Short ballot, wider campaign

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Candidates chart contributions, expenses

Voters will not have a long ballot to pore over on Tuesday, but some of the candidates have been avid campaigners, as financial records from the Floyd County Clerk's office indicate.

All candidates must file financial disclosure forms, indicating the source of their campaign treasury and how they spend the money they raise.

Most candidates have so far filed two reports, the latest due on October 18. A third is due after the election when the victory parties have shut down, wounds have been licked, and all accounts settled up.

The new Third Division Circuit Judge slot, designated as Family Court, has generated the most competition. Incumbent Julie Paxton, who was appointed to fill the new judgeship, is being challenged in the non-partisan contest by Janice F. Porter, Jeffrey Damron and Tim Parker, all attorneys.

Paxton is the runaway winner in fund-raising. With Barkley Sturgill as her campaign treasurer, Paxton, 41, of Prestonsburg, reported raising $29,295 as of September 30.

Porter, 45, of Allen reported $3,894 in contributions, as of October 18. The treasurer of her campaign is Thomas E. Porter. Damron, 37, of Prestonsburg listed contributions totaling $3,600 at the end of September. Phillip Damron is his campaign treasurer. Parker, 38, of Prestonsburg, whose treasurer is Robert Williams, had raised $7,681, as of the first of October.

In the other local races, two Republicans have mounted campaigns against two incumbent Democrats who are in their first race, having been appointed to their posts.

Republican Sheila Crisp Lee, 51, of Allen, is running for Floyd Circuit Clerk against recently appointed Douglas Hall, 32, of Eastern. Lee, whose campaign treasurer is Robin Crisp, reported raising $1,450 during two reporting periods. With Ben Spradlin as his campaign treasurer, Hall reported having raised $10,775.

Republican Barry Spurlock, 38, of Banner is challenging Chris Waugh, 39, of Allen, who was appointed Floyd County Clerk earlier this year. Spurlock, whose campaign treasurer is Kevin Spurlock, reports having raised $2,831. With Angie Waugh as his campaign treasurer, Waugh lists total receipts of $5,950.

The candidates for governor and appellate judge do not have to file financial disclosures locally; rather they file their reports in Frankfort with the Registry of Election Finance.

In case the tenor of the campaigns has lulled some to sleep, the gubernatorial can-

Fall back

Look forward to a little more light in the early morning when you go to work or school next week. On the downside, however, there will be less light in the evening. While most of us sleep Sunday morning at about 2, we'll be taken off Daylight Savings Time. This is fall, so we move our clocks back and wait for the long winter nights to eat up our light. It could be worse, though — folks in Alaska and Canada have far less daylight than we.

Teaberry man taken by KSP

James H. Watkins, 57, of Teaberry was taken into custody Monday night by state and federal officers. KSP Tpr. Ron Peppi and FBI special agent Scott Barker arrested Watkins at about 9:30 p.m. on fugitive warrants. Watkins, who was lodged in the Floyd County Detention Center, is wanted by authorities in St. Joseph County, Michigan, on sex-related charges, according to the KSP report.

Tax office moves

The Kentucky Revenue Cabinet's Pikeville Taxpayer Center has moved. The new location is Suite 203, Uniplex Center, 126 Trivette Dr. The telephone number remains the same: 606/433-7675. Taxpayers in this region who need assistance with Kentucky tax issues are encouraged to visit the new location at the Uniplex Center.

New bank opens

Citizens National Bank formally opens its Salyersville branch today. The grand opening of the office at 615 East Mountain Parkway is 9 a.m. If you go, sign up for the prizes.

If you must burn ...

Officials with the Kentucky Division of Forestry feel the need to remind that the law is very specific about burning at this time of year.

From now until December 15, outdoor burning is illegal except between 6 in the evening and 6 in the morning — or when the ground is covered with snow.

In addition, it is against the law to burn within 150 feet of

No burning money here

For a while yesterday afternoon, it appeared that the city of Prestonsburg may be in for a major fire.

Emergency vehicles from all city departments were on hand to assist.

All personnel were evacuated from the First Commonwealth Bank Building on Arnold Avenue as firemen looked for the source of a fire on the fourth floor of the building.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department had the truck with the long ladder in place in case the fire got out of control. Fortunately, the ladder was not needed.

The crew used fans to pull the smoke from the building while bank workers looked on.

According to one fireman at the scene, the fire was caused when a cigarette was placed in a plastic container.

The cigarette burned through the container and then burned the tile on the floor, he said.

Floyd County Clerk Chris Waugh was among several people ready to make the day's afternoon deposit of receipts from the clerk's office.

"This is the first time I have not been able to make a deposit at the end of the day," said Waugh. "I don't know what to do now."

He and the other depositors had to leave the scene.

No one was injured and no information on damage was available at presstime.

Polling places change in four precincts

In preparation for Tuesday's general election, the Floyd County Clerk's office has assigned polling places in each of the county's 45 precincts.

Four of the voting places are different this fall.

Changes are slight for voters in Precinct 1 and 4. On November 2, voters in the Courthouse Precinct (1) will vote in the Property Valuation Administrator (PVA) office on the first floor of the courthouse, and those registered in the Richmond Precinct (4) will go to the County Attorney's office on the second floor of the courthouse.

Rather than the old community center, voters in Little Mud's 32nd Precinct will cast their ballot at Little Dove Old Regular Baptist Church. Voting will be in the church's lunchroom.

The old Prater Creek school, which is ready for demolition, has been replaced as the polling place for Prater Creek (39) voters. This year, they will vote at Hod Rod's Pizza.

The other precinct polling places are

- Buffalo/Endicott (2), Cow Creek Fire Station
- Depot (3), Eagle Plastic (old sewing factory)
- Cliff (5), Prestonsburg High School foyer
- Porter (6), Adams Middle School
- Auxier (7), Auxier Fire Station
- Middle Creek/Jack Allen (8), David Fire Station
- Cow Creek (9), Allen Elementary School
- Mouth of Beaver (10), Allen City Hall
- Jim Banks (11), Guyan Machinery

Utility gets high-up letter

The office of Prestonsburg's City Utilities Commission has a new wall decoration.

And while the local scenery is breathtaking this time of year and while the operation's board and staff might well pose perty for the camera, the new wall hanging is neither of those.

Rather, it's a framed print of a congratulatory letter from the President of the United States.

Bill Clinton's distinctive signature appears at the bottom of the correspondence on simple stationery headed with "The White House."

The letter relates to the PCUC's approval for Water 2000 funding from the US Department of Agriculture in July. The grant and loan of more than $1.5 million will allow the utility to run waterlines to the new federal prison at Honey Branch in Martin County, near the Floyd County line.

In addition to the prison, residences and businesses along the 7.5-mile route will have the opportunity to tap on.

Water 2000, a Clinton administration initiative, helps to fund water and sewer projects in rural areas which have no, or substandard, running water.

In the letter, Clinton writes, "I commend you on your participation in this initiative and on your efforts to lead your community and rural America into the 21st century. I look forward to working with you to meet our common challenges."

The letter, which was forwarded to PCUC superintendent Seldon Horne from the US Department of Agriculture, also states, "Water 2000 investments offer people in rural areas a chance to build a better future for their families by reducing health risks, helping to create jobs, and providing fire protection to homes and businesses."

These Head Start students from May Valley Elementary School got a jump on trick-or-treat activities Thursday when they visited businesses in Martin County for goodies. Merchants said no tricks were necessary, since it was a treat to have the students visit their businesses. By the way, trick or treat night is Saturday, so be on the lookout for the little goblins. Campaign didates are the incumbent Democrat Paul Patton, Republican Peppy Martin, Reformist Gatewood Galbraith, Natural Law's Nailah Jumoke-Yarbrough, and Write-In Hoby Anderson.

Also at the state level, several Democrats are running unopposed:

John Y. Brown III, Secretary of State; Ben Chandler, Attorney General; Ed Hatchett, Auditor of Public Accounts; Jonathan Miller, State Treasurer; and Billy Ray Smith, Commissioner of Agriculture.

J.E. Combs represents the Democratic party in the race for Railroad Commissioner in the Third District, and Anita Steffen the Republican.

In the non-partisan contest for Judge of the Court of Appeals from the 7th Appellate District, David Allen Barber, Prestonsburg attorney and experienced officeholder, is challenging John A. Gardner of Paintsville, the incumbent.

Two of Floyd County's circuit judges are running without opposition: First Division Judge Danny P. Caudill and Second Division Judge John David Caudill.

The following is an accounting of contributions of more than $25 to the local candidates, as reported on their filing statements. The forms are available for public viewing at the County Clerk's Office on the first floor of the Floyd County Courthouse.

Center offers training in truck driving

Nearly a half million truck drivers will be needed each year through 2005, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Center for Rural Development in Somerset, in conjunction with Jefferson Technical College of Louisville, is offering a hands-on opportunity for individuals who are looking for a job.

This 11-week program is for people who have lost their jobs through downsizing in the coal mining industry. To qualify, participants must have lived or worked in Floyd, Harlan, Hopkins, Lee, Letcher, Martin, Muhlenberg, Perry, Pike, or Union counties.

"The purpose of the free training is to give participants the knowledge and skills needed to take the federally-mandated CDL examination," according to Charley Simpson, director of training and education at The Center for Rural Development.

"In doing so, we hope they will be able to seek new job opportunities in the trucking industry," Simpson added.

Funding for the class has been made available through a federal grant from the Economic Development Administration.

To register for the free Truck Driver's Training class, call Juliann Green at (888) 248-9438 or 606/677-6026. All books, materials and training are free, but class space is limited.

American Legion urges government to treat sick Gulf vets, support research Weighing the unknown risks against the unproven advantages, the nation's largest veterans organization urged the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Pentagon to ensure sick Gulf War veterans receive medical treatment and to accelerate scientific studies into the effectiveness and safety of pyridostigmine bromide. The drug was given to thousands of U.S. military personnel in the Persian Gulf as a defense against nerve-agent attacks.

"The American Legion opposes DoD's use of PB," said Gulf War Marine Corps veteran Matt Puglisi, head of Persian Gulf issues for the 2.8-million member American Legion. "The Pentagon must defer any further use of PB until questions about its safety are answered. Meanwhile, VA medical centers must remain open to all sick Gulf War veterans immediately while scientists determine how much damage, if any, has been caused to our troops."

The American Legion's

announcement follows the release of a Pentagon-funded literature study by the Rand Corporation. The Rand study suggests PB could be a factor in illnesses of mysterious origin affecting tens of thousands of Gulf War veterans. Symptoms suffered by sick Gulf War veterans include fatigue, nausea, chronic pain, skin rashes and digestive difficulties.

Since the first reports of sick Gulf War veterans surfaced, The American Legion has worked with Congress, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and the administration on the development of medical treatment and public policy initiatives to assist ill Gulf War veterans and their families.

People with diabetes at risk during flu season

With flu season approaching, it's critical that people with diabetes get a flu shot and a vaccine for pneumonia.

People with diabetes are about three times more likely to die with complications of the flu and pneumonia. Getting the flu can also mean lengthy hospital stays for people with diabetes.

Despite these risks, only about half of the 16 million people with diabetes get an annual flu shot and only about a third get the pneumococcal vaccine. According to the Kentucky Department for Public Health, the figures for Kentucky are even worse. Survey results for the years 1996-98 show that:

• Only 24 percent of people with diabetes in Kentucky reported receiving an annual flu shot and only 14 percent reported receiving a pneumococcal shot to help prevent pneumonia. About 222,241 Kentuckians have diabetes.

• Among seniors with diabetes, 35 percent reported receiving the flu vaccine and 20 percent reported receiving the pneumococcal vaccine.

• Among African Americans with diabetes, 19 percent reported receiving the flu vaccine and 12 percent reported receiving the pneumococcal vaccine.

People with diabetes have more difficulty fighting illnesses such as the flu and pneumonia because of diabetes effect on metabolism.

About a third of the people with diabetes don't know they have it. Feeling thirsty, frequent urination, feeling tired and unexplained weight loss are among the symptoms for some people with diabetes. Risk factors include being overweight, having a sedentary lifestyle and a family history of diabetes.

"These simple measures such as flu and pneumonia shots can prevent costly hospitalization and illness," said Linda Leber, a nurse and a certified diabetes educator with the Department for Public Health. "People with diabetes should talk to their health care professional about this and make sure they take the right steps toward prevention."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is conducting a campaign this year to encourage people with diabetes to get a flu shot and a vaccine to prevent pneumonia. Kentucky is participating in this effort by distributing pamphlets posters and reminder cards to health plans, local health departments and other health care providers.

Editorial

The obvious option

Time's a'wastin', we've all been told time and again. That's certainly true in regard to the athletic complexes that have been in the making at South Floyd and Prestonsburg high schools for much too long now.

The biggest hang-up is apparently money. It's the same thing most of us face every payday. Here's what we need to do, and here's how much money we have to do it. The equation is not always equal.

School board members, as well as officials, parents, students and (dare we say?) athletic supporters at both schools, know what they want. There's just not enough money to cover those wants.

Property acquisition appears to be a major issue. We're pretty much guessing here, since discussions of property matters are not open to the public. We have no idea what has been bandied about behind closed doors in executive sessions of the board.

We do know that the estimates for acquiring property for the two complexes leave too little in the budget for construction. Buy the property in question and resign ourselves to standing up while we watch sandlot ball.

There is an option that would appear to save money. It would do away with the need to acquire any additional land in Prestonsburg and would free up money for land in the southern part of the county.

That "high"-minded option is to build the new PHS stadium on Prestonsburg's Mountaintop Project.

An 18-hole, state-of-the-art golf course is nearing completion on the site, just off KY 321 on Maggie Mountain Road. The land has already been flattened by strip mining, like a mountain prairie, wide and smooth, perfect for the long pass.

The dream of Prestonsburg's city fathers is to have a recreational complex that will serve residents and draw travelers. Alongside will be residences and, eventually, businesses.

Our understanding is that a generous plot of land has been offered to the school board by the city for a stadium for the high school. And here's the flash, no one is figuring to make a buck off the deal. The city is willing to give the land for the construction.

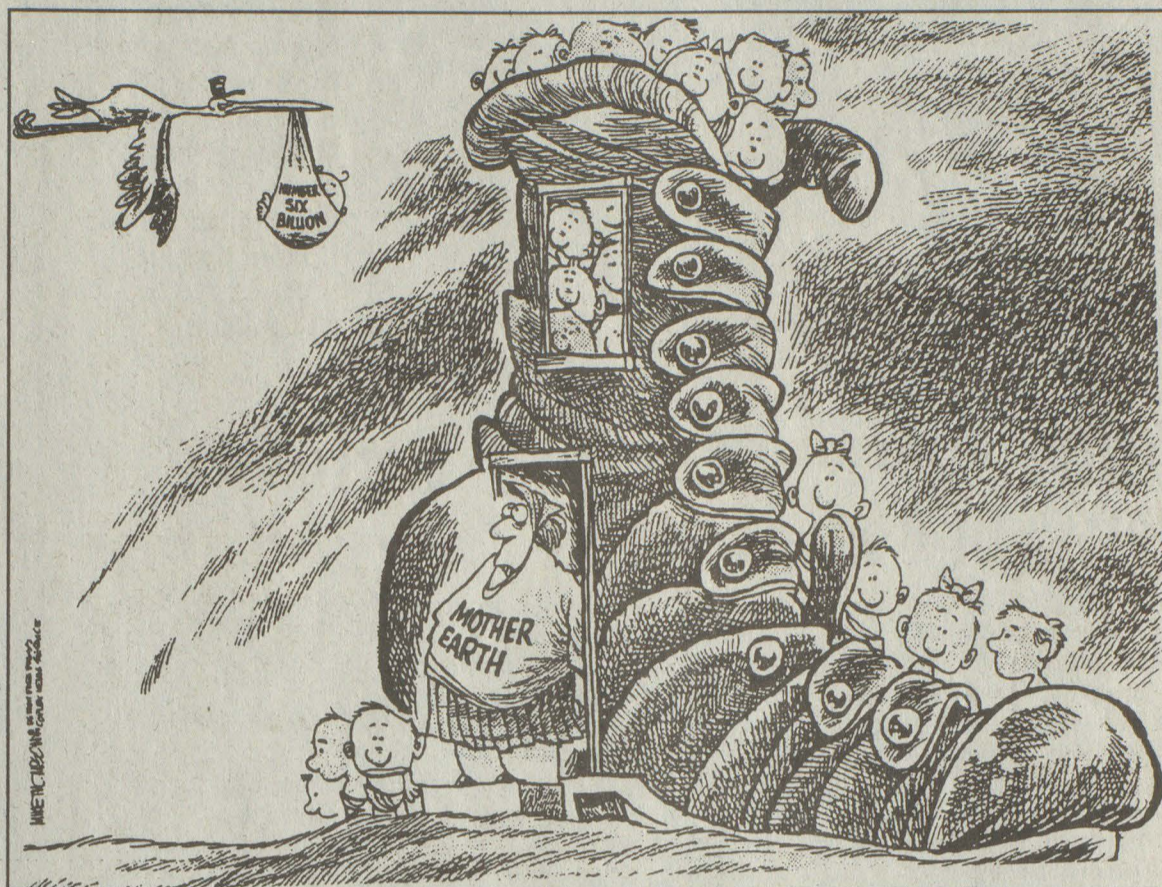

It's one of those rare win-win situations. The school gets free land for its athletic facility and the city enhances its plan for a showplace recreational complex, which could attract regional and state tournaments, band competitions, conventions, concerts, revivals, you name it.

If this deal were made, then the school board would have more money to spend on the South Floyd project, where it is truly desperately needed.

Obviously, there is something to be said in favor of an athletic facility being attached to the school it serves. But this is the age of mobility. Hardly anyone walks to practice or to the game anymore. Putting the ball field on the hilltop adds only a couple of miles to the trip.

We hope this is the direction the school board is considering in its lengthy, private discussions.

Physician refuses 'master-servant' relationship

Editor:

Last night (October 26) at 8:20 p.m., I heard loud knocks on my door. My wife and I were in the bedroom watching TV. Someone knocking at my door at this hour was very unusual. It was pitch black outside.

I got out of bed in my pajamas to answer the door. I jokingly said to my wife, "I hope it is not someone with a gun."

At the door was standing a Highlands Regional Medical Center security guard. He said to me, "Mr. Warman asked me to give this to you." He handed me an envelope from Consolidated Health Systems.

As you know, Mr. Warman and I have an on-going feud. He feels he owns me. I refuse to cross the picket line, both for my and my patients' protection. I refuse to treat my patients in a hospital ill-prepared to treat every potential emergency.

I believe in discussion and compromise. I believe that every human being has unique value and should be treated with respect and dignity, no matter what.

Since October 11, Mr. Warman has stated that he will not pay me because I refuse to cross the picket line. I will cross the picket line if I receive 24-hour security protection (as he has) and if he guarantees that the hospital is able to give the standard of care that it had pre-strike (pre-September 2). He refused to do this.

I have patients who refuse to cross the picket line or wish to continue to see me for their medical care. To accommodate these patients, I still see them at the Hope Clinic in Salyersville, far away from the hospital office site. I do this without pay.

My greatest fear is that some of my patients will go uncared for. I am trying my best to continue their care, but without any income this service will eventually have to stop.

Yesterday, while I was seeing patients at the Hope Clinic, Carolyn Prater, Mr. Warman's assistant, came to the clinic to take back the fetal monitor that I had taken from my office to the clinic at the beginning of the strike.

The fetal monitor is used to assess the state of the pregnant patient. Of course, Mr. Warman never consulted me in this matter.

Carolyn Prater asked for my fetal doppler, a hand-held device that allows me to hear the fetal heart rate. I have had this doppler since I started working for Consolidated in January 1998, and I needed this doppler to continue examining pregnant patients at the clinic. Remember, Mr. Warman had not removed his consent for me to see patients at the Hope Clinic.

I refused to give up my doppler to Carolyn Prater, for I knew I would need this instrument to examine patients in the future.

So what was in the letter the security guard delivered to me personally?

Mr. Warman stated, "If the doppler is not returned to Highlands Medical Office building by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, October 27, 1999, we will take appropriate legal actions to have the said property returned to our possession."

He wants his doppler back and I will give it to him, even though every health care provider has their own. For what reason does Mr. Warman request this doppler now? Only he knows.

Tell me what did I do wrong. I was hired to provide obstetric and gynecologic medical care. I try my best. I asked for peace and compromise. I objected when medical care was compromised and when loyalty of workers was rewarded with dismissal and betrayal.

My father, of blessed memory, was a shoe salesman. I worked since high school, putting myself through school. Is this the reward I deserve for so many hard years of work and dedicated service to my patients? I am not perfect. I am still learning.

My roots, my very being, prevent me from entering a master-servant relationship. This is what Mr. Warman wants. Not from me. Not ever. Not at any price.

There is a great debate in Kentucky whether the Ten Commandments should be displayed in schools. With all humility, allow me to remind you what the First Commandment states, "I am the Lord, your God, who has taken you out of the Land of Egypt, from the house of slavery."

Never again am I to enter a master-servant relationship. I not only have the right to speak out, it is my duty.

Mr. Warman and the HRMC board of trustees who hired you, I intend to return your doppler. I sincerely request that you consider further discussions with the union to resolve all outstanding issues, for the sake of the community, for your own sake.

I am sure you all need a rest from this, as I do. Your long term health is at risk, and I worry about you.

Administrator offers clarification

Editor:

Once again, I am writing to provide clarification as the result of letters written to the editor about the strike at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

In her letter, Lonna Gray says she knew what the vote was about on September 1. That may be true for Gray; however, that doesn't dismiss the fact that many union workers have explained to us and to the community that they did not.

Ms. Gray, we believe you when you say you knew. You have allied yourself to and are obviously in the inner circle of the union leadership. We also believe those union members who said they did not fully understand the content of the medical center's proposal.

You may have the facts, Ms. Gray, but you purposely mislead the public by not fully sharing the facts. The medical center has offered a wage increase to the service, technical, maintenance and clerical workers that equates to three percent per year of the contract. The increase consists of a two percent annual increase and an average of a one per-

Economic impact

Some exciting ideas are being discussed and acted upon in conjunction with Prestonsburg Community College's Rural Community College Initiative (RCCI), a Ford Foundation-funded project.

What college and community leaders involved with the project are trying to do, it seems, is put the money where the mouth is in terms of the continuing discussion of the importance of education to economic development.

As long as I can remember, people in this region have talked about the great need to improve our educational system because we know it will impact the economy positively.

However, it's been kind of like what they say about the weather: Everybody talks about it and nobody does anything about it.

That's not quite true. Efforts have been made to fix our schools, but they've generally been done short term and in isolation, one school or one system from another.

One of the ideas the folks at the college have is to try to form a confederation of sorts of educational institutions throughout the Big Sandy Valley — public elementary and secondary school systems, vocational programs, community and technical colleges, private four-year colleges, regional university.

They even have a name for it — Big Sandy Education Partners for Success. "We can make a significant difference in this region," said PCC Interim President Dr. Charles Stebbins at an RCCI meeting last week.

Stebbins outlined some of the goals of the Partners program:

- Create a comprehensive system of life/career decision-making. Focus students on planning early for their future. We're not much used to doing that here, and we need to do better.

- Increase participation in postsecondary education and training programs by 10 percent in the next two years. We're woefully low in the numbers of people who complete high school, let alone go on for more education.

- Increase participation in non-collegiate programs to improve employability skills by five percent over two years. In other words, we need to get past the stigma that a bachelor's degree is the only road to success. Many employers are begging for people who can do tool and die work, plumbing, electricity and other skilled trades.

- Improve on high school graduation rates. Specifically, the group plans to identify strategies to persuade students to stay in school and to act on them.

- Pull educational entities together for annual summits on education and the economy where educators can discuss and plans ways to improve education and training.

Another organization that is arising from the RCCI is called the Center for Economic Innovation. Part of this effort, Stebbins said, is the Big Sandy Business Info-Referral Center which will act as a clearinghouse, connecting all the diverse and disparate economic development programs in the region.

In the past, these programs have been a lot like Topsy — they've just grown. Counties, cities, colleges, chambers of commerce, industrial authorities, etc., have put together their own economic development offices, acting often in competition with one another and without much expertise. The results are obvious.

cent increase based on longevity. That's longevity.

The medical center also proposed a two percent increase to the registered nurses' contract, with an additional one percent tied to performance. Ms. Gray, our patients deserve a system that rewards good performance on the part of all our care givers. Why would you object to this?

Concerning your supervisor, her support of union activities during the 1981 strike and your allegations that she has been punished for that positions, I would ask you to consider how she got to be your supervisor in 1999 if she were being punished for her actions 18 years ago.

Again, Ms. Gray, your comments are inconsistent with reality.

Concerning health care premiums, you ask if it is fair to ask you to pay some percent of an unknown future health care premium. Ms. Gray, would you rather fix the rate, have premiums drop, then be paying a higher percent of the total? Fair cuts both ways, Ms. Gray.

Perhaps these proposals seem unfair to you because you have too much to lose personally if the union doesn't have total control of the medical center. If you continue to believe the union doesn't want control, then ask your leadership to approve different expiration dates on the two contracts. This will prove it.

The subcontracting language was changed during the negotiations just for the reasons you stated, Ms. Gray. The medical center recognized the problem and changed language accordingly. Read the contract.

You are interpreting the contract language to suit your purposes, to make other union members believe something that is not true, and at the same time to avoid the real issue of this strike.

The union leadership wants total control of the medical center. They want simultaneous contract expiration dates, so they can call a strike and close the medical center whenever they desire and they want a closed shop for all the registered nurses, meaning the nurses would not be able to choose if they want to be in the union or not. Ms. Gray, what's fair about this.

Because you are a registered nurse, the RN issue obviously is one of great concern to you and rightly so. However, the medical center agreed to recognize the RN group; that fight is over.

Now it's time to work together to develop appropriate language and negotiate the contract. Please don't hold the service contract membership hostage, like a bargaining chip in a game. They deserve better consideration and treatment from their fellow union members.

As best as we who are taking care of patients can tell, returning workers have renounced the union because they disagree with its tactics, politics and agenda. Also, these workers want to take care of patients. Remember, while you were writing your letter to the editor, more than 200 people were at Highlands, taking care of patients.

We're seeing and caring for an average of 35 to 40 patients a day in the Emergency Room, averaging 12 in-patients per day, performing about 250 laboratory procedures per day and 50 radiology procedures per day.

It should be clear from these numbers exactly who is providing health care for the patients from our community.

To Ms. King who also wrote to the editor, I ask, when was a second vote on the contract taken and what was the result? Truth and honesty are values that are desperately needed in this situation.

A walk down your memory lane should remind you that the current administration kept its word and provided several LPNs who were affected by downsizing the opportunity to return to work.

The medical center has no hidden agendas. We want to see union members have a secret ballot vote on the service contract, have our workers return to their jobs, and allow the medical center and the union to work together to negotiate the registered nurse contract.

Reptile show 'great success'

Editor:
The Reptile Show, sponsored by the BSRT Natural Science Center and the Community Biology Club, was a great success on October 15.

Pike Auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College was full-to-overflowing with children and parents, as they listened to naturalist Jay Rose from the Natural History Education Company of Cadiz.

He talked about the creatures he had brought for them to see: a baby American alligator, a large iguana, a non-venomous king snake, and a 15-foot long albino Burmese python, which was clearly the hit of the show, weighing in at about 70 pounds and still growing.

Everyone who wanted to was allowed to go up to the stage after the program to get a closer look at it, and even to pet it. As they did, they kept Rose busy with their questions about reptiles, perhaps one of the most misunderstood groups of animals.

Did you know, for instance, that snakes are not slimy, and that they sleep with their eyes open? Did you know that iguanas can change color instantaneously, according to temperature or mood, and whip their enemies with their long tails?

Maybe you didn't know that alligators' teeth might be replaced as many as 50 times in its life, or that they, along with other crocodilians, are the only reptiles that nurture and protect their young for several months after hatching.

These and other interesting reptile facts were included on the program for the show, which was created and distributed to everyone by the Community Biology Club.

Refreshments were also provided after the event, compliments of Prestonsburg Wal-Mart, Kroger of Paintsville, Winn-Dixie and the club.

Festival planners deserve thanks

Editor:
I would like to take this opportunity to thank the City of Prestonsburg, Sue Webb and Donna Wells for this year's Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival.

All of the long hours that were put into planning this festival were certainly a compliment to the City of Prestonsburg and Floyd County. This was, by far, the best one yet. Everything was very organized, easily accessible and enjoyable. Eastern Kentucky should be proud.

I remember as a child my parents would take me to the Floyd County Fair, and since those early experiences, getting to see our people of Floyd County gather together for community festivals and enjoy each other's company is wonderful.

I look forward to next year, because I know it will be even bigger and better. Again, thanks for a job well done!

Impact

The college's concept is to have a place where information is available and collaboration and cooperation are facilitated.

Among other goals for the Center for Economic Innovation are

- Assist 25 or more clients in creating new businesses or strengthening the current work force.
- Increase efforts to train the work force and to train those who train - "train the trainer" is how Stebbins put it.
- Create 250 new jobs. The strategy to do this is not developed yet, but it seems a worthy goal.
- Introduce Junior Achievement to the region. JA encourages young people to get involved in business, to gain work experience and to develop career plans.

Business people throughout the region, as well as those whose jobs include economic development responsibilities, should get involved in what the college is trying to do.

The old mountain way of striking out on our own clearly has not worked. It's time to get together and get our act together. RCCI may be the vehicle.

If you're interested, call Stebbins or RCCI director Jean Dorton at 606/886-3863.

KYCOURTS begins statewide rollout

The new statewide case management computer system, KYCOURTS, will be rolled out this weekend, with full implementation in the Jefferson County District Court beginning Monday, November 1.

This implementation will be the first step of the rollout of a single, statewide case management computer network.

"We're excited about the innovative changes KYCOURTS will bring to our courtrooms," said Chief Justice Joseph E. Lambert. "Our state judicial system is recognized nationwide as a leader in court technology and we intend to be the very best."

KYCOURTS is expected to revolutionize the way the courts currently handle and track cases. The system is designed to be more user friendly, more efficient, and more accessible.

By utilizing Windows-based technologies, such features as bar coding, touch screen, and imaging will become common place in the courthouse.

Many basic court procedures will change as a result of KYCOURTS. All court documents and case jackets will now be bar coded. This will greatly reduce the number of keystrokes required by court clerks who repeatedly handle these documents.

For example, when a summons is issued, the summons will be bar coded. When the return of service is filed in the clerk's office, a simple scan of the bar code will enter a notation in the case file that the summons was returned served.

Through touch screening, judges will have the ability to issue, sign, and distribute copies of orders while on the bench, and bench clerks can close cases almost immediately, while court is still in session.

The rollout of KYCOURTS has come about through the leadership efforts of Chief Justice Lambert, who has built on the work of his predecessor, Robert F. Stephens.

In January 1997, Stephens directed the Administrative Office of the Courts to develop a more usable computer system which could address the needs of high volume courts such as Jefferson County, while at the same time reviewing the general procedures of courts statewide.

A technology committee consisting of judges, court clerks and other court officials was formed to identify the needs of court personnel and establish minimum standards for KYCOURTS.

During the past year, nearly $3 million has been invested in the development of KYCOURTS, with a major portion of funding going toward replacement of outdated software and equipment. More than 1,500 personal computers have been replaced with Pentium units statewide, allowing the courts to simultaneously address the "Y2K" problem.

Much of the funding has been through a court technology fee, which the courts have been collecting since April 1997 on most new civil cases filed. As of June 30, this fee had brought in nearly $3.3 million.

Additional funding for KYCOURTS has come from the state's general fund.

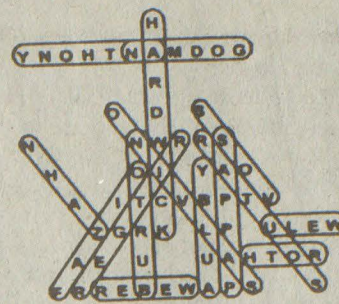

This technology has the potential to grow as the needs of the courts change. In the future, those involved in court proceedings, such as law enforcement officers, prosecutors, jailers, or members of the local bar, may be able to access court cases over the Internet. KYCOURTS' web capabilities are currently being tested in Montgomery, Fayette, and Boone counties.

Installation is expected to be completed in all Jefferson County offices by January 1, 2000. KYCOURTS will be extended to all court offices statewide within the next one to two years.

Former president honored at MSU

President Emeritus Adron Doran returned to Morehead State University on October 15 to be honored for his 90th birthday and left the campus with a permanent birthday present.

It was announced that $265,000 had been given or pledged to be matched by the same amount of state funds to establish the Adron Doran Endowment for Educational Leadership. This is MSU's first endowment fund created under the state's matching funds program through the Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education.

MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin said a public campaign would be initiated to raise the endowment for $530,000 to $1 million.

The endowment will be used to support activities in the university's College of Education and Behavioral Sciences to prepare educational leaders of tomorrow. The money will sponsor professorships, lectureships and seminars.

Known for his trademark bow ties, Dr. Doran greeted nearly 400 friends and colleagues, many who traveled from across the country for "The Tie That Binds" celebration.

The program included remarks by several alumni, including Virginia "Ginni" Fox (1961), CEO of Kentucky Educational Television; W. Terry McBrayer (1959), attorney; and Lisa M. Palas (1972), an actress, singer and professional songwriter, each of whom spoke with admiration for Dr. Doran's influence on their educational and personal development.

His wife, Mignon, expressed her thoughts on his accomplishments and their 68 years of marriage. She concluded with a verse she had written especially for the occasion.

Presiding at the luncheon, Dr. Eaglin described Dr. Doran as the one individual who had the most impact on the institution over its 112 years of existence. "He is 90 years young and I believe that qualifies him as a living legend."

In his nearly 30-minute response, Dr. Doran expressed his gratitude for the overwhelming display of affection in remarks that brought tears and laughter from the audience. He described the initial amount of the endowment as "the most astonishing, astounding and moving thing."

Whether in education, politics or religion, Dr. Doran is a recognized leader not only in Kentucky but also throughout the nation. He has been a teacher and principal in the public schools, speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives, and president of the Kentucky Education Association.

With his wife by his side, Dr. Doran served MSU for more than two decades, from April 1954 until December 1976. Under their leadership, MSU experienced its most rapid growth in student population and campus construction. The couple now resides in Lexington.

A minister of the Church of Christ since 1928, Dr. Doran devotes much of his time to research, writing and lecturing on the history of the American Restoration Movement.

Sometimes we need a prayer mountain

The Gospel according to me

by Paul Prather

PIGEON FORGE, Tennessee — Pigeon Forge is a tourist trap, but it also has its rustic hideaways. We've found a log cabin on a mountainside, my wife and I

We're not celebrating a holiday or an anniversary. This should be a work week for both of us, which makes our escape all the sweeter.

We've come to spend time with each other and with God, to talk, to pray, to meditate, to refresh our spirits.

Jesus seems to have done a similar sort of thing during His earthly ministry.

When the press of the crowds, the criticism of His enemies or the needs of His disciples started distracting Him from His main purpose — to hear from God and obey Him — Jesus would slip off alone to the mountains.

East Tennessee isn't exactly Judea, I realize. And I bear even less in common with the Savior of the world than Pigeon Forge does with the Middle East. Also, Renee and I aren't alone, we're together.

Still, the principle is the same.

I've recently become the senior pastor of our church. My responsibilities have increased.

Renee has been caught up in her duties as a bank officer, working long hours, battling stress. She's had little time to think about spiritual matters. Until this week.

As I jot these notes, we're hidden away for the evening in our rented cabin.

The scent of the log walls mingles with the wafting fragrance of a sack of apples we bought to create a mixed aroma that is, well, heavenly.

Gas logs glow in the fireplace.

Outside on the plank front porch, from which I've just returned, bronze and yellow leaves, freshly fallen from the stout trees that protect the cabin, skitter across the rockers of a porch chair.

Above me now rain patters on the roof.

I hear the electric heater that warms the hot tub on the back deck kick on.

When the rain stops, I might steam the knots from my weary middle-aged body.

This morning Renee, who's usually up before dawn, slept until 11. Then we sat on the cabin's sofa and ate donuts. I drank steaming coffee.

We talked quietly about Scriptures that have had special meaning to us. We discussed how best to help our church move forward.

When we tired of religious chatter, we stretched out with books and read, Renee on the sofa and I on the bed upstairs in the loft.

I prayed quietly for a while. In the stillness I felt as if God were speaking to me, too.

"My plans for you are good, not bad," He seemed to say inside my heart. "Encourage the people who look to you for guidance. Love them. Help them develop their gifts."

But even while we've been here on our retreat, daily we've gotten too hungry for donuts and apples to completely fill the need.

Sooner or later, twice most days, we've started up the car, descended from our mountain and rejoined the harried world of Pigeon Forge.

Its main parkway is jammed day and night with cars from dozens of states.

We creep along, a few feet at a time, past outlet malls and neon signs and putt-putt golf courses past water slides deserted in the crisp October chill. I find myself fuming at the other drivers.

We wait in line for tables at O'Charley's or Ruby Tuesday or country singer Alan Jackson's diner.

One afternoon Renee decides to shop at an outlet mall. I sit in the parking lot, reading a Knoxville paper and listening to the radio, catching up on the news, to which I'm as addicted as she is to shoe stores.

That quickly, our thoughts have fled from God and from each other.

Whether we're at home or in east Tennessee, distractions are never far from us. We're drawn inevitably from the things that really matter, from the food that feeds the soul.

Just as surely, desperation always brings us back to a prayer mountain.

It's a continuing cycle. Going into shelter, coming out again to face the world.

Findings reported in mining accidents

The United States Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration has released its findings on two mine accidents in eastern Kentucky.

In an accident at the Pilgrim No. 9 mine near Inez on August 12, in which Edward Michael Kirk, Dennis Banks and James Field were injured, MSHA inspectors found that the accident occurred because management failed to adequately support the hill seams at the accident site.

Banks and Field were taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center and released the same day. Kirk was transported by Health-Net helicopter to St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington, West Virginia, where he was diagnosed with muscle strains and released the next day.

Pilgrim, a subsidiary of Martin County Coal, was issued a citation.

An accident at No. 1 Plant of D. Mac Enterprises Inc. of Pikeville on July 5 claimed the life of Fred Spears. Insulation failure to one of the conductors inside the limit switch created a shock hazard that apparently elevated the limit switch housing to 120 volts.

The mining regulatory agency cited D-Mac Enterprises, a contract operator for Mapco Inc., for the following:

- The circuit breaker for the heavy medium vessel elevator circuit was not locked out and tagged prior to work being performed on 120 (nominal) limit switch, and the electrician performing the work dispatched a worker who was not a certified electrician to de-energize the circuit breaker.

The owner/superintendent present was aware that the non-certified person was going to de-energize the circuit as instructed by the certified electrician, the report says.

- The metallic frame of the limit switch was not provided with a proper frame ground. Although the condition existed at the time of the examination, it was apparently not corrected.

- The metallic frame of the limit switch for the heavy medium vessel elevator refuse chute was not provided with a proper ground. A 34-inch section of the liquid-tight flexible, non-metallic conduit containing the 120-volt control circuit conductors leading to the switch was not provided with an internal or external grounding conductor.

- Failure to maintain the limit switch for the heavy-medium vessel chute and the conduit system connected to the switch in an approved manner for the location of installation.

The switch and conduit system were not maintained properly, according to the report, because water was found inside the switch. A coupling in the rigid metal conduit system above the switch was installed in a manner that allowed water into the conduit system and subsequently into the switch.

Kentucky division of forestry to buy seeds

This fall, money really does grow on trees. Oak trees and yellow-poplars are especially apt to produce a cash flow, and the total dividend from trees in the Eastern District will be just under $6,000.

In other words, the Eastern District of the Kentucky Division of Forestry will be buying seeds for the Morgan County Nursery this fall. The Eastern District is comprised of Pike, Floyd, Martin, Magoffin, Johnson and Lawrence counties.

Together, the Kentucky Division of Forestry's two nurseries grow between six to eight million seedlings per year for reforestation, erosion control, Christmas tree establishment, windbreaks and wildlife habitat.

Any person or group wishing to collect seeds for the nursery may participate. The Eastern District currently needs 250 lbs. of black oak acorns, 1700 lbs. of white oak acorns, 1,900 lbs. of mixed oak acorns and 25 bushels of yellow-poplar cones. The purchase prices for these seeds is:

- Black Oak, $1.75/lb.
- White Oak, $1.35/lb.
- Mixed Oak, $1.30/lb.
- Yellow-poplar, $24/bu.

Collected seeds should be stored in a cool, dry area with good circulation until delivered to the Eastern District office. Acorns should not be kept for more than one week in areas not cooled.

The Eastern District office is Betsy Layne, next door to J & J

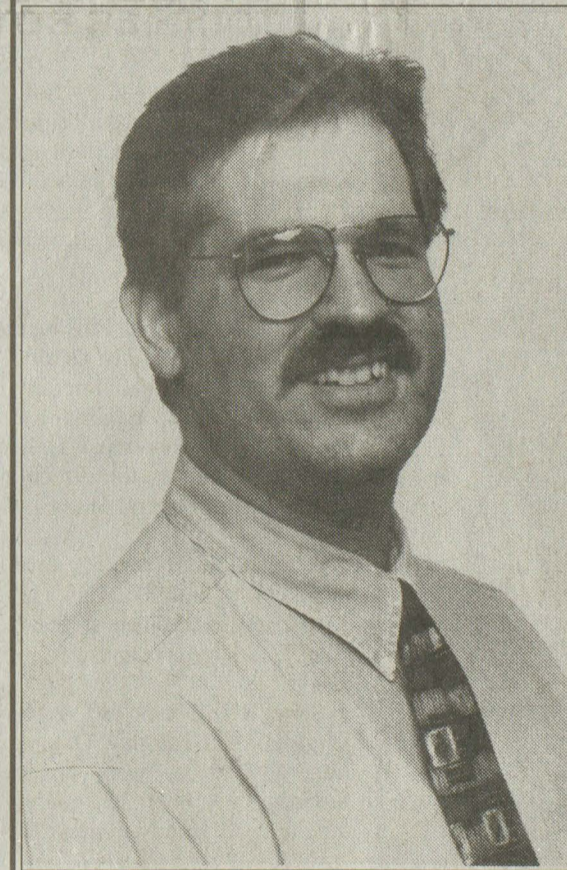

Liquors, will be accepting seeds Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Contact: Dexter Conley, district forester, Bill Curnutte, district ranger, or Phillip Meeks, chief forester. 606/478-4495.

Every week in every state of the U.S. and in 50 counties around the world, thousands of mothers gather to pray for their children and their schools. They are all part of Moms In Touch International, an interdenominational, nonprofit ministry of women who believe prayer makes a difference.

The group was founded in 1984 by Fern Nichols, a mother in Abbotsford, British Columbia, who had two sons entering junior high. Nichols knew that her boys were going to face their greatest test yet in resisting immoral values, vulgar language, and peer pressure. She found other concerned mothers, and they began meeting for prayer.

The following summer, Nichols and her family moved to Poway, California, where by the fall of 1985, a group was established at Poway High School. The women met once a week and prayed for a full hour for their children and their schools. They prayed for a Moms In Touch group for every school in their district and they shared the concept with their friends and other moms they met.

In the fall of 1987, the first

Moms In Touch book was published. In January 1988, the first Moms In Touch retreat was held with 35 women who prayed that God would spread the word about prayer and about Moms In Touch around the country. Their first national exposure came that spring, when Nichols and 13 other moms talked to Dr. James Dobson on his Focus on the Family radio program. That first broadcast brought more than 20,000 responses.

Today, there are approximately 30,000 Moms In Touch groups meeting worldwide. The organization's goal is to have a group of two or more moms praying for every school in this country and throughout the world.

If you would like to know more about this life-changing organization, there will be an informational on Thursday, November 4, from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., at the First United Methodist Church, 505 Main Street, Paintsville. This meeting is free and open to women of all denominations. A nursery will be provided.

COBRA CONTINUATION — THE FACTS

In just a few days, workers involved in the labor dispute will have reached the end of the 60 days required notice period in which to elect continuation of their health and dental benefits. Any notification received after day 60 will result in a forfeiture of continuation rights. At this time it is important to remind you, payments will be due within 45 days from that period. The result of nonpayment is as follows:

- If you fail to apply for coverage within the required time, or fail to send your first premium payment within the 45 days, all rights to COBRA continuation are forfeited. Payments received after this date will be returned, and legally you will have given up your right to continued coverage. This notification must be made directly to Preferred Health Plan Inc., on or before day 60.
- If you elect not to continue coverage, any claims incurred during or after this sixty-day period become the individual's responsibility. In addition, because you are not an active employee of the Medical Center, you and your family are no longer eligible for any health insurance discounts typically offered to staff.
- Once a staff member returns to work, they must meet the following eligibility requirements:
 - Eligible employees are full and part time employees who are regularly scheduled to work at least 32 hours per week. The date of eligibility is the first of the month following 60 days of becoming an eligible employee.
 - Pre-existing conditions will not be covered under any circumstances without first waiting the mandatory 12-month waiting period.

Local man found guilty on drug, firearm charges

A Magoffin County man is now facing up to 25 years in prison after being convicted recently of drug and gun-related offenses, according to a release from the United States' Attorney's eastern district office.

Joe Douglas Helton, 34, of Salyersville, is facing a maximum penalty of 25 years imprisonment, a $1 million fine, and supervised release for a period of three years, the release said.

Helton was convicted in federal court on charges that he possessed cocaine on June 4 with the intent to distribute. He had also been charged with possessing a firearm after previously being convicted of a felony, and using the firearm in his drug trafficking.

The jury's verdict of guilty was returned following a three-day trial before United States District Judge Joseph Hood.

Sentencing for Helton is scheduled for February 7, at 2 p.m. in Pikeville. — The Salyersville Independent

Rogers announces funding for information center

The US House of Representatives has approved a plan by Representative Harold "Hal" Rogers that will provide $250,000 for a tourist information and visitor center at a pioneer-era village now being constructed in Magoffin County.

Rogers worked to include the funding for the project that is sponsored by the City of Salyersville in conjunction with the local Historical Society.

The House approved the money recently by an overwhelming vote of 406 to 18 in support of the final version of FY 2000, HUD, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Bill.

Murder on Marrowbone

A dispute sparked by the ownership of a mobile home late Thursday evening on Marrowbone Creek in Wayne County has left a Kermit man dead and two people seriously injured.

Kenneth Lyle Messer, 43, was pronounced dead at Williamson Memorial Hospital after suffering multiple gunshot wounds. His wife, Rylenea Messer, 31, is in Cabell Huntington Hospital where she is listed in fair condition.

Kenneth Messer's brother, 39-year-old Paul D. Messer, also of Kermit, was treated at Williamson Memorial Hospital for a head wound and was released.

According to the West Virginia State Police, 70-year-old Birdie Muncy and his son, Crit, 35, both of Crum, surrendered to officers at the Wayne County Jail shortly after the shooting, which reportedly occurred after an argument over the ownership of a mobile home reportedly valued at $700.

Mistrial for Stevens

Circuit Judge Stephen "Nick" Frazier declared a mistrial in the trial of 19-year-old John Michael Stevens, charged with attempted murder in the shooting of Delmer Fletcher January 10, 1998 at Fletcher's home on Big Elk.

Fletcher and his wife had returned home late in the evening from a shopping trip the day of the shooting and discovered lights were on. When he went into his home to investigate, he was shot by a high-powered rifle.

"The case will not proceed forward at this point," Frazier said. "...One of the jurors believed one of the witnesses may have followed a juror yesterday..."

Louisa council agrees to enhanced 911 pact

The dispute between Louisa and Lawrence County officials over the makeup of a board to oversee operation of the proposed enhanced 911 system appears to be over, with the Louisa City Council approving a pact that gives the city a bigger voice in the management of the system.

Council, during a special meeting October 15, agreed to the proposal, which establishes a joint E-911 Board that includes representatives from the county, the city of Louisa and the city of Blaine. — The Big Sandy News

Judgment Day next week for Blaine

To be a city or not to be a city. That's the question Blaine voters will face when they go to the polls next Tuesday to cast ballots in the general election. They will decide whether to dissolve the city's 22-year-old charter or whether the city can continue its business as usual.

The vote comes after a rough and often controversial year for the Lawrence County community. Among developments over the last year:

Middle school Cougars earn conference championship

RECC, local union discuss layoffs

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the layoff of seven Licking Valley RECC employees Monday may be related to what the local union's members suspect could be an attempt to break the union, according to Brent Gray of Local 317.

After nine months of negotiations between the I.B.E.W. and the RECC, the two sides have yet to reach a contract agreement, and according to Gray, local I.B.E.W. members have voted unanimously to authorize a strike against the co-op if a contract can't be reached by any other means.

Hall of Fame ceremony brings tears and smiles

Friends and families of this year's Hall of Fame inductees gathered last Saturday at Hindman Elementary to remember and honor six people who gave unselfishly to improve life in Knott County.

Those honored included Janice Thacker Grigsby, with Thacker-Grigsby Telephone Company; the late Foster "Tubby" Calhoun, former basketball coach and Knott County Judge-Executive; the late John Everage, Knott County coroner and founder of the Everage-Watts Funeral Home; the late Billy Miller Smith, former president and chairman of the Bank of Hindman; Homer Sawyer, owner of the Sawyer Furniture & Gun Shop and Sawyer's Convenient Market and former county judge-executive; and John Daniel Terry, owner of Hindman Funeral Services as well as numerous other businesses and president of Hindman City Council. — Troublesome Creek Times

Political figure "Cuch" Chaffins dead at age 64

One of the most colorful politicians and former office holders in Knott County's history died last week. Hilton "Cuch" Chaffins, 64, of Leburn, died from a heart attack at an area medical facility on Tuesday, October 26.

Knott County voters elected Cuch to a four-year term as sheriff in 1985, but he was later defeated by independent Jimmy Amburgey. He was primary coordinator of Wallace Wilkinson's successful gubernatorial campaign in 1987 and served as Gov. Wilkinson's patronage person in Knott County. — Troublesome Creek Times

Hourly workers appear to be close to petition

One day before registered nurses at Pikeville Methodist Hospital will get their first opportunity to vote to possibly sever their collective bargaining ties with the United Steelworkers, steps apparently have begun to bring about a similar election for the facility's 550 hourly workers.

PMH spokesman Danny Briscoe said a hospital employee in the technical/non-professional bargaining unit faxed to the National Labor Relations Board late Tuesday afternoon a list bearing the signatures of at least 30 percent of that group.

The NLRB stipulates that at least 30 percent of a bargaining unit sign a petition for decertification before it can be used to call for a decertification election. In that election, a collective bargaining agent can be decertified if a majority of a bargaining unit votes in favor of such a break. — Appalachian News-Express

Woman says she was attacked at hospital

A Belfry woman has filed a lawsuit against Appalachian Regional Healthcare, claiming several employees at its South Williamson campus physically assaulted her in an effort to keep her from checking herself out of the hospital.

Pikeville attorney Larry Webster filed the suit Monday in Pike Circuit Court on behalf of his client, Barbara McCoy.

McCoy alleges that on or about September 11, she was admitted to the South Williamson hospital after being diagnosed with pneumonia.

McCoy further contends she made the decision to go home shortly thereafter, believing she could recover at her house as easily as she could in the hospital.

While in the process of leaving the premises, McCoy alleges, approximately seven staff members grabbed and threw her to the floor in an attempt to keep her from leaving. — Appalachian News-Express

Pikeville might need two downtown parking garages

The impending openings of a new technical school and new civic center in downtown Pikeville will cause already scarce parking spaces to become nonexistent, making the construction of not just one, but two, parking garages a necessity.

That is the conclusion of a preliminary assessment of parking and traffic prepared for the Pikeville City Commission and presented during a public hearing Monday afternoon. — Appalachian News-Express

Store owner says he'll "build it back"

The first time Girdlen Joseph visited the Howard Hotel, her new husband Callie vowed he would buy it for her some day.

That was 1941, and the Josephs had just spent their honeymoon in the posh downtown Paintsville hotel. Twenty-eight years later, Callie Joseph lived up to his promise, buying the building and moving his furniture and appliance business in, filling up most of the former hotel's rooms with furniture.

On October 21, fire raged through the three-story structure, rendering it to a pile of rubble. But that's not the end of Girdlen Joseph's love affair.

"I'm gonna build it back," she vowed Tuesday. — The Paintsville Herald

Investigators say fire cause was accidental

After four days of intensive investigation, authorities have determined that the October 21 fire that destroyed Paintsville's Maggard and Joseph building was an accident.

Following a final briefing Tuesday night, special agent Don York, with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) announced the investigative team's findings.

The fire was caused "by wire insulation failure in a florescent light fixture" on the three-story building's first floor, in an area used to store and display linoleum products.

Paintsville Fire Chief Bob Dixon breathed a sigh of relief, saying his "mind is eased" that arson was not the cause.

"This would indicate we do not have a fire bug on the loose," Dixon noted, in reference to an August 8 fire that leveled the Hotel Herald building just a block away.

That fire, also investigated by the ATF's National Response Team, was intentionally set, investigators determined, and the search for the arsonist continues. — The Paintsville Herald

Make this Halloween a safe one for children

Costumes and candy may be on the minds of most children during this Halloween season. But parents should be making plans for another top priority: safety.

If children follow some simple safety tips while roaming through their neighborhoods in search of candy, they will have a fun and safe evening.

"Halloween can be scary in more than the traditional sense. For kids, Halloween is one of the most dangerous nights of the year due to the variety of injuries that occur," said Darlene Goodrich, coordinator of the Kentucky SAFE KIDS Coalition in the Department for Public Health.

"Most parents worry about candy tampering. They're not aware that pedestrian injuries, burns and falls account for the majority of injuries on Halloween."

The first safety rule is adult supervision, especially for young children, Goodrich said. If an older child wants to go without an adult, then that child should go with a group for protection, she said.

"Many of the risks they face can be avoided if parents address a few simple safety tips and take a moment to talk to their children about safety before they go out trick-or-treating," Goodrich said.

The following suggestions will help children have a safe Halloween.

To prevent falls:

- Apply face paint or cosmetics directly to the face. A loose-fitting mask can obstruct a child's vision. If a mask is worn, make sure it fits securely and the eye holes are large enough for good vision.
- Give trick-or-treaters flash-lights.

- Make costumes short enough to avoid tripping.
- Secure hats so they will not slip over a child's eyes.

- Dress children in shoes that fit. Adult shoes used for costumes are not safe for trick-or-treating.
- Allow children to carry only flexible knives, swords or other props. Anything they carry could injure them if they fall.

- Teach children to stay on sidewalks instead of cutting across yards. Lawn ornaments, tree branches and clotheslines are hidden hazards in the dark.
- To avoid injuries involving motor vehicles, follow these tips:

- Decorate costumes, bags and sacks with reflective tape.
- Use Halloween costumes that are light or bright enough to make them more visible at night.
- Tell children to walk, not run, while trick-or-treating.

- Remind children to stop at corners, look left, right and crossing the street, and never dart from between parked cars.

Motorists should be particularly alert on trick-or-treat night and follow these safety tips:

- Slow down in residential neighborhoods.
- Watch for children walking in the street or on medians and curbs.
- Obey all traffic signs and signals.
- Enter and exit driveways and alleyways carefully.
- Avoid costumes made out of flimsy material and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts because they are most likely to come in contact with an exposed flame.

These general rules can prevent a scary experience:

- Tell children not to eat treats before they are checked at home for tampering. Check each piece for puncture holes in wrappers or candy that has been unwrapped and repackaged. Adults should try to notice treats given at each home in case there is a question later.

Suspect items should be reported to the police. Discard homemade treats. Fruits should be inspected closely for punctures and cut open before a child eats it.

Some communities provide free x-rays of trick-or-treat items.

- Teach your child his or her phone number
- Instruct older children to travel only in familiar areas and along an established route.
- Set a timer for older children to return home.
- Instruct children never to enter a home or an apartment building unless accompanied by their supervising adult.
- Restrict their trick-or-treating visits to homes with porch or outside lights illuminated.
- Adults should remove breakable items or obstacles such as tools, ladders, and children's toys from their lawns, steps and porches.

Goodrich said some parents may want to consider some safe alternatives to door-to-door trick-or-treating. Parents can host a Halloween party, take children only to homes where they know the residents or go to the malls where the stores have trick-or-treating.

Tricks to a safe Halloween

Little ghosts, ghouls and goblins trick-or-treating this Halloween night will not be able to tell the difference between a moving car and a stopped car, warns the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation.

AAA advises that when you see children by the side of the road don't expect them to act like small adults.

Because children are still developing physically and mentally they can't judge speed and distance. They may recognize a car moving slowly, and then dart in front of what turned out to be a faster moving car.

"Children often cover their eyes thinking no one will see them," said Lilla Mason, director of the Safety Foundation. "In a similar fashion, children in traffic make the assumption that if they see a car the car sees them."

Lacking a highly developed sense of danger, they think a car can stop just as quickly as a person can.

This Halloween, AAA is urging drivers to expect the unexpected from young trick-or-treaters walking near city streets. Kids will be consumed with the excitement of Halloween, and won't be thinking about traffic.

AAA recommends the following tips for motorists:

- Buy your candy early, and stay home during trick-or-treating hours this weekend.
- If you must drive, slow down 5 miles per hour below the posted speed limit.
- Turn your headlights on at least one hour before dusk.
- Scan low between parked cars for signs of children who may be ready to dart across the street.
- Take extra caution when backing in and out of driveways.

The Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation is a non-profit charitable organization founded by AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky to promote traffic safety in 48 counties in central and eastern Kentucky.

Shuford deploys to Japan

Navy Airman Antonio K. Shuford, a 1998 graduate of Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center of Prestonsburg, is one of more than 370,000 active duty sailors celebrating the Navy's 224th birthday this month. Shuford is currently forward deployed to Yokosuka, Japan, aboard the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk.

The Navy was created by the Continental Congress on October 13, 1775, after George Washington appealed for its formation. Since then, the Navy has been involved in all our nation's conflicts, from the Revolutionary War to Desert Storm, and sailors continue to serve the nation today, on ships and at bases around the world.

Every October 13, Sailors mark the date as a time for ceremony and reflect on the deeds of the men and women who previously served and have given today's sailors their legacy of honor, courage and commitment.

Carriers like the USS Kitty Hawk are forward deployed around the world to maintain a U.S. presence and provide rapid response in times of crisis. They serve as a highly visible deterrent to would-be aggressors and, if deterrence fails, offer the most versatile and powerful weapons available, including NATO Sea Sparrow missiles and tactical aircraft.

He joined the Navy in October 1998.

Little riddles basket for 22

Adams rolls past Warfield 52-37

by Ed Taylor
 Sports Editor

Megan Little went zero for four from the free throw line when the Adams Middle School Lady Blackcats hosted visiting Warfield Wednesday night, but she seldom missed from the floor in tossing in 22 points and leading the Lady Blackcats to a 52-37 win over Warfield.

With the win, Adams improved to 7-3 on the season, winning their third consecutive game. The Lady Blackcats hold second place in the Middle School Conference. Adams will host the Middle School Conference tournament next week.

Two other Lady Blackcats scored in double figures for Adams. Heather White and Tabitha Caudill finished with 10 points each. Molly Burchett just missed double figures with nine points. Amber McKinney added two points.

Megan Stanley led Warfield with her 10 points.

Adams owned a 14-10 lead after the first quarter, behind the scoring of Little. Little had six points in the first period, while Caudill netted four. Both White and Burchett scored two points. Stanley had six first quarter points for Warfield.

Adams outscored Warfield 11-6 in the second quarter to take a 25-16 lead at the half. Burchett hit three of four free throws in scoring five points in the second stanza. Little had four points.

It was in the third quarter that Little and White took charge in a 21-4 run that put the game away. Little scored 10 points in the period and White had five. White hit the game's only three-point basket in the third period. Caudill had four third quarter points.

Leading 46-20 entering the fourth quarter, Adams had to stave off a late charge by Warfield as they were outscored 17-6 in the final period.

"B" TEAM

The Adams "B" team pulled out a 26-14 win over Warfield for their sixth win of the year. Molly Burchett led the Lady Blackcats with 10 points. Megan Harris added five and Amber McKinney scored four. Michelle Lackey and Savannah Campbell tossed in two points each.

Both teams picked a quarter where they failed to score. Warfield went scoreless in the first period, and Adams choose the fourth quarter not to score.

NOTES:

• Pairings for next week's Middle School tournament was not available at press time. The tournament will include all teams that make up the Middle School Conference.

• After the conference tournament, Adams will prepare to compete in the Floyd County basketball conference.

• Coach Jennifer West has her team running the court well and has to be considered one of the top teams in the Floyd County Conference.

• The Lady Blackcats are mixing their defenses well, and it is working well for them.

A Look At Sports

Sports Time

"Tis the season to be jolly!"

Could this be the season for former Paintsville star Todd Tackett to be jolly?

With the start of the 1999-2000 college basketball season just a few days away, Tackett is probably in the best position of the returning guards to see a lot of playing time this year.

Tackett, who once thought about transferring, returns to a ballclub that is shorthanded, and that is good if you are Todd. Even Tubby Smith has said that Todd is looking good in practices and will see as much playing time as any of the other players.

Tackett, dumping the idea of leaving UK, has worked hard through the summer months and heeded advice given to him from former Wildcat Richie Farmer. Farmer encouraged Tackett to stay at UK.

The Cats play their annual blue/white scrimmage this Saturday night and will face the California All-Stars on Tuesday, November 2.

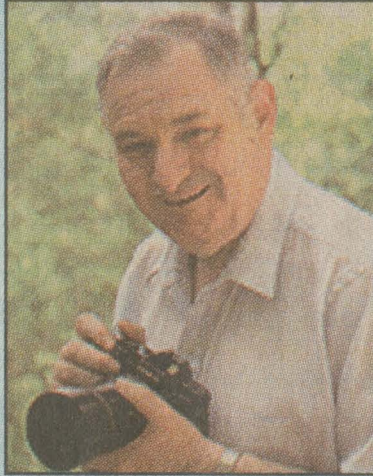

The Kentucky football Wildcats will have this weekend off before traveling to Mississippi State for a big SEC game. The Bulldogs are ranked eighth in the nation and looks like the Cats will have their work cut out for them again.

The loss to Georgia last weekend has dampened the enthusiasm the Cats were feeling after winning three SEC games in a row.

The last three games will not be easy ones, including the trip to Nashville to face Vanderbilt. The 'dores are for real this season.

Add Ramanda Music to the Prestonsburg Lady Cats basketball team and you just about want to pencil them in as 15th Regional champions.

However, we are not that quick to do so. But Bobby Hamilton will have a loaded lineup when the season tips off for real. Experience, talent, and the inside game will be hard for the opposition to handle this time around.

Music will give the Lady Blackcats so much more on the boards, where they were beaten last year. Music's ability to score inside will help loosen things for Amelia Conley in the paint area.

I think I would like to coach this team. I wonder if they would let me coach a quarter of a practice game. What a team at Prestonsburg.

Megan Hyden, Angela Howell, Brooke Coleman, Brandi Wells, Stephanie Adams, Ashley Ousley and a cast of good young players will make up this team and they will have to be ranked in the top three in the 15th Region.

I have nothing but raves over the way Megan has looked this season. She is going to be one of the top region players this year and for the next two seasons. I really like the way she handles herself on the hardwood.

I took in an Allen Central practice at Duff Elementary (the Allen Central gym floor is getting a new coat), and the Lady Rebels will be a team to contend with this season.

Returning will be Natalie Cooley, Shanna Howell and, hopefully Jessica Martin. Add a player like Jennifer Risner, Shannon Sizemore, and Barb Prater and you have a solid group. Kari Osborne will add depth to the club.

The surprise team of the 58th District could very well be the South Floyd Lady Raiders. New coach Paul Cline will bring in a team of experience. It will be different without seeing Misty Berger, Olivia Stewart, Brook Hamilton and Shawna Hall on the floor, but Cline will return Margaret Morgan, Martha Crawford, Lindsey Hall, Monica McKinney and Angie Tackett — a Beware of the Cats!

The Betsy Layne Lady Cats is a team to watch out for. I like the make of this team: Jenny Parsons, Heather Hamilton, Leslie Hamilton, Sheena Akers, Devon Reynolds, and the list goes on and on.

When you watch these teams practice, and you see all the talent on the court, there is only one conclusion you can draw — every game in the district is going to be war. There will not be many cake-walks this year.

Amber Roberts will be the key to this year's team. I mean it. She can shoot the treys. If Amber has a good year, then the Lady Cats will bear watching. This is going to be a really good team and could very

Lady Bobcats to get new softball field

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Maybe there is hope for athletics in Floyd County after all. The Floyd County Board of Education approved a plan to build the Betsy Layne Lady Cats softball team a diamond to play on, according to assistant coach Missy Collins.

"Mike (Jarrell) said they could build one behind the school," said Collins. "Mr. (Woodrow) Carter said it would be ready by the time we play our first game."

The new diamond will be situated behind the high school on a landing the football team used to practice on. Fill dirt will be hauled in to extend the size of the landing to the parking lot pavement.

"It will be 175-feet down the line and 180-feet to centerfield," said Collins. "The lines could be a little deeper when the fill dirt is in place."

If the project becomes a reality,

Betsy Layne will be the only school in the county with its own facilities. None of the other three high schools actually have such a facility on school property.

According to Collins, the board of education is to furnish fencing, backstop, dugouts, bleachers, sod the infield with grass and lights.

"The site has been staked out already," said a jubilant Collins. "We have to furnish our own concession stands, so we need some help there."

Collins said that the softball team is ready to take donations of either money or materials to build the concession stand.

"The football team will still be able to use it when fall practice begins," said Collins. "We are wanting to make the concession stand a joint venture."

Anyone wishing to help with the project with donations should contact Missy Collins at Betsy Layne

High School.

The Lady Bobcats have played their home games at the Allen Park Little League field, but had to abandon the park when Little League season began in April.

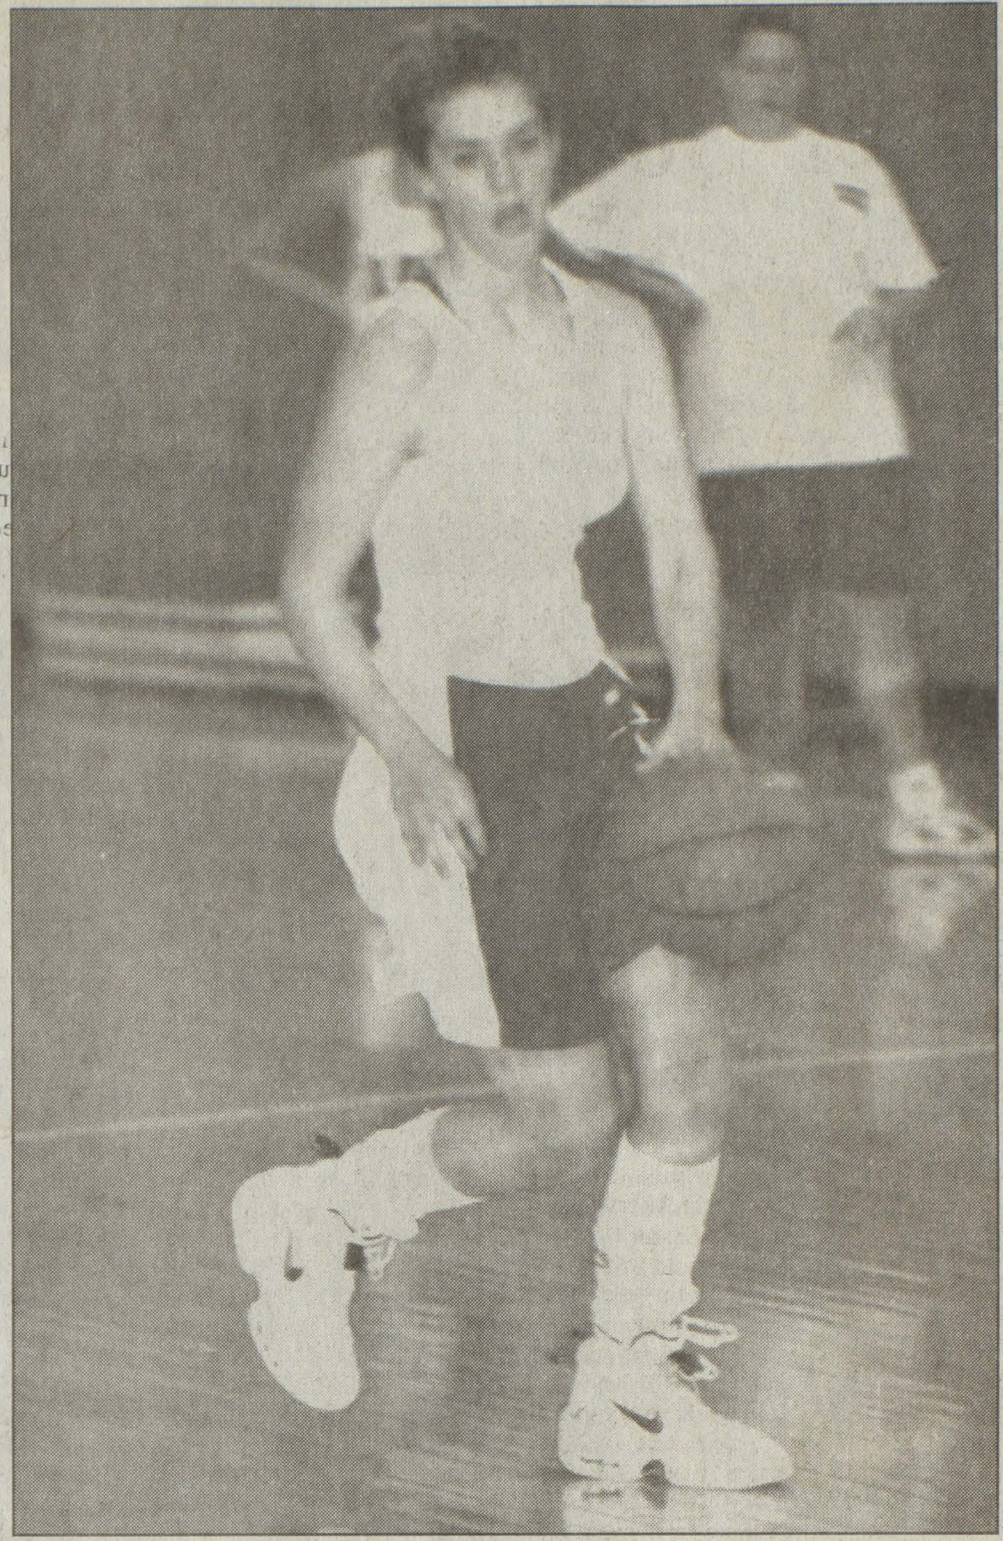

The club had to haul their equipment to the park and back to the school with either a practice or game. Concession workers also carried items back and forward.

The new field will allow the Lady Cats to play "real home games," Collins said.

Construction is scheduled to begin soon.

"They have to move one of the trailers that is sitting in the line of the field," said Collins. "After they move that, then they will haul dirt in instead of taking it off the back hill."

Home plate will be where the dumpster sits now, and the outfield will be to the side of the hill. Bleachers will be situated on the hillside.

Another South Floyd, Elkhorn City showdown

Fourth seed at stake as Cougars visit Brackett

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

You know you are near the state football playoffs because it is the last of October.

You know at stake is the fourth seed in Region 4, District 8 seeding for the upcoming state playoffs because South Floyd and Elkhorn City are playing each other tonight at Brackett Field in Wheelwright.

It seems every year, when the two teams collide, the fourth seed is at stake in the playoffs.

It will be no different this year when the Cougars visit in hopes of securing their second district win of the season. A victory over the Raiders would create a three-way tie for the fourth seed between the Raiders, Elkhorn City and Fleming-Neon.

However, on the tie-breaking system, the berth would go to South Floyd. Coach Donnie Daniels explained it this way.

"The teams that are tied can claim four wins, but they have to be teams they had beaten out of their district," said Daniels. "They cannot be games where they have beaten each other."

Fleming-Neon and Elkhorn City can only claim Cumberland, a team they both have beaten, and the only outside of the district win for either club.

"We can claim Betsy Layne, Everts, Jenkins and Allen Central," said the South Floyd coach.

Coach Daniels said his club will have to pay attention to Jonathan Belcher (5'9", 142) out of the Cougars' backfield.

"He's a good back," said Daniels.

"He runs hard, doesn't have great speed but he has power."

"Elkhorn is a young team this year. I think Coach (Randall) Akers has done a good job getting them where they are this year. He has done an excellent job with them."

Receiving the fourth seed will not mean the first round of the playoffs will be an easy one. Whoever gets the berth will have to face top-seeded Harlan, Region 4, District 7, in a first round game.

South Floyd brings a 5-4 record into tonight's game and is 2-3 in the district. The Cougars are 3-6 and 1-4 in the district.

Elkhorn City is under the guidance of Randall Akers, but he is not new to the program as a head coach. He coached the Cougars in the mid-80s then worked as an assistant.

The ground game will be headed by halfback Mike Epling and fullback Jonathan Belcher, both seniors. The quarterback slot will be filled by junior Adam Ratliff.

South Floyd has a solid backfield in B.J. Bryant, Matt Tackett, Joe Platkus and Josh McCray. Charlie Williams appears to be completely healed of an injury that kept him out of the first four weeks of the season. Williams will be behind center for the Raiders.

Taking care of the football will be the priority for both teams as much will be on the line. Both Bryant and Tackett have had great seasons through the first nine weeks, but they know what is at stake here.

Williams has one of the top receivers in the area out in the flanks or deep in Kyle Tackett. Tackett has had an exceptional season catching the football.

Jarod Johnson is another who has given a boost to the receiving corps.

Daniels pronounced his team ready and injury free.

"We have just some nicks and bruises but no one will miss the game," he said. "B.J., Matt and Joe are a little banged up, but they are all right. All three of them are getting better as the season goes on. They are getting better and stronger."

Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Pigskin Report

Key regional games to close out regular season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Only one more Friday night remains in the 1999 football season, and some key games will be played this Friday night locally.

Perhaps the biggest game on tap will be the Belfry Pirates traveling to unbeaten Shelby Valley with the number one spot in the district at stake.

Both teams are play-off bound but that one seed gets you your first two play-off games at home. Both teams are 4-0 in district play. Shelby Valley is perfect through the first nine games at 9-0, while overall Belfry is 6-3.

Belfry has never been a throwing ballclub, but with a quarterback such as talented quarterback Jonathan Wright, it's sure to become one. Coach Phillip Haywood has always been a run-at-you ballclub, but that coaching philosophy has changed.

Just the opposite, Shelby Valley rarely throws the football and why should they when they have the number one rusher in the state in Dusty Hall? Hall is averaging nearly 190 yards per game. But there is more to the Wildcat attack. Take Casey Newsome and you have strength plus quickness and that is a rare combination these days.

Both teams have their work cut out for them. The Pirates must stop the ground attack of the Wildcats and the secondary for Shelby Valley will have to guard against the pass. The Wildcats' pass defense is not that talented.

PIKE CENTRAL AT WHITESBURG

This is a story of two struggling programs, but in this day and time, even a struggling football team can still get into the state playoffs.

In Region 4, District 8, four teams will make the coveted trip to the state playoffs and three of those spots have been filled. Shelby Valley, Belfry and Prestonsburg are all ready and dressed for the big dance. Only one spot remains and that is number four. That will be decided tonight when the Pike Central Hawks travel to Whitesburg to meet on the gridiron in a showdown with the winner getting the last berth.

I know that all that is not important to a lot of football fans, but to two teams who would like to extend their season one more weekend after tonight, it is very important.

Both teams have identical records of 1-3 in the district, but the game is played on the Yellowjackets home field. The Hawks, they will be focused as they would like to make two straight years of playing in the playoffs.

PAINTSVILLE AT PIKEVILLE

Up in Pike County, the battle will rage as Paintsville tries to tie the best record in Region 4, District 8. The Pikeville Panthers, winners of eight straight since losing their season opener, will entertain the 4-1 Tigers. Pikeville has a 5-0 mark. A Pikeville loss and a Hazard win would throw the race into a three-way tie between Pikeville, Paintsville and Hazard. If the Tigers lose, they would drop to third place with a Hazard win.

Now, if all three teams come out with identical records, each team can count four teams they beat but they have to be teams outside of their district. They cannot count teams they beat in the district.

It will be a big week of football as the count down to the state playoffs begins in two weeks. See you around the gridiron!

Betsy Layne rings down curtain tonight on '99 season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Here we are pulling for a Betsy Layne victory tonight.

Before the '99 season ends for the Bobcats we would love to see them get that one win before it all ends.

And it all comes to a close tonight when the Bobcats travel to Fairview to bring the curtain down on the season and it hasn't been a good one.

Coach Ted George's ballclub is currently 0-9 on the year looking for the elusive win when they visit Fairview.

Fairview, who reentered district competition this year after sitting out the past two seasons, is currently 3-6 overall and 1-4 in their district.

But that doesn't matter as it is not a district game for either club. Betsy Layne just hasn't had the defense they hoped for when the season began.

The Betsy Layne program has hit on hard times the past two seasons finishing 2-8 last year and winless this season.

As Betsy Layne drops the football curtain for the final time in this millennium, there has to be some deep thought on where the program goes from here.

They have a very capable coach in Coach George. This year the feeder system looks to be stronger and perhaps needed help is on the way for the Bobcats. Whether the team continues to compete in the district or not, remains to be seen when the 2000 season rolls around.

Curtain rings down on Prestonsburg's regular season

Blackcats visit Harrison County tonight

To say the 1999 high school football season has been a very disappointing one for Blackcat fans would be a big, big understatement.

Prestonsburg, one of the state's consistent teams in bygone years, will travel to Harrison County tonight to close out their regular season against the always-tough Thoroughbreds.

Harrison County sports a 6-3 record this season and is 5-1 in Class AAA, Region 3, District 6. Prestonsburg is just opposite in the overall records. The Cats are 3-6 on the season but posted a 3-2 mark in district games — those that really count.

Prestonsburg is coming off a 20-14 setback at the hands of the unbeaten Shelby Valley Wildcats, a game Prestonsburg their chances to win.

The Blackcat defense was outstanding at times against Shelby Valley, and the Wildcats had to earn everything they got. Hopefully, the impressive outing against the district's leading team will be a confidence builder for Prestonsburg as they head to Harrison County.

Prestonsburg is playoff bound and will face the Breathitt County Bobcats in a first-round state play-off game at Breathitt County. The Bobcats are 8-1 entering the final week of the regular season and suffered a 42-41 setback to Middlesboro last Friday night.

The problem for this young Prestonsburg team, only seven seniors, has been putting points on the boards, as well as not being able to sustain long drives.

UK bound fullback Jeremy Caudill has had the ball in hand more often of late and he will have to charge up the backfield for Prestonsburg against a very strong Breathitt County defense. Caudill could find some help from Matt Slone, who was impressive against Shelby Valley.

Slone has the speed and power up the gut of the defense. Hank Mullins, a senior, has been hampered by an injury and how much running of the ball he does remains to be seen. Of course, senior back Seth Crisp has been the feature back for the Cats this season and will run the ball the higher percentage of the time.

It has been a growing-up season for sophomore quarterback Austin Clark. Clark has shown steady improvement all season, after getting behind center after the second week of the season.

Chris Spriggs, Kevin Younce, Dustin Music, Tony White and Kevin Woods will get a testing from Harrison County's running game. The Thoroughbreds will live up to their school name.

A win at Harrison County would give the Cats some momentum as they enter the playoffs in two weeks. Despite the dismal finish, Prestonsburg is play-off bound, while other schools are packing it in for the season.

A LOOK AHEAD...

Probably the best group of freshmen the Cats have had for several years dot the Prestonsburg roster this year, and gives Blackcat fans something to look forward to in the years ahead. Coach John Derossett's frosh squad has had a banner season with big wins over Belfry and Lawrence County, two perennial powers in the region.

You have to like the future of this program, and they have the right coach in place to guide them through.

The Dodge comeback

Hardly a year passes in the Winston Cup series that at some point rumors begin to circulate that Dodge is going to be making a comeback in the series.

This year saw the same rumors begin to circulate, but this time the rumors were being traced back to sources close enough to the Mopar organization that they couldn't just be dismissed as the usual offerings from the Winston Cup rumor mill.

Last week Louis Patane, vice president for motorsports operations with the Daimler Chrysler Corporation said that not only was Dodge going to be getting back into Winston Cup competition, but they were getting in it to win races.

Daimler Chrysler will give a level of factory support to the new teams using the Dodge Intrepid that will be a throwback to the 1960s when Dodge was winning races with drivers like Richard Petty and David Peterson.

Word of Dodge's return to Winston Cup actually broke when Ray Everham split with Jeff Gordon and Hendrick Motorsports. Everham had said all season that he wouldn't be back as Gordon's crew chief for the 2000 season, but everyone, including Everham, thought that he would just move up the management ladder in the Hendrick organization.

This is where Daimler Chrysler stepped in with the proposal to Everham that would make him the owner of two teams that would compete in the 2001 season with the Dodge Intrepid. You might say that they brought an offer to the table that Everham just couldn't turn down because it was complete with a sponsorship package.

One of Everham's cars will be sponsored by Daimler Chrysler's Dodge Division, while the other team will be sponsored by Dodge dealerships. While the official name of Everham's organization will be Everham Motorsports, ever car and piece of equipment that the race fan will lay eyes on will be stenciled with Everham Dodge reflecting the strong commitment from the automaker.

Earlier in the year Dodge officials started making visits to the race tracks and actually began interacting with your everyday race fan to see just how the public perceived Winston Cup racing and if competing in the series would be a viable avenue to advertise their automobiles. Every track they visited, the overwhelming view that they got from the fans continued to point them in the direction of getting back into the sport.

With Winston Cup being the most competitive series, Dodge officials met with NASCAR's Chief Operating Officer, Mike Helton, to ask him if he felt that they would return to the series and be competitive. "We don't know," was his reply. He did promise them that NASCAR would create an aerodynamic package and horsepower package that would give them the capability to be competitive.

This is where Dodge may actually have somewhat of an advantage over the other manufacturers when trying to get their car sanctioned. Dodge wants to compete with its Intrepid because it is the make of car that competes with Ford's Taurus, Pontiacs Grand Prix and Chevrolet's Monte Carlo on the dealers lots.

The Intrepid becomes the second four-door car submitted to NASCAR for approval. Ford had to go through the process of getting their four-door Taurus sanctioned after production of Ford's Thunderbird came to an end. Ford and NASCAR spent much of that time giving and taking before the final model was approved to go racing.

Dodge can now look back on the process that Ford has already gone through and try to learn some of the things that NASCAR was looking for before submitting a model for sanctioning. Dodge also has more time than what Ford had as Everham has already said that he doesn't plan to enter any races with the Intrepid in the 2000 season, but would like to have the model ok'ed for testing next summer.

At the present time, Everham is not trying to hire drivers; instead, he is concentrating on the people that need to build a strong foundation for the future: engineers, engine builders, and department heads. With the right people on board and strong support from Dodge, the drivers will no doubt be knocking on Ray's door looking for the opportunity to drive one of the new Intrepids in 2001.

Sports In Perspective

by Denis Harrington

The generation gap between the old guard of the National Football League, the men who made pro football a national passion, and the young men of the modern era, the multi-million dollar recipients of this legacy, is broad indeed.

But on this occasion the distance which separated them amounted to no more than a few feet. Hall of Famers Paul Hornung, the all-purpose back who paced the perennial NFL champion Green Bay Packers of the 1960s, and Deacon Jones, a standout defensive end with the Los Angeles Rams of the same era, exchanged views and experiences with Tim Brown, a fleet-footed Oakland Raiders wideout, and Michael Strahan, the New York Giants premier defensive wingman.

"If you guys play it right you can be financially secure the rest of your life," Hornung noted. "Not bad, not bad at all."

"That's true," Brown replied. "But that wasn't the case in your time, I suspect."

"Let me tell you how it was," Jones interjected. "During the off season I made a lot of personal appearances at local schools, booster clubs, department stores, anyplace I could draw a crowd. I usually got just $25 or so for these gigs. I needed every dollar I could get because football wasn't making a living for me."

"You had to have a second job, something that you could fall back on for the future," Hornung added. "The money just wasn't there."

"And you really had to worry about getting injured, seriously injured," Jones said. "If you weren't able to play, you didn't get paid."

"What's the deal now?" Hornung inquired.

"Once you are on the active roster and you get injured, even a season ending injury," Brown said, "your salary for the year is guaranteed."

Hornung chuckled, "You guys must have some kind of a players association," he said.

"Suppose you were offered big money to leave the Packers, even though they were league champions, would you have done it," Strahan asked.

Without hesitation Hornung responded, "Yeah, sure. If somebody offered me a ton of money to play elsewhere, I'd taken it. You've got to go where the money is, make it while you can."

"But being together like we were," Jones said, "year after year, we developed a special relationship both on and off the field. The men who played beside you were not only your teammates, they were your friends."

"That must have been really something," Strahan said. "Now, the guys I play with just come, do their job and that's it. And they're changing from year to year. It's like grabbing a strap on the subway."

"Let's talk about team discipline," Hornung said. "I don't see a lot of that now."

Strahan shook his head. "Players talk back to the coaches, argue with them," he said. "I see it all the time."

Hornung laughed, "Something like that would never happen to Coach (Vince) Lombardi," he said.

"Nor to Chuck Noll or George Halas," Jones added. "You'd be gone clean out of football."

"What do you miss most about not playing any longer?" Brown questioned.

"The camaraderie," Hornung replied; "The Packers were truly close, we were just like a big family. And that bond still exists. We continue to keep in contact with one another, help one another."

Strahan smiled ruefully. "I'm really jealous about that kind of a relationship," he said. "There's nothing like it today. Not even close."

"It doesn't matter how much money you make," Jones said. "To be successful to be your best, you really have to love the game, to want to excel, just because that's what the game is all about."

"Every time I play," Strahan said, "I give it my best shot. A lot of guys don't feel that way. Only I don't want to look back on my career some day and know I didn't give it my best. And wonder if I had how a good a player I might have been. That would haunt me."

"The hits, the pain, you've got to want to do it," Brown said.

Hornung nodded. "Yeah, that will never change," he said. "No matter when you're playing."

Bobcats—

years will not be nothing new for the Bobcats. That happened in the second year of Coach John Derossett's reign. The Cats won games and had a winning season before Derossett left the school.

Maybe, just maybe, that is the route Betsy Layne should go again. It is hard to ask kids to go out night after night getting beaten time after time.

No one can fault this year's team for not trying and playing hard. They have done that each time out, I remember watching them in the early fall and I thought they would have a decent season.

Whatever route they take, district or non district next season, this thing is going to turn around some day.

Riverside Raceway...

Riverside Raceway closes gates says thanks to all fans

Go-kart racing ended last week-end with running at the Riverside Raceway track in Dwale. It had been an exciting year of racing at the local facility as they closed their gates for this season.

"We will be ready to reopen in the spring," said Henry Setser, track owner. "It has been a good year."

The track recently held an awards ceremony and gave out awards for points winners for the season. Go-kart racing is fastly growing into a popular sport in the area, with credit going to Setser and his crew.

"We had hope to have another race date this weekend, but we could not get set for it. So, we open next spring," said Setser.

IF VOTER NEEDS ASSISTANCE IN VOTING

A VOTER MAY HAVE ASSISTANCE IF:

1. Voter is blind
2. Voter is unable to read English
3. Voter has a physical disability which prevents the voter from voting without physical assistance.

WHO MAY ASSIST THE VOTER:

1. Both Election Judges; or
2. Person of voter's choice except:—not voter's employer or agent of that employer—not officer or agent of voter's union—not a candidate to be voted upon.

WHAT IS THE PROPER PROCEDURE?

1. Voter completes the "Voter Assistance Form" (SBE-31) completely including the reason assistance is needed, and signs name.
2. If any person other than the election judges assists the voter, that person must complete the portion of the form which is an OATH that the assistor will operate the machine as directed by the voter AND this Oath must be attested by the Clerk signing.
3. If the election judges assist the voter, the Democratic and Republican Judges must sign the OATH at the bottom, and the ELECTION JUDGES will enter the machine with the voter, and in the presence of each other, the machine is operated in accordance with the directions of the voter.
4. Election officers should list the name of each assisted voter in the "Record of Assisted Voters" (SBE-31A) form which should be returned with the election material as instructed.

VOTER MAY MAKE APPLICATION FOR PERMANENT ASSISTANCE TO VOTE

There is a portion of this form where the voter may request the Board of Elections to certify the voter as requiring permanent assistance due to blindness or other physical disability. If the Board approves the voter's request, voter will have permanent certification relieving the VOTER ONLY from the responsibility of completing the oath. Even if a voter is certified for permanent assistance, the assistor(s) must still complete and sign their portion of the Oath. Violations of the laws regarding Assistance to Vote should be reported to the Board of Elections immediately and noted on the "Precinct Election Sheriff's Post Election Report" (SBE-53)

ELECTIONEERING

Electioneering is PROHIBITED WITHIN 500 FEET* of entrance to a building in which a voting machine is used if that entrance is unlocked and is used by voters on election day. Electioneering is defined in the law as: display of signs; distribution of campaign literature, cards or handbills; solicitation of votes for or against any candidate or person on the ballot in any manner; solicitation of signatures to any petition. PRECINCT SHERIFF has the responsibility of ENFORCING the ELECTIONEERING LAWS within 50 FEET OF THE ENTRANCES. VIOLATIONS OF ELECTIONEERING BETWEEN 50 AND 500 FEET SHOULD BE reported to the Board of Elections IMMEDIATELY.

The Precinct Sheriff may request the assistance of any law enforcement officer to maintain law and order at the polls, but it is strongly suggested that Precinct Sheriff make that request through the Board of Elections. (County Board of Elections phone number 886-3816 or 1-800-481-2009)

Any violations of the electioneering laws should be entered on the "Precinct Sheriff's Post Election Report" (SBE-53)

*The 500 foot prohibition does not apply to electioneering conducted within a private residence or establishment by persons having an ownership interest in such property UNLESS THAT PROPERTY IS THE POLLING PLACE.

'A' Tour launched

The "A" Tour is coming to the MAC in November.

Dove Award winning recording artists Avalon (Sparrow) and Anointed (Myrrh) are co-headlining a 35-city "A" Tour that includes a stop at the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg on November 14.

The tour will be the first concert tour for the two groups since the release of their new recordings — "In a Different Light" by Avalon and "Anointed" by Anointed.

Anointed's four records have earned the group widespread critical acclaim and their live performances are winning audiences across wide new territory as the group crosses the genre boundaries between gospel, R&B and

pop. The group has received two Grammy nominations, four Dove Awards, and two Stellar Awards, as well as a Dove Award nomination for "Group of the Year."

In 1998, Avalon was awarded the Dove award for New Artist of the Year by the Gospel Music Association, and also received Dove Awards in 1999 for Pop Recorded Song of the Year and Inspirational Song of the Year.

As Avalon's sound continues to evolve, the harmonies are more layered and multi-dimensional. With high-energy pop songs, beautifully emotive ballads and stirring, crescendoing anthems, Avalon delivers a vocal punch that entertains, encourages and inspires a multi-faceted audience. Opening for the tour is Sparrow recording artist Nicole Nordeman, who toured with Avalon on their 1998 Christmas Celebration Tour. Sparrow's debut, "Wide Eyed," has already seen its first two singles hit number one on the radio charts. The songwriter earned a nomination for New Artist of the Year and performed at the 1999 Dove Awards Telecast.

World Vision, Parable Bookstores and Crosswalk.com are sponsors of the "A" Tour.

The "A" Tour at the MAC begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $20 or $18 each for groups of 15 or more. For more information, or to reserve tickets, call 886-2623 or 888-mac-arts (622-2787).

'Storytelling at the river' set for Shaker landing

Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill announces "Storytelling at the River" to be held on October 29-30, at 7:30 p.m.

Gather around a blazing bonfire at Shaker Landing on the Kentucky River. Storytellers Niki Shields of Martinsville, Indiana, and Marian Bauer of Harrodsburg will delight young and old alike as the ancient art of storytelling comes alive. Tall tales, ghost stories and fascinating fables will entertain and delight all who attend.

Shields is a middle school reading teacher who lives with her husband, children, and animals on Misty Meadow Farm in Martinsville. She began telling stories to her students to raise their level of interest in reading.

Her favorite stories come from the Midwest, Appalachia, and the British Isles. She also writes stories and relates stories taken from her family.

Bauer is the host of Bauer Haus Bed and Breakfast. She began storytelling as an elementary and reading teacher, using stories and literature to bring good books and history alive to her students. Colonial storytelling became a part of her repertoire in 1992.

Admission is $2 per person and can be purchased at Shaker Landing. For more information, call 1-800-734-5611.

SMILE AWHILE...

The honeymoon, Part III: Five coins in the foundation

If you've been following our story so far, you know that due to "Hurricane Floyd" we arrived in Rome one day late and without my luggage (i.e., underwear, make-up, hair-dryer, curling iron, clothes, etc.).

So it was with great reluctance that we said "arrividerci" to the familiar surroundings of the airport and headed off into the unfamiliar and scary territory of Italy with nothing but my purse and the clothes on my back.

"How much money do we have?" I asked.

"It's lira, Sara. And, I don't know how much we have," Ronnie replied. "But I'd like to find out, too, because I've heard horror stories about how people have been taken advantage of in foreign countries because of their ignorance of the monetary exchange rate."

"So, ask the driver," I said.

"How much lira is an American dollar worth?" Ronnie asked our chauffeur who shrugged and said, "No, comprende."

"What did he say?" I excitedly asked.

"He said we're gonna be broke when we get home," Ronnie replied. (As it turned out, he was right on the money.)

Once at our hotel, we managed to find a tour guide who took us on a night-time excursion through Rome. The Coliseum, the Seven Hills, the palaces of Tiberius and Caligula were just a few of the magnificent sights we saw that were made even more dramatic by their after-dark, lit-up presentation.

Most of the locations we viewed through a bus window, but Trevi Fountain was one of the few places singled out by our guide at which we were able to stop and visit.

"Hey, Sara!" Ronnie exclaimed. "Isn't this the 'Three Coins in the Fountain' place?"

"There's more than three coins in that fountain," I answered as I gazed at the bottom of the pool. Ronnie must have thought the same thing because he started asking the vendors if anyone sold snorkels.

"So just what is the story with this fountain anyway?" he asked. "Besides the fact that it's mentioned in one of the corniest love songs in the history of movie music."

"Ronnie, it's a romantic thing. Legend has it that you're supposed to toss a coin in and wish to come back to Rome."

"With or without your underwear?" he chuckled sarcastically. "Can you make other wishes, too?"

"Well, it's a wishing fountain," I said, "so I suppose you can."

"Then what you're saying," Ronnie added, "is if I toss a coin in the water and wish for a new Toyota, I'll get it, right?"

"Yes, Ronnie, and there really is a Santa Claus and an Easter Bunny. Why don't you just throw your wallet in and ask for a Rolls Royce!"

As Ronnie put his billfold back in his pocket I realized we hadn't eaten. Now, there's something you have to understand about Ronnie; if he was ever on death row

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

— In September, Pinellas County, Florida, officials unveiled what they hope will be a cutting-edge traffic safety program as a model for reducing pedestrian deaths and calming drivers' road rage. The program asks pedestrians to extend their right hands (as if shaking hands) continuously through an intersection, while smiling, to get the attention of drivers. Said a worker in Clearwater, when the program was explained by a St. Petersburg Times reporter: "Nobody is going to walk across the street with their arm out. I'm not going to do it. Are you?"

DUI: The Next Level

— In separate incidents in the same week in September, Debra Rodriguez, 41, of Ames, Iowa, and Kristin R. Smebak, 34, of Superior, Wisconsin, both of whom had been drinking, forced their young kids to drive their cars home so the mothers would avoid DUI tickets if they were stopped. Rodriguez's inexperienced 11-year-old daughter caused a rollover, injuring both occupants, but Smebak's inexperienced 8-year-old son made it safely over the bridge connecting Duluth, Minnesota, to Superior before being spotted by a patrolman, who arrested Smebak.

Compelling Explanations

— According to police who arrested Fairfax (Virginia) High School math teacher Fred Benevento, 47, in April during a drug sting, Benevento said the 13 plastic bags of crack cocaine in his car "came flying through his open window" and that he "was just looking at them when the police officers arrived."

 — Failed Murder Defenses: In May, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled 5-to-4 to reject Brad Stone's "automaton" defense, that he was able to stab his wife 47 times only because he was in a robotic state brought on by the trauma of being called a bedroom failure. And in June, an Atlanta jury rejected Christopher Stobbart's claim of self-defense for shooting his boss in the head 14 times, then walking to another room, reloading and shooting him 10 more times.
 — Of Course! In July, just after the end of the war, Yugoslavia's ecology minister said the uncomfortably warm and rainy spring and summer weather was caused by NATO aggression. And in May, a mother in St. Cloud, Florida, told police that the reason she let her teen-age daughters smoke marijuana was so they wouldn't become alcoholics like their father. And Yuji Nishizawa, who hijacked the All Nippon Airways Boeing 747 in July and killed the pilot before being captured, told police his main motivation was to see how a real plane flew, after all the flight-simulation video games he had played. — West German criminologist Christian Pfeiffer, writing in the weekly Die Zeit in July, blamed East Germans' proclivities for post-war Nazism and thuggery (they are four times more likely to engage in those activities than West Germans) on too-rigorous potty training. After World War II, the East German government issued manuals on toilet-training for kindergartners, requiring virtually synchronized movements that stripped the kids of their individuality and reinforced government control.

The Litigious Society

— Muriel Milne's trial began in Aberdeen, Scotland, in September against the Westhill Golf Club for maintaining a badly designed course, an opinion she came to in 1994 after a ball she hit struck a 2-inch-high rock and bounced back, hitting her in the eye and causing severe damage. (The trial is recessed until November.)

— Escapee Jimmy Haakansson, in court in Stockholm, Sweden, on a theft charge and who broke a foot leaping through a courtroom window before being recaptured, filed a lawsuit against the police in September for failure to prevent his foolishness. One week earlier, in Roseville, Michigan, Cassidy L. VanHorn filed a lawsuit against homeowner Diana Folbigg, whose house he had broken into in July 1997; according to the lawsuit, Folbigg lured VanHorn back to the house the next day, saying all was forgiven, but when he arrived, several of Folbigg's friends beat him up.

Alcohol Was Involved

According to a Cox News Service report in August, citing official state records, 21 people were fatally run over last year in North Carolina while lying in the middle of the road. (Most incidents occurred around midnight, in the summer, to very intoxicated men.) A few days later, the British Health Education Authority announced that 43 people had been killed in 1998 frying up chips late at night. (The vast majority of victims were intoxicated.)

Animals With Unusual Tastes

Police in Fall River, Massachusetts, have been unable to find, since May, the dog owner who trained his pit bull to sharpen his teeth on trees and consequently killed more than 30 in a city park. And in July, an Irish wolfhound freed itself during a United Airlines flight into San Francisco and gnawed through landing-gear wires, but pilots landed the plane safely. And in July, after a Spanish Fort, Alabama, police officer pepper-sprayed an alligator that was creating a public menace, the gator bit a $500 chunk out of the officer's cruiser.

Update

Last year, News of the Weird named "Dr." John Ronald Brown "Chief Surgeon to the Weird" upon disclosure that after having had his license revoked for incompetence in 1977, he became the underground surgeon of choice for apotemnophiliacs (who get sexual gratification from having an arm or leg removed). However, one of his patients had died, and in October 1999, a San Diego jury found Brown guilty of second-degree murder. (That same week, Miami Beach's "Dr." Reinaldo Silvestre, who unlike Dr. Brown was never licensed, was arrested after botching several plastic surgeries, including one in which he used a spatula to cram breast implants into a former Mr. Universe runner-up who was expecting only pectoral implants.)

The Only Way Out

Insufficient Reasons to Kill Yourself: Husband changed the TV channel (woman in Colombo, Sri Lanka, took poison, May); minor car accident (19-year-old man immediately hanged himself from the tree he hit, Flint, Michigan, April); police showed a court order to clean up a man's junkyard (man shot himself to death, Brickerville, Pennsylvania, March).

Also, in the Last Month ...

— Quebec bureaucrats ordered an agricultural center to stop giving its cows "human female names" so as not to offend women. A lake-restoration project near Florida's Disney World caused several neighborhoods to be overrun by a half-million mice. Colin Linge, 54, retired after 29 years and 50,000 hours as a firefighter, having never fought a single fire (London, Ontario). Fourteen worshippers seeking eternal salvation were crushed to death when a crowd surged to touch a visiting evangelist (Abuja, Nigeria). A Washington Mutual bank informed a customer that, because of several mergers and relocations, it had lost his safe-deposit box containing $250,000 in family heirlooms. (Fountain Valley, California).

forced her to question Roseanne about him. After learning Asa had damaging information on Grace, Rae arrived at the summerhouse where she found Grace unconscious. Later, as Grace attempted to tell Rae about Daniel, the room quickly flooded, putting both women in mortal danger. Bo blew up at Asa who admitted Grace might have left town because of the information he had on her. Blair tried to talk Skye out of going after Ben. Will and Jessica shared a kiss. Bo arrested Asa. Wait To See: Rae tells John she plans to find Daniel.

PASSIONS:

Tabitha deviously advised Kay to fight for Miguel's love. Meanwhile, Miguel and Jessica assured Charity she'll get her memory back. Gwen was upset when she heard Ethan compliment Theresa's eyes. Sheridan managed to keep Luis from seeing the photo of Theresa and Ethan at the ballet. TC was concerned when Whitney didn't do her best at tennis practice. Later, TC offered Chad a job when he realized how much Chad reminded him of himself as a younger man. Tabitha and Timmy looked forward to Halloween when she planned to change the lives of many people. Wait To See: Tabitha conjures up a demon.

PORT CHARLES:

Lucy became suspicious of Eve

when she found her at the light-house. Eve later contacted DV to say she wasn't any closer to finding the letters. Greg Cooper told Kevin he'd made a deal with Rachel and Chris. Rachel was upset when DV changed his mind about helping to get Julie released. Meanwhile, as Kevin prepared to confront Rachel about having Cooper confess to the murders, Julie became increasingly convinced that she was actually innocent. Eve found the letters but was trapped in the cellar. Wait To See: Eve makes a painful decision.

SUNSET BEACH:

Tim saw Derek and Tess kissing and overheard their plans. Maria rejected Meg's uneasy feeling about "Ben," saying she's probably still in love with him. Derek caught Tim and threatened him with death. Vanessa said yes to Michael's proposal. Jude comforted Caitlin who was distraught over Cole's disappearance. Wait To See: A day of reckoning arrives.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS:

Victoria was upset that Victor wanted Brad included in all business activities. Victor was shaken when Victoria asked him about Ramona. Nikki was disturbed when Jack suggested they make amends over the past. Later, Nikki told a devastated Victor that his romantic overtures didn't make up for the emptiness she felt inside. Megan found the bra Grace and Tricia planted at Tony's place and refused to hear his explanations. Kay told Brock he has a daughter, Mac. Ashley insisted to Nikki that she is, indeed, over Victor and is committed to her marriage to Cole. Brad picked up the letter for Victor from the reproductive laboratory, but Diane ordered him to put it down. Wait To See: Neil gets involved in Olivia's divorce.

Jill Jackson's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD: Brad Pitt thought he'd found the perfect hideaway at a small cafe in a canyon just under the Hollywood sign. Several natives to the area recognized him but never intruded on his privacy. However-r-r-r, according to one of my friends who was there the other day, Pitt was at a small table in the corner being interviewed about his latest "The Fight Club" when suddenly he was spotted by a teenager who approached him for his autograph. He graciously gave it to her thinking that was that. No way! A little while later, in marched the teenager followed by 11 (!) squealing, giggling girlfriends. All hovering over Brad. All clamoring for autographs. Finally, he not so good-naturedly got up and left, and may I add hasn't been seen there since. So much for a movie star's privacy.

Long chat with my neighbor, cinematographer Conrad Hall, who lensed "American Beauty." Told me there were several scenes at the beginning and end of the film that weren't used. Kevin Spacey, in pajamas, comes back from wherever he went after he was shot dead and floats over the city. It just didn't work. If you've seen the picture, you'll know what I'm talking about. If you haven't, go see it. One of the best of the year so far. Lotta nominations should come out of this one. Bening is at her best, and Spacey is always good.

his choice for a last meal would be a tuna fish sandwich.

And, as much as we had worried about not knowing the language when ordering food, and conjuring up nightmares of being served snails and octopus when all we'd asked for was a hamburger, I have to say we "lucked out" with that first night's meal.

To this day, Ronnie still raves about the tuna fish sandwich he found in a little cafe down a side alley right next to Trevi Fountain. In fact, it changed his entire outlook about how a tuna fish sandwich should be prepared. (If you want a three-hour discourse on the subject, ask him about it sometime.)

While Ronnie was feasting on his tuna delight, I quickly picked up on some of the local language when I discovered how to say Gelato — that's ice cream in Italian. And, I don't mean just ice cream, I mean ICE CREAM. Ronnie says if I had one cone, I had 50 while we were in Italy. (I really had 52, but who's counting.)

So, our first evening didn't turn out so bad in spite of the inconvenience we'd suffered earlier at the airport. With our two favorite foods in our bellies, we left a few coins in Trevi Fountain, along with wishes for clean underwear in the morning and a new Toyota, and headed back to our hotel, and tomorrow's adventure.

Stay tuned next week when you'll hear Ronnie say as he emerges from a public toilet, "Sara, there was a woman standing behind me at the urinal!"

Choral groups perform at MSU

Morehead State University's Department of Music is preparing for its 40th annual choral festival for high school students.

The students will participate in rehearsals and auditions on Monday and Tuesday, November 8 and 9. They will perform on the last night of the festival.

Festival performances, which are free and open to the public, will be held on Monday and Tuesday beginning at 7 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall of Baird Music Hall. The MSU choirs, under the direction of Dr. Greg Detweiller, director of choral activities, will perform at the Monday concert.

The festival chorus and three soloists, under the direction of Dr. Tony Leach, guest conductor, will perform on Tuesday. The chorus, composed of select students from 15 high schools in Kentucky and Ohio, will be joined by the MSU Concert Choir for a combined piece.

The musical selection for the performances will be taken from traditional music, as well as multicultural pieces. Among the familiar titles will be "Children, Go Where I Send Thee," "All My Trials, Lord" and "Witness."

Leach is a professor of music and music education at Pennsylvania State University, where he directs the University Choir, Essence of Joy, and supervises the Partnership for Music Teacher Excellence Program. He is the national chair of the American Choral Directors Association Repertoire and Standards Committee on Multicultural and Ethnic Perspectives.

For addition information, contact Detweiller at 606/783-2480.

Shakespeare sighted in Floyd County

On November 1, Floyd County students will get the chance to see William Shakespeare "Alive!"

Kentucky Shakespeare Festival's touring educational outreach program, Shakespeare Alive!, will perform its "Boy Meets Girl Meets Shakespeare" workshop for Allen Elementary School students at 9.

Now in its 10th season, Shakespeare Alive! runs through May 15, 2000, bringing interactive performance workshops to schools throughout Kentucky.

The performance of "Boy Meets Girl Meets Shakespeare" will introduce 100 students to Shakespeare's drama through performance. Students will enjoy scenes from three of the Bard's plays, with a focus on the theme "the course of true love never did run smooth."

Within the interactive format of the program, students are allowed to ask questions and assert their opinions regarding the artistic work while exploring the program's theme. The Festival will conduct 500 such workshops this season.

The 1999-2000 tour features Douglas and Carolan Hary, a husband-wife team of professional actors who are no strangers to arts education. Carolan made her debut with the Festival on last year's educational outreach tour and was featured in Kentucky Shakespeare Festival's 1999 summer season production of The Taming of the Shrew.

Doug Hary joins the Festival for the first time with this tour, having recently moved from Montana where he spent the last two years building an arts education program and touring for Montana Repertory Theatre.

Within each performance workshop, Doug and Carolan perform scenes from "Twelfth Night," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Antony and Cleopatra." The scenes have been selected and staged to reflect the relevant and contemporary nature of Shakespeare's works.

Kentucky Shakespeare Festival, located in Louisville, is a year-round non-profit theatre dedicated to providing quality classical theatre and educational touring programming throughout the region. Shakespeare Alive! is designed to address the KERA Core Content for the Arts & Humanities and National Standards for the Arts & Humanities, and since 1990 the tour has served more than 206,000 students in 116 Kentucky counties, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Tennessee.

Sponsors for the 1999-2000 tour include Clark County Arts Council, Winn-Dixie, Humana Foundation, Tricon Global Restaurants, The Miller Family Foundation, The Gheens Foundation, The Norton Foundation and The UPS Foundation.

Cat Trivia

I will round out the column with this to keep the "cat people" readers from thinking I've completely gone to the dogs. Maybe, I'll tag along with my friend Bonnie to a cat show some day and write up her adventures with Bert, her Grand Premier Somali. Meanwhile ...

- The cheetah is the only member of the cat family that cannot retract its claws.

- Cats cannot see in total darkness, but they have the ability to see in very dim light, thanks to a special layer of reflective cells, called the tapetum lucidum, on the retina. These cells reflect and intensify the available light. This is also the source of the glow you see in your headlights from the eyes of many nocturnal animals.

- An adult male cat is called a Tom, and adult female cat is a Queen. The act of giving birth to kittens is called Kindling, and a group of cats is a Clowder.

- When cats rub their faces against you, they are not just being friendly. They are also depositing very small amounts of chemicals from glands in the cheeks. The chemicals are thought to serve as a way of marking territory or possessions.

Mike Myers: "Groovy" Comedian and "Boffo" Talent

A&E Network: Biography

Mike Myers, star of "Wayne's World," "Austin Powers," "Saturday Night Live" and "Second City," literally is an overnight success. Unlike others who toil unrecognized for years, the talented comedian has gone from one success to another. Born in 1966 to British immigrants from Liverpool, Myers grew up in Toronto. He landed his first TV gigs at 8, appearing in commercials.

As he tells June's "Biography" magazine, at 11, he performed in a commercial with Gilda Radner, who played his mom. "I fell in love with her," Myers says. When his family learned she was appearing on a new show called "Saturday Night Live," they all watched. "I turned to my family and said, 'I'm going to be on that show one day.'" On the final day of high school exams, he auditioned for Canada's Second City Comedy Troupe, and was hired that day.

Starting in Toronto, he joined the company in Chicago, where "Saturday Night Live's" creator, producer and fellow Canadian Lorne Michaels hired him. He took SNL by storm. During his successful six-year stint, Myers created a wickedly funny gallery of characters, including Wayne Campbell, the teenage heavy metal wannabe and cable access host. Before long, the whole country was talking like Wayne. His popularity led to the two Wayne movies, followed by the first "Austin Powers" movie and its sequel "Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me," opening this month. Powers' character was affectionately inspired by Myers' dad Eric, who died in 1991 of Alzheimer's.

In Austin Powers-speak, everything is "boffo, groovy," especially his six-year marriage to writer/actress Robin Ruzan which longtime friend and SNL co-producer Marci Klein calls a "100% perfect, compatible marriage." Next up? Who knows. "I never have a plan," Myers says. "You want to do something and then a meteor hits the earth." As Austin Powers would say, "Yeah, baby."

Unique, Tru Melody perform together

After weeks of practice, Unique, the dance team of Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center, is eager to be performing once again.

Under the supervision of Barbara Blackburn, dance team members Donald Boyce, Jerome Cotton Noel, Dominique Gilmore, Nicole Sanderford, Tamiika Gadson, and Jamie Crawford showed their moves at an assembly of their peers on September 30.

Unique also recently treated the patients of Mountain Manor Nursing Home with their choreographed routines to the music of "Men in Black," "Back That Thing Up," and "Dirty Dancing." The residents of the nursing home, as well as the staff, enjoyed the performance and invited the team back. Refreshments were served as the dancers mingled with the residents who enjoyed sharing antics of their younger days.

On October 21, Unique, along with Tru Melody, the Center's choir and their director Martin Revely, performed once again adding two new routines to their program. This performance was by "invitation only" for the newly hired staff and new students of the Center.

Unique and Tru Melody look forward to performing their entertaining dances and singing throughout the community in the near future.

Exhibitors sought for holiday crafts market

The Center for Rural Development is creating a festive holiday tradition.

The 1999 Mistletoe Market will be a juried show consisting of arts and crafts and unique specialty items. It will be December 3-5 in The Center's Convention Hall in Somerset.

The Center is now accepting applications for exhibitors to display and sell their works and also to hold demonstrations at scheduled times during the three-day event.

In addition to being able to purchase a Christmas keepsake or a holiday treasure, crowds will be treated to performances by carolers, visits from Santa complete with photos, and a Christmas tree decorating contest.

"We want to create a total holiday experience that will become a yearly tradition," says Hilda Gay Legg, executive director.

The Market opens on Friday, December 3, at 4 p.m. The opening will coincide with the annual tree lighting ceremony at The Center, which draws a large crowd from the community.

Mistletoe Market continues on Saturday, December 4, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and wraps up on December 5, with hours from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

To find out more about booth rates or to request an application and complete rules and regulations, call Debra Meade at 606/677-6000 or email her at dmeece@center-tech.com. Deadline for application submission is October 29.

Science Center receives grant for traveling exhibit

The National Science Foundation (NSF) has awarded the Louisville Science Center $698,331 to create a traveling version of "The World We Create," the Science Center's popular permanent exhibit.

The Science Center will use the money to develop a 2,500-square-foot exhibit that will travel to small and medium-sized science centers throughout the United States beginning next school year. Another version, already under development through an application from state government, will travel within Kentucky.

This is the Science Center's third NSF grant since 1996, for a total of more than $1.5 million. NSF contributed $795,688 to create the permanent version of the "The World We Create," which opened in 1997. Additionally, it provided a $50,000 planning grant for an ongoing parent-child interaction project the Science Center created with the National Center for Family Literacy.

"This grant brings honor and prestige to the Louisville Science Center," said Gail Becker, executive director of the Science Center. "NSF grants are highly competitive and subject to a stringent peer-review process. The award is a significant endorsement of the success of our permanent exhibit and provides us with the opportunity to disseminate its science learning messages to a large national audience."

The NSF grant provides funds for constructing the national version of the exhibit and developing educational materials that will serve both the nation-

Q. There hasn't been much news about Michael Jackson since we learned his baby son had been very sick. I don't always keep up with the newspapers, so I wonder if you have news about him. Thank you. Ruth Lee W.

A. I'm afraid the latest news confirms some unhappy rumors. Michael and his second wife, a former nurse named Debbie Rowe Jackson, have been separated since July. They have now filed for a divorce to end their three-year marriage. The couple, who have two children, have cited irreconcilable differences as the grounds for their divorce.

P.S. I wouldn't sell the farm to buy any stock in rumors hinting of a new marriage for Michael and Lisa Marie Presley.

Q. I have been told that ordinary people will be able to bid on items from the auction of Elvis Presley possessions. I would love to get something to hand down to my grandchildren, all six of whom are Presley fans, like the rest of our family. Myrna L.

A. Yes, a way was set up to receive bids from folks of average income. But you're too late to get in on the first-ever auction of items from Graceland. Try again for a second sale, which is reportedly scheduled for a few years down the line.

Q. As a long-time Beatles, I wonder if you can tell me how Paul McCartney is doing since his wife, Linda, died last year. Helen S.

A. According to a report in Reuters, the one thing Paul did not do was plunge into a lot of work to ease his emotional loss. Instead, he took time to be with his children and they helped each other heal. He says it brought the already-close family even closer in their shared grief and healing process.

Q. I would like to know what Catherine Zeta-Jones has been doing since she was in "The Haunting." Leda K.

A. The talented Ms. Zeta-Jones will co-star with Kevin Costner in the upcoming film, "Beyond Borders." Oliver Stone will direct the story of an American doctor (Costner) and a British relief worker (Zeta-Jones) who work with a UN relief group.

DOLLARS & SENSE

by Bryon Elson

The overwhelming majority of North American companies offer short-term, no-interest equity loans of "advances" to relocating employees to facilitate quick-purchase of a new home at their destination location, according to the 1999 Survey & Analysis of Employee Relocation Policies & Costs, published by Runzheimer International, the Rochester, Wisconsin-based management consulting firm.

Sixty-one percent of the 263 relocation administrations surveyed said their company offers advances on the equity in their former residences to transferred employees, and 86 percent of these charge no interest on this loan. Of those few companies that do charge interest on an equity advance or bridge loan, 10 percent charge at the market/current rate, while 4 percent charge a below-market rate.

"If an employee is eager to purchase a new home in the destination city but has not sold his or her former home, he or she may feel pressured to accept the organization's buyout offer in order to free up capital for a down payment," says Nat Workman, survey editor. "But if equity advances are available, the employee may receive the necessary funds and continue to market his or her former home."

Most organizations withhold an established percentage, such as 10 percent to 20 percent, from the equity advance loan. Only 15 percent offer 100 percent of equity to transferees.

"The purpose for withholding partial funds is to provide a financial safety valve for covering any outstanding debts against a property such as liens or unpaid real estate taxes that transferees must settle to clear the title for sale," says Workman.

Slightly less than one-third of organizations, 30 percent, offer market-rate, or below market-rate mortgage loans to relocating employees.

"With low interest rates available and fierce competition among mortgage lenders, home buyers have an atypical number of affordable and accessible financing options available," notes Workman.

The complete 14-chapter, 250-page survey results are available from Runzheimer International, Runzheimer Park, Rochester, WI 53167. Telephone: 414-767-220. Website: www.runzheimer.com.

Book celebrates 60 years of mountain music at Renfro

"At Renfro Valley we have the kind of fun on Saturday night we don't have to be ashamed of on Sunday morning," said John Lair, founder of country music gathering place Renfro Valley.

For nearly 60 years, Renfro Valley has been a haven for Kentucky mountain music. But until now, little has been written about the metamorphosis of Renfro Valley and the turbulent times that have nearly destroyed it more than once.

Pete Stamper, veteran comedian and author of the new book, "It All Happened in Renfro Valley," introduces readers to the characters, the shenanigans, and the business deals that have evolved into more than half a century of unique entertainment.

When Renfro Valley founder John Lair opened the doors to the Old Barn in November 1939, he only had dreams that Renfro Valley could offer entertainment that was as popular then as it is now. At the time, Western "cowboy" music filled the airwaves.

But Lair wanted to create a haven for authentic mountain music where performers such as the Coon Creek Girls, Molly O'Day, PeeWee King and Little Jimmy Dickens got their start and inspired later artists such as Loretta Lynn, Ricky Skaggs and Naomi Judd.

With the help of various friends, including Stamper, Lair's Renfro Valley Barn Dance grew over the years. The Barn Dance began as a live radio broadcast and turned the region into a mountain music Mecca in the 1940s and '50s.

As tastes in music changed in the '60s and '70s, Renfro Valley suffered, but the resurgence of popularity of country music in the past decade has brought Renfro Valley to new heights.

Stamper says the mere fact that he has been at Renfro Valley for so long has allowed him the chance to give readers a humorous look at life in the spotlight of Renfro Valley. "Forty-seven years is a long time to be in one place. No one has been here the length of time I've been here."

The reason Renfro Valley has survived is clear to Stamper. He says the beautiful country setting and the intimate, relaxed atmosphere keeps fans returning and new ones making the trek from all over the country.

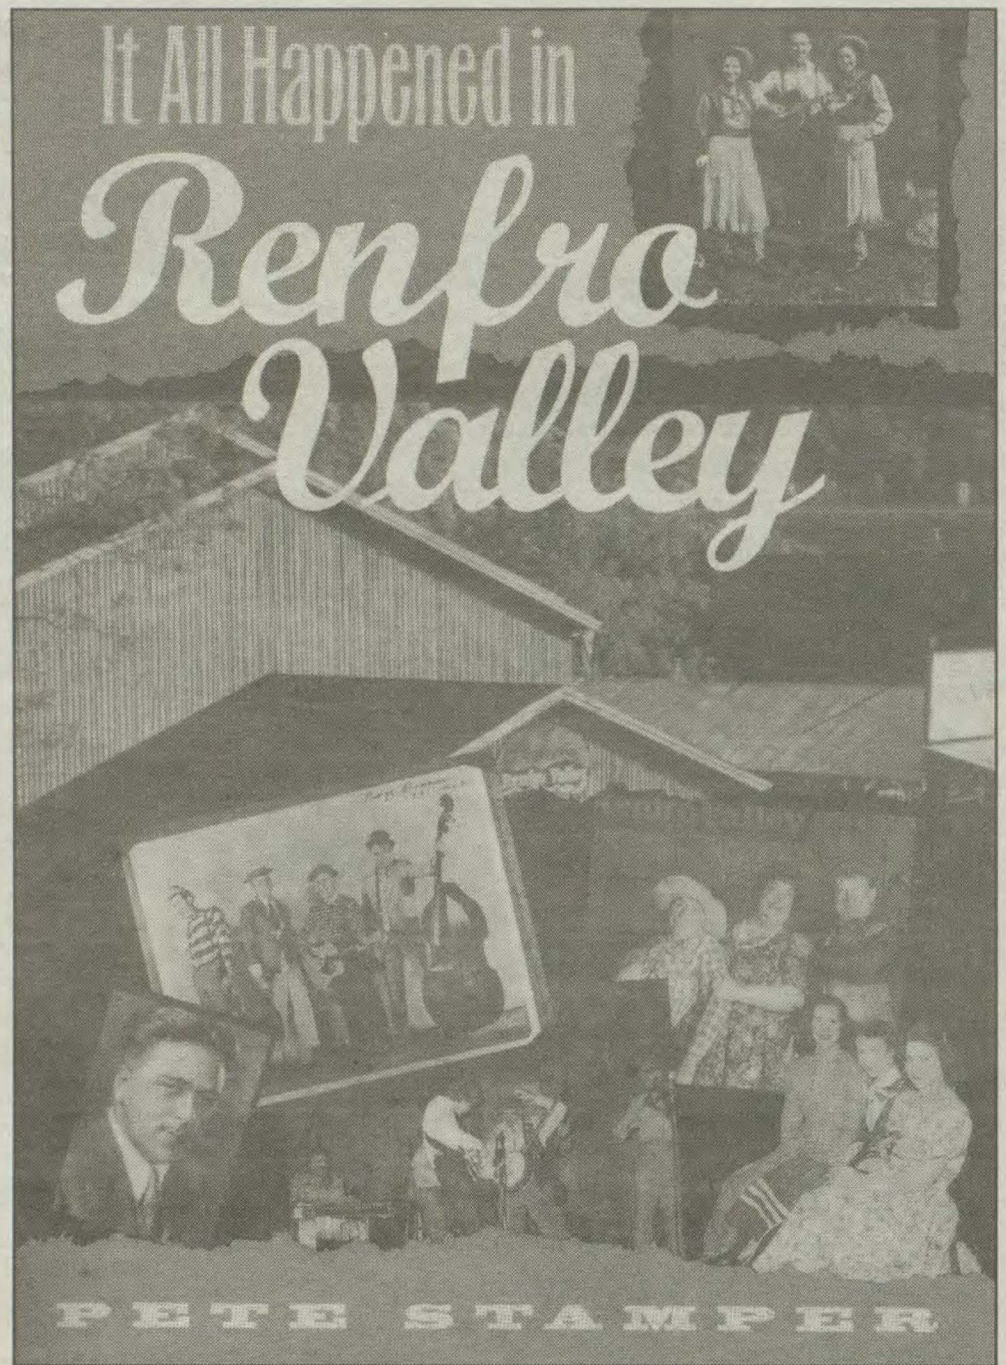

"The thing that has kept us successful in the beginning is keeping us successful now. People want to be entertained. And they find an entertainment here they are not finding just every place," he said.

Country music legend Ralph Emery has been a fan of Stamper and Lair for years and says that Renfro Valley influenced a new genre of country music. "I stand second to no man in my admiration of the contribution made to country music by Renfro Valley Barn Dance," says Emery.

Stamper tells the story of the many families of entertainers who have imprinted their own style on Renfro Valley. He shows how the valley has changed over the years but has always embraced the things that kept it the same: good mountain music, good friends, and good times.

"I've found that people never change, deep down in their hearts," Stamper says.

"It all Happened in Renfro Valley" is scheduled for publication November 12 by the University Press of Kentucky. For information, call 606/257-8761.

HOME TIPS

THE LAST DROP — Many lotions and creams are in plastic tubes that defy removing all the contents. Using a very sharp scissors, cut the tube in half. You'll be surprised how much more you can use. Trudy K., Cibolo, Texas

DOORSTOP — Gift-wrap a brick either with paper or colorful fabric, add a nice bow, and it becomes a really good doorstop! Jim F., New Bern, N.C.

THANK YOU — My tip for writing real thank-you cards is this: After being blessed with three showers for our first child, I had a wall of gifts and thank-yous to send. I sat each gift in front of me, one at a time, as I wrote that particular thank-you message. This really worked to inspire a message that came straight from the heart. Maria H., Lancaster, Pa.

STAY PUT — The plastic stays in the collars of my husband's dress shirts occasionally go astray after laundering. To overcome this, I take expired, plastic credit cards to make new stays, using the old ones as a pattern. They work as well as the originals. Greta B., Arlington, Va.

VACUUM MAGIC — Here's a tip for people who have a vacuum cleaner with a rotating beater bar to help clean carpets.

It took forever to unwind the hairs or threads, especially if I had not cleaned it for a while. One day, I was in a hurry and had a thought. I went to my sewing basket and took out my seam ripper. It cut through all the twisted hairs and threads in a jiffy. The pointed end easily picked up the hair tangle, and the cutting edge cut right through it. Velma P., Cedar Grove, N.J.

Folk art exhibits on the road

Morehead State University's Kentucky Folk Art Center was the birthplace of two art exhibitions that are currently touring the region.

"African-American Folk Art in Kentucky," and "Kentucky Quilts: Roots and Wings" will be on tour until February 2001 and October 31, 2000, respectively. Adrian Swain, KFAC curator, was responsible for the creation of both exhibits which were first shown at KFAC.

The African-American exhibit "provides the first focused examination of work by self-taught African-American artists who were born and raised in Kentucky, or who have spent the major part of their lives here," Swain said.

The exhibit was developed with support from The Elizabeth Firestone Graham Foundation, the Lexington Herald-Leader, Kentucky Humanities Council and Kentucky Arts Council.

The artists have varied backgrounds—everything from a sharecropper to professional basketball player. Their media include wood, paper and plastic garbage bags.

The exhibit was to be displayed at the Kentucky Art and Craft Foundation in Louisville through October 30. From January 2 until February 28, it will be at the Mennello Museum of American Folk Art in Orlando, Florida, and from June 1 until August 15, at the Weston Gallery of the Cincinnati Arts Association.

From mid-August to mid-October, 2000, the exhibit will be in Memphis, Tennessee, at the University of Memphis Museum of Art before moving to its last stop, at the Kentucky Museum at Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green for display in January 2001.

Swain began the quilt exhibit after he was approached by many people with questions about Kentucky quilts. Shelly Zegart, co-founder of The Kentucky Quilt Project, was the curator. More than 200,000 quilts were documented for the exhibit.

"Kentucky Quilts: Roots and Wings" is currently on display at the Water Tower Gallery at the Louisville Visual Arts Association. The exhibit will move to Eastern Kentucky University for display from January 24 until February 15, then to Springfield Museum of Art in Springfield, Ohio, from August 15-October 31, 2000.

Additional information is available by calling the KFAC at 606/783-2204.
