by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Three Prestonsburg attorneys have filed a class action lawsuit seeking refunds of over $800,000 paid to the Floyd County Fiscal Court for a 911 service.

Attorneys Tim Parker, John Coleman and James D. Adams II filed the lawsuit against the fiscal court and Judge-Executive Bob Meyer Tuesday on behalf of Ronald L. Hager, Joseaylen Shepherd, Donald Derek Hicks, James D. Adams M.D., E. Shag Branham, Samuel Hale, Edward Ousley, Paul Porter and "other similarly situated taxpayers of Floyd County."

Parker said Tuesday that the lawsuit will be certified as a class action case to include all Floyd Countians who have had telephone service for the past five years.

"The money needs to be repaid to the taxpayers," Parker said. "The court has had five years (to implement a 911 service) and the plaintiffs feel they are no closer to having it now than as of February 16, 1990, when the tax was first col-

Judge Meyer announced last week that there is not enough money in the county's general fund to transfer the $800,000 into a separate 911 checking account.

At the March 17 fiscal court meeting, Meyer suggested that magistrates remove 911 monies from the county's general fund and place the funds in a separate bank account.

Also at the March 17 meeting, charge has been illegally collected. 1995. County Attorney Jim Hammond reported that the fiscal court had been illegally collecting an 89-cent per month surcharge for the service passed authorizing the special tax.

The Times reported in February 1994 that no ordinance authorizing the tax could be produced and that a review of the fiscal court's records and newspaper advertisements failed to show an ordinance had been adopted.

Inez Hereford died around 8 p.m. Monday at King's Daughters' Hospital in Ashland, where she had been hospitalized in the intensive care unit since the accident.

The mishap occurred near the Ashland Oil refinery. Witnesses reported that on March 17 Thomas Hereford had exited I-64, and went through a red light as he pulled off the westbound ramp onto U.S. 23 and into the path of a Chevrolet pickup. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Inez Hereford was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital where she underwent surgery to remove a blood clot in her head. Other injuries she received in the accident caused her to develop pneu-

Floyd County's solid waste commissioners want a representative from the state auditor's office to explain to them and the public why $2.5 million in "user fees" cannot be accounted for.

At Monday's solid waste board meeting, commissioners discussed the findings of the state audit, which board members say they do not understand.

Kentucky State Police have apparently begun a review of Prestonsburg City Council records, but a spokesman for the agency declined to comment on the issue Tuesday. Sgt. Warren Meadows, with the KSP's special investigation unit in Lexington, would neither confirm nor deny that his department had opened a probe into city government, but a city official substantiated the issue Monday evening. City attorney Paul Burchett confirmed that KSP detective Herman Holbrook had visited city hall, requesting to inspect council minutes from 1994 through the present. Burchett said the detective did not say why he wanted to review the council records or what he might have been looking for. Sgt. Meadows did confirm Tuesday that detective Holbrook was a member of the KSP's special investigations branch in Lexington.

Commissioner Darrell Patton brought up the comment in the audit, which reports that $2.5 million in "unpaid customer accounts" is due the commission.

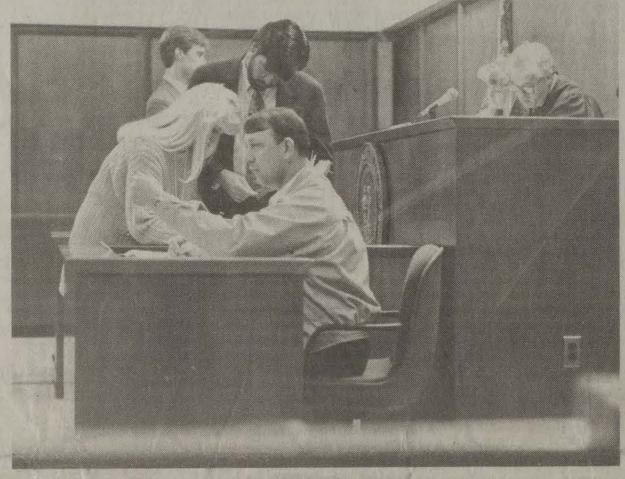

"I'm alarmed, it doesn't surprise me, but it alarms me," Patton said. "How they can send this in the mail and say everything is hunky dory blows my mind. They come short of saying it's missing money. You can't lose $2.5 million."

In response to Patton's comment, audience members said in unison, "you can in Floyd County."

Executive director Mike Vance said he would contact the auditor's office and ask that a representative attend the April meeting to discuss the audit findings with the board.

Patton, who said he was speaking as a taxpayer, told the board, "if $2.5 million is missing, they ought to be able to find it." He added that other county taxpayers want the report explained.

District Clerk arraigned

Floyd County District Clerk Linda Sue DeRossett was arraigned Monday on two counts of first degree wanton endangerment. Rumpke representative Ron Henke reported that 2,248 residents are not paying their garbage bills, which amounts to over $200,000.

Henke admitted that there were some errors in the delinquent account list, but he said that the information had been taken from the county's partially complete 911 listing. Letters were sent to the delinquent customers three weeks ago, Henke said, which set a 14day time frame to pay the accounts.

Henke suggested that commissioners and Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson review the delinquent customer list to correct inaccuracies.

Henke also reported that Rumpke's transfer station should be operational within two months, but added that it would definitely be

Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill denied a request Monday that he recuse himself from the case of a Floyd District Court Clerk accused of holding two state policemen at gunpoint, and ordered that the clerk take a leave of absence from her duties.

District clerk Linda Sue DeRossett, who is the wife of Circuit Court Clerk Frank DeRossett Jr., was arraigned Monday before Judge Caudill on two charges of first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly pointing a pistol and firing three shots during an altercation with police at her home last September.

DeRossett's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, filed a motion requesting that Caudill remove himself from the case because he had expressed an opinion on its merits.

In overruling the motion, Judge Caudill said that he had expressed an opinion concerning DeRossett's employment status as district clerk, not on the merits of the case.

Prestonsburg's effort to cut waste and control garbage disposal costs through a recycling program is expanding, Mayor Jerry Fannin said Monday.

Fannin said city sanitation crews have begun picking up cardboard and will soon add newspapers to the list of waste that city residents may separate for recycling.

"We're trying to build up the program as we go," Fannin told council, "and we hope someday to have a full-time person in charge of the program.'

The city began its recycling project in early January, limiting pickups to metal cans. Participation has been slow in developing, public works supervisor Tom Harris said, but the city hopes to develop more interest through public awareness campaigns and by one-on-one meetings with large waste produc-

Judge Caudill said that the defendant's counsel mentioned that a "possible agreement had been reached" which would have required DeRossett to quit her job or to retire.

Judge Caudill said that he would seek an opinion on the issue from the Judicial Ethics Committee and said he, "gave no opinion at any time, at any place or to any one on the merits of the case."

DeRossett is accused of holding state police officers Lynn Cross and Les Stapleton at gunpoint during an incident at her home at Auxier on September 13, 1994. DeRossett allegedly fired the weapon three times during the incident. Officers were responding to a call for assistance at DeRossett's home, but the policemen have declined to offer other details of the incident. Bond was set at $10,000 surety and DeRossett was ordered to not go within 500 feet of the officers and to take a leave of absence. A pretrial conference is set for April 28 at 1 p.m.

Medisin vice president Bob Ford told the board that the company is seeking a state permit to operate a transfer station at the incinerator, located at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Commissioner David Layne commented that Rumpke returns 15 percent of its revenues to the commission, while Medisin would not be obligated to return any monies for garbage disposal. Commissioners also wondered if Medisin would be allowed to operate a transfer station while Rumpke has a franchise for garbage disposal in the county.

Commissioners Debbie Ratliff and Lowell Sammons were absent from Monday's meeting. The April 24 meeting of the Solid Waste Commission will be held at the Wayland Senior Citizens Center.

Rogers faints while being sentenced

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

A Toler Creek man who pleaded guilty to sex abuse charges earlier this month passed out Friday as Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill handed down a 22-year prison term.

Earl Rogers, 55, fell to the floor Friday morning during sentencing and was removed from the Floyd Circuit Courtroom by an ambulance crew from P & B Ambulance. Emergency personnel from the Prestonsburg Fire Department also responded to the courtroom.

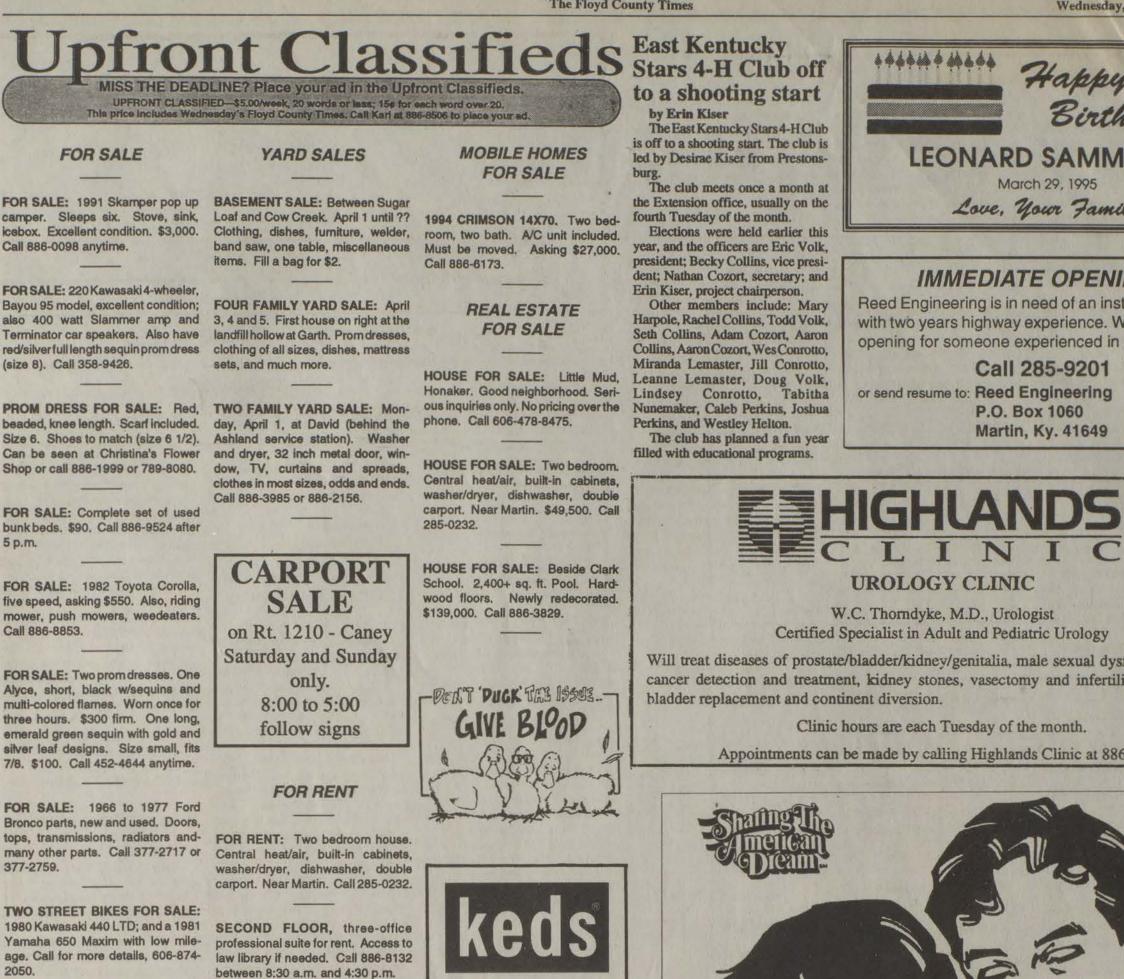

Rogers was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he was treated and returned to the Floyd County Jail.

Rogers apparently fainted, Judge Caudill said Monday.

Rogers was indicted last year on 86 counts of sexual abuse and pleaded guilty to five charges prior to the start of his trial.

In the plea agreement, Rogers agreed to plead guilty to two counts of first degree sodomy; two counts of second degree rape; and one count of first degree sexual abuse. A 22-year prison term was offered as part of the agreement.

Sounds like a pretty handy way to have the taxpayers bail out the fiscal court for screwing the taxpayers in the first place...with interest added, of course.

Viewpoint

Maybe it's time for the taxpayers to bail themselves out instead, and let this bunch go down with the ship.

They're the ones who broke the law, collecting taxes that were never authorized and spending the money improperly.

And that includes the county attorney, who is required by law to oppose illegal or unjust activities.

Area missing 911 funds an intentional swindle?

Editor:

Finally the truth on the so-called 911 fund comes out. After years of lies, of cover-ups, misleading statements, and promises; the new judge admits that the 911 fund money "ain't there."

Why "ain't" it there? Because there was never a 911 project to begin with. It was never passed as an ordinance by the fiscal court, no reading appears in the minutes of the court; no ordinance was ever published in the newspaper.

Thus, the approximately $1 million collected from us through the telephone companies has no legal status. It is not tax money or revenue. The money is not protected by the "designated project fund" law as it was never a legal project. The fiscal court must believe that we are idiots when they tell us that they will restore the fund in July with tax money collected in May and June. I challenge Mr. Meyer, the Judge-Executive, to go on any public forum, and with a straight face, tell us that they will divert a million dollars of tax money in July to restore the missing or vanished funds illegally collected for a nonexistent project. This sounds about as realistic as their often "It's all there, folks."

Was this an intentional swindle? Examine the historical facts! The 911 project was never legally authorized by the court, apparently never even discussed. Yet, someone from the court contacted the telephone companies to collect the 911 money. Was this person or committee authorized to do so by the court? Did our magistrates authorize this person or committee to do this without a supporting ordinance passed by the court?

I am a parent member of the Prestonsburg High School S.B.D.M. council as well as a concerned parent. There is a growing number of par-

As many of you are aware, originally there was $7.1 million allocated to this project, however that figure has dwindled away to $3.1 million which has now been committed to the project. I am not so sure that the parents of the students of Prestonsburg High School or the feeder schools, which are Auxier Grade School, Allen Grade School, and Adams Middle School, know what the Floyd County Board of Education truly plans for their children.

I would like to take this opportunity to invite everyone, not only the parents of our students, present and future, but the business leaders of the community as well, to a meeting being held Tuesday, April 4, at 6 p.m., in the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria. These students are the future workforce and their education concerns us all.

Trouble is, the court doesn't have the money to refund.

The county attorney, who has in the past made the words malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance favorite parts of his vocabulary, has advised the court to borrow the money to make the refunds and then pay off that loan with tax revenues, whenever they should come rolling in. Hmm.

too, that the law says that any public officer who could have prevented the improper expenditure of tax revenues but failed to "shall be jointly and severably liable to the county for the amount of county tax revenue so expended."

Well. Well.

Well.

That's a deep subject, all right. And it's getting deeper all the while.

Or worse, did they accept that some person authorized the collection of a surcharge from virtually every citizen in Floyd County without their knowledge and consent? Or are we to believe that they thought South Central Bell just started sending large checks to the fiscal court because it was Christmastime?

Floyd Countians are no stranger to being lied to and swindled. However, this tops anything ever dreamed up by our beloved politicians. They convinced (conned) a telephone company to illegally collect a million dollars from us and send it to them; they conned us into paying it for five years without one iota of progress on

This April is Child Abuse Prevention Month. Each of us should make a personal commitment to find ways to end this tragedy. Since 1985 the number of reports of child abuse and neglect has risen by 50 percent. In fiscal year 1994, 59,540 children were reported for child abuse and neglect to the Department for Social Services in Kentucky. Of the 59,540 children for which reports were made, 24,877 were substantiated as having been abused or neglected. In 1994, 166 Floyd County children were involved in substantiated abuse cases.

E Break Coffee -

Journeyed down to Birmingham last weekend to witness what we thought would be the Cats triumphant return to the NCAA's Final Four only to observe what would be the team's finale for the season.

While we were away, we missed the opportunity to bid farewell to a special person who fought the good fight but lost, as we all eventually will.

It was that fight against a certain end that was so characteristic of B.E. Mullins.

To some, it may have appeared to be a heroic struggle against hopeless odds.

But those of us who knew him well, knew that it was just the way he was.

He didn't accept defeat in life and he sure as Hell wasn't going to accept it from death...not without a fight, and not before he was ready.

Because of that unwavering will, he'll live with us forever and, as perhaps only he could do, he will have, in the end, beaten mortality at its own game.

His spirit is certain to remain with all the lives he touched, ours included.

Maybe you were fortunate enough to have known him, too.

How can anything so eagerly awaited as spring be so miserable when it finally arrives?

The Forsythia and Dogwoods are in bloom.

Aren't they an ah, ah, ah, ah, achoo, awe-inspiring sight?

Hay fever must be Mother Nature's way of keeping us from getting too carried away by the changing season.

You know what they say. March comes in like a lion and goes out like a la, la, la, LACHOOIII, lamb.

Must be the wool we're allergic to.

If we were a little more allergic to indifference, on the other hand, we might not be in the shape we are.

For instance, if everyone who chose not to vote got itchy eyes and runny noses every time they complained about the government, bet we'd see a whole lot more participation in the electoral processes.

And, we'd bet we'd see a whole lot fewer officials taking advantage of us.

How many of you knew, for example, that members of congress who manage to hang around a while get lifetime pensions after they leave office?

Former Speaker Tom Foley, ousted in November by voters in his home state, will get $128,000 a year of taxpayer money for the rest of his life.

Dan Rostenkowski, who was not only ousted by voters but who faces criminal indictments, too, is going to get $96,400 a year for life, even if he does life in the pen.

That's nothing to sneeze at, for sure. But it ought to make you gag.

And, it ought to make you start looking for a remedy.

Looks like another clause in the Contract with America is about to be voided now that it seems there will not be enough votes to set term limits for congresspersons.

No worries.

The GOP's inability to enact term limits may actually be the first step in imposing term limits, especially for those members who promised them but failed to deliver.

We'll see in November, 1996.

Kentucky West-Virginia vice president R. T. Daniel, Prestonsburg, presented the first year's check to Kentucky Opry founder Billie Jean Osborne, and President Paul P. Hughes this week.

'The generous gift from the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co., has brought our private and corporate fund-raising campaign to more than $921,000," Hughes said, "and helps to put us well within reach of our $1.5 million goal."

Construction contracts are to be signed this week on the $7 million center, Hughes said. The low bidder was W. B. Browning Co., Pineville.

"Work will get underway as soon as possible, and construction is expected to take about 14 months," he added.

The Mountain Arts Center, which includes music classrooms, practice and rehearsal rooms, a recording studio and 1,000-seat theater, will be built on a portion of a 6-acre site on Ky. 114 at Prestonsburg, near the junction with U.S. 23.

One person from the Big Sandy region, Gerald Altman of Pikeville, has been selected to Leadership Kentucky's eleventh class. Now beginning its eleventh year, Leadership Kentucky was created in 1984 as a nonprofit statewide educational program. Leadership Kentucky strives to maintain a geographical, occupational, racial and gender balance among participants. Each year, 50 participants are selected to attend seven monthly sessions dealing with topics such as Health and Human Services; Law and Justice; the Economy; Politics; Environment; Leadership; History; and Education. The critical issues facing the state in these areas are dealt with through panel discussions, workshops, lectures, field trips and other activities.

Effective January 1, the Leadership Kentucky program and Leadership Kentucky Alumni Association merged into a new entity known as Leadership Kentucky Foundation Inc. The concept of the Foundation is to have a single board of directors and staff to oversee the annual leadership training program, alumni or "member" activities, and related programming.

Celebrating ten years of leadership development for the Commonwealth, the Leadership Kentucky Foundation Board approved plans to establish an endowment to support new initiatives in leadership education and coordination for Kentucky.

Our Last Goodbye

The cold January wind stung my eyes, As around me I heard mourning and cries. Thick hot tears warmed my cold face, Everyone dressed in black some velvet some lace They spoke a small, yet meaningful prayer, As the word of her death spread like ridgewire in the air. My world spun round and round, As they lowered her into the dark,

And damp ground.

She was my great-grandma more like a mother/ We had many great times with each other. The thud of the frozen earth against her tomb Led me to a horrible cry,

As I realized to myself this was our last goodbye. Candi Branham

I have never missed anyone more.

Since he isn't here anymore, Things just aren't the same as before.

But I know he is in a place with no pain or sorrow, And there will always be a happy tomorrow.

Planning for God's children

Dave Garrett, pastor of the Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church, reviewed a drawing of a new fellowship hall that the church plans to begin building as soon as the rainy season ends. The hall will help fill a need for a Christian center in the community that will provide activities to keep children off the streets and off drugs. (photo by Janice Shepherd)

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

After April showers bring May flowers, the folks at Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church will bring new life into the family by building a new fellowship center.

The church plans to begin construction on the new center as soon as the "weather stabilizes," pastor Dave Garrett said Monday.

The 12,000-square-foot building will be located next to the church and will house 10 Sunday School classrooms and separate ladies' and men's shower rooms downstairs.

The upstairs part of the building will be an open area that can be used as a chapel for special services when the crowd overflows the church's available seating. It can also be used as a gymnasium for other church or organizational basketball teams to compete or practice.

The top floor will also contain a retractable stage that can be used to present church plays and musical programs by Christian groups.

The building will be available for public use and can be used for family reunions, Rev. Garrett said. The large classrooms, averaging about 15'x22', could also provide temporary shelter to families who have become homeless due to natural disasters, such as the flooding that commonly occurs in Floyd County, Garrett explained.

ship for adults and children.

The church is a stable part of the community ... Here at Highland Avenue, we are setting out to make a difference in one child's life," Garrett said. "Young people today face vast peer pressures, a multi-family workforce, a complex educational system, skilled labor requirements, a depressed economy, compounding social problems, drugs, alcohol, to mention just a few.

"The family unit that we so cherish is undergoing difficult times and love is waxing colder," he said. "Our vision is to revive the family."

One way to help a family have quality time is to provide familyoriented activities. With the availability of the building, the church will be able to add many new projects to its schedule for its growing youth enrollment.

The youth enrollment has grown from about 20 children to more than 60 in one year's time. That large enrollment makes it difficult to teach Sunday School in the four classrooms that are now available in the church basement for students and adults, Garrett explained.

The teen enrollment at the church has almost doubled during the last month, he said, and the Little Angels Choir, for children under nine years old, has grown from eight to 50 in about a year.

nity and provide a place of fellow- have something for the young people," Garrett said.

The first phase of the project will be completed through contract labor, but Garrett and the church members plan to roll up their sleeves, grab their hammers and paint brushes and go to work adding the finishing touches to the building.

"We are investing in our future. Our funds are low, but we're trusting God that the future will provide us the means and support we need as we work to accomplish our goal."

Garrett asks that the community pray and ask for "God's direction and help. He also asks that families bring their young people and participate in the programs themselves. Volunteers and equipment are also needed to aid in building the fellowship hall, which Garrett hopes will be ready for use by the first of September.

Track and field boosters club looking for funds

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

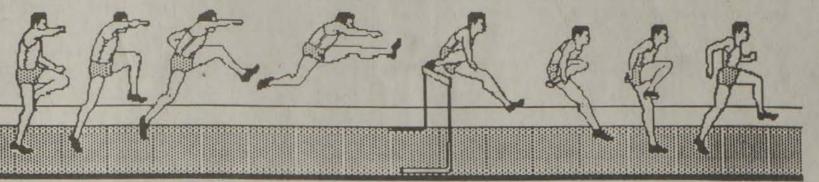

Let's clear up any misconceptions about the new track and field facility located at Allen Central High School.

The new facility was not just built for Allen Central track and field teams but for all schools in Floyd County. That means the facility is available to all student/athletes in Floyd County -- South Floyd, Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne. All can use it.

UK NEEDED TO WIN TO LAND

RON MERCER

I think that UK lost more than they wanted when they dropped a 74-61 loss to North Carolina last Saturday in the finals fo the Southeast Regionals.

The Wildcats also lost their shot at landing one of high school basketball's premier players, Ron Mercer.

Had UK advanced to the Final Four, I think that Mercer would have committed to UK in April.

the running.

Look for Vanderbilt to land the 6-7 swingman and built a strong program around him.

NOT PITINO!

Don't blame Rick Pitino for the Kentucky loss. Blame players that forgot what their mission was as a team -- reach the Final Four.

If you caught the call-in show after the game Saturday, you heard some that were second guessing the Kentucky coach. But it wasn't the coach's doing.

"I" got in the way of "T" as in team basketball.

I have said it before and I will

The man cannot score underneath. He gets the ball jammed back in his face every time.

I enjoyed Kentucky's season. I wish they could have gone on to Seattle, but I found that the sun did rise Sunday morning after the loss.

I can't wait until the replacement Cincinnati Reds start playing baseball for real.

I took in a couple of games (via satellite) over the weekend. If you didn't know the names of the players, whether you were watching major league games or not.

I saw good defensive plays. I saw good hitting. I saw smart pitching. It was entertaining. "ARE YOU SERIOUS OR WHAT?"

With the way negotiations are going (and they're not) you wonder if anyone is serious about getting the issues that separate the two sides settled. It is evident that the owners are not going to give in and the players' pride (Don Fehr) will not let them compromise.

The fans are the ones who will be the losers. The players have their

Now? I think the Wildcats are out of repeat it: the best thing that could then you would not have known millions from years past stored up, the owners don't need any more play money, and so the fan is the loser.

I just think it would be refreshing to see some minor league players or replacement players play the entire major league season.

I think we all would be surprised how entertaining it would be. Look at it this way: All the teams will be on equal ground (with replacement players).

Well, maybe with the exception of Baltimore, who probably will forfeit all 162 games and play intrasquad games instead.

WONDERING OUR LOUD... The replacement players play the whole season. The playoffs and World Series go off as planned. The Most Valuable Player for the series -- Hector Santiago. Who's he? Who knows!

Some of the veteran players are starting to cross the picket lines and filter back into spring camps.

Craig McMurty joined forces with the Houston Astros and will be on the Astros' roster opening day.

Five Cincinnati Reds farmhands have indicated they will cross the proverbial line and become replacement players.

Rose will be backed up by two freshmen, Brad Reynolds and Brett other long ball threat as he hit five out Tackett.

First base will be handled by either Shannon Potter or Wesley Collins. Potter is expected to be in the Bobcats' pitching rotation this season.

Collins comes to the Bobcats after playing for Prestonsburg last year. He handles himself well around the first base bag and is a good contact hitter.

Potter, a freshman, swings a good bat and is a steady performer at first base

Third base will be up for grabs but could go to Doug Keathley, who played some there last season.

Great season expected!

It will be a rebuilding year for Betsy Layne baseball, but sophomore Brandon Castle, one of the top pitchers in the region, will be returning for the Bobcats. Much of the success of Betsy Layne rides in the arm of Castie. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Keathley gives the Bobcats anlast year.

Centerfield will be covered by one of the best in the region, Willie Meade. He runs like a deer and picks the ball up very well when it is hit.

A singles-type hitter, Meade will carry a lot of offense and he will need to this season for the rebuilding Bobcats.

Brent Akers will split his playing time between the mound, third base and the outfield. Akers did not play last year, but is a solid baseball man.

He is a good defensive player no matter where he plays, but he needs to be more consistent with the bat.

Coach Newsome will be returning for his 15th season as head of the baseball program at Betsy Layne.

Under his guidance, the Bobcats have suffered only one losing season. Betsy Layne has consistently been one of the 15th Region's premier teams.

Betsy Layne is currently in Florida for tournament play. Coach Newsome likes the format the trip to Florida affords his team. "We get to practice a lot while we are down there," he said. "We'll play six or eight games. It's good for the team to be able to to that. Here, we may get one or two days in of practice.'

Hamilton crowned HC Queen at Betsy Layne

It was a big night for Betsy Layne's Jessica S. Hamilton when she was crowned homecoming queen at Betsy Layne High School this 1994-95 basketball season.

Hamilton was a senior basketball player for the Lady Cats and the team's leading scorer.

Last year, coming off the bench, Hamilton helped lead the Lady Cats to their first state tournament berth.

She averaged over 18 points per game this season and pulled down 12 rebounds.

She is the daughter of Roy and Penny Hamilton of Dana and the granddaughter of Ethel Hamilton of Dana and Agnes Gabbard of Frankfort.

Hamilton will attend PikevilleCollege on an academic scholarship where she plans to major in accounting.

Floodplains and Wetlands Notice Early Public Notice

The Floyd County Fiscal Court is considering construction of a new threeclassroom Head Start facility at McDowell Elementary School. Project elements include demolition of a wood-frame building, elevating the site above the 100-year floodplain, and construction of the new facility. These improvements will prevent repeated flooding of Head Start classroom space.

The project area lies within the 100-year flood plain. Project activities, by virtue of their type and scope, must be conducted in the 100 year flood plain.

Construction of a new Head Start facility will alleviate potential and/or documented public health and safety hazards associated with repeated flooding of the current facility.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court will discuss alternatives to the proposed construction in the floodplain and will accept public comment regarding possible adverse impacts that could result from floodplain construction, as well as input regarding minimization measures which could be taken to lessen any such adverse impacts.

Please send written comments to Judge-Executive Robert Meyer, Floyd County Fiscal Court, Floyd County Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Comments will be received until the close of business Thursday, April 13, 1995.

Betsy Layne placed three players be ready for basketball season." on the squad with two from Allen Central being named.

Jessica S. Hamilton, Jessica Johnson and Misty Clark represented the Lady Cats while Veronica McKinney and freshman Misty Scott were named from the Lady Rebels.

The boys' region did not name an all-regional team. Tackett had surgery Wednesday

Betsy Layne sophomore Ashley Tackett will miss the entire softball season after having surgery to repair an ACL in her left knee this past Wednesday.

According to her father, Paul David Tackett, she will miss the soft-sound when basketball practice rolls around in October.

"It will take about six months to heal," said Tackett. "But she should Tackett is one of the many bright prospects returning to Floyd County basketball next season.

She played at Shelby Valley her frehsman year before transferring to Betsy Layne. She was a starter on the Lady Cats team until she suffered an injury to the knee that kept her out.

Tackett returned to play with threequarters of the season gone. She reinjured the knee and had to sit out the rest of the year. She missed all of the post season play.

Tosses batting practice!

Matt Crawford will be one pitcher who will take to the hill for Allen Central this baseball season. Crawford, who did not play last year, will join the Rebels' rotation. The club is in Florida this week for spring break the upcoming baseball season should be a good one for our high school teams.

But not only our high school baseball teams, but girls softball, as well.

Girls' softball will be playing fastpitch for the first time and it should be very interesting how the first season goes.

All county teams, as well as teams around the region, will be searching for a fast-pitch hurler.

Throwing a softball underhanded at a fast speed is an art. Not just anyone can step on the mound and get the ball across the plate.

The distance from the plate to the mound is less than what slo-pitch softball is. Also, base stealing is permitted so you must have a catcher who can handle the pitches and throw the softball as well.

Allen Central coach Anthony Moore feels that he has such a catcher in Melissa Mullins.

'She can catch the ball and throw to second base, as well," he said.

All Floyd County girls teams will field a fast-pitch squad, as well as play slo-pitch.

Betsy Layne will be looking to repeat as 15th Region baseball champions as coach Junior Newsome's ballclub heads to Florida next week for a week in the sun.

Allen Central will also make the will kick off the season the latter par trip and stop over in Tennessee for a of April.

Coach Donnie Daniels of South Floyd believes that he will put a competitive team on the field come tournament time. He says that youth is going to slow the progress, but his group is hungry to be winners.

UK Express's surprise exit from NCAAs leaves tough summer ahead -- Pitino

From somewhere in Kentucky's Hurtland.

"It's going to be a tough summer," Rick Pitino said after the wheels came off against North Carolina the other day. "I'm the coach so I'll take the blame for this one."

Okay. But one thing I can't understand is how a coach who demands (and gets) the undivided attention of his players, can't get through with: "Settle down now! Otherwise you will be over here next to JoAnn Hauser's."

Pitino did not mask his personal despair either and the human side of him was consoling for dispirited Kentucky fans who meandered about numbly trying to grasp a train wreck end to a glory ride last month. The season ended almost in mid-sentence. "I'm just crushed that we could play like this," he said. "Dumfounded, embarrassed and bewildered. This is probably the lowest I've ever been in basketball."

Saturday's performance goes on UK's (growing) NCAA wall of infamy -- Marquette 1994, Michigan 1993, Georgetown 1984, Louisville 1983, Middle Tennessee 1982, UCLA 1975, and, yep, Texas Western 1966. Ugly silver linings...

Kentucky has settled for another consolation prize (28-5, SEC Tourney title, and a fifth straight 20-win season). But there is a ugly in the silver lining. As Bill Keightly stows away the gear, the Final Four tune this week is a dagger twisting in the hearts of Big Blue fans.

Cocksure arch-rival Arkansas is going to Seattle. UCLA, one (UK) turnover and a cheap foul call from losing to the Wildcats in December, has its ticket.

And, maybe hardest to swallow of all, Oklahoma State is going. Coach Eddie Sutton is to UK's aristocracy what Richard Nixon is to the presidency. Re: Let us ignore that this guy was ever here.

Pages 120-121 in the UK basketball press guide tries. Titled Kentucky Coaches Through The Years, it features eight photos of three of UK's four coaches since 1931. Three each of Adolph Rupp and Pitino, and two of Joe B. Hall.

Shabby treatment of course, but this week at least, Sutton enjoys the 'Discoveries' Dept.

The Kentucky Wildcats, good as they were in 1994-95, had soft spots. Curious how metro newspapers analysts have made these discoveries in recent days. Among them:

History lesson. After Kentucky's disaster in Birmingham -- panicstricken performance and 28 per cent shooting against North Carolina -- I was reminded of March 11, 1978, Stokely Center in Knoxville. Through the first half, Hugh Durham's upstart Florida State team was tweaking the bigger, tougher and vastly more talented Wildcats.

Incensed, Coach Joe B. Hall started the second half by benching All-American Rick Robey, Mike Phillips and Truman Claytor. He inserted Fred Cowan and Dwane Casey. It worked. The starters returned to the game with new purpose. UK rallied and beat the Seminoles and went on to win the NCAA title.

Maybe there is nothing to be learned from history, but one wonders what might have happened if Rick Pitino had inserted, say, Scott Padget and Cameron Mills against Carolina. Changed the game's pace, given Tony Delk and others an opportunity to re-assess what they were doing.

Notes 'N bits

Film. Film. Film. Following the Arizona State game Rick Pitino said his team would watch "three or four tapes on North Carolina" before Saturday's game. Film enough, one would have thought, to detect what a volatile, demonstrative and quicktempered whiner Rasheed Wallace is. Ironic that a UK senior would be first to lose his temper.

Questions. Why would Antoine Walker elevate his game to earn SEC tourney MVP, then revert to playing like a wild-eyed rookie? Answer: Intoxicated by a burst of success and the absence of leadership. Nobody took time to get in the young man's face and say the words "Settle down, kid!" The Wildcats were too busy firing clangers.

When at halftime Rasheed Wallace had zero points and three rebounds and North Carolina was up 34-31, did anyone else say, "Uh-oh?"

Did Rick Pitino get a coaching clinic from Dean Smith, or what? For starters, an excellent gambit by Smith....North Carolina's defense invited Rod Rhodes to take his first shot from the perimeter. When it went in, it was "Gentlemen, start your engines."

time away from playing with his grandchildren to answer. He had a fair idea what Der Baron would be telling the media.

"Coach Rupp would say, 'Why, the boys are doing exactly what I told 'em to do.' He would be the star. Right in the middle of things. No doubt about that."

Postscript: And Rupp would have blistered his players after the UNC game too, publically.

But Rupp would appreciate Pitino's passion and emphasis on defense, Beard said.

"Out of a week's practice time Coach Rupp would work us threeand-a-half days on defense, and a day-and-a-half on offense. He understood even when your shooting was off you could still win with defense."

on a program called "Adopt-A-Hurdle." Eighty hurdles are needed for the facility at an average cost of $60.

The club is looking for anyone, personal or businesses, who will adopt-a-hurdle for $60. Those who take part will have a nameplate placed on the hurdle with their name engraved.

I think there are 80 people and businesses that can afford to give $60 toward a hurdle and needed equipment at the new facility.

Again, this facility is for the use of all Floyd County students and, get this, it has been used for parents and other adults as a walking track. Why not give to the use of it? It is one of the best things to come to our county in a long time.

Let's not let it fail because we just don't care. Let's all get behind those who are trying to make it a success, not only for the kids today, but for tomorrow as well.

OWNERS SAY A LOCKOUT IS POSSIBLE

If the NLRB issues an injuction against the owners and restores major league baseball back to the '94 agreement, the owners say they may still lockout the major league players without an agreement.

The players want something restored that they went on strike for in the first place. I don't get it. Do you?

MIKE TYSON GETS HIS FREEDOM!

More big news over the weekend that was second to the return of Michael Jordan, was the return of Mike Tyson.

Tyson, released from prison Saturday, was escorted by a group that didn't look good for him.

Hopefully, the former heavyweight has learned from his experience and will shake some of the questionable characters who are so anxious to identify with him.

NASCAR ready to hit the short tracks

Heading into last Sunday's TranSouth Financial 400 at Darlington, expectations were high. With the newly re-paved surface, URP everyone thought racing on the 1.366 mile egg-shaped oval would be the best the track has ever seen.

However, the track managed to easily uphold its identity as "The Track Too Tough To Tame."

NASCAR flagman, Doyle Ford, waved the yellow more that 15 times in the afternoon.

Not one car escaped Darlington without some form of cosmetic damage, some more serious than others. But wait, wasn't this race supposed to feature some highly competitive door to door battles?

Although the new surface made the track faster, it dramatically tightened the racing groove. Going twowide was a major task for the drivers. Going three-wide was simply out of the question.

The race that was touted as highly competitive turned into a "survival of the fittest." Sterling Marlin came out on top, and unlike the '94 season, he has backed up his Daytona victory with a second win. For the Monte Carlo, it was the model's fifth win in as many races.

Things don't get any easier for the NASCAR gang as they roll head-on into the spring short-track season. Tight turns, heavy traffic, and plenty of beatin' and bangin' will highlight the three-race stretch.

The 'bull-ring" battles begin with this weekend's Food City 500 on the high banks of Bristol International Raceway.

Many call this facility the short track that thinks it's a super speedway.

Although the track is barely a halfmile long, its 36 degree banked turns allow for speeds of better than 130 miles per hour down the short straightways.

Martinsville make up the trio of short tracks the series will visit this coming weeks. It is crucial to the top-five point leaders to come out of the short track swing with their head above the water. If they can manage to maintain their ground during the next three races, they can firmly establish themselves as a contender for the championship.

ON HIGH SCHOOL MEMORIES AND HEROIC PIGS

With springtime very much in evidence, Wilma and I took a Sunday drive (well, actually it was Saturday) last week and ended up at River.

Passing the old swinging bridge brought back memories of the many times I crossed it when I was a freshman in high school. I didn't live at River or anything, but when I enrolled at Meade Memorial High School in 1953, there was no bridge across the Big Sandy River at Greentown. The previous bridge, which was located near where Cecil Tackett's house is now, had fallen a year or two earlier and the new bridge was under construction.

The bus (Curt Meade was the driver) picked us up at the mouth of Boyd Branch in Thealka, and took us Branch to pick up a half dozen or so young scholars) then on to River.

Rain or snow, we'd get off the bus on this side and walk across the then (at least to me) rickety bridge, board another bus and ride to school via the Offutt road.

When school was out at the end of the day, the mind one of my favorite pig stories. procedure was reversed.

I can remember that on the last day of school, either in some sort of ritual or perhaps simply in a "no more tests, no more books, no more teacher's dirty looks" celebration, some of the boys threw their textbooks off the bridge. (We bought our own books then.)

By the time I was a sophomore, the new bridge on Route 40 had been completed and my trips to River became few and far between. Seeing the old River swinging bridge the other day, however, through Tutor Key (with a little side trip to Baker did conjure up some fond memories of my high school days.

> AND SPEAKING of conjuring up, an article in the paper the other day about this being, according to the Chinese lunar calendar, the Year of the Pig, brought to

It seems this guy from Lexington was driving by a home in the Eastern Kentucky mountains and noticed a pig sleeping on the front porch steps as an old man sat in the shade whittling while his wife was stringing beans in her lap.

The driver thought it an interesting scene and pulled off beside the road for a closer look. It was then he noticed that the pig had a wooden leg.

Curiosity got the best of him and he got out of the car and approached the porch. As would be expected, the folks who lived there extended a friendly greeting.

"I was just wondering about your pig," the man said. "Oh, Rover? He's some pig all right. Saved our life once," the old man answered.

"Saved your life? How?" the man asked.

The Floyd County Times

"Well, one night our house caught fire and Rover came into our bedroom and woke us and we managed to escape," the wife answered.

"But what about that wooden leg?" the man asked. "Well, you wouldn't expect us to eat a fine pig like that all at once, would you?" the old man answered.

HILLS IN THAT THERE GATOR COUNTRY

The chicken and dumplings, pickled corn and familiar Kentucky accents made me feel like I was back home in Elliott County.

But we were far from it-about 900 miles from it.

The palm trees and palmetto bushes reminded us of that.

For homesick eastern Kentuckians like me, though, you can't get much closer to the hills than the Interstate 75 exit to Lake Panasoffkee in Florida.

What started as one family's pilgrimage a few decades ago has turned into a community known as "Little Sandy Hook." There are more than two dozen families from Elliott County that call the Gulf coast area home about 80 miles north of Tampa.

Each year in Panasoffkee, on the second Saturday in March, Elliott County people from all over Florida flock together for Kentucky Day.

They typically come from Tampa, Orlando, Fort Myers and all points between and beyond. The bulk of them don't have to drive too far, however.

The first Elliott Countians migrated to Lake Panasoffkee two or three decades ago. Now there are bunches of Sandy Hook area families there. Some just stay for the winter, others live there year round. Some of the folks at Lake Panasoffkee left Elliott County many years ago to work but wanted to retire in a warm climate where they could feel at home among old friends.

That's easy to achieve at Lake Panasoffkee, where some of those old friends live next door to each other.

Most are in their 60s, 70s or 80s, and just being around them once a year at the little country church for our reunion is a special experience for me. They remember when Elliott County had its own movie theater and bus line and when driving the county meant doing it on mostly dirt roads. They can tell you about the World War II years when people left our community in droves to find jobs in plants and factories in states like Michigan, Ohio and Illinois. And they can tell you plenty of insight-often about your own family. "Me and your aunt used to double date all the time at church," my friend Madge told me at the luncheon. "That's about the only place we had to go courting back then." Another woman, a retired teacher, told me stories about having my mother in school more than 50 years ago. One of my mother's high school classmates told me how it had been 40 years since she had seen my mother and to tell her hello. I told two cousins I hadn't encountered in a year. How good it was to see them. Then there was my old buddy Neville, an 80something guy who always has a smile and something amusing to share.

Shepherd)

Neville, a friend of my grandfather's, was asked his age that day.

"I'm around 16," he said. "I just didn't say how many times around."

He later mentioned that he had been in the service for 44 months during World War II. Turns out he served under General Patton all over Europe, including at the Battle of the Bulge.

He remembers Patton walking through lines of troops asking him and others "How you, soldier?" He also recalled being on the front lines and diving for cover under fire while Patton "stood straight as an Indian."

It's folk like Neville that keep me coming back to Kentucky Day.

These are the people of my parents' generation who saw and lived times I can only experience through them. We probably had around 50 people show up at this year's reunion, and there were a number of people said to be ill or unable to make it this round.

As usual, I was one of the youngest people there-but certainly not the youngest at heart.

"We'll catch you again next year," one of the folks said to me as I left.

You can bet I'll try my best. Being with those folks is about as close to home as you can get.

Senior citizens, last week we discussed Medicare. This week, as promised, we will look at Medicaid.

A good place to start is to answer the question, "What is the difference between Medicare and Medicaid?" The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services answers that question for us. "Medicare is a Federal on March 12, at his home in health insurance program for the elderly and disabled regardless of income and assets. Medicaid, on the other hand, is a medical assistance program jointly financed by the State and Federal governments for eligible low-income individuals. Medicaid covers health care expenses for all recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), and most States also cover the needy elderly, blind, and disabled who receive cash assistance under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. Coverage also is extended to certain infants and low-income pregnant women, and, at the option of the State, other low-income individuals with medical bills who qualify as categorically or medically needy."

Did you know that if your annual income is at or below the national poverty level and you have limited financial resources, you may qualify for government assistance under Kentucky's Medicaid program in covering Medicare monthly premiums, deductibles and coinsurance? This is called the Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) program, or the "Medicare Buy-in" program. Without a doubt there are senior citizens reading today's article who qualify but who do not know there is such assistance available.

You might even qualify for financial assistance if your income is slightly above the national poverty level. This is called the "Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiaries" program, also referred to as the SLMB program.

There are senior citizens who are entitled to both the Medicaid and Medicare programs. "If you are eligible for Medicare and currently receiving Medicaid benefits, the State Medicaid program may pay the Medicare Part B premium and, where necessary, the Medicare Part A premium, so that you can receive medical services under Medicare."

Now that you know more about these existent possibilities, I urge you to call your local Medicaid office and discuss your personal situation with one of the representatives there. If, after talking with someone, you feel confused about the interaction of these programs and whether or not you qualify, ask more questions until you feel confident with the information you are being given. Take your time. They are there to answer your questions. And besides, they are well aware of just how confusing most people find the Medicare/Medicaid/ QMB/SLMB explanations and guidelines. You may rather choose to call the state medical assistance office, toll-free, 1-800-638-6833. I encourage you to call one or the other of these offices. The program was designed to benefit those who need it. If you are one of those who need it, then do not feel uncomfortable inquiring about something that could be legally and rightfully yours to have.

Basically Medicaid was designed to assist those of you with low-income and low financial resources; 65 years of age and over or blind or disabled or AFDC recipients. QMB and SLMB are extensions of the Medicaid program. If you need the additional assistance provided by Medicaid, and feel you qualify, I urge you to make application. If you are not approved and still feel you qualify, the first determination or "denial" can be appealed within 30 days. If it's yours you are entitled to it. Don't give up. At least check it out. Some senior citizens will be ahead by checking into this.

When you call, be prepared to hear the term, "spend-down". Its purpose is to help qualify people for Medicaid eligibility. But again, don't be afraid to ask questions until you are comfortable with the answers. And make sure to determine whether or not you qualify for Medicaid on its eligibility requirements alone-before "spend-down" enters the picture. Some people qualify without having to "spend-down". We'll discuss this term and its meaning in greater detail next week in Sunshine Lines.

Ladybird beetles invade Kentucky homes, buildings

Hoards of pale orange beetles are congregating in and around many or carry diseases; neither do they Kentucky homes. While these ladybird beetles are beneficial insects outside, they become a nuisance when large numbers gather in people's homes.

The beetles have up to 19 black about one-third inch long.

"Ladybird beetles were introduced in other states to naturally control aphids and scale insects in agricultural crops," said Mike Potter, extension entomologist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "No ladybird beetles have been introduced in Kentucky. Their movement here is a natural migration."

These beetles do not injure humans, according to Potter.

"They typically don't bite, sting, wintering sites and attempt to escape infest food, clothing or wood," he said. "However, these beetles often have a disagreeable odor, and can produce an objectionable yellowish secretion when disturbed.

"A vacuum cleaner is the easiest spots on their wing covers and are way to dispose of large numbers of ladybird beetles in the home. We normally do not recommend household sprays or foggers because you must have direct contact with beetles for the insecticide to work. This practice leaves pesticide residues on walls, countertops and exposed surfaces. A vacuum cleaner is more sanitary and effective."

> As temperatures become warmer, ladybird beetles emerge from over-to their natural habitat outdoors. They emerge from cracks around door or and early fall, seal exterior cracks window casings, beneath baseboards and other openings as a preventive and around light fixtures and ventila- measure," he said. "Use a good qualtors. Some beetles stray into living ity silicone or silicone-latex caulk to areas. Beetles unable to find their way outside survive for only a brief facia boards, utility pipes and other period indoors.

Ladybird beetles become a nuisance when large numbers crawl on and install insect screening behind windows, walls, light fixtures and other surfaces in homes. Since they gather around windows and lighting fixtures.

Homeowners can reduce ladybird beetle infestations by making homes less accessible as an overwintering site, according to Potter.

"Since ladybird beetles seek overwintering sites in the late summer seal around windows, doors, siding, potential entry points.

'Repair damaged window screens attic vents."

An alternative is to enlist a pest are attracted to light, beetles often control firm. Many firms treat the exterior of homes or buildings to help prevent pest entry. These insecticide treatments should be applied in late September or early October, before beetles enter a structure to overwinter.

The Hillsville Courthouse Tragedy, Part 2

Floyd Allen took Sid and Wesley Edwards, who were his nephews, to the courthouse in Hillsville, Va., the day after he confronted two Carroll County deputies who had arrested them illegally in North Carolina.

He handed them over to authorities and then paid their bond to have them released.

Wesley Edwards received a sixty day sentence for disturbing the peace while Sid Edwards' sentence was thirty days on the same charge.

The more serious charges against Floyd Allen were delayed until the following year. He went on trial March 13, 1912, for interfering with Carroll County deputies Pinky Samuels and Peter Easter.

Floyd hired Judge David W. Bolen and Walt Tipton to defend him in court. The two men who he considered to be his biggest enemies-Commonwealth Attorney William M. Foster and Court Clerk Dexter Goad - were involved in his prosecution.

Sid Allen, brother of the man on trial, was free on bond for his actions in the same case. Although he was never tried on the charges, he attended Floyd's trial as a witnessarmed like many others in the court room.

A jury of twelve heard the evidence and were near a decision when Judge Thornton L. Massie was notified in his chambers that the Allens planned trouble. The judge decided to recess the trial until the following morning so that preparations could be made in the event of any resistance to the action of the court. He ordered the jury to be sequestered in Thornton Hotel overnight.

Sheriff Law Webb felt the Allens were bluffing to influence the decision and sentencing. Consequently, the sheriff and his men were not as prepared as they might have been.

PCC hosts seminar on child physical abuse and neglect

Prestonsburg Community College's Modern Social Problems Class will host a forum on child physical abuse and neglect on Wenesday, March 29 in the Pike Auditorium on the Prestonsburg Campus from 12:40 to 1:40 p.m.

Special guest speakers will include: Anita Cantrell, a Family Service Worker Principal at the Department for Social Services; Carol Denike, a Parent Education Coordinator/Instructor at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center; and Judy Goble, a foster care parent. This seminar is free and open to bond, spent the night with his brother Sid Allen so he would not have to traverse the roads which were nearly impassable due to very heavy rains.

They arrived at the courthouse the following morning just as the judge prepared to reconvene the trial. Some of Judge Massie's friends warned him to arm himself with a revolver because they feared his life was in danger. Commonwealth Attorney Foster told friends that morning that he was afraid this day could be his Floyd Allen was quoted as saying that he would "die and go to hell" before being locked behind bars again.

Despite inclement weather the court room was filled to overflowing. Several officers of the law and other courtroom personnel were toting sidearms in contemplation of possible trouble. Several of the Allen clan, also well-armed, were in attendance and scattered throughout the room of approximately three hundred people

"Guilty," the foreman of the jury stated firmly after a short delibera-

"Floyd, due to the seriousness of the offense I am sentencing you to a year in the Virginia Penitentiary in Richmond," Judge Massie proclaimed.

Floyd's blood began to boil and D.W. Bolen, Floyd's attorney, turned toward him and whispered, "Keep calm now Floyd, 'cause you've heard the worst of it. A brighter side will come."

"Oh, I can take it alright," Floyd answered. "I just hate it because of my boys.'

Bolen rose to his feet.

"Judge, the jury's decision is contrary to the law and the facts of this case," he pled. "I'm requesting that this sentence be set aside because of the extenuating circumstances. These lawmen had no right in arresting the Edwards in North Carolina. It's because of their wrong that we're here today."

"I will hear any motions and arguments tomorrow morning," the judge answered. "We have other cases to hear."

"Judge, I request that Mr. Allen be released under his present bond, pending the hearing tomorrow morning," the attorney countered.

"I have no right to allow bond after a prisoner has been sentenced," Massie retorted. "We'll hear any motions and arguments tomorrow on this case. Sheriff, take charge of the prisoner.'

The sheriff walked toward Floyd Allen who rose to his feet and fidgeted with his coat.

More than 1200 prints were submitted to a panel of judges. The judging was rigorous and grueling with only 477 prints selected to be awarded Blue Ribbons from all categories. By earning a Blue Ribbon at the Mid-East States print competition, the photographer will earn a Merit when the print is submitted to the National Print Competition. Porter will apply his two Merits toward his "master of Photography" degree from the Professional Photographers of America. The event was judged by "Masters of Photography" from all over the United States. The Mid-East Regional Competition consists of entries from Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio, and is one of the largest print competitions and exhibitions in the country. Mr. and Mrs. Porter were one of eight studios selected by a renowned laboratory to speak in Richmond, Indiana. The criteria of selection to speak was based on: expertise in professional photography, quality photography that is consistently produced, educational background and technical knowledge of the field; professional studio management, quality control, and studio-clientele relationship; and finally an established and thriving business that continually strives to improve in all areas. Porter was awarded a gold pen presented by the Kodak Corporation.

New telephone service available for small businesses

Recognizing that small businesses are the foundation and fuel for our area's economy, South Central Bell has come up with a new way to meet small business customers telecommunications needs.

Small business customers in Kentucky who experience periodic calling volume peaks and valleys now have the option of installing a second telephone line-at half the cost.

South Central Bell's new Back-Up (SM) Line service is designed to meet the changing needs of small businesses-such as doctors' offices, weekly newspapers and credit unions-that experience daily, weekly or monthly surges in incoming calls.

"What makes Back-Up Line different from a regular business line is in its unique pricing," said Paul Smith, Manager. "The basic cost is half the current charge for a flat-rate business line, plus a small charge for each incoming and outgoing call. Customers only pay for Back-Up Line calls when they use that line. It allows small business customers to pay for calls when business is booming, and save during off-peak hours."

The offering is expected to be appealing, Smith said, to small businesses who are not quite sure they need an additional telephone line, and don't want to spend a lot of money on something they may only use part-time.

A monthly calling summary is included with each Back-Up Line bill which shows how many calls the customer would have missed without the service. The summary includes a monthly count of incoming and outgoing calls, minutes of use and associated charges.

During the months of March and April South Central Bell is waiving the connection charge for this service. For more information, call 557-2076.

"Breaking Traditions" at Betsy Layne

Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

Students at Betsy Layne High School will be breaking traditions at Prom '95.

At least, that's one of the main themes the students are looking at for this year's prom, which will be held April 28 at the Mark II in Pikeville.

Some of Betsy Layne's prom traditions are too good to change, though, according to Jim Bowling, an instructor at Betsy Layne who is overseeing the prom committee. The prom will be formal; girls will be in evening gowns and the guys will be in tuxedos. Decorations will be in Betsy Layne's traditional colors of silver, royal blue and white.

Photographer for the event will be Steve Porter, and a live band will provide the evening's entertainment. Refreshments will be served at the prom, but dinner will be "on your own," Bowling said.

Juniors will have to pay a small fee for the prom, $10 single and $15 per couple. The junior prom sponsors raised enough money through candy sells and last year's fall festival to pay for the seniors' admission, Bowling said.

The prom begins at 7:30 p.m. and concludes at midnight. After the prom, students can head to school for Project Prom for a night of fun and games.

Students can earn prizes and watch some pretty wacky entertainment. In the past, Betsy Layne's Project Prom has featured talent competition that have put teachers and students in some unusual costumes. Project Prom ends around

A Blues Brothers act, a light show, fog machines, and a live deejay are a few of the attractions that will highlight Allen Central High School's 1995 prom.

The song "Always" will be the theme of the event that will be held on Saturday, May 13, from 8 to 12 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Cream, gold and teal decorations will set the mood for an evening of entertainment provided by deejay Steve Allen and D&S Entertainment of Lexington. An opening Blues Brothers act will give the prom a rousing start. A light show is another featured attraction.

According to teacher Caralita O'Quinn, a junior sponsor, the entertainment company will be filming the prom and at the same time show the event on a big screen. Local photographer Steve Porter will be taking prom pictures.

Another highlight of the dance will be the crowning of the prom king and queen.

The junior clas will start decorating the gymnasium two days before the prom, O'Quinn said.

South Floyd will hold its first prom in its new gym on May 5.

A touch of class will be added to this year's prom ---fathers, in tuxedos, will usher students in and out of the prom and will also be serving as valets.

The theme at South Floyd will be 'A Night In Heaven,' and will feature three scenes of magical enchantment. One scene will be a large castle; another scene will be a large fountain of youth; and the third scene will be a stairway to Heaven. The coup de theatre is a fog producing machine that will envelop the scene in a low-hanging mist.

The colors of iridescent and light blue will complete the effect of 'A Night In Heaven.

Q95 will serve as the deejays for the event and two of the school's instructors will serve as cinematographers and film the event.

The grand march begins at 9 p.m. and each couple will be introduced.

Each prom-goer will receive a memento of the occasion. Juniors and seniors will receive memory books. Seniors will also receive a goblet, and juniors will receive a token key chain.

No admittance fee will be charged to the juniors and seniors. The sponsors of the prom, the juniors, raised enough funds through various fund-raising activities throughout the school year to pay for the prom. About 20 juniors served on the prom committee.

The event will be catered by the school's home economics teacher, Miss Mitchell. Refreshments include finger foods and fruit displays.

Junior prom sponsor is Norma Fairchild, also a home economics instructor at the school.

Prom. Just the word can send shivers down people's backs, even mine when I'm totally honest about my two prom experiences.

Unfortunately, to be totally honest about one's experiences means hurting yourself and others. So, to protect the innocent and not so innocent.

I'll keep names out.

I attended both my junior and senior proms, and before you run to the school yearbook to figure out who the heck I am, I also attended two different schools.

My junior year I attended Marianas High School (MHS) on Saipan, an island in the Pacific Ocean. My senior year I attended Prestonsburg High School (PHS). Now you can find that annual to figure out got my friends to hang out who the heck I am.

Both proms were very similar. Despite what television shows and movies say about living on an island, life isn't so different.

Both proms were at a hotel; MHS's was at the Diamond Hotel and PHS's was at the Carriage House in friends. Networking worked Paintsville.

Both proms had food, decorations, a long line for pictures, loud music, a dance floor and, of course, couples in their finest.

Between the two proms, my favorite is my junior year. Not that my senior year was bad, it just brings back a lot of memories that are best forgotten

My junior prom was like most proms. The juniors planned the Jr./Sr. prom and everybody hoped to have a great time.

I was the junior class secretary and in charge of the prom. I think my friends and started planning for it in October; where to have it, what to wear, who to take ...all the important issues.

I'm not sure what was better, all those months of planning or the actual prom night. It was great either way.

I won't go into all the gory details of the night. It is suffice to say it was a hit. What's important is my personal tragedy and triumph.

The guy I wanted to go to the prom with was Alan Marshall Farley (it's o.k. to use his name, he doesn't live here). He was gorgeous. He was part Palaun and part American so he was permanently a golden tan.

He was only a sophomore, which meant I had to ask him. I tried everything to get him to notice me; memorized his class schedule so I could "accidentally" bump into him, where his friends hang out and I would smile and say hi every chance I got - all of which didn't get me anywhere

So, I decided to try networking. One of my friends, Meibel, was dating Junior, who was one of Alan's and I was set to go to the prom with Alan and double with Meibel and Junior. I was ecstatic. I even convinced my mother to order me a dress from the JcPenney catalog. This was a huge deal on Saipan.

The big day finally came and I had no dress and no date. My dress hadn't arrived and I was forced to borrow one of Meibel's old bridesmaid dresses. It was still two inches too long when I wore three inch heels.

I think the no dress was a bigger disappointment than the no date. Alan had to work at Jo-Ten (local store) that night because the managers were only letting juniors and seniors get the night off.

We met each other briefly before I went to the prom. He gave me a corsage and I gave him his boutonniere. He then went to work and I went to the prom alone.

I wasn't the only one. I had at least four or five other friends that went stag for one reason or another. We had a great time. We got our pictures taken together, we danced to all the fast songs, and we even found a few guys to dance with on the slow ones

After the prom was over, we piled into cars and drove to the local burger joint. It was open 24 hours and we were determined to stay up all night

Still in our prom dresses, we sat and talked, laughed and stuffed ourselves with the best french fries you could find on the island.

We finally gave up and went home about 3 a.m., because we realized we were also the clean-up crew.

I'm not sure why that prom was so much better, or even why with a date and a dress my senior prom was much more of heartache. All I do know is that for that one night I felt like I belonged.

At home on the range or on the rodeo circuit supporting the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, Miss Rodeo America manages to stay picture-perfect.

Rodeo queens from the past and the present Miss Rodeo America 1995, Jennifer Douglas, offer these triedand-true beauty tips:

1. Keep it clean! Clean, clear skin is the most important beautifier of all. When traveling, try to develop your own personal skin-care habits in order to maintain healthy-looking skin. Create your own shortcuts, but remember the basics.

2. Need a fresh start? Baking soda mixed with shampoo will strip hair spray and Even cowgirls get the buildup from your hair without drying it out.

3. Get your mane in shape with a horse shampoo and conditioner. Specially formulated to give coarse, thick horsehair luster, horsegrooming products are fast gaining popularity with twofooted customers. The real McCoy, like Farnam's Soft 'N Silky<sup>TM</sup> horse shampoo and conditioner, is available only at area tack and feed stores. For a tack shop near you, consult the Yellow Pages under "feed dealers."

4. Keep your curl. Heat your eyelash curler with your hair dryer for a few seconds, then curl your eyelashes. The effect will last much longer.

5. When busy travel schedules make early to bed, early to rise the exception, rodeo queens opt for chilled washcloths and/or moistened tea bags to soothe and reduce puffy eyes.

6. Put the deep freeze on other harsh styling-agent slow-drying nail polish. Dip fingers in ice-cold water for a few minutes (being sure to avoid bumping up against any of the cubes).

7. Dazzle 'em with your pearly whites. A combination of baking soda and peroxide does the trick, says Douglas, whose hometown dentist tries it

8. Give lipstick staying power with the layered look. Outline lips with a lip liner, then apply lipstick, pressed powder and a final coat of lipstick for a look that lasts hours longer.

9. Perk up those eyebrows with a dried-out mascara brush. It'll add just a touch of color to define and comb them into control.

10. No matter how long the day, remove makeup each night, and moisturize your skin.

Salon parties: The newest 'wave' in teen celebrating

A month before the prom or your elementary school dance, why not have a salon party? What an idea!

Salon parties are sweeping the nation as the hottest wave in celebrating with style, and girls from coast to coast are catching the fever. A great way for young women to indulge in confidence-building excitement, salon parties are taking over where slumber

For ages, sleep-over parties have provided the perfect venue for teens to experiment with makeup, nail polish and hair. What better way to enlighten girls about professional beauty services than to transport them from the living room to a salon environment, where they can experience the benefits firsthand?

As a form of recreation, salon parties instill confidence in young women, which is invaluable at an age when establishing a personal identity and sense of style can be difficult. According to Fred Polk, executive vice president of the Beauty and Barber Supply Institute, the trade association for the professional beauty industry, "A definite transformation occurs when teenagers are pampered with professional beauty services. They often enter a salon feeling like the 'ugly duckling' and leave looking like the 'beautiful swan.' Naturally, the ego-enhancing aspect of salon parties is increasing their popularity, and salons and cosmetology schools nationwide are offering party packages in response to this demand."

'We've been hosting salon parties for a couple of years," says Ray Cornelison, sales director of Shelton Ogle Enterprises, parent company of four cosmetology schools and three salons in Texas. "Recently, the concept has caught on as being particularly exciting because they age $7 to $10 per head), salon parties cater to girls ages 5 to 17. Occasions vary from birthdays to athletic-team gatherings to prom preparation, and services depend on the age and size of the party, as well as the salon or cosmetology school of choice. Some salons offer manicures, makeovers and hairstyling (hot rollers, updos, braiding, crimping), while others may offer shampooing, cutting and styling, etc.

San Diegoan John Caspole recently had a birthday party for his 10-year-old daughter, Jennifer, at a local cosmetology school. Caspole recalls that each attendee assumed a celebrity name such as Shirley (Temple) OF Cindy (Crawford) after the works of art were completed, and that his 12-year-old daughter, Michelle, said upon leaving, "Dad, this is where I want my party to be next year."

For younger girls, cake can be served before going to the salon, and entertainment is helpful while the youngsters wait to be styled. Joan Lollar of Memphis, Tenn., brought friends to the salon to play games with the girls while they awaited their turns. At the Lemon Tree in Long Island, N.Y., a television and VCR are available. For older crowds, going to the salon is first on the celebration agenda. Each teen receives her services, and then they're all off to a restaurant for a dinner or party.

Regardless of age, salon professionals agree that girls are very receptive to salon parties. They ask questions about how to maintain healthy hair and skin, and about services that will help them look beautiful. According to Cornelison, the Ogle Schools of Hair Design inform partygoers about different products and professional techniques at these gatherings. He has found that afterward, girls often end up in the beauty-supply store wanting to know the differences among products and what will satisfy their specific beauty needs.

Salon parties are unforgettable experiences that can create a passion for professional salon services. They may even lead to dreams of a career in the professional cosmetology industry, in which the girls who once received salon services will one day provide them for a new generation of women.

Getting ready for the prom can be a stressful time. After an endless round of trying on prom dresses, a soak in the tub can soothe away those prom-stress blues.

Taking care of oneself the natural way has become very popular in recent years. However, there are many people out there who would like to do it, but think it's too difficult. Jane Newdick is not one of those people.

Newdick, internationally acclaimed craftsperson and author of "At Home With Herbs: Inspiring Ideas for Cooking, Crafts, Decorating, and Cosmetics" (Storey Publishing), believes it's easy and rewarding to go "natural." In her book, she offers readers a whole range of projectsfrom foods and gardens to crafts and personal products-that will incorporate herbs into every aspect of life, and the projects are easy enough for everyone to do.

"I gave recipes and instructions for things that I like making, and I gave an up-dated twist to classic things," Newdick says. "I also tried to keep it simple.

One of her favorite ways to use herbs is for cosmetics and beauty products. Invigorating bath oils, scrubs and gels, have been used in bathing since ancient times, and herbs and flowers traditionally have played a central role.

"It is better to make bath oils, scrubs and gels," Newdick says, "because people know what's going into them, and they can scent them the way they want to. They are in control."

According to Newdick, there are different types of herbs, such as enlivening, soothing and healing. Traditional bath-time herbs are rosemary, lavender and rose. It's best to use a combination, so people can achieve the exact effect they want.

Making these pleasing potions is far from difficult. It can be as simple as diluting some scented essential oils into a hot bath to making special scrubs or sachets to run under the faucet. So, start moving in the natural direction with this recipe for bath sachets from "At Home With Herbs." HERBAL
