The Great Flood
Early next year will mark the 40th anniversary of the 1957 flood, one of the region's most destructive natural disasters. The Floyd County Times plans to publish a special pictorial reminder of that event in our annual Portrait of Home in February but we need your help or, more importantly, your photos. If you have photographs from the '57 Flood in your scrapbooks we'd like to use them in this special edition. Drop them by our office at 112 South Central Avenue, and we'll copy them while you wait. ## Cops get caller's voice on tape

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

The bomb threat saga at Prestonsburg High School took two new twists Wednesday when the voice of the caller was captured on tape and then Thursday when students were dismissed during morning classes. A "young male" phoned the Prestonsburg Dispatch around 8:22 a.m. Wednesday and reported that a bomb was concealed in the school, according to officials with the Prestonsburg Fire Department. Ten minutes later, the individual called again, this time saying, "You're not getting them out fast enough," Tom Blackburn, Prestonsburg fire chief said Wednesday morning. Students were sent to the football field while firefighters searched the building. Parents arriving on the scene during the evacuation had heard rumors that this time the bomb was real. Some parents reported that they had heard the firefighters had discovered "something" in the gym. Another rumor indicated the "something" had been found in the lunchroom. Blackburn said the firefighters did not uncover any evidence of a bomb during the search. Rumors also persisted that the teachers and students knew Tuesday that the school would have a bomb threat Wednesday. Debbie Adkins, a member of the Prestonsburg High School staff, said she heard the rumors circulating around the school Tuesday and she had also heard that the caller had tried to call school officials Tuesday, but was unable to get his call through. "Yesterday (Tuesday) was the first normal day we've had," Prestonsburg coach Bobby Hamilton said. "But we were on pins and needles," Adkins (See Tape, page two)

Teen gets jail time on no-insurance charge

A Mousie resident will have plenty of time in jail, 40 days to be exact, to think about the consequences of driving a vehicle which should have never been on the road. Billy Cox, 18, was arrested Tuesday morning on Route 114 and charged with seven violations, some of which included possession of less than eight ounces of marijuana, a broken windshield, and no insurance. During his arraignment Wednesday in Floyd District Court, Cox pleaded guilty to the charges. Cox's fines and court costs totaled more than $700, and he was sentenced to 30 days in jail for not having insurance coverage, and 10 days on the possession charge. Assistant county attorney Lance Daniels recommended that Cox receive 30 days for the insurance charge because it was his third offense. "Anyone on the highway with no insurance is jeopardizing other motorists," Judge James R. Allen said. "Many people don't realize that not having your automobile insured is a Class-B misdemeanor," Daniels said Wednesday. "If you have a second or third offense for not having (insurance), you will go to jail."

Judge orders vicious dogs out of Auxier

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen ordered Wednesday that "vicious" dogs be removed from the Auxier area by the sheriff's department after Sherry Baker, 35, of Auxier, appeared before Judge Allen on charges of harassment. According to a court summons filed by chief deputy Linzie Hunt, Baker allowed her sons to walk their "vicious" dogs through town on September 30 and angered and annoyed neighbors when the dogs growled and barked. "I hear complaints about this situation regularly," assistant county attorney Lance Daniels said Wednesday. "These people (Auxier residents) can't live in peace." Judge Allen ordered that the dogs be removed from Auxier, and that she have no unlawful contact with the complaining witnesses and victims. Baker asked if she could take the dogs to her father's residence, and Judge Allen said the dogs could be taken, but they would be transported by the sheriff's department.

Feds propose mine regulations to help wipe out black lung

Twenty recommendations for eliminating black lung and silicosis among 133,000 American coal miners were issued Wednesday by an advisory committee appointed by Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich. The 116-page report addresses virtually every aspect of existing practices that protect coal miners from the diseases. Committee representatives from labor, mining and academia unanimously approved the majority of the recommendations. "American coal miners work daily in dangerous conditions in order to produce the fuel for more than half our nation's electric power. They deserve nothing less than to work without fear of developing a disease that will cripple their lives and their livelihoods," said Reich. "The recommendations released today specifically address the conditions the cause black lung and silicosis and spell out what needs to be done to abolish them from all coal mines." The nine-member advisory committee on the Elimination of Pneumoconiosis Among Coal Mine Workers recommended that the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) take full responsibility for all coal mine dust sampling conducted to determine compliance with exposure standards. Currently, MSHA collects only 25 percent of dust samples; the bulk are gathered by mine operators. It suggests that if necessary, mine operators should pay for expanded MSHA dust sampling. As an interim measure, the group recommended that dust sampling by mine operofficer's presence. Francois was charged with disorderly conduct and terroristic threatening. During her arraignment Tuesday, Job Corps supervisor Gary Shepherd informed the court that Francois' enrollment was terminated at the center and arrangements had been made for her to leave. District Judge James R. Allen dismissed the charges against Francois, ordered that she not return to Floyd County, and stipulated that she must remain in jail until arrangements were made for her return home.

Judge orders Job Corps student to leave the county

A Carl D. Perkins Job Corps student was ordered Tuesday to leave the county and not return. Carol Francois, 19, of Florida, was arrested Monday evening at the center by Prestonsburg Police sergeant Mike Ormerod. Francois was cursing and screaming in a public place, according to Ormerod's report, to alarm or annoy the public. The report also indicated that Francois made threats of physical harm against another person in the

Wheelwright trash dispute grows deeper

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

A controversy over who should pay for the removal of trash dumped on the Little League field in Wheelwright raised a few questions Monday for the city attorney. A trash pile had accumulated behind city hall after the city attempted to participate in a county-wide clean-up effort with the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission. But, after the city had residents bring trash to one location, the solid waste commission never picked it up. Floyd County Solid Waste director Mike Vance said in October that he had never spoken with Wheelwright Mayor David Marlee Sammons about the trash pick-up. "I think Wheelwright did something after the county cleanup," Vance said.

Environmental Protection Division of Waste Management comes to town to oversee the trash removal. But the question of who has to pay for the removal concerned the city commission and several residents at the regular meeting Monday night. Commissioner Hall asked city attorney Tim Parker why the city should have to pay for the removal when the mayor created the problem. (See Trash, page two)

Floyd County ecology officer Lon May said he was aware that Sammons said county officials were notified about the city's cleanup, but "the city had no agreement with the solid waste commission or the county judge-executive." Commissioner David Hall said Sammons took the garbage to the Wheelwright Little League ball field. "The mayor took the junk from behind city hall and dumped it over the hill at the ball field," Hall said. "We didn't have any place to put the trash, so it was dumped in a hole and covered up," Sammons said last month. "We are not trying to break any laws, but if we have done something wrong we will correct it." The city will have to do just that Tuesday, November 26, when the

Searching for a bomb

Trash

"It was not legal to have it hauled up there," Parker said Monday, "but the city is liable." Hall said he was against the trash being hauled to the Little League field and he was against the city paying for it. "It shouldn't have been done, but we need to focus on it," Parker said. "We have to move it." The trash issue also brought out a few questions about the mayor's alleged illegal use of city equipment. "Is it legal to use equipment on private property?" Luther Johnson, who was elected to take a seat on the commission beginning January 1, 1997, asked. Johnson alleges that Mayor Sammons used a backhoe at his residence as an excuse to get fill dirt to cover the trash. "He used it as an excuse to make his yard bigger," Johnson said. Mayor Sammons said the backhoe was used when the trash was removed to resolve two problems at the same time. He said a neighbor has a water problem when it rains and dirt was needed for the trash. "Water runs by two (of Sammons' neighbors') houses and a ditch was dug to where his property line comes out," Sammons said. "If we can use the equipment to help the people — we will." "It was probably wrong to take the trash back there," Sammons said Monday. "All I was doing is trying to help the people in this town." Other actions taken by the commission included: • The commission appointed a three-member procurement committee to rate firm that wish to assist in the administration of an Economic Development Administration grant for the rehabilitation and renovation of the city's swimming pool. The city received a $366,010 grant for the project. The commission agreed to offer the positions on the committee to Myra Thornsbury, Mary Wagner, and Ricky Little. The procurement committee will rate the Big Sandy Area Development District, Prestonsburg, and Will Linder & Associates, Berea, on their qualifications for administering the project. • The second reading of a curfew ordinance for minors in the city was approved by the commission. The ordinance established a curfew for minors from 12:01 a.m. to 6 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, and 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. on Mondays through Fridays. The ordinance imposes a $500 fine on the parents, guardians, or persons having legal custody of minors who violate the ordinance. • The commission passed a motion to hire Mike Tackett for the sum of $600 to keep snow off the roads this winter.

added. Before the bomb threats began, the school had three telephone lines available for service. That was changed to one line after the persistent threats. "(The caller) probably kept getting a busy signal at the school and called the dispatch, Larry Adams, Prestonsburg fire marshal said. Adams has been at the high school at 7 a.m. every day, answering the telephone and hoping to recognize the voice. Because all calls to the Prestonsburg dispatch office are taped, when the individual called the Prestonsburg dispatch, his voice was recorded. Technology is available to match the recording with a suspect's voice print, but officials will not say if they will utilize that technology. On Thursday, at 8:22 a.m., the dispatch received another bomb threat for the high school. After firefighters searched the building and left the scene, a second bomb threat was received at the dispatch around 10:28 a.m. School was dismissed for the day because students could not assemble in the gymnasium, which is undergoing repairs, or on the football field because of rain and cold weather. Parent Susan Gullett said her daughter is ill because the teen was on the football field during bad weather while the school was being searched. She said she kept her daughter home from school Wednesday when she saw the police and fire trucks at the school as she brought her to school after a doctor's visit. School officials called her later to ask why the teen was absent.

"I told them when the bomb threats quit, I would send her to school," she said. Gullett suggests that students be bused to another school in the county for instruction. Six juveniles and an older student were thought last week to be involved in the bomb threats, but only one of the seven was accused of making the threats. Phil Damron, an attorney for the Floyd County Board of Education, said Tuesday that the students will be dealt with by sometime next week. audio tape along with a short biography to program director Greg Crum at the Mountain Arts Center, One Hal Rogers Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. A motion was filed in Floyd Circuit Court Tuesday to correct the name of a Martin man listed on the indictments issued by the grand jury last week. Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt filed the motion November 19 to amend the name on the indictment from Linville Glen Tackett to Linville Glen Isaac. The motion is before the court and will not be ruled on until December 6.

Black lung

ators be strengthened, for example by increasing MSHA's presence at mines found to have a history of noncompliance with dust standards. "We'll consider all the committee's recommendations carefully," said Davitt McAteer, assistant secretary of labor for mine safety and health. "Some recommendations could be adopted quickly through administrative changes. Other recommendations will demand longer-term consideration, research or rule making. But now is the time to get started, and we will begin the process immediately."

In additional recommendations, the advisory committee said MSHA should:

- Establish separate permissible exposure limits for silica (quartz) and coal mine dust;
- Require mine operators to verify that their dust control plans work effectively before MSHA approves the plan;
- Include surface coal miners in periodic x-rays offered to underground coal miners;
- Consider lowering the allowable exposure limit on coal mine dust;
- Reduce silica exposure of coal miners to prevent silicosis;
- Improve dust control in surface coal mines;
- Focus more attention on dust exposure of independent contractor employees in coal mines;
- Improve miner training on dust;
- Continue to push research on way to achieve continuous monitoring of dust levels;
- Further review the "Part 90" program that lets miners with signs of black lung transfer into low-dust jobs;
- Make a number of additional changes to improve dust monitoring and control in coal mines.

Reich asked the advisory committee to review all aspects of the federal program to prevent black lung and silicosis among coal miners, including exposure limits, dust control methods and dust monitoring strategies.

"Black lung" is a common term for coal workers' pneumoconiosis caused by excessive exposure to coal mine dust. Silicosis is a lung disease specifically related to excessive quartz dust exposure, which can be a factor in many coal mines. Severe black lung or silicosis can continue to worsen even after exposure to the dust stops. Either disease can be disabling and, potentially, fatal.

The incidence of dust-related lung disease among U.S. coal miners has decreased with improved dust control since passage of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 (Coal Act). However, some cases of black lung and silicosis continue to be diagnosed even in coal miners who entered the industry after 1969.

According to a 1994 report by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), black lung was mentioned on more than 55,000 death certificates between 1968 and 1990.

The annual cost of federal black lung benefits currently exceeds $1.2 billion; total costs of the program since its inception in 1970 approach $33 billion.

The advisory committee included two labor representatives, two industry representatives and five academic members with no economic interest in the mining industry or government. The committee held discussions at five public meetings earlier this year in Arlington, Virginia; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Charleston, West Virginia; Salt Lake City, Utah; and Lexington, Kentucky. At these meetings, the committee also heard from some 75 members of the public, most of them working miners.

Members of the advisory committee visited three mines to observe respirable dust control technology: the Dilworth Mine near Washington, Pennsylvania; the Hobert No. 21 surface mine near Charleston, West Virginia; and the Deercreek Mine, near Price, Utah. The committee also reviewed the latest technical studies and visited the Pittsburgh Research Center in Bruceton, Pennsylvania (recently transferred from the Energy Department to the Health and Human Services Department's National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health), to discuss ongoing research.

"The recommendations are the result of many days of discussion and debate and reflect the committee's best judgment on how to eliminate coal worker's pneumoconiosis and silicosis which have plagued our nation's coal miners for far too many years," said David Wegman, committee chair, in a letter transmitting the committee's report to Secretary Reich. Wegman, a physician and epidemiologist who is chairman of the Department of Work Environment at the University of Massachusetts Lowell, commended the committee members on their efforts—and success—at reaching consensus on a majority of recommendations. The report includes minority positions on the remaining issues.

Congress in the 1969 Coal Act first established federal standards for coal mine dust exposure as well as a federal benefits program for miners with black lung. Currently, every underground coal mine is required to follow an approved mine ventilation plan that includes specific dust control measures designed to protect miners from overexposure to dust.

Coal mine operators nationwide last year collected more than 65,000 coal mine dust samples, which MSHA analyzed to determine compliance with exposure limits. Another 21,000 coal mine dust samples were taken last year by MSHA inspectors.

Coal mine dust samples as taken over a full eight-hour working shift using a sampling pump that draws dusty air through a filter enclosed in a tamper-resistant cassette. The weight of the respirable coal mine dust collected indicates the concentration in the mine air where the sample was taken.

The report of the advisory committee on the Elimination of Pneumoconiosis Among Coal Mine Workers is available on the World Wide Web, at MSHA's Home Page, <http://www.msha.gov>. Single copies along may be requested from MSHA, Coal Mine Safety and Health, Division of Health, 4015 Wilson Blvd., Arlington, VA 22203, telephone (703) 235-1358.

Members of the advisory committee on the Elimination of Pneumoconiosis Among Coal Miners, with affiliations while they served on the committee, were:

David Wegman, (advisory committee chairman) chairman of the Department of Work Environment, and a professor in the College of Engineering at the University of Massachusetts Lowell. A physician and epidemiologist, Wegman also chaired a National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) working group on lung disease surveillance in miners and edited one of the leading textbooks in the field of occupational health.

John Dement, an associate professor in the division of occupational and environmental medicine at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, North Carolina. Dement previously directed the office of disease prevention and exposure research for the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences. He has a joint doctoral degree in industrial hygiene/epidemiology and is editor of Applied Occupational and Environmental Hygiene.

Kathleen Kreiss, affiliated with the department of preventive medicine and biometrics at the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center in Denver. She is also an associate professor at the University of Colorado School of Medicine. Kreiss has written about occupational lung disease and is a NIOSH-certified "B" reader of pneumoconiosis x-ray films.

Raja Ramani, professor of mining engineering and head of the Department of Mineral Engineering at Pennsylvania State University. Ramani is also director of the Generic Mineral Technology Center for Respirable Dust and has published more than 150 research papers dealing with mine planning and design, mine health and safety, and productivity.

Carol Rice, an associate professor of environmental health at the Kettering Laboratory, University of Cincinnati. Rice is past chairperson of the American Conference Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) and has published numerous research papers dealing with the measurement and control of workplace contaminants.

John Gibbs, vice president of health management and corporate medical director of the Kerr-McGee Corp. in Oklahoma City. He is an adjunct associate professor of occupational environmental medicine at the University of Oklahoma. Gibbs also serves on the occupational health committee of the National Mining Association.

Joseph Lamonica, vice-president for health, safety and training at the Bituminous Coal Operator's Association Inc. in Washington, D.C. Lamonica previously served as director of health, safety and engineering for the Island Creek Coal Company in Lexington. Prior to that, he was administrator for coal mine safety and health at the Mine Safety and Health Administration, U.S. Department of Labor.

Joseph Main, administrator of the department of occupational health and safety at the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) in Washington, D.C., for 13 years. Main, a former surface and underground miner, directs a staff of union safety officials who inspect miner and investigate accidents at UMWA mines.

James Weeks, associate research professor in the division of occupational and environmental medicine at the George Washington University Medical Center in Washington, D.C. A certified industrial hygienist, Weeks has published papers in the scientific literature on coal mine dust exposures and the effectiveness of mine safety regulations.

We Volunteer!

by Scott Perry

If they come, they will build it.

That may be opposite to the approach used in the movie Field of Dreams, but it is an intriguing idea for economic development in job-starved areas such as ours.

And, it's just the idea under study now by Governor Paul Patton.

While specifics are yet to be offered, the proposal under review by the governor involves a concentrated effort to build up one community in the mountains and to make that community economically self-sufficient.

As described by James Bickford, secretary of the state's Cabinet for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the idea is to go into a community, armed with plenty of state and federal money, and build the roads, the utility systems and the industrial sites needed to enhance industrial and residential growth.

Hey, to heck with the details, we know exactly where the first pilot project should be. Right here.

Here's why.

We don't need a complete makeover; we just need a little push.

For years we've been harping about the potential for economic resurrection available to three Big Sandy counties along Route 3, where the regional airport is now and where a new federal prison will be in a few years.

A concentrated approach to developing that corridor will not only help the three county seats...at Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Inez...but it could lead to the birth of a brand new boom town.

Imagine that.

Some time ago Lt. Governor Patton suggested the creation of new towns to serve as economic growth centers and we criticized the idea because we thought there were too many existing communities with too many needs already.

But here is a chance to kill a bunch of birds with one stone.

We can turn the Big Sandy region into a model and create opportunities that are now just the things dreams are made of.

So Governor, let us be your pilot. Give us the fuel and watch us soar.

Workers' compensation, an argument for less radical changes

by Ira Edsel Branham

It should come as no surprise that the debate over the future of Workers' Compensation has again heated up. After all, it has been the insurance industry's favorite political football for decades.

Never mind that the safety net at issue touches the heart of the economic and psychic security of Kentucky's labor force.

Never mind the children and families forced into poverty and deprivation when the breadwinner receives a catastrophic injury.

Never mind the poorly educated 50-year-old coal miner who can't breathe because his lungs are riddled with black lung disease and who finds he is no longer needed to fill the coal train.

Never mind that dust fraud and safety violations are commonplace.

Never mind that we don't spend enough money to insure that employers are in compliance with OSHA and MSHA and that these government agencies are chronically underfunded and understaffed.

Never mind the factory worker who suffers a devastating back injury and finds he is the first to go when the lay-offs come and the last to be rehired.

Never mind that retraining and rehabilitation really aren't taken seriously and come only as an afterthought.

Whether or not there is a crisis in Workers' Compensation is in the eye of the beholder. But one thing is for sure—its politics as usual and the injured worker will be the big loser.

In truth, the use of the word "crisis" seems unduly alarmist when we consider that the ink wasn't even dry on the last set of Workers' Compensation reforms when the propaganda machine again started talking about a financial crisis. We should remember that this type of propaganda isn't new. It has been a favorite word of insurance industry lobbyists every legislative session for more than two decades.

As far as number crunching goes and there's been plenty enough numbers thrown about, it would be wise to remember Nixon's attorney general, John Mitchell, who used to say "figures lie and liars figure." (And he should know).

It may very well be that the real crisis is the possibility the advocates of radical change might succeed. Where will injured workers find themselves if these reforms succeed? Who is it that will ultimately pay the economic and psychic cost of drastic cuts in workers' compensation.

Die-hard conservatives argue that the whole government-supported social safety net system, including social security, should be scrapped and people should rely on their own savings and fend for themselves. This rugged-individualistic view lacks much from a compassionate viewpoint in a mature, capitalistic society.

In an age of rising anxiety when many Americans believe they are only a paycheck from living on the street, safety nets are of special concern. Pronouncements about radically reforming or dismantling workers' compensation and other social security nets, only add to voters' distrust and cynicism and end up doing little more than confusing and frightening an already anxious work force.

Any radical changes in the workers' compensation system should be the product of careful study and certainly not a knee-jerk reaction to already overused propaganda about a so-called crisis.

Those calling for radical restructuring have been very successful in their efforts to shift the terms of the debate and divert attention from issues such as work place safety and analysis of insurance company profits. The end result is most often

Education: State vs. Local Control

"I think animal testing is a terrible idea; they get all nervous and give the wrong answers."

—A. Fry

It may be promised, but legislators will never enact substantive campaign finance reform, establish much-needed term limits, nor significantly cut down on all of their perks and benefits. There is nothing particularly evil or corrupt about this, it's just their human instinct of self-preservation. For the same reasons, effective school reform will never be established.

We can't expect lawmakers, bureaucrats and executives to voluntarily give up their control of public education and put it where it really belongs—in the hands of teachers and parents. There is enormous power in their control, and those who have it, plan on keeping it...at any cost.

Site-based decision making is a nice gesture but we are continually reminded the state is calling the shots. As long as the state has final authority it will ultimately be accountable for all problems that arise. So, any site-based "decisions" will be closely monitored and placed within a set of guidelines mandated by the state. The state, in turn, will be quick to take control should the slightest problems arise.

Unfortunately, state management and the subsequent bureaucracies created are the problem and not the solution.

Conflict between levels of government inevitably arise and turn into power struggles. Letcher County was actually told no matter who they chose as Superintendent the decision would be vetoed by the Commissioner of Education, and, with no apologies attached, their choice was vetoed.

Teacher certification and student testing are two other elements of the reforms which have rendered (and certainly will continue to render) questionable results.

The idea that teachers who jump through the proper amount of hoops will teach better is formulated without any true substantiation, and it may actually discourage many talented individuals from even entering the field of education.

The problems with student testing can be sufficiently symbolized by the number of schools which have been awarded for their excellence and then, within a short period of time, labeled as "schools in crisis." The testing system has also created an unneeded bureaucracy which has cost taxpayers many millions of dollars.

The real, fundamental problem with education is when commissioner Bill Cody, the Governor, or any state legislator makes a decision about how a student should be taught they consider scientific studies, input from interest groups, and public opinion. With painful frequency, these decisions call for increased spending, or confusing regulation.

When a teacher makes the same decision it is based on a personal relationship and the individual needs of the student. With the teacher there is no consideration of the special interests or the public at large and, therefore, more money is not part of their solution. With teachers, the need to satisfy non-

City shedding light on old bridge

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

The Prestonsburg Fire Department received some special training this week while prepping the West Prestonsburg bridge for the hanging of Christmas lights for the first year. "The bridge has been used as a symbol of Prestonsburg," Mayor Jerry Fannin said Thursday. "And the city has been trying to decorate more every year, so we decided to do the bridge."

Mayor Fannin said the Prestonsburg Women's Club wanted to do something with the bridge for Christmas.

He also indicated that the bridge may be lit up year-round for residents to enjoy.

Fire chief Tom Blackburn said Thursday that Fannin requested that the fire department place the lights on the bridge because it was such a delicate task.

Blackburn said the firemen were getting training at the same time. "Everybody is afraid of heights to a degree," the fire chief said. "This way, if a situation arises and the firemen are required to deal with heights, they will already be used to it."

Blackburn said each time someone is placed on a high structure such as the bridge, the task gets easier and easier."

He said the department has placed the cable lines and turnbuckles on the bridge and, once the job is finished, lights will outline the columns and the arch, and two rows of lights will be at the base of the bridge. The fire chief also said a star will be placed on the bridge for the holiday.

"If the weather permits, the columns and arch should be completed Friday," Blackburn said. "Hopefully, the lights can be turned on Monday."

Blackburn said the workers are using a full chest and bottom harness to connect them to a safety line in case they fall while working on the lights.

Indiana woman jailed

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

An Indiana woman must come up with $30,000 before she can be released from jail on charges in Floyd and Pike counties.

Judy K. Haywood, 21, was arrested Monday by Kentucky State Police trooper Henry Banks and charged with eight counts of second-degree wanton endangerment.

According to Banks' report, the charges were a result of a high-speed pursuit on November 9 with Haywood driving a stolen vehicle. The pursuit exceeded speeds of 100 miles per hour, the report says.

During Haywood's arraignment Tuesday in Floyd District Court, not-guilty pleas were entered by District Judge James R. Allen to the felony charges.

Judge Allen approved assistant county attorney Lance Daniels' $10,000 cash bond recommendation, and ordered her to be held for warrants from Pike County.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, November 26.

On Wednesday, the Floyd County Adult Detention Center received a copy of Haywood's charges in Pike County, where there are currently eight charges pending against Haywood.

The list includes theft by unlawful taking, a vehicle; operating a motor vehicle under the influence of drugs; first-degree wanton endangerment; and criminal mischief.

Pike County set a $20,000 cash bond on Haywood's charges.

a further unraveling of the injured workers' safety net. Given the current agenda, one wonders if next we won't hear the proposal to replace doctors with some sort of medical technician except, of course, in cases of necessity which will be defined and determined by the insurance industry. I am sure some numbers can be thrown together to show the great benefit and cost savings of such a proposal.

To the extent it is determined that changes are appropriate, perhaps more modest changes such as the following should be debated:

- Increased emphasis on safety in the workplace including enforcement of safety standards and development of innovative safety training programs. The current system largely subsidizes unsafe work places. Employers and employees should be encouraged to maintain safe workplaces through various incentive programs.

- Increased emphasis on retraining and rehabilitation programs.

- Greater accommodation of injured workers in the workplace consistent with the spirit of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

- Establish an ongoing bipartisan commission to study the issue and involve representatives from both labor and industry.

- Shifting of severance tax revenues to meet financial shortfalls.

There is much reason to believe that modest adjustments from time to time in the workers' compensation system are all that's necessary. Likewise, there is much reason to believe that this is what the majority of the electorate demands and not radical restructuring.

Floyd man pleads guilty to theft

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

A Floyd County man entered a plea agreement Wednesday in Floyd Circuit Court to theft by unlawful taking charges.

Clyde Bentley was charged with stealing a race car engine on December 9, 1995. The engine was owned by Jeff Jones and valued at more than $300.

A Floyd County Grand Jury returned an indictment against Bentley on September 9, 1996 for the felony charge.

Prosecutors recommended a one-year jail sentence for the guilty plea.

Bentley's formal sentencing will be held on January 10, 1997.

Two arrested for burglary of Blue River residence

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

A burglary earlier this month in Blue River was solved last week by sheriff's detective James Rederick after the Prestonsburg Police Department arrested two subjects for the allegedly stealing stereo equipment in the Prestonsburg.

Donnie Kazee, 19, of London, and Freddie Blackburn, 18, of Prestonsburg, were arrested November 9 by patrolman Darrell Preston and charged with first-degree kidnapping, first-degree armed robbery, and theft by unlawful taking.

Preston reported that Kazee and Blackburn picked up an 18-year-old Job Corps student and then took $50 from the student at gunpoint.

Detective Rederick said a rifle was recovered from Kazee and Blackburn during a follow-up investigation by the city police department, and "that rifle was from the residence that was burglarized."

George and Barbara Hale's residence on Blue River was broken into on November 17, the detective said, adding that a television, VCR, rifle and several compact discs (CDs) were taken from the house.

Rederick said the rifle and CDs were returned to the Hales, but the television and VCR have not been found.

Kazee and Blackburn are still lodged in the Floyd County Adult Detention Center under $10,000 cash bonds.

During a preliminary hearing Thursday, Judge Allen found probable cause to refer Kazee's and Blackburn's cases to the grand jury.

Rederick said Kazee and Blackburn could also face additional theft-related charges from the Kentucky State Police, the Prestonsburg Police Department, and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

GEICO offers winter driving tips

"Winter driving shouldn't induce panic," said Walter Smith, assistant vice president of Government Employees Insurance Company (GEICO). "If you use some common sense and prepare for the conditions, you'll find it's not as bad as you expect."

Smith offered the following suggestions to make cold-weather driving as safe and pleasant an experience as possible.

- Clear the ice and snow from all car windows and lights. Good visibility is essential to a safe ride.

- If you expect road conditions to be bad, allow extra time for your trip. If you don't have to worry about getting where you're going on time, you'll be able to concentrate better on arriving safely.

- If you think the road may be slippery, make sure you reduce your speed well in advance of an anticipated stop. If you have anti-lock brakes, apply steady, constant pressure to the brake pedal. With conventional brakes, use a pumping action on the pedal; avoid slamming your foot down on the brake, which will lock your wheels and produce a skid.

- If your car does start to slide, don't brake. Remove your feet from the pedals and turn the wheels in the direction of the skid until your car straightens out.

- If your car has front-wheel drive, don't let its good handling characteristics give you a false sense of security. While it may provide better traction in slippery conditions than a rear-wheel drive car, it won't stop any faster than other cars on the road.

- Drive with your headlights on when it's snowing or raining so you can be seen more easily by other drivers.

- Carry emergency equipment such as flares, a shovel, a bag of sand and a blanket in the trunk in case your car gets stuck.

- If you're planning a long trip where you know the potential for bad weather exists, pack some food. If you do get stuck somewhere, at least you won't be hungry.

- For additional peace of mind, consider investing in emergency road service protection.

Bluegrass at the Sipp Theatre November 23

The Historic Sipp Theatre in downtown Paintsville, is offering Vol. VII of its "Bluegrass at the Sipp" concert series November 23, at 7:30 p.m. with "The First Family of Bluegrass Gospel Music," The Lewis Family, and Emma Smith.

The Lewis Family is arguably the most popular and verifiably the most in-demand act on the circuit and headlines 50 or more major festivals each year in addition to shows in school auditoriums, special events and fairs, aggregating some 200 personal appearance dates yearly.

From humble beginnings in the late 1940's, the still all-family troupe performs today—amazingly having the original cast—with three generations of family members. Known and loved by bluegrass fans throughout the world, "Pop" (Roy) Lewis, born September 22, 1905, continues as the senior member and patriarch of the talented performing family that now consists of five children and two grandchildren of "Pop" and "Mom" (Pauline) Lewis.

Youngest of Pop's children, five string banjo and guitar wizard, "Little Roy," is one of the top instrumentalists in bluegrass music and has no equal in the genre as an entertainer. His comedic antics are so well known as to be a part of the fabric of the music. Sisters Maggie, Polly, and Janis blend voices in beautiful and often spine tingling trio harmony and offer solos by stage MC Polly Lewis Copesey or Janis Lewis Phillips.

Wallace Lewis plays guitar and his son Travis ranks among the elite of upright bass players in the business. Lewis Phillips, son of Janis and husband Earl, was, like his uncle, Little Roy, a child prodigy and played a featured role as an instrumentalist on a CBS Special, Carol and Dolly in Nashville, at age six in the mid-1970's and now plays guitar, resonator banjo, mandolin or banjo in specialty arrangements with Little Roy and is also featured as vocalist.

The Lewis Family has received numerous honors and awards, some of the more recent being the group's induction into the Georgia Music Hall of Fame on September 26, 1992, and SPBGMA's 1994 awards "Most Entertaining Bluegrass Band," with Little Roy being named "Best Banjo Player" and Travis "Best Bass Player." Just a few of prestigious venues that have hosted the family show are The Grand Ole Opry, TNN's Nashville Now: NBC's Weekend Special and TNN's Gospel Jubilee.

For 38 years, from 1954 until 1992, The Lewis Family hosted its own weekly television show on WBBF-TV, Channel 6 in Augusta, Georgia. The telecast went into syndication for a time and held a national record for longevity when discontinued, an action made necessary by the group's increasingly heavy travel schedule. In July, 1993, the family purchased, from the Estate of Conway Twitty, the luxuriously furnished coach and matching trailer of the late superstar and annually logs more than 100,000 miles in some 40 states and Canadian provinces. With more than 50 albums and three videos produced over the years, the band has recorded exclusively for the Benson Company since 1985.

Each year the family is honored by the annual "Lewis Family Homecoming Bluegrass Festival" held the first weekend in May, when visitors to the northeast Georgia town of Lincolntown are greeted by year-round highway signs proclaiming it home of "The First Family of Bluegrass Gospel Music."

Celebrate 50th Anniversary

The family and friends of Russell and Sarah Laven are invited to attend their Golden Wedding Anniversary reception at the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial) of Prestonsburg in the fellowship hall on Saturday afternoon, November 30, from 2:00 to 4:00. This is being hosted by Sarah's Sister, Nell Music Montgomery, and her nieces. Bring your family, but no gifts, please.

Pike student continues lipstick protest

by Michael Browning
Appalachian News-Express

Despite having her suspension lifted, a Runyon Elementary School eighth-grader says she won't be returning to school until she's allowed to wear her black lipstick.

Karla Chapman, 13, returned to school Monday morning for an 8 a.m. meeting after being suspended last Wednesday, November 13, for wearing black lipstick.

Principal Rosa Wolfe sent the student home again, but said her suspension had not been renewed. "She can come to school any day she wishes—without the lipstick," Wolfe said.

Tuesday, November 12, Chapman said she will not be going back to school until she is allowed to wear the lipstick.

"We just decided not to go back because they would make me take off my lipstick, and I don't want to do that," the teenager said.

Her stepmother, Connie Chapman, said Karla was upset

Dispute leaves one brother dead

by Alicia Carmichael
Appalachian News-Express

A family argument Sunday, November 17, left one brother dead and sent another brother to jail on murder charges, authorities said.

Forty-year-old Billy Ramsey, of the Mill Branch Road section of Island Creek, died following a disagreement with his brother, Burnus Ramsey, also of Mill Branch Road, according to a Kentucky State Police report.

Billy Ramsey was shot once with a 12-gauge shotgun. Burnus Ramsey was arrested for murder by Trooper Eddie Crum and was lodged in the Pike County Detention Center.

The case is under investigation by Detective Donnie Jack Phipps. — Appalachian News-Express

High court upholds 90-year murder sentence

During the October term of the Kentucky Supreme Court, the court entered an opinion upholding the 90-year sentence of David Holbrook returned by a Magoffin County jury for the 1988 murder of Lee Watson.

This was the third trial of the defendant for the shooting death of Watson. The first trial, which resulted in conviction and a sentence of 45 years, was overturned by the Supreme Court due to an improper guilty phase instruction.

The second trial, which resulted in a manslaughter conviction and a sentence of 25 years, was set aside by the trial court because of the failure to swear the jury to try the case.

The most recent trial, which resulted in conviction of murder and a 90-year sentence, is one of the most severe sentences ever returned by a Magoffin County Circuit Court jury. — The Salyersville Independent that her father, Michael Chapman, had been taken to jail when Karla said Monday she would return to school wearing bright red lipstick.

Michael Chapman was arrested and jailed on misdemeanor charges of abuse of a teacher and terroristic threatening, apparently because of an exchange between him and teachers during the meeting Monday morning at the school.

The arrest reportedly stems from a comment Chapman made to Wolfe and other school and board of education officials during the meeting: "I'm willing to stand up and take a bullet in the head for what I believe in—are you?"

Chapman was released from jail Monday night after posting 10 percent of a $2,000 bond. Connie Chapman was cited for harassment, but not arrested. She denied that any threats were made during this meeting.

School officials said the decision was made Monday to readmit Karla back to school—minus the lipstick. "The parents were not satisfied with that," Wolfe said. "She is not under suspension, but she can come back any time without the lipstick. She is not expelled."

Wolfe said the days Karla misses will count against her.

"That's going against the attendance policy. She has unexcused absences."

Connie interpreted her stepdaughter's status to be "indefinitely suspended," but Wolfe said it is "truancy."

"If she doesn't come to school, she's a truant," Wolfe said. "Any time you have three unexcused absences—and suspensions are unexcused—you have to turn their names in to the central office and they have to deal with that." She said Tuesday's unexcused absence was Chapman's first.

Pike County School System spokesman Bruce Hopkins said that Superintendent Reo Johns supported Wolfe's decision.

In suspending Chapman initially, Wolfe said the school dress code makes students and parents responsible for making sure students come to school dressed properly. The code states that students come to school dressed properly. The code states that students are not to wear anything that can be a distraction to teachers or other students or disrupt classroom instruction.

Runyon Grade School teacher Bill Dotson said the black lipstick had caused a distraction for students.

"It draws attention from the other students in the classroom. They talk about it, and look at it and whisper about it," Dotson said. "I talked to Mrs. Wolfe about it and Mrs. Wolfe called up and talked to her about it."

Wolfe said Karla was warned three times about removing the lipstick.

"She refused to take it off," Wolfe said. "And when it becomes a disturbance to the instructional program in the classroom, and the teachers are saying it's a problem, and it's brought to my attention, then I deal with that problem."

Michael Chapman cited the Constitution in his argument for his daughter wearing the lipstick.

"I thought freedom of speech and expression and the press did exist," said Michael Chapman, "but evidently at the Runyon Grade School under the dictatorship of Rosa Wolfe and all of her bootlickers, and her lapdogs, they're going to go on with things the way they are. And they're going to continue to try to cause trouble for my daughter."

Stepmother Connie said she is backing Karla and whatever decision she makes.

"I will stand behind Karla with everything that's in me," Connie said. "I will go to prison for her, just to prove a point—that three people in a school should not be able to make the decisions for every other student in there."

Stolen vehicle used in armed robberies by Johnson gang

A gang of young thieves from Johnson County was arrested in Tennessee last week after a crime spree that began at the junction of Ky. Rt. 645 and new Rt. 3 South in Martin County.

Martin County Sheriff's Deputy Roy May responded to a car wreck at the intersection early Tuesday morning, November 12, and according to eye-witnesses, the occupants of the wrecked vehicle fled the scene. Unbeknown to police, the young occupants of the car fled on foot to Copley Estates where they took a 1989 Ford Probe from the home of Game Warden Ken Goforth and headed south.

Police also suspect that the gang may be responsible for breaking into a home at Otto lane near Copley Estates after or before they took the Goforth vehicle.

Gang members include Charles "Edward" Burks, 19, of Paintsville; Greg L. Jones, 19, of Meally; a 16-year-old Paintsville boy; a 14-year-old female from Sitka; and a 16-year-old female from River.

The five were arrested in Benton County, Tennessee in the early morning hours last Wednesday morning, November 13, after they reportedly broke into the home of an elderly couple and reportedly taking rifles, shotguns, and cash.

The couple was tied up and gagged by the gang but were able to free themselves and call the Benton County Sheriff's office.

The gang then led deputies from the Benton County Sheriff's department on a high speed chase. Although the police car was damaged in the chase and the gang escaped, the deputy managed to get a partial identification of the license number from the stolen vehicle.

The gang then entered the nearby town of Camden, Tennessee, where a local chief of police, who had been alerted to be on the lookout for the group by a all-points bulletin, saw them standing beside the stolen car. He was able to hold the gang at gunpoint singlehandedly until state and county police arrived.

Goforth was notified that morning that his vehicle, which had a Fraternal Order of Police license tag on it, had been located.

He asked them if they had discovered a .38 calibre pistol that had previously belonged to his late father. He was told that no handgun had been discovered among the cache of weapons but they looked under the seat where he told them he left it and it was found.

Martin County Sheriff Darriel Young said Tuesday, November 19, that he hopes to be able to question the suspects about the break-in, but the more serious charges in Tennessee may make that improbable. — The Martin County Sun

Fourth-offense DUI nets five-year sentence

by Alicia Carmichael
Appalachian News-Express

A Shelbiana man will serve a recommended five-year maximum prison sentence for DUI after being convicted on November 11 by a Pike Circuit Court jury, a news release from the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office stated.

Glenn Keene, 36, was arrested by Kentucky State Police Trooper Shawn Ferrin on a charge of fourth-offense DUI after he was involved in a car accident on October 27, 1995, the release said.

Keene, who was defended by Julio Collado of the Public Defender's Office, contended during the trial that he was not the operator of the vehicle involved in the accident.

Mike Lucas, assistant commonwealth's attorney, who prosecuted the case, said he thought Keene was convicted because people are fed up with drunk drivers not taking responsibility for their actions.

"The jury's rejection of Keene's pleas for leniency reflected both a desire to remove repeat offenders from the roadways, and its rejection of Keene's claim that he was not driving, despite having admitted to the trooper that he was the driver at the scene of the accident," Lucas said.

Federal prison official visits, talks utilities

by Chad Fitzpatrick
The Martin County Sun

With plans for the construction of new $100 million federal prison well underway, David J. Dorworth of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, was in Martin County last week to observe firsthand how the project is progressing.

Martin County Judge-Executive Kelly Callahan said Dorworth came to discuss concerns over utilities and other infrastructure to the facility. Representatives of the Martin County Water District, as well as utility companies in Johnson and Floyd counties, were on hand in Prestonsburg last week to address any questions that Dorworth or the Federal Bureau of Prisons could have regarding the installation of water, sewer, electric, and gas utilities to the site near the Big Sandy Airport in Martin County, where the prison will be constructed.

"I think Mr. Dorworth was pleased," Callahan said Monday, November 18. "The feeling that I received from him was one of excitement on how far we had progressed since the initial stages of the project."

Police arrest suspect five minutes after burglary

Paintsville police wasted no time in solving an early morning burglary at Sandy Valley Pharmacy, Sunday, November 17. Within five minutes of the crime's occurrence, officers had apprehended their suspect.

Police received a report around 5 a.m. that the front door to the East Street pharmacy had been busted out and that a person was seen leaving the scene with a garbage bag. Police Chief Tom Haney estimated that the burglary happened less than two minutes before it was reported, and that police officers got to work on the case right away. Three minutes later, they arrested their suspect.

Officers Buddy Gambil and Bill Conley found 22-year-old Dolphia Kelly of Staffordsville lurking behind Cheryl's Restaurant carrying a garbage bag. The officers found $15,000 worth of Soma, Valium, Percodan, Percocet and Tylenol 3 inside the bag.

Haney said Kelly apparently broke the glass front door with a rock and then kicked out the remaining glass.

"He just kicked out the glass and ran in, knew where he was going, got what he wanted and left," Haney said.

Gambil and Conley arrested Kelly and charged him with third-degree burglary.

Kelly was taken to the Big Sandy Detention Center and was later released on bond. He faces an arraignment hearing on December 11.

If convicted, Kelly faces up to five years in prison. — The Paintsville Herald

Johnson grand jury indicts three for receiving stolen property

Three men were indicted last week by a Johnson County Grand Jury on felony charges of receiving stolen property. Two of the men, Mickey Cline and Charles Marshall, both of Paintsville, were named in one of the indictments returned last Wednesday, November 13.

According to the indictment, Cline and Marshall were allegedly in illegal possession of a Magic Chef stove and range stolen from Bank America Housing Services.

The appliance had been stolen July 15. Cline and Marshall are currently free on a partially-secured $5,000 bond.

In the other indictment, Scottie J. Ratliff, 24, of Paintsville, was allegedly caught with a cellular telephone stolen from Cassandra Harless, July 25. Ratliff was also charged with possession of marijuana. Ratliff was released from jail on an unsecured $5,000 bond.

The three men face up to an additional 12 months in jail and up to $500 in fines on the possession charge. Ratliff also faces up to an additional 12 months in jail and up to $500 in fines on the possession charge. — The Paintsville Herald

Meally man arrested as Florida fugitive

Police have arrested a Meally man wanted as a fugitive from justice from the state of Florida.

Everette Lee Blevins, 38, was arrested November 8 and awaits an extradition hearing. Blevins was arrested by Paintsville police officer Paul Witten.

Blevins had been wanted by the Polk County, Florida, sheriff's office with felony burglary and theft charges dating back to 1993.

Blevins is being held in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center on a $1,000 cash bond.

Assistant police chief Steve Fitch assisted Witten in the arrest. — The Paintsville Herald

Magoffin County

Magoffin County ponders animal control

A representative of Tri-County Humane Society, Don Grubbs, addressed the Magoffin County Fiscal Court in a special meeting held November 5. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the steps the county needs to take in order to comply with the state's laws in regard to controlling stray animals.

Grubbs explained that an animal control program must be placed in the county in the near future to avoid possible litigation. Magoffin is reportedly one of two counties currently in non-compliance with state laws.

The most likely plan will include signing a contract with the Lawrence County Humane Society to house stray animals picked up in the county. A tentative agreement calls for Magoffin County to pay the society $400 a month plus $15 per animal housed. It would reportedly cost the county $60,000 to $80,000 to build a comparable facility. The county would only be responsible for animals transported by the county's dog warden.

Any privately owned dog in the county will require a license, at the estimated cost of $2 to $3. Animals picked up and transported to the facility will be housed for seven days before being destroyed. Magistrates reserved any action on the topic until a public hearing can be held. The hearing will be scheduled for the near future. — The Salyersville Independent

Teenagers avoid injuries in car wreck

Two Magoffin County teenagers escaped serious injury last week when their car left the highway and traveled airborne for an estimated 150 feet before landing on its top in the shallow Licking River.

First cousins Sabrina Helton and Leslie Helton reportedly were traveling on Route 460, just west of Salyersville, when they lost control of their vehicle. The two girls had already removed themselves from the wreck by the time the rescue personnel arrived.

Both were transported to the Appalachian Regional Hospital in West Liberty and were kept overnight for observation. The extent of their injuries were confined to minor bruises and scratches. — The Salyersville Independent

Dog pound issue is heating up

In recent weeks, a lot of concern has been expressed as to the Martin County Fiscal Court's failure to maintain a dog pound as mandated by Kentucky law.

Ned Pillersdorf, a Prestonsburg attorney, wrote a detailed letter to Martin County Judge-Executive Kelly Callahan last week regarding the topic.

In the letter, Pillersdorf states, "I have advised Chapman (a Martin County resident who has circulated a petition in favor of an animal shelter) that I will file a writ of mandamus in Martin Circuit Court if she is unable to secure a commitment to immediately commence the implementation of a dog pound in Martin County."

Callahan stated that the Martin County Fiscal Court will look into having agreements with local shelters to help curtail the problem of stray dogs in the county. — The Martin County Sun

Majestic woman tries to hide son from police

A Majestic woman and her son were arrested Wednesday, November 13, after the woman attempted to hide her son from police, authorities said.

Kathy Smith, 41, was arrested by Kentucky State Police Trooper Shawn Welch on charges of hindering apprehension and unsworn falsification to authorities.

Clell Dotson, 23, of Majestic, was also arrested by Welch on charges of resisting arrest, DUI, reckless driving, failure to appear in court (two counts), disorderly conduct and traffic-related charges. According to his arrest citation, Dotson fled on foot while Welch was attempting to arrest him early Wednesday, November 13.

Welch said he then took out warrants for Dotson's arrest and questioned Smith about her son's whereabouts. During the questioning, Smith gave Welch a false name for her son and denied having any knowledge of his location, the citation said. Moments later, during execution of the warrants, Welch said he found Dotson hiding in his mother's Phelps home. Both individuals were arrested and lodged in the Pike County Detention Center. — Appalachian News-Express

Trial date set for meat cleaver trial

A woman and her 17-year-old son will go on trial on April 28 in a bizarre assault case.

Little, 32, of Pikeville, is charged with fourth-degree assault and her son with first-degree assault. Little and Jessie James Taylor allegedly had been arguing over rent money when Little began beating Taylor with a cane. Her son then allegedly stabbed Taylor in the back with a butcher knife. The son was then accused of hitting Taylor in the temple with a meat cleaver.

News of the Weird by Chuck Shepherd

— A New York Times report on the first day's rescue operations for TWA Flight 800 in July mentioned a man in an Army uniform who showed up at the crash site command center and helped direct helicopter traffic for about 12 hours before those in charge realized they had no idea who he was. Though authorities agreed that the man had done a fine job, he was escorted from the area. In October, the man, David Williams, pleaded guilty to one count of unauthorized practice of a profession and was sentenced to six months in jail. Previously, he had impersonated a physician diagnosing Medicare patients for a private firm and teaching physician seminars, and in both cases, employers were pleased with his work despite the fact that he is not a doctor.

— In October, Linda Pugach bailed her husband, Burton, 69, out of jail after his arrest for threatening to kill his mistress of five years. Linda and Burton go way back. In 1959, she was blinded in both eyes by a lye attack arranged by Burton after she spurned his marriage proposal. He was released from prison in 1974 and went on a TV-show campaign to win her heart, and a few months later, she married him. Asked by a reporter her reaction to Burton's current paramour, Linda responded, "Did you call Hillary and ask her how she feels?"

COMPELLING EXPLANATIONS

— An Indonesian prison guard, identified only as S.M., on trial in September for helping inmate Eddy Tansil escape, testified that Tansil did give him about $400 but denied it was a bribe. He said he was good at his job as a jailer, and "I only took the money as a tip."

— A Winnipeg, Manitoba, court ordered accused wife-killer Dean Eric Wride to undergo routine psychiatric tests in September, despite his lawyer's protest that such pretrial treatment might actually cure him and thus hurt his insanity defense.

— Ohio University Prof. Dwight Pugh was officially reprimanded in October by his dean for having filled out and submitted his own course evaluations, for six consecutive quarters, as if done by students. (He rated himself very high.) When confronted with the charges, Pugh said his work was all part of an experiment to test the evaluation process.

— Pro football player Mark Carrier told a Greensboro (N.C.) News Record reporter in September that the presence of evangelist Billy Graham at the Carolina Panthers' stadium during a practice session was inspirational. "Even after we battle on the football field and beat each others heads in," said Carrier, "we come together and thank God for just being able to do that."

— The Romanian soccer federation fined the junior team Athletic Bucarest about $16,000 in October for grossly violating rules by walking out of a recent game before it was over. The players, who were losing 16-0 at the time, said the only reason they left was that a group of their fans were screaming that if they gave up two more goals in the final two minutes, the fans would charge onto the field and strip the players naked.

CHUTZPAH

— According to their lawsuit in Salt Lake City, two U.S. West telephone company technicians admitted they were paid a $70 per diem allowance for more than two years for working away from home when they had never moved and were actually working in the same place they had always worked. Still, when the company discovered its error and cut off the per diem, Charles Mangrum and Alan Montierth filed lawsuits challenging the cutoff and also sued their union for not helping them fight it. In September, a federal judge granted summary judgment for the company.

— Arrested for murder in central Georgia in 1992 and briefly left unsupervised in a police car, Melissa Leslie Burgeson discussed the crime with her boyfriend, including how they should have done some aspects of the mur-

Censorship.

There's a dirty word for you.

Anybody who proposes using it ought to be, well, censored.

Got to participate in a panel this week at PCC which examined censorship through some pretty diverse eyes. There was a preacher, a lawyer, a psychology prof, an English prof, a mom, and me, the newspaper guy.

We all pretty much agreed that the First Amendment was THE rule when it comes to debating free speech, then we offered exceptions to the rule which were based primarily on our own perceptions of what is naughty and what is nice.

If there was a consensus among the panelists on an exception to our freedom to say or think anything we want, it was television.

Even there, though, the degree of allowable censorship varied from permitting government regulation of programming to tossing the tube out the window and to waiting until the kids were in bed to watch Two Stupid Dogs cartoons.

We won't tell you which panelists proposed what because it might just freak you out.

Anyway, despite the fact we publicly denounce censorship as despicable, it's pretty common in our society. Some forms are subtle...like your brain telling your tongue to be still when you'd really like to call your neighbor a dirty so-and-so.

Others forms of censorship are more obvious, like politically correct speech.

There are even laws that promote censorship through political correctness, like the one in Cincinnati which prohibits those #@!&^%*# Buckeyes from referring to us Appalachians as "hillbillies."

Wonder what the politically correct term for us is? Native Kentucky Hill Dwellers?

If the First Amendment allowed everybody just one chance at censorship, what sort of speech or expression would you prohibit?

We know what we'd do...

Bar anyone who has eaten raw onions from speaking to us within, say, ten feet.

That type of behavior just cannot be tolerated.

Critic's Corner

by Michael Greene

The Associate

The world of wheeling and dealing, high stakes finance and risk-taking is still very much the realm of men only. This Old Boys' Network rivals that of the United States Senate in a big way. In fact, it's hard really to say which one presents more of a glass ceiling to women than the other.

This is what the main character of this movie, Laurel Ayres (Whoopi Goldberg), discovers very early on. Laurel is a talented, sure-to-go-places investment counselor at a prestigious Wall Street firm. She's confident that big things are just around the corner for her — and so it would seem. Alas and alack, Laurel becomes the victim of a jealous, manipulative (male) co-worker who gets himself promoted to the big slot, leaving Laurel behind to wonder how this could happen.

Disgusted and determined, Laurel quits the firm and establishes her own company. Yet, despite an impressive resume and a long list of contacts, it is obvious that your average millionaire is not about to fork over his millions to be handled by a woman. Thus challenged, Laurel decides she'll "make up" a male partner. She dubs him Robert S. Cutty, someone who exists solely on paper and on the Internet. Voila! The potential investors' fears are assuaged and Whoopi is on her way to fame and fortune.

Well, you know the old saying, "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive?" (Are you listening, Bill Clinton?) Laurel finds herself so enmeshed in her deception, she must funnel her way out as best as possible at the same time guarding Cutty's true identity so as not to lose her hard-earned business.

Dianne Wiest is a hoot here as a talented, unappreciated secretary whose life somewhat parallels Whoopi's in the flick. We also have Eli Wallach as a typical Wall Street fat cat and Bebe Neuwirth doing a turn as his "personal" stockbroker (read: mistress).

This is a wonderful, huge comedy, rich in both subtlety and in-your-face yuks. Don't miss it!

The Kingsmen

The Kingsmen take the stage at the Mountain Arts Center December 2

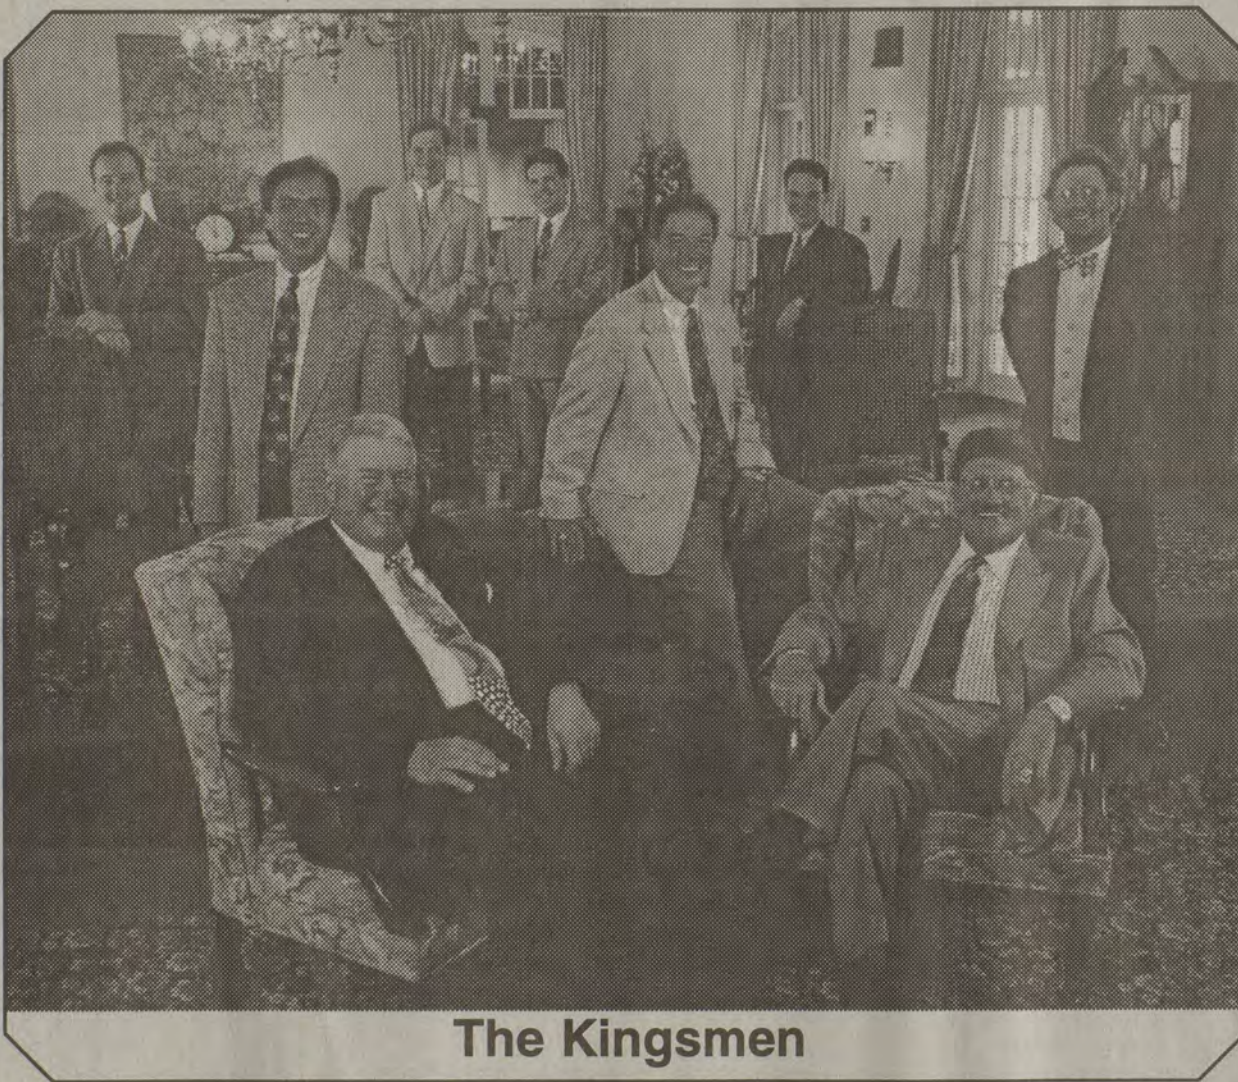

One of the top groups in Southern Gospel music will appear at the Mountain Arts Center in December.

The Kingsmen, Southern Gospel music's premier quartet, will conduct a Christmas concert on December 2, beginning at 7:30 p.m. on the arts center stage.

The Kingsmen have become one of the most sought after groups in the gospel music field today. They have emerged as a prominent figure among the all-time greats of gospel music. With a million-plus album sales, the Kingsmen perform in front of many thousands of people in coliseums, stadiums, fairs (state and county), churches, and television.

From the moment they step on the stage or platform, a flurry of anticipation ripples through the audience.

Since 1956, the Kingsmen have taken Southern Gospel Music where it has never gone before. From the White House to the Grand Ole Opry stage, the group known as "The Kingsmen," have captured the ears hearts of several generations of gospel and country music fans. These days, with a youthful lineup and a new commitment to their music, their ministry, and each other, the Kingsmen are more excited about the future than ever.

The Kingsmen

The Kingsmen do not dwell on memories. They are too excited about 1996 and beyond. Their excitement on stage is apparent.

"For the first time in a long time, everybody is happy being a 'Kingsmen,'" Greg Fox, production and road manager, said.

"We're having fun again, it's not just a job," says Fox, who also plays percussion.

The Kingsmen have all the ingredients that make success. They have turned hardened hearts, lightened weary loads, and made better people out of all who have experienced their spiritual explosion. Whether you are listening to them for the first time or the hundredth, on record, or live in person, the end result is always the same.

The Kingsmen refuse to look over their shoulders. Instead they ponder the years ahead with a new excitement and vigor.

"We're going to keep cultivating those new crops and broadening our horizon," Fox concluded with a spark in his eye. "But we're not going to change to do it."

Joining the Kingsmen on stage at the Mountain Arts Center will be Kentucky's own New Journey, from Ashland. New Journey will perform their current radio hits and end with a Christmas performance.

A look back at a few of the Kingsmen's career highlights is a reminder of some of Southern Gospel Music's finest moments: Performing at the White House for President Jimmy Carter, winning over the Grand Ole Opry audience during a performance and eventually capturing them on tape for a live recording, a nearly unprecedented sweep of Singing News Fan Awards for a number of years; numerous Dove Awards, a string of some of gospel music's biggest selling recordings; and a list that has unquestionably become Southern Gospel Music classics.

Beauty's Only Skin Deep

My youngest sister took a bold and unprecedented stand early in life by "vainly" attempting to establish herself as the most beautiful woman in the world.

Just last week, this sister offered me some unsolicited advice on the proper way to stave off the ravages of old age by attempting to educate me in the proper procedures that might provide eternal youth.

"Oh," she gasped when she saw me. "How did you get that scar on your face?" "What scar?" I asked. "The one that runs the length of your face." "That's not a scar. I have that every morning." "You'd think it would disappear by afternoon. Why don't you just admit it's a wrinkle!" she cried. "I am getting older you know."

"Don't make excuses," she said, as she took out her compact and powdered her nose. "A person doesn't have to look old."

"We all get older and die," I said.

"Oh, contraire," she said in her broken hillbilly French. "One does have to die, but one can look good while doing it. Don't you have a beauty regimen?" "You mean after I wet and soap my face or before?" I asked.

Her eyes rolled back in her head and I managed to catch her before she dropped her lipstick case. "Did you actually say you use soap and water? No wonder you look like that."

"Like what?" I asked. "You know, er, well, you know. Oh, ugly," she said. "Ugly! I can't believe you think I'm ugly."

"Do that again," she said, anxiously. "Do what?" I asked. "You just have this funny looking crease on your chin when you cry, and I always heard those were laugh lines."

I didn't like the direction this conversation was taking, particularly since it was coming from someone ten years my junior who had never experienced the joys of motherhood.

"I can't spend all day on myself," I said. "I've got a job and a family that depends on me."

"That's a flimsy excuse, sagging jowls. It doesn't take much time to keep yourself looking young."

"Just how many minutes a day does it take you?" "I begin by spending 20 minutes in the sauna and then I apply moisturizer to my entire body, massaging it in gently until it gradually disappears. Then I take cotton balls and a gentle astringent and dab it all over. Next, I apply another cream which contains sunscreen and spend the next 30 minutes in the tanning bed then..."

"Whoa," I said. "When do you get your beauty rest?" "I sleep in the tanning bed. And I certainly wouldn't sleep long in a horizontal position because of water retention that accumulates in your extremities."

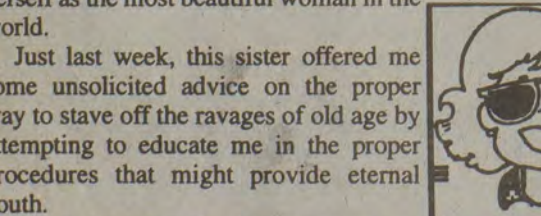

"When do you eat?" I asked. "Eating's just a habit. Anyway, most of the things you eat are filled with preservatives that cause you to look old."

"In your opinion," I asked, fearfully, "how am I aging?"

I watched in total amazement as she produced a magnifying glass from her purse and proceeded to scan my face for dreaded tell-tale signs of age.

"Your pores are enlarged, and you have dry scaly patches inside your mucous membranes. The dermis on your nose has been parched by mineral deposits, and for the record, you teeth need cleaning," she said, as she favorable, especially over the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're wrapped up this week in a project on the home front which is more time-consuming than you'd anticipated. This distracts you from a work assignment, but persevere anyway. News received this weekend is good.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You spend a good part of the week happily curled up with a good book, which you love to do. However, don't give in to laziness since much awaits you to be done. Later in the week, sticking close to home and putting about is favored.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Activities with family members are highlighted this week, particularly where children are concerned. If possible, try to take a short trip somewhere, since travel is favored. A weekend social gathering could end up in tatters if you allow an argument to ensue.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The early part of the week is best for solving some domestic problems. Later, it's clear sailing for getting together with friends for good times. Your significant other surprises you with a romantic suggestion this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're less than thrilled this week with a friend's opinion of your romantic behavior. However, perhaps you have been a bit cavalier in your dealings with others. Some soul-searching over the weekend will give you the answers.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're tempted this week to simply stay in bed and let life pass you by. However, you'll feel much better, physically and mentally, if you get out and engage in some sort of physical activity. Enjoy a party this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're allowing a minor problem to consume too much of your time, taking you away from tasks at hand. Worrying about it isn't going to solve anything. A business opportunity which comes up this weekend delights you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A matter pertaining to your career takes center stage this week. You're actually a bit closer to realizing your goals, though you don't realize it. Financial news is good.

der differently. A hidden tape recorder captured the discussion, which was introduced against Burgeson in her trial. She challenged its use, claiming that an arrestee has a constitutional expectation of privacy sitting in the back seat of the police car. In September 1996, the Georgia Supreme Court said no. (The boyfriend is on death row for the murder.)

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You come up with a very creative idea this week to put the spark back into your romance. Later in the week, you have a tendency to be moody. Don't let this consume you and put others off.

— Arturo Sanchez, a former Texas transit commission chairman who had been convicted of sexually harassing an employee, filed a counterclaim in June against the employee to recover some of the money she stands to gain in a civil lawsuit making the same sexual harassment charge against the transit agency itself. The San Antonio Express-News reported in June that Sanchez figures the woman needs his testimony about how the agency was lax in its sexual harassment policy, and he figures his help is worth part of her winnings.

— In April, a 48-year-old woman from Mill Valley, Calif., survived a suicide plunge in her car off of a seaside cliff in Sonoma County. Witnesses said she was traveling 45 mph and fell 350 feet but emerged with only minor injuries, probably because she had neglected to unfasten her seatbelt before hitting the accelerator.

UNCLEAR ON THE CONCEPT

— In a September Washington Post report on a legal, marijuana-serving cafe in the harbor town of Dalfzijl, Netherlands, manager Ernst Gunst boasted of his establishment's rejection of cannabis grown with artificial pesticides or other impurities. "We think that's important. That's why we sell no soft drinks. Coca-Cola is just sugar and water. It's not healthy."

NO LONGER WEIRD

Adding to the list of stories that were formerly weird but which now occur with such frequency that they must be retired from circulation: (9) The miscreant funeral home owner who either neglects or mixes up bodies, as the Lanford Pollard Funeral Home of Spartanburg, S.C., allegedly did in September, dressing one body with another man's suit, glasses and teeth. And (10) the disgruntled consumer who calls the police to report being sold either bogus or very weak illegal drugs, as did Linda Marie Davis, 41, in August in Houston. (Unfortunately for Ms. Davis, it was weak, not bogus, crack cocaine, and she was arrested for possession.)

handed me a mint. "Personally, I think you may be a prime candidate for a complete body overhaul. But..."

"But what?" I asked warily.

"Have you heard about the new cream that erases wrinkles?"

"It hasn't been approved yet. I'm afraid if I used it, my nose might fall off 20 years from now."

"Look at it logically. In 20 years, at your present rate of deterioration, you won't need a nose."

"That's really cruel," I said.

"Then go see a plastic surgeon," she said. "You really do need to have those crows feet smoothed out, they have wings."

My blood was starting to boil as I listened to my sister talking to her reflection, "Mirror, mirror on the wall..."

"You just wait," I said. "Someday gravity will get you, and you'll be able to belt your breasts right about the waistline. And, if you're lucky, you can hope that your buttocks don't slide all the way down to your calves."

"You shouldn't get all stressed out. It causes broken capillaries in your face," she said.

TUNING IN

The Nashville Network (TNN) is rerunning the "Hee Haw" series that delighted folks for 25 years—from 1969 to 1971 when it ran on CBS, and from 1971 to 1992 in syndication.

Sam Lovullo, the New York City-born-and-bred producer of this classic country show, is the author of "Life in the Kornfield—My 25 Years at Hee Haw," (Boulevard Books).

"I never thought I'd write a book about 'Hee Haw'." Sam said. "I'd been so close for so long to the show and to the people, I'd almost forgotten how special this all was. I needed to step back, and see that there were some wonderful stories to be told about some wonderful human beings, and interesting facts to share about the show. So, I said, 'Okay, let's do it.'"

What Sam and his cowriter, Marc Eliot, produced was a book filled with anecdotes about the people of "Hee Haw," including Roy Clarke, Buck Owens, Grandpa Jones, the Kornfield Honeys—Linda Thompson, Misty Rowe, Lisa Todd, Kathie

Lee Johnson, et al—and, of course, the hound dog, Beauregard, plus some 50 photos, and a complete listing of shows, including air dates and guest stars.

According to Sam's book, Kathie Lee Johnson went on to star in the "Hee Haw Honeys" spin-off. After her divorce, she went to New York to work on "Good Morning America."

On Dec. 1, The Discovery Channel airs "Destination Mars," a special on traveling to and exploring the planet out there.

Speaking of "out there," Gerry from New Jersey writes to ask if it's true Gillian Anderson of "The X-Files" starred in a lost movie. According to my colleague, Frank Lovece, author of "The X-Files Declassified" (Citadel), 'tis true, indeed. Says Lovece, "Gillian Anderson made her film debut in an unreleased feature originally titled 'Home Fires Burning,' based on a play of that name, and retitled 'The Turning' by the time it played for potential pick up by distributors. The low-budget film also starred Tess Harper."

Lady Eagles off to one and one start

Coach Denise Campbell's Lady Eagles marched into the new season with a big 71 to 59 win over Sue Bennett. The Lady Eagles were led in scoring by Stacie Moore who poured in 28 points. Moore knocked down five three-pointers in her effort as well. Tracy Wysor was the only other Lady Eagle in double figures with 10 points. Three other Lady Eagles finished with nine points. Kim Mosley and Nicole Colegrove led the Lady Rebels with 8 rebounds each.

The second game of the year for the Lady Eagles was not quite as enjoyable. The Lady Eagles lost a hard-fought game to Transylvania University, 88 to 65. Again, the Lady Eagles were led in scoring by Stacie Moore with 21 points. Moore continued to be hot from the 3 point line, knocking down seven from the arch. Two other lady Eagles finished in double figures, Nicole Colegrove with 13 and Misty Eversole with 17. Eversole led the Lady Eagles in rebounds with 11.

Slone competes in international horse show

Elisabeth Whitney Slone, 11-year-old daughter of Ronnie Slone and Benita Riley of Prestonsburg, competed in the 10th Annual Rocky Mountain International Horse Show, held September 19 through 21, at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington. Over 930 entries competed in the three-day event.

Whitney and her horse, Emma's Susy Lady, won ribbons in every class in which they competed, including Junior Showmanship, Pleasure Class, Youth Pleasure Class, and Costume Class. In the Costume Class, riders and their horses competed while dressed up in various costumes. Costumes included an Indian, a coal miner, a princess and knight, a butterfly, a ninja and gypsies. Whitney and Susy took second place dressed as angels.

Susy also placed in Conformation Class, being shown in that class by Sue Wells of Prestonsburg.

Whitney, a sixth grader at Mountain Christian Academy, keeps her horse at Prince Albert Stables in Emma. The owners and trainers at Prince Albert Stables are Wendell and Sue Wells.

EKU Colonels football team to play important game at Eastern Illinois

Coach Roy Kidd's Eastern Kentucky University Colonels close the 1996 regular season with an important Ohio Valley Conference battle at Eastern Illinois University, Saturday at 1:30 p.m. CST.

EKU, 6-4 overall and 6-1 in the OVC, is ranked 27th this week, while Eastern Illinois, 7-3 on the season and 5-2 in the league, is ranked 19th in this week's I-AA poll. Saturday's battle between EKU and EIU could be for a spot in the NCAA's Division I-AA playoffs, an event the Colonels have played in for 10 straight years and 16 of the 18 years the division has been established.

"This should be a great football game Saturday with what's on the line. We're playing a nationally-ranked team for the fifth time this season and this one will be just as tough as the other four," said EKU head coach Roy Kidd.

"Eastern Illinois has a balanced offensive attack with a huge offensive line. They are experienced and very well-coached and will be tough to play up there. We need to take care of the football and when we get a chance to score, punch it in there," he added.

Senior tailback William Murrell and senior quarterback Greg Couch were the leaders of the Colonel's offensive unit last Saturday in the Colonels' 24-10 win over Austin Peay.

Murrell, who was chosen OVC Offensive Player of the Week, rushed the ball 27 times for 153 yards and scored three touchdowns on runs of 18, 3 and 48 yards. Couch, who has tied Tommy Luginbill for the school record for most yards passing in a regular season (1,608 yards), hit 13-20 passes against APSU for 233 yards.

Colonel offensive tackle Roger Orlandini (85 percent) and offensive guard Brandyon Brantley (80 percent) were named to the OVC's Offensive Linemen Checklist.

Defensively, linebacker Charles Tinsley, strong safety Scooter Asel and cornerback Detric Campbell were the mainstays for the Colonels. Tinsley had six solo tackles, two assists, a caused fumble, a recovered fumble and a sack; Asel was credited with 11 tackles, three assists, two tackles for a loss; and Campbell totaled six solos, one assist, an interception and two deflected passes.

EKU, now leading the conference in turnover margin with plus-11, is also topping the OVC and is 11th in the country in scoring defense at 13.9 points per game. Eastern has yielded but 310.3 yards per game and only 16 TD's in 10 games.

Saturday's EKU-EIU game will feature the two most efficient quarterbacks in the OVC as the Panthers' signal-caller Mike Simpson is seventh in the nation with a passing efficiency rating of 153.2, while Couch is notched in at

ALC Eagles capture win over Warren Wilson

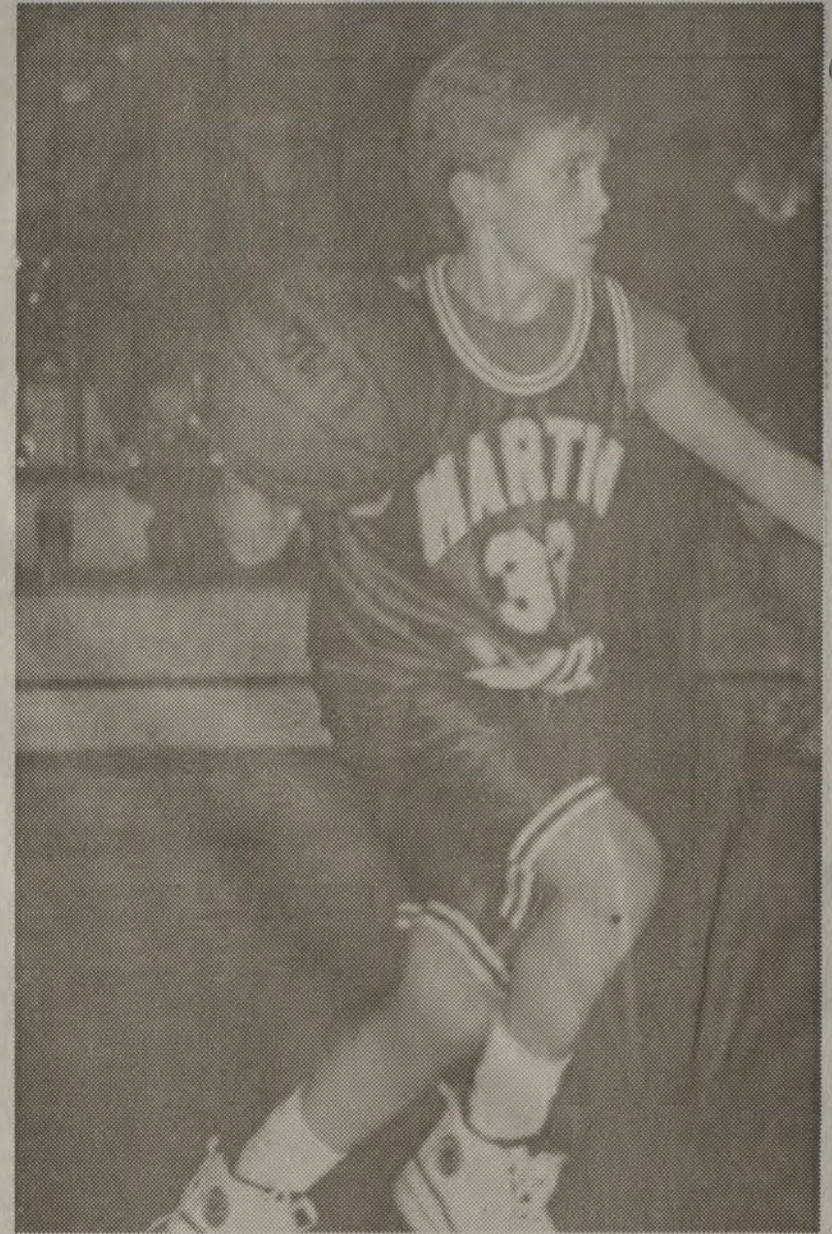

Lloyd College men's basketball team opened its season with a victory over Warren Wilson College, 83-67. Alice Lloyd was led in scoring by a couple of young big men, Knott Central graduate, David Richardson, and Shelby Valley graduate, Matt Baker. John Slone also chipped in with 14 points and Jeremy Johnson finished in double figures with 11.

Coach Mills felt that his team played their best ball of this early pre-season but, also stated that his club has a long way to go in order to repeat as TVAC champs.

15th with his mark of 139.2.

Offensively, Eastern Kentucky is third in the OVC and 35th in the nation in scoring offense with its 26.5 per game mark. The Colonels are averaging 205.8 yards per contest on the ground and 165.4 per game in the air.

by: Gerald Hodges

Rich Bickle

Some might think that in order to make it to the big league of Winston Cup racing, you need luck. But for Rich Bickle, the ladder to NASCAR's premier circuit has spanned 20 years of long and hard racing.

Bickle is a second-generation driver from Edgerton, Wisc. From his father, Rich Sr., he learned the dedication required to be successful in the field of stock car racing.

In 1977 Rich began racing hobby stocks on local tracks in Wisconsin. Two years later he began racing on a full-time basis, and earned Rookie of the Year honors at Rockford, Ill. and Lake Geneva, Wisc. speedways. His successes enabled him to move into the late model division. Advancement into this division enabled him to compete in the ARTGO and ASA Series events, where he routinely competed with NASCAR stars such as Alan Kulwicki, Mark Martin, Dick Trickle, Jim Sauter, and Ken Schrader.

Bickle has always had a desire to race, and this desire has allowed him to gain racing experience and exposure from Calgary, Alberta to Daytona Beach, Florida and Phoenix, Arizona to Charlotte, North Carolina.

"We raced at least four nights a week," he says. "I guess you might say, I've slowed down, but we will still run in over 120 races in 1996."

In 1989, Bickle made his Winston Cup debut at Charlotte Motor Speedway during the Mello Yello 500, qualifying 40th. He returned one month later to Atlanta Motor Speedway, where he finished 22nd, in a short track car built by his team in Wisconsin.

He qualified his own car for the 1990 Daytona 500, and finished 28th. Success didn't follow, because he had just 25 more Winston Cup starts through 1994. In 1995, he ran eight Winston Cup races, driving a Pontiac for Dick Brooks, plus 11 Busch starts in a Ford Thunderbird.

Bickle had attempted to put a Busch Grand National team together for 1996, but the deal with a potential sponsor fell through before the end of the 1995 season. Through Bobby Hamilton, driver of Richard Petty's STP Pontiac, Bickle met with Petty the weekend of Oct. 21-22, and worked out a deal putting Bickle behind the wheel of a truck for 1996.

Bickle made all 24 truck races in 1996, finishing 11th in the points standings. His winnings totaled over $165,000. He had 5-top five's and 10-top ten's. Not really spectacular, but the big news for Bickle arrived during mid-season.

"Right now I don't exactly know the schedule, but I'm going to be racing for Darrell Waltrip," he said. "The way it's looking, we're going to run some Busch races, some Cup races, a few truck races, and that all depends on the schedules. We plan on running about 40 races next year. There'll be a lot of promotional things we'll do, along with 15-20 shorttrack races, so it'll be a pretty busy year, plus, we'll run a couple races back home."

"There really isn't much of an off-time. After the NASCAR season is over, I'll go back to some short-tracks for 2-3 weeks, then I'll be over in Australia for some races. By the time I get back home it will be mid-December.

I might get one week off, then it's back to practicing, getting ready for that first truck race in Orlando, and we'll probably test a couple cars at Daytona. Really, we don't have any time off. The only time off is the days between racing. Fans who are not really into the sport of racing don't know it is a seven-day-a-week job. If a driver doesn't love racing, then he's in the wrong profession."

Kentucky Afield

KENTUCKY ANGLERS SHOW SKILL IN NATIONAL BASS TOURNAMENT

When the sun comes up over Pine Bluff, Arkansas next June 2, three Kentucky anglers will be there to see it. They'll be there to compete against 42 other anglers for the regional championship and a $100,000 cash prize in the Red Man All-American Bass Championship.

Jeff Evans of Benton, Tom Hill of Lexington and Teddy Wynn of Benton successfully advanced through a 120-man field of competitors at Lake Neely Henry in Gadsden City Park, Alabama to advance to the regional finals. Each of the three men had a two day catch exceeding 20 pounds.

In addition to the three qualifiers, another Kentuckian came out a big winner in the tournament. Ronnie Gant of Columbia took the first day big bass prize. Congratulations guys, and good luck in Arkansas next summer.

WHAT TO DO WHEN HUNTING GOES COLD

Hunting seasons in Kentucky peak when cold temperatures move in. Being cold can make a hunting experience miserable and may even make you want to go home early. When you're out in the field you need to be prepared for the cold. This means wearing the right clothing.

There are a few rules of thumb to follow in choosing what you wear for a cold day out. First of all, cotton is out (this includes flannel). Cotton will absorb moisture, including perspiration, and hold onto it. Then, air hits it and the moisture evaporates taking with it the heat from your body. If you are unfortunate enough to get wet, either falling into water or getting rained on, cotton will be your worst enemy.

WILDLIFE ART, WEAR IT ON YOUR SLEEVE

Let people know that you are helping restore Kentucky's wildlife with the Restoring Our Wildlife Heritage print patch.

The patches are part of a program that benefits all Kentucky wildlife through education, management and research. Each year through 1998 artist Rick Hill will unveil a new wildlife print and each year reduced version will be made into a four-inch round, 100 percent embroidery patch that can be collected for display or sewn onto clothing or gear. Like the full-size collector's print, the patches are limited edition.

Two of the four patches to be made are available now. The 1995 edition features a bobcat and is titled "Roaming the High Ground." The 1996 edition, titled "Kentucky Spring Returns," features a Kentucky warbler. Patches cost $3.25 each and can be ordered by calling (502) 564-7863.

Prints of the Restoring Our Wildlife Heritage paintings are also available through the gift shop, which is located in the Salato Wildlife Education Center on the KDFWR Game Farm in Frankfort. The intricately detailed paintings are limited to 500 numbered prints, each signed by the artist. Each print costs $125 plus tax.

TROUT STAMP DESIGN CONTEST

It's almost time to send your entries for the 1997 Kentucky Trout Stamp Design Contest. The contest is a yearly event where artists send in a 6x9 horizontal drawing or painting of that year's subject. This year's subject is the rainbow trout.

The winning design will be reprinted on the yearly collector's trout stamp. The artist with the winning design receives $450.

Entries for the contest will be accepted after December 16, 1996 postmarked no later than 4:30 p.m. Eastern, March 17, 1997. To be eligible, you must be 18 years of age or older by the close of the contest deadline.

For a copy of rules and procedures of the Kentucky Trout Stamp Contest and an entry form, call (502) 564-4336, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Eastern.

Alice Lloyd signs two key recruits

Alice Lloyd College Head Basketball Coach John Mills has landed two prize recruits; Jeremy and Jason Osborne from June Buchanan High School. Jeremy and Jason, 6' 5" forward/guards, were recently ranked in the pre-season top ten players list for the 14th region. The presence has helped lead tiny June Buchanan to a team ranking of number four in the same 1996-97 poll.

MAGIC CHRISTMAS CARDS*Cookies

3/4 cup sugar

1 cup Land O Lakes®

Butter, softened

1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese, softened

1 egg

1 teaspoon vanilla

3 cups all-purpose flour

Decorations

Finely crushed fruit flavored hard candies (individually wrapped)

Colored sugars, decorating candies

In large mixer bowl, combine all cookie ingredients except flour. Beat at medium speed, scraping bowl often, until creamy (3 to 4 minutes). Reduce speed to low; add flour. Continue beating just until mixed (1 to 2 minutes). Divide dough in half. Wrap each half in waxed paper; refrigerate dough at least 2 hours or overnight.

Heat oven to 325°. On lightly floured surface roll 1 portion dough to 15x10-inch rectangle. Cut dough into 20 (3x2 1/2-inch) rectangles (cards) using pastry wheel or sharp knife. Cut out small shapes in center of each card using tiny cookie cutters, hors d'oeuvre cutters or sharp knife. Save cut-out shapes to decorate remaining dough. Place cards on aluminum foil-lined cookie sheets. Fill cutout centers of cards with enough crushed candy to evenly fill holes. If using more than one color candy, keep candy separated by color. When filling holes, mix colors as little as possible. Bake for 7 to 9 minutes or until edges are very lightly browned and candy is melted. Cool completely before removing from cookie sheets.

Roll second portion of dough into 15x10-inch rectangle. Cut into cards as directed above. Place tiny cut-out shapes of dough on each card. Decorate with colored sugars and candies. Bake for 7 to 9 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Remove from cookie sheets; cool completely. About 40 cookies.

Tips: To crush candy, separate candy by color. Place candy in plastic food bag. Use a hammer or flat edge of mallet to pound candy.

Use decorator icing to write names or to decorate cookies.

To make hanging cookies, while cookies are still warm, use toothpick to make hole for string to hang ornament. Tie ribbon or string through hole when cookies are cooled.

ROAST STUFFED CORNISH HENS

1/3 cups uncooked long grain and wild rice combination or 1 package wild rice mix, uncooked

2 tablespoons acceptable margarine*

Clean, rinse and dry hens. Stuff lightly with rice mixture. Skewer or sew cavities closed. Brush hens with 1/2 cup melted margarine and place breast-side up on a rack in a shallow pan.

BUMUELOS DE HANUKA (HANUKKAH FRITTERS)

1 1/2 hours rising time
Yield: 25 to 30 bumuelos
1 tablespoon active dry yeast
2 cups lukewarm water
1 teaspoon plus 1 cup sugar
3 cups unbleached all-purpose white flour
Pinch salt
1 1/2 tablespoons anise or fennel seeds or 2 tablespoons ouzo, raki, arak, anisette or Pernod
1 large egg, beaten
1/2 cup honey
1 cup cold water
Peanut, sunflower or safflower oil for deep frying
Sesame seeds for sprinkling

Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water mixed with 1 teaspoon sugar. Set aside to proof (about 10 minutes). The yeast is ready when it is bubbly.

Mix the flour, 1/2 cup sugar, salt, and anise or fennel seeds (if using) in a mixing bowl. Add the egg, yeast mixture and liqueur (if using) and knead into a dough. Knead the dough for about 10 minutes. Roll into a ball, place in an oiled mixing bowl and cover with a damp cloth. Set aside in a draft-free place like an unlit oven to rise until double in bulk (about 1 1/2 hours).

While the dough is rising, prepare the syrup. Dissolve the honey and remaining sugar in 1 cup cold water in a saucepan. Bring to a boil and cook until thick enough to coat the back of a spoon. Keep the syrup warm over very low heat while you make the fritters.

After the dough has sufficiently risen, punch it down and knead it again. Pour oil into a wok to a depth of 2 inches or into a deep fryer to a depth of 3 inches and heat it to just before smoking. Take 1 heaping teaspoonful of the dough and roll it into a ball. Place it in the sizzling oil. Repeat, frying a few of the fritters at a time. Do not crowd the fritters as they cook. Fritters will puff up until they are about double in size. Turn once during frying. They are done when golden in color. Drain on paper towels.

To serve bumuelos, place two or three on a plate, ladle a little of the warm syrup over them, and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Delicious with coffee!

PIE FILLING

6 oz. of lime juice
1/4 oz. of plain gelatin
4 eggs separated
1-1/4 cup of sugar, divided equally into two parts
1 tablespoon of lime rind, grated
4 oz. cup of tequila
2 oz. of orange liqueur
pot of boiling water
Sprinkle lime juice over unflavored gelatin. Let stand until it softens.

Beat egg yolks in top of a double boiler, blend in half of the sugar and the grated lime rind. Add softened gelatin, cook over boiling water and stir continuously until mixture thickens slightly and the gelatin is completely dissolved.

Transfer to a cold bowl, blend in tequila and orange liqueur and allow to chill until cold, but not thickened.

Beat egg whites until foamy, then gradually add the other half of the sugar while beating, until it forms soft peaks.

Fold the cooled yolk-gelatin mixture carefully into the beaten egg whites, adding 1/3 of the mixture at a time and combining completely before each new addition. Place bowl of mixture over ice.

Let mixture stand, stirring often, until the mixture will mound on a spoon, then swirl into pie pan with chilled pretzel crumb crust. Let pie refrigerate 2 hours before serving.

PESCADO SOFRITO À LA JUDIA (SEPHARDIC-STYLE FRIED FISH)

Soaking time (fish): 1 hour
Preparation time: 25 minutes
Servings: 4 to 6
2 1/2 pounds fish fillets (halibut, cod, scrod, haddock, perch and arctic char take well to this method)
Coarse salt
Cold water, plus 1/3 cup or more cold water
2/3 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
2 large eggs, well beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
Peanut oil for frying

Wash and dry the fish fillets. Lay them in a deep, flat baking pan or casserole in one row. Sprinkle with the coarse salt. Pour cold water over the fish to barely cover. Refrigerate 1 hour.

Combine the flour, beaten eggs, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/3 cup cold water. Beat well to make a smooth batter. If necessary, add more cold water by the tablespoon to achieve correct consistency. The batter will be smooth and not very thick.

Remove the fish from the salt water bath and dry it with paper towels. Heat the oil in a deep sauté pan to a depth of 1 inch, or in a wok to a depth of 2 inches, until just before it begins to smoke.

Dip one fish fillet in the batter. Let any excess batter drain back into the bowl. Drop the fish into the oil and fry until golden brown. If necessary, turn the fish over once while it is frying to make sure that it browns on all sides. The batter will puff up slightly. Do not fry too many fillets at one time. The fish must be completely submerged in the sizzling oil in order to fry well. Watch the heat and regulate, if necessary, to prevent burning. Drain fish fillets on paper towels before serving.

Pescado sofrito may be served with fresh lemon wedges and salt.
