BEFORE THE STORM

Shoppers flooded local supermarkets Thursday afternoon in response to weather reports which suggested the region would be hit Friday night by its second major winter storm of the year. Forecasts predicted that between four and ten inches of snow would fall in parts of Eastern Kentucky between Friday night and Saturday.

Default judgement is issued against former police officer

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A default judgment has been granted in a federal sexual harassment lawsuit filed against a former Wheelwright City police chief and the city commission because no response was made in the case.

Wheelwright city attorney Tim Parker said Thursday that an extension of time was granted to answer the lawsuit, but that the answer was filed past the 30-day extension previously granted.

Parker said that a motion would be made to reconsider the judgment. The city has hired attorney C.V. Reynolds to defend the action, Parker said.

In an order entered January 30 in the case of Tonya Farmer versus Tommy Engle and the commission, Judge Joseph Hood said that the defendants failed to enter a plea or otherwise defend the lawsuit.

Farmer filed the lawsuit last year and accused Engle of sexually harassing her and grabbing "an intimate part" of her body in the spring of 1995.

"For approximately eleven months prior to the incident, (Engle) has made numerous unwelcome sexual advances toward (Farmer), including a sexual assault and battery committed against the plaintiff's person during the spring of 1995. . .," the lawsuit claimed. "The unwelcome sexual advances have continued and are continuing up to the present."

Because Farmer resisted Engle's advances, the suit alleges, the former chief "repeatedly, stalked, stopped, detained and seized" Farmer on a false speeding charge.

Also, the suit claims that Engle "wrongfully" arrested Farmer after Farmer had an altercation with Engle's wife and that Engle "viciously twisted and injured" Farmer's arm and pulled her hair.

In 1987, Engle was named in and lost a civil rights lawsuit while he was a Martin City policeman, according to the suit.

"The defendant City of Wheelwright also had ample notice of the violent propensities of the defendant Engle," the suit said. "(Engle) has previously been adjudged a civil rights violator by this court in an action styled Thornsberry v Engle. . ."

Farmer complained of Engle's behavior to Mayor David Marlee Sammons and former commissioner Andy Akers, the suit said.

Farmer did appear at a Wheelwright City Commission meeting last year complaining about Engle.

Engle was fired in January because citizens' complaints had been made against him and because of Farmer's lawsuit, Mayor Sammons said in January.

Farmer's lawsuit does not specify the amount of damages being sought.

Fugitive is arrested in Florida

A former Floyd County man who escaped from a Tennessee jail this week turned himself in to law enforcement officers in Ocala, Florida, on Wednesday.

Sam Shepherd, also known as Sam Godsey, surrendered to the Marion County Florida Sheriff's Department at noon Wednesday, lieutenant Joe Cobb said Thursday. Shepherd waived extradition to Tennessee at a hearing Thursday, Cobb said. Florida has no charges pending against Shepherd, he added.

After his escape from a Jacksboro, Tennessee, jail this week, Shepherd stole a vehicle in Huntsville, Tennessee, Cobb said. Shepherd is also wanted in Ironton, Ohio, on fraud and larceny charges, the lieutenant added.

Local law enforcement officials were notified this week that Shepherd may be in the Allen area in Floyd County and received several leads that Shepherd was in the area.

Jim Lindsay, chief deputy with the Campbell County Tennessee sheriff's department, said Thursday that Sheriff Ron McClellan went to Florida Wednesday to bring Shepherd back to that state.

Shepherd was serving a three-year sentence in the Campbell County Jail after being convicted on several theft charges, Lindsay

Program is good news for jobless

by Patti M. Clark

Laid-off coal miners got something Wednesday morning that can make their pink slips look a whole lot better.

They got an opportunity. The Workforce Development Cabinet announced in a press conference at the Prestonsburg unemployment office Wednesday morning a needs-based program which will pay coal miners while they train for a new career, whether that career is truck driving or one of the new health-related positions that are in demand.

Displaced workers will receive training for the careers through a multi-million dollar federal grant secured with the help of the United Mine Workers of America and local, state and federal officials.

The grant is the largest of its kind that Kentucky has received under the federal Dislocated Workers Program and will be administered through the Jobs Training

State budget includes half the funds for PCC project

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

A request from Prestonsburg Community College for a new building could be filled — at least partially — if Governor Paul Patton's budget receives approval.

The budget calls for a cash disbursement of $5.5 million to PCC to build a classroom/health education building that would house the Student Health Clinic and Wellness Center, according to President Deborah Floyd.

The project is seventh on the governor's list of prospective projects.

But the amount is only half of what the school asked for to fund the building, and does not include an additional $5.45 million the school requested for a technology center on the Pikeville campus.

"It's not as much as we need to do all of this, but it's a good start," Floyd said.

State Representative and Majority Floor Leader Greg Stumbo said he thinks the chances are great that the college will get the building and he announced January 24 that the building would probably be shared by Morehead State University. "I am pleased that PCC will be the first community college to step up to the governor's challenge for cooperative ventures within the university system," Stumbo said.

Floyd said there have been discussions with Morehead State University focusing on a shared facility if funding is approved, but the current level of proposed funding is not enough to house both programs, according to Floyd. She said there has been no commitment between PCC and Morehead to build the building together.

Morehead has purchased property next to the Mountain Arts Center on which to build its Big Sandy Campus, according to John Rosenberg, a member of the MSU advisory committee.

He said there had been discussions but the plan to build a combined building is not final yet.

"There were serious and positive discussions in December and we agreed there is no need to duplicate brick and mortar in Prestonsburg for higher education," Floyd said. "They are welcome to use this facility, but there is not enough space to accommodate all our needs here right now."

The building for which PCC could receive funding was proposed to contain 69,700 square feet of floor space, of which 83 percent would be classrooms and laboratories. The cost of the building is estimated to be $9.85 million.

In addition to the Wellness Center and the health clinic, the building would house classroom space for allied health classes, the fastest growing field in the job market today, according to Floyd.

"We are high on the list and this is a vote of confidence by the governor for the people of Eastern Kentucky," Floyd said. "We will take it and design this building and then see what's left to bid the construction of it."

Stumbo said he will push ap-

Jobs project hits snag over grant concern

by Patti M. Clark

One unsigned piece of paper could keep the financing for an industrial site in Ivel from being approved.

And County Judge-Executive Ben Hale expressed his concern about that at a special meeting of the Floyd County Development Authority Wednesday afternoon.

"I can honestly say up front that this county judge is not going to sit here and accept liability without them being first in line for responsibility," Hale said, referring to R & S Body Company, the company that has the option to purchase 20 acres of the property on the U.S. 23 industrial site.

R & S has signed all other documentation for the loan work, but has not signed the paperwork to complete the agreement for a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG). The part of the agreement not signed, according to Bob Meyer, former judge-executive, includes requirements that the company create 77 new jobs when the plant construction is complete. The agreement, according to Meyer who has been working with Bill Smith of R & S, also includes the requirement that the company purchase the property and construct the building.

"I got the papers back from their attorney with all that stuff crossed out and frankly I'm concerned," Hale said.

While the project is expected to come in under budget and the $593,000 to be received from CDBG possibly might not be needed to be used in its entirety, Hale said he is not willing to commit the county to paying that money back if those jobs are not created.

Hale wants the papers signed before work on the project continues. "We need to have all the documentation before we spend severance tax dollars," he said.

The county has committed $1.4 million in coal severance funds for the project. Those documents also required the creation of jobs and construction of the company plant, but the repayment clause for those funds calls for a repayment of $585 per job or a little more than $45,000 if the jobs are not created. The CDBG funds require full repayment of the $593,000 if the 77 new jobs do not materialize.

"The difference is they're not paying it back dollar for dollar," Hale said. "That's quite a bit of difference in liability to the county."

The company now employs about 150 people and is expected to increase those numbers to about 223 when the building is completed, according to Meyer.

Authority member Buddy Fitzpatrick expressed his concern that

Senator's book offers recap of visit to Floyd

by Patti M. Clark

Senator Bill Bradley arrived in Floyd County in 1992 via a six-passenger, twin-propeller plane which landed at the Big Sandy Regional Airport.

The things he saw here in those few hours left an impression on his mind, enough of an impression that he included them in his newest book "Time Present, Time Past: A Memoir."

Bradley, a three-term Democratic United States Senator from New Jersey, is a former NBA basketball star with the New York Knicks.

He grew up in Crystal City, Missouri and attended Princeton University before going to Oxford University in England as a Rhodes Scholar.

He announced last year that he will retire from the Senate when his term expires in 1997 and it has been rumored that he will run for President after that.

Bradley made a stop in Prestonsburg during his 1992 tour. He returned in 1993 and is expected to come back this year as well.

Chapter 13 of the book focuses much of its attention on Prestons-

Wellness Center, health clinic celebrating one year at PCC

by Patti M. Clark

The Student Health Center and Wellness Center at Prestonsburg Community College is celebrating a birthday.

The centers opened a year ago last month and business is booming in both.

"When we opened the centers, our idea was that by keeping students well, we can keep them in class," PCC President Deborah Floyd said. "We're also working on their mental health with referrals and our dental hygiene program started this fall so that's covered as well."

It seems business is booming at both centers.

According to Chris Fleming, who works in the Wellness Center, about 120 Donovan Scholars use the center on a regular basis and there are between 175 and 200 visits to the center daily.

"It just keeps me going," Lawrence Howard, a senior citizen using one of the bicycles recently, said. Howard said he and his wife usually come to the center in the mornings.

The center offers the use of fitness machines and free weights, as well as courses in aerobics and karate. Students are allowed to use the facilities free of charge. Anyone else can use the facilities for $40 a semester or $1 per visit.

In addition to free weights, equipment available for use at the center includes a bench press, three treadmills, seven stationary bicycles, a recumbent bicycle, two low-impact climbers, a chin-and-dip station and an indoor rower.

The facility is open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

In 1995, nearly 16,300 people used the facility. In December alone, nearly 700 people visited the center.

Just around the corner from the Wellness Center is the Student Health Center. Both are located in the administration building.

For $84.75 for a five-month period, students at PCC have health care available at no additional charge.

"We do just about anything a family doctor can do," Elizabeth Griffith, a nurse with the center, said.

The rest of the staff includes Brent Davis, physician assistant, Betty Hunt, medical assistant, and Deirdra Bailey, social worker. Five local doctors consult for the clinic.

The clinic includes two exam rooms, a nursing station, lab and medical records office and, like the Wellness Center, was created by renovating music classrooms and practice areas.

"We're on top of each other here," Floyd said. "But these were important programs for us so it's worth it."

During November, the clinic recorded 385 visits in 20 days of operation and started 56 new patient charts. December totals included 171 visits in 14 days of operation and 16 new patient charts.

proval of the project.

"It will offer even greater educational opportunities for the residents of Floyd County and several other surrounding counties, he said.

Floyd said she is hoping to fast-track the project and her intent is "to go back and get money for the construction" of the building. But she is also hoping community support and donations will be forthcoming to help fund the building.

She said she hopes to raise additional funds by pushing a fund-raising campaign to start in the near future. "We've cut a lot of ribbons over time, it's time for a shovel," she said, referring to the opening of the Wellness Center and Student Health Clinic in renovated space in the administration building.

She said she will not stop asking for more money. "This is a $12 to $13 million project," she said. "We're going to continue to request support for the whole project. We have made pennies stretch into dollars and we're in great shape to move forward into a new century. We have a plan, a solid plan and it is a working plan."

R & S might not exercise its option to buy the property after the site is prepared. The agreement between R & S and the authority calls for the company to exercise the option to buy the property at a cost of $600,000 any time between July 31, 1996 and June 30, 1997.

"To build a building and create jobs, that's the purpose of the project," Fitzpatrick said.

"The scope of this project is based on creating those jobs," Hale agreed. "And they have an option to buy after the site is prepared, but how can I or the county put ourselves at risk for this?" Hale asked. "There's no possible way. The county made a big effort with the $1.4 million in severance money. Why should we be responsible for the rest?"

But Meyer said the worst case scenario is that an agreement can't be reached and the county won't have access to the CDBG funds to complete the project.

"We could possibly still complete the site preparation as planned without it," he said.

Meyer said the requirement for the new jobs originally was not going to be included in the language of the agreement, but state officials, who administer the grant funds, added the language that required the new jobs in the last few months.

He reminded the authority members that they knew the project, which includes construction of a sewer plant on the site, would be an expensive and complicated one from the start.

"I don't want this particular piece of paper to bring this project to a halt," Meyer said.

Hale said he was still concerned, however.

"I don't think we are in any position as a county government to put public money at risk," Hale said. "There's no possible way guys."

Despite the concerns around the table about the project, the authority authorized Burl Wells Spurlock, chairman, to execute a $231,000 loan to pay bills that have been incurred on the project to this date. They also agreed that Spurlock could continue negotiations on the $1.1 million loan needed to finish the project, but that loan could not be approved without R & S's signature on the CDBG loan papers.

"We are responsible for these bills. We have to pay them," authority member Paul Gearheart said. "But I'm concerned too."

Spurlock said local banks are concerned about the project and probably won't fund it without the guarantee that the CDBG funds will be available.

But Meyer emphasized that the project doesn't have to come to a halt. "I don't think we're at an impasse here," he said. "There are legitimate concerns, but I don't think we're at an impasse. There are people who want this project to move forward."

He said R & S has already started design work on the building. "We need to work out the kinks and I think we're at a point where we can do that."

Partnership Act. The state has received an initial commitment of $1.7 million with the promise that the grant eventually will total as much as $5.2 million over two years. The money comes from the U.S. Department of Labor.

Funds can be used to pay for tuition, books and expenses related directly to job training. Additionally the grant will provide a stipend to coal miners at the level of their last unemployment check. It begins when miners have exhausted their unemployment benefits and is available to miners through the end of 1997.

Rodney Cain, Secretary of the cabinet said he understands where coal miners are coming from and wants to help.

"I came from working people," he said. "And you don't understand their problems until you get into their heads."

Cain cited figures showing the constant decline of the coal industry over the last two decades. "In 1979, there were 50,000 people in the industry. By 1989 there were 30,000. Today there are only 23,000," he said. "This new economic opportunity allows us to reclaim the economic benefits in this region."

He said the program is an attempt to keep unemployed people in job training.

"It's hard to learn on a poor stomach," he said. "We want to open up people's minds and then they'll be ready to be trained."

"If we don't have a support system in place, we can't get them into training and keep them in training," said William H. Gaunce, executive director of the state Office of Training and Re-employment.

Cain emphasized that the program will utilize the $1.7 million to its fullest extent and if and when the rest of the grant comes in, those funds will be put to use as well.

"We have to realize that nothing is a certainty," Cain said. "It is prudent to talk about spending exactly what we have."

But he emphasized that a dollar is more than it appears. "A dollar is not just a dollar if you keep it in town and grow your businesses," he said. "A dollar can grow seven times in one day."

The grant is available to miners who worked in one of 23 counties in Eastern Kentucky and seven in Western Kentucky. The initial disbursement is expected to serve about 225 people with more positions to be funded in the near future. Any miner or other mine employee laid off since January 1, 1995 is eligible to participate if they live or worked in one of the counties. Local counties include Carter, Elliott, Lawrence, Menifee, Morgan, Johnson, Martin, Wolfe, Magoffin, Floyd, Pike, Lee, Breathitt, Knott, Letcher, Jackson, Owsley, Perry, Clay, Leslie, Knox, Bell and Harlan.

Howard L. Green, a UMWA official whose district includes Eastern Kentucky said this is a program that has taken a lot of work, but that it is essential.

burg and specifically Prestonsburg Community College and President Deborah Floyd.

He describes Floyd's fight to get more money funneled into the community college system, citing figures that show 46 percent of undergraduate college students in America attend a community college, but only 20 percent of money spent on higher education goes to that level of college. He talks about her efforts to develop the Wellness Center and Student Health Clinic and begin programs to improve the health of residents of the Big Sandy Area.

He describes her as "an extraordinary educator" who is "extremely disciplined in pursuit of her vision."

But Floyd isn't the only local Bradley mentioned in the book. Some he names, others he only mentions by title. He talks about the "yellow dog Democrats" of this area. "I don't care if a rattlesnake runs for office; if he's a Democrat, we'll support him," one local said to Bradley during a dinner at his home.

Bradley relates a piece of advice Floyd received from the Floyd County Sheriff when she arrived in Prestonsburg. "If you trade locally and pay your bills on time, you'll have a good turnout at your funeral," the sheriff advised.

He also mentions a possible family connection to Times reporter Susan Allen and relates a conversation the two had during the visit after Allen handed him her card, which read "Susan Bradley Allen."

The excerpt reads: "Oh, I joked, 'we're relatives.'"

"Maybe," she said. "There are a lot of Bradleys around here."

Bradley will be in Lexington February 11, where he will sign copies of the book from noon to 2 p.m. at Joseph-Beth Booksellers. Joseph-Beth has said it will donate 20 percent of the store's sales of the book at $26 per copy to PCC.

The book is also available at Ritchie Hallmark in Prestonsburg, and Art & Gift Shoppe in Pikeville. Sale of the book at those stores will also benefit PCC.

Iced tea advisory revised by health officials

Although Floyd County restaurants haven't had any problems with unsafe iced tea, county residents should be aware of a few changes in the state's brewed iced tea advisory.

Further testing of brewed iced tea samples throughout the state has prompted Kentucky's Department for Health Services to update its policy on safe holding temperatures for iced tea made by food establishments.

The new policy says that brewed iced tea does not have to be stored at refrigerated or hot holding temperatures.

The policy still requires that all tea brewed from leaves be prepared in water maintained at 175° Fahrenheit or higher for at least five minutes continual brewing. The tea can be safely held for a maximum of eight hours from the time of brewing. In addition, all equipment used to brew and hold the tea must be thoroughly cleaned and sanitized prior to brewing.

Evidently, that's something restaurants in Floyd County have been doing right.

"Restaurants here have been pretty well thoroughly brewing their iced tea," John Bailey, health environmentalist with the Floyd County Health Department, said Tuesday. "Once it goes through the boiling process, it's hot enough to kill bacteria."

Bailey said the tea advisory issued by the state mainly concerned the use of tea bags and sun-tea. Tests conducted by the state health department's laboratory in September revealed high counts of coliform bacteria in more than 70 percent of the 73 samples from food establishments in seven areas of Kentucky.

Nearly 40 percent of the 73 samples tested positive for fecal coliforms. The 73 samples were taken at food establishments in the Northern Kentucky Health Department district, Fayette County, Franklin County, Louisville/Jefferson County, Lake Cumberland Health Department district, FIVCO (Ashland area) Health Department district, and Laurel County.

No incidence of unsafe iced tea was found in Floyd County, according to Bailey.

Dr. Rice C. Leach, state health commissioner, said the primary cause for the high coliform counts found in tea served by most of the retail food establishments tested last fall was related to poor cleaning and sanitization of the storage and dispensing equipment.

"The new tea brewing procedures focus on brewing temperature, and equipment sanitization, but do not require that brewed iced tea be held at 'safe' hot or refrigerated temperatures," he said.

Follow-up tests of six of the Northern Kentucky food establishments that originally had high levels of contamination showed that all but one improved dramatically.

Recent analyses of samples of known contaminated tea leaves showed that a certain holding temperature is not necessary when tea brewing equipment is operated according to health services new standards and the manufacturer's specifications using properly cleaned and sanitized equipment, because bacteria is killed, John Draper, the state health department's food safety and cosmetics branch manager, said.

Brewed iced tea that is improperly prepared can cause intestinal illnesses due to bacteria that gets on the tea leaves during the drying process, packaging and transportation from countries in mostly tropical climates. The warning does not apply to instant tea because the process to make the tea kills bacteria.

The tea brewer and storage dispenser should be thoroughly cleaned and sanitized daily. Hoses, spigots and other components should be disassembled for proper cleaning and sanitization. Retail food establishments should handle brewed tea in a manner that prevents cross contamination, including thorough hand washing.

The question of whether or not brewed iced tea in restaurants is safe surfaced when a restaurant patron in Cincinnati complained that his iced tea smelled like sewage. That prompted an Ohio study, which discovered the contamination problem.

Draper noted that homemade brewed iced tea should be handled properly to prevent contamination. People should clean equipment by conventional manual dish washing methods and sanitize by using approved disinfectants or boiling pans, equipment and utensils used to brew or dispense tea. People making homemade brewed iced tea should follow the same temperature and time recommendations for brewing as restaurants.

For more information about the proper handling of brewed iced tea for retail food establishments or home use, contact John Bailey at the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788 or John Draper at (502) 564-7181.

Health department to expand hours

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Starting in March, the Floyd County Health Department will be serving even more people than it is now.

The department is expanding its hours and will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. The department is now open from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The new schedule begins March 4.

"We wanted to be open when more people could use us," Jane Bond, a spokesman for the health department said. "We were hearing that the department wasn't open when some people could use it. We want to be open at hours when people need us."

She said any type of service now offered during regular hours will be available during the longer hours starting in March.

"Only the special clinics will still be on an appointment basis," Bond said. "And we're working at getting some doctors to be here for the later hours for those as well."

One of the reasons the department is expanding its hours is to make services available to teenagers.

"They were telling us they couldn't use the services we were telling them about because they couldn't get out of school without their parents' permission," Bond said. "Now we'll be able to meet their needs as well."

For employees of the department, that means a change in work hours, too.

Employees will now work a four-day week with three ten-hour days and the fourth a seven-and-a-half-hour day.

"This will let the staff off too on days when they can take care of doctor appointments and dentist appointments and other business," Bond said. "That way, they won't have to use vacation time to take care of that kind of business. It should help employee morale."

But she said employees aren't adjusted yet. "It's going to take some getting used to."

The program is modeled after other health departments that have extended hours. "But I don't know if they are offering the flex-time schedule or not," Bond said.

The lives we save...

by Scott Perry

We've often been critical of our government leaders when their actions are perceived as intrusions into our private concerns, but there are occasions when the line separating personal rights and public needs is too thin to make a real difference.

Such is the case with legislation currently under consideration in Frankfort that deals with teen driving privileges.

Statistics show that Kentucky has the unfavorable distinction of leading the country in the number of youthful deaths in auto accidents, and the General Assembly is attempting to address that deplorable stat by toughening teen licensing requirements.

It is the proper thing to do.

Among the stricter provisions under discussion is one that would require young drivers between the ages of 16 and 18 to complete a course in drivers' education before becoming eligible for a license.

At first glance that would appear to be a no-brainer, particularly to those of us who turned sweet sixteen way back when nearly every high school around offered drivers' ed as a routine elective.

But times have changed, and many schools have found themselves without the resources, in people and money, to continue those classes. As a result, too many kids are getting behind the wheels of cars without the knowledge or experience they need to be safe drivers.

So, yes, let's mandate drivers' education; let's put it in all of our high schools as required curriculum; and let's fund the program adequately.

The money we spend will not be an expense, but an investment in lives and safety.

Is there any better way to spend money?

Welform reform action penalizes local children

Editor:

The revolution of the 104th Congress has brought the discussion of welfare reform into the national limelight. Most of the discussion has focused on how to save taxpayers money by forcing people off of welfare rolls.

Very little discussion has centered on how to help families get out of poverty or the responsibilities of both parents to their children or how economic development and health care reform and a myriad of other reforms are inextricably tied to welfare reform.

Two different welfare bills were passed by Congress and vetoed by President Clinton. These bills signaled the end of our nation's commitment to provide at least basic sustenance to the most vulnerable people in our society.

They block granted funds to the states so that states could develop their own programs, yet still included many federal strings and few contingency funds for times of crises.

The rules included time limits that did not take into account individual circumstances and work requirements without appropriate supports or applicability to the job market or individual.

This last rule could put parents in a position of having to choose between leaving their children unattended because there are not enough child care funds or not fulfilling their work requirement.

In both instances, we as a society have put the children at risk—they either will be left alone or their source of food and shelter will be cut off.

Kentuckians for the Commonwealth (KFTC), along with others, is working in Kentucky for effective and fair welfare reform that is based on helping people to meet their needs and achieve their goals.

Central to KFTC's efforts are the ideas that welfare reform must have a fair and statewide system that continues to provide a safety net; be an incentive based system; have work requirements with adequate supports and applicability to the job market and individual; and place responsibility for the children's well-being with both parents.

If you are interested in finding out more information on welfare reform or getting involved with KFTC's efforts, contact KFTC at P.O. Box 1450, London, KY. 40743.

Lack of adequate land disqualifies school

Editor:

I applaud Mr. Derek Hicks' excellent letter (FCT 1-24-96) concerning the Prestonsburg High School.

It was very thorough and logically presented. The facts and issues he detailed would seem adequate to prevent the waste of $9.7 million of taxpayer money on this outdated hulk.

But this is Floyd County where we favor the cult of the individual rather than the welfare of the people.

I would like to add two additional bits of information to Mr. Hicks presentation.

Kentucky state law requires that a potential high school campus have an enetical 10 acres land for the main building; and 1 acre of land for each 100 students.

With PHS's present enrollment; 18 acres of land for a campus is required.

This is not possible at the present site. Additionally, Kentucky state law prohibits the construction—and presumably—the reconstruction of a school building in the flood plain.

This alone would seem to eliminate the present site from consideration as a campus.

But as Paul Harvey says, we need to know the rest of the story.

It is said that some people want to freeze our present and further generations of students in a perpetual "Happy Days" scene at "their" high school—a kind of shrine to the glory of their youth, and this being Floyd County, they will most likely succeed.

Martin woman defends pig

Editor:

I am writing about the pig that the Martin Texas Rangers shot.

It's a shame you can't have anything anymore for people who try to run things the way they want to.

I had a pot-belly pig and I know for a fact that they won't bite. They are pets. I gave mine to two little girls and they play with it.

If it had been mine they shot, they would pay. I live outside of Martin and I don't go down there no more than I have to.

People have told me about how the law is down there, but they shouldn't shoot people's pets and laugh about it.

I am a mad concerned senior citizen.

Charges dismissed after witness fails to show

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Charges of first degree wanton endangerment sought by the wife of an Allen City Commission against an Allen man were dismissed Wednesday when the complaining witness failed to attend a preliminary hearing.

John Cory Patton, 19, is accused of throwing a homemade bomb at the home of Commissioner Billy Salisbury on January 6. Patton's twin brother, Phillip Patton, is charged with fourth degree assault for an alleged altercation with Salisbury.

Salisbury's wife, Greta, swore out four charges of first degree wanton endangerment and one charge of possession of a destructive device against John Patton after the explosion at her home on January 22.

The Salisbury's testified last week in a contempt hearing concerning Phillip Patton on the assault charge that the two families have had a long-standing feud and that Phillip Patton had violated the terms of his released by coming within 500 feet of her husband.

Additional charges of second degree stalking and menacing were lodged against Phillip Patton by Salisbury because of an alleged incident in Prestonsburg prior to the contempt hearing.

Floyd District Judge James Allen ruled that Phillip Patton had violated a restraining order and ordered him jailed until a February 28 hearing.

On Wednesday, a preliminary hearing was to be held for John Patton, but the Salisbury's did not attend to testify. County attorney pro tem John Mann moved to dismiss the charges because the complaining witnesses failed to appear.

The Patton's attorney, John Coleman, also asked Judge Allen to reconsider Phillip Patton's bond. Judge Allen granted Coleman's motion to reduce the bond.

Authority will consolidate bills at city office

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

To eliminate confusion between agencies and payments passing back and forth, the Floyd County Development Authority agreed Wednesday to pay all the bills associated with the tourism building on North Lake Drive.

In return, three other agencies that share the facility will pay the authority $225 a month.

"Each will now share the costs of the building equally, but it won't be a billing nightmare," Lisa Burchett, executive secretary of the authority said.

Participating in the agreement with the authority will be the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission and the Kentucky Opry.

The decision to streamline the use of the building came about after Burchett realized that the chamber owed the authority about $1,300, but the authority owed the chamber $1,200.

"We are just passing money back and forth," she said. "It's a logistical nightmare."

Bob Meyer and Burchett said they met with the chamber last week, looked at all the bills associated with the building, including equipment charges and cleaning services, and came to a monthly bill total of $820.

"This would amount to $205 per month prorated," a document states. "In order to cover unexpected costs, we propose $225 per month to be paid to FCDA by the Kentucky Opry, chamber of commerce, and the tourism commission."

explained. Shepherd, a jail trusty, apparently walked away from the jail through the front office, Lindsay said.

"A con man is what he is," Lindsay said. "While he was out, he called the sheriff several times and threatened to shoot him. He also called two detectives and threatened to blow up their houses. He called a lot of times, but we could never trace them."

Lindsay added that charges could be brought against Shepherd related to the threats.

As to the theft conviction, Shepherd would apparently purchase merchandise through credit cards or other means and then sell the goods to people without the items being paid for, the lieutenant said.

"He would go buy things on credit, then go sell it and disappear," Lindsay said. "He would buy things like four-wheelers and have the paperwork and turn around and sell it. The people who bought it didn't know it was stolen merchandise."

Shepherd is also wanted in Indiana, and West Virginia for writing worthless checks, Lindsay said.

One that did not get away!

Prestonsburg goes to overtime to subdue Allen Central, 76-75

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Heard about the big one that got away?

Well, the Prestonsburg Blackcats, who have become accustomed to letting the big ones get away, could tell you about the big one that didn't get away.

Coach Jackie Pack's Prestonsburg Blackcats jumped out to an early lead then had to go into overtime, their fourth of the season, to hold off Allen Central and win for only the fifth time this season.

Jason Bevins hit a front end of a two-shot foul in the overtime to give the Blackcats a 76-74 lead with just 18 seconds showing on the scoreboard.

It marked the fourth time this season Prestonsburg has had to go to overtime and the first time the team was able to pull out a victory.

Prestonsburg lost in double overtime at home against 16th ranked Ashland. They fell by one point to 14th Regional power Breathitt County and lost to tenth Region power Harrison County on a last second shot. It hasn't come easy for the Blackcats.

Allen Central's Thomas Jenkins continued his torrid scoring, finishing with 38 points. He had a previous career-high 48 points against Betsy Layne earlier this season.

But Jenkins could not carry the load alone as the next big scorer for the Rebels was Jason Baker, who netted 17 points. After that Todd Howard scored six and Brian Crawford five.

Sophomore center Andy Jarvis had one of his on-again games and led Prestonsburg with 23 points. Wes Samons added 14, with four three-point baskets, and freshman Joe Campbell came off the bench and was very impressive with 11 points. He hit two critical shots for the Blackcats.

Senior point guard Brett James hit three treys and finished with nine points and Bevins finished with seven points against his former team.

Allen Central's final lead came at 74-73 on two free throws by Jenkins with 1:02 to play in overtime. Poor defense down low allowed Jarvis to score easily for Prestonsburg and the Cats took their 75-74 lead with 41 seconds to play.

Baker missed an eight-foot jumper off the base line and Samons came away with the rebound. He hit Bevins with a pass on the base line and Bevins was fouled by Baker, his fifth, with 18 seconds to play. Bevins made one of two to give the Cats the two point lead.

Down by one, Allen Central sent Samons to the free throw stripe with just five seconds remaining. Samons missed the front end of the bonus shot and Jenkins came away with the rebound. Jenkins fed Gary Hunter up court and Hunter was tripped up heading to the basket. The ball jarred loose and he had to chase it down, but could never get a shot off as the horn sounded the end of the game.

Allen Central fans pleaded for the foul to be called but their pleas

The Osborne Elementary Lady Eagles outscored the Lady Cougars of Melvin 13-5 in the fourth quarter and posted a 36-29 win and advanced to the finals of the Section II grade school tournament at Wheelwright gym.

Margaret Morgan and Tamela Justice led the fourth period charge that erased a 24-23 Melvin lead at the start of the fourth quarter. Morgan scored six points in the final stanza and Justice had five Prestonsburg roared out of the gate and built a quick 13-5 lead behind Jarvis and J.P. Skeens. Jarvis scored seven first-quarter points and Skeens had four free throws. But Jenkins scored six unanswered points to narrow the margin to 13-11. Samons drilled a three-pointer and Jenkins followed with a jumper as the quarter ended with Prestonsburg holding a 18-15 lead.

With 3:41 to play in the second period, Prestonsburg took a 27-24 lead on a basket by Jarvis underneath. Allen Central caught the Blackcats at 27 on a three-pointer by Todd Howard and then ran off eight straight points for a 35-27 lead. Jenkins' bank shot kept the lead at nine, but Prestonsburg got a basket from Jarvis and Samons' long, long three beat the clock as Prestonsburg trailed 37-33 at the half.

Allen Central went on a 7-0 run to end the third period and gained a 56-49 lead over Prestonsburg heading into the final period.

Skeens had a rebound basket and Joe Campbell buried a three-pointer to make it a two-point game, 58-56 Allen Central.

After Jenkins scored inside,

Shannon scores 26 as McDowell surprises Osborne Eagles, 62-53

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Osborne Eagles, one of the Floyd County Grade School Tournament favorites, will have to wait until next year to win a county championship after being upset by the McDowell Daredevils 62-53 in the opening round of the Section 2 tournament at Wheelwright Tuesday night.

The Eagles had a star-studded team and one of the best in the county. But McDowell, still another talented team out of Section II, will be the one that advances to face Melvin for the championship.

McDowell, Osborne and Melvin were ranked as three of the top teams in the county and many felt it was a shame that one would be eliminated — unfortunately that one was Osborne.

With the win, McDowell guaranteed itself a berth in the county meet next week at Betsy Layne. But coach Brett Rose would love to enter the tournament a winner.

Ryan Shannon, as he has done all season, led the Daredevils with 26 points. The south paw hit two treys in the game and scored 14 points in the first half. He was

Newsome tallies 37 as 'Cats roll, 86-56

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

In front of a good girls' basketball crowd at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, senior April Newsome scorched the nets for 37 points to lead the Lady Blackcats easily past South Floyd, 86-56, in conference high school basketball play Monday night.

Newsome buried five three-point baskets and hit an unusual four of five free throws. Junior Crystal Layne tossed in 23 points and freshman Shelly Greathouse netted 16 points.

Senior Tiffany Compton led the Lady Raiders with her 24 points after going scoreless in the first quarter. Prestonsburg could not contain Compton once she got the ball down low.

The Lady Blackcats' full court pressure defense was too much for South Floyd as they could not solve the press in the first half. Prestonsburg raced to a 45-26 half-time lead after leading 25-9 at the first stop. The Lady Raiders scored the final seven points of the second quarter to cut the lead to 19 points after trailing by 26 earlier.

South Floyd turned the ball over seven times in the first quarter and had 20 for the game. Prestonsburg never let up on the press for the entire game.

South Floyd, playing without the services of starter Jenny Meade (one-game suspension), led briefly in the first quarter on a basket by Melissa Tackett, 5-4. Tackett scored all nine points for the Lady Raiders in the first period. She had one three-point basket.

Newsome hit two of her five treys in the first stanza and Layne had one for Prestonsburg.

In the third quarter, there were anxious moments for Prestonsburg as South Floyd made a run that cut a 19-point lead down to nine. Compton took charge of the South Floyd offense and scored ten of 12 points that cut the lead to 48-39 with 4:26 to play.

A disgusted coach Harold Tackett immediately called for a Jessi Burke, in a strong outing on the floor as well as the boards, finished with eight points. Amber Leslie had two.

Missy Tackett finished with nine points for South Floyd. Chrissy Tackett added seven points, her lowest total in the past five games. Crystal Tackett netted six.

Couch, Leslie County to visit Rebels Tuesday

If you missed watching Kentucky's Mr. Football, Tim Couch, during the past football season, then you will get an opportunity to watch him and his Leslie County team play the Allen Central Rebels Tuesday night at the J.E. Allen Fieldhouse.

Couch, who has announced he will sign with the University of Kentucky to play football next season, is eighth in the state in scoring with a little more than 25 points per game.

A Look At Sports :

County tournament put on hold until after meeting

The Floyd County Grade School Tournament has been rescheduled for February 6 at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse in Betsy Layne.

The tournament was to have started on February 3 at Betsy Layne, but due to a scheduling conflict with the high school, the tournament start date had to be changed.

Betsy Layne Elementary principal Karen Allen had hoped to hold the first round of the tournament on a Saturday, February 10, but other scheduling conflicts stopped that. The weather forced such a format last year and it became very popular with fans.

Sectional play got underway this week. All sectionals should be completed by Wednesday or Thursday night.

In last Wednesday's sports we announced that Osborne and McDowell were favorites to come out of the Section 3 tournament. We erred big time. Melvin has already won a berth in the county tournament by getting a first round bye in their own sectional. We are sorry for the misprint.

When the sectional tournament begins, the records that each team compiled during the regular season and how a team fared against each other during the regular season play means nothing. It is how a team performs in the tournament that determines who will advance on to the final eight teams.

In the boys' division, there are some clear-cut favorites, but in the girls' ranks anything could happen. It is even and a number of teams could win it all on a given night. Some teams will be overlooked because "we beat them twice during the regular season." Well it doesn't matter how often one team has beaten another. Can they do it a third time.

Section 1 — I think Duff and Martin will represent the boys and it will be a battle between Maytown and Duff girls as to who will win it all, but you can't count Martin out of it either.

Section 2 — Melvin is already in while Osborne and McDowell will have to battle it out to see who will be the second boys' team to come out. On the girls' side, McDowell and Osborne look good right now. Melvin could surprise one of them.

Section 3 — I consider this the second toughest section with Betsy Layne and Stumbo to battle for the championship. But look for both teams to advance on to the county tournament. The Stumbo girls and Prater Creek Lady Cougars are my picks to come out of that section.

Section 4 — I think the consensus is that Adams and Allen will play the championship game of the Section 4 tournament. Adams beat Allen twice during the regular season, but that doesn't mean anything. For the girls, Allen has a talented team as well as Adams. Auxier will have to face one or the other in the first round with either Adams or Allen waiting in the wings for the winner.

Girls' final eight: (Section I) Duff, Maytown; (Section II) Osborne, McDowell; (Section III)

Stumbo, Prater Creek; (Section IV) Allen, Adams. Boys' final eight: (Section I) Duff, Martin; (Section II) Osborne, Melvin; (Section III) Betsy Layne, Stumbo; (Section IV) Adams, Allen.

- Host schools for sectional tournaments.
- Section I - Martin
  - Section II - Melvin (Wheelwright gym)
  - Section III - Betsy Layne
  - Section IV - Allen

When the tournaments start and you want to see some good basketball, take in the sectionals and by all means the county tournament.

CONGRATULATIONS TO YONTS
Anthony Yonts became only the third player in June Buchanan history to score 1,000 points or more. He did that against Letcher County last week.

Buchanan is having a great season at 14-2 and they have four of our players over there: Jeremy and Jason Osborne, Matt Crawford and Yonts. We wish them the best the rest of the way.

ALL HIGH SCHOOL COACHES
I need your make-up game schedule.
SPRING TRAINING
Just think, major league baseball will begin spring training in two weeks. Wow! The only thing good about that is that spring time will be closer.

The Reds are trying to build the best team in the National League Central Division — of old timers. The latest to sign: Vince Coleman.

Add him to Trevor Howard, Gene Harris. What do you have? An old-timers league.

The St. Louis Cardinals will battle the Houston Astros for the Central Division title.

I'VE HAD ENOUGH, HOW ABOUT YOU!

I don't know how many of you feel about professional sports, but I have had enough of it all. Can you imagine a Deion Sanders bad-mouthing everyone else at a bar because they dressed in jeans and he wore the best of attire. Sickening, that's what it is!

Because of Deion, and I am an Emmett Smith fan, I was hoping the Steelers would win big over the Cowboys.

I just don't care for it. We have enough football, baseball and basketball hoodlums who are not projecting a very positive image to our young people.

WALKER TO TURN PRO?

Well, you would think that by watching the many mistakes of Rodrick Rhodes that Antoine Walker would have learned something. But evidently he hasn't as talk has him considering tossing his name into the lottery for the June NBA draft.

You have to be kidding. He is fortunate to be playing at UK. Not that UK is fortunate to have Walker. Attitudes and hard play have always impressed me. Walker has neither.

Here is one that hopes he does what he says he may do — enter the draft.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Feathers ruffled after man shot by dog

by Mark Grayson
The Martin County Sun

The news spread fast when folks in Martin County first heard of a freak shooting incident involving a couple of bird hunters and their dog on Monday, January 25. Curt Smith of Coldwater, was shot in both legs by shotgun pellets when the Springer Spaniel hunting dog he and companion John Phillips of Tomahawk were hunting with. Smith was standing up the hill from a small gully where Phillips was retrieving a quail from "Rusty," a three-year-old spaniel, when the dog jumped and hit the safety mechanism on Phillips' Winchester 12-gauge shotgun and then the trigger, which caused the accident.

More than 60 pellets from the gun hit Smith, who was standing about 25 feet up the hill.

Media in other areas quickly jumped on the story, which was reported last week in the Sun. Soon other papers from Williamson to Lexington got the story. The story was picked up by the national media. The story ran on NBC and CBS newscasts, radio shows, and was reported in newspapers across the nation.

Rumors of calls from Jay Leno of the Tonight Show and other national media were rampant last week, but only confirmed calls came from Inside Edition and People magazine, who both contacted the Martin County Sheriff's office. Talk show host Rush Limbaugh picked up on the incident and poked fun at the incident, one Martin Countian said.

Some of the callers were seriously interested in the story, but most were interested in poking fun at Martin County and, perhaps, mountain people in general.

The incident brought back memories to some of the Bill Moyers interview in the 1970s that told of the poverty in Martin County while never mentioning the nice homes and intelligent people who make up the vast majority of Martin Countians.

Curt Smith's wife Linda said Saturday that her husband is home after a week-long stay in Highlands Regional Medical Center recuperating from the gunshot wounds.

"He is still very sore and we don't know how long it will be before he is completely better," she said. Linda has refused to give interviews after getting several insulting calls from radio and TV stations all over this country and Canada. And Linda doesn't think all the hoopla, including calls from Inside Edition and other TV and radio shows asking about the incident, is a bit funny.

Linda said it was especially irritating when an Ontario, Canada radio station called and acted the parts of Andy Griffith and Barney Fyfe of Mayberry while asking about the incident.

"I can understand why someone might think a dog shooting someone is humorous, but they never asked how Curt was or anything. They just wanted an interview so they could make jokes about us."

She added, "One of the stations that called even wanted to take the dog into the hospital room and take a photo of it with Curt."

Martin County Chief Sheriff's Deputy F.D. "Pete" Fitzpatrick said he answered calls from all over the country about the incident. He estimated at least 20 calls came in to the Sheriff's office alone.

"A person from a radio station in Portland, Oregon handled the thing seriously and was very polite about it. But others, some from as far away as Florida, were definitely trying to capitalize on the 'hill-billy concept' by asking how big a town this was while they were snickering," Fitzpatrick said.

The incident was definitely no laughing matter to local game warden Ken Goforth. "Hunters need to be more aware of the danger that exists when hunting with dogs. Even though they are bred and trained for hunting, dogs can be quite unpredictable at times."

Death of 15-year-old boy found in Levisa Fork ruled an accident

by Christopher Hunt
Appalachian News-Express

Virginia State Police Sgt. B.I. Sparks ruled the death of Edward Allen Skeens, 15, of Mouthcard, accidental. Skeens was found dead Monday, January 22, floating on debris in the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River.

Skeens was reported missing Saturday night, January 20, after the pickup truck he was operating rolled into the river near the Kentucky-Virginia state line. The truck was in the parking lot of a Shell Mart when Skeens was reportedly asked by his friend, David Lawson, to warm up the truck.

Lawson told Virginia State Police (VSP) Trooper George Bell he came out to the parking lot and saw where the truck had broken through a fence and rolled into the river, but there was no sign of Skeens. It is still not known how the accident occurred.

Pike County Coroner Charles Morris said the cause of the death had been determined to be drowning, but the toxicology report wouldn't be ready for a couple of weeks.

The truck was found the next morning, about 200 yards down river, and Skeens' body was found about six miles down the river from the Shell Mart, near Feds Creek.

Skeens' disappearance was originally thought to be a missing person case by the VSP, because it was thought Skeens possibly ran away when the accident occurred.

A helicopter was used to scout the area as soon as authorities were notified and divers searched the river Sunday and Monday, working their way down river from the site of the accident.

Several emergency service agencies assisted with the search.

Project at Yatesville Lake included by Governor Patton

by Jerry Pennington
The Big Sandy News

Governor Paul Patton raised some economic hope in Lawrence County with his two-year budget proposal by including two projects for Yatesville Lake.

If the governor's budget is passed, Yatesville Lake would receive $1.173 million next year to build a marina at Barker's Run boat ramp and the county may receive $2.2 million for a campground.

"We worked hard with this governor and tried to stress the importance of this project for Lawrence County,"

Representative Rocky Adkins said. "We hope we can get enough support in the House and Senate to support his recommended budget."

In his State of the Commonwealth address January 22, Patton said he expected the state would have an excess of $205 million in cash at the end of the fiscal year.

Half of this will go to construction projects across the state, which include the projects at Yatesville.

The marina project in the state will receive funding if the governor's budget is passed.

"We're ecstatic," Yatesville Lake Resource Manager John McGinn said. "A marina is very much needed at this time."

McGinn said these projects would get things going at the lake, while at the same time help the overall economy of Lawrence County.

"It can only do good things for Yatesville Lake," McGinn said.

"People from other counties will be renting (boat slips) and they'll be pumping money into the area."

If funding is approved, the marina would include a head dock with a 1,500 square-foot sales area and 140 boat slips.

The campground would consist of 60 individual lots complete with a pool and bathroom.

Besides the lake projects, the governor's budget also called for construction of a new $1.1 million highway maintenance garage.

Adkins said this is a much needed project for Lawrence County because the current state highway garage is outdated and needs to be replaced.

Also included in the budget proposal is $5.5 million for new classroom facilities at Ashland Community College, Adkins said.

They were arrested and lodged in the Pike County Detention Center. Coleman was also charged

Getting help

Here are ways to find the right doctor and treatment for your specific situation.

- First, get a good diagnosis. This usually means seeing a mental health professional, not simply a family practitioner.
- Second, see a psychiatrist or therapist who specializes in your illness. They should be affiliated with a college or university, or referred by one.
- Third, contact one of these organizations for more information and support.

Johnson County's recycling center faces possible shutdown

by Tony Fyffe
The Paintsville Herald

Johnson County's first attempt at recycling appears to be failing, with Apple Valley Sanitation's one-year-old recycling center laying off its entire workforce and facing a possible shutdown because of low participation.

All seven employees of the Hager Hill facility have temporarily lost their jobs, although the center remains open with Apple Valley truck drivers helping out when they're not on the road, company owner David Lusk said Tuesday.

"We're going to run it on a very limited basis," Lusk said. "We'll hire people back as soon as participation and blue-bagging increase."

Apple Valley offers recycling as a free and voluntary service to its customers. But the company's regular customer list is at an all-time low, Lusk said, and less than ten percent of the customers are recycling.

A report Lusk presented Thursday, January 28, to the Johnson County Solid Waste Commission shows that Apple Valley has lost a total of 1,141 customers since a mandatory garbage ordinance was passed in 1991.

In 1991, Apple Valley had 5,500 customers, Lusk said. As of January 28, 4,432 people were signed up, but that total will dwindle to 4,359 because 73 customers are behind in their bills, he said.

Low participation is putting Apple Valley in a "cash flow crunch," Lusk said, noting that the company presently has more than $32,000 in unpaid garbage bills to collect.

"Jobs have been affected tremendously," Lusk said.

Lusk said he blames low participation on lack of enforcement by Johnson County officials. Since the current fiscal court took office in 1994, 322 customers have either quit the service or been cut off by Apple Valley because they didn't pay their bills, according to Lusk's report.

Although the recycling service is voluntary, Lusk said he would get better participation if the county would enforce the mandatory provision of the garbage ordinance.

Lusk also said that county officials have not embraced the recycling program the way they should. He said he has received good response from Paintsville officials, noting that Mayor Robin Cooper, who is also chairman of the solid waste commission, sent letters to city residents asking them to recycle.

"It's a question of leadership," he said. "They ought to lead by example."

While Lusk lays the blame on county officials, fiscal court members have said that Lusk has discouraged participation by implementing strict payment and sign-up requirements.

The fiscal court last year delayed action on a plan to enforce the ordinance until they could meet with Lusk and discuss rates and other issues.

Phase one of the plan began two weeks ago with an advertising campaign.

The campaign, sponsored by the solid waste commission and funded by the fiscal court, includes paid advertisements that will run in The Paintsville Herald.

The second phase of the plan will be letters that will be sent to residents who are not signed up for garbage service. The letters will give violators time to sign-up before they are taken to court and ordered to participate.

Lusk said he will wait until the enforcement plan runs its course before deciding what to do about the recycling center.

"I'm going to do my best to keep it open as long as I can," he said.

Location picked for new school

A new school to replace Oil Springs Elementary will be located at Jenny's Creek, the Johnson County School Board decided Monday.

The decision comes after months of deliberation by the board and protests from residents of Oil Springs who didn't want to lose their school.

The board said building a new school on the present site was not feasible and that no other suitable location could be found in Oil Springs. Pending state approval, the new $4.5 million elementary will be constructed on property owned by the Hazel Davis heirs on new U.S. 23, about seven miles from the current school.

While students from the Oil Springs area will have to travel farther to attend school, the distance for pupils in the Jenny's Creek, Staffordsville and Little Mud Lick areas will be shorter than what it is presently.

Also Monday, the board created the position of construction manager for the project. Former Paintsville Schools Superintendent Leon Burchett was named to the post. He will serve in the position 100 days. — Paintsville Herald

No funds for Paintsville Lake

Paintsville Lake made little waves in Governor Paul Patton's proposed 1997-98 state budget, with Patton not including the 12-year-old facility on his list of top construction projects for the next biennium.

Absent from the list is funding for additional facilities at Paintsville Lake. State Senator John David Preston said the lake is included "near the top of the next 25 priorities."

Local officials have been pushing for several years to get funding to build cabins and camping and swimming areas at Paintsville Lake.

Both Preston, a member of the Senate budget committee, and state Representative Hubert Collins said they would try to get money for the lake. — Paintsville Herald

Magoffin man killed in wreck

A Salyersville man was killed Tuesday morning on U.S. 23 when a produce truck turned into his path, causing him to strike the truck in the passenger side.

Police said Randy Barnett, 35, was traveling north in his 1990 Chevrolet truck when the produce truck turned into his path at the intersection of Ky. 645.

Barnett was pronounced dead on the scene by Lawrence County Coroner Aaron Moon.

The driver of the 1990 GMC produce truck, Bernice L. Robertson, 60, of Fort Gay, West Virginia, was taken to Three Rivers Medical Center where he was treated and released for minor injuries.

Police said neither man was wearing seat belts. The accident happened at about 5:50 a.m. Tuesday morning. — The Big Sandy News

Former Magoffin superintendent barred

Former Magoffin County schools Superintendent Carter Whitaker has been permanently barred from administrative jobs in the Magoffin schools system, according to a state board vote Monday.

The Education Professional Standards Board also suspended Whitaker's teaching certificate for 15 years after it found the former superintendent guilty of 15 charges.

The board based its decision on a hearing officer's 115 page report that found Whitaker guilty of excessive expenditures, failure to get board approval before spending district money, and abuse of his position.

Whitaker resigned as superintendent in June of 1993. All five of the county's school board, who had been charged with allowing Whitaker's abuses, also resigned.

The board's action was brought when Whitaker was hired as a math teacher after he resigned as superintendent. — Staff report

Final pre-trial hearing set in Kelly Goble case

A final pre-trial hearing in the Kelly Goble rape case has been set for Friday, February 9 in Johnson Circuit Court in Paintsville. Goble has been charged with 25 counts in two separate cases for 1st Degree Rape, 1st Degree Sodomy, and 1st Degree Sexual Abuse (girl under 12).

Judge Stephen "Nick" Frazier ordered all motions in the case to be submitted by January 1 and the pre-trial hearing will be conducted to hear those motions.

U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood granted a prosecution motion to move the case to Ashland because of extensive publicity during the first trial. The trial is scheduled to begin February 1, with Hood presiding.

Starnes was indicted on one count of conspiracy, three counts of cocaine distribution, one count of distributing painkillers and one count of possession with intent to distribute painkillers. — Appalachian News-Express

School bus, ambulance collide at intersection

An unloaded Pikeville Independent School bus sustained thousands of dollars' worth of damages when struck by an ambulance Thursday morning, January 25.

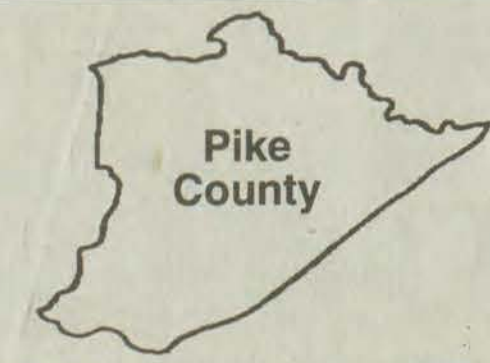

Pikeville City Police said William Maynard, 25, was driving a Med-Tech ambulance, transporting a patient who had been in a traffic accident on Raccoon Creek to Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Authorities said Maynard had the emergency equipment activated when he approached the intersection of the By-Pass and Huffman Avenue.

Deborah Crum, 45, had a green light at the intersection, and failing to hear or see the ambulance approaching, proceeded through.

Maynard failed to stop at the red light, according to police, and struck the bus in the westbound lane. The force of the impact spun the bus around 180 degrees onto Huffman Avenue.

Both Crum and Maynard were transported to Pikeville Methodist Hospital, where they were treated and released. No information was available on the condition of the patient being transported in the ambulance, who was taken to Pikeville Methodist, as well. The accident is still under investigation. — Appalachian News-Express

Thirty county teachers may lose jobs in fall

Thirty Pike County school teachers could be without a job come August, due to decreasing enrollment during the 1995-96 school year.

The cutback was mentioned at the special board of education meeting held January 23 to discuss next year's budget. No specifics were given on which teachers or grade level would be affected most by the cutback.

Board members voted to approve the 1996-97 draft budget for $60,459,343, which includes a budgeted balance of one-half million dollars at the end of the fiscal year. — Appalachian News-Express

Starnes retrial moved to Ashland

A federal judge agreed Thursday, January 25, to move the trial of a former Pike County judge charged with dealing drugs.

The first trial of former District Judge Randall Starnes in U.S. District Court at Pikeville ended in a mistrial December 6. Five of the 12 jurors felt that Starnes was guilty but that he had been entrapped.

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

Latest Nicotine Urges: Connecticut inmate Frank W. Banks, assigned to a no-smoking prison, was convicted in December of mailing harassing letters to a judge; Banks said he thought threats via the U.S. mail would cause him to be sent to a federal prison, where he could smoke. And in November, three stranded Alaska hunters radioing for help claimed they had been without food for three days so the rescue would be treated as an emergency; actually, they had a week's worth of food with them but panicked because they had run out of cigarettes.

THE ENTREPRENEURIAL SPIRIT

— The owners of a new Chevron gas station in Oakhurst, Calif., received an official blessing by their neighbor, Catholic Cardinal Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles, which included the pumps, a snack area and an advertisement for Marlboros. And earlier in the month, Father Matvei of the Russian Orthodox Church blessed the $30 million expansion of the Coca-Cola plant in Moscow.

— The New York Times reported in December that a patent had recently been granted to Jeffrey Holden of Humble, Texas, for a decoy to ward off burglars. The device is simply a face mask of a person holding open a shutter or blind and peering out. (The face appears to have limited utility because, unlike time-controlled house lights, the face never moves until the owner takes it down.)

— In December, magazine salesman Samuel A. Erby, 20, was charged in Euless, Texas, with assault after he attacked an 88-year-old woman, reportedly because she had just declined to buy a subscription from him. And in June in Fort Collins, Colo., a 22-year-old man working in his yard suffered a similar fate when he declined to buy a subscription from a Denver salesman.

— In October, the Alexandria (La.) Daily Town Talk reported that Sheriff Bill Belt and Judge Michael Johnson own telephone businesses that give each a cut every time prisoners in several local jails make calls from pay phones. According to the newspaper, the judge made $85,000 from Avoyelles Parish jail calls last year, and the sheriff has similar contracts with the jails in seven parishes.

— Among products recently brought to market: sandals, handbags and accessories under the A Bomb label, from Tokyo's Mode et Jacomo (whose public relations director said she thought "A Bomb," in English, signified "cute"); the Peace Missile golf club and companion putter, made from melted-down Soviet Union nuclear missiles, in San Rafael, Calif.; China's Soft Soap (and its competitor, Seaweed Defat Soap), which according to the Preventive Medicine Society removes body fat in 76 percent of cases.

— Among tourist-attraction theme parks recently proposed: one modeled after the Berlin Wall (armed guards, re-enacted escape attempts) in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; an amusement park at the $5 billion, never-used Kalkar, Germany, nuclear power plant (with the cooling towers holding up the roller coaster); the Navy Glory Center tribute to the Cold War in Vladivostok, Russia (charging visitors $700 to fire a Soviet missile); and the Billie Sol Estes Museum in Granbury, Texas, featuring papers and artifacts of the notorious fertilizer-tank swindler of the 1960s.

— In October, a judge in Belfast, Northern Ireland, rejected plans for a proposed restaurant called School Dinners that would feature meals served by young women in short skirts wielding whips against patrons who did not clean their plates. Though opponents called the restaurant immoral, the judge said merely that the mock spankings would constitute "entertainment," which is forbidden by the lease. Said one disappointed supporter, "We have had 25 years [of oppression]. Now is the time for the fun to come flooding back."

— Fortune magazine reported in October on the foresightedness of Procter and Gamble in registering names for potential exclusive Internet addresses. It won the right to use, among other names: toiletpa-

by Scott Perry

Glad to see that our state legislature is adding some restrictions to the bill that will allow Kentuckians to carry concealed weapons, including one stipulation that it will be against the law to shoot your wife or husband with one.

The House committee reviewing the new legislation tacked on that new restriction this week, prohibiting anyone with an emergency protection order filed against them from carrying a concealed weapon.

That means that violent couples will have to keep their guns, knives, baseball bats and even fists right out in the open where their, um, sparring partners can see them, or they'll be in big trouble with the law.

There are some other peculiar aspects of the law, including some fine print in its ban of concealed weapons on school grounds.

That prohibition applies to everyone...except people who have the permission of the school board to carry concealed weapons.

It's not that we don't trust school boards to properly administer the law, it's just that we don't see any logical reason for providing that loophole.

Police and security personnel usually carry their weapons out in plain sight, so why would anyone else need to pack a concealed weapon anywhere near a school?

At any rate, proponents of the new law suggest that it will serve as a deterrent to crime and they offer statistics from other states to back up their claims.

But we don't see why Kentucky has to do it just because other states do.

In fact we think Kentucky ought to set an example for other states and make everybody carry their guns out in the open.

At least that way we'd know who was armed and who wasn't, which would certainly prove to be a greater deterrent to violent crime and cut down on the number of accidental shootings that, no doubt, will result from instances when people shoot first in alleged self-defense and ask questions later about whether or not their victims were also armed.

If possession of a gun by law-abiding citizens is, in fact, a way to reduce violence, let's carry them out in plain sight and really make a showing.

Besides, that's already legal, isn't it?

12 Monkeys

The concept of time travel has spawned more than its fair share of movies, books, and TV series. In fact, it has even cropped up on such diverse shows as "Star Trek" and "Bewitched." This movie is yet another rendering.

Bruce Willis portrays a man named Cole, a prisoner of the state in Philadelphia. The year is 2035 and a mysterious plague is destroying nine out of 10 people it hits. Fortunately, scientists narrow down the onset of the plague to the year 1996 in, of course, Philadelphia.

In order to combat it, time travel is mastered and Cole is chosen to be sent back to 1996 to gain whatever information he can to help the future scientists come up with a cure. As is the usual case with this time-travel thing, Cole is not to alter any events.

Brad Pitt is Jeffrey Goines, a fanatic whose father is a brilliant scientist (portrayed by Christopher Plummer). Jeffrey becomes the head of the 12 Monkeys gang, which is set to plant a manmade super virus during an animal-rights protest against a lab which does tests on animals.

Poor Cole. When first he "lands," it's 1990 due to an unfortunate miscalculation in the time travel mechanism. Promptly declared insane, he winds up in an institution. The time machine rescues him and places him in 1996, where he should be. However, now he's being hunted as that escaped lunatic from 1990! The only person who seems to believe Cole is telling the truth is Madeleine Stowe, cast as the love interest.

Pitt is brilliant as the crazy Jeffrey. Unfortunately, Willis just doesn't deliver. It's as if he merely walked through this flick as it was being shot.

All in all, I'd give it a two-star rating. However, if you're fascinated with the idea of time travel, you might want to check this one out.

'NEAT STUFF' AT MOREHEAD

Morehead State University has some "neat stuff" lined up for its February entertainment roster.

Prestonsburg resident Scott Bradley will perform Sunday, February 4, at 3 p.m., during a percussion recital in Duncan Recital Hall at MSU. Bradley will accompany Michelle Lewis of Louisville.

February 5, Steve Trash will bring his one-man show to MSU. His performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the grill on the second floor of the Adron Doran University Center.

Trash's newest lecture and magic show, called "The Eco-Lecture with Neat Stuff," is described as inspirational, funny and an amazing lecture about ecology and recycling.

A nominee for the NACA Lecture of the Year award, he has appeared on CBS "This Morning," and CNBC's "America's Talking."

Beatrice Kerr, internationally known AIDS and HIV educator, will speak on the MSU campus on Tuesday, February 6. Her talk, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Breckinridge Auditorium, is being held in conjunction with "Awareness Week."

The show is sponsored by MSU's Student Government Association and Student Activities Council.

Kerr contracted the HIV virus from her high school sweetheart in 1987 while a sophomore in college. Fear of rejection by her friends and expulsion from school forced her to remain quiet about her health for a period of time.

To prevent others from following in her footsteps, Kerr began speaking out on AIDS in a campaign that took her across the U.S.

In addition to presentations on numerous high school and university campuses, Kerr has appeared on CNN, CNBC, MTV, "Donahue," and "The Jenny Jones Show." She also has been featured in "Shape" and "Glamour" magazines as well as "The New York Times" and "Washington Post."

On February 7 at MSU, comedian John Heffron will present his comedic routine in Breckinridge Auditorium. The performance begins at 9:15 p.m.

Described as having a quick wit, insight and a unique approach to everyday situations, Heffron has developed a wealth of clean material on topics such as growing up, dating, and life in your typical dysfunctional family.

He has been the opening act for such concert performers as Tim Allen and Robin Williams.

Heffron's campus visit is being sponsored by MSU's Student Government Association and Student Activities.

All MSU activities listed are free and open to the public. For more information, call (606) 783-2071. Additional information about Bradley's performance is available by calling MSU's Department of Music at (606) 783-2473.

Fat-free, at last, fat-free, at last, thank goodness, all righty, I'm fat-free at last

My dreams have finally come true.

With kindest regards to the Food and Drug Administration, my lifelong dream of being able to endlessly indulge my cravings for carbohydrates has now become a reality with the discovery of the miracle drug Olestra. I'm not sure what weight reducing ingredients it contains, but at this point I'd eat toad's eyes and bat droppings on a Ritz cracker if I could lose weight. Nonetheless, I rank its discovery right up there with those major medical breakthroughs—Penicillin and Nutrasweet.

As with every new product that comes on the market, there are risks involved. Olestra is no exception. One drawback is that it produces a mild laxative effect which in no way poses a danger to my system, nor does it scare me. (After waiting all my life for this scientific phenomenon to occur a little loose stool isn't going to deter me.) The other drawback is that it may leach important vitamins from the body. (Doesn't science recognize cellulite and cholesterol as vitamins?) Despite these warnings, Olestra should be hitting our grocer's shelves before bathing suit season.

Smile Awhile

Sara Hopson

Take it from a woman who totally understands the meaning of the words "crunch and munch." If I haven't crunched, I haven't eaten. Even eating a sandwich without accompanying it with chips is irrelevant. In fact, I consider myself a potato chip connoisseur. A snob about no-name brands. To put it bluntly, I'm a carbohydrate junkie. A woman who can eat her weight in chips, and can still salivate afterwards. And I've got the stretch marks from yo-yo dieting to prove it.

I'm also a purist about chip eating. I don't dip 'em, or place them in a container before ingestion. I eat them directly from the bag, which is usually perched on my lap as I lounge in the recliner, or as I'm fixing supper, driving in the car, taking a bath, writing articles, applying make-up, performing CPR; mundane, mindless tasks. But my fat days are over. When Olestra hits the shelves I'll be thin again quicker than you can say, "Bet you can't eat one."

I'm also not a chip wimp either. Such bravery on my part actually presents one of the few problems associated with my fetish: I munch them till my lips bleed. The bloody aftermath is a swollen, sore mouth, shameless proof of my addiction.

Another side-effect is water retention. On two-bag days, my body holds more water than a two-humped camel at an oasis. I swell to such grotesque proportions that I look like a sumo wrestler on prednisone. Quite frankly, it's a disgusting sight. Visualize it. Not many people want to hang out with a bloated woman with bleeding lips. That's why I suppose chip eaters spend a lot of time alone in front of the television. They're probably the ones for whom the phrase "couch potatoes" was coined.

In the end, Olestra may be my Waterloo as far as my weight is concerned. Ten years from now the FDA will probably release a study which concludes that people who consumed Olestra in the 90s and experienced weight loss will gain it all back—in their ears.

SOAP UPDATES

ALL MY CHILDREN: Julia told a shocked Mateo and Noah that Taylor was never pregnant. Liza decided to seduce Tad. Hayley, unaware that Mateo was trying to get Taylor to tell all, assumed he was becoming too close to her. Later, Taylor was able to get Vivienne to leave the country before being called to testify. Adam apologized for his ultimatum and Brooke agreed to give him another chance. Dimitri felt Erica's last hope lay with the Betty Ford Center. Later, Kelsey overheard Maria tell Edmund she might be pregnant. Wait To See: Michael faces a new crisis.

ANOTHER WORLD: Cecile was shaken by Maggie's revelation that she never loved her mother. Frankie accused Felicia of being a homewrecker. Sensing Grant was about to confess to killing Ryan, Vicky agreed to his marriage proposal. Jake, however, planted a seed of doubt in Grant about Vicky's agenda. Andrew began keeping a record of Morgan and Courtney's schedules at the hospital. To Nick's chagrin, Maggie assured Sofia they'll become friends. Wait To See: Gary's past continues to create problems for him.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Lucinda sensed Mark's deepening attraction for Lily. Mike realized he had to do some hard thinking about Carly. Barbara continued to run down Margo for an increasingly worried Hal. Meanwhile, Margo's strange behavior prompted Tom to consider a difficult decision. Lisa and John became increasingly worried about Margo as well. Dani did some soul-searching. Wait To See: Sam faces some hard facts about her blindness.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Sheila managed to make Ridge believe that she had to with the letter accusing Brooke of having Bridget's paternity test "fixed." Sly seethed with anger when Jessica broke their engagement. Brooke was stunned when her mother, Beth, questioned her about the letter. Eric wondered if he might, indeed, be Bridget's father. Macy wouldn't allow the police to search Spectra for the missing Forrester designs. Sheila wondered if Mike was responsible for the letter. Wait To See: Lauren sets her cap for Ridge.

THE CITY: Samuel told Sydney his daughter had been kidnapped, and that her safety depended on Sydney's decision about the merger. Jocelyn told Malcolm that Alex was investigating him in connection with the call girl ring. After Nick accused her of blowing him off in favor of Jared, Sydney jolted Nick with the news that Jared was dead. Ally saw Danny and Molly kissing. Wait To See: Jacob's "surprise" really stuns Angie.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Celeste told Stefano Lexie is her daughter. Later, Stefano told Celeste he planned to take Marlena to Europe, but meanwhile, he wanted Celeste to know he believes John is innocent. Austin and Sami grew closer through their love for their baby. The Woman in White told Marlena "the dead man talks." As Vivian came closer to believing Victor would be hers again, Kate came closer to landing back in Salem. Wait To See: Hope faces new danger.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: After his arrest, Ned accused Edward of being a control freak. Lois later questioned Ned about the Japanese pharmaceutical firm. A rattled Bobbie inadvertently awakened Jason's sexual feelings. At Mac's suggestion, Lois met with corporate buy-out artist, Jasper Jacks. Jason told his family he doesn't want to remember them. At the Grand Jury hearing for Katherine, Lucy managed to get a reluctant Sigmund to "testify." Laura returned home. At their wedding, Lily asked Sonny a question as Brenda watched from the back of the church. Wait To See: Lois makes a curious discovery.

GUIDING LIGHT: Lucy tried to make Brent believe she wanted to leave Springfield with him. Matt told Alexandra he knew Amanda from California. Hart gently urged Dinah to open up about Roger's betrayal. To prove Roger was wrong about Ross, Blake asked her husband to let them try for a baby that night, but Ross rebuffed her and went off to sleep alone. Brent dropped a bombshell on Alan and Buzz's plan. Rick blew up when Annie asked him to lie for her on the stand. Wait To See: Reva faces a new crisis.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Viki voiced jealousy over Clint's friendship with Carlotta. Nora and Bo cracked the code revealing the message: "Poseidon On Board, Meeting Set for March One with Neptune and Atlantis." After being drugged, Alex awoke with a diamond bracelet and rose tattoo on her wrist. After learning that Asa used the code name, Neptune, Bo confronted him about Lord Cove. Meanwhile, Poseidon told Bass to get the explosives expert in as soon as Asa changes the date of the meeting. Blair tricked Patrick into helping her bring Baby Starr home from the hospital. Wait To See: Bo may be too late to save Asa.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Amy told Nick she was concerned over where Matt might be hiding, because he could still be dangerous. Chris was upset with Danny for leaving her a tape of their marriage and honeymoon. Victor tried to warn Nikki about marrying Brad, but she accused him of trying to own her. Olivia told Nathan that because of his affair with Keesha, they may now be dying of AIDS. Kay persuaded Dina to come back to Genoa City to see John. Phyllis delayed signing the divorce settlement. Wait To See: Chris begins to wonder about her real feelings for Danny.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Early in the week, a friend comes to you with a secret to share. However, this becomes a complicated issue as the week wears on, making you somewhat uncomfortable. Spend time this weekend on an unfinished task.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a great time to see and be seen, particularly with relatives. However, some extra expenses are possible, particularly where travel is concerned. This weekend, you are confused by a problem on the domestic scene.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're too impatient this week for your own good. Remember, you can't accomplish everything you want all at once. Slow down and get the job done right. A family member disagrees with you over a career concern, but you must persevere.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your pride can sometimes get in the way of you getting the job done. It's okay to ask for help if you need it. A financial proposition made by a partner needs more delving into before coming to any sort of a decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You have the urge early in the week to get off by yourself and just dream. If possible, take some time off and indulge. The inspiration you receive as a result of your little respite is well worth it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Not everything is crystal-clear this week concerning a job worry. There's more going on behind the scenes than you think. A co-worker holds the key to all this, so start asking questions. Approach romance with a clear head.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The beginning of the week is marred by petty bickering with a family member. However, peacemaker that you are, all ends well by midweek. In romance, it's best to keep your feet planted firmly on the ground.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partners need to make some decisions regarding the use of joint assets, particularly any savings. Your instincts about a certain co-worker's veracity are on the mark. This person not only exaggerates, but flat-out lies.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A friend is a bit too demanding of your time now. You need to set this person straight. Later in the week, you'll treasure extra time for yourself. This weekend, a family member has a tendency to get on your nerves.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You're just not in the mood this week to keep your nose to the grindstone. Instead, you want to kick up your heels and have some fun. However, it must be work first and social life second to avoid problems with bigwigs.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A business associate has some useful information concerning a situation at work. On the home front, you are right to suspect that a family member isn't giving you the whole story. Do some further investigating.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's a week when you won't be in any mood for crowds. You deal better now one-on-one and should keep it that way. A business proposition is not what it appears to be. However, you quickly recognize this.

TUNING IN BY SALLY STONE

IN FOCUS: Ed Marinaro, whom TV audiences first met when he played Officer Coffey on "Hill Street Blues," and then followed him into the successful series, "Sisters," is starring in a new ABC show, "The Champs," which also stars "Spenser: For Hire's" Ron McClarty, "thirtysomething's" Timothy Busfield and "Saturday Night Live's" Kevin Nealon.

"We have all been part of a championship basketball team in high school," Ed says, "and we've remained friends all that time. My character is Vince Mazzilli. And what's interesting is that I was playing golf with Lee Mazzilli, the former New York Mets player, when I learned I had the role."

The series was created by Gary David Goldberg ("Family Ties" and "Brooklyn Bridge"). Marinaro says that "In some ways, the show is very close to Gary's life and this helps give it a sense of reality; that here we have close friends who have each gone his own way after high school, but have not grown so far apart that they lose that special camaraderie they first developed on the basketball court."

Marinaro is a former football star who played for Cornell University and then moved into the pros as a member of the Minnesota Vikings and then the New York Jets where teammate Joe Namath introduced him to the wonderful world of acting.

DIAL TONES: On February 18, The Family Channel airs "The Night of the Twisters," starring John Schneider in a story about how a family bonds together to survive a series of killer tornadoes that strike during one terrifying night.

J.T. Walsh, who stars in an NBC pilot called "Dark Skies" (it's all about UFOs!) and in SHOWTIME's upcoming production, "Phantom" with Mario van Peebles, was asked how he honed his performance as John Ehrlichman in the film, "Nixon." Walsh said that unlike the time he played Bob Woodward and met the man himself, this time he chose to "take Ehrlichman off the page" and watched tapes of interviews the former White House staffer gave over the years. He also keyed in on Ehrlichman's Christian Science faith to try to "explain his conflicts."

HOME TIPS

DAILY MEDICATIONS—I have a good tip for people on medication.

List all medications on a recipe card, include the dosage and how often taken. Put this in a plastic sleeve and tape it inside the medicine cabinet. Be sure to include any over-the-counter medications.

If you have to call an ambulance, you can't always remember. Rita Y., Hettinger, N.D.

SHORT CUT—After preparing a cooked frosting on the stove top, my recipe instructed me to remove it from the heat and beat. It was so hot, it wasn't coming up to frosting consistency quickly enough.

I placed a hot pad over a reusable freezer ice pack for coolers or lunch buckets and placed the saucepan on top, continuing to beat. It set up so quickly that this method has replaced the "bowl of ice" method in my home. Kathy M., Bethesda, Md.

FROZEN SOLID—When you buy frozen shredded potatoes and you get them home to find them frozen into a solid lump, don't panic. Dump the mass into a colander and run cold water over them. They separate quickly. Drain, pat dry between paper towels and cook.

Sure saves hitting the package on the counter. It works great with frozen veggies also. Betty H., Terra Haute, Ind.

STAINED HANDLES—I had an awful-looking cooking utensil set hanging on display. They had been put in the dishwasher repeatedly, and the wooden handles had become discolored.

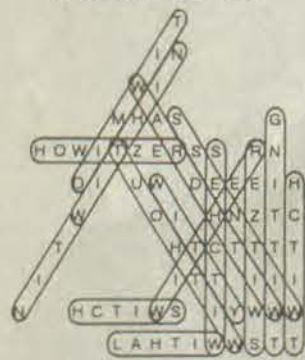

I thought of buying new ones until I decided to re-stain the handles. They are more beautiful than ever.

It saved a little money that I could use for something else. Shirley F., Olathe, Kan.

BLANKET TIP—When we bought our king-size bed, we bought new sheets and cases, but did not want to discard our good double-bed blankets.

I simply put them on sideways, and since we are not tall, I did not need to tuck them in at the foot. However, sewing strips of old white sheets on the bottom could provide tuck-in material. Denise C., Metairie, La.

You Deserve It!

(NAPS)—You can be a better parent, experts advise, if you're happy with yourself as a person. It pays, they say, to be good to yourself as well as to your children.

One place that helps many single parents do both is Parents Without Partners. The largest single parenting organization in the world, it offers members many benefits including social opportunities and financial advice. There are educational programs; recreational activities for adults and families; a newsletter/"maga-paper"; access to group insurance; purchasing discounts; and scholarship programs.

Pancake Panache

(NAPS)—Updated and in sync with today's trends, this delicious Puffy Pancake is a refreshing variation of a traditional favorite. Gone is the vision of the cook flipping cake after cake, while the rest of the family dines. This fluffy pancake is prepared in a baking dish in the oven, so everyone can eat at the same time.

Convenient, too, it uses the best of "speed scratch" with a batter made from Bisquick baking mix and an easy canned fruit pie filling. A pancake with style, 1990s fashion.

PUFFY PANCAKE

*2/3 cup water
1/4 cup margarine or butter
1 cup Bisquick Original baking mix
4 eggs
1 to 2 cans (21 ounces each) fruit pie filling (any flavor)*

HEAT oven to 400°. Generously grease rectangular baking dish or pan, 13x9x2 inches. Heat water and margarine to boiling in 2-quart saucepan. Add baking mix all at once. Stir vigorously over low heat about 1 minute or until mixture forms a ball; remove from heat.

BEAT in eggs, two at a time, with spoon; beat until smooth and glossy after each addition. Spread in pan (do not spread up sides).

BAKE 30 to 35 minutes or until puffed and dry in center. Immediately spread pie filling over pancake. Garnish with nuts. Cut into rectangles; serve immediately. 8 to 10 servings.

One-Half Recipe: Use pie plate, 9x11/4 inches. Divide ingredient amounts in half. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Bake 23 to 28 minutes. Cut into wedges.

High Altitude Directions (over 3500 feet): Not recommended for use.

Bisquick® Reg. T.M. of General Mills, Inc.

Migraine Impacts Marital Relationships

(NAPS)—A new national survey shows that the pain and pressure of migraine headache not only affects the lifestyle of sufferers, but also their non-sufferer spouses. Almost one in three sufferers surveyed reported that their migraine had an impact or played a contributing role in their personal relationship with a spouse or partner.

In the survey, conducted by Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, NJ for Glaxo Wellcome Inc., sufferers and their non-sufferer spouses responded similarly (24 percent and 23 percent respectively) when asked if migraine has had an effect on the frequency and quality of sexual relations.

Of the 27 percent of spouses who reported that migraine attacks cause tension in their relationship with the sufferer, 34 percent reported that the tension is serious.

More than one in three (36 percent) spouses reported feeling frustrated when their spouse cannot participate in activities during a migraine. More than half (57 percent) of non-sufferer spouses reported that social activities were commonly delayed or postponed due to migraine including plans to entertain family, friends or colleagues (32 percent).

Nine in ten non-sufferer spouses indicated that they were the primary support to assume household responsibilities during a migraine attack, and more than half (56 percent) of spouses reported that they avoid or keep their distance from the sufferer during a migraine.

Seventy-two percent of spouses reported that they are fairly to very concerned about their spouse's migraine attacks.

One non-sufferer spouse, when asked to describe an example of an experience that best describes the impact of migraine on his marriage, and how it made him feel said, "The wait in the emergency room...leaving work to get to the emergency room. It makes me feel a lot of anxiety and some fear."

For married couples, at least, migraine is indeed a headache. If you have headaches and suspect they may be migraine, see your physician for an appropriate diagnosis and treatment program—because your family may be suffering as much as you are. Sufferers can also call 1-800-377-0302 for a booklet titled, Chart Your Route To Relief, A Personal Migraine Management Program, or write to Chart Your Route, P.O. Box 816, Medford, NY 11763-0816.

With the help of a remarkably efficient high-tech microfiber, Micro-Supreme, manufactured by Cytec Industries Inc., acrylic socks are more comfortable than ever and longer lasting.

Homeowners can get a Well Owner Information Kit from the American Groundwater Trust for $15 check or money order from Well Owner Information Kit, AGWT, PO Box 1796, Concord, NH 03302.
