The special grand jury is set to meet Tuesday, June 13 to begin hearing evidence in the special probe and some witnesses have been asked to appear before them on June 14.

Floyd Circuit Judges John David Caudill and Danny P. Caudill impaneled the special grand jury on May 30 on a request by Larry Fentress, a special prosecutor for the state's attorney general.

Two previous Floyd County grand juries called for the attorney general's office to investigate allegations of government corruption; possible criminal acts relating to the administration of the county's solid waste program; the delay in implementing an E-911 service in the county; allegations of vote fraud; and approximately $26,000

When Dr. W. D. Osborne Elementary salutatorian Brent Cook spoke at the school's graduation ceremony Wednesday night, June 7, the topic of his speech was "Determination to get through life."

It is a subject the eighth grader knows from first-hand experience.

Brent was born with spinal defect called spina bifida, which caused some paralysis of his legs. He relies on crutches to get around, and because of fatique from his as rapes between employer and employee, teacher and student, physician and patient, adult dates and teen dates, Mountain Comprehensive Care guidelines indicate.

In 1992, half the women who had reported they had been raped were juveniles under 18 years of age, according to a study of 11 states and Washington, D.C. by the U.S. Department of Justice.

The study also pointed out that 24 percent of rapes of child victims under 12 were by acquaintances or friends. Only six percent of the victims did not know their attackers.

Acquaintance rapes are rarely reported, Fonetta Elam, rape victims services clinical director said recently.

"Date rape occurs with someone you trust," Elam said. "Yet someone has hurt you. (The victim) probably loves that person and the person promises that he won't do that any more."

The victim goes back into the situation, trusting that the incident won't happen again, Elam explained, but it often does happen

On Wednesday night, Brent was honored as not only the second top student in his eighth grade class; He was also awarded the Woodsman of the World Award for the best grade point average in social studies and history over the last two years. And that's not all the awards he has racked up.

Three years ago as a sixth grad-Brent won Osborne Elementary's spelling bee in his first competition. This year in February, Brent won the countywide spelling bee championship for the second year in a row. High School students. Counselors explain to the students that offenders think the victim has forfeited her right to say "no" if she accepts his invitation, but that is wrong.

In the Dater's Bill of Rights distributed to students, students are told they have a right to say "No."

"Intimacy does not always mean sexual," according to the list of daters' rights.

Mountain Comprehensive Care counselors also offer tips on how to know that a date is a potential rape date.

If the date is possessive, if he wants to know everywhere that you're going, he could be a potential rapist, Elam said. Also beware if he suggests going to his house when no one is at home or to an isolated strip mine.

Judge Caudill disagreed.

The judge read a portion of a May 12 letter from Boysen to the board which said that there was no need for the board to meet because their "actions have no legal effect."

"That is a suspension and I so find," the judge ruled.

Judge Caudill also said that a follow-up letter on May 30 from Boysen to the board was an attempt to resolve the suspension issue. "Whether Boysen did it or someone pointed it out to him, it was an uh-oh," the judge said. "There is a definite uh-oh here."

Judge Caudill said that he would not address any constitutional issues related to case because he felt those issues were not raised by the board's attorney, Edison Banks. The judge added that any disputes arising out of decisions made by the state acting as the board should be argued in Franklin Circuit Court.

Bender said after the hearing that state officials will appeal the ruling to the state's Court of Appeals.

During the hearing, Letcher board chairman Tommy Vanover and board member Will Smith testified that they had been told that the board could meet, but it had no authority to make any decisions.

The two board members said that they were told they were private citizens and that interim Letcher superintendent Michael King did not offer any meeting facilities to the board.

Vanover said that the board did meet once in the district courtroom at the Letcher County Courthouse.

"We were told we could meet, but it would not have any legal effect," Vanover testified.

In reference to evidence relating to a state advisory committee appointed by Boysen to act as the school board, Judge Caudill asked Bender how the advisory committee could hold school board meetings in Frankfort.

"How come they had a Letcher County School Board meeting in Frankfort?" Judge Caudill asked. "When is the Letcher County School Board going to meet in Letcher County? I assume if the board is in control of the system, they should meet where the system is.

Bender replied he did not know when the board would meet in Letcher County.

"You should talk to your superiors about that," Judge Caudill said.

The state has managed the Letcher County school district for over a year and the state board recently voted to keep the system under state management.

In announcing the takeover, Boysen said that the school district had become "disruptive and adversarial" to members of a state management team, which has been in place since last June.

The state school board met Wednesday and upheld Boysen's decision to take over the district.

"It was like nothing I ever felt in my life," Brent said about winning his first county spelling bee title.

To prepare for the competitions, Brent studied spelling books for about an hour a day, he said. Confidence also helped him cinch this year's title, "Because I won the competition last year, " he said, "this year I was calm."

Brent sees a homebound teacher one hour a week, and has kept up his studies on his own, in part because he is an excellent reader. "I started reading when I was real young. Mom read me stories," he said.

Brent's hobbies are watching television game shows, reading mysteries, and tinkering with electronics. "I'd like to be an electrican because I like electronics. I like just about anything that has to do with electronics."

Brent's mother, Perlene Cook, seems at bit amazed at her son's ability to adjust to his physical disability. "I've been with Brent through it all," she said. "His hard work and determination-I can't describe it. He has more drive than anybody I know."

Perlene also credits Shelia Vance, an eighth grade teacher at Osborne, for the support she has given Brent. "Mrs. Vance has helped Brent along the way. All the teachers have been good, but she has been a friend to Brent since the fourth grade. She has seen that there has been someone to carry Brent's books and she has just always looked out for Brent."

"He's just a very special person," Vance said. "He's very intelligent, very determined and all around just a good person."

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul-Voltaire

A tale of two systems

by Scott Perry

Public education in this country is rooted in the premise that every child ought to have an equal opportunity to get a quality education.

In Kentucky that theory was the basis for ruling our old system unconstitutional and the foundation for KERA, the Kentucky Education Reform Act.

But providing equal education is difficult, for a very distinct reason.

Students abilities aren't equal. That point was made, perhaps by accident, in two separate articles published in Thursday's Wall Street Journal.

There was, however, one similarity between the educational efforts that jumped off the pages.

Our current system of public education is failing both groups.

It seems that our attempts to "mainstream" public education by throwing all kids under one roof and into one "general" curriculum isn't making allowances for the diversity found in student populations.

One group is bored by the lack of challenge and the other is incapable or unwilling to face the challenges that are there.

The results have been creation of alternative programs, designed specifically for students who fit either end of the educational spectrum.

Road creates access to W. P'burg cemetery

Editor:

Thanks to Prestonsburg Mayor Fannin and the city council for taking a narrow dirt path to the West Prestonsburg cemetery and making a good gravel road.

With the cooperation of the Elliott, McKenzie and Robinson families, the path has been widened, graded, ditched and graveled. This is the only road to this very old cemetery with the date of 1865 on some monuments

Earl Horn is the self-appointed caretaker and has worked faithfully for several years cutting brush, roses and honeysuckle vines, finding many graves long forgotten. He will accept donations through the West Prestonsburg Post Office.

Since the road has been opened, many families are able to visit and decorate the graves of their loved ones. All have expressed appreciation for the good work you did for all who have fond memories of the old West Prestonsburg cemetery.

Thanks again.

KERA cannot be cured; needs major overhaul

Editor:

KERA's failings cannot be cured by tinkering or fine-tuning. A major overhaul of the act is required. Overhaul is necessary because through KERA, Kentucky adopted outcome-based education. Outcome-based education changes the focus of schooling from the academic achievement of individual students to developing students' abilities to demonstrate learner outcomes. Two, maybe three, of KERA's six learner outcomes resemble academic goals. The remainder are behavioral in nature. (See K.R.S. 158. 6451(1)(b)). Advocates of outcome-based education place equal or greater importance on teaching the non-academic outcomes. Unless outcome-based education is expelled from the schools, instruction in academic disciplines-reading, language arts, math, history, science-will play second fiddle to instruction in state

Commissioner Boysen, after resigning, has circulated to local school administrators a proposed curriculum for instruction in character and values. (Program Review dated May 4, 1995). The proposed curriculum describes strategies for teaching students to become self-sufficient individuals and responsible members of a family, work group or community. The Administrative Regulatory Review Subcommittee of the General Assembly refused to approve instruction in these learner outcomes as part of Kentucky's Learning Goals and Academic Expectations. Commissioner Boysen now thumbs his nose at the General Assembly by encouraging implementation of this curriculum through a departmental memorandum.

Advocates of outcome-based education will continue to impose their socialistic, time consuming and costly agenda on our children and families so long as even their little toe remains in the door. Therefore, a major overhaul of KERA is necessary.

delivered by William B. Sturgill, president of East Kentucky Investment Company Inc. of Lexington and chairman of the board of trustees of Pikeville College.

During Sturgill's address to the 183 graduates and approximately 2,000 guests, he reflected on his own personal quest to "count all the negative media about the ills of Appalachia and Eastern Kentucky." According to Sturgill, the best way to diminish the stereotypes that so often plague Eastern Kentuckians is through education beginning at the elementary level and continuing through the post-college level.

Citing educational improvements that have been made throughout history, Sturgill commended past leaders for their roles in upgrading the educational system. The most noted changes for Eastern Kentucky, such as the elimination of one-room schools; higher salaries for teachers; high school consolidations; an improvement in the curriculum of courses, and a marked advancement of the transportation system, occurred as a result of the implementation of the Minimum Foundation Program enacted by the 1954 general legislature.

Sturgill also recognized several past leaders of Pikeville College who

' The legacy of commitment for academic excellence continued through the tireless efforts of Mary Inglis Spilman, who according to Sturgill, "became the most beloved and active embodiment of the spirit of Pikeville College." Sturgill paid tribute to President A. A. Page for his divine leadership in restoring a balanced budget in the most difficult of times. The first bachelor's degree graduate of Pikeville College, President John Woodhill, only served one year but left a challenge that is still the mission of the College today-" to give educational and spiritual guidance not only to mountain youth ... but to youth across this nation."

Sturgill then praised President Owens for his ten years of service to Pikeville College. He vowed "that it was a fortunate day for us and this College when this optimistic, dedicated, native son of Eastern Kentucky decided that his future was Sturgill ended his remarks with a word of advice to the graduates. Big Sandy ADD jobless rate down

In the Big Sandy region, the jobless rate went down from a revised 7.7 percent in March to a preliminary 7.6 percent rate in April. Local rates ranged from 6.9 percent in Johnson County to 11.3 percent in Magoffin County, the only county in the ADD with a double-digit rate.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 29.6 percent had worked in mining, 15.9 percent in trade, 13.8 percent in percent in transportation, communications and utilities, 12.7 percent in construction and 7.9 percent in services.

State to probe Pike school system tion will audit the Pike County School System to see if it owes the state money for outside students not charged tuition, an official said Tuesday. The issue arose after a Belfry High School student sued to be named the school's valedictorian. Caroline Slater is from Williamson, West Virginia, and says she and at least 10 other West Virginia residents were studying free at Belfry.

"If the audit shows that they've been collecting state money for nonresident students, we would ask them

The state Department of Educa- to pay some back or deduct it from to determine if we have any outside their next check or something," said Education Department spokesman Jim Parks. "Knowingly, we don't pay for out-of-state students."

Around the Region

The state pays about $17 a day per student, per day of attendance.

District spokesman Bruce Hopkins said attendance records indicate there are no out-of-state students attending Pike County schools. But he noted that Belfry High School's student roster alone lists at least 25 students with out-of-state addresses.

"Every year, the Department of Pupil Personnel surveys all schools residents," he said. "(Belfry Principal Frank) Welch did not submit a form this year. But in a follow-up call, he said he had no (outside) students."

Welch said he did not recall that conversation. But he said it was no secret that West Virginia students attended the school, a short distance from the Tug Fork of the Big Sandy River that separates the two states. "I'm sure that I do, but I don't think I have 25," he said.

As for the form, Welch said he thought someone else had handled it.

"I didn't fool with it because I didn't have time," he said. "Evidently, it didn't get sent in."

Hopkins said the district's policy would be to charge outsiders at least enough to cover the state reimbursement. Williamson (West Virginia) High School, on the other hand, charges Kentucky crossovers $2,900 a semester, or $5,800 a year, said Principal James Williamson.

Williamson said his district loses anywhere from six to 15 students to Belfry every year.

Hopkins noted that some students who live close to the border have West Virginia or Virginia mailing addresses, even if they physically reside in Kentucky. He said that is the case with the South Williamson Elementary School on the Kentucky side.

After a story about the out-ofstate students appeared in the Lexington Herald-Leader on Tuesday, Welch was ordered to look into the matter and report to district officials.

"You people (in the news media) have made it a No. 1 priority, so I'll make it a No. 1 priority," said Welch,

Johnson sheriff back in business

by Tony Fyffe Editor, Paintsville Herald

Johnson County may be getting a 24-hour sheriff's department again.

Sheriff Don McFaddin and State Auditor Ben Chandler have reached an agreement that will allow the sheriff to borrow money to operate his office until tax revenue comes in. Under the pact, McFaddin can repay the loan with 1994 property tax money, even if it isn't collected until 1996.

That had been the sticking point with Chandler's office, which wouldn't let McFaddin get a loan and pay it back with the previous year's tax collections. McFaddin said that if he had borrowed money earlier this year, he could not have used money his office received from 1994 taxes to repay the loan.

Pike judge denies salutatorian request

by Linda H. Breed Appalachian News-Express

Caroline Slater had to settle for being salutatorian of Belfry High School's Class of 1995.

A judge on Monday denied the 18-year-old senior's request for an injunction against the school's sitebased council and Principal Frank Welch.

Slater, one of seven salutatorians, filed a lawsuit last week in Pike Circuit Court that said if her school had used the school district's policy for picking its valedictorian instead of its own, she and others should be named co-valedictorians.

"I'm not here to take anything away from anyone," she said from the stand. "I just want what's fair."

School board attorney Neal Smith told the court Monday that Slater would not advance in the rankings if the district's policy was used. In fact, because she did not take physics - a district requirement - she would be ineligible to be valedictorian.

So, too, would seven other graduating seniors with a perfect 4.0 gradepoint average, including the two boys named valedictorians, Shawn King and Wesley Deskins. Using the district's policy, Chris Elkins would be the one and only valedictorian.

Valedictorians are eligible to receive scholarships at state colleges. Slater has received a $5,000 scholarship to attend Transylvania University. Because using the district policy did not improve her standing and she did not plan to attend a state-supported school, thereby becoming ineligible for possible scholarships, Smith argued that Slater showed the court "no proof of loss."

"I couldn't find ... that it was a constitutionally protected right to be valedictorian," said Smith. "(To change the policy now) would be discriminatory to 175 other children of Belfry High ... who followed (the school's) guidelines from day one."

Belfry has been using the same method to choose its valedictorians for the last five years. Unlike requirements in the district policy manual, Principal Frank Welch said the school's formula factors in gradepoint averages and, to break ties, scores on the American College Testing college entrance exam.

the test was a 26. But Slater's attor- frustrating." ney Larry Webster made much of the fact that the ACT test can be taken many times. Calling it an aptitude test, Webster said using the scores was a "patently unreasonable criterion" to use.

"It should have no relevance to the selection of valedictorian," he said.

Pike Circuit Judge Eddy Coleman said the outcome of the hearing Monday might have been different had Elkins, and not Slater, challenged the policy.

While Coleman denied Slater's request for an injunction, he did not dismiss the suit. Calling her a "very bright young lady," Coleman declined to comment on the merits of Slater's suit, but said if he had his "druthers," all nine might be named valedictorian.

Webster said he will most likely amend the suit, alleging "denial of equal protection of the laws," so Slater can continue to pursue it.

Slater said during the last week she has been pulled out of class, chastised and harassed.

"You've got to let that fly over

Slater, who gave her salutatorian speech last night, said she intends to continue with the suit.

"I stood up for what I believed in," she said. "If I had won, every other salutatorian would have been behind me."

Laid off Wolf Creek miners may be called back to work

A United Mine Workers (UMW) official said Monday about 100-110 miners who were temporarily laid off at Wolf Creek Collieries two months ago may be recalled soon.

UMW District No. 17 representative Bert Melton said UMW officials are looking to July 1 as a date when the miners might be called back to work at Wolf Creek when it ceases longwall mining and begin extensive continuous mining operations.

"Unless they're (Zeigler Coal Holding officials) blowing some serious smoke, it's looking really good right now," said Melton. "From everything I'm hearing, they (Wolf Creek) have already sold the longwall equipment and it's going out July 1. That looks pretty good considering what the company has spent in getting continuous miners and bridges."

Zeigler, Wolf Creek's parent company, recently announced a $12 million capital investment expenditure for the purchase of new continuous mining equipment, Melton said. Such an expenditure would almost certainly mean a recall of employees.

"They have mined about 216,000 tons of coal using that longwall, so they are trying to get everything they can out of it before they get rid of it," he said. "They have also bought all this new equipment - at least that's what Zeigler's president told me when I talked with him a few days ago. That right there tells me they plan to recall some of the men back to work. I hope we get all of them back on the job before too long."

About 276 miners were affected by the massive layoff at the mine when Zeigler renegotiated its longterm contract with Carolina Power and Light, a North Carolina utilities company which bought the majority of Wolf Creek's coal.

Under the terms of the new contract, the power company got a better price for purchasing Wolf Creek's product (coal analysts have estimated the power company paid about $45 per ton for Wolf Creek coal) while Zeigler received "sourcing flexibility," meaning it could get coal from other sources to fulfill the $1.5 million tons required for 1995.

"The power company got what it wanted and so did Zeigler," Melton said. "The miners were the ones who got the bad end of the deal. But we're

Commission gets a new member

Richard M. "Dick" Young was named to the Inez Utilities Commission last week during a special meeting of the city commission.

Young, who was instrumental in rehooping the city's charter in 1979 after it had lain dormant since the 1930s, will join Willard Fraley, John Crum, and Holmes Cassady on the Commission.

The city sewer system has experienced financial problems during the past few months due to non payment of bills and the refusal of several residents to hook onto the system.

Martin County man arrested for wanton endangerment

Willard W. "Wendall" Harmon, 30, of Lovely, was arrested last Friday and charged with two counts of wanton endangerment in connection with an incident that took place on May 9, 1995.

Martin County Sheriff Darriel Young said that Harmon allegedly ran from Kermit Policeman Roger Johnson across the Kermit Bridge into Martin County. Martin County Sheriff Deputy Dallas Sweeney joined in the chase which ended near the Mouth of Long Branch on Rt. 292

Harmon, who was pinned in by the police cars, then rammed the sheriff's car with intent to harm Sweeney and a passenger, Frank Jude.

Bribery is the ticket

Bruce Hurley, of Prestonsburg, former operator of Mountaintop Restoration Inc. No. 1 Mine in Davella, was sentenced last week after being found guilty on November 10, 1994 of falsifying pre-shift inspection logs and failing to conduct safety checks before sending miners underground to work.

Hurley also apparently gave U.S. Judge Joseph Hood a crystal-clear impression of widespread corruption in the coal mining industry and in the agency that is supposed to keep it safe and clean, citing a long history of bribery and other shady dealings with federal safety inspectors.

Hurley appeared May 30 in Pike Circuit Court where he was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood to three years probation and two months home incarceration.

John A. Williamson, Jr., 18, of Elkhorn City, died when he apparently lost control of his vehicle yesterday (Thursday).

Williamson was traveling east on U.S. 460 near Millard when the 1989 Chevy Cavalier he was driving crossed the center line, struck an embankment and overturned.

Williamson was pronounced dead on the scene by Pike County Deputy Coroner Russell Roberts Jr.

Kentucky State Police are still investigating the incident.

Former Letcher County Judge Collins gets parole

Former Letcher County Judge Larry D. Collins has been approved for parole but has not yet been released from the Kentucky state prison system, an official at the Kentucky State Parole Board offices said Monday.

Collins will be under parole until November 1998, she said

The parole board held a hearing May 10 on Collins' application for parole. It had been turned down an earlier application last November.

Collins has been in state prison since November 1993. He was sentenced to a five-year term in prison after being tried in Lexington. He was arrested by Kentucky State Police in November of 1992 on charges of accepting bribes of cash and marijuana to influence his decision in a case before him.

His arrest and trial were the first in a series resulting from investigations conducted by state police and the state attorney general's office.

State court officials appointed a special grand jury and a series of special judges to hear the cases. The grand jury has never been dismissed.

School bomb threat lawsuit is dismissed

A lawsuit filed by the parent of a Rowan County Senior High School junior who was expelled for allegedly telephoning a bomb threat to the school in January has been dismissed.

Rowan Circuit Judge William Mains dismissed the complaint May 24. "The court does not consider a bomb threat to be a trivial matter and notes that the same is a class a misdemeanor under Kentucky Law, punishable up to 12 months in jail," he wrote.

Mains had already denied a temporary restraining order against the school board March 22 that would have kept the boy enrolled at least until the litigation was settled.

Carl Ricer's mother, Wanda Stover, filed the suit after Ricer, 17, was expelled from school for the remainder of the academic year. The suit claimed the punishment received was excessive and that Ricer's right to due process had been violated.

Stover argued that Ricer's expulsion was arbitrary and excessive because the bomb threat was a false one, and no one was actually hurt or threatened with harm.

Banquet honors foster parents in Big Sandy .

by Alice Brooks Jones Contributing Writer

On Friday, May 12, a group of just over sixty people gathered at St. Martha's Church at Water Gap for fellowship and celebration. Though relatively small in number, there was no limit on the amount of enthusiasm, care and commitment contained within the church hall.

The occasion was the Annual Big Sandy Foster Parent Appreciation Banquet and the celebrants were foster parents, who provide invaluable service to this five-county region, and the social service workers who train and support them.

Among the most devoted supporters in attendance was Norma Boyd

Family services and youth services centers to open

Schools in Lawrence, Martin and Pike counties, along with 107 schools across the State, were recently approved for grants by Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Masten Childers to open Family Resource and Youth Services Centers (FRYSC).

The new centers and their grant amounts in Pike County are:

• Dorton/Sycamore FRYSC -$61,800

• Bevins FRYSC — $37,000 • Johnson FRC — 36,800

In Lawrence County the Lawrence County High School was awarded $90,000 for a Youth Services Center.

In Martin County, WPRT was awarded $73,200 for a Family Resource Center.

Family Resource and Youth Services Centers were created by the Kentucky Education Reform Act. Center staff work to remove barriers

For many, grinding commeal and making lye soap are only a part of history that is discussed along with "days gone by."

But while these talents, like making brooms and blacksmithing, are not as common today, there are those who still practice the old methods of making useful items cate needed services and become more involved with their children's schools.

Center activities are designed to lead to improvements in the classroom performance of children. In schools where centers are open, teachers report improved student performance in schoolwork, homework and peer relationships, and parents report greater satisfaction and involvement with the schools.

EMS Grants provided to communities

Three Eastern Kentucky counties will receive part of the $1.7 million in state grants for emergency medical services

Johnson, Martin and Knott county, along with 96 other communities across the state, were approved for the state grants by Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Masten Childers II.

The grants, ranging from $160 to $46,443, will assistemergency medical services in purchasing equipment and supplementing personnel costs. Awards are made to local governments and then passed along to services in their communities.

The grants will help some communities to buy either replacement or additional ambulances. The grants also provide for the purchase of various smaller, but life-saving, pieces of guipment.

who is the Family Services Clinician for Floyd County for the Cabinet for Human Resources, Department for Social Services in the Recruitment and Certification Unit.

"These are just average families and they offer their homes and their love and care knowing that the situation is only temporary," said Boyd. "And yet, they provide for these children physically, mentally, socially, educationally and medically."

While placement of a child in foster care arises out of stressful situations, there can be much joy in the offering of such care. "It's so rewarding," Boyd said. "It's just all about commitment to the child."

Certification to become a foster home requires thirty hours of training and a thorough background check. Two families that successfully completed the process to become-approved foster homes are Roy and Patty McBride of Prestonsburg and Frank and Judy Bentley of Stanville. The two couples tied for the honor of Floyd County Foster Parents of the Year.

They were honored for this achievement, along with outstanding families from Pike, Martin, Johnson and Magoffin counties. In addition, Rodney and Nina Newsome of Hi Hat were singled out for honors. The Newsomes recently adopted a set of four siblings for whom they had provided foster care. "We hope this banquet shows, in some part, the appreciation we feel for these families," Boyd said.

Ronald Moatz, district manager of the social service staff, introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Peggy Wallace, who is the Commissioner for the Department of Social Services. Wallace, who began her career with the state in in 1972 as a foster care worker, told her listeners about news of a recent honor received by Kentucky.

The previous week in Chicago, at the National Foster Parent Confer- Me." ence, Kentucky was honored as the Social Service Agency of the Year. Wallace thought this was due, in part, to the use of innovative programs like respite care. Respite care provides foster families a break once a month, if they choose to use the service. Foster children spend one night in another approved household. "It used to be that foster families were responsible for care twenty-four hours aday, seven days a week," Boyd said. "We encourage them to take advantage of respite care."

While discussing her feelings about the foster care system, Wallace related an experience which happened at a conference held in Frankfort. While quietly exiting a meeting early, three young foster children followed her into the hallway. There they stopped Wallace and told her they had a song to sing for her. With tears welling in her eyes, Wallace listened as the children sang, "Jesus Loves

The program then turned to entertainment as the assembled social service staff sang their original composition "You Were Born to be Foster Parents" sung to the tune of "Coal Miner's Daughter." Then, in keeping with the mood, attendees were treated to a performance by Kentucky Opry comedian "Munroe."

The final event of the evening was the most anticipated, the recognition of Big Sandy's Foster Parents of the Year. Nominated along with the McBrides and the Bentleys from Floyd County were two families from Pike County, one from Martin County, one from Magoffin County and three from Johnson County. Four of these families, including the McBrides, were awarded honorable mentions.

However, the high honor of the night went to Ronnie and Velma Sue Slone of Martin County. The Slones have been foster parents for two years during which time they have made additions to their home and purchased a van, both to better accomodate foster children.

The Slones were also cited for going beyond training requirements, having accumulated an extraordinary two hundred and six hours in the past year when six would have sufficed.

"All of these families are giving their one hundred percent," Boyd said. "It's sad we can only honor one. All these foster parents go into it knowing the placement is temporary, the child will be leaving and their hearts will be broken. It's just wonderful knowing there are human beings willing to do this."

doing all we can to help things out and to make sure our guys know what is happening and what kinds of options are available to them."

UMW officials have scheduled a meeting with permanently laid-off miners for June 13, 11 a.m., at Warfield Elementary School to discuss retraining programs and other options.

"We've been talking with various state agencies and federal agencies like the JTPA program to give the miners a chance at going back to school or other retraining," Melton said. "There are some stipulations to these programs and we'd like all the miners to be aware of what's out there and how to use them. It's very important for everyone to attend the meeting."

Miners will be recalled based on seniority and job description. No additional men will be hired until each of the temporarily laid-off miners is 'paneled out," he said.

"When you think about it, once those guys get their jobs back, the mine will be a the same strength it was before the union took over," he said. "They hired 100 additional men to get seven-days-a-week production after it went union - and production has actually improved according to the plant managers I've talked to. We'd like to get all the men we can back on the job and provide retraining options for those who aren't called back.

Zeigler officials could not be reached for comment.

Johnson County was approved for $6,351; Knott County will receive $15,000; and Martin County's share is $31,214.

Two neighboring counties were recently approved for certificate of need projects by the Interim Office of Health Planning and Certification.

Martin and Pike counties were two out of 12 counties affected by the approval for certificate of need projects.

In Martin County, Martin County Home Health Care was approved to expand home health services to Clay and Jackson counties.

In Pike County, Pikeville Methodist Hospital was approved for $2,886,635 to construct an addition and renovate space to convert six medical/surgical beds to ICU/CCU beds.

Pikeville Methodist Hospital was also approved for $3,700,050 to construct an addition and renovate space to relocate two existing operating rooms and to add two operating rooms.

Hopkins said Pike County has contracts with all neighboring Kentucky counties and school districts to exchange funds for student transfers. But he said the district has no such arrangements with the West Virginia and Virginia districts on its borders.

During Superintendent Larry Burke's administration, the school board adopted the policy charging out-of-state students for attending Pike County schools.

"Our first priority is to the people of Pike County," said Burke in recommending the move. "Kentucky tax money cannot be used to educate students from another state."

At the time, Pupil Personnel Director Lester Collins said the move would affect about 23 students from Virginia and West Virginia who attended schools in Belfry, Feds Creek, Phelps and Elkhorn City.

McFaddin said he doesn't know exactly how much he will borrow from the Department of Local Government. The loan will be paid in monthly installments and based on estimates from McFaddin on how much it will cost to operate the office. McFaddin said.

Last year's budget totaled about $175,000, he said. Once he receives the loan, McFaddin said he will have to subtract $28,000, which is the amount his office has spent up to May, and also his salary for the last six months and other debts.

McFaddin has not paid himself this year because of his financial problems

He has also blamed finances for reduced law enforcement services. With the loan, McFaddin said he will implement 24-hour service.

"I should go back to a full-service sheriff's office again," he said.

McFaddin said he will hire a deputy to work in the office at night and another evening deputy.

McFaddin hopes to have the loan in hand by August 1.

Burke told the board it had three options: establishing an amount of tuition based on the actual cost of educating the student; barring outof-state students altogether; or setting a tuition rate according to state funding.

Former board member Tommy Dean Runyon argued that many of the children who attended Pike County schools had parents who worked in Kentucky.

"I think we're doing them an injustice," he said.

The board decided that tuition could be paid in eight installments.

In 1989, the Kentucky High School Athletic Association ordered Belfry High to forfeit basketball and football games and placed the school on probation after a rival coach raised questions about two students who transferred to Belfry from Williamson, West Virginia.

For the public good

Clark and Stumbo elementaries will share a total of 12 new computers thanks to good samaritan Burl Wells Spurlock and the First Commonwealth Bank. Floyd County Schools Director of Technology Harold Burchell said that the two schools participated in a competitive grant competition arranged by Floyd County Schools' grants liaison Eugene Blackburn. Blackburn and KEDC official determined the winners through an extensive review process. Clark Elementary Principal Wayne Combs and Stumbo Principal Fonzo Akers will each take six new computers back to their respective schools.

News of the Weird by Chuck Shepherd

- Recent newsworthy objects of art: a toilet brush, soon to be available in the U.S. for around $30, from the noted French designer Philippe Starck, who calls the work "the apotheosis of my career"; a cage of spiders, snakes, scorpions and frogs devouring each other as a testament to a Darwinian world, from Chinese artist Huang Yon Ping at a show in Paris last November; and U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Madeleine Albright, the subject of a poem in an Iraqi newspaper in October ("Why do you hate the day and love the night? Albright, don't put out the light.")

-From a review of a Helmut Federle show, in Artforum magazine, quoted by The New York Times in October in an article on mundane art criticism: "Federle's grouping of works also suggests a kind of epigenesis of abstraction: each stage offers a greater, more exacting epiphany of the idea of abstraction as such and the essential consciousness--a consciousness that can recognize and deal with essences (in a Husserlian sense)--than the preceding one."

-- In February, Davis, Calif., city councilwoman Julie Partansky invoked a provision of the state's Environmental Quality Act to postpone a routine paving request for an 80-year-old gravel alley that she says qualifies for historical preservation. According to one resident, the alley is muddy in winter, dusty in summer, a mosquito breeding ground in spring, and is, in general, a "pigsty." Partansky said, "It's real mellow in the alley." The council is studying the problem.

- A May Wall Street Journal review of New York City's Gramercy Hotel art fair (in which artists set up their wares in individual hotel rooms as patrons roam the hallways) reported that as one gallery's employees left their card game to attend to some customers, other customers commented on the card layout as if it were a work on display. And another art display was ruined when a cleaning lady made the artist's bed by mistake.

THE DEMOCRATIC PROCESS

-- The city council in Capao da Canoa, Brazil, voted in March to install breathalyzer equipment at city hall, mainly because one member, Delci Romano, habitually shows up drunk and demands to cast votes on issues not on the agenda. And Katia Nogueira Tapeti, a city council member in the state of Piaui, was recently re-elected and is widely believed to be the most popular politician in the state's history, despite the region's macho culture and the fact that she is a transvestite living openly with her gay husband.

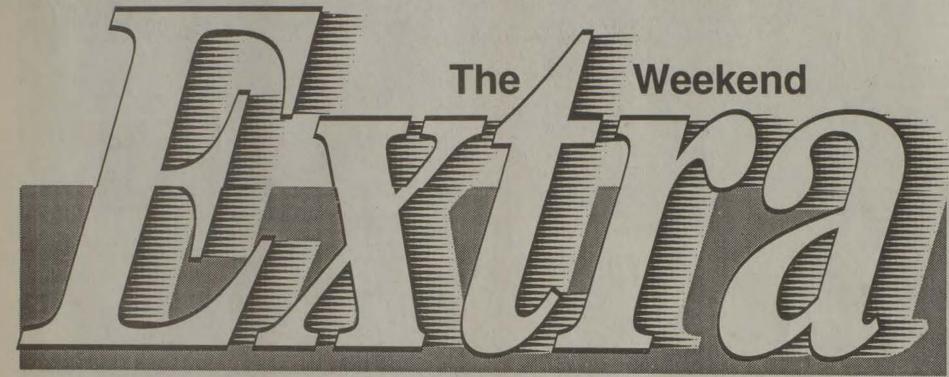

- During an April debate on government funding for abortions, Rep. Henry Aldridge told the North Carolina House Appropriations Committee that rape victims didn't need the fund because "they don't get pregnant." "[P]eople who are raped--who are truly raped--the juices don't flow, the body functions don't work," said the 71-yearold periodontist. And in a Georgia House judiciary committee meeting in March, Rep. Brian Joyce said he thought marital rape should not be a crime, but that if the wife says, "I don't want to have sex tonight," "[the husband] should take that into consideration.'

- Mayors in trouble recently: Mayor Lee Young resigned from office in Galena, Mo., in October (after being threatened with impeachment) and in retaliation took most of the town's Christmas decorations away with him. Said Young, "I probably could be bigger about it ... but I'm not going to." Mayor Russell Holland of Point Pleasant, W.Va., began serving a 60-day jail sentence in April for embezzlement by a public official. And Mayor Brian Terrell of Maloy, Iowa, was released from a four-month prison stint in Marion, Ill., in February for trespassing in a nuclear weapons demonstration, the latest of his several political-protest arrests.

-- Recent voter choices: State Rep. Ken Calvert was reelected in California, despite his having been caught, as a customer, in a prostitution sting early in 1994. (According to a Los Angeles Times analysis, Calvert took an "at least I like girls" approach to beat his opponent, who was a strong supporter of gay rights.) Stripper Susy Diaz was elected to Congress in Peru after a campaign of bumping and grinding public appearances, but she vowed to concentrate on helping women, artists and farmers.

Lee Meriwether to help kick off theatre opening

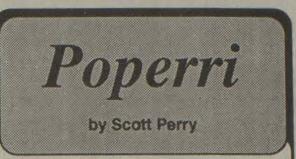

By making a special trip to the mountainous landscapes of Eastern Kentucky for the opening of Jenny Wiley Theatre's 1995 season on June 23, former Emmy Award nominee and Miss America Lee Meriwether will take part in kicking off a summer of quality theatre for perspective audience members throughout the region.

Meriwether, perhaps best known for playing opposite Buddy Ebsen as Betty in the 1970's television hit "Barnaby Jones," confesses that live theatre has always been her first love, a fact that helped lead her to being the guest of honor at the opening night of Jenny Wiley Theatre's 31st season.

Among her latest stage credits is the female lead in "I Do! I Do!," co-starring with her husband Marshall Borden - a production which was directed by Jenny Wiley Theatre's general manager Bob Bogdanoff.

Friday, June 9 Section B, page eight

Got a newspaper in the mail, either by mistake or because we've occasionally promoted ourselves as an ideal candidate for the U.S. Supreme Court, called Lawyers Weekly.

It's crammed full of useful information, if you happen to be a lawyer, which we aren't, or an avid reader of classified ads, which we are.

Anyway, one section of the classifieds caught our attention. It was full of ads promoting the services of expert witnesses.

We know several people who are avowed experts. They don't really know all that much, but they act like they know everything.

They could make some money working for lawyers.

Expert witnesses are people who get paid to testify in trials about their expert knowledge in a particular area.

For instance, the newspaper we got had ads for experts on aerosol cans, insurance, engineering, sport safety, motorcycles and civil rights.

There was even one ad for an expert who was willing to provide professional testimony on dog bites.

Now, we don't know how somebody becomes an expert on dog bites, but it has to be a painful career. Probably a retired mailman or something.

Another area of expertise involved food poisoning cases.

Got to be a nauseating way to make a living.

Since expert witnessing appears to be such a lucrative venture, we've thought seriously about getting into the act.

It just so happens that we have our own share of expertise in a few areas, and we're willing to swear to it on the witness stand, for a fee, of course.

If any of you lawyers out there need a good expert on microwave TV dinnerrelated injuries, give us a call.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

The "harmonic convergence" has replaced the "age of Aquarius," and once again our nation has come under siege from zodiac zeniths expounding on the theories of sun signs, moon charts, and astrological awareness.

I recently encountered my first experience with this astrological fascination when I overheard a neighbor explaining to her four-year-old son the importance of selecting a planetary attuned playmate.

"Billy," his mother shouted. "Come home right now!"

Billy ran across the yard to mother and said, "I was playing with Eddie, Mom."

"I'm sorry, Billy, but you can't play with him anymore.'

"Why?" he asked, innocently. "Eddie's my best friend.

"Eddie is a Scorpio. He'll prevent your Leo leadership abilities from developing properly.'

Billy looked confused as he asked, "Can I play with Bobby?"

"What's his sun sign? How does he act?" she

"I have directed her twice in "I Do! I Do!," and we are delighted to have her coming for the opening," Bogdanoff commented.

In addition to her reign as Miss America and her critically acclaimed work on Barnaby Jones, Meriwether was Catwoman in the original Batman movie, as well as playing several roles in television films, mini-series and motion pictures. Included in her film roles is her portrayal of Rock Hudson's southern wife in The Undefeated.

Included in the 1995 season that Meriwether will be helping open are the musicals "My Fair Lady," "Annie" and "The Fantasticks," as well as the southern drama "Steel Magnolias." All four plays will be presented throughout the summer months on a rotating basis, from June 23-August 22.

In addition to Meriwether as the guest of honor, the 1995 Opening Night Celebration will also include a special reception beginning at 6 p.m. at the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center, located in front of the Jenny Wiley amphitheatre. The reception will be followed by the premiere performance of "My Fair Lady." Prior to the night's festivities, Meriwether will be entertaining questions from the media at a conference open only to the press.

Reservations are still available for the opening night celebration, with ticket prices set at $35 for adults, $30 for senior citizens (55 and over) and $25 for students under 18. Tickets include the reception and admission to the show. To place reservations, or for more information, contact the Jenny Wiley Theatre box office at (606) 886-9274.

patience with you. Why don't you find an Aries friend and sell lemonade?"

"What does an Aries look like Mom?" Billy asked. "They're muscular," she replied.

"That means Tommy, the bully; I don't like him." "Then find another Leo and clash personalities until supper," the mother chided.

I'm going in the house to play with my sister," Billy said.

"No! She's an Aquarius. Your direct opposite. I'm not going to spend the rest of the day separating the two of you."

"I'm going to Grandma's. She lets me play with anyone.

"Sure she does," his mother said. "She's a Libra. She sees both sides of everything, but there's still a problem. Grandpa's a Virgo. And I hate hurting your feelings, but he doesn't like you very much."

Billy started crying uncontrollably. "Then why does he always give me money to buy candy and toys? He does so like me!"

(See Smile, page nine)

We'll be deep into research of those matters for the next two weeks, while the wife is off chaperoning a school trip.

If you can't reach us at home, try the local emergency room.

Those folks usually know where to find us.

Critic's Corner by Michael Greene Crimson Tide

Without rules, we all admit, there would be total chaos and anarchy. However, is it wise to simply follow rules just for the sake of doing so, or should we be more discriminating in just how we follow rules or interpret them? This movie addresses that conflict.

Gene Hackman is Capt. Frank Ramsey, an oldtime Navy officer who runs his ship in a manner General Patton would have been proud of. He's a no-nonsense, strictly-by-the-book guy. He strolls his submarine, cigar in one hand, terrier in the other (okay, so a few rules can be bent), inspecting his domain. He stands ramrod straight and brooks no insubordination. In short, he's so anal retentive, it hurts.

Enter young Lt. Comdr. Ron Hunter (Denzel Washington). He's a brilliant, young college graduate who has snagged the coveted position as second in command to Capt. Ramsey. However, he's not thrilled with Ramsey's inflexibility and absolute slavery to regulations. Thus, the stage is set for some major blowouts between these two.

Their ship, the Alabama, is sent to patrol the shores of Russia. A dissident politician there has staged a successful regional rebellion and is in possession of the intercontinental missiles which once belonged to the Soviet Union. If he and his followers can crack the code, they can begin a nuclear war on the United States, since that's where the missiles are pointed.

The Alabama is given orders to launch a preemptive nuclear strike on Russia to stop this. However, a second order comes through but it's garbled due to broken radio equipment. Hunter wants to delay launching the missiles and Ramsey opposes him. He wants to follow the original orders, period.

SOAP UPDATES

ALL MY CHILDREN: Bianca is supposed to provide power to the Miguel. Steve told Tom there may heard Erica lie to Maria about her medication. Alec showed "understanding" when Hayley suggested he sign a prenuptial agreement. Grace blasted Enid for her anti-shelter campaign. Adam admitted he'd fallen for Brooke again. Del proposed to Kendall. Laura saw Janet at a roadside rest stop. Wait To See: Gloria has a surprise for Adam.

ANOTHER WORLD: Justine (as Rachel) met with Lorna and later told Felicia she doubts Lorna and Grant will marry. Vicky was puzzled that Michael only recently learned that Nick was his son. Spencer desperately tried to warn those he loves about Justine. Meanwhile, the real Rachel (who is presumed to be Justine) awoke in a Swiss sanitarium. Cass told Frankie he'd like them to have another child. Wait To See: Maggie and Tomas make new plans.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: An ecstatic Lisa found her son, Scott, on her doorstep. After evading Kirk's questions about the other men in her life, Sam was stunned when Scott came to see her. Damian was upset to learn Lily asked Jessica to start separation proceedings. While Lisa reacted to Scott's news that he hadn't left Oakdale, Sam was recalling her past life with him. Wait To See: Scott has more surprises in store for Lisa.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTI-FUL: James, Stephanie, Eric, and Lauren agreed to meet with Sheila, but James had an uneasy feeling about it. Omar gave Brooke a pendant that wearer. Anxious to get to Macy before Anthony might hurt her, Thorne went along on the jail breakout. After rejecting Omar's story about being married to Taylor, Ridge got confirmation from Taylor herself. But this time, Ridge rejected her explanation that she didn't reveal herself because she didn't want to break up his happy life with Brooke. Wait To See: Sheila sets her "problem-solving" plan in action.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Unaware that her mother is possessed, a startled Carrie heard Marlena say someone else will stop her wedding to Austin. Although she was torn by the possibility of hurting her friend, Billie, Gina became increasingly anxious to learn if she really is Hope, and went in search of the missing puzzle box for the answer. Meanwhile, Jack had a gift for Abby: the puzzle box that could reveal the truth. With the demon's subliminal "image" in his mind of John and Kristen making love, Tony was being prepared to do the devil's bidding. Lucas believed he had a tool to blackmail Vivian into helping him break up Carrie and Austin. Wait To See: The devil may be in for a surprise.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Laura told Luke to leave after learning that Lucky shot at him, thinking he was a prowler. Felicia chided Tom for trying to reclaim his family. Sonny told Brenda about Stone being HIV positive. Lily broke her engagement to

SELI GROVES SOAP SCRAPS

Tom Eplin is rejoining the cast of watch and see. "Another World." The actor, who made the character of Jake one of the most popular in recent daytime history, left the show several months ago. His way out of town was marked by a story line in which Jake reportedly has died in a car crash. Since we all knew what Jake's friends back in Bay City didn't know-that he was alive and relatively well-we could all infer that he might return to the show as he did once before when Tom took prior leave from the soap. However, most fans assumed it would be at least a year before we got to see Jake back among the Loves and Corys of Bay City. So while news of his return is welcome, it's also a surprise at this time.

Another surprise announcement marks the return of Christopher

During a press conference on the AIDS story line with "General Hospital's" executive producer, Wendy Riche, headwriter, Claire Labine, stars Kimberly McCullough and Michael Sutton (Robin and Stone), we were reminded that June 21 is the "Day of Compassion" when those who have died of AIDS are remembered and the need to find a cure is re-emphasized. All the ABC soaps will, as they have in the past, incorporate an AIDS story on that day. Most, if not all, the other soaps, are expected to do likewise.

Rumors that Kim Zimmer will have her stay on "Guiding Light" extended continue to tantalize her many fans. They feel having Reva return as a real person would be welme even if Josh (Robert Newman) ultimately decides to ask his new lady love, Annie, to be his new partner in life.

not be a job for him at GH. Damian coached the "psychic," Mme. Maia, with "messages" for Lucy from Serena. Wait To See: Robin fears Stone may make a desperate decision.

GUIDING LIGHT: Roger told Leohe's making progress with Holly. Lillian was stunned by Ed's declaration. Fletcher was stunned when Holly insisted she loves only him. Alan-Michael and Lucy pondered over who was trying to oust him from Spaulding. Meanwhile, Alexandra warned Alan he couldn't get rid of her as easily as he did A-M. Buzz and Frank gave Brent a scary car ride. Rick and Reva/Rebecca saw Annie's reaction to a phone call. Dinah was an unsettling "captive" for Viktor. Wait To See: Roger is thrown by a change in plans.

LOVING: Casey took the bullet Graham intended for Ally and died in her arms. Angie had a surprise visit from someone posing as a reporter. Later, Charles and Jacob learned Carolyn kidnapped Frankie and Angie. Meanwhile, Carolyn arranged to put Angie and Frankie into a car rigged to explode. Tess found Steffi's hotel room covered with blood, but later learned the "blood" was really ketchup. Wait To See: Angie and Frankie are only moments from death.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Unaware that Jessica was trapped upstairs, Tori set fire to Llanfair. Viki, however, emerged in time to save Jessica, but was knocked out by falling debris. Later, in the hospital, Dorian tried to coax Jean out of Viki, but Tori returned. Clint learned the fire was caused by arson. Tina told Kevin Todd was at Llanfair before it started. Wait To See: R.J. becomes increasingly concerned about Rachel.

YOUNG AND THE REST-LESS: With Cliff offering encouragement, Hope told Victor she loved him, but decided it was best to stay on the farm with their baby. Victor returned to Genoa City to see Nikki, but she told him she had plans (with Brad) for the evening. John mentioned going on a cruise, sparking renewed hope in Mamie that he would eventually confirm they were developing a romantic relationship. Doris was upset about Sharon not telling Nick about her baby, and for letting him believe she was still a virgin. Meanwhile, Matt pulled a cruel trick on Sharon by sending a baby photographer to her. Dru gave birth to a daughter. Phyllis collapsed after Danny left for his rehearsal. Paul took up Chris' request to do a computer check on Phyllis. Wait To See: Matt's campaign against Sharon takes another cruel turn.

"So you'll leave him alone." "He said I was his favorite grandson," Billy cried. "You're his only grandson. And frankly, some Virgos have a tendency to stretch the truth." "Mom," Billy asked, "what's your sign?" "I'm glad you're starting to understand the importance of our conversation. I'm a Capricorn, the sign of the goat. People tend to think we're cold and callous, but we're not."

"I don't understand that, but you're mean as a goat."

"William! Go to your room." "No," Billy cried. "I want to play with my friends." "That's just like a Leo," the mother said. "Always giving orders, never taking them." "I don't like you," Billy said.

"Of course not. Leos are so self-centered they don't care about anyone but themselves."

As my neighbor herded Billy into the house, I heard her mutter something about never trying to conceive in December again just to have a Leo child. That's when I remembered I once read that Lizzie Borden was a Leo.

HOME TIPS

HANG IT UP-If you're short on indoor space for drying clothes, buy an adjustable rod, the kind used for hanging up shower curtains. Put it midway across the tub and use it to dry bath towels so they are out of sight. This is also great for handwashables and bathing suits. Sami K., Lubbock, Texas

NO NICKS-I disagree with the reader who said to use a grater to grate eggs for egg or potato salad. While it's a good-enough idea, I usually scratch myself or nick a fingernail.

Instead, my favorite utensil for this job is a pastry cutter. Marie F., Columbus, Ohio

CUT THE FAT-When making crispy rice bars, instead of buttering your hands to press the mixture into the pan, do what I do. I just wet my hands with water and press. It's that simple-no added calories, no buttery mess to clean off your hands. This method actually works better than using butter. Christina W., Shreveport, La.

RECYCLE—With two children in elementary school, I was using a lot of envelopes to send in milk money, lunch money and notes to the teacher.

I started saving the return envelopes from "junk mail" and use them for this purpose instead of throwing them away. It saves money and helps recycle paper. Lynn B., Geneva, N.Y.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Business interests proceed smoothly now. You'll get the green light from a higher-up to go ahead with a project both you and a co-worker have proposed. You'll soon begin important research.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You begin a long-term cycle this week that will expand your circle of friends. Some of these people will help you further your career. A travel opportunity is too good to pass up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Extra drive and determination to reach your career goals will mark the months ahead. This week favors making decisions about investments as well as job concerns. Co-workers cooperate.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're likely to travel more often or to sign up for a course of study in the next few months. Some pursue that unfinished degree. Partnership interests are highlighted now. The weekend accents togetherness.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You'll be placing an extra emphasis on matters pertaining to long-range financial security in the coming months. For some, it's a good time to devise a new budget. The week is smooth sailing regarding work interests.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This week and in the next few months, couples will be spending more time with each other. Some will even decide to take the plunge. The weekend favors matters of the heart as a result of all this romance in your LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You'll be placing an extra emphasis on job interests this week and in the near future. You're likely to be busy with many new projects. However, avoid taking on more than you can handle at one time.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) In the coming months, you'll be going out more often for good times. The week brings you success in communicating your ideas to others, especially bigwigs. The weekend brings happiness in romantic outings.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) There will be an extra emphasis on home improvements and domestic interests in the months ahead. However, be sure to shop around for more than one estimate. Financial concerns rule your chart right now.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) More weekend getaways will be on your calendar in the coming months. Some take up a new skill or hobby. You are at your charming and magnetic best, so take advantage of this. Things go very much your way this weekend.

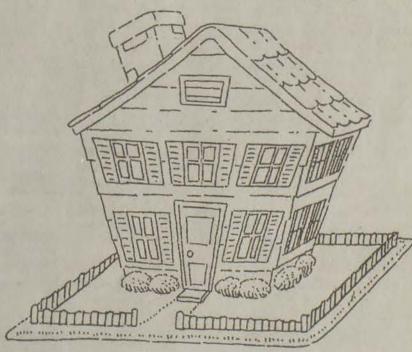

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll be coming up with new moneymaking ideas in the months ahead. The week also favors your financial prospects. Although you're excited by this, time by yourself this weekend leads to more insights and eventual success.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A new assertiveness and a growing self-confidence will mark your approach to life in the next few months. This week you'll be making a wonderful impression socially. Don't give in to feelings of insecurity.
