County bought gravel, got gravel on lot

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An investigation is underway into allegations that fly ash was used as a rock base prior to the paving of a portion of the parking lot which is owned by Floyd County at Thunder Ridge racetrack.

On Wednesday, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, deputies and county road workers cut out two portions of pavement at the racetrack parking lot and there did not appear to be any fly ash underneath.

Samples of the rock were removed from the scene and Sheriff Thompson said Thursday that the material would be taken to a lab in Frankfort for analysis.

A special grand jury investigating alleged government corruption in Floyd County has apparently been asking questions about the use of fly ash on the parking lot.

County road foreman Mike Jarrell said Wednesday that he was asked about fly ash being used on the lot during his appearance before the special grand jury.

Reportedly, allegations were made that county government paid for limestone gravel to be used as a base for the parking lot, but fly ash was used instead.

Thompson declined to give specific information about the investigation or who or what agency had requested that portions of the lot be excavated.

"A lot of allegations have been made (during the grand jury probe) and this is one allegation that is easy to resolve," Thompson said. "At this point, there doesn't appear to be fly ash on the county's property (at the track). If it had been, the county paid limestone price for it, but that doesn't appear to be the case."

Thompson referred other questions to Larry Fentress, a special prosecutor from the attorney general's office, who is assisting the special grand jury in its probe.

Fentress could not be reached Thursday for comment.

Floyd Judge-Executive Bob Meyer said Thursday that he had not requested the inspection of the parking lot, but he acknowledged that the allegation has been made that fly ash had been used.

"I've had assurances that fly ash has not been used on the parking lot," Meyer said. "I've talked to (Sheriff Thompson) about that before,

Theft ring suspect is nabbed by deputies

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County man wanted in Indiana on theft charges and who is a suspect in an interstate crime ring was arrested Wednesday near Abbott by Floyd County sheriff's deputies.

Thomas E. Skeens, 26, of West Prestonsburg, was arraigned Thursday in Floyd District Court on two counts of burglary and one theft charge, which originated in Indiana. Skeens was also served at the jail Thursday by deputy Homer Neeley with a fugitive from justice warrant.

Deputies Neeley and Steve Toy arrested Skeens at approximately 3:30 p.m. Wednesday near the mouth of Abbott. Neeley said that Skeens was riding in a vehicle with another person and the arrest was made when the vehicle was stopped.

District Judge James Allen appointed public defender Kristi Gray to confer with Skeens regarding extradition to Indiana. Skeens declined to waive extradition and an October 3 hearing was set Thursday morning.

Judge Allen placed Skeens under a $25,000 cash bond.

Skeens changed his mind and waived extradition Thursday afternoon in district court.

Skeens is a suspect in a two-state crime ring, which local and state officials cracked in July.

Joe David Fraley, 33, of Decatur, Indiana, was arrested by deputy Neeley and Kentucky State Police trooper John Hunt in July during a routine traffic stop. During a search of Fraley's vehicle, officers found a quantity of marijuana and illegal fireworks that had been reported stolen in Indiana.

During an investigation into the incident, deputies and officers with the Prestonsburg Police Department and state police began piecing together information regarding

Toler Creek man accused of sex crimes

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County man facing 43 counts of incest was placed under a $275,000 cash bond Thursday afternoon by Floyd District Judge James Allen.

Gary Tackett Jr., 35, of Toler Creek, pleaded not guilty to the charges during his arraignment Thursday afternoon. James Doug Adams II, the attorney representing Tackett, asked that his client be allowed to post 10 percent of the bond, but Judge Allen denied that request.

According to court records, the offenses occurred between 1988 and 1994 and involved a female that was a minor at the time.

Kentucky State Police detective David Maynard said Thursday that the alleged victim is now an adult. Maynard also said that the incidents were reported to state police by the local Department for Social Services.

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond recommended that no one in Tackett's family have any contact with the alleged victim in the case. Judge Allen agreed and ordered that the defendant and his family have absolutely no contact with the alleged victim.

A preliminary hearing has been set for September 13 at 2:30 p.m.

Fire risk high, water supplies low

Thunderstorms help, but not enough to wash away drought concerns

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Drought conditions continue this week and area woodlands are becoming as dry as kindling. Forestry department firefighters battled seven forest fires in the region Wednesday, September 6.

One of the minor fires was in Floyd County where the Prestonsburg Fire Department assisted the forestry department in dousing a blaze started by an electrical fence on Corn Fork, near Jenny Wiley State Park, Jennifer Hall, with the forestry department's Betsy Layne office, said Thursday.

Thirty acres of forest land in Sugar Camp of Robinson Creek, Pike County, burned Wednesday after a truck parked in the area caught fire, Hall said.

Fires also ignited in Magoffin and Johnson County, she reported. Most of the fires were started by people burning debris, Hall said, but the fire in Johnson County was set deliberately and forestry officials are investigating.

Hall said that although a ban on burning doesn't begin until the forest fire hazard season starts October 3, people should limit burning debris until a heavy rainfall alleviates the drought conditions. Last fall's leaves are still on the ground, Hall said. "They're dry and they will feed a fire. It makes for a real bad situation."

Patton urges party unity in state and local elections

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

The official opening ceremony of the Democratic Party headquarters in Floyd County on Wednesday, September 6, was a campaign stop for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Paul Patton, who is making a swing through Eastern Kentucky this week.

Patton said that he isn't taking the Eastern Kentucky vote for granted. "I've spent most of the weekend in Eastern Kentucky," he said. "Tomorrow (Thursday) I'll be in Southeast Kentucky—Pulaski, Rockcastle, Bell, Harlan, Knott counties."

The former Pike County judge/executive spent Wednesday morning at a regional news conference in Pikeville. By noon, the Lieutenant Governor was at the new Democratic headquarters on Court Street in Prestonsburg, shaking hands and drumming up support for his campaign among Democratic party officials and supporters in the county.

For the Democratic Party officials in the county, the event was an opportunity to strengthen political ties and garner support for the Democratic ticket in the upcoming November election.

Although the Court Street headquarters will serve as the Floyd County center for Democrat candidates in the county and statewide, Patton was clearly the candidate of the hour at the informal opening ceremony.

The Lieutenant Governor was introduced by Prestonsburg attorney Arnold Turner, coordinator of hand during the meeting to discuss what works for them.

The tourism commission has a number of recommendations that the festival committee will use to develop an annual event for the city.

The recommendations include looking at festivals in surrounding counties for ideas, establishing a theme and a date, developing attractions and utilizing local resources.

The tourism commission decided during Wednesday's meeting to have the director of tourism be the liaison between the commission and the festival committee. The group also decided that the tourism commission will be the financial director for the festival committee.

The festival committee members are Connie Miller, tourism commission; Mike Wells, Prestonsburg Fire Department; Darrell Conley, Prestonsburg Police Department; Tom Harris, Prestonsburg Public Works Department; Ann Latta, Floyd County Chamber of Commerce; Paul Hughes, Kentucky Opry; Owen Wright and Janice Shepherd, Battle of Middle Creek; Donna Blackburn and Helen Branham, were appointed by Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin to serve on the committee.

Also included as committee members are Scott Perry, Floyd County Times; Layne Dutton, Kiwanis Club; Willis Newsome, Rotary Club; Orville Cooley, Senior Citizens; Rita Davis, David Crafts; Lynn Weddle, Prestonsburg Community College; Jim Kennedy and Ron Vanover, Jenny Wiley State Park; Gorman Collins Jr., radio station WQHY; and Geoff Belcher, Floyd County Board of Education.

There will also be representatives from the Mountain Arts Center, the Jenny Wiley Theater, the Big Sandy Area Development District, and radio station WXXZ.

In other business:
• James said he has received a list of names from the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, Main Street merchants, and tourism commission as sources for the Oral History of Prestonsburg project.

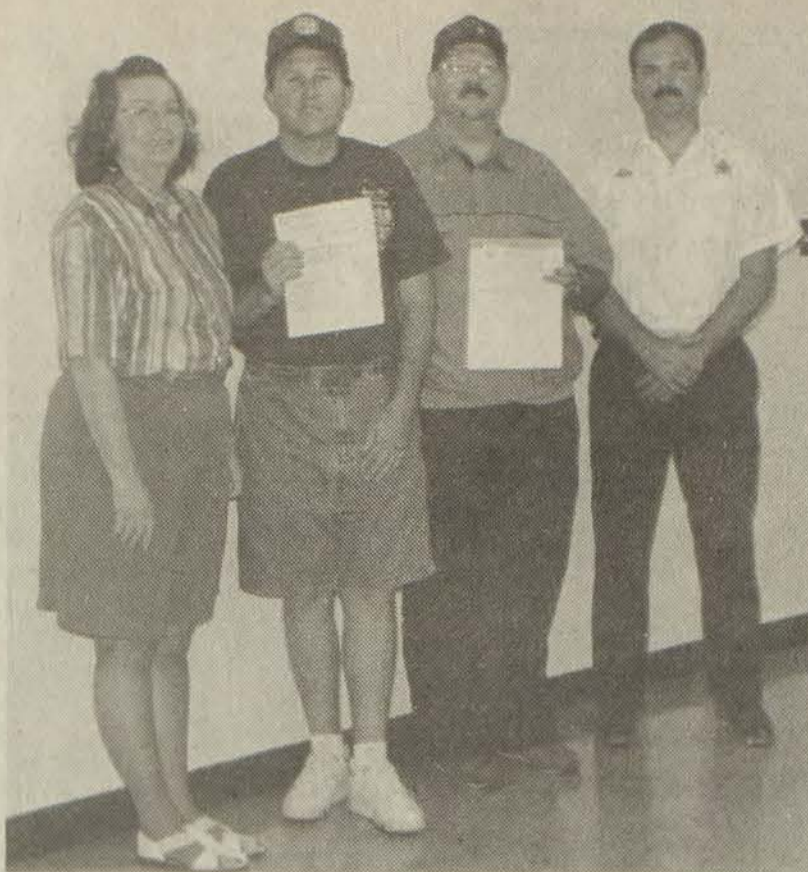

The project, funded by a grant, will preserve Prestonsburg's history through the memories of Prestonsburg residents.

James said the tourism commission will start interviewing up to 20 people the next few months.

• Don Jahoda, who was selected to replace Gene Luka on the tourism commission, had to resign to take employment in Florida. James said a new member will be named at the next Prestonsburg City Council meeting.

• Mark Miller was nominated as chairman for the commission and Boyd Thompson was nominated treasurer. Both have accepted the nominations.

All members but Dr. Blake Burchett and Mark Miller were present.

DES grants awarded

NASCAR showcar to be in Prestonsburg Saturday

"The crowds keep growing and growing and in some instances it's like a traffic jam out there in the parking lot," said Steve Smith, president of the Food City supermarket chain. He was referring to the turnout at the showing of Dale Earnhardt's number 3 Chevrolet Monte Carlo racing showcar.

The sleek, black proto-type vehicle which carries the GM Goodwrench Service and Food City logos is undergoing constant inspection by throngs of race enthusiasts ever since it was brought over from the Richard Childress Racing headquarters in North Carolina.

Thus far the showcar has been exhibited in at least a dozen different locations and the list of additional Food City outlets for displaying the popular showcar goes until the end of the year.

"It is the hottest race car on the NASCAR racing circuit this year," Smith said, "and this is one of the reasons it draws so many people for picture-taking and just giving it a close going-over."

Dale Earnhardt, along with some of the other NASCAR drivers, has taken the Monte Carlo into the Winner's Circle 18 out of the 23 Winston Cup Races so far this year. Earnhardt won the race in North Wilkesboro last spring in this car.

The number 3 Earnhardt Monte Carlo is owned by Richard Childress Racing. Its engine has a 358-inch displacement Chevrolet small block with 650 horsepower. The RCR racing team refers to this showcar as the number 2 prototype made specifically for the short-track. The driver's seat is in a "laid-back position," just as Earnhardt asks for.

The number 3 showcar is on a tight schedule. It will be in Paintsville Friday, September 8, and at the Glynn View Plaza Shopping Center Food City in Prestonsburg, Saturday, September 9, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Delivery

Alan Whicker, the mayor of Martin, presented the keys to a car for home delivery meals to Edna Blackburn, director of the Martin Senior Citizens Center and Dot Tiner, president of the administrative board.

A new study, an old conclusion

by Scott Perry

A task force charged with reviewing the primary school program enacted through the Kentucky Education Reform Act has concluded that the ungraded primary program is working, but there is room for improvement.

The report suggests that while there may be widespread concern over the primary program, the answer is not to change the system by changing the law, but to confront problems in the implementation process.

To summarize the situation, the task force notes that "good implementation requires leadership, professional development and time. All are in short supply."

The difficulty with time constraints is obvious enough. There are only so many hours in a day, so many days in a week and so many weeks in a school year.

But we have a problem understanding why, nearly six years into KERA, we still can't find the leadership we need to make education reform work to its maximum capability.

Perhaps it is because we're so used to settling for less that we aren't capable of expecting more leadership from our leaders.

There are teachers out there working wonders with our new system of education, particularly in the ungraded primary program.

There are teachers out there, as well, working against or around that system.

In schools where parental involvement is welcomed and encouraged, the process of reform works smoothly.

In schools where parents are considered to be interlopers, the same old weary lines of distrust prevail.

In conclusion, it appears that this study points us in the same direction as others before it.

That the key to true reform is to teach us adults that schools are for teaching children and that while the old ways may be comfortable for us, they aren't profitable for them.

Letters to the editor policy

Letters to the Editor are welcomed by the Floyd County Times. In accordance with our editorial page policy, all letters must include the signature, address and telephone number of the author. Letters must be received no later than 10 a.m. Tuesday for publication in Wednesday's issue and 10 a.m. Thursday for Friday's issue. Letters may be sent to Editor, The Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Letters may be edited for clarity and length.

Record set straight about B.L. policies

Editor:

In response to the letter to the editor in Wednesday's edition, August 23, either Tammy Conn did not want to quote the facts of she had a crow to pick with the staff at Betsy Layne Elementary and the Floyd County Board of Education.

In her letter she stated, "We received a note after school saying if our children miss more than ten days that cannot be made up in intercession, they cannot advance to the next grade." She indicated that the Floyd County Board of Education was at fault.

The letter sent home actually stated, "Any student shall not exceed 18 days absence from class during the school year without making them up during intercession or the student has to repeat the grade." Only ten days are allowed to be made up according to board policy.

In putting the two numbers together, the total is 28 days. Any student requiring more time off from school certainly would not be in an educational position to advance to the next grade. There should be no reason for any student to be absent more than that because this county does provide home-instruction for students who have accidents and long-term illnesses.

Opening day was quite hectic at Betsy Layne Elementary as it is at every school, but it was not due to the "gates" being locked. (Incidentally, there was only one gate locked.) The traffic jam was caused by the indiscretion of one adult who parked a vehicle in the fire lane preventing the school buses from being able to make a 90 degree turn in front of the church, which they must do morning and afternoon.

We applaud the decision not to open the gate by the gym. It is much easier for a parent to walk a child a few feet to school than it would be to bury one who was hit by a careless driver. As far as an emergency is concerned, who would know first about it? School personnel! The gates can be opened very quickly, as they are not locked.

At no time were we ever told we could not enter the new building. It seems that Tammy Conn must have been singled out. Ludicrous! That would never happen.

School personnel dismiss the students to the cafeteria for parents to pick up at 2:40 p.m., which is much better than allowing the students to roam the hallways and playground.

There is no way school personnel can identify every parent of 600 students. Because the school recognized the potential danger to students waiting outside was the reasoning behind releasing them to the cafeteria. This is no longer a small community school. Betsy Layne Elementary has grown into a large school and must provide adequate security which is evident!

We assumed, and have been assured by the staff and faculty at Betsy Layne Elementary that our school was, is and always will be in the business of educating our children. The snack business would never be the top priority. Snack is a privilege, not a requirement, which leads us to inform Mrs. Conn that the snack procedure is temporary. We have been informed that Betsy Layne Elementary is in the process of purchasing a cotton candy machine and a slush machine. Popcorn, candy and other snacks will be available in the gym during breaks.

No, the gym is not air conditioned. However, we guarantee that all students prefer getting fresh air and enjoying a snack in the gym to sitting in a classroom all day!

The attitudes of the vast majority of the parents, faculty and students are overwhelmingly positive this year! We would like to keep this!

Martin will celebrate City Government Week

Editor:

The City of Martin is proud to join with the 435 cities across the Commonwealth of Kentucky in celebration of City Government Week, September 11-15.

City government is, without question, the government closest to the people. We in city government want to be sure the people here at home are aware of the services we provide with their tax money.

Many people don't realize it because Kentucky is usually thought of as a rural state, but nearly half of the Commonwealth's population lives within city boundaries. Those citizens look to us to provide such important services as police and fire protection; street and sidewalk maintenance; water and sewer service; park and recreational services; and much more. In addition, thousands of people living outside the cities' boundaries rely on cities for places of employment, recreation, professional and health services, and retail trade centers.

It is a constant challenge for our city to provide such services within our budget, and in the face of requirements imposed on us by other levels of government. But I believe the City of Martin's officials and employees are doing a great job in meeting the needs of our citizens.

City government works! I am proud of the city of Martin's record and look forward to the opportunity to showcase our services during City Government Week. Some of the activities we have planned, and invite the whole community to participate in, include city hall open house during the week of September 11-15; tours of city offices; tours of the fire department, police department, and Wastewater Treatment Plant by appointment.

Alan R. Whicker, Mayor
City of Martin

Citizens task force backs primary program

Testifying before a legislative committee Thursday, the head of a citizens task force said research shows that the state's new primary school program, when well implemented, is good for children and that teachers should receive training and other support to "implement it fully and well." William Wilson, vice chair of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence who headed the committee's Task Force on Improving Kentucky Schools, testified before the interim committee on education of the Kentucky General Assembly. Wilson also gave legislators the task force's report on primary which contains 20 recommendations, including one that the legislature make no changes in existing laws concerning the primary program.

"The challenge is implementation," Wilson said. "Changing the law won't improve schools for children; changes in the law aren't what is needed. Hard work, good professional development, and strong leadership are."

The Prichard Committee task force looked at what he called "good hard-nosed research" about so-called non-graded programs, and found evidence that "the primary program is in the best interests of all children when it is well implemented" and little evidence of any negative effects.

Wilson urged legislators to continue to provide teachers in the state with professional development opportunities and other resources which he said are the tools that teachers need to do the work of implementing the primary program.

Twenty-fifth Annual Patrick Reunion held

Summary of Recommendations on the Primary Program

From: Report from the Task Force on Improving Kentucky Schools, The Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, September, 1995

RECOMMENDATION

We recommend that the General Assembly retain the primary program, with the flexibility for school implementation adopted in 1994, and encourage schools, districts, local boards, and school councils to focus on implementing the program fully and well.

SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

We recommend that new efforts be made to improve the leadership skills of principals and administrators. School boards should establish performance standards for school administrators and see that they are met. Principal training should be expanded.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

We recommend that the Kentucky Department of Education, the Regional Service Centers, colleges and universities, local boards of education, and local school councils provide training and time for teachers that concentrate on actual classroom practice. Teachers need training in the use of the Kentucky Early Learning Profile (KELP) or other methods that provide the means to follow the progress of each child in acquiring necessary skills and to identify children with special learning needs.

We recommend that local school boards, administrators, and school councils find creative ways to provide time for teachers to learn about the primary program and to plan and prepare them for teaching in primary classrooms. Examples of schools and districts that have restructured their schedules to provide teachers with more time for professional development and planning should be circulated widely.

We recommend that good, usable materials, which have already been published, be more widely distributed to teachers. Model curriculum units, such as those developed by the University of Kentucky, should be made available. Regional Service Centers should identify such units created in Kentucky classrooms and distribute them. The Department of Education should make "Different Ways of Knowing" (DWO) curricula affordable to more Kentucky teachers.

We recommend that the primary configuration maps, which were developed by researchers at the University of Kentucky and describe full implementation of the primary program, be shared widely with elementary school councils, teachers and administrators, for use in understanding and comparing the primary program.

We recommend that school councils at school boards seek professional development for teachers in the use of technology to reduce the amount of time and paperwork required by the new reporting methods.

PARENT INVOLVEMENT

We recommend that schools commit fully to the principle that good communication with parents and effective encouragement of parent involvement is a high priority for the school and for teachers. Having a school council is not, in our view, sufficient alone for engaging parents as much as needed.

We recommend that a "Checklist for Parents" be developed by the Kentucky Department of Education and distributed to all parents to provide them with an understanding of what a good primary program should look like, including ways to determine whether their children are acquiring reading, writing, and mathematics skills.

We recommend that the Kentucky Department of Education and Regional Service Centers create sample report cards for use or adaptation that are clear in pointing out skills that have been traditionally considered basic skills. Parents should be included in the process of developing these sample report cards. The use of the Kentucky Early Learning Profile (KELP) can be helpful here.

We recommend that school boards and school councils use time more effectively and creatively to create better opportunities for parent/teacher conferences and other ways to communicate with parents. Examples such as Jefferson County's bi-parent/teacher conference day should be widely distributed.

We recommend that effective school communication with parents about student progress in their academic work be a top school priority. Parents need explanations from teachers about new grading procedures; teachers should provide that explanation that grading is absolutely clear to parents.

We recommend that schools improve and expand communication between teachers and parents. (One model is the Prichard Committee's Parents and Teachers Talking Together.)

MULTI-AGE GROUPING

We recommend that the state Department of Education, the Regional Service Centers, and local administrators make requirements absolutely clear to teachers and parents: the law provides flexibility in grouping students — grouping students of two age levels is appropriate, legal, and perhaps more practical, for some schools and classrooms. However, teachers interested in implementing classrooms with more than two age levels should be encouraged to do so and be supported in their efforts.

We recommend that professional development programs emphasize helping teachers with the knowledge and skills to implement continuous progress in their classrooms. The Kentucky Early Learning Profile is a useful tool for accomplishing this.

We recommend that school boards and councils make full-time aides available to every primary classroom.

TRANSITION TO GRADE FOUR

We recommend that teachers in the primary programs and in the upper elementary grades work together to establish mutual academic expectations for students and for what is expected in the fourth grade KIRIS assessments.

We recommend that all elementary school teachers, not just fourth and fifth grade teachers, be trained in and score writing and mathematics portfolios so that each teacher understands the standards set for student success.

We recommend that communication with and training for teachers emphasize that all primary teachers are responsible for student achievement, not just fourth grade teachers.

KINDERGARTEN INCLUSION

We recommend that the Department of Education and Regional Service Centers aggressively disseminate information to teachers about flexibility for grouping kindergarten students. However, schools should be encouraged to include five-year-old students in meaningful activities with older students to increase the benefit to both groups of students.

Local educator attends conference at KET Network Center

Connie Sword, of South Floyd High School, was one of 18 Kentucky educators attending the KET Facilitator Conference at the KET Network Center in Lexington, Thursday, August 17. South Floyd High School has students enrolled in five live, interactive classes originating daily from KET studios and delivered via the Star Channels satellite system. This system is used to deliver advanced high school courses to students in schools where the courses previously were not offered. Sword will serve as the school's facilitator for the classes for the 1995-96 school year.

During the day-long meeting, participants were given a tour of the KET Distance Learning facilities, received hands-on experience with the interactive keypad technology used in the courses, and met with the television instructors. They also attended sessions on: student management, the grading program, communicating with other teachers and students in the school about the Star Channels classes, and coordinating local class schedules with the satellite delivery of the KET classes. The participants were greeted by Virginia G. Fox, KET executive director and CEO.

The local school facilitator plays a vital role in the operation of the distance learning classes by acting as the day-to-day manager of the classroom, supporting the efforts of the satellite teachers, handling necessary paperwork, and encouraging the students to interact with the television teachers and with tutors.

The KET Star Channels system was developed in 1989 to offer advanced courses to all students, regardless of their school's size, resources, or location. Classes offered this year include: German I and II; Physics; Latin I and II; Probability & Statistics; Discrete Mathematics; and Pre-calculus. For the 1995/96 school year, 1,746 students in 17 states are enrolled in the KET Star Channels courses. Fifty-one Kentucky schools are currently enrolled.

Jack May's War

Marshall's Headquarters battalion passed through Pound Gap on September 8th. Guerrant tells us that the day was warm and the riding was dusty. That morning Marshall sent word ahead to Colonel May, informing him that the whole army would concentrate at West Liberty on September 17th. Three days later, while Marshall and his officers were on the road between Martin's Mill and Prestonsburg, they met "Jack May & Jack Marcum & Davy Dennis coming after arms for the new recruits." Unhappy with Marshall's dilatory response to his request for arms, Jack had decided to ride back to the supply train and get them himself. This episode tells us something about the determination Jack brought to the job of commanding a regiment in the field.

On the evening of September 12th, after a march of nineteen miles, Marshall and his staff reached the forks of Middle Creek, the scene of their first important battle, and set up headquarters in "Mrs. Hamilton's old, empty, haunted-looking frame house, just above the battlefield." After pitching his tent, Guerrant rode over to "Mr. Hubbard's & Mr. Hammond's," a wayside inn near Prestonsburg, and took dinner. On the following day they moved on to Salyersville, "a little, one-store country cross-roads town," where they camped around the residence of Mrs. Gardner, widow of Benjamin Gardner, wealthy merchant and founder of Licking Station. "In the evening we all went over to the Dress Parade of Jack May's 5th Kentucky, encamped nearby, now numbering upwards of one thousand allant, glorious 'ragamuffins.' After the parade, General Marshall made a speech that was received with cheers and applause."

For the Virginians in Marshall's army, Bragg's Fall 1862 invasion was a journey into enemy territory. For the men of the 5th Kentucky, however, it was a glorious homecoming. They received their warmest receptions at Owingsville and West Liberty, the scene of their first engagement. When they marched from Salyersville to West Liberty on September 17th, they were followed by the other regiments of Marshall's command. Noble says that when they arrived at West Liberty, they marched through town "with a brass band and drum and fife." From there they marched to Owingsville, the hometown of Major Hawkins, and Mount Sterling, the hometown of Brigadier General Williams. Oddly enough, Colonel May didn't participate in these festivities, but stayed behind at Salyersville and continued his recruiting efforts. On September 18th, Williams sent him this exuberant letter:

Mr. Col. A. J. May, Sir:
"I returned to West Liberty this morning from Bath County. The news is all good. We captured guns enough to arm two companies and some fifteen horses. I shot one man in a little skirmish with Jonathan Lewis' Home Guards. We captured nine horses in that fight. I left my men at Thomas Johnson's farm. There are 150 men in Wolfe County at or near Campton. You ought to send Swango's company there in a hurry. They have got a fine set of arms there. You never saw such a time as there was when I got to Owingsville. I was presented with a fine flag by the ladies. They are making you one that cost 60 dollars. I could write a heap, but I haven't time. Come, come in haste, for the way is open and plenty to eat.—J.S. Williams"

The welcome which Owingsville gave the regiment was the warmest of all. As Williams' letter shows, the ladies of Owingsville had originally planned to present their flag to Colonel May. When he didn't show, they gave it to Major Hawkins, the acting commander of the regiment. In his history of the 5th, written fifty years later, Hawkins says:

"It is proper to make record as an historic incident that the good and patriotic women of Colonel Hawkins' home county and also the home of one company of the regiment, during their short encampment at Mount Sterling, made a beautiful Confederate flag for the regiment, of which fact Colonel Hawkins had not been informed until he happened to visit Owingsville, the county seat, when one of the charming young ladies in the courthouse, packed with patriotic men and women, presented to him the beautiful Confederate flag for the gallant, Fifth Kentucky Regiment."

On September 17th the New York Times reported that martial law had been declared in Louisville, and that Bragg's army had captured Lexington, Danville, Paris, Georgetown, and Versailles. Furthermore, "a terrible panic" was sweeping Cincinnati, which was being threatened by a rebel army under Brigadier General Henry Heth. Three days later the Times reported that General Marshall was at Mount Sterling with 4,000 troops, including cavalry and artillery, and that his men were "arresting citizens, searching houses, & c."

Bragg left his base at Chattanooga on August 28th, planning to march into Central Kentucky, join forces with Kirby-Smith and Marshall, capture Louisville, and then deal with General Buell, whose main army was concentrated at Nashville. Unfortunately, Bragg underestimated Buell's ability to track his movements and respond to the threat. Moreover, his march was delayed by Colonel Wilder's stubborn refusal to surrender his small garrison at Munfordville. When Bragg's men finally arrived at Bardstown on September 20th, Kirby-Smith was nowhere to be found. Meanwhile, Buell's army was growing stronger by the minute. The inevitable clash came at Perryville on October 8th. In that battle, an unplanned engagement like Gettysburg, 16,000 Confederates inadvertently attacked 58,000 Federals and fought them to a draw. Confederate losses were high, however, and after it Bragg decided to retreat.

Planning for the future

Representative Harry Moberly Jr., chairman of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee in the state House of Representatives, looked on as Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, PCC president, pointed out features of the college's Physical Development Plan.

House Appropriations chairman visits PCC

State Representative Harry Moberly Jr. of Richmond, chairman of the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee, recently visited Prestonsburg Community College.

Moberly came to PCC at the invitation of Representative Gregory Stumbo of Prestonsburg, Majority Floor Leader of the House of Representatives, and Representative Herbie Deskins of Pikeville. During his visit, Moberly toured both the Prestonsburg and Pikeville campuses of PCC. He met with Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, president of PCC; Paul R. Gearheart, chairman of the PCC Advisory Board, and Jean Hale, secretary-treasurer of the PCC Advisory Board.

During his tour, Moberly toured potential sites for construction of both a Regional Center for Health Education and Wellness on the Prestonsburg campus and a Regional Classroom and Technology Center on the Pikeville campus. In addition, he looked at possible locations for a new entrance to the Prestonsburg campus.

Dr. Floyd had testified before the House Subcommittee on Education of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee of which Moberly was chairman, during the 1994 session of the Kentucky General Assembly. The House Appropriations and Revenue Committee of which he is now chairman, will consider budget requests for capital improvement projects during the 1996 legislative session, which begins next January.

For better health, take the five a day challenge

If you knew of an easy, inexpensive way to significantly reduce your chances of getting cancer, would you do it?

The answer to improving your health is as close as your garden or neighborhood grocery store. By eating five or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day, you can reduce your risk of getting cancer, as well as heart disease, diabetes and high blood pressure.

September 10-16 is the annual "National 5 A Day Week" proclaimed by the National Cancer Institute and the Produce for Better Health Foundation to encourage Americans to eat more fruits and vegetables for improved health.

This year's promotion, "Take the 5 A Day Challenge," urges people to add fruits and vegetables to their daily diet by forming a team or getting a partner to encourage and challenge you to form this good eating habit.

As with other things that are good for you, knowing is not the same as doing. Since "5 A Day for Better Health" began in 1991, the number of Americans who know they need to eat at least five fruits and vegetables a day increased from 8 to 28 percent, but not all of them have made it a habit.

According to the 1993 Kentucky Health Survey, Kentuckians 65 years or older were more likely to meet the recommended daily servings of fruits and vegetables than other age groups. Those at least likely to meet the suggested servings were in the 18-44 age category.

"The 18-44 age group includes college students, singles and young married couples who are busy and tend to travel and eat out a lot," said Reginald Finger, M.D., director of Kentucky's division of epidemiology in the Department for Health Services. "It's hard to eat five a day when you're traveling or relying on food prepared outside your home."

Finger said parents in this age group need to encourage their children to consume five fruits and vegetables a day to help them form good eating habits. The survey indicates that there was also a low percentage of Kentuckians in the 6-17 year age group getting enough daily servings.

"It may be more convenient to take your child to a drive-through restaurant on the way to some activity, but it's harder to get fruits and vegetables that way. Carrying some apples or dried fruit or substituting fruit juice for a soft drink takes a little more planning, but it's worth doing for your child's health," Finger said.

Income does not seem to be a factor in Kentucky when it comes to eating fruits and vegetables. The survey shows that roughly the same percentage of people with annual incomes below $10,000 and annual incomes above $50,000 eat five servings a day. Finger said that indicates that the goal of consuming five servings a day is attainable regardless of income.

So, what is a serving? One serving size is defined as any of the following: one medium fruit, 3/4 cup of 100 percent fruit or vegetable juice, 1/2 cup cooked or canned vegetables or fruit, one cup raw leafy vegetables, 1/2 cup dried peas or beans, or 1/4 cup dried fruit.

"A serving is smaller than most people think," Finger said. "This is a great time of the year to start adding fruits and vegetables because of the availability and variety of fresh items, but consuming canned or dried fruits and vegetables is just as beneficial."

"Health professionals are usually telling people to cut back on food to improve their health, but this program actually encourages people to eat more food and not feel bad about it," Finger said.

Proclamation

Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin signed a proclamation Friday, September 1, declaring Saturday, September 9, as Shrine Hospital Weekend for the city of Prestonsburg in support of the annual Shrine Newspaper Crusade to benefit Shriners Hospitals for Crippled and Burned Children. Thomas Flanery, Lloyd Edwards and John Wallen of the Sons of the Desert and Trail 70's Shrine Units, looked on as Fannin signed the proclamation. Later that day, Martin Mayor Alan Whicker signed a similar proclamation for the city of Martin. (photo by Alisa Goodwill)

P'burg Donor Center celebrates National Marrow Donor Week

As the nation observes National Marrow Donor Awareness Week September 10-16, the National Marrow Donor program (NMDP) and Prestonsburg Donor Center (with Central Kentucky Blood Center, CKBC — an NMDP donor center) will celebrate lives saved with unrelated marrow transplants and will reaffirm the continued need for more volunteer marrow donors. The theme of the week is "Share Life."

The NMDP Registry is a list of 1.6 million volunteers willing to donate their marrow to patients with leukemia, aplastic anemia or other life-threatening diseases. To date, 17 donors of CKBC's 6,000 volunteers on the NMDP registry have donated their marrow to patients needing transplants.

While the number of patients finding matched donors continuously increases, the NMDP still needs volunteers. Currently, almost 65 percent of patients searching the NMDP Registry find at least one identical matched donor. The goal of the NMDP and Prestonsburg Donor Center is to continue to increase the number of volunteers until virtually all patients can find matches.

There is an urgent need for minority volunteers on the NMDP Registry. Because the characteristics that determine a match are genetic, it is more likely that, outside his or her own family, a patient will match a donor within his or her own racial group. There are not enough minorities on the NMDP Registry to give minority patients an equal chance of finding a matched donor.

Volunteers between the ages of 18 and 55 who are in good health can be potential donors. Everyone who gives blood or stops in to inquire about the program at Prestonsburg Donor Center September 10-16 will receive a free thank-you gift. For more information on joining the NMDP registry, call Prestonsburg Donor Center at 886-1557.

Community Calendar

In Memory of Leonard Hall
 Oct. 18, 1938—Sept. 8, 1994
 To Those I Love
 When I am gone, release me, let me go.
 I have so many things to see and do. You mustn't tie yourself to me with tears.
 Be happy that we had some years. I gave you my love. You can only guess how much you gave to me in happiness.
 I thank you for the love you each have shown.
 But now it's time I traveled alone. So grieve awhile for me, if grieve you must;
 Then let your grief be comforted by trust.
 It's only for awhile that we must part,
 So keep the memories within your heart.
 I won't be far away, for life goes on. So if you need me, call and I will come.
 Though you can't see or touch me, I'll be near.
 And if you listen with your heart, you'll hear
 All of my love around you soft and dear.
 And then when you must come this way alone,
 I'll greet you with a smile.
 Forever loved and missed, Pearl, Lynnetta, James, Ryan, Brian, Janet and Mick.

PCC Service Learning Program receives funding for second year

The Service Learning Program at PCC was recently notified that it has received a Year Two grant in the amount of $9,600 for the period September 1, 1995 through August 31, 1996.

Dr. Carol Mulling, associate professor of psychology and coordinator of PCC's Service Learning Program, was officially notified of the second-year grant award from the American Association of Community College in a letter dated August 10 from Lynn Barnett, director of Community Development at the AACC. In the letter Barnett wrote, "We are pleased to inform you that the Corporation for National and Community Service has approved the renewal of the AACC Learn and Serve America project."

PCC's Service Learning Program is one of only eight such programs nationwide that received grants of $12,000 each from the AACC last year. Students participating in the program combine course work with practical experience as volunteers with a variety of community service agencies, including school family resource centers, youth service centers and senior citizen centers.

The Service Learning Program at PCC is operated in cooperation with the Big Sandy Area Development

District. Dr. Mulling said the program is "about empowerment, enrichment and opportunities for our students to make a difference right in our hometown." She added that the Service Learning Program is about "the belief that we can, and want to, make a difference in our communities. We live here. We know what the needs are."

Commenting on receipt of the second-year grant from the AACC, Mulling said, "It is very gratifying to know that the AACC believes our program is worthy of renewal. We want this program to grow. We want it to last."

Unable to seat jury; sex case moved

by Jerry Pennington
Big Sandy News editor

After two days of trying to seat a jury, Lawrence Circuit Judge Stephen "Nick" Frazier decided to move the trial of pastor Gallie Isaac Sr., out of Lawrence County.

Out of 22 jurors questioned by the court on Tuesday and Wednesday, all but four were excused. Most were excused because they knew or had close, personal ties with Isaac.

"I've known Gallie for a lot of years," John Scott, one of the excused jurors, said to the court.

"He visited my parents house when I was growing up and we used to fish together. I just don't think I could bring judgment against him."

Several others were excused because they had attended Isaac's church or he had performed marriages or funerals for their families.

"I've know him since I was a little girl," Delcie Mills, an excused juror from Louisa, said. "He's married a lot of people in my family."

Mills said she wasn't sure if she could be a fair juror on the case.

Most of the four jurors that hadn't been excused were not originally from Lawrence County, Circuit

Clerk Martha Kiser said. Instead, they had moved here from another county or from West Virginia.

Isaac, 78, is on trial for charges of sexually abusing young boys who attended Isaac Park Free Baptist Church, where he is pastor. He faces 17 counts of sodomy and sexual abuse charges that stem from four alleged victims over a period of about 10 years.

The victims in the case allege that Isaac engaged in deviate sex with them.

Frazier told attorneys to try and come up with a new venue for the trial that the both of them could agree upon. If the attorneys could not agree on a site, Frazier would then decide.

"We would have preferred to bring in additional jurors to try and keep the trial in Lawrence," Isaac's attorney, Eldred "Bud" Adams said. "I just wish we could have tried some more."

Adams said Thursday morning that he hadn't given much thought to a new trial location yet.

Special prosecutor Luke Morgan, an assistant attorney general said he thought Frazier had tried his best to seat a jury in Lawrence.

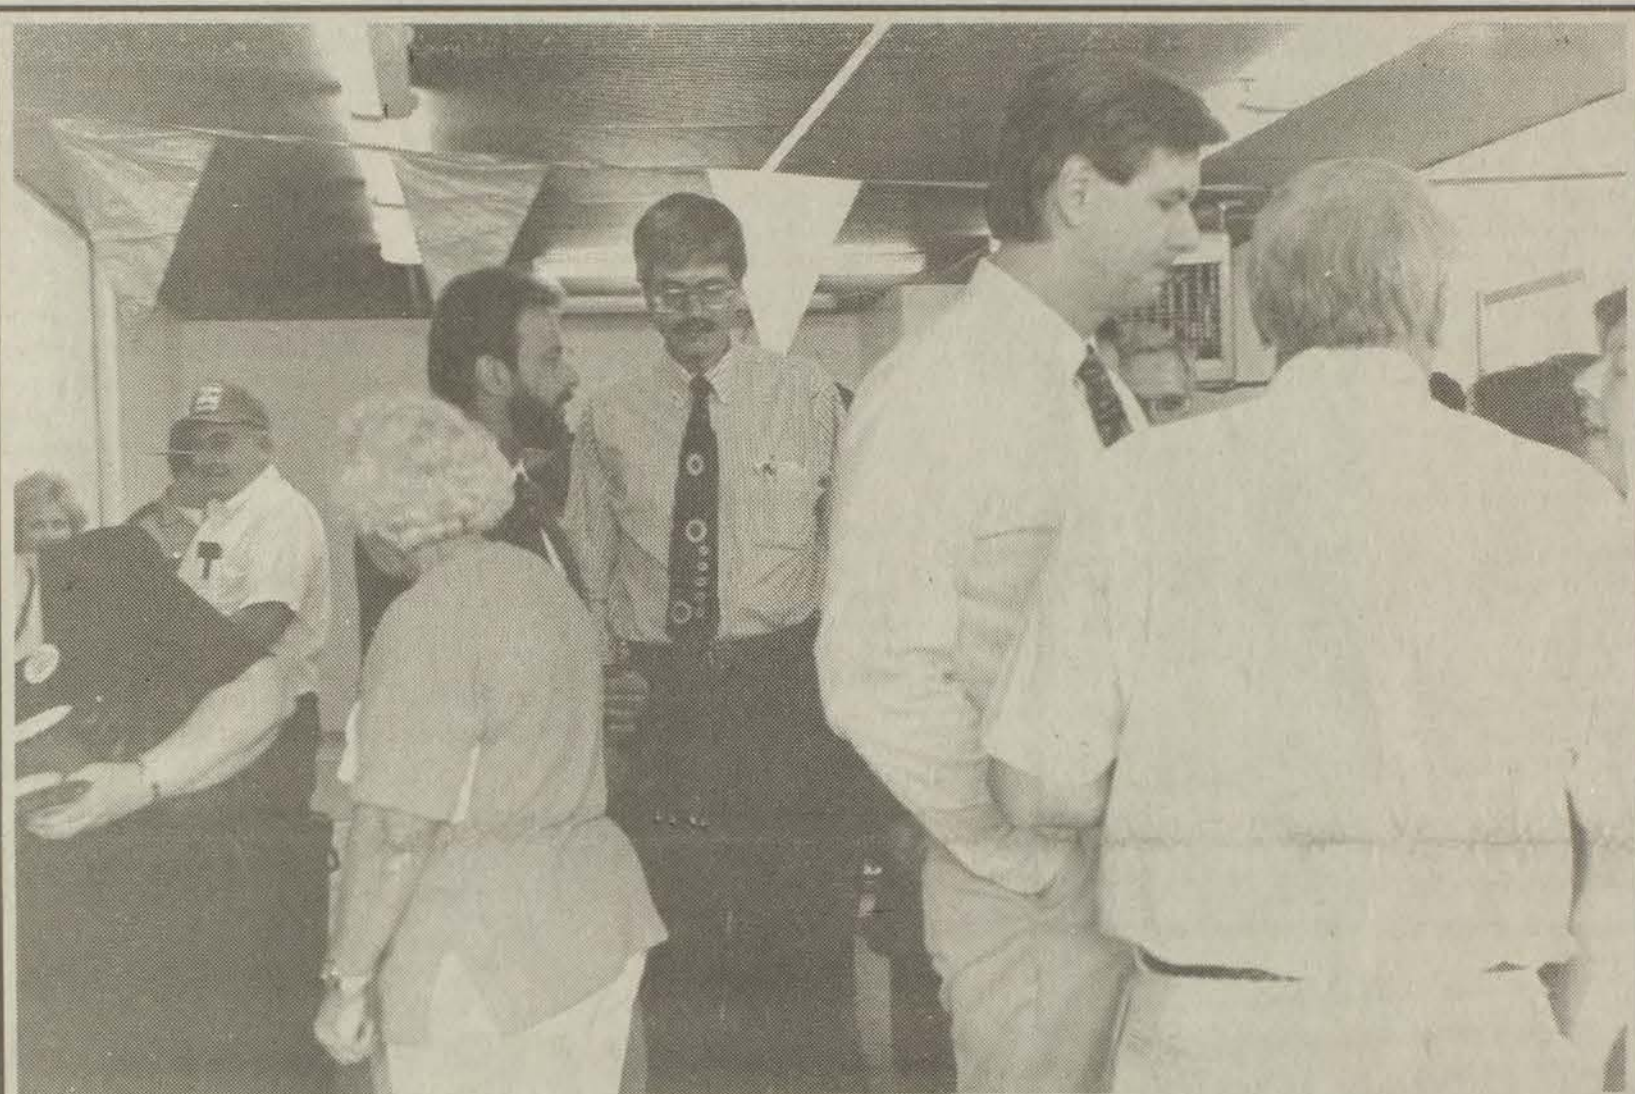

"(Frazier) was very patient in trying to get a jury," Morgan said. "It just became apparent that it wasn't going to happen."

Morgan said he is asking that the trial be moved to Boyd County because it has a larger population and still borders Lawrence.

"From my knowledge, Gallie Isaac has little connection with anyone in Boyd County," Morgan said. "They won't know about this case well, and some of them may have never heard about it."

Morgan said his second choice

Jurors convict Pike pair of abuse

Contributed by the Appalachian News-Express

A jury returned a guilty verdict last week in a case against a McCarr couple charged with child abuse.

Ermal Lee DeHart, 28, and Lisa DeHart were convicted of second-degree criminal abuse, a Class D felony, for injuries sustained by their four-month-old infant in October 1993.

Officials at the South Williamson Appalachian Regional Hospital reported the couple to police after doctors examined the infant during an emergency room visit. The couple reportedly took the infant to the hospital at the urging of a family member.

Doctors found that the infant had a fractured skull, three broken ribs and hairline fractures in the rib cage, according to Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Ron Burchett who prosecuted the case.

Doctors also reported bruises, swelling and discoloration around one of the child's eyes.

The child's injuries, particularly the broken ribs and skull fracture, were found to be at different stages in the healing process, according to Burchett, and may not have happened at the same time.

The jury recommended a two-year prison sentence for Ermal DeHart, who was taken into custody last week, and a one-year sentence for Lisa DeHart who will remain free on bond until formal sentencing is held.

Ermal DeHart's mother, Margaret DeHart, 66, also of McCarr, was originally charged in the incident, but was acquitted.

The couple lived with Margaret DeHart at the time the alleged abuse occurred.

Although there was no direct evidence as to who inflicted the injuries, Burchett said under the law, if someone causes or allows a child to be abused while in their custody, they too can be charged with the same offense as the person who actually committed the crime.

Property taxes double in Johnson County

by Tony Fyffe
Paintsville Herald editor

Thanks to the four-year emergency reassessment project, Johnson County's property-tax base has more than doubled, state Revenue Cabinet officials said this week.

Johnson County's total taxable assessment increased 111 percent, rising from $248,366,608 in 1993 to a preliminary $524,343,085 for 1994, officials said.

Individual property owners will receive their new assessments before next Monday, when tax rolls will be opened for public inspection. Many property owners will see their assessment rise by a "tremendous amount," said Sheila Robertson, office manager for the emergency project.

"Before getting in line to discuss your new assessment, you are encouraged to honestly think about the selling price you would ask for your property," Robertson said Tuesday. "Only if you truly believe your property's assessment is more than what your property is worth should you have a conference with a Revenue Cabinet official."

Robertson said that during the reassessment program, all parcels of real property were physically inspected, mapped and valued.

"All property assessment information that is maintained by the PVA's office has been updated," she said. "Additionally, much of this information is now being maintained on a new computer system which will make it more accessible for both the local officials and the general public."

Robertson noted that the Kentucky Constitution requires that all property be assessed at its fair cash value.

"The fair cash value of property is estimated at the price it would bring at a fair voluntary sale," Robertson said. "The personnel that assessed the real property in Johnson county were required to follow this fair cash value standard."

According to Robertson, here's how property was assessed:

- The prices of properties that had sold were used to estimate the fair cash value of similar properties that had not sold.

"Every effort was made to use only fair voluntary sales as a basis for reassessing property so that accurate and equitable assessments would be made," Robertson said. "This technique is known as the comparable sales approach for estimating values, and it was used for residential property, farm houses and commercial land values."

- For commercial buildings, a proper assessed value was estimated by determining the cost to replace the improvement and adjusting the cost to replace the improvement. The cost was then adjusted downward for the "wear and tear" the building had experienced.

As the reassessments were completed, Robertson said, the appraisals of many properties were found to be "well below their fair cash value."

For example, Robertson said, several homes were valued at $5,000 when available information indicated that they should be assessed around $100,000. Those "gross underassessments" caused an uneven distribution of the property tax burden in Johnson County in prior years, she said.

"Those people who bought property in the past few years were assessed at the price they paid for the property," Robertson said. "However, long-term owners of similar properties continued to be assessed at the price that was paid 15, 20 years ago. These types of inequities were corrected by the reassessment project."

Robertson said another problem encountered during the project was the discovery of property not listed by the PVA's office for taxation.

"Many houses have been identified as having been built in the past several years, but the assessed values for the properties continued to be for only a vacant lot," she said.

Decision stands to award former county workers

by Jerry Pennington
Big Sandy News editor

A federal jury decision to award $370,000 to 16 former county workers will stand, U.S. District Judge Henry R. Wilhoit ruled.

The workers had filed a suit against the Lawrence County Fiscal Court claiming that they were wrongfully dismissed when current County Judge-executive Roger Jordan took office in 1994.

In May, a jury ruled that the firings were for political reasons, but the county had appealed the ruling asking for a new judgment. In an order filed Monday, August 28, in U.S. District Court in Ashland, Wilhoit overruled the motion.

Jordan testified that the workers were fired because of the poor financial shape of the county. The workers, on the other hand, said they were fired because they were supporters of former County Judge-executive Clyde Johns.

Another motion asking that the workers be reinstated was also overruled because Wilhoit said the subject was premature at this time.

"There is no question but that federal courts have the power to order reinstatement in wrongful discharge cases," Wilhoit wrote in his order. "However, an employee does not have an absolute right to reinstatement in such cases. The Court finds that the question of whether reinstatement of the plaintiffs to their former positions with Lawrence County government would be appropriate in this particular case is premature at this time."

The question of whether the county's insurance carrier, The Kentucky Association of Counties, should cover the judgment is still unresolved. Ned Pillersdorf, lead attorney for the ex-workers, filed a motion asking that Wilhoit order the company to pay the damages.

KACo officials previously said they would not cover the damages if the firings were ruled intentional.

With the size of the amount awarded, the county could go bankrupt without insurance coverage.

Wilhoit ruled that all parties will have 30 days from the day the order was filed to provide a joint status report on issues surrounding insurance coverage.

Wilhoit also ruled that the county must pay $24,903 in attorney fees for the former workers.

Rogers orders immediate action on Warfield-Lovely flood control

U.S. Congressman Hal Rogers visited Martin County recently during a swing through his 5th Congressional District before the House reconvenes for the Fall term next month.

During the stop at Warfield, Rogers told representatives from the U.S. Corps of Engineers who were in attendance that he wants a price estimate on his desk by May of next year concerning the proposed $50 million Warfield-Lovely Flood Control project.

Many remember the devastating 1977 flood that caused millions of dollars in damages along the Tug in Martin County. Warfield and Lovely residents fear that waters diverted from Williamson and other areas up the river pose an even greater threat to people living down the river than ever before. —Martin County Sun

Murder conviction stands, Supreme Court says

In a 6-1 vote, the state Supreme Court has upheld a lower court's ruling in the case of a man convicted of wanton murder last year.

Wesley Waller, of Meathouse, was charged in the June 1993 hit-and-run death of Colleen Bullough.

At the time of the incident, police combed the county for more than two days in search of the vehicle described as the one that hit Bullough before finding the car and driver.

Following Waller's conviction in Pike Circuit Court, he was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Ron Burchett, who prosecuted the case, said the Supreme Court's ruling would help in the combined efforts of the lower

Luka honored with retirement "meeting"

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Gene Luka is proud of the accomplishments his staff at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn have achieved over the last five years.

Under his leadership as general manager, the hotel, which formerly ranked in the top fifty percent of all Holiday Inns in the world in terms of guest service, now ranks in the top eleven percent.

"It's your accomplishment," a tearful Luka told his staff at a surprise gathering held in one of the hotel's conference rooms last Wednesday, August 30. "You did it, not me."

The show of emotion by the usually business-like general manager was not surprising given the circumstances. The surprise "meeting," called by Luka's staff, was a retirement party held in his honor. Luka opened gifts, cut his retirement cake, and then went around the room shaking the hand of each staff member in turn.

"I enjoyed bring your general manager," he told the group. "I'm proud to be your manager."

Linda Martin, of the hotel's catering sales department, said about her boss, "He's been great. We've learned so much."

"He's been an excellent boss," Linda Smith, controller, said. "I've been here less than 10 months and he has been a tremendous help to me."

Lukas's last day was August 31. On September 8, (today) Luka and Irish-born wife, Ellen, will leave for Ireland, where the couple plan to retire.

"We had planned this all during our married life," Luka said. "We have property there, and we have been going back and forth to Ireland every two to three years."

The Lukases are moving to Glin, "a town about the same size as Prestonsburg," he said. "It's a resort area 45 minutes from the Atlantic Ocean. It is in southwest Ireland, an area known for its hospitality."

Luka said about leaving Prestonsburg, "We will always miss our friends. Especially around here. We've made some very, very good friends. We would retire here—if it wasn't for Ireland."

During his five years in the county, Luka was involved in civic organizations. He served on the board of directors for the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, and was chairman of the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission. Luka said that he is pleased with "the new direction the commission has taken to promote Prestonsburg successfully."

An example Luka cited was the Levisa Fork canoe race held this summer as a joint effort between the cities of Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Pikeville.

Another progressive step the commission took was making plans to combine various festivals held in the city into one major annual event, he said.

Fred James, Prestonsburg

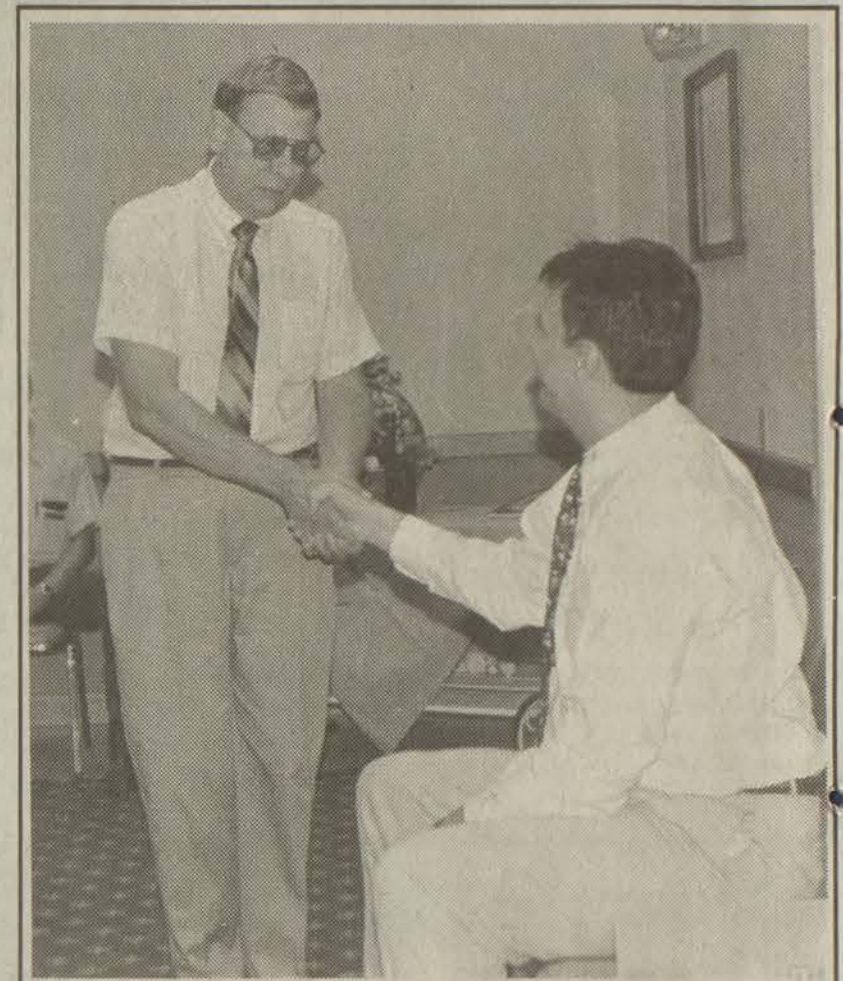

tourism director, said about Luka, "The commission has been fortunate to have Mr. Luka as chairman because of his commitment to the city and his experience with travel and tourism."

"He has been one of our leading advocates to help us promote an annual festival in Prestonsburg. We will miss Luka and wish him the best in Ireland."

Six of the state's top Medicaid abusers are from Martin County

Six of the top 25 abusers of the state Medicaid fund are Martin Countians according to figures released by the State Cabinet for Human Resources which administers the federal program.

Included in the report issued by Human Resources Commissioner Masten Childers was one Magoffin County man who used emergency facilities a total of 198 times last year—almost four times per week.

Six Martin Countians will be receiving a telephone call for an interview and then a letter will be sent to them. If the results are not satisfactory, a case worker will be sent to their homes.

Martin County, with its 12,500 population, had six of the state's highest users of emergency room facilities. Kentucky has more than three million people.

The report listed only ages, sex and county residences of suspected abusers. Here's a rundown of the six suspected abusers (one of them is a cancer patient and should not be considered):

- 29-year-old male—36 visits to Highlands Regional Medical Center and Paul B. Hall Medical Center. Total cost to taxpayers—$7,361.48.

- 27-year-old female—54 visits to HRMC, Paul B. Hall, Williams ARH, Three Rivers Medical Center, and St. Mary's. Total cost to taxpayers—$7,162.06.

- 21-year-old male—27 visits to HRMC, Three Rivers, Jewish Hospital in Shelbyville, St. Claire in Morehead, and Paul B. Hall. Patient has testicle cancer and liver cancer. Total cost to taxpayers—$6,514.09.

- 43-year-old female—60 visits to HRMC, Paul B. Hall, Three Rivers, Appalachian Regional (Perry County), and Williamson ARH. Total cost to taxpayers—$6,514.09.

Morehead's newest staff to tour Eastern Kentucky

For the third straight year, Morehead State University will provide new faculty and professional staff with a firsthand look at the University's service region on Saturday, September 9.

Some 25 newcomers to the campus will be joined by University administrators for a day-long bus tour of Northeastern Kentucky. Providing a narrative overview of the region and its history during the bus trip will be Dr. John Kleber, professor of history, and editor of the Kentucky Encyclopedia.

Also Dr. John C. Philley, executive vice president for academic affairs and professor of geoscience, will share information on the geological aspects of the region.

"We have found that actually going out into the region is one of the best ways to help our new employees gain a better understanding and appreciation of MSU's mission and the people we serve," Dr. Philley said. "It gives them a perspective that words alone cannot do."

The group will visit MSU's Ashland Area Extended Campus Center first, where they will hear from JoAnn Bell of the Chamber of Commerce of Boyd and Greenup counties and Bob Owen of Ashland Inc.

Next will be a tour of "The Mountain HomePlace," a living history farm at Paintsville Lake State Park, with Jim Williams of the Paintsville Tourism and Convention Commission as host.

After lunch at The Carriage House in Paintsville, the group will head to Martin County for a tour of a mountaintop surface mine with Superintendent John Stucker of Martiki Coal Company. Before returning to campus, the new MSU employees will stop at Jenny Wiley State Park for dinner at May Lodge.

Assisting with the tour arrangements as part of an overall new faculty/staff orientation program is Dr. Mac Luckey, MSU professor of philosophy and director of the University's Center for Critical Thinking.

Taxes

"These properties are considered to be omitted from the tax roll, and Kentucky's statutes allow these types of properties to be assessed for up to five prior years."

In addition to receiving tax bills for the years the property was not listed on the tax rolls, property owners will also be charged penalties and interest, Robertson said.

Property owners who disagree with their new assessments must first have a conference with the Revenue Cabinet official responsible for the assessment. Conferences must be scheduled between September 11 and September 25, when the tax rolls are open.

Property owners should bring documentation that shows why the assessed value is in error, Robertson said. If they still dispute the assessment following the conference, they can file an appeal in the county court clerk's office.

Jury

for a new venue would be Johnson County.

"I think Judge Frazier went above and beyond what a judge is entitled to do," Morgan said. "He did his best to get a fair and impartial jury in Lawrence County."

Frazier had hoped to seat 34 jurors in the case, allowing the attorneys to strike out 20 between them leaving 12 jurors with two alternates.

At the rate jurors were being excused, Morgan said it would have taken a pool of close to 250 people.

"I'm not saying anything against the people of Lawrence County," Morgan said. "It's just human nature. Emotions just run too deep in this case in Lawrence County."

"It wouldn't be fair to Gallie Isaac and it wouldn't be fair to the victims in the case," Morgan said.

Neither attorney was sure when the decision of where to move the trial would be made, but Morgan said he hoped they would have a place designated within a couple of weeks.

Morgan had filed a motion to change the venue in March before the trial began. After a hearing on the motion in April, Frazier ruled that the weight of the evidence presented favored leaving the trial in Lawrence, but said he would move the trial if a jury could not be seated.

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

In March, police in New York City charged salesman Joel Levy, 32, with assault. According to police, Levy's live-in girlfriend arrived home unexpectedly after Levy had just put in an order for a call girl to come over. Levy improvised a plan to intercept "Brandy" in his building's lobby, have a liaison, and then to dash back upstairs before his girlfriend got suspicious. When he saw a good-looking woman in the lobby, Levy assumed it was Brandy, nudged her into an elevator, and, according to police, pawed and fondled her while waving a $50 bill, saying, "You know you want it. You know you'll do anything for it." The woman was not Brandy but rather an assistant district attorney from Brooklyn.

GOVERNMENT IN ACTION

— In July, an official in the office that supervises road construction crews in Minneapolis issued a directive, in response to complaints, that workers stop "eyeing," "staring at," or "ogling" women while on duty. In a subsequent clarification, the official said "sneak[ing] a look" would be OK, and said men, as well, should not be ogled.

— Elifonso Lopez, 39, was recently granted a new trial after five years of protesting his innocence of his 1990 rape conviction. An investigation into law enforcement records by The Brownsville (Texas) Herald revealed that Lopez had an ironclad alibi that was ignored at his trial: He was in prison serving a sentence for drunken driving when the rape occurred.

— In July, the U.S. Department of Transportation proposed to liberalize its procedure for drug testing employees who have "shy bladders." Currently, such employees are given 24 ounces of fluid within 2 hours to encourage urination. The department proposes 40 ounces over 4 hours, and on July 25 issued a 4,800-word Federal Register notice explaining its proposal.

Okay conspiracy buffs, get a load of this.

A former state supreme court justice claims to be the victim of a set-up, a pot plot, following his arrest on marijuana possession charges.

It's subterfuge, all right. There are just too many coincidences to think otherwise.

Consider these points:

- The trial date itself is enough to support suspicions of surreptitious behavior.

The trial is set for November 22, which just happens to be the anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

- Okay, who became president after JFK was killed?

That's right, Lyndon Johnson.

Guess who the judge is in this case. Susan Johnson, from Johnson County.

- The accused in this case is from Harold.

Guess what. Harold has six letters, the exact same number of letters that are in, yep, you guessed it, Dallas.

- Now, the subject of investigation claims the marijuana found in his home was planted. Marijuana is also known by the underworld code word "grass." Since marijuana has to be "planted" to grow, and since we live in hill country, it is more than likely that this pot was "planted" on a "grassy" knoll.

Too many curious connections to write off your suspicions, right?

Well, don't forget, there are two sides to every conspiracy and law enforcement authorities may have a case of their own when it comes to putting two and two together.

Maybe it's just a coincidence, but don't they also refer to the supreme court as the "high court"?

You know what they say, "Where there's smoke, there's fire..."

SICKER THAN A DOG

Wives deserve a lot of credit for the things they do for their husbands. Aside from washing clothes, cooking meals, and looking after the household, women sometimes will go to extraordinary lengths in order to see that their men are taken care of properly. This is sometimes done at the expense of their own health.

I made this fantastic discovery this past week when a friend from high school related a personal experience to me about helping her husband through a medical crisis.

It seems that my friend's husband had been feeling poorly and he asked her if she would mind to present his symptoms to a physician as if they were her own because he hated to go to doctors. Although reluctant, my friend agreed to the arrangement and made an appointment for the following day.

"It was horrible," said my friend. "First of all, the doctor told me I had a temperature and wanted me to have some blood work done."

"Were you sick?" I asked.

"Well, neither one of us had been feeling up to par, but I certainly didn't think I was as bad off as the doctor was telling me I was. My husband just wanted me to explain the symptoms so I could get him some medicine."

"Then what?"

"The doctor ran an EKG then took some X-rays and prescribed three different drugs. By the time I got home I felt horrible."

"Was your husband worried?"

"Are you kidding! While I lay writhing in agony on the couch, he was fuming because all the prescriptions contained penicillin, and he's allergic to it."

"The nerve of that man!" I exclaimed.

"And that's not even the worst of it," she lamented. "I had to have a pap smear because the doctor thought my symptoms sounded like those related to ovarian cysts."

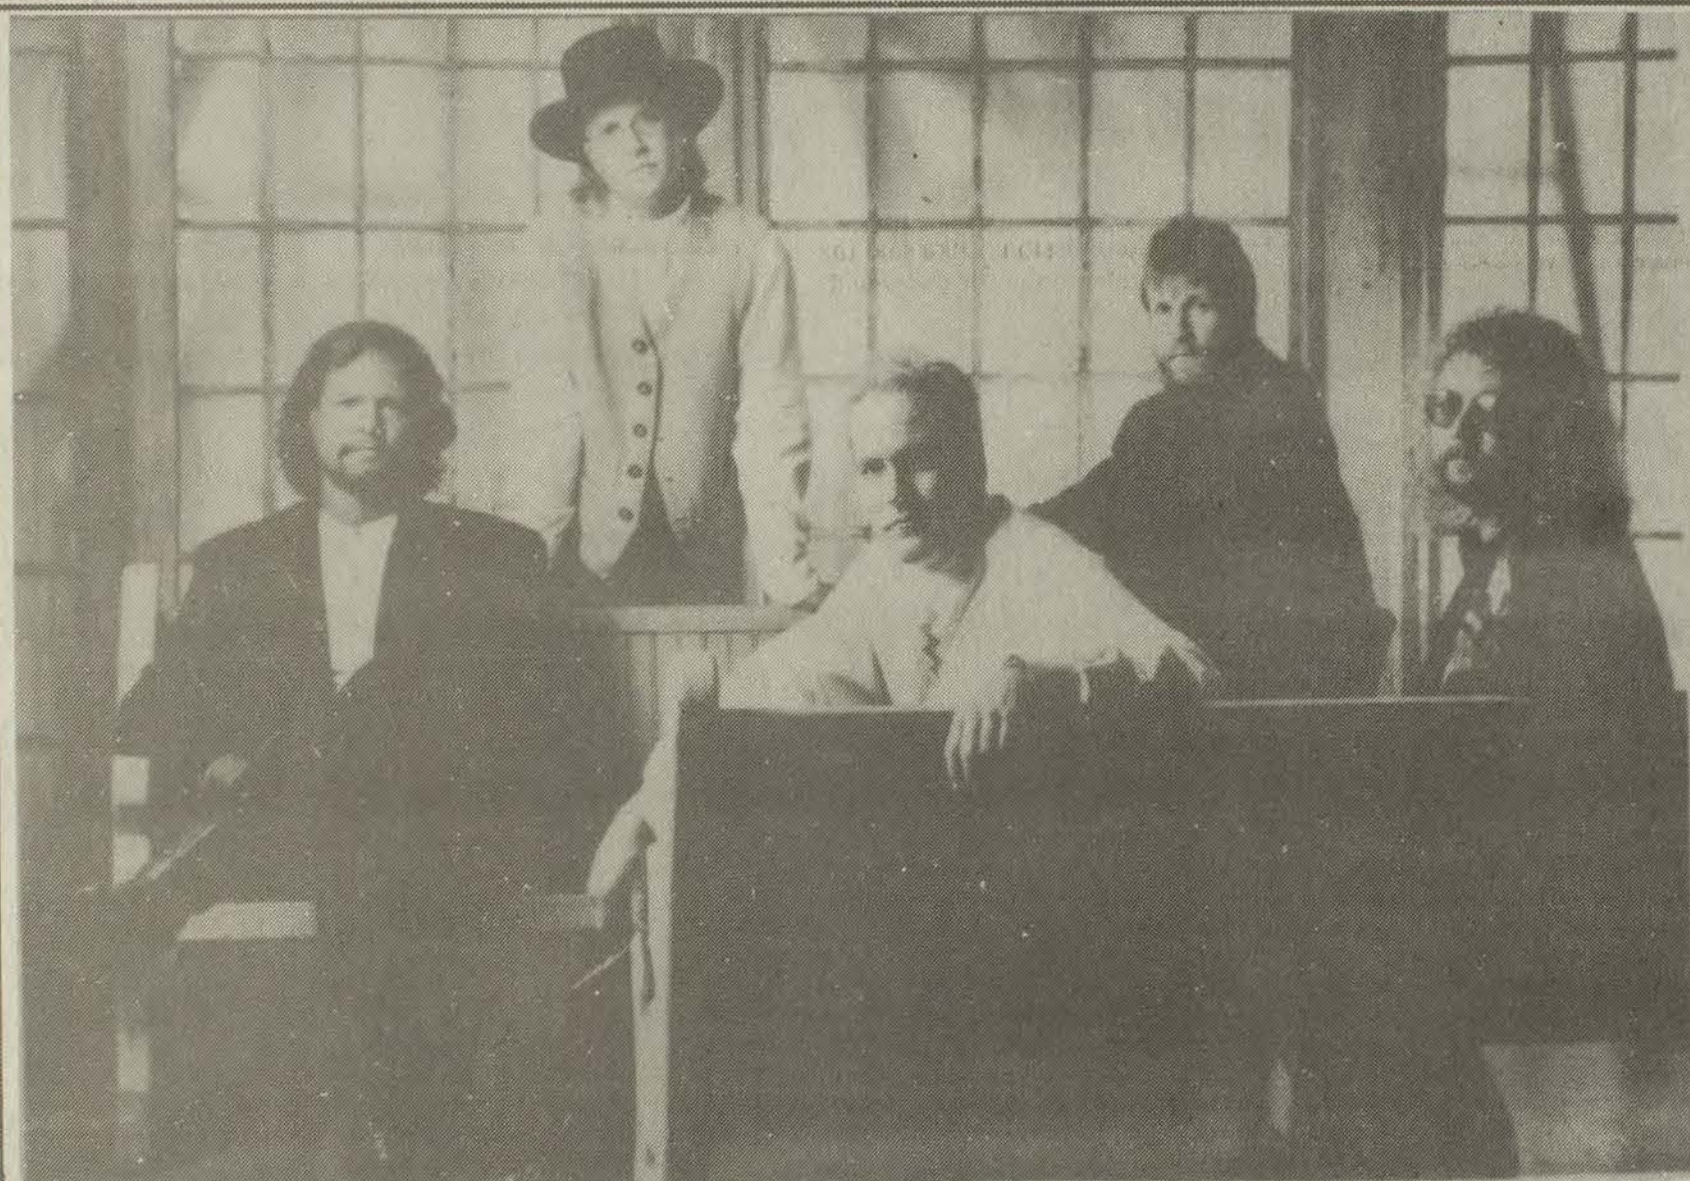

"Your husband must really have been experiencing some severe abdominal pain for the doctor to think that," I laughed.

"If you think that's funny, you should have seen his face when I told him the doctor suggested I undergo a thorough pelvic examination so it could be ruled out."

Sawyer Brown makes appearance in Autumn Jam III

Sawyer Brown

Long known for hard work and durability, Sawyer Brown shows no signs of slowing down. Mark Miller, Gregg Hubbard, Duncan Cameron, Jim Scholten and Joe Smyth are on the road more than 200 days a year with a $3-million stage show that holds its own with any touring act on the road for both staging brilliance and pure excitement.

Sawyer Brown will bring that brilliance to Pikeville's Bob Amos Park during Autumn Jam III on September 23. The group will join a talent line-up that includes Sammy Kershaw and Alison Krauss.

Sawyer Brown, the first and still the only band to win the Country Music Association's prestigious Horizon Award, ranks consistently among Country's top ten touring acts.

With hits such as "The Dirt Road," "Thank God for You," and "Some Girls Do," the group is certain to present an unforgettable performance.

In an era when the sheer mass of new talent has led to a shake-out of the lion's share of older acts, Sawyer Brown is running hotter than ever.

Greatest Hits 1990-1995, the second greatest hits album released by Sawyer Brown, reprises this decade's hits, containing five No. 1 songs, three more top fives, and two new singles: "This Time" and "I Don't Believe in Goodbye."

The album is testament to the fact that during the '90s, Sawyer Brown has put together a long string of intelligent, sincere country songs that have been incredibly popular as well. They have helped make this a period in which the band has been named TNN/Music City News Vocal Band of the Year for two consecutive years, has received CMT's Top Video Group honors, and has earned a Grammy nomination for the emotional ballad "All These Years," not to mention the good and platinum records and packed concert halls.

"It really does seem like there's a new level of maturity represented in these songs," says singer Mark Miller, "but then I guess you'd have to expect that from a band that started out so young." Miller was, in fact, just 23 when he wrote "Step That Step," the group's first No. 1.

Sawyer Brown has indeed augmented its patented high-energy style with themes and lyrics that have earned them both new fans and critical acknowledgment for turning out what one writer called "genuinely grown-up social consciousness."

The energy level is still there, and Miller and the group remain at the top of their form.

Sawyer Brown was from the beginning, of course, a band steeped in excitement, doing good-time country music exemplified by early smashes such as "Betty's Bein' Bad." Their breakthrough came just a few years after Miller and Hubbard teamed up at the University of Central Florida. They moved to Nashville in 1981 and put together a band with bassist Jim Scholten, drummer Joe Smyth and, ultimately, guitarist Duncan Cameron. They quickly became one of the country's hottest concert draws, something they've never lost. They still rank consistently among country's top ten concert grossers, and fans continue to follow them from show to show, holding up signs logging their current count.

Hit after hit followed their early success, with the good-time music gradually giving way, as the band matured, to a more reflective style that combined a solid message with the beat.

"There came a time when we re-evaluated our priorities and reapplied ourselves to the music," Miller says. "We focused ourselves, and I don't think we've looked back since."

Tickets are on sale now for the Autumn Jam concert at all TicketMaster centers or by calling 1-800-680-5928. The concert is sponsored by Happy Mart (a division of Coleman Oil). Proceeds will be divided among Pikeville College, Pikeville Methodist Hospital Cancer Care Center and Pikeville City Park Revitalization Fund.

Associated Press inquiry, Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles, who makes just over $100,000 a year, has a lower salary than 796 other state employees, including his own chief of staff.

In March, 12 hours before a massive, extensively planned drug raid was to take place in Washington, D.C., the D.C. Department of Public and Assisted Housing issued a press release praising its role in the raid. Officials thus had to call off the operation, rendering practically useless eight months' planning, coordination among four law enforcement agencies, and a large number of arrest and search warrants obtained by thousands of hours of investigation, surveillance and undercover drug buys.

In April, the National Endowment for the Humanities announced a $559,500 grant to the American Association of Community Colleges to answer the question, "What is an American?"

In March, the U.S. Supreme Court let stand a 1988 decision that Paul E. Spragens, a quadriplegic man who earns money typing with his toes, be kicked off the Social Security rolls and ordered to return almost $20,000 he had received over a three-year period. During that time, Spragens averaged $350 a month working as a free-lance book indexer; as soon as his earnings hit $300 a month, according to law, he was no longer eligible for benefits.

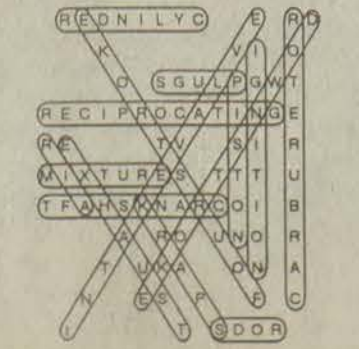

In May, the Washington Times reported that a federal judge had transferred parole supervision of an assistant to D.C. Mayor Marion Barry from the D.C. parole board to a federal board. That was because the assistant, Rhozier "Roach" Brown, a convicted murderer, drug dealer and thief, had inexplicably been released early by the D.C. board from his prison sentence and, due to a "clerical error," freed of his obligation to repay $45,000 to an orphanage he was convicted of swindling.

According to records obtained by the New York Post in May, the New York City Transit Authority's worst bus driver, Leroy Goodwin, 56, is still driving despite 103 at fault collisions over his 22-year career and even received a safe-driving award in 1986 sandwiched between collisions number 68 and 69.

FAMILY VALUES

In August in San Bernardino, Calif., Lisa Nester, 24, and her husband, 23, pleaded guilty to abandoning their son, Wolfgang, 3, on June 2 at a shopping center in California while they took off, for a Grateful Dead concert in San Francisco and then went on to Maryland, where they were spotted 24 days later. Because of Lisa's previous, uninspired parenting, her mom and dad have custody of her four children from other relationships.

Some of us got off to a bad start, but week two could bring some changes. The consensus this week is that Kentucky will definitely fall to the Florida Gators, while Kansas City wins another game, but this one over the New York Giants. Coming home winners will be the Raiders, Tennessee, Tulane, San Diego and Mississippi State. The prognosticators couldn't decide on Miami and New England. On the local scene, the consensus shows that there will be no local winners.
