Stephens jailed after scuffle with officer

Times Staff Report

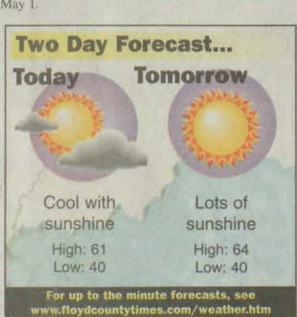

Wayland City Police Officer Aaron Kidd had more than his hands full when he pulled over a Knott County man Saturday morning.

Timothy D. Stephens, 20, of Topmost, was arrested and cited with eight charges, including assault of a police officer.

Stephens allegedly assaulted Kidd as he fled from the vehicle, wrestling Kidd's gun and holster from

After being subdued Kidd, charged Stephens with driving while under the influence of marijuana, possession of marijuana, third-degree assault, firstdegree fleeing or evading a police officer, disarming a police officer, third-degree criminal mischief. resisting arrest and failure to wear a seat belt.

Kidd has been jailed under a $5,000 cash bond. He is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Monday,

One dead after shootout in Lancer

by RANDELL RENO STAFF WRITER

An apparent shootout between two men ended with one dead and one turning himself over to the local police Easter Sunday

Prestonsburg Police Officer George Tussey was called to Jenny Wiley Village at Lancer to investigate the shooting. Upon arriving on the scene, he discovered the body of Henry Clifton, 49, of Prestonsburg, lying face down in the lot of the Cardinal Mart filling station.

Witnesses to the alleged incident gave police conflicting accounts of who started the fight, but witnesses did put Ernest E. "Bucky" Collins, 46, of Prestonsburg, across the road from the gas station at the home of his Apparently soon after Clifton had pulled into the gas station, an argument ensued, with the two men shouting at each other across the road. Collins reportedly then entered his vehicle and crossed the road to the station.

Conflicting stories have "Bucky" leaving his vehicle and approaching Clifton, while other witnesses said Clifton approached Collins' vehicle.

In either case, witnesses said Clifton fired one shot from a 9 mm handgun and Collins fired five shots at him from a snub-nosed .38 special. Tussey reported that Clifton's gun was jammed after the initial shot.

Collins had left the scene before officers arrived. He soon showed up at the Prestonsburg Police Department to turn himself in. After he was read his Miranda rights, Collins report-

$1.5 million promised for Left Beaver cleanup

by WILLIE ELLIOTT STAFF WRITER

Telling students at McDowell Elementary, "You're the first generation to take care of your environment," and "I'm counting on you to keep our environment clean," U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers introduced his announcement yesterday about a major PRIDE grant for Left Beaver Creek.

Rogers commended the students for the work they have done to clean up their communities and told them, "I thank you for

He then said the PRIDE committee would meet next week and he expects the committee to award a $1.5 million grant to be used to clean Left Beaver from its headwaters in the Wheelwright area

Rogers was accompanied by his wife Cynthia, Secretary of Natural Resources James Bickford, local leaders and representatives from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Rogers praised Floyd County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson, saying he is one of the best judge-executives in the 40-county PRIDE area, in working well with state and federal officials and leading the efforts to clean up the county.

Rogers said he has followed the progress made in cleaning up

Board denies librarian rumors

by WILLIE ELLIOTT STAFF WRITER

In the comment section of Monday night's Floyd County Board of Education meeting at Clark Elementary, Floyd County Education Association (FCEA) president Donna Collins voiced the association's concerns about the way the board will address House Bill 324.

House Bill 324 requires each public elementary and secondary school to establish and maintain a school library media center that is staffed by a certified media librari-

In a money-saving move, the Floyd County school moved librarians to the classroom. Collins asked if those people would be considered when the board complied with

Collins said that there was a rumor that the board had already created a position and selected a person for the position that would oversee the board compliance with the law.

After being assured by both board chairman Terry Dotson and state manager Woodrow Carter that the topic has not been discussed on any level, Collins asked about the possibility of enclosing the name of the person rumored to be hired in a sealed envelope and opening it after a decision is made to see if the name agrees with the person actually hired.

Dotson told Collins and the audience that this board has not always done things perfectly, but they have not engaged in actions like those suggested by the media specialist situation.

Elian's long trip home

Having dawdled, placated and compromised as long as she had, Attorney General Janet Reno had no choice but to remove Elian Gonzalez forcibly from the home where he had lived as an exploited little celebrity for the last five months.

It had become clear that there were no circumstances under which Elian's Miami relatives would let him go. That was evident when the family released a video, that had all the authenticity of a hostage tape, of an obviously coached Elian demanding to stay in the United States.

Still, we are haunted by the image of a terrified 6-year-old boy being hauled out of a closet by a gun-wielding, helmeted, flak-jacketed agent. Surely the mission could have been accomplished with a more restrained show of force.

The good news is that no one was hurt. Juan Miguel Gonzalez is now reunited with his son. But he faces a Kafkaesque battle with the American legal system to assert his right — and it is his right — to return to Cuba with Elian. A U.S. circuit court unnecessarily gummed up that process by agreeing to hear arguments on whether a 6-year-old - a first grader - can seek political asylum without his parents' per-

There is the possibility that Gonzalez, who is here with Elian's step-mother and baby half-brother, might seek asylum. But whether they stay or go - to a home where Elian has four grandparents waiting - should be the father's call, not the court's. They should be welcome to stay or be free to go at will. That is, after all, one of the freedoms that this country is

After what the American legal and immigration system has done to him, we may have the spectacle of a family fleeing to Castro's Cuba.

The Miami relatives, the family of great-uncle Lazaro Gonzalez, were wrong in keeping Elian, first, from his grandmothers and, later, from his father and exploiting the child in the cause of anti-Castroism. But it was clear that they loved the boy and, by their lights, they thought they were acting in his best interests.

As for Elian, he seems to be a tough, resilient little kid. He had to be to watch his mother drown, survive two days in an inner tube and fill an unsought role as a tiny pawn in a larger political battle.

He should be fine. He's with his dad. Cincinnati Post

During the past 10 years, I have written several letters to the Times that were noteworthy for their outspokenness, but this is the first time that I have dared to speak out about conditions at Prestonsburg Community College.

For several days now, I have been debating with myself about whether I should publish this letter. Then I thought of Brittany Mitchell, the eighth-grader at Osborne Elementary. If she was able to summon the courage to speak out about conditions at Osborne Elementary, then certainly a grown man like me should have the courage to speak out about conditions

You are probably aware of the fact that PCC is going through a difficult time right now. Although our career programs are flourishing and many excellent teachers grace our classrooms, our enrollment is down, and, because of improved roads, increasing competition from other schools, and other factors, we are no longer able to attract the best high school students of the region.

What we are attracting instead, to an increasing degree, are marginal students, students with discipline problems, students who have encountered difficulties at other schools and have returned to Floyd County to nurse their wounds.

Don't get me wrong - these students are just as deserving as the better students, and we are doing our best to educate them and prepare them for life in the Information Age

Fortunately, we are continuing to attract qualified and very deserving older students. As any teacher will tell you, these are the students who make it all worthwhile. If it weren't for them, we would be in even worse trouble than we are.

I'm sure that you have already heard that the skill levels of our entering freshmen are so low that 80 percent of them require remedial courses. I have taught English at the college for the past 10 years, so I know what I am talking about.

Five years ago, I could usually expect to have two or three students in every class who qualified as "A" students. Nowadays, however, it is very common to have classes with no "A" students whatsoever. Classes of this kind are difficult to teach, because they lack students who can set a good example for other students to follow.

Another problem that besets the school is the problem of student financial aid fraud. This is a taboo subject for the PCC administration, because they know that if they take steps to correct it, the immediate effect will be to reduce PCC enrollment by another 25

If the problem could be solved, however, the longterm effect would be positive. Faculty morale would improve; we would begin attracting the region's best students; and we would regain our former reputation as the region's best and most inexpensive two-year

From time to time, in my composition classes, I ask students to write essays on local issues. Last year one of my students, whose name I won't mention here, wrote an essay about student financial aid fraud at PCC. Here is what he said:

"Different people in the world have different ideas about what is right and wrong. Financial aid fraud is a way of getting something for nothing in an attempt to accomplish a good thing.

"If you are wondering what I mean, financial aid fraud is where an individual gets financial aid and then quits school for no apparent reason, just because he wants to. It is a very easy thing to do, and all that it amounts to is cheating other people who really need this money to go to school.

The way that you obtain financial aid is this: you fill out the application to receive financial aid, take it to the financial aid office, and the government gives you money to use while going to school. The financial aid program is designed to give people a chance to get a college education without having to pay for tuition. books, or other educational costs.

"The average amount of money that a person receives for financial aid, after tuition and books are paid for, is between six and nine hundred dollars. This is a pretty good sum of money for doing nothing. The financial aid program is a very helpful and useful thing if it is used in the right manner. It gives people the ability to go to college for free.

Licensed to kill?

It has been a slow week for news the last few days so I must tell you about my narrow escape from death. It's not a long story so I will feel at liberty to embellish at will. I call it poetic license. You probably will call it lying.

It was just after dark on a Tuesday night. I would just like to say "a dark and stormy Tuesday night," but I would probably be caught up in that. I try not to get caught fabricating (or prevaricating either for that matter). I know it was a Tuesday because I had been laboring hard watching Heath Wiley and Suzy Hall lay out the Wednesday paper. I have to stay around to make sure they do it right. I must be doing a terrific job. So far, they have laid the paper out every week. If they hadn't, you would know about it - you would have had no Wednesday paper and you would have missed my exciting column.

I was on my way home in a deep thought. We reporters go into deep thought a lot. That is why we are reporters. Anyway I was going along at pretty good clip — I'd say about 45 mph. Karen Joseph says I must have overestimated my speed since she has never seen me drive above 40.

I don't know how I missed seeing a deer that hit the front of my truck, bounced on to the back and hit it in the rear. Naturally, I was mildly surprised. I said, oh, dear, and sure enough that is what it was (phonetically speaking, anyway.) I'm psychic like that, you know. It's not every day that a deer runs a person down on KY 80.

I was in the passing lane — how that happened, I don't know. I never drive in the passing lane. I think maybe I was in the twilight zone or something. I drove on until I could get back on my side of the road (the slow lane) and pulled over to survey the damage.

I got out and saw what appeared to be minor dents. It did mess my door up somewhat and I can't gain another pound as I can barely squeeze in and out now because of damage done to the door. I also noticed deer hair, which was a dead giveaway that I had been attacked by a deer or some alien being.

I was relieved when a motorist stopped and said something like, "Hit a deer, huh?" I said, "That or a very hairy pedestrian." He went on to tell me he had been hit (I say attacked) two times this past winter.

Don't let this out or we will have to take out deer insurance on our vehicles. The accident is probably a result of my castigating hunters for killing those cute little animals. I still think they are cute but not on the side of my truck.

I should have been prepared. The section is clearly marked as a deer-jumping area. The sign indicates that or the upcoming track and field meet for local deer. Just think, I killed more deer than many hunters in the area, and I wasn't even trying.

I have learned my lesson. I have reduced my speed (if that is possible) and I always look left and right before falling

Community College for two semesters. There are a lot of people here that I have known previously or went to high school with. At the start of the semester, there were all kinds of people here that I didn't expect to see. People who had previously told me that college was not their cup of tea. It turned out that they were only going to class long enough to get their financial aid checks

"Then they dropped out, because they were too lazy. As far as I can see, they are going to be bums for the rest of their lives. A number of these individuals get their checks and use them to buy drugs.

"As I sit here and write this paper, I try to think of a ballpark figure of how many people I know who have pulled this scam. I've used my fingers and my toes to try to add up the list, but the list just keeps getting longer and longer.

These individuals that pull off this scam make teaching harder for the teachers, because they come to class for three or four weeks and then never come back again. The teachers never really know who is and who isn't a real student.

"There needs to be a different solution. On the other hand, it is the

"I have been at Prestonsburg way of determining who gets financial aid. I think that financial aid should be doled out in monthly increments, and that the aid should be conditional on good class attendance and maintenance of reason-

"Whoever came up with the financial aid program did a very good thing. The financial aid program has helped a lot of people who couldn't afford otherwise to go to college. But it needs to be perfected, so that people won't be able to cheat the government."

I have decided to publish this essay not only because it contains a good description of the problem, but because its author obviously knows what he is talking about. I hope that it will provoke some controversy. The problem has been swept under the rug for too long, and it is time for us to begin using our public forums to discuss it and find a solution to it. The first step, of course, is to recognize that the problem exists.

I am ready to admit that the solution which my student proposes doling out the money in monthly increments - may not be the best only solution that has so far been sage board. To read their comments, proposed, and for that reason alone, it deserves serious consideration.

I think that we need to begin talking about ways to solve this problem, and I challenge my readers to come up with a better solution than the one proposed here.

As I said before, this is not my first letter to the Times, and it probably won't be my last. However, it marks the first time that I have raised questions about the policies of the PCC administration. For obvious reasons, I have been reluctant to do this. Biting the hand that feeds you is always a risky proposi-

In recent weeks, however, the various deans in the Johnson Building have made it known to me that they consider me to be a bad teacher. This has had an effect on me that is probably opposite of the effect intended. It has freed me to end my silence and once and for all speak my mind about this very serious problem.

By the way, if you would like to know what my students think about financial aid fraud, you can read their comments on my on-line mesContinued from p4

When I was in Vietnam winning the war, I got casualty pay and nothing of this magnitude ever happened to me except the time I cut my hand on a beer can. I think I will ask for casualty pay from the paper. I can tell you now asking will be the end of it - other than a snicker or two among (yes, since there are more than two people involved, among is correct) the publisher and editors.

by Stan Stumbo & Voncel Thacker SUPRESSING SURGES

In today's high-tech world, our homes are outfitted with a vast array of expensive electronic equipment. Computers, televisions, and stereo equipment are all sensitive to power surges (sudden sharp changes in circuit voltage) that damage transistors in solid-state audiovisual equipment. Surges usually occur when power companies switch from one utility to another, when lightning strikes near a power line, or when electric motors are turned on or off. As a result, home equipment can experience data loss, faulty output, or total circuit failure. To protect against these possibilities, homeowners are urged to use surge protectors, which are receptacles designed to sense high voltage surges and absorb them before any device plugged into them is damaged.

Surge protectors have become a necessity to protect your electronic equipment. Do-it-yourselfers know that here at HINDMAN PROMART, they can depend on finding all the supplies and tools they need to properly complete just about any project. Come on into our store where you will find our staff very helpful and always ready to answer your questions. We're nearby at #1 Pro St., Hindman (785-3151). TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

I ask for your vote and support, because I am the candidate who has both the ability and desire to serve. I have practiced law five years and served the years Assistant last two as Commonwealth's Attorney. I am prepared to do the job. I also humbly believe I alone have the commitment to change the office to one that will better serve and protect us all. This includes three specific promises.

The budget just passed by the Kentucky Legislature allows the winner of this election to make a choice. The next Commonwealth's Attorney will decide whether to change the Commonwealth's Attorney position to full-time, or to keep it a part-time job, while maintaining a private law practice.

I am the one candidate in this race who tells you now, I will be a full-time prosecutor. Our county needs and deserves no less.

2) I WILL TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR PROSECUTION OF ALL INDICTMENTS.

Your Commonwealth's Attorney should be there for you every day, involved in every case. Assistant Commonwealth's Attorneys must be used, but your elected Commonwealth's Attorney must lead the way to assure every case is prosecuted with competence and fairness to all. I will do that.

3) I WILL NOT PLEA BARGAIN FELONY CRIMES DOWN TO MISDEMEANORS.

If the evidence of a crime proves a felony offense, we should have a felony conviction. As an Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney, I have refused to do otherwise. As your Commonwealth's Attorney, that will be the policy for my entire office. Plea bargaining felonies down to misdemeanors should be rare, and done only when justified by the facts.

Remember, we have before us a great opportunity-a full-time Commonwealth's Attorney committed to do the job right. Let's not lose it by returning to the ways of the past.

How much is recycled?

What's recycled the most? While Americans are accustomed to thinking about recycling their newspapers and beverage containers, the most widely recycled product in terms of both percentage and tonnage is actually asphalt pavement.

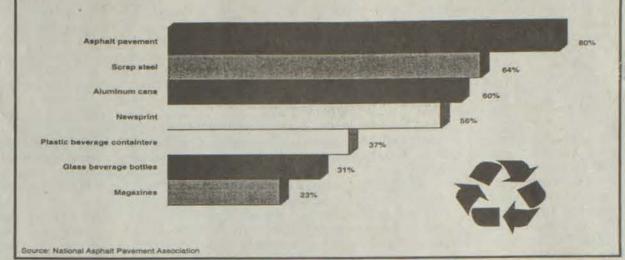

According to the Federal Highway Administration, 80 percent of the asphalt pavement that's removed each year during widening and resurfacing projects is reused as part of new roads, roadbeds, shoulders and embankments.

In contrast, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the recycling rates are 60 percent for aluminum cans, 56 percent for newsprint, 37 percent for plastic soft drink bottles, 31 percent for glass beverage bottles and 23 percent for magazines.

Relatively few people outside the pavement industry, however, know the extent of asphalt pavement recycling. In a recent survey commissioned by the National Asphalt Pavement Association (NAPA), Americans ranked asphalt pavement as being recycled the least among nine materials. (The others were aluminum, glass, paper, plastic, rubber, steel, wood and yard waste).

"Asphalt pavement admittedly isn't prominent on the public's radar screen for recycling. But every year, about 73 million tons of reclaimed asphalt pavement (RAP) are reused, or nearly twice as much as the combined total of 40 million tons of recycled paper, glass, aluminum and plastics," said Mike Acott, president of NAPA.

EPA figures show that Americans recycle less than half of their discarded paper and less than one-third of their discarded aluminum and glass. Overall, only 28 percent of items in the municipal solid waste stream were recycled in 1997, the latest year for which the EPA has figures. The EPA has established a target recycling goal of 35 percent of municipal solid waste by the year 2005.

"For the asphalt pavement industry already to have an 80 percent recycling rate is quite impressive. The recycling of asphalt pavement is an everyday business practice," Acott said.

Acott noted that using RAP has economic benefits for taxpayers, as well as environmental benefits. "Using RAP results in lower costs. We use less virgin material and, by avoiding trips to the landfill, we use less diesel fuel. Considering today's fuel prices, these savings add up considerably for taxpayers on public road projects," Acott said.

recent survey help portray the state of recycling in America. For example, 46 percent of Americans rated their own interest in recycling as high or very high, while 33 percent said it was average and 20 percent said it was low or very low.

They gave even lower marks to their community's interest in recycling. Only 36 percent rated their community's interest as high or very high, while 37 percent said it was average and 23 percent said it was low or very low.

Interest in recycling was higher in the Northeast and West than in the rest of the country.

About two-thirds (67 percent) said they recycle newspapers, along with 65 percent who said they recycle plastic bottles; 60 percent, glass bottles; 58 percent, magazines; 55 percent, plastic bags, 54 percent, tin cans; and 53 percent who said they recycle white paper.

Going to college is an exciting and sometimes scary step in any young adult's life. Parents, as well, experience a range of emotions, from pride to protectiveness.

One of the common concerns students and parents share is campus safety. Although not on campus, parents can play a part in ensuring the safety of their child and, by learning a few campus safety tips, students can avoid becoming a victim.

"You hear about so much crime in the news, that I think there has been a general increase in sensitivity to and awareness of crime issues on campus," says Radford University Dean of Students Bonnie Hurlburt.

A comprehensive university in southwest Virginia enrolling 8,500 students, RU has been ranked one of the nation's safest campuses by The Chronicle of Higher Education. Hurlburt says that although parents are not on campus, they can do several things to make sure their child is in a safe environment.

about crime and go over basic common sense safety rules.

"We are very open with the parents before and during our summer orientation. We give them a Security and Safety brochure and talk with them about encouraging their sons and daughters to use good sense," says Hurlburt.

Chief of RU Police Toby Phillips agrees parents should discuss safety with their child and says that they should give instruction during the pre-teen and teenage years on being cautious and not being too trusting or taking risky chances.

· Research the crime rates at institutions the student is interested in. Hurlburt emphasizes that, per the Jeannie Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act, public and private institutions of higher education that participate in any federal student aid programs are required to publicly disclose three years of campus crime statistics and basic security policies.

She urges parents to research the campus crime reports of schools in which their child is interested. Many universities, including Radford, publish these statistics on their web site. Nationwide statistics may also be obtained through the web site of the Chronicle of Higher Education (chronicle.com).

Hurlburt notes, however, that the statistics reported are only campus city in which the school is located.

 Review university safety policies with the student and call the university police office with any questions. Hurlburt notes that at Radford University orientation, parents are briefed on university policies, as well as what extra services the university provides to ensure student safety, such as 24-hour police watch, outdoor emergency telephones, a policeprovided escort service after dark and bicycle registration.

Parents should call the school if they have questions about what services the school may or may not pro-

Phillips says that the most common crime problems on campuses across the nation are crimes against property, although violent crimes do occasionally occur. He recommends many personal safety tips to students so they can avoid becoming a victim.

. Don't walk alone and always be aware of your surroundings.

. Use public, well-lighted walkways and avoid any dark and isolated · Look alert and hold your keys in * Talk to the prospective student your hand when you are walking to vour vehicle.

· Give your vehicle the quick once-over before entering, including looking in the back seat.

· If you are being followed, cross the street, change direction, keep looking back so the person realizes you are aware of his/her presence, go to a well-lighted area, notice as many physical details of the person following you as possible and report the incident to the police.

• If you are alone in your room, an office or a classroom keep the door locked, always ask who is at the door before opening, never prop open locked exterior building doors and when you leave the room, always lock it even if you will only be gone a

· Be careful to whom you give personal information.

· Always remain in control of yourself and your surroundings at social functions, and be aware of the content and quantity of any beverages or other substances you consume.

Property protection tips include:

· Keep all cash, checks, credit cards, purses, etc., with you at all times. Never leave them unattended

· Keep your car locked at all times and store valuable items in the trunk. Store computers, lab equipment and audiovisual equipment in a locked classroom or office. · Make a record of the serial numcrimes and that the parent should also ber of both personal and university take into account the crime rate of the property in your room or office.

· Inscribe stereo, computers, etc. with your social security number. Many university police offices have an engraver available for loan.

· Lock all doors and windows in

. Don't bring valuables, i.e. watch. jewelry, with you to athletic facilities. . Write your name in ink on the inside cover of all textbooks, and do not leave them, or bookbags, unat-

Basically, Phillips says it all comes down to common sense. "Think about what you are doing to make sure you are not put into a compromising situation that makes you more vulnerable."

If a crime does occur, the student should report it as soon as possible to the campus police and seek any help available, if needed. Most universities have counseling services for victims

Contact the university's dean of students office or information desk to learn more what crisis and counseling services are available.

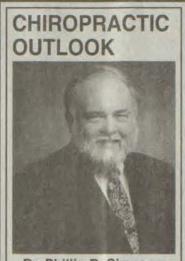

FOR CONTINUED WELL-BEING Chiropractic care follows a simple, yet unique concept. It focuses on the body's ability to heal itself, helped by a normally functioning spine and healthy lifestyle. The spine is so important, because it protects the spinal cord, which includes a network of nerves that spread to every part of the body, including the brain. Any problem with the spine can cause problems in other parts of the body as well.

Doctors of chiropractic look to the spinal column for misaligned vertebrae that may interfere with the proper nerve flow. After a thorough physical examination and x-rays, where appropriate, the chiropractor can suggest an individualized treatment program to realign the spine and improve a patient's health and well-being. The safe and gentle hands-on chiropractic therapy can restore proper positioning of the vertebrae and, most important, allow the body to heal itself.

A new statement.

But what really matters

hasn't changed.

You've probably heard that Matewan
Banks have become Branch Banking & Trust – BB&T for short. However, the real news is what hasn't changed.

Like the belief that you're not just an account number, you're an individual. That loans should be made by people, not just by the numbers.
And that banking, like any relationship, works best when people get to know one another. That's why, at BB&T, our personal, one-on-one approach still relies on local decision makers who get to know you and your financial needs. So please stop by, help yourself to a cup of coffee, and say hello. We'd like to help you with what's next in your life.

Pony rides, free treats highlight by ED TAYLOR SPORTS EDITOR Kids Day in the Park Saturday This Saturday promises to be a special

This Saturday promises to be a special day for all kids 9 and under with the kicking off of the seventh annual Kids Day in the Park jointly sponsored by WMDJ radio and Food City in Prestonsburg. In case of rain the event will be held Saturday, May 6.

The event will take place at Archer Park in Prestonsburg beginning at 11 a.m. when all kids will gather at the stage area for instructions. The Allen Central Junior ROTC will be on hand to walk all the participants through the different events.

Prizes, prizes and more prizes will be the order of the day and trophies will be presented to the first-, second- and third-place finishers in each event.

Hot shot basketball, sack race, kick ball, hole-in-one golf, football toss, 50-yard dash and big wheel race will be the seven events of competition.

There will be a lot of fun when the kids mount the Little Pumper, sponsored by the Prestonsburg Fire Department. The Little Pumper will take kids riding around the park area.

Pony rides will be free the first two hours of the special day. The pony rides, sponsored by Pepsi, will be $2 after noon this Saturday.

One of the favorites of the day will be the petting zoo, also sponsored by Pepsi, as exotic animals are on display and kids will be able to feed them.

Much, much more is planned throughout the day. The Mayfield Ice Cream cow will be at the park with free ice cream for the competing kids. Free snacks and "pop stops" will be stationed throughout the park area. Free goodie bags will be given away to all the kids 9 and under.

Also on display will be the Prestonsburg Aerial One firetruck. Layne Brothers Ford will display a 1929 Model A classic along with several 2000 model cars. The Prestonsburg City Police Department will showcase their Harley-Davidson motorcycle and cruiser. The University of Kentucky medical transport helicopter will fly in and the Kentucky National Guard fighting equipment and cannon will be on site.

Others include Smokey the Bear and the Kentucky Division of Forestry; the DARE Bear along with the Floyd County Sheriff's Department; the Kentucky Wildlife Mobile Museum. A favorite, the Kentucky State Police 1949 cruiser will be part of the show.

The best thing about all this is — it is free to all kids 9 and under.

The Allen Central Junior ROTC will have the concession area with those delicious hot dogs and hamburgers along with other things.

Betsy Layne's Newsome homers in 5-0 win over Knott Central Patriots

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

Danielle Newsome homered and drove in three runs as Kim Tackett scattered four Knott County Central hits en route to a 5-0 win last Thursday evening at the Allen Park.

Devon Reynolds and Jenny Parsons collected two hits apiece in the win. Betsy Layne had seven hits for the game.

Tackett picked up the win, going five innings. She allowed no runs on just four hits for the Lady Patriots. She struck out eight and walked but two batters.

Former Allen Central standout Beth Combs had one of the four Knott Central hits. She tripled in the fifth-inning but was left stranded.

Tackett allowed two of the four hits in the first inning. She got Combs and Amburgey on strikes to start the game but Bates and Slone followed with con-

In her last three outings, Allen Central's Shanna Howell has picked up 24 strikeouts, but out of those three contests, the Lady Rebels have dropped two.

The latest was a 5-3 setback at the hands of the Johnson Central Lady Eagles on Allen Central's home field last Friday.

Howell fanned eight batters in the game but two of her six walks came back to haunt her in the very first inning when Johnson Central scored three times.

Both teams were retired in order in the second inning but Johnson Central pushed across two more runs in their half of the third inning. Hall singled and stole second. With one out, Daniels collected her second hit of the game, an RBI single. She stole second and came home on Scott's run scoring single. Howell fanned Tackett and Goble to end the inning.

Daniels had retired nine consecutive batters until Sizemore singled with one out in the fourth inning. However, Kristie Howard's pop up was caught and Sizemore doubled off first base to complete a double play.

Allen Central put two runners on base in the fifth inning when Amanda Tackett was hit with a pitch and Angie Green walked with two out. Tackett was tagged out attempting to steal third base to end the inning

The final four innings, Howell was outstanding keeping Johnson Central off the base paths. However, the Lady Rebels could Charlotte Taylor collected four hits in six plate appearances for the Pikeville Lady Bears softball team in game two, allowing the Lady Bears to split a doubleheader with Bethel College.

Bethel won the opener, 4-3, in extra innings and the Lady Bears took the nightcap, 5-2.

Amanda Fleming picked up the win in game two for Pikeville. Taylor had four hits in the game including two doubles.

Now, in the dugout, chewing his gum, is Jack McKeon, who the Reds need to look to replace. They need a baseball man who can come in and fire this team up.

Billed in preseason as the team with the "most dangerous" lineup, the Big Red Machine has stripped some gears and is an anemic hitting ballelub.

Denise Jones had a two-out double for Betsy Layne in the first inning but was left on base when Brittany Bentley struck out.

The Ladycats scored four times in their half of the second inning after Tackett had a rather easy inning. Tackett opened the Betsy Layne second with a walk and Parsons followed with a safety. After Tabitha Mitchell struck out, Newsome then hit her three-run home run to give Betsy Layne a 3-0

With two out, Heather Hamilton singled and scored the fourth run of the inning on Reynolds' RBI single.

Knott County put a runner on base in the top of the third when Amburgey singled with two out. Tackett got Bates on a bouncer back to the mound.

Betsy Layne added their fifth run in the bottom of the third on a leadoff walk to Bentley and Parsons' RBI single to make it 5-0.

Knott County would put only two runners on base over the final three innings. Combs tripled with two out but failed to score and avoid the shutout.

Betsy Layne will meet Prestonsburg at Archer Park today at 5:30 p.m. The Ladycats will host Pikeville on Thursday and meet Paintsville at the Allen Park on Betsy Layne is perfect in conference play with a 2-0 record to lead the conference.

Overall, the Ladycats stand at 8-7. losing three games over the weekend in the Fleming-Neon tournaliant from the mound and Mike Cameron is having a good season. It looks to be a better deal for the Mariners so far.

I predicted that Griffey would hit 20 homers. Well, he may not circle the bases that many times.

The Reds need a manager. They need to get back that chemistry of last year when they played without a lot of pressure.

What happen to D.T. Cromer? He was playing great baseball for the Reds. Sean Casey comes back and it is going to take some games before he gets back in the groove of last year.

Back to Griffey. Not only him, but Dante Bichette, along with most of the other Reds members, are struggling from the plate. Eddie Taulbensee is having a good season, as well as Pokey Reese. But neither can hit with runners in scoring position.

Aaron Boone? Shop him and see if we can find a third baseman who can hit.

Pitching? Every now and then Denny Neagle, Pete Harnisch. Ron Vilione and Steve Paris will have a decent outing, but nothing consistent. Rob Bell. He will be back at Double A, maybe Louisville, before this season

I don't care for McKeon as the team manager or Don Gullet as a pitching coach. However, there are those who say he is one of the

III JUNE DRAFT

The NBA June Draft is quickly approaching and the word is that former UK center Jamal Magloire looks to be a secondround pick.

The problem of being taken in the second round, there is no guarantee of a contract. NBA scouts say Magloire has hurt himself by not taking part in NBAsponsored camps. Maybe so!

The big man did improve his junior and senior seasons. However, he will not be a lottery pick and will spend a lot of time on the NBA pines.

The UK basketball Cats are still hoping they can land coveted player Darius Rice out of Mississippi. But reports are that Rice could jump to the NBA. I think it would be better for UK to look elsewhere. If Rice does ink, it will be for one sea-

Kentucky did ink Gerald Fitch, a much heralded guard from Macon, Georgia, last week. Erik Daniels, out of Cincinnati, is expected to announce his college choice yet this week. However, Daniels is not an impact player and Tubby is wanting him just to "fill a void on the roster." Tubby said he will not let his team get caught short again in the NCAA tournament. Also, Tubby has promised recruits the Cats were returning to the running game next season.

All this sounds good, but you first have to get to the NCAA and, secondly, you have to have players who can play the style of defense and the running game UK fans came to know and love.

Things don't look good for UK basketball.

■ SEZ HERE...

We see where Lenny Wilkens resigned as head coach for the Atlanta Hawks. That means the Hawks need a coach. Does that mean they will look to the college ranks for a replacement and will that search find its way to Kentucky? But Tubby says he is staying put!

Kentucky's Jared Lorenzen a game day guy, reminds us of an old Redskin

Kentucky football's strength next season may be its offensive line, more depth, more experience, but the best news could be redshirt freshman Jared Lorenzen. A two-legged reminder of Derrick Ramsey from the 1970s and Bill Ransdell in the 1980s, as well as a grizzled old NFL quarterback, for whom we have fond memories.

At Atlanta, Martinsville and Talladega, it seemed that the Lowe's driver would get a chance to give that victory speech that he has thought so long about. Earlier in March he led 191 laps at Atlanta and was clearly the class of the field that with only 20 laps to go, his chance of notching that first-ever win had to be put on hold as his Chevrolet engine

Skinner's car that day in Atlanta was as good as any car that has won a race this season. It was the kind of defeat that can really throw a team in tailspin, but fortunately McReynolds is no stranger to such occurrences and immediately began to get the team to focus on just how close they were and that with just a little more work they could get that first-ever win.

Luck is one of those terms that many people use to describe the events that takes place during a race. Be it good or bad, there is always something that happens that changes the finishing order of a race and probably the best way to describe it is someone's good luck at the expense of another driver's bad luck. At Martinsville just two weeks ago, Skinner once again found himself watching someone else benefit at his expense.

Rusty Wallace was the dominating car that day in Martinsville, but Skinner had a car that could easily get to victory lane if something happened to Wallace in the closing stages of the race. With less than a hundred laps left in the race, it looked as if Skinner was finally going to be the benefactor of someone else's bad luck. When race leader Wallace gave up track position in order to take on four tires during a late race pit stop, Skinner was right there battling for the lead. The win was definitely within his grasp. but with only a handful of laps left a bad alternator dropped him to a 19th place finish. Talladega saw Skinner on the rear bumper of race leader Jeff Gordon with only five laps left. He raced Gordon hard and clean but couldn't make the pass. Skinner could have bumped Gordon and took the lead, but he said, "I want to win my first race, but I don't want to get it because I knocked somebody out who had raced me clean all day."

In just four years in the Winston Cup series he has established himself as a threat to win at any track. As long as he keeps running up front and in position to win as a race winds down, don't be surprised to see Skinner finally get to give that long-practiced victory speech.

RENFRO VALLEY - Some of the most popular legends of the past and present have made appearances here. It will be no different on Saturday, May 27, except this time the spotlight will shine on the cars not just any cars, Corvettes.

A diverse group of Corvette owners will meet at Renfro Valley where they will show, shine, buy, trade and sell their prized cars.

The festivities will kick off from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. with the Corvette "Show & Shine" Corral, followed by judging from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The awards ceremony will take place from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

T-shirts and plaques will be presented to each car entered. Following the awards ceremony, a 50-mile Corvette country roads tour is scheduled.

The day would not be complete without dinner at Renfro Valley's Lodge Restaurant and one of the many great Renfro Valley shows. The Renfro Valley Barn Dance will kick off at 7 p.m., followed by the Jamboree show at 9 p.m.

For reservations and information, call 800-765-7464 or 606/256-2638. Renfro Valley, "Kentucky's Country Music Capital" is located just off I-75 at exit 62. You may also visit Renfro Valley on the web at renfrovalley.com.

Q. Another batch of college kids has or will declare for the NBA Draft again. What are deadlines and rules are these kids bound to?

A. College underclassmen have until May 21 to declare for the NBA. Unless a student-athlete hires an agent or accepts money or gifts, he can withdraw his name and retain college eligibility on or before June

The Cardinals may lose DeJuan Wagner to Memphis, but Crum's friendship with (father) Darel Carrier, and the availability of backcourt playing time could help the Cardinals keep a Kentuckian at home. A prerequisite for young Carrier is extended playing time. If he's quick enough, strong enough to mesh into Crum's system, UofL could be a perfect fit.

Except for Tim Couch's two seasons and Bill Ransdell's last one, fans have always clamored for the quarterback-in-waiting, figuring he was the one to elevate the program. They were right in Couch's case, but their batting average is not too good otherwise.

Judging from the crowd reaction to Jarred Lorenzon's first appearance in the Blue-White game last Saturday, I think we're heading down that road again, even though the player that beat him out just led the Wildcats to a bowl game and looks poised to improve on that per-

I appreciate the seductiveness of Lorenzon's arm strength. He made some throws last Saturday night that Dusty Bonner will never be able to make. But think of this situation in terms of a baseball pitcher. Many guys come into the major leagues with great fastballs, but they have to learn how to "pitch" to move past the entry level status.

If Kentucky didn't have Dusty Bonner, then I think this team would be just fine in the hands of Lorenzon, but his on-the-job training might cost the Wildcats a victory or two that could significantly impact the postseason prospects. Coach Hal Mumme's offensive system is based on a quarterback recognizing the mismatches and exploiting them, not a QB who tries to overpower the opposition.

In Couch, Mumme had the best of both worlds and I think he may well achieve that level again with Lorenzon - in time.

Anyone who saw the previous scrimmages this spring cannot deny that Bonner outplayed Lorenzon. And the difference between those outings and the Blue-White game is that the two quarterbacks were er this past weekend because he knew he wasn't playing to win a starting job and the pressure was off. That's fine, but a quarterback has to deal with pressure in game situations and maybe Lorenzon needs a little more growth in that area. It would come under fire, but when a coach has a more experienced player available, why not use

Should Bonner get hurt, I certainly wouldn't be surprised to see Lorenzon grab the job for good. And I also won't be surprised if Lorenzon beats him out next spring, even though Bonner would be going into his senior season.

Mumme is focused on winning, not individuals, and he'll put the best players on the field - as he's shown us already. This guy has a good track record when it comes to analyzing quarterbacks for his system, so let's give him the benefit of the doubt on picking Bonner for

SPRING REFLECTIONS

With the quarterback discussion behind us, let's take a look at the other areas of the Kentucky football heading into the 2000 season:

RUNNING BACKS

Martez Johnson was much improved but not enough to beat out Artoose Pinner. The former Hopkinsville standout showed significantly more polish, adding solid pass-catching and blocking skills to his powerful running style.

"Artoose is going to play a lot," Mumme said in a post-practice interview last week. "The good thing about Derek (Homer) is that he can play both spots in the backfield. It'll be a combination of competition and having them both in there at the same time.

Look for Homer to be more of an Anthony White-type of back with Pinner getting most of the carries in the running game, Kendrick Shanklin will figure into the mix as a spot player in both the backfield and as a wideout.

OFFENSIVE LINE

One change that we'll see from the first three years with this staff is a rotation of players. O-line coach Guy Morriss says he now has shifted his thinking to believe that the

Schroeder wins on

using depth when it's available.

Morriss thinks the Wildcats' offensive front tired in previous seasons and spotting some fresh players into the mix from time to time would help alleviate that situa-

Look for rookie Antonio Hall to make a strong bid for the starting right tackle spot in the fall, leaving Morriss with the opportunity to rotate Omar Smith, Kip Sixbery and Josh Parrish among two guard positions. And Keith Chatelain may get a few repetitions at center, unless he beats out Nolan DeVaughn in the

RECEIVERS

Mumme wanted to see two or three players move to the forefront this spring and develop a chemistry with the starting quarterback and I'm not sure he saw that goal completely attained.

Jimmy Robinson was on target to be one of those "go-to" guys until an injury sidelined him. One of the positive developments was the pressure Derek Abney applied on Quentin McCord.

What about Dougie Allen's return from a knee injury?

We're going to make Dougie's decision on what is best for him and we won't know that until he's gone through two-a-days (in August)," Mumme said. "He looks good now, but when you're going out there and going twice a day and that thing starts swelling up, we'll probably redshirt him. If not, we'll probably let him play."

DEFENSIVE LINE

Defensive coordinator Mike Major's emphasis this spring was on achieving more physical play and I think progress was made

Dennis Johnson appeared to have picked up where he left off in a strong Music City Bowl performance and may be ready for an All-SEC caliber season. And Major had strong praise for the development of Chris Demaree over the course of spring drills.

Tackle is another matter, though. John Robinson and Grayson Smith have the starting jobs for now, but look for freshman Dwayne Robertson and Jeremy Caudill to figure prominently in the mix this dard buzzwords in the realm of organized sports today.

With each hiring and firing of a team coach, the term motivation, or a derivation thereof, is always a principal part of the verbiage accompanying the ceremony.

The newly-hired mentor invariably possesses the most necessary attribute of being a great motivator. Some years later when he's being shown the door among the reasons for his departure is usually his inability to motivate the players.

Chuck Noll, who directed the Pittsburgh Steelers to four winning Super Bowl appearances during the 1970s, once said, "The championships we won were due mostly to the talent we put on the field. But the other three or four titles we should've

> Be assured Noll said this with tongue in cheek. He didn't believe that motivation came from anywhere but within the performer himself. If you're a pro then you report ready to give it your best shot - all the time. That's what the check in your envelope is all about.

Oh, if it was only that simple.

Bill Parcells, most recently the field boss of the New York Jets, said, "The toughest part of coaching is getting the players to care, to put out their best effort on Sundays. It takes all the ingenuity I've got to get the job

In the case of Parcells, as with other highly successful coaches such as Noll, Vince Lombardi and Red Auerbach, ingenuity took the form of instilling fear into their charges. Simply put, "it's my way or the high-get it right, or you get so sick of me you'll throw up," he would bellow. "It's your call."

On the sidelines during a game, Parcells wouldn't hesitate to dress down an errant player for shoddy and lackluster technique.

'You don't wanna do the job then get out of here, get dressed," he could be heard to shout. "Nothing is better than what you're doing.'

Lombardi and Auerbach made it clear that the players careers were on the line day in and day out. And the payback for a halfhearted effort was pain, the agony of practice sessions and the grinding repetition they promised.

John Havlicek, one of the Boston Celtics great stars, recalled, "Some days it was pure hell. Red created drills that kept you running and jumping up and down the court for what seemed hours. At the end of practice we ran sprints and the winners got to sit out while the others ran again. Those days were really long."

Ultimately, the front office called him in and suggested he try a more sensitive approach. But a leopard can't change its spots and now the Rams are world champions.

Former Oakland Raiders field general John Madden said, "A lot of players nowadays are real prima donnas. Things don't go their way, they don't feel they're being used right or enough, so they pout. Go into a shell. Then you have to make a real effort to stroke them, get them involved. Make them feel wanted. It's nothing like the old days.'

When Hall-of-Fame linebacker Dick Butkus called it a day as a player, he had offers to coach but turned them down out of hand.

"The attitude of many players entering the league when I was finishing up bothered me," he said. "A lot of them always had this question. Why? Why do I have to do this? Why do I have to do that?

Thunder Ridge season opener

The first green flag of the season Morris, fourth went to the M6 of flew over a good field of cars in five big classes of racing last Saturday night. It was a good night for racing with temperatures in the 60s at race time and falling into the 50s at the end of the racing.

First up was qualifying in all five classes with the newest addition to the Thunder Ridge family taking to the track first - the 4-cylinders. Leading the way in qualifying was the 84 car but at press time no other information was known.

Next up was the Bombers' turn to qualify and after all 16 cars had taken a turn, the 81 car of Benny Butcher was the quickest.

Next up was the Sportsman's class. Sportsman's class is the Super Bombers from last year but with a few modifications to the cars. When the qualifying was over, the 23 of Mike Morris was the quickest.

Next was the U.M.P. Modifieds' turn with the largest turnout of all the classes with a total of 21 cars taking a qualifying time. But when they had all qualified, the 51 of Greg Ison was the quickest of the field.

Next the Road Hogs took a turn at qualifying with the 128 of Keith Branham taking top honors.

Winners of the heat races were:

■ In the 4-cylinder division was the 84. No driver information was

■ In the first Bomber heat the 81 of Benny Butcher held on to win a very competitive race. In the second heat 46 Dennis DeBoard was victorious.

■ In the Sportsman division it was 23 Mike Morris taking the checkered

■ In the first of two U.M.P. Modified heats the 12 of Don Adams was the leader when the checkered flag fell to take the pole for the feature. And the 10c of Gary Combs claimed the outside pole by winning the second heat race.

■ The final heat race was in the Road Hog division with the 128 of Keith Branham getting top honors to take the pole in the feature.

The 4-Cylinder Feature rolled out next with the 18k of D.I. and the 00 of Patrick Morris on the front row as they came to the green flag. But it didn't take long for car 84 to make its way to the front from the third-place starting position.

But the No.8 of Brent Maynard did something that had never been seen before at Thunder Ridge. He flipped his 4-cylinder for the second time of the evening, with the first time coming on the very first lap of the very first hot lap session of the evening.

But the 84 would hold on to take the victory in the first feature race of the night. Coming in second was the 18k of D.I. Third went to Patrick Freddy D and rounding out the top five was the 8 of Brent Maynard.

Next out was the Bomber feature with the 81 of Benny Butcher and the 46 of Dennis DeBoard alongside. At the drop of the green flag DeBoard took the early lead. But behind DeBoard the caution flew early as the 2x of Tandy Spurlock ran into trouble and was sent to the tail of the 15-car field for the restart.

When the green flag came back out, Spurlock was on the move, showing why he is defending Bomber champion by picking his spots and being patient until the end of the race. But Spurlock ran out of time at the end of the race and was only able to work his way up to third and was closing in on second. But up front, the 46 of Dennis DeBoard kept the lead throughout with the 44 of Danny Lowe in second and the 2x of Tandy Spurlock in third. Fourth was Randy Fannin and rounding out the top five was the 35 of Daryl Sexton.

Next out was the Sportsman feature and the 23 of Mike Morris and defending Super Bomber Champion 19 of Jamie Slone on the front row.

At the drop of the green flag Morris jumped out to the early lead and the 15 of Brandon Mason took second, dropping Slone to third. Morris was as smooth as the racing surface they were running on and was never really challenged throughout the entire race, leading wire to wire to pick up an impressive win in impressive fashion.

Finishing second behind Mike Morris was the 15 of Brandon Mason. In third was the 19 of Jamie Slone and in fourth was the 43k of Kevin Hall. Rounding out the top five was the 00 of Jeremy Livingood.

Next was the U.M.P. Modified feature with the 12 of Don Adams and the 10c of Gary Combs leading the 20-car field to the green. As is usually the case in this division, things were wild and wooly from the start.

As Don Adams took the early lead with Combs and the rest of the field in close pursuit, it didn't take long for the cautions to start flying. But when the green flag was out, the racing was close and exciting with close racing all from the front on back.

Ison was able to work by Combs in the early going and stayed parked on the back of Adams' bumper all race and took a look under Adams a few times. But Adams was able to hold off the runs of Ison. And at the checkered flag Adams was able to hold off Ison for the win with Ison in second. Third was the 35 but no information was available. Fourth was the 10c of Gary Combs and rounding out the top five was the 911 of Kurt Hofsess, who worked his way up from the tail of the field to record this top five finish.

The last race of the evening was the Road Hog feature with the 128 of Keith Branham and the R7 of Ryan Risner on the front row.

Branham jumped out to the early lead and the 94 of Paul Wooton came from his fourth starting position to second by the end of the first lap. But Branham was very consistant each lap and held on to win the feature with the 94 of Paul Wooton in second. Third was the 926 of Joey Stanley, fourth was the R7 of Ryan Risner and fifth was the 12 of Thomas Blackman.

The track was in great shape all night long. One driver who usually doesn't race at Thunder Ridge told Brad the track was in good shape and said he would come back to race at Thunder Ridge soon. From watching the racing action, the track looked slick but drivers call that a drivers track and a lot of drivers like it that

Next week, more of the same from this week with five big classes of racing on tap, including a special for the Sportman's division paying $1,000.00 to win as well as regular racing in all other divisions.

Wethington wins Red Man Mountain Division event on Lake Cumberland

MONTICELLO -Gerald earned $993 with five bass weighing Wethington of Columbia earned $4,580 and 50 CITGO Challenge Points Saturday for winning the boater side of the Red Man Tournament Trail's Mountain Division event on Lake Cumberland.

Wethington caught four bass weighing 13 pounds, 6 ounces during the one-day event to edge out Kendall Robinson of Lancaster who finished with a four-bass catch of 12-7 worth $2,290. Wethington caught his bass on a 3/8-ounce green flipping jig with a green pork chunk trailer.

Ken Davis of Cincinnati, Ohio, took third place and collected $1,145 with four bass weighing 10-0. Rex Huff of Corbin placed fourth and 9-12, while John Daniel of Bowling Green, placed fifth and earned $916 with four bass weighing 9-1. Daniel also won the Berkley

Power Bait award, a package of baits valued at $200, for the heaviest overall catch on Power Bait or Frenzy

David Lawson of Richmond won the Abu Garcia Big Bass Award in the Boater Division and collected $670 for a 4-pound, 13-ounce bass.

First place in the Co-Angler Division and $2,290 went to Shane Brock of Corbin for two bass weighing 7-11. Second place in the Co-Angler Division and $1,145 went to Michael Hampton of Corbin for two bass weighing 3-1, while Ray Allen of London took third place and $572 with one bass weighing 2-15.

Brock won the co-angler Abu Garcia Big Bass Award of $335 for a 5-pound, 8-ounce bass. On June 3, the Red Man Tournament Trail will visit Lake Cumberland for the third of five events in the Mountain Division. The boater with the most CITGO Challenge points after the division's season finale, a two-day Super Tournament Sept. 23-24 on the Barren River, will be declared the Divisional Points Champion and awarded $1,000. The co-angler amassing the most points by the end of the season will receive $500.

BUSCH SERIES ROOKIES LOOKING TO CATCH A BREAK AT NHIS

Each rookie in this year's Busch Series is looking to catch that one big break that will make him a fixture in the Busch Series for years t

All of these rookies will be looking to catch that break when they visit New Hampshire International Speedway for the Busch 200 on May 13. Over the years, NHIS has been a track where anyone can win, as in the previous 13 Busch Series events held at "The Magic Mile," there have been 13 different winners. While all of these drivers are rookies to the Busch Series, several of them have raced at NHIS in other series and visited victory

However, in order to get to the Busch Series they have each needed to break in from someplace else. What makes this rookie class so unique is the impressive credentials that each driver brings to the series from a variety of motorsports disciplines including stock cars, open wheel, road racing and karting.

Profiles of the 14 rookie drivers that are probable entries in the Busch 200 at New Hampshire International Speedway on May 13:

· Mike Borkowski. Borkowski comes to the NASCAR Busch

Series via SCCA, where he was the Mike was the SCCA Pro Title winner in Sports 2000 and Formula 2000 in 1993 and 1994, and recorded a SCCA Regional championship at the age of 17. Hailing from Middlebury, Conn., Borkowski has two wins on the 1.6-mile road course at NHIS. He is driving the No. 20 AT&T Pontiac for Bill · Derrick Gilchrist. Gilchrist drove for Ken Schrader on the ASA/AC Delco Challenge Series last year, finishing 10th in the final point standings. Prior to that, Derrick competed on the NASCAR Slim Jim All Pro Series. He finished second in points in 1998 with two victories, and was voted the series Most Improved Driver in 1997. Gilchrist drives the No. 82 Channel Lock Chevrolet that Sterling Marlin steered to victory earlier in the season at Bristol.

· Kevin Harvick. Kevin is a graduate of the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series, where he finished 12th last season with 11 top-ten finishes. Harvick has two starts in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series at "The Magic Mile," with his best finish being a seventh in 1998. The Bakersfield California native was also the 1998 Winston West champion. Kevin is driving the No. 2 AC Delco Chevrolet for Winston Cup owner Richard · Ricky Hendrick. Hendrick is the son of well-known Winston sive road racing background and Cup car owner Rick Hendrick. Hendrick is running a partial season in the No. 24 Pepsi Chevrolet.

1997 Trans-Am Rookie of the Year. and 1998 NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series champion, and he is for Cal Wells, the all-time win leader in that series with 25 victories. Hornaday won the inaugural NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series event at NHIS in 1996. Ron is also a two-time Featherlite Southwest Series champion. Hornaday drives the No. 3 NAPA Chevrolet for Dale Earnhardt, Inc. that Dale Jr. drove to two NASCAR Busch Series

> Jimmie Johnson. Johnson comes to the Busch Series from the American Speed Association, finishing third in the ASA point standings last season. Prior to that, Johnson was an off-road racer, claiming several titles along the way including the 1994 SCORE Desert championship and three Mickey Thompson Stadium championships. Johnson drives the No. 92 ALLTEL Chevrolet.

> · P.J. Jones. Son of the legendary Parnelli Jones, P.J. raced in CART from 1996 to 1999. Last season he recorded four top-ten finishes in CART, including a second place effort at Nazareth. Jones also has previous stock car experience, making several NASCAR Winston Cup and Winston West starts. Jones will be driving the No. 19 Yellow Freight Chevrolet.

· Anthony Lazzaro, Lazzaro, who hails from Aeworth, Georgia, is the 1999 KOOL Toyota Atlantic champion. Lazzaro has an extenhas claimed victory in the Rolex 24 hours at Daytona, and also has karting championships and Formula

ves the No. 97 McDonald's Ford

• Jason Leffler, Leffler enters the Busch Series having won threestraight USAC Midget national titles from 1997-1999, becoming one of only three drivers in USAC history to accomplish the feat. The Long Beach, California driver won 27 races during his midget career, including his first when he was just 20 years old. Leffler is also the 1998 USAC Silver Crown champion. Jason pilots the No. 18 MBNA Pontiac for Joe Gibbs Racing.

· Ashton Lewis. Lewis is running a limited schedule this season driving No. 46 for his familyowned team.

· Phillip Morris. Morris honed his skills driving in the NASCAR Weekly Racing Series. In 1998 Morris was the runner-up in Late Model points at South Boston Speedway in Virginia, scoring 15 victories in 21 starts. Morris scored 30 victories overall that year. Phillip has 80 feature victories since 1987. Morris, a graduate of Longwood College in Virginia, will be looking to make his first start at NHIS driving the No. 30 Little Trees Chevrolet.

. Jay Sauter. Sauter is another graduate of the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series, where he finished fifth in the final point standings in 1999, scoring two victories. Sauter scored his first NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series victory at NHIS in 1997 driving for Richard Childress. Prior to that, Sauter raced on the ASA circuit. The son of former Winston Cup dri-

43 Chevrolet owned by Mike Curb.

· Jason Schuler. Being from Wisconsin, Jason is following in the footsteps of a number of topnotch drivers. Among those is the man he is sharing the Visine Chevrolet driving duties with Matt Kenseth. Jason claimed the ARTGO Rookie of the Year title in 1997. In 1998 Schuler joined the newly-formed REMAX Challenge Series, and was named the series Most Popular Driver, Jason finished third in the series point standings in 1999.

. Mike Stefanik. Mike made a name for himself by becoming the first driver to record championships in two NASCAR Touring divisions in the same season, scoring both the Featherlite Modified Series and the Busch North Series crowns in 1997. Stefanik then repeated the feat in 1998. With 58 career Featherlite Modified Series wins, • Ron Hornaday, Ron is the 1996 Ford wins to his credit, Lazzaro dri- ver Jim Sauter, Jay pilots the No. Mike is the most successful driver in the history of the series. He is coming off a very successful season in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series where he was crowned the USG Sheet rock Rookie of the Year. Stefanik is piloting the No. 90 Coyne Textile Services Chevrolet for a limited schedule in 2000.

While all these rookies come from varied backgrounds, they all share one thing in common. When the checkered flag falls on the Busch 200 on May 13, they all want to be the first driver across the finish line, giving them the break they need to become the next superstar in the NASCAR Busch Series.

Good reserved seat tickets are available and can be purchased at the gate on race day, or by calling Speedway Guest Services at (603) 783-4931, or by visiting the Web Site, Speedway's www.nhis.com to purchase tickets

WWF Smackdown/Heat Taping Results (Spoilers)

M Sunday Night Heat

Head Cheese vs. Hardys. Head Cheese was over huge. The Hardys won when Jeff hit the Swanton Bomb on Steve Blackman to a huge pop. After the match, Al Snow apologized to Blackman, and brought out Harvey Cottontail (Harvey Whippleman in a bunny outfit). Harvey said "Have an Egg-cellent Easter, Steve." Blackman then attacked Snow. Head Cheese is done.

Hardcore Holly came out and cut a promo on Perry Saturn to no heat. They had a match. which ended in a double DQ when both men shoved down the referee. After the match, Holly hit Perry with a stop sign, and when Saturn recovered, he chased Holly to the back.

Jericho, saying he was never a tonight. champion and making references to his own WCW Title reign that was erased from the records. The promo got good heat. Jericho came out and said Benoit would be a great wrestler in the 1960s, but this is the year 2000. He challenged Benoit to a title match, and the two ended up getting into a huge brawl. They fought to the back, where Jericho applied the Walls of Jericho, and Benoit starting tapping, which got a huge pop from

The final match on Heat was Faarooq vs. Bull Buchanan. Faarooq hit a spinebuster, and the Big Bossman ran in, attacking Faarooq. Bradshaw came in, but was double teamed, until Kane came out, chokeslamming Bossman, and running off the heels to end the show.

M Smackdown

Road Dogg came out and called out either Edge or match when Scotty pinned Christian for a match. Edge all the fans that chanted those TAKA with a bulldog off the top came out, and Road Dogg got three letters, why ECW sucks rope. After the match, Malenko the win when he reversed put Scotty in the Texas Edge's rollup attempt from out

In the back, Shane McMahon Chris Benoit, in streetclothes, told HHH and Stephanie that that since Eddie was in such a cut a heel promo on Chris they would divide and conquer tonight. HHH came out with Stephanie, and the two got a lot of heat. The fans chanted "a at him, and he ripped on them for it. He said the record shows he never lost on Monday, and that Monday never happened. He then talked about Linda, saying he wasn't going to hit her with the Pedigree, he was just trying to scare her. He said that Shane was a "hothead" for reacting the way he did, but HHH forgave him, because he was just being a "mama's boy." He ripped on Linda for bringing back Austin, and the crowd popped just at hearing his name.

HHH then announced that the Rock would have tons of people in his corner tonight, because he had to face Chris Jericho (who Helmsley called the "Ayatollah of Buttholah" in a lumberjack match, and that Shane was going to pick the lumberjacks.

HHH was then interrupted by Tazz, who came out to a huge pop, wearing the ECW World Title belt. There was a loud "ECW" chant. Tazz challenged him to a match tonight, and chastised him for not taking his loss to Jericho like a man. HHH accepted the challenge of Tazz, and then mentioned the ECW title by name, and acknowledged the chants of the fans. HHH said he was going to show and why the WWF is great.

We found out that Eddie Guerrero passed his GED. Chyna was with Lita, and said good mood, Essa Rios would be given another chance tonight.

In the back, Stephanie Tyson from two years ago and McMahon got Kurt Angle to be a lumberjack.

Chyna and Lita were going to go at it in the ring, when Chyna saw the Dudleys going for a table. Chyna left Lita to be sacrificed to the Dudleys, as Lita took a second rope powerbomb through a table. Lita had to be carried Rikishi vs. Big Show. Show wore his regular outfit, said he was known as "Big Funky" in Philly. They had a dance contest. Show went first, to a big pop. Rikishi then went, and also got a pop. While he was dancing Show attacked him, and the crowd booed. During the bout, Show did his version of the Worm, to a pop. They ended up clotheslining each other to the floor, and the match ended in a double count out, which the crowd booed. Rikishi then called the Big Show back to dance, and the crowd loved it, as they both donned sunglasses and danced. Show went for high five, Riskishi kicked him, knocking him out, and took the glasses and left.

They aired footage of the upcoming Gladiator movie. Kurt Angle said he was a modern day gladiator, and he might be in the sequel. He also remarked that Big Show was a former WWF champion, and now he's a joke. He said he will beat Benoit for IC belt tonight.

Tazz then took on HHH with Stephanie. The crowd saw Tommy Dreamer in the aisleway, and cheered for him. Tazz was in control early, then HHH. The fans popped for near falls by Tazz. He locked in the Tazzmission at one point, but HHH escaped. Helmsley was about to Pedigree Tazz, when Dreamer got up on the apron. HHH shoved him to the floor, so Dreamer grabbed a chair and got in the ring. He swung for Helmsley, but he ducked, and Dreamer accidentally hit Tazz by mistake, HHH hit a Pedigree on Dreamer on the chair, then covered the unconscious Tazz

Tommy Dreamer is backstage at the Smackdown tapings in Philadelphia, Pa. He has been seen talking on the phone to Paul Heyman throughout the day and will take part in an angle with Tazz and Triple H which will air on Smackdown.

WWF officials believe it is beneficial to the WWF to have ECW remain healthy and viable. and believe use of ECW talent occassionally is also beneficial to WWF ratings. Tonight Tazz is expected to get the same rub from the angles at Smackdown that Chris Jericho received at Raw last night.

In unrelated news, Jimmy Snuka is also backstage, but it's unknown whether he will appear

1 1300 Well Done

WCW

WCW put on a great show this past Sunday, and everything clicked as this is the complete opposite of what Uncensored was. Angles, even though not well developed, were interesting, the crowd was really into it and many angles continued. Hulk Hogan made a cameo by helping eliminate Kidman from the US

Title Tournament. Tammy Lynn Sytch debuted in WCW, Brian Clark and Brian Adams debuted, and that was just some of what happened! Truley a great night for WCW!

First off, my heart goes out to the family of Masakazu Fukuda, who died only a few hours ago.

Rowdy Roddy Piper is expected to return to WCW to finish out his deal as a member of the Millionaires Club. Piper reportedly has six or so more PPV's left on his contract, so he may be gone after this run.

Dustin Rhodes' "shoot" gimmick doesn't seem to be getting over with the fans terribly well, so look for a possible return to a Goldust-ish gimmick in several weeks - the earlier proposed 7ven gimmick may see new life.

Bischoff and Russo are now working closely as a team, where Russo writes and Bischoff takes care of clearing it with Standards and Practices, saving Russo time and aggrava-

Mark Madden, on WCW LIVE!, reported that Spring Stampede got a 0.27 buyrate. This is double the last PPV buyrate, .13, of Uncensored and higher than Souled Out, .25, which was the #4 purchased sports PPV of this year.

Tag Title Tourney Semifinals: Team Package vs. Mamalukes All 4 men have gotten into the ring after a lengthly entrance by Luger. Russo then came out and said that the playing field was not level. He then called out the Harris Boys to help the Mamalukes. The match started with Mamalukes/Harris Boys attacking Flair and Package. Flair and Package after 3 or 4 minutes fought them all off as Flair paired off with the Mamalukes and Package with Harris Boys. Flair had Johnny the Bull in the figure four at one point but Vito broke it up. The match then went into a traditional format with it being four on two. Flair was in the ring for the first few minutes as the New Blood dominated the match and would not allow him to tag. When Flair finally made the tag the ref did not see it. Finally, in the end, with a Torture Rack, TEAM PACKAGE WINS!

Mancow vs. Jimmy Hart

Mancow defeated Jimmy Hart with a chairshot to the head. Mancow came out with a entourage and Hart came out with Hail. Hail tossed Mancow around with very little action other than Hart/Mancow rolling around the ring. Mancow won after hitting Hart with a chair. Afterword Kidman came out and attacked Mancow.

■ US Title Tourney: Scott Stiener vs. The Wall

The match started out slow with Stiner in control. Tons of power moves as the match was pretty stiff. After a few minutes the Wall got control and held control in a similar way that Steiner did. Announcers are putting over that Wall could be a upset pick. Steiner got the advantage back as they brawled onto the floor. Wall reverse irish whipped Steiner into the guardrails and went for a table. Steiner made a comeback and satup the table. He went to suplex him but Wall blocked it. He then went to chokeslam but Steiner blinded him and Wall grabbed the ref and chokeslammed him. Steiner won by DQ.

McDowell man picks banjo cross-country

by Pam Shingler Lifestyles Editor

A banjo - and his exceptional skill at playing it has taken Troy Howell from the head of Frasure's Creek to all over the United States.

Howell's music led him to California several times for benefit appearances with the cast of "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Petticoat Junction" and "Bonanza."

He and his band, The Big Sandy Boys, have played in gambling casinos in Nevada, have opened for his musical idol, Ralph Stanley, and have performed extensively from Florida to Pennsylvania to Michigan and most of the eastern half of the country.

He refers to the time spent in the casinos as "scary days - getting up in front of all those drunks, some who'd just lost all their money.'

Howell and The Big Sandy Boys traveled mostly on weekends and racked up hundreds of thousands of miles, taking their local name and their Stanley-style bluegrass everywhere they could get a stage.

The original band was formed 35 years ago, Howell says, and included Emil Carroll on guitar, Roy Spurlock on fiddle, Ray Spurlock on bass, and Carlos Jackson on mandolin. "We all played together for 16 or 17 years," says Howell, the banjo picker.

These days, the core of the band is Howell, his son, Jack, on guitar and lead vocals, and Cleveland Brown, on bass. They are joined occasionally by other players,

"I can't hit the road like I used to," says the 66-yearold retired miner, who uses a motor home for most of his traveling now.

Quilting still

He has also switched from bluegrass to "mostly gospel," which he attributes to aging. "As I got older, I got to wanting to do more gospel," he says.

However, he still follows Ralph Stanley. "He's about the only true bluegrass (player) left in the business.'

Howell learned to play the banjo when he was a young teen-ager and was helped along by Billy Edwards of the Lonesome Pine Fiddlers.

When he was a child, he heard his mother, the late Marigold Osborne Howell, pick a banjo claw-hammer style, as well a play the fiddle. "She quit because she was afraid she would be turned out of the church," he says, noting that her church did not approve of music.

Howell became a coal miner when he was 17 and still a student at McDowell High School, following in the footsteps of his father, the late Bee Howell, who mined for 46 years.

When he was laid off or a mine where he worked shut down. Troy Howell would take off to other parts of the country to do construction work or whatever jobs he could pick up, all the time keeping up his music and every time coming back to the home place on Frasure's Creek, which he refers to as "the ritzy section

After a heart attack made him retire from the mines in 1985, Howell bought a house in Elgin, South Carolina, thinking the climate would improve his

In a word

Words are strange little fellers. Even though we'd have a terrible time communicating without them, you've got to wonder about them sometimes. I mean, how did we ever come up with some of the things we call certain things? Surely, I'm not the only one who ever thinks about stuff like that. At one time or another, everybody must have wondered about why they call it a "hamburger." It doesn't make a lick of sense since it has no ham in it. Even some of those little every day, ordinary words we take for granted bother me sometimes. Like the words "toothbrush," for instance. "Tooth" is singular. So, why isn't it called a "teethbrush?" We brush them all, don't we? Unless, of course, we just drop

'em into a glass and soak 'em. Did you ever wonder why we drink coffee from a teacup and tea from a water glass? Or, why folks who loaf on a "sofa" (why isn't it called a "lofa") are called "couch" potatoes?

It sure makes me wonder.

Then, there are those ordinary things that have names that many of us didn't even realize had names. Like the little plastic tip of a shoelace, for instance. That's called an "aglet." Did you know that the hole in a pencil sharpener where we put the pencil is called a "chuck?" Or that the slit made with a knife or a saw is called a

"kerf?" To me, some things we call things just don't make sense. Skunks, do though, but did you know that the word "scent" comes from the Latin word "sentire" which means "to feel?" Now, that's kind of strange in itself, especially when one realizes that we "scent" with our nose and "feel" with our fingers. Personally, I'm kinda glad that's the way it is.

Can you imagine someone saying, "Stick your nose to that radiator and see if it's hot?"

I'd prefer to use my finger, if you don't mind. The word "finger?" It's based on a Greek word for "five." That's kind of reasonable since we have five on each hand. However, since we also have five toes on each foot, wonder why we don't call our toes "fingers" too?

Then we could say, "I can't understand why my fingers are cold. I've got on three pairs of socks." And, Tiny Tim could have "tip-fingered through the tulips."

A tulip is a flower. So is a rose. Since "rose" is the past tense for "rise," doesn't it make sense, then, that yesterday's roses should be referred to as "rises?" "What used to be planted here,

"Why, last summer, we had

'rises' planted, my son." And since, as Hemingway says,

"the sun also rises," why aren't roses called sunflowers? It just doesn't add up.

Some snakes do, though. Some snakes are adders. Then again, so are mathematicians. And speaking of such, did you know that the highest number recognized in math is called a "centillion?" This is a one, followed by 600 zeros.

"Zero" is taken from a French word meaning the absence of magnitude or quantity.

Somehow it seems appropriate for me to end this particular col-

She and I exchange e-mail messages almost every day. Sometimes we might just send a line or two, and at other times we have more to tell. But a few weeks ago she sent a message that said, "I'm a bit weary this evening as I had a difficult day. The manager of one of the apartment complexes needed help in dealing with a crazy woman and it wore us both out."

When I replied, I asked, "Whatever would a woman

do to cause you to describe her as crazy?"

Nancy didn't reply until the next evening, but she said, "I knew you would question that description. The woman had been doing some strange things and the man-

Scholarship Fund will begin in the fall and continue through 2021.

Recipients will have a number of choices for postsecondary education with the help of the scholarship funds. Nine schools will administer the fund: Alice Lloyd College; Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State universities: University of Kentucky; Hazard and Prestonsburg community colleges; Hazard and Mayo Technical colleges; and Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine.

The scholarships, according to the Varias, will range from $250 to $1,000 and are renewable up to four years for undergraduate or graduate credit. The scholarships can be used for tuition, fees, books, room, board or other educational expenses.

The Varias are originally from India but have lived and practiced their specialties in Martin since 1979. They credit their philosophy of giving to their parents, who, they say, instilled in them the concept of giving back to the community.

Dr. Mahendra is also involved in the community as a member of the Martin City Council. "I find serving on the council is one way I can give back to the community," he said.

To celebrate Dr. Mahendra's birthday, they plan an official announcement of the scholarship on June 18 at the Mountain Arts Center, with Gov. and Mrs. Paul Patton.

Students interested in the scholarships should contact their high school counselors or the financial aid offices of the participating higher education institutions they plan to attend.

NEW SCHOOLS FOR OUR CHILDREN

Floyd County has the newest and most modern school facilities available anywhere in the Commonwealth. This wasn't always the case.

Beginning in the mid-80's, state money in unprecedented amounts was made available to Floyd County for upgrading the school facilities for our children.

Today, new schools stand out across Floyd County. Betsy Layne High School and Elementary School, renovated Prestonsburg High School, the new South Floyd High and Middle School of Left Beaver Creek, Duff Elementary on Right Beaver, May Valley near Martin, the Allen Elementary School, and the Adams Middle School in Prestonsburg attest to the major building program we have undertaken for the children of Floyd County.

We are not finished. We need to secure the funds for the new elementary schools on Left Beaver and a new school on Mud Creek, and all of us are working on this. We have also made a major investment in the football fields at Betsy Layne, South Floyd, Allen Central, and Prestonsburg. Our children deserve the best, and we are working every day to see to it that they have the best facilities available to children anywhere.

"I was born and reared in Floyd County, on Left Beaver Creek. I taught school at Prestonsburg and Wheelwright High School. Most of my family live in Floyd County. I know of the importance of having up-to-date, modern school facilities, and I have worked hard in the Legislature to help secure these funds for our children. Working with local officials, the Floyd County School Board and Administration and Rep. Greg. Stumbo, we have secured the state assistance to give our children the very best school facilities," states Senator Bailey. "I will continue to work hard to guarantee that the needs, dreams and aspirations of Floyd County's children are supported by Kentucky state government." Working hard for us. That's why it's important to keep Benny Ray Bailey in the State Senate.

Use care, caution and planning if leaving your child home alone

by Kathie Dickenson Radford University

In businesses across the country, worker productivity tends to drop by about 68 percent between 2:30 and 5 p.m. each day.

If you're a working parent, you probably know why.

With 14 percent of white women and 45 percent of African American women in the United States living as single heads of households, "a lot of children are being left alone," says Chloe Tischler, a Radford University criminal justice professor, former probation officer and mother of two.

Those after-school hours can be fraught with phone calls dealing with homework, sibling conflicts. emergencies or just plain loneliness.

Nevertheless, financial constraints and lack of a support system lead many parents to leave children alone. And whether you're a single parent, part of a two-parent working team, or an at-home parent who has frequent errands to run, the time will come for you to consider leaving

Tischler offers advice on determining your child's readiness to be on her own and on safety precautions to remember when you take

In determining readiness, says Tischler, the biggest trap for parents is going by age rather than by maturity, which varies with individual children and is "by far the greater

That being said, she offers a general rule of thumb on age: "Never leave a child under the age of eight alone. Preferably, the child should be older than 11.7

Studies show that between the ages of seven and nine, children often go through a period of fear that a parent will leave and not return.

"When a parent leaves and the child is alone," says Tischler, "the child perceives the situation but doesn't believe the parent is coming

Parents also need to be aware of their local and state laws, says Tischler. If a child under a certain age is left alone and comes to harm, the parents could be charged with criminal neglect.

Even at the age of 11 or older, some children are not ready to be alone. Tischler suggests a few guidelines for gauging your child's matu-

· Can your child manage the home? For example, could she open a storm window or a sticky basement door if there were a fire and she needed to escape? Could she find the extra key if she left hers at school? Does she know what a fuse box is and not to touch it, or, if permitted, could she replace a fuse if one blew

· Does your child have a history of anticipating and avoiding danger?

. Does your child need excessive supervision to complete a chore? Does he follow rules at home and school? These are good gauges as to the child's willingness to follow guidelines when you're not around.

· A child who expresses eagerness to be left alone is not necessarily ready for the responsibility, so use your judgment, not the child's.

. On the other hand, if you begin to discuss the possibility and your child expresses fearfulness, don't disregard her fears, even if you're convinced she is mature enough to handle being alone.

Instead, says Tischler, look for the source of fear. Is your child reading scary books or watching scary movies? Maybe those should be eliminated. Has there been a frightening story in the news? Talk to your child about it.

Once you determine readiness, says Tischler, conversation with your child should begin with why you're thinking of allowing him to because you feel he is ready. "You don't want him to feel neglected," she says. "You want him to feel your confidence." Again, if he expresses fears, you must take them stay alone, emphasizing that it's seriously. The number one thing to do in preparing a child to be left alone," says Tischler, "is role playing-and repetition. It's not enough to go over something once and then leave saying, 'Remember what we talked about!"

Role playing should begin well before you're ready to let your child stay alone. Come up with many scenarios and go over them again and

For example, unplug the phone and pretend someone's calling: 'Hello, I'm in front of your house, and I think I've hit your dog with my car, or it might be your neighbor's dog. Can you come out and identify

The answer should be "No," of course, but ask the question many different ways, imagining different strategies someone might use to convince a child to come outside.

Tischler says role playing can often reveal what your child knows or is able to do. For example, during a role play that required a 911 call, her younger child said she couldn't find the "91" on the phone.

Many parents are worried that role playing dangerous situations will make their children afraid. Not so, says Tischler. Role playing and emergency plans will make them feel confident. They will be much more afraid if they have no idea what they would do when something happens. Examples of other situations you might role play:

 strange noises . coming home to find the door

· a pet escaping from the house No matter how imaginatively and consistently you have role played. there will be situations when the child just doesn't know what to do. For example, "A man came to the door with a package and he just kept knocking and shouting that he knew someone was home. I didn't know what to do, so I opened the door. Tischler calls these "check-itout" times. The child should know she can call the parent or some other Tischler says to work at establishing a "comfort zone" in the home. 'Have phones available in different areas of the house. For example, if a child is afraid, she might want to go into a closet, or a bathroom where she can lock the door, and call for help. There might even be a phone in an outside shed.

Tischler recommends these safety guidelines for children who are · Don't answer the door, not even for acquaintances. Most offenses against children are committed by acquaintances, not strangers, says Tischler. "We over-emphasize strangers, but we need to help children use precautions around people they know as well.'

Older children feel more of an obligation to answer the door than do younger ones, she says. "You'll need to role play many situations with them so they'll feel comfortable not doing it."

If you're worried a burglar will assume someone is not at home and try to come in, keep a television or radio on. If a person will not go away from the door, the child can call 911 or make a "check-it-out"

· Have a phone code. Tell the child not to answer the phone unless he hears the code. For instance, a parent can ring once, hang up and call again.

. Establish a code word that only parent and children know. If a stranger or acquaintance comes around and says, "Your mom is sick and she asked me to pick you up," the child can say "What's the code word?" He'll know it's not true if they don't know the word.

· When coming home from school, don't stop to check the mail. Go straight inside the house. Someone who is watching can use the brief interval when the child is pausing and paying attention to the mail to make a move.

. Don't walk the dog. Besides the fact that it takes the child away from the house, perpetrators sometimes use the dog to get close to a child. Don't assume the dog will serve as protection.

· Don't leave bikes or toys in the front yard. They are a signal that children live there.

· Have a first aid kit handy and make sure the child understands how ·Establish guidelines about having friends over. It may not be a good idea to allow friends over when you're not home, says Tischler. But if you're considering it, make sure trusted adult who will give her you know how they play together. A child who would never consider doing something dangerous alone may try it when with a friend.

· Make sure children know what's off limits. May they go into the back yard? Into a neighbor's · Establish guidelines for sibling conflicts. The number one reported problem of children at home alone is that of sibling conflict, says Tischler. It's a mistake to advise children to put conflicts on hold until the parent comes home. "The conflict will only escalate," she says.

Be respectful of your older children. Don't overburden them with responsibility or create a situation in which they may become bossy and create resentment in younger siblings. It may be wise to hire a sitter for younger children but allow the older child to be on her own.

· Establish guidelines for Internet use. Tischler's guideline is very simple: "I don't think children should be allowed to use the Internet when parents are not at home. I wouldn't invite a stranger into my home when I'm not there, and that's just what you're doing when you allow the

If you think the temptation will be too strong for your child to resist, "You can take the cord to work with you," she says.

If you feel that's too strict, or you think your child is mature enough to use the computer alone, you can contact your server about installing filters for objectionable sites or about tracking what sites are accessed.

. Have a check list of things children are supposed to do while you're gone, "Children need structure," says Tischler, "so provide some for their unsupervised time. You might want to set up a reward system for accomplishing tasks on the list."

· Make unscheduled check-ins. Occasionally call or go home when the child isn't expecting it. Just tell her you wanted to make sure everything was going okay. You don't have to make her feel threatened, but she'll know you're concerned and that you are keeping tabs on her.

Children left alone are three times more likely to be in accidents, to be delinquent or to be victimized than children who are supervised, says Tischler, so care and caution are in

'Some people think I'm too strict, but they haven't been out in the field like I have. They don't believe it would happen to them."

However, if approached with good judgment and sufficient preparation, this can be a stage in your child's development that is satisfying to you both.

Asthma camp seeks applications, from Big Sandy area youth

Children age 7-13 who live in the Big Sandy area, and have asthma, are encouraged to sign up for Camp Superkids 2000, a medically-staffed summer camp, July 23-28, at Camp Cedarmore in Bagdad, northeast of Shelbyville.

Camp Superkids is staffed round-the-clock by doctors, nurses, and respiratory therapists. The program offers children with asthma all the fun of a regular summer camp, plus lessons on how to control their asthma.

Because Camp Superkids is Kentucky's only weeklong, overnight summer camp for asthmatic children, it attracts youth from all across the state. However, according to camp director Joan Kruse the program is eager to recruit more children from the Big Sandy area.

"We can't yet cure asthma, but we know that with the right education and medication it can be controlled," said Kruse. "We want to make sure we're meeting the needs of children all across the state, including those in the Big Sandy area, in helping them take control of their asthma."

The American Lung Association estimates 60,000 children in Kentucky have asthma. This includes about 2,843 in the Big Sandy Health Department District alone. Counties included in this district are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

Nationwide, more than 4.8 million children have asthma, which is the leading cause of school days missed due to chronic illness. During the last 10 years, the number of asthma cases nationwide has increased 60 percent and the number of asthma-related deaths has doubled.

Now in its 12th year, Camp Superkids is co-sponsored by the American Lung Association of Kentucky and the Children's Hospital Foundation, a charitable organization that benefits Kosair Children's Hospital.

The cost for the camp is $50 per child, but this fee may be waived for those who request it. To get a set of application forms, including one that has to be filled out by the child's doctor, call 1-800-LUNG-USA or visit the ALA of the Kentucky's web site at www.kylung.org. The deadline to apply is June 25.

Avoiding pillow problems

by Dr. Jodi Mindell

(NAPSA)-Pillow problems are not only pillow fights, they can include sweat, dust mites, mold and Interestingly, pillow problems are not always easily recognized, with many Americans using the same pillows for years before replacing. Here are some suggestions that may help: · Since drool, sweat, mildew and bacteria can permeate pillowcases, it's imperative to wash pillows in hot water (130 degrees F.) every three to six months.

 It's also important to inspect your pillows twice a year, for example the first day of spring and the first day of fall. Wash stained or discolored pillows, and replace pillows that are flat, lumpy or torn. Consider replacing your pillows every one to three

Same building, new name. Save-A-Lot owner Paul Brown saw more than a little potential in the grocery building. Brown and his associates opened the doors to the new Save-A-Lot last Wednesday.

· Save-A-Lot opens in

by Randell Reno Staff Writer

With money tight for many Floyd County residents, squeezing every dime becomes a financial need, as well as a force of habit. Last Wednesday a new Save-A-Lot South Lake Drive.

Just inside the doors lie a show room of grocery products and a guarantee of savings.

"We've got quality and low price," says John Plummer, store manager.

Sealed under a Save A Lot label, you'll find grade A fancy vegetables, the highest quality product available, products like corn, peas, and green beans that will stand up to any name brand product, said Plummer.

"There is less water in this than there is in Stokely or Del Monte," he said. "Everything is top quality."

In addition to low-priced produce and canned vegetables, name brands are found throughout the

A stroll through the aisles will reveal canned meats with Save-A-Lot labels, If you shy away from labels that are not typically name brands, Plummer said that packed inside the store labels of the canned meats are Armour products,

"Most of the stuff is like that," he said. "Save-A-Lot products are brands." It's all national brand products but under a different label, said Plummer.

A customer can save in the meat department also. Meat department products include Fisher, Jimmy Dean, Purnell's, Ballard's, opened its doors in Prestonsburg on Tennessee Pride, Hill Shire Farms, the corner of Friend Street and and Plum Rose. But many of the products may have custom labels made for the store.

"You can't find a better meat dollar, dollar-and-a-half a pound on equal to or better than national steak products. If the price drops on this stuff, we drop it, too.'

Many nationally known brands can be found in the frozen foods, too, "It's all quality products," said

Save-A-Lot keeps its cost at a minimum by having customers carry out their own groceries and by buying mass quantities of product, The store is open Sunday-Saturday 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.

"We got a good line of ice cream department," he said. "You'll save a a good line of dairy," said Plummer. "We got anything you need."

Save-A-Lot cashier Shirley Blanton lends a hand in the produce section. "This is the prettiest and cleanest store they have," she said.

Renos exec speaks at UK

Terry Fitzer from Prestonsburg was guest speaker at the Gatton College of Business and Economics at the University of Kentucky April 17. Fitzer discussed general business practices associated with franchising a business. Formerly a multi-unit franchisee with Rax Restaurants and Arbys Roast Beef, Fitzer is now the franchisor of the Renos Roadhouse concept. His experience on both sides of franchise operations brought a unique perspective to the classroom providing insight on opportunities and limitations associated with franchise agreements. Fitzer is president and CEO of Renos Roadhouse Inc. Upon acquiring the concept last May, he moved corporate headquarters from Lexington to University Drive in Prestonsburg. Renos currently has three company-owned stores and 10 franchised locations. Two more are scheduled to open this summer in Ohio and Tennessee.

AEP to establish public policy office in Frankfort, nity relations posts in Ashland, Pikeville

American Electric Power (NYSE: AEP) will establish a permanent, full-time public policy office in Frankfort to develop and maintain closer working relationships with state officials, legislators and regulatory agencies.

AEP's Frankfort office should be operational by late summer.

At the same time, AEP will create two new management positions in Kentucky, one in Ashland and one in Pikeville, responsible for maintaining and enhancing AEP's responsiveness to the communities it serves.

A. V. Rash has been named general manager, Community Services, and will be based in Ashland. Rash will manage AEP's significant community service activities-including local government relationships, economic development, contributions, and memberships-in Ashland and surrounding communities.

He will supervise a staff of regional community service managers, including one based in Pikeville, with similar responsibilities. The regional community service managers will be named later.

The decision to place key pub-future." lic policy positions in state capitals resulted from a study conducted as part of the AEP/CSW merger

AEP expanded its public policy office in Indianapolis earlier this year and is establishing similar offices in Lansing, Michigan, and Richmond, Virginia, later this

AEP already has public policy offices in Charleston, West Virginia, and Columbus, Ohio, as its service territory includes these

"Basing our key public policy positions in the state capital is a first for AEP and signals our intent to play a more significant role in developing public policy for our industry and be a leader in the restructured energy marketplace," explained Timothy Mosher, Kentucky state president.

"It's important that we put ourselves in a position to interact most effectively with the political, regulatory and business leaders who are creating the rules for restructuring our industry and will have a significant impact on AEP's

Web page design is workshop topic

"Designing a Web Page for your Small Business" is a two-day workshop focused on teaching the small business owner how to build a web page. The use of a web page in your business will help you offer your products and services to a larger market. The workshops are presented by the Morehead State University/East KY Small Business Development Center and the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce.

The two-day workshop will cost $15 per session and will be conducted at the MSU/Big Sandy Extended Campus Center Computer Lab in 0364 Prestonsburg, at the Hilghlands Plaza Shopping Center.

The dates for the web page workshops are May 16, and May 18, from 12 p.m.-3 p.m.

A basic knowledge of computer operation and internet knowledge is needed to enroll in the workshops. Learn how to create and publish your own web page for your business.

FLOODPLAINS AND WETLANDS NOTICE EARLY PUBLIC NOTICE

Floyd County is considering extending sanitary sewer service into the Auxier community of Floyd County. The proposed project consists of approximately 6.43 miles of collection and conveyance lines and a duplex submersible sewage pumping station. The primary beneficiaries will be approximately 303 households and 11 businesses in the Auxier community.

Portions of this project are located in the 100year floodplain and project activities, by virtue of their type and scope, must be conducted in the 100-year floodplain. Project maps are available for review by contacting Libby Ratcliff at Big Sandy Area Development District, 100 Resource Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653; telephone (606)

The County is interested in discussing alterrnatives of the project and securing public perceptions of possible adverse impacts that could result from the project and possible minimization measures. Please send written comments to Judge-Executive Paul H. Thompson, Floyd County Courthouse, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, Comments will be received until the close of business, Thursday, May 11, 2000.
