of the game. When he went back in, he played like a demon."

Bevins scored 10 points, leading a second-quarter comeback for the Rebels. Baker also added 10 points, scoring eight in the third period.

"I just try and go in there and play hard," said Bevins. "I just want to show that I can play."

It was a physical game, as was expected when these two teams meet. "Very physical," said the Rebel center.

Baker, who has shown strong improvement in the past three weeks, says that hard work has started to pay off for him.

"I've been working real hard," he said. "I've been working hard in practice, putting more effort into it," he said. "I'm starting to hit more shots and that has given me confidence."

Allen Central spotted the Blackcats with a 10-0 lead as Prestonsburg opened hot and the Rebels were not able to find the basket.

Rebound baskets by Ryan Ortega and Thomas Radliff, along with three-point shots from Brett James and Clint Shuts, kept the large Prestonsburg crowd cheering.

Jenkins broke the Allen Central drought with a 18-foot jumper, but Prestonsburg led 14-4 before Coach

Betsy Layne girls coach Bill Newsome played a lot of players and most them scored as his team blitzed the Pikeville Lady Panthers 67-30 in regional girls action Monday night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

Jessica S. Hamilton led the scoring parade for the Lady Cats with 18 points and teammate Misty Clark added 14. Ashley Tackett, playing with an injured knee, scored 10 points.

Betsy Layne took a 16-4 lead after the first quarter with Melena Gearheart scoring six points in the period. Gearheart grabbed two offensive rebounds and stuck them back in for a 4-0 Betsy Layne lead. She later scored on a layup. Clark had a first period three-pointer.

The game was tied at 4 with 6:17 to play when Allison Allara scored on a layup.

After leading 33-17 at the half, Betsy Layne went on a 9-2 run to open the third period and establish a 42-19 game.

After a free throw by Sunny Phillips and a basket by Jamie McKenzie, Betsy Layne scored the final nine points to take a 51-22 lead after three quarters.

Christy Compton led Pikeville in scoring with 12 points. McKenzie added six.

Jessica Johnson scored seven points for Betsy Layne. Jessica A. Hamilton finished with four as did Penny Tackett.

Rachel Thompson tossed in two while Crystal Gearheart and Jill Martin scored one each.

Combs to play for Eagles!

Hard work pays off for Combs as he inks with MSU Eagles

"Good things will always come to those who work hard and are dedicated to the task before them."

How many times have young men involved in athletics heard that saying?

But for Betsy Layne's defensive/offensive lineman Brandon "Bubba" Combs, that saying is what has been driving force behind his four years of football at Betsy Layne High School.

All the hard work since grade school was rewarded last week when Combs signed a letter-of-intent to play football at Morehead State University this coming fall.

For Combs, the decision came only after he weighed all his options.

"I was approached by VMI and invited to walk-on at Eastern Kentucky University as well as UK," said Combs. "There were several small colleges, but my brother (Bryan) went to a small college and was done wrong, so I didn't consider them.

"Morehead—I was going to turn them down, but something told me not to. I talked to Mrs. (Vicki) Ratliff, our guidance counselor, mom and dad, and weighed my options."

"I think it is great that Bubba decided on Morehead," said Mrs. Ratliff. "He thought about his decision and weighed all his options as well as the academics of it. I think he made a good choice."

Ratliff said that she and Combs had a long discussion and that he "had some good questions."

"He really had all the answers to his own questions," she said, "but he needed a little bit of support. He made a good choice."

Combs, a three-year starter for the Bobcats, played both sides of the line the three years he played. During his senior season, he had 54 tackles, four behind the line, three deflections and received a 90 percent grade as an offensive lineman.

Combs was named to the All-Mountain WYMT team during the 1993 and '94 season. He was on the Big Dipper All-Mountain team in '94.

Combs was named to the Big Sandy All-Media team in 1993 and was a Courier Journal All-State (honorable mention) in 1994.

He has been named to play in the Kentucky/Tennessee All-Star game in June.

"I had no idea that I would have a chance to make it," he said upon learning that he was a member of the Kentucky All-Star team. "I thought it was a big thing just to be nominated for the team."

"I thought that someday I could tell my grandchildren of the time I was nominated for the Kentucky/Tennessee game. But now, to be playing in it is great."

"This is a great thing for our school, Bubba signing with Morehead State," said Coach John Derossett. "It's not only big for him, but for our program as well."

"But it's a bigger thing to have a player picked to play in the Kentucky/Tennessee All-Star game."

"It got down to the 64 kids and I was hoping he would make it, but I was not getting my hopes up."

Then a letter appeared in the mail and it caused some disturbance in Derossett's classroom.

"I got the letter and read it two or three times. After I read it and saw he was playing on the team, that he had been selected to play, I jumped out of seat and screamed. The kids in my classroom were wondering what was going on."

"It was that big of a deal to me," said the Betsy Layne coach. "Just to know that he was going to play in that game."

Coach Derossett said that Combs had been a hard worker over the last three seasons and that hard work had begun to reap some rewards.

"Coaches would call me about him and I would tell them that he doesn't miss practice," said Derossett.

"In fact, I don't know if he has ever missed a practice in the three years that I have coached him. He never missed a snow day when we worked out in the weight room."

"Somewhere a long time ago Bubba decided this is what he wanted and he gave himself that chance to do it."

"I told the football team that there was no promise that as a senior that Bubba would get a scholarship. But in the seventh and eighth grade, he gave himself that chance and now he is reaping the benefits."

Combs plans to major in education and hopes to coach someday. He says that he owes Coach Derossett a lot.

"I wouldn't have been able to do anything if it hadn't been for Coach Derossett," said Combs. "He was there whipping me in shape, even though I did possess the ability. Still, he was there to help."

"I always wanted to do the things that I dreamed of, but he was always there when I needed pushing."

Bubba's father, Walter Combs, says that he will be on the road this fall following the Eagles.

"I'm very excited about Bubba going to Morehead State," he said. "I think it's a great opportunity for him. He just needs to take it that way and go with it. We're terribly excited about all of this."

What about attending the games?

"Absolutely. We will be going with him a lot on the road every game we can. I'll be there to watch him."

Combs' brother, Bryan, who quarterbacked the Betsy Layne team, signed with Sue Bennett, and is now at Morehead and is a possible walk-on for the Eagles.

Combs' mother, Rosa Stewart, said that while Bubba wrestled with the decision as to where to go, she believed there was divine guidance involved.

"He has taken a lot of time in making this decision," she said. "He was thinking all these things through concerning the different schools he could have attended."

"I feel he made the wisest choice. He went through several nights of thinking and went through a lot of thought with each college."

"We weighed the pros and cons of each. He felt Morehead State University would be the best choice because he felt it would be more in God's will."

"He felt if God was behind him, he would provide all the strength, confidence and skills that make up Bubba. He also feels that God will take him further than just Morehead State University."

Betsy Layne Athletic Director Junior Newsome feels that Combs signing with MSU will be a boost to the school's football program.

"This is a big honor for not only Brandon, but a shot in the arm for our own football program," he said. "It is a testimony to the fine job that Coach Derossett has done and is going to do here."

"On down the line, this has to help our program. Kids coming in will see what they can accomplish as a result of what Brandon has done. It will create more interest in our program and get more kids involved."

Newsome said that he looked for good things for the program and better things in the future.

"Coach Derossett has done a tremendous job here at this point and he will continue to improve the program. I believe you'll see more signings like this again."

Newsome said that this is "proof positive" that you don't have to come from a winning program to get a scholarship.

"It just shows what hard work will do," he said.

"Bubba has certainly put his time in and Coach Derossett did a lot of individual work with him. The rest of the coaching staff is to be commended for their hard work."

Coach Derossett and Combs continue to work out each day Combs looks toward the June 25 date for the All-Star game.

For Combs, hard work and dedication to a dream that he has had since his days of starting to play football has become a reality.

Again, good things come to those who work hard. Bubba has proved

For the third time this season, the Allen Central Lady Rebels handed Cindy Adkins Millard Lady Mustangs a loss on the hardwood.

The Lady Rebels posted a hard-fought 65-59 win over a very good Millard team, and improved to 16-4 on the season.

The last time the two teams met was in the championship of the All 'A' Classic in Pikeville. Allen Central won that game in the closing seconds.

Freshman Crystal Martin led Allen Central in scoring with 19 points, scoring 10 of those in the final period.

Martin had nine rebounds, two assists and three steals.

Sophomore center Amanda Samons pulled down five rebounds and added 15 points.

Senior Veronica McKinney scored 10 points and had four rebounds.

Beth Salyers topped the Lady Mustangs with 14 points

. Kenetha Slone added 13 and Gina Coleman scored 10. Gina May had nine points.

Millard, who will surprise someone in the upcoming regional tournament (and they will be there) led at the end of the first quarter 17-10 behind Coleman, May and Salyers.

Coleman had a three-pointer, scoring five first quarter points.

Seventh-grader Natalie Cooley entered the game in the second quarter and scored four points to spark the Lady Rebels. Allen Central tied the game at 29-29 at the half.

Samons kept Allen Central in front in the third period scoring seven points while McKinney tossed in four.

The lead went back and forth with Allen Central clinging to a 45-43 lead after three quarters.

In the fourth period, Martin took charge scoring 10 points as Allen Central pulled out the six point victory.

Allen Central (16-4) will host the South Floyd Lady Raiders in a make-up conference game Monday, February 20.

talked about it and that seemed to help us.

"These kids could have quit then but they didn't."

South Floyd added to their lead when Jason Shannon hit two straight three-point baskets for a 45-39 South Floyd lead. Johnson's layup made it 45-41.

Hamilton and Little both missed the front end of bonus free throws and Chris Hamilton's charity toss cut the lead to three, 45-42.

With 3:09 left to play, Newsome scored on a layup to make it a one-point game, 45-44. But Shannon hit a short jumper and it was 47-44.

With 2:24 left to play, Newsome, in front of his bench, launched a three-pointer that found the bottom of the net to tie the game at 47. The shot was directed from the bench.

"When he was in front of our bench," explained Henry, "I said 'let it go Derrick, let it go.' He did and tied the game."

Newsome had been struggling this year but Coach Henry said that he has been hurting at times.

"He also has been uptight this season," he said. "Tonight he played a good defensive game and showed some senior leadership. It's been a tough year for him. Nobody wants to win as bad as he does."

The game was tied at 2 in the early going until South Floyd took a 7-3 lead on a three-pointer by Shannon. South Floyd then turned the ball over on their next four possessions and Betsy Layne rolled out to a 13-7 lead.

Shannon's second three-point basket cut the lead to three, 15-12, but Chris Hamilton hit a 14-foot jumper to give Betsy Layne a 17-12 first quarter lead.

The Bobcats led 21-18 on Hamilton's rebound basket and South Floyd could not take care of the ball against the Betsy Layne defense as they had three consecutive turnovers. Betsy Layne led 26-18 before a turnaround 8-footer and a 6-foot jumper by Shannon made it 26-22 at the half.

Hicks' 12-foot jumper gave Betsy Layne a 28-22 lead until South Floyd hit four consecutive free throws for a 30-26 game.

The Raiders later would run off 10 straight points to lead 40-37.

Betsy Layne took care of the basketball and Henry said that it was due to being patient on offense.

"We get to pressing ourselves a little bit," he explained. "We get in a rush and I just told them to settle down."

Shannon led all scorers with 21 points. He had three three-point baskets and pulled down (unofficially) nine rebounds.

T.T. Pack had 10 points in the game. Little finished with eight. Hamilton and Michael Stephens scored four each. Justin Ray finished with two.

Hicks and Newsome each scored nine points for Betsy Layne. Willie Meade tossed in eight and Brandon Castle hit a three-pointer for three points.

Betsy Layne will face Feds Creek tonight and travel to Pikeville Saturday night.

South Floyd will be on the road for two games at Lafayette Friday night and Powell County Saturday night.

pening to the game they helped nourish along.

I said last year, and I'll say it again this year — the game is for the kids, not the coaches.

I wish there could be a change of mind on this. We have fine coaches in the county but I just wish they would reconsider the whole matter.

What about those players, after the district tournament is over, and there is no more season for them? What can they show for their season or hard work, dedication and good play?

The kids' feelings in this were never taken into consideration. Never. Only fear ruled.

Something has to be done to rectify this. I'm upset about it and hope others are too.

Let the coaches pick (by the final season stats) the all-conference team and let the media (like at other tournaments) vote for the all-tournament team. That would take all the heat off the coaches.

Let's hope something is done! Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports.

Protect yourself and your children from violence.

Rose shakes up Raiders' lineup in 82-70 victory

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Five players scored in double figures for coach Jim Rose's South Floyd Raiders Tuesday night as they posted a 82-70 win over Letcher County.

South Floyd improved to 5-15 on the season.

Rose benched seniors Scott Little and point guard Ryan Hamilton and put starting freshman Nick Little and Jason Shannon in their spots.

Little responded with a 15 point night after playing well in the Betsy Layne game. Shannon netted 11 points.

T.T. Pack tied Little with 15 points but scoring honors went to Michael Stephens who totaled 17 for the game.

Hamilton and Little both scored four points in the win. Chris Moore, off the bench, hit a three-pointer for three points. Aaron Hall scored two.

Mullins was returning to the Raider lineup after having to sit out a one-game suspension for an infraction at Cordia two weeks ago.

Nick Little got off to a fast start hitting seven points in the opening quarter. Pack, with good moves in the middle, scored six first period points as South Floyd led 23-17 after the initial quarter.

The Raiders struggled defensively in the second period as Letcher pulled to within two points at the half, 35-33. Moore came in and hit a big three-point basket for the Raiders for the two-point halftime lead. Shannon also had a trey in the period.

Stephens, who only had four points at halftime, turned it up two notches in the third period when he scored 11 points including a three-point basket.

Mullins, who played a good floor game, also hit a three-pointer in the third quarter, his second.

South Floyd held a 14-point lead, 60-46, after three quarters and had to hold off a Letcher County rally in the fourth period. Letcher got to within six points in the fourth, but the Raiders extended their lead and won by 12.

Letcher County hit nine three-point baskets in the contest with Tim Ison, Matt Oaks and Tim Miller connecting on two each.

Ison led all scorers with his 20 points. He scored 18 in the first half. Oaks finished with 14 as did Bobby Jones.

South Floyd (5-15) will travel to Lafayette tonight and play at Powell County Saturday night.

Gearheart, Lady Cats continue to roll in 54-37 win over Lady Tigers

Sophomore Jessica Johnson scored a game-high 18 points and Melena Gearheart added 10 as the Betsy Layne Lady Cats won their fifth straight game with a 54-37 win over the Lady Tigers of Paintsville Wednesday night at Betsy Layne.

Johnson had three, three-point baskets and dished off five assists while pulling down eight rebounds.

"Jessica is getting better and better," said Betsy Layne coach Bill Newsome. "She is playing with more authority each time out."

Gearheart is on a torrid pace in rebounding, pulling in 14 boards against Paintsville. Gearheart, the team's leading shot blocker, had four against the Lady Tigers. She also had four assists.

"She absolutely has gotten better," said the Betsy Layne coach. "It was just another great game for 'Miss Windex.' She has raised her level of play a lot."

Betsy Layne held Paintsville to a

Allen Central

Martin took a time-out.

"Coach told us to keep our heads up during the overtime," said senior forward Kevin Stumbo. "We missed some easy shots inside, but he said for us to just get back in it and everything will be all right."

The Rebels heeded the advice of their coach and went on a 16-9 run to trail by three, 23-20, after the first quarter.

"We took them for granted in the first quarter," explained Bevins. "We just weren't ready to play."

Allen Central was ready in the second period. They scored 37 points in the quarter to lead 57-41 at the half.

"That second quarter— Wow!" said Martin. "We just haven't been able to sustain that all year. At one stretch there we played about as well as we could play."

Bevins tip-in at the 7:15 mark of the second quarter gave Allen Central their first lead at 24-23 following a Jeremy Hall layup.

Ratliff completed a three-point play that netted the lead back to the Blackcats. Then the Rebels ran off six straight points -- two layups by Baker and Hall's two free throws -- to take a 30-26 lead.

The score was tied at 32 and 34 before Allen Central took the lead for good on Hall's three-point basket. The trey started a 9-0 Allen Central run and a spurt of 23-4 for the rest of the half.

Instead of working on the 16-point lead, the Rebels allowed Prestonsburg to climb back to within 10 points, 62-52, with just under five minutes to play in the third period.

"That has been a problem with us all season," said Coach Martin. "Instead of us coming out and scoring six points and going up by 22, we allowed them to score six points, cut the lead to 10 and now it's a different ball game."

Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido said that a long layoff has hurt his team.

"We knew it wasn't going to be an easy game coming in here," he said. "We knew that once we got the lead like we did that we weren't going to be able to sustain it."

"The biggest factor was that we haven't played in 12 days. We gave up a bunch of easy baskets and we got tired. We did things we hadn't been doing in a month."

"You play only one game in 12 days and it shows. Our timing was off. But I was pleased with our effort here tonight. We made some silly defensive plays and they got easy buckets off of it."

A bright spot for the Blackcats was the inside play of freshman Andy Jarvis, who coach Parido said had to step up his game.

"He had to come in and step up his game with J.P. (Skeens) gone. Andy did a good job for us. He's going to be a good one. It just takes a little bit of learning down the line."

"I try to get in position for the rebound and I want to take the ball back up strong," said the frosh center. "We need to rebound better than we did tonight."

Robinson led all scorers with 26 points, including three treys. Ryan Ortega finished with 21 and two three-point baskets. Jarvis netted 12 points and had (unofficially) 11 rebounds.

Senior Clint Shuts drilled three treys and finished with nine points. He fouled out of the game in the fourth quarter. Thomas Ratliff totaled 11 points and James Jarrell added one.

Allen Central (17-5) will travel to Sheldon Clark tonight and host Clay County tomorrow night.

Prestonsburg (9-13) visits Cawood tomorrow night.

wayside and it is doubtful they will be renewed.

The committee proceeded to determine the pairings for the tournament. Only two teams were certain at the time, with Allen Central (6-0) filling the top spot in the boys' draw.

Coach Johnny Martin's ballclub will face either Betsy Layne or South Floyd in the first round. Betsy Layne finished the conference race with a 1-5 record.

South Floyd is 1-4 currently in the conference with a make-up game with Prestonsburg to be played Thursday, February 23 at Raider Arena.

Should Prestonsburg (who is the number two seed) win, then Betsy Layne and South Floyd would decide the third seed with a flip of a coin.

Should the Raiders pull out the win, then Betsy Layne would be the four seed.

In the girls' bracket, South Floyd is the four seed with a conference game with Allen Central remaining (Monday, February 20).

Allen Central at press time (Thursday) was the front runner in the conference with a one-game lead over both Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg. (The Lady Rebels played at Prestonsburg last night).

Should the girls' conference result in a three-way tie, Osborne would call the three coaches involved together and draw, first, for drawing positions and then for tournament seeding.

Other tournament business: Admission to the tournament will be $4 for adults and $3 for students for tickets sold in advance by individual schools.

Admission price at the gate will be $4 for everyone.

There are 150 reserved seats at the new South Floyd gym and they will be sold on a package price of $20 for the entire tournament. Seats not sold will go on sale the night of the game at $6.

Game time has been set for 6:30 p.m. with the second game tipping off 20 minutes after the completion of the first game.

Tivis Johnson Jr. will be the tournament's timer and Ernie Moore will be the scorer. Keith Smallwood will handle the public address system.

Pep bands will be permitted to perform, however, bands will not be permitted to play during live ball situations.

Officials for the district tournament will be assigned later.

Dangerous intersection on Route 23 near Louisa records another victim

A Louisa woman was killed Thursday, February 9, when a coal truck overturned on her vehicle at the intersection of Ky. 3 and U.S. 23.

Vera "Jody" West, 42, was leaving Louisa on Ky. 3, and was attempting to turn north on U.S. 23 when she was hit by a 1986 Mack truck loaded with coal.

Police said the truck was unable to stop at the light, and had tried to avoid West, but instead struck her Chevrolet S10 pickup and overturned on it, killing her instantly.

Eyewitnesses told police that the traffic light was green for West.

The driver of the truck, 27-year-old David O. Clifton of Prestonsburg, was taken to Three Rivers Medical Center where he was treated for minor injuries and released.

No charges have been filed so far, but Kentucky State Police Trooper Gary W. Kistner said an investigation is still ongoing by Trooper Bobby Jack Woods.

The intersection of Ky. 3 and U.S. 23 has a history of accidents since the stretch of highway was opened in July of 1989.

Kistner said there were seven fatal accidents within three weeks after the highway was opened. Because of this, traffic lights were added.

This was the first fatality at the intersection since the traffic lights were installed two years ago, Kistner said.

"You do have a grade and trucks hauling coal, so if they do not prepare to stop, it is very difficult to do so," Kistner said. "This appears to be the most dangerous intersection in the Post 14 area."

The Kentucky State Police Post 14 area includes all of Boyd, Carter, Greenup and Lawrence counties.

Some methods to reduce the number of accidents include selective enforcement, in which the state police are trying to establish more of a presence in the area, Kistner said.

Kistner said the case is going to go before the Lawrence County Grand Jury for further investigation.

Salyersville man pleads guilty to jury-rigging

A Salyersville man pleaded guilty Wednesday to taking part in a jury-rigging scheme in a $3.8 million insurance case, and a former Magoffin county sheriff is expected to plead guilty next week.

Bobby Earl Arnett, 56, a member of the allegedly rigged Magoffin Circuit Court jury, pleaded guilty to conspiracy in U.S. District Court.

Arnett told Judge Joseph Hood that former Magoffin County Sheriff Thomas "Skip" Salyer told him to hold out for more money, then paid him $2,000 after the verdict was in.

The case involves a December 23, 1988, accident in which Mark Bartley was injured after colliding with a truck owned by the Johnson Coca-Cola Bottling Group Inc. and operated by Eugene Howard.

Crime bill gives police extra money

As a result of America's new crime bill, regional police forces will be putting extra pairs of feet on the street.

According to the Department of Justice, 117 new police officers will be hired statewide under the COPS FAST program—an expedited grant program which was funded under last year's Crime bill. The program is targeted to communities with populations under 50,000 citizens.

With the grants, the regional police forces will be able to hire one additional police officer.

Under the COPS FAST program, hiring grants provide a maximum federal contribution of 75 percent of the salary and benefits of each officer over three years, up to a cap of $75,000 per officer.

The dollar amount for each grant is estimated because the Justice Department has not yet conducted a thorough financial review of each application.

Jurisdictions in Eastern Kentucky and the estimated funds they will receive are:

- Floyd County Sheriff's Office—$35,723.25
- Hindman, City of—$33,300.00
- Inez City Police—$38,250.00
- Jenkins Police Department—$40,099.50
- Lawrence County Sheriff—$33,187.50
- Letcher County Sheriff's Department—$38,207.25
- Martin County Sheriff—$58,662

Beyond rhetoric WHO'S ON WELFARE

Almost 6% of the U.S. population—about 15 million people—is on welfare or Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), costing taxpayers about $22 billion a year. A look at some of the myths and realities about welfare recipients:

Legislation to regulate trash eyed in Washington

U.S. Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers continued his efforts Tuesday to give local communities the right to decide whether or not they will accept trash from other states, by sponsoring legislation to stop interstate dumping without local permission.

The legislation will force trash and landfill operators from other states to get approval from local communities before building waste facilities in those communities.

It also gives local communities the opportunity to deny a permit for new waste disposal facilities if there is not a local or regional need for the facility.

"We in southern and eastern Kentucky should not be forced to accept New York's or any other states' trash if we don't want it," Rogers said. "Our bill is a step in the right direction. It will give our local communities the choice, not federal bureaucrats."

The House passed the bill overwhelmingly last year, but the session ended before the Senate and President Clinton could approve the legislation.

Pike jailer loses battle with leukemia

Pike County Jailer Morris "Coon" Stratton, 64, lost his 2 1/2-year battle with leukemia Wednesday about 1 a.m. at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington of complications related to the cancer.

Stratton had been in remission twice, but suffered a final relapse about six weeks ago, said his niece, jail bookkeeper Diana Thacker.

Stratton, who was elected to the post in November 1981, was driving a milk and ice cream truck when he decided to run for jailer, Thacker said. The jailer's job was always on his mind, even in the hospital, she said.

Stratton oversaw the move from the old jail that had housed participants of the Hatfield-McCoy feud of the late 1800s to the 144-bed jail installed in the new Hall, of Justice building in 1990.

Jewell Stratton helped her husband run the jail, and has been appointed to fill in until the general election. The winner of that race will serve out the remaining three years of his term.

Services will be at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Pikeville college gym. Visitation will be at 3 p.m. Thursday at Justice Funeral Home in Pikeville.

Appalachian Task Force gets grant

The Kentucky Appalachian Task force, a group that reported to the governor last month on ways to brighten Eastern Kentucky's future, will continue its work with $300,000 and a different name.

Ron Eller, who was chairman of the Kentucky Appalachian Task Force, is organizing the new Appalachian Program Advisory Council.

Eller said he envisioned the council as being similar to The Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, a grass-roots group that pushes for education reform.

Creation of the council was one of 80 recommendations in "Communities of Hope: Preparing for the Future in Appalachian Kentucky," a report the task force presented to Gov. Brereton Jones.

Subjects ranging from education to natural resources to housing are some of the other recommendations the council will tackle.

"A lot of the recommendations don't require state action, just getting groups together," Eller said Wednesday.

Some of the council might work with groups trying to convert abandoned railroad beds into trails, he said. Others might be working on day care, or on improving telecommunications in the region.

In a letter Tuesday to Eller, Jones said he would ask for part of the money from the Appalachian Regional Commission's federal co-chairman's fund. The rest will come from commission money allocated to Kentucky.

Jones asked Eller to establish a Kentucky Appalachian Development Institute. Eller said the institute would be a network of agencies such as area development districts, community colleges and the Berea-based Mountain Association for Community Economic Development.

The task force also asked Jones to fight to continue federal funding for ARC, which some Republican members of congress have suggested eliminating.

Jones said in his letter that he will testify before the House Subcommittee on appropriations on February 28, urging the committee to endorse President Clinton's budget request for the ARC.

Johnson County

Pennington trial continues

The classmates of Scott Pennington, accused of killing an East Carter High School teacher and janitor, testified in Johnson Circuit Court this week.

Students said Pennington held them for a while in a room at the school after shooting teacher Deanna McDavid, 48, and janitor Marvin Hicks, 51. Pennington then allowed the students to leave in groups, starting with the ones who had been friendly to him.

Prosecutor Barbara Whaley said in her opening statements last Thursday that Pennington, who was 17 at the time, committed "cold-blooded, intentional murders," and that Pennington had shot his teacher because she had given him a "C" on his report card.

The defense attorney for Pennington, Hugh Convery, told jurors that Pennington, now 19, suffered from mental illness and said the murders a "tragedy of an immature boy who became detached from reality." — Paintsville Herald

Johnson County avoids cuts, layoffs

(Johnson) County employees were saved from the chopping block Tuesday night by the Johnson County Fiscal Court.

County officials, expected to act on a recommendation to lay off some employees, instead tabled the issue, pending a study of the situation.

Johnson County Judge-Executive Hobert Meade announced that the matter would be tabled after a two-hour executive session by the fiscal court to discuss personnel.

Meade had predicted in January that he would have to lay off all employees paid from the county's general fund if problems with the county's property tax system were not immediately corrected.

That situation worsened a bit January 30 with the resignation of PVA Custer Picklesimer. The state Revenue enue Cabinet took temporary control of the PVA office. Revenue officials said they don't know when 1994 property taxes can be prepared, saying the county's emergency reassessments will have to be finished first. — Paintsville Herald

Administrator gets three more years

The administrator of the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Paintsville has been given three more years. The Johnson County Jail Authority last Thursday added three years to the contract of Ken O'Bryan, whose two-year contract was scheduled to expire in May.

Although some members of the jail authority had complained in January that the administrator had failed to tell them about a state inspection that uncovered numerous problems at the four-county jail facility, the vote to continue O'Bryan's contract was unanimous.

O'Bryan, a Paintsville resident, has been administrator since 1994, replacing Johnson County Jailer Thurman Tackett. — Paintsville Herald

Wrecker service owner tells council changes in policy may be illegal

A policy regarding wrecker service approved Tuesday night by the Paintsville City Council contains a provision that may be illegal, according to a wrecker service owner, who did not identify himself at the meeting.

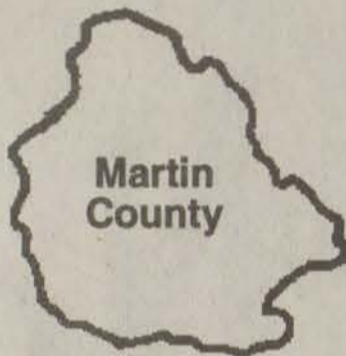

The provision requires wrecker services that want to be on the city's rotation list to remove vehicles from accident scenes within city limits to charge a minimum $35 towing fee.

The wrecker service owner told the council that under the federal Sherman Anti-trust Act, the provision could be found illegal.

Paintsville Mayor Robin Cooper said the purpose of the policy is not to set prices nor to regulate local wrecker services.

Police Chief Tom Haney said the city has the right to establish policies for towing services called by city officers.

Other provisions of the new guidelines require wrecker services to complete an application and pay a $300 permit fee annually; to provide the city proof of liability insurance limits of not less than $350,000; and to respond to a call for service within 15 minutes of notification. — Paintsville Herald

Dateline NBC to focus on failures and successes of ARC

The associate producer of the national television news program "Dateline NBC" was in Inez on Monday to discuss with county officials the 30th anniversary of President Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty.

The failures and successes of the Appalachian Regional Commission, formed on the heels of Johnson's visit to Martin County in 1965, will be the focus of a Dateline segment that will be filmed next week. Associate Producer Diedre Hanlon told wary county officials that the upcoming report will focus on a positive success story despite the Commission's failures. — The Mountain Citizen

Magoffin rated among worst in enforcing EPOs for women

Statistics presented to a legislative task force showed that emergency protective orders meant to protect women from violence are often poorly enforced in some rural areas of Kentucky.

Magoffin County had among the four worst records with 80 to 89 percent of the orders not being served or not properly reported on the computer network, LINK.

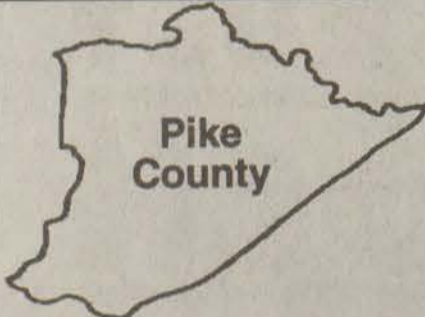

Knott, Leslie and Powell counties were listed as having the worst records, where more than 90 percent were not served or not properly reported. — Salyersville Independent recent disciplinary actions against him were the result of retaliation.

The suit states Edmonds suspended Meade after Meade registered complaints against the department with the Kentucky Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Meade sought reinstatement, a ban on any further disciplinary actions and monetary compensation.

Student who brought gun to school expelled

A Pikeville High School student was expelled for one year Monday night for bringing a firearm to school.

City school board members made the ruling after hearing from Assistant Principal Hillard Howard.

The student, a 14-year-old in the school system's special education program, brought a small-caliber handgun to classes in late January.

Because the student is a juvenile he was not named. And, the hearing was held in closed executive session. — Appalachian News-Express

City suspends police officer

After meeting for two days, Pikeville city commissioners have decided to reprimand police officer Johnny P. Meade.

After the disciplinary hearing Thursday, February 9, Mayor Steve Combs entertained a motion to adopt a resolution finding Meade guilty of misconduct and of violating the city's personnel policy.

The resolution also directed that Meade be "reprimanded for his conduct" and suspended from duty without pay for three months.

Prior to the hearing, Meade filed a lawsuit against the city and Police Chief Eugene "Buster" Edmonds, saying

LI. Gov. Patton addresses group on ethics

Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton was in Pikeville Monday to discuss ethics, namely his plan for raising the ethical consciousness of young people.

Patton was the keynote speaker at a business seminar hosted by Pikeville College's chapter of Phi Beta Lambda. The focus of the seminar was to develop a better understanding of ethical problems in both private life and business.

Students, faculty and area business leaders participated in roundtable meetings, discussing case studies of instances when ethical issues played a role in business decisions. — Appalachian News-Express

Local nurse captures nature through photography

by Polly Ward
Times Feature

Sheree Colley spends five days a week traveling throughout Floyd County as a home health nurse for McDowell ARH Home Health Agency. But on the weekends, the amateur photographer is usually exploring the scenic backwoods of Eastern Kentucky, looking for that perfect camera shot.

More often than not, Colley has found it. Her photos have won first, second and third place awards at regional festivals, including the Black Gold Festival in Hazard, the Mountain Heritage Festival in Whitesburg and the Wise County Fair in Wise, Virginia. Presently, her work is on exhibit at Prestonsburg Community College's Art Gallery through February 24. Colley's work will also be on exhibit in June at the Artist Attic located in the Festival Market in Lexington.

The exhibit ranges from panoramic Eastern Kentucky landscapes to a single wildflower framed against a moonlit sky. Also included are picturesque views of her travels: seascapes, nighttime city skylines, and wonders of nature, such as the Grand Canyon; and photos of children.

"I like to do children's snapshots," the photographer said. "Adults don't like to have their picture taken, but kids love to show off for the camera."

Colley said she has about 120 matted and framed color photographs. She doesn't sell any of the pictures, "but I give a lot as gifts. I just like to do them," she said.

Colley's interest in photography began in childhood.

"My father traveled a lot," she said. "Traveling inspired me. We lived in 13 different states when I was growing up, mostly in New England."

Until she was twenty, the 35-year-old registered nurse took pictures of her travels with an instamatic camera. Then she started working for a pediatrician whose hobby was photography. Impressed with the different techniques the doctor achieved with a 35 millimeter camera, Colley put away her instamatic, bought a 35 millimeter, and started experimenting.

One of Colley's favorite places to photograph is rural Letcher County, where she has a house and strong family ties. When her father retired, her parents moved back to their native Letcher County.

"My sons and I do a lot of four-wheeling on a strip mine in Letcher County," she said. "It is a place you'd never notice without looking at it through a camera."

Another favorite spot is Carr Fork Lake, in Knott County, where she takes advantage of the natural light.

"I like to do a lot of pictures in the morning and at night because of the natural lighting. It gives your pictures a time of day. It gives you a different perspective."

Colley said that in her free time she usually picks a spot to photograph, then "On Sunday I get up at 5 or 6 o'clock and go there."

Colley's sons, Jeremy, 14, and Kyle, 8, join her on expeditions. "They are really enthusiastic," she said. "They get to travel and they assist by carrying my camera equipment. They help with little tricks to take pictures."

In August, the nurse moved to Prestonsburg from Lexington because her sons were homesick for the mountains. Since that time, her home health clients have been giving her ideas about places in Floyd County to photograph. "Most of my photos were shot in Letcher County," she explained. "That's what I plan to do in Floyd County this summer (take lots

The photographer, who has no formal training in her favorite hobby, has only one tip for would-be photographers: "Practice. Keep at it."

Health conference to examine smoking issues

Recognizing that smoking in Kentucky is a complex issue involving health problems, the economy and tradition, a major public health conference in March will examine all of these factors.

Health Commissioner Rice Leach, M.D., says that in addition to focusing on the many health problems caused by smoking, the conference will also look at smoking from the perspective of the tobacco industry.

"On an issue as important as smoking, health interests will be best served by sharing concerns," Leach said. "This conference will bring together health advocates and tobacco industry representatives for a dialogue on all of the issues surrounding smoking in Kentucky."

"Every day, nurses in our local health departments talk to smokers with heart disease, with emphysema, with diabetes and with cancer, and tell them the harm that smoking is doing to their bodies," Leach said.

"Most smokers find it very difficult to give up their habit, even when they can see the damage they're doing to themselves," he said, "but if those smokers and their families have raised tobacco for years, you're getting into all kinds of other issues—history, tradition and culture."

The Department for Health Services Third Chronic Disease Conference is open to all interested parties. The conference, which occurs every two years, is scheduled for March 7 and 8 at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Lexington.

The conference's key session is a "town meeting," scheduled for 1:15 p.m. March 8. Health advocates and tobacco industry representatives will present information and take questions from the audience.

Participating in the town meeting will be Kentucky farmer and author

Wendell Berry, Pamela Clay of Kentucky Organic Growers, Randall Elisha Greene of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, Hal Hamilton of Community Farm Alliance, state Rep. Anne Meagher Northrup of Louisville, Dr. Barbara A. Phillips of UK Chandler Medical Center, Rev. Ben Poage of Kentucky Appalachian Ministry, and Jim Roach and Steve Watkins of Kentucky ACTION (a coalition of health organizations).

The town meeting will be moderated by Al Smith, producer and host of KET's "Comment on Kentucky" and host of "PrimeLine with Al Smith" on WVLK-AM.

Scheduled speakers for other sessions include Reginald Finger, M.D., state epidemiologist; Elbert D. Glover, director, Tobacco Research Center, West Virginia; Robert Rosner, former director, Smoking Policy Institute, Washington, D.C.; Thomas C. Tucker, associate director for cancer control, UK Markey Cancer Center; and Stephen Wheeler, M.D., assistant professor and associate director of residency training, University of Louisville, Department of Family and Community Medicine.

Pre-registration for the conference is $20 for both days and $10 for one day. The pre-registration deadline is March 1. Registration at the door is $25 for both days; $12.50 for one day.

THE ENTREPRENEURIAL SPIRIT

-- In August, police in Sao Paulo, Brazil, arrested master thief Robson Augusto Araujo and confiscated a stash of his business cards with the firm name (in Portuguese) "Thefts and Robberies, Ltd." and his job title "Thief." Though the card's address was fake, the cellular phone number was real, along with the legend "325 iS," which is the model of BMW he specialized in stealing.

-- And in August, police in Chandler, Ariz., confiscated a videotape allegedly made by four teen-age boys known as the Insane Skate Posse and containing inspirational promotional messages of mayhem and destruction designed to recruit new members for their gang. They are shown having fun by smoking marijuana, drinking beer, destroying a parked car and making harassing phone calls.

-- In July the Catholic Church in the Netherlands announced it had reached an agreement with cellular telephone companies to sell space on church steeples for the companies' antennas.

-- In October, The New York Times reported that Kimberly-Clark Corp. had received a patent for chemically realistic, synthetic feces that it regards as crucial for testing diapers and incontinence garments. Technicians had concluded that makeshift substances, such as mashed potatoes, peanut butter and canned pumpkin pie mix were inadequate because they separated into liquids and solids more quickly than feces does.

-- The People's Insurance Company of China recently began offering a marriage insurance policy, in which a couple that divorces forfeits all premiums paid, but a couple that stays together 25, 40, or 50 years stands to gain substantial dividends.

-- In December, Dr. Henry Abrams of Loveladies, N.J., who was Albert Einstein's ophthalmologist and who removed Einstein's eyes during his autopsy in 1955 (storing them in a safe-deposit box ever since), announced the eyes were for sale and said he expected they could bring $5 million.

-- Recent Sensitive People: Brenda L. Hunter, 31, Zion, Ill., allegedly shot her brother because she did not like the kind of cheese he was putting on their chili dinner; Michael R. -- The Charlotte Observer reported in June that a Sanford, N.C., man drove to City Hall, wearing only a towel, to complain that his water had just been shut off in the middle of his shower. There's a growing concern in the medical community these days that too many kids are suffering from a condition known as Attention Deficit Disorder, which prevents them from concentrating on one subject for an extended period of, uh...

For an, ah...

For, um...

Four score and seven years ago...

Oops.

Okay, okay. Let's try to be serious.

The experts say a lot of kids who are being written off as juvenile delinquents are getting a bad rap because they are really victims of Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD), and a little understanding, patience, and treatment can help turn their lives around.

Okay, but that's not what we really want to talk about.

We're more concerned with the ridicule, humiliation and condemnation folks our age face on a daily basis just because we happen to forget minor details on this or that every once in a while.

Look, when you hit 40, your body undergoes considerable physiological change, causing your brain to ignore trivial data...like where you parked the car or the full names of all your children.

But you never hear anybody proposing treatments for that problem now, do you?

Well, there are a couple of good reasons why you don't.

First, the folks who should be thinking about this over-40 memory deficit disorder are usually over 40 themselves.

They mean to do something about it, but they just can't remember what.

The biggest reason for letting this memory thing go, though, relates to economics.

If everybody over 40 remembered why they went to the store and what they went there to buy, the economy of this country would collapse.

Why, just the other day we went to the store to buy some triple-A batteries for the old remote control.

Made it home with about a hundred bucks worth of stuff. Everything but the batteries.

Didn't matter, though.

Can't find that darn channel flipper, anyway.

Duff Elementary rocks

The month of December was full of music events at James A. Duff Elementary.

December 16, nine Duff students traveled to Prestonsburg to perform in the KY OPRY ALL-STARS production of "Santa's Holiday Hoedown." Jessica Branham, Jamie Gunnell, Chanda Stephens, Virginia Shepherd, Ryan Owens, Heath Scott, Gary Hunter, Kristopher Fultz, and Nick Samons attended rehearsals all month, and then gave a fantastic performance at 10:30 a.m.

That evening, Duff students and their families filled the bleachers as the students performed their annual Christmas concert. All students, K-8, had the opportunity to perform. The beginning band, as well as the advanced band, under the direction of Ceci Houston, performed classic Christmas pieces. Kindergarten and primary students started singing with "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," and continued with "Frosty the Snowman," "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," "Here Comes Santa Claus," and finished with "Away in a Manger."

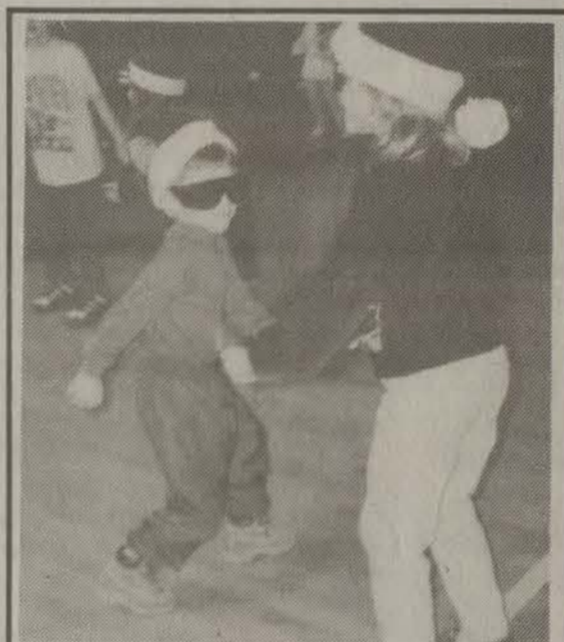

They sang beautifully under the direction of Joy Wallace. Miss Wallace also directed the 4th-8th grades. They began their portion of the program by singing "Holly Jolly Christmas," "The Twelve Days of Christmas," "Nuttin' for Christmas," "Let it Snow!," and finished with "Silent Night." The audience joined the students in singing "Silent Night," and the concert helped us all to join in the Christmas Spirit.

On Tuesday, December 20, the Allen Central band, under the direction of Ceci Houston, performed a Christmas concert for Duff students in the Duff gym at 9 a.m. The Duff band students also joined in the action by performing a few numbers.

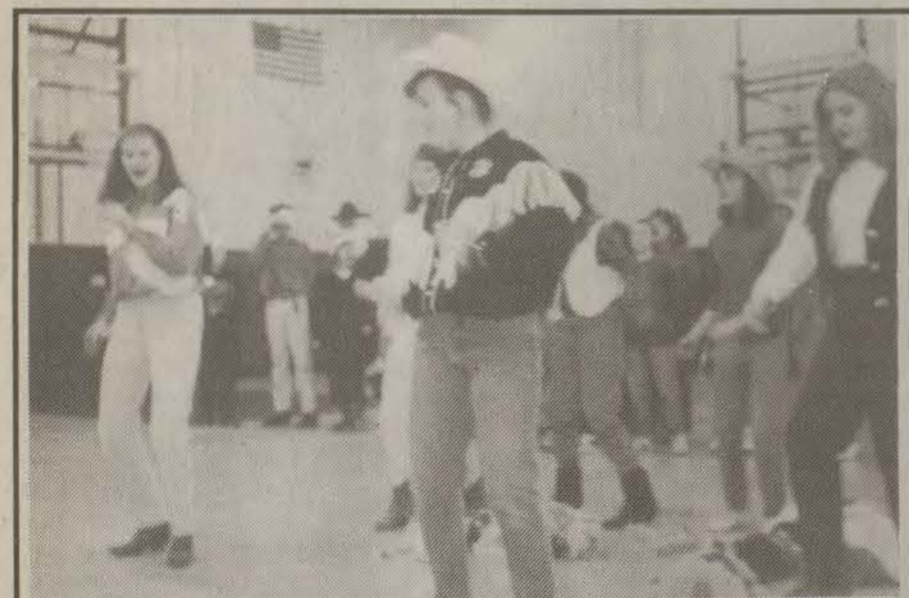

The following day, Wednesday, December 21, the Duff chorus students performed "Santa's Holiday Hoedown" for the school. Joy Wallace led the students in the musical that portrayed Santa and his elves trying to raise money to save the toyshop. They finally did save the toyshop by traveling to Branson, Missouri, and putting on a country-western show. The students were very disciplined to learn the speaking parts and dance routines, in addition to the singing parts. Ryan Owens, Barbie Samons, Jamie Gunnell, Natlie Cooley, and Mary Ann Mullins sang solos in the production.

Wednesday evening, the primary students presented a Christmas program directed by the primary teachers, Joyce Gore, Lenice Manns, Sharon Sexton, Melanie Turner, Sharon Justice, Audreyetta Lawson, Shirlene Patton, and Maudie Sexton. The students did motions to "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree," and "Jingle Bell Rock," and they also acted out the story, "The Night Before Christmas." It was a wonderful program! The primary students performed again on Thursday for Duff students.

Hoedown

Stephanie Sexton, Mary Ann Mullins and Becky Chaffins strutted to the sound of Country during Santa's Holiday Hoedown at Duff Elementary.

"On Donner"

Jamie Gunnell portrayed Santa's reindeer, Donner, in the Duff Elementary chorus production of Santa's Holiday Hoedown.

Murder In The First

So-called "prison" movies of yore were truly terrifying. Watching them, you knew that you never wanted to do anything that would land you in a place where you'd be tortured, abused and lose all human dignity to "pay" for your crime. And, for the most part, those were accurate depictions. The prison system in this country USED to be a real penal system. That's a far cry from the country-club atmospheres we provide our criminals today, with cable television, fully-equipped gyms, counseling, free education, etc. The pendulum has swung absurdly and it actually isn't such a bad thing to go to prison after all!

What we have in this film is a good old-fashioned prison film, reminiscent of the '30s and '40s. It is based on the real-life trial of Alcatraz convict, Henri Young (Kevin Bacon). Young is on trial for murdering another inmate. During the course of his trial, he exposes the inhuman conditions of Alcatraz, detailing torture and abuse and almost unbelievable squalid conditions.

Christian Slater is James Stamphill, a young, idealistic lawyer fresh out of law school. His first case is defending Young, whose stabbing of the inmate was witnessed by no less than 200 other inmates since it took place in the prison dining hall.

While Stamphill's superiors feel it's a good way for him to get his feet wet since he's bound to lose, the crusading lawyer soon discovers there are mitigating circumstances to this murder.

His ultimate defense? Alcatraz was the real murderer and Young was merely the weapon. This is a marvelous piece of cinema. Both Slater and Bacon really bring these characters to life. The audience finds itself swept up in a tide of empathy. The film's a real stunner. Make it a point to catch it.

The abominable snowman

When snowflakes fall, something weird happens to the male species when it comes to vehicles. Maybe it is has to do with the male hormone testosterone, but when those white fluffs appear, men become incredible hulks with incredible macho egos. At least that's the way it appears to happen at our house. My husband's pioneer spirit emerges and he reacts like Ward Bond on Wagon Train.

"Hitch them horses up and get the women and children in the wagons. Tether those supplies to the sides, men, and lets get rolling!"

During one severe and lengthy snowstorm when the snow drifts obstructed our view of the outside world and icicles were our main source of potable water, my husband informed me that he was going to the store for tobacco.

"My Lord, Jimmie!" I exclaimed. "You wouldn't actually get out in this weather, would you?"

"In this little dusting of whiteness," he pooch-pooched. "My brother-in-law and I took out for Florida in worse weather than this. We just chained the tires and loaded the trunk down with cinder blocks and headed down I-75 at 70 miles an hour. Cars were stopped all along the highway, but we only slowed down to get gas. That was the same year they closed the state of Georgia."

"Oh, Jimmie. Don't exaggerate," I sputtered.

"You women are such wusses when it comes to snow, but let something go half price at a store and you women would defy an atomic threat to get there."

"That's simply not true," I proclaimed indignantly. "I wouldn't risk life and limb for a bargain, unless it would enhance the quality of my life by approximately 150 percent."

"And what, pray tell, would that item be?"

"A sale on alpha hydroxy or that new fat burning pill that squeezes fat out of your body while you eat potato chips and dip them in drawn butter. Just what was your rush to Florida, anyway?"

He eyed me curiously, as I asked the question, before replying, "Well, it was snowing here, and it's warm down there."

"Warm weather is not what made you risk your life," I intoned knowingly. "If you left out in weather that treacherous it had to be for a good reason. Did you have to go get a sick relative?"

"It was a more important reason than that. The Daytona 500."

"Excuse me? You abandoned your families for nothing more than an idle whim, a luxury?"

"It wasn't a whim. It was a bona fide NASCAR extravaganza. We were covered by life insurance though."

I was dumbfounded. This man whom I'd always thought exhibited the intelligence of Einstein was admitting to me that he had put himself and the rest of his family in jeopardy by departing on an icy, treacherous, sentimental journey down I-75 in a souped-up Ford buoyed by cement blocks and the Grace of the Almighty just to watch automobiles crash into solid objects at death-defying speeds.

The next time our 17-year-old asks to drive his car in snowy, subzero weather just to attend a ball game I'll understand his reasoning much better.

SOAP UPDATES

NOTE: Because of the O.J. Simpson trial pre-emptions, some story lines from last week may be repeated this week.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Janet sent "Will" to spook Dixie at the victim's rights rally where Jack spotted Janet in the crowd. Brooke downplayed Liz's fears of Edmund's life. Meanwhile, Edmund told Maria he loved her before he left. Later, Edmund's car exploded in flames. Derek told Maria he never had a chance. At Will's grave, "Will" told Dixie to give up the campaign against Janet. Kendall worried that Edmund's death might send Anton back to Wildwind. Wait To See: Janet reacts to Tad's warning.

ANOTHER WORLD: After Grant broke off with Lorna, she turned to drink. The Millers realized they'd kidnapped the wrong baby and secretly returned "Mark" to Bridget and Vicky. Vicky warned Grant she'd kill him before letting him get Kirk. Later, Vicky told a stunned Ryan the truth about the baby switch. She later took a loaded gun and left for the airport with Bridget and Kirk. Grant covered his shock when Patrick told him of the switched babies. Carl and Rachel discussed getting back at Grant for cheating on Amanda. Ryan got a call from Grant implicating Vicky. Wait To See: Jake faces a showdown with Eberhard.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Although weakened by the chemotherapy, John left the hospital. Pete called Julie a liar for not revealing the reason for Hans' visit. Lisa anticipated a romantic evening, unaware of what lay ahead. Eduardo was wounded in a gunshot exchange with Hans as Margo and Hal closed in on him. After reading a mysterious letter, Eduardo gave Orlena an ultimatum. Damian watched, unseen, as Holden assured Lily about Damian's safety. Orlena took drastic measures to protect herself. Lily found Damian in an unlikely place. Wait To See: Lisa faces a shocking revelation.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Sitting at her father's bedside, Taylor told Jack she was alive and would be there for him. She later had a makeover to avoid being recognized by anyone. Macy was unable to get Thorne to agree to sing without her. After Sally turned down his demand for 50 percent of Spectra, Anthony told Ivana he would get his revenge. Ivana tried unsuccessfully to seduce Thorne. She later told Anthony her plan to get back at both Macy and Thorne would involve an unusual "fan letter" to Macy. Sheila was rocked by James' warning that he'll call Lauren if she didn't tell him more about the murder. Wait To See: Macy faces a crucial decision.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: John discovered Marlana was the desecrator. With demonic strength, she attacked him, but was subdued with an injection from Mike. Laura set off to confront Jack, believing he was the cause of her illness. When she spotted "Clark" (actually Jack), she rushed to tell Jen about it. Meanwhile, a furious Peter saw Jack embracing Jen. Vivian gave birth to Victor and Kate's child, unaware that Victor wanted the marriage certificate. A drugged Austin made love to Sami believing she was Carrie. Wait To See: Marlana's demonic power grows.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Alan felt the bond he and Monica shared for years was missing. Sonny confronted his father with accusations of abandonment. Ryan told Connie he needed her help to "end it all." Foster and Annabelle shared in Valentine's Day rituals. Tiffany shared exciting news with Felicia. Tom Hardy returned from Africa to find things quite different. Wait To See: Joe has plans that Sonny might not appreciate.

GUIDING LIGHT: Lucy ran off after flirting with Cutter. Eleni begged an old fisherman to take her to Christos' island. Alan-Michael secretly arranged for Frank to get the airfare to Greece. Alexandra was thrilled to learn Roger and Holly were split over her involvement with another man. Alexandra told Fletcher she was making up for her past behavior. Alan and Alan-Michael tiffed over Tangie's expected return. Brent told a stunned A-M he had asked Lucy out. Wait To See: A surprise awaits Alexandra.

COUNTRY CHATTER

Dear Rhonda: I adore Patty Loveless, but I have a few questions. First, I'm curious about her last name. Second, how did this wonderful performer get her start in show biz? Thank you, Terrence B.

Well, Terrence, outside of being one of today's best performers worldwide, Patty is also one smart cookie. Born Patty Ramey, she married Terry Lovelace of North Carolina in 1975. After her divorce, though, Patty cleverly changed her name to Patty Loveless.

As for Patty's rise to stardom, at 14, she ventured from Kentucky off to Nashville where Porter Wagoner and Dolly Parton recognized her great talent by gratefully acknowledging all the songs she had written and presented to them.

In 1985, Patty, a big fan of Vince Gill, stated, "I'm going to sing with you one day." She soon signed with MCA Records and has been charming all of us with her wonderful voice since. She currently records on the Epic label.

RHONDA REMINDS—Willie Nelson is up for a Grammy Award for "Moonlight Becomes You." He goes against the likes of Streisand, Bennett, Sinatra and Flack... A special thanks to Clint Black who raised over a half-million bucks for the University of Minnesota's Children's Center last January—God Bless You, Clint!

Weird

Denny's, stormed into the kitchen, held his service revolver to the cook's head, and told her he would kill her if she didn't hurry up. In August, in Oklahoma City, a Hardee's restaurant worker, angered that a drive-through customer continued to complain about the delay in his order, stripped off his headset, ran to his car, grabbed his gun out of the trunk, and threatened the customer before fleeing.

-- Christian-oriented radio station WKID in Vevay, Ind., was burglarized and set afire in September, probably by the man who became angry earlier in the day when a DJ refused to play his request. (Editor's Note: The song was "Don't Take the Girl" by Tim McGraw. DJs seeking to avoid trouble are advised to honor all requests to play that song.)

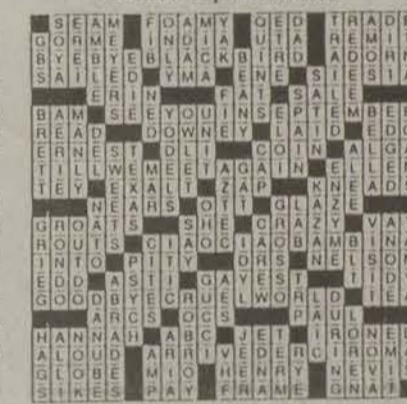

MISCELLANEOUS ELOQUENCE

-- Oklahoma City prosecutor Pattye Wallace, on a jury's recommendation that Charles Scott Robinson be sentenced to 5,000 years in prison on each of six counts of rape of a 3-year-old girl (which the judge ruled were to be served in sequence, from 1995 until the year 31995): "I don't know if we'll get more 30,000-year sentences or not, but [this one] was deserved."

Pointers For Parents

Teenage Drinking (NAPS)—These answers from the American Council on Alcoholism, Inc. may help many parents.

Parents can help their teenagers be smart about alcohol.

Q. Why do teenagers drink?

A. Some out of curiosity or a desire to appear more grown up. Some teens drink to "fit in" with a particular crowd or to "protest" restrictions. It's important for parents to set a good example: drink moderately if they choose to drink.

Q. How can I tell if my child has a drinking problem?

A. Any prolonged or profound change in mood, appearance, interests, grades or spending patterns could be a sign of a problem and a possible need for professional help.

Free Brochure For a free brochure on teenage drinking, write the American Council on Alcoholism, Inc., 2522 St. Paul St., Baltimore, MD 21218; or call 1-800-527-5344.

Fight Leukemia

(NAPS)—You can help scientists find a cure for a dread disease and help yourself have an enjoyable hour at the same time.

A new video, "Hall of Fame Handball Champions," has been created for the pleasure of anyone who appreciates a great game of handball. The proceeds from its sale will go to the Leukemia Society of America in honor of Handball Hall of Famer and boxing manager Jim Jacobs, who died of leukemia in 1988.

For a copy of the video and the satisfaction of knowing you're helping researchers find a way to fight the disease, send a check for $29.99 to the Jim Jacobs Leukemia Fund, Leukemia Society of America, 600 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10016.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to Application No. 036-00022 IN1RG1 and 036-00022 TS2RG1

The Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Waste Management has received a registration application for both an incinerator and an autoclave to process medical waste from Medisin, Inc. in Floyd County.

The applicant proposes to utilize the autoclave portion of the facility to process twelve hundred (1,200) pounds of waste per hour. The existing incinerators will process only the incoming waste requiring incineration. The amount of material projected by Medisin, Inc. to require incineration once the autoclave is installed and operational is twelve (12) tons annually. The registration for the incinerator will be conditioned for compliance with the Floyd County Solid Waste Management Plan. The disposal facility for both the ash residue and the autoclave waste is Mingo County Landfill in West Virginia. The sources of waste for this facility are: Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, Perry, Harlan, Morgan, Letcher, Bell, Knott, Lewis and Fayette Counties in Kentucky; Fayette, Logan, Beckley, and Mann Counties in West Virginia; and Wise County in Virginia. The only variance requested by the applicant was for relief from the weekly extraction procedure test. Medisin's request was based on the fact that they are required to test the ash pursuant to Division of Air Quality and Hazardous Waste regulations. The Division will require quarterly testing or any time there is a significant change in the waste stream. The Division has also added Dioxin and Furan as of concern constituents that needed to be tested. The facility is located on U.S. 23 North in Prestonsburg.
