PTA chief charged with sex crimes

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County woman, who was the PTA president at Auxier Elementary and honored during the last graduation at the school, was arrested Tuesday and charged with giving two grade school students alcohol and having sex with them during a party at a local motel.

Yavonda Lazar, 28, of Auxier, is charged with two counts of third degree rape, third degree sodomy, two counts of third degree sexual abuse, and three counts of unlawful transaction with a minor.

Court records say that Lazar had oral sex and intercourse with a 14-year-old on June 9, and sexual intercourse with a 15-year-old on June 8 and 9. The charges say that Lazar also supplied alcoholic beverages to the juveniles.

Lazar entered a not guilty plea at her arraignment Wednesday in Floyd District Court. A $15,000 cash bond was set and she remains lodged in the Floyd County Jail. District Judge James Allen set a preliminary hearing for Wednesday at 2:30 p.m.

Auxier PTA members held a special meeting within days of the alleged incidents and asked for Lazar's resignation. The PTA voted at that meeting to oust Lazar and Sharon Collins was named as the new president.

Floyd County schools interim superintendent Mike King said this week that district officials reported the allegations to state police after a complaint was received at the central office. He declined to comment further citing the sensitive nature of the investigation, but he did say the complaint involved grade school students.

Lazar was honored by school officials during the school's last eighth grade graduation for her work as PTA president at the school.

The alleged incidents reportedly occurred at a rented cabin at Jenny Wiley State Park. Reportedly there were seven adults at that party and nine children, including five students from Auxier Elementary. Some of the adults at the party were reportedly parents of some students at the grade school.

State police detective Bobby Johnson confirmed this week that an investigation was underway into allegations that an adult woman had had sexual contact with minors at a "Prestonsburg motel." He said the complaint was received "a couple of weeks ago."

The detective said that the case will be taken before a Floyd County grand jury "pretty soon."
The investigation is continuing.

Court renews bond for track

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Floyd County officials have agreed to renew a $2.7 million bond for property at ThunderRidge to ensure the county will not have to come up with the money, at least for now.

The Floyd County Public Properties Corporation met in special session Wednesday and recommended Floyd Judge-Executive Ben Hale begin negotiations with Fifth Third Bank to renew the bond.

Shortly after that meeting, the fiscal court members, who are also on the public properties corporation, accepted the recommendation and authorized the negotiations to renew the bond.

The five-year bond was due Wednesday, as well as the interest payment on the note.

The bond was obtained by the county for property located at ThunderRidge. The property consists of the grandstands and parking lot at the racetrack.

Appalachian Racing Inc., owner of ThunderRidge, has leased the county-owned property for approximately $66,000 every six months — the amount of interest on the bond.

Court members have been concerned about the financial impact the county would have to face if it went into default on the bond.

Magistrate Jackie Owens suggested officials look into borrowing the money locally to pay off the Fifth Third Bank. "I feel like we'd be better off with a bank up here in Eastern Kentucky," he said. "I think they may be more understanding with the situation."

Floyd County has been on the hook for the bond from day one, and the current set up with Appalachian Racing's lease agreement will keep the county obligated for the amount if changes aren't made.

Hale said Wednesday that the original agreement was that the county could sell the bonds after five years, but Appalachian Racing Inc. does not think it is a good time to sell them.

"They have indicated to us they felt it was not a good time to sell the bonds," the judge-executive said.

Magistrates Owens and Elmer Johnson agreed to renew the bond, on the condition that it is for one year only.

"One or five years, it makes no difference," Hale said. "We are going to go to work (to resolve the situation) immediately."

During the court's regular meeting last month, Hale indicated there may be a conflict of interest with the racetrack owner also being the bond agent.

"We're not getting good sound advice," he said about the owner and agent.

Court members have suggested a new lease agreement be considered with Appalachian Racing Inc. after the old one expires.

Officials have said the new agreement would most likely include the interest amount and a lump sum to go toward the princi-

Festivities underway

Turnout was moderate Wednesday at the James H. Drew Exposition at Archer Park in Prestonsburg. Carnival goers had to wade the mud after weeks of heavy rainfall in the area. Adults and children alike took a doubletake when they saw the little fellow, pictured at left, running out to them begging for coins. The carnival will be at the park throughout the July 4th holiday. Price enters guilty pleas in separate sex abuse cases

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A 50-year-old Floyd County man pleaded guilty June 23 to sex abuse charges stemming from separate incidents which happened in 1979, and between 1980 and 84.

William Price, who has been lodged in the Floyd County Jail after being extradited from Texas last year, entered the guilty plea on charges of first degree sexual abuse and third degree sodomy. Price also pleaded guilty to identical charges handed down in 1993 by a Floyd County Grand Jury.

In the plea agreement, prosecutors recommended a five-year prison sentence on each count which is to run concurrent. The commonwealth also requested that Price be given credit for approximately nine months he has served in jail since his arrest. Prosecutors also recommended that the remainder of the sentence be probated for five years.

The victims of the crimes were in the courtroom Tuesday and were in favor of the plea agreement.

Price agreed to have his prison time probated for a total of 10 years and he is to have no contact with the victims or their families. Price also has to register with state officials as a convicted sex offender.

Price was indicted on the charges in 1993 for the acts occurring between 1980 and 84. A grand jury indicted him in March for the 1979 acts.

Last September, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and Deputy Charlie Thompson transported Price to Floyd County from Texas City, Texas. Texas authorities arrested Price on a fugitive warrant.

Note: The Floyd County Times does not identify victims of sex crimes.

Blood drive begins July 10

It's that time of year again when families make preparations for vacations and road trips and, no matter how much planning is done, they always feel like they've forgotten something.

If they're among the 95 percent of the American population who are not blood donors, Central Kentucky Blood Center representative Mickey Bowling says they have failed to make one of the most important preparations before hitting the roads.

Bowling says that although only 5 percent of the public donates blood, even fewer take the initiative to visit their local centers during the summer.

"It's an important time for people to continue supporting blood banks," Bowling said Wednesday. "This is the time we really need it."

He explained that with families vacationing, there are more motorists on the highways and, consequently, more accidents.

Faculty mourns deaths

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

The tragic drowning incident that claimed the lives of two educators and two youths Saturday near Jackson touched home this week as Prestonsburg Community College mourned the deaths of college officials' family members.

A grief counseling program and memorial fund were implemented at PCC this week as a result of the drowning deaths of Hazard Community College educators Francis Kaikumba and Raymond Kuezi-nke; and Nginyw Simtangue, 14, and Chandra Sifukwe Simpungwe, 13.

PCC's Dean of Student Affairs, Sandra Kaikumba, and Director of Planning and Research, Marjorie Kuezi-nke, were the wives of the adult victims.

The teens were the nephews of Marjorie Kuezi-nke.

"The deaths of these two respected colleagues and the nephews are a tremendous blow for their wives, parents and children and a deep loss for their professional colleagues and family as well," a PCC news release says.

The college's flags are being flown at half-mast in memory of the victims.

On Tuesday, a Mountain Comprehensive Care Center representative facilitated a grief counseling session for PCC students and employees.

The session was followed by a recognition and reflection service to celebrate the lives of Drs. Kaikumba and Kuezi-nke in the Johnson Administration Building.

"Friends and colleagues of Dean Kaikumba and Mrs. Kuezi-nke shared verbal snapshots of memories of their husbands," the release says.

Second Pike County resident killed within two-day period

The stabbing death of a Pikeville woman Tuesday night marked the second murder in Pike County within 48 hours.

Mickie Shawn Fronto, 28, of Justice Court in Pikeville, was pronounced dead at a local hospital after she was stabbed several times during an apparent domestic-related incident.

Fronto's death followed less than two days after Timothy R. Sanders, 37, of Elkhorn City, was shot to death at a Harolds Branch Road residence.

According to a media release from the Pikeville Police Department, officers Kevin Belcher and Eddie Sword responded to Fronto's home shortly before midnight Tuesday after the city's received a 911 call of a complaint that man and woman were fighting at the residence.

Officers Belcher and Sword discovered Fronto "lying on the floor with multiple stab wounds" when they arrived on the scene, the release says.

Fronto was transported to Pikeville Methodist Hospital by the fire department's EMS ambulance.

She was later pronounced dead.

Charles F. Layne, who apparently lived at the same residence, was arrested at the scene and lodged in the Pike County Detention Center on murder and domestic violence charges.

Layne was arraigned Thursday in Pike District Court. He is being held at the jail in lieu of a $1 million cash bond.

In Sanders' death, 46-year-old Danny Carr was charged with murder early Monday morning after he allegedly shot Sanders three times in the chest.

Carr is being held at the Pike County Detention Center in lieu of a $500,000 cash bond. He is reportedly claiming self-defense in the shooting of Sanders.

The Pikeville Police Department is continuing to investigate both murder incidents. — Staff report

High school seniors receive scholarships

Seventy-five Kentucky high school seniors recently received $1000 SuperAmerica scholarship awards. Two local recipients include Karen Wallen and Letisha Yates of Allen Central High School.

"We are extremely proud of these young men and women," said SuperAmerica President John F. Pettus. "We had more than 800 outstanding applicants, and our 75 recipients represent some of the best in the Commonwealth."

This is the second year

SuperAmerica has awarded the scholarships in Kentucky. Recipients were selected based on academic achievement, school and community involvement, counselor recommendations and work experience.

Speedway SuperAmerica LLC is a leader in the gasoline and convenience store industry. As a subsidiary of Marathon Ashland Petroleum LLC, it owns and operates more than 2,300 stores and gasoline outlets in 19 states.

Drive

The Central Kentucky Blood Center has established an annual Summer Drive to help assist with the shortage during the summer months.

The first of the three opportunities Floyd County residents will have to donate blood will be Friday, July 10, at the Family Health Center in Bypro.

Bowling said a bloodmobile will arrive in the area early that morning and go to Otter Creek Correctional Center. From 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., the bloodmobile will be located at the health center.

"The Central Kentucky Blood Center requires 250 units of blood daily to meet the needs of patients in area hospitals," a press release says. Those donating blood will receive a free t-shirt.

Later in the month, the bloodmobile will travel to Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg for the second event of the Summer Drive. That drive will be held on July 23.

On August 8, the Central Kentucky Blood Center will host a Day In The Park at Archer Park to conclude the Summer Drive.

Bowling also noted that if any of the locations and times were not convenient for area residents, they can donate blood throughout the week at the Prestonsburg blood center, located on the second floor of city hall.

For information the blood drives, Bowling can be contacted at (606) 439-2173.

Pikeville College receives grant

Pikeville College recently received a $30,000 grant from The Charlotte W. Newcombe Foundation of Princeton, New Jersey.

In addition, the Newcombe Foundation has announced grants totaling $400,000 to provide Newcombe Scholarships at 14 institutions of higher education which are related to the Presbyterian Church (USA).

The college selected serve populations of minority and/or economically disadvantaged students, and have limited resources available for scholarship aid. In the 18 years of funding, the Newcombe Foundation has awarded more than $5 million in this program to Presbyterian Colleges.

ple amount of the bond. Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley said last month that, with the current situation, the principal amount of the bond has not decreased in the last five years because of the agreement.

Between the special meetings Wednesday, court members expressed frustration that track owners were reducing their own debt, but was not paying toward the county's liability.

Hale could not be contacted Thursday to determine if the county has been reimbursed by Appalachian Racing Inc. for the interest payment on bond.

Magistrate Gerald DeRossett and treasurer David Allen were not present at either of Wednesday's special meetings.

Deaths

Floyd spoke during the service to encourage the community to support the families during their losses.

"I have confidence that our college and community will wrap our arms of love around (those grieving) as they come home to our community following their tragic accident," Dr. Floyd said.

Kuezi-nke is survived by his wife and three minor children. His family is planning to relocate to Prestonsburg.

Kaikumba is survived by his wife, seven children and three grandchildren.

A trust fund is being established at First Commonwealth Bank in Prestonsburg. Donations may be sent to the bank or college in the name of "Kaikumba/Kuezi-nke Trust Fund."

Septic tank maintenance, care important

Taking care of a septic tank is not going to be on the top 10 favorite things homeowners like to do, but it is an important public health and environmental issue.

A malfunctioning or failed septic tank is not only inconvenient and costly, but can lead to unsanitary conditions such as raw sewage on the ground or contaminated well water. As a result, water-borne illnesses, including cholera can result.

The Kentucky Department for Public Health has written an informational guide called Kentucky Public Health Homeowner's Manual Onsite Sewage Disposal Systems that is available free to the public at local health departments.

"Preventing septic tank failures is an important public health and homeowner issue. Many people spend good money building a proper septic system and then accidentally do things that cause it to fail," said Kentucky Department for Public Health Commissioner Rice C. Leach, M.D.

Preventive maintenance and proper use are two things that homeowners can do to keep their septic tank functioning properly.

"Preventive maintenance will extend the life of your septic tank," said Mark Hooks with the department's Environmental Health and Community Safety Division. "Don't wait until your septic tank fails, to pump it. That's like waiting to change the oil in your car until after the engine blows up."

Hooks recommends pumping a septic tank every three years, learning how to care for the tank and restricting what you put into the tank.

"One of the most common mistakes that people make regarding their septic tanks is to put household chemicals, fluids from automobiles and items that plug up the system into the tank. Septic tanks are not built for those items and eventually that causes the system to fail," Hooks said.

The following is a list of 10 tips from public health officials that will help homeowners live in harmony with their septic tanks.

- Put grease, fats and oils in containers and then place them in the garbage, not down the drain.
- If you have a garbage disposal, put the meat bones, coffee grounds and things that don't rot easily in the garbage, not down the drain.

- Paints and household chemicals do not belong in the drain. Bleach and other household cleaners are can be used in moderation.

- Septic tanks are for people not for automobiles. Keep gas, oil, grease, antifreeze, transmission fluid and brake fluid out of the septic system.

- Your septic system needs helpful bacteria to work properly. These bacteria live in septic tanks and the lateral field. Don't kill them by putting pesticides or herbicides or other poisons down the drain.

- Cigarette butts, disposable diapers and feminine hygiene products are not biodegradable and will plug up your septic system. Don't flush them into the system.

- Too much waste water floods the system, so avoid running the water while washing dishes by hand and thawing frozen food. Also, check and repair leaking faucets and toilets promptly.

- Avoid water overload by running full loads in dishwashers and clothes washers.

- Septic tanks will start by themselves and operate properly without chemical help, so don't add chemicals that could harm the septic tank or the underground water. Biological additives are also not necessary.

- Foundation footing pumps, floor drains, sump pumps and gutter down spouts overload septic systems. Don't connect them to your on-site waste system.

If you have problems with your septic system, employ qualified professionals to fix it. Use a state certified septic system installer to make repairs. For additional information, contact your local health department environmental office.

Online auctions: going, going, gone

If you're looking for a hot collectible or simply a good deal, online auctions may appeal to you. But before you place a cyber-bid, consider how online auction houses work. Like a traditional "live" auction, the highest bidder "wins." That's where the similarity ends. Because an online auction house doesn't have the merchandise, the highest bidder deals directly with the seller to complete the sale.

If you're the highest bidder, the seller typically will contact you by e-mail to arrange for payment and delivery. Most sellers accept credit cards, or use a third-party escrow agent to collect your payment, the product you're buying, and process delivery of each. Be cautious, however, if the seller asks you to pay by certified check or money order.

Some online sellers have put items up for auction, taken the highest bidder's money, and never delivered the merchandise. What's more, consumers who paid by certified check or money order had little recourse when it came to getting their money back.

Follow these tips before you bid in an online auction:

- Try to pay by credit card. If you don't get the merchandise, you can challenge the charges with your credit card issuer.

- Ask about using an escrow agent, or paying by COD. Most escrow service charge a fee, so you may want to consider this option only for larger purchases.

- Verify the seller's identity. If you can't, consider this a red flag and avoid doing business with the seller. Some sellers may use a forged e-mail header, making it impossible to contact them if you need to.

- Ask how you'll get follow up service, if you need it. Many sellers don't have the expertise or facilities to provide service for the goods they sell. Is this important to you?

- Avoid impulse bids and purchases. Online auctions may be enticing, but are you really getting the best price?

- Ask about return policies. Returning merchandise to an online seller may be difficult.

Centre graduates

Two Prestonsburg residents, Bill Bottoms and Tonia Hale, received bachelor's degrees from Centre College during recent Commencement exercises on the campus. They were among 186 members of the college's class of 1998.

Bottoms majored in English. While at Centre, he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is the son of William and Jenny Bottoms, and is a 1993 graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

Hale, 1994 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, completed a bachelor of science degree in psychology. While at Centre, she was active in Kappa Kappa Theta sorority and was a volunteer with CARE, a campus service group. She studied for a term in London, England, and was in the Brown Scholars leadership program.

She is the daughter of Durward and Bonnie Hale.

Her hobbies include cheerleading, track and art. She plans to go to college and join the military.

Pocket tree guide available

"What Tree Is That?" a pocket guide for identifying trees, is available from The National Arbor Day Foundation.

The 72-page guide will help you identify 135 different trees found in the eastern and central U.S.

Well-known trees are included: oaks, maples, spruces, and pines. Also species such as horse chestnut and mockernut hickory, sassafras and shadbush, persimmon and paw-paw and pagodatree and pecan.

Dozens of drawings illustrate the trees' leaves or needles and their acorns, berries, seed pods, cones, etc. "What Tree Is That?" is organized to make it easy to identify trees in a simple step-by-step fashion.

Gas prices down from last year

Fourth of July holiday travelers will pay 14-cents less for gasoline than they did a year ago at this time, according to AAA.

AAA's Fuel Gauge Report shows the average national price for a gallon of self-serve unleaded regular gas is $1.10 cents, 14.2-cents lower than last July 4th.

"Creating the moment of a lifetime for critically ill children"

And so, The Dream Factory's mission continues. To provide a little sunshine for little boys and girls whose days and nights are filled with pain, anxiety, uncertainty and sadness. Little boys and girls whose lives begin with such hope and happiness, who are then struck down at a time when their cares should be few and their worlds boundless.

"The Dream Factory was started to fulfill the dream of one little girl," says Charlie Henault. "That little girl, Tammy Keel, and the thousands who followed, are an inspiration to me. Too many of them have passed on, too young to have experienced the joys of life. I know that they look down to us who continue this mission, working each and every day to fulfill these dreams, and whisper, "don't stop, don't stop." As long as I am around, I'll continue to find ways to help others create the moment of a lifetime for these little ones."

Another special part of The Dream Factory philosophy, Charlie's dream, is that more than 90% of all funds raised are used to fulfill dreams for our "dream children." From trips to The Magic Kingdom at Walt Disney World, to the opportunity to meet famous celebrities, to a special pink electric wheelchair or a visit to one of our Camp Rainbows, The Dream Factory calls upon all its resources, financial and human, in "creating the moment of a lifetime."

Floyd politics undercut schools

Students at Harold Elementary School in Floyd County in 1996 scored the fourth highest of any group of Kentucky students on the state's math achievement test.

That's just the start, Harold students ranked eighth on the reading test, seventh on the science test, 10th on the social studies test, 18th on the arts and humanities test and fourth on the writing test.

Now, a question: Should the Harold Elementary School be kept open? Or should it be closed and its students sent to a school that didn't score in the top 25 on any of the state's measures?

Time's up. The real life answer is that Harold Elementary, one of the top 10 best schools in the state, is due to be closed, shuttered this fall to help fill a gaping deficit in the budget of the Floyd County school district.

This is the ultimate in sad mountain stories. The Floyd County school system has been so mismanaged over the years that it will be forced to close some of its best schools. Apathy, mismanagement and corruption have joined to create a school system that eats the best of its young.

The Floyd County board voted last week to close four schools besides Harold and to move older students out of McDowell Elementary. (McDowell is also one of the state's top 10 elementary schools.) The students will be scattered to other schools around the county.

Closing the schools is expected to save money, up to $700,000 a year. Floyd County needs the cash. The district has run a deficit in the last three years. The school system's finances are in such a tangle nobody knows how deeply the district is in debt.

And the school district has bred new schools and classrooms like some kind of construction bunny. New schools have bounded to life at Duff and Prestonsburg and in the southern part of the county. The building contracts were a pleasure to hand out over the last few years—and the board passed them out with glee—but the new classrooms weren't needed. Floyd County now has fewer than 8,000 students and room to house 12,000. A brand-spanking new high school sits half empty. Meanwhile, the county is losing school-age children.

The only solution to the county's long-standing problems is to mothball some schools.

WASHINGTON'S TOBACCO "DEAL" THREATENS SOUTHEASTERN ECONOMY

by Charles Jordan

As Congress and the White House in Washington debate what to do with tobacco, the fate of hundreds of thousands of workers scattered throughout the Southeast hangs in the balance.

There's a lot at stake. Tobacco provides about 200,000 jobs just in farming and manufacturing here in Kentucky and the other tobacco-growing states. Hundreds of thousands of other jobs are supplied in retailing, warehousing and many other direct and non-direct ways.

I wish our elected leaders knew some of these workers and their families as I do. As a banker and businessman, I know that many people are dependent on the golden leaf. It's a broad cross section, ranging from tobacco growers, to farm equipment salesmen, to fertilizer suppliers. And when talk turns to what is going on in our nation's capital, I see the deep concern on their faces.

Most people in Washington don't seem to understand the basic economics of tobacco. I see it every day. Each tobacco dollar turns over seven times in the community, and pays for everything from the family mortgage and the food on tonight's dinner table, to a small savings account for tomorrow's college education. The tobacco dollar earned by grower Jim is passed on to farm equipment salesman Bob, and then gets passed on to Mary at the supermarket and Betty at the local diner before ending up in the collection plate on Sunday morning.

Take that tobacco dollar out of circulation — or a major portion of it — and you've got real trouble not just among tobacco workers, but nearly everyone in the community.

This shouldn't be so hard for our leaders in Washington to understand. Wouldn't California's Congressional delegation have a problem if we proposed to do away with wine vineyards? Would it seem fair to Wisconsin lawmakers if it were proposed that cheese production be severely limited? I wonder if Idaho's politicians would take kindly to a suggestion that their potato fields lie fallow?

Make no mistake about it. These politicians wouldn't allow such action — because it would hurt their region's economy. But these same politicians are proposing to hurt our region's economy. According to a Wall Street analyst, the tax and price increases on tobacco proposed in Washington would result in a pack of cigarettes costing between $4 and $5. At that rate, according to a study I saw by the American Economics Group, we could expect to see a loss of more than 26,000 tobacco grower jobs alone in the Southeast — amounting to an annual loss of $275 million in paychecks. According to the same study, tobacco sector suppliers would lose almost 34,000 jobs in the Southeast; retailers would lose 16,000 jobs. The combined payroll loss for retailers and suppliers would amount to a loss of almost $1.8 billion.

Too difficult to calculate, but a major concern to everyone should be the loss in land and property values. As the owner of four banks in Kentucky, I know this "tobacco solution" in Washington would impede my investment in those banks. And it would simply devastate the tobacco families I know in the communities my bank serves — as it would in many towns and cities throughout the nine-state region.

But what about the reasons given for Washington's attack on tobacco — youth smoking? If America's youth are smoking cigarettes, then let's address the real issues, such as peer pressure, lack of parental guidance and access. Let's not just throw more money — a lot more money — at the government so they can spend it on all their pet projects.

Besides, common sense tells us that if kids can afford $100 sneakers, they are going to find a way to get their hands on cigarettes. A major tax increase will not deter youths from smoking. What it will do is unalterably harm an agricultural product that dates back more than 400 years.

As a close friend in the grower community said recently about Washington's attempt to carve up the tobacco industry, "You can shear a sheep many times, but you can only skin it once."

For the sake of our economy here in the Southeast, let's not let Washington destroy tobacco.

SUPREME COURT DECISION:

MINERS' BENEFITS VIRTUALLY UNHARMED

Debate over the attempts of a, perhaps, guilt-ridden society to compensate those who trade good health to study the nation with coal reached the United States Supreme Court last week.

The justices did deliver a blow to retired and disabled miners but, for the most part, the impact of the blow has been subject to some over-exaggeration.

The law passed by Congress in 1992 to ensure that promised health benefits would be provided to miners or their widows was not declared unconstitutional.

The background of the law is a bit complicated. In the 1930s, the United Mine Workers Association began a hard fight to improve health services provided to miners. This fight eventually led to a nationwide strike, resulting in the federal government taking control of most of the nation's mines and forcing settlement talks between the union and the coal operators.

When control of the coal mines was returned to the coal companies, an agreement was reached. This agreement set up a trust fund from which miners would receive pensions and medical benefits. This fund was to be financed by royalties from coal, paid by each company that entered the agreement.

The agreement was a first step and, as such, was deficient in many respects. The official agreement, the actual document, said that the benefits could be refused at any time, depending upon the "relationship between revenues and expenditures." At some time in the 60s, benefits were reduced by as much as 25 percent. Nonetheless, because the statements made by the coal companies, there remains today a great deal of dispute over the true spirit and terms of that agreement—many believe that miners were entitled to lifetime health benefits.

Over the years, there were a few changes, and a few strikes, but the agreement essentially stayed the same until 1974, when Congress passed a law setting certain guidelines for this type of fund. A new agreement was made to meet the guidelines.

The new agreement broadened the number of potential beneficiaries and was the first to place an actual obligation upon the companies, for as long as they remained in the coal business, to provide health benefits for retired and disabled miners.

So, a large number of companies left the coal business, or hired only non-union miners, and the burden of financing the trust fund grew heavier upon those who stayed, while the fund was amassing a huge deficit. This prompted a new agreement in 1988 that included penalties for coal companies that withdrew from the coal business or went with non-union workers. (Incidentally, this led to the infamous Pittston Coal Strike when Pittston Coal refused to sign the 1988 agreement.)

After one attempt by Congress to solve the fund problem was vetoed by President George Bush, Congress came back with the 1992 Coal Act that was at issue in last week's court decision. This act placed the burden of financing the fund upon companies that signed any of the agreements since the 1978 agreement.

Of those companies, the most recent one to have employed the miner for at least two years would have to provide that miner's benefit through the fund. If none of those companies employed the miner for two years, then the most recent company to have employed the miner would have to pay.

As a third, residual option, if no company that signed the 1978 agreement can be held liable, then whatever company employed the miner the longest, and signed an agreement prior to the 1978 agreement, would have to pay. This third option is how that who sued was put on the hook for benefits.

The company had stopped mining coal in 1965 and signed agreements in 1947 and 1950, but did not sign the agreement in the 70s—the first to place an official obligation on the coal companies to provide benefits.

This is why four of the nine justices on the Supreme Court agreed that the third option vio-

Dental hygiene students graduate from Prestonsburg Community College

Fourteen students, seven of whom graduated with honors, received the Associate in Applied Science Degree in Dental Hygiene from Prestonsburg Community College at the commencement ceremonies held at the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg earlier this spring. Students were also honored with a pinning ceremony in the Pike auditorium on May 5, and were recognized with awards from various companies:

- Terry Poynter, Hu-Friedy Golden Scaler Award;
 - Libby Marcum, Proctor and Gamble Outstanding Senior Dental Hygiene Student Award;
 - Pam Cornett, Colgate Oral Pharmaceuticals Preventive Dentistry Award; and
 - Brenda Patton, Outstanding Senior Dental Hygiene Award.
- Also graduating were Leah Vaughan and Jennifer Hager.
- Dr. Bryan Griffith, a local dentist and PCC adjunct faculty member, was the pinning ceremony speaker and predicted where the fourteen graduates would be in 10 years. Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, president of PCC, congratulated the graduates on their achievements and thanked their families for the support they provided.

Due to their two years of diligent classwork and clinical experience, these students will be providing high-quality dental care for the people within the communities they serve. All fourteen students have passed their Dental Hygiene National Board examination, as well as the Southern Regional Testing Agency examination, which are prerequisites for licensure.

Both 1997 and 1998 Dental Hygiene program graduating classes have a 100 percent pass rate on the National Board exams.

MSU initiates new Phi Kappa Phi members

Jeremy Hall

Four Floyd County residents have been initiated into the Phi Kappa Phi interdisciplinary honor society at Morehead State University.

The students are:

- Rosemary McCoy Armstrong, the wife of Joseph Armstrong of Prestonsburg, is a senior accounting and business administration major. She is a member of Delta Mu Delta.
- Jamie Renee Bartley, the wife of Keith Bartley of Prestonsburg, is a senior elementary education major. She is a member of the Floyd County Democratic Executive Committee, International Reading Association, and Phi Theta Kappa at Prestonsburg Community College.
- Barbara Hale, the daughter of Billy and Berneice Ratliff of Blue River, is a senior majoring in university studies. She has a daughter, Katherine.

• Jeremy Hall, the son of Dale and Marla Hall of Martin, is a senior special education major. Vice president of Kappa Sigma social fraternity, he is a delegate for the Interfraternity Council.

Phi Kappa Phi initiates must be juniors, seniors, alumni and faculty members. To be eligible for membership, juniors must have at least a 3.7 grade point average or higher and seniors must have a 3.6 g.p.a.

lated the Takings Clause of the Constitution, (government can't take property without compensation), only as it was applied to this particular company.

But four other justices said that the original agreement in the 40s did obligate the coal companies to provide benefits even if it wasn't written down on paper so the third option in the statute was not constitutionally applied.

The final justice, the tie-breaker, said the third option was not a violation of the Takings Clause, but it violated another part of the Constitution. When less than five justices decide a case, it is called a plurality. Plurality opinions are only binding on the actual parties to the lawsuit.

Obviously, any case decided by the Supreme Court is important. But this one was decided on very specific facts, and no single part of the Constitution was said to be violated by a majority of the court. Of course, it depends upon how the courts in the future interpret the opinion, but the blow delivered to miners by the Supreme Court might barely be felt.

Politics

There are all kinds of good arguments against consolidating schools. Small schools work better than large ones. There are more opportunities for children to lead the science club or join the cheerleaders. Parents can have a say in their children's education. The outstanding schools at Harold and McDowell testify that small schools can do just as much, be just as good, as the big schools in the cities.

This isn't a story of education theory, however. The closing of award-winning schools in Floyd County is all about the failure of a political culture.

The Floyd County school system is dysfunctional because Floyd County's politics are dysfunctional. The schools are bankrupt because the county's political culture is bankrupt.

Over the last 13 years, the Floyd County schools have run through a dozen superintendents. The state has filed charges against seven school board members. Late last year, the state took over the school district—again.

"It's the system," (attorney) Cliff Latta told (the) Herald-Leader. . . "Our focus the past 25 years has been on building power bases rather than school children."

The new school board members, appointed by the state, have urged Floyd County citizens to get involved in the election of new school officials this fall. There appears to be little interest. At a forum last month, held by the board to gather ideas on how to handle the district's fiscal deficit...no one showed up to voice their concerns to board members."

Is there a lack of leadership in Floyd County? I don't think so. The county has some of the brightest, most committed citizens in the state. The place just doesn't work.

And it's not alone. Knott County is known as the home of Eastern Kentucky's strongest leaders. Yet the county can't seem to hold an untainted election. During the recent primary, a county election official told (a reporter), that she had heard people were buying absentee ballots with "anything they could...money, whiskey, pills, pot." What good is all that leadership if it can't hold a decent vote?

When a starfish loses an arm, it doesn't die. It just grows another. The Floyd County schools won't change until the county's political culture changes—until the starfish dies and the good people of the county create a whole new way of life.

Make safety the concern with fireworks

WEDDINGS  ENGAGEMENTS

No responsible adult would think of allowing children to play with fire, but that's exactly what many parents do without thinking about it on the Fourth of July.

"Some adults may not think of fireworks as dangerous, especially if they're legal ones, but they have the potential to cause serious injuries," Mike Cavanah, with the Kentucky Department for Public Health, said. "Young children should never use fireworks, not even sparklers. Sparklers burn very hot and can easily catch clothing on fire or burn the skin. If older children use fireworks, a responsible adult should supervise them. And never buy or use illegal fireworks."

Kentucky law allows the use of certain Class "C" fireworks, which generally are non-explosive types such as sparklers, snakes, wheels, fountains, certain rocket types and smoke devices.

All legal fireworks have a label with the words, "Common Class C" fireworks, the item's name, instructions, cautions and manufacturer's name. Any fireworks without a clearly printed label containing the maker's name and address and cautions should not be used.

The following are fireworks safety tips:

- Don't hold fireworks in your hand and wait for the fuse to burn to the end.

- Before using fireworks, read and follow all warning instructions printed on the label.

- Light fireworks outdoors in a clear area away from buildings and flammable materials.

- Keep a bucket of water nearby to douse fireworks that are ignited but don't go off.

- Never attempt to relight or handle malfunctioning fireworks.

- Do not make fireworks, even with kits advertised for this purpose.

- Don't throw lit fireworks at another person.

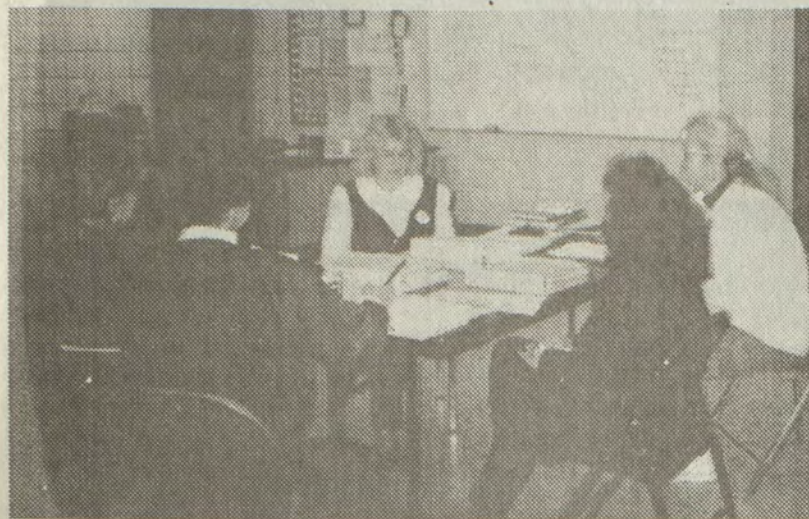

- Don't carry fireworks in your pocket.

- Before lighting, check fireworks for loose fuses since a faulty fuse may prevent the item from lighting properly.

- Light fireworks one at a time and away from other fireworks and people.

- Never light fireworks in a container, especially glass or metal.

- Store used fireworks in a cool, dry place inaccessible to small children.

Jenny Wiley Theatre reaches out to high school students

The Jenny Wiley Theatre production staff took time out of their busy schedule recently to go to Betsy Layne High School and talk to the students about theater and its many faces.

John Barnett (technical director), Charles Foster (master electrician/lighting designer), and Tom Verne (sound engineer) all spoke to the students about their careers and the things that were going on at the theatre.

"I feel it is important that high school students be exposed to all the different careers out there, and we just wanted to represent the entertainment industry," Master Electrician Charles Foster said.

The students heard lots of stories about the staff's experiences, and the things they were hoping to do with their careers. They also had a chance to ask questions and get answers to things involving JWT and the entertainment business as a whole.

"Having people come and talk to us really perks our interest in the theatre. Before this presentation I didn't know if Jenny Wiley Theatre was a quality theater, but after seeing and talking to these talented people who have done so much, it makes me realize how professional Jenny Wiley Theatre really is," said Betsy Layne senior Jessica Handshoe.

Working with schools and generally supporting education is a major part of Jenny Wiley Theatre's overall mission to enrich the regional community through the performing arts. The theatre has conducted numerous programs to further this cause, including a recent production of the play "ZOP" to further education in the performing arts.

Berger named award winner by academy

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Tabitha Berger of Bevensville has been named a United States National Award winner in honor roll, science, and student council.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the academy recognizes fewer than ten percent of all American high school students.

Berger, who attends W.D. Osborne Elementary School, was nominated for this national award by Tammy Meade and Carlotta Jones. She will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

The academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors, and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve,

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Berger of Bevensville. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Caudill of Virgie, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Berger of Bevensville.

American Red Cross gets new office, manager, chapter

A Floyd County native was recently hired as the manager of the Red Cross of the Big Sandy Area.

Martha Music, who has lived in Johnson County for the past 28 years, was hired by the Board of Directors. She previously served the chapter as a full-time volunteer for several months.

The chapter has also relocated to a larger office at 216 West Court Street in the heart of downtown Prestonsburg.

And most recently, the Board of Governors of the National American Red Cross in Washington, D.C. voted to grant full Charter status to the newly formed five-county chapter in May.

In addition to the move and all of the exciting changes taking place for the chapter, Red Cross disaster volunteers were called in to assist families whose homes and lives were disrupted by the effects of three natural disasters. Since the start of this year, disasters have plagued the area — one right after the other.

In February, Pike County was hit hard by a heavy snow storm; Floyd residents suffered from flash flooding in April; and Johnson, Floyd, Martin and Pike counties were swamped by flash flooding in June.

Within two hours of each disaster, trained local Red Cross disaster volunteers, led by board member and disaster chairman Dr. Tim Skeen, (who is also a Floyd County resident), responded to assess the damage and took immediate action to set up a shelter to assist families affected by the devastating storms.

The Big Sandy Area chapter continued helping hundreds of families after the disasters with emergency assistance of food, clothing, shelter and other necessary items.

The Red Cross office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. It also provides services to military families and a wide range of health and safety classes.

The Red Cross is a humanitarian organization led by volunteers. Successful service delivery is dependent upon the willingness of local men and women in each county to be trained to carry out the work of the Red Cross. Anyone interested in learning more about volunteer opportunities with the chapter should call the office at (606) 886-8330.

"GONE FISHING,"
 reads the sign outside of Maytown First Baptist Church in Langley, KY. What! Is this church taking a summer vacation? NO.

ON A FISHIN' MISSION FOR JESUS!

Turns out they're just getting ready for a fun-packed VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL, JULY 5-12, 1998, from 6:00 to 8:30 p.m. daily.

"We're going to catch the Beatitude Attitude," explains Dannette James, VBS Director at Maytown FBC. "That's what it's all about. That and discovering the joy of the Lord is our strength."

"We've packed our tackle boxes full of fun, excitement, great games, creative crafts, and tasty treats. And we might just hook our mascot, Sardinia, for a few fishy visits," she adds.

If you want to sign up for the fishing adventure of a lifetime, come by Maytown FBC on Sunday, July 5, 1998, at 2:00 p.m. for an exciting pre-registration, a presentation by Quality Kids, and lots of refreshments! Or, you can register by calling 285-5131.

HOPE TO SEE YOU THERE!!!!

A TRIBUTE TO DADDY

(Our Father and Everyone's Dad)

The measure of a man by the ruler of life, lives on long after he's gone, Whether honor, dishonor or half-way tones, his record is etched in stone.

This tribute comes from your children, Dad, for what you are, and what you mean;
 With a legacy of childhood memories, from Charollette, Glenda, Audra and Dean.

From Mom's repertoire of memories...how precious to her they are!
 Of a dashing, gallant soldier, marching off to war.

Facing into battle strong, though wounded, pierced by pain,
 You led your men to victory, Dad, and brought some home again.

Distinguished by your country, with medals by the score,
 You loved and served America, for freedom's cause...and more.

You've traveled a road less traveled, than many other men;
 Undaunted by the bends in the road, you faced them down to win.

Wherever your interests led you, Dad, on whatever highway found;
 With a love for Mom and us children...your heart was homeward bound.

Devoted Dad and family man, our home was an open door,
 At dinnertime and in-between, there was always room for more.

In bad times, good times, happy or sad, all the perilous times we shared;
 You rarely expressed in words your love, but you showed how much you cared.

Your wisdom was a beacon, Dad, the wind beneath our wings;
 The real stuff of life, a duty call, and the anchor that loyalty brings.

In our scrapbook of valued memories, among the scenes that bond us together,
 How you loved those who called you Pappaw—Chad, Greg, April, and Heather.

You enriched the lives of others, Dad, by extending a "Helping Hand,"
 You improved our roads, pushed water line plans, for clean water taps across the land.

As doctors were scarce, and far between, the vision for a clinic was born,
 You furnished a house—helped secure a staff;
 Launched the Mud Creek Clinic in 1971.

Each Christmas arrived with special treats for every child on your school bus route,
 They came by the dozens to honor you, Dad, a touching salute to what 'pals' are about.

You were honored, too, by a surprise call from an old comrade in arms,
 It was Senator Dole of the White House staff, recalling wartime scars, and victories won.

The legacy left to your children: Charollette, Glenda, Audra, and Dean.
 Is a scrapbook of valued memories, of up times, down times, and in-between.

We're older now, with wiser hearts, as we look back and share,
 How raindrops turned to rainbows, because our Dad was there.

Another battle was fought and won, a soldier, again, is homeward bound,
 The old account was settled at last, and Daddy's name is written down.

He was husband, Dad, patriot, friend; concerned for the good of neighbors and kin, Beloved by those who knew him best, here walked our Dad...a giant amongst men!

(A Tribute to Homer Hamilton from his children)

ThunderRidge packed them in, but some lose their cool on a hot night

ThunderRidge Track Promoter Brad Martin was a busy individual as he was going to and fro in engineering this past weekend's ThunderRidge 100 that was held over a two-day period.

It was a very hot night Friday as the temperatures had to be close to 100, if not higher. Cars from all over the country rolled in on their magnificent trailers and not so magnificent ones. It was a night that everyone was thinking positive. Everyone was upbeat. But some tempers were getting hot, as well as the weather.

Saturday night saw a record crowd attend the local track, and fans were very excited as they anticipated a battle for the $15,000 purse, the largest at ThunderRidge.

Veteran driver Jackie Boggs put on a show for the record crowd and went home with $15,000 in his pocket. Boggs has been one of the most consistent drivers at ThunderRidge, when he is there.

Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

But it seems the track has reverted back to some bad habits of last year by not getting the show on the road until the sun has gone down, about 9 p.m. That puts fans, drivers and all getting home in the early Saturday morning hours. Saturday night was much the same, as fans did not clear the facility until around 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

Now I can understand, (although I don't think it should have happened), why they would be so late getting started on Saturday. But Friday night?

Brad has had some trials in handling some things this time of the year. While he cannot always please everyone, still the late start on both nights has fans wondering what is happening and who is running the track.

All race season long, fans have been able to exit the track and get home at a very decent hour. But of late, that doesn't seem to be the case.

Now he is having to squabble with the super bomber drivers, as he is threatening to cancel the rest of their season. According to Martin, ThunderRidge is losing money on the class with only eight cars as entrants.

No one can operate and lose money, but I would encourage Brad to let the super bombers run the rest of the race season and make some changes next year. After all, they may not have as much money in their ride as a modified or late model owner, but they do have a rather large investment.

In talking with some of the super bomber drivers, they don't want to go somewhere else and race. They'd rather be loyal to the local facility.

Now I don't know if it is really Brad's call to make regarding the super bomber class. But, whoever the responsibility falls to, then I would encourage them to let the super bombers finish the season and avoid anymore problems.

ThunderRidge will take this weekend off after the classic last weekend. According to Brad, he is wanting to get the Stars in some time in August.

BLUEGRASS STATE GAMES

The Bluegrass State Games will be conducted over two weeks, with the first weekend being July 17-19, and the second July 24-26. Registration is going on now and time is running out.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports! Take the kids to Sunday School and church Sunday!

DISTRICT 7, AREA 2

HAP edges Martin Co. in tourney

by Jason Blanton
Contributing Writer

C.J. Newsome singled in Charlie Justice in the bottom of the sixth inning to give Harold-Allen-Prater a come-from-behind 11-10 victory Wednesday night in the District 7, Area 2 Little League Tournament at the Paul B. Hall Little League Field.

"That's what H-A-P baseball is all about," Coach Mike Jarrell said. "This group didn't quit and got a big win." It was a total team effort tonight. If we want to do good in this tournament, then we'll need our entire team."

H-A-P will face host Paintsville tonight (Friday). Another Floyd County team will also be in action tonight as Prestonsburg will face the winner of last night's Morgan County/Wheelwright game at 6 p.m.

Newsome's hit capped a wild four-run sixth that saw H-A-P get only one hit. Trailing 10-7, H-A-P loaded the bases in the sixth with no one out. Ryan Mitchell knocked in the first run with a walk. Pinch-hitter Jordan Pack was hit by a pitch to get his club to within 10-9 still with the bases filled and no out.

Martin County almost got out of the jam as they cut two runners at the plate to put H-A-P down to its last

Harris remembers ThunderRidge beginnings

Veteran trainer says local track is an excellent place for harness race

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was in 1994 when ThunderRidge harness racing track opened and it opened before it was completed. But Scott Harris, a veteran trainer, owner and seller, said the area was fortunate to have a track the caliber of the local harness racing facility.

"The first time I came to the grounds, I pulled my camper that I live in here on the grounds. I had to stop, get on an end loader and clear out the road in order to get in," Harris recalled.

Those were the early years and Harris has been coming back to Floyd County ever year since.

"I have really enjoyed coming down here," he said. "The fellow who owns the majority of this track is a good friend of mine. He has helped the horsemen an awful lot. He has provided us with a good place to race."

Harris has traveled the circuit for the past 31 years and does not hesitate when comparing ThunderRidge with other tracks.

"This is one of the fastest half-mile tracks in the United States," he said. "This is a first-class racetrack. The barns are nice. People here in Eastern Kentucky are awful nice to us. I really enjoy coming down here. I'm from Paducah where it is flat. I was really amazed at the mountains when I got here."

Harris said harness racing has changed a lot over the past 30 years, when he first got into it.

"The main thing is the tracks are better and the horses, they take better care of them," he said. "Horses today are faster. They are bred to be faster."

Harris said it is no longer a matter of taking a horse from the pasture and hooking him to a buggy.

"No. Horses today are bred to be trotters or pacers," he said. "They are called a standard breed."

While he has some horses of his own, Harris is mostly a trainer and runs a pub-

Competition stiffer in bombers class

The 1998 stock car racing season was about half over as the season entered the month of July.

But for Dean and Richard Ousley, the season will be a short one as they are just now getting started.

The Ousley's race in the bomber division at Thunder Ridge and are part of the five-class racing card each Saturday night at the local track. The racing team has been running at The Ridge for the past three racing seasons.

While Richard Ousley owns the race car, it is his father, Dean, who drives it around the oval track.

"This has been a short season for us," said Richard Ousley. "We are just getting started."

The Ousleys said they have had some problems with the car in getting a late start this season.

"The car has had too much push in it," said Ousley. "Then we've just had problems getting here. But that goes along with racing. You have your good nights and bad nights. But you have to take it and go."

While the number of bomber cars in their class has swollen, so has the competition.

"The class is very much more competitive," said Richard Ousley. "It is a lot stronger than last year. Very, very competitive."

The Ousley's like the track condition at Thunder Ridge.

"Brad has done a good job this year," said Ousley. "The track is in good condition."

Racing takes place each Saturday night at Thunder Ridge and the Ousley's are glad to be part of the weekend happenings at the track.

Turkey population is on the rise

Kentucky now has gobbling rights on its wild turkey population, thanks to a very successful restoration program.

In 1978, the year the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) began modern day restoration, the turkey harvest was only 44 birds, with a hunter success rate of just over four percent. Hunting opportunities have dramatically increased since that time. Based on turkey check station cards, more than 17,500 gobblers were harvested during this year's spring season alone. An estimated 54,000 hunters participated in the season with a success rate of around 32 percent.

The top ten counties for turkey harvest this spring were Muhlenberg (730 gobblers); Butler (673); Ohio (651); Hart (355); Crittenden (336); Adair (323); Logan (312); Hardin (310); Hopkins (310); and Cumberland (304).

Between 1978 and 1997, when turkey restoration was complete, 6,760 turkeys were released on 430 sites across Kentucky. Today the state's turkey population is 135,000 birds.

During the fall archery-only turkey season, September 19-December 32, (closed during modern gun deer season), hunters may take two birds of either sex. Only one bird may be taken per day.

Beginning this year, hunters may participate in a fall gun turkey season, December 2-6, 1998. This season is open in 42 counties across the state.

For further information about turkey hunting regulations, refer to the current Kentucky Turkey Hunting Guide available from sport hunting license vendors or by writing or calling the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; 1-800-858-1549.

LEAVE WILDLIFE IN THE WILD

As summer begins, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources biologists remind people who encounter fawns and other young animals to leave them alone.

People often assume these animals have been abandoned, but that's rarely the case. Often the animal's parents are nearby, perhaps gathering food or distracting a predator. While attempts to rescue young wildlife are often made with the best of intentions, in most cases, the efforts can do harm to the animal.

The animal is likely to die because people are rarely equipped to deal with the special needs of wildlife. Humans are no substitute for natural wildlife parents. Also, adopting wildlife as a pet is illegal unless a permit is acquired first.

Each year the KDFWR receives hundreds of calls from people who want to know what to do with fawns, raccoons, rabbits and other young animals that they thought were orphaned. The best advice is to leave them alone. Nature has a way of taking care of its own.

TWO MORE FISH RECORDS FALL

Fishing in Kentucky is apparently hot this year. Two more state records have been broken, bringing the total to nine new records in the past six months.

Frances Barker of Lowell, Indiana, was vacationing at Kentucky Lake with her family when she caught a record-breaking yellow perch May 19. Fishing on the main lake was slow that day, but when she returned to Paradise Resort, Barker tossed a white curly-tail grub off the dock and pulled in a 12 1/8-inch yellow perch weighing .945-pounds. The previous record weighed .90-pounds. Harmon Negley of Madisonville now holds the state record for the bowfin. Harmon was fishing Ax Lake in Ballard County on May 29 when he caught a 13.7-pound bowfin. After having the fish verified by fishery biologist Rob Rold, Harmon realized his 33 1/2-inch catch beat the previous record by more than a pound. Harmon had been fishing with a Bass-Oreno lure when he caught this record-breaker.

out. That brought Newsome up to the plate for the game winner.

Jack Slone, who came in relief of starter Jordan Kidd, pitched the top of the sixth for H-A-P and with the come back, picked up the win.

Early on, it didn't look good for the Floyd County squad. H-A-P left the bases loaded in the third, fourth and fifth inning but overcame that to pick up the win.

Martin County jumped out to a 2-0 lead with two unearned runs in the first inning.

The Martin County All-Stars upped its advantage to 3-0 with another run in the third.

H-A-P finally got on the board with two runs in the third inning. Tommy Layne led off the frame with a walk and was replaced by pinch-runner Ryan Lawson. Ryan Mitchell reached on an error.

Martin County starter Robert Howell struck out the next two hitters before walking Kidd to load the bases. Slone was then hit-by-a-pitch to get Lawson home, which was followed by Newsome's bases-loaded walk to get HAP within 3-2.

Martin County regrouped and pushed across four more run in the fourth. A key hit in the frame was a Travis Carter 2-run single to put Martin County ahead 7-2.

H-A-P chipped away at the advantage. They added two more runs in the fourth. Nathan Lafferty opened with a walk and scored as Justice reached on an error. Quentin Foley reached on a fielder's choice and would score on the same error.

Down 7-4, the Floyd County team tied the game with three runs in the fifth.

Lafferty had an RBI single - his team's first hit - and later scored on a walk by Justice. Layne and Steve Conn also scored as the two teams went into the final inning dead-locked at 7-7.

Slone was brought in to pitch the sixth, but Martin County touched him for three runs on three hits and took a 10-7 lead, which set the stage for the H-A-P wild sixth.

"I think we were a little nervous tonight because it was our first game in the tournament," said Jarrell. "This is a good win to build upon going into the Paintsville game."

"Our players now know that they can come back and win a game even if they get behind early in the game."

lic stable in Paducah.

"We have some awful nice horses down here," he said. "I just sold a horse I raced here a couple of weeks ago. He is going to Chicago. The owner I train for is from South Carolina and he has a lot of horses. I am training 12 for him now."

The horse Harris sold to be transported to Chicago was Carolina Bob who has won over $800,000 thus far this race season.

"We sold him for $18,000 and as long as he makes money, I make money," said Harris.

Harris said the race life of a horse is through 14 years if they can run that long.

"Many don't last that long. It used to be there were more older horses racing. But, now they go so fast and the wear and tear to them takes its toll. Now you won't see many horses over 10-years-old racing," he said.

A typical training session could last up to three or four months, according to Harris.

"They will bring a horse to me. Usually they buy yearlings in the fall when they are two-year olds," Harris said explaining a training segment. "I will first break them. (I) start from scratch and put the harness on the horse for the first time. Then I use a breaking cart, let them pull it."

Harris said a horse that started training in October or November should be ready for the track by June of the following year.

"An older horse that has raced, maybe had a little leg problem, when he comes back, it takes about 90 days," Harris said. "We train them twice a week and it takes about three months to get one ready."

In comparison to other tracks, ThunderRidge is about average, purse-wise, Harris said.

"It is less than what they pay in Lexington," Harris said. "We race for real good money there. With what you have to race against down here, you make money."

Harris stated that the local track is not overly crowded but there are a good number of horses that fill the racing card.

"Most of the people down here have learned that people here are nice," he said. "The track is in excellent shape, so we have a good group of horses and drivers."

Down the road, Harris said he has no immediate plans to do anything else.

"As long as I'm able to—I'm 62—I'll continue doing what I am doing. I have been doing this for quite awhile," he said.

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP SERIES

Jeff Gordon dominated the first of two road-racing weekends, sweeping both pole and race at Sears Point Raceway in Sonoma, Calif.

The track's reconfiguration—a couple of turns were eliminated, cutting each lap from 2.52 to 1.95 miles—was not overwhelmingly popular with drivers, most of whom thought it made the passing more difficult.

Runner-up finisher Bobby Hamilton turned in his best road-course performance ever, and third-place John Andretti had his best finish of the year. The highest-finishing Ford was fifth-place Rusty Wallace.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL

This series also "hit the road," with Ron Fellows pulling off the same feat he accomplished a year ago at Watkins Glen in Craftsman Truck Series competition.

Fellows, an accomplished road racer, climbed into Joe Nemechek's Chevy and won the Lysol 200 at the Glen.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Jeff Burton vs. Dale Jarrett

These two Ford drivers would seem unlikely adversaries, but they tangled just past the midpoint of Sunday's SaveMart/Kragen 350, and Burton accused Jarrett of everything shy of communist conspiracy. When he heard Burton's remarks, Jarrett was so angry that, unusual for him, he refused to comment.

NASCAR This Week motorsports writer Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "We don't know what happened before the incident, but the television replay seemed to fix the blame on Burton, not Jarrett."

The rich history of NASCAR

The late Fireball Roberts won three of the first five Independence weekend races at Daytona, winning in 1959 and 1962 in a Pontiac and in 1963 in a Ford. A.J. Foyt then captured the next two events, in 1964 and 1965, also in Fords. Three times in the years since a first-time winner has scored in the Daytona heat: Sam McQuagg in 1966, Greg Sacks in 1985 and John Andretti last year.

NASCAR This Week SONOMA, Calif. — Jack Roush announced a new wrinkle in his motorsports empire Saturday, and the move made at least a couple of drivers a bit uneasy.

Roush, who already owns five teams, put Kevin Lepage under contract. As to where he will emerge to drive, and at what point, Roush opted not to be forthcoming.

"Kevin has proved himself to be one of the best new talents on the Winston Cup circuit," said Roush. "We felt the time was right to give Kevin and his fans the chance to see what he can do

PROFILE

Darrell Waltrip

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Darrell Waltrip has won more races than any active Winston Cup driver, but none since 1992, when he scored three victories.

Recently, while substituting for the injured Steve Park in a Chevrolet owned by Dale Earnhardt Inc., Waltrip has shown that he is still capable of getting the job done. The three-time champion has turned in finishes of fifth and sixth in recent races.

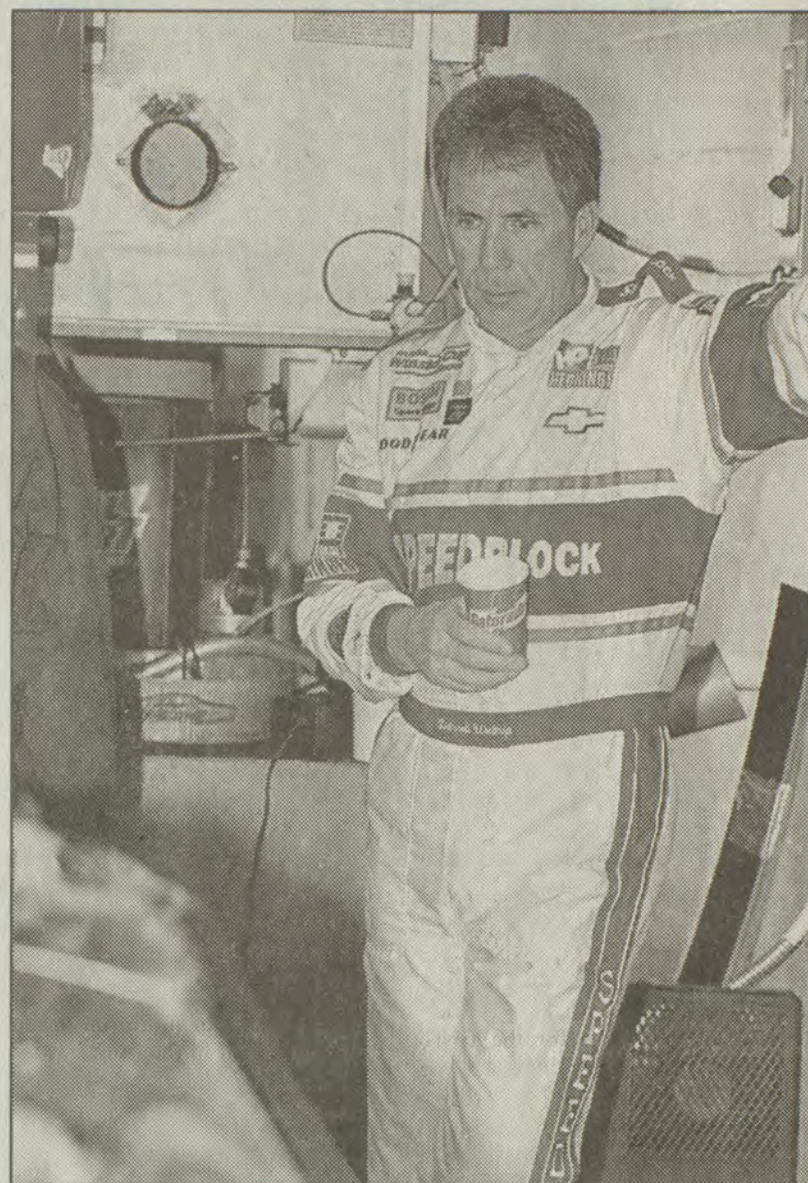

AGE: 51
SPOUSE: Stevie
CHILDREN: Jessica Leigh (10), Sarah Kaitlyn (5).

CAR: No. 1 Pennzoil Chevrolet Monte Carlo, owned by Teresa Earnhardt.

CAREER RECORD: 835 starts, 59 poles, 84 wins, 276 top fives, 387 top 10s, almost $17 million in winnings.

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO HAVE REVITALIZED YOUR CAREER IN RECENT WEEKS? "Some people may have had my driving career dead and buried, but they didn't put quite enough dirt on me. I kicked it off and, in this Pennzoil car, I crawled back out. It brings tears to my eyes to get back out there and compete like this. I never thought I would see it. I thought I was done. But I'm crawling back out and, gosh darn it, we are going to win a race."

IS CONTROVERSY GOOD FOR THE SPORT? "I love controversy. It's part of the sport. It's the heat of the moment. It's not politically correct because you don't have someone telling you what to say and what not to say. You shoot from

John Clark/NASCAR This Week

Darrell Waltrip says he loves controversy

the hip and when you let the bullets fly, sparks fly and tempers fly. It's a vent. Whenever I got into a fight or a hassle with somebody, sooner or later it would go away because we would get it all vented out. I think it's good for the sport because it's colorful and exciting."

WHAT IS CAUSING THE RECENT CONTROVERSIES AMONG DRIVERS?

"I think, in some cases, the frustration levels are going up because guys aren't winning, particularly when we go to places where they think they should win or have won before. I remember when we got the Monte Carlo in 1995, and I knew I had an advantage because of that car. I think if I were driving a Taurus right now, I would think that I had a better start taking advantage of the advantage I have. When you are getting beat by someone in a Monte Carlo, let's say, and you know that you should be beating him because you are in a Taurus, then you get frustrated. You start doing things you normally wouldn't do."

AROUND THE GARAGE

Questions arise after Jack Roush signs Kevin Lepage with our support. "Right now, we've secured the option to sign Kevin to a multi-year contract. We hope to formally exercise that option over the next few weeks and move forward with our plans for 1999 and beyond."

Since Roush has publicly stated he will own no more than five teams, the question becomes: Who's out?

The most likely spot is for Ted Musgrave to be released, although Roush has not said so. Musgrave has driven Roush's No. 16 Ford since 1994, but has never won. Roush recently announced a cooperative arrangement with the Wood Brothers, so Matt Kenseth could be slotted for a second team the Woods are rumored to be adding.

OK, FINE: Almost immediately, Lepage's current employer, Joe Falk, booted Lepage out of his ride.

"We're done," said Falk of his relationship with Lepage. Falk did not hide his bitterness at losing Lepage at the worst of times:

"We can't afford to have a bad finish here. We need to run up front. That's all I'm trying to do. I'm trying to do what I think I had to do to run up front, just like Kevin thinks he had to go to Roush's to run up front. ... Joe Falk ain't the richest guy in the garage, but I've got enough money to run this car for the rest of the year. We were close to signing a sponsor. That sponsor wanted Kevin, so I wouldn't doubt if you see a Roush car with that sponsor."

BOWLED OVER: The acclaim accompanying Jeremy Mayfield's first Winston Cup victory last week overwhelmed the 29-year-old driver.

"The past week was one I have looked forward to all my life," said Mayfield, from Owensboro, Ky. "It's been a fun week, but we know we've got to get back to

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week, I enjoy your page in the Index-Journal, Greenwood, S.C., every Thursday. Keep the pedal to the metal!

Now, here's a question: What was the nature of the controversy that arose at the first race at Talladega in 1969 which caused Richard Petty and several other drivers to withdraw?

Johnny McCracken
McCormick, S.C.

Dear Johnny, In 1969, when Talladega opened, Goodyear had been unable to design a tire compound that could withstand the high speeds of the new track.

During practice sessions, enough tire problems arose that members of the Professional Drivers Association decided that the track was unsafe.

When Bill France of NASCAR demanded they run anyway, the sport's first and only boycott occurred. The race was held, although most of the leading drivers did not compete.

CREW OF THE WEEK

■ Bobby Hamilton had never finished better than 14th at Sears Point Raceway until Sunday. Hamilton managed a second-place finish in a Chevrolet that handled so perfectly that, according to Hamilton, all he had to do was hang on. Larry McClure's race team, led by crew chief Robert Larkins, obviously deserves recognition.

ON THE MARKET

The NFL Players Association is chock-full of racing fans, especially the Dolphins' Trace Armstrong, union president. The NFLPA is working with a couple of NASCAR teams, those of John Andretti and Kyle Petty, in a joint marketing effort. Football players are becoming as numerous as tire changers in the garage on race mornings.

A Message From The President?

There have been television commercials, newspaper articles, and magazine advertisements showing the First Family walking together across a lawn. The message being projected is that Clinton believes it is tougher being a parent than it is to be President of the United States.

The verdict's still out on whether or not I'm impressed by the President's opinion or scared to death. However, I think I'm in the majority when I say I'm not surprised.

If you are a parent, you know how difficult it is to teach values to young people when movies, television, and the Internet are sending entirely different messages. And, as the President of the United States, Clinton has some real obstacles to overcome regarding child-rearing.

"Bill," Hillary said to the President one morning at breakfast. "You need to talk to Chelsea about abstinence."

"About what, Hillary?" the President asked.

"Of course, I'm sorry. How would you know? You need to explain to her how dangerous getting too familiar with a person is. Kids today are exposed to much more than we were growing up. It's scary."

"You can say that again, honey. We didn't even have to wear seat belts when I was a kid."

"I think this is more serious than that, Bill."

"Oh, yeah. Of course, kids even have to wear helmets and knee pads when they ride bicycles. Can you imagine! I couldn't even afford a bicycle, let alone knee pads. You only needed those to play sports. At least that's what I was told."

Hillary shook her head and started to leave the room when the phone rang.

"Hey, Boris! How goes it over there? Why don't we get together over a vodka and tonic and talk this thing over? I don't think they'll drop a bomb if we tell them not to, do you? After all, they depend on us to buy their oil and stuff. Just call and tell them we'll get with them in a couple of days. Baseball season's started and I have to throw out balls and attend commencement exercises. It's a tight schedule over here. See you soon."

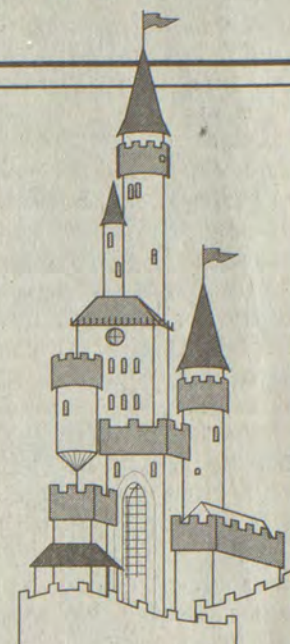

Bill hung up the phone and looked at Hillary and said, "Being the leader of the Free World is getting tougher everyday. Can you believe Yeltsin is scared of a little old country like Iraq? Now, what did you want me to tell Chelsea?"

"Bill, there are bad things happening to our young people. They're exposed to drugs, crime, and AIDS. How can we stress to them the importance of responsibility in regards to their bodies?"

"Self-control is the answer, Hillary. You know yourself I smoked a joint when I was in college, but I didn't inhale. In fact, I've been involved in more than one situation where I had to exercise emotional restraint. Granted, some people would judge me on my actions, but my common sense prevailed. That's all we can ask from Chelsea. It's tough teaching values, but she's a smart girl just like her daddy," the President laughed.

"That's the thing that bothers me, Bill. That's the thing that bothers me."

Mice at the theater

Youths on JWT's stage

Jenny Wiley Theater has opened its 1998 season, and many local youths have earned their respective spots on the stage.

The magical fairy tale of "Cinderella" showcases many young people around the region playing the roles of Cinderella's cats, the mice and the horses.

The cats are Jessica Kitts, a third grader at St. Francis in Pikeville; and Lindsey M. Brown, a fourth grader at Prestonsburg Elementary.

The mice include Elizabeth Meade, a sixth grader at Pikeville Elementary; Malori Cook a freshman at Whitesburg High School; Casey Price, a sixth grader at Adams Middle School; Christopher Caldwell, an eight-year-old from Banner; Lara Daniels, a third grader at Pikeville Elementary; Megan Goble, a sixth grader at Adams Middle School; and Renee Maynard, a fifth grade student at Prestonsburg Elementary.

The carriage horses are Amber McKinney, a sixth grader at Adams Middle School; Claire Fish, a sixth grader at Pikeville Elementary; Crystal King, a junior at Betsy

Layne High School; Jasmine Osborne, a fifth grader at Mullins Elementary; Max Smith, a fifth grade student at Pikeville Elementary; and Griffin Myers, a fifth grader at Pikeville Elementary.

"We are very happy to have all of the young people here at the theater this year," Patrik Baldauff, producing artistic director said. "Their presence is a reassurance that we are working toward our mission to enrich our regional community through the performing arts."

News of the Weird

— In a Liverpool, England, court in June, lovers Steven Bain, 27, and Steven Gawthrop, 31, were sentenced to 18 months in prison for gross indecency for various "perverted acts." Among the men's exploits revealed at trial: They are foot fetishists and had tricked thousands of people into giving up socks, claiming they were collecting for a charity. Police found the men's apartment to have an 18-inch-high "carpet" of socks and about 4,000 more wrapped in sandwich bags, each tagged with the donor's name.

— In April, the CIA debuted its home page for children, featuring creative games and gimmicks such as allowing kids to put disguises on models' bodies and to maneuver virtual guard dogs to sniff for explosives. (On the other hand, a month later, the agency failed to detect that India was about to test a nuclear weapon.)

Salespeople: The Next Postal Workers

William Walker was charged in March in Albuquerque, N.M., with trying to hack through a man's apartment door with an ax after the resident said he wasn't interested in buying speakers from him. And in April, two women were preparing for trial after being charged with murder in Frankfurt, Germany, for torturing and stabbing to death an underachieving male colleague in a door-to-door magazine sales group they were a part of.

Read This, Or Just Think About Reading It

Researcher Dave Smith of Manchester (England) Metropolitan University revealed in March that thinking about exercise is almost as productive as doing it. His group of exercisers improved 33 percent in a month, and his nonexercisers did not improve at all. However, the nonexercisers who practiced the exercise mentally improved 16 percent when it came time to do the exercise again. Reasoned Smith, "If you can improve neural input to the muscle, you can recruit more muscle fiber and exert more force."

The Garden State

According to a May report in The New York Times, biologists and New Jersey authorities still do not know the reason why the plastic grass at Giants Stadium died last year. The Astroturf first turned from green to blue and then began falling out in large clumps, and the best guess so far is that a fungus of some kind infected it.

Latest Highway Truck Spills

Hundreds of bottles of champagne (Milford, Conn., December); 22 tons of cold cuts (Hardin, Mont., December); hundreds of jars of mayonnaise (near London, England, February); 21 tons of potatoes (Monticello, Minn., March) boxes of bees (Middleton, Idaho, February); 22 tons of shredded paper (naturally, near Washington, D.C., March); 6,700 gallons of animal fat (Cincinnati, May).

The Litigious Society

— A new trend in public education in California, reported the Los Angeles Times in January, is that the parents of some students who are expelled or suspended for violence file lawsuits claiming that the school was negligent in not placing such a troublemaker into a "special education" program earlier on. The 1975 federal "special education" law, originally aimed to help the physically disabled, now covers students whose disorder is that they are, in the words of one physician, "easily frustrated, quite distracted and (showing) serious explosiveness."

— In February, according to a report on the Agence France Presse wire, Cairo lawyer Mustafa Raslan filed a $1 billion lawsuit in Damanhur, Egypt, against President Clinton, alleging that Clinton's alleged sexual antics make it more difficult for him to raise his own children with good moral standards. "I don't know what to tell (them)," he said. (In December, Sheik Buddy Rasheed, who is the mayor of Bassilya, Jordan, told reporters he wanted to sue Clinton for naming his dog Buddy, which has caused Rasheed a loss of prestige locally, but that he was having trouble finding a lawyer to take the case.)

— In April, the city of Los Angeles, by a 9-to-1 vote of the city council, agreed to pay $9 million to five surviving victims of a drunk driver whose car wandered across a center line and hit the van in which they were riding, unbuckled. A court in 1997 awarded the victims $29 million and said the city had to pay 57 percent of that because if the yellow line in the center of the road had been brighter, the drunk driver might not have crossed over.

— In March in Milford, Conn., Ms. Deven Kuchta, 17, filed a lawsuit against truck driver David Kovac over a 1997 accident in which Kuchta's passenger was killed as her car ran into the truck. The truck was legally parked on the side of the road, but Kuchta said it was still a nuisance because Kuchta had a hard time seeing it in the "glaring sunlight." Kuchta is still on probation stemming from a negligent homicide charge in the incident.

— In May, the parents of Mr. Warren A. Wise filed a $100 million lawsuit against the Long Branch, N.J., police for the wrongful death last November of their son. According to police, Mr. Wise ran a red light, then sped away from an officer, then fled the car into the 45-degree waters of the Atlantic Ocean, where he soon lapsed into a coma from which he never recovered. The family believes the police should have risked hypothermia to swim out 200 yards and nab Mr. Wise, who, until he fell unconscious, was still trying to escape.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Lee admitted switching Lottie and Joy's coffins. He snapped when Camille told him she'll warn the Chandlers about him. Marian and Stuart continued to miscommunicate with each other. Erica overheard Mike tell Adrian how much she means to him. Allie erupted at Liza after Jake told her he'll father Liza's child. Ryan threatened to sue Liza for sexual harassment if she fires him. Jamie interrupted Brooke's trial. Dixie confronted Adam at Lottie's gravesite. Wait To See: Erica says yes to Mike.

ANOTHER WORLD: PRE-EMPTED FOR THE WEEK OF JUNE 29-JULY 3 FOR COVERAGE OF WIMBLEDON TENNIS

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Jack revealed a long-standing hate for his brother, Brad. Meanwhile, Brad turned up at the farm and met Julia. Emily told Tom and Margo Eddie mugged her in the park. Eddie told Margo he can't recall what happened. Meanwhile, Susan became suspicious of Emily's injuries and her story. Brad helped Lucinda when the police questioned her about James. Wait To See: David's behavior begins to worry Molly.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: In an effort to keep Stephanie away from James, Sheila threatened baby Thomas. James was later puzzled by Stephanie's coolness to him and told Lauren he won't let her walk out of his life. Rick took Amber to the cabin in Big Bear where they made love. She later berated him for not using a condom. Eric caught Rick and Amber trying to sneak into the house and fired her. After Macy's pregnancy test proved negative, Grant reluctantly agreed to submit a sperm sample for testing. Wait

To See: Rick makes a decision about Amber.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: (July 2 and 3 were pre-empted for Wimbledon tennis coverage.) Franco urged Sami to get a marriage license before the INS hearing, but she resisted. John told a devastated Carrie that Shelley (the woman who was part of the set-up against Mike) has disappeared. Meanwhile, as Carrie and Marlena searched for Shelley, Nancy had reason to believe Craig would become Chief of Staff. Hope made plans to go to Lugano, the town she believed was shown in the painting. Franco tried to pass off a bogus marriage license. Wait To See: The Swamp Girl reacts to Bo's music.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Sonny urged Luke not to throw his family away. Later, Luke chided Laura for bringing Lesley Lu to Wyndemere. Liz decided to lay a new trap for Murty. Lucky asked Nikolas to keep Liz's secret. While playing with Tony, Lucas entered the warehouse to retrieve his ball. Jerry rescued Lucas from the warehouse fire while Sonny saved Jax. An intervention by the Quartermaine men failed, and Alan resumed taking pills. Wait To See: Lucky lashes out at Liz. Sonny leaves.

GUIDING LIGHT: The clone realized she'll never have Josh. Meanwhile, Josh and Reva fell into each other's arms and set off for the family barbecue - as did the clone. Blake was determined Ross must never know about her and Ben. Later, Beth confronted Blake about her feelings for Ben. Marah was confused when she saw the clone. A disappointed Selena learned Buzz is happily married. Wait To See: Beth and Harley await news that can change their lives.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Todd forced Tea to run off with him, but she turned the tables and had him arrested. Barbara watched Kevin and Cassie reunite after the crisis with Todd. Later, Cassie saw Kevin and Barbara in a tense moment. After his heart attack, Asa told Renee he wanted to spend more time with her. Blair gave Max her answer to his proposal. Dorian was upset to see Kelly with Drew. Wait To See: Todd begs Blair for help.

PORT CHARLES: Serena was trapped in Eve's car after the accident and was diagnosed with eye and internal injuries. Unaware of Lucy's role in the accident, Scott broke off with Eve. Meanwhile, a guilt-stricken Lucy confessed to an unconscious Serena that she siphoned gas from Eve's car. Chris was stripped of the Quartermaine Fellowship after Matt told Dr. Boardman of Chris's scheme to discredit him. Jake's autopsy revealed the real killer may still be at large. Wait To See: The killer strikes again.

SUNSET BEACH: (July 2 and 3 were pre-empted for Wimbledon tennis coverage.) Ben arrived at the cabin to save Meg from Derek, and offered his own life for hers. Annie became increasingly worried over Olivia's returning memory. Tyus gave Vanessa the experimental drug with "interesting" results. Gregory told Annie he'll marry her if she'll do one more thing. Tim found himself face-to-face with a mysterious woman. Wait To See: Olivia holds Trey and something happens!

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: After Kay told Jill to pack up and leave within four weeks, Jill searched the attic for documentary proof that Phillip Chancellor (to whom both had been wed) wanted her to inherit the Chancellor mansion. Michael continued to encourage Diane to make Victor recognize she holds all the cards in any future he might have with Nikki. Trisha felt increasingly left out of Ryan's life as he spent more time with Nina and their son, Phillip. Sharon seethed at Nick's apparent unwillingness to put space between him and Grace. Victoria came to a decision about Neil and her baby. Wait To See: Brad's return could upset Jill's plans.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone from afar may offer you a business opportunity. It's a good time to push career interests. Welcome the chance to get ahead. Attend a movie or enjoy a concert. High-minded pursuits bring you satisfaction and intellectual stimulation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A desire for privacy shouldn't be ignored. Catch up on rest and save time for private talks and pursuits. Get to know yourself. Social life is on the upswing. You'll be introduced to important people over the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Those in business for themselves face an increase in both customers and sales. It is possible to attain something you have long desired. Spruce up your appearance and buy yourself something nice. This week, the spotlight falls on you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good time to make important domestic decisions. Luck comes through the family, and apartment-hunters meet with good fortune. An optimistic frame of mind makes you want to go places and do things.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The unemployed meet with job opportunities. If you want a better position, now is the time to make inquiries. Begin new projects. Sports, hobbies and other recreational pursuits bring joy. Relations with loved ones improve.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An inheritance is possible, or news arrives about impressive financial gains. Luck comes to you through others. Close friends are supportive. The accent is on togetherness. You may receive an interesting proposition. Ask for help concerning your job if you need it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's best not to be concerned about career matters now, since small misunderstandings could occur. Travel or amusements should be pleasing. You'll find ways to augment security. Someone conceals his true motives with superficial prattle.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A friendship reaches a turning point. Cultural pursuits will prove relaxing. Stay clear of those who gossip or misconstrue ideas. You may change your mind about a career matter. A petty argument could arise over a bill.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're inclined to be a loner now, though creatively, you're quite expressive. Ingenuity brings financial rewards. Trust intuition regarding financial matters. Minor domestic difficulties could lead to nagging behavior. Don't overlook details.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Fixed ideas can impede creativity. Relax and things begin to flow. Avoid petty disputes and take the family out to someplace special. Restlessness may interfere with concentration. Try not to scatter your energies. Unexpected good news come from a relative.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're inclined to be nervous, perhaps about a work matter, but a close friend is able to divert your attention quite pleasantly. Complete domestic duties. A relative may be manipulative. Don't argue with children about spending habits. Hobbies prove lucrative.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A close tie may convince you to change your mind. Dealings about money are touchy, especially with friends. Advice comes unexpectedly. Tidy up loose ends regarding a work project. Talks with superiors aren't favored. Avoid getting upset about little things.

FALL LINEUP FOR FOX - New Shows include: "Costello," "Brimstone," "Hollyweird," "Living in Captivity," "Holding the Baby," and "Feelin' All Right," and NFL football.

Returning shows include: "Melrose Place," "Ally McBeal," "King of the Hill," "Beverly Hills, 90210," "Party of Five," "World's Wildest Police Videos," "Getting Personal," "Millennium," "Cops," "America's Most Wanted," "World's Funniest Videos," "The Simpsons," and, of course, "The X-Files."

P.S. With "Millennium's" Frank Black (Lance Hendrickson) moving to be an FBI consultant in Washington, D.C., this fall, I asked Peter Roth, President of Fox Entertainment Group, if we'll see crossovers between Chris Carter's two shows - "Millennium" and "X-Files." Roth's reply: "Interesting thought. It could happen."

ABC has also begun production in Vancouver, British Columbia on "The New Adventures of Spin & Marty: Suspect Behavior." This is a '90s update of the old "Spin and Marty" "Mickey Mouse Show" serial. Charles Shaughnessy ("The Nanny") stars, along with David Gallagher ("7th Heaven"), Jeremy Foley ("Dante's Peak"), Judd Nelson ("Suddenly Susan") and Yancy Butler ("Brooklyn South"). This "Wonderful World of Disney" special will feature a cameo appearance by the original Spin and Marty, Tim Considine and David Stollery.

WORTH WATCHING: "Science of the Impossible," a series featuring stories of the possibilities of science fiction turning into science fact, airs July 12, 13, 14, and 15 ... On SHOWTIME catch "My Own Country" with Marisa Tomei and Swoozie Kurtz, airing July 12; also "John Woo's Once A Thief: Family Business," airing July 18.

WORTH WAITING FOR:

ABC is planning a controversial dissection of the defense team that got O.J. Simpson off on double murder charges. The network, which has already announced plans to do a high-profile biography of Nancy Reagan, also plans to star Glenn Close in an adaptation of Rodgers & Hammerstein's "South Pacific."

FOR THOSE WHO CARE: Jerry Springer distributors may soon add a late-night weekend installment featuring highlights of the week's shows. It's intended as counter-programming for NBC's "Saturday Night Live" and CBS' upcoming (August 22) Howard Stern show.

News of the Weird reported that two high-profile international murderers have escaped rather easily from custody in Italy in the last two years. In May 1998, wheelchair-confined Pasquale Cuntrera, 63, believed to be Italy's most powerful drug kingpin, escaped from his seaside home near Rome while it was under police surveillance. Cuntrera had five days earlier been released from prison temporarily on a technicality, and authorities had planned to re-arrest him when the proper charges were filed. He was picked up four days later in Spain.

Flash floods strike again in Cherokee

Heavy rain early Monday morning dumped several inches of water on the region, prompting flash floods in some areas along Ky. 201 from Blaine to Webbville and some areas around Martha.—The Big Sandy News

Cable company reps hear complaints

A representative of Lawrence County Cable came before the Lawrence County Fiscal Court Friday to listen to questions county officials had about their cable service and relay them to the company.

For the past few months, magistrates have been trying to get someone from the cable company to appear before the court to answer some questions—mainly why the service differs in some areas of the county while the cost remains the same.

County Attorney Bill Jackson said from his understanding the cable company offers 40 channels in the Meades Branch area, but customers at Charley receive only 25 channels and pay the same price.

County Judge-Executive Roger Jordan said he has received several complaints regarding the difference in cable services.

“(Lawrence County Cable) has a franchise with the county, but just because they keep that doesn’t mean they’re right with the federal guidelines,” Jordan said. “If it’s done wrong, it should be fixed. If it’s been done wrong on purpose, (the cable company) should have to pay the difference.”

The company representative said he would take the questions to company officials, who would appear at the July 17 fiscal court meeting to address those questions. That meeting will be held at 10 a.m. at the Lawrence County Courthouse.—The Big Sandy News

Industrial site being developed in Lawrence

Lawrence County may be closer to developing an industrial site after the Cabinet for Economic Development sent a favorable review of a site under consideration.

The court authorized County Judge-Executive Roger Jordan to submit an application, and if it is approved the state will conduct tests on the site. A previous site submitted by the county was rejected by the state.

Jackson said the location of the site was not going to be made public at this point.—The Big Sandy News

Sprinkler system saves Taco Bell from fire Friday

A sprinkler system may have saved the day for Taco Bell in the Sun Pavilion Friday morning, as it doused a fire that was started in the upstairs part of the building.

“The sprinkler system did a good job,” Louisa Fire Chief Eddie Preston said. “It put the fire out before we got there.”

Construction is taking place on the second floor above the restaurant, where the fire started in a pile of debris. Preston said the cause now appears to be a discarded cigarette.—The Big Sandy News

Minister drowns in pool at Jackson

Members of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Pikeville were devastated when they found out their pastor, Francis Kaikumba, 49, drowned with three other people in the deep end of a swimming pool near Jackson Saturday. According to police reports, Kaikumba apparently died when he tried to save the nephews of a friend and co-worker Raymond Kuezinke, 43, who also died trying to rescue the boys.—The Appalachian News-Express

Lawyer's old toll-free line invites persons to call "nasty numbers"

Pikeville attorney Sid Trivette's discontinued toll-free telephone number refers persons calling that line to other “nasty numbers” for “hot talk” and “real, raw, uncensored conversations.” Trivette said he had heard reports that his former number was “some sort of sexual advertisement.” When the lawyer discontinued the service, the number was picked up by Cable & Wireless, a national carrier, which assigned the number to a phone sex company. The old number was printed in the Yellow Pages and on some of the attorney's business cards and stationary. Trivette said he has tried to retrieve them, but some people still call the number. “I can't prevent it, so I'm just going to let it go,” Trivette said.—The Appalachian News-Express

Hospital trying to clarify relationship with Methodist Conference

The relationship between Pikeville Methodist Hospital and the Kentucky Methodist Conference may be strained, but it is far from over. The hospital's board of directors last Friday reportedly voted to approve a resolution declaring a moratorium on the relationship between the hospital and the Methodist Conference. The hospital board allegedly drafted the resolution because the conference rejected three of the four board member nominations without explanation and substituted three different people. Hospital board chairman Walter May sent a copy of the resolution and an accompanying letter to the Kentucky Methodist Conference. May said there will be no action on the board nominees until the conference and the hospital board have clarified their relationship.—The Appalachian News-Express

Murder suspect claims self-defense

A Pikeville man charged with murder in connection with last weekend's shooting death of Timothy Rush Sanders of Elkhorn City, said he was acting in self-defense. Attorney Robert Wright, who is representing murder suspect Danny W.B. Carr, said that an altercation between the two men became heated and that Sanders was intoxicated. Wright said Sanders had threatened Carr prior to the shooting. Carr, who is disabled, had volunteered as equipment manager at Pikeville High School for about four years. Wright said he expects his client to be indicted on a charge of capital murder.—The Appalachian News-Express

Knott Central football coach resigns

Jay Cobb, football coach at Knott County Central High School for the past five years, has resigned to take a coaching position at Somerset High School. Cobb has also served as athletic director for the school. Principal James Reynolds advises that a new football coach is being sought for KCC.—The Troublesome Creek Times

Dollie Martin new JBS director

The June Buchanan School has named Dollie Catherine Martin as its new director.

Martin, a graduate of Caney Junior College, (now Alice Lloyd College), obtained her master's degree in educational leadership and administration from Miami University, (Oxford, Ohio), and holds certification for superintendent and principal.

She has been involved in education since 1958, when she began her career as a teacher in the Knott County School System, teaching grades first through eighth.—The Troublesome Creek Times

Fireworks at Holly Hills

Knott County's Independence Day fireworks display will be Saturday, July 4 at the Holly Hills Shopping Center. The Hindman Volunteer Fire Department will be shooting the fireworks behind the shopping center around 9:30 p.m. or at dark. The Knott County Fiscal Court sponsors the fireworks.—The Troublesome Creek Times

Fiscal court focuses on blacktop

In their final meeting of the fiscal year ending June 30, the Knott Fiscal Court approved payment of bills including $233,000 for recent blacktopping and approved an application for the use of coal severance tax funds for improvements at the Knott Central baseball fields.

District Four Magistrate Earl Thornsberry was critical of the recent asphalt program reported last week saying, “I'm not against paving roads, but I think it should be divided four ways (the four districts). . . looks like all of it was put on one side of the county.”

Thornsberry echoed statements said at prior meetings that he couldn't get road work done, and Knott County Judge-Executive Homer Sawyer repeated his earlier statements that Thornsberry does not get up with him like the other magistrates. “You haven't talked to me about a road issue in months,” Sawyer said.

The county budgeted $250,000 in the new budget for blacktop.—The Troublesome Creek Times

Settlement School begins oral history project

The Hindman Settlement School is currently working on an extensive oral history project to document the history of the school and more importantly, to document the valuable stories of people who attended the school.

Mike Mullins, executive director, is overseeing the project and monies have been provided through a grant from the Kentucky Oral History Commission.

Mullins explained the school's interest in such a project. “An oral history of the Hindman Settlement School is the third phase in the development of the school's archives,” Mullins said. “We have already archived papers and photos through a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.”—The Troublesome Creek Times

School board delays action

Citing the absence of two members, including the chairman, the Knott Board of Education did not act on the annual evaluation of the superintendent or a request to lease the soon to be vacated board offices to Hazard Community College during a special called meeting June 25.

Board Chairman Charles Hall was unable to attend because of church responsibilities and Glenn Morey had work responsibilities.

Likewise, the board members declined to act on a recommendation to establish two mechanic helpers positions, saying they wished to have more information from the transportation director, William Madden.—The Troublesome Creek Times

Who can get survivors benefits

by Jim Kelly
Social Security
District Director
for the Big Sandy area

There's a current TV ad for life insurance benefits that features an elderly lady describing her deceased husband's Social Security survivors benefits as a lump sum death payment, “It's only $255.00—not enough to bury him with.” But, Social Security's survivors benefits are more than a lump sum payment to your surviving spouse. It can amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars in some cases to your entire family, including minor children, ex-spouses, and dependent parents.

If you should die, Social Security benefits can be paid to:

Widow or widower—Your surviving spouse may receive full benefits at age 65 or older or reduced benefits as early as age 60. If she or he becomes disabled, benefits may start as early as age 50. If you leave dependent children in the care of your surviving spouse, he or she may receive benefits at any age up until the youngest child reaches age 16, or as long as a child who is disabled before age 22 remains disabled.

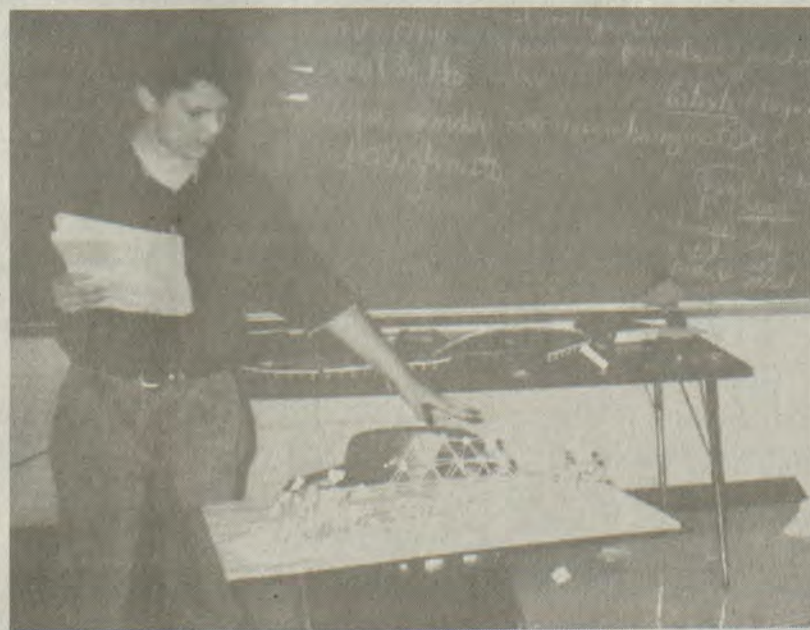

You should also note that if you are survived by a divorced spouse, she or he may qualify for a survivors benefit on the same conditions as if you were still married if the marriage lasted 10 years. The surviving divorced widow's benefits will not affect a current widow's benefits.

Children—Your unmarried children under age 18-or up to age 19 if they are still in high school full time—may receive benefits. Your child can get benefits at any age if he or she was disabled before age 22 and remains disabled. Benefits may also be paid to your stepchildren, adopted children, or grandchildren under certain circumstances.

For planning purposes, you should get an estimate of the Social Security survivors benefits that could be paid to your family by calling Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and asking for a “Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement.” There's no charge for this service.

Tall tales

Accused abuser sues jail

A man accused of beating, burning and pulling out the hair of a two-year-old child is suing the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center, saying employees there allowed him to be beaten twice by inmates with whom he shared a cell. Gallie Maynard, 37, of Flat Gap, filed suit in U.S. District Court in Pikeville against the jail, its governing board, administrator Ken O'Bryan and unknown employees as a result of the alleged incident. He is also suing inmates he claims participated in the beatings, Mike Meredith, Lee Setser, Steve Garner and Henry Brown. The complaint alleges Maynard's cries for help were “intentionally and deliberately ignored. . . despite knowledge of the risk of serious harm to the plaintiff.” In an answer to Maynard's suit, the jail and jail authority admits that Maynard was beaten, but denies responsibility for the attacks.—The Paintsville Herald

Two indicted in May deaths

A Johnson County grand jury issued indictments Monday following the deaths of two people in May. Jerry Michael Scott, 44, of Swamp Branch, was indicted on a charge of murder for the death of William Taylor, 37, also of Swamp Branch. Police have said Scott and Taylor were in an argument in Riceville, when Taylor threatened Scott. Scott then allegedly responded by shooting Taylor in the head. The grand jury also indicted Jeffrey Shane Dutton, 24, of Staffordsville, in the death of Gary Litton, 30, of Inez. Police originally charged Dutton with murder, but the grand jury amended the charge to manslaughter. According to police reports, Dutton allegedly shot Litton in the right hip during an argument at Whitehouse.—The Paintsville Herald
