Rescue squad retires Unit 601

Organization's founder, Tom Graham Burchett, dies at 89

by Chris McDavid Staff Writer

But love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the Highest. For every tree is known by his own fruit.

A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good. Luke 6:35, 44, 45.

Members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad selected that verse to illustrate the life of the squad's founder, Tom Graham Burchett, 89, of Allen, whose life has touched many Floyd County residents over the last 38 years. Burchett died Sunday night at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Burchett's funeral services will be conducted today (Wednesday) at 2 p.m. at the Hall Funeral Home Chapel in Martin. Burial will be in the Harris Cemetery, Allen.

Burchett founded the rescue squad after an informal meeting was held on the riverbank following the tragic school bus disaster in 1958 that claimed the lives of 26 children and the driver.

Burchett served as the rescue squad's first captain,

At Allen Central, three students were overcome by the heat. When Clinton began his speech, O'Quinn said he was in two emergency situations with his students. He had to rush one student to the emergency room of an Ashland hospital where she was given intravenous fluids.

South Floyd also reported problems with the heat, but they weren't quite as serious. Two students were affected by the heat. They were taken to a shaded area and soon recovered, Dennis Bartley, band director, said.

"It was a very hot day," O'Quinn said.

Betsy Layne's students didn't fare much better and also experienced problems with the heat. Bell said he prepared his Prestonsburg students for the heat by getting them to consume a lot of water.

"They were just physically tired," he said.

"I make my living using words, but at this time I can't find any," Norm Marcum, chairman of the event, said after the group gathered around the gazebo tried to make sense of the number of people affected by cancer.

Candles stretched all the way around the nearly mile-long track, each representing a life that had been touched by the disease. More than 425 people were honored for their fights against cancer. Some won. Others lost. But the luminary ceremony recognized their contributions in the battle against the disease and was just one part of a 12hour fundraising event for the American Cancer Society.

More than 250 walkers gathered at the PCC track for the first annual Relay for Life, a non-competitive 12-hour walk-a-thon to raise money for the cancer society.

Carla Coburn, executive director of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce and co-sponsor for the event, declared it a success.

"We are ecstatic," she said. Monday's count of the money collected reached more than $20,000, nearly $6,000 more than the goal set for the event. That amount is expected to increase, with a final total coming by the end of the week or early next week.

"I had hoped we'd reach our goal," Marcum said Monday. "I was just floored that we made it all the way around the track with those luminaries.'

Nurses fight blaze until firemen arrive

Two Big Sandy Hospice workers went beyond the call of duty last Tuesday night when they fought a house fire in Grethel until the Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department arrived on the scene. The house was owned by Greg Frazier.

"We (Hospice) are people oriented," Mona Flanary Mullins, a registered nurse for Big Sandy Hospice, said Monday. "We just do things like that because we hate to see people in hard situations."

Mullins said she and Rita Phillips, a Hospice certified nursing assistant, were going to visit a patient who was not feeling well. "We saw flames on the back side of the house," Mullins said, "and we noticed lights were turned on in the upstairs, so we went back to make sure no one was in the house.'

Luckily, no one was at home,

While Phillips went to a neighbor's house to call the fire department, Mullins began disconnecting water hoses and reconnecting them to fight the fire.

"We tried to soak down the house," Mullins said. "We didn't have much to work with, not much water pressure, but we wanted to help these people have something

Mullins said she and Phillips moved away from the house when they heard "popping and cracking - like an electrical fire."

The Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department arrived shortly thereafter, Mullins said.

Assistant fire chief Darrin Newsome confirmed that the fire started in an electrical box at the residence.

"Our main concern was to see that no one was going to get hurt," Mullins added.

Frazier's residence sustained considerable damage.

But, when Burchett stepped down as captain, his service to the community continued. He served as chaplain for the rescue squad for three years and as first lieutenant for about four years.

And his service did not end there, either. "For the past ten years, Burchett participated in major fund raising activities," second lieutenant Derrick Calhoun said Monday.

"Ever since I was a boy, it was in my heart to help someone who needed help," Burchett said in a May 1993 interview with The

During the interview, Burchett told a story about the early years of the rescue squad when its assistance was requested in the search for a lost child near Olive Hill. Rescue organizations from Tennessee, Ohio, and West Virginia were also called to aid in the search.

Rescue workers had continually looked for her for three days with no success. Then, they repeatedly dragged a lake in the area. Hope was growing slim of finding the child alive, but workers decided to drag the lake once again.

But, Burchett said: "No, we're going back to the hill today.'

National Disregarding Guardsmen's responses that the hill had already been searched, Burchett insisted, and the crews went back into the hills looking for the lost

Nearly two hours later, a young boy ran down the hill, yelling: "We've found her," Burchett recalled during the interview.

The little girl's clothes had been torn off during her eight days in the woods. She had survived by eating blackberries. A National Guardsman wrapped the child in his coat, and handed her to Burchett.

Burchett lifted the coat from around her face. "Her big eyes were looking back at me. She had long, curly hair," Burchett recalled. It affected him deeply and as he told the story in 1993, he was overcome with emotion and had to pause before continuing.

Writer appreciates safe, clean water

Editor:

Water, water, water.

Why don't we have water and why can't we get any water?

I live on Stone Coal Road just above Garrett, in a hollow called Hoover Hollow. In this hollow our Floyd County government, known as our fiscal court, had contracted Francis Water Company to supply water to residents of this section of Floyd County.

They did a good job of supplying water in this hollow, but only for certain residents. They stopped the water supply less than 100 yards from my home.

Not having any clean water has not only affected me, it has also affected four other households who are related to me.

We're having to wash our clothes and bathe in iron and sulfur water and we have to buy our drinking water from stores or borrow water from area neighbors.

Our county government has invested millions of dollars in a race track, a fancy new courthouse, and a new jail, but that race track or new jail or that fancy new courthouse can't supply water to my family or any other families that are in need of safe, clean water.

What happened to the promise our magistrate of District No. 2 made when he ran for office? In his election ads, to my knowledge, he said there would be service for one and for all. If our magistrate had taken a pay cut as he promised when he got elected, maybe some money that was cut from his salary would have paid for the extra 100 yards of water lines to supply water for my family and we would have water like our neighbors just below us.

Mr. Editor, all our magistrates have full-time jobs and still make over $30,000 a year off taxes collected from taxpayers of Floyd County. The magistrates are working less than 80 hours a year. Does this sound like they are working for us? We have to be crazy to keep letting this go on. Why am I having to pay county taxes when I can't benefit from our county legally?

Why can't our magistrates be in an office five days a week, eight hours a day, like our county judgeexecutive is doing? He listens to the people's needs and concerns. Why can't they do their job like our county judge does and really earn their salary? After all, our fiscal court is building a multi-million dollar courthouse. I would be willing to bet that there isn't a plan of design in this new courthouse for a magistrate's

I want to invite the next magistrate to my home who says he has worked hard for the people of Floyd County and may have gotten real dirt on them. He is welcome to use my bathroom or bath or shower. The water you use will be free, but as usual just don't pay any attention to the color or smell.

People, those of you who are fortunate to have good clean water that is safe and germ-free, stop and think, and appreciate how lucky you are, and don't take it for granted, because you don't know what it is like not to have water until the water

I support United We're Strong to change our county government. It's my only hope of ever getting water. I ask all the people, rich or poor, who are fortunate enough to have good clean, safe water, to think of the people without safe water the next time you turn faucets on, and vote November 5, for the commissioner form of government.

You are the people who can restore hope for the people who are having to do without because of some way they voted.

Please use and exercise the compassion that is within you to help make a better Floyd County.

Local classmates wanted for 1946 P.H.S. reunion

Editor:

We have a reunion coming up on September 6 and September 7, and I'm hoping not to walk away from it wondering why so many of our local classmates did not show up, as has been in the past.

This will be our fourth time to get together and the fourth one we have helped get up and attended. We know of many people who live great distances, i.e., California, to get here for this occasion. It really bothers all of us when our classmates who live close to home don't bother to come.

We have many classmates who come from all over the United States asking about these classmates and say "well, we certainly would love to see you."

We've had fantastic times at all our reunions and we sincerely hope more of the local classmates will reconsider this year and show up. Hey, we've all changed. We've got less hair, different hair color, added a few pounds here and there, walk with canes—so what? It's been 50 years. We're not 18 anymore.

Let's get together and have a great time at the Jenny Wiley Lodge on September 7.

Mr. Johnson, you said that, "the

I have always been there to get them moving during the snows and the floods so they could get to work, go to the doctor, the store, or to the pharmacy. I've always helped to work on the equipment to keep it running so that the job could get done. Not everybody is like Grover Groundhog-they come out in the spring and check the weather out and go back in. There are people in this county that have to get out and go to work every daytheir jobs and their families depend on it! Here you are, Mr. Johnsonyou don't want the magistrates working at all. Those people missed the boat with KERA, the Kentucky Education Reform Act, which addressed elementary and secondary education, and they won't fit easily into the plans to revamp our colleges.

We can't just forget about them, though, because they're most likely the largest group to be affected by welfare reform.

Mayor Fannin addresses golf course rumors

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

The city of Prestonsburg attempted some rumor control in connection with a proposed golf course and athletic complex at Monday's city council meeting.

"We are not looking at building a prison on the top of the mountain," Mayor Jerry Fannin said. "As far as I know, the Bureau of Prisons is looking at a site in Martin County."

Daly advised Conn that they told her she was not going home and she was not allowed to use the phone. The three permitted Daly to leave, but only after she gave them the title to the car, the report says.

On Saturday, Conn provided Sergeant Sue Blackburn, patrolman Charles Branham, and police chief Darrel Conley with the results of his investigation into the car theft and a description of the three sub-

The following morning, Blackburn, Branham, and Conley responded to a complaint at the Super 8 Motel. When the officers arrived at the motel, Blackburn noticed the stolen vehicle in the parking lot.

When the motel's management advised officers they wished to have three people removed from the premises, the suspects were leaving the scene and were taken into custody without incident, the

During arraignments Monday in Floyd District Court, not-guilty pleas were entered by Judge James R. Allen to the felony charges for all three suspects.

Johnson was fined $100 for alcohol intoxication, and given five days in the county jail for "talking back to the court." He was placed under a $5,000 partially secured bond for the possession charge, and a $20,000 or ten percent bond for the other charges.

Price was placed under a $5,000 or ten percent bond for possession of marijuana, and a $10,000 or ten percent bond for the theft charge.

Price waived her right to seek counsel from an attorney and signed extradition to the state of Ohio, where she is wanted for parole violation.

Bowmer also received a $100 fine for alcohol intoxication, and a $5,000 or ten percent bond for possession. He was also placed under a $15,000 partially secured bond for the theft charge.

Testimony will be heard in all three cases at 2:30 p.m. on September 4, during a preliminary hearing in Floyd District Court.

Collins said the rumors were started "to stop it; to knock" the project.

"This golf course can make money, it can make plenty of money," he said. "I wish everybody would get on the same track and learn the facts before they shoot off their mouth."

Fannin said plans are still in the works to put the golf course and the athletic complex on top of the mountain. Plans call for the complex to include a daycare center, adult daycare center, ball fields and walking tracks.

"This should create some jobs," Fannin said. "This is valuable

The mayor said he went to Frankfort several weeks ago and a $400,000 grant to design the facility is still available. "Hopefully, we'll hear something in the next few days," Fannin said.

Council member Hansel Cooley, who is also in real estate, said the project is important to bring people but that facility will be in Martin to Prestonsburg.

"When they look at buying a home here, the first thing they ask about is schools and the second is recreation," he said. "People are afraid of change, but change is going to take place. People need to be more broad-minded and support that change. It will make their property more valuable."

Fannin said, despite the rumors, that he supports the prison and would support it if it was going in 'the middle of town."

"I wouldn't have a problem with it," Fannin added. "I wouldn't care for one of my own kids to be around it."

The mayor said he and other officials toured a similar facility in Pennsylvania a few weeks ago and all were impressed by the prison.

Larry Gene Castle is expected to serve 18 months of the five-year sentence with the remainder of the sentence to be probated. He has been lodged in the county jail since he pleaded guilty July 18 to charges of second-degree assault and reckless homicide.

The plea was entered the day Castle was to stand trial on the charges.

As part of the agreement, Circuit Judge John David Caudill sentenced Castle to five years on both charges with the time to run concurrently. He was given credit for 45 days he has spent in the Floyd County Jail.

The accident, in which Castle was also injured, occurred on Route 23 near the mouth of Town Branch. Wilburn Hamilton, 60, of Loraine, Ohio was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. Commonwealth Assistant Attorney John Mann said, however, the sentence agreed upon was a "reasonable" one.

Busy week for Mud Creek volunteers

by Chris McDavid Staff Writer

The Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department was unusually busy last week responding to three house fires, one accident with injuries, and one car fire.

"We usually have about one call a month," assistant fire chief Darrin Newsome said Monday. "I guess it was just a coincidence that we had five last week."

To start off the week, the fire department responded to a house fire at 2:30 a.m. Sunday on Tackett Branch in Grethel. Newsome said the house was totally destroyed.

About 48 hours later, the fire department received another housefire dispatch. The fire at Greg Frazier's residence in Grethel started in an electrical box, Newsome said. The fire department used two pumpers to control the fire, Newsome said.

When the rains came Wednesday, a curve on Long Fork was the site of an accident that injured three people, according to

"It had just started raining," Newsome said, "and then we got the call about the accident."

The Left Beaver Rescue Squad assisted the Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department with the accident.

On Thursday, the fire department responded to a car fire in Teaberry. One pumper was used by the fire department to extinguish the fire, Newsome said.

To end the week, the fire department and Left Beaver Rescue Squad responded to a house fire at Emery

Newsome's residence in Beaver. "Newsome's house was a total loss," the assistant fire chief said. Newsome said there are 16 members on the Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department, and at least 12 members assisted in each of the runs last week.

"We have had a great response and turnout for the past six months," Newsome said. "We have also had great assistance from the Left Beaver Rescue Squad. I would like to compliment them for their

Carter Funeral Home plants 250th tree to reforest public lands

Home of Carter Funeral Prestonsburg, since its affiliation with the Lofty Oaks Association, has been responsible for the planting of 250 trees on public lands in Kentucky, as living memorials to honor the deceased.

This program is part of a large endeavor, in cooperation with the other conservation efforts in Kentucky, to restore the landscape and environment with the eternal beauty of living trees. The memorial trees are planted in the Spring and Fall.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by the Carter Funeral Home. Once the Boy Scouts have planted the tree, the designated relatives and friends will be sent an official certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history forever.

This living memorial is an example of the new innovative approach being taken by the funeral directors profession as a whole, and by James J. Carter II of the Carter Funeral Home in particular, to increasingly contribute to their community and the environment.

Magistrate in the May primaryone from the Democratic party and one from the Republican party. Then in the fall, people from Prestonsburg and the voters of District 1 pick one of these two to be their magistrate. It will no longer be that way under the commissioner form of government! The people of Prestonsburg and the voters of District 1 will select two people in the May primary to be the candidates for commissioner. Then in the fall, the people of Right Beaver, Left Beaver, and Betsy Layne will all have a say-so and a vote on who your commissioner is going to be. This would be the same for the other two districts. Prestonsburg and District 1 would also have a say-so and a vote in who is going to be commissioner in Right Beaver, Left Beaver, or the Betsy Layne area. There will only be three commissioners. We would have 12,000 people if it goes commissioners-one whole district—that would have to be divided up into three commissioners' districts. I don't know which people in the county will have to change districts or what district you'll be in. That will be decided by Judge Ben Hale if the commission form of government is voted in November. The way to make sure that you don't have to go through this-you have to go to the polls and vote against the commissioners in November!

To answer Mr. Doug Branham, Johnson Commissioner-you said in the paper last week that the commission form of government is solid and good. I don't consider being broke and having to lay off all your road workers and looking at raising taxes like you've had to do in Johnson County as being too solid or too good. We sure don't want this for Floyd County. We've got around 50,000 people to take care ofthanks for the advice-but no thanks! You try to figure out how to get Johnson County out of the red and back in the black, and how to get everybody back to working at full staff and doing it without raising taxes, and I'll worry about taking care of Floyd County people! I personally think that if you've got kids and you're looking for a place to grow them up, there is no place better than Floyd County! Yes-Floyd County has problems just like every other county, but changing from magistrates to commissioners is not going to solve anything-except cause a lot of tie votes.

Facts that affect Floyd County line and 911 program

Allow me to relay some facts that affect the Floyd County 911

On March 3, 1995, the Kentucky Court of Appeals in Case No. 93-CA-2488-MR rendered a decision based on a false survey that had been made at the request of the county attorney and the Johnson County Fiscal Court: as stated in sworn deposition by the engineer, that made the survey. Question No. 8, by the county attorney: "At my request and the request of the Johnson County Fiscal Court, did you and your company propose a survey of the boundary between Johnson County and Floyd County in the East Point area of Johnson County?" Answer: "Yes, sir."

The survey that was made according to the engineer's sworn statement, was a straight line from approximately one thousand feet from the mouth of Little Paint Creek where it discharges into the river; to the county road marker on Lick Fork of Jenny's Creek. He also testified that the county road sign on New Route 23 was fairly accurate, yet he testified that he relied on where the present county road sign is on Lick Fork, then he testified that road signs on roads like Lick Fork are generally not set by engineering data.

This article is not about the engineer that made the survey as stated above, but about where he put the county line and the court relied upon that information. As he testified, a straight line from his point at East Point to the present road sign on Lick Fork then a straight line to the head of the Narrows Fork of Jenny Creek. This puts approximately 100 homes in Floyd County, that the Floyd County 911 system trict 1 pick their candidates for cannot possibly serve.

Whereas, I have the records of the secretary of state office which the engineer swore he did not have, also I have the acts of Legislature session of December 1842 which established Johnson County. I also have a copy of the legislature act of 1850 which describe with pinpoint accuracy where the county line marker is on Lick Fork. I also have the records of the county court clerk offices of Johnson County and Floyd County, plus engineering data. By these records, there are four county line markers beginning at the mouth of Little Paint Creek to Lick Fork which can be seen with the naked eye. One at East Point and one on Lick Fork, which has been there with a high degree of probability of being undisturbed for thousands of years.

That leaves only one question to be asked. Is the Floyd County 911 board and the fiscal court going to accept civil and criminal liability for these people? Or, are they going to accept the facts of law and records? As Judge Johnstone, concurring in results only, stated in the Appeals Court decision, "This dilemma could have been avoided if the trial court had carefully followed the mandate of the federal court." He also stated, "The dissent opinion appropriately notes the storm clouds on the horizon that the failure to fix the boundary lines of East Point precinct has spawned." East Point precinct line is the county line.

If the county attorney would like to review the records, including the maps that I have, he can call me or write me a letter. I am listed in the Paintsville phone directory.

Although it can be proven beyond all doubt that the court made its ruling based on false information, it is the law, and will remain the law until the facts are presented to the court and they reverse their Mandatory garbage collection; if that is the law, then Floyd County must provide garbage collection for these people, also.

Johnson reviles magistrate form of government

Mr. Spokesman and other magistrates. Does the magistrate form of government have secret meetings when they are getting ready to do something big? Like spend 20 million dollars on something, for instance: Where is the 911 money? What happened or what kind of deal was made on the Dwale bridge and the Fly Ash Coal Company at Ivel? Which coal company did you go to work for, Mr. Owens? Don't mislead the people for their vote because of gravel or Thunder Ridge. We believe that under the commissioner form of government, people in the hollows will not have to beg for gravel for four years and receive it only at election time. Every neighbor up the hollow will get the same treatment from this government. Not just one or two who sell their vote for something that rightfully belongs to them. All the people should get gravel, not just a few.

Thunder Ridge is a million dollar business venture that has been brought to the people by the magistrate form of government. In America we are allowed to do things like Thunder Ridge. But there are those among us who do not believe it's fair, honest nor the right thing to do with the people's tax money. We have enough problems without our government bringing booze, organized gambling, and the rift of the world in on our families. Instead our government should be concerned with good water, roads and many other things that affect the well-being of all of us.

We don't feel sorry for you, Mr. Owens, about working at the chicken house. As long as the magistrates and their families receive big money from the magistrate form of govern-/ ment and the companies you represent, you will say or do just anything to keep your big pay and bondage of voters.

Every time we hear you campaigning, you always vote against R&S project, fly ash, Thunder Ridge, medical waste or something poison that has been brought in on the people. The people have been lied to, played, snowed, and fooled to death by this magistrate form of government. Where were you, Mr. Owens, when the magistrate form of government voted for all of those poisonous things? Behind closed doors? I know Mr. Owens supposedly did not vote for all those issues, but they still happened. Property taxes have more than doubled in the past four years.

Wake up! Floyd Countians, these magistrates have created these problems. Do not let them lie and deceive you. It's your money. $9,000,000 courthouse, race tracks, pot ash and the highest utilities in the state. You haven't seen nothing yet. You have no idea what the magistrate form of government has in store for you. If you like your magistrate, vote him in as a commissioner, don't let him hold you in bondage for a tax benefit that rightfully belongs to you.

Under the commissioner form of government, we will automatically save 25 percent right off the top, plus family employees. The gravel power or power base of the magistrate will be destroyed. Therefore creating a government that will be more responsible to all the people.

Mr. Owens, I receive a disability check. I do not get paid disabled Social Security for hanging signs. The fact is, on August 23, 1996, the office of Hearings and Appeals in Huntington West Virginia sent me a notice of an unfavorable decision after reviewing my case for twentynine months. Mr. Owens, I don't have any knowledge whether you or any other politician in power had anything to do with this, but I will assure you that I still believe in the commission form of government, and it will increase a standard of living for all Floyd Countians as a

It is not honorable for the magistrates to threaten me over disabled Social Security when I don't even get paid Social Security. It's none of your business. I am a father, preacher, and a disabled Vietnam veteran who has gone through too much to put up with the likes of you. I am not afraid to speak the truth. If this is the magistrates' way of trying to scare someone because they receive a check, it won't work. There are too many of us now to be run off by scare tactics. This movement has grown into eight counties.

Mr. Owens, how can you get away with threatening the attorney general's office? Are they afraid? Why won't they respond to the needs of Floyd County? You have admitted openly in the Floyd County Times that you broke the law. Where are they?

Since the magistrates have taken our government into Thunder Ridge and organized gambling, will guys in dark suits and Italian accents be far behind? I, Elmer Lee Johnson, request that the magistrates be given a drug test for the safety of the people. If the Attorney General wants to give me and my family a drug test, we accept, and therefore challenge them to do so.

I refuse to waste any more of my valuable time on the spokesman for the magistrate form of government.

Elmer Lee Johnson Weeksbury

Sail the high tide for sweet revenge

In the old days of sailing ships, it was necessary to sail on the high tide. Otherwise, you were stranded, left behind to languish, while others went on to meet the future.

friends, Tuesday, November 5, 1996, will perhaps be the last high tide for Floyd County. Either we sail on that day or we may well be left in the back-waters forever while our ship rots and sinks beneath our feet. And for us, sailing on the high tide is getting out the vote and winning against the Floyd County political machine; which is the sandbar at the mouth of our harbor. But good folks, contrary to Tennyson, we hope there will be a great deal of moaning when we cross the bar. Perhaps some gnashing of teeth also!

But to do this, we need your help, and here I am talking about help from able-bodied voters; meaning of course citizens registered and willing to vote. If you are not registered to vote, please do so. And ask a friend, a relative, or neighbor to go with you and register also. There is an urgent reason to do so at this

We are told that the political machine is getting many of Floyd County's "dependent citizens" to register now so they can be voted in November. These are our people in the public housing units, or those who have a relative working for the county, or people who work for the organizations created by and controlled by the fiscal court. One courthouse worker stated that they were being registered as never before. Folks, I want to assure you that the "they" getting these good people to register ain't us. We have no means or basis to force anyone to support us; nor would we consider such a degrading thing if we did. But this does present us with a problem. The Floyd County political machine controls a block of 5-6000 votes county-wide. Now this has always been enough in the past, but now they are getting a bit shaky, and are running scared. There are very strong indications that we have surpassed this block vote in the commissioner-magistrate referendum. So they are trying to raise the ante on us; which forces us to ask for more help. If we are to overcome this voting block, plus this frantic new effort on their part, we must call on people who have stood above the dirty politics of the past. So I ask each of you who does not belong to a political faction (here I mean owned by) to recruit voters with all the zeal of a missionary in the land of the Hottentots. Identify people who are not registered to vote; people who are registered but usually don't vote, and convince them to vote. Given a ride to a citizen who might not otherwise have a way to the polls. Explain to them that the future of Floyd County is at stake on November 5. And assure them that we are not for or against any national or state candidate, nor do we represent any political party. We are interested only in issues to save our county from ruin.

To the good citizens who are being registered to vote under some threat, or to those who will be told to vote for or against some issue in November, I have one word for you. Mutiny! Yes, good old-fashioned mutiny. Promise them the sun and the moon, and then vote the way your heart and mind tells you to vote. This time out, they won't be able to watch you or check how you vote. We have been told that even the Russian KGB will be monitoring the election in Floyd County. So this may be a perfect time to get some sweet revenge. But smile to yourself when you do.

A Look At Sports High School football underway

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WISH....

To Prestonsburg defensive end Gavin Hale. Can you believe this? Gavin will turn 17, that's right, 17

Sports Editor Saturday night. Happy birthday,

Gavin. Also, my son Greg celebrated his 28th birthday this past Monday. How time flies! Happy birthday, Greg. Old dad loves you!

UNDERWAY...

The high school football season kicked off this past Saturday night with some surprises. While it was no surprise that Prestonsburg won over Leslie County, the final score, 33-6, was a big surprise.

I know the Eagles don't have a Tim Couch, but they have one on the way. Floyd Whicker is going to be a good one for Coach Beder. John Morgan picked up where he left off last year and caught 12 passes from Whicker. But the Eagles are lacking in the backfield where they are very young.

Another surprise Pikeville, ranked sixth in Class A football, was bested by Bardstown 28-6. Now that was a shocker. I expected Royce Mayo's Panthers to be undefeated during regular season. What happened? Could it have been the excitement of former Bardstown coach Garnis Martin being honored before the game? Did that get the Bardstown team fired up?

While the Pikeville's loss was a shock to me, the final score was even more surprising.

Another crowd stunner - Harrison County 13, Danville 12. The Admirals were considered to be the second best 2A team in the state. How long has it been since a Danville team started the season with a loss?

Stay around. There will be more shockers this sea-

The rest of football in the county will get underway this Friday night with Allen Central, South Floyd and Betsy Layne set to play. The Raiders will be playing in the Shelby Valley Bowl while Betsy Layne faces Magoffin County in the Founders Day Bowl. Allen Central will host Elkhorn City.

WHO TO WATCH...

Remember the names of Jeremy Caudill and Seth Crisp in the future of Blackcat football. Both are freshmen this year and both will be household names by the time they are through at Prestonsburg.

HAT QUIZ.... First one to come by (no

Allen Central's Tackett to miss first half of season

BY ED TAYLOR Sports Editor

The preseason hasn't been too kind to Allen Central head football coach Glenn Reeves. The Rebels have played two exhibition games and have come away with a serious loss in personnel in both games.

This past Friday night in the Floyd County Coaches Gridorama at Betsy Layne, feature back Beau Tackett went out in the first half with a broken hand. A week earlier at South Floyd, starting quarterback Shane Blackburn went down with an injured knee. The dual injuries have Coach Reeves worried.

"We're going to pull out all stops and show everything we have in order to win this Friday night against Elkhorn City," he said. "Things have got to get better for

Earlier in the season, defensive specialist Mark Varney had to undergo knee surgery and is not expected back for another three weeks.

Tackett's loss in the backfield and the uncertain status of Blackburn forced Coach Reeves to move Gordon Reeves to the quarterback slot, leaving a void in the backfield.

The Allen Central coach said Blackburn was due to return to practice and, if he does, then "Gordon would be moved back into the backfield, giving me another running back.'

state playoffs last year, for the first time in their school's history, is this year with a veteran team returning. But Coach Reeves concedes that may be difficult without

"The doctor told me that I may be able to return in two weeks," said Tackett about his injured hand. "But it may be as much as four to five weeks. He put the hand in a hard cast and I am hoping that it will only be two weeks.

The quick scat back was the leading rusher for Allen Central last year and was expected to be the feature ball carrier again this season. But this year, unlike last season, the talented Gordon Reeves, along with brother Josh Reeves, were expected to take up some of the load of carrying the football. Both are strong runners and would give the Rebels a balanced attack coupled with their passing game.

With Blackburn doubtful or limited in playing, the Rebels will look for Reeves to quarterback the club this Friday night against Elkhorn City. Blackburn did practice with the team last Monday, but says his knee is still tender.

'It bothers me some when I fade back," said Blackburn, "but this is football and you are supposed to play with pain. I think I will be able to play. How much, I don't know."

Varney, who appears to meto be moving much better on his knee without the aid of a crutch, says that he is expecting to be back by the Prestonsburg game, September 20, although doctors say differently.

"I'm coming back for the Prestonsburg game," said Varney. T've looked forward to that game Allen Central, who made the all year and I'm expecting to play NUMBERS LOW, BUT ...

Coach Randall Hager's Betsy Layne Bobcats are down to about 23 players as of Monday when practice assembled. But the new Bobcat mentor is upbeat about the program and, if the group of grade schoolers that Tim Rice has assembled this season stick it out, Coach Hager will have a boatload of players heading his way.

Rice had 56 players who reported for practice this past Monday. "I never dreamed that I would have had that many players," he said. "We are having to scratch to find enough equipment for them. It's

Blackcats' defense shines in 33-6 caging of Eagles

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Coach John Derossett's debut as head football coach at Prestonsburg opened on a very successful note as his Blackcats pounded Leslie County 33-6 at Clay County in the Appalachian Bowl this past Saturday night.

Prestonsburg looked impressive in their season opener and it was a game of contrasts. While Leslie County tried to get it done by running the routes and passing the ball, Prestonsburg used eight runners in totaling 224 yards on the ground.

Prestonsburg's defense, which has been compared by several persons to the '93 state team, was not far from the comparison with their display of hard-hitting led by Kevin Porter, Kris Lawson, Rusty Young, Brian Thompson, Robbie Cain, Gavin Hale, Jason Pack, Brooks Stumbo and Ricky Johnson. The Blackcats' defense held the Eagles to just 37 yards on the ground. The Eagles' freshman quarterback Floyd Whicker, who could make Eagle fans forget Tim Couch, sparkled with 12 completions for 99 yards. The Eagles totaled only 136 yards on offense (unofficial).

The Prestonsburg speciality team, who Coach Derossett said would play a key role in the game, made things miserable for the Eagles. Derossett said before the game that a win over Leslie County without the services of feature back Jon Morris would be a plus for the

After an illegal procedure that was called put the ball back on the seven, Jones scampered into the end zone from the 7-yard line to put Prestonsburg in front 13-0 with 1:38 left in the quarter.

On a second down and five play, Brian Jones stood freshman Tim Sizemore up at the line of scrimmage as the Eagles failed to pick up a first down against the front line of Prestonsburg. The Eagles were forced to punt again at the onset of the second quarter.

But Prestonsburg returned the football when Castle, after picking up 4 yards, fumbled the ball over to the Eagles, giving them excellent field position at the Blackcat 21vard line.

Five plays later, Jeff Johnson crossed the goal line for the Eagles' lone touchdown of the game and pay dirt when Jarred Newsome made it a 13-6 game with 9:07 left scored on a 2-yard run and Jason

Nathan Leslie cam Leslie County fumble that set up the Blackcats' third touchdown. Leslie recovered the loose ball at the Eagles' 9-yard line. Two plays later, Castle, on a keeper, plunged into the end zone and Prestonsburg led 19-6.

Behind the defense of Robbie Cain and Rusty Young, Presonsburg gave the Eagles just three tries at moving the football, where they took control on the Eagles' 28-yard line following a horrible punt attempt. On pass play action, Castle threw a strike to Ortega for a 28vard touchdown completion and the Blackcats were rolling at 25-6 at the

On Prestonsburg's final possession of the game, Adam Hall replaced Castle at quarterback and had a 9-yard run. Coach Derossett played a lot of players in the closing minutes of the game. Mark Branham came up with a good defensive play when he stripped John Morgan of a pass on the last play of the game.

Morgan had 10 receptions for the Eagles' for 73 yards. Johnson was the Eagles' leading rusher with 18 yards on seven carries.

Leslie County's penalties came mostly on off-side calls, and they were flagged six times for 30 yards. The Eagles fumbled the football

NASCAR Connection

A FEW WORDS FROM THE BRISTOL PITS

I made the annual trek down to Bristol for the Goody's Headache Powders 500 this past weekend, and the pits were fluttering with quite a bit of talk. No doubt, the most popular, or should I say unpopular words, being scattered among NASCAR folk dealt with the recent presidential crackdown on the tobacco industry.

Bill Clinton, in conjunction with the Food and Drug Administration is planning to regulate the tobacco industry by putting severe restrictions on the selling and advertising of tobacco-related products.

The anti-tobacco movement holds the potential to severely affect the world of NASCAR Winston Cup racing. After all, it isn't called Winston Cup for nothing. Each year since 1971, R.J. Reynolds, through its Winston brand, has funneled millions of dollars toward the sponsorship of the enormously popular

"He's got more serious things to worry about than tobacco," said Dale Jarrett.

Geoff Bodine went as far to say, "Clinton's move has cost him my vote in December."

Three-time Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip added, "Clinton needs to concern himself with more serious things that have an impact on our country.

My friends, before this is all said and done, this is going to be one super-hot issue.

Waterfowl hunters to register for blind sites

Waterfowl hunting is just around the corner and this season should be another record-setting year in terms of waterfowl numbers.

This notice is a reminder that once again, Paintsville Lake waterfowl hunters will have an opportunity to register for permanent blind sites for the 1996-97 season. To register a blind, or for more information, please call 606-886-9608. Applications will not be accepted after the deadline of September 30.

teams will be allowed to add a quarter-inch on their spoilers and the front air dam clearance would be dropped a quarter-inch. Does the seven races have something to do with this?

The ongoing construction at Bristol proved to produce very few problems. Things went very smooth and from the looks of things, this already great facility is only going to get better.

A sell-out crowd of more than 86,000 contributed to the largest fan attendance in the facility's history. In a couple of years, look for the speedway to seat more than Another pleasantry of the weekend was the flow of traffic after the race. Those of you who regularly attend BMS races, know all too well that traffic after a Bristol race is worse than a visit to the dentist. But not this time. The opening of the new Bristol Beltway certainly helped the situation.

Is Rusty Wallace a terror on short tracks or what? Bristol, Martinsville, Richmond, it really doesn't matter because he's a definite threat. Following the race, I asked Wallace just what it is that makes him such a short track success. "If I knew what made me so good on the short tracks, I'd be winning every race. The car always performs super-strong no matter what type of track, but when we come to these short tracks, we always seem to do good. It's not a to see how important the quest for magic set-up, or it's not a special car," said Wallace.

One thing is for sure, if Wallace fact that Ford has won six of the last ever finds the key to tracks better than a mile in length, look out!

> This weekend all eyes will be focused upon Dale Jarrett as he makes a bid for the Winston Select Million bonus. Recently, the Yatesowned team has tested at Darlington twice. Consider the fact that NASCAR teams only get seven tests per season, and they have used two at Darlington. It becomes easy

the million dollar bonus has become for Dale Jarrett and Robert

If Jarrett wins on Sunday, it will cap off a spectacular season for the second-generation driver who has wins in the Daytona 500 and the Brickyard 400 to his credit. If Jarrett wins this Sunday, it may very well provide him with the needed momentum to win his first Winston Cup championship. ESPN will cover the race with action getting underway at 1 p.m.

Rusty Wallace overpowered field in Goody's 500

Rusty Wallace, with his family at his side in victory lane Saturday night, had just overpowered the rest of the 39-car field in the Goody's 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway.

"We brought the entire family here this weekend," said Wallace. "We had four motor homes parked out behind the track. They were filled with all the kids, and momma, grandma, just about everybody. We celebrated my brother Kenny's birthday. It was a great time.'

Wallace now has registered five victories in the 1996 season. This was his sixth win on the .533-mile Bristol track, and his 20th career win on a track less than one mile.

Pole-sitter Mark Martin led the first 11 laps, but wound up in third place.

Defending Winsotn Cup champions Jeff Gordon took over an early lead from Martin, but was never able to mount a serious threat in the latter stages of the race, and had to settle for second.

"We may have had something for Rusty if we could have had some longer green flag runs," said Gordon. "I think some of the lapped cars didn't use their heads. They allowed the leader by, and then made it tough on us."

Dale Earnhardt, who is still is nursing a broken collar bone and sternum, appeared to run into Lake Speed's Ford Thunderbird, sending his Goodwrench Monte Carlo crashing into the wall in turn two.

He was able to continue, but a pit stop for repairs cost him 21 laps, and he wound up in the 24th posi-

Points-leader, Terry Labonte, who finished fifth, admitted he lacked the speed and handling to challenge the leaders.

"We never quite had the track position we needed to make a run on them," said Labonte. "The handling wasn't quite as good as we would have liked it to be, but we'll take our fifth place, and prepare for Darlington next week."

Labonte came into the race leading Jeff Gordon and Dale Earnhardt by 134 points. With only nine races left, his lead has been cut to 114 over Gordon, and 127 over Dale Jarrett, who moved into third.

Bill Elliott, who still has a brace on his left hip, did not drive the McDonald's Ford Thunderbird; instead it was Mike Wallace who substituted. Dick Trickle drove number 90, Wallace's normal ride.

Jay Sauter occupied the driver's eat in Felix Sabates' number 42. normally driven by Kyle Petty. Petty suffered several broken ribs in a crash at the Brickyard, August 3.

Sabates announced that IndyCar driver, Robby Godon, will drive the Sabco Pontiac, beginning in 1997.

Rick Mast will be driving a Butch Mock Ford in 1997. Mock will field two teams, with Morgan Shepherd continuing to drive the number 75. Both will be sponsored by Remington Firearms.

JEFF FULLER GETS NEW

DAUGHTER, FIRST BGN WIN Survival was the name of the game for Jeff Fuller in the Food City 250 last Friday night.

Fuller's wife, Elizabeth, gave birth to a daughter, in a Charlotte, North Carolina hospital, at 5:23 p.m. Thursday and Fuller wasn't able to head for the Bristol track until 9 p.m.

"I didn't get much sleep," said Fuller. "Maybe that's something I'll try from now on, not getting too much sleep.

Fuller, who earned Rookie of the Year honors last year in the BGN, earned his first pole earlier in the Coming into the race, Fuller had run 46 BGN events. His best finish had been a fourth at Charlotte Motor Speedway last year.

There were a total of 10 caution periods accounting for a total of 68 laps. Turns one and two were the most popular accident sites with eight. The other two occurred in turn three.

Fuller led the first 46 laps, then regained the lead on lap 188 when leader, Terry Labonte, pitted with a flat tire. Fuller maintained the front position from that point on, but Dale Jarrett had moved into second spot, and was on fuller's rear bumper for the remainder of the race. Jarrett tried an inside move going into turn three of lap 249, but Fuller blocked him, causing Jarrett to lose ground, and all hopes of passing for the win.

TOP TEN FINISHERS:

- 1) Jeff Fuller
- 2) Dale Jarrett 3) Phil Parson
- 4) Jimmy Spencer
- 5) Michael Waltrip
- 6) Derrike Cope 7) Curtis Markham
- 8) Jeff Green 9) Jason Keller
- 10) Terry Labonte
- TOP FIVE POINTS LEADERS: 1) David Green, 2,910
- 2) Randy LaJoie, 2,815
- 3) Jeff Green, 2,347 4) Curtis Markham, 2,331
- 5) Jeff Purvis, 2,319

BRISTOL SEATING CAPACITY WILL INCREASE TO 130,000

There were a few inconveniences for fans who attended the races, August 23-24 at BMS, but they're all part of owner Bruton Smith's plan to make the track more fan friendly and accessible.

Two different phases of construction are planned, and when all the dust is settled, there will be seating for 130,000 fans. That will make it the third largest seating

Lemaster captures 10th feature win at 201 speedway

by Chris Belcher Contributing Writer

The regular 201 Speedway drivers were sprinkled with a few new faces this past Saturday night as area bombers got their final opportunity to tune up for next Saturday night's third annual 201 Speedway Bomber Classic.

While Jim Lemaster continued to dominate the Super Bomber features, Garland Mills Jr. became the sixth different driver to win the Claim Bomber feature this season.

Lemaster was the quickest of The 13 car field as he picked up his 10th trip to the winners' circle this year. Beadie Blackburn finished second with Keith Potter crossing in third place.

Mills took the checkered flag in front of Bannie Blair, Steve Burke and Jimmy Johnson to win the Claim Bomber's feature.

Pilgrim's Paul Davis made his debut at 201 a successful one as he powered ahead of the field of drivers in the 25-lap Late Model feature. Davis had the fastest qualifying time winning his heat race. Roy Hobbs finished second with Scott McCloud taking third place.

Willard Blair won Saturday night's Claim Bomber consolation race ahead of Howard Mills Jr. and Eddie Davis.

George Meade took the lead on the third lap and held on to win the Road Hog 10-lap feature.

Cecil Butcher powered across the finish line well ahead of second place Truman Napier in winning the Old Timer's feature at 201.

This Saturday night, 201 will highlight area Bomber drivers in its third annual 201 Speedway Bomber Classic with a $2,000 payoff and $50 to start.

UK-Louisville game will be no ordinary match between state rivals circumstances for the season's inaugural at Commonwealth Stadium Saturday would be Louisville 20, Kentucky 17 ... in overtime. Because of the usual advantages and disadvantages - turnovers, depth, depth, depth, and kicking game.

But 1996 is different. We have the added dimension of a rarely skilled quarterback available in the blue team's bullpen who, the football gods warn us, is capable of injecting a Tarkenton element. And the twominute drill.

That is, a few hundred years ago it seems, Fran Tarkenton would show up after halftime of a hopeless Minnesota Vikings game, scramble around the park until he had rallied the purple team to outlandish victories. The Tark did things that often left Las Vegas oddsmakers scrambling for cover.

Even in a relief role, Tim Couch—an admirer of Tarkenton style and success-is capable of changing a game with 1-2-3 dramatic strokes on the canvas. I think it Kentucky 24, Louisville 14.

WISH LIST FOR 1996 FOOT-BALL SEASON

Some things I would like to see this football autumn:

√ Kentucky beats Alabama at Tuscaloosa.

√ Bill Curry's Big Blue Line is fun again.

to a good start.

√ Kid brother Couch does likewise up the road.

√ Confirmation that UofL's Donnell Gordon made the right deci-

√ Marvin Major learns his lesson. √ Western Kentucky applies for re-admission to the OVC.

√ Billy Jack Haskins stays

√ Every Kentucky high school player chosen to an All-State Team, signs to study, play football at an instate college.

√ A time comes when a high school coach say, Franklin-Simpson's Jean Rollins, sings the praises of his prize Braxton Anderson and includes along with 'strong and quick and can dunk a basketball' these things: "...has qualified academically to play college ball, is hard working student, never misses class, and is active in organizations like and alcohol."

√ Artie Steinmetz, a 6-5, 270pound lineman for Covington-Catholic gets lots of votes for Mr.

Football.

√ And, as Dick Fick did for college basketball, recognition will come for the best named coach in Kentucky college football, Houston Nutt. Murray State's coach and his Racers are coming off an 11-1 record

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE: NFL COMES TO KY.

The NFL Cincinnati Bengals' decision to make Georgetown their summer training site is not only a windfall for Scott County, but is a Toyota plant-like boost for football in Kentucky.

The Bengals announced Aug. 21 that the organization will build a 5,000-seat stadium and two practice fields on a 52-acre tract owned by Georgetown College.

Voila', beginning next summer, professional football becomes part of the landscape in Central Kentucky. The Bengals camp will be a drawing card for football fans around the state and beyond. A chance to travel to Georgetown during the Bengals' preseason, and see workouts, will do nothing if not increase interest in football at all levels.

JAGGERS 3RD ON COACH WIN LIST

High school football 1996 in Kentucky will have an added circle of interest as well.

As the the season begins, three active coaches are 3-4-5 on the state's all-time Top 10 coaches career wins list.

Behind Walter Brugh of Paintsville (279) and Garnis Martin of Bardstown (271), both retired, is Joe Jaggers of North Hardin in third place (270), Owen Hauck of Boone County in fourth (264), and Mojo Hollowell of Owensboro Catholic fifth (263)

Jaggers' overall record of 270-90-

Early Times

A reasonable forecast in ordinary 3, translates into a 74,3 win percent- home series, UK and North age, or nearly three victories in every four games spanning more than three decades at four stops - Nelson County, Trigg County, Fort Knox and North Hardin.

A 10-victory season would push Jaggers to the top of the heap, a pedestal where-for those acquainted with the native of Princeton in Caldwell County—he believes his name belongs in any case.

Ironically, if Jaggers is to reach the summit, pass Brugh this regular season, the victory would come against Nelson County, the school where his head coaching career began more than 30 years ago.

Irony II. Two victories into this season, Jaggers would pass his old nemesis Garnis Martin, who, during a long stint at Bardstown High, administered more than a few coaching spankings to Jaggers' ample

MIDSUMMER PITINO

UK's coach was asked: What can be done to change the way underclassmen and high school players (student-athletes) look at professional basketball?

"It's a two-part answer. First, the CBA must be used like Triple-A baseball and if someone wants to develop their pro talents, they should go to the CBA, not college. The second answer has been available for a long time, but because of self-serving interests, it has never been implemented. Freshmen need to be ineligible. That would prolong their collegiate career and also put more focus on academics and more focus on developing and the nurturing of the student. It would take the ego out of high school students. Most coaches would agree with that."

DOWNEY'S QS.

Native Kentuckian David Downey now lives and works in Washington D.C. A devoted UK basketball fan (in absentia), David Emailed last week questions about UK's recently released 1996-97 schedule.

Q. What's your impression of its

A. Considering UK's roster losses, I would rate the schedule difficulty at 9.24 on a scale of 10.

However, since this is a fans' game, an excellent number of marquee-type opponents are in the offing, even if mostly by way of television. UK's schedule includes as many as 11 Top 20 candidates, including three in-league foes -Miss. Arkansas, Tennessee.

Q. Would UK's (home games) non-conference foe list be a notch better if Kentucky had an on-campus

A. Without doubt.

Indicative of the cool/correct relationship between UK and the Lexington Civic Center board that runs Rupp Arena, Villanova is UK's only non-conference home game against a ranked team in Rupp Arena next season. Most of the others amount to a duck shoot - Wright State, Notre Dame, UNC-Asheville, Canisius and West Carolina.

Q. Shouldn't UK play a home game at Freedom Hall every year, not counting the Indiana game, with tickets (available to non-season ticket holders)?

A. Absolutely. And another in Cincinnati,

Q. Do you favor a home-and-

Carolina? What about Kansas?

A. Kansas, not necessarily. But for college basketball's sake, yes to an annual UK-UNC series, say a 10-15 year contract. The college game's two winningest programs should play on Super Bowl Sunday.

Says here the television networks would get in line to bid for broadcast rights, giving this game enough high-powered money-making potential to pre-empt the carnival approach of selling pieces of a basketball floor, fostered by UK assistant AD Larry Ivy.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

Greg Smith of Lawrenceburg: "Am looking forward to UK football. If nothing else we will get to see a couple of good quarterbacks run for their lives this year. (But) if any more players leave the team, Mr. (Tim) Couch may be playing wide receiver before the year is out.'

DIS 'N DATA

No ties in college football this season as Div. I teams take a cue from high school by flipping a coin at the end of tie games to see who gets the ball first on alternating possessions at the 25-yard line. Whoever scores the most points wins. ... If I were casting my Heisman vote before the firing starts, it would read: Darnell Autry, Northwestern; Danny Wuerffel, Florida; and Peyton Manning, Tennessee. ...

Outside of Male running back Tony Driver, says here defensive linemen Braxton Anderson of Franklin Simpson and Artie Steinmetz of CovCatholic will be the most ardently recruited college prospects in Kentucky this season.

From the space that said three years ago Tim Couch would someday be mentioned in the same sentence with Paul Hornung, this prediction: Bernard Jackson, listed as a 6-4, 248-pound junior linebacker at Louisville St. Xavier, will be the most hotly recruited Kentuckian nationally next season since, well, Tim Couch.

Year of the (corn-fed) Lineman. From a coaches' survey - of 18 interior lineman listed among the state's top 50 high school football stars-to-be this season - 15 were listed at 230-pounds or bigger, including 300-pound Derrick Johnson of Harrodsburg and 295pound Foster Grant at Fort Knox. ...

PARTING SHOT

University of Louisville football coach Ron Cooper to the Courier-Journal on Cardinal linebacker Jeryl Tyson, who was arrested on drug charges during the summer: "Jeryl Tyson won't join the football team this year. Case closed."

And so it goes.

Will '96 be Bill Curry's

last at UK?

by Cliff Smith Contributing Writer

Bill Curry starts his seventh season as UK's head football coach this fall without having ended a year with larger numbers on the left than on the right.

Only one of the on-the-field assistant coaches he brought with him has remained — secondary coach Rick Smith, who this year moves up to take the defensive coordinator position.

Of the '92, '93, '94 and '95 recruits who have eligibility remaining this fall, 41 percent are no longer on the players' roster.

Incoming true freshmen will probably have to use a year of their elgibility to provide backups at tailback, tight end, offensive guard, and defensive cornerback.

Except for heralded quarterback recruit Tim Couch, most of UK's '96 recruits chose Kentucky over schools such as Jacksonville, Central Florida, Troy State and Liberty, for whatever that may bode for future years.

However, that doesn't mean there aren't some SEC quality prospects among them, because there are.

What this does suggest is that a 1-10 and 4-7 record in the coach's fifth and sixth seasons at the helm aren't the kind of stats likely to attract players recruited by other Division IA schools.

So this is a crucial year for the Bill Curry era at UK. Curry knows it. C.M. Newton knows it. And the fans know it.

What is the outlook? My hunch is that there are at least five very likely losses — Florida, Alabama, LSU, Georgia and Tennessee — and no sure bet wins against the other six teams on the schedule.

What happens in the first three games could tell the tale. UK should be competitive against Louisville, Cincinnati, Indiana, South Carolina and Mississippi State as well as Vanderbilt. But none of those are a sure thing. The first three named are the first three opponents.

Given what he has to work with, it isn't realistic to expect new defensive coordinator Rick Smith to field a defense that shows dramatic improvement this year. But they may show some improvement if all of the starters stay healthy.

Offensive coordinator Elliot Uzelac did an almost incredible job last year. This get-in-your-face coach fielded an offensive line composed of players who had never before started a game in the position to which he assigned them.

They proceeded to open gaping holes for Moe Williams and gave Tennessee's vaunted defense all it sould handle in the season finale.

Having lost two starters who completed their eligibility, two more to disciplinary dismissal, and still another to injury, he has another task of similar magnitude this year.

Still, UK may exhibit some "big play" capability it has often lacked in recent years except for Moe

Curry-

Williams' exiting running.

For the first time in several years, Kentucky has two, maybe three, quarterbacks who can accurately deliver the football to the team's receivers. And in Kio Sanford, Craig Yeast, Harold Dennis and Norman Mason, the Wildcats have receivers with the speed and ability to hold their own or even to excel in the SEC this fall.

If UK can establish some kind of running game, Uzelack's offense could prove capable of some exciting plays.

But don't forget that old adage that it's the defense that wins games. I hope that I may be wrong, but my guess is another losing season: and that would mean Curry's last as UK's head football coach.

Lessons from nature

Over the past few weeks, I've learned a few things about nature.

The first was a lesson about parenting.

I'm referring to the incident that occurred earlier this month in Brookfield, Illinois,

Poison

Oak

where a three-yearold boy fell 18-feet into a colony of apes at a zoo primate exhibit.

As he lay unconscious, an eight-year-old female gorilla named Binta Jua, with her own baby clinging to her back, gently picked the boy up, cradled him in her arms, and carried him to a door where she left him so zoo keepers and paramedics could attend him.

And now back to the more intelligent of the species.

Pick up the paper tomorrow and you'll probably read about some human parent abusing, or even killing children.

You've got to wonder who's the savage.

My next learning experience took place a little closer to home. As a matter of fact, it happened right in my own back yard.

As far back as I can remember, I've heard the old folks say that one shouldn't kill a black snake. My dad always said that black snakes kill rats and mice, and more importantly, other poisonous snakes. Black snakes are good snakes.

Until last week, however, as far as I was concerned, the only good snake was a dead one, regardless of its color. To me, the opinions of the old folks were merely myth.

That's changed. I was sitting on my back porch talking with a neighbor who was standing on my deck when, in the corner of my eye, I caught an unusual movement on the little hill that falls steeply down into my back yard.

> "What in the world is that, Frank?" I > > asked him. He turned around just as a tangle of snake...one black, the other a copperhead... rolled onto the yard next to his feet.

Both snakes, obviously in mortal combat, were large, probably close to three feet in length. Keeping my wits about me, I grabbed a hoe that I keep handy just for such emergencies since I killed a black snake on my driveway a couple of months ago.

"Wait," Frank said, "let 'em alone for a minute."

At first it was difficult to tell, but it appeared that the black snake was getting the better of the copperhead. Frank and I, along with his son, Jason, and my wife, Wilma, (at least we had one credible witness) stood and watched and in about five minutes the copperhead began wriggling frantically and it looked as if it were about to break loose from the black snake's grip. It didn't, though, and as soon as the copperhead stopped moving, the black snake released its grip and

The copperhead was as dead as a doornail and so was the so-called myth that had been planted in the back of my mind more than 50 years ago by my father.

slithered on back up the hill.

I'll kill no more black

In April, the Indians caused unrest at Squire Boone's Station causing the residents to abandon the site before spring planting. This was just the opportunity the Indians wanted, and opportunity to catch the settlers when they were most vulnerable. The attention of Boone and the others was divided among the cattle, property and wagons in addition to the women and children.

The Indians struck with a massive force at Long Run. Squire Boone was one of many who where severely wounded. Several were killed while others were kidnapped. The result couldn't have been much worse for Boone's residents. Col. Floyd assembled a party of 25 men who attempted to overtake the Indians and rescue their hostages. Included in the number was Captain Samuel Wells with whom Floyd was continually at odds. The party was led into a trap

Eighteen of the rescue party were killed. Seeing there was no chance to fight off the Indians, Col. Floyd and the others attempted to escape.

Three Indians attacked Col. Floyd who had no chance to escape with his life until Captain Wells shot one of them through the breast and warded off another with a fierce blow from his rifle butt. The third Indian wanted no part of Wells without assistance from his fellow braves so Floyd and Wells were able to escape. The Indians were content to remain behind and take booty and scalps from the dead men.

The Indian party split up into smaller groups then and attacked various settlements in the county of Kentucke which was part of the Virginia Commonwealth. They also watched the trails closely to find unwary settlers to prey upon.

The following month they watched McAfee's Station before spotting Samuel McAfee and a fellow worker leaving to work in the nearby fields with Samuel's younger brothers lagging far behind. When the two were nearly a quarter-mile from the settlement, the Indians fired on them. Samuel immediately turned and ran back to the settlement while his comrade lay Luckily for McAfee the Indian's gun flashed (misfired) while his shot killed his nemesis. Leaping across the Indian's body the young man ran to the fort.

Just as the Indian started to waylay Robert, his older brother fired a shot from the fort. The bullet claimed the Indian's life. Robert sprang up and ran for the gate of the fort as the remaining Indians sent bullets all Upset at the turn of events the Indians killed the cattle before vanishing into the woods.

Soon thereafter, Colonel McGary and his troops arrived from Harrodsburg and gave chase, overtaking the Indians. Several of the braves were killed while a small number escaped in different directions as they took to their heels.

Yet the marauding Indians continued their attacks on many fronts as settlers abandoned isolated defenseless forts for the safety of garrisons.

Think About It

THE BURNING BUSH

Every now and then my friend, Doug, will come over and we will sit around and talk about the old days. Since we are both 20 the old days usually consists of mostly grade school talk, but it is just as noble as "old man talk," for which we are both currently in training.

Recently, the discussion turned to a tradition we kept for nearly two years. We called it the burning bush, but it was really a thorn bush about the size of a small pickup. It had been planted outside the band room and, after practice, Doug and I would sit on the rail and catch unsuspecting victims and throw them in. Of course, once they got out, we got ours, too; but it was a manly thing back then to go back to class with slash marks crossing your arms, so none of us really minded.

The burning bush died out during the winter months and so our attention turned to the rail that ran along the gym. During the winter the rail would always have an inch or two of pure ice covering it. This made for an excellent battle zone. Two of us would hop onto the rail and go head-to-head, kind of the way they do it on American Gladiators today, except we didn't have a cushiony fall if defeated, we had cold, hard concrete. The rail game became so popular that we combined it with the burning bush, and started having the matches directly over top of the huge thorn bush. At the end of the day it was hard to tell who was the proudest, the boys who didn't have a mark on them or the boys who looked like John Wayne after about 50 street fights. Looking back on it now, it seemed like it was a crazy thing to do, but it kept us out of any real trouble. At least we didn't try burning the train tunnel down during the eighth-grade dance like the Packard brothers. But that's not to say that the games didn't cause their fair share of trouble. I once threw my friend's Ghostbuster lunchbox into the creek behind the school after a match in which I smacked my shin on the rail and ended up crawling out of the burning bush. It was actually a freak accident, but I didn't tell him that. He

Doug told me that he got a call the other day from one of the boys with whom we used to do don't think he has as good a battle during school. He said the guy had clipped a branch off the burning bush just after graduation

Senior citizens, people are our greatest natural resource! What would we do if were not for family, friends, neighbors and people we don't even know who come to our rescue in a time of crisis?

Sunday afternoon we were invited to go for a drive "way up in the head of a hollow" to see where a house seat had been built. Our friend's exuberance quickly piqued our interest.

When we left our home, our only mission was to drive up to see this land. The setting was breathtakingly beautiful and it was an equally beautiful day. The sun was shining brightly. A warm, August breeze drifted through the woods. As we walked, looking at the terrain, a canopy of leaves shrouded us from the sun's burning rays. The feeling of serenity captivated us.

After a while, we returned to the car to begin the slow, bumpy ride down the mountain toward civilization. A passenger commented that an ox-drawn cart would have been more appropri- collected. Now he was gathering ate for the trip than the car we were driving. Though the house seat was within a half-mile from the nearest cluster of neighbors, every passenger felt as if we had been in touch with nature in its purest form.

Once we reached the road, we decided to prolong our Sunday afternoon drive. After all, the remodeling project we had been working on at home would still be there when we returned.

As we drove, it was suggested that we ride up Branham's Creek. We hadn't been up that way in a while. This time of year, there's a small section, just off Mud Creek, where the trees on the left meet in the middle with those on the right, to form a natural wooded arch under which motorist pass. We were enjoying this segment of the drive, looking at the homes nestled on the mountainsides and in the valleys, against a background of gorgeous mountain majesty when an on-coming car, slowing to a halt, got our attention. Who do you think it was? None other than your outstanding volunteer benefits counselor Den Hunter. He brought us back to the real world with its people and their problems. Den was "taking care of business" or more specifically he was taking care of people.

He said, "I was just by your house. There's a family with five kids in need of a lot of help..." Den and his friend had just delivered a load of furniture they had

We went home. The out-of-thereal-world experience we enjoyed for a precious couple hours ended abruptly. Reality, once again, took precedence. There were people needing people.

Unfortunately, Sunday's saga didn't end on Branham's Creek.

The next day my husband left for work at his usual time. Some minutes later I heard his van pull up. "He must have forgotten something," I thought.

He came into the house. A strange look was on his face when I met him in the kitchen. Before I could ask the matter he said, "Junior's house burned down around five this morning. He lost everything."

After my husband left I found myself becoming angry. Junior is our neighbor. His was the first house down the hollow. Separated by only an acre of land and trees beside the creek bed, I was upset that we hadn't noticed the fire upon our arising so we could have tried to do something. What needed to be done now, however, was to determine his immediate needs and strive to fill them by getting other people involved.

On my way out of the hollow, Junior and his aged mother were sitting on her porch, broken hearted and weeping. With them, offering silent comfort, were two of the man's brothers. I stopped to offer my condolences and our family's assistance. At that moment, when all that remained of the smoldering fire in the distance, were the memories, there was little that anyone could say or do. But it was evident that once again here were people needing Once onto Mud Creek I sped up to make up for lost time. After a couple minutes I was slowed by cars in front of me. Lo and behold the car directly ahead of me was Den Hunter. I followed him out of Mud Creek where he pulled into a convenience store. I told him what had happened. He said, "I'll go over there tomorrow. People will help out. They always do.'

People helping people. Senior citizens, we are each others greatest natural resource. Let us be there for others, whether or not we know them. We never know when we might need them to be there

Pikeville National chooses new holding company name

By an overwhelming margin, shareholders of Pikeville National Corporation (NASDAQ symbol: PKVL) August 15 mandated a new name for its holding company: Community Trust Bancorp, Inc.

At a special shareholders meeting, 6,802,539 shares were voted in favor of the new name. It becomes effective January 1, 1997, when the NASDAQ trading symbol will become CTBI. The positive vote represents 91.31 percent of all votes cast and 74.55 percent of total shares outstanding.

"We are gratified that the vast majority of our shareholders agree with our board of directors' position that 'Community Trust' better represents our commitment to all communities in the expanding region we serve," President Terry Coleman said.

"As a bank, Pikeville National has served its customers well since 1903, but those customers now deal with one or more of 60 offices in 19 counties of eastern and central Kentucky. The name no longer fits our present geography or our plan to aggressively expand beyond the region we now serve," Mr. Coleman added.

"This is an essential step forward in our strategy to grow and to provide more banking products more efficiently to our customers," Mr. Coleman said.

Most banks owned by Pikeville National Corporation will merge into a single bank structure. Many of them will continue to operate under their existing names with "Community Trust Bank, NA" added to their individual identities.

Coleman said the corporation enjoyed record monthly earnings in July 1996 of $1.718 million which is reflective of the strategies instituted in 1994 and 1995.

Pikeville National and its affiliates operate 60 offices in 19 Kentucky counties and rank among the three largest Kentucky-based banking companies. Corporation assets total about $1.8 billion.

Mom's Sunday dinner every day of the week at CC's Cafe

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

Looking for a new niche in which to operate, the owners of CC's Cafe turned to a style of food that Eastern Kentucky is famous for - home cooking.

"It's like having mom's Sunday dinner every day of the week," manager Judy Goble said.

Jeff Barjuca and his partners are not new to Prestonsburg even though the restaurant on North Lake Drive has a new face. Before CC's opened, the company owned Tacos Too.

Struggling with sales that weren't quite what they wanted them to be, Barjuca decided to look at the new concept.

There's a CC's in Nicholasville and Lexington and Goble said expansion may be in the works for cook Pike or Johnson counties.

"It is paying off," she said.

While the Tacos Too chain still exists and is doing great in other working here.

The draw now is the homecooked meals. Nearly everything is made from scratch.

"We make things people like to eat," Goble said.

The most popular menu items include pot roast and mashed potatoes and gravy. Another favorite is the cajun chicken salad.

"We use good recipes and that's what helps make it good," Goble said. "That cookbook is our Bible and each person makes a dish the

She says Barjuca and others in the chain compiled the cookbook by picking up recipes handed down from family and friends. They prepared the dishes they thought the customers might enjoy the most, but just don't have the time to

"These really are home-cooked meals," Goble said. "And the prices are really reasonable too."

The atmosphere also helps.

> "We've been having a huge lunch crowd from the people in offices in town," Goble said. "This is something different than what they've had before. It's real food

> The patio has added to that atmosphere, giving diners an alternative. "It's an ideal spot to have a root beer and watch one of the festival parades that are coming up," Goble said.

> While the month of July saw sales decline, Goble said that's expected in the restaurant business. "People go on vacation. Their kids are out of school. Many go home for lunch," she said.

> She said restaurant sales always pick back up when the kids head off to class and parents are too busy to cook a homestyle meal.

Floyd County's best kept secret revealed—the health department

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

Carol Holbrook, who heads the Floyd County Health Department, says the health department is "one of the best kept secrets in Kentucky," and she's trying to get the word out about the many services it offers to area residents.

Health department personnel have gone door-to-door and even stuffed informational circulars into grocery bags, but people still think the health department only gives baby shots, educates the public about sexually transmitted diseases (STD's) and provides birth certificates. That's just a small part of the services the health department offers the community, Holbrook

WIC (WOMEN, INFANT, AND CHILDREN)

A major component of the health department services is its WIC program, a supplemental program for women, infants and children. Holbrook says statistics indicate numerous Floyd County families qualify for the program, but aren't utilizing it.

The program provides short-term benefits for pregnant or breast-feeding mothers and also for their infants. It provides, at no cost to the mother, nutritious foods for mothers and their infants.

The program isn't just for the low-income families, Holbrook says. It's also for working families. She cited as an example a nurse who works at a local hospital and her husband who also has a well-paying job. The couple recently became parents and they qualify for the WIC program.

Patients who have been on WIC and who have been discharged can reapply. Holbrook urges Floyd County families to take advantage of the program. Mothers can call the health department to find out if they are eligible.

HOME HEALTH

Another of the health department's major services is its Home Health Agency, "considered to be one of the best in the state," Holbrook says. The agency is ranked No. 1 in being cost effective, according to Holbrook.

The agency renders services to its homebound patients without regard for the patients' ability to pay, Holbrook says.

The Home Health Agency provides skilled nursing care, home health aides, 24-hour private duty nursing, physical therapy, speech therapy, and medical social ser-

Holbrook says the health department works well with the three other home health agencies in the county, but she cautions bringing in agencies backed by major compa-

"I think that (the state board of health approving) health services that are not already available here is a wonderful thing, but we need to be cautious about duplication of services," Holbrook says. "There are a lot of bigger companies that can come in and undercut a public agency."

She explained that the state would then cut funds to the public agency when use of its services slacked. "We're not afraid of competition. If the public agency is put out of business by being undercut, then I'm worried about the people who do not have any insurance or any means of paying. It's those patients who can't provide any form of payment who will suffer."

SATELLITE PROGRAMS

The Floyd County Health Department has satellite health programs throughout the county. The health department has branch offices in Betsy Layne and Wheelwright.

A Children in Crisis Stabilization Unit of the health department is expected to open around the first of September in the Viola Bailey Memorial/McDowell Senior Citizens building.

Holbrook says she is impressed with the commitment of the McDowell Senior Citizens Center. "Their concern is to provide services to the community. They're aware of the needs in their area and are very vocal about it."

PRENATAL PROGRAM

The prenatal program at the health department just got underway last September, but it has been growing in leaps and bounds, Holbrook says. The program began with one nurse and now has three on

The service has a potential caseload of 300 women, according to

Holbrook. The service is an enhanced care program that complements a physician's care. It is an education and counseling service, Holbrook says. Pregnant mothers receive monthle prenatal counseling. They're told about the changes that will take place in their bodies and about the development of their baby. They're also advised about their responsibility to take care of their bodies in order to give birth to healthy chil-

The program also offers perinatal visits from nurses at the health department. Through the program, pregnant teenagers are also visited by resource persons who support the teens through their pregnancy. The resource persons also make sure the teens visit their doctor on a routine basis and consume a health?

IMMUNIZATIONS

Health department nurses give diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis, oral polio, HIB, measles-mumps-rubella, tetanus-diphtheria, influenza, and Hepatitis B immunizations at the health department, the satellite clinics, and area family resource

The Floyd County Health Department has improved its immunization compliance record with the state. It has gone from a 50 percent compliance rate to an 86 percent rate, better than the statewide rate of 78 percent.

PSI AND RTR

Floyd County has been identified as having one of the state's highest number of teenage pregnancies. The health department is taking steps to lower that rate by putting trained teenage peers into the classrooms and teaching their fellow students that it's okay to say, "No," through the Postponing Sexual Involvement and Reducing The Risk programs. PARTNERS IN PREVENTION

The health department also offers body analysis, health risk assessments, laboratory services, family planning, pediatric, and dia-

First Commonwealth Bank's 'roots run deep'

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

The only locally-owned bank in Floyd County has roots that run deep. With more than 90 years of service to the people of Eastern Kentucky, First Commonwealth Bank has become a tradition in the area.

Customer service and quality management, according to Vice President Robert Allen, have kept the bank alive and growing since it opened its doors more than 92 years ago.

"Being involved in the community has also been very important," Allen

The history of the bank includes its start in an "upper room" to the construction of a new multistory facility overlooking the Big Sandy River.

First Commonwealth opened its doors May 2 1904 as the First National Bank of Prestonsburg, a nationally chartered banking facility. It was the second bank in Prestonsburg. That first office was

A committee was formed in June 1920 to oversee the construction of an addition to the "Front and Bridge Street" building. Just as important were the contents of that building as noted in October 1920:

The Stock Market Crash of 1929 and the Great Depression of the 1930s didn't devastate Floyd County or the First National Bank to the extent it did Wall Street. But the bank and its customers weren't immune from the fall either. The rent of bank-owned offices was increased from $36 to $50 in 1931, when there appeared a new confidence in the economy. That amount didn't even include utilities.

Despite that confidence, however, First National sustained losses in bonds in 1934 and 1935 and a reduction in salaries was necessary to avoid layoffs.

The logic of the move was obvious. No longer were the railroad and river the prime modes of transportation; not for long, anyway. The heavily-traveled Route 23, also known as the Mayo Trail, was at the doorstep of the soon to be

$14.6 million by December 31,

In the next decade, the bank continued to assert its leadership in the community and was rewarded with additional growth. Russell Hagewood, a long-time senior officer of the bank, became president in 1972 after the death of Burl Spurlock, and served in that capacity until his passing in 1976. That's when First National Bank of Prestonsburg became the First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg. Prestonsburg is a town with a future, and the city is taking steps to ensure that future is a success, according to its mayor, Jerry Fannin.

The Arts Center will offer a diversified program of entertainment, from orchestras to folk. The Kentucky Opry and the Kentucky Opry Junior Pros will be regular performers at the center.

Highlands Regional Medical Center will open Harold Primary Care facility on September 1

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

Highlands Regional Medical Center will open Harold Primary Care September 1 at Harold.
Primary Care is a family practice facility aimed at increasing the mavailability of family practice medicine in an underserved area, according to Kathy Rubado, director of public relations at Highlands.

Currently, people living in the Harold area must travel quite a distance to find family physician care. Residents must either go to the Mud Creek Clinic, or Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg to find the nearest health care facilities. The Harold Primary Care Center is located at 273 Old Harold Road, about 1/2-mile off U.S. 23 on Rt. 979.

The family practice will be

The family practice will be staffed by hometown physicians, Dr. Debra K. Hall and

Dr. Blake Burchett.

Burchett has been practicing family medicine in Floyd County for the past ten years. He has offices at Betsy Layne in the Hayes Complex and at Prestonsburg in the Archer Clinic.

He is involved in the community. A few of his community commitments include promoting baseball and tourism activities in the county. Burchett has also served on the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission for several years.

Dr. Hall is a family practitioner who just finished her internship and three years of residency at McLeod Regional Medical Center in Florence, South Carolina. The pull of Floyd County, her native home, > proved too strong to resist, and Hall returned to bring her skills to back to the county.

> Her family was another strong incentive for Hall to return to Floyd County. Her parents, Lloyd and Amanda Hall, live in the Goble-Roberts Addition and her brother, Lloyd Keith Hall, lives at Sugar Loaf near Prestonsburg.

County. She likes Eastern Kentucky and its people. "Everybody is friendly here.

"Everybody is friendly here. There's few crimes and drugs not like away from here," she said last week.

did her residency, Hall saw a lot of injuries from violent crimes. The city of Florence, North Carolina was located just off I-95, which runs New from York to Miami, she said. and the violence spilled over to the cities along the She doesn't injuries here. She does expect, though, to encounter a community atmosphere and a sense of belonging. She is especially excited about becoming part of the Harold community.

"It's a nice place," she said. "I like the idea of working with the whole family. Family physicians share the good things — graduations, births."

She wants to develop close relationships with her patients. "A personal relationship develops with family physicians and their patients. They come to trust their physician as a friend and be more honest and more upfront. They get a sense that the physician actually cares about them," she said.

Kathy Rubado agrees: "Family physicians develop a closer relationship with their patients. They understand the patients' problems and follow (their patients) through life."

That's part of what attracted Hall to the field of family physicians.

During her third year as a medical student, she spent about one month assisting Dr. Blake Burchett at his offices in Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg.

"That's when I decided to do family medicine. I kept in touch with him and he's helped me along."

When Highlands Regional recruited her to work with Burchett at the Harold Primary facility, she couldn't refuse and moved back to Floyd County about three weeks ago.

"I'm still unpacking," she said last Thursday. Dr. Hall and her roommate, her cat, have just moved into their home on Arnold Avenue in Prestonsburg.

Dr. Hall plans to focus her attention on keeping her patients healthy.

She'll educate them about the importance of diet, the dangers to their health from smoking, consuming alcohol, and the need for regular exercise.

She's also working toward some involve lab facilities. Some basic free services for the patients at the clinic. Currently, she's seeking Frankfort's help to provide free immunizations for children and young adults, up to 21 years of age.

Dr. Hall said she's glad that Highlands Regional Medical Center located its new Primary Care Clinic at Harold and thinks it will provide easier access to health care since the nearest facility, the Mud Creek Clinic, is about 10 to 15 miles away from clinic

Scott Richardson said the project had been in the works for the past two years, since Highlands did a needs assessment on the area and was made aware about the number of residents in the growing business community and the need for the Primary Health Care facility.

"We've been recruiting physicians — there's always been a need for physicians in the area — and we've been developing the clinic at the same time," Richardson said.

laboratory work, such as blood specimens, will be taken at the clinic. Highlands' personnel will do the leg work, picking up the lab work and transporting it to the hospital's lab for testing, Richardson said.

The clinic will also make it easier for patients who need more extensive testing at Highlands Regional Medical Center, Kathy Rubado added, because the clinic and the hospital will take care of the paperwork before the patient arrives at the hospital.

Rubado said the new clinic helps fulfill part of Highland Regional Medical Center's vision statement — to make Eastern Kentucky a better place to live and provide quality medical care to area residents.

Dr. Hall will see patients at the Harold Primary Care Center Monday, Wednesday and Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Dr. Burchett will see patients at the clinic on Tuesdays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For appointments, call 478-8787

East Kentucky Auto Parts maintains service, tradition

by Chris McDavid Staff Writer

East Kentucky Auto Parts may have changed owners a little more than a year ago, but the same service and tradition that have been available for more than 40 years is still there, along with quality products and warehouse prices.

For 40 years, C. J. McNally owned and operated East Kentucky Auto Parts, and a little more than a year ago, Bluegrass Parts Warehouse of Danville purchased the store from McNally.

"We've been in the area as a warehouse, a warehouse distributor, and now as a company store," manager Dan Jennings said, "We want to continue the tradition of service that C. J. McNally provided customers and build on that tradition."

Even though the store is owned by an out-of-town company, Jennings said it is still considered to be a community-wide store. East Kentucky Auto Parts is locally operated and "we try to buy everything

Jennings said the store buys all its paper products, brooms, cleaning supplies, etc. from other Floyd County businesses. However, he did explain that if the store could not purchase supplies from local businesses, the store then looks to the next closest location.

Jennings said the store has brought warehouse prices to Floyd County. He explained that since the "middle man" is skipped, and so has been faded from weather and prices are not increased, as they normally are for the middle man to make a profit.

"Our prices are lower across the board," Jennings said.

Aside from the tradition and service, East Kentucky Auto Parts is also a very active contributor to the community.

This year, the store donated a tool set, Bearcat scanner, and a radar detector to the Kiwanis' Golf Tournament.

Plans are currently being made between East Kentucky Auto Parts, Angler's Bait and Tackle, and the Floyd County Rescue Squad to raise funds for the rescue squad - a nonprofit organization which provides a valuable service to Floyd County from proceeds of a fishing tourna-

"We are trying to put as much into the community as possible," Jennings said.

Included with the service, low prices, and community involvement, East Kentucky Auto Parts offers name-brand products, Professional Choice merchandise, and Performance Products. "We have Moog, Dayco, Standard Motor Products, as well as Professional Choice merchandise for price-conscious shoppers," Jennings said.

Another service the store offers to area residents and businesses is mixing Dupont paint. The best feature the store offers in the paint line is a scanner that can match any store was a warehouse outlet, the color of paint, even to a surface that

The ChromaVision scanner takes three pictures of the surface of your vehicle or whatever needs touch-up painting work. This way, when the touch-up work is complete, a difference in the old paint and the new paint cannot be detected.

After the pictures are taken, then the scanner is connected to a computer which gives a printout of a formula of paint to use to blend and shade paint to match the color of whatever needs painted.

"With the ChromaVision scanner, we will create a paint formula to match any surface - regardless of the shade, or wear on the surface," Jennings said.

East Kentucky Auto Parts has all accessories needed for car painting, but it also has an assortment of topof-the-line tools, batteries - which the store tries to keep at least one of every kind made, including wheelchair batteries - accessories to "dress up" the appearance of your vehicle, wash and wax equipment, boating supplies, and the list goes on, down to even OSHA approved safety gas cans.

Whether you're a do-it-yourself person who works on his car or a professional mechanic, East Kentucky Auto Parts has everything for your vehicle, and much more.

Holiday Inn not just for travelers

by Polly Ward Contributing Writer

Although Holiday Inn of Prestonsburg may be considered the perfect home-away-from-home for travelers, the full-service hotel has plenty to offer area residents.

That is the message the Holiday Inn management team wants to emphasize. "We are a full service hotel and we have a lot to offer to people here in Floyd and surrounding counties," said Linda Smith, the hotel's comptroller and food and beverage director.

Smith, Rooms Division Manager Stanual Mullins, and Chief of Maintenance and Security Keith Frasure, make up the hotel's general management. Through their leadership, the Inn, located on U.S. 23 South, was named a Holiday Inn International Quality/Excellence Award Winner for 1995.

That means that the facility ranked in the top ten percent of more than 2,000 Holiday Inns world-wide in terms of services and products it offers its customers.

"The ranking of the hotels is based on guest comments. The award is really given to us by our guests," explained Mullins. "They say we're doing a good job."

"Twice a year we have a (surprise) on-site inspection from Holiday Inn," said Smith. "That is also factored into the award."

The dedication of the hotel's 70 employees is a major reason its customers give the hotel's service a high rating. "The security and maintenance workers are knowledgeable people," said Mullins. "The housekeeping staff is good."

The hotel celebrated its tenth anniversary in June and, to show their appreciation for work well done, management held a reception for its employees. Certificates and pins were awarded to employees based on years of service.

Three employees, bartender Steve Lafferty and waitresses Kay Conn and Anna Benner, have been with the hotel for ten years. "Several others employees have been here eight or nine years," said Smith.

The Holiday Inn also celebrated it's first decade of service with an open house to show appreciation for area customers' patronage. "Where other facilities try to appeal to the traveling public, we want to appeal to the traveling public and community," Smith emphasized.

Accordingly, Holiday Inn offers amenities that appeal to both travelers and the community.

ROOM ACCOMMODATIONS

The full-service hotel accommodations includes 117 exterior entrance guest rooms. Guests can chose rooms with king-size and double size beds, and smoking or nonsmoking. The rooms have cable TV.

A suite is also available that includes a sleep room, a hospitalitytype room that includes a wet bar and a dry bar, and a kitchenette.

FINE DINING

Kelsey's Restaurant, located just off the lobby, offers "fine dining in a relaxed atmosphere," Smith said. Although the dining room has an elegant decor, "We don't want people to feel they must dress up," Smith said.

The restaurant features daily lunch and dinner specials, as well as a "catch of the day."

Kelsey's extensive Sunday buffet, which offers a variety of food choices, including at least three entrees,... for only $6.95 per person, hasbecome extremely popular within locals. "We thank the community for the tremendous response to our buffet," Smith said.

The restaurant boasts five chefs.... Executive chef is Larry Brewer.

"The comments we hear concerning the restaurant is about how good the food is," said Mullins. "And once diners start coming here, they keep coming back."

BANQUET FACILITIES

Holiday Inn has four adjoining banquet rooms that serve as meeting and/or banquet facilities. The rooms can be opened into one large ballroom for a large event, such as am wedding reception or business meet-

The banquet rooms are also used as a setting for birthday parties, anniversary celebrations, and other types of receptions. The Inn has a full-time banquet coordinator and other professional staff who attend town the smallest detail for customers.

Various community civic groups and organizations use the facilities for meetings and other functions.

FULL-SERVICE LOUNGE

Sweet Georgia Brown's, the= Holiday Inn's full-service lounge, isknown for its entertainment and good food. Every Tuesday night is "Jimmy Buffet Night," an evening that features the music of singer Jimmy Buffet. "We have good crowds forthat," Mullins noted.

Each Thursday and Friday night dee-jay Rich Hughes wows the crowd with his presentation of past and present musical favorites.

Our Lady of the Way, growing to meet needs of Floyd County

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

In the past, mothers waited - and it probably seemed like an endless wait - in a hospital emergency room late at night for treatment of their children's colds.

The moms may have just gotten off work and discovered their twoyear-olds were ill. Their doctors' offices were closed, so they went to the local emergency room for treatment for their children.

The visit may have taken hours because hospital staff were tied up with life-threatening emergencies. The visit was also expensive because they were paying for emergency room services.

These working mothers needed primary care for their children during evening hours and on weekends. Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin recognized that need and took steps to remedy that situation.

"As many as half of the patients who currently seek emergency services do not require true emergency care, but rather are people who need access to primary health care services. This includes people who cannot get an appointment during the day to see a private physician and people who have no private physician," says Kathy Stumbo, the hospital's associate administrator.

Stumbo said that elderly residents in the area also had a problem receiving after-hours primary care because they lacked transportation to clinics until their care providers were off

In an effort to provide the best possible care for these patients who need emergency care in the evenings and on weekends when physicians offices are closed, the hospital expanded its emergency services on July 1 with the opening of an outpatient clinic facility.

The emergency room will continue as a vital hospital service, providing true emergency care, while the clinic will provide access to those in need of less urgent primary care services, Stumbo explained.

The clinic will be open from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., Saturday and Sunday - peak volume hours for ER services, according to the hospital's chief operating officer, John Osborne.

The emergency room will contin- are very interested in knowing what ue its 24-hour operation. When patients come to the hospital's emergency room during the primary care clinic hours, they will be triaged, says Billie Turner, vice president of Patient Care Services. A nurse will get vital signs and medical history. Patients with trauma, chest pain, respiratory distress, difficulty breathing, severe pain or in life threatening situations will be treated in the emergency room, according to Turner.

Patients with less threatening symptoms, such as ear aches or sore throats, will be sent to the clinic, located just across the hall from the emergency room.

The four-bed expanded service will allow patients to receive the best possible service in a shorter time. Turner says the hospital's goal is to have patients in the clinic and in the process of being seen by a practitioner within 30 minutes.

The clinic will be staffed by a physician, a physician's assistant, and registered nurses.

The hospital's COO John Osborne, said the clinic was opened in response to comments from

"We, as part of the community, the comments and the needs of people in the community are," he said.

'We want to know (our patients') feelings about what we're providing. We want to know what they think about our services. That's what we're here for," he said.

The clinic should also reduce the cost to patients for after-hours care. A visit to most emergency rooms for a simple cold could cost as high as $200, Osborne said. "At the clinic, the cost should be no more than at a physician's office."

Two primary concerns about health care are cost and access, and the clinic is responding to those concerns, he added.

Whether it's buying a home, car, or getting a student loan, a bank enables customers to build life-long memories. And with choosing a bank, it should be important to bank with someone on your home team and that bank is none other than Bank Josephine.

Bank Josephine has a long tradition of providing services to residents in Floyd County.

The Bank Josephine - incorporated by special Act of the Kentucky Legislature, Chapter 255, Acts 1890 was the very first bank established in Floyd County. Doors were opened to serve customers on April 1, 1891.

The bank was named in honor of Mrs. Josephine Davidson Harkins, the wife of Walter Scott Harkins, the first Chairman of the Board and the original founder of the bank.

Bank Josephine became the only bank in the United States named after a woman.

According to the book, The History of Floyd County, business began on February 2, 1891 in one office; and about April 1, 1892, the bank moved to a Main Street building, owned by A. J. Davidson.

Approximately nine years later, the bank purchased the site at the corner of First and Court Street, and constructed a modern bank building, which was destroyed in 1916 by a fire started in an adjoining building, the History of Floyd County states.

The bank then moved back to the law office of Walter Scott Harkins, where it continued to do business until its present building was completed on December 26, 1917, according to the History of Floyd

Bank Josephine has led the county's banking by providing new and innovative service for customers.

For more than 100 years, the bank was the only bank in the county to provide student loans to make it possible for customers to continue their education through low-interest, government guaranteed loans.

In 1965, Bank Josephine was the first bank to open a branch bank in Floyd County. The bank's first branch facility is located in Allen.

The bank also led the county's banking by being the first to introduce computerized checking accounts in 1969; and in 1970, it was the first bank to offer MasterCard services to Floyd County customers. The credit cards gave customers one local bank which could handle all their needs, with services ranging room of Walter Scott Harkins' law from an application for a credit card to a cash advance.

> Bank Josephine also led the way in offering bearing checking accounts or NOW accounts. In 1980, immediately following the legislation, the bank began paying interest on demand deposits.

Another service Bank Josephine was the first to offer customers an automatic Teller Machine at the Prestonsburg Branch in 1981. With automatic Teller Machines, ATMs, customers have access to their banking needs 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Five additional ATMs were put into service, making Bank Josephine accessible at more locations than all other banks in the county combined.

In 1989, the bank joined the CIR-RUS ATM Network, giving customers the use of their Bank Josephine card at thousands of location all around the world.

Today, Bank Josephine still offers all these services and many more to its customers. With all the personal service, quality financial products, and friendly people, its easy to see why the bank's motto is "We're your bank of yesterday, today, and tomor-

Continuity of care at Three Rivers

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

Continuity of care is an aspect of treatment for patients at the Three River Medical Center located in Louisa

"Traditionally, continuity of care implies that, when a patient is discharged from the hospital, an adequate level of follow-up care has been initiated. As medical director of the psychiatric program at Three Rivers Medical Center, I have observed how critical this can be." says Dr. Emmanuel Eze.

The whole objective is pursuing continuing care, preventing relapse, and ensuring the patient does not fall through the mental health provider cracks, Eze says.

That is a problem in Eastern Kentucky, according to the medical

"In this area, patients more often than not do not follow the discharge planning recommendations. Sooner or later, they relapse and are knocking on our doors again."

Three Rivers has taken steps to resolve that problem by continuity of care. The medical center, which is a 15-bed psychiatric facility, makes its patients' referrals before the patients go home.

The medical center tries to make the transition from the program to home as smooth as possible, Howard says, and takes the extra time and care to work with facilities in the patient's home area.

The medical center offers several outpatient services, including individual and group therapy, including recreational therapy, such as exercise, crafts, and occasional bowling trips. The medical center hopes to include fishing therapy in its treatment schedule.

Therapy also includes visits from guest speakers. Speakers depend on the type of patients being treated at the time, Howard says, explaining that if the center is treating patients with substance abuse problems, then speakers will focus on that topic.

Group therapy includes sessions tal health facilities close to their such as AA meetings and alumni meetings. The monthly alumni sessions are part of the medical center's Big Brother system, in which former Terry Dotson was born in Grundy, Virginia, where his dad worked as a service station operator and occasional truck driver. Growing up in Pike County, he washed United Parcel Service trucks and raced motorcycles after school. An avid trumpet player, he attended Pikeville College on a music scholarship.

After graduating in 1972, he took a job selling trucks because, as he recalled, it paid about three times as much as teaching. He quickly moved through the management ranks and in 1981, at age 31, was named president of Eastern Kentucky Mack.

"The reason we called our company Worldwide Equipment," Mr. Dotson said, "was to get the one word from the two initials, and that's WE. We wanted our people to think of it as their company."

Mr. Dotson still owns about 40 percent of the company.

Coal trucks were the lifeblood of the business throughout the 1980s, and the company's devotion to coal haulers earned it a solid reputation in an area that major truck manufacturers had overlooked for years.

Despite his success, Mr. Dotson realized that coal was a declining resource. In order to continue to grow, Worldwide needed to diversify into other trucking sectors.

"Every time a load goes out, the industry dies a little bit," he said.

Worldwide's approach to selling trucks was a little different. "We ask customers what they want us to

"We try to be somebody who will do more than deliver a truck. We want to be a business partner. If you want contract maintenance, we can do that, too."

When Mack decided to get out of the off-highway truck business, Worldwide bought Mack's entire inventory so it could continue to supply parts for customers over the next six or seven years.

Getting parts at a good price was a problem that turned into a golden opportunity for Worldwide.

"We realized there was a significant amount of the parts business that truck dealers didn't get," Mr. Dotson explained. "Wholesale-distribution companies did a better job, especially in selling high-volume replacement parts like filters. So we started our own

With the establishment of Service Parts Inc., Worldwide could offer customers much faster service. The company runs seven linehaul tractors out of Atlanta each day to bring truck parts into its own chain of stores. Customers can get parts not in stock the same day or overnight. A fleet of 25 delivery trucks also delivers parts directly to the customer or to a job site if necessary.

These initiatives broadened Worldwide's business and set the stage for the diversification of its customer base.

In the 1980s, 90 percent of its business was related to coal. Now it is only 40 percent. "Our real growth started after 1989," Mr. Dotson said.

The company began selling trucks to fast-growing fleets like Danny Herman Trucking of Mountain City, Tennessee, and Super Service, a refrigerated fleet based in Somerset.

They acquired a Kenworth franchise and set up truck leasing operations throughout the region. Recently it opened a dealership in Cincinnati and is looking at possible acquisitions in other cities in the South and West, perhaps as far away as Dallas.

The city recently opened another park on the south end of town. The Lancer Park has a walking track, basketball goals and a picnic shelter.

The city is also keeping its emergency equipment updated. In April, Prestonsburg purchased a 1,500 gallon pumper fire truck that will will help keep downtown businesses safe from fire destruction.

The city also purchased two 4wheelers for the Prestonsburg Fire Department. The equipment has been used to fight fires and for rescues in areas that even four-wheel
