14-year-old dies of meningitis

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

A young Beaver man died last week, the victim of a type of bacterial meningitis, which mimics the flu and is contagious.

Clifford Dexter "Cliff" Daniels, 14, son of Cliff and Deedra Hamilton died Wednesday at the Appalachian Regional Hospital in McDowell.

Preliminary autopsy results indicate that he died of meningococcal meningitis, Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson said. The disease can be transported by close physical contact and by airborne droplets from the patients, Nelson said.

Nelson and officials at the Floyd County Health Department stressed that the disease is spread by being "very near" the patient — not casual contact. A person will not get the disease simply by walking by the patient, Nelson said.

Peggy Dixon of the state Health Department in Frankfort said the formal name of the disease is neisseria meningitidis. She said this was the most dreaded form of the disease, with a fatality rate between five and 15 percent.

Jane Bond of the Floyd County Health Department said the source of the disease has not been found. Bond added that the long incubation period (seven days) makes the job of finding the source a difficult one.

The disease that claimed Daniels is the most common bacterial infection form of meningitis in young people, according to Dr. Alice C. Thornton, infectious disease specialist at the University of Kentucky Medical Center. Thornton said medical personnel are unable to "culture" the disease in 30 to 50 percent of cases.

Nelson said the key to treating the disease is early detection. Thornton added that a "classical rash" on a person's extremities is a sign of the disease. "By that point, the person is pretty ill," the UK physician said. "The rash should signal to get immediate medical attention."

Coroner Nelson said the disease causes the same symptoms as other illnesses that run their course and then disappear. The symptoms include fever, nausea, vomiting and loss of appetite.

Thornton said "a headache that will not go away," combined with other symptoms such as shaking chills, muscle aches or confusion are possible signs of bacterial meningitis. Most cases that are left untreated, she said, will result in

Betsy Layne Pharmacy robbed

by Randell Reno
Staff Writer

"It was a very clean job," said Mike Lusk, manager and pharmacist at the Betsy Layne Pharmacy. He was referring to a burglary at the pharmacy early Saturday between 3:30 and 4 a.m.

"They (burglars) came through the drive-through window," Lusk said.

The thieves got away with an undisclosed amount of drugs.

The pharmacist said he believes the perpetrators knew what they were doing when they entered the business because nothing was damaged but the window.

The job must have been very specific because there is a barrage of different items available in the store, he said. "Didn't tear up anything," Lusk said. "They came in, got the stuff and left."

The pharmacy is located in the Hays Complex at Betsy Layne and is surrounded by other businesses and residences, but few in the area knew it happened.

According to the postmaster at the Betsy Layne Post Office within the complex, witnesses who were decorating a local church said they heard the alarm sound at about 3:30 in the morning, but no one left the church to check it out. The Kentucky State Police are investigating the incident.

This particular store has attracted some attention in the last few weeks with at least two incidents of rocks being thrown at the store, resulting in broken windows according to the 911 logs at the KSP Post in Pikeville.

Lynn Justice, manager of the complex, said her nephew Wes Frasure heard glass being broken a few weeks ago in the complex. Justice said when he ran into the parking lot, he found the pharmacy's windows were broken, but no one was around.

The 911 log reports that several bottles of drugs were taken from the store, all of which, Lusk said, were narcotics or controlled substances.

Council receives audit report

by Kristy Stevens
Staff Writer

The Martin City Council held a special meeting Monday night after two attempts to approve the city's audit report. In the past two scheduled meetings, not enough council members were present to constitute a quorum.

Monday, however, all members were in attendance as each received a copy of the report.

The auditor, Jackie Slone, stood first, explaining each item on the report. The most important issue was that "the city was in excess pretty much all the way," Slone said.

Also, the sewage system in Martin, which has brought a long discussion at the past few meetings, has progressed substantially, according to a report.

However, with the money remaining in the sewage account, the city is now in a situation where it doesn't have enough money to continue improvements, according to Slone.

She suggested that this year the council "develop a line item budget and watch it more carefully" than last year.

Joe Howard made a motion to accept the report, seconded by Rick Caudill.

Volunteers make life easier for some Floyd Countians

by Pam Shingler
Editor

More than 800 volunteers from all over the country have been in Floyd County this summer quietly improving living conditions for elderly, disabled and low-income residents.

About 80 houses have been worked on, according to Don Akers, housing coordinator for the Low Income Housing Improvement Project, operated by Appalachian Research and Defense Fund (Appalred) in Prestonsburg.

The work, ranging from roofing to flooring and everything in between, reflects more than 160,000 man-hours. Plus, the volunteers are estimated to have spent more than $70,000 in the area on materials for the repairs, in addition to an uncalculated figure for expenditures on

There goes the sun

The last solar eclipse of this century is taking place today, but eastern Kentuckians are missing out. Early this morning, people in the north-eastern part of the United States were expected to see the sun from a third to two-thirds covered, weather permitting. Europe, particularly England, is where the total effect can be observed. At Cornwall, where no doubt some of us have distant relatives, the eclipse will have its most profound effect, appearing to create sunrise and sunset, both, within 15 minutes.

New home to be dedicated

HOMES Inc. will have a dedication for a new house it has completed for a Letcher County man Friday at 2 p.m. at the Goose Creek subdivision on Rozeboom Road in Neon. The house was built for Gary Warrix this summer by volunteers with the Reformed Church in America. HOMES (Housing Oriented Ministries Established for Service) relies on volunteers to build new houses and repair existing houses for low-income people in this region. For information, call 606/855-4561.

Benefit sing at MAC

The Prestonsburg Rotary Club is presenting its third annual Mountain Gospel Harvest Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Mountain Arts Center. Proceeds from the $7 per person admission fee go toward adult literacy and arts education programs. Featured will be The Bluegrass Gospel Boys, The Wells Family, Robin Tackett, Voice of Faith, Bloodbought, The Jackson Family, Praise Assembly, Chris Cool, Wings of Praise, Master IV, Lisa England, New Creation and Lighthouse Temple Choir. Co-sponsors are New Creation Family Bookstore and the City of Prestonsburg.

Gambling study contract awarded

The consulting firm of PriceWaterhouseCoopers (PWC) has been selected by the state to assess various economic and social impacts that expanding the gaming industry could have on Kentucky.

Gov. Paul Patton called for the study June 18 after he expressed interest in determining how much revenue the commonwealth loses to Kentucky border states that have casinos, video poker and other forms of gaming.

The final report is to be presented to the governor by December 1. The study will cost $233,650, and PWC's National Gaming Consulting Office, based in Philadelphia, will begin its work immediately.

The study will be conducted in three phases that will include an economic assessment of gaming in border states, as well as how those games impact Kentucky's economy.

The second phase will focus on the economic impact of three scenarios for Kentucky, including the placement of video lottery terminals at horse racing tracks, ground-based casino gaming at various locations (including an estimate of how many locations could be supported in the state) and making Keno available at age-controlled locations.

The final phase will assess the social impact and social costs that gaming could have on the citizens of the commonwealth. Social costs will be examined for each of the three scenarios and will consider such issues as compulsive gambling, possible increased costs for law enforcement, and personal bankruptcies as well as other social impacts. PWC will draw on the social impacts of enhanced gaming in other states for this part of the study.

Obviously, there are many legitimate questions about the pros and cons of expanding gaming in Kentucky, Patton said. This study will provide more definitive answers for those interests and concerns and give all of us the information needed to make well informed decisions.

Of the 15 firms that were issued the RFP, six submitted responses on July 16 to the request for proposals issued by the Finance and Administration Cabinet. Besides PWC, Deloitte Consulting, KMPG Peat Marwick of Chicago, Crowe Chizak of Indianapolis, Wilkerson and Associates of Louisville and C.H. Johnson Consultants of Chicago submitted proposals that were reviewed by an eight-member panel.

The panel included David Switzer of the Kentucky Thoroughbred Association; Rev. Nancy Jo Kemper, executive director of the Kentucky Council of Churches; Cliff Reed of Turfway Park Race Course; Michael Childress of the state Long-term Policy Research Center; Dr. Meri

Hackbart, senior policy advisor to Patton; Mary Lassiter of the Governor's Office of Policy and Management; Dr. Mark Berger, director of the Center for Business and Economic Research of the Carol Martin Gatton College of Business and Economics at the University of Kentucky, and Denis Fleming, general counsel for Patton's office.

PWC has conducted similar studies in Michigan, where the city of Detroit is beginning the construction of three casinos, in Connecticut and in Ontario, Canada.

Dixon said people who have come in close contact with a person with this disease should be given the medicine risampin.

Doctors diagnose meningitis by examining a sample of the patient's cerebrospinal fluid. The sample is obtained by inserting a needle between the vertebrae in the lower part of the back. This procedure is known as a lumbar puncture or spinal tap.

The cerebrospinal fluid of victims of bacterial meningitis contains a high level of protein and a low level of glucose. To determine the type of bacteria or virus involved, the patient's cerebrospinal fluid is further tested in various ways so that the organism that caused the infection can be identified.

UK's Thornton said there have been epidemics of bacterial meningitis among people who live in close quarters. Military recruits, for instance, are vaccinated against the disease because they are often forced to be in very close contact with each other, she said.

The contact within a classroom will not generally foster contagion, she said. "You pretty much have to eat and sleep with someone" to contract the disease, Thornton said.

Council

While on the topic of the sewage system, Martin's city clerk, Pam Justice, informed the council that the city is in debt to Anthony Castle, who did sewer construction work in the city, in the amount of $8,600.

Also, Russ and Associates, which conducted the "smoke test" on the sewer system, is owed a considerable amount of money. She did not specify the amount.

Howard made the comment, "Most of our money is going down the sewer."

Motions were passed to pay the money owed to Castle and to pay $1,000 to Russ and Associates.

In attendance were Tim Parker, city attorney; Alan Whicker, mayor; and council members Joe Howard, Dr. Mahendra Varia, Eugene Hutchinson, Rick Caudill, Thomasine Robinson, and Hazel Robinson.

Patton

By phone from Washington, DC, federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Secretary Andrew Cuomo, whose office is organizing the conference, spoke with Gov. Patton and West Virginia Gov. Cecil Underwood, who are attending the National Governors' Association conference in St. Louis.

Cuomo said the summit will allow a continued focus on new partnerships to help Appalachia make up for decades of reduced economic progress. "It'll be a home run," Cuomo said.

HUD, Agriculture, Labor, Transportation and Appalachian Regional Commission representatives will meet with the two governors and others to look for ways to create jobs, spur economic development, increase affordable housing, improve transportation, and stimulate investments in the Appalachian region of Kentucky and West Virginia.

Gov. Patton said, "I view this as a watershed event that will mark a new phase of the development of Appalachia. We have all the elements necessary to have a varied economic activity that could be profitable for any company as well as the region. The time has now come to take advantage and get rid of the stereotypes."

The governor said that President Bill Clinton's visit to eastern Kentucky in July helped emphasize that the Appalachia of today is not the Appalachia of 40 years ago. "I look forward to this being remembered as the time when our efforts to improve Appalachia have taken an additional step in a new direction."

Patton said the region still needs a lot of developmental programs provided by the ARC, the federal government and the state. "We want to continue doing that, concurrently with new business through entrepreneurship and through capital investment."

The conference opens Thursday August 12, in Ashland at the Paramount Theatre at 10 a.m.

Volunteers

food and souvenirs — making their sojourn not only a service, but also an economic boon.

Akers said that at least five agencies have been involved in hosting and coordinating volunteers.

As it wound down yesterday, the Appalachian Service Project (ASP), which had operated out of the county-owned Wheelwright Gym, said good-bye to about 45 volunteers, here for the last week of the summer housing repair blitz.

Kathryn Harrell of Alabama, an ASP coordinator, said most weeks have seen 65 to 70 volunteers camped out in the gym, sleeping on cots or the floor, clothes and towels slung over rope lines.

The gym was hastily spruced up last spring, after the Floyd County Fiscal Court bought it from the school board, to provide housing for volunteers from ASP, which is headquartered in Johnson City, Tennessee, and does housing work in several Appalachian states.

Christian Service Ministries, coordinated by Doreen Martin of Drift Presbyterian Church, has also brought in a cadre of volunteers, as has the Christian Appalachian Project, which does housing repair all year long, but with a concentration of volunteer workers in the summer.

Carrying on the tradition of Sr. Ida Deville, who has left the area, Sr. Kathleen Wigand of St. Vincent's Mission in David has also been involved in the volunteerism, as has Sr. Jan Barthel of Mt. Tabor Convent, and folks at St. Martha's Catholic Church.

Many of the volunteers are high school and college students, coming to the mountains under the auspices of church and civic groups in their hometowns.

"One elderly lady cried. She said she didn't think teen-agers would ever want to help an old lady," recounts Doreen Martin, who last week supervised a group from the Darnestown Presbyterian Church in Maryland, which has sent groups for nine years.

The Marylanders included 18 persons, about half youth and half adults, some of them families. They worked on three houses, doing everything from painting to putting in flooring to adding a bath to building ramps, according to Larry

Volunteers from Minnesota worked last week on a house on Left Beaver. They are among about 800 persons from throughout the country who have helped repair substandard houses in Floyd County this summer. (photo by Pam Shingler)

Gooch, an architect from Gaithersburg, Maryland.

The visitors stayed at Drift Presbyterian, sleeping on pews and on the floor.

Charles Spates, a retired retailer, said the church group was originally recruited by Dr. John Phil Fairchild, a former physician at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

Working at Jack's Creek last week was a group from Utica United Methodist Church in Sterling Heights, Michigan. The 26-member work crew, working through ASP, built a ramp onto the house of a disabled man and put underpinning around the house.

Often projects are started by one group and worked on throughout the summer, especially where repair needs are extensive. At the Jack's Creek residence, the Michigan group was in on the project from start to finish.

"It's nice to take something to its completion," said Emil Tonello, an engineer, who was working alongside his wife, Sue, a nurse. Their pastor, Dave Diamond, was also along, as were a number of high school students.

The extent to which some of the volunteers will go to help is impressive. Martin cites the example of a man with an Illinois group who had his company build special bases for two showers that were needed by a couple of paralyzed persons, and then he flew home, picked the bases up and brought them back.

When they learned there was a shortage of sheet rock in the area, some members of another group called the Lowe's in their hometown and paid for having a shipment of the wall covering sent to the Lowe's in Pikeville.

"Things like that really touch you," Martin said. "The people are so thankful."

Driving up KY 122 on Left Beaver with Akers and Martin, it's difficult to carry on a conversation. Sentences stop and start at odd junctures as the two see projects along the route.

"We nailed down the roof on that one."

"We just painted that house."

"We built a ramp there last year."

"The slope was too sharp and we didn't have enough room to build a ramp, but we put a railing up for this lady, and she was so happy."

Martin points to another house that illustrates the down side of a basically optimistic story. "There's one that's on our waiting list. I had to tell the lady that we couldn't get to her this year," the year-round volunteer said.

Akers, whose job it is to screen requests for housing assistance, said he has about 150 persons on a waiting list. "Unfortunately, some are in pretty bad need, but they are going to have to wait," he said.

Some houses, he said, could be taken care of by volunteer staff with Christian Appalachian Project, but CAP's major thrust is in the summer. Year-round, there are few options for repairing substandard residences.

Martin's small church has committed its members to service for many years, and Akers would like to see others follow suit. "If we could get every church in the area to do what Drift Presbyterian has done, they could take care of these problems quickly," he said.

Akers, whose job is funded in part by a grant to Appal from the Kentucky Housing Corporation, is continuing to take applications for assistance and to assess needs. He also would welcome local church and civic groups who are willing to volunteer to assist in home repair. For information, call Akers at 606/886-3876.

Games, prizes and fun for all helped raise funds for the United Way. Local agencies that participated include American Red Cross, Little People of Magoffin County, Floyd County Extension Service, 4-H Programs, Area 16 Special Olympics, Big Sandy Family Abuse Center and Big Sandy Area Development Prescription Assistance Program.

Cindy Hackworth, Community Involvement Coordinator at the Prestonsburg Wal-Mart, and Nyoka Slone of the Floyd County Extension Service coordinated the program.

Events included face painting and raffling of the following prizes: CD/radio player, country dolls, week at 4-H Camp 2000, Beanie Babies and ceramics. The kids also played ring toss to win prizes.

Each agency had giveaways and displays during the Carnival of Fun.

BUDGET GIMMICKRY

The main reason Washington projects a large budget surplus over the next decade is the spending restraint imposed by a 1997 law designed to wipe out long-running deficits.

Under the measure, Congress is not supposed to exceed specified spending limits, which allow for only modest budget expansion. The aim was to "grow" out of the deficit by keeping increases in spending below increases in revenues. If lawmakers adhere to the caps, and if the economy continues to expand steadily for another 10 years — two huge ifs — a theoretical surplus of $2.9 trillion will materialize.

Only problem is, Republican leaders on Capitol Hill are pressing ahead with wholesale violations of the spending ceilings, even as they prepare to enact a 10-year tax cut of nearly $800 billion. Unless something is done to restore a modicum of fiscal discipline, much of the predicted surplus will be squandered before it even surfaces.

As matters now stand, lawmakers are set to go on a multibillion-dollar spending spree, engaging in creative budget gimmickry of all stripes to circumvent the spending limits.

A favored back-door tactic is to declare large chunks of outlays as "emergency" appropriations. That means they are not counted against the caps.

GOP leaders recently won two procedural battles to declare $4.5 billion in spending on the 2000 census an "emergency." Never mind that, for more than two centuries, the Constitution has required a census every 10 years. House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., claimed with a straight face that the census met the budget law's definition of an emergency — an "unforeseen, unpredictable and unanticipated" need.

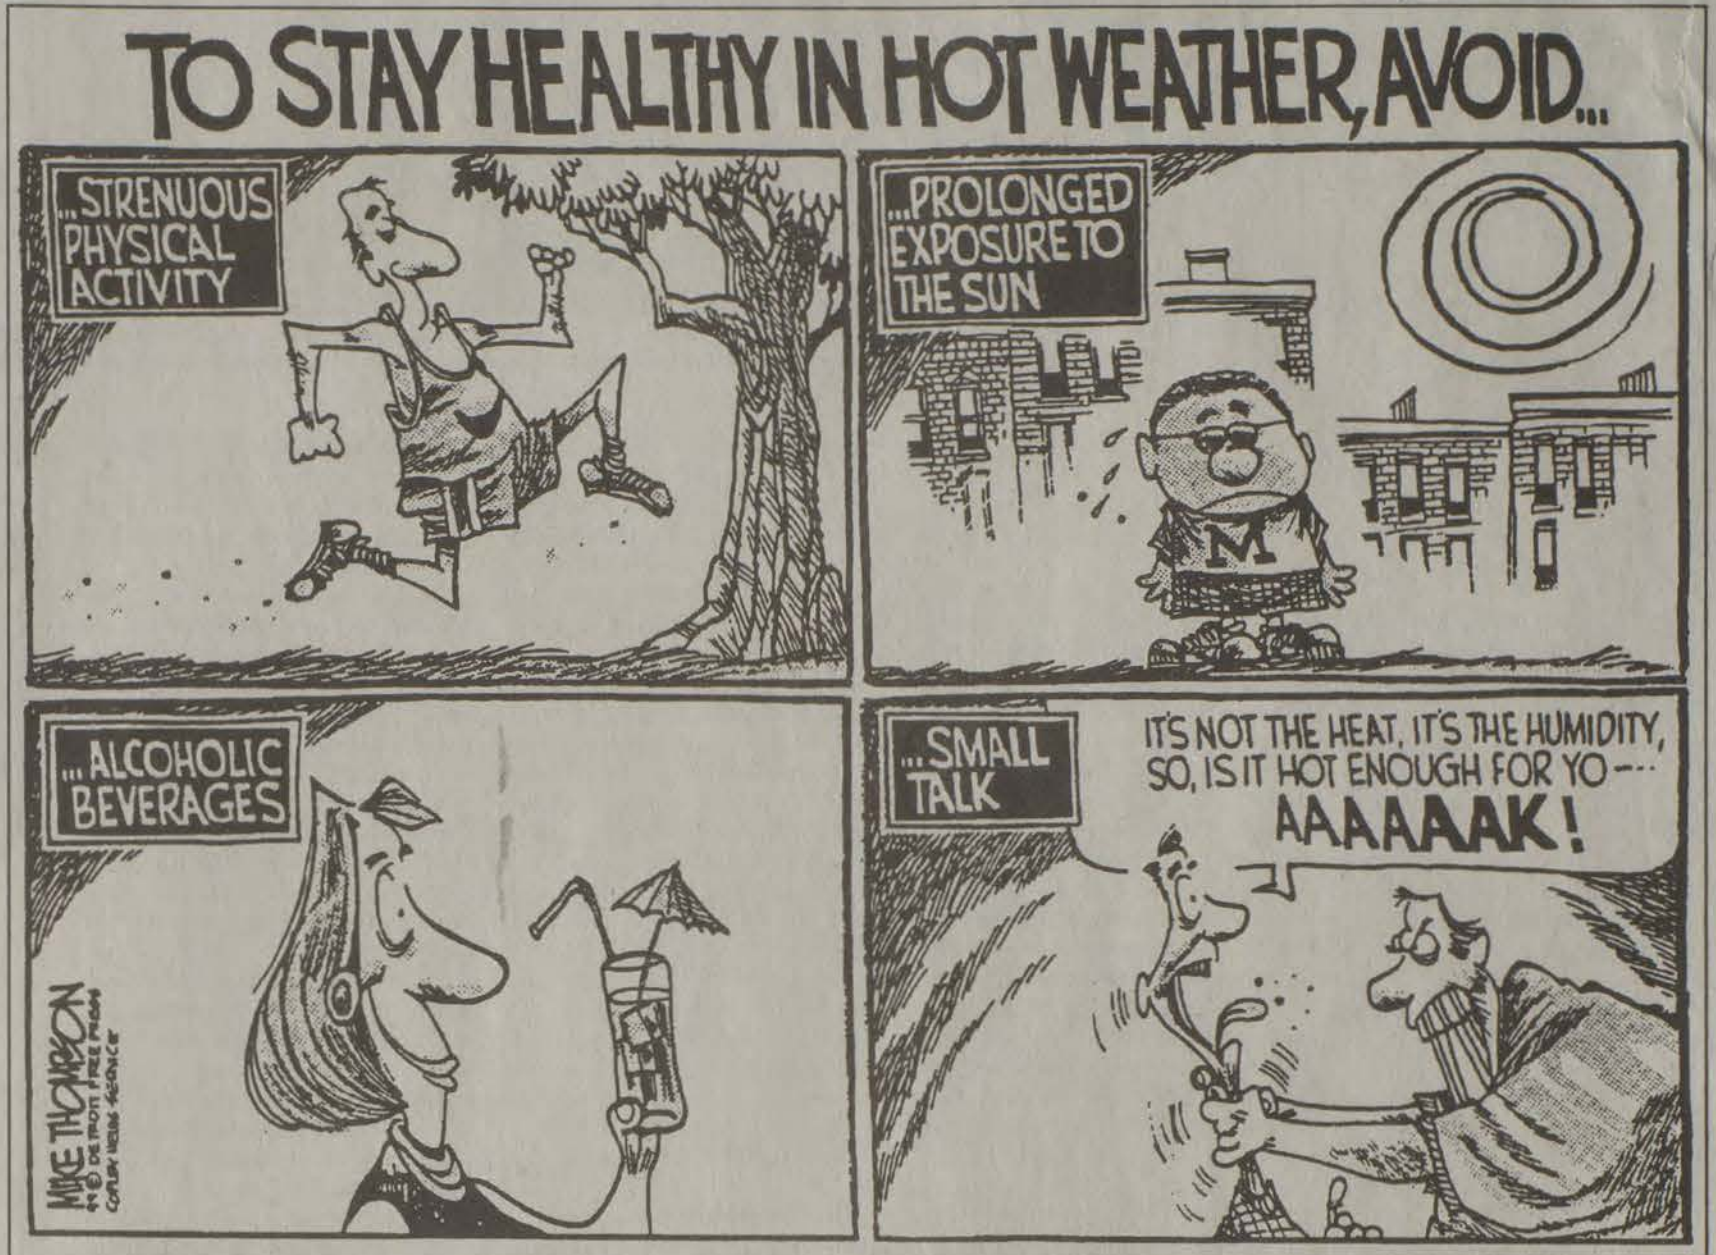

Other routine expenditures labeled as emergency spending include $3 billion for veterans hospitals and $9 billion for a variety of agricultural programs. Altogether, Congress has approved $35 billion in dubious emergency expenditures in the last year.

Breaching the spending caps has become so common that most Democrats and Republicans alike have quietly accepted their de facto demise. This raises the disturbing possibility that lawmakers will repeal the 1997 ceilings, or simply ignore them altogether, and return to the kind of deficit spending that characterized business as usual in Washington for three decades.

Although there may be room for some adjustment of the caps, lifting them entirely would throw away a rare opportunity to repair Social Security and Medicare, as well as provide tax relief for hard-working Americans. The deceptive tricks used by lawmakers to evade the limits are even worse, because they create the illusion of fiscal discipline and perpetuate the myth of large budget surpluses.

The truth is that there will be no surpluses if Congress continues to exploit loopholes in the budget law, throwing fiscal restraint to the wind. The sad irony is that Republican lawmakers in the House and Senate who once were champions of fiscal discipline are now avid proponents of wasteful spending on pet projects, and it is Democratic leaders who are crying foul.

Think about it

Editor:
Americans measure the quality of their lives by the things they have or can buy. Cars, houses, clothes. It's all about how much stuff we have.
We are all caught in this bear trap of self-evaluation. It may have always been this way. Most likely it was. Why did Cain kill Abel? Because he had better stuff to offer God, of course.
A man from Atlanta measured himself recently and didn't like where he stood, so he decided the only thing to do was kill his wife, his two children, and finally himself.
I've listened to the theories and opinions on what happened, the endless search for answers as to what would make a man do this and it seems to go in a wide circle. The circle begins with WHY and ends with WHY.
I don't think it's that complicated.
In one such account given on this tragedy the reasons WHY are actually listed. He had 1) difficulty dealing with bad investments on Wall Street, 2) marital problems, and 3) ambiguous problems during childhood involving his father. I have listed them here in the order they were mentioned, which seemed to be the assumed order of importance.

The guy had money problems, he found himself inept when compared to his fellow Americans because he didn't have enough money, couldn't buy enough stuff. He argued with his wife, probably about stuff they couldn't have, couldn't buy. The business about his childhood was probably thrown in for seasoning.
Anybody who does something like this had to have been dropped on their head as a child, right?
Point a finger. Give it a name.
The answer to the question is that there is no obvious reason why Atlanta happened. If we must point a finger, let's point it at ourselves. If we have to give it a name, let's call it Pressure. Society is always at our elbow, measuring stick in hand, ready to push us forward and at times cause us to fall.
In the end, how we react to that pressure is entirely up to us.

Y2K prognostications

The Y2K thing (looks like something that should go on a license plate) is getting more attention than it deserves.
Now, I know some people are going to disagree with me, so I am going to give my prediction and recount a story that has already happened to one guy.
What do I think will happen? Nothing bad. Sure, many depositors at Firststar Bank will see their deposits go directly to my account and the transfers will be so coded that they can't be reversed. And the bank, in an attempt to correct the problem, will pay me 15 percent interest on all that money.
The IRS will send me a letter explaining that since I have been so good about sending half of my money to them for many years, they will request that I skip a few years. As soon as Ryan gets through school, they will get in touch with me about when I should start paying again.
But wait, this is not what I predict — this is what I hope.
There will be a few minor mistakes. You may get a water bill for $2,000 or the television may get stuck on Kenneth Starr and his attempts to bring down the President. Other than that, January 1 won't be any different than any other day — oh, we will get to see Dick Clark showing off how young he still looks.
Here is what happened to one guy: In March 1992 a man living in Newton, Massachusetts, received a bill for his as-yet-unused gas line stating he owed $0.00. He ignored it and threw the bill away. In April he received another and threw that one away, too.
The following month, the gas company

Domestic violence is everyone's business

by Michael Bedke
Chair
ABA Commission on Domestic Violence

In the five years since the O.J. Simpson trial put the issue of domestic violence on America's radar and TV screens, much progress has been made. The Violence Against Women Act, passed just after that trial, provided enhanced legal protections for victims of domestic violence, funding for training law enforcement personnel and judges, and new federal criminal penalties for certain acts of domestic violence.

Many police departments developed training programs, and some now have special domestic violence response units and have adopted a "zero tolerance" approach to prosecuting domestic violence crimes.

Protection orders are now enforceable nationwide, the penalties for violating civil protection orders are more severe, and judges are regularly imposing sanctions.

Misconceptions that domestic violence affects only poor, uneducated, minority women have been replaced by an understanding that domestic violence occurs in all socio-economic and ethnic groups.

The destructive effects of domestic violence on children are also now widely recognized, with many states requiring courts to consider domestic violence when making child custody decisions. Some even require courts to presume that it is not in the best interests of the children to grant custody to a spousal abuser.

Despite such advances, the statistics are still chilling. Nearly one in three women is physically assaulted by an intimate partner during adulthood. Conservatively, between one million and four million women are battered each year by their current or ex-partner. Thirty percent of all women murdered are killed by a current or former boyfriend or husband. Domestic violence is costing U.S. companies an estimated four to five billion dollars per year through absenteeism, employee turnover, higher health insurance premiums, and the like.

Community partnerships get funds to fight abuse

The Kentucky Cabinet for Families and Children has awarded $552,000 to community partnerships aimed at protecting children from abuse and neglect.

The grants, using federal Community Based Family Resource and Support funds, administered by Eastern Kentucky University, went to projects established to develop more community-minded approaches to human services.

Cabinet leadership created something called "Vision 2000" two years ago to improve both access to, and results of, the services provided by the agency. The concept — which became the model for the Cabinet's restructuring — gives local CFC staff and communities more local authority to assess community needs and make decisions to meet those needs. Vision 2000 is designed to give people the tools they need to be safe and self-sufficient.

Here is a list of the recipients:

- Breathitt County Vision 2000 — Touch a Mountain Angel Project. Grant of $26,910 for this child abuse and neglect prevention program promoting family and community ownership in the protection and nurturing of children through cultural pride. Funds earmarked for project director, awareness materials, and a children's cultural development program.

- Caldwell County Interagency Council/Vision 2000 — Building Personal Power: Skills for Managing Anger. Grant of $31,400 to implement a research-based national anger-management training program in the local middle schools. The program focuses on school violence prevention and skills building for community youth.

- Calloway County, Murray Community Partnership — One Family/One Plan Initiative. Grant of $41,418 to integrate community services around a family-centered model encouraging clients' participation and involvement in their own case planning. The initiative requested funds for a project coordinator.

- Clark County Vision 2000/Children's Council — Creative Child Care. Grant of $32,000 for a child care center targeting families needing early-morning and late-afternoon care, in addition to crisis child care.

- Daviess County — Family Connection at Foust. Grant of $45,755 for this grassroots community development project seeking to empower the Foust community to identify and address its own needs. Grants will be spent on a part-time community liaison person, training, and community seed money.

- Grant/Pendleton County Community Partnership — Parent Education Network. Grant of $46,755 to teach family skills building and child abuse and neglect prevention.

- Neighborhood Place Partnership — Jefferson County Vision 2000. Grant of $43,000 to expand the Truancy Court Diversion project, which focuses on truancy prevention through family support and services.

- Laurel County Vision 2000 — Family Mentoring Program. Grant of $36,888 to provide a community-based family mentoring program to families eligible for welfare. Focus of the program will be to provide support to those in transition from welfare to work and to provide family support skills, such as parenting and child development in order to prevent child abuse and neglect.

- Morgan County Vision 2000 — Home Visitation and Support Services. Grant of $49,457 so Morgan County can build on its effort to provide home visitation and support services to first-time mothers based on the current Health Access: Nurturing Development Services (HANDS) model.

- Ohio County Vision 2000 — Family Enrichment Program. Grant of $32,781 to continue successful home visitation program, providing support services for young women who are pregnant and/or have children under five years of age. Program's overarching goal is to reduce child abuse and neglect.

Y2K

sent him a very nasty note stating that they were going to cancel his gas line if he didn't send them $0.00. He called them and they said it was a computer error and they would take care of it.

The next month he decided it was about time that he tried out the troublesome gas line, figuring that if there were usage on the account it would put an end to his ridiculous predicament. However, when he went to use the gas, it had been cut off.

He called the gas company who apologized for the computer error once again and said they would take care of it. The next day he got a bill for $0.00 stating that payment was overdue. Assuming it was another mistake since he had talked to them the previous day, he ignored it trusting that the company would be as good as their word and sort out the problem.

The next month he got a bill for $0.00 stating that he had 10 days to pay his account or the company would have to take steps to recover the debt. Finally, giving in, he thought he would play the company at its own game and mailed a check for $0.00. The computer duly processed his account and returned a statement that he now owed the company nothing at all.

A week later, the man's bank called him asking him what he was doing writing a check for $0.00. After a lengthy explanation, the bank replied that the $0.00 check had caused their check processing software to fail. The bank could therefore not process ANY checks for ANY of its customers that day because the check for $0.00 was causing the computer to crash.

The following month the man received a letter from the gas company, claiming that his check had bounced and that he now owed $0.00, and unless he sent a check, the company would take steps to recover the debt.

The man, who had been considering buying his wife a computer for her birthday, bought her a typewriter instead.

Does the expression "push back the date" seem to be wrong to you? If school should start at a later date than planned (Now please don't go out and say school is going to start late based on this "if" clause.), shouldn't we say the starting date has been pushed forward? We go forward on the calendar, so we push the date forward. Does that make sense or am I crazy? Don't answer that.

Violence

These statistics represent real people—our mothers, sisters, wives, friends and co-workers. They are the romance writer whose husband murdered her on the streets of Washington, D.C., in May. They are the Mt. Airy, Maryland, wife of a scientific editor for the National Cancer Institute, her murdered body left in a car trunk at an airport. They are the woman behind you in line at the grocery, with makeup badly hiding a fresh black eye.

Yes, progress has been made. But it is not enough. Everyone needs to get involved.

Journalists should exercise caution when reporting on domestic violence cases. Rather than portraying the killer as a doting father and husband who took his wife's life when she left him because he "loved her too much," the press should educate their readers that domestic violence is a crime.

Corporate America should refuse to accept the crime of domestic violence being perpetr-ed against their most important asset—their employees—just as they refuse to tolerate theft or other crimes being committed against the company.

And the rest of us—you and I—must also take a stand. We must report abuse when we see it. We must offer support and comfort to those we suspect are being abused. And we must let it be known that we recognize domestic violence to be a crime and we expect those who commit the violence to be treated as criminals. The next time a colleague says he shoved his wife or girlfriend during a "lovers' quarrel," let's have the guts to tell him "there is no excuse for domestic violence."

Elect and Keep JUDGE JULIE PAXTON Circuit Judge, Division 3, Family Court

TO THE CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

On July 16th, 1999, I was sworn in as the first Family Court Judge for Floyd County. I will stand for election on November 2nd. Since my swearing in I have been setting up the Family Court, handling matters that come before the Family Court and in the evenings and on weekends, visiting with as many of you as possible.

I am married to Martin "Marty" Osborne, a Prestonsburg attorney. We have two children, Jackson, 8, and Clara, 6. We live on Mill Branch on Middle Creek. I have practiced law in Floyd County since January, 1987. Many of you already know me. If you do not know me, please ask anyone who does about my character and qualifications. This job is important to me, and it is also important to Floyd County.

As the Family Court is new to Floyd County, please let me explain what it is, how it benefits Floyd Countians, and why I am the right person for this job.

WHAT IS FAMILY COURT?

Family Court is a new court presided over by a circuit judge (Family Court Judge). It was created by the Legislature and became effective on July 1, 1999.

Its purpose is to have all non-criminal legal matters affecting families, children and juveniles handled in one court and by one judge. Floyd Countians are indeed fortunate to have this court available to them. Some of the matters which this court handles are divorce, custody, child support, adoption, abuse-neglect-dependency, emergency protective orders, and juvenile status offenders.

WHAT ARE MY QUALIFICATIONS TO HOLD THIS JOB?

This court requires someone with experience; someone who knows the law; someone who is tough when necessary but fair, and someone who is compassionate; and it requires someone who is truly interested in the problems families, and children in particular, face in sometimes desperate situations. I AM THAT PERSON.

Experience is the foundation of this judgeship. I have previously served as Assistant Floyd County Attorney from 1987 to 1990. I also served as Assistant Commonwealth Attorney for Knott and Magoffin Counties. Prior to becoming an attorney, I worked with Social Services which is the front line in discovering and eliminating situations which endanger children's safety and lives. These jobs provide me with invaluable practical experience in dealing with families and children in bad situations. In my legal career, I have prosecuted criminal cases, represented plaintiffs and defendants in civil actions, represented husbands and wives in domestic matters, and tried cases in both the district and circuit courts. I have been there. I know what Family Court is and what it requires.

As a practicing attorney for 13 years, I know the law; as a working mother, I know the problems families face.

I WILL MAKE THE FAMILY COURT THE BEST IT CAN BE.

Paintings on display at MAC

Now on display at the Mountain Arts Center are paintings by Linda Chaffins, known as Ms. Chay to her students and friends at Betsy Layne Elementary School where she teaches primary classes.

"Ms. Chay" started drawing as a child to see if "she could make Little Joe (Michael Landon) look real." She was hooked by the results.

She studied art at Morehead State University earning a B. A. in studio art and a master's degree in art education.

She has exhibited her work at MSU, Pikeville College, and year-round at Country at Heart in Prestonsburg.

The artist paints her own views and accepts commissions. Many of her paintings are from scenery observed while fishing with her husband and her son or from trips to scenic spots such as the Breaks Interstate Park.

"My next painting is always going to be my best. I can forget the world with all of its problems for a while when I'm painting. I'm always thrilled when someone else is enjoying viewing my work," said Chaffins.

She resides at Harold with her husband, Bobby, and son, Adam.

Booklet may help the sleepless

Research has shown that nearly 43 million Americans suffer from sleep disorders. Most are unaware, costing them an estimated $7.2 billion in health care costs annually. In 1998, the average American got 247 hours less sleep per year, than the average American in 1971.

The Sleep Research Institute in Washington, DC, has published a new booklet, "Getting The Sleep You Need."

The booklet gives information and suggestions on what to do when you can't sleep.

"Many people have trouble sleeping and don't know where to turn for help," says Tor Stave, assistant director at the institute.

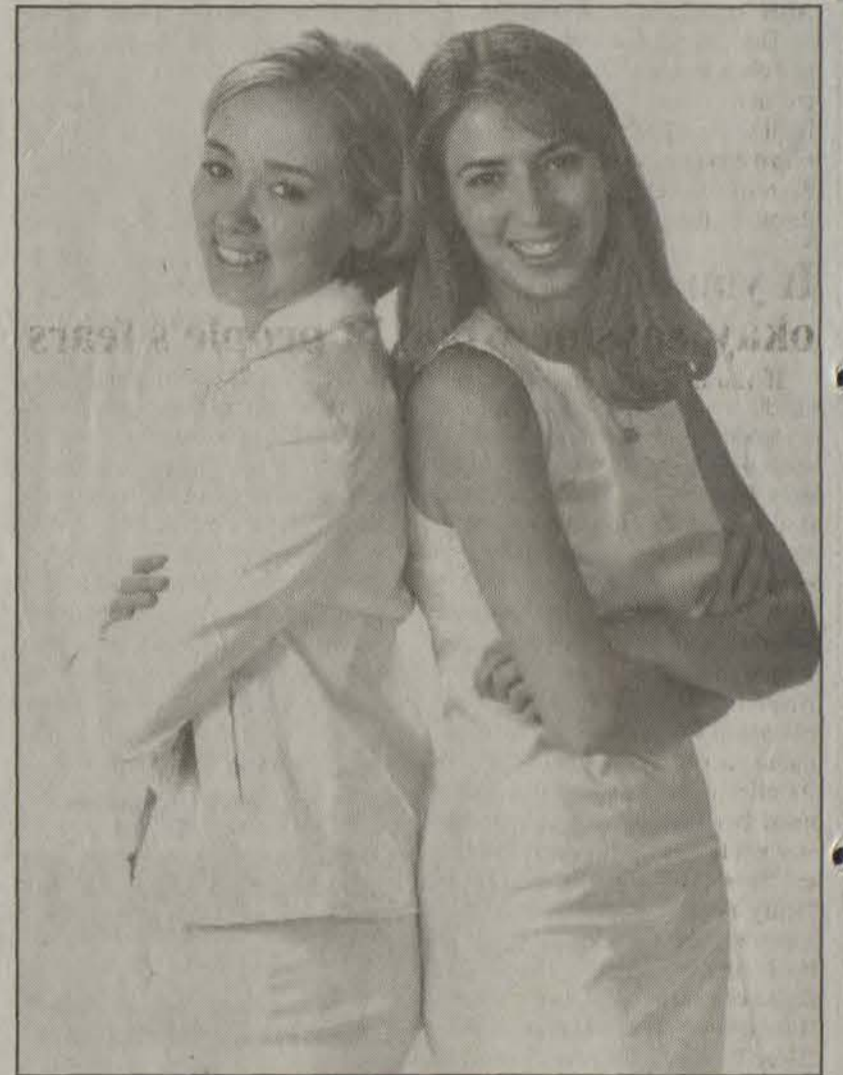

"We've published a booklet that can help them with their situation."

Kelly Potter and Mandy Potter

Sisters plan to attend University of Kentucky

Kelly Potter

After graduating from Madisonville-North Hopkins High School, Kelly Potter now plans to attend the University of Kentucky, but is undecided on a major.

The one of the youngest valedictorians at 17, Kelly may major in advertising, but is still not entirely sure.

One thing she is sure of is where she plans to be after her college graduation.

After graduating from The University of Kentucky, she does not plan on returning to Madisonville where her parents, Bill and Sue Potter, reside.

"I'd like to stay in Lexington, because a lot of my family is there, and I love that city," she said.

Like her sister and fellow valedictorian, Mandy, she credits her mother as her biggest influence.

"She has supported my sister and I through everything and has always pushed us for our good grades," she said.

In ten years, Kelly sees herself working for a large company with a steady job.

"I hope to be settled, but probably not married yet," she said.

Their maternal grandparents are Herbert and Minnie Stapleton of Lexington. Their paternal grandparents are Bill and Myrtle Jo Potter of Prestonsburg.

Mandy Potter

Mandy Potter, like fellow Madisonville-North Hopkins High School valedictorian and sister, Kelly, is going to attend the University of Kentucky in the fall.

"I don't know about a major yet," she said. "I have thought a lot about law and architecture. Law interested me because of the freedom associated with being a partner, and architecture interested me, because I like to draw."

She hopes to eventually be her own boss.

She is doubtful that she will return to Madisonville after finishing college and will probably stay in Lexington.

She was quick to name her greatest influence as a close family member.

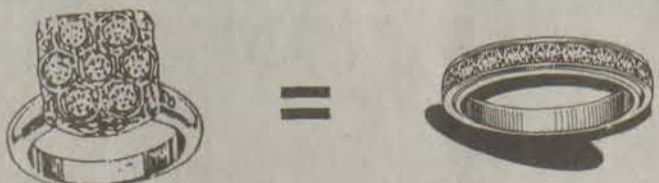

"My mom is my greatest influence," she said. "She's got a real go-to-it personality. She is direct, straightforward and outgoing."

The daughter of Bill and Sue Potter of Madisonville, she said her future plans are up in the air at the moment.

"No kids, definitely," she said. "Maybe married with a career, but not a stay-at-home mom. It all depends on my major."

Coal company supports education

For 10 years, the Elk Horn Coal Corporation has provided scholarship funding to students from eastern Kentucky as they pursue one of the degree programs offered by the University of Kentucky College of Engineering.

To date, seven students have benefited from the company's commitment to support young men and women from the area in which Elk Horn operates, and an eighth has been selected for the 1999 fall semester.

Gabriel Knowles, a graduate of Johnson Central High School, has completed a Master of Science in engineering, and Bradley Stone, a graduate of Millard High School, has received his degree in mining engineering.

Other recipients still completing work on their degrees are Darren Boyd and Pierre Coolen of Paintsville High School; Jason McReynolds of Pike County Central High School; Kathryn Mullins of Prestonsburg High School, and Wesley Howard of Allen Central High School.

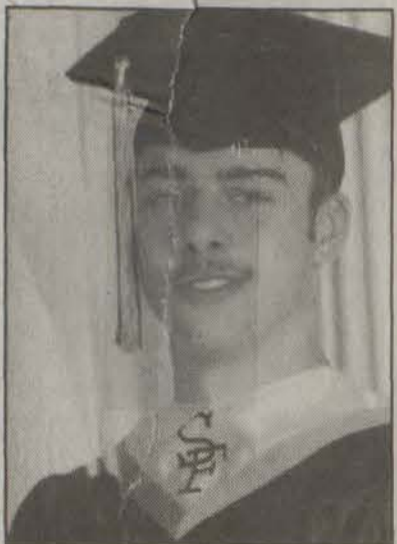

Joshua Ward, a 1999 graduate of South Floyd High School, will join the group at UK this fall.

Eligible students reside in Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Letcher, Magoffin, or Pike counties and have graduated with a minimum 3.5 grade point average and earned a minimum ACT composite score of 27.

Students may also elect to begin their pre-engineering studies at Prestonsburg Community College before transferring to UK for their junior year. The scholarship is renewable as long as the student maintains a minimum 2.75 grade point average at UK.

The College of Engineering honored all scholarship recipients, their families and their spouses last fall at the inaugural banquet at the Marriott Hotel in Lexington.

Major issues result from the community initiated decision making project

"Too much waiting throughout the ARH Regional Medical Center" was the top issue that resulted from the year-long community initiated decision making project sponsored by KRADD and endorsed by the ARH Regional Medical Center.

The project involved interaction and discussions with many individuals and groups throughout Perry, Leslie, Knott, Breathitt, Letcher and Floyd counties. This assessment was the responsibility of the CIDM coordinator, the Community Health Council, and a market survey.

The result was an enormous collection of concerns, suggestions, and positive comments regarding the quality of care and services provided by the medical center and other health care providers in the area.

The Community Health Council identified four major issues that should be addressed by the medical center. Each issue includes areas of major concern:

Too much waiting was the number one issue. The areas of concern with this issue were ER, doctors' offices, surgery, outpatient, admissions, discharges, x-ray, and outpatient pharmacy.

Lack of communication was the second issue. The areas of concern were hospital staff, language barrier with physicians, types of services, marketing of services, telephone, ombudsman, more user friendly, compassion, doctors taking more time with patients, and more information to patients' families.

Adequate staffing was the third issue. The areas of concern with this issue were hospital staff, more physicians/specialists (more dedicated to the area and better trained), ER, after hours clinic in Knott County, and paramedics in Leslie County.

Medical costs was the last major issue. The areas of concern for this issue were free clinics; billing department (more consumer friendly); bills you can understand; bills in a timely manner; better communication between insurance companies, provider, and patients; itemized bills; co-pay cost increasing because of billing procedures; and no insurance.

Each of these issues will be addressed by task forces that are now being formed. The task forces will include Health Council and Hospital Advisory Council members, interested persons from the six-county area, employees/physicians of the medical center, and other health care providers from the area.

This project has also resulted in a great deal of positive feedback concerning the ARH Regional Medical Center. Many of the above issues are already being addressed by the hospital.

Anyone who would like to volunteer as a task force member, or who needs more information about CIDM, call 606/439-6611 or 439-2858.

If you like being frightened—it's okay, says new poll of people's fears

If you like being "a little frightened" every now and then—and somehow enjoy feeling that small thrill of unease at the back of your neck when there's a sudden sound in the night — just join the rest of us, according to a new national poll of people's fears.

With Friday, the 13th, casting a warning shadow on this year's August calendar, a new Dateline News Service survey of what people are afraid of — and why — found that nearly 80 percent of Americans polled say they "don't mind being frightened every once in a while" and really look forward to it happening when they go to see "scary movies" — "The Mummy" was cited as an example — or read books master-crafted to inspire fear, dread or terror — Stephen King's "Bag of Bones," L. Ron Hubbard's "Fear," and Thomas Harris' "Hannibal" among them.

As to why Americans like being frightened, close to 90 percent of the 1,300 respondents polled by Dateline News Service, including several writers skilled at rousing fear of dark places and empty rooms, said it was "pure escape" or "a way of getting out of yourself" or a "sudden, high-adrenaline release from other concerns."

Principal fears cited in the new poll — representing 25 percent of those surveyed — ranged from high places, narrow spaces and insects and bugs to elevators, escalators and flying.

Other fears most frequently named, in a variety of smaller percentages, included black cats and small dogs, darkness and doctors, deep water and fire.

A full 35 percent of Americans surveyed, however, again told Dateline News Service that what frightened them most is simply "the unknown" — unseen things that go bump in the night, or what one respondent described as "tiny tendrils of terror" when something that once seemed commonplace is suddenly, somehow, different.

Citing "the unknown" as a "personal bugaboo shared by many," award-winning writer Tim Powers ("Expiration Date") said fear of "the heard but unseen" can be intensified for him by reading a truly scary story — where pure fear is distilled from terrifying things that happen to ordinary people in ordinary settings.

A Stephen King novel can turn the prosaic into a nightmare, Powers said, and in a horror classic like "Fear," L. Ron Hubbard can Contemporary Christian musicians: Artists or Evangels?

"I think CCM (Contemporary Christian Music) presents us with a microcosm of the tensions between religion and wider society. We can certainly learn that evangelical Christianity is not as monolithic as it is often presented to be," says sociologist Jay Howard, co-author of the newly published book "Apostles of Rock: The Splintered World of Contemporary Christian Music."

In the last decade, Contemporary Christian Music has become a staple in popular music, outselling both jazz and classical in stores nationwide. The industry's earnings are nearly $750 million per year, showing that CCM is not just a few bands on the church circuit anymore.

"Apostles of Rock" looks at three distinct views of the role of CCM artists. Howard and John M. Streck label the first category "separational," defining the CCM artists who see themselves as ministers first and foremost and do not condone crossing over into mainstream music such as Amy Grant and Michael W. Smith have.

One writer, criticizing Amy Grant's move to mainstream remarked, "Has Amy Grant traded in hallelujah for hubba hubba?" Moralist critic Jeff Godwin wrote, "Michael W. Smith is a product of an industry...he chose to stay in, and Satan has marked him for it."

Howard and Streck consider two other types of CCM, which they call "integrational" and "transformational." Artists in these camps consider crossing over to mainstream and artistic value very important.

The authors argue that from these differences within the industry comes conflict. "I do think the tension is actually beneficial for CCM. Such tensions drive change and improvement," says Howard.

Howard and Streck found that through CCM, young people find a way to show their faith and still be individuals. "CCM does provide an outlet for Christian youth to express their world views and adopt the role of youth as rebel without contradicting their faith. It's an interesting paradox," Howard points out.

"Apostles of Rock" uses an Trent and Kassidy Frasure wait with Heather Goble to get their turn in the Starlab Planetarium.

Michael Ousley, here with his mother, took part in the Starlab Planetarium display recently at the Floyd County Library. He saw inside of the planetarium "stars and pictures and things."

This little one, Catherine Sturgill, was afraid of the darkness inside the Planetarium, but she wanted to go back in to "see the stars."

Aaron Jacobs Keithley saw "nothing but stars," while Kristen Fitch saw "pictures, big old things on the ceiling" in the Starlab Planetarium, sponsored by the East Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics and Technology.

objective approach to explain the popular culture phenomenon of Contemporary Christian Music. Looking toward the future of the industry, Howard says, "Presently, CCM is having a substantial impact on the nature of worship in many evangelical churches. The services typically use much more contemporary music than even 10 years ago."

Jay R. Howard received his Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Notre Dame and is an assistant professor of sociology at Indiana University-Columbus. From 1978-1984 he worked as a Christian radio disc jockey. John M. Streck is a doctoral candidate in the communication studies at the University of Iowa.

The book is set for publication on August 27 by the University Press of Kentucky. The cost is $29.95. For information, call 606/257-8761.

Arts Council seeks public input for long range plan

The Kentucky Arts Council is hosting a series of public meetings in nine cities across the Commonwealth from mid-August to early-September. Prestonsburg will host the meeting for Eastern Kentucky on September 1, at the Mountain Arts Center.

The meeting will be from 6 p.m.-9 p.m. and will focus on the arts programming needs of schools, communities, arts organizations, and individual artists.

Bill Francis, Arts Council board chairman and attorney from Prestonsburg says, "This is the time to let the Arts Council know what the issues and concerns are regarding the arts and arts programming in Kentucky. Citizen input is the first and most important component of the planning process."

Additionally, a pre-meeting is scheduled for visual and performing artists at 4 p.m. at the same site. Arts Council staff will also be available for individual appointments during the 4 p.m.-6 p.m. time frame.

Appointments for the Prestonsburg meeting must be scheduled by August 25, by calling the Arts Council office toll free at 1-888-833-ARTS.

The Kentucky Arts Council is a state agency in the Education Arts and Humanities Cabinet, established by the General Assembly in 1965 to develop and promote support for the arts in Kentucky.

— A Look At Sports —

Injured list; Conley will stay put

The injured list has grown with two Rebels added, just before football season begins. The high school football season is just over a week from kicking off and some of our local players are having to watch from the sidelines. We've discussed the unavailability of quarterback Charlie Williams, due to an ankle injury, to the South Floyd Raiders. Now add two Allen Central Rebels to the list. Although one injury may not be too serious, the other one could really hurt

Shawn Newsome injured his back and has been out of practice for four days, but is expected to heal up and return to the Rebels' practice sessions soon. But the loss of D.J. Hoover could be devastating to the Rebels' scheme of things.

Hoover, who is expected to be one of the top backs in the area, could very well miss the entire football season, according to coach Kevin Spurlock.

"It appears that he is done for the season," he said.

However, Hoover thinks he will be able to return much quicker.

"In three or four weeks I should be able to come back," he said. "At least, that is what the doctors are saying."

Hoover hurt his right leg in practice. "I was carrying the ball and got tackled and they came down on my leg," he said. To beat it all, it was his brother Nick who broke it.

Newsome said he was experiencing some discomfort in his back, but that he thought he would be back soon.

"I need to just work it out," said Newsome. "I don't think it is anything serious."

Newsome is expected to be in the backfield for the Rebels, and is needed more so with Hoover being out.

Amelia Conley thinks her friends at Prestonsburg High School are more important than the game of basketball. So her mother, Robin, reports.

That certainly is a rarity in this day and age when everyone is trying to get ahead of everyone else, regardless of whom it hurts.

According to her mother, Amelia will be a Lady Blackcat this basketball season, contrary to the rumors of her departing Prestonsburg and heading to Shelby Valley.

"She is real good friends with Summer Jones and Ashley Damron at Shelby Valley and she went to camp with the two this summer," said her mother. "But she told me that her friends at Prestonsburg were more important than basketball."

Robin, who lives in Pikeville, said that Amelia does not live there, and "has only been there six times since I moved there."

"That is how all those rumors got started," she said. "When she went to camp with Summer and Ashley, they thought she was going to go to Shelby Valley. The girls did ask her to come there, but she likes Prestonsburg."

Robin said rumors had Amelia going to Belfry also.

"Some lady stopped me in an elevator at the hospital and asked me if she was going to Belfry," said Robin. "I didn't even know the lady."

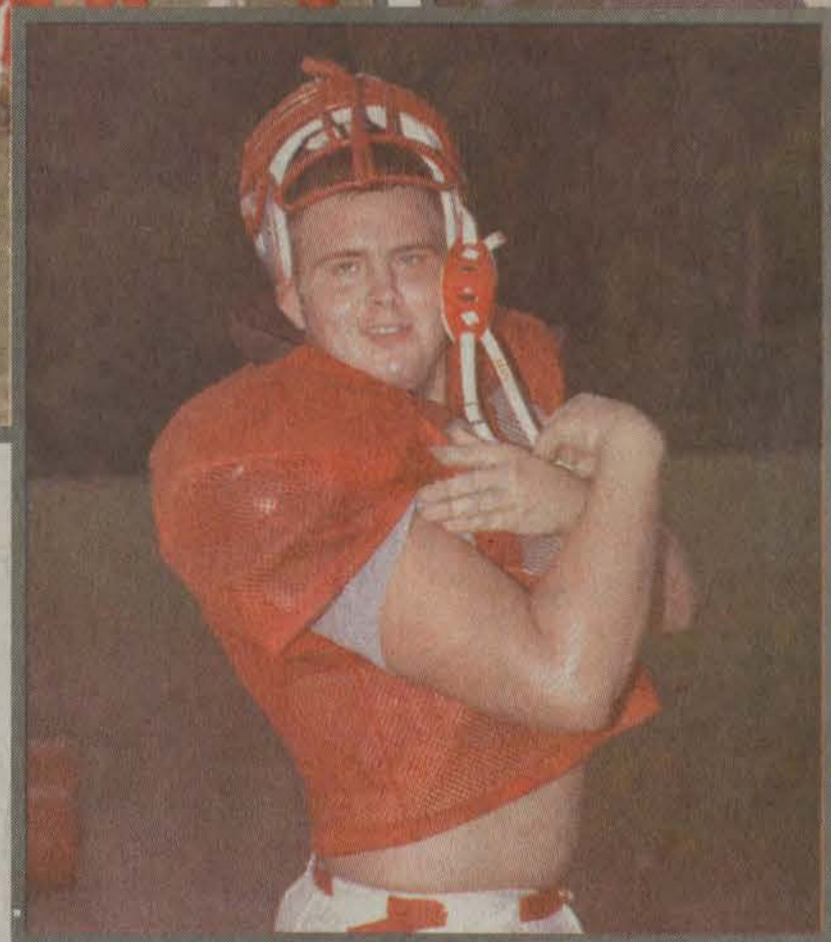

All this goes to strengthen what I have said all along, that players transferring around the state — there should be a stop put to it. You live in a district, you play sports in that district.

There seems to be little loyalty anymore. When I was in school at Martin, no one ever thought about transferring from Drawing close to the opening of high school football, coaches across Kentucky are trying to fine-tune their respective teams and are using the allowed two scrimmages to get ready.

Gridoramas have become nothing but glorified scrimmage games which allow the teams to raise needed money for their programs by inviting three other teams in to play two games.

Allen Central met up with a tough, tough Shelby Valley team this past Friday night at Betsy Layne, part of a four-team grid. It wasn't a very impressive night for the Rebels as far as their coach, Kevin Spurlock, was concerned. The Rebels took a beating in the game, but fans need to remember that the Rebels, whose program came close to folding last year, is a rebuilding program that will be meeting a Class 2A school, which is going to be very competitive this season.

Coaches will tell you that winning a grid game is not that important, but does show that you have learned something in the early practices and camps attended.

Monday at the Don Daniels Complex on the campus of Allen Central High School, Coach Spurlock addressed his team. He spoke in a different tone of voice than I have heard from him before.

Kevin has always been a rather quiet, but firm type of coach, but this night he was deadly serious about the lack of effort the Rebels showed against the Wildcats at Betsy Layne.

He informed them that his being a "nice guy" was over and now it was time to get serious about the upcoming season, with only one scrimmage game (whoops, sorry! — one gridiron) left.

Allen Central has lost the service of one of their backs, whom they were depending upon much on this football season. D.J. Hoover injured an ankle in practice, missed the grid game at Betsy Layne, and is doubtful for the remainder of the season. Shawn Newsome, whom Coach Spurlock needed to move and replace Hoover, is nursing an aching back.

Now, this Saturday night, the Rebels will play their second grid game and it will be at home. Betsy Layne will meet Elkhorn City in the first game at 6 p.m., with Allen Central taking on Fleming-Neon in game two.

"I want to win this game," Spurlock told his team just before they hit the sleds on the football field. He promised them the sled would be moving around the football field that practice day, and it did.

Coaches around the county want to be winners. They want their teams to put forth the best effort they can. Coach Spurlock has always been a competitor in any game he participated in.

I remember when he played basketball at Allen Central, back in my early days covering sports. He was a fighter. Betsy Layne Coach Ted George put it all in perspective when he said the thing for coaches to do is to "just go out and do the best you can as a coach." The players want to win. But sometimes they just don't have the "ability" to play against some of the teams they face. Coaches ask for, some demand, more than what a player is capable of doing and when he doesn't measure up to the expectations, then frustration sets in.

Coach Spurlock, like Coach George, are in programs that are not, let's be realistic, known to be powerhouse programs. Now, that doesn't mean that is the way they want it.

Sure, they would love to build a tradition of a Prestonsburg, Pikeville, Belfry, etc., powerhouse. But they do not have the numbers, the facilities, the equipment, or the backing these schools have.

Prestonsburg coach John Derossett has been there. He coached four seasons at Betsy Layne. And he had the program headed in the right direction, bringing a winning program to the school. But, in a year, they were not competing for a district title. Then the call came from Prestonsburg when Bill Letton left. Derossett made the move and George, who at one time was an assistant under Letton, arrived.

Coach Donnie Daniels at South Floyd has built the Raiders into a contender each year in their district. The Raiders have been playoff participants the last two seasons and competed in three of the last four.

Coach Daniels has been blessed with a talented backfield, as well, with a capable quarterback. But it did not come easy at South Floyd. It took hard work on the part of Coach Daniels and his staff. He surrounded himself with men who loved and knew the game.

Kids followed their leading. Patience was required on the part of everyone. Dedication and commitment were the rules if the program was to turn around.

Winning games brought out larger numbers each year, and now the Raiders are one of the top programs in the area. But, again, it is not always going to be that way. I am sure, down the road, Coach Daniels, if he remains at the helm, will have to step back and admit it is time to rebuild.

I do not envy any of the four coaches their jobs. Some may, I have been told they do not envy my job and the schedule I have to keep. But they feel pressure from both on the gridiron and off the gridiron.

It is no longer their job until they want to step down, as it used to be. Now it is pressure of winning if you want to keep the job. There is the pressure of being away from family and not enjoying their home life.

Many, many times I have heard our coaches admit that they need more quality time with their kids. I respect our football coaches. At times, I get concerned about them. They are all my friends and I wish them the best this season.

To the parents and fans, let the coaches be the coach. Don't go out and add more pressure to their jobs. Support them when they are not winning, the same way you would if they won every game. Their jobs, and all the pressure they have to face, is not worth the meager salary they get for the efforts.

Oh yeah, the Rebels did push the sled around the big field — more than once!

Martin to Prestonsburg, Maytown, McDowell, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne, Auxier, Wayland, Garrett. Neither did anyone who attended those schools want to transfer to Martin. There was loyalty to the school.

I appreciate the attitude of Amelia and her choice of staying with her friends rather than going to another program.

Where will it all end?

Wonder boy Tim Couch looked good against Dallas Monday night. It was good to see clips of the game between the work of Al Michaels and Esias Boomer. I thought the two were rather boring.

Michaels was always my favorite when he was doing games for the Cincinnati Reds. Boomer just doesn't complement Al that well.

We will have to wait until September 12 to see how Couch and the Browns fare when they play for real against the Steelers. I am excited to see Cleveland Browns football back.

I told my wife Nancy that on my Christmas list is a Browns' sweatshirt and cap! I asked her if she was taking notes on what I said. She didn't say a word.

Watch Prime Time Sports over WPRG, Channel 5. Ken Hall is the host of the show and I will be one of his guests tonight. The show airs at 8:30 p.m., and is a live call-in, much like the one I used to host over the channel.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Ford making a strong statement

Dale Jarrett's domination of the Brickyard 400 left many from the Chevrolet camp questioning just how level the playing field is at this time in Winston Cup. Ford claimed eight spots in the final top ten with the highest finishing Chevrolet belonging to fourth place finisher, Jeff Gordon. The only other Monte Carlo driver to crack the top-ten was Dale Earnhardt in 10th place.

It wasn't as much the fact that Jarrett was able to get his Taurus into victory lane as it was the way he had the field covered for much of the race. Jarrett was able to lead 117 of the 160 laps, and even with a two-tire pit stop late in the race was able to drive away from the field with ease.

Only five other drivers were able to gain the five bonus points for leading a lap. The only Chevrolet drivers were able to gain the five bonus points for leading a lap. The only Chevrolet drivers to take the point were Jeff Gordon and Dave Marcis. Gordon led 24 laps early after starting from the pole and the veteran Marcis was able to lead one lap while the front runners pitted.

GM's other entry in the Winston Cup wars, the Pontiac Grand Prix, has shown that it has the muscle to run up front with the Fords and the results from Indy once again proved it. While Chevrolet has long been GM's premier entry in NASCAR, this year the Pontiac has proved to be every bit as competitive a team in the series.

The roots of Ford's dominance can be traced back to last season with the introduction of the Taurus to replace the old reliable Thunderbirds. Not only did the blue oval boys get a new race car last season, they proved that they were up to the task of figuring out the new "five and five" rule that limited the size of the spoiler and the height of the front air cam.

If it wasn't for the incredible year that Gordon's Dupont team put together last season, Ford would have won the prestigious Manufacturer's Championship. Six Ford drivers combined to win 15 races in '98, but Gordon almost matched that total with 13 victories to go along with wins by Chevy drivers Dale Earnhardt, Bobby Hamilton and Terry Labonte.

Still the championship battle went to the final race of the season in Atlanta as Ford was on the edge of capturing its second straight title. Chevrolet led the championship chase by two points, and with points awarded on a 9-6-4 basis, a Ford victory would ensure the Ford Teams of bringing the trophy to Ford's Dearborn headquarters.

If Pontiac won the Atlanta race, with a Ford finishing next highest, the point total would have been deadlocked between Chevy and Ford. The tie breaker that would have been used was the highest number of second-place finishes during the season. Ford would have easily been the victor if it came to that as they had posted 20 runner-up finishes compared to only 80 by Chevrolet.

Of course, that didn't matter as Gordon, with the bow tie boys holding on to his shirt tails, came across the finish line first.

So what we saw at Indy was just a continuation of the trend that actually started last year with the introduction of the Taurus. Next season all three makes of cars have announced that they will be introducing a new car in hopes of claiming the top spot in the series.

GM will be using a radically new designed Monte Carlo and will be outfitting the Pontiacs with new front and rear clips. Ford, just this past week, unveiled their new Taurus that they will be using next season in hopes of continuing their place at the front of the pack.

NASCAR doesn't really see that much difference in the makes that now compete in the series. After several sessions of wind and dyno testing, NASCAR felt that the difference in the three makes were just too close to warrant any changes. Maybe this time next year the same can't be said. Of course, that depends on just who does their homework over the winter as they prepare for the 2000 season.

Ashley Roberts has been a Betsy Layne High School Majorette for the past four years, serving as captain her senior year. During this time, the squad earned several state and national titles. Ashley's enthusiasm and character have been a shining example to all.

Ashley is the daughter of Larry and Sandra Roberts of Banner.

Good Luck with college; we'll miss you!

Whatever happened to summertime?

by Rick Bentley

I guess that's a strange question when taken out of context, but when considered from the point of view for those of us involved in athletics, it takes on an even greater meaning.

It used to be that when school ended, so did the athletic seasons. Oh sure, there's Little League and the like, but as for school-affiliated sports, summer was break time. Not any more.

Whereas in the past the only activity in the summer was a week-long basketball camp, business has picked up in recent years. Now, instead of using that single week of camp to raise money for a vacation, the camp is just another work week for the basketball coach.

Now summer means there are camps going on all over the place. Everyone has them, and they come in all shapes and sizes. The individual camp is basically open to everybody. You don't need a group for this; simply show up and go through the drills.

The team camp is a little different, but maybe even more popular than the individual camp as we look to the turn of the century. Schools either bring their team or split their team into two squads — it doubles the playing time for the athletes — and often enter a junior varsity team as well. Don't kid yourself here. These can be fairly profitable for the hosts.

The all-star camp is becoming more and more popular. In theory, these are often invitation-only camps, but often it's restricted only by a player's willingness to pay to play.

It's so busy the KHSAA has instituted a "dead" period, during which teams are forbidden from meeting.

It's also such a busy time that local baseball organizations suffer from lack of athletes.

Camps and their not-so-distant cousin, the AAU programs, keep basketball season going year-round, which limits the time an athlete has for other sports.

And baseball pays the price. Even in Pikeville, which has had a tremendous amount of success on the high school diamonds, youth baseball often plays second fiddle to basketball and the like. Hard to believe the school will be able to maintain its baseball success — it boasts of five of the 10 regional titles in the 1990s — with players missing games constantly for basketball practice.

About the only thing that cuts into basketball season is football, which has also swung into action. Two-a-days, the most dreaded of hyphenations for football players, are occupying the time of youngsters across the state.

Football teams, theoretically, aren't supposed to begin practice until 30 days before the season begins. We're definitely inside that window now, as at least one school was having a grid-o-rama this weekend.

And while the coaches and players are taxed during the summer, the group whose time is most in demand is the parents.

These are the people who are shuffling their children to weightlifting for football, then to basketball practice and on to a Senior League game in the evening, all while trying to work, cook and clean house.

Some parents use these basketball camps as babysitters. Actually, that's not the worst idea ever, because most of the time it's much cheaper than day-care and the kids could learn something and stay in shape at the same time.

Go-kart racing at Riverside Raceway looks like fun and there are some thrills that go with it. The first such track has enjoyed a successful race season in '99. (photo by Ed Taylor)

World's Championship Horse Show set for August 22-28

The 96th annual World's Championship Horse Show (WCHS) returns to Freedom Hall in Louisville, August 22-28, during the 1999 Kentucky State Fair. The richest saddlebred show in the world, WCHS includes more than $1 million in premiums, special awards and trophies.

The Kentucky State Fair is scheduled, August 19-29, at the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center in Louisville.

WCHS features more than 200 classes during its seven-day run. More than 2,000 of the world's finest saddlebreds will compete in categories including Saddle Horse and Roadster, Hackney and Hackney/Harness Ponies and Equitation divisions. The World's 3- and 5-Gaited Champions will be selected, Saturday evening, August 28.

A professional judging panel has been selected to judge this year's WCHS competitions. Don Brookshire (Raleigh, North Carolina), David Cunningham (Knoxville, Tennessee), Jim Taylor (Medina, Ohio), Kim Crumpler (Simpsonville), and Anne Judd (Lutz, Florida) will judge the Saddle and Roadster Horses.

Terry McKenzie (Diamond, Ohio) will join the Saddle and Roadster Horse judges to select winners in the Roadster Ponies and Hackney/Harness Ponies categories. The Equitation competitions will be judged by Fran Crumpler (Simpsonville), Jim Taylor and Anne Judd.

Individual tickets for the World's Championship Horse Show and weekly reserved seat tickets are on sale. For evening performances on August 22-26, tickets are $6; tickets for evening performances on August 27 and 28 are $10; gate admission to the Kentucky State Fair is required; weekly reserved seat tickets are $90 and include gate admission.

A five-member brass band from the Louisville Orchestra will perform during the Friday and Saturday evening shows, with a pre-show concert on Friday, from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

Tickets are available at the Freedom Hall Ticket Office and all TicketMaster outlets, or charge by phone through TicketMaster at 1-800-487-1212. For information on weekly reserved seats or accessible seating, call the Kentucky State Fair Ticket Office at 1-800-231-8085. Tickets purchased through TicketMaster are subject to a service charge. All morning performances are free with public seating in the upper level of Freedom Hall.

THE RACING REPORTER

Dale Jarrett put on quite a driving exhibition as he won his second Brickyard 400 by 3.3 seconds over second-place finisher, Bobby Labonte, and except for a late caution, it might have been more.

The driver of the Robert Yates

No. 88 Ford Taurus started fourth in the 43-car field. It was evident within 15 laps into the 160-lap race that Jarrett had the dominant car and was on his way to his second Brickyard 400 win.

In 1998, he was also leading the race, but due to a miscommunication between him and his pit crew, he ran out of fuel. The 88 team wasn't going to let that happen a second time.

With Jarrett leading, a caution flag came out on lap 141. All cars pitted for fuel and tires. Jarrett's team caught several other teams by surprise when they elected to take on only two right side tires.

Back on the track, Jarrett was still the leader. Lined up behind him in order were Bobby Labonte, Ward Burton, Mark Martin, Jeff Burton, Dale Earnhardt, and Jeff Gordon.

When racing resumed, there were only 14 laps remaining, and Jarrett was able to increase his lead on each successive lap.

"The car was easy to drive," he said. "And it drove better with two tires than four. I was concerned about fuel mileage. They told me we had enough gas, but when the caution came out, I was concerned about what to do."

Todd Parrott, crew chief, apparently made the right call. Several teams, including Jeff Gordon's, took on four tires. But the extra time in the pits cost them track position, and the other fresh tires didn't help either team close in on Jarrett.

"We would have loved to win," said Bobby Labonte. "We had a top-five car, but the 88 car was dialed in."

Pole-sitter Jeff Gordon finished third.

"D.J. had us covered," Gordon said. "Really, all weekend except qualifying. Even in practice, I knew he was going to be the guy to beat. When they dropped the green, I thought we had something for them; but our car really went away on old tires."

"We had one set the car didn't like and we fell way back. I thought with four tires there at the end, we might be able to do something with them. We got up to third, and I'm really proud of that effort. I shouldn't have told the guys to tighten it up. I told them to tighten it up and I got too tight behind those other cars, and it cost me a little bit of time."

"With two tires, they were better than we were with four. I thought

Jason Keller returned to victory lane at Indianapolis Raceway Park, Friday, August 6, in the Busch Series Kroger 200. Keller had won his first career race at IRP in August 1995.

"Well, I tell you, it's wonderful," Keller said. "We were a little bit tight there at the end, but things fell our way."

The race ended under caution after an accident by Adam Petty and Curtis Markham on lap 196 of the 200-lap event.

Todd Bodine was making a strong charge and appeared to have the fastest car, but he had to settle for second place.

"I believe in another 20 laps, Todd would have had a shot at us," said Keller's crew chief, Steve Abbington. "But Jason would have made that car awfully wide if he had tried."

The win was Keller's third career victory and the second of the season. His other 1999 win came at Bristol in April.

Matt Kenseth gained 10 points on series leader Dale Earnhardt Jr. by leading the most laps and finished one spot ahead of him.

Derek Gilchrist, who started his first Busch race in the No. 10 Oakwood Homes Chevrolet, got caught up in a wreck late in the race and finished 34th. He qualified 35th, but had worked his way up to ninth position before getting hit by another car trying to avoid a wreck.

BIFFLE GETS SIXTH TRUCK WIN

Greg Biffle's win in the Power Stroke 200 at Indianapolis Raceway Park, August 5, moved him into fifth spot in career wins among Craftsman Truck Series drivers.

But in addition to his win in the Roush Racing No. 50 Grainger Ford, Biffle became the new series points leader.

"I didn't think we had the best truck," said Biffle. "I think Stacy Compton was a little better, but we waited and waited for the right opportunity. I drove as conservatively as I could. The guys worked on it in the pits, and got me out right on time."

In victory lane, a reporter asked truck owner Jack Roush what he said to Biffle during the latter stage of the race, and he replied, "They asked me what to say to him, and I didn't say a thing. Why should I?"

Before Biffle took the checkered flag, he had to survive a heated challenge from Stacy Compton, driver of the No. 86 Royal Crown Dodge.

"We knew we had something for Greg," Compton said. "But what we had was on the long runs. That final caution killed us."

KELLER WINS BUSCH KROGER 200

Jarrett dominates the Brickyard

since we got four, we might as well take advantage of it. We got up to third. I was pretty happy with that. We ran out of laps to be able to catch Bobby for second. All-in-all, it was a pretty good effort all week-end long. A pole and a third, we'll take it."

Jarrett's 3.3 second margin of victory was the largest in the six-year history of the Brickyard 400. He joins Jeff Gordon as the only drivers to have won the event twice. The winner's purse was $712,240.

Thunder Ridge to host Pacing Fillies August 15

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

One week remains in the harness racing schedule at Thunder Ridge Entertainment and Racing facility. But fans will have an opportunity to catch one of the biggest races in the harness racing industry when the local track will host the 2-year-old Pacing Fillies on Sunday, August 15, the final race of the season.

The purse for the race will be an estimated $40,000. Already entered in this race is the fastest 2-year-old filly in the United States.

Live harness racing is held each Thursday, Friday and Sunday evenings with post time at 7 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, and 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Ann Reeder, track manager, said, "We would like to thank everyone who took part in our celebrity race last week."

On the dirt track, the stock car racers pick up this Saturday night with a $3,000-to-win purse to the driver who takes the checkered flag in the Late Models class. That, plus the regular show, will highlight the race night. Pit gates open at 6 p.m.

Down the road, race fans may want to make plans to attend the first annual Racing/Showing Standardbreds under Saddle Show on September 11.

For more information, contact Thunder Ridge at 886-7223.

Lemaster returns after long absence, wins feature

by Chris Belcher
Track Writer

Two weeks ago, 201 Speedway at Sitka had to postpone stock car's dirt track racing until the past weekend; but the track gave race fans double their money's worth with two nights of hot stock car racing.

There was something old who returned to the new-look Sitka track with the return of Buck Lemaster, after a long absence, and he took home the $1,000 Super Bomber purse.

Friday night the Bombers took to the track with Keith Potter of West Liberty recording the win in his No. 17 ride. Kevin Baker of Offutt followed Potter across the finish line with defending champion Bannie Blair placing third.

Paintsville's Gary Cunagin was able to get away from the Super Bomber field from the drop of the green flag and led all 20 laps enroute to the win. Cunagin took the polish victory lap with the checkers, dedicating the victory to his brother, Ronnie Cunagin, who raced at 201 for several years and lost his life last year in an automobile accident.

Following Cunagin to the line were Pikeville's Glen Patton, points leader Ronnie Conley and Beadie Blackburn.

Wolf Creek's Amos Staton Jr. led all eight laps of Friday night's

"A" Main Four Cylinder feature to record the win. Jack Clevenger Jr. took second place ahead of Robbie Baker and Brent Maynard.

In the "B" Main, Hazard's Barry Carrier took the checker flag, followed by Hayes Jude and Rodrick Mollett.

In the final feature Friday night, Ronnie Conley drove his Road Hog to the winner's circle ahead of West Liberty's Scott Pennington.

The rest of the racing grid Friday night was used for heat races for all divisions to make up the starting grids for the following night's feature, which were paying additional dollars in every class.

The Bomber feature was the first to take to the clay track Saturday night. Kevin Baker took the checkered flag over Friday night's Bomber winner, Keith Potter.

Baker took to the front early with Doug Saylor keeping right in his tire tracks for the opening circuits. Coldwater's Albert Butcher and Flat Gap's Bannie Blair were less than a car length behind, battling for the third spot.

On the 14th lap, while trying to gain the point from Baker, Saylor drove his #43 Firebird a little too hard into the second corner, looping it around in front of Butcher and Blair.

The incident ended Butcher's night with a broken axle and forced Blair to the pits with a right rear flat. Fortunately for Blair, the yellow flag stayed out long enough for his crew to repair his B4 Bomber, and return to the rear of the running order.

On every restart, Baker was able to get a good run off the fourth corner and drive away the challenge of the previous night's winner, Keith Potter. Potter finished second while Conley placed third.

In Saturday night's $1,000-to-win Super Bomber feature, a field of 17 cars took to the clay with Friday night's winner, Gary Cunagin, quickly setting the blistering pace, holding off the challenge of Olive Hill's Joey Back in his No. 6 car.

Back was able to draw to within a bumper of Cunagin by the fourth lap, but as Back tried to stick the nose of his car to the inside of Cunagin, Cunagin powered away down the frontstretch. Back kept within inches of Cunagin's lead. Back denied the challenge of Cunagin taking away the inside line that Back was searching for.

After being idle for the past five years, Buck Lemaster of Falcon had brought the same car of five years ago back to 201 and mounted a challenge from his 10th starting position. On lap 12, Lemaster took the second spot from Back and set his sights on the leader.

Making his move to the point, Lemaster got to the inside of Cunagin by the flagstand and clearing Cunagin for the lead ahead of the entrance to turn one.

After taking the lead, Lemaster quickly took advantage of clear racetrack ahead of him and built a good lead over Cunagin, who again had to deal with the charge of Joe Back.

Cunagin and Back waged a fierce battle for the second spot for several laps until with only seven laps remaining, the two got together off the fourth turn, collecting both Cunagin and Back.

The caution was charged to Cunagin, sending him to the back of the running order, and Back to the second spot. When the $1,000 checker flag fell, it would be Lemaster with the win followed by Back and Pikeville's Glenn Patton.

In the modified four cylinder action Saturday night, Rusty Pennington took the checkered flag in his No. 12 car. John Walker placed second, followed by Ashley Cunagin.

In the four cylinder "A" Main, Amos Staton Jr. appeared to have the race in hand until a right front tire came off as he came out of turn four with four laps to go, handing the lead to Jack Clevenger Jr.

Clevenger came into Saturday night's race only 10 points out of the lead held by Staton.

Four cylinder "B" Main went to Hazard's Barry Carrier for the second in a row. Rodrick Mollett placed second, followed by Sam Tackett and Calvin Napier.

In the final event Saturday night, Ronnie Conley scored his second feature win in as many nights in the Road Hog feature, beating out Jerry Honeycutt and Jimmy Judd.

This weekend, 201 welcomes the Late Models back to the red clay with a $2,500 purse. A regular show will be part of this Saturday night's race card.

Hofsess Top Dog at Thunder Ridge

by James Trimble
Track Writer

Thunder Ridge rolled back into action last Saturday with four classes on the schedule: Modifieds, Super Bombers, Bombers, and those Wild Road Hogs. Late Models were given the night off due to another big race in the area and also to give the drivers a little extra time to prepare for the big $3,000-to-win show next week.

First up was qualifying for the Super Bomber and, when all was said and done, the U.S. 23 of Jimmy David Hall was fastest with a time of 21.60.

Next was the Modifieds and in this case, first was best as Greg Ison was the first on the track and his time of 20.22 was the quickest of the night.

Super Bomber heat No.1 rolled out first with the U.S. 23 of Jimmy David Hall and the 19 of Jamie Slone on the front row. When the green was in the air, Hall jumped out to the early lead; but it quickly went away as on the second lap Hall ran into mechanical problems, ending his night early. This gave the lead to the 19 of Slone, followed closely by the 43K of Kevin Hall.

When the white flag flew, Slone held on to a slight advantage. But Hall had one more run in him and passed him on the last lap to take the victory in the heat.

The first of two Bomber heats was next with the 50 of Bucky Collins and the 34 of Tommy Lackey drawing the front row in this heat race. At the drop of the green flag, the 2x of Tandy Spurlock was able to work his way around the front runners to take the lead by the completion of lap one and was able to cruise to the win.

Heat 2 was next for the Bombers and this heat had the 77 of Randell Lester and the 23 of Keith Tischer on the front row. Fannin jumped out to the early lead, but Tischer was able to make the pass and led lap two and would go on to take the heat win and outside pole for the feature.

Modified heat was next with the 51 of Greg Ison and the 135 of Clint Shutts on the front row. In a pretty good heat race that saw lots of close racing and no cautions, Greg Ison was able to back up his good qualifying run and take the heat and pole for the feature.

Next up was the Wild Road Hogs and the 18k of John Henson and the 12 of Thomas Blackman on the front row. At the drop of the green flag, Henson took the lead and would not look back, taking the heat victory.

Super Bomber feature was next with the 43K Kevin Hall and the 19 of Jamie Slone ready to pick up where they left off in the heat race. At the drop of the green flag, Hall took command with Slone in close pursuit. Slone tried to find a line to run past Hall, but Hall drove a good clean race and kept his nose out in front of Slone the entire race to pick up the victory.

Second was the 19 of Jamie Slone; third went to the 000 of Billy Stumbo; fourth was the 24 of Micheal Howard; and fifth was the 707 of Scott Hall.

Bomber feature was next with 2x Tandy Spurlock and the T23 of Keith Tischer on the front row. Tischer jumped out to the early advantage with Spurlock in second. But the car to watch in this race was Jensen as he started 6th at the start. But by lap 7, he was in second and challenging for the lead. But Jensen got a little too aggressive and spun his car out, sending him to the tail on lap 10, but Jensen wasn't done yet. Jensen quickly worked his way back up through the field, coming from his 8th position on the restart to take second on the last lap — only to push in turn four to allow Spurlock to get underneath Jensen as they came to the checkered flag.

But at the checkered, it was all T23 Keith Tischer leading flag to flag to pick up the victory. This makes Tischer two in a row at Thunder Ridge as he picked up the $2,000 last weekend and this weekend picked up another big win. He also gained more ground on Spurlock, who is currently leading the season-long points race. Following Tischer to the line in second was the 2x of Tandy Spurlock; third was the 62 of Joel Jensen; fourth was the 46 of Dennis DeBoard; and fifth was the 34 of Tommy Lackey.

Modified feature was up and the 51 of Greg Ison was on the pole with the 135 of Clint Shutts alongside, just like in the heat race. And also just like the heat race, Ison jumped out to the early lead. Then just after the completion of lap one, Ison ran into trouble, sending him to the pits, finishing for the night. This would hand the lead to 1x Jason Johnson, who would hold on to the lead for the next eight laps. That's when the 911 of Kurt Hofsess got hooked up on the outside line and passed the second place car of 69 of Tim Moore on lap nine, and continued to pass the leader on the outside.

On the next lap, Johnson tried to move up the track to block Hofsess, but couldn't hold the line, and Hofsess would lead the rest of the way to pick up the victory. 1x Jason Johnson was able to hold on to finish second with the 69 of Tim Moore finishing third, 135 Clint Shutts was fourth and the 25 of Keith Hamilton was fifth.

The always entertaining Road Hog feature was next with the 18k of John Henson and the B17 of Brandon Johnson on the front row. Johnson was able to jump out to the early lead with Henson in close pursuit. That's when the fun started. Cars quickly began spinning and cars began falling out of the race, but the race continued. Johnson held the lead through most of the feature until he ran into problems which gave the lead back to Henson. Henson would then cruise to the victory followed by the 97 of Jared Hale in second; third was the D-9 of David Shepherd; fourth was the 211 of Clyde Bentley; and fifth was the 12 of Thomas Blackman.

Next week, August 14th, Thunder Ridge will welcome back the Late Models with a big $3,000-to-win show, plus a regular night of racing in all other divisions. The last big $3,000-to-win show had 20 to 22 Late Models take to the track for the feature and more are expected for this weekend's race 4B. Jackie Boggs of Grayson took home the big $3,000-to-win show, but this time Eddie Carrier Jr., Paul Harris, Brandon Kinzer, Shannon Thornsberry, along with the rest of the Thunder Ridge regulars, will be

One and two and punch and kick; sorting out new trends

by Kathie Dickenson

Just last year you finally got the hang of doing jumping jacks, knee lifts and crunches in sync with someone who looked like

Gloria Estefan and who could sing while performing these moves.

Now everyone in the office is talking about Tae Bo — or is it Tae Chi? — and something called aerobic kickboxing.

What's more, instead of little league, everyone's kids seem to be enrolled in martial arts. Martial arts-related exercise is becoming so popular that "Tae Bo" was recently first on Video Business Magazine's list of top 10 best-selling exercise videos.

Meanwhile, you may be scratching your head about what's what and what's best for you or your kids.

For children, traditional martial arts are a good choice, says Jerry Beasley, Radford University health and physical education professor and martial arts expert. The focus on discipline, character development and goal setting appeals to parents and goes beyond the usual benefits of physical exercise.

"Traditional martial arts emphasize respect for one's instructor and peers and operate on a system of deferred gratification," says Beasley.

As students gain skills they are rewarded with belts of gradually increasing distinction. By the time they reach the black belt stage, he says, "parents are usually seeing an improvement in the kind of language kids use, an increase in their respectfulness and a better focus on scholastics. The child becomes part of a peer group in the martial arts class that identifies a sense of duty, a chain of authority and moral and ethical strength as desirable traits."

Because children begin to see self defense as something you do in class, not on the street, they're less likely to hurt someone on the playground or get into fights, says Beasley. The sense of respect they gain for their elders and peers carries over outside class.

Beasley's personal choice of martial art for young children is judo, an art that emphasizes grappling, holding, throwing and tripping. Equally appealing are striking arts such as karate or tae kwon do.

"When it comes to martial arts programs for children, there seems to be something for everyone," he says.

When shopping for the best school or instructor, he suggests, ask the question "What are the important things here?" If the instructor talks about character development, goal setting and scholastic achievement, enroll your child in a short term course to try it out.

On the other hand, says Beasley, "if the instructor answers 'We pretty much win all our tournaments, and none of our kids get beat up on the playground,' I'd say 'thank you very much' and move along."

On the other end of the spectrum, Tai Chi, a Chinese form of internal exercise, appeals to the elderly or to people who aren't interested in "hard core" exercise like jogging or aerobics, says Beasley.

Tai Chi emphasizes slow stretching and breathing and operates on the Chinese philosophy that strength is built from inside. "You may see a Chinese man who is quite small in appearance, even frail looking," says Beasley, "but he may live to a very old age because his internal organs are strong." Tai Chi also depreciates stress and increases muscle tone.

Many adults aren't interested in the deferred gratification of traditional martial arts, says Beasley. "They want to see inches come off and muscles get large. They want 'the burn.'"

In that case, Tae Bo or aerobic kickboxing may be just the thing.

Aerobic kickboxing, says Beasley, develops both the upper and lower body, right and left side, hands and feet. Benefits are both aerobic (the cardiovascular system is strengthened) and anaerobic (muscles develop when punching a bag or pad).

Tae Bo is a new form of exercise invented by national point karate champion Billy Blanks, who combined kickboxing with elements of dance and put it to music. Tae is Korean for "kick," and "Bo" is simply short for "boxing."

"People are always looking for something new," says Beasley, and Tae Bo puts a new twist on aerobic dance, which has been popular for years. It's good for aerobic fitness, and the pretend fighting — punching and kicking in the air — relieves stress and builds confidence.

Aerobic kickboxing may be closer than Tae Bo to being a martial art because there is little or no dance involved. Rather than calling out dance steps, the instructor may be warning you of an imaginary opponent or setting up focus pad drills.

For all their benefits, however, neither Tae Bo nor aerobic kickboxing should be seen as self defense training, says Beasley.

Although they build strength and confidence that could help in an attack, both are limited to dramatization — what Bruce Lee called "learning to swim on dry land."

"In order to be efficient in self defense" says Beasley, "you have to move from dramatization to simulated experience, then to hands-on experience, in which someone attacks you. You have to be able to use your skills in a spontaneous and unrehearsed situation."

What you do gain from these exercise options is a good workout and a better outlook on life. "That's what physical education is all about," says Beasley — "feeling better about yourself. What it boils down to is learning an activity that helps you become a better person."

Resurrect Romance Week is August 8-14

What's so romantic about buying a dozen roses or a box of chocolates on February 14 just because 50 million other guys are doing the same thing? Six months after Valentine's Day comes a holiday not as well known, but one that puts more emphasis on romance and less on the credit card.

National Resurrect Romance Week, August 8-14, was established by Michael Webb, syndicated columnist, lecturer and editor of The RoMANTic newsletter.

Dubbed "The World's Most Romantic Man," Webb suggests that men and women across the country do something romantic each day during Resurrect Romance Week and advises that you show your love with actions, not gifts.

Some of Michael Webb's creative ideas on romance:

- Go to a gurgling brook and race leaves or rubber duckies.
  - Use chalk to write loving welcome home messages on the sidewalk.
  - Put love notes and Hershey Kisses in your sweetheart's box of cereal.
  - Tie a message and balloons to the bottom of the garage door with a foot of string — they will magically rise in the air when the door is opened.
  - Brush her hair for 10 minutes before going to sleep
  - Fax a photocopy of your hand to your honey's office so he/she can "hold" it while you are apart.
  - Use Rain-X Anti-Fog and a cotton swab to write love notes on bathroom mirrors - message magically appears when the mirror steams up
- For more romantic ideas visit Webb's web site at www.TheRomantic.com or call him at 888-4ROMANTIC.

Sharing new ideas for Early Childhood Development and Education

Nicki Patton, daughter of Governor Paul Patton, recently traveled the Commonwealth to conduct Community Forums.

She made 10 stops on the month-long trip throughout the state to discuss many aspects of early childhood development, early childhood education, and to generate new ideas on how to improve education and monetary efficiency in the public school systems. Some of the areas visited by Patton were Covington, Somerset, Lexington, Owensboro, Bowling Green, Paducah, Madisonville, Louisville, Prestonsburg and Morehead.

During the forums, Patton covered a variety of areas relating to early childhood. Prenatal care was at the top of the list, followed by environmental, early care, school age violence, quality of care and public awareness. She also covered the importance of parental involvement in children's lives as

Students participate in enrichment program

Eight Floyd County students were among 52 students who participated in the Kentucky Appalachian Science Enrichment Program (KASEP) at the University of Kentucky campus this summer.

KASEP is a five-week summer experience for students who represent underserved minority groups in health care professions from the eastern or central part of the United States. The program is structured to enhance each participant's scientific problem-solving and critical thinking skills, said Pamela Shaw, DMD, director of KASEP.

Students are rising high school sophomores. Those eligible include African-American, Native American and Appalachian students who also have demonstrated an interest in pursuing a science or mathematics-related career and a record of academic achievement.

Activities include a group study of case histories of selected health-related issues, academic experiences in science and mathematics; learning skills instruction; career exploration in science, mathematics, engineering, science research and health careers; scientific site visits and field experiences, including trips to the Louisville Science Center, Cincinnati Zoo, UK Center laboratories, and Hummel Planetarium in Richmond.

KASEP is sponsored by the UK Outreach Center for Science and Health Career Opportunities and funded through a grant from the National Cancer Institute.

The local participants are

- Amy Morgan, daughter of Ernie and Virginia Morgan of Bevinville;
- Justin B. Newsome, son of Susan Compton of Martin and Brennan Newsome of Harold;
- Christopher Kyle O'Quinn, son of Billie and Danny O'Quinn of Garrett;
- Ashley Nicole Steffey, daughter of Tim and Debbie Steffey;
- Megan Conley, daughter of Roger and Linda Conley of Hueysville;
- Tiffany Williams, daughter of Charles and Karen Williams of Wheelwright;
- Chad Allen Webb, son of Thomas Dean and Jacqueline Webb of Langley, and
- Elizabeth Thornsberry, daughter of Gregory and Tammy Thornsberry of Wayland.

The story of Margaret and Ruth

We are each of us angels with only one wing. And we can only fly embracing each other.

Luciano De Crescenzo

In the spring of 1983, Margaret Patrick arrived at the Southeast Senior Center for Independent Living to begin her physical therapy. As Millie McHugh, a long-time staff member, introduced Margaret to people at the center, she noticed the look of pain in Margaret's eyes as she gazed at the piano.

"Is anything wrong?" asked Millie.

"No," Margaret said softly. "It's just that seeing a piano brings back memories. Before my stroke, music was everything to me." Millie glanced at Margaret's useless right hand as the black woman quietly told some of the highlights of her music career.

Suddenly Millie said, "Wait right here. I'll be back in a minute." She returned moments later, followed closely by a small, white-haired woman in thick glasses. The woman used a walker.

"Margaret Patrick," said Millie, "meet Ruth Eisenberg." Then she smiled. "She too played the piano, but like you, she's not been able to play since her stroke. Mrs. Eisenberg has a good right hand, and you have a good left, and I have a feeling that together you two can do something wonderful."

"Do you know Chopin's Waltz in D flat?" Ruth asked. Margaret nodded.

Side by side, the two sat on the piano bench. Two healthy hands - one with long, graceful black fingers, the other with short, plump white ones - moved rhythmically across the ebony and ivory keys. Since that day, they have sat together over the keyboard hundreds of times - Margaret's helpless right hand around Ruth's back, Ruth's helpless hand on Margaret's knee, while Ruth's good hand plays the melody and Margaret's good hand plays the accompaniment.

Their music has pleased audiences on television, at churches and schools, and at rehabilitation and senior-citizen centers. And on the piano bench, more than music has been shared by these two. For it was there, beginning with Chopin and Bach and Beethoven, that they learned they had more in common than they ever dreamed - both were great-grandmothers and widows (Margaret's husband died in 1985), both had lost sons, both had much to give, but neither could give without the other.

Sharing that piano bench, Ruth heard Margaret say, "My music was taken away, but God gave me Ruth." And evidently some of Margaret's faith has rubbed off on Ruth as they've sat side by side these past five years, because Ruth is now saying, "It was God's miracle that brought us together."

And that is our story of Margaret and Ruth, who now call themselves Ebony and Ivory.

Something magical about those 'hard times'

Listening to older folks reminisce about things that happened, and especially about the people those things happened to, has made me believe that those who grew up in Eastern Kentucky coal camps in the forties and fifties seemed to have developed a camaraderie that is conceivably unprecedented. It's almost as if the people of whom they speak were a bit larger than life; kind of like the way I felt about Roy and Gene and The Durango Kid.

Perhaps this closeness stemmed from the fact that while every family dealt in its own way with the ever-present, but seldom spoken of, danger that accompanied the chief occupation, when disaster did occur, which was far too often, the community came together as one. Even families that were feuding, usually because their kids were feuding, dropped their differences and joined the effort to console grieving neighbors.

Now, half a century or so later, interest in those times when a dime (if you could get it) would pay your way into the show (a double feature, no less) or buy a Spur cola and a Jumbo pie (which was a brand name for the familiar "moon pie" and had a picture of an elephant on the wrapper), has obviously led to more frequent planned gatherings. Although one can still hear complaints that the only time families get together is when someone dies, it appears that more and more reunions are being held.

Of course, reunions of all sorts have always been around, but it seems that they are becoming even more prevalent, especially community reunions, like those held every year at Muddy Branch and Van Lear.

Whatever is causing this retrogression, whatever it is that causes the spark of excitement to ignite in the eyes of the fifty and older crowd as they discuss canning beans, pie suppers and loading coal, needs to be bottled and sold. It's like when these folks speak of such things, there is something in their faces akin to ecstasy. There seems to be something magical about those times that I've heard my dad and mom refer to as being "so hard."

Of course, I wouldn't be surprised if what made those days seem so good had something to do with the fact that we had our youth then; when we considered anyone over 40 to be absolutely ancient.

It makes me wonder as we slip into Y2K, whether or not in the year 2050 some ole codger (today's teenager) will remember the 1990s as his "good old days."

"Why I can remember when you could buy a brand-new car for $30,000."

Now that's scary.

KFWC Drift

Woman's Club

The KFWC Drift Woman's Club met July 19, at the Viola Bailey Community Center building with Alice Osborne, president, presiding.

The Club Collect was read by all members, followed by the Lord's Prayer and Pledge to the American Flag.

The minutes of the June meeting were read by Secretary Celia Little. The treasurer, Roney Clark, read the treasurer's report.

Ruby Akers attended the South Floyd High School Honors Program and presented the Drift

Woman's Club annual $500 scholarship to Christy Hopkins, senior.

The seventh district first place art awards went to Wendi Moore, for her oil painting, and Maggie Cook for her pencil drawing. Both art awards were for $25.

Because of the Drift Woman's Club 31st annual horse show, members could not attend the state president's workshop in Louisville. The Drift Woman's Club president delivered 12 table centerpieces, table decorations, and three door prizes to seventh district Governor Barbara Patrick, for the workshop, July 10, at Executive West.

President Osborne announced the KFWC Drift Woman's Club will host the seventh district fall conference at the Holiday Inn, Prestonsburg, on October 30.

Special thank-you is extended to the volunteers who helped to make the 31st Drift Woman's Club Horse Show a success: Mary Joyce Gash, John Austin, Ellen Brown, Sydney Ratliff, Larry Stewart, Mona Stewart, Ruth Meade, Doug Osborne, Dana Smith, Danielle Tackett, Morgan Hall, Megan Hall, Velmer Hunt and Shardenia Caudill.

Celia Little, hostess, served refreshments to Alice Osborne, Roney Clark, Ruby Akers, Alma Mosley, Kathryn Youmans and guest, Mona Stewart. Next meeting is August 19.

Floyd County retired teachers meet

The Floyd County Retired Teachers Association met in regular session August 5, at 10:30 a.m., with Daniel Branson, first vice-president of the organization, presiding.

The opening prayer was delivered by Leo Watts. Alice Martin led the pledge to the flag and the group singing of "My Old Kentucky Home."

In the absence of the secretary, there was no reading of the minutes. Daniel Branson gave the treasurer's report, stating a balance of $1,502.76 and a count of thirty paid members so far this year. A notice of dues will be sent to all Floyd County retired teachers who have not paid their dues this year.

Various committee reports followed. There were several questions discussed about insurance covered by CNL.

Daniel Branson reported on pre-retirement matters, noting that there are seven new retirees for 1999. These retirees will be honored at the next meeting of FCRTA which is slated for September 2.

A copy of the legislative proposals for the next biennium was distributed by Daniel Branson who emphasized items IV, which is to continue cost of living adjustments to retired teachers' annuities, and item IX, which is to oppose efforts at the federal level to impose mandatory social security for members of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement system.

On notification, Alice Martin said she addressed FCRTA news releases to Willie Elliott at the Floyd County Times and that he had been both faithful and prompt in seeing that these items were published. Other media have also been helpful in this regard.

In new business, it was the general consensus of the group that the organization should go back to the old schedule of meetings, holding sessions on a quarterly basis rather than monthly, with various committee meetings as needed. In compliance with the FCRTA Constitution, this matter will be voted on at the September meeting.

An announcement was made that the KRTA workshop sponsored by the Big Sandy District Association will be held September 16, at May Lodge, with registration starting at 8:30 a.m.

Closing prayer was given by Elmer Martin, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Registering at the August session were Leo Watts, Daniel Branson, Etta C. Scott, Syrdia Martin, Alice O. Martin, Ruby Akers, Doris A. Robinson, Ann Stumbo, Harry J. Wallace, Andrew J. Crider, Lloyd Wells, Earl D. Ousley, Bert Layne, Elmer Martin and Eileen Martin.

THINGS TO PONDER

by Mable Rowe Lineberger, Ph.D.

"Parents: Create fruitful trees or saplings?"

I tend to get really focused on that which I believe would benefit children. This to explain why the continuing discussion of a type of parent-child relationship that is inappropriate—enmeshed.

If you recall, an enmeshed relationship is a close, intense, interdependent one; the personal boundaries and roles are dulled or not there between two or more persons. Most often, this parent-child relationship begins at birth. Frequently, the parent(s) are too involved to see what they are doing to shape the child's personality and ability to cope in the future as an independent, stable person. Parents need to be more aware of their interactions with their children and do what is best for the little ones.

My special professional mentor, Jackie, tells how she illustrated to a Puerto Rican mother in the Bronx the impact of her "smothering" relationship with her child.

"Once I met this mother at the clinic, who didn't understand the damage she was causing as a parent to her child. Her son suffered from asthma so much that the school officials were distressed about his absence and the medical and mental health clinics were upset that she was not keeping his appointments.

"His mother, Christina defended herself, 'I can explain it. I prefer to take care of my son myself, because I'm a good mother. I know best what he wants.'

"No matter how the clinical staff explained to her that her relationship with her son was enmeshed and she was stifling his growth, Christiana still couldn't understand what they meant."

Since the mother had lived on a farm in Puerto Rico, Jackie used the mother's previous knowledge to make her point, which is very applicable to our area. Jackie asked, "What happens if Mother Nature plants seeds underneath a full growing tree?"

The "sick" child's mother replied, "It may grow, but the big tree will take the sun and water away from the new tree. The seed may grow as a sapling, but it won't have independence, mature, and produce seeds on its own. It will be attached to the mother tree or her roots."

Jackie made her point: "Christina, you're that big tree, and your son is the sapling." Locally, we have all seen how the "small" underbrush is often cleaned away so that the timber can grow, mature, and be even larger.

Most parents have the best intentions to help their children to become healthy, independent, and successful adults. As has been repeatedly stressed, "It all begins at day ONE—at the child's birth. The parents' attitudes and behaviors toward the child create it all!"

For many parents, their major concern is whether or not they gave their child what is needed to build as solid a foundation as possible for the future.

The following are brief suggestions of where moms and pops need to begin from the child's viewpoint.

(1) "More than gifts or material things, I strive on INTERACTIONS WITH MY PARENTS. Spend time watching me and responding to my cues (the indirect messages I give). It tells me I'm important and special to you."

(2) (Another major "fertilizer" is) LOVING TOUCH: "Cradle me, hold me, give me lots of hugs. It keeps me calm and comforts me, and gives me courage to move on." If the child believes that the parents have confidence in him, then he is more likely to have confidence in himself throughout life.

The parents' excessive anxiety and worrying undermines the child's positive expectations of himself.

How many times do you hear or say; "Oh! I just can't let Junior do that, (something new, such as spending time away from home at camp). It's so dangerous (as the eight-year-old takes off on a four-wheeler unsupervised)!"

(3) (Parents are the rock of) STABLE RELATIONS: "I need someone special to be there when I call. When I look around and see you, I know I can go far."

Research has shown over and over that children feel more secure and confident when living in a predictable environment.

(4) (How others see the child and the message returned is so important for such things as): SELF-ESTEEM: "I can do it. Yes, I can, if you tell me so. Pay attention. Give me praise and watch me go, go, go."

(5) GOOD COMMUNICATIONS: "If I know you will do what you say, I can learn to trust you. I will also learn to trust myself."

(6) Opportunities to learn various things in various ways are so needed. CREATIVITY: Reading to each other and/or listening to music. "I will learn more about what is going on about me and will most likely not be anxious and afraid."

Knowledge and understanding help to discuss apprehension, increase inner confidence, and a greater awareness of who we are and where we fit in most safely in our world. Parents are responsible for protecting their children, while giving them the chance to have age-appropriate experiences as their children grow. Just as the sapling needs space, open sky with sun and rain, to grow strong, the child needs for parents to allow him space, physical and emotional, so both can celebrate their healthy independence.

their input directly affects the final product.

According to Patton, parents should be examining their concepts of the meaning of early childhood education and the educational system's effectiveness by first asking, "Where are we today, where are we going tomorrow, and where will we be at some point in time, say the year 2000."

At the end of her one hour speech, members of her audience were asked to join in groups featuring different topic areas important to them and early education and to write down and discuss any ideas that the groups developed.

After each group completed their one-hour, brain-storming, idea session, all ideas were then submitted back to Patton to be correlated and examined for possible initiation into future administrative decisions.

South Floyd S. Y. E. T. P. students help prepare school for opening

Fifteen area students from South Floyd High School have completely cleaned and removed furniture from 35 classrooms and two headstart buildings. They painted three classrooms and created three bulletin boards for the main hallway and library.

The S.Y.E.T.P. students assisted Eric Lawson, coordinator of the Rainbow Junction Family Resource Center, and his assistant, Karen Williams, in preparing 450, welcome back to school bags. These bags will be given out at the beginning of the fall semester. Each bag contained pencils, notebooks and highlighters.

Eric Lawson and Paul David Tackett, principal of the Dr. W.D. Osborne Elementary school rewarded the students with a pizza party.

The students who participated in the S.Y.E.T.P. program at Dr. W.D. Osborne Elementary, were Amanda Bryant, Steven Johnson, Lana Lackey, Randall Matthews, Andy Moore, Steven Newsome, Glenn Rakey, Zack Salisbury, Jessica Smith, Jennifer Sturgill, Jerrie Sturgill, Jason Tackett, Jennifer Tackett, Matthew Tackett, and Wendee Tackett.

The Betsy Layne Senior Citizens celebrate open house

The Betsy Layne Senior Citizens held open house, Friday, July 30, to celebrate their newly redecorated and refurbished center.

Nearly $50,000 were spent on this project, making the center "home away from home."

A large group of seniors and their guests were addressed by George Archer about several scams that are presently being perpetrated on the elderly in this area and several nearby states. He also spoke briefly of several drug plans being advocated for senior citizens.

After this, the seniors and their guests were welcomed by President Walter Akers, who spoke of the hard work involved in getting the center, and how much it was enjoyed by the community.

A bountiful feast was spread on tables dressed in white with beautiful bouquets of flowers on each table—so much food that one guest remarked that it must rival the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving. A blessing was asked by E.H. Stumbo and the feast was enjoyed.

Among the guests present were state Senator Benny Ray Bailey; Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson and Mrs. Thompson; Sheriff J.K. Blackburn, and Chris Waugh, county court clerk.

In a brief after-dinner speech Senator Bailey spoke of how "years ago, he was instrumental in helping the seniors obtain their center, not only Betsy Layne but the other centers as well.

Judge-Executive Thompson, Sheriff Blackburn, and County Clerk Chris Waugh also spoke briefly to the group.

The seniors were very appreciative of all the officials.

The Seniors also appreciate the workers, and director Nanette Yates, for the work and decorations that were put into the center.

Home canning of tomato products

by Theresa Scott

Home canning has changed greatly in the 170 years since it was introduced as a way to preserve food. Scientists have found ways to produce safer, higher quality products.

Today's column includes information from the Extension Publication "Canning Tomatoes and Tomato Products H.E.3-327." To request copies of extension Publications, phone the office at 606/886-2668.

Remaining publications consist of canning guides for specific foods. These guides offer detailed directions for canning fruits and fruit products, tomato and tomato products, vegetables, red meats, poultry and fish, pickles and relishes and jams and jellies. Handy guidelines for choosing the correct quantity and quality of raw foods accompany each set of directions for fruits, tomatoes and vegetables.

About canned tomatoes—Select only disease-free, preferably vine-ripened, firm fruit for canning. Do not can tomatoes from dead or frost-killed vines because they may be low in acid. Green tomatoes are more acidic than ripened tomatoes and so can be canned safely using any of the methods described in this guide.

To ensure safe acidity in whole, crushed or juiced tomatoes, add two tablespoons of bottled lemon juice or one-half teaspoon of citric acid per quart of tomatoes. For pints, use one tablespoon bottled lemon juice or one-fourth teaspoon citric acid. Acid can be added directly to the jars before filling with a product. Add sugar to offset acid taste, if desired. Four tablespoons of a five percent acidity vinegar per quart may be used instead of lemon juice or citric acid. However, vinegar may cause undesirable flavor changes.

Use of a pressure canner will result in higher quality and more nutritious canned tomato products.

Here are a few recipes for your use:

TOMATO JUICE: Quantity: An average of 23 pounds of tomatoes is needed per canner load of seven quarts; an average of 14 pounds is needed per canner load of nine pints. A bushel weighs 53 pounds and yields 15 to 18 quarts of juice...an average of 3 1/4 pounds per quart. Procedure: Wash, remove stems and trim off bruised or discolored portions. To prevent juice from separating, quickly cut about one pound of fruit into quarters and put directly in saucepan. Heat immediately to boiling while crushing. Continue to slowly add and crush freshly cut tomato quarters. Make sure the mixture boils constantly and vigorously while you add the remaining tomatoes. Simmer five minutes after you have added all the tomato pieces.

If you are not concerned about juice separation, simply slice or quarter tomatoes into large saucepan. Crush, heat and simmer for five minutes before juicing.

Press both types of heated juice through a sieve or food mill to remove skins and seeds. Add two tablespoons of bottled lemon juice per quart to the jar, following acidification directions on page 4. Heat juice again to boiling. Add one teaspoon of salt per quart to the jar, if desired. Fill jars with hot tomato juice, leaving 1/2 inch headspace. Adjust lids and process.

Processing time: Boiling water canner—Hot pack: process pints for 40 minutes; quarts, 45 minutes. Dial-gauge Pressure Canner;—Hot Pack: process pints or quarts for 15 minutes at 12 pounds of pressure. Weighted-gauge Pressure Canner: Hot Pack—process pints or quarts for 15 minutes at 15 pounds of pressure.

TOMATOES, whole or halved (packed in water)—Quantity: An average of 21 pounds of tomatoes is needed per canner load of seven quarts; an average of 13 pounds is needed per canner load of nine pints. A bushel weighs 53 pounds and yields 15-21 quarts—an average of 3 lbs. per quart.

Procedure: Wash tomatoes. Dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins split; dip in cold water. Slip off skins and remove cores. Leave whole or halve. Add two tablespoons of bottled lemon juice per quart to the jar. Add one teaspoon of salt per quart to the jar, if desired.

Hot Pack: Put tomatoes in large saucepan. Add water to cover. Boil gently for five minutes. Fill jars with hot tomatoes; cover with the hot cooking liquid, leaving 1/2 inch head space.

Raw Pack: Fill jars with raw, peeled tomatoes. Add hot water to cover, leaving 1/2 inch head space. Adjust lids and process. Processing Time: Boiling Water Canner—Hot or raw packed: process pints for 45 minutes, quarts for 50 minutes. Dial Gauge Pressure Canner; Hot or raw pack: process pints or quarts for 10 minutes at 12 pounds of pressure. Weighted-Gauge Pressure Canner—Hot or raw pack: process pints or quarts for 10 minutes at 15 pounds of pressure.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE WITHOUT MEAT: 30 pounds tomatoes, 1 cup chopped onions, 5 cloves garlic, minced, 1 cup chopped celery or green pepper, 1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced (optional), 1/4 cup vegetable oil, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 tablespoons oregano, 4 tablespoons minced parsley, 2 teaspoons black pepper, 1/4 cup brown sugar. YIELD: About nine pints. CAUTION: DO NOT increase the proportion of onions, peppers or mushrooms.

Procedure: Wash tomatoes. Dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skin split; dip in cold water. Slip off skins, remove cores and quarter. Boil 20 minutes, uncovered, in large saucepan. Put through food mill or sieve. Sauté onions, garlic, celery or green pepper, and mushrooms in vegetable oil until tender. Combine sautéed vegetables and tomatoes; add salt, spices, sugar. Bring to a boil. Simmer, uncovered, until thick enough for serving. At this time the initial volume will have been reduced by nearly one-half. Stir frequently to avoid burning. Fill jars, leaving one inch headspace. Adjust lids and process.

Processing time: Dial-Gauge Pressure Canner—Hot Pack: process pints for 20 minutes or quarts for 25 minutes at 12 pounds of pressure. Weighted-Gauge Pressure Canner—Hot Pack: process pints for 20 minutes or quarts for 25 minutes at 15 pounds of pressure.

Farmer's Market: I would like to take this opportunity to mention the local Farmer's Market. The market will be held in Martin, on Back Street (behind the post office) Times: Saturdays, August 7, August 21, August 28, September 3, September 10 and September 17 from 9 a.m. until sold out or while supplies last. Audrey Devin Mosley, daughter of Scott and Kimberly Williams of Banner, will celebrate her second birthday on August 17, at Archer Park Skating Rink. She is the granddaughter of Audrey Stanley and Larry Mosley of Allen and Kathy Bentley and Tex Williams of Prestonsburg.

McKinney is 1

On July 17, 1999, Whitley Kaitlyn Lashae McKinney turned one-year-old. She is the daughter of Marty and Sheila McKinney of Martin. She celebrated her birthday at her home with family and friends. The theme of her party was "Winnie the Pooh and Friends." She is the granddaughter of Randall and Barbara Scarberry of Langley and Charles and Shirley McKinney of Printer.

Parents asked to get child's immunizations, physicals early

Kentucky parents are being urged by public health officials to prepare early for the next school year by getting immunizations and physical examinations for their children now.

Up-to-date immunizations and physical exams are required for entry into kindergarten as well as sixth grade. (Kentucky's Immunization Certificate and physical exam form must be used.) A second dose of measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) is required for sixth grade entry for those children who have not already received it.

The yearly last-minute rush to get this done before school inconveniences children, parents, physicians, health departments and schools.

"It can be avoided if parents will make appointments now to have children seen by their doctor or health department before school starts," said Dr. Rice Leach, commissioner of the Department for Public Health.

"With all that parents have to do, I know it is difficult for them to

Markethbasket survey

With more milk flowing from America's farms, consumers are seeing the most significant reduction in the price of dairy products in two years.
Kentucky Farm Bureau's quarterly survey of food prices in the state shows the average total price for seven popular dairy products dropping by 4.3 percent from April to July. The average for a gallon of whole and 2 percent milk fell by seven and six cents respectively, with a 24-slice package of American cheese dropping by 31 cents; a pound of Cheddar cheese falling by 18 cents; and a gallon of ice cream dipping by 11 cents, according to the July survey.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture attributes this pricing trend to a more than seven percent increase in milk production in recent months. The price of dairy products had been virtually unchanged over the first half of 1999, following dramatic increases over the last half of 1998. Milk and ice cream still are more expensive than in July of 1998. But butter and margarine are cheaper than a year ago, and cheese prices are about the same.

The last time dairy prices in Kentucky fell more than 4 percent over a three-month period was from July to October of 1997, according to the Farm Bureau survey.

Lower production coupled with increased consumption made 1998 a banner year for dairy farmers. Farm milk prices reached record levels in late 1998 and early 1999 before tailing off. The strong market sparked a rise in production that has put supply more in line with usage. That's why dairy farmers are now earning less and consumers are getting better buys.

Retail prices are expected to decline slightly or hold steady during the remainder of the year, according to a recent report from the Southeast United Dairy Industry Association.

The dairy case showed the most eye-catching change among the food groups in the survey. Overall, the total average price for the 40 items was up by only 1.3 percent from April, with only dairy and pork products showing changes exceeding two percent. Beef, poultry and grain-based foods were down just slightly, and fruits and vegetables were virtually unchanged.

Twenty-eight of the items were cheaper in July than in April, led by a pound of ground beef (down 22 cents). A dozen extra large eggs (down 24 cents); cucumbers (down 31 cents); and a 16-ounce can of tomatoes (down 18 cents).

On the up side, a pound of sirloin steak rose 22 cents; a two-pound package of sausage was up 26 cents; a pound of chicken breasts climbed 20 cents; a 10-pound bag of Idaho Potatoes rose 59 cents; and a loaf of white bread was 23 cents higher.

Communities surveyed by Farm Bureau market reporters were Augusta, Bardstown, Clinton, Falmouth, Lexington, Shelbyville, Harrodsburg, Salyersville, Hodgenville, Lancaster, Glasgow, Morganfield, Somerset, Dry Ridge, Grayson and Stanford.

The Floyd County Times BUSINESS/REAL ESTATE

Demand on increase among consumers for communications technologies

We are finding more and more ways of using technology to communicate—in our homes, our businesses, our cars or wherever we are. The demand for paging, wireless and Internet access services is booming as consumers use communications technology to stay in touch or make their businesses more productive.

According to the Yankee Group, 69 percent of households using multiple communications technologies would use one company for all communication needs if given the choice. Now there is a choice.

BellSouth is the first telecommunications company in the nation to offer residential and small business customers with a communications solution that includes Internet access, wireless, paging and local phone service—all on one bill, and with just one number to call for service.

"Now more than ever, people want to simplify their lives," said Amy Scarborough, BellSouth regional manager. "Our customers are telling us they want the convenience of receiving all their communications services from one company, on one bill with a single point of contact."

For residential customers, the BellSouth Solutions package features the BellSouth Complete Choice® plan, to which customers can add their choice of BellSouth.net, wireless and paging services at reduced rates. The flexible nature of the package allows customers to choose the combination of BellSouth services that suits their needs—and save money.

Small Business customers also can take advantage of an integrated package. They can build on the basic BellSouth Complete Choice® for Business plan by adding Internet access, wireless and paging services at a reduced rate. In addition, small business customers can take advantage of an offer for a special discount on existing Yellow Pages advertising.

For one-number customer service, BellSouth has created a service center dedicated to handling the needs of BellSouth Solutions residential customers. Staffed by specially trained service representatives, the center can handle the service needs of any BellSouth Solutions product.

Residential customers can sign up for their customized package of BellSouth Solutions by calling toll-free 557-6500, or by accessing the BellSouth Web site at www.bellsouth.com. Small business customers may call 557-6000 for more information on BellSouth Business Solutions.

"This integrated offer is just the beginning," said Scarborough. "BellSouth customers can look forward to having more to choose from in the future, such as video and long distance."

BellSouth (NYSE: BLS) is a $24 billion communications service company. It provides telecommunications, wireless communications, cable and digital TV, directory advertising and publishing, and Internet and data services to nearly 35 million customers in 19 countries worldwide.

Why your money will be safe in the year 2000

You've heard about it. You've read about it. You may have even had nightmares about it. But you still may not know the truth about it. The Y2K scare.

Will your money be safe in the bank? It is a question many banking customers may be asking themselves right now.

The answer is yes, at Citizens National Bank.

As the new millennium quickly approaches, banking institutions across the country are preparing to tackle the changes in their computer systems. Citizens National Bank, like many other FDIC insured banks, is working endlessly to prevent any possible disruptions in the usual transactions.

Citizens National Bank, with locations in Magoffin, Floyd, and Johnson counties, has established a Y2K committee to oversee the computer trouble prevention process. Committee members include Carol Pelphrey, vice president of Technology/Operations and chairman; Rose Wheeler, assistant vice president Customer Data Center; Paula Spriggs, vice president retail banking coordinator; Pam Butcher, assistant vice president Mortgage Lending; and Beverly Oxford, assistant vice president Credit Department. Pelphrey says the group was formed "to ensure that computers, systems, and third party providers are Year 2000 ready."

The "Y2K bug," or the "Year 2000 problem," as so many people are calling it, simply involves reprogramming computers or replacing the systems computers to be certain the date will change correctly and systems don't mistake the Year 2000 with the Year 1900. This changeover is necessary because some computers and computer software only store the last two digits in the Year. So, 1999 immediately becomes 99, and 2000 would become 00. When computer systems lose the date, so to speak, strange malfunctions can occur. To prevent such perceived disasters, Citizens National Bank has tested and assessed their computer system using the Year 2000 date. The committee has been working together on this project since June of 1997, completing phases such as assessment, renovation, testing, and contingency planning. Successfully, the committee has witnessed many positive results.

"Our testing results reflect that everything will work as planned for the turn of the century," said Pelphrey. "We will continue to do testing procedures during the remainder of the year."

Due to the reliance on computers, businesses such as banks must be prepared for the new millennium, and this means becoming technologically up to date. Banks, major corporations, and nearly every business in the world use computers to keep track of bookkeeping, data entry, and appointments. Therefore, Citizens National Bank has made the Year 2000 a top priority. Customers will be relieved to know that the cash vaults at Citizens National Bank are not controlled by computers and that their accounts will continue to be insured by the FDIC during the millennium, just like any other day of the year.

"We are extremely pleased with our efforts to prepare for Y2K," said Pelphrey. "We can assure you that Citizens National Bank customers can expect banking as usual on January 3 of 2000."

Collins becomes MCP

Kevin Collins, a senior engineering technician with Nesbitt Engineering Inc., recently became a Microsoft Certified Professional (MCP).

This title deems the individual competent to implement and fully support the one or more of their operating systems. The candidate must pass an exam which covers every facet that may be encountered with the use of that particular operating system—in Collins' case, Windows 95—from the stand alone system to networked system in a Windows NT and/or other network environment.

This is the first of several certifications that Collins will attempt to attain over the next year. The entire process will certify him as a Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer (MCSE).

This title, once attained, will qualify him as a person capable of implementing and maintaining the Microsoft Windows NT network environment. This means he will be able to establish a goal of creating a Windows NT based network for anyone.

Edward Jones celebrates milestone

Prestonsburg is a long way from Romford, England, but the two will soon share a connection. On August 17, this London suburb will become home to an Edward Jones office—but not just any office: Romford holds the distinction of becoming Edward Jones and its affiliates' 5000th office.

Sam Blankenship, the Edward Jones investment representative in Prestonsburg, said, "When you consider how Edward Jones has grown over the past 20 years, it's simply amazing. In 1980, we had only 304 offices. Today, we're celebrating the opening of our 5000th office!"

Edward Jones offices span three countries. In 1994, the company expanded its operation beyond U.S. borders by opening its first office in Canada. Last year, the firm opened its first office in the England. Edward Jones Canada now has more than 200 offices, and more than 50 offices in England.

With more than 4,900 offices in the United States, including the office in Prestonsburg, and through affiliates in Canada and England, Edward Jones is the largest financial-services firm in the nation in terms of office locations. The company is in the midst of an aggressive growth plan designed to expand its office network to include 10,000 offices by the year 2004.

Edward Jones is the only financial-services firm in the nation that focuses solely on meeting the financial needs of individual investors. Its investment representatives offer such investments, and services as: CDs, tax-free and taxable bonds, mutual funds, individual stocks and retirement planning tools such as IRAs.

BellSouth earns J.D. power award for the fourth consecutive year

For the fourth consecutive year, BellSouth was ranked the nation's top residential local phone company in customer satisfaction, according to a 1999 study conducted by J.D. Power and Associates. This year BellSouth shared the top honor with Southern New England Telephone (SNET).

"One thing, above all, has carried us to the top ranking all four years of the J.D. Power and Associates study," said Amy Scarborough, BellSouth Regional Manager. "And that's our employees. Our front-line employees are the ones providing the service to our customers day in and day out. They understand the needs of our customers and constantly strive to raise the bar on the level of customers service they deliver."

The J.D. Power and Associates study is based on responses from 12,185 residential telephone customers of major U.S. local telephone companies. Consumers evaluated their local company in key areas of customer satisfaction which include cost of service, customer service, corporate image/communication, billing, call quality, network capabilities and calling card.

BellSouth is a $24 billion telecommunications services company. It provides telecommunications, wireless communications, cable and digital TV, directory advertising and publishing, Internet and data services to nearly 35 million customers in 19 countries worldwide.

MONEY MANAGEMENT

Are you ready to purchase your first home?

If today's low interest rates are inducing you to buy your first home, the Kentucky Society of CPAs suggests you do a little homework before you start gathering paint chips and clipping furniture ads. Here's what you need to consider.

Know what you can afford

Most lenders use a two-part qualification ratio to determine how much money you can safely spend on living expenses and mortgage costs: 28/36. What this means is that lenders will generally allow you to spend up to 28 percent of your gross monthly income on housing expenses—principal, interest, homeowner's insurance, and taxes. If the downpayment that you scrape together amounts to less than 20 percent of the purchase price, your 28-percent allowance also needs to include the cost of purchasing private mortgage insurance (PMI), which protects the lender in case you default.

In terms of the second part of the equation, 36 percent of your gross monthly income is the amount lenders will allow you for a mortgage plus monthly recurring debt, such as your car loans and credit card bills. Normally, only debts will take more than 10 months to pay off will matter.

Identify your comfort level

The 28/36 qualification ratio establishes the maximum amount you are eligible to be loaned, and lenders will happily lock you into as high a level of debt as you want, using these criteria. However, this number may not be within your comfort zone. Take a look at the past year's income and expenses. If you commit the maximum amount to a mortgage, will you have sufficient funds left over to meet expenses for hobbies and activities you enjoy? Are you willing to forego such activities in order to meet your mortgage commitment? And, after making your down payment, will you have a large enough savings buffer to enable you to sleep soundly at night? These are some of the questions you need to ask yourself.

Make sure you're credit healthy

In order to qualify for a mortgage, you must have a clean credit record for at least two to three years. Even if you think your borrowing history is without blemish, take advantage of federal law and ask to inspect your credit reports; they could contain discrepancies. And remember, though you are entitled to request corrections, this process can be time consuming. To be safe, contact the credit agencies at least six months before you plan to apply for a mortgage, to save yourself the headache of possible closing delays.

Get yourself preapproved

Preapproval means the lender has checked your credit and verified your income and other financial references. You'll get a document that says the lender will give you a mortgage up to a specific amount, as long as the home appraisal justifies the price. This may help you to beat out a slightly higher bid from someone who does not have a preapproval.

What you should pull together

To save yourself time further down the road, start pulling together the items you will need in order to apply for a mortgage. You'll be asked for income tax returns for the previous three years, current copies of pay stubs, records of any past negative credit history that has since been paid off, and records of any supplemental income you may have. If you are self-employed, you will need all business records and tax returns for the past three years. Also, if you're going to be receiving money as a gift for the down payment from a friend or relative, have that person prepare a "gift letter" for you, confirming that the money is a gift, not a loan. This letter clarifies that you are not going further into debt and jeopardizing your ability to repay the lender's loan.

Shop around for your mortgage

Not all mortgages are created equal. Doing a little competitive shopping can definitely save you money. Check newspaper ads and ask for referrals from friends and co-workers who have recently gone through the process. Ask each lender you're considering for a disclosure that lists all the loan terms. Be cautious of referrals that come from the real estate agent, especially if the agent receives a "referral fee" from the lender.

Don't forget about those other costs

Even if you've decided to go with no-points mortgage, CPAs point out that out-of-pocket expenses to close on your new home can add up to a few thousand dollars. If you'll be making your purchase with an adjustable-rate mortgage, be sure you base your budget on what the interest rate will jump to in the second year. And, remember those paint chips and furniture ads mentioned at the start of this article? The National Association of Home Builders says the average buyer of a new home spends $5,200 in the first year just on appliances, furnishings and changes to the property—so be sure you have a few extra dollars to pay for items like these.

Phillip Hunt

Local man agent of the year

Phillip D. Hunt, CIC, vice-president of Hall & Clark Insurance Agency Inc. in Prestonsburg, has been selected by his peers as the 1999 Professional Insurance Agent of Kentucky.

Hunt was given this honor for his outstanding contribution to his community, the insurance industry and to the Professional Insurance Agents of Kentucky.

Hunt, who has been in the insurance business since 1984, is active in the community, as well as in the insurance industry. He is a board member of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce.

Hunt served as a board member of the Professional Insurance Agents of Kentucky and was recently elected vice-president. He served as vice-chairman of the membership committee which recently received a national award for retention of members.

Hunt attended Prestonsburg High School and Prestonsburg Community College. He holds the Certified Insurance Counselors Designation, a national industry designation.

The Professional Insurance Agents of Kentucky is a trade association representing insurance professionals. Its members sell and service all kinds of insurance, but specialize in coverage for homes, autos and businesses. Continuing education is a focus of the association.

CHAMBER NOTES

by Rebecca Derossett
 Executive Director
 Floyd County Chamber of Commerce

August signals the beginning of school for most young folks, who are tired of frolicking in the pool and riding bikes in 100-degree heat, anyway. The Chamber wishes our students well. May they take every advantage of the opportunities in education that await them.

There will be a full board of Directors meeting in the Chamber board room on Monday, August 16, from 11:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. Items on the agenda include revision of by-laws, trainings, committee assignments, the Jenny Wiley Golf Tournament, etc. Board members are Dennis Dorton, Carla Coburn, Suzanne Hyden, Stephanie Baldwin, Dr. Fred Meece, Phillip Hunt, Harold Warman Jr., Kathy Lou Friend, Norm Marcum, Greg Wilson, Mark McLemore, Dan Hitchcock, Leigh Ann Maynard, Trent Nairn, Charles Collins, Chris Carter, Gary Bailey, Jim Combs, Tim Hites, Gary Frazier, Doug Pugh, and O. Sam Blankenship. Now, isn't that a fine crew? We may have to feed them lunch!

The following day, the Rural Community College Initiative (RCCI) group will gather at the Mountain Arts Center for a work session to finalize the business plan for a Business Info-Referral Center. The Chamber has been involved since Day One in this movement to establish such a center, which will provide information relevant to starting a small business, as well as developing and incubating entrepreneurial spirit. RCCI is affiliated with Prestonsburg Community College, directed by Jean Dorton. Call (606) 886-3863, or e-mail jean.dorton@kctcs.net for information.

Now for the biggie! On Thursday, August 19, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Mountain Arts Center, the Chamber, along with some other good folks, will present a very interesting, different type of seminar on the Y2K problem. A panel of experts in their fields will address your questions about this turn-of-the-century situation. The panel includes: John Coffey, American Electric Power; Dan Hitchcock, Big Sandy RECC; Amy Scarborough, BellSouth; David Wright, FDIC; J. D. Jackson, Highlands Regional Medical Center; Jim Kelly, Social Security; Melissa Conn, Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission; and Lon May, Floyd County Disaster and Emergency Services. A free lunch will be provided at 12:30 p.m. The seminar is sponsored by Highlands Regional Medical Center and the following local banks: Citizens National, Community Trust, Firststar, First Commonwealth, First Guaranty, and Matewan.

For further information, call the Chamber office, (606) 886-0364 or Robert Allen at First Commonwealth Bank, 886-2321.

See you, same place, same time, next week. Stay in touch!

Food industry greets Y2K with a smile

by John R. Block

You're probably not sure what to believe anymore—is the country prepared 100 percent for the year 2000 and the possible glitches that could disrupt daily life, or should we be hoarding food and supplies as if the world is coming to an end? The answer is somewhere in between, at least from the food industry's point of view. While some industries are farther ahead than others in updating computers, replacing or revising equipment and systems, the overall outlook for preparedness is optimistic.

One concern shared by all Americans is food, and whether it will be available. I'm pleased to report the food industry scores high on the Y2K readiness scale. Surveys by the Food Distributors International (FDI) indicate grocery wholesale companies and foodservice distribution firms "are extremely confident that January 1, 2000, and the days and weeks thereafter, will be normal from a business standpoint."

Grocery wholesales primarily serve independent supermarkets, companies that represent about a 37 percent share of total retail grocery sales. Other supermarket firms, generally the larger chains, operate their own warehouses, and all supermarkets also obtain products directly from the manufacturers. Foodservice distributors supply restaurants and institutions, such as hospitals, schools and prisons, with the products they need to serve their customers.

In both cases computer technology is a critical part of business operations. Any oversight regarding Y2K issues could result in a severe disruption of business that could be costly and provide competitors with a potentially long-term advantage.

To ensure an uninterrupted supply of food and food products, foodservice distributors and grocery wholesalers have been working diligently to avoid disruptions. FDI's survey of a large portion of its members shows that companies are either very confident or confident with just a few reservations, that product shipping, receiving and invoice orders will proceed without disruption. They believe their customers—the grocery stores, restaurants and institutions—are ready as well.

Food distributors also have backup plans in case something goes wrong. For example, they know how to handle manual transactions, to track inventory by hand, to manage warehouses without the assistance of hand-held scanners and other devices. In other words, business should go on as usual.

The industry's preparedness was recently reinforced by the head of the President's Council on the Year 2000 Conversion (Y2K Council), who acknowledged grocery wholesale and foodservice distribution companies are "well prepared" to cope with so-called Y2K problems, but that they are concerned that consumer panic and hoarding could cause unnecessary complications.

Unfortunately, media reports and those trying to capitalize on consumers' fears are causing needless anxiety. A recent edition of "60 Minutes" raised consumer concerns that some municipalities, including the District of Columbia, are not prepared for Y2K and encouraged viewers to stock up on food.

FDI and other key food industry associations responded to CBS. Here is an excerpt: "The food industry, from farm to fork, has been working hard to make sure that January 1, 2000, will be like any other shopping day. From the farm, to the processing plants and manufacturing firms, to food distributors and retail stores, companies have invested millions of dollars and years of hard work to prevent disruptions caused by Y2K."

The food associations advised consumers to shop like they would for any long holiday weekend. The worst scenario would be for consumers to panic and begin to hoard excess amounts of groceries. More than anything, that's what could cause shortages and inconveniences to occur.

So sit back, trust your supermarket and their suppliers, and prepare for that long holiday weekend in the middle of winter.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.093, notice is hereby given that Buck Coal, Inc., 544 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, (606-886-2330), intends to apply for a Phase III Bond Release for Increment No. 3 on Permit No. 436-0107 which was last issued on Jan. 27, 1998. The application covers an area of approximately 4.23 acres located 1.5 miles west of Drift in Floyd County.

The operation is approximately 3.4 miles south of the junction of KY 80 and KY 777, and is east of Turkey Creek. The Latitude is 37°-28'-30" and the Longitude is 82°-46'-30", and is located on the Wayland 7-1/2 minute USGS quadrangle maps.

The performance bond (Surety) now in effect for the Increment No. 3 is $9,300.00. 100% of the original bond amount of $197,300.00 is included in the request for release.

Reclamation work thus far performed includes: backfilling and grading, sampling and testing, liming, fertilizing, seeding and mulching, and was completed in fall, 1987. Results thus far achieved include: establishment of vegetation and the post mining land use in accordance with the approved post mining land use plan.

Written comments, objections, and request for a public hearing or informal conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, Frankfort, KY 40601 by Oct. 1, 1999.

A public hearing date on the application has been scheduled for Oct. 5, 1999 at 9:00 a.m., at the Department for Surface Mining and Enforcement's Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. The scheduled public hearing will be cancelled if no Cabinet request for a public hearing or informal conference is received by Oct. 2, 1999.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.093, notice is hereby given that Buck Coal, Inc., 544 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, (606-886-2330), intends to apply for Phase III Bond

Release on Permit No. 436-5174 which was last issued on Sept. 20, 1991. The permit covers a surface area of approximately 2.90 acres, and is located approximately 3.0 miles east of East McDowell in Floyd County.

The permit area is approximately 2.0 miles southwest of KY 979's junction with KY 680, and is 0.1 mile south of Hamilton Branch. The Latitude is 37°-26'-36" and the Longitude is 82°-41'-15", and is located on the McDowell 7-1/2 minute USGS quadrangle maps.

The performance bond (surety) currently in effect for the operation is $2,200.00. 100% of the original surety bond of $19,500.00 is included in this request for release.

Reclamation work thus far performed includes: backfilling and grading, sampling and testing, liming, fertilizing, seeding and mulching, and was completed in winter 1992. Results thus far achieved include: establishment of vegetation and the post mining land use in accordance with the approved post mining land use plan.

Written comments, objections, and request for a public hearing or informal conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, Frankfort, KY 40601 by Oct. 1, 1999.

A hearing date for this bond release request has been set for Oct. 5, 1999 at 9:00 a.m., at the Department for Surface Mining and Enforcement's Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. The hearing will be cancelled if no request for a hearing or informal conference is received by Oct. 1, 1999.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with KRS 350.093 notice is hereby given that Wolverine Resources, Inc., 452 Town Mountain Road, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501, has applied for Phase 3 bond release on Permit No. 836-0259 Inc. 1 thru 7 which was last issued on 03-25-98. The application covers an area of approximately 168.99 acres located 0.5 miles Southwest of Prater Branch in Floyd County.

The permit area is approximately 0.75 miles Southwest of KY 114 Junction with Prater Br. and located adjacent to Floyd Magoffin County line. The latitude is 37° 39' 26". The longitude is 82° 54' 44".

The bond now in effect for the permit is a surety bond in the amount of $90,100.00. Approximately 25% of the original bond amount of $479,400.00 is included in the application for release.

Reclamation work performed includes final backfilling, grading and seeding, completed Fall 1990. Written comments, objections, and request for a public hearing or informal conference must be filed with the Director, Div. of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, by September 17, 1999.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT DIVISION NO. 1 CIVIL ACTION NO. 98-CI-01014

INEZ DEPOSIT BANK, PLAINTIFF VS: BARRY ROBINSON and DIANA ROBINSON, and COUNTY OF FLOYD, DEFENDANTS

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONER'S SALE

BY VIRTUE OF Judgment and Order of Sale of the Floyd Circuit Court entered on the 22nd day of June, 1999, in Floyd Circuit Court, in the above styled cause, for the sum of Twenty Seven Thousand Seven Hundred Forty Six Dollars and Ninety Nine Cents ($27,746.99), together with accrued interest thereon from the date of judgment, at the rate of 12% per annum, and with interest thereafter at the lawful rate until paid; and an attorney fee in the amount of 15% of the judgment herein, and Court costs, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Old Floyd County Courthouse Door, 3rd

Avenue, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, (behind the new Floyd County Justice Center) to the highest bidder, at public auction on Thursday, the 12th day of August 1999, at the hour of 9:15 a.m., the following described property, lying and being in Floyd County, Kentucky, to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land located in Floyd County, Kentucky, and being more described as follows:

Beginning at an iron stake on the Ned Ousley Hollow joining Willie Donald Bradley line; thence running East with the branch and Zeb and Mae Ousley line, approximately 300 feet to Rhodes Prater and wife, Ina Mae Prater line; thence running with Rhoides Prater and Ida May Prater line to the top of the hill, 500 feet, more or less, to Melvin Ousley line; thence running West 300 feet with center of ridge to Willie Donald Bradley line; thence running down the hill North 500 feet with Willie Donald Bradley line to Zeb and Mae Ousley line, the starting point.

And being the same property conveyed to Barry Robinson and Diana Robinson, his wife, by deed dated November 26, 1997, from Steven E. Haywood and Deborah Haywood, his wife, and recorded in Deed Book 413, Page 521, in the Office of the Floyd County Clerk.

And a Security Agreement for:

One 1990 Fleetwood Mobile Home, Serial #TNFLK27AB02204S R.

The property hereinabove described cannot be divided without materially impairing its value and therefore will be sold by the Master Commissioner of the Court with the proceeds therefrom distributed to the parties as set out hereinbelow.

The property hereinabove described shall be sold by the Master Commissioner as more particularly set forth in order to satisfy the debt owed the Plaintiff, Inez Deposit Bank, interest, costs, attorney fees, and Floyd County Ad Valorem taxes owed by the Robinson Defendants, jointly and severally.

The liens herein adjudged shall attach to the proceeds of said sale of the real estate in priority as follows:

Inez Deposit Bank is adjudged to have a first and superior mortgage lien (subject only to any appropriate liens of Floyd County, Kentucky) upon the hereinabove described real property.

TERMS OF SALE:

(a) At the time of sale, the successful bidder, if the other than the Plaintiff, shall either pay cash or make a cash deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days.

(b) The successful bidder shall be required to execute a bond with good surety thereon for the unpaid purchase price of said property, if any, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, having the force and effect of a Judgment.

(c) The property shall be sold subject to any easements and restrictions of record in the Floyd County Clerk's Office and such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America and/or the record owners thereof, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 2410 or KRS 426.530.

(d) The purchaser shall be required to assume and pay all real property taxes for the fiscal year 1998, and any prior years for which taxes are due and owing, and all subsequent years not yet due and payable.

(e) In the event the successful bidder or bidders is a party or parties to this action, which or who have been adjudged to have a lien on any of the property bid upon, then and in such event, said party or parties shall not be required to make any cash deposit or bond.

Any announcements made on date of sale takes precedence over printed matter contained herein.
