Hero drags men to safety

After fire strikes neighbors' home

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

The times may be changing back to the way they once were...when neighbors could depend on their neighbors.

A Branham's Creek resident saved the lives of two of his neighbors last Friday when their trailer caught on fire and they could not escape the flames and smoke.

Clois Hamilton, 51, is considered by some to be a hero for his unselfish act of pulling David Denny, 32, and Tracy Akers from the fire, after they attempted to escape but could not because they were overcome by the smoke.

"I think that Mr. Hamilton is a hero," Floyd County deputy Steve Little said. "If Mr. Hamilton hadn't been there, two lives may have been lost in the fire."

Hamilton said Wednesday that he did not think of himself as a hero, but he was glad that he was there to help when the fire happened.

The Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department responded to the scene about 7:30 p.m. Friday, according to Little.

Hamilton said his wife, Judy, was in the kitchen when she saw that the trailer was on fire. She called the fire department while Hamilton went to help Denny and Akers.

"Mr. Hamilton pulled the subjects about 125 feet away from the Courts closed for funeral of judge's mother

Floyd Circuit Courts, Divisions I & II, will be closed today (Friday) in observance of the death of Circuit Judge John David Caudill's mother, Edna Hale Caudill.

Edna Caudill, 75, of Allen, died Wednesday, October 9, at her residence following an extended illness. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today (Friday), in the Hall Funeral Home Chapel in Martin. Burial will follow in the Davidson Memorial Gardens in Ivel.

Division II Circuit Judge John David Caudill was scheduled to attend a Judicial College at Lake Berkeley this week, but did not go because of his mother's condition.

Both circuit courts will reopen on Monday.

Patton to the People

Welfare, education focus of Gov. Patton's bus tour

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Eight gifted and talented students from Allen Central High School and Adams Middle School got the opportunity of a lifetime Wednesday.

The group joined a crowd of more than 100 gathered at May Lodge to welcome Governor Paul Patton to Floyd County.

Patton's tour of Eastern Kentucky, which began in Morehead on Tuesday, has been touted as a chance for his staff to meet constituents at home.

"We're making this trip to make sure we don't lose touch with what's happening in the community," Patton told the crowd.

Patton, along with Dr. Jesse White, co-chair of the Appalachian Research Commission, presented nearly $430,000 to local groups for projects. Prestonsburg Community College received nearly $300,000 for a new training program while the Mountain Arts Center got a $56,000 grant for operating costs, and the proposed Eastern Kentucky Science and Technology Center accepted a $75,000 check for seed money for the project.

"We hope to see a Mountain Science Center next to the Mountain Arts Center one day," John Rosenberg, one of the founders of the science center idea, said as he accepted the larger-than-life check.

While the students received a few minutes alone with Patton after his presentation, other members of the crowd got the chance to ask for information during a 30-minute question-and-answer session.

One of the big issues was the welfare reform.

"How do you define a family wage?" Sherry Arms, with the Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, asked.

Patton told Arms that the family wage level is $15,500 for a family of four, the national poverty level.

He also explained that the reform law is something Kentuckians "have got to live with."

Smoking areas at schools may be banned by education board

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Members of the Floyd County Board of Education will probably vote at their next meeting to eliminate smoking areas for students at county high schools.

The board was to have considered a policy at its meeting Tuesday night, but the issue was tabled to give board attorney Phil Damron and superintendent Dr. John Balentine a chance to research the issues.

"We're still struggling with this issue at the high school level," Balentine said. "I suggest we table it again."

The board briefly discussed the issue at its September meeting.

Board attorney Phil Damron told the group at that time that while it is illegal for teens under the age of 18 to purchase tobacco products, there are some students in the school system who are over the age of 18.

He added that most schools are "totally banning" the use of tobacco on the campus, and that some federal funding may be tied to a ban on smoking in the schools in the future.

Superintendent Dr. John Balentine said at that meeting that all the high schools in the county have a smoking area outside the building, but that smoking inside the school is prohibited. He advised that high school principals and site-based decision-making councils "thrash out" the issue before bringing it to the school board.

At Tuesday's meeting, Damron said he would probably be recommending a complete ban on smoking at the next meeting.

Maytown-Martin school opening debated

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

With the completion date of the new elementary school on Stephens Branch quickly approaching, Floyd County Board of Education members attempted to set the opening date for the school at Tuesday's meeting.

But concerns about moving the students during the middle of a semester stopped them.

Superintendent Dr. John Balentine said he'd like to move the students on December 2, the day after the Thanksgiving holiday. Board member Phyllis Honshell said she is concerned about relocating the students before the end of the semester.

The semester ends when students leave for Christmas vacation on December 20.

"This is a very real concern," Honshell said. "I think we should poll the teachers to determine what the impact will have on the students. If that impact is negative, I think we should delay the opening until the beginning of the second semester."

Jim Osborne, director of operations for the system, said teachers "all want to move as soon as possible."

"They don't want to wait an extra day if they don't have to," he said. Osborne said the middle school students have already been moved to Martin and that the kindergarten through fifth grade students were grouped at the beginning of the year in preparation of

School board holds rein on higher taxes

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

The "T" word reared its ugly head Tuesday night during the regular meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education.

While Superintendent Dr. John Balentine recommended the board approve the compensating tax rate, board members said they wanted to leave the rate the same as it was last year.

The compensating rate would have increased the rate on real estate to 58.7 cents per $100 of property from 57.1 cents per $100. On a $50,000 piece of property the difference in those two rates would have been $8.

The recommended rate on personal property would have been 61.4, down from 63.5 last year.

"The thing about it is, we're raising the tax rate," board member Ursal Ray Wilcox said.

Jim Osborne, director of operations for the system, explained that the county had lost about $3 million worth of property assessments due to more property owners utilizing the Homestead Exemption, which decreased the amount of money they would receive at last year's rate.

The compensating rate would have allowed the system to receive about the same amount of revenue that was generated last year.

"If we didn't do that we'd lose money," Osborne said.

That wasn't good enough for board members.

"I can't vote to increase the tax rate," chairman Eddie Patton said. "My recommendation is that we use the same rate we used last year."

While the board approved the same rates that were in place last year, board member Phyllis Honshell pointed out that the system

Truck stolen from bar found half-mile away

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

The keys to a stolen truck were discovered in the front pocket of a Martin man when he was arrested early Thursday morning for alcohol intoxication.

Randall J. Minor, 25, was charged with AI and theft by unlawful taking of an automobile when he inquired about why his friend, Frederick Timothy Shelton, 31, also of Martin, was being arrested for receiving stolen property.

Floyd County deputy Steve Toy said when Minor was being arrested for alcohol intoxication, a man came out of the bar and said his truck was gone.

"Minor had a set a truck keys in his pocket," Toy said Thursday. The deputy said the man stated that the truck was his father's and he kept an extra key to the truck in the glove compartment.

Toy said the truck, a 1990 blue GMC, was parked about a half mile from the bar.

The truck is registered to David Wooster of East Point.

Shelton was arrested by Prestonsburg Police officer Patrick Conley for allegedly receiving the property taken from the Center Stage parking lot.

Billie Jean Osborne, director of the Kentucky Opry, talked with Dr. Jessie White, co-chair of the Appalachian Regional Commission outside the newly completed Mountain Arts Center Thursday. The ARC helped fund the center. White was in Eastern Kentucky this week to hand out more than a million dollars in grants to various groups. He, along with Governor Paul Patton presented $75,000 to the East Kentucky Science and Technology Center; $56,000 to the Mountain Arts Center; and nearly $300,000 to Prestonsburg Community College for a new training program. The Mountain Arts Center is scheduled to open October 19. (photo by Patti M. Clark)

The Prestonsburg Fire Department purchased a mini-fire truck to help raise funds for equipment for the Special Operations Unit. Board to consider David School as alternative facility

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Students in Floyd County may be getting another alternative when it comes to alternative education.

The Floyd County Board of Education Tuesday approved referral criteria for students to attend the David School, despite concerns that it might appear that public funds are financing private education.

"It's apparent that some students are falling by the wayside," board attorney Phil Damron said. "The David School has a reputation of 20 some years of doing something right."

He said students are dropping out of the system and have nowhere to go. He added that many students from Floyd County are already attending the David School.

"If they go, they're not reimbursing the David School and we've lost revenue," he said. "This is some way of trying to get them back into the system."

The David School is a non-profit school that operates with federal funds. It is well-known for getting kids who have been a problem back on track.

Damron said the only problem is that the county school system can't spend public funds on private education. "The state hasn't been able to give us an answer," Damron said. "But the best interest of the child is getting an education and that should be the principal focus."

Board member Phyllis Honshell questioned if the move would affect the alternative school already in place in the county. "Since we have an alternative school in this district, are we, in effect, going to have two alternative schools?" she asked.

"But we're not taking care of everything that needs to be taken care of there," chairman Eddie Patton responded.

Honshell asked if that was because the board "hasn't provided the facility and staff needed."

"Probably," Patton responded.

"As a member of the board of education, I am committed to public education," Honshell said. "We need to do some study on how we can give support to the district's alternative school. We need to look at this very closely before we make a decision. We are committed to public education as a board. Otherwise we wouldn't be sitting here."

Daniel Greene, director of the David School addressed the board about the move, saying Honshell had "raised an interesting point about public education in Floyd County."

"Through my eyes, I see there's room for both schools," he said.

"The Martin facility deals with students on a short-term basis, meeting their immediate needs and getting them back into the classroom as soon as possible."

But for many students, that's not the answer.

"Historically and fiscally, there is no quick fix for these students," Greene said. "Historically, they are at a third to fifth grade education level when they come to us."

He said the students need more than they can get at the system's alternative school.

"These kids need the long road," he said. "I can't take them for three to six months and send them back to the regular classroom. My goal is to get them to the finish line, to college or a vocational school."

Banned

"I could make a motion on that tonight," board member Phyllis Honshell said. "I disapprove of it."

But chairman Eddie Patton said he'd like to get an opinion from principals on how the issue can be most effectively handled before a decision is made, adding that he doesn't want the board to contribute to the delinquency of a minor if having the smoking areas is illegal.

fire to his yard," Little said.

Hamilton said one of the subjects was passed out next to the porch steps. "I pulled him to the fence at my yard," he said.

Hamilton said the second subject tried to help get the first subject across the fence, but he fell over the fence.

"I pulled the first guy over the fence and took him to my driveway," Hamilton said.

Denny was transported by the Left Beaver Rescue Squad to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, where he was admitted in the emergency room for observation. Denny was released on the following day.

Little said Akers refused treatment at the scene.

"The people of the Branham's Creek community should be very proud to have someone like Mr. Hamilton looking out for them," Little said.

Clarification

A story about William Joe Skeens in Wednesday's edition of the Times incorrectly identifies Aaron Davis as a participant in a theft at Lowes committed by Skeens. Davis did not participate in the theft, but merely informed an undercover agent at the store who Skeens was when he came into the retail facility.

Patton

"Our goal is to make sure no one gets to that point," he said of the five-year limit on benefits that has been proposed in the state's plan. Kentucky presented its welfare reform plan October 1.

"But people have to understand that able-bodied healthy people have got to work," he added.

The plan allows some flexibility and Patton said it doesn't tie benefits to "one size fits all."

"We've got $187 million to work with," he said. "If we can get 10,000 people off the rolls, that means we'll have that much more for each person. We don't lose that money. That allows us to provide intensive service to those who need more assistance."

The emphasis will be on child care and health care, Patton said, and the plan is designed to "help the family."

He said the plan "gets serious about underage teenage pregnancy," and that fathers will be required to work.

"We want to make sure men understand they are just as responsible for that child as the mother," he said. "You are going to support the child you bring into this world."

He said while the plan requires that people work, the goal will be not moving some people on the welfare rolls as others come off, causing a cycle of poverty to begin.

"We are not going to replace people already in existing jobs," he said. "The goal is to create new jobs or relocate people to areas where there are jobs."

That was a concern for Barbara Lemaster, who asked where the jobs are. "It takes a lot more than one year of technical training to make it," she said. "You are going to keep them down."

"That's the law and we have to live with it," Patton said of the requirement that welfare recipients work after 12 months in school. "Many people work part-time and go to school. We have to have a change in perspective because we have a changed system."

will receive less money because of that move. Calculations show the system will get about $60,000 less than originally anticipated because of the decrease in the rate.

The board expects to receive about $3,602,642 in revenues from the tax on property in Floyd County. It would have received $3,703,592 million at the higher rate.

The approved personal property rate will generate $1,246,830 in revenue. The recommended rate would have brought in $1,205,597.

While $60,000 is a lot of money to the average taxpayer, it isn't a great deal in a $40 million budget, Balentine said.

"We're not at a panic yet," Balentine said Thursday. "We can cut here and cut there. It's nothing compared to last year. And that number could change based on the percentage of collections."

There was some question as to whether the rates were legal because the rate on personal property was higher than what was thought to be the four-percent rate, the rate at which a referendum would be possible.

Additional calculations and numerous phone calls to Frankfort Wednesday, however, determined that the rates are legal and can stand.

"We thought earlier that there might be a problem," Balentine said. "But we heard late yesterday (Wednesday) that we could let it stand. The important thing is that the board of education has not raised anyone's taxes."

the move.

But Phil Paige, director of instruction for the system, said Tuesday's announcement was the first he had heard about the intended move. "This is the middle of a grading period," he said.

School principal Bert Layne said he can see a problem with a move right after Thanksgiving. "If we move the children at that time, it could cause problems," Layne said. "It would be better if we wait until the end of the first semester. There's only 14 days between the two."

Board member Ursal Ray Wilcox said he thought the issue is a moot one anyway.

"I just cannot see it finished by that date," Wilcox said. "I just don't think it will be ready. I'd like to see the board, as a unit, visit that Patton said that's important.

"We've got to prove we're handling what we're already getting right before we get more money," he said.

"I think we can get by another year without increasing the taxes of our citizens, but it will be a struggle," Balentine said.

The board voted to poll teachers to see what they want to do and to look at the issue again at the next meeting.

In other action, the board:
• Gave approval for the start of a Marine ROTC unit at Betsy Layne High School.

• Approved a personnel application process that states that applications be arranged so that the first applications received be considered first to fill vacancies.

• Approved the purchase of 11 new 66-passenger school buses, at a cost of $49,965 each for a total of $549,615. The buses will be paid for from state bonds.

• Approved the use of the assertive discipline policy at Betsy Layne High School.

City fire department buys miniature truck, to offer rides

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Christmas has arrived early this year for the Prestonsburg Fire Department. But the gift they bought for themselves will help finance needed equipment for the Special Operations Unit.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department purchases a mini-firetruck that can be used as a fundraiser tool that can be used all year long.

"The special operations unit needs to purchase an underwater communication system," firefighter Bill Callihan said Thursday.

Callihan said while the system is needed it will only be used about three times a year, making the $5,000 price tag a little steep for the department's budget.

"So we decided to buy the small truck to raise money by giving kids rides for a small fee during major events," Callihan said.

He said other equipment will also be purchased from the proceeds of the miniature fire truck.

The fire truck will be used throughout the year at different functions. For example, the truck will be used this weekend during the Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival to give rides to children for $1. Rides will begin at the new municipal parking lot.

Callihan said the truck will be in the parade this year, and firefighters' children will ride the truck through the parade.

The truck will also be used during holidays such as Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and the Fourth of July, Callihan said.

He said he hopes the truck will also be available at the Red, White and Blue Day in Martin next weekend.

The mini-fire truck was purchased from Royal Rides Inc., in Virginia, for $6,000.

on when it is more convenient for those attending the course.

He explained that some people have to work on weekends, and are not able to attend weekend classes, and others work through the week and cannot attend weekend classes.

"The time and day of the course will be flexible," Thornsby said. "They will be determined by when it is more convenient for those in the class."

The fee for the course is $75, a third of which will automatically go to the Department of Criminal Justice in Richmond. The Sheriff's Domestic Violence Unit will receive $25 of the fee, and the remaining $25 will be given to the instructor.

The Domestic Violence Unit and the instructor will share expenses to maintain the course.

"The sheriff's office has continually offered any assistance necessary to the domestic violence unit," Helen Bowen, a caseworker for the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, said Wednesday. "The department's providing part of the proceeds from the training classes shows to what level the sheriff's office is willing to go."

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said the money will be used for education literature to help make the community aware of the domestic violence dilemma or for any supportive role concerning domestic violence.

"The sheriff's department will continue cooperating with all agencies in addressing the problem of domestic violence," Thompson said, adding that he anticipates that the money will help the sheriff's Domestic Violence Unit become more productive in dealing with the problem.

Sheriff department's gun class to benefit domestic violence unit

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Residents of Floyd County are getting a chance to take carrying concealed deadly weapons training classes and help the victims of domestic abuse at the same time.

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department will offer the required permit training classes, with a portion of the proceeds going to the Sheriff's Domestic Violence Unit to educate the public about services available to victims.

"It's a win-win situation," Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley said. "When people take the course offered by the sheriff's department to carry a concealed weapon, at least they will be trained and know how to use their gun safely. Secondly, part of the money collected for the training will be given to the Department of Criminal Justice and to help educate the public about domestic violence and the services available to victims."

For each person who attends the training sessions, the Domestic Violence Unit will receive $25 of the class fee, certified carrying concealed deadly weapons instructor Lieutenant Ricky Thornsby said. The course follows all guidelines established by the Department of Criminal Justice.

"As an officer with the sheriff's department, I know of the widespread domestic violence, and the increasing need for education of services rendered to the victims," Thornsby said Wednesday. "The department hopes that the funding can help save the lives of victims."

Thornsby said that the training classes would be offered on weeknights and on weekends, depending

Ousley chosen to attend art workshop

Michael Ousley has recently been chosen as a co-recipient of a tuition waiver to attend a Walter Gropius masters workshop at the Huntington Museum of Art.

The award was given by the Morehead State University Art Department, whose faculty and chair have decided to use their funds to further the opportunities of two outstanding undergraduate artists.

The workshop will be conducted from September 20-22 by Realist painter Alfred Leslie.

Leslie is a nationally recognized figurative painter whose work is represented in such collections as: The Museum of Modern Art, Art Institute of Chicago, The Hirshhorn Museum, and The Whitney.

Michael Ousley, a senior at Morehead State University, is the son of Ramona and Jerry Ousley of Hippo.

As the stomach turns

by Scott Perry

Anytime we get the notion it may be safe to wade barefoot in the political waters, somebody comes along and turns them into a cesspool.

Our latest source of revulsion comes from Pike County Schools superintendent Reo Johns, who either orchestrated or allowed to be orchestrated a public flogging of a school board member for her legitimate questioning of a school finance issue.

Karen Ratliff had raised concerns about Johns' authorization of a $13,000 expenditure for a new flag and flagpole at the system's administrative office. No bids were taken on the items and no board approval was requested or given for their purchase.

Johns' reaction to Ratliff's inquiry was pure hypocrisy.

He draped himself in the flag, and brought forth legions of veterans, businessmen and children who supported his flagpole and who insinuated that anyone who criticized the project was criticizing Old Glory herself.

What a pitiful, nauseating display. Joe McCarthy would be real proud of this bunch.

McCarthy, you might recall, was the U.S. Senator who ruined the lives of hundreds of innocent people in his drive to maintain and enlarge his political presence. Anyone who questioned his motives or methods was immediately labeled a "communist."

Ms. Ratliff must feel like one of Tailgunner Joe's victims today.

She raised questions about the use of taxpayer money and found herself forced to defend her patriotism.

As far as we're concerned, Ratliff is the patriot in this issue.

Using the Stars and Bars for political purposes and to misdirect our attention from the issues is no different than burning the flag as a means of protest.

Either way turns our stomachs.

Thanks for success of "Evening of Fun"

Editor:
On Thursday, October 3, the CYFAR Program with the help of the Youth and Families Resource Centers at Martin, Maytown, Allen Central, Duff, McDowell and Mud Creek sponsored an Evening of Family Fun at the Minnie Park. More than 300 people enjoyed an evening of free music, games, cake walks, food and prizes.

I would personally like to thank the Resource Center Directors, LaDonna Patton, Donna Sammons, Kelly Hairston, Judy Handshoe, Clara Johnson and Darren Newsome for all their hard work and dedication to making this project work. Without their work and enthusiasm the CYFAR Program could not succeed. These people are tireless in their work to ensure the well-being of the children and families of our area. I would also like to thank the parent volunteers and 4-H Teen Council for their support and hard work.

Thanks to McDowell Pharmacy, Hall Funeral Home, David Crafts, Kenny's Flowers, Jimmy's Hall of Design, MacDonald's of Martin, Giovannis of Martin, Rose's Quilting, the Floyd County Homemakers and anyone else I may have failed to mention for their donations to the program.

We really appreciate their help and support. It is really wonderful to know that there are people who value and support the families of this area.

Again, let me thank everyone who helped in any way to make our Evening of Family Fun a success.

Nyoka R. Stone,
Program Coordinator/CYFAR Project

The Political 'Party'

How money pollutes politics by John Y. Brown III

Reprinted with special permission from the author

As the campaign season begins to heat up, voters should be aware of one unsettling truth. The most important trait a politician must have to succeed in our modern democratic system isn't leadership, charisma, intelligence, vision, integrity, work ethic or a desire to help people. The most critical trait is the ability to raise huge sums of money. A candidate possessing all of the above-mentioned qualities is utterly hopeless without the connections and flare for obtaining loads of political cash.

The average candidate for the U.S. Senate will need to raise more than $4.5 million to be competitive. The average U.S. House candidate will need to raise more than $500,000. Although senators enjoy the security of a six-year term, fund-raising for re-election begins immediately. Several senators have admitted that at least 70 percent of their time in office is spent raising money, e.g., daily phone calls to possible contributors, meetings with lobbyists, cocktail parties with political action committees and personal fund-raising breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

In short, the money chase is endless and exhausting. To reach $4.5 million, an incumbent senator must raise about $15,000 a week for six years. Members of the House must raise at least $1,000 each working day.

Big money unfortunately drives politics and has become inextricably woven into the political process.

In 1964, 76 percent of Americans believed the federal government would do the right thing "most of the time" or always. In 1992 an abysmal 14 percent of the electorate answered yes to the identical question.

So what has changed? In 1964, $250 million was spent on all political campaigns; in 1992 it was more than $3.2 billion. However, it is not so much the amount of money spent on politics that is to blame, but rather how it is spent. The creation of a political climate defined by political advertising and uncivil discourse, influence of special interests and the disenfranchisement of those who can't afford large political contributions has eviscerated the public trust.

In 1964, the first negative political advertisement was aired. The ad, "Daisies," was run one time by President Lyndon Johnson in his bid for re-election. Since then, the television and radio airwaves have increasingly bombarded voters with slick, deceptive ad campaigns. These ads are expensive, requiring shameless opposition research and expert marketing skills. Too often they work.

Then there are the candidates' spin doctors. Spinning consists of artfully accentuating every positive detail and denouncing or disputing every potentially negative detail. It is deception in a positive light as opposed to a negative light.

Second, the influence of wealthy contributors, especially PACs and lobbyists, has an inescapable effect on who will vote or govern. Political debates have been taken out of the hands of elected officials and waged by competing special interests spending huge sums of money. Of course, the elected officials still officially cast their vote for their side. Because the money is legally contributed, some politely call this honest graft.

This might sound cynical, but imagine ever coming to a consensus on managing health care, Social Security or balancing the budget. There are too many outside players with too much money to influence too many politicians who, above all things, want to be re-elected. Some politicians might argue they are not corruptible, but the public's perception is contrary and taints all politicians.

Third, the influence of big money on politics has decimated the notion of one person, one vote. As recent Presidential candidate Lamar Alexander said, its unfortunate, but if someone can't give him $1,000, the chances of shaking Alexander's hand are no greater than being hit by a comet.

The average voter feels alienated from their representative and disconnected from the political process. Additionally, people who are able give large contributions, to expect a greater return on their investment in a candidate than other supporters. When is the last time Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., held a $1-a-head bean supper in the West End of Louisville?

This week, Congress was given the McCain, Feingold, Thompson campaign finance reform bill. The bill, though flawed and inadequate, could have led to creative suggestions that would help level the playing field, reduce money from special interests and give candidates more time to study and discuss the issues with the electorate.

Perhaps this debate could have led to the type of voluntary campaign finance reform at the federal level that is already in place in nearly twenty states, including Kentucky. Equally important, they could have identified and closed all the possible loopholes that have given the states fits in reforming campaign finance laws. Instead, Kentucky's own McConnell threatened to filibuster the bill. The bill was then tabled after a failed cloture motion.

Most expected the bill to fail anyway. After all, it would be a fund-raising blow to incumbents, those who would vote on the bill. A different reform bill pending in the House will almost certainly be dropped from consideration.

McConnell and his supporters cling tightly to a controversial 1976 Supreme Court case. Buckley v. Valeo. One hopes the justices will recall that for our founding fathers, political speech meant hours of substantive debates and erudite writings. No soundbites. No slick consultants.

When James Madison penned the First Amendment, his great vision for our country's free and vigorous exchange of ideas wasn't shaped with dollar signs.

Until money is tamed in our political process, government of the people, by the people and for the people will remain a government of the special interests, by the special interests, for the special interests.

Classified retirement proposal approved by board of education

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

With 25 certified staff members taking advantage of a retirement plan, the Floyd County Board of Education voted Tuesday night to extend a retirement benefit to classified staff members as well.

The board approved a plan that would allow any classified person age 62 or older to retire and receive Social Security and county retirement benefits and be rehired by the system at the full rate of pay.

"Representatives from the Social Security Administration and the County Retirement System both agree that this proposal is legal and workable," Superintendent Dr. John Balentine informed board members in his recommendation.

He said 28 people are eligible to participate in the plan and he expects all of them to take advantage of it.

Federal laws state that after the age of 62, an individual can earn up to $8,280 and still receive benefits. That number increases to $12,500 at age 65, and the retiree can earn any amount after the age of 70.

"Many of our classified workers do not earn that amount of money," Balentine told the board. "This will give them a chance to increase their standard of living."

But board member Phyllis Honshell said she is concerned about the board guaranteeing that employees will be rehired.

"Are we an affirmative action employer?" she asked. "If so, how can we guarantee someone a job without looking at applications?"

Board attorney Phil Damron said the system can hire the retirees without problems.

"In my opinion, we can do it," he said. "Many of these people have been working for us for 30 years. I don't think we'll find someone who is more qualified. I don't see any legal problems with it."

Honshell voted against the move while board members Ray Brackett and Ursal Ray Wilcox, along with chairman Eddie Patton, voted for it. Dr. Brent Clark was absent from the meeting.

Floyd housing authority gets self-sufficiency grant

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Many Floyd families may become more self-sufficient thanks to a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Floyd County Housing Authority was selected to receive $24,628 from the HUD grant to employ or otherwise retain the services of a service coordinator to administer the Family Self-Sufficiency program for a year, according to a HUD news release.

"We are very pleased to be able to assist the agency with the resources needed to partnership with other organizations to provide opportunities for families housed by the Section 8 program," Robert

D. Kuhnle, acting state coordinator of the Kentucky State Office of HUD, said.

Floyd County Housing Authority deputy director Patsy Ryan said the authority already has a family self-sufficiency program, which is coordinated by Diane Pennington, but the grant will enable it to continue servicing Floyd residents.

She said the program is for those who are actively involved in the housing projects or participating in the Section 8 program.

"The family self-sufficiency program gives support services such as helping find solutions with transportation and other problems," Ryan said, "and making sure that all available services are made known to the program participants."

Ryan explained that the program provides an incentive for participants to find employment. She said if a participant finds a job, and rent is increased because of income, then the money is placed into a savings account.

"The savings account equals the increase in rent as a result of the income increase," Ryan said.

Ryan said participants, who enter the program and become employed and remain welfare free for one year, are then given the savings account.

She said that 57 families in Floyd County are currently in the Family Self-Sufficiency program.

"It is important that we do everything we can to empower our citizens who need our assistance to become self-sufficient," U.S. Representative Hal Rogers said.

Kayla Spurlock, daughter of Barry and Janie Spurlock of Berea, granddaughter of Hobert Spurlock of Printer, Joe and Louise McKinney of Prestonsburg and Tina McKinney of Canton, Michigan has been selected as a finalist in the 1996 pre-teen Kentucky Scholarship and Recognition program to be held November 8 and 9, at the Galt House in Louisville.

Alana Holbrook

Holbrook wins title of Miss Teen Jenny Wiley Queen

Alana Sue Holbrook, the 15-year-old daughter of Donald (Doug) and Trena Holbrook of Prestonsburg, won the title of Miss Teen Jenny Wiley in the pageant, Sunday.

In addition to winning the title she won Most Beautiful, Prettiest Dress, Best Personality and Most Photogenic.

Alana is a sophomore at Magoffin County High School where she is involved in SADD, Champions Against Drugs, Horse Owners' Club and the Travel Club.

She is the granddaughter of Osie Holbrook of Prestonsburg, and the late Willie Holbrook and Darrell and Lorraine Howard of Salyersville. She is also the great-granddaughter of Mack and Sula Harmon of Prestonsburg.

Friday, Saturday 'Nightmares' of fun in Auxier community

A "Hayride Up Nightmare Mountain" will be held October 18 and 19 at Auxier.

Costume contests, with divisions for the ugliest, best homemade, most original, prettiest, and scariest costumes, will be held. A lip-sync contest will also be held.

Saturday, beginning at 7 p.m., a pumpkin carving contest will be held, but participants must bring their own pumpkins.

A sock hop will be held in the gym, and there is an additional charge to attend the dance.

The two-day fall fun event will include face painting and food booths selling hot dogs, hamburgers, pepper bellies, hot chocolate, popcorn, and polish sausages.

Cost to attend is $1.50 for children under 12 years; $2 for children age two and up.

Activities begin Friday, about a half hour after dark and will conclude around 11:30 p.m.

Fall retreat

Christian Women in Kentucky are making plans for fall retreats.

The theme is: "Hush...Somebody's Calling My Name."

Scriptures that the speakers will build upon for their presentations include: Psalm 139:13-14; 1st Samuel 3:1-10; Luke 10:16, and Jeremiah 1:4-10; 18:1-6.

A retreat will be held October 26-27 at Jenny Wiley State Park. The leader will be Petie McLean.

Fall display

Kelli Dotson

Dotson wins title of Miss Jenny Wiley Princess

Kelli Dotson, the 16-year-old daughter of Larry and Theresa Dotson of Prestonsburg, won the title of Miss Jenny Wiley Princess at the pageant held Sunday.

In addition to winning first runner-up, she won Most Beautiful, Best Personality and Most Photogenic.

Kelli is a junior at Magoffin County High School where she is a varsity basketball player and involved in other clubs and activities, including showing Tennessee Walking Horses in horse shows around Eastern Kentucky.

Kelli is the granddaughter of Roy (Todd) and Phyllis Preston of Salyersville, and Lewis Dotson of Middle Creek, and the late Irene Wright Dotson.

Kids solving community problems can win cash grants

Local clubs and troops of the six largest national youth organizations representing some 13 million young Americans, are invited to enter their best community service projects in the 24th annual "Colgate Youth for America" campaign. The award-winning program presents cash grants for the most creative and best executed projects in the U.S. by local units of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys and Girls Clubs, Girls Incorporated, Camp Fire and 4-H.

More than 240 winners will receive checks for up to $2,000 from the Colgate-Palmolive Company. A celebrity panel of judges who volunteer their time and talent to the campaign determines the top programs.

Past judges have included Alex Trebek, Andrew Shue, Ethan Hawke, Jackie Joyner Kersee, Phylicia Rashad, Jack Wagner, Dean Cain, and more than 40 other popular stars. Clubs have until March 15, 1997 to develop and execute programs of value to their communities and send in their reports. Participants range from five-year-olds to high school teens.

The award winning projects in last year's "Youth for America" campaign reflect the creativity and resourcefulness of today's kids in their approach to modern problems. Members of a Texas Camp Fire council underwent special training to be able to provide child care for special needs children. Teens learned special needs care from professionals and medical doctors, then offered their baby-sitting services to area families. A Michigan Boy Scout troop donated movies and games to the pediatrics unit of a local hospital. The boys performed services throughout the community to earn money to pay for the gifts.

An Illinois Girl Scout troop donated stuffed animals from their own collections to their local Child and Family Services Center. The toys are used to counsel children entering foster care. A 4-H group from Illinois helped form a sister 4-H club for residents of a local learning center devoted to the care and teaching of developmentally disabled children. The group helped their new 'sisters' complete their first service project, the donation of stuffed toys for paramedics to carry with them for injured children.

To date, the Colgate-Palmolive Company has awarded close to $6 million to America's young people through "Youth for America." The campaign, initiated in 1972 to encourage social responsibility in America's young people, is now one of the longest consecutive running corporate-sponsored programs. "Youth for America" has been honored by The White House under five different administrations, has received a Freedoms Foundation

Award, is included in The Points of Light directory, and is praised each year by members of Congress and governors and mayors throughout the nation.

Entry forms are now available through regional offices of the national organizations, or by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to Colgate Youth for America Campaign, P.O. Box 1058, FDR Station, New York, NY 10150-1058. Further information about Colgate's youth programs and "Youth for America" entry forms can also be obtained online at www.colgate.com.

Prestonsburg band is "distinguished"

Under the direction of Mike Bell, the Prestonsburg High School Marching Band is experiencing a winning season, having participated in competitions at The Tournament of Bands at Madison Central in Richmond; Band of Gold Marching Band Festival in Hazard; Blue and White Festival at Shelby Valley in Pikeville; and The Pride of the Cumberlands in Middlesboro.

Good results have come from entering these competitions; the band has received two Distinguished Ratings—only one Distinguished Rating is needed to compete in state quarterfinals.

Also the band has received awards for the following: Best Field Commander, Best Percussion, Best Auxiliary and Best Music Overall.

The Prestonsburg High School Marching Band will represent Prestonsburg High School in the Jenny Wiley Parade this Saturday. The next scheduled competition is at Sheldon Clark High School in Inez on October 19.

The Marching Band is currently preparing for its appearance in the Kentucky State Quarterfinals Contest at Pulaski County on October 26th. They will compete in Class A and there will be eight bands selected out of this class to compete in the state semi-finals to be held in Lexington on November 2.

Day-by-Day, Week-by-Week, Month-by-Month,
Year-by-Year, we wondered how you were.

You were always on our minds, and we never stopped loving you.

Memories of you will always be in our hearts.

Your son has known about you since he was old enough to say "Daddy." He loves you as I loved you. We're both saddened to have lost you before we could speak face to face with you; however, I know you are now hearing our thoughts and feeling our love for you. A love that will never die.

Mental Health Awareness Week observed

October 6-12 is Mental Health Awareness Week. Mountain Comprehensive Care Center is celebrating by participating with the Appalachian Regional Psychiatric Center located at Hazard in National Depression Screening Day.

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, depression affects over 17 million Americans each year. Less than half of the people suffering from depression seek treatment for it. One out of every five adults may experience a depression at some point during his or her life. Twice as many women as men experience depression.

However, depressed men and adolescent boys are at greater risk for suicide than women. Clinical depression is a serious and common disorder of mood that is pervasive, intense and attacks the mind and the body at the same time.

Depression can result in a serious disturbance of work, social and bodily functioning. Unlike grief or passing sadness, depression usually does not respond to a change in circumstances, nor does it dissipate over time.

Depression can last for months or years if left untreated, resulting in disruption of relationships and professional productivity, disability or death.

Depression has become a serious health problem in the United States. The good news is that clinical depression is a very treatable illness with 80-90 percent of people responding by the end of one year of treatment.

Signs and symptoms of depression include: depressed mood, diminished interest or pleasure in activities enjoyed; sleep disturbances; thoughts of death or sluggishness; fatigue or loss of energy, significant change in one's appetite and/or weight, and feelings of worthlessness, hopelessness suicide.

Screening and education on depression was conducted at the Mountain Prevention Center on October 10.

MSU offers series of free Windows 95 training sessions

A series of training programs on Windows 95 using the distance learning facilities in Morehead, Ashland, Pikeville, and Prestonsburg will be held Wednesday mornings from 8:30 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.

The programs will be moderated by Wilson Grier, director of the Small Business Development Center at Morehead State University.

Dates and programs are:
 • October 16 — An Introduction to MSOFFICE and the use of MSWord 7.0;
 • October 23 — An Introduction to MSOFFICE and the use of Excel;
 • October 30 — A Review of the WIN95 Operating System and MSOFFICE Software.

The programs will originate from Morehead State University's Distance Learning Lab, in the Combs Building. Business people outside the Morehead area can participate by going to the Distance Learning Labs at the Morehead State University Big Sandy Outreach Center at 719 University Drive, Prestonsburg, or at Big Sandy Telecommuting Services in the TransFinancial Bank Building on Main Street in Pikeville.

The number of people who can attend these programs will be limited only by available space. For additional information, or to pre-register, contact Linda at the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center at (606) 432-5848; or Irene or Barry at (606) 432-4333.

Births

Birth announced

Zachary Ryan Hicks was born September 5th at McCray Memorial Hospital in Kendallville, Indiana, to Donna and Eli Ray Hicks. His brother is Joshua Ray Hicks and his grandparents are Ermal and Erma Hicks of Prestonsburg, and Jimmy and Libby Smith of Martin. Zachary's mother is the former Donna Sue Smith from Martin.

Weddings

Las Vegas wedding

Rachel Maynard of Inez and Charles Randal Bentley II of Lexington were united in marriage on June 30 in Las Vegas Nevada. The bride is the daughter of Roger Maynard of Inez and Janice Dunfee of Columbus, Ohio. A reception was held for the couple after they returned from their wedding trip.

Birthday

First birthday

Hannah Brooke Macelhose, daughter of Angela Bentley Macelhose of Wayland, and Michael Macelhose of Valencia, California, celebrated her first birthday on September 16, at the Wayland Church. She is the maternal granddaughter of Stella and Elmer Castle of Wayland and Charles and Carole Bentley of Wayland. Her paternal grandparents are Sam and Renee Macelhose of Valencia, California. Her great-grandmothers are Sybol Bentley of Wayland and Alice Lawson of McDowell.

To host singing group

The First Baptist Church of Allen will host the nationally-known Christian singing group Re-Creation on Sunday, October 20, at the 11 a.m. service. Re-Creation consists of ten dynamic young people who present both religious and family-oriented music, performing more than 300 concerts each year. Dr. French Harmon, pastor, encourages the public to attend. There is no admission charge, but a love offering will be taken.

PIKEVILLE METHODIST HOSPITAL WELCOMES

Leon Briggs, M.D. & Katrina Brown Briggs, M.D.

Leon Briggs, M.D.

Pikeville Methodist Hospital now offers complete pain management care through the services of Dr. Leon Briggs. Dr. Briggs is originally from Oak Hill, West Virginia and is the son of Leon and Mary Anne Briggs. He is a graduate of West Virginia University with both a bachelor's and a master's degree in biology. He then graduated in the top one-fourth of his class from Marshall University School of Medicine.

He completed his residency in clinical anesthesia and later completed fellowship training in pain management at the Pain Management Center at WVU School of Medicine.

Dr. Leon Briggs specializes in the care of chronic pain and cancer patients using the latest in neurolytic and surgically implanted modalities. For an appointment call 437-3592.

Pike County native Dr. Katrina Brown Briggs is now practicing anesthesiology at Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Dr. Briggs is a graduate of Virgie High School, but also attended Pikeville High School. She received a bachelor's degree in biology from Pikeville College and went on to graduate in the top one-fourth of her class at Marshall University School of Medicine.

She completed a pediatric internship at the University of South Carolina and then went to West Virginia University to complete a residency in anesthesiology.

Dr. Briggs is married to Dr. Leon Briggs and is the daughter of Glenn and Peggy Brown of Robinson Creek.

Katrina Brown Briggs, M.D.

Diversity week planned at PCC

A variety of events designed to celebrate diversity is planned for Diversity Week, to be observed October 14-18, at Prestonsburg Community College.

The schedule of events for the week includes panel discussions on topics including disability, race/ethnicity, and World Food Day; airings of documentaries on racial and ethnic topics and issues; guest speakers, and an all-college picnic.

This is the second consecutive year a diversity fair has been held at PCC. The organizers of last year's inaugural event said they wanted to "recognize our differences and celebrate them." They said they felt it is important for the people of Eastern Kentucky to "celebrate their diversity, to try to be more understanding, more tolerant of people of other races."

The full schedule of events for Diversity Week is as follows:

Monday, Oct. 14—Panel: Disability, Pike Building Auditorium, 10:20-11:20 a.m.; Documentary: "A Time for Justice," Pike 208, 12:40-1:40 p.m.; Documentary: "Not in Our Town," Pike 208, 1:50-2:50 p.m.; Documentary: "Holo-caust," Art Gallery (Magoffin Building), 6-8 p.m.

Tuesday, October 15—Readings on Diversity, Art Gallery (Magoffin Building), 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Wednesday, October 16—Panel: Race/Ethnicity, Pike Building Auditorium, 10:20-11:20 a.m.; Cultural Diversity in Food (sponsored by Baptist Student Union), outside Johnson Building, 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; Telecast of World Food Day forum, Johnson 102, 12 noon-1 p.m.; Panel: World Food Day, Focus on Grassroots Activism, Johnson 102, 1-2:30 p.m.

Thursday, October 17—Documentary: "Not in Our Town," Pike 205, 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; International Night: Cuisine and More, Art Gallery (Magoffin Building), 5-8 p.m.

Friday, October 18—Guest speaker, Pike Building Auditorium, 10:20-11:20 a.m.; all-campus picnic, outside Johnson Building, 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Latta is guest at Jefferson County Tourism dinner

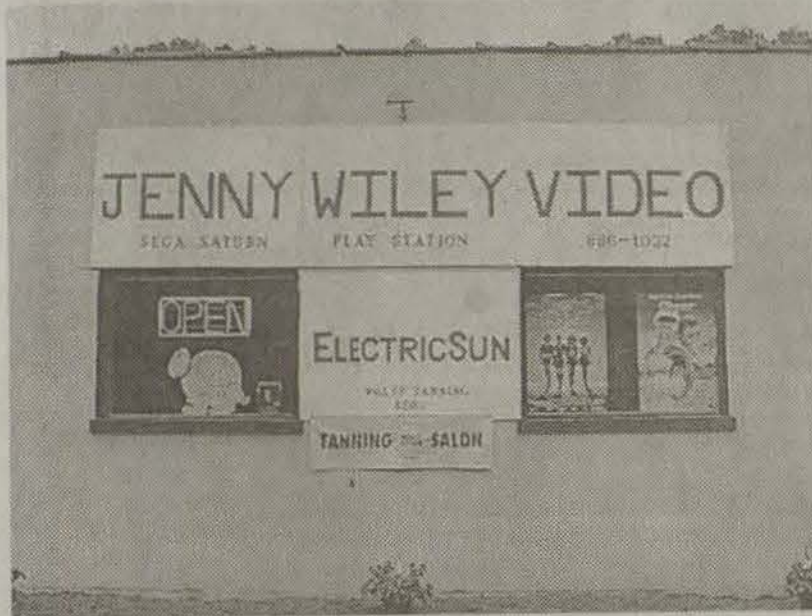

The Louisville and Jefferson County Convention & Visitors Bureau hosted the Fourth Annual Tour and Travel Awards Dinner on Thursday, September 19 at the Holiday Inn Hurstbourne. Among the distinguished guests and tourism professionals from across the state on hand for the event were Secretary of Tourism Anne Latta, of Prestonsburg.

The Annual Tour and Travel Awards Dinner is designed to bring together members of the tourism industry from across the state and recognize the outstanding work of tour and travel professionals in the past year.

OLBH schedules activities

Women throughout the local area are urged to take part in several special events hosted by Our Lady of Bellefonte Hospital throughout the month of October, in recognition of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Susan Miller, MSN, cancer survivor and author of the book "When Tulips Bloom," will speak at a special program at 7 p.m., October 14, at First Christian Church in Russell. Miller will give a presentation detailing her battle with cancer.

Free clinical breast exams will be available, October 16, at the Ashland Bellefonte Cancer Center, located on the OLBH campus, from 5 to 7 p.m. Dr. James Martin, surgeon, and Dr. Kirti Jain, oncologist, will conduct the exams.

The OLBH Cannonsburg Outreach Center, located at 12470 U.S. Rt. 60, across from Wayne Supply, will offer free breast exams on October 21, from 6 to 8 p.m. In addition to the exams, several professionals will be available for free consultations at the center.

Annual Breast Cancer Conference

In recognition of October's designation as Breast Cancer Awareness Month, King's Daughters' Medical Center will host its third Annual Breast Cancer Conference, October 24-26.

The conference begins Thursday, October 24, with a special presentation free and open to the community. At 6 p.m., at KDMC's Paul G. Blazer Jr. Health Education Center, Betty Rollin, NBC news correspondent, author and breast cancer survivor, presents "Cheery Cancer Talk." Seating is limited and reservations are required by calling (606) 325-ROSE. A free screening mammogram from KDMC's Women's Imaging Center will be awarded as a door prize and refreshments will be served.

On Friday, October 25, the conference continues with a half-day symposium for the area's health-care professionals.

Appellate opinions on the net

Published and unpublished opinions of the Kentucky Court of Appeals are now accessible via the internet. The Kentucky Legal Research System (KLRS) developed the site, which provides a complete collection of the court's opinions.

More than 3,500 opinions have been translated and are now accessible. Additions to the repository are subject to the workload of the court, but will average 30 to 50 opinions per week.

In order to access the entire repository, registration is required. The internet address is <http://www.klrs.com>.

Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert F. Stephens stated, "This effort reinforces the judicial system's commitment to making Kentucky's courts more available and user friendly to all citizens."

For additional access information, contact KLRS at: <http://www.klrs.com> or by e-mail at: admin@klrs.com.

Mine blast send residents 'ducking for cover'

by Lilly Adkins and Mark Grayson
The Martin County Sun

A blast from Martiki Coal Company's operation at Pigeon Roost was fired on Pigeon Roost residents without warning last Tuesday evening, October 12, sending rocks and dirt flying everywhere. The blast also sent a rock through the roof of Mike and Tammy Sartin's home, nearly injuring their two young children.

Tammy Sartin said she had just gotten home after picking her husband up from work, at what is now called Martin County Water. The children laid their bookbags on the top bunk in their bedroom, and just as they came out of the room, the rock came crashing through the ceiling of their bedroom.

Mike Sartin also said that his wife wanted to go outside, because of the rocks, but they were still flying and he was afraid that she would get hit with one if she went out there, so he stopped her.

The entire family was upset, and afraid to stay in the home, Sartin said. "The kids had just come out of their room, they could have been killed. If a rock could come through the ceiling like that, just imagine what it could do to a small child."

Other neighbors were also affected by the blast. Imprints were left by the flying rocks. One such imprint was within 29 feet of Pat and I.G. Jude's bedroom window. "I worked for Martin County Coal, and I have heard shots go off, but I have never heard anything like that before. We have had a difficult time with incidents like this for the past 13 years."

Donnie Robinson also incurred damages to his store. It caused a board along the side of the roof to break off.

According to Mike Sartin, Isaac Picket and two crew members from Biswell showed up to assess the damage to his home. They were asked to put tar and a piece of tin over the hole until something could be done. They also apologized for the destruction the blast had caused and said that they would send an insurance man out to look at it the following day.

Sartin said, October 7, Monday, that a representative from the insurance company offered to pay $687 for the damages but he refused.

After the incident, Danny Jude and Mike Sartin visited County Attorney Drewie Muncy to ask for his help and to request a warrant to be issued against the company. Sartin said Muncy told them that he would not be able to issue a warrant "because they are a corporation." He also said that they would have to "file for an injunction against Martiki."

Ex-judge Huffman gets prison sentence

Former Pike District Judge Charles Huffman III was sentenced on Monday, October 7, to 15 months in prison and supervised release for extorting drugs.

Prosecutors had sought leniency for Huffman because of his cooperation with federal officials.

But U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood refused to grant probation, declaring that Huffman's sentence must serve as a deterrent to others.

In 1994, Huffman was caught extorting painkillers from a defendant charged with drunken driving and speeding. He then cooperated with the FBI in a drug sting that caught former Pike District Judge Randall Starnes selling cocaine and painkillers to Huffman.

In April 1995, Huffman took a medical leave of absence, and in August of 1995, he left the bench and plead guilty to extortion.

Huffman could have been sentenced 18 to 24 months in prison and fined $4,000 to $40,000.

Gov. Patton gives med school $500,000 check

Governor Paul Patton brought his "Patton to the People" bus tour to Pikeville on Thursday, October 10.

And a half-million bucks, too.

The bus with the governor, Judi Patton, Lt. Governor Steve Henry and the cabinet secretaries on board rolled into the Pikeville College gym at 8 a.m. for a town meeting.

During the event, Governor Patton presented a check for $500,000 for the Pikeville College

School of Osteopathic Medicine. Pikeville College President William H. Owens accepted the check.

The money is part of several Appalachian Regional Commission grants Patton was to deliver during his visits this week to Floyd, Pike, Knott and Perry counties.

The ARC grant to the college will pay for classroom and laboratory equipment, books and other necessities. — Appalachian News-Express

Auxier named new Johnson road chief

by Ralph B. Davis
The Paintsville Herald

Johnson County has a new road foreman, and unlike the effort to remove former Road Foreman Ernie Vanhoose, it only took one meeting, a 15-minute closed session and one vote to do it.

The fiscal court unanimously approved County Judge-Executive Hobert Meade's nomination of current road crewman Sam Auxier to be head of the road department.

Auxier was nominated to a four-year term of office, retroactive to January 1996.

Auxier's term will expire in January of 2000, one year into the term of the next fiscal court.

Auxier takes the spot previously held by Vanhoose, who was removed from the post, then rehired by the fiscal court, but who never showed back up for work after Meade said he would not sign his paychecks or allow him to operate equipment.

Speculation about Vanhoose's dismissal at the time centered around an FBI investigation into county spending practices and his testimony to a federal grand jury.

Since that time, Meade, Vanhoose and two others were indicted on federal conspiracy and mail fraud charges.

Vanhoose pled guilty to one charge and fingered Meade as a co-conspirator.

Four Pike men fined for violations at lake

This past recreation season the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Fishtrap Lake in Pike County, and in particular park rangers, with strong support by Pike County Sheriff Deputies, have sought to clean up Lick Creek Recreation Area.

The result has been a crackdown on violators at Fishtrap Lake. On September 26, in U.S. Magistrate Court in Ashland, U.S. Judge Magistrate Peggy Patterson handed down the following sentences to four Pike County men:

Barry Miller of Fedscreek received the heaviest sentence. He was fined $50 for littering, $50 for alcohol possession, $200 for public disturbance, $200 for failure to follow a lawful order given by a Federal officer, two 48-hour jail sentences to be served concurrently, two one-year bans from Fishtrap Lake to be served concurrently, and court fees.

Marvin Miller, also of Fedscreek, was fined $200 on public disturbance charges, a one-year ban from Fishtrap Lake, and court fees.

Tony Miller of Fedscreek was fined $35 for illegal parking, $35 for littering, $35 for alcohol possession, $100 for public disturbance, a one-year ban from Fishtrap Lake, and court fees.

Emanuel Fuller of Elkhorn City was fined $25 for littering, $25 for alcohol possession, $25 for public disturbance, one-year ban from Fishtrap Lake, and court fees.

Rangers at Fishtrap have several more cases pending in Federal Court for violations at Fishtrap.

Rogers announces new federal loan center located in Hazard

U.S. Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers (KY-5) announced October 9, at Hazard City Hall, the U.S. Small Business Administration's selection of Hazard, as one of two sites in the country for a new small business loan processing center. The other site is in California.

Rogers said the new federal loan center will be located in an existing building in the city and will be equipped with the latest technology. The new center will have approximately 19 federal employees, most of whom will be hired locally. Most of the employees will be loan officers, along with administrative support staff.

"This new high-tech center will prove, beyond any reasonable doubt, that the citizens of Appalachia can compete on any playing field, with any region, and with any nation in the world, because we can overcome the barriers of yesterday, with the tools of today, to the work of tomorrow."

According to Rogers, the center will receive and review the applications through phone, fax, and direct computer links with banks throughout the Eastern United States.

The new center will review applications for small business loans under $100,000 which, when approved, will be 80 percent insured by the federal government. The one-page loan applications, known as low documentation or "LowDoc," take the red tape out of the loan process. The program was developed with help from small business owners and commercial lenders to make it easier for entrepreneurs to start or expand their businesses.

Since 1994, the SBA has approved nearly 57,000 LowDoc loans totalling almost $3.2 billion. The two new centers are expected to review between 20,000 and 30,000 applications per year.

Joining Congressman Rogers for the announcement were Hazard Mayor Bill Gorman and the Perry County Judge Executive Sherman Neace. Representing the SBA were Regional Administrator Billy Max Paul and SBA Kentucky Administrator William Federhofer.

Rogers is the chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee that approved the funding for the SBA's loan processing centers.

Patton proclaims Domestic Violence Awareness Month

On Tuesday, October 1, at a news conference at the Capitol, Governor Paul Patton, with First Lady Judi Patton at his side, issued a proclamation declaring October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month in Kentucky.

Governor Patton said, "Domestic violence kills too many of our citizens every year and brings tragedy to every family whose lives it touches. The proclamation for Domestic Violence Awareness Month in Kentucky will communicate from the highest levels that we will not tolerate this crime within the borders of the Commonwealth."

Mrs. Patton is Chair of the Governor's Council on Domestic Violence and presided over the second meeting of the Governor's Council immediately following issuance of the proclamation.

The agenda for the meeting included progress reports from Council subcommittees on development of a prosecutor's manual and a model law enforcement policy for domestic violence, implementation of mandatory domestic violence training for professionals, progress on the Department of Justice "full faith and credit grant" and other Council activities.

Inquiries should be made to Carol Jordan, Executive Director, Governor's Office of Sexual Abuse and Domestic Violence Services at 564-2611.

Floyd men indicted by Johnson grand jury

A Johnson County grand jury indicted two Floyd County men Monday, October 7, on charges in connection with a robbery June 3 at Tele-Media in Paintsville.

Danny R. Stephens, of Martin, was charged with first-degree robbery for allegedly entering Tele-Media with a handgun and threatening a clerk there with physical harm in an attempt to gain money.

John Kelly Stephens, also of Martin, was charged with first-degree complicity to commit robbery for allegedly aiding Danny Stephens.

If convicted, each man faces up to 20 years in prison and $10,000 in fines. — The Paintsville Herald

Board of Education buys land for school

Work is expected to get underway soon on a school to replace Oil Springs Elementary, after the Johnson County School Board okayed the purchase of a tract of land along new U.S. 23.

Board members unanimously agreed to buy the 150-acre site at Jenny's Creek for $150,000 Wednesday morning, October 2.

The district hopes to turn the first shovel full of dirt in about three weeks, said Superintendent Orville Hamilton, as construction crews begin site preparation. In August, the board awarded the site preparation contract to Cyrus Construction of Lawrence County. Hamilton said the district is now just waiting for the go-ahead from the state to begin work.

Hamilton said the school could be completed in 18 months. — The Paintsville Herald

Man killed in wreck

A Monday afternoon, October 7, accident has left one man dead after a flatbed truck loaded with lumber pulled into the path of a pick-up truck on U.S. 23.

The accident occurred around 4:50 p.m. at the junction of U.S. 23 and Route 201 in Wittensville.

According to police reports, a 1987 Kenworth tractor-trailer driven by Gary Music was attempting to pull onto north 23 from 201 when a 1989 Nissan pick-up driven south by 73-year-old Elza T. Sublett of Paintsville, rammed into the side of the flatbed.

Sublett's truck was forced under the semi from the crash. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Johnson County Coroner J. R. Frisby at 5:10 p.m.

Music was treated for minor injuries at Paul B. Hall Medical Center and released.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Gary Lafferty is investigating the accident. — The Paintsville Herald and transported to the Johnson County Juvenile Detention Center in Paintsville on drug-related charges.

Five of the youths were arrested Friday, September 27, and cited for marijuana violations. Two others were arrested Monday, September 30, when Judge Terry Jacobs ordered them to be apprehended and detained in the juvenile facility. The students were sentenced Wednesday, October 2, to an additional 12 days to be served (for a total of 15) in the Juvenile Detention Center, and two years probation. All seven are being held in the juvenile detention center where they are completing their sentences. — The Salyersville Independent

Inmates help spruce up city

For the price of a meal a day, inmates from the Johnson County Regional Detention Center are spending five days a week cleaning up Salyersville.

Currently, the group is working at clearing off the riverbank and roadsides within the city limits.

"This year we're going to work until we get everything cleaned up. We're going to keep at this until the weather gets too cold," said Mayor Joe Howard.

Previous efforts at clearing off overgrown property and picking up trash met with success last year. "Places that we cleaned up last year are still in good condition. Once we got things started, others have kept up the mowing, etc.," said Howard. — The Salyersville Independent

Deputies chase hit-and-run driver

A 21-year-old Lovely man was arrested by Martin County Sheriff's Deputies after he allegedly hit a parked car with his vehicle and fled the scene on foot.

Eddie Maynard was arrested by Deputies P. D. Evans and Danny Goble after he struck a 1994 Corsica owned by Rhoda Pinson of Blacklog, in front of the Western Auto Store in Inez, Wednesday morning, October 2. Jeff Pinson was injured in the incident when Maynard's older model Chevette hit his mother's car in which he was a passenger. He was treated for back pain and released at Highlands Medical Center. Deputies Evans and Goble chased Maynard in driving rain through the community center parking lot and down to the creek, where the suspect jumped in. Maynard then came out of the water complaining of a leg injury and was taken into custody by Evans. He was transported to Paul B. Hall Medical Center in Paintsville where he was treated and released.

The deputies then transported Maynard to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center, where he was charged with DUI, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, improper insurance, and no operator's license. — The Martin County Sun

"When he did that, I got mine out."
The would-be robber ran outside and got into a waiting car. Bartley followed and fired shots into the air "to scare them."

Less than three hours later, four juveniles were arrested and charged with armed robbery, according to Kentucky State Police. All were males, ages 16 or 17. — Appalachian News-Express

Pikeville girl has part in Seagal movie

Seven-year-old Charley Epling of Pikeville recently finished two weeks of traveling back and forth to Hazard to film her scenes in the Steven Seagal movie, Fire Down Below.

Seagal plays an undercover Environmental Protection Agency investigator trying to catch people dumping toxic waste in abandoned coal mines. The movie is being filmed in Eastern Kentucky.

Charley was selected for the small speaking role in August. Like hundreds of others, she attended an open audition in Hazard. A couple of trips later, she was cast as Alberta, one of four children in a family Seagal's character assists during the movie.

Although the seven-year-old Pikeville Elementary student missed a little school during the filming, her teachers are allowing her to make up her missed work.

The movie is set for release next summer. — Appalachian News-Express

Man charged with falsifying tax returns

A Franklin County grand jury recently indicted tax preparer Larry Grant Watson of Salyersville in seven felony counts of preparing false income tax returns for seven Magoffin County taxpayers for the 1992 tax year.

The taxpayers were not charged, according to a news release from the state Revenue Cabinet. Each count against Watson is punishable by a maximum of five years in prison and $5,000 fine.

The indictment was the culmination of a six-month investigation by the Revenue Cabinet's criminal investigation section. — The Salyersville Independent

Flood project news is good, Callaham says

Martin County Judge/Executive Kelly Callaham received good news concerning Martin County's Tug River Flood Control Project.

In a letter addressed to Judge Callaham this week, the State of Kentucky, by and through Commissioner of Local Government Bob Arnold, committed to the 95 percent cost share of the local matching funds toward the project.

"I am happy for the flood victims of the 1977 flood to have an opportunity to protect their property. The losses our citizens have experienced from this flood, and others like it, can devastate a family for years," Callaham said.

Public meetings have occurred between the Martin County Fiscal Court and Army Corp of Engineers. Martin County Fiscal Court is expected to take action concerning the flood control project at its next regular scheduled meeting of October 21, authorizing Judge

Juvenile to be tried as adult in robbery

A 17-year-old Pikeville youth has been indicted for the August attempted robbery of a Ferrells Creek gas station.

A Pike County grand jury last week returned a one-count indictment against John Bradley Justice, charging him with first-degree robbery, a Class B felony.

Allegedly, Justice and "juvenile accomplices" threatened Loren Bartley with a gun while attempting to hold up Bartley Service Station.

Bartley, 72, was inside the service station August 13, when a couple of teenagers walked in and bought a soft drink and a pack of gum. One left, but the other one pulled a gun.

But Bartley, who has been in business for more than 30 years, didn't cooperate. "I held him off for 10 or 15 seconds and then a customer started in," said Bartley shortly after the attempted robbery. "The boy got scared and started dropping his gun."

News of the Weird

— Conspicuous Getaways: Armed with descriptions of the perpetrators, police fairly quickly made arrests in robberies in Chicago in August and Oshawa, Ontario, in March, because thieves were unsuccessful in blending with the crowds as they walked away with their loot. According to police, Jude Bradshaw, 41, was still wearing the green hat and purple pants he wore to rob the Chicago bank, and the 36-year-old man who robbed the Oshawa Discount Centre had made no effort to disguise the metal hook he uses in place of a hand.

— Productive Lunch Hours: Ollie King, 38, was arrested as he allegedly sought to buy drugs in a suburb of Atlanta in June during his lunch-hour break from serving on a jury. And in July, Li Baolun, 33, was arrested in Beijing, China, and charged with being the thief who, during his lunch hours over a four-year period, walked into more than 1,000 government offices and stole money from unattended workers' desks and belongings.

— Dole Mania: Just before the Republican convention in August, a man carrying three suitcases climbed a 400-foot radio tower in Miami and told onlookers he would stay there until he was selected as Bob Dole's running mate. His political platform: more horses and bicycles, less asphalt and pornography. And in Dallas, after becoming enraged at Dole's nomination on Aug. 14, Ernest Comegys, 70, went to his bedroom, grabbed a handgun, fired several shots at his cousin and stepdaughter, and then shot himself to death.

NEWS FROM THE JOB MARKET

— The government of Zimbabwe announced in June that it was pessimistic that it could fill the vacant position of hangman after the resignation of Tommy Griffiths, 72, an Englishman who had held the part-time post since the 1950s. Though dozens of men are on death row, no local person will take the job because of a national superstition about taking someone's life without personal motive.

— The New York Times reported in April that entomologist P. Kirk Visscher and two colleagues set out to challenge the conventional wisdom that a human should only very carefully attempt to extract the stinger after a honeybee attack. Their thesis is that speed of removal, not style, is more important, and they tested it the only way they knew how: Dr. Visscher took about 50 honeybees over several days, methodically rubbed each against his skin until it stung, extracted the stinger, and measured the welt. Said Visscher, "That's the price of fame and fortune."

— Also in that issue of the San Francisco Chronicle was a report on Martha Huerta, who pulls an eight-hour shift at ABC Diaper Service in Berkeley, Calif., where she feeds soiled diapers through an electronic counting machine and on to the washer. Her tools are gloves and an electric fan, although, said her supervisor, "It helps that her sense of smell isn't very good."

IRONIES

— Fishing on Junior Lake in July, Phil Cram, police chief of Medway, Maine, lost part of his hand when an explosive tube he was using illegally to stun fish blew up prematurely.

— In Tampa, Fla., in April, Antonio Valiente Valdez Jr., on his way to court to answer a traffic citation for driving without his prescription glasses, accidentally hit a car that had already crashed on the side of the road. According to police, he wasn't wearing his glasses then, either.

— In April, Christopher J. Kerins, a Trenton, N.J., undercover police officer, was arrested and charged with robbing the Kenwood Savings Bank in Cincinnati during a break while attending the Middle Atlantic Law Enforcement convention. Food for thought

My younger sister, Jenny, is an expert on diet and exercise and will go to any lengths to maintain her desired weight of 92 pounds. The other day, this muscular anorexic thermometer exercised her way into my kitchen and started raving about a new diet plan she found on the back of a package of unsweetened breath mints.

"It's simply marvelous," she said, as she started her warm-ups, "for breakfast you have an olive without the pit, and two glasses of mineral water."

"That sounds like a water diet," I said. "On that diet you're always going to the bathroom, but on this one you fight the urge to go. You're in so much pain you can't think about food."

"Sounds logical," I said. "What do you get for lunch?"

"An orange slice, lemon rind and a tablespoon of pulverized grapefruit," she said as she exhaled through her mouth.

"That sounds like the grapefruit diet."

"No," she said, as she squeezed in her cheeks until her face disappeared. "You're not allowed to have fruit on this diet. But for supper you can have chicken and dumplings, candied sweet potatoes, creamed peas and pie a la mode."

"That's incredible," I said. "But how can you lose so much weight on a diet like that?"

"Easy," she said, sucking on a toothpick. "You aren't allowed to swallow. I've simply got to lose this extra two ounces I'm carrying around. It's exhausting me."

"Why don't you go on a fast?" I asked.

"That makes me too hungry. Besides, why would I want to go on a fast when there are so many sure-fire ways to lose?" she asked, as she practiced her deep knee bends.

"Why don't you just use some willpower?" I asked.

"I got some of that at the drugstore, and my pupils were dilated for two weeks."

"I mean, why don't you try to exercise some restraint?"

"Is that a new aerobic maneuver?" she asked, as she chinned herself on the refrigerator.

"Why don't you cut down on the amount of food you eat? You can eat all the carrots, lettuce and cabbage you want."

"That's just a bunch of bulk, and I get plenty of it in my diet already," she said. "I always eat the toothpicks that come in my mustard sandwiches."

"That's not bulk!" I screamed. "That's starvation! You're going to be the first aerobically fit person to die from malnutrition. I liked you better when you were pleasantly plump."

"When did you get that tumor under your arm?" she asked, as she jogged in place.

"What tumor?" I asked, placing my hand under my arm.

"Gross! It's fat hanging under your arm. I haven't seen that much fat since the Olympic sumowrestling matches," she said, as she practiced her squat thrusts.

"I suppose I could drop a few pounds," I said shamefully.

"Drop a few! I'm surprised you're even able to carry them."

"Maybe I can start on the diet you're on now. What is it?"

"It's called the Infant Diet. A group of pediatricians approved it. You get to put any food you want on your thumb and suck it. You can't stay

Riders In the Sky: 'Always Drink Upstream From the Herd'

The range continues to grow ever wider for Riders in the Sky, America's preeminent western music trio. Besides their ever-popular stage shows, Ranger Doug, Too Slim and Woody Paul have been hosting their weekly Riders Radio Theater program on National Public Radio since 1988 and guiding the reins of a series of highly rated TV specials on The Nashville Network.

Along the trail, the accomplished acoustic musicians and colorful comedians have picked up plenty of wisdom. Always drink upstream from the herd. Never squat with your spurs on. Keep your pistol in your holster. Bring good beef to hungry people. Do your best. When in doubt, harmonize.

That last chunk of wisdom has led Riders in the Sky back to the corral where they first hitched their musical ideas. With the release of their fine new album, "Always Drink Upstream From the Herd," the trio is back with Rounder Records, where they began their recording odyssey in 1980 with their debut album, "Three on the Trail." Back then, Rounder was the little-company-that could. Today, they're America's leading purveyor of acoustic music. So the Riders, while looking for a new base of operation, clicked their dusty bootheels together three times and remembered that there is no place like home.

It was with Rounder that the Riders first proved to be ahead of their time by going back in time. It was where they first found an audience for wholesome, offbeat entertainment in a less-than-wholesome, hard-bitten age.

"We're real excited about being back with Rounder," says Ranger Doug, Idol of American Youth, as well as an extraordinary yodeler, accomplished guitarist and the Rider most likely to croon a beautiful lullaby. "These are people who really know their acoustic music. They treat it lovingly and go full bore with it."

Too Slim, who has a knack for cutting to the heart of the beast, when he's not slipping around on the comical fat as alter ego, Side Meat, adds, "It sure feels great to be back in the home corral."

After a series of concept albums—exploiting the trio's varied talents for comedy, satirical homespun advertisements, children's music and cowboy love songs—Riders have used this momentous occasion to get back to their original formula of combining western classics ("Rawhide"; "Cattle Call") with romantic Ranger Doug originals, impressive Woody Paul instrumentals and a sidestep into the offbeat of Too Slim.

Helping the trio cast their vision with perfect subtlety is their old saddle pal, Joey Miskulin, better known to Riders' fans as Joey the Cow Polka King. Not only is he among the finest accordion squeezers ever to wander the range; he's also one keen conjurer when it comes to capturing the elusive, sublime magic of the Riders in the Sky musical mystique. "If anyone knows our sound and our sensibility, it's Joey," Too Slim asserts. "It's very natural for us to be sitting in a room playing music with him."

Ranger Doug continues the testimony. "If you go back over our career and listen to our music, and then listen to these last two albums that Joey has produced, it's very clear that they are the best we've done. It's our sound in the right balance. It's not contrived. Even though there's a lot of interest in western music these days, a lot of it is still pretty contrived. It's lyrics about the outdoors set to a country beat. That's not what we do. This album has our vision and our image, musically, of the West. It's not grafted onto another form."

As for the songs, the Riders fulfill long-standing fan requests for unaltered versions of "Rawhide" and "Cattle Call." As for the latter, Too Slim says, "We recorded a comic version of it before, but people have always asked for a straight version. So we did it, and it came off very well. It shows off the incredible beauty of Ranger Doug's yodel in its purest form."

Of course, the Riders like to mine the Western oeuvre for sparkling, lesser-known gems as well as classic gold. This time, they feature a Woody Paul vocal on the evocative "Take Me Back To My Boots and Saddles," which once served as the inspirational title song of a Gene Auty movie. "It's one of my favorite western songs," Too Slim admits. "It's so campfire-like."

Elsewhere, they put the Riders' distinctive brand of harmony and precise, relaxed musicianship on the upbeat "Texas Polka," the Glaser Brothers' "The Running Gun" and "Idaho," an original ballad by songwriter Frank Basso. "It's one of those rare things where a guy comes up after a show with a tape of one of his songs, and it happens to be good," Ranger Doug says. "It happens about one-in-a-thousand times."

As usual, many of the album highlights are original songs from the pen of Ranger Doug, as he captures the spirit of the Old West in such memorable songs as "Riding the Winds of the West," "Desert Serenade," "The Whispering Wind" and "The First Cowboy Song," the latter done as a duet with the talented Chris O'Connell, former member of longtime Riders' compadres Asleep At The Wheel.

Meanwhile, after 18 albums and more than 3,200 shows, the trio believes they just keep getting better. They keep honing and adjusting their harmonies and perfecting their unique musical blend. The pay-off comes each night, as the all-age crowds continue to grow and respond with enthusiasm.

It also manifests with each new multimedia opportunity that comes their way.

Riders in the Sky will appear in concert, Thursday, October 17, at the Pikeville High School auditorium, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

FLY AWAY HOME

My girlfriend doesn't have much stomach for what she calls "animal" films. She's always afraid the animal will die in the flick, or get lost or separated from its owner. In fact, the last such movie she agreed to see was "Homeward Bound" and she spent the entire time sobbing through it! Thus, I couldn't get her to see this one, but did she ever miss out!

Oscar-winning wunderkind, Anna Paquin, portrays Amy Alden, a little girl who's just lost her mother in a tragic car crash in New Zealand. With nowhere else to go, the girl is shipped back to Ontario, Canada, where she was born, to live with her father, Tom (Jeff Daniels).

Amy barely remembers her father and she harbors no real love for him. Worse yet, when she gets there, she discovers he's barely making ends meet, living on a rundown farm, trying to make his mark as an artist. To her delight, however, Amy finds a nest of unhatched goslings and decides to incubate and then hatch them.

Surprise, surprise! Goslings "imprint" themselves on the first creature they see at birth, usually their own mother. In this case, it's the girl who becomes the "mother" of the flock. Unfortunately, Amy finds out that geese generally migrate south for the winter, led by the adult members in the group. Without these older geese to show the way, Amy's geese may have to wind up with Ontario's environmental officers.

Tom comes up with a solution: he and Amy will fly tiny, lightweight planes to North Carolina, leading the geese to their winter home. In the process of preparing for this trip, naturally, father and daughter form a strong bond, very touchingly and humorously portrayed.

With a PG rating, this is a can't-miss, feel-good family movie. I give it a full four stars!

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Bobbie was in despair as she tried to cope with B.J.'s birthday, Tony's behavior, and now, the closing of General Hospital. Sonny was determined to learn the truth about Jax. Luke and Laura believed the Cassadines were leaving, but then Laura had to face a difficult decision: Should GH stay closed, or should Stefan be allowed to intercede? Tracy planned for her trip to New York City and the gang in SoHo. Wait To See: Luke is stunned by Laura's decision.

GUIDING LIGHT: Phillip realized Annie was addicted to pills. Reva worried about Shayne and Marah's well-being. Hart and Dinah asked Bridget why she turned over their photo to the police. Phillip told Alan he blamed his brother, Alan-Michael, for his loss. Later, after his attempt to reconcile the brothers failed, Alan decided to help Phillip. J was hurt when Nola and Quint assumed he masterminded the plot to let Bill abscond with the money Vanessa left for him. Amanda warned Alan he'll have only her if his sons learn he's A. Spaulding. Wait To See: Roger confronts Blake about helping Hart and Dinah.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: After seeing the love between Blair and Starr, Todd decided to delay his divorce and custody suits. Dorian fainted after giving blood. Antonio bluffed his way out of being shot by Carlo. Elliot hypnotized Viki in an attempt to erase the past post-hypnotic suggestions of anger toward Kevin. After giving Alex her divorce decree from Asa, Nora tried to see if she was padded instead of pregnant. Bo was stunned to see Becky Lee very much alive. Wait To See: Alex may have complications with another woman's pregnancy.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nick reassured Sharon he wanted them to have the baby. Nikki anticipated Victor's proposal, but learned he'd gone to see Hope in Kansas. Swearing Victor will never hurt her again, Nikki decided to marry Josh. A tearful Nina told Chris Ryan had moved out. In Kansas, Victor visited a severely injured Cliff and comforted Hope. He then tried to call his family, but they were all at Nikki's pre-nuptial party. Wait To See: Victor tries to get to Nikki before she says I Do to Josh.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) There are some loose ends to take care of on the job left over from last week. Utilize self-discipline to get these out of the way. Making decisions of a financial nature is favored later in the week.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're called upon to exercise your influence on a family member early in the week. If out shopping, you get a good deal on a gift for someone. A situation at work is irritating, but eventually resolves itself.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You can clearly get your ideas across to others and rally them to your side. Travel plans related to work could be in the works. A money-related quarrel mars your weekend, so try to avoid this if possible.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Lashing out will get you nowhere. Instead, be sweet and patient for the best result. While you have right on your side, forcing the issue won't work. Avoid making a big fuss about a business aggravation later in the week.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Business meetings are happily favored. You make some important progress as a result. Do-it-yourself projects beckon. However, don't bite off more than you can chew. If you're unsure, hire an expert.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You have the answers to a friend's problems, but you have to wait until this person comes to you for help. If single, a possible romantic introduction is in the works. A family member surprises you with a suggestion for the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your social life takes a front seat to everything else, even important work matters. This can be detrimental at this time. You must apply yourself to tasks at hand before you can kick up your heels.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's time to tackle those domestic chores you've been avoiding and get them out of the way. Happily, family members pitch in and make the work go faster. The weekend is not the time for a political discussion with friends who disagree.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your creativity is accented, and you accomplish much. Seek some time alone later in the week to reflect and meditate. Avoid any weekend romantic disputes if possible that could put a damper on your social life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be tactful with a superior at work whose actions are confusing you. It's not the time to question your boss. Not only will it not be appreciated, but it will label you a troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good week to consider having bigwigs over for a special dinner, since mixing business with pleasure is favored. Your social graces can also be a career asset. This weekend, avoid a minor spat with a loved one.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You get more done when you work with others as a team this week. Avoid making a snap judgment about something that can come back to haunt you. Instead, get all the facts. This weekend, couples agree about mutual concerns.

Doing a back bend, she placed her head between her legs and said, "The only other diet would be the Annapolis Nasal Diet."

"What is it?" I pleaded.

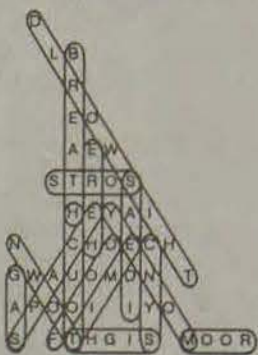

"You can eat as much food as you can stuff up your nose," she said, as she touched her toes.

"I'm surprised you're not anorexic," I said, as I nervously shoved potato chips in my mouth.

"I like eating too much to be labeled anorexic, anyway that's hard on your vital organs. Look at the time. I've got to run to town," she said, as she put on her running shoes.

As I watched her run down the street my stomach growled, and I remembered, it was time for lunch.

A Look At Sports

Roy says Anthony is a product of Florida basketball and that ain't good

While the college basketball recruiting saga continues, the University of Kentucky has had two commitments for next year with two or maybe three more later in the spring.

The latest commitment the Wildcats received was from Myron Anthony out of the state of Florida. Long time UK fan and a "I-believe-UK-can-become-a-football-school" believer, Roy Ratliff of Martin says Wildcat fans better beware because the players UK has gotten out of Florida haven't always panned out.

"Look here. We got Irvin Thomas from Florida and he never did play to expectations. Then we got Gimel Martinez and he wasn't that good. And now we have Alan Edwards, and he has yet to prove himself," said Ratliff.

Ratliff says he hopes he is wrong about Anthony and he is the ball player he is rated to be. "Florida is a football state," he said. "They are not a basketball state. They take football serious and not basketball."

Roy says he hopes Kentucky doesn't redshirt Jeff Sheppard. "They're going to need him this season," said Ratliff. "(Jared) Prickett may help them some. He just can't score underneath the basket. He is a good rebounder, though."

Ratliff says he likes Ryan Hogan of Illinois. "I believe he will make UK a good three-point shooter," the former Martin Purple Flash said. "He may not be as good as his uncle, Kevin Grevey, but I think he will be a good one."

UK will officially begin basketball practice on October 15 with Big Blue Madness set for October 18.

Tall Canadian Jamal Maglorie is expected to fill the middle for the Wildcats this year, but Ratliff thinks he may be able to help late in the season.

"Around February," says Ratliff. "He will have to learn the game at UK. I look for (Nazir) Mohammad to see more playing time."

Why all the talk about UK basketball? Anything to forget the dismal football season we have had to suffer through.

DAVY?

Now didn't Baltimore Orioles manager Davy Johnson once manage the Cincinnati Reds? If it wasn't for Roberto Alomar, I would cheer for the Orioles. But the joker is getting away with what others have had to pay for in the past. Sorry, Davy!

LEYLAND...

I just knew the Cincinnati Reds were going to sign Jim Leyland, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Boy, was I glad when he put on the Reds' hat for the news media as Marge announced (?) that she was making a change in managers. Leyland would be her man, and he would take the Reds to greater heights next year.

Then I woke up and realized waking up was the worst part, the Reds still have Ray Knight as their manager.

DON'T FORGET...

Two county youth basketball leagues will be holding signups this Sunday. Betsy Layne will conduct theirs at the high school on the hill from 2-5 p.m. This will be the final date to register.

Also, the Prestonsburg Basketball League will hold their signups at Adams Middle School from 2-5 p.m. Sunday.

CAMERAS ROLLING...

The Inter Mountain Cable Network will be rolling its cameras at Betsy Layne this Friday night and will replay the game until 10 p.m. Friday night. Phelps will visit the Bobcats for Senior Night.

Hindman, Plague, Crush win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Last Saturday was cool in its beginning but, once the fog burned off and allowed the sun to break through, things warmed up for soccer at the Prestonsburg Community College grounds.

A good number of fans turned out on this cool day but the action on the field kept them from thinking about the cooler weather.

In the first game, The Plague defeated the Boomerangs. Game two saw the Hindman Campus Kids move past the Pikeville Pursuit and in the Under-16 division, Prestonsburg lost to Hindman. The Orange Crush defeated the Horde by a 3-1 score.

Chase Brown, Tyler Burke and Jameson Alford scored for the Crush, while Matt Francis had the lone goal for the Horde.

Orange Crush Coach Wayne Taylor cited the improved play of Ali Meyer and Sarah Recktenwald as reasons for the effort and hustle of his team.

In soccer play at Pikeville's Bob Amos Park, the Pikeville Ravens posted a 4-0 shutout of the Steelers.

One make-up game was played last Tuesday, October 8, at the PCC field. The Orange Crush turned in a tremendous performance for a 3-1 win against the Pikeville Pursuit.

Coach Taylor said, "Our team just gets better every week, and the kids grow to understand the game and how to struggle together."

Tyler Burke scored two goals for the winning Crushes and Chase Brown had one. Coach Taylor praised the clutch-goalkeeper play and saves by Austin May and Drew Hilton.

A soccer day

The day was sunny and the players were in gear as the Floyd County Youth Soccer League headed toward its final weeks of the season. The league plays each Saturday at the Prestonsburg Community College grounds.

Lil' Rebels come from behind to win over Allen 14-13 on late extra point

With no time left, Ellis' kick nips Eagles

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was homecoming at Allen Elementary last Tuesday night under some very comfortable football conditions as a huge crowd turned out for the special evening of gaiety along with all the pomp and pageantry.

But it was Jonathan Ellis who put a damper on the conclusion of the evening when he kicked an extra point that gave the Allen Central Lil'

Rebels a 14-13 win over the Eagles.

The final seconds of the game unfolded when Allen Central had taken over the football at mid field following a touchdown by Allen that gave them a 13-6 lead with only 40 seconds remaining to be played.

On a third-and-ten play, Allen Central quarterback Larry Mullins scampered 34 yards before being brought down at the Eagles' 16-yard line for a Lil' Reb first down. With the clock running, Mullins, facing a second and long, hit Brandon Sizemore in the flats for a 9-yard pickup at the Allen 7-yard line. Only five seconds showed on the scoreboard when Mullins stood in the pocket and hit Ellis with a pass just as the clock expired. But the play continued, and Ellis went into the end zone to make it a 13-12 game, Allen.

With no time to play, and Allen Central kicking the extra point (which is two points in grade school, the ball split the uprights and the Lil' Rebels came away with a hard-fought victory over a good Allen team.

Ellis had missed an earlier, similar extra point back in the first quarter when the Lil' Rebs scored on their first series of plays. Mullins hit Patrick Martin with a 20-yard pass play, and Martin ran the final six yards for a touchdown that gave Allen Central a 6-0 lead. Ellis' extra-point attempt was wide to the right.

Fullback D.J. Hoover rushed for 27 yards on the drive that took six plays and covered 64 yards.

In the second quarter, the Allen defense held the Lil' Rebs, stopping them at the Eagle 21 where Allen took over the football. Coach Jack Goodman's club kept the ball on the ground, grinding it out to the Allen Central 1-yard line. Quarterback Jacob Fitzpatrick plunged across the goal line from the one to tie the game at 6.

A 22-yard run by Fitzpatrick late in the fourth quarter set up the second Allen score. The Eagles took control of the football at their own 39-yard line. But, behind the running of Fitzpatrick and Jesse Woods, Allen moved to the Rebels' one where Fitzpatrick scored and the extra point made it a 13-6 game.

Allen rushed for 183 yards for the game to Allen Central's 124. The Eagles did not have any yards passing while Mullins passed for 50 yards for the Lil' Rebs. Martin caught four passes for 41 yards. Sizemore had the one for nine yards.

D.J. Hoover rushed for 96 yards, with Mullins carrying the football for 40 yards.

Fitzpatrick had 92 yards rushing, with Woods rushing for 58 yards. Michael Campbell had 26 yards rushing.

"B" TEAM

The Allen Eagles won the "B" team game 18-6 over Allen Central. Nick Clay scored two touchdowns for the Eagles, while quarterback Alex Patton hit Shannon Moore with a pass completion to account for the Lil' Rebs' only touchdown.

Matt Setzer gave Allen the 6-0 lead on a 12-yard run in the first quarter. Clay galloped 48 yards in the second period for a 12-0 game, and Clay then scored on a 65 yard carry to make it 18-0.

Patton found Moore for a 4-yard completion in the fourth period to make it an 18-6 game.

Allen Central improved to 6-2 on the season while Allen dropped to 5-3. Allen Central travels to Betsy Layne Tuesday night and Allen plays at Paintsville next Thursday.

Derossett to miss Powell County game as Prestonsburg searches for running back

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Prestonsburg coach John Derossett will miss his first game as the Blackcats' head coach, and it will not be because he wants it that way. Derossett was given a one-game suspension after being ejected from last week's game with Breathitt County, bringing an automatic one-game suspension.

"The official thought I cursed him," said Derossett, "but I didn't. There were people standing right there, and they can tell you that I didn't curse the official."

The Prestonsburg coach appealed his suspension by appearing in front of Julian Tackett, KHSAA official, this past Tuesday, but found no sympathy in Lexington.

"No. They give you that 'you can appeal it, but it won't do you no good.' They did their own court and own trial. But I do appreciate Julian talking to me about it."

Derossett went to Lexington with his own highlight film on officiating.

"They thought at first it was sour grapes on my part because we got beat so bad," said Derossett. "But after they saw the tape they changed their minds."

Derossett said the players are the ones who are short-changed in such an officiated game.

"It's hard to ask a kid to work as hard as we ask him to, and then go out there and not let the kids decide it. That's any game. The less flags you see, the less the referees are involved."

"I can see if it is a face mask. I can see if it is a clipping. I can see if it is a personal injury thing, but when you throw flags after the ball has gone and you look around and you don't find anything, that is what I question."

"We throw the slant pass to Jeremy Caudill, the senior, and they throw the ball back three yards. Well, that brought up a fourth and inches for us that we did make. One official spotted the ball one place and another waved it back more."

Still the Blackcat mentor will have to watch from a distance as his team takes on an improved Powell County team next Friday night.

"Powell County is doing a good job," said Derossett. "They will really get after us. I won't be down there, and it will be Tommy Poe, James Derossett and Jackie Day Crisp who are going to have to pick it up for us. All our coaches need to work and bring home a victory for us."

While Prestonsburg has the suspension woe, the team collective will miss the service of senior tailback Jon Morris, who went out with an injury before halftime last Friday night.

"I don't know what to say about Jon," said Coach Derossett. "I still have a lot of trouble with it, personally. You look at Jon, and I go to church down there, and I know I'm no fine person, but he is. I never heard Jon say a foul word. I've

Week 7... Prestonsburg takes break; Raiders in need of win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The high school football season is on the downswing as the regular season is only four weeks away from closing. Play-off hopes for three county teams are slim to none, while Prestonsburg, play-off bound, will look for a replacement for Jon Morris.

South Floyd needs a big win at home tonight against Hazard (4-2). Betsy Layne (2-4) is even in the district and must pull off an upset in one of the two remaining games against Whitesburg or Breathitt County. Allen Central (2-4) has three district losses already with two to play.

MCCREARY CENTRAL AT ALLEN CENTRAL

The Rebels have dropped three district games, two of which they were favored to win, and will step out of the district tonight as they host McCreary Central (2-4) in their final home game of the season.

Rebel fans are scratching their heads wondering what has happened to the Rebs, who were picked to make their second consecutive play-off appearance.

Allen Central dropped a tough one last Friday night to county foe Betsy Layne, 6-0, but needs to refocus and must use tonight's game to get back in the trenches and do some good things they did earlier in the season.

McCreary Central is not competing for a district title and really has nothing to lose but to come out and play smash-mouth football.

The Reeves boys, Josh and Gordon, had to carry the football team the last three weeks after injuries in the team started taking a toll on the program. Loss of other players by other means has not helped any, either.

Craig Crase and Mike Goble have picked up their game and are making a big contribution to the offense, but the line is still not giving quarterback Shane Blackburn ample throwing time.

Thomas Jenkins and Beau Tackett, along with Mark Varney, continue to be missing. Jenkins and Tackett were a big part of the Rebels' offense. Tackett played only one game before injuring his hand again. He and Jenkins are out for the season.

HELPS AT BETSY LAYNE

This could be a good one. Both teams are evenly matched, but senior night and Betsy Layne coming off a big emotional win over Allen Central last Friday could be all the boost the Bobcats need for win number three.

The Betsy Layne defense has certainly come of age the past three weeks and with the numbers the Bobcats have, every player is playing hard each time out.

Coach Randall Hager has done a great job at Betsy Layne, and his team is playing better each time out. Look for the Bobcats to be ready tonight using the next two games as readying games for the final two-week plunge into the regular season.

Betsy Layne is aware of the importance of the final two games with Whitesburg and Breathitt County. There is not room for a tie for the fourth play-off spot. Powell County seems certain to be there with a win over Morgan County in the season finale. So, that makes it imperative for Betsy Layne to sweep its final two games.

Sophomore quarterback Tyler Puckett certainly does not look like the one who started the season for Betsy Layne. He learned as the season went on and it shows. He seems to read the defense better and makes good calls on the line.

Craig Hamilton has never changed and continues to be one of the region's hardest players and runners. Hamilton has rushed for 651 yards this season and has a good shot at 1,000 for the year. He has scored six touchdowns this season.

Eric Cecil has been a pleasant surprise in the backfield for Betsy Layne as well as Tim Koger, who started the year strictly on defense.

Shawn Keathley, Darren Reynolds, and Koger have led the defense.

The game will be carried on taped delay by WPRG-TV, Channel 5 at 10 p.m. Friday night.

HAZARD AT SOUTH FLOYD

In need of a big win. That's where the South Floyd Raiders will find themselves when Hazard (4-2) visits the Brackett Field at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Donnie Daniels knows the strength of this Bulldog team, especially in quarterback Ronnie Grigsby.

"We need a win over Hazard in the worse way," the South Floyd mentor said. "We really have to play a good game in order to win. I feel we are capable of beating them."

The Raiders are 1-3 in the district standings and 3-3 overall. Elkhorn City and Fleming-Neon separate the Raiders from fourth place in the standings. A win over Hazard and a victory over Elkhorn City, season finale, would give the Raiders a 3-3 record in district play and a possible berth in the playoffs. Much will depend on the running of Ketrin Mays against one of the top defenses the Raiders will face. Mays had amassed 720 yards this season with four games to play. The junior tailback has missed one game this season, but still has a shot at a 1,000-yard year.

Mays has scored seven touchdowns for the Raiders and one conversion play.

Junior quarterback Nick Compton has completed 44 passes for 528 yards passing through six games. But he experienced his worst night out against Jenkins last Friday night, completing only three passes.

The offense received a shot in the arm with the emergence of Jonathan Paige as a ball carrier. Paige rushed for 104 yards against Jenkins last week.

"Hazard has two good defensive ends," said Coach Daniels. "(Ronnie) Grigsby is a very good athlete and good football player. Hopefully, our defense will play well. We're going to try and do some different things. We will be moving on the field."

Plenty of room

Allen quarterback Jacob Fitzpatrick (33) went on a sweep against Allen Central Tuesday night in grade school football play at Allen. It was homecoming night and Fitzpatrick was named "Mr. Eagle" at the ceremonies. (photo by Ed Taylor) never seen him lose his temper. He's got an easy-going personality. He's always a happy-go-lucky person.

"It's just sometimes hard to figure out. The things Jon has had to bear in his life and that have happened to him, and he was playing so great at that point."

While the Prestonsburg coach was dealing with the injury, he also realized it could have been worse for Morris.

"Jason Spencer sort of summed it up, saying, 'Well coach, he could have gone another step or two and been paralyzed.' So, I guess something worse could have happened. I really hated it for Jon. He has over 800 yards in five games. It's been hard for me to deal with on the personal level, to see a good human person such as Jon get hurt like that."

Coach Derossett said that the search for someone to take up the slack will have to come from a quintet of players.

"We will go to our sophomores and a couple of seniors," he said. "We have Grant Castle and John Ortega who have every bit the ability in the world as Jon. They have every bit the strength and speed. They are just going have to pick it up and do it."

"We have Brian Jones, who is very capable. We have Matt Lafferty and we have Jason Blackburn. Out of that five, we have to find someone to make that 200-yards rushing a night. We played Allen Central and Betsy Layne, and I'm telling you, we don't win those games without Jon. He ran for 253 yards at Allen Central and nobody else acts like they want the ball. We have to find someone to fill Jon's shoes."

Derossett said he has scheduled some JV games to help his sophomores to ready themselves. He is hoping that Jones and Ortega can show the same form they did in game one.

"The pressure is back on them again," said Derossett. "Morris is gone. It's like I told these kids, you can't replace a Jon Morris, but a good program will find somebody to step in and keep the team on the winning edge."

Prestonsburg will throw the football more in the final three games, according to their coach.

"Mike Castle is capable of being a great quarterback and he is," said Derossett. "I believe in him. We have some people who are very athletic. At Breathitt County, you saw Jeremy Caudill (senior) make some athletic catches. He's got some speed. We have to get the ball in his hands, as well as in Ortega's hands. "Gavin Hale played a great game for us last Friday night. He made a great catch for our only touchdown. Who would have thought I would call that on a fourth-and-two? I really opened it up. But Gavin played tremendously for us.

"We had talked all week long of rotating our left defensive end. That was our game plan going in. Let's keep a fresh left end in. But the way Gavin was playing it was rough rotating him. He and Ricky (Johnson) did a real good job with the Collins kid."

Derossett like the way his team stacked up against Breathitt County last week.

"We went nose-to-nose with them for three quarters," he said. "At halftime we could have been elected mayor and to the city council of Prestonsburg. We got back on the bus and nobody hardly would buy us a hamburger. You can go from feast to famine in 24 minutes. Our players understand that."

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of Columbia Lake Cumberland Home Health on November 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 14, 1996. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether accreditation should be awarded to, or retained by, the organization.

Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about this organization's conformity with the standards of the Joint Commission may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance and accuracy, and the findings will be included in the survey report. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be received by the Joint Commission at least two working days before the survey begins. Such requests should be addressed to:

Scheduling Department
Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations
One Renaissance Boulevard
Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time, and place of the meeting.

This notice is posted in accordance with the Joint Commission's requirements and may not be removed before the date of the survey.

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.093, notice is hereby given that Maple Ridge Mining Corporation, P.O. Box 219, Harold, Kentucky 41635, has applied for Phase III Bond Release on Permit Number 836-5006 which was last issued on November 10, 1994. The application covers an area of approximately 3.40 acres located 0.75 mile south of Honaker in Floyd County.

The permit area is approximately 0.60 mile northeast from KY 2030's junction with Trace Fork Road and located 0.25 mile southeast of Spruce Pine School. The latitude is 37° 30' 46" and the longitude is 82° 40' 44".

The bond now in effect for this permit is certificates of deposit in the amount of three thousand, one hundred dollars ($3,100). Approximately one hundred percent (100%) of the original bond amount of $20,900 is included in this application for release.

Reclamation work performed includes: establishment of post-mining land use.

Written comments, objections, and requests for a public hearing or informal conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, KY 40601 by November 17, 1996.

A public hearing on the application has been scheduled for Tuesday, November 19, 1996 at 9:00 a.m. at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 2705 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653-1455. This hearing will be canceled if no request for a hearing or informal conference is received by November 17, 1996.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Pursuant to Application No. 836-5314, Renewal

In accordance with KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Matt/Co., Inc., 432 Meadows Branch, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, has applied for a renewal of a permit for a coal processing facility affecting 180.63 acres located 0.5 mile south of Osborn in Floyd County.

The proposed facility is approximately 4.5 miles southeast from KY Route 1426's junction with KY Route 979 and located on Toler Creek. The latitude is 37° 28' 15" and the longitude is 82° 36' 49".

The proposed facility is located on the Pikeville U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area is owned by Ned Bush and G.C. Stevens.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 2705 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653-1410.
