Deputy clerk is among 25 in true bills

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County District Court Clerk was indicted Thursday on two counts of first degree wanton endangerment in connection with an alleged altercation with state police last year.

Linda Sue DeRossett is accused of pointing a loaded pistol at two state policemen last September. State police sergeant Lynn Cross and trooper Les Stapleton responded to DeRossett's residence at Auxier on September 13, 1994, after receiving a call for assistance.

After officers arrived, DeRossett allegedly discharged the firearm three times in their presence. Officers have declined to offer additional details of the incident.

A Floyd County Grand Jury returned 25 true bills Thursday afternoon, including two sealed indictments.

Other indictments issued Thursday:

- James M. Martin, 18, of Teaberry, is charged with three counts of first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly driving an automobile on January 8 in such a manner to endanger the lives of state police troopers John Hunt and Ron Peppi and Wheelwright police chief Tommy Engle.

- Carl Meade, no age or address available, is charged with first degree criminal abuse.

- Randall C. Dotson, 21, of Banner, is charged with two counts of first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly driving an automobile on July 2, 1994, in such a manner to endanger Rachael Dotson and Ashley Dotson.

- Roger D. Bevins, 48, of Printer, is charged with first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly following Linda Sue Bevins and ramming her vehicle with his vehicle on May

One hurt, another jailed in stabbing

by Susan Allen

A Floyd County woman remains jailed after allegedly stabbing another woman five times during a dispute Tuesday night.

Pamela Bates, 29, of Wheelwright, is lodged in the Floyd County Jail charged with first degree assault for allegedly stabbing Genia Diane Hall, 30, of Wheelwright.

According to a report from the Kentucky State Police, the two women were engaged in a verbal argument and Bates allegedly stabbed Hall.

Hall was taken to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital and later transferred to Lexington. She was released from the University of Kentucky Medical Center on Thursday.

Bates is under a $100,000 cash or 10 percent bond. The incident is under investigation by the state police.

Losing battle

Wednesday morning, after the conclusion of a meeting of the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission, Gene Luka, chairman of the commission and manager of the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, discovered his car had accumulated about four inches of snow during the three-hour meeting. The snow was coming down so fast, Luka had a difficult time keeping his windows cleared. (photo by Janice Shepherd)

Storm dumps nearly eight inches on Big Sandy

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

While March typically arrives like a lion in Eastern Kentucky, this week it crept in like a snake in the grass.

Balmy weather Tuesday, which pushed the thermometer to near 80 degrees, backslid Wednesday into the worst winter storm of the year, dumping nearly eight inches of snow onto a bewildered Eastern Kentucky.

The blizzard did not catch the region completely off guard, though.

Warned that heavy rains were on the way, emergency personnel were gearing up late Tuesday and early Wednesday for flash flooding that usually accompanies steady precipitation.

Instead of rain, Mother Nature traded one trouble for another.

With temperatures dropping much faster than anticipated, the rain changed to snow early Wednesday, piling up to nearly eight inches in some areas by mid-afternoon.

The heavy snow brought trees down across power lines in Floyd County and throughout the Big Sandy area, knocking out power to nearly 20,000 people.

The Left Beaver area of Floyd County was perhaps the hardest hit by the blackout. McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital administrator Jerry Haynes said Thursday that the hospital had operated most of the day with an emergency power generator after the facility lost electrical service at about 6 a.m.. Service was restored at about 4:30 p.m.

The Left Beaver Rescue Squad pitched in during the outage, delivering kerosene to those in need.

The rapidly changing weather Wednesday also caught many motorists by surprise, but no serious accidents were reported by police agencies.

Floyd County school buses were on their early routes Wednesday, but officials reacted quickly to the deteriorating weather, cancelling classes for the day.

In what has become typical March fashion, temperatures began to climb toward the 40s on Thursday and the forecast for the weekend called for sunny skies and temperatures in the mid to upper 60s.

The winter storm this week marked the third year in a row that some of the worst weather of the winter arrived in March. In 1993 the area was hit by the worst winter storm in history.

Group to conduct PHS walk-through

Prestonsburg High School's Parent Teacher Organization will host a "walk-through" of the school on Monday, March 13, in order to show the condition of the school and to answer questions about proposed renovations to the facility.

The walk-through begins at 6 p.m. and is open to concerned parents of present and future Prestonsburg High School students.

Grand jury asks state to probe 911 project

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County Grand Jury has requested that the state attorney general conduct probes into the county's proposed 911 service and into funds missing from the sheriff's department.

In a letter dated March 8 to Attorney General Chris Gorman, Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt said that grand jurors requested the investigations after a citizen appeared before the panel.

"A citizen came before the grand jury concerned about the lack of 911 services for Floyd County even though citizens have been charged for 911 services on their phone bills for a number of years," Hunt wrote. "He and the grand jury are of the opinion that no rational explanations for the lack of service and accounting for the funds collected for the service have been made."

"The grand jury requests that your office do a complete audit of the 911 service," Hunt continued. "They also request you fully investigate the $25,000 or $26,000 missing from the Floyd County Sheriff's Department."

For the past two years, questions have been raised concerning the amount of funds available to implement a 911 emergency service and why no service is available after residents have been paying the 89 cents per month surcharge for over five years.

In a letter to grand jurors, a 72-year-old resident asked the grand jury to investigate:

- Who authorized the surcharge for 911 and where are those records?
- How much money has South Central Bell, Thacker-Grigsby Telephone, Harold Telephone and Foot-hills Telephone paid Floyd County through the surcharge?
- Were the 911 funds ever placed in a single, interest-bearing account?
- Who authorized payments to the Big Sandy Area Development District for mapping services? and

• If it has taken five years to map, locate and number 40 percent of the homes and businesses in Floyd County, how can it be expected to map the remaining 60 percent of structures in one year?

As for the funds missing from the sheriff's office, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson announced last Septem-

Democrats set meeting to name candidate for post

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Members of Floyd County's Democratic Executive Committee have called a special meeting for today (Friday) at 6 p.m.

In the announcement to the committee, members Paul Hunt Thompson, Earl D. Ousley, Joey Boling and Burl Shepherd called the special session of the executive committee to be held in the Floyd County District Courtroom.

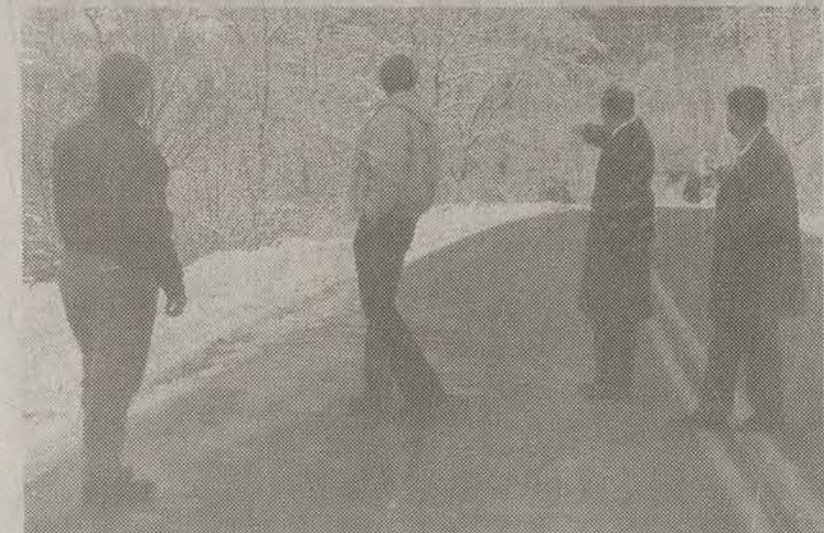

"The presence of all qualified members is very much requested, as it is imperative that our party move in a positive direction from these tragic events," the announcement said.

With the death last month of Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, the Democratic executive committee is without a chairman and the party must choose a candidate for judge-executive to run against a Republican challenger in November.

In the interim, Bob Meyer has been appointed by the governor as judge-executive and will remain in that post until after the November election.

The county's Republican Party will also select a candidate for the November race. Party officials have not announced a meeting for that nomination process.

On site visit

Cow Mountain will get guardrails soon

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The project has been years in the making, but it looks like guardrails will be installed this summer on Cow Mountain at Cow Creek.

Floyd County's fiscal court has been asking state transportation officials for the past several years to install guardrails on the mountain, which has several steep, plunging drop offs along the highway.

On Thursday, Jerry Anglin, deputy secretary and commissioner of highways for the state Transportation Cabinet, met with local officials and went to the mountain to personally view the site. Anglin said the need for the guardrails was apparent.

Governor to announce grants during visit here

Kentucky Governor Brereton Jones will be in Floyd County Wednesday to award two Appalachian Regional Commission grants.

Governor Jones is scheduled to be at Prestonsburg City Hall between 3 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. March 15.

Details of the grants will be announced during the governor's visit.

"It's good to see this firsthand and to look and see the need," Anglin said. "We should let the contract by April 21 and, if everything goes as planned, installation should begin in June. I intend to stay behind this and see it gets done."

Judge-Executive Bob Meyer, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and Darvene Hamilton, Floyd County foreman for the highway department, accompanied Anglin to the site.

Meyer said he was pleased that the project is moving ahead.

"It's terrific," Meyer said. "It is a very worthwhile project and we're pleased that the state is willing to work with us. It is a treacherous mountain."

Anglin credited local officials for keeping the project on the minds of state officials and added that guardrails will be installed on both sides of the mountain road.

Cow Creek residents have been lobbying the court for the past several years to get the project going. Concerns about that stretch of road centered on the fact that school buses must be driven across the mountain.

In the past, the fiscal court has listed the project as one of the county's top priorities.

Ed Taylor is recognized for coverage of Games

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Competing against weekly and daily newspapers throughout the state, Floyd County Times Sportswriter Ed Taylor won two silver medals for his coverage of last summer's Bluegrass State Games.

Taylor was presented silver medals last week in the photography and news coverage categories of the media competition.

In the photography class, Taylor's action shots of the games competed with both weekly and daily newspapers and snapped second place. In the news division, Taylor vied against the more than 120 weekly Kentucky newspapers to again capture second.

This marks the fourth year Taylor has won awards for his coverage of the games. In 1990, he took first place to win the gold; in 1992, he won third place for a bronze, and in 1993 earned a silver.

Local group plans Dog Day afternoon

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Area residents can hound the pound for a mutt to enter in competition during Dog Days this summer. The Dog Day afternoon would offer obedience competitions, fun sports, such as Frisbee tosses; and education demonstrations; veterinarian Carol Combs told members of the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission at its meeting Wednesday.

Combs said she has to drive two hours to enter an obedience fun match with her mixed-breed dog and she thought an event held locally could prove to be a popular attraction.

Combs also said that pet owners need to be educated about their responsibilities, and that the event could teach pet owners the importance of having their animals spayed or neutered.

"We have a humongous animal control problem here," she said, and the show would help make canines "acceptable members of society."

The American Kennel Club has a Canine Good Citizen Program which outlines the guidelines for such shows, she added.

Combs asked the commission for its support and help in locating an area for the event.

The tourism commission members expressed enthusiasm for the Dog Day and asked Combs to return to commission once she had worked out the details.

Kathy Friend, representing Jenny Wiley Theatre at the tourism meeting, suggested the theatre host some of the activities during its audition for a dog to portray Sandy in "Annie." Friend said the audition will be held in April and the dog demonstrations could be a preview for the Dog Day event.

Friend presented free tickets for summer theatre shows to each member of the commission.

Also during the meeting, Prestonsburg Tourism director Fred James briefly discussed the Rainbow Award that will be presented to businesses that keep their property neat and clean.

James expressed concern about comments he has heard from tourists and from tour directors about the stigma attached to Eastern Kentucky.

"We've got a tremendous stigma to overcome. Tour groups say 'I can't sell it to the downtown Maple Avenue Flower Club,'" James said. "The bottom line is until our community cleans up, we're fighting windmills. We're spinning our wheels."

"A person traveling Route 80 coming into this area can find several reasons to form a bad opinion," he said, also mentioning various roadways near Prestonsburg that had a lot of trash around homes.

In other business, the commissioners:

- *agreed to purchase a travel show display;

- *approved funding to assist the Battle of Middlecreek Preservation Society in its reenactment of the Civil War battle in June;

- *discussed a proposed boat race on the Big Sandy to be held in May;

- *suggested lending financial support to football, basketball and Little League; and

- *approved a motion to have Ann Latta do the "footwork" on bids for an Eastern Kentucky Leadership Conference and to return the information to the commission.

Commissioners attending the meeting were Roy Ramey, Jim Sparks, Mark Miller, Blake Burchett, and chairman Gene Luka.

games, said Taylor's coverage of the game is excellent and extended her congratulations to him.

"Ed is extremely deserving of this honor. He's a hardworking journalist — he works hard and it shows," Easterwood said Thursday.

"He was competing with high level photographers. This is quite an honor. In the photo competition, he was competing against both dailies and weeklies so it was a double honor," she added.

Awards selections were made after the executive director and the publicity and promotions staff of the Bluegrass Games reviewed radio and TV tapes and clippings from the Kentucky Press Association.

Sportswriters from the Lexington Herald-Leader judged entries in the weekly category.

Selections were based on journalistic excellence and creativity and the amount of effort put forth in covering the games.

The games will be held July 18, 28, and 30 this year, and are open to any Kentucky citizen. Last year, the games had over 19,000 entries.

Floyd County student represents JBS; takes second in state math competition

A sixth grade student from Floyd County will represent June Buchanan School in state competition this week. Adam Jones took second place in math competition during the Middle School District Tournament February 6. Donour Sizemore, an eighth-grader from Letcher County and Swati Yalamanchi, a seventh-grader from Perry County will also represent the June Buchanan School in the 1995 Governor's Cup academic competition to be held March 12 and 13 in Louisville. Sizemore took first place in general knowledge and second place in math at the Middle School Regional Tournament held February 17 and 18 at Sebastian Middle School. Yalamanchi placed fourth in social studies. The top four places in each division advance to the state competition.

Four members of the JBS academic team, including Jones, competed in the Middle School District Tournament held February 6 at Caney Elementary. Sizemore took first place in general knowledge, math, and science and Yalamanchi took third in social studies. Levi Pace, a sixth-grader from Knott County, took second place in language arts. All four members advanced to the district level competition.

Jill Messer, a senior from Knott County, represented JBS in the High School District Tournament held February 11 and 12 at Jackson City High School. Messer tied for first place in the general knowledge category and placed second in social studies. Messer advanced to the Regional Tournament held February 25 at Hazard High School and took fifth place in general knowledge. She did not advance to the state level.

The Governor's Cup is the ultimate goal of all participants in the Kentucky Academic Association. Academic teams begin their competition with the District Tournament. The top four finishers in math, science, language arts, and general knowledge and the top two finishers in future problem solving and quick recall, advance to the next level of competition, the Regional Tournament. The same finishers in this tournament advance to the state level. JBS has achieved a significant accomplishment, according to academic team coach Robert Albright because this is the first time JBS has advanced to this level.

Series on birds continues at PCC

The first of a 5-part video series, entitled "The Birds of North America," was shown by the Community Biology Club (CBC) at PCC on Saturday, March 4. Those in attendance had a rare glimpse of some 116 species of aquatic birds (e.g., loons, ducks, geese...) and birds of prey (e.g., vultures, hawks, eagles...). Twenty-seven of the species can be found right here in Kentucky.

The videos are produced by the National Audubon Society. They are designed to acquaint viewers of all ages with the vast variety of birds (505 species in all) which live on our continent. Moving and still pictures of birds in their natural habitats, recordings of their sounds/calls, and range maps showing their breeding and wintering locations combine to make this a fascinating activity for the public.

interested in birds and would like to know more about them, come by PCC's Martin Student Center next Saturday morning, March 11, at 10 a.m., to watch the second part. It will cover 105 species of water birds, such as herons and egrets, cranes, shorebirds, gulls, terns, etc., in a most interesting and enjoyable way.

Part III is scheduled for March 18 at 10 a.m. and will also be shown in the Martin Student Center. Part IV will be shown on March 23 at 6 p.m. and Part V will be on March 31 at 6 p.m. The exact location for these two sessions has not been determined. Call Robert Campbell (CE/CS) at 606-886-3864 for details. As always, this CBC activity is free and open to everyone of all ages. Refreshments provided courtesy of Wal-Mart of Paintsville.

That birds are important to our survival is stressed in the film by leading ornithologist (bird expert), Roger Tory Peterson, who introduces the series. He states plainly, "If the birds are gone, then we'll be gone." "Everyone is invited to attend the video series," says Dr. John Shiber, founder of the CBC. "Teachers might even urge their students to come for extra credit! They'll have fun earning it and learning!"

The videos make it "easy for young children to learn a lot," said a father of three boys who viewed the first part.

The game of life

by Scott Perry

March Madness.
 Even Ma Nature is contributing to the wackiness.
 It's that time of year when winning means everything.
 It's that time of year when usually sane adults go stark raving mad, spewing more obscenities at referees than Eddie Murphy could cram into an hour-long stand-up routine.
 There's no glory in losing.
 No comfort in having tried but failed.
 Winners take all.
 All of what?
 We put so much pressure on kids these days to be the best, we don't let them do what they do best.
 Be kids.
 We want them to be stars, winners, and when they come up short, we blame somebody else.
 So, what are we teaching them?

 That failure is always someone else's responsibility?
 Sorry.
 Life doesn't work that way.
 Nobody wins all the time.
 Nobody goes through life without screwing up.
 Nobody is perfect.
 And, no matter what the coaches say or what the fans expect, winning isn't everything and it isn't the only thing.
 There's a lot to be said for character, integrity, honesty and effort.
 After all, life goes on after the game.
 And the only trophy you get for making it through is a tombstone.
 How you play the game makes a difference, too, in which level you get to next.
 Sort of makes everything else seem a little irrelevant, doesn't it?

U.K. Basketball Museum needs financial support

Editor:
 Though this letter is addressed to you, it actually is meant for fans of U.K. Basketball; the true fans of the game and the players who wear and have worn the blue and white colors of the University of Kentucky.
 We need your support, and we need it today.
 The University of Kentucky Basketball Museum is scheduled to open next Spring. But that's only if we complete a $3 million fund raising campaign.
 We have been very encouraged by fan support so far, and we would like to see it continue.
 Now, $3 million is a lot of money. But if you look at it one dollar at a time, three million dollars equals one dollar for every person who calls Kentucky home, with 700,000 dollars left over! So, if every Kentuckian who loves the Basketball Wildcats were to donate just one dollar (call it a "Wildcat $One"), or even five dollars (call that a Fabulous $Five!), we would not only pay for the museum, but also guarantee its future for generations to enjoy.

 It's a unique opportunity for every Kentuckian to "own" a piece of the U.K. Basketball Museum.
 Let me tell you a little about it.
 The Museum will be located in the Lexington Civic Center next to Rupp Arena. The Museum's 10,000 square feet will contain exhibits and interactive displays that will allow the museum-goer to get inside U.K. Basketball. For example, in one exhibit area, people will actually be able to go one-on-one against former Wildcat players through the use of virtual reality. In another area, even the most knowledgeable Wildcat Fan will be challenged by a display that asks you to cite statistics and records from the great games and tournaments of years past. Yet another display will use interactive video to tour both Rupp Arena and Memorial Coliseum, including the offices of Coaches Rupp, Hall, Sutton and Pitino, and the players' locker rooms.

 Perhaps most important, the Museum will serve as a testament to the dramatic effect Kentucky Basketball has had on the life, culture and growth of the state.
 Kentucky Basketball Fans are the greatest in the world. They are true blue. I know I can count on them to keep the dream alive; the dream of creating a permanent testament to the great Kentucky Basketball legend in the U.K. Basketball Museum.
 Please send your tax deductible donations to: U.K. Basketball Museum Inc., P.O. Box 89, Lexington, KY 40501.

Round one of the Girls' 15th Region Basketball Tournament at Shelby Valley is over and the final four teams have been determined.

Two of the final four teams hail from Floyd County and both had difficult games on their hands in the first round.

Second round play will get underway this coming Monday night at Shelby Valley High School with the first game set for 6:30 p.m. and game two at 8 p.m.

Betsy Layne moved into the semifinals after subduing a stubborn Paintsville Lady Tiger team 61-44 in the opening game of the classic.

The Lady Cats will face a very good Pike County Central team that was a 55-42 winner over Belfry. The Lady Hawks had to overcome a 13-point, first-half deficit to defeat the Lady Pirates.

Pike Central has a trio of fine basketball players

Lady Rebels must handle JCHS pressure defense

in Kelly Blackburn, Claudette Gillispie and Pam Pinson. Gillispie and Pinson have already committed to play college basketball at Pikeville College next season.

Gillispie, who was in early foul trouble against Belfry, came on strong to score 17 in the game and lead the Lady Hawks' comeback.

She is, no doubt, the best inside player in the tournament.

Pinson is a threat from the 19' 9" circle and gets a lot of garbage baskets. She is a team leader that plays aggressive defense.

Blackburn runs the ballclub out front and is a slashing type of player who will take the ball to the basket. She is a good shooter from short range.

The Lady Hawks could pose a problem for Betsy Layne underneath, especially on defense.

The Lady Cats like to dump the ball off inside to either Jessica S. Hamilton or Melena Gearheart.

Both are solid inside players and after losing twice to Betsy Layne during the regular season, Pike Central coach Tammy Tussy knows, in order to beat Betsy Layne, they must shut down the two "twin towers."

Misty Clark, point guard for Betsy Layne, must become more involved in her team's offense, and you can bet that Blackburn will be tracking her all over the court. She is the Lady Hawks' best defensive player who has good quickness and creates a lot of pressure on defense.

Clark is a solid outside threat, but she did not look for her shot against Paintsville.

If the Lady Hawks attempt to cut off the inside game of Hamilton and Gearheart, Clark, along with Jessica Johnson, must score from the outside.

Johnson can bust any dishonest defense with her three-point shooting. She seems to find a way to get free and when she makes the first trey, you can look for more from her as her excitement and enthusiasm builds.

Penny Tackett, who led the Lady Cats with 21 points against Paintsville, will come off the bench in this one because coach Bill Newsome likes to rotate Tackett with Johnson.

Both are capable floor leaders and he doesn't lose anything no matter which one starts.

A third twin tower will be found in Jessica A. Hamilton, a junior. Hamilton got into the starting lineup when forward Ashley Tackett was through for the season, going down with a knee injury

It's not that Hamilton does not deserve to start, but shows just how deep this Betsy Layne bench really is and that could be the difference in this game.

Betsy Layne must, must, stop Gillispie on the Lady Hawks' offensive boards.

Also, the backcourt is going have to stop Blackburn from penetrating to the basket and dishing off for the easy two.

Allen Central vs Johnson Central

This could be either a close one or an ugly one.

Much will depend on how the Lady Rebels of Allen Central handle the relentless press that Johnson Central will throw at them.

Allen Central had all sorts of problems against the Shelby Valley press, but did pull out the 63-60 victory to advance to the semifinals.

Johnson Central had to hold off a good Elkhorn City team in the first round and was horrible at the free throw line, hitting only 21 of 51 attempts.

But this a good Johnson Central team that plays hard and is very aggressive going after loose balls.

Allen Central must look more for Veronica McKinney on offense. McKinney is the key here and a good inside game for her would cause a lot of problems inside for the slower Johnson Central team.

Misty Blair leads the Lady Eagles' offense. She is constantly around the basket and going hard to the bucket.

She has very good three-point range, hitting three treys against Elkhorn City.

Allen Central will have to block Shannon Brown off the boards on the offensive end. A good put back player, Brown seems to get good position inside.

If Allen Central can handle the Johnson Central pressure, then they can score some easy baskets once they get behind it.

Misty Scott and Jennifer Mullins have excellent range from the outside and Mullins penetrates well.

Inside, Amanda Sammons can play with the best of them.

She is one of the hardest workers on the squad and has a very soft touch around the basket.

Her free throw shooting ability is excellent for a big girl. Look for several trips to the charity stripe for her.

- District and regional basketball tournament time. Wow! I just can't tell you how much I love it.

- SEC basketball tournament. Now the games really mean something. I love it. I love it. I love it.

- NCAA tournament. Who in his or her right mind wouldn't love the thrills and spills of the greatest tournament of all time? You have to love it. Don't you just love it?

- Baseball. Oh, my! I can't wait. I have decided if there is nothing but replacement players, I will watch the game. But one thing—what about Marty and Joe? Will they use replacement announcers in the place of the duo? Oh, dear!

- The high school baseball season. I can get out. Get some walking in. Enjoy the outdoors. Just take in some good high school games. We're going to have some good high school teams this season. Oh, did I tell you how much I love it?

Well, you can tell that I love the spring of the year.

O.J. TRIAL...

Haven't we all had about enough of it? Before it is over, it will be the longest running sports show on television.

Do you know what I can't wait to see? The Lost Episodes!

"O.J.'s Trial: The Lost Episodes."

BACK TO BASEBALL...

Let me print some of your reactions on the baseball season.

Give me a call or send me a note or just stop me at a game and we'll talk about it.

What is your answer to the following:

- Do you favor replacement players?

- Do you think some major league players will break rank once the season starts?

- Will there be a major league season?

- Are the owners fair in wanting a guarantee that the players won't strike again once the season begins?

- Would you go to see a "pro" game with replacement players?

Interesting, isn't it? We'll take a poll and see how everyone feels.

BOYS' REGIONAL DELAYED

The boys' regional basketball tournament fell victim to the bad weather on Wednesday and was picked back up last night (Thursday).

Much talk about an Allen Central-Pointsville match up in the semifinals tomorrow night.

The girls' tournament will resume Monday night at Shelby Valley. There have been some very good

Finals set for Sunday afternoon, 1 p.m.

While the girls' 15th Region Basketball Tournament got off as scheduled, the boys' regional had to be postponed one day due to the unexpected bad weather that moved into the area Wednesday morning.

Games that were slated for Wednesday night were moved back to Thursday night (yesterday). The completion of the first round will take place tonight (Friday) at Sheldon Clark High School.

Allen Central (24-5) and Pike Central (19-9) were to kick off the first round on Wednesday night. Paintsville (24-5) and Elkhorn City (13-15) were to play the late game.

Coach Gordon Parido's Prestonsburg Blackcats will have the Belfry Pirates much on their mind as they square off in game one tonight at 7 p.m.

The second game pits Pikeville (14-13) and Magoffin County (11-11) against each other at 9 p.m.

Prestonsburg enters the tournament with the worst team record, but is a much better ballclub than their 11-15 record would indicate.

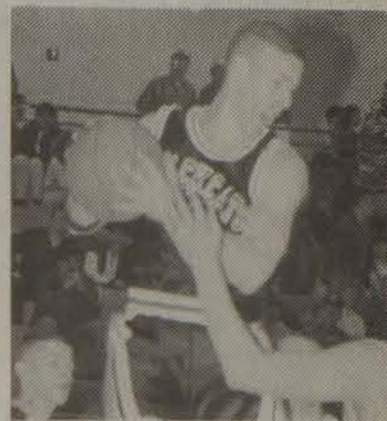

The Blackcats own regular season wins over Pikeville and Magoffin County, the other two teams in the lower bracket. The Blackcats fell to Belfry by two points at home.

Both Pikeville and Magoffin County are surprise winners in district play. Pikeville knocked off Pike Central for the 59th District championship.

Magoffin County surprised powerful Sheldon Clark in the first round of the 57th District before falling to Paintsville in the championship game.

Semifinals of the tournament will pick up Saturday night and the finals are scheduled to be played Sunday at 1 p.m.

Lady Rebels hold off Shelby Valley, 63-60

Sammons leads Allen Central with 18 points; Lady Rebs face JCHS

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It wasn't pretty but it was a win for the Allen Central Lady Rebels as they opened the girls' 15th Region tournament with a 63-60 win over Shelby Valley on their own floor.

"It wasn't very pretty," said Allen Central coach Bonita Compton. "But in the regional tournament you take it any way you can."

Being not so pretty was evident by the way the Lady Rebels took care of the basketball—actually, the way they failed to take care of the basketball.

Allen Central committed 34 turnovers in the game—many unforced miscues.

Shelby Valley's full court press did not allow Allen Central to get into any kind of flow on offense until the second half when the Lady Rebs built an 11 point, 57-46, lead with 2:44 to play.

But with the way Allen Central was handling the basketball, that lead wasn't safe.

Amy Hall, who was the top scorer with 24 points, led a late Lady Wildcat charge that brought Shelby Valley back to within one point, 61-60.

With the 11-point cushion, Allen Central came out of a timeout only to throw the ball away. Hall drilled a trey and later hit two free throws for a 57-48 game.

An Allen Central turnover, and a rebound basket by Hall made the game a seven-point affair.

With 1:55 on the clock, Carrie Kilgore hit a long three and Hall scored on a layup with 1:34 to play for a 57-55 Allen Central lead.

Shelby Valley sent Jennifer Mullins to the free throw line with 53 seconds left, and the senior guard connected on both attempts to extend the lead back to four, 59-55.

With 40 seconds left, the Lady Wildcats put freshman Misty Scott at the line. She hit two charity tosses for a six point, 61-55, lead.

But the Lady Rebels were not out of the woods yet. When no one picked Hall up, she buried a three-pointer and Rikka Smith slipped under, after an Allen Central miss, to make it a 61-60 game.

Shelby Valley, not allowing Allen Central to hold the ball, fouled Veronica McKinney with 11 seconds showing.

McKinney missed to the right but Scott grabbed the rebound, tried a force shot that missed. The ball rolled over to Amanda Sammons, who grabbed it and scored with three seconds left.

Shelby Valley got off the last shot when Hall flung a desperation three-pointer that didn't miss by much.

"Their press absolutely killed us," said Coach Compton. "We're not moving on offense and not aggressive enough on defense."

Allen Central took their biggest lead early in the fourth period when they rolled out to a 50-38 lead with 5:02 remaining to be played.

The Lady Rebels held the Lady Wildcats scoreless for two minutes but in the same time span they turned the ball over five times on mental mistakes.

Allen Central missed three consecutive bonus shots and Shelby Valley began to find the basket.

It was the outside shooting of Scott in the second quarter that allowed the Lady Rebels to build a nine-point, halftime lead of 30-21.

Scott busted three consecutive three-pointers and hit the third at the buzzer as the first half ended.

Allen Central led 36-26 early in the third, but a Shelby Valley rally cut the lead to three, 36-33 as the Lady Rebs turned the ball over four straight times.

A rebound basket by McKinney and Sammons' rebound basket made it 40-33 with 2:27 left in the third period. Two free throws by Lisa Stumbo gave Allen Central a nine point spread until Kilgore scored on a layup.

Allen Central turned the ball over on their last three possessions in the third period. But Shelby Valley could not capitalize on it.

Shelby Valley led only three times in the game and that came in the first period. Their last lead was at 11-8 with just under two minutes to play in the initial period.

Sammons led the Allen Central scoring parade with her 18 points. She pulled down 11 rebounds (unofficially). Mullins, with seven in the first quarter, finished with 15.

Scott tossed in 13 points, including three three-point baskets. All three came in the second period.

McKinney and Stumbo netted eight points each. Stumbo had a strong board game with nine rebounds.

Jenny Wright added 13 for Shelby Valley. Missy Yates tossed in 10 and Carrie Kilgore finished with eight.

Allen Central (20-7) will face the Johnson Central Lady Eagles in the second game Monday night.

Johnson Central edges Elkhorn City 69-64 in girls' regionals

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Johnson Central head girls basketball coach Phillip Wireman paced the sidelines in the first half of his team's first-round regional game against Elkhorn City last Tuesday night at Shelby Valley High School.

The Lady Cougars, 14-12 entering the tournament, weren't about to lay down to the region's top-ranked team.

In fact, Elkhorn made the Johnson Central faithful take notice when they took a 39-33 lead to the locker room at the half.

But it was the inspired play of Shannon Brown and Missy Blair that led a third quarter comeback for the Lady Eagles and, eventually, a 69-64 first-round victory.

Blair hit two quick baskets to begin the third quarter for the Lady Eagles and Blair drilled a three and a layup to tie the game at 44.

The game was tied at 46. Later, Blair hit one of two technical foul shots with 39 seconds to play in the third period to tie the game at 48.

The third quarter ended with Johnson Central owning a 52-48 lead on a three-point basket by Blair.

The Lady Eagles gradually added to the lead and led 59-51 on a rebound basket by Blair. But Elkhorn City got a long jumper from Cindi Damron, two free throws from Jennifer Cofiel and a layup from Jessica Sawyers to pull to within two points, 59-57.

With 2:31 to play, Damron connected on a three-point shot and it was a 61-60 Johnson Central lead.

The Lady Eagles led 64-62 until they went on a 5-0 run for a seven point lead.

Elkhorn missed three straight free throws before Amanda Ratliff connected twice from the charity stripe for the final 69-64 margin.

Blair, in an outstanding game, led all scorers with 27 points. Brown finished with 16 and Elizabeth Branham netted 11.

Robin Music scored nine for the Lady Eagles. Joy McKenzie had three and Cynthia Ousley scored two. Jill Blancett had one point.

Johnson Central attempted 51 free throws and connected on 21. Blair attempted 29 and hit only 14.

Damron's 21 points topped Elkhorn City. Tonya Belcher scored 12 and Melissa Potter, off the bench, tossed in seven.

Crystal Bevins scored six as did Sawyers.

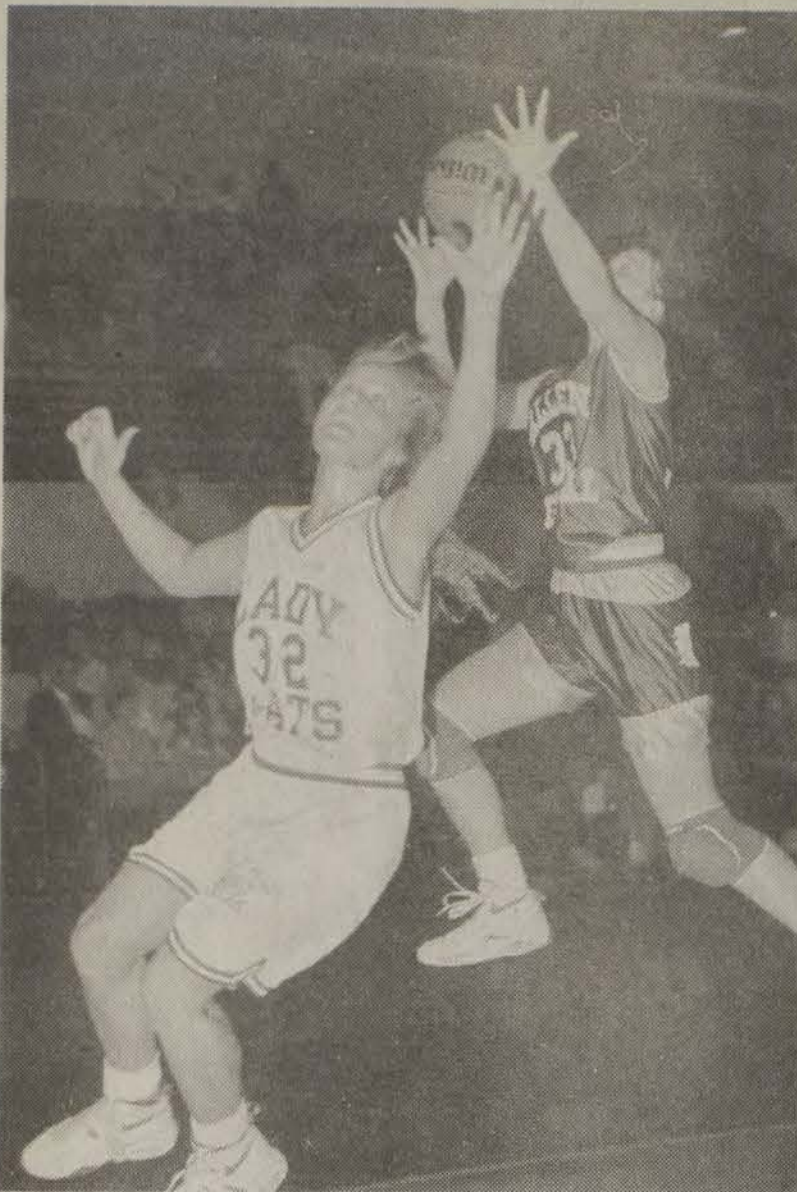

Johnson Central improved to 22 on the season and will meet All Central (20-7) in the second semifinal game Monday night.

Red Man bass opener slated for Dale Hollow

Operation Bass will conduct the first Red Man bass fishing tournament of the Mountain Division, March 19, on Dale Hollow at Starpoint Resort, signaling the start of the six-event Mountain Division Red Man season. Entry deadline for the event is March 8. Late entries are accepted with a late fee.

Five other Operation Bass-managed Red Man events will make up the Mountain venue for 1995 as follows: April 2, Cumberland/Grider Hill, entry deadline March 22; April 30, Laurel/The Grove Marina, entry deadline April 19; July 23, Ohio River/Big Bone State Park/entry deadline July 12; August 13, Ohio River/Big Bone State Park, entry deadline August 2; and September 17, Dale Hollow/Starpoint Resort, entry deadline September 6.

The top 30 fishermen in the Mountain Division after the six qualifying events will advance to one of five Regional Championships where they will compete with 90 other "working" men and women anglers for a $40,000 "Dream" bass fishing rig consisting of a Chevrolet pick up and a fully-rigged Ranger boat powered by an Evinrude or Johnson outboard.

Those anglers that enter all six qualifying tournaments within a division and do not qualify for another regional will qualify to compete in the "Wild Card" regional. The top six finishers will qualify for the prestigious Red Man All-American Championship.

The top eight from each of five regionals, the top four from the Western regional and the top six from the Wild Card regional will advance to the Red Man All-American where the winner will be awarded $100,000.

Each Red Man qualifying tournament has a $75 entry fee and a guaranteed first place cash award of $1,000. Each divisional point leader is also a guaranteed winner of $1,000. Additionally, Red Man anglers will be competing for the following awards throughout 1995: Bill Lewis Live Release Award; CITGO Cup Challenge Award; Old Milwaukee NA Rookie-of-the-Year; Abu Garcia Big Bass; and Energizer/Eveready Winning Combination Award.

Catch and release is practiced at every Red Man tournament and Operation Bass maintains a 98 percent live release rate in 147 events nationwide.

STIFFER RODS CAN ACTUALLY OVER-POWER FISH

Lost any big bass lately? If so, the reason could be that you're actually overpowering the fish, and changing to a slightly more limber action rod may help.

"There are a lot of reasons for losing bass," explains Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler Denny Brauer, "but certainly, overpowering the fish with your rod is one of them.

"It can happen with virtually any bass fishing technique, too, from flipping to crankbaiting. The rod action is too stiff.

"With small hook lures like crankbaits or topwaters, you pull the lure free, and with larger hook lures like jigs you can tear the tissue around the fish's mouth so the lure falls out."

Brauer knows firsthand the agony of over-powering bass this way. During a recent tournament he changed to a heavier action flipping/pitching rod just before the event started; on the first competition day he lost two bass of about eight pounds each and another over five.

"The stiffer rod was not flexing enough," says Brauer. "My jig was actually opening when I set the hook. I'd used the rod earlier and had no problem with smaller bass, but I did notice when I caught them I was literally launching them out of the water when I would set the hook.

"With the heavier bass, I couldn't move them that easily. Something had to give, and it was the hook."

If you think you're overpowering fish, Brauer suggests changing your rod first, then perhaps studying lure design and the type of hooks on that lure.

"Consider trying a rod with more flex," advises the Evinrude pro. "I don't mean changing from a heavy action to a light action, but perhaps a medium heavy, or even a heavy action with a lighter tip.

"This is why crankbait rods have very flexible tips. The bass usually hooks itself if the rod flexes properly, but if you use a stiff rod for crankbaits, you'll simply pull the lure away from the fish. The same is true with some topwater lures."

Brauer also advises studying your lures and their hooks. Most tournament pros put larger hooks on both their crankbaits and topwaters before they ever use them.

"Another problem could be the type of points you put on the hooks," Brauer adds. "If you make the point too long and thin, it will probably be too weak to penetrate properly, no matter how sharp it is. Instead, it will bend and won't penetrate at all.

"With other lures such as jigs, you may decide to change to a different manufacturer that uses a stronger hook, especially if you go after big bass regularly."

Fishermen who use a lot of electronic equipment on their bass boats might consider installing a voltmeter gauge, advise the experts at OMC Service. One of the easiest instruments for the do-it-yourselfer to install, a voltmeter monitors battery voltage, the operation of the alternator on the motor, and the function of the voltage regulator.

Wiley was a standout at Allen Central in track as well as basketball, dominating the 400-meter relays.

Wiley was also instrumental in helping lead the Lady Rebels of Allen Central to three consecutive 58th District Tournament titles. She was named All-Conference and All-District all three years.

Radon Info is available

Kentuckians in the Big Sandy Region can get radon information from their health departments or by calling Jeana Fleitz of the radiation control branch in the Department for Health Services. Her telephone number is (502) 564-3700. Her address is Department for Health Services, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, 40621.

Radon is a radioactive gas occurring naturally from the breakdown of underground uranium. In outdoor air, it is diluted and usually harmless. However, when the colorless, odorless gas is trapped inside a building, elevated levels of radon may become hazardous.

Scientists estimate that between 7,000 and 30,000 lung cancer deaths a year in the United States may be attributed to radon exposure.

Miner's widow sues in wake of safety scandal

A mine-safety scandal in Eastern Kentucky last year in which inspectors admitted taking payoffs from coal operators to overlook violations has sparked a lawsuit from a Pike County woman.

Benita Ratliff, of Elkhorn City, filed a lawsuit in Pike Circuit Court on February 21, against the mine's operators and the federal agency charged with enforcing safety laws.

Her husband, Timothy Ratliff, was killed December 4, 1991, in a mine-roof fall at Miller Branch Coal Company, 5 miles north of Pikeville.

"This a case that's really going to open a lot of issues," said Paul Deaton of Paintsville, Benita Ratliff's attorney.

In the lawsuit Deaton alleges that unnamed Mine Safety and Health Administration inspectors took bribes to permit Miller Branch to mine coal in unsafe working conditions, knowingly putting Ratliff's life at risk.

The suit was sparked in December when a grand jury charged a federal inspector with accepting $2,900 in bribes to overlook safety violations at the Miller Branch mine.

The inspector, T. Richard Oney, 46, of Vincennes, Indiana, was scheduled for trial Monday in Pikeville.

Instead, federal prosecutors say he will be rearraigned and is expected to plead guilty to conspiring with another inspector to accept bribes from October 1989 to January 1990.

The lawsuit noted that at least three MSHA inspectors have been indicted for accepting bribes.

Oney was transferred to Indiana nearly two years before Ratliff died, but Deaton said Oney's case set a pattern of non-enforcement involving the mine and federal inspectors.

Miller Branch operator James W. Blackburn, 42, of Regina, was sentenced to 10 months in federal prison in August after pleading guilty to sending Ratliff and others into Miller Branch Enterprises No. 1 mine to clean-up a previous roof fall before shoring up the mine ceiling.

Ratliff, 28, was killed instantly when an unsupported section of the roof fell on him, officials said.

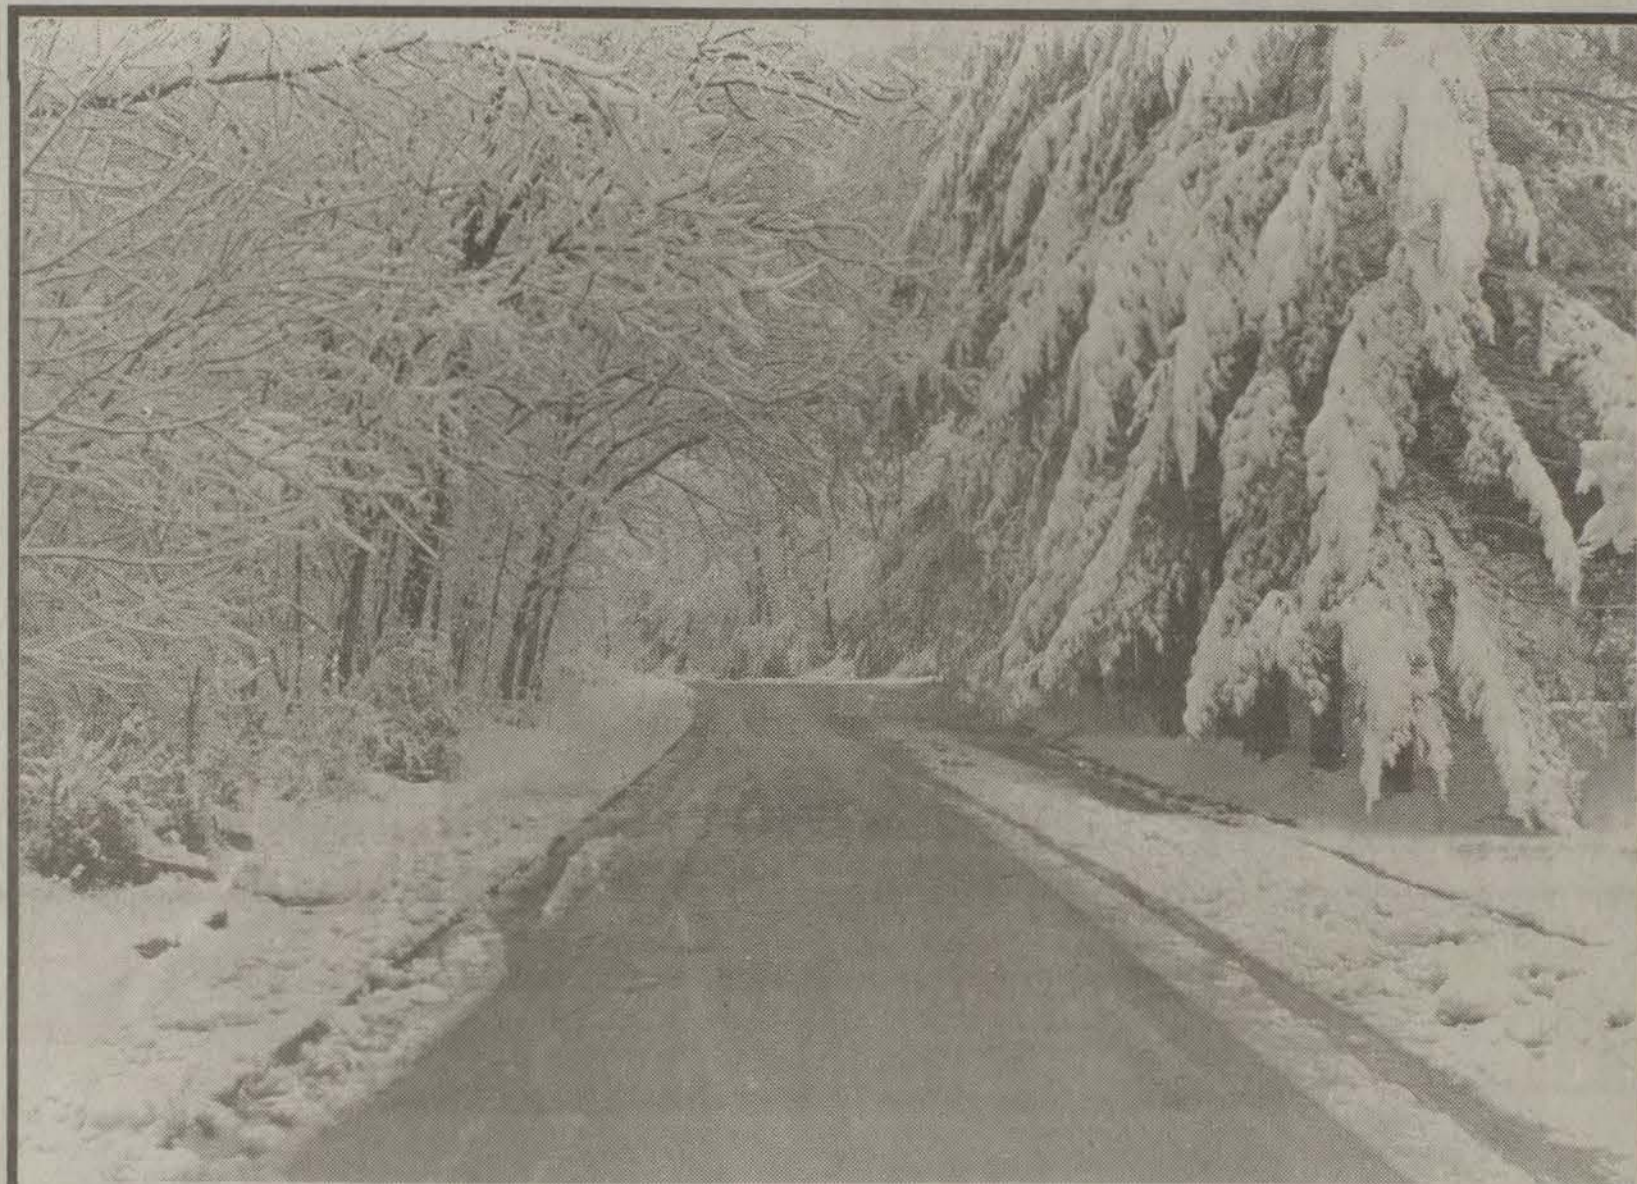

Blackburn's former partner, Aaron Justice Jr., and former mine foreman, Richard Raines, both of Regina, also were named in the suit.

They were indicted last year with Blackburn, although prosecutors said Justice was not involved in Ratliff's death. Both pleaded guilty to coal-dust fraud last year and were put on probation.

Attempts to obtain comments Wednesday from Blackburn's attorney, Robert S. Walker III of Lexington, and MSHA officials in Arlington, Virginia, were not successful.

Deaton said Benita Ratliff filed a worker's compensation claim after her husband's death. It was approved and she has been receiving weekly payments, he said. Normally, that prevents any further legal action, but Deaton said his client had no way of knowing until recently that the defendants allegedly were conspiring to violate mine-safety laws.

Ketchem released from prison

A former Johnson County man who at one time received a life sentence for the brutal 1982 beating death of a prosecution witness in another case has been released from prison.

Steve Ketchem, who was also serving time for his role in the 1983 robbery of the late Paintsville Mayor James S. Trimble, was released Tuesday, February 28, from the Luther Lockett Correctional Complex at La Grange, according to Kentucky Parole Board records.

A notice of discharged filed Thursday in Johnson Circuit Court said Ketchem was released due to the "minimum expiration of sentence."

Ketchem's release comes 10 years after he was imprisoned for the Trimble case, and less than four years after receiving a 15-year term for the February 26, 1982, death of Mark Thompson.

Originally charged with capital murder in Thompson's death, Ketchem, 47, formerly of Thelma, was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison following a 1987 trial. Prosecutors said Ketchem was hired to kill Thompson by Betty Miller and her sons Kelly King and James Dixon. The trio had been charged with murdering Miller's husband, Charles Miller, in February 1981.

At the time of his death, Thompson was scheduled to testify for the prosecution in the trio's trial. All three later pleaded guilty, but Miller and Dixon attempted to change their pleas when Thompson's body was found on Island Creek Road in Paintsville. Police said Thompson had been shot and beaten with a rock.

Ketchem's conviction was overturned in 1988 by the Kentucky Supreme Court, which ruled that a discussion between a juror and a witness was improper. The high court ordered a new trial.

In a plea bargain with then-Commonwealth's Attorney Leo Marcum, Ketchem pleaded guilty in July 1991 to an amended charge of manslaughter. He received a 15-year prison sentence, which was to run concurrently with the 15-year term he was serving for the Trimble robbery.

Prior to the Trimble and Thompson cases, Ketchem also had convictions for receiving stolen property and theft by unlawful taking.

Trial of jury rigging scheme postponed

The trial of seven persons, charged in an alleged scheme last spring to rig a jury in Magoffin County Circuit Court, was postponed Monday after a prosecutor's remark derailed jury selection.

Jury selection was underway in U.S. District Court when Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Self asked a question that allowed the jurors to know that there were other defendants in the case who had had their cases resolved, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Pat Molloy.

Molloy was referring to former Magoffin County Sheriff Thomas "Skip" Salyer and Bobby Earl Arnett, who was a member of the allegedly rigged Magoffin Circuit Court jury. Both have pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the case.

Molloy declined to disclose more specifics about Self's remark. Judge Joseph Hood dismissed the jury poll and rescheduled the trial for August 7.

Scheduled to stand trial are Magoffin County Circuit Clerk Roger Gullett, former Magoffin County Jailor Colin Ray Jackson, jury member Debra Helton, Homer "Bill Dodd" May, Jr., Donald Epling, of Pikeville, a witness in the trial, Mark D. Bartley, the lawsuit's plaintiff, and his father, Eppie Bartley, both of Ashcamp in Pike County.

Gullett and the others were indicted last October in connection with the Magoffin County case involving a December 1988 wreck in which Bartley was injured when his vehicle collided with a truck owned by the Johnson Coca-Cola Bottling Group, Inc. and operated by Eugene Howard.

A Magoffin Circuit Court jury awarded Bartley $3.8 million from the accident. That award was eventually whittled to $1.2 million in a settlement, which Bartley received last August.

Bartley was later ordered to split the money with Howard, who had filed a countersuit. Howard got $60,000.

Since the initial arrests Magoffin Circuit Judge John Robert Morgan has voided the April jury verdict and ordered the subsequent $1.2 million settlement returned to the insurance companies.

The seven were charged with conspiracy to defraud two insurance companies and four counts each of mail fraud.

Arnett, who was the first to enter a guilty plea, said Salyer told him to hold out for more money, then paid him $2,000 after the verdict was in.

Less than a week after Arnett entered a guilty plea, Salyer appeared before Judge Hood in Frankfort and pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit fraud.

Salyer told the judge that he paid off two jurors and Gullett.

Salyer and Arnett are scheduled to be sentenced May 30.

New Van Lear chief has busy month

Van Lear residents are quickly learning that their city now has its own police officer.

Since he was named police chief February 1, Darrell Preston has arrested 17 people in Van Lear on bench warrants issued by the local courts. In addition, he has cited 24 people for various traffic violations, such as speeding and running stop signs.

Preston, the city's first policeman since the 1960s, and city commissioners say they will hire additional officers in the future.

The Van Lear Police Department recently obtained a radar, and Preston said he will enforce the community's speed limit.

He also hopes to end Van Lear's reputation as a place to come and party.

Johnson County

Circuit Judge James A. Knight released Harless from his bond and all charges after the jury reported him "not guilty."

Harless was charged with Criminal Abuse, first degree, after his son, a minor less than 14 years of age, alleged Harless stomped him in the side after Harless became mad at the child for wasting a bar of soap.

The child's mother, Edna Preston, contends social workers on the case were not called by the Commonwealth to testify. She said none of the past incidents between her son and Harless were brought up in the trial because the Commonwealth told her it would be defamation of character against Harless.

Preston is willing to let her son take a polygraph test to prove he is not lying about the abuse and said she will take further action concerning past alleged abuse of her son. She said the truth was never revealed during the trial.

Assistant Commonwealth Attorney Cheryl Neff said she was not at liberty to comment on the case.

Harless not guilty verdict comes under fire

A Martin County jury found Lewis Holly Harless, 34, of Tomahawk, not guilty of criminal abuse charges during a trial Thursday, March 2, in Martin Circuit Court.

ruling that a 1991 agreement between Eastern Kentucky Resources and Magoffin County was a franchise instead of a contract. The company also filed a federal lawsuit last year, contending the state and its solid waste officials are interfering with interstate commerce. The constitutionality of the state's solid waste management plan is being contested.

Delegation to take appeal to D.C. to keep Farm Service Office open

Today a delegation from Magoffin County will meet with U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford, U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell and U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers to discuss keeping the local farm services open instead of having them closed and consolidated with central offices in West Liberty to serve Magoffin, Morgan and Elliott counties.

A rally held at the Herald Whitaker Middle School in Salyersville last week drew approximately 500 local people to discuss the proposed closings with state ASCS officials.

Magoffin County is one of 19 counties in Kentucky targeted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to have their farm services centers closed in an effort to streamline the department and alter expenditures.

Landfill developer lawsuit dismissed

The court of Appeals ruled last week that Eastern Kentucky Resources, a Florida-based partnership, cannot sue the Magoffin Countians for a Better Environment just for opposing a proposed project to build a 300-acre landfill in the county.

Angie Siegel Clarke, a spokeswoman for Eastern Kentucky Resources, said that the rulings were not surprising and that the company expects to prevail in two other lawsuits.

In one of them, the developer is appealing Chenault's

Students help with Habitat

A Pike County community will play host to 24 college students during this week's spring break.

The two groups from Boston College of Massachusetts and Bemidji State University of Minnesota arrived Sunday to help Phelps Area Habitat build another new home.

Five volunteers from Detroit and one from Philadelphia will come to help supervise the construction event.

Collegiate challenge '95, an event coordinated by the Campus Chapters department of Habitat for Humanity International, will find concerned college students working with Habitat affiliates all over the nation.

The Phelps Habitat has been hosting Collegiate Challenge groups since 1993 in an effort to provide better housing for the area's people.

The week's goal will be to get the Denita Layne home under roof in two days, then begin installing doors, windows, electrical and heating systems.

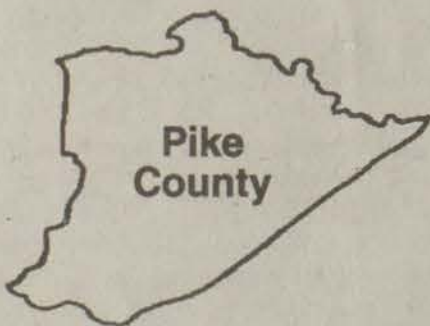

Also, some finishing touches will be put on the home Habitat built for Martha New, which was dedicated in December.

Organizers say many community volunteers will be involved with making this year's Collegiate Challenge a success.

Habitat for Humanity is an international organization that has affiliates in every state and more than 30 countries overseas.

Habitat in the Phelps area has completed more than 50 projects, including the construction of four new homes. Habitat is a self-help organization that provides a hand-up, not a hand-out.

The families that habitat serves are called Partner Families and all are required to pay back the money spent on building materials. Partners are also required to do "sweat equity," a process in which families work on one another's projects.

Water service to be extended

Mountain Water District has received more than $2 million in federal funds to extend service to 667 new customers, U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers said recently. The Pike county utility got a $750,000 grant from Rural Development Administration, a wing of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The RDA also lent Mountain Water $1.3 million. Rogers, R-Somerset, said the money will help Mountain Water build a new water system from Dorton on U.S. 23 to the outskirts of Elkhorn City on Ky. 197.

Pike County man arrested in shooting

Katherine Taylor, 31, of Turkey Creek, was allegedly shot by her husband, Bruce E. Taylor, 30, during an altercation over a handgun on Saturday.

The gun discharged, striking Katherine Taylor in the forehead.

She was taken to the South Williamson Appalachian Regional Hospital and later airlifted to Charleston Memorial Hospital where she is listed in critical condition.

While at the scene, Kentucky State Police officers also charged Bruce Taylor with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

KSP is still investigating the incident.

Two agencies get ARC grants

Two Kentucky agencies received a $300,000 Appalachian Regional Commission grant to build and improve housing in the Eastern Kentucky mountains. The grant will go to the Kentucky Housing Corp. and the Federation of Appalachian Housing Enterprises Inc. U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers, R-Somerset, said the funds will be used to rehabilitate or build housing for up to 120 low-income families in Bell, Breathitt, Clay, Harlan, Jackson, Knott, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry and Wolfe counties.

Hall creates dream dollhouse for kids

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Editor's note: At presstime on Thursday, Genia Hall was released from the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington. This interview was given the day before she was the victim of a stabbing.

For years Genia Hall of Wheelwright has been working with needlepoint, focusing on creating relatively small items, such as a carrying case for her daughter's Troll dolls.

Then in June of 1994, the 30-year-old mother of three began working on her biggest needlepoint project to date—an approximately four-foot-tall Barbie dollhouse.

Genia had seen a similar, small needlepoint dollhouse at a craft show in Lexington a few years ago, but never considered making one herself.

Then about four years ago, Genia's mother brought her the pattern book for a needlepoint Barbie dollhouse. At the time, Genia had two young children and no time on her hands. But when she did decide to start the project last summer, it quickly became a family affair. Her two oldest children, Billy, 14, and Stacy, 10, helped with the stitching of pieces, as did her husband Jeff. Genia's friend, Michelle, also contributed to the work.

"The living room was first made," Genia said. "When that was done, we couldn't wait to put the next room on. When we put a room on, we called the neighbors to come and see it."

Six months later, just in time for Christmas, the project was completed. The house, made on the scale of Barbie dolls, required 200 pieces of plastic canvas and several skeins of yarn in different colors. The exterior of the house is light blue with white window panes and eaves. The white front door is ornate with blue side panels and an arch surrounding a pink heart. A Christmas wreath hangs on the door, and a decorated miniature evergreen tree sits by the front step.

The three-level interior of the house is mind-boggling in detail. The six-room interior includes a center staircase with a needlepoint rug running down the steps, rooms with needlepoint "wallpaper" and framed pictures on the walls, and a kitchen with miniature plastic dishes sitting on shelves. A brown trunk sits in the attic.

"We got Barbie-sized miniatures of cups and saucers and other dishes at the toy department (of a local discount store)," Genia said. "Then my ten-year-old daughter suggested we make a ceiling fan for one of the rooms. That was our own idea."

When the project was completed, Genia decided to share her creation with Osborne Elementary School, where she works as a kindergarten aide.

"I took the house to school and set it up and let the children look at it," she said. "Everyone wanted to touch it and play with it...They liked to open the refrigerator. The kitchen even has a trash compactor."

Presently, the dollhouse is fulfilling its intended purpose in the Hall home.

"It's in my little girls' bedroom," Genia said. "Stacy plays with it. Everyone says, 'Don't play with it. Put it up.' But we made it to play with. My little girl (one-year-old Siera) likes to sit and look at it."

A few people have asked Genia about buying the dollhouse, or having her make one for them to buy. "I would, for the right price," she said, adding that no one has offered to pay what it's worth. "There's so much time put in it."

Meanwhile, Genia has already started on a new needlepoint project—a Barbie doll castle. "I found the pattern in another book," she said. "It's about the same size as the dollhouse. It has a study, a kitchen, a den and hallway. Each room has a balcony. Needlepoint is something we all enjoy doing and we look forward to seeing the castle when it's finished."

And the needlepoint creations probably won't end with the completion of the castle.

"My daughter has a book with a Barbie cruise ship she wants done," Genia said.

One side...

Genia Hall opened the front door of her needlepoint dollhouse just enough to hint at what was on the other side.

...And the other

The detailed interior was created by Genia with the help of daughters Siera, Stacy and other family members.

Pikeville baby home, makes medical history

Sarah Katherine Downey celebrated her six-month birthday Wednesday and she has already made medical history — twice.

Katie, as she is called by her family, received a homograft and interbronchial stent placement at the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center last week — the first time the procedures have been performed on an infant this young in Kentucky, and possibly in the United States.

Katie, the daughter of Kimberly and Roy Downey, of Pikeville, was born September 8, at Pikeville Methodist Hospital with congenital heart disease.

The disease included inter-cardiac defects with an absent pulmonary valve which caused massive swelling of the right ventricle and pulmonary arteries prior to birth.

Describing Katie as being "blueberry blue" at birth, Downey said he knew something was wrong right away.

Following Katie from birth, Pikeville neonatologist Dr. Ruth Shepherd recommended that the Downeys take Katie to the UK Medical Center for more definitive testing and treatment.

Examinations and tests at the Lexington hospital resulted in the decision that Katie required surgery.

So, at 13 days of age, Dr. Robert Salley, UK chief of cardiothoracic surgery, replaced Katie's pulmonary valve with a uniquely tailored homograft—an adult valve trimmed to one-third of its normal size to accommodate Katie—in a procedure not known to be previously performed on infants less than six months of age.

Although the homograft had solved one of Katie's problems, she still had other hurdles to face in her battle for survival.

"In patients with this condition, the pulmonary arteries expand so drastically that they actually restrict the airways... it's called bilateral compression of the bronchi by pulmonary arteries.

"That's what was happening to Katie," said Dr. Carol Cottrill, UK pediatric cardiologist and director of UK's pediatric cardiac catheterization lab.

Katie was readmitted to UK where she was placed on a ventilator to assist her breathing, she remained on the ventilator for three weeks.

Unable to remove her from the ventilator, Katie's UK cardiopulmonary team decided to try intrabronchial stent placement on their young patient.

In the procedure, a tiny bronchoscope is inserted through the endotracheal tube that had been placed in her airway to allow the cardiologist to find and mark the extent of the narrowed section of the bronchi.

After removing the bronchoscope, metal mesh "stents"—like hollow casings—are placed over an inflatable balloon which is taken to the narrowed bronchial site through the endotracheal tube.

Once in place, the balloon is inflated—expanding the stents as it inflates—to the predetermined size needed to open the bronchi to a normal size.

"We can repeat this procedure to expand the stents as Katie grows," said Cottrill, noting that four years ago, this procedure did not exist for either pediatric or adult patients.

"We began using the stents in heart blood vessels in adult and pediatric patients about two years ago," Cottrill said, adding that application of this procedure in other vessels, such as the bronchi, is just now being explored and developed.

Cottrill said the little girl is doing extremely well so far and her physicians are optimistic that she will continue to progress.

"But we all need to remember that Katie is a pioneer with this procedure so we'll be watching her long-term progress very closely," she said.

The Downeys said they believe that the strong link between their community physicians and the UK Chandler Medical Center doctors will continue to benefit Katie.

Katie and her parents came home Saturday, March 4.

Kentucky receives grant for project sites from OSM

Kentucky recently received an Abandoned Mine Land grant from the Federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) for projects at sites throughout the state, said U.S. Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers.

The grant of $11,510,000 is Kentucky's allocation for abandoned mine land projects that have been approved in previous years.

Since 1977, Kentucky has received more than $279.9 million for abandoned mine lands projects.

Abandoned Mine Land projects reclaim the land damage caused by strip mining.

Projects also help provide clean drinking water to areas where strip mining has damaged the water supply.

Belcher nominated as financial services advocate of the year

Stephen G. Belcher

Stephen G. Belcher, vice president of commercial lending for the Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company, was recently nominated as the U.S. Small Business Administration's Financial Advocate of the Year.

Belcher will compete with other nominees throughout the state of Kentucky and upon winning will compete at the regional and national level. National winners will go to Washington, D.C. as part of the national Small Business Week Celebration April 30-May 6.

Belcher was selected because of his continued support of small business in its efforts to raise capital for start-up and expansion. The areas of evaluation will include the amount and quality of assistance given to small businesses in obtaining financing; the advocacy of changes in the financial services industry to assist small firms; the encouragement of the flow of investment capital to small ventures; active support for legislative or regulatory action designed to help small firms; and other significant contributions through the financial services industry to advance small business interests.

He has served the Eastern Kentucky area as a commercial lending officer since 1975. During that time he has helped small businesses access several hundred millions of dollars in small business loans. Through his efforts, Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company gained recognition as being Kentucky's leading SBA lender in 1994.

The two slept peaceably but then, over breakfast, Garcia realized that Medellin had been arrested for killing Garcia's son. Garcia beat Medellin up before jailers intervened.

*Lizzie Borden took an axe, and gave her mother forty whacks.
When she saw what she had done,
she gave her father forty-one.*

Despite that popular sentiment, handed down through the ages, Lizzie Borden was acquitted in the late 1800's of the axe murders of her parents.

The jury just couldn't accept the allegations that a woman could be capable of such a heinous crime.

That, of course, was well before the likes of Tonya Harding, Lorena Bobbitt and Susan Smith and during a time when prosecuting criminals was much less complicated.

Boy, things have sure changed. Nowadays, you can commit two murders in front of three dozen witnesses and still have a reasonably good chance of getting away with it.

See, the legal system isn't just concerned with guilt and innocence anymore. Juries are often asked these days to decide if, well, maybe someone or something else ought to share the blame for criminal acts.

But if you really want to see how screwed up the legal system is, try comparing the concept of punishment between criminal courts and civil courts.

The Menendez brothers killed their parents; claimed they had no alternative after suffering years of abuse; and got off scot-free.

McDonald's, on the other hand, was slapped with a $3 million verdict for the "crime" of serving their coffee too hot.

In another case, a man who shot another man, then bashed his skull in with a rock so the victim could not testify in a murder trial, spent just eight years behind bar for his crime.

In Illinois, the parents of two teen-agers who died in a crash while they were drag racing are suing for millions and millions of dollars, claiming the city is partly responsible for providing a street they could race on; and the car manufacturer was negligent for building a car that would go fast enough to race.

There's been no conclusion yet to that case, but we'll bet there's a monetary settlement before it's all said and done.

Sure, comparing criminal matters to civil cases is like comparing apples to oranges, but it still strikes us rather odd that juries are much more inclined to deliver harsh verdicts over money than they are over blood.

If Lizzie Borden had been accused of murder today, she probably still would have gotten away with it.

The company that sold her axe, though, would have been in big trouble.

Country music country at Allen Central and South Floyd schools

Keeping beat
Renny Hall is the drummer for the Kentucky Opry Junior Pros.

Billie Jean Osborne's Kentucky Opry Jr. Pros are bringing a little bit o' Nashville to Floyd County's schools.

The Jr. Pros received standing ovations for their tremendous daytime performances at Allen Central High School on February 23 and South Floyd High School on March 2.

Production Manager Greg Crum said last week that the school performances represented the group's continuing efforts to expose Floyd County's youth to the finest in culture and entertainment.

The great balancing act

Economics has never been my strong suit. It still amazes me when I get money back from a dollar at McDonald's. And it boggles my mind when I think about the gold in Fort Knox backing up all the coin and currency we make in mints throughout the United States. It puts my brain into overload just thinking about it.

"Why can't we just print more money?" I asked my husband.

"That's not how it works, Sara. You want everybody to apply the same principles you use when you write checks with nothing to back them up."

"Okay. What will happen if we never balance the budget?"

"Our money won't be worth a plug nickel."

"How much is it worth now?" I asked.

"Sara, we need to balance the budget."

"Yeah, but why? The country's run the same way if it's balanced or not."

"That's all going to come to a screeching halt, Sara. It has to. Something's gotta give."

"All right. Hypothetically, let's assume that President Clinton knows what he's talking about and he attempts to balance the budget by cutting back on government programs. He cuts the food stamp program, the social security program, the AFDC program, dam projects, farm subsidies, government contracts, NASA projects, Medicare, Medicaid, SSI, school lunches and nuclear warfare. What would happen?"

"It would probably save us billions of dollars a year."

"Okay. Now hypothetically, the deficit starts to decline and our money is worth more. Will my five dollars be worth five dollars or six dollars?"

"It'll just be worth what it is, Sara, instead of what it isn't."

"The way I see it, Jimmie, five dollars buys five dollars worth of stuff unless I get a bargain and five dollars gets me six dollars worth of stuff. Right?"

"Sara, I was confused before. Now I don't even know what I thought I knew."

"That's because nobody can balance the budget and still continue to have stuff," I laughed. "But if the budget is balanced we can buy stuff cheaper in Canada even though it would cost more here. Is that right?"

"I have no idea what you're talking about, Sara," Jimmie said shaking his head.

"You know what I mean. If I went to Mexico I could get more stuff there because our dollars are worth more than their pesos. But I don't like their stuff as much as I like our stuff. Do you? I mean, you can only buy so many sombreros and Mexican jumping beans."

"Sara, you need to talk to someone who knows our economy. It's hard to explain, and I don't know that much about it myself. Where are you going?"

"To buy a lottery ticket. If I win the 100 million I'll take a crash course in economics."

I Killed My Brother

While this space generally is reserved for movie reviews, I felt compelled to tell you about this wonderful off-Broadway drama, currently running at Altered Stages on West 29th Street in New York City. The show will end its run on April 9, 1995.

The autobiographical, 90-minute, one-character play follows the life of a young man whose brother is dying of AIDS. As detailed at the beginning of the play, these two young men had formed a particularly close bond while growing up. Thus, when one brother gets sick, the other brother is left to deal with the lion's share of grief and suffering. When the dying young man, who had been catatonic for months, wakes up to request that his brother administer an overdose of pain killers, his brother complies but is soon faced with questioning by law-enforcement authorities.

The play is heart-wrenching and deals with a number of issues, from how society views AIDS patients, to euthanasia itself. The author, Nelson Jewell, has obviously allowed us to glimpse a piece of his own soul with this work.

The 43-year-old award-winning playwright was himself diagnosed HIV-positive in 1986. He has since developed AIDS and has but 14 white T-cells remaining. Despite his condition, Jewell maintains a speed-of-light schedule and a positive outlook. A divorced father, his goal is to champion the rights and plight of AIDS sufferers, the terminally ill, and, he often quips, the underdog in general. "I want to be a spokesman for disabled people everywhere, especially people with pediatric AIDS, and bring to the forefront the intolerable way our society deals with the terminally ill and aging population."

If you're planning a trip to New York between now and April 9, please don't miss this powerful work. For ticket information, call TicketMaster at 1-212-307-4100.

SOAP SCRAPS

MADONNA ON A SOAP? Although it sounds like something cranked out of a press agent's imagination, the possibility that Madonna might turn up as a guest on a daytime series soon, both because she'd find it fun and because it could help her revive a popularity that has been waning of late, is real.

The story on "All My Children" involving Julia (Sydney Penny) working in a hospice is generating a lot of favorable mail to this column. Fans, apparently, like the idea of focusing some attention on this often ignored subject.

Ariane from New York, wrote "...So many families have people who are spending their last days in a hospice and I feel ... it's important we show how kind and caring (the staff) are ... I wish more soaps would do stories about this ..."

Speaking of "All My Children," one of its former stars, Matt Borchgrevink, who made hearts flutter in his role as Brian, is as happy as a little pig in a mud bath courtesy of his role as Johnny Barzano on "Pig Sty," on the United Paramount Network.

Asked if he ever considers a return trip to Pine Valley, even for just a visit, Matt said, "Sometimes I think it might be nice to come back for a short while to see everyone .... (But) I'm doing a lot in prime time now and I don't know when I could manage it. Still, I don't rule it out."

A. With the release of her new album this month titled "Fire to Fire," it will mark the remarkable 28th album in her prolific career. Early word around town says she is better than ever!

TIPPIN IS STILL TOPS!—Well, dear readers, it is no secret that this columnist is certainly quite smitten with Mr. Aaron Tippin! And, while I'll be the first to admit that I certainly would never throw this gent off my couch for eating crusty cookies (I hope my husband doesn't read this!), I really am a fan of his artistry and talent and I relish his captivating music. And don't you agree, ladies, that his body makes Tippin "Top of the Hill"?

RHONDA RECOMMENDS—In keeping with the last item, it's time to show your husband and/or significant other a TIPPIN VIDEOTAPE! Get the mister on the exercise regime that makes Tippin tops—what a body!

WHISHES—I wish I could have a voice like Ms. Lari White, but, as fate would have it, I certainly do not. She has perhaps the most wonderful and stunning voice I've ever heard, so pick up the CD "Whishes," (RCA,) and treasure this masterpiece!

whose inner demon flung him across the room. Later, Mike found curious burn marks on Marlena's hands (where the holy water hit her). Jack and Laura were stunned to learn each other's true identities and embraced as they agreed to keep their past intimacy secret. Jennifer was upset to find her mother in her ex-husband's arms. Marlena, via the devil, got Stefano to agree to free her. Vivian set fire to her mansion so that Kate would be forced to let her stay with the Kiriakises. Sami was humiliated when Austin said he made love to her only because he thought she was Carrie. To Bo's surprise, Gina asked to join the police department, following in Hope's footsteps. Wait To See: The devil puts a supreme test on Marlena.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Felicia gave birth to her daughter, whom Maxi named, Georgie. Later, disguised as his twin, Kevin, Ryan worked his way into General Hospital and kidnapped baby Georgie. Sonny was upset by Mike's efforts to probe into his life. Alan and the Quartermaines gathered to discuss Monica's plan to bring Page and Emily home with her. Wait To See: Edward quite literally goes to the dogs.

Wait To See: Jacob's next move could create problems for Angie.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Cassie gave Jean (one of Viki's alter egos) worrisome news about finding the location of Dorian's phone call. David asked Tina to make sure Sam doesn't give any information to Todd. Dorian was distressed by Jean's conditions for her release. David later made a deal with "Viki" for his release from jail. Tina was upset when David asked for a divorce. After a confrontation with Todd about his true identity, Jean split into Niki who promptly headed out of town to party. Wait To See: Dorian is forced into a dangerous plan of action.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Jack was surprised and moved by Jill's imploring John to recover from his stroke. Later, Jack and Luan moved into the Abbott mansion. Mamie then ran off to see John in the hospital. Ryan was angry when Nina said she planned to finish college before getting pregnant again. While Hope was telling Douglas about her plans for a surprise birthday party for Victor in their apartment, Victor was accepting Nikki's suggestion for a family party at the ranch. Mari Jo was startled to hear Ashley say she and Blade (actually Rick) were hoping to start a family. The real Blade, meanwhile, escaped and came to Genoa City to confront Mari Jo. Later, Rick was shocked to find Blade in Ashley's room. After learning of Lauren's plan to meet with Dr. James Warwick, Sheila flew to Los Angeles to remind Lauren of her promise to Scott not to expose her. Wait To See: Lauren makes a decision that could cause problems for her and Warwick.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An investment could pay off for you, but you still feel that you just don't have enough hands to accomplish what needs to be done around the house. Don't be afraid to enlist the aid of family members.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A partner has an inspirational effect on you. Unfortunately, however, a friend seems to drain you. Try to avoid this person for now. It's not a good week, either for getting your views across.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Business interests receive a nice boost, but care is needed in financial dealings with others. Someone is looking for an opportunity to take advantage of you in this area. An acquaintance made now doesn't follow through on a promise.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There's no need to rush in making a decision about a financial concern. Though you'll have fun at a leisure event, partners really aren't on the same wavelength this week. It's best to keep away from controversial issues.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Joyous times come at home, but you could have trouble in getting an unfinished task out of the way. This is due to a lack of attention on your part so do your best to remedy this. Concentrate more effectively.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You'll be hearing some good news from one friend this week, but overall, it's not the best week for socializing. Unanswered romantic questions are on your mind. However, it's best not to push your mate too hard right now.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Though the workweek begins on a productive note, later, you could encounter delays and obstacles to your plans. Others are just not being cooperative. Concern about home matters also interferes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You could be doing some decorating at home this week. You'll also be receiving good news from a distance. Some are in for a surprise financial windfall which helps tremendously.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's a poor week for selling an item, as you could waste time dealing with people who aren't really serious or interested. Word-of-mouth serves you best. It's wise to be conservative now about financial matters.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You're likely to receive a nice social invitation this week for the coming weekend. However, you could be restless and in an independent mood. This causes delays in making any commitments, social or otherwise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Though new business opportunities arise, it could be tough going regarding the completion of current assignments. Try to buckle down and concentrate on tasks at hand. If not, you could end up with a backlog of work.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could be invited to a party that will take place in the near future. This week, though, your social plans seem to be up in the air. Someone is keeping you waiting, but try to be more patient.

You won't be sorry. After all, this work comes to us from the same man who received very favorable recognition for his musical, "Working Out With Leona," a musical satire about a fictionalized Leona Helmsley, who ran a fitness club like a tyrant—the way the real Leona reputedly ran her hotel empire. New Yorkers who caught that show agreed it was a hoot. In fact, it didn't escape notice from the Queen of Mean herself, who soon joined Mr. Jewell in his charitable efforts for AIDS groups by contributing generous amounts of money.

Do try to catch this poignant production.

HOME TIPS

WELL ORGANIZED—In order to have a particular place for my bills when they come in, I hung a plastic shoe bag with 12 pockets for shoes in a handy area.

Next, I labeled each pocket. Now I have a specific place for my bills and they are all together when I am ready to pay them.

I also had some pockets left over, so I put a book of stamps in one and use another one for bills that have been paid but need to be mailed at a later date. I just put an "X" with a bright-colored pen on the date on my calendar when it is to be mailed. Kelly G., Commerce City, Colo.

WARM IT UP—I put dry towels and blankets in the dryer for a few minutes when my husband had a chill, then put the warm towels and blankets over him and in a few minutes, the chill was gone.

It was a time-saver and also helped combat the problem. I hope this helps someone else. Gertrude W., Haddonfield, N.J.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Spring Spot Checks Prevent Costly Home Repairs

(NAPS)—"The best maintenance is preventive maintenance," says nationally known Super Handyman Al Carrell. "Spring cleaning is a perfect way to spot termites and other invisible dangers, such as wind and water damage and foundation problems, that can result in repair nightmares and a decrease in the value of your home."

Termite damage, at a cost of more than $1.1 billion per year, tops the list of invisible dangers. A single 2" x 6" roof rafter can cost more than $1,100 to repair, and most home insurance policies do not cover termite damage.

Although you may not see termites crawling across your floors, thousands could be devouring the wood in your walls and floors, weakening the structure of your house. Termites swarm every spring but are often confused with flying ants. Since they eat wood from the inside out, damage can go unnoticed year after year.

Carrell offers these tips to help protect your home against costly termite damage:

- Remove wooden trellises from exterior walls.
- Trim tree limbs so they do not touch or hang over house.
