Tables turned on drug-fighting agency

The Mountain Area Drug Task Force finds itself on the opposite side of scrutiny as allegations cast a cloud of suspicion, but many of the problems cited in a newspaper report were already under investigation by the task force itself, director Frank Fryman said.

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

Allegations of mismanagement and wrongdoing by members of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force as reported in a state newspaper's stories recently may have surprised some readers, but they were not news to task force officials.

We were already looking at all of the issues addressed throughout the articles," Frank Fryman, director of the nowdefunct task force, said Tuesday afternoon.

Fryman said he was already looking into potential search warrant problems before the Lexington Herald Leader published the story alleging that Chuck Hall, officer manager of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department, might have forged his wife's name to get search warrants issued

Donna Hall, Chuck Hall's wife, is a trial commissioner for Floyd County and is permitted to sign search warrants even though she is not an attorney. The search warrants that were allegedly forged included Chuck Hall's name on the affidavit required to accompany the warrant, the only instance that occurred on any of the search warrants issued for the task force in Floyd

Even now, after all the problems the task force has had, including investigation by a federal grand jury, Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley said he has always been impressed by the work of task force agents. He has represented two defendants who were arrested by the task force. One entered a plea to a misdemeanor charge, reduced from a felony. The other "swung a deal" and was required to turn in 20 other defendants.

That might have been one of the most solid cases investigated by the task force," Bartley said. "They had video and audio tapes of him. He was pretty much in trouble."

He said in the other case there was some "pretty decent pho-

'They were excellently prepared cases," Bartley said. "Even I would have had a hard time at trial. If the task force brought in a case today, I would prosecute it."

Council member gears up to fight hike

by Chris McDavid Staff Writer

The residents of Martin have already been stuck with a hike in water and sewer races, and now may be faced with an increase in gas rates. But a Martin City Council member is trying to encourage residents to join together to defeat the gas increase.

In the June 19 issue of the Times, a notice proposed a rate of $7.60 per MCF for natural gas, a current rate of $6.7175 for the first thousand cubic feet and $6.6007 for each additional MCF.

Martin City Council member Sherry L. Ratliff said Monday she spoke with the Public Service Commission in Frankfort and was told a hearing hasn't been set at this time, but people could write to the commission to voice their con-

"I urge everyone to write a letter and voice their concerns," Ratliff said. "City of Martin residents are already faced with a hardship because of higher water and sewer rates imposed in March.

Jerry Madden, office manager of the Martin Gas Company in Hindman, said Monday that he was told the proposed rate was a result of a price increase imposed on the gas company from its distributor.

Mayor Alan Whicker said Tuesday he opposed the gas increase. "An increase would put that much more burden on the Former county official back in jail after flunking drug test

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

A former deputy judge-executive is spending a few days in jail after he violated his probation requirements for a second time.

Jimmy Stumbo was arrested in Lexington on July 3 after testing positive on a drug screen. Stumbo is expected to stay in jail until an August 9 sentencing hearing before Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill. Caudill said he was "disturbed and perturbed" that Stumbo had violated his parole after he Stumbo could receive up to a year in prison on the charge.

Stumbo pleaded guilty February 17, 1995 to charges of drug trafficking and theft of public monies. He was accused of stealing $2,900 in county funds by filing bogus expense vouchers in order to obtain money to buy drugs.

County's 911 scaled back to basic for start

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

Residents of Floyd County shouldn't expect to dial 911 any time soon and get a response, even if the county decides to implement the basic service before it goes with enhanced.

At least three things need to be accomplished before the county can put even the basic service into place with the Kentucky State Police, members of the 911 board learned Friday, July 12.

According to Chris Waugh, deputy county judge-executive, those three requirements include:

· An interlocal agreement between Floyd County and the Kentucky State Police which allows the KSP to answer emergency calls for county emergency providers.

· Completion of boundary lines for service providers.

· And, making sure communications between the providers and the dispatch officer are working.

The board took the first steps toward getting the communications on line Friday when it approved the consideration of pagers for members of volunteer fire departments and discussed securing four additional frequencies for use by dispatchers and providers.

According to County Judge-Executive Ben Hale, the pagers will "expedite the calling out of volunteers. This is an essential part of our whole system," he said.

The use of pagers eliminates the need of an intermediate number. "The calls go from the dispatch office straight to the volunteers with the pagers," Hale explained. "Now, we have to call a home or a business to get in touch with someone to send out the call for the volun-

Waugh said the pagers will help provide better service. "They will be the heart and backbone of our whole system," he said. The four new frequencies will be "clean" and will be used for the dispatchers to talk with the agen-

Floyd man is accused of lewd behavior

by Patti M. Clark

Editor's note: Some readers may find parts of this article to be offensive.

A Betsy Layne man was arrested Tuesday afternoon for allegedly exposing himself in public.

According to Prestonsburg City Police officer Anthony Castle, arresting officer in the case, Bruce Ward reportedly stood near the trees in the back corner at the walking track at Prestonsburg Community College Sunday afternoon and exposed himself to at least two women who were walking on the track.

Castle said Ward, 38, ejaculated in front of the women on the track.

Dr. Don Chaffin said he wasn't surprised when they called his name Thursday night announcing the state Good Samaritan award

"There was no way someone was going to get me to Lexington and in a tie without telling me why," Chaffin said. "So I made them tell me. But I was surprised and pleased that I won the award."

The Good Samaritan Award is given each year to a Kentuckian who, "over an extended period of time, has made significant contributions in the area of health care and/or health care education," according to a program from the ban-

"The award is intended to be for extraordinary personal contributions especially where the individual has made a significant impact in providing or improving the access, delivery or general health of low income people of under-served areas," the brochure also states.

Chaffin, who has a family practice in Inez, lives in Prestonsburg. In addition to his work in Martin County, he helps man the night clinic at Archer Clinic. He says he just enjoys helping people.

"I received the award based on my work with Kentucky Physicians Care," Chaffin said. "This program catches people who fall through the

Molotov cocktail is used in firebombing at Mud Creek home by Chris McDavid Staff Writer

The Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department responded early Monday morning to a structure fire on Highway 979 near Red Morg Branch and discovered the fire was intentionally set with a Molotov cocktail. Chief Ralph Short said Monday he received the call at 1:35, a.m. and arrived on the scene at 1:45 a.m. Short said a neighbor discovered the fire and extinguished it by throwing water on it.

According to Short, the neighbor said someone drove by the residence and threw a coke bottle filled with gas and stuffed with a rag against the home. Short said Stan Hensen, the owner of the home, had an argument earlier in the evening with another man,

"As vice-chairman of the subrtin closer to flood control

by Chris McDavid Staff Writer

Martin residents are one step closer to receiving federal funding to initiate planning for a flood prevention project.

Fifth District Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers announced last week that the House Appropriations Energy and Water Subcommittee Development approved his request for $300,000 for flood control work in the City of Martin, according to a news release.

Rogers announced in April that he was looking for federal funds to begin a flood control project in Martin.

In April, Mayor Alan Whicker said about 50 to 60 homes are directly affected by flood waters and that the whole city is damaged when the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River overflows its banks.

Residents of Martin have suffered through at least one flood in every decade of the 1900s.

"We've overcome the first major hurdle in getting federal dollars to address the problem of flooding in Martin," Rogers said.

Rogers is the vice-chairman of the subcommittee and helped write the bill that must be approved by the full Appropriations Committee and the House of Representatives before funding will be available for the flood control project.

Kevin Fromer, a spokesman for Rogers said Monday that if the federal money was passed by the House and Appropriations Committee, then it would be used for the Army Corps of Engineers to begin the initial planning for the project. Plans would include predesign work, such as the cost of the and eastern Kentucky," Rogers said. "I am very pleased that this project has been approved. Fighting to protect our families from dangerous flood waters will remain one of my top priorities.' Whicker said Tuesday he appreciated Rogers' effort to get the funding for Martin and he was optiject. "Its a major step toward progress for the city," Whicker said. (Continued from page one) "It's probably the salvation of the

"That was from scratch," Hale is the only way to go." Waugh wouldn't estimate how long it would take to get the basic service on line. "I don't want to set a specific date because then, if we don't meet it, we've disappointed the public again," he said.

Board member Gene Mullins, Mayor of Wayland, said the service needs to "move just as fast as it

"I'm really feeling good about 911," Waugh said. "We're going to come extremely close to the 95 percent within a month to six weeks. Then we need to make sure everything is correct."

Hale said there are some areas on the map that those implementing the service "don't feel comfortable"

"We let people cut their teeth on 911 in Floyd County and that's why it's (dragged) on and on," he said. "We can't change the past, but we need good correct information. It's essential to have good informacies who respond to calls. "After they've talked to the dispatchers they can use their current frequencies to talk among themselves," Hale said.

But it could still be several months, maybe even a year or more before the service is fully in place.

"You're talking about six to eight months after the mapping is 95 percent complete before you're up and running," Captain Robert Forsythe with the KSP told the group. "That's from the time you give the maps to Bell South to the day you take your first call.

While the county is close to the required completion point, it isn't there yet. Several discrepancies still exist on the county maps and Bill Dotson, 911 coordinator, is working to clear those up.

The board also voted last week to hire a professional to come in and look at the database the county has in place to find problems. A similar group put the entire 911 system in place in Pike County in 18 months.

emphasized. "We are far from scratch. He said about $53,000 had been paid for similar mapping professional services over the past six years but that work hadn't "been done right."

Forsythe told the group he would let them begin the service as basic 911, which allows residents to call the dispatch center, but they must give all specifics like their name and address. With enhanced, that information flashes onto the dispatcher's screen when the call is

'It's been so long in Floyd County, it's time to get 911 to the people," Forsythe said. But he emphasized that the county must continue its push to get enhanced in place or the KSP will pull out of the

had to repay the $2,900 and continue treatment for his drug problem. He was also required to undergo drug tests as a condition of the twoyear probation.

Stumbo broke that probation in March when he admitted to violating the probation requirements when he said he took sleeping pills that weren't prescribed for him. Before his arrest in November 1994. Stumbo admitted to taking more than 40 pain pills a day.

Earlier this year, Caudill told Stumbo he had reasons for feeling he needed to use drugs citing the deaths of his father, former Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, and mother, Pauline Stumbo. "That's an explanation, but it's not an excuse," Caudill said at the time.

But Dwight Stacy Marshall, assistant Commonwealth Attorney, said at the time that Stumbo's rehabilitation might be questionable. "Whether he's salvageable is yet to be seen. It's up to the probation officer and Mr. Stumbo.'

Caudill said during a resentencing hearing in April that he didn't think Stumbo was "hopeless," but said he had promised him that if he broke his probation he would put him in jail.

"I ordered him delivered to the county jailer," Caudill said Monday morning.

who allegedly threatened to "burn out" Hensen.

Short said the Kentucky State Police were notified of the discovery of the Molotov cocktail, but he could not recall the trooper who responded.

KSP trooper Mike Goble said Tuesday the dispatcher did not have any records to indicate the KSP post received a complaint about the incident.

Goble said if a molotov cocktail was discovered, the KSP should have been notified, but the dispatch logs did not reflect that they were.

something different after his children - twins Nick and Heath, 11, and daughter Elizabeth, 7 - were born. "I didn't want to be out delivering babies at all hours of the night," he said. "I wanted to be available for my own children."

Providing health care to lowincome families is important too, Chaffin said.

"It's good to provide this type of service," he said. "But it's good to get the recognition too."

Chaffin said he plans to continue providing health care for those who can't always pay for it. "This is something I can do to make a difference," he said. "I'd like to get more doctors involved in the pro-

He said people complain about the health-care system a lot, but this program is something good.

There are a lot of things supposedly wrong with medicine. This is what is right with medicine," he said. "We serve anybody who comes in the door.'

In his work with Archer Clinic, Chaffin also gives patients a choice. "This is an alternative to a three to four-hour emergency room visit,"

The clinic is open each evening from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Chaffin and five other doctors rotate through the month. The clinic has been open for about three years.

When Chaffin isn't practicing medicine he's involved in youth sports with his children. He also collects and restores old Cadillacs.

"When I was a kid, I thought the big fin Cadillacs were cool. I liked the looks of them," he said. "I've restored several. It's a time-consuming hobby and it can be expensive, but I really enjoy it."

Like he enjoys working with children. "That's one of the most gratifying aspects of the medical profession," Chaffin said. "When you have children who are real sick and then there's a good outcome. It's real rewarding for me. Kids are a lot of fun."

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.093, notice is hereby given that Newsome Coal Co., Inc., P.O. Box 3, Grethel, KY (606-478-5763) intends to apply for Phase I Bond Release on Permit No. 836-5004, which was last issued on May 7, 1996. The operation involves a surface area of approximately 7:00, and underlies approximately 35.0 acres. The operation is located approximately 1.4 miles southeast of Grethel in Floyd County.

The permit area is approximately 3.2 miles south of the junction of KY 979, and KY 3379, and is localed 0.2 miles southeast of Branham

The latitude is 37° 28' 25" and the longitude is 82° 38' 25", and is located on the McDowell 7 1/2 minute USGS quadrangle map.

The bond (CD) in affect for the operation is $21,400, of which approximately 60% is to be included in this application for release.

Reclamation work thus far performed includes: backfilling and grading, sampling and testing, limfertilizing, seeding and mulching, and was completed April 1986. Results thus far achieved include: initial establishment of vegetation in accordance with the approved post mining land use

Written comments, objections, and requests for a public hearing must be filed with the Director, Division of Field Services, #2 Complex, Hudson Hollow Frankfort, KY 40601 by September 6, 1996, which is within 30 days of the final advertisement of this application for bond release.

A hearing date for this bond release request has been set for September 9, 1996, at 1:00 p.m., at the Department for Surface Mining and Enforcement's Regional Office, South Lake Drive. Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Written comments, objections or requests for a hearing must be filed with the Director of the Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, Frankfort, KY 40601.

The scheduled public hearing will be canceled if the Cabinet does not receive a request for the public hearing within thirty (30) days of the final advertisement, which is September 6, 1996.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with the provisions of 405KAR 10:040, notice is hereby given that Coal Mac Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, KY 41502, intends to apply for bond release on Permit Number 836-9020 which was last issued on 7-7-86. Scrap metal salvage Gas rate increase much needed service is not deserved

For the past several months I have noticed a continuous stream of trucks hauling scrap metal of every description to a salvage yard near Allen. It is apparent that they are collecting junk cars and appliances that have been abandoned for years. In doing so, they are providing a service that is badly needed.

I doubt if any effort by a civic group or the county could do as well. However, the reason for such effort apparently is the price of scrap metal which in turn is caused by the demand of said metal due to steel mills converting to using more scrap metal and less ore.

In other words, it's worth the effort now to recycle the metal.

Could some plan be devised to do the same for the garbage? For people who really need help with garbage disposal and for cleaning up locations that can't be traced to the source of violators.

Rumpke is doing a good job, we need them and should not do anything to lessen their job or income.

John Billips Martin

At a meeting of city council on June 25, I brought up for discussion the issue of Martin Gas Company's request for rate increase. It is my belief that the citizens of Martin do not deserve another increase in utilities since we have just had a tremendous increase in our water and sewer rates. From the beginning I was against this increase and in favor of finding other ways of raising needed revenue without placing the burden upon the citizens of our city.

Over the past month I have been in contact with the Public Service Commission in Frankfort and now I am asking each citizen of Martin to join with me in defeating this gas rate increase. Your opinion does matter and together our voice will make a difference.

You can write to the Public Service Commission at P.O. Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602; and address your concerns to Mr. Don Mills.

Please make reference to Martin Gas Company's request for a rate increase; Case No. 96-280. If I can assist you, please do not hesitate to call me at 285-9692.

Letter writer says. "stop complaining and do your job"

Who is the new dean of the PCC faculty? If Robert Allen was still the dean of the faculty, I doubt that this immature faculty behavior would be tolerated. He would have put a stop to the complaining or at least kept them out of the newspaper.

Dorothy Carlson's letter made little sense to me, other than she obviously wants to see her name in print while trying to tell the public to keep quiet.

The public likes what we see at PCC with new buildings, walking track, programs, etc. But, we want the faculty to stop complaining and do their job. Seems like the new dean should be firm and remind the faculty that our tax dollars pay them . to teach, not complain.

The Mountain Area Drug Task Force, or what used to be the Mountain Area Drug Task Force, has some serious problems, not the least of which are allegations that some search warrants were issued under forged signatures.

If those contentions prove true, task force officials have no defense against suggestions the agency violated the law itself in its zeal to curb illegal drug trade in the region.

The U.S. Constitution protects citizens of this country from unlawful search and seizure, and that protection applies to everyone, including crooks and dope dealers.

Public officials who willfully or knowingly violate the civil rights of others, no matter how just they consider the cause, must be held accountable.

Certainly the street-level dope dealers in the task force's jurisdiction are rejoicing at the troubles facing the now-defunct

And, sadly, it appears that task force members have no one to blame for turning the tables but themselves.

According to a study...one no doubt funded with your tax dollars...folks up north are less likely to be angered by rudeness than southerners because they are more accustomed to it.

Well, we already knew that southerners were more polite than northerners, but we don't know where we Kentuckians fit in, since we've always been a border state.

Perhaps we have the distinction of being able to combine the two into a sort of polite rudeness that is unique to the Bluegrass.

Like, if you don't have something nice to say about someone...whisper.

Hey, if you have to be inconsiderate, at least you can do it nicely.

The art of combining tales of fact and fiction, with a little humor mixed in, was the signature work of Kentucky newspaper publisher and columnist Russ Metz, who died last weekend at the age of 77.

Russ, who owned and operated with his family the Bath County News-Outlook in Owingsville, was rightly considered to be the dean of the weekly newspaper business.

Russ combined his wit and wisdom with a characteristic not so common in this biz among publishers half his age. He never stopped learning, he never stopped trying new ways, and he never let the pace of new, technological innovations get the better of him.

You have to be a newspaper insider to grasp the significance of that, but suffice it to say he was someone special.

We'll miss our occasional telephone conversations and visits during press association conventions. Our industry will just miss Russ.

For our compatriots in the column-writing biz, we'll take the liberty of signing off for him one last time...

We're usually first in line when it comes to defending an individual's right to freedom of speech, but we need to draw the line on some methods used during political campaigns.

Last week we saw a couple of campaigners using a stencil to spray paint a message on a cliff face along a roadside.

Campaign signs are bad enough, especially those left on public right-of-way, road signs and telephone poles long after the election is over, but painting rocks leaves a permanent evesore.

The practice needs to be disposed of, immediately, and those responsible should be required to clean up their acts.

We're all for giving the coal industry a break, but not when it comes at the expense of other companies.

Governor Paul Patton's plan to slice $40 million off the coal industry's annual contribution to a special Worker's Compensation fund sounds a bit one-sided to us.

The special fund is used to pay claims to injured workers whose last responsible employer has either gone broke or can't be readily identified.

Most of the claims are against coal companies, who contribute the lion's share to the special fund, but other, non-coal businesses are required to kick in, too.

So, Guv, why aren't they getting a one-year amnesty, as Better yet, why don't we do away with the special fund altogether and make every company responsible for their own Worker's Comp insurance?

If there is a problem with some companies skipping out on their obligations, make them pay in advance instead of making us pay later.

REPLY TO JOHNSON'S AD

Mr. Johnson, you're always asking for the records on the officials in Floyd County-I would like to ask you for some records. I would like to know who is the secretary and the treasurer for your group, United We Are Strong? Do you keep records on "HOW MUCH" money is donated and by "WHOM?" Do you have records on how much money is spent on ads, flyers, signs, rent, etc? If so, I would like for the people to see them. I noticed that your headquarters that you started out with in Martin has folded up and gone.

You said that you "remember reading" that my district received a brand new "FORD BRONCO" recently and that I was out riding all the other magistrates around in it showing it off." Why do you want to "lie" to the people of this county? You're going to have to come up with something better than that one to fool the people of this county! The county road department doesn't even have a "FORD," period - let alone a "NEW FORD BRONCO." ALL vehicles that are owned by the county are on record with the County Clerk's office. If anyone would like to check this out, please do so. The vehicles are used with the road crew every day. - Just like when we had the two-foot snow, these vehicles worked with the grader night and day. When the crews were out in the 15° Below ZERO weather, where were you, Mr. Johnson - In your house snuggled up next to the fire?

You said that you had to get a "professional" to "appraise" how much it would cost to use this vehicle a year. Would you care to give us his name and how much you had to pay him? You said that you were "just relying" on what "people told you" for stuff in your ad. Mr. Johnson, "I was told" that you were on "Disabled Social Security" and that you were out "climbing ladders and hanging signs" for the Commissioner form of Government? I WAS TOLD THIS, DOES THAT MAKE IT TRUE?

You said that you were not given information on where the equipment was parked and if anyone was paid. I stated in the paper where the equipment is parked in District 2 and that no one has received money to park equipment on their land in District 2 in

You brag on the "Commissioner" form of Government, Mr. Johnson. Why don't you go down to "JOHNSON COUNTY" and tell the people "How Good" it is. JOHNSON COUNTY is run by commissioners and as most people have heard in this county - JOHNSON COUNTY WENT BROKE this year and had to lay off all their road workers. IS THAT WHAT THIS COUNTY WANTS - with approximately 50,000 people and no one to work their roads and bridges? GET REAL!

PEOPLE, VOTE AGAINST THE COMMISSIONER FORM OF GOVERNMENT!

Fire destroys home at Wheelwright Monday

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

A Wheelwright man lost his home to a fire early Monday morn-

A house owned by Chuck McCauley burned about 1:08 a.m. July 15 and fire officials aren't sure how the blaze began.

"It was fully involved by the time we got there," Gary Tackett, assistant chief of the Southeast Volunteer Fire Department said. "We aren't sure of the cause."

Volunteers from Wheelwright Volunteer Department responded to the fire as a backup to Southeast firefighters, according to David Boyd, public relations spokesman for the Wheelwright department, said Monday afternoon.

"They called for water and we went," Boyd said. "I have no idea how it started."

Tackett said there were no injuries and no one was at home at the time of the fire.

Southeast volunteers also responded to a car fire on Jacks Creek Sunday afternoon.

The truck belonged to Stevie Clark, according to Tackett, and he said investigators think the fire began as a result of electrical problems. It was completely destroyed

Annie Get Your Gun to premier at theatre

Kentucky on Thursday, July 18 when Annie Get Your Gun premiers at Jenny Wiley Theatre. The performers will be decked out in authentic frontier attire, and the audience will have the chance to take a trip back in time to an era when cowboys and cowgirls rode

The Theatre brings the old West to life on stage with a musical extravanganza about the life of Annie Oakley, the legendary sharpshooter. Local resident Misty Daniels steps out of her ruby slippers and into a pair of boots in the lead role made famous by the likes of Ethel Merman and Ginger Rogers.

While it is doubtful that Daniels could shoot a dime from between a man's fingers at thirty paces (as Oakley once did), it is a sure bet that she will be right on target when it comes to hitting the notes in such songs as "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun.'

Michael Peyton Dixon, Gomborone, and Terry Cain, who played Dorothy's cohorts in Wizard ears

The Wild West invades Eastern of Oz, will join Daniels once again as Pawnee Bill, Wild Horse, and Charlie Davenport respectively. Also, Carrie Cinnamond and Britney Tackett, both Pike Countians, give the show an extra local twist.

Like Wizard of Oz. Annie Get Your Gun prominently features the Theatre's Apprentice troupe and other young actors in important supporting roles. The apprentices will perform as Indian dancers, townpersons, and ballroom dancers.

This musical classic is the second ever produced by the unparralleled team of Rodgers and Hammerstein. The show also boasts an original score by the great Irving Berlin that delivered such favorites as "There's No Business Like Show Business." As a tribute to the artistic genius of all those involved, audiences still turn out to see an average of 100 amateur and professional productions each year as the musical celebrates its 50th anniversary.

Tickets for Annie Get Your Gun are on sale now. Call the box office at (606) 886-9274 for reservations or ticket information.

people in Martin," Whicker said. Don Mills, of the Public Service Commission said Tuesday the Martin Gas Company filed a letter of application June 13 to switch companies that it purchases gas from. The letter said the Martin Gas Company has less than 500 customers and less than $300,000 gross annual revenue, Mills said.

Martin Gas currently receives gas from Columbia Gas, but to change Kentucky/West Virginia Gas Company, Mills said.

"We rejected the application for filing deficiencies," Mills

The Martin Gas Company used a 1994 annual report but the application requires the most recent annual report, according to Mills.

Mills said the company also did not include a depreciation schedule of the utility plant in service and a billing analysis. Mills said when the Martin Gas Company corrects the deficiencies, it would probably refile the application. 'Once the application is filed, any citizen of customer can ask to intervene in the case, either formally or informally," Mills said. "If they do, then a public hearing will be scheduled.'

Mills said a rate would be determined after the hearing.

Showpiece

Former Floyd County resident Betsy Melnick of Westland, Michigan, must have a green thumb, say greenhouse owners in Michigan. The five-foot geranium she's standing beside is just one of her greenery projects. She has more than $600 worth of flowers growing around her homeplace. Her yard has become a showplace and even the mayor drops by to look it over. Mrs. Melnick must also have a green thumb when it comes to growing children. She's raised six, five of whom currently reside in Floyd County.

Transportation Cabinet provides data for AAA's "Crisis Ahead" Campaign

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet aided AAA's "Crisis Ahead" Campaign with accurate data reflecting the road conditions in Kentucky.

According to the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, 36.2 percent of Kentucky's roads are in poor to fair condition. Those roadways with the largest percent of poor conditions were in metropoliotan areas.

AAA's Crisis Ahead program successfully launched June 12, on a national level. In coming months, the campaign will continue to sound the alarm to policy makers on America's deteriorating transportation network.

ULTY SEARCH WARRANTS

While Fryman wouldn't discuss issue of the two search warrants issibly being forged, he said he knew there were some problems with search warrants, especially in Perry County where the most task force cases were opened.

Fryman explained that it is possible that the warrants could have been forged. "Everything is possible," he said.

Chuck Hall refused to comment and said we would need to talk to his attorney, Phil Damron. Damron's secretary said he is out of town until Friday.

Bartley, who said he was present when Herald-Leader reporters tried to interview Chuck Hall in the courthouse several weeks ago about the allegations, said he was walking down the hall and ran into Hall about the same time Lexington Herald-Leader reporter Lee Mueller and another reporter did.

"They started asking him questions and were trying to hide their tape recorders," Bartley said. "I told them they needed to at least ask him if they could ask him some questions and if they could record him. That pretty much ended the discussion.

When contacted at Our Lady of the Way Hospital Tuesday where she works, Donna Hall said she had no comment and hung up the phone.

In his work as a defense attorney, and now county attorney, Bartley said he sees problems with search warrants "all the time. What usually happens is that the evidence found during that search is excluded from

But many of the defendants interviewed for the Herald Leader stories had pleaded guilty in their cases, "If there was really a problem with their search warrant why didn't they have their attorneys check into it and get them off?" Bartley asked. "That's the first thing I do when I get a case. It's an easy way out. If they got a guilty plea out of them I'd imagine that would mean they did a hell of a good job at proving they

He said he doesn't anticipate any of the earlier cases being thrown out because of problems with search warrants. "The worst thing that comes out of a bad search warrant is an exclusion of evidence. In the old cases which were pled, there is no evidence to exclude, so I don't foresee anything happening," he said.

POOR CONVICTION RATE

With a reported dismissal rate in Floyd County of 39 percent and a 43 percent dismissal rate of cases generated by the task force, it doesn't seem like the task force made a dent on drug trafficking in the area.

But Fryman said his records indicate the task force has worked about 500 cases, not the 284 the stories report. He estimated the dismissal rate at about 25 percent, maybe 30 percent, with felonies having a higher conviction rate than misdemeanor charges.

"I doubt (the dismissal rate) is as high as they are reporting," he said. Fryman said he isn't sure what process reporters used to determine which cases belonged to the task force and how those cases were dis-

"I told them to beware of what they were looking at," Fryman said. "A case could have gone to district court and been dismissed and then we took it to the grand jury and got an indictment. It would have been reported as dismissed on the district docket.

The director said he checked on one case that is listed as pending on the district court docket. "I knew this person had already served his jail time and was out and it was still listed as pending," he said. "That's one of the problems with this."

He said in another case, the defendant had been sentenced to jail, went to jail, got out on probation, lost his probation, went back to jail and served the rest of his time. "And this case was listed as dismissed.

He said he doesn't keep conviction records because of the long process of moving cases through the court system. "In some instances it has taken two years. We just don't have the manpower to keep up with all that," Fryman said. The task force includes a threeman field outfit and one office support person in addition to Fryman. We're trying to deal with more than 1,400 cases over a three-year period," he said. "You have to look at each case individually. We still have a large number of cases still pend-suspect is arrested, the case no longer belongs to task force officers, but to the courts, "It's out of our hands at that time," he said. With the very nature of the drug culture, many times the witnesses fail to show up, even if they are subpoenaed. That leaves the courts

Some cases that appear to have been dismissed involve defendants who turned in other dealers.

with no choice.'

In one of two cases worked by Bartley, part of that defendant's deal was that he had to turn in 20 others involved in the drug trade.

"Some people complained about the number of deals cut by the agency, but in the case I saw personally, they got 20 more out of that one case. They could have gone to trial and lost altogether," he said. Yes, they have dealt with the devil, but sometimes you have to deal with the devil."

Bartley said you can't deal with "upstanding" citizens in these cases because they wouldn't have gotten themselves in the mess in the first

POOR MANAGEMENT

Some fingers point back at Fryman when it comes to the manproblems it has encountered. He says he's done all he can.

"I knew when I started that this job involved a variety of duties, but I also knew that it left a lot of discretion with the police officer," he said. "That's what discretionary decision-making is and that's what nearly every police agency utilizes. How much more can one man do?"

More supervisors could have reduced the problems the task force has encountered, but Fryman said the agencies participating barely had the resources to provide one person to the agency, let alone another individual to supervise that

"And then who supervises the supervisor?" Fryman asked. "There was never a time the agent couldn't ask for direction or assistance or help from someone."

More supervisors might have helped, "but they wouldn't have prevented every problem from happening," he said. Fryman said the task force operates much like every other rural police organization in Kentucky. They're not much different than what happens right here," he said.

But he took full responsibility for the operations and the problems

He also emphasized that after a agement of the task force and the of the task force. "The buck stops right here," he said, pointing to himself. "I'm not going to shuck my responsibility. I'm not going to pass on my responsibility.

Being a multi-county agency made the work of task force members about five times harder than for single-county agencies.

"We are talking about five district judges, five county attorneys, five sheriff's departments, five circuit courts," Fryman explained. "All police groups face similar problems, we're just looking at those problems five-fold."

Other problems reported were blown out of proportion, Fryman said, including the alleged loss of money belonging to one defendant. "It was a comedy of errors in some cases," he said. "But there was never planned, intentional wrongdoing, I don't think. Those things can happen in any profession, including the newspaper business. Anybody can make a mistake."

A federal investigation continues and Fryman has cooperated fully by providing all records sought by the grand jury. The grand jury is expected to convene today, Wednesday, but it is not known if the task force investigation will be

Camping season begins in earnest

Did you ever attend summer recreational and educational procamp when you were a child? Many of us never had the opportunity to enjoy a summer camp. Especially a camp that doesn't cost the child anything! That's right, a free camp for both boys and girls who are lucky enough to get a free vacation at the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch in Gilbertsville, only nineteen miles from Paducah, Ray Stoess, the Ranch Director for 18 years, stated, our program is designed to build self-esteem, respect for others and good citizenship. Counselors from universities and colleges througout Kentucky are employed to care for the children and guide them through the grams offered during the summer

Many camps have long since ceased charging children to attend camp, but we still provide this summer camp experience for qualifying children, free of charge.

Great food, five times a day, a visit to the Land Between the Lakes, a free outdoor movie, and swim lessons, are all part of the Sheriff's Camp that are really enjoyable for these children. Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and the Pike County Sheriffs' Department made it possible for Floyd County children to attend the ranch during the summer of 1996.

Talent contest in Pikeville

Local artists have a chance to win a recording session in Nashville at a Mountain Jamboree talent contest at Pikeville in Nashville independent recording companies Air Play International and Foxfire Records will co-host the talent competition with the Mountain Jamboree, a weekly entertainment show founded by Grady May of Pikeville.

The contest will be held August 10 in the Chrisman Auditorium at Pikeville college.

The winner of the competition will go to Nashville for a free recording session at a first-rate studio with first-rate musicians to back up the singers, May said.

The recording will be promoted worldwide, May added.

Jason Hawkins, with Air Play International, and Jennifer Foxx, with Foxfire, will serve as judges for the contest, which is open to all ages of singers and musicians performing Bluegrass, country and gospel music.

For more information about the talent showcase, call the Mountain Jamboree at (606) 432-5289, or write: P.O. Box 1071, Pikeville, May advised that anyone interested in competing should enter as soon as possible.

Entry fee is $25. Contestants will perform two songs, one fast and one slow song, May said.

A Look At Sports

Kidd a kid again; Hackworth stars for Lexington

It has been one busy weekend.

Ed Taylor Sports Editor

League All-Star classic ended Monday night with the Harold-Allen-Prater All-Stars falling 7-2 to Belfry. Belfry will advance to Corbin for the state tournament. The Floyd County 13-year-old Babe Ruth team was impressive at Ashland in the state tournament. They had Lexington Turfland almost beaten, but allowed them to get back in the Byron Hansford is the manager of the All-Star team and it was good to watch him work with the team. He knew when to make the moves and he wasn't afraid to make them early.

Randy "I'm just a kid again" Kidd helped with the 13-year-old team and was a sight to behold himself. It was amusing to watch Randy. He is a very animated coach. Never still, at times falling down, other times on his knees and never silent.

During the game against Lexington Turfland, Randy brought the rule book out and confronted the whole league with an infraction of the rules. The result? Lexington Turfland had to reverse their jerseys. Said the umpire: "You're making a lot of people angry.

Randy's answer: "I'm here to win a ball game, not to make friends. I have plenty friends. I don't need anymore.'

The Floyd County Babe Ruth 14 and 15-year-old all-stars won their respective divisions and will be in state tournament play in Lexington this weekend.

JASON HACKWORTH ALREADY IN LEXINGTON ...

Prestonsburg Blackcat standout Jason Hackworth has been spending most of his summer in Lexington playing for the Lexington Dixie All-Stars. He has been part of the pitching rotation. This makes his second year playing for the Dixie team.

Jason attended the Players Edge baseball school run by coach Mark Blythe. Reports are that the school is second to none and every aspiring young ball player should attend it. Hackworth will play next year for the Lexington team. Last season, out of 21 players, 19 received college scholarships. That's remarkable.

If you are interested in the school, call me and I will give you a telephone number.

Walls spreads goodwill with Double Bubble

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

There is a lot wrong with professional sports today. And there is also the fear the wrongs in the pro ranks are beginning to filter down to the college level and, eventually, into the high school ranks.

Even Little League baseball and other youth sports have become stressful on parents, coaches and players. There is very little anyone is trying to do to bring the game of athletics back to reality and release most of the pressure that builds up in the win-at-allcost society that we live in today.

Once in a great while, though, someone does come along who wants to put a smile of child's face and utter just an encouraging word to an athlete who is not finding much playing time, struggling at the plate, or just can't seem to find a way to escape a shooting

For the past 10 years Brad Walls has been one of those rare finds who want to put smiles on people's faces. Why? Because, as he explains it, he just loves people.

Brad finds a different way of doing it, a very simple way — pass out Double Bubble Gum wherever you go. And for the past 10 years, Brad has done just that.

He says he buys two boxes of the gum a week. That amounts to 680 pieces of gum a week he gives out. That's 104 boxes a year and comes to a total of 1,040 boxes he has distributed over the past 10 years for a grand total of 6,800 pieces of gum people have enjoyed because Brad wanted to spread some smiles across his community.

"I started doing this 10 years ago when my boy (Scottie) played Pee Wee baseball," he said. "I went to a game one time and I had some bubble gum and I started just passing it out. After that, when I would go to a practice or a game, the kids or parents would ask me if I had any bubble gum. I didn't have any. I promised myself that would never happen

Walls has kept that promise and he says that Super Bubble Gum is the only kind he will buy. While most people enjoy the free gum and the relaxing enjoyment it brings, some think it is strange that Brad would do such a thing.

"Some people think I am an idiot," he said. "Eight out of ten are thankful for it. It keeps them from smoking. I hate smoke. I don't like to see people smoke."

But Brad has other reasons for being a good Samaritan. "Mostly just because I like people. Especially kids," he said.

Error-prone Floyd County falls 6-4 to Johnson Co.

Sun delays game 55 minutes

> by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Wild pitches, passed balls and errors all got an assist from the sun to help the Johnson County 15year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars defeat the Floyd County All-Stars 6-4 in Regional Tournament at Johnson Central High School this past ters. Friday night.

The game was delayed 55 minutes due the sun shining in the eyes of the batters.

Brad Perry held the Floyd All-Stars to only one hit over the final three innings and permitted only three base runners in picking up the victory. He went the full seven the first game of the Babe Ruth innings, allowing four runs on lead after three innings. Floyd score Perry drew a walk and took seven hits. He struck out nine bat-

> Brian Crawford, who didn't pitch that badly, went the distance for Floyd County in suffering the setback. Crawford allowed six runs on six hits, but his team committed eight errors behind him. He threw two wild pitches and there were three passed balls.

Johnson County had taken a 4-1

County grabbed the early lead at 1-0 in the first inning on a two-out infield hit by Byron Patton. He scored on Nick Moore's towering double to left center field that just missed leaving the ballpark.

Johnson County led 3-1 after they batted in the bottom of the second frame. A one-out base hit by O'Brian, a stolen base, a wild pitch and passed ball allowed him to second on a passed ball. Then Shepherd tripled home Perry and he came home on a passed ball. Floyd put their first two runners on base in the top of the second, but could not move them around. Wes Howard opened with a single and Corbett Howell walked, But Perry got Shawn Deskins to pop to short, and fanned Ryan Owens and Crawford to end the inning.

An error at second base opened the door for a single Johnson County run in the third inning. Danny Arlidge scored on a fielder's choice play to give Johnson County a 4-1 lead.

Floyd County narrowed the lead to one run in the fourth inning when they scored three runs. Daniel Laferty, batting for Howell, doubled with one out while Deskins and Owens drew consecutive walks to load the bases. Laferty scored on a wild pitch and Crawford singled home Nobili, who ran for Deskins. Owens came home on Eric Casebolt's sacrifice fly to center field.

Perry fanned the side in the Floyd County fifth inning. He walked Brian Jones in the sixth and gave up a base hit to Patton in the seventh.

Johnson County scored single runs in the fourth and fifth innings to lead 6-4. Crawford settled down over the final two frames.

Ninth-inning rally falls short in 10-8 HAP loss to Morgan County

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

The Morgan County 11-12year-old Little League All-Stars weren't swinging for the fences against the Harold-Allen-Prater All-Stars. The two teams met in the final round of the Area 2 All-Star tournament at Paintsville last Thursday. But Morgan County thought they could challenge the HAP's infield and, thus, bunted their way to a 10-8 win to force a second championship round.

It was only the first loss for HAP in the double elimination tournament,

Errors and more errors led to the downfall of HAP, who almost pulled the game out in the late innings. Brandon Evans started for Morgan County and held HAP scoreless through the first three innings while his team built a 10-that had "base hit" written all over it. Newsome had just moved from third base back to shortstop where

Floyd County past Johnson County

Justin Bartley collected four hits and had three runs batted in as the Floyd County 14-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars rolled over Johnson County 19-9 in the regional Babe Ruth tournament at Johnson Central High School Friday night.

The game started on Friday night and did not conclude until 1:45 a.m. Saturday morning. It was two hours late in starting.

Bartley had two doubles and a two-run triple in the sixth inning when Floyd County scored seven times to add to snap an 8-8 tie and Bartley also picked up the win in relief of starter John Mullins, who threw well the first four innings before running into trouble in the fifth inning when Johnson County tied the game at 8.

All the scoring in the sixth inning came with two out. Jonathan Howell went out to left field. Bradley Brooks singled, stole second, but was forced out at third on a fielder's choice off the bat of Aaron Swiger after Byron Hall walked. Scott Collins tripled to right center, driving in Hall and Swiger. He of their own in the bottom of the scored on Willie Bentley's RBI single. Leroy Adkins and Josh Howell drew consecutive walks, forcing home one run. Bartley then tripled to centerfield and later scored to make it a 14-8 game.

Johnson County was a threat in the bottom of the sixth, but failed to score. Floyd County then pushed home five more runs in the top of the seventh to build their 19-9 lead. Hall collected his second hit of the game with a lead-off single, stole second and moved to third on a passed ball. He scored on Willie Bentley's second hit of the game. An error and Bartley's two-run double finished the scoring for Floyd.

Bartley led off the first inning with a double and later scored on an error to make it a 1-0 game in the first. Mullins ran into some trouble in the third inning when he gave up three runs to Johnson County to tie the game at 3.

Johnson County took its first lead in the fourth with a single run, 4-3. After Floyd scored four times in the top of the fifth for a 7-4 lead, Johnson County exploded for four the second game, inning to take an 8-7 advantage. Bartley hurled the final two and two-third innings in getting the win. He allowed three runs on three hits while striking out two. Mullins worked the first four and a third, giving up six runs on six hits and fanning three. Collins and Bentley each drove in two runs with their two hits. Hall also had two hits and an RBI for Floyd County.

Floyd County stranded seven base runners while Johnson County left nine runners on base. Floyd had two errors and Johnson County had it out to both sides," he said.

At a recent Senior League tournament, Brad was seen distributing his smiles (gum) and the opposing players were enjoying the "goodies" as well. David Castle, first baseman for Paintsville, was wondering out loud where was "the man with the gum."

Brad says he is able to purchase the gum wholesale and that adults as well as children enjoy the moment of chewing a piece of Super Bubble Gum.

"I just want to give them something and say 'here is something for nothing," he said. "Mrs. (Janice) Allen (Adams Middle School principal) one day told me bubble gum was not allowed in the gym. I gave her a piece of it and she opened it up and chewed it," he said.

Walls said his family left Chicago for "fear of being killed."

"We lived in a 10-story housing project. It wasn't easy. We moved. But, you know, I wouldn't trade my life for anything," he said.

While most people here in Eastern Kentucky are looking for the resort areas to vacation, Walls is different.

"I love the hills of Eastern Kentucky," he said. "I don't go on vacations. Places like Florida, Myrtle Beach, I stay away from those places. I appreciate Kentucky.

Walls says his family has come to accept his bubble gum adventure.

Walls' ready smile and his capacity to extend a helping hand to others also won him his partner in life. He and his wife Marcia have been married more than 20 years. slated to start at 8 p.m. The game did not start until 10 p.m. and concluded Saturday morning around 1:45 a.m.

Walks, errors, and just plain old delays put the game into the marathon mode. The umpires, although they did an outstanding job calling the game, allowed the game to drag.

Then I was off to Ashland Saturday for the state tournament knowing that the games there will start on time and things would move much faster. At two minutes till eight, the first pitch was thrown and we were playing baseball early. Great!

But the game had its secondinning delay with the protest of Hansford and Kidd. Then it went into extra innings. I got home around 2 a.m. Sunday morning. But I love it!

Just a word here for Bill Josh Kidd. He did an excellent job catching for Floyd County. While the Lexington catcher was letting pass balls get by him, B.J. allowed only one. Great job B.J.!

Looking at the Boyd County facility, I thought we could have the same thing at the Allen Park. A nice press box behind the backstop flanked by two covered minigrandstands and nice dugouts coming off that. At the base of the press box was a single row of seats reserved just for scouts and coaches. The two grandstand areas were Johnson County14-year-olds was covered and featured chairback seats. There is no reason why we shouldn't have the same thing here in our county.

> While some improvement has been made at the county park, still the big field and, especially, the Little League field need further

I talked to the tournament director of the Babe Ruth Tournament at the Johnson Central field and inquired why the scoreboard wasn't being used. "Lightning hit it," was the reply. Quoted one Floyd County bystander, "They wanted us to feel at home, being we don't have a scoreboard."

Well, the Allen Park has never had a scoreboard. From the onset, the present two "eyesore" boards have never worked. You watch a game at the Allen Park, either field, you never know the score if you don't keep up with it yourself.

Tom Clark used to bring a piece of wood on which he carved out a scoreboard.

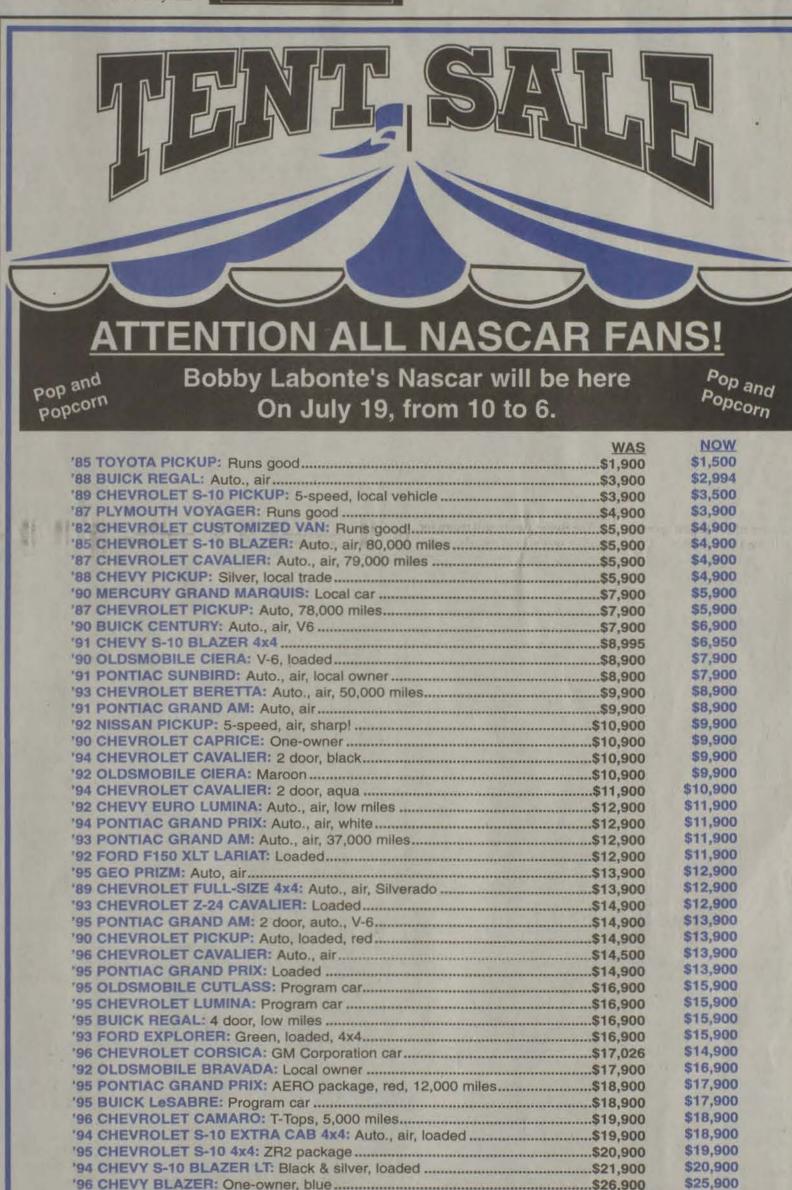

It would be nice to see two workable scoreboards in place for next season.

Floyd County to be well represented in BGSG

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

There could be a record number of Floyd Countians who will be taking part in the 12th Annual Bluegrass State Games July 26, 27 and 28 in Lexington.

Last year almost 20,000 athletes participated in the games that have become one of the largest sporting events in the United States.

Already this year, according to the Bluegrass Games' officials, almost 17,000 individuals from 113 counties have registered and more are expected to sign up to compete in this year's games.

last year, will make a return visit to the Shively Field where the track and field events are held. Ryan Owens also will compete in discus.

Mike Vance will take a team to the 3-on-3 basketball events in the younger age group. Jimmy Parsons and Jimmy Key will have a team in basketball and Trena Hensley will have a girls' team.

The Biliter family will return for another shot at gold medals, something they accomplished last year in racquetball. Justin Biliter, Brad Biliter and their dad John will be a threesome in the sport.

Golf will have two local entrants in James Sears and Ricky The games feature 25 different Joseph. The first Floyd County Stevie Hall and Elmer Parsons. Archery will find Jackie Owens II and Chris Owens at the range. Both were medal winners last season.

Ventura modest in size but rich in features

By Associated Designs

Sparkling panes of glass overarch the Ventura's entry and stack up along the left side, creating a sense of welcoming openness. It's unusual to find such a dramatic entryway in a home this modestly sized (just under 1,400 square feet) and economical to build. The Ventura is well-suited to the needs of an older couple or young family.

Brickwork adds a traditional touch, flanking the garage door as well as a high arched window that echoes the graceful curve of the entry. The front-facing room next to the entry is exceptionally bright and could be used as either a bedroom or home office. It has a door opening into the bedroom wing. A door to the entry could be added or substituted.

This is a traditional plan. Bedrooms are clustered on the right, family living spaces on the left and each room is a separate environment. The bright, spacious living room has a fireplace tucked into the corner farthest from the wide window Sliding glass doors in the dining room allow easy meal service on the deck when the weather is inviting.

A pocket door provides separation between the dining room and the kitchen. Daily meals are savored in the window-bright eating nook.

Utilities are close at hand, in a passthrough space between the nook and a garage with a built-in workbench. If the Ventura is built without a basement, an optional plan replaces the stairway with a pantry and storage closet.

GENTLEMAN KIRBY PUCKETT REMINDS US TO

Gentleman Kirby Puckett announced his retirement from baseball last week. With a patch over his right eye, the Minnesota Twins future Hall of Famer held a press conference at which he dispensed some rather stirring advice. He urged friends, teammates and media to "enjoy today. Nobody is promised tomorrow."

'ENJOY TODAY'

brought to mind a question: Why do we spend time (and newspaper space) on the antics of people like Marge Schott, Miami U's football team, George Belle, Dennis Rodman, Michael Irvin, and the list goes on? To rehabilitate them? Please. Why do we read about the astronomical fortunes commanded by Michael Jordan, Juwan Howard, Deion Sanders and Allan Houston. Because it sells? If so, that's not good enough.

News value? Does anyone outside the uh, mainstream media care any longer how much money proathletes fessional make? Professional sports has become a sad place where television revenue and market products prop up bad things and keep greed-riddled franchises afloat.

Allan Houston? I hope he has good health and long life to spend $56 million. But I don't care how much the Knicks are paying him and you don't either. In a time when television and marketing agents have put enough space between us and athletes to maintain their celebrity images, some of us in the 1990s are far more impressed with sports figures we can touch, if not with our hands then with our hearts, and still feel good about it. Ah, the faces of so many real things in sports, this is but a slice. We ought to be able to look past the braggarts and bullies and pseudoentertainers and media-types who feed on them to bring notoriety to themselves, and see good things. Maybe we will. Kirby Puckett has reminded us to try. None of it will matter tomorrow.

In an era when the price tag is so Puckett's pearls of wisdom rich the University of Louisville had to sell out its stadium name to get a ball yard built, an on-campus basketball arena at the University of Kentucky would is a pipe dream,

> "Of course you know what the findings on that one are going to be," one Wildcat booster told Sports In Ky., "What with winning the NCAA championship last spring certainly this would be the perfect time. It could get done. There's a lot of unhappiness at UK right now with the Rupp Arena people over the way the hockey team coming in has been handled."

UK GRADUATION RATE IS POOR

A pay raise and/or a bonus for Cubs. ... and will umpire Eric report made public recently revealed the graduation rate for UK basketball players has declined in the last four years. Forty-three per cent, or four of ten scholarship athletes, have completed degree requirements.

According to a Louisville Courier-Journal graph, the UK men's basketball program graduated 33 per cent of its student-athletes, seven percent worse than the University of Louisville which has been traditionally poor. UofL basketball is up to 40 percent

This year at UK, (while assistant director of athletics Larry Ivy was spending $70,000 to buy the Meadowlands basketball court), and three weeks before spring graduation ceremonies, I telephoned UK's athletic offices to confirm that Mark Pope, Walter McCarty and Tony Delk would be graduat-

"Absolutely. Yes, they're all on schedule to graduate," a UK spokesman said unequivocally. 'All three will graduate on time."

Mark Pope completed his degree requirements, but as of last week Tony Delk and Walter McCarty have not. Although both attended graduation ceremonies, neither has earned his degree.

This breech of truth by an athletic department official has become too common at UK where office staffers can be at odds with one another on what the truth is. DICK VITALE

His blathering schtick and lap dog loyalty to college coaches who's last names end in a vowel aside, ESPN's Dick Vitale makes some splendid points on basketball. Instead of an NBA all-star team, the USA should be represented in Olympic games basketball by "the NCAA championship team."

Vitale's idea is not original of course since UK's Fabulous Five on the 1948 NCAA championship team was part of the club that won the gold medal in the 1948 Olympic Games in London, England.

Bob Watkins

Says here the NCAA championship team in an Olympics year should represent the USA, but with a few adjustments. After tryouts and interviews to learn who is interested in representing his country instead of endorsing a soft drink or brand of sneakers, the coach should be allowed to add three or four other college players to his roster.

Then in a legitimate field of competition, go win the gold medal, and yes, it would work.

HOUSTON, CHAPMAN

What do NBA free agent shooting guards Allan Houston and Rex Chapman have in common? Probably not much since Houston signed a $56M seven-year deal with the Knicks. But part of the legacies of these native Kentuckians will be: Houston is one of the best players the University of Louisville never had; and Chapman is one of the best the University of Kentucky never kept.

Hager says Betsy Layne has work to do

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

It won't be long before the temperatures cool down, and the leaves begin to change to orange and brown, signaling the start of the fall season.

The high school football season is right behind the turning of the leaves as the regular season kicks off officially a week earlier this season.

For Randall Hager, new head football coach at Betsy Layne High School, it cannot get here

Hager took time to reflect on the upcoming season.

THE DISTRICT...

The new head coach said the division that his Bobcats will play has been one of the top districts in the state, and it won't be any different this year.

"For the past two years this has been a tough district to play in," he said. "You look at Prestonsburg three years ago. Look at Whitesburg, a regional champion. And, of course, Breathitt County kicking the door down and finally winning a state championship last year.

"I think this is one of the strongest districts in the state and it will be this year. I think Prestonsburg and Breathitt Whitesburg is going to be a question mark. Right now, I would say Prestonsburg and Breathitt County are one and two; Whitesburg third and then Allen Central. Everyone else will be in the back of the pack a little bit."

The former Prestonsburg assistant is hopeful that his Bobcats will be in the hunt as well, but he is not dismissing the possibility of a last year finish between Betsy Layne and Allen Central for a playoff berth.

"It could come down to Allen Central and us battling for a playoff spot," he said. "I like big games. They are all big games. I think anytime you play a former state champion (Breathitt County) or a team with the history of Whitesburg and you know they (Betsy Layne players) are going to get up to play Prestonsburg and Allen Central. A team has one or two rivalries but on our schedule I see five or six big rival games."

PRESTONSBURG SIDE

LINES... On September 27 Hager will take his Betsy Layne team to Prestonsburg, but this time he will be on the opposite side of the field than he has been accustomed to in the past. But he feels that once the game begins it won't

"Being the game is at Prestonsburg, I'll probably see some old friends. But I will be so busy I won't see many people for awhile. It will feel a little strange, probably up until a minute or two before the kickoff of the game. When that time comes, it is time to play."

193 SEASON....

Coach Hager said that much has been attributed to the success of the '93 season at Prestonsburg, but the key was the way the team played together.

"That was a special group of young men," he said. "A lot of things are said about them. Great backs, great line, great defense. One thing that may not have been said enough was how well they played together. They really believed they were going to win." Hager said that was the kind of attitude he hoped his Betsy Layne team would develop.

three minutes to go, and it's a one or two point game, you need to look in that huddle and have 11 players saying we are going to win this football game.'

Coach Hager said that each team is different and using the '93 season as a motivational tool may not work with this team.

"Every team is different. This '96 Betsy Layne team is going to be different from the '95 team. You never have the same group back. I just want to develop an attitude we can win and have the same work ethic.'

Floyd once. That will be a new "In the fourth quarter with rival for me. These kids have mentioned it a little bit. That's a big game for them. They like getting after that bunch and playing > Hager said the rival games that have developed over the last four years have helped high school football in Floyd County.

> "Last year, everyone who follows sports saw how close Betsy Layne came to beating Prestonsburg," he said. "The Allen Central and Betsy Layne game was exciting. Floyd County football has really made leaps and bounds over the last four years."

"Prestonsburg's side lines will only matter before the start of the game," according to new Betsy Layne head coach Randall Hager. "Once the game starts, it's time to play ball."

Hager's team will have South Floyd on its schedule, something he is looking forward to.

"Even the years that I played at Prestonsburg, we never did play a Wheelwright team," he said. "At

Randall Hager

Hager expects to be in full control of the school's feeder system with grade school coaches working closely with the high school

"From what I understand, and Prestonsburg we played South this comes from a discussion with Mr. (Don) Daniels and others, we are going to try and implement a system, I believe, where the seventh and eighth grade teams would have their practice here with us. Their coaching staff would be working with our coaching staff. Some of those coaches would, hopefully, be with us on Friday night in spotting and

"One thing that is important is when I look around at other school systems and you have that middle and grade school system that feeds directly into high school - when you have that same terminology, same patterns, same defense, when a kid comes in as a ninth grader and I say a flat coverage or a wide, he knows what I am talking about."

While Hager has not decided on who his assistants will be, he does have some opinions and some selections, but no final decision have been made.

Mud Creek Braves both league and tournament champs

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

While coach Loy Dean Bentley's Mud Creek Braves posted a sparkling 15-3 record to win the Mud Creek Pee Wee League championship, winning the league's tournament didn't come easy. In fact, the Braves looked to be counted out twice but managed to come back and win the tournament championship as well.

The top-ranked Braves were seeded against the fourth place White Sox in the opening round of the tournament and the White Sox refused to go away as they played well and the Braves struggled. But as all good teams do, the Braves managed to pull out a 4-3 win in extra innings over the White Sox.

The rival Reds waited in the wings for the Braves and victory seemed to be theirs as they pulled in front of the Braves 5-0. But their hope did not improve much as the Braves began nipping at their heels. The Reds soon found the Braves gaining ground and trailing them only 8-4 after two innings.

Coach Bentley's team was not ready to give up and came racing back four runs in the third, three in the fourth, and won 11-8 over the Reds.

The Reds came out of the losers' bracket for another showdown with the Braves. Again, the Reds were strong and led 13-7 going into the bottom of the fifth inning. But the Braves once again turned things around and pulled out a 14-13 win over the Reds by scoring seven times in the fifth inning.

Lexington slips past Floyd All-Stars, 12-10

Sports Editor

The Floyd County 13-year-old All-Stars coaching staff tried everything to disrupt the Lexington Turfland All-Stars even to the point of having them remove their jerseys, but it was to no avail as Lexington posted an 11-10 extra annings win over Floyd County in the Babe Ruth State Tournament in Ashland Saturday evening.

No team is permitted, according to the rule book, to display a baseball of any kind on the front of their jerseys. Lexington, which played an earlier game Saturday without incident, displayed such a baseball on their jerseys. Floyd manager Byron Hansford and coach Randy Kidd confronted the umpiring crew with the violation and the rule book and, after a lengthy delay, Lexington when Clay Tate grounded to short-

But it was Lexington that came from near defeat to victory and advanced to the tournament. The Lexington team was on the verge of extinction in the top of the seventh inning, trailing 9-7 to Floyd County. But a miscue at second base proved costly for the local all-stars.

Anthony Tackett retired the first two batters he faced in the seventh by getting Matt Major to ground routinely to second for the first out. He also got Jeff Archer out on a fly ball to centerfield. One out away from victory, Tackett gave up an infield hit to Brett Hisle on a ground ball. First baseman Chase Gibson made a super play on the move, but couldn't come up throwing.

The costly mistake occurred was forced to remove their jerseys, stop Josh Kidd in what appeared to be an easy play at second base for the force. Brandon Hansford was late getting to the bag, though, and the ball sailed past him into right field, allowing Hisle to move to third base and Tate to second. Matt Berry lined a base hit to right field to score both runners to tie the game

In the bottom of the seventh, poor base running took Floyd County out of a scoring opportunity and sent the game into extra innings. Larry Mullins had walked to start the seventh and stole second. Hansford tried to move Mullins to third with a sacrifice but was called out when the ball hit him in fair territory. Josh Kidd then grounded to shortstop and, on the throw to first, he broke for third base but was cut down on a throw to the third baseman to end the inning.

Lexington took a 10-9 lead with a run in the top of the eighth, but Floyd County scored in the bottom of the inning to tie the game at 10.

Patrick Martin walked as the Floyd County eighth unfolded. Martin moved to second on a wild pitch. With one out, Wes Senters struck out, but the ball eluded the Lexington catcher. Senters reached first safely, and Martin took third base. Senters broke for second base with the throw beating him to the bag, but Martin scored on the play to tie the game.

In the top of the ninth, Staten walked for Lexington, and Berry was safe on a fielder's choice with no outs. Both runners moved up a base on a balk call against Jeremy Hayes, the third Floyd County load the bases with no one out. Staten came home with the goahead run on a rare wild pitch by Hayes, who was the losing pitcher. Hansford came on to relieve Hayes and worked a 2-0 count on Brad Hall before Tackett was summoned to the mound for his second appearance. Tackett got Andrew Levensen to pop out and, on a super play at second base, Hansford speared a Chase Fields' line drive and doubled up Hall at first base to end the

In the bottom of the ninth, B.J. Kidd lined the ball to centerfield to start the inning, but his slowness afoot down the line allowed the centerfielder to field the ball and throw to first base to get Kidd. Mullins struck out and Hansford popped to short to end the game.

Lexington had taken a 7-1 lead through the first four innings until Floyd County exploded for seven runs in the bottom of the fourth to take an 8-7 lead. Lexington was shaken up as the team committed five errors in the inning. Josh Kidd had a two-run single for Floyd and Keith Crum had an RBI triple.

mound for Floyd County and was relieved by Tackett in the second after giving up a single, hitting a batter, and walking Hisle on a balk.

Floyd County stranded nine base runners and Lexington left 11 runners on base. Lexington committed seven errors in the game with Floyd County having three.

Crum finished with three of the eight Floyd County hits. Chase Gibson had two, as did Josh Kidd. Gibson doubled in the sixth inning.

The Floyd County Library's reading program lifted off for the summer last Thursday as children age two to 13 gathered in two sessions to send balloons skyward.

Each balloon contains the name of a child in the summer reading program and persons finding the balloons are asked to contact the library and report the location of the balloon's landing.

Children were also treated to ice cream and sno cones after the balloons were launched.

Nine-year-old Selena DeRossett has been in the reading program since the age of two. Selena is also participating in the Read Across Kentucky campaign, in which students will earn a certificate from the governor for reading a book for every county in Kentucky.

Jack May's War

Editor's note: The following is an excerpt from Dr. Robert Perry's book, Jack May's War.

CHAPTER NINE: THE BATTLE OF SALTVILLE AND JACK'S LATER YEARS

For Southerners the Civil War was basically a defensive war, a war fought to protect their families, their farms, and their peculiar institutions from the northern invader. The institution which Jack May's men spent most of their time protecting was Preston's Saltworks in Smyth County, Virginia. Salt was vitally important to the Confederate Army, because it was the only means by which large quantities of meat could be preserved. During the 1861-65 period, according to Smyth County historian Goodridge Wilson, the Saltville mines produced an average of ten thousand bushels of salt per day.

Jack May's War reached its climax on October 2nd, 1864, when five thousand Federal troops under General Stephen G. Burbridge advanced on Saltville and stormed the Confederate trenches overlooking the town. In those trenches were three thousand rebel troops under General John S. Williams. Leading the Union advance, with their pennants flapping in the wind, was Colonel James S. Brisbin's 5th U.S. Colored Cavalry. The regiment bearing the brunt of the Union attack was Colonel Edwin Trimble's 10th Kentucky Cavalry, dismounted, which occupied the center of the Confederate line of the bluff above the Holston River ford. Trimble was killed during the assault, and the colors of his regiment were captured, but his men held their ground and helped General Williams save the saltworks. The 5th U.S. Colored Cavalry lost 114 men during the assault, including four of their white officers. When darkness fell, Burbridge ordered a retreat and marched his men back to Kentucky.

Composed of former Kentucky slaves and free men of color, the 5th U.S. Colored Cavalry was a brandnew regiment, and the Saltville fight was its baptism of fire. The enlistment of Kentucky blacks had begun on April 18, 1864. On that day General Burbridge issued Order No. 34, which stipulated that slaveholders loyal to the Union would receive $300 for each slave they emancipated for service in the Federal Army. By early summer volunteering was brisk, and by the end of July, six black regiments were being trained at Camp Nelson in Jessamine County. One of those regiments was the 5th U.S. Colored Cavalry.

Burbridge's advance on Saltville was contested every step of the way. Trimble skirmished with him at Richlands on September 30th, Giltner's whole brigade tried to stop him at Laurel Gap on October 1st. In each case, however, the rebels were outflanked and forced to fall back. When Burbridge reached Saltville on October 2nd, the first position that the rebels tried to hold was a line of trenches on the hill above Governor Saunders' house. During this stage of the battle, they were commanded by "that old imbecile," General A.C. "Mudwall" Jackson. At 9:30 a.m., however, just as they were being driven from this position, General John S. Williams arrived on the scene with these brigades of cavalry from Wheeler's Corps and began organizing a defensive line along the bluffs and cliffs on the south side of the river. Mosgrove, who was with the 4th Kentucky that day, says:

"I was standing in the main road at the base of the left end of Chestnut Ridge, when General Cerro Gordo Williams rode up at the head of his command, early in the morning. He looked much the same as when I had seen him last in Tennessee: massive, tall and commanding, the picture of robust health. With the voice of a Stentor, he ordered his men up the ridge. Standing there in the middle of the road, he stormed and swore while hurrying the men, and continued to storm until the last man was in position."

Though it was Williams' generalship which won the battle. General John C. Breckinridge, departmental commander, received credit for the victory. Washington County historian Lewis P. Summers says that Breckinridge arrived at Saltville around sundown on October 2nd, just in time to see his men wave their hats and shout for joy at the sight of the retreating Federals. That night he telegraphed the good news to the War Department in Richmond. Several days later, Clerk John B. Jones noted in his diary: "General Lee says [that] General Breckinridge repulsed the enemy's attack on Hamilton, Saltville. It was a bloody repulse, and Breckinridge is pursuing." Bloomfield in retaliation

The Battle of Saltville was a grudge fight for the men of both armies, and they fought it with a ferocity that has seldom been equaled. The Confederates had a score to settle with Burbridgethey called him "Butcher" Burbridge-not just for his massacre of Martin's brigade at Mount Sterling, but for his harsh suppression of Confederate guerrilla activity. As Commander of the Military District of Kentucky, he had the power to invoke martial law whenever he thought that the situation justified it. On July 16th, 1864, three months before his expedition to Saltville, he issued his notorious Order No. 59, requiring that "whenever an unarmed Union citizen is murdered, four guerrillas will be hands of the military authorities and publicly shot to death." One month later, two rebel prisoners, Richmond Barry and John May Hamilton, were taken to Bloomfield, Kentucky and executed in retaliation for the murder of J.R. Jones. By the way, John May Hamilton was a native of Morgan County and a first cousin of Jack May.

Another thing that aroused the fury of the Confederates was the sight-they would have said the spectacle-of black men wearing blue uniforms. "Smoked Yankees," they called them, and worse. We can be sure that the men of Trimble's regiment viewed Burbridge's decision to place his black soldiers in the front of his attack as a gross insult to their honor and dignity. In 1920 B.F. Day, a veteran of the 10th Kentucky living in Mount Sterling, made the following statement in a letter to the Confederate Veteran:

murdered, four guerrillas will be selected from the prisoners in the hands of the military authorities and publicly shot to death." One month later, two rebel prisoners, Richmond Barry and John May Connederate Veteran.

"At Saltville we fought a brigade of negroes under Burbridge with our revolvers at close quarters; the officers were all down save Colonel Diamond, but we did not let up while we could see a negro. (Day's capitalization.)"

When Burbridge retreated from Saltville during the night of October 2nd, he left many wounded black soldiers-perhaps as many as a hundred—lying on the battlefield in front of the Confederate lines. This grossly irresponsible action set the stage for the infamous "Saltville Massacre." When October 3rd dawned, and these wounded men became visible, scouts from Robertson's and Dubrell's brigades began roaming the battlefield, which was still shrouded in fog, and murdering every black soldier they could find. Guerrant says:

"Scouts were sent and went all over the field, and the continued ring of the rifle sung the death knell of many a poor negro who was unfortunate enough not to be killed yesterday. Our men took no negro prisoners."

In his hasty departure from Saltville, Burbridge also left behind a field hospital operated by Surgeon William H. Gardner of the 30th Kentucky Infantry. Gardner later reported that on the morning of October 3rd, several armed men wearing Confederate uniforms entered the hospital, selected five wounded black soldiers who were under his care, and took them outside and shot them to death. Gardner and his remaining wounded were subsequently captured and taken to Emory and Henry Hospital in Washington County. On the evening of October 7th, several armed men wearing Confederate uniforms entered his hospital, went to the rooms occupied by the wounded black soldiers, and shot two of them dead in their beds. These murders were committed despite the strong protests of the the Confederacy."

Confederate surgeons in charge of the hospital.

With the notable exception of John C. Breckinridge, no Confederate field officer lifted a finger to stop the killings. Mosgrove says that while the massacre was still in progress, Breckinridge appeared on the scene with General Basil Duke and several other officers. "General Breckinridge, with blazing eyes and thunderous tones, ordered that the massacre should be stopped." However, after he had ridden out of earshot, the killings continued. "The men could not be restrained." Mosgrove lamented. Two days after the tragedy, Breckinridge sent a telegram to General Lee condemning the atrocities and recommending that Felix Robertson be arrested and brought to trial. Unfortunately, the war ended before this could be accomplished.

Few would deny that the Saltville Massacre was one of the most disgraceful episodes of the war. When we contemplate it, however, we need to realize that the rage which drove the Confederates to commit these crimes was probably no greater than the rage which drove the men of the 5th U.S. Colored Cavalry to make their reckless, headlong assault on the Confederate lines. In their scheme of things, Saltville was a muchhated symbol-indeed, the living embodiment-of slavery. Loretta Gillespie, the editor of the presentday Saltville News Messenger, says that at the height of production during the war years, nearly two thousand slaves were working in the saltworks around Saltville, which was known as "The Salt Capitol of

Health Matters

REDUCE YOUR RISK FOR AN EXERCISE INJURY

Many individuals have good intentions when starting an exercise program. However, due to an injury, they never follow through on their commitment. There are five risk factors for most injuries.

1) Many people over-do exercise or try doing too much too soon. Pushing yourself too hard, too long, or too often is probably the leading cause of injuries. Start off slowly and gradually build up to reduce your risk of injuries. Always remember you do not have to run a marathon to be in good health. As little as thirty minutes, five times per week may provide the majority of the health related benefits.

2) Inadequate footwear or equipment also increases your risk for injuries. Wearing improper or worn out shoes places added stress on your hips, knees, ankles, and feet which are the sites of 90% of all injuries. Poor equipment is another risk factor. Riding a bicycle that is too small or that has its seat set too low puts undue stress on the knees. Use shoes designed for the activity you are doing and use equipment that is adjusted properly for you.

3) Poor conditioning is another risk factor. Being out of shape and having tight and weak muscles increases your risk for injuries. Problems may also arise due to doing too much of one type of activity. This can lead to strength and flexibility imbalances. You should always exercise at the proper intensity for you and participate in activities that you are in shape for. Do a variety of activities or perform a stretching and strengthening program to compensate for performing one particular activity.

4) Improper technique and training can lead to injuries. An example is arching your back during a bench press. This may lead to a strain of the back muscles. Never sacrifice form for performance.

5) Ignoring aches and pains may lead to an injury. Studies show that starting to exercise again before an injury has healed may not only worsen it, but greatly increases the chances of re-injury. Never ignore pain! Pain is the way your body tells you something is wrong.

Try to avoid these five mistakes when exercising. This will lead to an increased likelihood that you stick with your exercise program and avoid a frustrating and painful

Heinous murder in Harlan county

FROM THE MOUNTAINS

by Tudon Gibson

dling "beans, new taters and green tomatoes" from the back of their one-horse wagon in the mountains of Harlan County, Kentucky in the late 1800's.

Julia counted coins as her husband puffed on a corncob pipe. The horse plugged along and the two looked forward to getting back home and to supper which Julia started early that morning. Gus planned to work a couple hours in the garden before going to bed. The elderly Loebs went to bed at nightfall and got up with the rising sun.

Things changed on June 22, 1895, however. Buford Overton noticed the old couple, saw their money and planned to take it. He decided to rob them was noticed later by area residents who found Gus and picked an isolated spot where they would pass. There he waited.

Overton, not much more than a kid, was born and raised in Hancock County. Tennessee. While in his mid-teens he took up with a young woman. They stole a horse and headed to Georgia, riding all night in order to put as much distance as possible between them and Sneedville. Mid-morning of the following day they laid down by a spring and fell asleep.

They were surprised when awakened abruptly by the owner of the horse and by three younger men in their twenties and thirties.

"You know what they used to do to folks like you?" the elderly man said as they held guns on the couple. "They'd hang 'em. I don't know as you deserve much more but I'm gonna turn you over to "The thing of it is, I'da been inclined to help 'ya iffen 'ya had only asked. But, no! You just take what ou want. Well, you're gonna hafta change or trouble will be lurkin' at your door for the rest of your life. And that want be very long iffen you don't change."

Overton served 2 1/2 years in prison and when he was released he immediately returned to Tennessee. He'd tell nearly everyone he didn't think much of Georgia.

He found out later that Hancock and Claiborne counties in Tennessee weren't much better to his liking. Guns, knives and horses interested Buford but he found he had to work to afford them, and work was

Gus and Julia Loeb were returning home from ped- just not in his plans. It took too much time. He went to Middlesboro durng her heyday but ended up on the wrong side of the law and of the gamblers, too. He quietly left town and went to Harlan County where, unfortunately his path crossed with that of Gus and

> The birds were singing as Buford lay on the soft sod of a hillside alongside a narrow pass, waiting for the old couple. As they approached, Buford began blasting away, sending a barrage of bullets at the defenseless Loebs. The blasts knocked Julia from the wagon and sent Gus slumping to the floor.

The startled horse took off as fast as he could. It

Meanwhile, Buford walked to where the old lady had fallen on the edge of the dusty road, her head and right arm thrashing from side to side. He grabbed a handkerchief clutched in her hand cousin the coins to fall from it onto the dusty road.

Overton was arrested the following day.

Although he originally pled not guilty he changed his plea after the jury found him guilty. He did this as he asked the court for mercy. The jury wasn't convinced and sentenced the 18-year-old to death by hanging. Many people felt his deed was one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of Kentucky when the nature of the crime and age of the victims

C. O. Oaks wrote a ballad about Buford and the murder of the Loebs. The song was widely popular in 1895 and for several years thereafter, so popular in fact that a qualified impartial jury was hard to find since most everyone had heard the song.

The date of execution was set, but Buford escaped before facing the gallows. It sent waves of terror through the mountain area. Buford Overton was a very dangerous young man.

Editor's note: Kentucky's governor won't stop the hanging next week in Jadon's From The Mountains in the Floyd County Times.

Many of the programs that Den could once boast about, and advise you on how to go about getting the help you needed, are no longer available. This is discouraging to Den. Carol Napier, your Benefits Counseling Coordinator for the Big Sandy area, finds it disheartening, too, and so do I. We are interested in you, in your needs, and in helping to find solutions to them, but so many have been "cut" or completely eliminated. The program to help provide prescriptions at no charge to deserving senior citizens still prevails. But we are fearful that the present guidelines to qualify may be tightened, making this program far less assessable than it is now.

Medigap is still alive and well. That's the insurance senior citizens and people on Medicare are encouraged to purchase. It is designed to help pick up part of the tab after Medicare pays it's part. It's an excellent program-for the small percentage of Medicare recipients and senior citizens in Eastern Kentucky who can afford it-and if there is any way you can afford it you really can't afford to be without it. But...

But most of the people who call us for help can barely afford food. Some can't. We have senior citizens right here in Appalachia who wake up hungry, sustain themselves as best they can, and go to bed hungry. Some are fortunate to have family nearby or good neighbors to see that they get a meal once a day, or left-overs. But there is no way these people can afford Medigap insurance. Or medication. Or glasses. Or fans. Or electricity. Or proper clothing. Or dental work or dentures. Or little more than a cardboard shack to call "home."
