Feds nab avowed racist for mail threats

Charles Edward Hall Jr., 28, of Floyd County, was taken from the Kentucky State Police's Post Nine in Pikeville by FBI agent Steve Stacy after his arrest Tuesday morning. Hall, the self-proclaimed leader of an alleged white supremacist group, declined to comment on the charges against him. Hall was arraigned Tuesday afternoon before a U.S. Magistrate in Lexington.

The self-proclaimed leader of an alleged white supremacist cell in Floyd County was arrested Tuesday morning by federal and state authorities following a search of his Spurlock home.

Charles Edward Hall Jr., 28, was taken into custody Tuesday morning without incident after authorities reportedly found a number of weapons in his home during the search.

Hall's arrest was the result of a nine-month investigation conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Kentucky State Police.

Hall is charged with discrimination in housing; mailing threatening communications to mixed-race couples; and destruction of government property.

A criminal complaint, filed by the FBI, alleges Hall "ordered" a January shooting into the Langley Post Office, where the racist organization had a post office box. The complaint also alleges that Hall distributed racist leaflets and mailed threatening and harassing communications.

The investigation also revealed a Floyd County deputy's alleged involvement with Hall and an apparent plot to break into the National Guard Armory in Prestonsburg for weapons.

Floyd deputy David Gray was suspended without pay Tuesday pending an investigation by the sheriff's department into an alleged firearm transaction between the officer and Hall.

The deputy has reportedly been acquainted with Hall since 1994, according to an FBI affidavit. The affidavit indicates Gray estimates he has traded or sold approximately 20 firearms to Hall.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said Tuesday he has cooperated fully with federal authorities in the investigation.

The sheriff said the deputy became a cooperating witness in November after being interviewed by the FBI.

During that interview, Gray reportedly mentioned that Hall attempted to recruit him into the organization, the White Aryan Legion. The deputy was permitted to join the group and work undercover, the sheriff said.

Cody says money woes shouldn't affect quality

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County's School system appears to be the first district in state history to virtually be unable to adequately function financially or educationally.

And, there are no provisions in state laws to provide for a bail-out of the mismanaged system, which has been under state scrutiny for over a decade.

State education officials have called the school district's situation "as ugly as it gets" and said the future for the system is "bleak."

State Education Commissioner Wilmer Cody said Monday that he is not aware of any other districts in the state facing such dire conditions as Floyd.

Although the financial and educational picture for several years is dismal, Cody said the quality of education for children should not be affected.

"As long as you keep the pupil-teacher ratio to a minimum, have instructional funds and supplies available, it will be a quality if not optimal education," Cody said. "The key to quality is class size and teacher/pupil ratio."

There is no so-called state contingency fund to access for use to solve some of the district's monetary problems, Cody said, and students will basically have to weather the storm.

When asked how students could be expected to learn a new state science curriculum when the system can't afford to buy the course materials, Cody said he understood the situation, but there's basically no solution to the problem.

"A lot of this is not fair. There is no authority or resources to use to correct mistakes made in the past," Cody said. "I don't think kids will lose a year. Students will have access to computers, you're right they're outdated, but they serve the basic function and still can be useful."

State school officials continue to look for ways to address the $231,000 in unmet textbook needs, Cody said.

As for the physical condition of some school facilities—there are $500,000 in immediate maintenance concerns which can't be addressed—Cody said school officials shouldn't allow students to attend those facilities until the problems are corrected.

When asked where would those children could be placed, Cody did not have a suggestion.

A long history of political interference and years of overspending have virtually bankrupted the school

Dream Team helps ill youth sleep easy

by Cindy Yates

If you could have any wish, what would it be? To meet Michael Jordan? Go to Disney World?

If you were five-year-old Tiffany Rogers, your wish would be simple.

All she wanted was her own bed.

The Prestonsburg chapter of the Dream Factory, a non-profit organization that grants wishes to chronically-ill children ages 3-13, made Tiffany's dream come true.

Along with the generous assistance of Mark Huffine, the manager of the Pikeville Heilig-Meyers (HM), Tiffany received her very own bed complete with box springs and mattress (courtesy of the Prestonsburg HM chain) and dresser to match.

"She would go to the alter every church service for the past couple of years and pray to God that he give her very own bed, and maybe some clothes and shoes," her grandmother Patty said.

Diagnosed with heart and respiratory problems, it is unusual for Tiffany to have a day without a fever. Last Friday when the big green Heilig-Meyers truck pulled up to her trailer at Weeksbury, however, Tiffany danced and hopped around with excitement just like any other little girl.

"That smile - that's what it's all about," said Ruby Pennington, Dream Factory representative.

Indeed, Pennington had some difficulty getting Tiffany to hold still long enough to pin a Dream Factory rainbow pin on the child.

Dotson asks Cody to put Mullins back in board seat

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

In a surprising move, Floyd County school board chairman Terry Dotson has asked state Education Commissioner Wilmer Cody to rescind the suspension of board member Jody Mullins.

In a letter to the commissioner, Dotson requests that Mullins be placed back on the board because, "frankly, I need help" with some serious decisions the board must make within the next 30-60 days.

Mullins was suspended for six months from the board by members of the Kentucky Board of Education after he was found guilty of non-feasance in office. Mullins was acquitted of misconduct in office and willful neglect of duty.

Education Commissioner Wilmer Cody filed the charges against Mullins and sought his removal from office. A tribunal of the state board of education decided to suspend Mullins and ordered that he attend meetings as an audience member and receive additional training in management and finance. He was accused of failing to take actions to eliminate a budget deficit and of failing to obtain prior state approval for expenditures in the district.

The suspension took effect in February, but was stayed by a court order 15 days after the decision when Mullins filed an appeal. In March, Mullins withdrew his appeal and began his suspension.

Dotson said Mullins needs to be reinstated to the board to make sure all areas of the county are represented when it comes time to discuss some major issues facing the district.

"Yes, I did do that," Dotson said Tuesday concerning his letter to Cody. "I feel like Jody has been at every workshop but one since I've been on the board. If they wanted to throw him off, they should have and the state had an opportunity to appoint someone if they found him unfit. It's really critical that we have his input and votes. We have

Council story gave wrong impression

Prestonsburg city officials have taken issue with an article appearing in the Wednesday, May 13 edition of The Floyd County Times which suggested the city had "applauded" the proposed construction of a new football field at PHS despite dire financial news concerning the Floyd County School District as a whole.

Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fanin said Monday that his reference to the proposed football field was made in passing, during announcements of other projects in the city to be funded by the state, and his comments in no way reduced his or others' concern for the school system's financial plight.

The Times has reviewed videotapes of the meeting and concluded

Police suspect booze involved in fatality

A two-vehicle accident on Route 80 Tuesday afternoon claimed the life of a Prestonsburg man and hospitalized two other area residents.

Randall Elkins, 51, was killed after the vehicle he was in apparently pulled in the path of another vehicle near Kinzer Drilling.

Elkins was transported to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, where he was pronounced dead.

An Arkansas Creek resident was in the same vehicle at the time of the accident. He was also transported to the Martin hospital, where he reportedly underwent surgery for a head wound. Information about the patient's condition was not available at presstime.

Authorities had not determined

Tuesday afternoon which of the subjects was driving the vehicle when the mishap occurred. Reports indicate Elkins was a passenger in the vehicle, but the other victim denies being the driver.

Alcohol is suspected to have been a contributing factor in Tuesday's mishap and felony charges could follow if authorities determine Elkins was a passenger in the vehicle.

According to eyewitnesses, Elkins' vehicle was attempting to make a left turn onto Route 3383, Bull Creek, when it pulled in the path of a westbound Cherokee Jeep on Route 80.

That vehicle, apparently owned by Home Satellite Services, was driven by P. R. Delong.

ently purchased a firearm in his official capacity as the police chief — allowing him to waive the mandatory five-day waiting period. The officer allegedly sold the weapon to Hall.

The affidavit also indicates that a conversation between a cooperating witness and Hall was about the "power supply" at the National Guard Armory.

The following day, the witness, Hall and Knott County resident Brian Patton, a co-worker of Hall's at R&S Truck Body Company in Allen, had a conversation about the "lack of security" at the armory and, Patton was "particularly interested in explosives," the affidavit says.

In April, the witness and Hall examined the armory and the witness gave Hall a diagram of the facility. One week later, Hall reportedly indicated he was no longer interested in the Prestonsburg armory.

"However, Hall stated that he might be interested in the armory again sometime in the future," the affidavit says.

Authorities also searched Tuesday the residences of Patton and Daniel Richard Koplitz, of Georgetown. Surveillance of Hall's contacts revealed that Koplitz had been to Hall's residence and was acquainted with the self-proclaimed leader.

Patton and Hall are employed at R&S Truck Body Company in Allen. Koplitz is employed at NOE Mechanical Contractors, in Lexington. Their work areas were also searched Tuesday.

An affidavit in support of the criminal complaint indicates a search of Koplitz's residence, a room at a Georgetown hotel, revealed "constituent parts of a pipe bomb, so as to make the bomb readily capable of assembly..."

Hall told one informant that his organization consisted of 160 members. He appeared before a U.S. Magistrate Tuesday afternoon in Lexington for arraignment.

Federal officials have indicated that the investigation of Hall and his ties to racist organizations will continue. Anyone with information about this case is urged to call the FBI or KSP.

I have been your Magistrate in District 2 for the last 12 years. I have worked hard for the people of my district—whether it be during the floods with the bridges and roads washed out OR when a 30" snow in 1 degree weather hits our area OR standing up for you on a matter at the Fiscal Court—I HAVE ALWAYS BEEN THERE FOR YOU!

Every Spring I know that our equipment and road crews are going to be tied up for at least 3 weeks working all the cemetery roads that we can work BEFORE Memorial Day. People, this just isn't done on Election Year. WE HAVE DONE THIS EVERY SPRING (SINCE I'VE BEEN ELECTED YOUR MAGISTRATE 12 YEARS AGO. Even when the state said that we couldn't fix cemetery roads, we cured that problem by taking these cemetery roads into the county road system. NOW we can maintain them legally. We also help anytime during the year, fix roads to cemeteries when families need it. WE DO WHAT WE CAN.

Since I first got elected Magistrate 12 years ago, District 2 was the first crew to start grading snow around the clock. We also started the county wide cleanup which goes door to door picking up large items. Now we have started one cleanup in the Spring and one in the Fall. This usually takes 3 weeks in the Spring and 2 weeks in the Fall.

This is just a few of the services that we provide EVERY YEAR—NOT JUST ELECTION YEAR! This is not counting "regular" maintenance and repairs that we do every year on our roads, ditches, and bridges.

People, I've never been elected by the "click". The "click" has always been AGAINST ME. THE PEOPLE OF MY DISTRICT ELECT ME. THAT'S WHO I OWE—THE PEOPLE, People, I'VE ALWAYS BEEN THERE FOR YOU—NOW I'M ASKING YOU TO COME OUT ONCE AGAIN FOR ME ON MAY 26 AND system and there are few options for addressing the concerns for residents and state officials to consider.

State lawmakers could call a special legislative session to address the crisis situation in the school system.

Another option is the merger of the school system with an adjoining county. Under state law, the boards of education of two districts can vote to merge the systems. However, there are no provisions under the law to undo such a merger once conditions improve.

The board could also propose a property tax increase to raise additional money but it would have to be placed on the ballot for voters to decide. Board members had indicated they are not inclined to do so

Getting by just won't fly

by Scott Perry

Education Commissioner Wilmer Cody says Floyd County kids will not lose their shots at quality educations because of the financial mess the school system is in.

Cody says kids can learn despite a shortage of funds if student-teacher ratios are lowered and at least some instructional materials are available.

Okay, we won't disagree with that, but wasn't the issue of making-do the basis for ruling the state's system of education unconstitutional a few years back?

Yes, it was. The state Supreme Court ruled that Kentucky failed to provide equal educational opportunities to all students in that landmark decision, and the result was the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA) and a billion-dollar tax increase.

So why, pray tell, is it any less unconstitutional to permit Floyd County students to suffer inadequate educations now, while the school system tries to dig itself out of an apparently bottomless pit?

If students can't keep pace with rapidly changing technology; if they can't get current textbooks and other instructional materials, they can't keep up with their peers around the state and they won't be adequately prepared to advance to the next level.

Getting by is not an acceptable solution to this problem, and the Kentucky Supreme Court has made that point perfectly clear.

The real problem that produces answers such as Cody's you-can-make-it-if-you-try approach, is that Kentucky has never faced a problem like this before and there are no provisions in state law for doing what is necessary.

Ironic, isn't it that the federal government can bail out corporations like Chrysler, institutions like failed savings and loans, and even bankrupt cities like New York, but we can't find a way to bail out a bunch of innocent kids?

Perhaps it is true that no laws exist to authorize a bail-out of a state school district. But if there are no laws allowing it, it is reasonable to assume there are no laws that prohibit it either.

Where there is a will, there is a way.

Where the will is lacking, the Supreme Court has said a way must be found.

Making-do has already been ruled out.

Questions regarding Stephens Branch dump

Editor:

My husband and I live at Cliff, Stephens Branch, and I am concerned and increasingly irritated at the "dump" that's been created and is growing at the entrance to Stephens Branch.

I am not aware that the citizens of Floyd County voted to make that area the "dump." I do know that was the area where they buried all the bat droppings and were not supposed to bother the land for one year. However, it wasn't long after that they started dumping everything and anything in there, and to be fair, at first when they dumped, they had a bulldozer sitting there and cleaned up the mess and buried it so it didn't look bad, but this also took place before the year was up, and who knows, the rate they're going, it won't be long before they start dumping garbage in there, and then we'll have a rat problem.

Now, I've noticed that they have removed part of the guardrail on the opposite side of the street and have started pushing "trash" over that hill. Someone has made a "make shift" road down the hill from where they took out the rail. There was a sewage truck backed over the hill Wednesday afternoon (were they dumping?). Who has given permission to do this? What can we do as citizens to prevent this from becoming "The Prestonsburg Dump," or are we too late? I guess the question would be, who owns the property and who gave permission to use it as a "dump?" The entrance to our little community is disgusting because of this and whoever is in charge of this "fiasco" needs to clean it up, or is this "political?"

At two-thirty a.m. we ordered them to go to #@$%^&#$%^&^^^ bed.

At four a.m. we begged for mercy. Sleep deprivation apparently has different effects on people of different ages.

For a bunch of nine-, ten-, and eleven-year-old boys, the loss of a night's sleep is like losing your homework...you can make it up later.

For a forty-something old man, it's like losing your best friend.

Next year we're renting a motel room...not for us, but for them. Hey, those motels have people they pay to stay up all night and keep an eye on things.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

We got a letter to the editor this week from the Eastern Kentucky PRIDE organization, noting the group's successful spring cleanup and thanking volunteers who were said to be "responsible for this great success."

We join them in a round of applause.

Now, let's see what we can do for the cast of thousands who were "responsible" for the 30,138 white appliances; 31,118 tires; 17,860 bags of trash; 5,050 tons of trash; and 102 junk cars found littering our waterways, mountains, hollows and road-sides.

These slobs deserve some special attention, too.

Say, how 'bout we offer them three squares a day in the local hoosegow for their efforts to slime up the countryside?

Can we get a witness?..

The financial debacle facing the Floyd County School system has given rise to all sorts of speculation, not the least of which concerns the potential collapse of the system itself.

One analyst suggests the school district has just enough money to "turn on the lights and pay teachers," but that's considering an end-of-the-year balance of zero.

That may be stretching things a bit since there is every indication the Floyd Schools will end another year with a deficit.

At any rate, we've heard some conversations about what options the school district might consider, this side of hari-kari, and a merger of the district with another has been an occasional topic.

The law does provide the means for the merger of one school district with another, but there's a catch...

Once it is done, it can't be undone. There are no provisions in Kentucky law for un-consolidating school systems.

The state legislature can do away with school districts altogether, though, if they choose. The state constitution says only that the state must provide a system of public education. The rest of the story has been written by the general assembly.

If Floyd County is any indication...and it is...of the flaws in that system, perhaps our legislators ought to rewrite the plan for dividing up the state into school districts.

At some point we need to put education ahead of politics. In Floyd County, the moment has arrived for putting that idea to the test.

Here's another idea that may sound a little far-fetched but, necessity is the mother of invention.

Start getting those cards and letters written for delivery to whomever ends up winning the Powerball jackpot, estimated at last count to be worth 150 million bucks.

How in the world could anyone spend all that dough by themselves, anyway?

Perhaps the winner would consider bail-ing out a school system or two in the event our state legislature declines to do so.

What are the odds of either happening?

believe that interest and good publicity in our schools will help the public's opinion on education change.

The article was excellent. We can't thank you enough for the publicity you gave us for our concert on Saturday. Your segment showed the positive results of K.E.R.A. in the schools and how our music program is following those guidelines. It was wonderful to receive a reporter with complete knowledge of the subject and the ability to use that knowledge to produce an informative article. Ms. Brock showed a sincere love for students and education. Your organization is honored to have a reporter to be so concerned with issues such as our local schools and their students.

As always, you are a valuable ally to the choir and education. Keep up the good work, and thanks again.

A.A.D.P. wants your input

Editor:

The Auxier Area Development Program Inc. would like to thank the individuals who donated their time, services, supports, supplies, entertainment, and prepared food needed for our Auxier Fancy Park Picnic. The A.A.D.P. Inc. was originally established in 1980. A group of individuals decided to build the program up again to help the community. One of our goals is to get the park back in shape and get our youth involved in keeping our park a nice clean place to hang out. We would like for our youth and their parents to attend our meetings and give some input on what they would enjoy having in the park.

Despite rumors, our group is not trying to run anyone out of their home or Auxier. We just want everyone to help keep our town clean and treat each other with some respect.

Our meetings are held on the first Monday of the month, in the Auxier Fire Department, at 7:00 p.m. Come out and be a part of what happens in your community.

Historical concerns

Editor:

As a member of the Floyd County Historical Society, I would like to call your attention to a problem which is hindering our efforts to promote the history of the county and improve its tourism.

If we are serious about improving the tourist traffic in our county, we must do a better job of preserving our roadside markers. At the present time, no less than three Floyd County roadside markers are either missing or not in place. I am referring to the Battle of Ivy Mountain Marker, the Garfield Place Marker, and the Floyd County Marker.

The Ivy Mountain Marker was damaged a number of years ago, and today it is rusting away in a Pikeville warehouse. No one in the county, it seems, is willing to pay the cost of repairing it or to do the bird-dogging to make sure that it is returned to its proper place. The way this marker has been treated does not speak well for the citizens of Floyd County.

The Garfield Place Marker has simply disappeared. No one in the highway department or Dianne Wells' office knows what happened to it. Do any of your readers know where this marker is? Perhaps it is serving as a conversation piece in someone's rumpus room.

The third marker on my list, the Floyd County Marker, is the one which used to stand on the west side of the county parking lot in downtown Prestonsburg. In other words, it stood on the west side of the lot now occupied by the new Floyd County Justice Center. Judge Ben Hale tells me that this marker was removed during the construction of the center. Speaking for the Floyd County Historical Society, I hope and trust that this marker will be installed at a suitable spot near the Justice Center in the near future. It would be a nice gesture if the judge would get our input before selecting a spot for the marker. The best place for it, in my opinion, is the grassy area directly across from the Post Office.

Time and time again, our Floyd County roadside markers get lost in the shuffle. Too many of our public officials either don't care about Floyd County history, or are too busy to care. Keeping our markers in good condition is essential to a good tourist industry. It is high time for us to begin taking care of them.

At 6:00 a.m. on Tuesday, May 26, a window in time will open for the people of Floyd County. It will close at 6:00 p.m. on that day, perhaps forever for our people, and our heritage as Mountain People.

But while that window in time is open, we can take back our county from the political-overlords; the political machine, that has ruled us for decades and has virtually destroyed us as a people. Both factions of the political machine now running for office grow more desperate; knowing that as each day passes they face a more awakened people, people less afraid of their threats, people determined to ignore their lies, their empty promises. Our people have been down this road before and know where it ends... So their claims of progress they have made; the things they have done for us grows to the point of foolishness. Their promises of the things they will do grows more frenzied as they grow more desperate. County bought gravel by the truckload is now free for the taking; three voters in your family will apparently get your driveway paved free. All done by Honest, Progressive Leadership which wants to do the same in the 21st Century.

We are told that they have a Campaign Fund of $500 thousand, yes, half of a million dollars. Who gave them this fortune to spend; without expecting to get it back ten-fold? And yet, the successful patterns of the past fail them now. The tide turns against them. And as they grow more desperate, this fortune is being spread thick across our county. People tell us that the price paid for votes has increased to $150.00 each; cheating those people who were only paid $20.00 in the early weeks of the campaign. The front yard space rental fee for a campaign sign is said to be $100.00. And, apparently, everybody in Floyd County but us has been promised a job on the county payroll...

Against this avalanche of dollars, gravel, blacktop, and promised jobs; we have but a widow's mite in money to spend, but we have truth on our side. Nothing they do, nothing they say will change nor hide who they are and their ties to the political machine that ruled our past. They cannot wave a magic wand and create the roads, water lines, jobs, recreation facilities, schools, that should have been developed over the past fifty years. No, they have not accomplished anything significant in decades; while we have provided their entire families with jobs. No, no amount of campaign money, lies, nor empty promises, can change what they have done to our people.

We celebrate Memorial Day this weekend. And this event explains more graphically, more eloquently, than any words, what we have lost under the political machine seeking to re-elect its very own candidates. Across hundreds of miles, our sons and daughters, brothers, aunts, uncles, and family will return to their homeplaces; and bring our grandchildren to visit us once again for a few precious hours. We rejoice in the love that brings them home again and we will grieve when they return to their homes and jobs in Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan. Then we will wait patiently for the months to pass until Labor Day...

Everything else they have done to us pales in comparison to this terrible hurt of losing our families. Without jobs, our children were and are forced to leave us, and this has cost us our God given right to grow old with our children around us; to see our grandchildren grow and flourish. Yet, for many of us, time has gone down, and this holocaust has destroyed the love and the memories we will never build and share with our children and grandchildren.

Our children have moved away because there are no jobs here, no means to raise a family. This is no accident. No political machine in history ever wanted to create industry and jobs simply because they cannot control a prosperous people who can survive without their patronage. So the plight of our schools, the lack of jobs, the dingy sulfur water we drink, the factories never built here did not just happen. It is simply a means to an end, a way to stay in power.

And yet they say to us, "Vote for me, I am a Proven Leader." "Vote for me, I represent Honest, Progressive Leadership." And we must ask, Where and When and for Whom? You are the Political Machine now. Tell us what happened to our schools. Where are our factories, our jobs. Explain to us why our children are gone... You promise splendid things for the future. Why did you not do those things in the past?

The longest journey must begin with the first step. and that step for us, while our window in time is open, is to Push the button on candidate number 42 on the ballot, and elect Dale McKinney for County Judge-Executive. He is nobody's boy; nobody's man, and will represent the people who elect him...the people of Floyd County.

DEAR FRIENDS, FLOYD COUNTY'S FUTURE IS AT STAKE

Too often in the past, our Democratic Party has been divided by false promises and self-serving politicians. I am a True Democrat and I have only one agenda which does not include building a political kingdom. I have worked closely with our state and federal officials to bring your tax dollars back home to work for you, not Frankfort, Lexington, or Louisville.

Just one example of these tax dollars working for you: over the next four years, I will implement a master plan to provide clear drinking water to virtually every household in the county. This will be funded not only through your local tax dollars, but also through state and federal grants, including: A.M.L. funding; C.D.B.G. grants; E.D.A. grants; ARC; and limited use of coal severance tax funds.

Another example of your tax dollars at work for you: working together with state officials and legislators, we have been able to make more than $1 million available for capital improvements to our Floyd County area senior citizens centers. I will continue to fight to bring more and better services and facilities to our senior citizens through any available grants and the county budget.

Don't gamble with your future. Please support me, a True Democrat, on May 26, and together we can take advantage of the opportunities now within our reach, to make water available to very household, better roads to your homes and better job opportunities for your families!

Temperatures climb, so does crime

by Cindy Yates
Editorial Assistant

For six days last week, the City of Prestonsburg saw temperatures get warmer, and tempers get even hotter.

"It is a well-known fact that whenever you get warmer temperatures, crime will increase," said Prestonsburg Police Chief Darrell Conley.

From May 12-17, there were eleven accidents within the city limits. The area along Route 114 where Wal-Mart and Food City are located seem to have been a popular, if not risky, place to be during those days. Six of the accidents occurred there during that time, with only May 14 and 16 passing without an incident.

Those two days were not immune from the trend, however, as both days contained numerous dispatch calls regarding thefts or domestic-type situations.

During the week in question, seven domestic disputes occurred. Officers were called to the scenes to either escort individuals to prevent further altercations from occurring, or to go to both private and public places to assist victims of abuse.

Attempted break-ins and thefts were logged five times. Four fights or assaults were reported, and one incident resulted in a female going to the emergency room after being sexually assaulted.

One case of child abuse was reported Saturday, May 16. A local gas station employee witnessed a child being slapped while waiting inside a vehicle.

"People should just be aware and be careful," chief Conley said. "More people are on the road taking advantage of the weather, and the potential for collisions is there with all the construction going on in town," he said.

This week is a national campaign to "Buckle Up" and raise awareness of the laws regarding seat belts and child restraints. During the week, law enforcement officials will be setting up check points to see if the safety devices are in use.

Fiscal court okays election expenses

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Fiscal court members took the last step Monday in preparation for next week's May primary election.

The court pre-approved the payment of all election expenses during a special meeting Monday because it would not be in session again until after the expenses are due.

Those costs include paying for election officers; polling places; and board of supervisors and, expenses for the voting machines.

Fiscal court members also agreed that the amount paid for each of the polling sites should be increased from $20 to $50 — totaling $2,000.

Floyd Judge-Executive Ben Hale and Magistrate Jackie Owens said the prior rate was not enough to compensate the owners of the sites.

In other action during Monday's special meeting, the fiscal court approved a request to increase a current loan by $45,000 for the Big Sandy Area Development District (BSADD).

The fiscal court leases BSADD a building, located on Cliff Road, and BSADD has requested that the court re-negotiate the existing lease to construct an addition to the facility.

On a 2-1 vote, the court approved the loan increase and a revised lease agreement for the expansion of the existing building.

Hale said BSADD will continue to pay for the loan with increased lease payments.

Owens voted against the re-negotiation of the loan and lease. When asked by another court member about why he did not approve of the issue, Owens said "For the way they (BSADD officials) done 911, I ain't got over that."

Monday's special meeting was not properly announced in accordance with state law.

State law requires that public agencies provide written notice at least 24 hours prior to special meetings. The notice must consist of the date, time, place and agenda for the meeting and must be posted in a conspicuous place in the building.

Neither of those requirements was adhered to.

During a special meeting last week, Hale verbally announced that the court would meet in special session on Monday. He said Monday that last week's announcement should have been sufficient for notification.

Magistrate Gerald DeRossett and Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley were not present at Monday's special meeting.

KCTCS team formed

Now that funds have been appropriated for a postsecondary education center that will be built on the Prestonsburg Community College's campus, education officials must determine what programs will be offered there.

A team, which will be jointly appointed by Dr. Ronald E. Eaglin, president of Morehead State University, and Dr. James R. Ramsey, interim president of the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS), will determine what graduate, baccalaureate, community college or technical programs the center will offer.

The group will study the needs and population trends in the area to help them establish the center's curriculum.

MSU provides baccalaureate and graduate education programs. PCC, an institution of the KCTCS, provides associate degree studies.

Eaglin; Ramsey; Dr. Tony Newberry, interim chancellor of the University of Kentucky Community College System; and Dr. Deborah Floyd, president of PCC, will service on the planning team.

Other representatives will also be appointed to serve on the team.

"This will be a top-level group that will establish the process and the framework for the planning of the Northeast Regional Postsecondary Education Center," Ramsey said.

The center is one of five that will be constructed as collaborations between regional universities and KCTCS. The General Assembly, acting upon the recommendation of Gov. Paul Patton, appropriated $6.5 million for the Northeast Regional Postsecondary Education Center to be built on the PCC campus.

Avery Lowe Will Work for You!

First off, let me say I am a member of United We're Strong.

We traveled up and down every road and hollow in this county trying to tell people what their county officials were doing to them, and evidently the majority of you knew we were telling the truth about all of the corruption that was going on then, and is still going on today.

All of the people out there that stuck with us then, I beg you, stick with us now. United we are strong and can make a difference. I have attended all but two court meetings in almost two years now. I have been called a black liar by one of our magistrates, and accused of being there to campaign and to get people to come to the meetings to disrupt them by our county judge. None of which is true. I have gone to try and learn as much as I could about what was going on, and I can tell you that our county officials don't want anyone to know what is going on, in order to keep their control over the people of this county.

Now we have got people crawling out of the woodwork wanting to be your commissioner. These same people would run the other way when you tried to talk to them about helping to change the system; they were afraid it would hurt their business or it would cause their wife to lose her job, or for some other reason they couldn't afford to get involved. Now all of a sudden when they think there is something in it for them personally, they all want the job. After the way our magistrates talked about the commissioner system, I wonder why they even want the job? Avery Lowe is the only candidate running in the May primary that got out and worked days on end to help get the system changed.

I don't know how you people feel, but I can tell you that I will stand behind the one person that is running for commissioner that has really tried to do something for this county. He doesn't have access to a backhoe, grader, or gravel to put on your driveways, but he is an honest man who will work for all of you, not just a select few. So please, when you go to vote, remember the man, Avery Lowe, that has been working for all of you. Let's take this opportunity to make our officials more accountable for what's done or not done in this county, and to put a stop to having all the dirty work swept under the rug.

"The Last Full Measure Of Devotion"

Perhaps Abraham Lincoln said it best: "These honored dead gave the last full measure of devotion."

On this Memorial Day, we pay tribute to the brave men and women who have given their lives in the wars our nation has fought to defend ourselves and others from oppression.

As we pause to remember on this special day, we pray that God's comforting hand will touch those who have died for our country. And we say a special prayer for the families who are still unsure of the fates of their loved ones...those Americans missing in action in Viet Nam.

Nearly $8.5 million budgeted for city's upcoming fiscal year

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg's City Council held first reading Friday of the 1998-99 city budget which totals almost $8.5 million.

The budget includes over $4 million for the city's operating expenses; work on a mountaintop recreation project; and funds to complete drainage work on Route 1428.

There is also just over $4 million allocated for the operation of the Mountain Arts Center, the Tourism Commission, Archer Park and the city utilities department.

Councilman Estill Lee Carter noted that a 50 percent increase in costs for health insurance coverage has been added in the budget. Carter said a 55 percent increase had been projected if the city renewed its current policy. Bids for insurance coverage are currently being reviewed, he said.

Mayor Jerry Fannin asked council to give the committee permission to select the best proposal because a decision must be made before May 20.

Council voted to allow the committee to select the best insurance proposal.

Carter also noted that the city's budget provides for an increase in the contingency fund which brings the total to $170,000.

Also at Friday's special meeting, council:

- authorized the mayor to apply for a grant from the National Recreational Trails Fund for maintenance of the James A. Garfield trail, which runs from West Prestonsburg to the mouth of Abbott, and a portion of the Jenny Wiley Trail located near the city's mountaintop recreation project;

- approved a police dispatcher policies and procedures manual; and

- held second reading of an ordinance annexing a tract of property at Cliff.

Council members Billy Ray Collins, Trent Nairn and Danny Hamilton were absent from Monday's meeting.

"Now you're an official member of our Dream Team," Pennington told the little girl.

The Prestonsburg Dream Factory has been operative for just a few weeks, but they are already getting requests from other children to make their wishes come true. One little boy has received tickets to a Tracy Adkins concert, and another just wants to "see" a real cruise ship.

"We are taking applications for wishes, but we need some volunteers to help out answering the phones and beating the bushes so to speak. Since we are a non-profit organization, donations are needed as well," said Lenore Blackburn, head of the chapter's Factory.

"If you need someone to speak on your behalf, call on me. I definitely have the mouth for it," said Tiffany's grandmother.

"What you have done today, it will come back to you four times. That is what the Bible promises," she said.

Wrong

that last Wednesday's article did give an inaccurate impression on the football field issue.

"The mere mention of the football field caused an overreaction on my part," Times editor Scott Perry said Monday. "I take full responsibility for the misunderstanding. City officials were not as aware as us of the financial crisis facing the school district at the time of their meeting last week. Had they been, they likely would not have mentioned the proposed football field at all."

State lawmakers have included provisions into the state budget which effectively require the school district to build new football fields at Prestonsburg and South Floyd before they can begin any new construction projects in the system.

Meanwhile, a state financial analyst has predicted that the district will remain in a financial pinch, with no money to improve technology or even buy an adequate supply of textbooks, for a minimum of four years and, possibly, for as long as ten years.

Floyd County

CORONER

#1 ON THE BALLOT

Election Day, May 26th, 1998 is fast approaching
Some Feel the Coroner's Office
Is To Be Taken Very Lightly.

THIS OFFICE IS VERY IMPORTANT!!!

Any wrongful death that may happen in your family is to be investigated by the Coroner's Office in the county where the death occurs.

I feel, with over 500 hours of continued education in forensic death scene coroner's training courses and over 3,200 cases investigated in the past 16 years, that I have proven without a doubt, compassion to each family, and given as many hours as necessary to answer any question I can, at any hour.

If I have been to your home, let me say thank you, from the bottom of my heart, for the courtesy you have shown during this campaign. If I missed you, I am sorry, but still I take this opportunity to ask for your continued support. I have ran this campaign the same as I have run the coroner's office the last 16 years—on Truth and Honesty.

Thank you
Your Coroner

Citizens of Floyd County:

The election is just a few days away, and you are about to make a very important decision when you cast your vote. you have two choices: You will choose to keep your detention center moving in the right direction, making money for Floyd County, providing inmate labor for the benefit of all, keeping the community safe and clean, and giving fair treatment to all prisoners incarcerated in the detention center, or you will decide to stop progress by voting for one of my opponents.

Since you elected me your Jailer, I have given 100% of myself to make Floyd County's Detention Center one of the best in the state. I've worked hard to organize a very effective, well-coordinated community service program; to keep the new building in top shape; and to employ some of the finest people in the county. I'm proud of the job these people have done. Together, we've made your Floyd County Detention Center an asset you can be proud of.

I'm sure that fancy words and empty promises are not what the people of Floyd County want or need. They want honesty and dedication in their elected officials. They want a qualified, proven leader to be their Jailer. I have shown the people of Floyd County that I am that leader. I have done the job that you good people elected me to do, kept my promises, and never forgot you.

Once again I am asking you to re-elect me as your Jailer, so that I can keep the Floyd County Detention Center moving in the right direction, moving ahead for the benefit of all Floyd Countians.

END-TIME CHRONICLES

by Randy Slone

In the New Testament of the Bible, hell is used to translate the Greek words "Gehenna" (or Gehennom), hades, and tartarus. Gehenna was a garbage dump located on the south side of Jerusalem. Originally, this was known as the Valley of the Sons of Ben Hinnom. When Jesus used Gehenna in His teaching, He was actually quoting from Isaiah 66:24, which describes the eternal destruction of the "bodies" (not souls or spirits) of those who rebel against God (compare Mark 9:47-48 and Isaiah 66:24; also see Matthew 10:28). During Jesus' earthly ministry, those who were the caretakers of this garbage dump would continually throw sulphur (archaic "brimstone") on to the refuse to keep it burning. The phrase Jesus used in Mark 9:48, "where the worm doesn't die and the fire is not quenched," was in reference to the elements of decay (the worm, or "maggot") and

"A synopsis of hell"

destruction (fire).

The way Jesus used the term Gehenna was obviously figurative, since it is apparent that the wicked throughout the entire earth and throughout all ages will not be cast into a literal garbage dump outside of Jerusalem. To the Jews of Jesus' day, Gehenna represented the most detestable place imaginable, being the epitome of everything "unclean." By threatening the wicked with a final destiny of Gehenna, Jesus was actually teaching that they would become "unclean garbage" in God's eyes. They would be cast into a symbolic garbage dump, where the elements of decay (the maggot) and destruction (fire) would never be reversed (i.e. the destruction would be eternal; there would be no chance of a resurrection back to life). To a first century Jew, Jesus' teachings regarding Gehenna would not have implied eternal conscious torment.

The Greek word "hades" was the direct Greek equivalent to the Hebrew word "sheol." An example of this can be illustrated by Peter's statement of Acts 2:27 (also Acts 2:31), in which he quoted Psalm 16:10. Peter translated "sheol" of Psalm 16:10 to "hades" of Acts 2:27. The learned translators of the NIV renders both "sheol" and "hades" in these passages as "grave."

To a Christian Jew of the first century, hades was essentially a synonym for grave, without any implications of continued consciousness. The Apostle Paul indicates this in 1 Corinthians 15:18-20 (and the surrounding context), where "sleep in death" implies unconscious rest. This is the same basic concept held by the ancient Jews (see Ecclesiastes 9:5, 10). First century Greeks, however, had a different concept of hands, relating to Greek mythology.

The Greek word tartarus only occurs once in the Bible (see 2 Peter 2:4). In Greek mythology, tartarus was a place of lower abasement for "immortal beings" (in this case, Peter used it in reference to disobedient angels). The surrounding context of Peter's statement shows this to be completely irrelevant to humans.

Any discussion of hell will include the "lake of burning sulfur"

(or fire) as found in Revelation 20:10,14 and 21:8.

However, the Bible never refers to the lake of fire as hell. Many Bible students consider the lake of fire to be symbolic of eternal destruction (not torment) for the following reasons. First, the predominant theme throughout the entire Bible is the eventual destruction of the wicked. Secondly, death (the condition) and hades (the grave) are cast into the lake of fire (Revelation 20:14). The apostle Paul stated that death would be the last enemy destroyed (1 Corinthians 15:26). Since it is difficult to comprehend how the condition "death" could be tormented in fire, this scriptural comparison seems to indicate that the lake of fire is the symbolic instrument of eternal destruction to whatever is cast into it. Thirdly, John describes the lake of fire as "the second death" (Revelation 20:14 and to state the symbolism first, followed by its "literal" description (some examples are Revelation 1:20, 4:5, 5:6, 5:8, 17:9, 17:12, 17:18, 19:8). Therefore, it appears that John was describing the symbolism first (the lake of fire), followed by its literal definition (the second death).

An exhaustive study of hell would require much more detail than I can give it in the space of two brief articles. Additional major topics would include the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, the second death, the abyss, the various resurrections, and divine justice. Also, a much more detailed study is required of the major topics already mentioned (i.e. sheol, gehenna, hades, tartarus, and the lake of fire). [I have prepared an approximate 50 page treatise on this subject which I will be happy to provide free of any charge to anyone making the request.]

Personally speaking, I do not believe in the eternal conscious torment of the wicked. This is not what I "choose" to believe, but rather, a belief which is based on a conscientious Biblical study of hell. It is my opinion that if most Christians were to thoroughly investigate this subject, many would come to the same conclusion. I cannot understand why so few Christians take the time to do so.

The importance of hell to the Christian seems to be quite diversified. Those who are violently opposed to any denunciation of the traditional "hell-fire" concept seem to fear that personal salvation and persevering Christian obedience is not possible without a strong "fear" motivation. I have actually heard preachers remark, "If I didn't believe in hell, I'd go out and do anything I wanted to." I think this is sad, because it says little for the motivation of the love of God in their lives.

Various concepts of hell can be very destructive. I have known many people who have suffered immeasurable mental anguish because they believed a "lost" loved one to be in hell. Others have rejected Christianity altogether because the concept of a merciful God being responsible for eternal torture made little sense to them. Unfortunately, many of those who preach and teach the traditional, "hell-fire" doctrine are irresponsibly lax in researching the subject.

An Open Letter To All Floyd Countians:

I had intended to keep the focus of my campaign on my own record, not my opponent, the Floyd County Sheriff. However, after reading his ad in the newspaper, where he promised to solve the county's growing drug problem if elected County Judge, I would be wrong to let you vote without responding.

My opponent has been the Floyd County Sheriff for over eight years, and during my term as County Judge his office has been fully-funded. He is the one elected official with direct responsibility for protecting our children from drugs. During his time as sheriff, the drug traffic in Floyd County has spread into every town, every hollow, and every high school. The sheriff has failed miserably.

Even worse, when state and federal money came into the county to help our sheriff fight the drug traffic, all in an effort known as the Mountain Area Drug Task Force, much of that money disappeared. It was so bad that the state and federal authorities refused any further funding for the county, and halted the program due to "mismanagement of funds." Not only has the drug problem become worse, but my opponent has repeatedly had problems accounting for money entrusted to him. He, himself, asked the state to assist him in "finding" tens of thousands of dollars "missing" from his sheriff's office. Most of that money is still "missing" and unaccounted for.

Later he demanded money from our past school board to furnish protection for our children at ballgames. Only later did we learn from state officials that the sheriff was holding an "illegal contract," budgeted to pay him $150,000.00 a year. All this to do what he promised to do when elected sheriff, to protect our children. That he would now complain about the worsening crime, drugs, and the need for safety for our children, is an insult to the intelligence of every honest citizen. The sheriff will undoubtedly try to deny what I say, but all this is a matter of public record. His failure as sheriff to stop crime and drugs is not hard to understand. The sheriff's office has not been run as a law enforcement agency, but as a political machine.

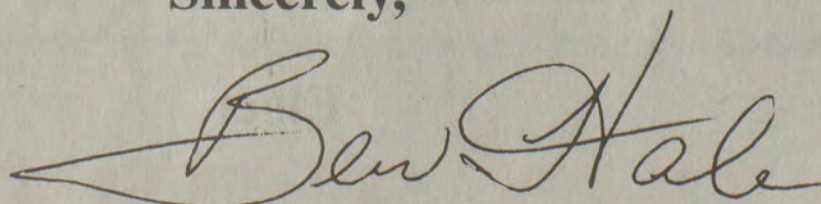

Unlike the sheriff, I have handled the county money faithfully and accounted for every dime.

I have met much opposition from him and those who benefit from political favors, they are working day and night to defeat me. I have and will continue to do what is right for all Floyd County, not a select few. Time is too short and our tax dollars are too few to waste one dollar on political cronies and the building of political kingdoms.

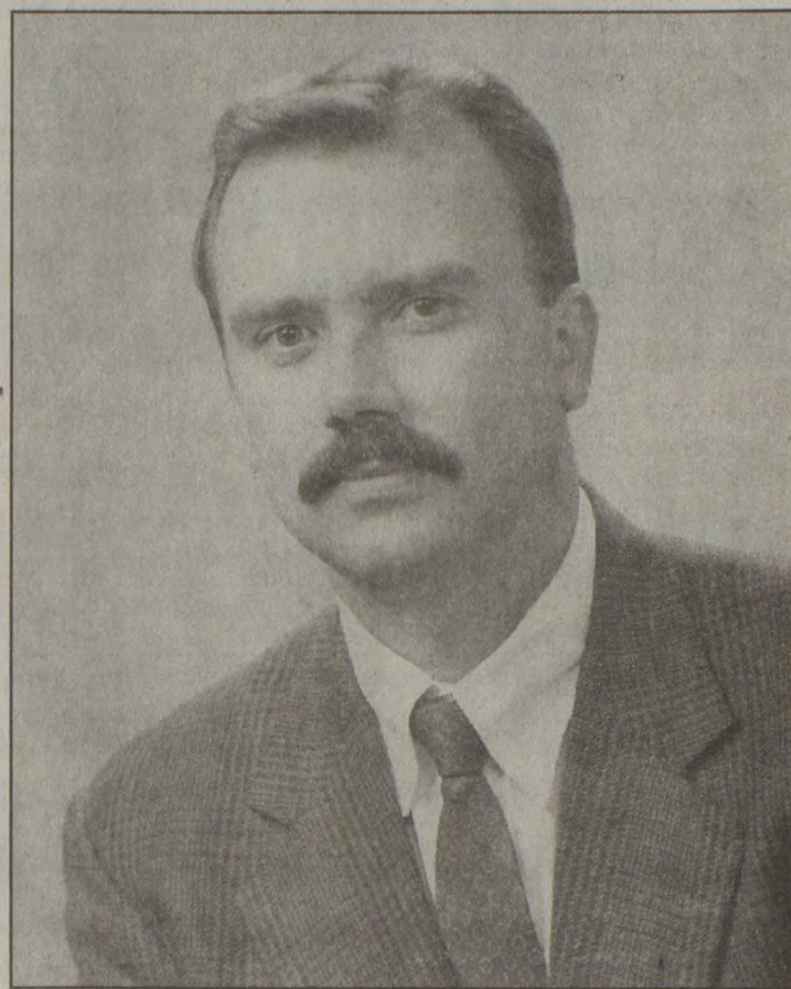

I have to trust each of you to fairly consider me, my words, my deeds, and my goals.

I believe that a majority of Floyd Countians want continued progress, openness, and honesty. I am the only candidate who has clearly demonstrated the ability to lead us in that direction. Please stand with me now, by your vote and support, and I will not fail you, myself or my family.

Sincerely,

Floyd County Judge-Executive

- ★ Provide affordable sewer service
- ★ Clean up our environment
- ★ Make positive improvements to our established parks and develop new recreational facilities throughout our county.

- ★ Assure that we have safe roads and bridges throughout our county
- ★ Clean up brush and garbage from our creeks and river banks
- ★ Seek to secure the necessary funds to dredge the creeks of Left and Right Beaver

OVER THE YEARS, PAUL HUNT THOMPSON HAS WORKED HARD FOR THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY TO MAKE THEIR QUALITY OF LIFE BETTER, BY FIGHTING TO:

- ★ Provide over 100 new jobs to our county by bringing a state prison to Wheelwright
- ★ Convinced the United States Justice Department to locate a Federal Prison in this area which will provide over 400 permanent high-paying jobs.
- ★ Worked with Federal officials to get communities the needed funds to extend water and sewer lines throughout the our county.
- ★ Started a clean-up program by using prisoners to pick up trash and litter off road sites and illegal dumps.

I believe my record of service to the people of Floyd County has shown that I am a candidate who can get the job done. That I am a candidate who can bring jobs to our area, clean up our environment, expand our infrastructure and make Floyd County a competitive player in attracting new business and opportunities for our county.

I am asking the voters of Floyd County to allow me the opportunity to continue to serve you by voting and electing me on May 26, as your County Judge-Executive. Together we can move Floyd County forward. Together we can give our children, grandchildren and all the people of Floyd County a better and brighter future. Together we can and will get the job done. Taking The DARE challenge

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Hundreds of area fifth-graders swarmed Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Tuesday for the seventh-annual D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) Day event.

Floyd County's D.A.R.E. Program was established in 1990 to show youths that they can have fun without drugs and alcohol.

Lt. Ricky Thornsberry, Floyd County's D.A.R.E. officer and coordinator, said Monday that the annual event also familiarizes the students with positive role models.

Thornsberry has directed the program since it was introduced to the county.

"Kids need as many positive role models in their lives as possible," Lt. Thornsberry said. "In our society, the use of alcohol and drugs by a lot of people is idolized by a significant number of our students."

Prestonsburg Sgt. Sue Blackburn, who is the Region 8 representative of the Kentucky D.A.R.E. Association board of directors, coordinates the program at Prestonsburg Elementary.

She said the program also teaches students to have higher self esteem; to make good choices; and to think about the consequences and alternatives to using drugs.

"D.A.R.E. is a big thing," Sgt. Blackburn said Monday, adding that the program was started in 1983 in Los Angeles, California. "It spread this rapidly all over the country and even to other countries — it's got to be a good program."

Approximately 700 Floyd County fifth-graders attended Tuesday's event.

During the event, the students were given the opportunity to inspect emergency vehicles and equipment from fire departments and rescue units from throughout the county.

Paramedics, emergency medical technicians (EMTs), and volunteers with area rescue squads were on hand to speak with the students about the importance of staying drug free and to answer questions about the displayed equipment.

The Left Beaver Rescue Squad demonstrated Tuesday how emergency workers can lift vehicles with air bags. The rescue squad recently obtained the new technology to enhance services.

"(D.A.R.E. Day) gets the kids out and gets them familiar with police officers, firefighters and other emergency workers," Thornsberry said.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department gained hundreds of new little friends during the event when firefighter Tom "Bear" Cooley sprayed the students with a fire hose.

Lt. Thornsberry also said drug-free seniors from Floyd County high schools were in attendance as examples of positive role models.

Entertainment at the event included numerous games, face painting and music, provided by Q-95 FM.

Health Net, the helicopter used for transporting patients who need emergency medical attention, was also scheduled to make an appearance at Tuesday's event. "The kids like to see the helicopter land and take off," Lt. Thornsberry said.

Groups and organizations participating in the event included the Floyd County Board of Education; Social Services; Prestonsburg Fire Department; Martin Volunteer Fire Department; and the Left Beaver Rescue Squad.

The water fountain was a great place to cool off and have fun when the students decided to have a water fight.

The soft grass served as a good cushion for a landing when some students turned somersaults or did back flips.

A gang of boys showed just how much fun they could have on the playground equipment.

Left, basketball was a hot topic as several students took to the pavement for a game of one-on-one basketball, despite the to temperatures Tuesday morning. Right, Members of the Left Beaver Rescue Squad inflated an air bag to show the youths how they can lift vehicles to remove trapped victims of automobile accidents.

Several students teamed up for some DARE softball competition at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

On Tuesday, May 26, we have an opportunity to change the course of history in Floyd County. Again, it is election day and we will cast our vote for the leadership of our county that will take us into the next century.

We need new leadership for our county. We need to start a course of honest and effective government in Floyd County that will benefit us and will establish a firm foundation for our children and their children.

I am Sheridan Martin and my sister, Judee "Martin" Hale, is a candidate for Floyd County Clerk. Judee and I grew up in Drift on Left Beaver Creek where our parents taught us the meaning of honesty and accountability.

Too long we have seen and heard reports of government mismanagement in Floyd County and we all know that we suffer from enormously high taxes. It is time that we have leaders that oppose new taxes and increased fees and that are accountable for their actions. We need lower taxes and fees in order for our economy to grow and prosper so that we can provide for our families.

It is time that the physically challenged, disabled and senior citizens of our community have the same rights as everyone else. It is time that our government leaders work for the taxpayer and citizens of this county.

As a taxpayer, I want to see honesty and integrity restored to our local government. It is time for a change! It is time that our elected leaders manage our tax dollars for our benefit and help the county grow in a manner that will provide jobs to the unemployed. Our children must be able to plan for a future filled with good jobs and a government that works for them.

Judee "Martin" Hale was the first full-time female U.A.W. representative. She has been a business owner and is a parent. She knows what it is like to pay the high taxes in this county and to raise a family.

Judee will stand up for your rights! She will fight to lower our taxes, and fees. Judee will see to it that your tax money is managed efficiently and she will be accountable to the citizens of Floyd County.

On May 26, next Tuesday, Judee and I ask for your vote and support for her candidacy as Floyd County Clerk. She is one of us and she will work for us. Elect Judee Martin Hale your County Clerk.

Thank you,
Sheridan Martin

Earth Team volunteers distribute trees

Agriculture classes at Prestonsburg High School, sponsored by instructor, Susanne Stumbo, served as Earth Team volunteers. They assisted the Floyd County Soil Conservation District by bagging more than 6000 trees of different varieties to distribute to local landowners. The district gives away trees annually. These student volunteers were very helpful in preparing the trees for distribution to be used for erosion control and aesthetic purposes. The Earth Team volunteered a total of 128 hours to accomplish the task.

Nurses graduate from LPN to RN

"...With loyalty will I endeavor to aid the physician in his work, and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care."

As the words of the Florence Nightingale nurses' pledge echoes through Booth Auditorium last Thursday evening, two graduating students had more than enough reason to be proud.

When Ginger Rogers Adkins and Debra Bryant entered Pikeville College's Elizabeth Akers Elliott Nursing Program last summer, they never dreamed of the challenges they would face. They never imagined the continuous hard work and dedication it would take to reach their goal.

Last week, however, their dreams became reality. After only one year, the two licensed practical nurses (LPNs) earned their registered nurses' license (RN) through Pikeville College's comprehensive LPN to RN Program. With this program, LPNs can enter the Elizabeth Akers Elliott Nursing Program and emerge as RNs within one year's time.

Adkins and Bryant are the first graduates of the new LPN to RN Program. But they didn't complete the program without sacrifice.

"Sometimes it was actually very hard," Adkins said after receiving her nursing pin at the traditional pinning ceremony. "I would sometime go for days without sleeping because I worked full-time and attended school full-time. But it's all worth it now." Adkins, who resides at East Shalbiana, was employed as a full-time LPN at Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg while attending school to become an RN. She and her husband, Chris, have a four-year-old son, Jimmy Austin.

"It's good that Pikeville College has this program," added Bryant, who is employed by Mountain View Health Care Center in Elkhorn City. "So many LPNs couldn't become RNs if it weren't for programs such as the one here at Pikeville College. By sacrificing just one year to return to school [instead of two for non-LPNs], I was able to better myself and my profession." Bryant and her husband, Troy, live at Marrowbone.

Pikeville College offers a two-year program leading to an associate of science degree in nursing. Beginning with the 1997 summer session, the college began offering the LPN to RN Program.

For more information on the Elizabeth Akers Elliott nursing program at Pikeville College, or to find out more about the LPN to RN Program call (606) 432-9230.

To: Voters of District #2

Hello, my name is Larry Foster Stumbo, and I am a candidate for county commissioner in District #2. I have worked and lived in this district all my life, and have listened to the needs and problems of my friends and neighbors for years.

There are a number of issues that are being talked about "for the future," but when I'm elected, I will do my best to have progress, immediately.

If you vote for me as commissioner of District #2, I will work diligently for the following:

- (1) City water lines, providing safe drinking water throughout our district.
- (2) Our county roads will be improved and maintained better than ever. Including diverting water that causes wash-outs and trenches.
- (3) Floyd County parks will be improved, providing activities and recreation for all ages.
- (4) Sewage problems will be dealt with by establishing sewage treatment plants and city sewage for rural areas.
- (5) Floods—I saved this topic for last because it may be the most crucial before disaster occurs again. We all know how it feels to sit up all night watching the creek rise. I plan to clean out both Beaver Creeks to decrease the chances of major flooding, again and clean up rural creeks and streams that feed the Beaver Creeks. These small streams are always a problem.

When I am elected, my door will always be open. If you have a problem or suggestion, please call me.

Thank you for your confidence,

Larry F. Stumbo

Voters,

*Do you want a County Clerk who is aware of the responsibilities of the Clerk's office?

*Do you want a County Clerk that can personally help you with your automobile registration, land transfers and voter registration?

I feel you would answer "YES" to both of these questions.

I have worked for the citizens of Floyd County of more than 25 years. First with my uncle, C. "Ollie" Robinson for over 11 years as deputy clerk and as your elected Clerk for the past 14 years. These years of experience have given me the knowledge and abilities to run this office honestly and efficiently!

Therefore, I am asking for you the citizens of Floyd County to go to the polls on May 26th and Re-Elect me, CARLA "ROBINSON" BOYD as your FLOYD COUNTY CLERK.

Thank you for your vote and your continued support!

Carla 'Robinson' Boyd

Usage tax changes: Beginning, August 1st, 1998 vehicles purchased will be taxed on the price given for said automobile. A notarized affidavit of the purchase price will be signed by both seller and buyer. If you need more information please contact us at 886-3816 or 1-800-481-2009.

The personal property tax that you now pay when you license your vehicle is based on the average trade-in value. This decrease went into effect 1/1/98 by the Governor's administrative regulation. There will be a question on the November 1998 ballot for the voters to vote on concerning this decrease in taxes. Our office will keep the citizens of Floyd County update on these legislative changes.

All taxes and fees collected in the County Clerk's office are regulated by the Kentucky Revised Statutes. These laws are voted upon and passed by our Representatives and Senators in Frankfort. No County Clerk can regulate or change these taxes or fees.

Re-Elect Carla "Robinson" Boyd as your County Clerk! I know what the law is and how it is applied!

Tuberculosis cases hit lowest level ever recorded

The number of Kentuckians with tuberculosis has dropped by 50 percent from 1992 to 1997, to its lowest level ever, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Kentucky's TB cases fell from 402 in 1992 to 199 in 1997, the fourth year in a row that the number has declined. In addition, Kentucky's 1997 rate of 5.1 cases per 100,000 was well below the U.S. rate of 7.4 cases per 100,000. In the last 25 years, the TB rate in Kentucky has decreased sharply from 22.0 cases per 100,000 in 1972.

According to Floyd County Health Department's Health Educator Jane Bond, only three cases were recorded present in Floyd County in 1997, and one additional case has been found since January, 1998.

Tuberculosis is spread from person to person through the air. A person can become infected with the TB germ when someone who has infectious TB and coughs or sneezes and the airborne germ is inhaled by another person. TB usually affects the lungs, but according to Bond, "any organ in the body may be affected, but we usually see problems primarily in the lungs and the esophagus, as well."

Rice C. Leach, M.D., Kentucky Department for Public Health commissioner, said "the decrease in the number of Kentuckians with tuberculosis is a significant accomplishment in this state where we used to be above the national rate and now we are well under it. Our goal from 1996 to 1997 was to decrease the number of TB cases by five percent, but we saw a 23 percent reduction. That means 60 fewer people had TB in 1997."

"We have achieved these results by emphasizing TB screening and prevention, and ensuring the completion of TB therapy once the disease has been diagnosed."

People with active TB must complete drug therapy for at least six months to recover from the disease. If people with active TB do not complete drug therapy, they may develop drug-resistant TB and spread it to other people.

A program in Kentucky called Directly Observed Therapy, (DOT) has cut the number of people who do not complete their treatment by sending a public health worker to monitor a patient's treatment and observe the patient taking the medication.

While the general population is seeing a decline in TB cases, migrants, homeless people and people who abuse alcohol or drugs, or are infected with HIV have experienced an increase in the number of TB cases nationally, according to the CDC.

One unique situation in Kentucky is in Clinton County, where the number of TB cases is the highest in the state. In June, 1995, the local health department diagnosed a highly-infectious strain of TB that spread to people in Clinton County who worked in a factory in Tennessee. A total of 16 cases related to that outbreak have been diagnosed.

The Clinton County Health Department has concentrated efforts in the area to control the disease. A TB nurse began working closely with local physicians, pharmacists and the Clinton County Hospital to control the outbreak. Since June 1997, there have been three TB cases reported with only one related to the outbreak.

"Our aggressive approach to containing this TB outbreak has been very successful. We have worked with Tennessee's public health officials and with the CDC to target this area with prevention information, TB screening and treatment, and we have worked closely with private health providers to treat the infected people," Leach said.

The most common symptoms of active TB include persistent cough, loss of appetite and weight, fevers, night sweats and coughing up blood. If you have these symptoms for more than three weeks, you may need to be screened for TB by your doctor or local health department. People with active TB can be treated at home with the proper medication.

Bond said that TB spans all age groups, meaning that anyone regardless of age, may contract the disease if their immune system is already compromised.

If you have been diagnosed with tuberculosis, immediately following the diagnosis you will be asked about anyone you may have come in contact with so a follow-up check on these individuals may be done in an effort to halt the spread of the disease.

The Health Departments usually come into play with TB patients as referrals from private physicians, and they then assist the patient with their treatments and medications.

For more information about tuberculosis, or if you or anyone you know wishes to be tested for TB, you may contact the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788, ext. 238 and ask for Carrie Branham, or call Gene Simmons with the Department for Public Health's TB program at (502) 564-4276.

DEAR CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

My name is Arthur Kilburn, Jr., and I am the Democratic candidate for Sheriff. I do not want to be anyone's Hero nor do I want to be "the wind beneath anyone's wings." Heroes take too many risks and the wind "just blows." The office of Floyd County Sheriff is my only goal. I do not intend to use the power invested to the Sheriff's department to further my career up the ladder of politics. The only power that I aspire to is the power to make this county safe from drugs and the violence that always follows.

I would like for all of you to take a moment to reflect on the present condition of this county. Have things ever been worse? Think about the drugs that are so readily available to our children. It is as easy to buy drugs as it is to buy candy. The drug issue in the schools and throughout the county has been ignored or politely overlooked. The Drug Task Force set up to eliminate the drug problem in this county went broke. Who was the treasurer of this money? Where did the money go? Why is the drug problem worse now than it has ever been? Why would an elected official fail to do what he was sworn to do? One can only wonder that perhaps there is political gain or leverage in looking the other way. This county needs someone with 20/20 vision instead of selective sight. I want to be your next Sheriff because I know that I can make a difference in the lives of the people of this county. I will work closely with county and state agencies to eliminate the flow of drugs into our communities.

Domestic violence has accelerated in recent years. Statistics show that one woman every 15 minutes is a victim of domestic violence. These statistics are staggering but they appear to reflect the morality of our present time. What can be done about this problem? One only needs to look back and learn from the mistakes of the present administration. No person either male or female needs to become acquainted with domestic violence by way of the Coroner's office. I promise, if elected as your Sheriff, that I will serve all EPO warrants as soon as they arrive in the Sheriff's department.

Floyd County must have a change in order to rid itself of political corruption. The present administration assumes that the citizens of this county are blind and that they do not see how one office is grooming my opposition to take over the Sheriff's department to continue the same decline that it has seen in recent years. With Mr. Kingpin as his "guiding light," one of my opponents assumes he will see his way through to the Sheriff's office. I believe that the citizens of this county see the need for a change. This county has seen "the light" and they are tired of being misrepresented. Floyd County must have a change in order to rid itself of political corruption. A change means to forever keep the dirty politicians out of office, instead of re-electing them to even higher offices with even higher political power. Ask yourself why would an elected official accept approximately $250,000 to protect the schools and local hospital when this money could have been used to help educate our school children and provide needed healthcare for our sick? Will my opponent follow in the footsteps of the present administration and use the Sheriff's office for his own career advancement? Will he provide his own security system to local businesses and hospitals or will he provide this service as he is already paid to do as your sheriff? If I am elected as your next Sheriff, I will do the job that your tax dollars expect me to do without the personal gain of excess fees charged to local businesses and schools for the same services.

Mosquitoes result of earlier rains

Abundant rain early in May has caused a sudden burst in the mosquito population. And those pesky pests not only bite, they also can cause disease. Control of them can make life more pleasant this summer and help reduce the chance for disease.

"Knowledge is the most powerful weapon in the quest to combat mosquitoes. Knowing the biology of the mosquito helps you take the right measures to minimize their numbers," said Mike Potter, extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

In Kentucky, two groups of mosquitoes can be problematic. Both groups need quiet, non-flowing water for development, Potter said.

Mosquitoes of the Culex group lay their eggs on the surface of water in rain barrels, bird baths, tin cans roof gutters and the like.

Mosquitoes of the Aedes group lay their eggs at the base of vegetation bordering streams or in low-lying areas subject to flooding. They also can deposit their eggs above the water line in old tires and other water-holding containers.

Mosquitoes develop rapidly, transforming themselves into biting adults in as little as a week. And a neglected bird bath can produce hundreds of new biters each day.

The first item of business when controlling mosquitoes is to eliminate their breeding sites. That means cleaning up debris around the house that can hold water. Rid the yard of old tires, empty bird baths and make sure that clogged gutters don't collect water.

"It's also important to keep weeds and brush cut down around the house because mosquitoes like to rest in dense vegetation," Potter said.

Because mosquitoes can fly long distances, it may be necessary to take added precautions in controlling the pests.

Keep mosquitoes out of homes by making sure window and door screens are tight and doors sealed properly and in good repair. For those mosquitoes who fly in when the door is open, use a fly swatter.

When you have to be outdoors in mosquito-infested places, consider using mosquito repellent.

Avoid depending on bug zappers and other mechanical devices, unless you like the sound of the "zap" when a flying insect goes to its reward. Such devices are generally ineffective.

Citronella candles may provide some protection; however, their protection is usually limited to a small area next to the candle and several candles may be needed.

White is U.S. award winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Jimmy D. White from Prestonsburg has been named a United States National Award winner in the area of leadership.

The award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students.

White, who attends the Piast School, was nominated for this national award by Mr. Rose, a teacher at the school.

Jimmy D. White will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

The academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors and upon the standards of set forth by the academy.

The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

White is the son of Michael and Rhonda White from Prestonsburg. His grandparents are Gilbert and Donna Little of Weeksbury, and the late George and Margie McDavid.

A BROTHER AND FRIEND

Mother brought you home when I was only ten, I knew my love for you would never end. When you were a toddler running loose, I remember how you loved the old white goose.

When company would come to visit with mother, all I heard was, watch your little brother. When you became six, off we went to school, you cried so much, I felt like a fool.

How popular you were in later years, I knew you would overtake all your fears.

You've worked at the mines and auto part stores, while our mother went out to scrub floors.

Here you are, 30 years later without fall, determined to run the Floyd County Jail.

Mark, we'll stand behind you in all you do, remember to be honest, faithful and true.

Remember the hard times we all had, you'll never have to treat anyone bad.

If life should deal you a bad hand, remember how tall mother taught you to stand.

If at any time your life becomes a twister, remember you are loved by your only sister.

Wildlife habitat incentives program

The Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP) is a new program offered by the United States Department of Agriculture.

It was designed to help local land users by providing technical and financial assistance in the form of cost-share payments to enhance habitat on eligible land for upland habitat; wetland habitat; threatened and endangered species; fisheries and other types of wildlife.

The funds received for WHIP will be distributed statewide on a competitive basis.

While the sign-up for WHIP is continuous, cut-off points will be identified where all applications received to that point will be scored according to ranking criteria. Because of limited funding all counties may not receive funding.

The first-ranking period will continue through May 29. All applications received through May 29 will be scored and ranked against each other.

All funds are expected to be expended during this first ranking period and it is unlikely that there will be another ranking period in 1998.

Applications for WHIP may be made at the local Natural Resources Conservation Service,

HISTORICAL NOTES

by Henry P. Scalf

(Reprint of an article published in the Floyd County Times on August 21st, 1952.)

After September 1st, 1952, Praise, Kentucky, will no longer exist. By a directive of the U. S. Postal Service, the name of the post office at the mouth of Elkhorn Creek in Pike County will be changed from "Praise" to the name of the town which it serves—Elkhorn City.

However, Praise will linger in local memory, along with "Praise the Lord," the camp-meeting slogan from which the name was taken. "Praise the Lord" was the favorite expression of the famed Eastern Kentucky evangelist, George O. Barnes.

On August 5th, 1881, after breaking camp in Whitesburg, Barnes came to the mouth of Elkhorn and began setting up his tent. With him was his daughter Marie and the upright piano that always accompanied them on their travels through the Kentucky mountains.

In 1881 the town of Elkhorn City didn't exist. Only a few scattered farmsteads occupied the site. To prepare for the meeting, Barnes' followers began building their rude shanties and raising the evangelistic's huge, forty-by-fifty-foot tent.

Five hundred people congregated to watch the progress of the work, and their presence caused a certain amount of chaos and confusion. Meanwhile, thunderheads were gathering on the horizon, and men had forebodings of a mountain storm. Barnes urged his followers to finish the job of erecting the tent as soon as possible, but few were willing to help with the work when their own dwellings were unfinished. Nevertheless, with much cajolery and prodding, he finally got the tent set up.

After the tent was erected, the evangelist and some of his helpers climbed the nearby mountain and began looking for a pine tree that could serve them as a flagpole. The hillside was steep, and they had to go up a considerable distance in order to find a tree of the right size. When the pole was finally raised, they attached a red flag with white words: "Praise the Lord." Camp Praise the Lord had come into existence.

That night Barnes preached his first sermon. At its conclusion, when he invited the crowd to come to the altar and give their lives to Christ, he got no response. However, he was heartened by the fact that they had been deeply absorbed in the sermon, paying close attention to what he had to say. On the following day, when the news of his arrival spread further into the hinterlands, another hundred people showed up at the camp.

The second service, on August 6th, was scheduled to start at noon, but by then the heat and humidity inside the tent were unbearable. Barnes considered postponing the sermon, but then, at the last moment, he decided to go ahead with it. Soon after the worship got underway, the expected storm finally broke in all its fury. Water that had gathered in the flapping folds of the tent began to come through the cracks of the cloth. While Marie played her hymns, water splattered over her piano. Men left the tent to see about their own dwellings, only to find them rain-soaked and uninhabitable.

By this time Barnes had decidconversion was no fault of Reverend Barnes.

Barnes' preaching and healing continued for several more days. On August 10th, some of the faithful became tourists and went off to see the nearby sights, like the "Big Narrows" and "The Towers" at the Breaks of the Sandy. They were mostly young folks, and though they were ill-prepared for the journey, they went without a care.

to thin out, and Barnes, an experienced evangelist, knew that it was time to draw the meeting to a close. He later said that the Lord had showed him plainly that it was time to do so. When he preached on the theme of "Give Me Thy Heart," twenty-four confessed to the Lord and twenty-seven were anointed. That night forty more converted. By the meeting's end, 358 had confessed and 356 had been anointed. "Praise the Lord," he said, over and over. He wasn't able to estimate how many people had been at the camp during the entire gathering, because they had come and gone. There may have been as many as a thousand.

On Monday the camp broke up. Marie and her piano were placed in Brother Ferrell's wagon, and Barnes took off for Pikeville on foot. They arrived before dark and supped with Ferrell. Barnes was domiciled in Colonel John Dils' spacious residence, and that night, he began preparing for his Pikeville meeting.

Camp Praise the Lord was no more. On September 1st, 1952, Praise Post Office will follow it into oblivion.

They praised the Lord, but Praise is no more ed that if he showed any deference to the storm and suspended the service, he would be showing obeisance to the Devil. Therefore, he preached on. The rain got worse, however, and where it had dripped, it now began to pour. Water ran around the legs of the pianist and began to gather on the trampled earth serving for a floor. When the rising water began to threaten the piano itself, the evangelist deferred to the elements and dismissed the service. The tent emptied quickly.

When the rain subsided, the camp was filled with the sodden, dreary, disconsolate faithful. Their shanties had been scant protection against the storm. However, under Barnes' direction, they built a great fire in the center of the camp and began to dry out their strawbeds and wet clothing. As Barnes later recalled, "Even our lovely banner drooped and clung to the flagstaff, as if all was lost."

Like modern-day rock concerts, camp meetings had support systems—rows of wagons in which vendors displayed their wares. Some vendors supplied food to the faithful, while others boarded them. Horse-swappers tied their "nags" to nearby trees or staked them along the creek bank. Patent medicine vendors were also on hand. At Camp Praise the Lord, for example, a man selling Kitchen's Vermifuge set up a rude hut and extolled the virtues of his product—a sure-fire remedy for intestinal worms.

Healing was a regular feature of Reverend Barnes' mountain gatherings. One night at Camp Praise the Lord, a mother brought him a little child afflicted with scrofula. When he approached the child, she screamed and clung to her mother. However, when he laid his hands upon her, she suddenly became quiet and accepted the anointing without a word. Nine others were anointed during the same evening.

On another memorable occasion, Dr. M. B. Taylor, the notorious Red Fox of the Cumberlands, came to the camp and took his seat in the tent. At the conclusion of the sermon, he rose and confessed the Lord. The fact that he backslid fearfully several years after his

When they failed to return after several hours, their friends at the camp began to worry. A party of men went in search of them and found them in a cabin five miles away. It was midnight when the party returned to camp, and the erstwhile tourists were wet, weary, and bedraggled.

On August 14th, another thunderstorm broke upon the camp, but this time a bucket and pan brigade was mobilized. Buckets were placed under every leak in the tent. There was much scurrying about, with cries of "Here it is!" and "I've got this one!"

To The Voters of District #2:

Aren't you a little fed up with being ignored until election time rolls around? It seems that this is the only time we are of any importance. Then, soon after the election, it's back to business as usual. You no longer matter, and are forgotten.

I'd like to change the "old business as usual" way of government in our district. As commissioner, you will be important to me twelve months out of the year, instead of just at election time. You are going to be able to express your needs and concerns on a regular basis through the regular community meetings.

Let's make a real change for the better on May 26!

CAP holds annual Women's Leadership Conference

The Christian Appalachian Project Community Health Advocates, a program based in Salyersville, hosted the sixth annual Women's Leadership Conference at Camp Shawnee in Floyd County the week of May 4. Attendance varied from day to day, but more than 70 women from Floyd, Magoffin, Johnson and Knott counties attended one or more days of the conference.

Community Health Advocates "try to address physical health, mental health, emotional health, spiritual health through life skills and job readiness training," according to program manager Brenda Wireman. "We deal with hygiene issues in life skills; we talk about attitude, behaviors. All of this goes into making people ready psychologically, physically, emotionally to get into the work force." The 1998 conference included presentations on nutrition, self-defense, AIDS, and home repair. On Thursday, the women were still talking about a presentation they had heard on Wednesday about welfare reform. Presenter Jim Recktenwald told the group to be sure to make their voices count by voting, and by making sure that they raise their sons to give women, including mothers, the respect they deserve.

The CHAP staff recognized ten women who have participated in the conference every year. Nora Vanderpool, of Magoffin County, calls the conference the "best times of my life." Nora and her mother, Minerva, who was also recognized for perfect attendance, began attending a CHAP women's group after the death of their brother and son. "We were grieving," Minerva said. "If it hadn't been for this group, I don't know if I'd be here now." Minerva and Nora met another woman who was also grieving the loss of her son. They said that she helped them work through several problems, including depression.

"It's really helped me, and I'd advise it for anybody whose going through a trying time," Minerva Vanderpool said.

CHAP staffer Angie Slone thinks that the leadership conference is a great benefit to the women who attend. "The conference covers a wide variety of topics and gives women an opportunity to get together one-on-one. They get ideas from each other and that boosts self-esteem," said Slone.

Father's Day tips for dads

Parenting is one of the most important jobs in the world, but it can also be the toughest.

Research reinforces the inescapable reality—strong families are the key to strong children.

And children with good fathers are more well adjusted and more likely to grow up healthy, caring and responsible.

What men do—or don't do—as fathers can have a lasting effect on their child's life.

Regardless of their personal style, most fathers are interested in having a satisfying relationship with their children.

Some men express their feelings openly, while others are more reserved; some enjoy the companionship and play of very young children, while others prefer interacting with older sons and daughters.

There is no such thing as a "perfect" father and good fathers do not fit a certain stereotyped pattern.

Kosair Children's Hospital offers the following Father's Day tips for dads:

- Take an aggressive approach to fathering. Read books, attend seminars and talk to other fathers to gain practical insights on parenting.

- Think about your children every day, and if possible, spend uninterrupted time with them every day. Verbalize your commitment to them and be physically affectionate.

- Children need abundant love. Talk with your child. Play with your child. Laugh with your child. Share experiences with your child. Read to your child. The more you do together, the stronger your bond will be.

- Don't be a stranger to your child's caregiver, your child's doctor, your child's teachers or your child's friends. Stay connected to what your child is doing and who your child knows.

- Stay involved with your child's education. Help with homework, volunteer to help with school activities, encourage achievement and stress the importance of a good education.

- Be consistent. Set rules and boundaries and enforce them fairly and evenly.

- Be honest. When you are open and honest with your children, they will learn to be open and honest with you and value honesty as a personal trait.

- Use positive discipline. Stay calm, choose your words carefully and address the behavior rather than the child. Physical discipline is almost never effective. Take every opportunity to reward and praise good behavior.

- When you sense your motivation tank is running low and your frustration level is rising, seek support and advice from other active fathers.

- Fathering is an active verb. Fathers who view themselves as a "noun" see fatherhood as fulfilling an obligation. Those who actively "father" view it as a life calling.

- Remember there is no such thing as a "perfect" father. It's okay to make mistakes. In fact, children benefit from watching their parents deal with failure and disappointment.

- Keep your sense of humor.

Involved fathering benefits both the child and the father. The responsibility is awesome and the pressures intense, but the rewards are truly magnificent.

For more information on keeping your child safe and healthy, call Kosair Children's Hospital at (502) 629-KIDS or 1-800-852-1770 or check out the hospital's web site at www.kosairchildrens.com.

A Look At Sports

Notebook

I made my second trip to Thunder Ridge this past Saturday night (I was at the practice day they held earlier) and I have heard nothing but good things about how Brad Martin, new track promoter at the local track, has handled things.

I told Brad, who is running for commissioner, he should use that in his campaign effort.

In the hot laps Saturday night, many of the drivers were having problems maneuvering around turn one. Several found their way over the embankment.

Things were running on schedule during the hot laps and qualifying runs. Brad is doing a good job and it is hard to believe one person could make that much difference.

I really like to watch Paul Harris run in the Late Model's. You can tell someone who isn't comfortable on the track but Harris is a veteran who has won his share of races. What a match-up when Harris, the Carriers and Jackie Boggs hit the track. Throw in Brandon Kinzer and Shannon Thornsberry, and you have a very strong field that is going to provide some outstanding racing.

Kurt Hofsess appears to be the one to beat in the modified's. But, there is very strong competition in the modified class such in Jerry Wicker, Jeff Jones and Jason Johnson. There are many other good drivers as well.

While Thunder Ridge opened two weeks ahead of the other tracks, 201 and Eastern Kentucky Raceway Park opened their gates this past weekend. Drivers will be jockeying backwards and forwards to each track, but all will provide some class racing.

CAMPING OUT...

High school basketball teams will be in various camps this summer and coach Henry Webb, South Floyd, told me his team will play over 20 games this summer.

Look for the 58th District to be as balanced as it has been in several seasons this coming basketball year. Both Betsy Layne and the Raiders will be much-improved, and Allen Central will have a strong team. Prestonsburg will still be the team to beat, on paper.

The Allen Central Lady Rebels look like a good bet to repeat as district champions next season, and a very solid pick, by many, not just me, to win a 15th Regional championship next year.

Some are wondering if eighth-grade sensation, Ramanda Music, will play at Allen Central next year. There have been rumors that she could go elsewhere.

"I have heard all the rumors too," said her father, Kenny Music. "I've heard Belfry, Pike Central and Prestonsburg."

Kenny said he did not know where she would go next year, but you can rule out Belfry and Pike Central.

While the Blackcats have still not decided on a coach for this upcoming season, don't be surprised at some maneuvering that could take place. Now, nothing for sure, but suppose that girls' coach Jackie Day Crisp were named boys' varsity coach. Well, that would leave an opening for the girls' job. Now just suppose that veteran elementary coach Ashland Gearheart was to be named to that position. I wonder how that would affect the decision of Music, being she has played almost her entire grade school career under Gearheart?

Now remember, we are just wondering out loud. Ashland would make an excellent high school coach. He applied for the job when Harold Tackett left the program. He has paid his dues in the lower grades, and is deserving of a shot at the high school ranks. It would be interesting.

Any which way it all comes out, coach Anthony Moore is going to have a boatload of talent returning to Allen Central. I mean a ton of excellent players. Hopefully, if she

Boggs returns to Thunder Ridge for late model win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

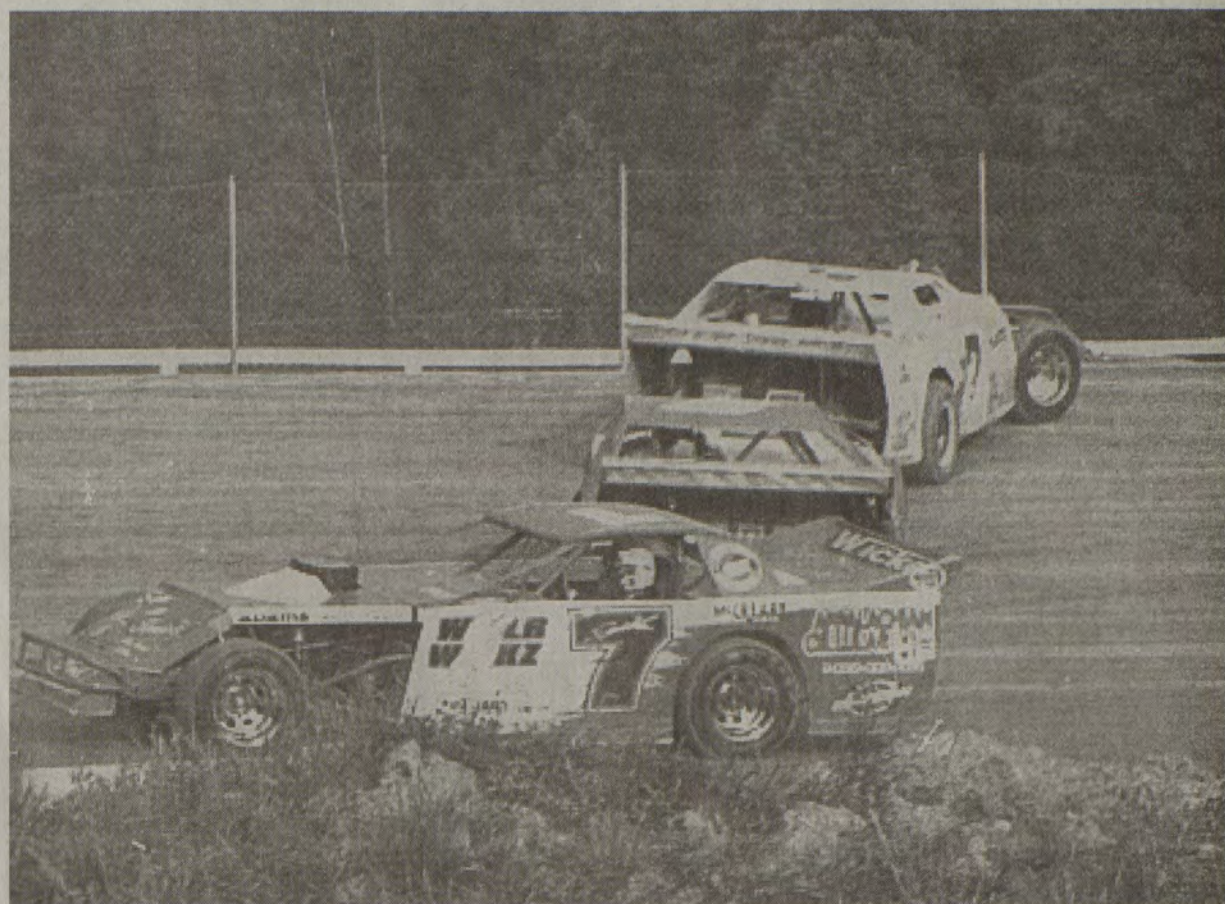

Last race season, Grayson's Jackie Boggs dominated the late model features at the Thunder Ridge Speedway in the early half of the racing season. This past weekend, Boggs returned to the track that had been so kind to him and he took the checkered flag in his No. 4B car in front of Perry County's Eddie Carrier, Sr., while winning the late model feature.

Local favorite, Paul Harris, who won two weeks ago at The Ridge, finished third in the late model class.

Boggs was never really challenged in the race, although Carrier ran the strongest race of the yet-young racing season.

There were no real changes in the modified class with Kurt Hofsess driving his No. 911 car to victory lane in capturing first place in the modified feature. Second place went to Jerry Wicker and Jeff Jones placed third.

South Floyd captures girls' conference

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

What Olivia Stewart and Lindsay Hall could not do, Brook Hamilton did as the South Floyd Lady Raiders track team completely dominated the sprints, distance runs and relays in capturing their third straight Floyd County Conference championship this past Wednesday and Thursday at the Allen Central track and field facility.

Stewart won the 100-meter dash, with Hall capturing the 200 and 400-run. When it came to the half-mile and mile run, Hamilton took first place in each to help South Floyd to score 123 points in outdistancing Betsy Layne 123-93. Allen Central placed third in the event.

The South Floyd 800, 1600 and 3200-relay teams each brought home first place finishes in each event. Stewart also finished first in the women's high jump.

It was a very active coach Keith Smallwood who was on the sidelines urging his athletes on as they answered the challenge for the top spot in the conference.

Betsy Layne's Christibeth Blackburn won the 3200-meter run with a time of 16:21.06. She finished ahead of South Floyd's Eva Cook and Brook Hamilton.

Stewart, in winning the 100-meter dash, posted a time of 13.78, ahead of Betsy Layne's Stephanie Bevins and Felisha Kidd. South Floyd's Kayla Ray placed fourth.

Lindsay Hall, one of the area's top female runners, won the 200-meters with a time of 29.20. Stewart placed second, and Betsy Layne's Samantha Maynard took third place. Tabitha Berger placed fourth.

Hall returned and was clocked at 1:06.49 for first place in the women's 400-meter dash. Betsy Layne took second and third place with Stephanie Bevins placing second and Maynard third.

Hamilton just did edge Betsy Layne's Margarita Boyd in the women's 800-meter run. Hamilton was 48-thousandths of a second faster with a time of 2:46.52. Amanda Compton of South Floyd placed third and Brittany Blankenship, Betsy Layne, took fourth place.

With a time of 6:36.20, Hamilton finished in front of Betsy Layne's Blackburn to take home first place. Monica McKinney, South Floyd, took second with Betsy Layne's Sabrina Hughes placing third.

Blackburn ran strong in the two-mile run with a

Allen Central dominates second half track events

Prestonsburg's Hardee wins three events

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Johnny Martin and the Allen Central Rebels track and field team came home with most of the gold in taking first place in last week's Floyd County Conference track and field meet at Allen Central. The Rebels scored 103 points, and second place Betsy Layne's scored 63. South Floyd placed third and Prestonsburg fourth.

Allen Central, after the first day's events Wednesday, held only a four-point lead over second place South Floyd going into Thursday's finals. But the Rebels won on the strength of their performance in the relays.

Prestonsburg's Ryan Hardee won three events, to no one's surprise. Hardee is a very strong performer in the 800, 1600, and 3200-meter runs. He is a strong state participant, and should return to Lexington this year.

Allen Central's relay teams captured the 400 and 1600, and was just nosed out by Betsy Layne in 3200.

Edmond Slone ran the first leg of the two-mile relay for the Rebels and opened up a tremendous lead over both Betsy Layne and South Floyd. Ryan Owens, who usually doesn't compete in the two-mile, added to the lead, but Betsy Layne closed the gap some on the third leg. On the fourth and final leg, Josh Howell held the lead coming out of turn four and down the stretch to the finish line. Betsy Layne claimed the title right at the finish line when Howell could not hold off the challenge. The winning foursome included: Jonathan Tackett, Byron Stapleton, Marcus Allen, and Barrett Blankenship.

In the finals of the boys' 100-meter dash, Betsy Layne's Matt Rose took first place just edging Allen Central's Mark Dunfee. Rose posted a time of 11:53 to Dunfee's 11:54. Timmy Butler placed third, and Johnny Paige fourth.

Dunfee, after posting the best time in heat one, won the men's 200-meter dash with a time of 23.92. Teammate Brian Crawford placed second at 23.93 in another close race. Mays of South Floyd and Rose of Betsy Layne finished out the top four.

Crawford did take first place in winning time of 16:21.06 for first place. She bested South Floyd's Cook and Hamilton, who placed second and third, respectively.

In the 100-meter low hurdles, Stewart cleared the hurdles in 18-flat for first place. Betsy Layne's Lisa Stevens had a time of 21.11 for second place with Marla Endicott finishing third. Amber Roberts, Betsy Layne, was a fourth place finisher.

Allen Central's Beth Combs, an eighth-grader, finished ahead of Roberts of Betsy Layne to win the women's 300-meter hurdles. Combs had a time of 57.54 to Roberts's 58.96. Sara Johnson, South Floyd, took third place. Alexis Maldonado, Betsy Layne, and Shea Mullins, South Floyd, rounded out the top five.

Betsy Layne took first place in the 400-meter relays with a time of 59.73. The foursome included: Amanda Clark, Lacey Boyd, Amanda Tackett, and Stephanie Bevins. Bevins is one of the top runners in the region. South Floyd took second, and Allen Central third.

South Floyd took the next three relays winning the 800, 1600 and 3200-meter relays over Betsy Layne. The South Floyd 800-meter relay team has been to the state meet the past two years, and a strong contender to return this year. The four are: Amanda Compton, Wendy Moore, Launa Rose, and Brandy Scott.

Rose and Moore teamed with Tabitha Berger and Lindsay Hall in winning the 800-meter relays. Betsy Layne's foursome included: Amanda Tackett, Brittany Blankenship, Samantha Maynard and Amanda Clark.

Compton, Brook Hamilton, Tabitha Berger and Hall comprised the 3200-meter relay team for South Floyd. Betsy Layne's team consisted of Sabrina Hughes, Lacey Boyd, Christibeth Blackburn, and Brooke Tackett.

In the women's field events, Stewart won her third event clearing the high jump bar at 4-feet, 6-inches. Felisha Kidd placed second and April McKinney of Betsy Layne, third. Shawna Hall placed fourth.

South Floyd's Melissa Dorton captured first place in the women's long jump, measured at 12-feet, 7-inches. Jessica Reed, South Floyd, placed second and Betsy Layne's Amanda Tackett finished third. Fourth place went to Maldonado.

Brittany Blankenship had a jump of 26-feet, 6-inches to win the girls' triple jump. She measured one inch better than South Floyd's Brandy Scott at 26-feet, 5-inches. Maldonado and Launa Rose finished out the top four.

women's shot put taking first place with a toss of 30-feet even. Betsy Layne's Rachel Thompson was second at 26-feet, 2-inches. South Floyd's Beth Tucker finished third, Betsy Layne's Heather Johnson, fourth, and South Floyd's Danielle Tackett, fifth.

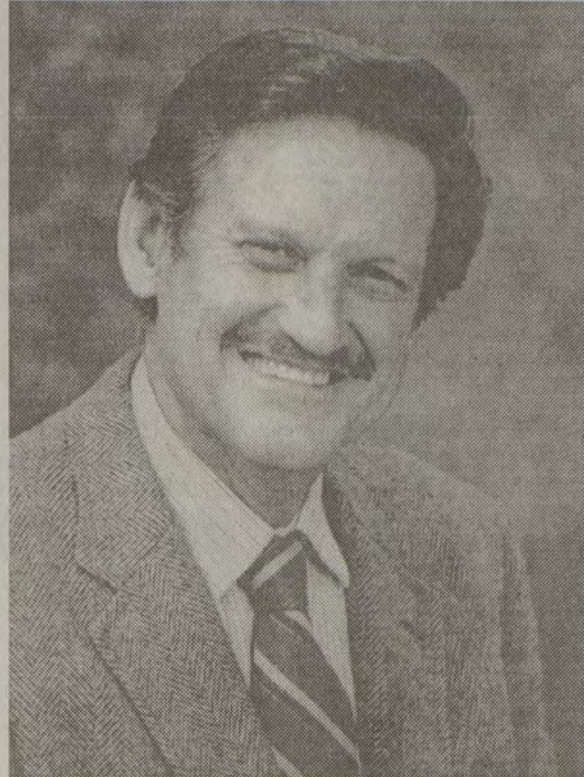

Sonya Tackett was measured at 80-feet, 5-inches to capture the women's discus throw, an event that Wells has dominated over the past three years.

Wells was very close in second place with a toss of 79-feet, 11-inches. South Floyd's Misty Berger placed third, Jessica Martin, Allen Central, fourth, Jessica Flannery, Betsy Layne, fifth and Heather Johnson of Betsy Layne, sixth.

The girls' regional meet will be held in Russell this year, with preliminaries Thursday (with some finals) and the finals on Saturday.

overall. Wicker gave Hofsess a strong run in the chase for first place. But it was Hofsess repeating as a winner at the local track. Jones finished a strong third.

Driving car No. 51S, Greg Ison edged out Billy Hutchinson and his No. A85 car in the super bomber feature. Hutchinson finished second while Kevin Hall drove to a third place finish. It was the first time on the track for the No. 51S car of Ison. Hall drove his best race of the season.

In the bomber's session, Johnny Layne went ahead of the field and crossed the finish line first in taking the checkered flag for a win in the bomber's feature. It was the first bomber feature win for Layne since making the move from the road hogs to the bombers. Jimmy Hall, driving US23, finished a strong second while Clint Shutts placed third.

Jimmy Arnett, driver of the J17 car, won the road hog division. Randy Cook placed second and Anthony Johnson finished third.

This coming weekend will be a special evening at Thunder Ridge as the local track will remember one who gave so much to the sport of racing. Morris Isaac, who passed away, was an avid fan of dirt track racing and did a lot for the sport locally. He sponsored Brad Martin's No. 55 modified and David Dixon's No. 99. Isaac wasn't one to be content to sponsor a car or two, but made his presence at the local track. He was an encouragement to others as well.

This coming Saturday night, in honor of Isaac, the late models will pay $1500 to win with the winner of the modified feature, taking home $600. The super bombers will pay $400 to win with $300 going to the winner of the bomber feature.

This weekend will be a special night also in regards to the first powder puff feature, the winner taking home $100. Road hog special — $400 to win.

A big Memorial Day race date is set for May 29 and 30 at Thunder Ridge. The popular "Winged" Sprint Cars will be part of the race card on Friday night and Saturday nights. Also on the card will be features for modifieds, super bombers and bombers. The same card will be held also on Saturday night.

doesn't go to another county, Beth Combs will be part of the Lady Rebs this coming season. Combs, an eighth grader, has matured as a player and is going to be great high school player.

But the veteran players coming back for AC will be tough to match-up with. Plus, add the fact that Moore had one of the better freshman classes last season.

THANKS...

Here is where we need, to applaud the effort of all the track and field coaches in Floyd County. And here I applaud all of them for the excellent Floyd County Conference track and field meet this past Wednesday and Thursday at Allen Central.

Coaches Johnny Martin, David Bowling and others did an excellent job with the meet. They had a great two days of perfect weather. Thanks should also go to Brian Lee and the good folks at WPRG, Channel 5, for taping the meet to be replayed later this week (exact time will be announced later).

It was another conference title for Keith Smallwood and his Lady Raiders of South Floyd. This program shows no signs of slowing down. Keith does a yeoman's job year-in and year-out. Watch out for the Betsy Layne girls' and boys' program. They appear to be a team ready to challenge for a conference title next year.

The regional track and field meet will get underway Thursday and Saturday with all four schools competing. Allen Central, Betsy Layne, and Prestonsburg will travel to Leslie County, while South Floyd meets at Russell.

A PERFECT WELLS...

David Wells hurled a perfect game for the Yankees this past Sunday, putting him in some pretty impressive company. Wells hurled the gem against Minnesota in a 4-0 victory. Don Larsen was the last Yankee to do it and that was in 1956, a game I remember very well. J.O. Dingus, teacher at Martin and a devout Yankee fan, would never let us forget it. Larsen's accomplished the feat against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series.

Say, didn't he play for the Cincinnati Reds at one time?

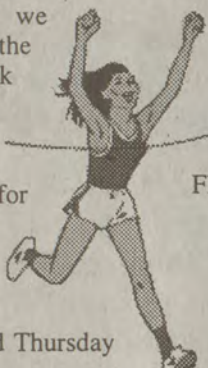

Speaking of the Reds, I would like to see them dump McKeon and go after Leyland if he leaves the Marlins.

Seems the major league teams are taking a long look at cutting an out-of-control payroll. The Marlins, like the Reds, and other franchises, realize major league baseball cannot continue to operate the way they have been. No one to blame for this dilemma except the owners.

FINAL NOTE...

Allen Central Coach Johnny Martin has set his dates for his annual basketball camp. The Rebel mentor will hold camp for ages eight-through-18, June 15-19 at Allen Central. Registration fee is $50 per camper. For more information, contact Coach Martin at 358-9543.

Until Friday, good sports everyone, and everyone be good sports.

SPORTS IN KENTUCKY

Where sanity prevails UK's Anthony still has time and opportunity ... to be a hero

Where sanity and good sense prevail, for Myron Anthony there is still time to be a hero.

With a timid smile, the University of Kentucky sophomore-to-be might as well get ready for it. It? UofL students at Freedom Hall next December waving car keys. And going home to Florida in January when UK plays the Gators, placards screaming: 'Anthony's a Runner.'

Get ready. Those superficial things aside, get ready for this too, kid. To stand straight, look into Coach Tubby Smith's glinting eyes and take your medicine with an attitude. Unrestrained enthusiasm. Be glad someone cares enough to invest in gardening your character. Pulling some weeds.

Myron Anthony does not know yet, but Tubby Smith does. How a young man could flee an accident scene and cower in the shadows for months while a teammate was left to twist in the wind. The coach knows how to turn the episode into a lesson. Anthony could run away, make excuses, or he can handle the next year with common sense and convert the derisive insults into guide posts to better decision-making.

Under Smith's firm guidance Anthony can retrack, get on course toward goals that are sane and of lasting value beyond all the dollars from a premature jump to an NBA gone crazy.

Yo, Myron, travel the valley, man. No pain, no gain.

• Run the steps at Memorial Coliseum every morning through the summer. Then ask Tubby for more.

• Do 50 hours of community service, then call mayor Pam Miller and volunteer to do 50 more.

• Ask an academic advisor to arrange a summer course in responsible behavior.

• Every chance you get, every chance, say aloud: "I made a mistake when I was 18 years old and I'm sorry."

• Volunteer to work Tubby's summer basketball camps with children. Ask to counsel kids about responsibilities and actions and consequences and the pitfalls of excuse-making.

Ideally, Myron Anthony has recognized by now, an important by-product of every mistake is opportunity. Another chance to get it right. Americans by nature—dare I say—especially Kentuckians, embrace a young person who takes his/her medicine without excuse, with head up and uses the misstep to grow. For every Vernon Maxwell, J.R. Rider, and Roy Tarpley, there is a longer list of sports figures who turned mistakes into prosperity and stardom.

For now, focus should fall on Anthony's eleventh-hour confession to his coach about bad judgement.

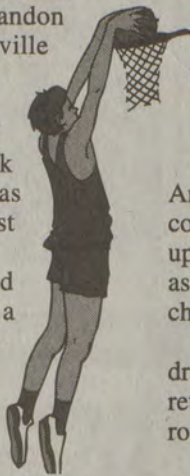

The implication is there is gold enough in Anthony for Tubby Smith to mine a young man's character as much as his jump shot accuracy.

Anthony's future aside, there is a broader opportunity here. In an era when media rail about athletes being accorded special treatment from an early age, Tubby's pleasure in meting out discipline and the good it produces, should be made public for those watching. And make no mistake, young people will be watching.

Across Kentucky young athletes with promise will watch, listen and learn from Myron Anthony's demise, what Tubby does, and what comes of it all. Kids like basketball standout Brandon Bender at Louisville Ballard, Billy Howell at Lewis County, Tony Key of Russellville and Derek Smith at Ft. Thomas Highlands. And the list goes on.

The UK player and his coach can send a message of immeasurable value.

Where sanity and reason prevail, Myron Anthony still has time and opportunity ... to be a hero.

basketball fans who want to jettison player Myron Anthony.

CHEERS. Matt Mooney, senior guard at Webster County, takes his 13 points, four assists averages to Centre College. But Mooney's best numbers make him valedictorian of his graduating class.

JEERS. Surprising Nike Corp. didn't complain that C.M. Newton failed to arrange its logo banner be run up at Nazr Mohammed press conference in university facilities when the UK center announced he was quitting school.

CHEERS. Chicago Cubs' pitcher Kerry Wood said "no" to Jay Leno and an appearance on the Tonight Show. Not ready for hot celeb status, Wood told NBC producers.

CHEERS. Dirk Nowitzki won't be coming to Kentucky.

BITS N PEOPLE

√ Just Wondering Dept.: If Antoine Walker, who had a hand in coaxing Nazr Mohammed to pass up his senior year at UK, will be asked to be a Y in the Kentucky cheer in Rupp Arena any time soon?

√ Rick Pitino says Boston might draft Nazr Mohammed if the Celtics retain their No. 10 pick in the first round.

√ Good news for NBA basketball fans: Traded to the Siberia, uh, Sacramento Kings Chris Webber is now three time zones removed from east coast sports sections and the Washington D.C. police blotter and thus mostly out of view.

√ Growing, the number of NBA decision-makers with Kentucky ties. Denver Rockets GM Dan Issel; Part-owner and coach Rick Pitino with the Celtics; Part-owner and thug-boss Pat Riley, Miami Heat; and Washington Wizards vice-president Wes Unseld and coach Bernie Bickerstaff.

Footnote: Although head coach George Karl could be axed by the time you read this, currently an assistant coach with the Seattle Supersonics: Dwane Casey.

√ Hunch Dept. If National Basketball Association's owners make into reality the rumored player lock-out next season, says here, the move will represent one more significant step toward self-destruction. Seemingly to be helplessly pulled into paying off a growing number of immature athletes applying to the NBA draft, thugball is moving inexorably toward being a play pen for hot-dog, Hollywood-types who will eventually turn off the growing number of fans refusing to pay rising ticket prices. Television viewer numbers are also in decline.

After a 20-win season and trip to the NCAAs, St. John's U. fired basketball coach Fran Fraschilla last week because he shopped himself for other jobs. NASCAR's appeal keeps growing

In this the 50th anniversary year of NASCAR, it seems that more and more companies are finding out just what appeal that Winston Cup has on the average fan.

It seems that everything you pick up has the official logo of the 50th anniversary year and has been deemed the official product of NASCAR.

After picking up a copy of The Charlotte Observer and reading that just one racing weekend at Charlotte Motor Speedway brings in more revenue than all of the home games of both the NFL's Panthers and NBA's Hornets, it is easy to see just what an impact the average racing fan can have.

Coca-Cola bought the right to Earnhardt bumps into Petty sending him crashing into the wall.

And yes, all of you collectors of Winston Cup memorabilia, Coke will be putting out commemorative Coke bottles with driver images on the front of them.

No word on just when they will hit the market, but word is that they plan on producing large quantities to meet the expected demand.

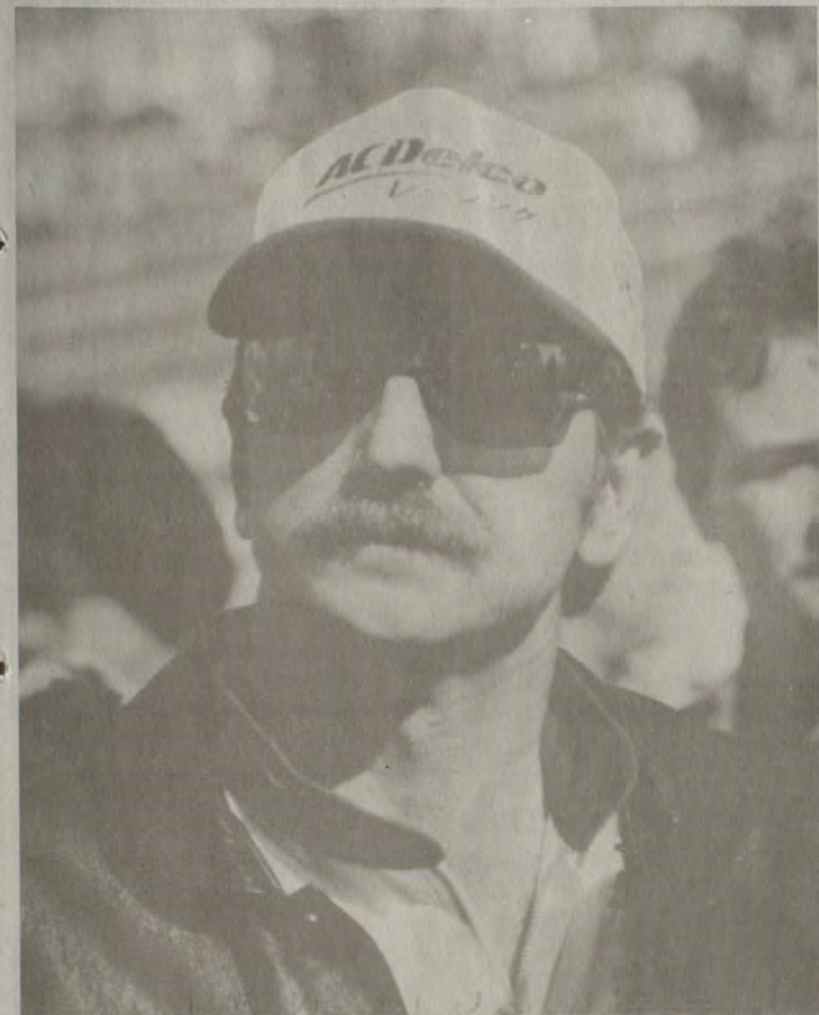

Now Coke is not the only company to discover just what kind of marketing tool that Winston Cup has turned into in the 90s.

Already this year we have seen companies hook up with car owners for a one-race deal that would essentially turn the hood of the car into a traveling billboard for the duration of a race. fans and has become one of the hottest items for Winston Cup collectors so far in '98.

This past Saturday night we saw Dale Earnhardt take to the track in his familiar number three Chevrolet, but in a totally different paint scheme. His car was painted in gold and black and carried the logo of the Bass Pro Shops. Earnhardt, for years has been the biggest seller of merchandise on the circuit and any company that aligns itself with "The Intimidator" is bound to see the results at the cash register.

Just how big can NASCAR's appeal continue to grow? With sell-out crowds every weekend and new tracks begging for precious race dates, it seems that NASCAR, the marketing tool, will continue to gain more and more exposure.

Dale Earnhardt

become the official soft drink of NASCAR under a five-year, contract. Now Coke is no stranger to the NASCAR wars as they have been sponsoring races and cars for over 30 years. This Sunday's race at CMS is the Coca-Cola 600, and it is considered one of the five biggest races on the entire schedule. Not only does Coke benefit from the race being the longest race of the year at 600 miles, it is also the only race that starts in the day and continues well after the moon rises over the speedway. This pushes the race into the prime time hours of television viewing which will put its logo and commercials before many more families than in the usual afternoon viewing times of most races.

This year Coke has stepped up its involvement in NASCAR by building its campaign around the Coca-Cola racing family - 10 drivers and their families. The driver's life-sized images are starting to appear in just about every grocery or convenient store that you visit. In addition, in a very unusual move, Coke has put the drivers on the front of many of their vending machines. It sure seems to be a great idea, because I saw people this past weekend at Charlotte line up just to have their picture taken with their favorite driver on the front of the soft drink machines!

The drivers that make up the Coke Family are Dale Earnhardt, Bobby Labonte, Bill Elliott, Dale Jarrett, Jeff Burton, Kyle Petty, Todd Bodine, Ricky Rudd, Kenny Irwin, Jr., and Steve Park.

The promotional use of the drivers doesn't end with the stand-ups either. Earnhardt, Jarrett and Petty star in a one-minute short to run in movie theaters later this year. The three race from a theater to get popcorn and a Coke. Tragedy strikes on the trip back to their seats when

THE RACING REPORTER

Winston goes to Mark Martin

Mark Martin captured his first all-star event, The Winston, Saturday, as he took the checkered flag after Jeff Gordon ran out of fuel.

Gordon appeared to be on his way to victory lane when his No. 24 Dupont Monte Carlo sputtered, then slowed as he entered turn one of the final lap. Even though he had built up a 12-car-length lead over Martin, it didn't matter.

"It was pretty embarrassing," Gordon said. "At the white flag we started sputtering and there was nothing I could do. Everybody on the team had done a great job, we just ran out of gas."

Gordon, who was making a bid for his third Winston victory in four tries, appeared to be on track for another win. While crew chief Ray Evernham elected to take on only two tires between the second and third segments, Martin took on four.

Back on the track, Gordon lined up first for the restart of the third and final segment. NASCAR officials ruled that he jumped start, and ordered a new one. It was probably these extra laps that cost Gordon and his team the victory.

"It was theirs. They had it won," said Martin. "We lucked out because I don't think we would have ever caught them."

Randy Lajoie, the 1996-97 Busch champion, was caught up in a wreck and hit the wall on lap five. He wound up finishing 42nd. He dropped three positions in the points, from fifth down to eighth. Lajoie is now 247 points behind the leader, Mike McLaughlin.

the men's 400-meter run. Crawford had a time of 55.82 for first place. Chad Bryant and Byron Stapleton of Betsy Layne finished second and third, respectively. Nathan Reed of South Floyd placed fourth.

With the absence of Jesse Robertson, Hardee had to hold off the challenge of Allen Central's Nick Samons in the half-mile (800 meters). Hardee had a time of 2:03.62 for first place. Samons finished in 2:14.28. Barrett Blankenship placed third and Ryan Shannon fourth. Larry Mullins was fifth.

Hardee breezed in the one-mile run with a time of 4:51.00 for the top spot. Again it was Samons finishing second at 5:06.10. Blankenship finished third with fourth place going to Betsy Layne's Nat Blackburn. Rick Hall finished fifth.

Hardee lapped the field in the 3200-meter run and was never challenged. His effortless victory overlapped second and third place finishers, Nick Samons and Gary Hunter. Hardee had a time of 10:58.00 while Samons finished at 13:22.07.

Timmy Butler of South Floyd went to the state meet last year in the 110 hurdles, and could be going again this year. Butler won the hurdles in 17.08. Second place went to Gary Hunter with Matt Rose finishing third. Byron Stapleton took fourth place.

Rose cleared the final hurdle in front of the pack with a time of 43.43 to place first. Ryan Shannon was second, followed by Ketrin Mays and Larry Mullins.

In the men's high jump, Butler was the winner at six-feet even. Allen Central's Jackie Owens placed second with Josh Allen coming in third. Lewis Hummel, David Poff, and Justin Paige rounded out the top five.

Jackie Owens was measured at 17-feet, 3-inches in capturing the men's long jump. Chad Bryant was very close at 17-feet, 1-inch. Poff took third, Kyle Tackett, fourth, and Jason Salisbury, fifth.

Ketrin Mays was a foot better than Allen Central's Jackie Owens in the men's triple jump. Mays was measured at 38-feet, 9-inches while Owens finished at 37-feet, 9-inches. Ryan Owens finished third, Chad Bryant, fourth and Jake Hamilton, fifth.

Prestonsburg's Jeremy Caudill placed first in the men's shot put at 43-feet, 4-inches. The remarkable thing about Caudill's toss was he was throwing for the first time since shoulder surgery. South Floyd's Jarrod Johnson placed second with Jason Salisbury of Betsy Layne third. Jesse Hall, Nathan Leslie and Shawn Case rounded out the top six.

Ryan Owens just missed his longest throw of the season with a toss of 124-feet, 2-inches for first place. Owens previous best was just over 125-feet. Jesse Hall placed second, and Nick Compton

Prestonsburg advances with win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Bridget Clay and her Prestonsburg Lady Blackcat softball team got a strong pitching performance from Brandi Slone and posted a 14-9 win over the Betsy Layne Lady Cats in the opening round of the girls' 58th District softball tournament at Archer Park Monday night.

Wells fanned 10 batters in picking up the win for Prestonsburg. Heather Hamilton suffered the loss in a season-ending game for Betsy Layne.

Prestonsburg batted around in the bottom of the second inning when they pushed across seven runs to take a 7-2 lead. Betsy Layne committed three errors in the inning, making only three runs earned.

Amelia Conley opened the rally with a lead off single and Slone followed with an RBI double. Two consecutive errors allowed Slone to score. Alisha Spears singled and Brooke Coleman followed with a double. Sloppy fielding and a break down in fundamentals on defense allowed the Lady Blackcats to lead 7-2 after two innings.

Betsy Layne had taken a 2-0 lead in the top of the first. Hamilton opened the game with a single and Denise Jones drew a one-out walk before both runners scampered home on Mendy Robinette's two-run double. Slone fanned the next two batters to end the threat.

After the seven-run second for Prestonsburg, Betsy Layne plated two more runs to make it a 7-4 game. Devon Reynolds singled and Jones walked to put runners on for Betsy Layne. Both runners scored on Rachel Thompson's two-run single.

The Lady Blackcats got one run back in their half of the third on consecutive walks to Slone and Kristy Johnson. Slone scored on a wild pitch after stealing third base.

Prestonsburg made it a 11-4 game with three more runs in the fourth inning. Margaret Damron drew a one-out walk, moved to second on Kimi Nunnery's single. She stole third and scored on a catcher's error. Conley walked and scored behind Nunnery on Slone's base hit.

But Betsy Layne stayed close with three runs in the top of the fifth inning for a 11-7 game. Slone walked the first three batters she faced in the top of the inning. Shaky defense allowed two runners to cross home plate and with one out, Slone walked two more batters, forcing home Robinette and Newsome.

Prestonsburg got the three runs back in their half of the fifth inning on three consecutive one-out base hits. Spears singled to start the inning but was out attempting to steal second. Coleman then ripped a base hit, stole second and scored on Howell's RBI double. Damron singled home Howell and scored the third run in the inning.

The final two Betsy Layne runs came in the top of the seventh inning. Hamilton singled home the two runs with a base hit.

Yates's no-hits South Floyd in district tournament

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

In a shortened game, the Allen Central Lady Rebels batted and batted in scoring a 19-0 win over South Floyd in the girls' district softball tournament at Archer

Park.

Tish Yates hurled a no-hitter in the brief two-inning game.

The game only went two and one-half innings before the mercy rule came into effect. Allen Central batted twice in the game.

Yates fanned five batters in the three innings she worked, allowing no runs on no hits. Amber Scott picked up four runs, batted on two singles for the Lady Rebs. She had a two-run single in the first and duplicated the feat in the second. Natalie Cooley had three RBI's while freshman Shannon Sizemore drove in two runs.

Allen Central sent 14 batters to the plate in the first. Yates had a single and an RBI in the first frame. Shanna Howell collected two hits in the game, and drove home three runs. She doubled in the first had a sacrifice fly in her second at bat in the first and singled in the second.

In the Allen Central second, 12 batters went plateward as Allen Central scored nine times to take the 19-0 lead.

Cooley had a two-run single with Howell and Vylinda Turner picking up RBI's.

Only three batters reached base on Yates, all by walks. Sixth grader Megan Ousley was the only runner to reach third base and that was in the third inning. Jackie Gibson was left stranded at second base in the third inning.

Allen Central moved into the championship game Tuesday evening.

With rain in the past, racing gets green flag at Eastern Raceway Park

(See Eastern, page nine)

Having the first two scheduled racing events canceled because of weather, the East Kentucky Raceway Park opened under some perfect weather conditions this past Friday night.

Jim Allen and his crew worked hard getting the track in racing shape with a smooth track and almost dust free conditions.

In the modified feature, Mt. Gay, West Virginia's Tim Moore drove his No. 69 racer to the victory circle, holding off an earlier challenge from Martin's Jeff Jones.

On the start of the 15-lap feature, Jones and Moore were door-to-door on the first straight-away, with the advantage going to Moore as they exited turn two. South Point, Ohio driver, Todd Robinson, who gained the runner-up spot from Jones on the second trip around, made up ground in a hurry on Moore.

Moore extended his lead and went on to win the feature race. Robinson finished second.

Paintsville's Mike Osborne had the fast qualifying time of 16.28 in the super bomber class and set at the inside pole position beside Willard's Harlan Ferguson. At the onset of the race, Osborne got out to an early lead while Ferguson put forth a solid effort in his chase. By the fourth lap, Ferguson had erased the early lead established by Osborne, and grabbed the lead by inches on lap five. But Osborne did not let up and battled back taking the lead on the next lap. When the checkered flag fell, it was Osborne taking the flag and the feature race.

Richard Fincher, 1997 National Champion dirt semi-pro, made the drive from Wilmer, Alabama and won Friday night's INEX Legend Race, finishing ahead of Darrell Lunford, Patrick Morris, and Lee Turner. Fincher led every lap of the feature.

Ironton, Ohio's Scott Skaggs edged Booncamp's Kevin Baker at the finished line to claim the bomber feature. The two waged a battle from the onset of the race.

Riverside holds first points kart race

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was a perfect race day for all the karts that showed up at the Riverside Kart Raceway in D'wale this past Saturday afternoon. The weather was just right and it was to be the first-of-six points races to be held at the local track this race season.

Eight classes raced at the track with a good turnout and strong competition on the oval track. The newly-graveled lot, to make room for more parking, was a welcomed sight for those who attend the regular racing dates.

ROOKIES CLASS

Seth Setser took the checkered flag in his #118 kart for first place in the rookie class. Justin Adkins, in kart #19, finished second and third place went to Chris Halbert in kart #3C.

250S

Jason Cantrell took the checkered flag in his #3 kart and went on to victory lane in winning the 250. Brandon Morrison placed second and Jeremy Hall finished third.

Jeremy Hall came back and rode his number 07 to the winner's circle in winning the open. Lester Newsome placed second in his 21 kart, and Bobby Wireman was third.

Insects thrive in mild Kentucky winter; trade winter clothes for suntan oil

Some insects might have considered trading in their long johns for sunglasses and suntan oil this winter in Kentucky.
"Temperatures didn't drop enough to dramatically reduce populations of some insects that overwinter above the soil. As a result, farmers may have higher numbers of some crop pests, such as cucumber beetles and corn flea beetles this year," said Ric Bessin, entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.
"Harsh winters really reduce populations of some insects that overwinter above ground in places like trash piles, weeds or tree bark," Bessin said. "The danger to most insects is the lowest temperature without snow, which serves as an excellent insulator, rather than the average winter temperature.

This winter we've not had the extreme low temperatures that normally occur."
Across Kentucky, January temperatures were about 10 degrees above normal this year, according to Tom Priddy, meteorologist with the College of Agriculture. February temperatures were nearly seven degrees above normal. Temperatures in December 1997 were about normal.
Spotted and striped cucumber beetles and corn flea beetles are among the crop pests that can benefit from a mild winter, Bessin said. Some beneficial insects, such as lady beetle also thrive during mild winters.
"Cucumber beetles serve as a reservoir for bacteria that cause bacterial wilt. They transmit the disease-causing organism during spring feeding," he said.

"Cucumbers and musk melons (cantaloupe and honeydew) are most susceptible. Squash, pumpkins and watermelons are also infected by bacterial wilt."
The corn flea beetle is another insect that benefits from mild winters. This pest transmits Stewart's wilt. Growers should plant sweet corn and field corn varieties with resistance to Stewart's wilt when mild winters likely contributed to high corn flea beetles populations.
"The alfalfa weevil is another pest that normally benefits from mild winters; however, these pests go through a population cycle," said John Parr, entomology research specialist. "Every 10 or so years populations tend to drop. We're at the low end of this cycle now. Winter population surveys revealed very low egg numbers."
Whether mild or severe, winter weather doesn't affect populations of the black cutworm, fall armyworm and potato leaf hopper because these pests re-infest from the south rather than overwinter in Kentucky, Bessin said.

Beneficial insects, such as lady beetles, also should benefit from mild winter weather. The beetles should have ample insect prey this spring to help build up their populations.
The soil insulates insects that overwinter in the ground, such as Japanese beetles whose white grub stage stays eight-to-12 inches below the surface, according to Bessin.
"Mild winter temperatures will have little effect on whether '98 is a good or bad year for Japanese beetles," he said. "Diseases and natural enemies will be more important factors."

Your retirement

It's never too early—or too late—to start saving

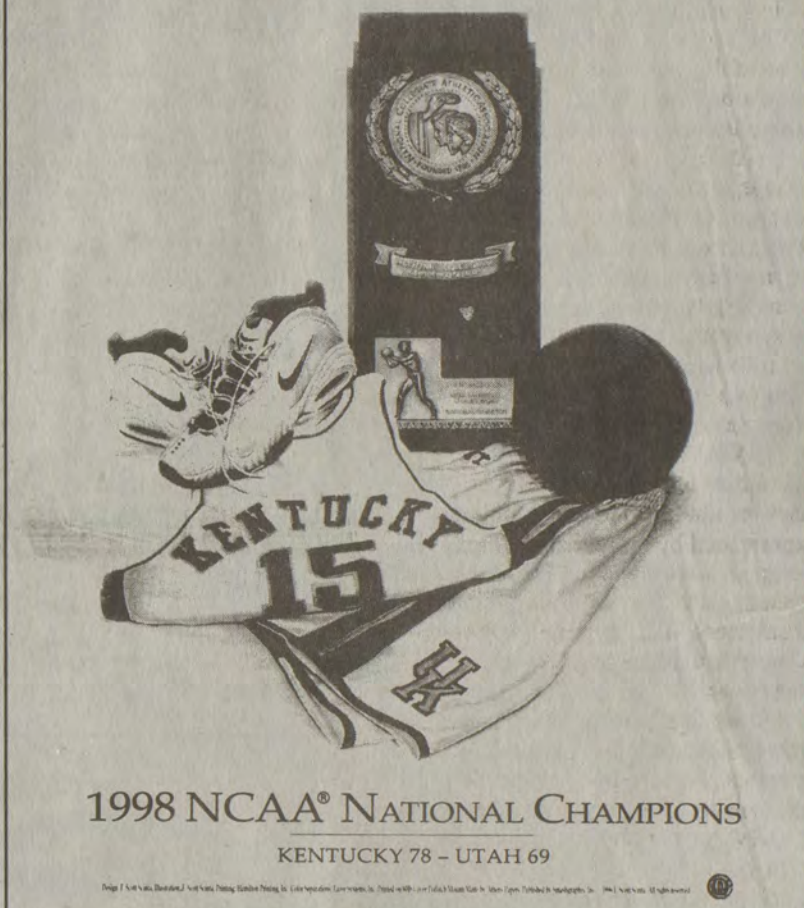

Your retirement nest egg—it's probably the largest sum of money you'll ever need to accumulate. More than you needed for your car, the down payment on your home, or your children's education.
And that sum continues to grow. Americans are living longer—and spending more time in retirement—than ever before. Today, a 66-year-old man can expect to live 16 more years, to age 82, according to the National Center for Health Statistics. And that number is the baby-boom generation approaches retirement age.
If you're a woman, you're likely to spend even more time in retirement. More than twice as many baby-boom women can expect to live past age 85, compared to men.

So, most of us need to plan for a long, and expensive, retirement. But many of us aren't planning well enough. A 1991 Congressional study found that half of all retirees in the late 1980s entered retirement with less than $10,000 in savings.
"Some people see that number and say, 'So what? Social Security will provide what I need.' But that's just not the case," says Cherie Hall, director of Retirement Plan Marketing for the Touchstone Family of Funds and Variable Annuities. With almost 20 years in the financial services industry, she has advised hundreds of individuals on retirement planning.
"For most of us, Social Security will only provide about a quarter of the income we'll need for a comfortable retirement," Hall says. "The rest has to come from pension plans and personal savings. Typically, savings have to generate one-third to one-half of a person's retirement income. So the sooner—and the smarter—each of us starts saving, the better."
Hall points to a general rule of thumb that for every ten years you delay starting to save for retirement, you have to save more than three times as much to build, the same nest egg. In other words, it only takes $100 a month beginning at age 30 to reach the same goal that will require more than $350 a month if you wait until age 40.

But don't despair. Even if you're in your 50s, you still have time to put your money to work for you. The key is to get started—now!
Where to start? Hall outlines a simple, three-step process.
• Determine your budgeted retirement needs. Everyone's goals are different—early retirement, part-time work, travel—so you'll need to do some thinking about the lifestyle you expect. Depending on your goals, you can anticipate that your average annual retirement expenses will be between 70 percent and 100 percent of your current expenses.

• Estimate your Social Security and pension income. The Social Security Administration will estimate your benefits for free, and you can ask your employer for information on your pension.
• Calculate the nest egg you'll need. Subtract your estimated Social Security and pension income from your anticipated expenses, and you'll know how much your savings will need to generate each month or year to fund your retirement.
Hall explains that this is where a professional financial consultant

Tips on managing asthma

Is your child awakened during the night due to coughing or does your child have several "colds" throughout the year? Do cough medicines and antibiotics not seem to be helping? The chronic lung disease of asthma can be deceptive. Its symptoms mimic other conditions and can be so subtle that it is often hard to identify. The keys to managing asthma are recognizing its symptoms, reducing the triggers of asthma attacks and working with your child's doctor to create a daily management plan.

WHAT IS ASTHMA?

Asthma is an inflammatory lung disease, not a contagious illness, experienced by more than 100 million people worldwide. The disease is not curable, but it is controllable. Treatments can reverse asthma symptoms and keep them from getting worse.

During an asthma attack, the lining of the airways in the lungs becomes swollen and produces a thick mucus. The muscles around the airways tighten and make the airways narrower. These changes block the flow of air, making it hard to breathe. This can be a life-threatening situation.

The disease is mostly identified in young children; however, it can develop at any age. It is one of the most common chronic illnesses in childhood and is the number one cause of both school absenteeism and children's trips to the hospital emergency room. However, with adequate control, children can get better and may "feel" cured. But, asthma may be a life-long disease, and many of these "cured" children will have some degree of asthma symptoms later in life.

WHAT ARE THE SYMPTOMS OF ASTHMA?

Children with asthma will have one or more of the following symptoms:

- Coughing that lasts more than three weeks—This is the most common symptom. Coughing often occurs in children with asthma after exercise, when the lung function is increased, or during the night, when the lung function is decreased.
- Shortness of breath—With asthma, the airways in a child's lungs will narrow at times making breathing more difficult.
- Tightness in the chest—As the airways in a child's lungs narrow, a feeling of tightness may exist.
- Wheezing—A hoarse whistling sound is sometimes associated with a child's difficulty in breathing, but not all children with asthma wheeze.

WHAT CAUSES ASTHMA ATTACKS?

Children with asthma have airways that are extremely sensitive to things that do not bother people without asthma. The most common triggers for asthma attacks are:

- dander (or flakes) from skin,

- roach droppings.
- pollens from grass, trees and molds.

- changes in weather and temperature.

WHAT CAN I DO TO HELP MY CHILD?

Asthma cannot be cured, but it can be controlled. Try to determine the things that are associated with your child's asthma attack and plan ways to avoid or reduce your child's contacts with those triggers. Some suggestions are:

- Keep your child away from smoke. Ask people not to smoke in your home or car.
- Protect your child's sleeping area, if your child is allergic to dust.
- Reduce dust from beds and pillows by putting special covers on mattresses and pillows.
- Wash sheets, blankets and mattress pads in very hot water every week to kill dust mites.
- Choose a stuffed animal for your child that can be washed weekly and reduce other stuffed animals, pillows, soft chairs with cushions and rugs to help decrease dust.

- Find new homes for furry pets and birds if your child is allergic to them.
- Get rid of roaches. Many people with asthma are allergic to their droppings.
- Keep windows close and use an air conditioner if you have one, especially when pollen or pollution is bad.
- Choose a physician familiar with the latest treatment information.

CAN MY CHILD LEAD AN ACTIVE LIFE WITH ASTHMA?

After determining the proper asthma management plan with your doctor, your child should be encouraged to participate in all kinds of physical activities. Some activities are better suited for persons with asthma, such as swimming and bicycle riding. But, a child with asthma should not be excluded from the sport or physical activity of his or her choice. People with asthma have won Olympic gold medals in track and field. The most important thing to remember is that the asthma should be under excellent control before engaging in heavy exercise.

TAKING CHARGE OF ASTHMA

When your child is having an asthma attack, it can be a very scary situation, even life-threatening. But if you notice the symptoms and seek treatment now, you may be able to avoid that situation. Take charge of your child's asthma and learn to control it.

The best way is to work with a doctor to find the right treatment plan. Preventive medicine helps keep asthma attacks from starting and rescue medicine helps stop an asthma attack in progress. If your child shows any of the symptoms mentioned in this article, take the time to talk with your child's doctor.

When we'd skin the grass off the infield and really took the time to pick up the rocks, and when we could find enough scrap lumber and discarded chicken wire to build a backstop, we really had a dandy diamond in the rough in the school-house bottom. To be sure, it was no Riverfront Stadium, but it was more than sufficient for the rag-tag bunch of miners' kids that we were as we'd gather after supper on those long summer evenings — without uniforms; without coaches; without umpires; and, most importantly, without some parent screaming and calling us names because we let a grounder skip twixt our legs — to participate in America's favorite pastime. We'd choose up sides, flip wet and dry for bats, and play until darkness drove us home.

Sometimes we'd have seven or eight, or even ten or twelve on a side. Occasionally, we'd even have four or five genuine, store-bought baseball gloves, too, that we'd take innings about using. Of course, the first baseman and the catcher always had one.

Seldom ever, though, did we play with a brand new baseball. If by chance, someone did happen to buy one, we'd only pass with it until it got really dirty. Only then would we reluctantly throw it out to be hit.

In those days, it was nearly impossible to wear out a baseball. However, we could lose one easily enough, especially if it was hit too deep left field where no one ever bothered to mow the chest-high horseweeds. It was not unusual to see every player from both teams thrashing around on hands and knees searching for the only ball we had.

If the ball got wet in the creek that ran swift and deep just over the bank behind home plate, one of us would take it home and bake it in the oven. If the cover came off, we'd take a roll of black tape that miners always had in vast quantities around the house, and we'd tape it real good. Our philosophy then, I'm sure, was that a black baseball was better than no baseball.

Yesterday's baseball was played at a time when baseball cards bearing the likenesses and stats of guys like Ewell Blackwell and Nellie Fox came in Red Man chewing tobacco instead of packs of bubble gum. And it was a time before superstars and multi-million-dollar contracts; a time when we played our hearts out because we were just plain having fun; when any one of us would think nothing of running head first over the creek bank in pursuit of a foul ball, just to hear one of our teammates say, "Nice try."

Most of all, though, yesterday's baseball was from a time worth remembering.

PCC's single parent program teaches participants more than parenting skills

Last Thursday individuals from the Big Sandy Area who are single parents or homemakers attended the eighth annual convention for "Survival Skills and Career Choices," held at the Jenny Wiley State Park's convention center in Prestonsburg.

Sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College's program of the same name, along with Kentucky Tech/Mayo Regional Technology Center, the warm temperatures and sunny skies provided a perfect background for those in attendance.

The event started with workshops on several areas: auto mechanics, plumbing, electricity, home repair, welding, heating and cooling, money management, and first aid.

Normally, a self-defense workshop - the most popular course - would be available, but the state trooper who taught the course could not attend as he had to work on a murder investigation and could not be there to help out.

Adult education instructor Larry Campbell brought eight individuals from Wolfe County to the convention. "If one person learns from this experience and uses the resources they provide, then we really feel we have accomplished something," he said.

Knott County participants Tammy Meade and Melissa Waddles took the home repair workshop. "We learned how to cut glass and work with drywall. I thought that when you cut through the drywall, you just cut straight back inside it. They (the Mayo student-instructors) taught us that you had to cut at an angle. I would never have thought to do that," Meade said.

Waddles said that she was appreciative of the complimentary tools she received from the workshop. "I even have a new tool belt, now I'm official," she said. For the second year in a row, Pike County resident Phyllis Gibson attended the convention, and she attended the welding workshop. "This is what I did," she said, proudly holding a metal plate she had made.

Gibson was there with her Ameri-Corps instructor who had recently went with her and helped her apply for a job she will begin this week.

"They have been so great to help me," Gibson said. "When we went to apply for the position, the company told us they weren't taking job applications that day.

"I would have just left if I was there alone, but with the Ameri-Corps instructor talking for me, and the confidence I had in myself, we just talked me right into that job," she said. Gibson will be seen by the roadsides where construction is taking place throughout Pike County. She will be "flagging" cars through the construction sites, at $13 an hour wage to start.

"I never dreamed I'd ever make that kind of money," Gibson said.

A forty-something single mother, Gibson is one of many success stories the convention has helped.

For more information about the single parent homemaker's program at PCC, contact Jean Rosenberg, at 886-3863.

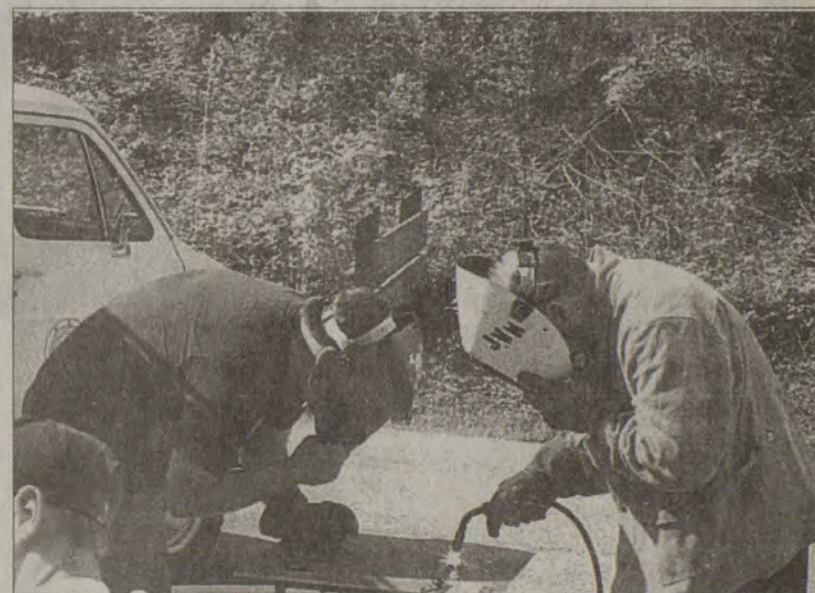

Phyllis Gibson attended the "survival skills" convention for homemakers and single parents last week at the Jenny Wiley State Park Convention Center. She is seen here with a Kentucky Tech/Mayo Technology Center student instructor learning the craft of welding.

These ladies are practicing the art of checking the oil and other car maintenance applications at the hands-on part of last week's convention.

The convention was not limited to women only. Men are increasingly becoming part of single parent program, and even gentlemen need refresher courses on areas such as welding.

Recycling Committee meets

The Floyd County Recycling Committee hopes to implement a pilot recycling project in the Floyd County School System.

Rebecca Derossett, chairman, introduced a tentative pilot recycling project with Floyd County Schools at the committee's meeting April 15.

The plan features five major points: collection, storage, transportation, marketing, and profits.

Derossett explained that participating schools would collect cardboard, white paper and aluminum cans, which would be stored in special bins inside the buildings and later transferred to trailers on the grounds. Transportation, trailers, and marketing of the recyclables would probably be provided by Blue Grass Regional Recycling, which would return a percentage of net profits to each participating school.

Vivian Rudd, an employee of Southern Appalachian Recycling, said her company has monies available to provide bins and education of school personnel and students. She further advised that schools recycle steel cans, as well as aluminum cans.

Floyd County magistrate Jackie Owens encouraged the involvement of the students and suggested profits and rewards go to participating schools.

Committee member Kathy Friend recommended that each school appoint two students to serve on the Floyd County Recycling Committee.

Mike Vance, with Floyd County Solid Waste, said he will speak with officials at Rumpke to see whether that company would be interested in picking up recyclables at the schools, provided the deal does not materialize with Blue Grass.

The group recommended that Derossett contact the Floyd County Board of Education about the tentative plan.

In addition to Derossett, Rudd, Owens, Friend, and Vance, other committee members and guests attending the April 15th meeting at the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce building were Hobert Puckett, Betty Puckett, Bob Lewandowski, and Pat Spicer.

The next meeting will be held at noon today, May 20, at the Chamber office in Prestonsburg.

SUNSHINE LINES

Senior citizens, thanks to the instrument that sometimes gets glued to our ears and Sarah Blackburn's patience, she and I finally "connected" to chat about the Elkhorn City Senior Citizen Center. This week, as our series on Senior Citizens centers in Eastern Kentucky continues, we'll learn loads of interesting things about the director, "her" seniors and their activities.

Sarah Blackburn became center director in late 1986. To get to where she is today she literally came full circle.

Sarah was born in Huddy, near Belfry. She was six years old when her coal miner father was killed by an underground rock slide. Following his death, her mother and the family moved back to the Elkhorn area. Sarah graduated from the Hellier High School in 1962.

After graduation, Sarah left these beautiful mountains to seek greener pastures in a big city. She landed a job at the O'Hare International Airport. While in the Chicago area, she met and married a good ole country boy—James Blackburn—from Belfry. It's ironic that they grew up near each other but never met until their paths crossed in one of the nation's biggest, bustling cities. In 1979, this family moved back home.

The Blackburns have three grown sons, Bryan, Jeffery and Justin, and three precious grandchildren, Natasha, Bryan Wayne and Makayla. Their children and grandchildren live in Kentucky and our neighboring state of Tennessee. None are far removed from the mountains.

Sarah and James do not have a lot of time for hobbies, but they are intense Kentucky Wildcat fans. Because it is hard to get tickets when the team plays at Rupp arena, the Blackburns prefer following the team when it's on the road. James finds volunteering at the center an interesting pastime and more fun than work.

Sarah is proud of the seniors at the Elkhorn Center and all who attend are proud of the new facility they moved into earlier this year.

Their average daily attendance is thirty. Approximately 33 percent are males. This is important to point out, because men tend to have a stigma about attending the centers. However, in recent years as men come to realize that there are activities there for them as well as for women, male interest and attendance has increased significantly at most of the centers.

Let's look at some of the daily activities that take place at this center. There is quilting, of course, but there are many other things this group does for sheer pleasure and social interaction. They make crafts for the sole purpose of raising money for the center. The money made from their sales provide "extras" for the center and for seniors in the area.

Both the men and the women are big Bingo enthusiasts at this center. It is interesting to note that the seniors themselves bring "white elephants" from their homes to use as prizes. According to the center director, about 80 percent of the seniors are Rummy Cube enthusiasts. Dominoes is another favored game. An interesting and unique thing these seniors do is plan what color clothing they will wear each day of the week. These seniors go to their closets or root for appropriately colored clothing in resale shops, because their "color of the day" clothing routine is special for them.

Daily exercise is important to at least 50 percent of those who attend. Professionally taught and supervised exercise classes are conducted on Mondays and Wednesdays by a specialist from PCC. This center boasts of their modern exercise equipment. Get this, the seniors at this center have a treadmill, a sky glider and an exercise bike. This state-of-the-art equipment constitutes a rather classy inside gym.

Organized shopping trips are a thrill to these seniors. Their favorite places to shop are Kingsport and Ashland. It's not so much what they buy that counts, but the opportunity to get out and do something together as a group is what's meaningful to them.

I am of the conclusion that these people just like being on the go. Many recently returned from Branson, Missouri where they enjoyed the Ozarks, Country Western entertainment and the stars. En route and on their return they spent two glorious nights in St. Louis (my home).

Already, many are beginning to pack their bags for another trip planned for late June. This time their destination is Virginia Beach and Busch Gardens. I hope while there, they will be able to ride their bus through a long underwater tunnel. Believe me, that's quite an experience and one they will be telling friends back home about for a long time.

The seniors who go on these trips must pay their own expenses—but extremely reduced rates are worked out to save the seniors a lot of money. Grandchildren are allowed on some trips. Sarah assured me that there is still time for you to make reservations. For more information and details about this trip contact, Sarah Blackburn at 754-8936.

Sarah thoroughly enjoys her job. She said, "I love my job. It's the greatest job there is."

That's because of "her" beloved seniors. She also appreciates her dedicated staff. Each team member's job is important. She said of her entire crew, "I think the Elkhorn City Senior Citizen staff is the greatest."

Like all center directors, Sarah has concerns about the needs of her seniors. She is grateful for all the support her seniors receive from various health organizations county-wide.

However, she does welcome more local support. She wishes that ministers and community leaders would take a more active role in the center on behalf of Elkhorn's own senior citizens.

Transportation continues to be a problem. One van simply cannot meet the needs of all the seniors at her center.

There is a far greater need for home-delivered meals in her area than the budget will allow. The center delivers twenty-five meals a day but Sarah is confident that there are 150 or more homebound, needy, aged residents in the Elkhorn area deserving of this service.

Something else the Elkhorn City Senior Citizen Center needs is you! There are no membership fees but there are open arms awaiting your presence.

Consider making your Senior Citizen Center your home away from home.

There are new friends to be made that will last a lifetime. Consider the fun you can have! Consider the fun you are missing! I encourage you to get involved with your center this week.

'Sunshine Lines for Senior Citizens' is an outreach effort of the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens (KBCP) in the Big Sandy area. Space for your column is graciously provided by your newspaper of choice, The Floyd County Times. Your KBCP program and 'Sunshine Lines' is sponsored by the Legal Services office serving your area.

If you are a senior citizen with needs, or if you have a problem you need help working through, contact the center director at your local senior citizen center or Don Akers, KBCP coordinator at 886-3876 or 1-800-556-3876.

Truck body and trailer factory will soon locate in Pike County

The Pike County Fiscal Court agreed Monday to lease a building and lot at the Mossy Bottom Industrial Park to a company that manufactures aluminum truck bodies, aluminum trailers and related accessories for the transportation industries.

Benson Manufacturing Inc. plans to employ 75 people within two years and 100 within three years at the Mossy Bottom facility. Average wages are projected to be $9 per hour, plus benefits.

Benson Manufacturing is owned by International Equipment Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of International Industries of Gilbert, West Virginia. James H. "Buck" Harless of Gilbert is majority owner of International Industries. Terry Dotson, president and CEO of Worldwide Equipment Inc. of Prestonsburg, will be a minority owner of Benson Manufacturing.

Harless and Dotson are both actively advocating better educational opportunities and a better quality of life for the people of West Virginia and Kentucky. Dotson is currently serving as chairman of the Pikeville College Board of Trustees and the Floyd County School System. Harless has donated several million dollars to communities and educational institutions throughout the region. He is a long-time supporter of Pikeville College.

International Equipment Inc.

recently purchased the assets of May Metal Products Inc. of Floyd County and has been operating the Allen facility under the name of May Truck Bodies and Trailers Inc. The project at Mossy Bottom will not have any adverse affect on the employment level at the Floyd County facility, and may, in fact, help increase employment.

The fiscal court voted to give Judge-Executive Donna Damron authority to negotiate and execute a lease for the 24,000-square-foot building and six-acre tract, contingent upon approval by the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority of the company's tax incentives package and the lease. Approval of the lease by the state is necessary because the county purchased the building with Coal Severance Tax funds, Damron said.

Benson has applied for tax credits available under the Kentucky Rural Economic Development Act (KREDA). Their application is scheduled to be considered by the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority later this month.

Once these approvals are received and the International Industries board of directors has given its final approval, Benson is ready to begin preparing the Mossy Bottom building for production almost immediately, Gary White, president of International Industries, said.

A VOTER MAY HAVE ASSISTANCE IF:

1. Voter is blind
2. Voter is unable to read English
3. Voter has a physical disability which prevents the voter from voting without physical assistance.

WHO MAY ASSIST THE VOTER:

1. Both Election Judges or
2. Person of voter's choice except: —not voter's employer or agent of that employer—not officer or agent of voter's union—not a candidate to be voted upon.

WHAT IS THE PROPER PROCEDURE?

1. Voter completes the "Voter Assistance Form" (SBE-31) completely including the reason assistance is needed, and signs name.
2. If any person other than the election judges assists the voter, that person must complete the portion of the form which is an OATH that the assistor will operate the machine as directed by the voter AND this Oath must be attested by the Clerk signing.
3. If the election judges assist the voter, the Democratic and Republican Judges must sign the OATH at the bottom, BOTH JUDGES will enter the machine with the voter, where in the presence of each other, the machine is operated in accordance with the directions of the voter.
4. Election officers should list the name of each assisted voter on the "Record of Assisted Voters" (SBE-31A) form which should be returned with the election material as instructed.

VOTER MAY MAKE APPLICATION FOR PERMANENT ASSISTANCE TO VOTE

There is a portion of this form where the voter may request the Board of Elections to certify the voter as needing permanent assistance due to blindness or other physical disability. If the Board approves the voter's request, voter will have permanent certification relieving the VOTER ONLY from the responsibility of completing the oath. Even if a voter is certified there permanent assistance, the assistor(s) must still complete and sign their portion of the Oath. Violations of the laws regarding Assistance to Vote should be reported to the Board of Elections immediately and noted on the "Precinct Election Sheriff's Post Election Report" (SBE-53)

ELECTIONEERING

Electioneering is PROHIBITED WITHIN 500 FEET* of any entrance to a building in which a voting machine is located if that entrance is unlocked and is used by voters on election day.

Electioneering is defined in the law as:

1. Display of signs
2. Distribution of campaign literature, cards or handbills
3. Solicitations of votes for or against any candidate or question on the ballot in any manner
4. Solicitation of signatures to any petition

The PRECINCT SHERIFF has the responsibility of ENFORCING the ELECTIONEERING LAWS within 50 FEET OF THE ENTRANCES. VIOLATIONS OF ELECTIONEERING BETWEEN 50 AND 500 FEET should be reported to the Board of Elections IMMEDIATELY.

The Precinct Sheriff may request the assistance of any law enforcement officer to maintain law and order at the polls, but it is strongly suggested that Precinct Sheriff make that request through the Board of Elections. (County Board of Elections phone number 886-3816 or 1-800- 481-2009)

Any violations of the electioneering laws should be entered on the "Precinct Sheriff's Post Election Report" (SBE-53)

*The 500 foot prohibition does not apply to electioneering conducted within a private residence or establishment by persons having an ownership interest in such property UNLESS THAT PROPERTY IS THE POLLING PLACE.
