Murder trial gets underway

Detective testifies Whicker killed during fight at party

In just three hours of testimony presented by the prosecution, jurors thus far have heard testimony that a mortal injury was dealt to Steven Whicker by David Hall of Garrett.

Hall faces a murder charge as a result between the two last year.

During his trial, which began Monday, defense attorney Ned Pillersdorf told the jury that the attack took place, but argued the wound was made in self defense.

In his opening arguments, Pillersdorf told jurors Hall, Whicker and Oakie Prater were at a party together in January 1999, when Whicker's death following an argument Whicker became "manic" and "intense" and defense and was the only one trying to keep Whicker alive, said the attorney.

Whicker died of exposure to cold weather outside the residence where the party was going on, said Pillersdorf.

During the presentation of evidence, Det. Lee Weddington told the court the night was cool but it was quite muddy on the scene. The Weddington later took a statement from the accused murderer. In that statement Hall admitted to thrusting his knife into the victim.

911 phone tax still on hold

County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson gave no word on the 911 telephone surcharge during a recent meeting of the Floyd County E-911 Executive Council.

In no hurry to stir the sleeping beast, a study about reinstating the surcharge was to be performed by Deputy Judge-Executive Brett Davis. Thompson asked that the report be tabled in the absence of Davis.

As reported in the last meeting, E-911 coordinator Bill Dotson reiterated that about half of the county's roads have been verified as being in the E-911 system.

Dotson and the local post offices have been looking for ways to speed the process along. Instead of completing a zip code at a time, it seems more progress is made by addressing complete roads.

The addresses are then sent to the post offices via the internet.

Antennas owned by Gearheart Communications, South East Telephone, Columbia Gas, and Bellsouth Mobility have been looked at as potential sites to install a radio signal repeater for the Floyd County E-911 system.

Discussion on obtaining a tower site for the repeater was brought up at the previous meeting to increase the signal strength to fire departments in the Mud Creek and Betsy Layne areas.

Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin presented Tom "Bo" Blackburn with a key to the city Monday during a ceremony honoring him for his service. Blackburn has retired after serving as the city's fire chief for 33 years. Inset: Blackburn in a picture taken his first day on the job.

Chief retires after three decades of 'fighting hell'

by Randell Reno Staff Writer

A plaque inscribed "My men would fight hell with a bucket of ice water" was given to Thomas Andrew "Tom Bo" Blackburn Monday as city officials, firefighters and friends gathered to bid the "Chief" farewell.

In his 33 years of service Blackburn said the city fire department had become one of the best in the state. The thirdgeneration fire chief helped to bring the city's fire department to a class four rating.

Blackburn, who officially retired February 29, was still active on the fire scenes. Recent injuries in his last two incidents left him thinking it may be time to hang up the hat.

His years of service have brought the department to the forefront of firefighting techniques. The Prestonsburg Fire Department has become synonymous with aggressive attack at a fire scene. Blackburn brought that edge to the department.

A burning building is costing the taxpayer money, and the taxpayer is paying your salary is the way he looks at fire service.

Floyd to receive little of tobacco settlement

The good news is that Floyd County was not left out from a plan to distribute money from the tobacco settlement adopted by the state House of Representatives.

The bad news is it might as Under terms of the proposal, proceeds from the Phase I tobacco equal portions, with one-third going to independent boards in tobacco-producing counties. The remaining money would go to a statewide board to be split between projects in the same tobacco-producing counties and other projects controlled by the board.

Because Floyd County grows very little tobacco, the money at the county receives will be small Floyd County is projected to receive merely $232 the first year. $402 the second and $487 the third, for a total of $1,121. That money would also be matched from spending by the state board, making Floyd County's portion of the nearly $150 million settlement $2,243.

But even that small amount may be in jeopardy.

While the proposal has passed the House, it is expected to receive a lukewarm reception in the Republican-controlled Senate, with many predicting it will be rejected.

THE PAIN AND STIFFNESS OF BURSITIS

Bursitis is inflammation or irritation of a bursa, or a small sac located between bone and other moving structures such as muscles, skin or tendons. The bursa allows smooth gliding between these structures. Most commonly, bursae becomes inflamed in the knees, shoulders or elbows. Bursitis causes pain and stiffness aggravated by movement. Unlike arthritis, it does not cause deformity. but can restrain motion.

The most common cause of bursitis is injury or overuse during work or play. Bursitis may be associated with diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis, gout, thyroid disease and diabetes. After a thorough examination and diagnosis, the doctor of chiropractic will gently adjust the joint affected. The doctor may also use icepacks and/or electrostimulation to reduce swelling. He/she can then advise you on an exercise program that can help strengthen the area affected.

Many of the existing firefighters were raised while hanging around the fire department, therefore essentially being raised into Blackburn's philosophy of firefighting.

The fire and glory that goes with the job also has a lighter side according to Lt. Larry Adams. In a prank that backfired, Adams found himself on the strong end of the Unknowingly, Adams turned the hose on when the wrong man moved. Wet and perturbed the chief shouted at Adams who then realized what he had done. Adams found himself lifted off the ground from his collar by the chief. "Adams said he learned quickly "You don't get the chief

Adams said that while the chief had a sense of humor, he also was Adams described his former boss as belligerent on the scene.

"He always wanted inside. Once the fire was in control then he would move outside," he said. "He's a firefighter at heart. He likes to get down and get dirty. Blackburn was get in, get down, and get to it. 'You can't put a fire out from the outside."

Much of the fire department's status is attributed to Blackburn.

"He had a growing attitude," While cleaning a truck, Adams said Adams, "If he didn't have the foresight, it would have been harder to get up in the ratings."

> Blackburn was also instrumental in bringing the city a rescue service. A squad truck was added in 1979 and an ambulance service in 1996.

"We are here, we have the manpower' he said," Adams said.

The business has not been easy for the chief. Adams recalled a story of Blackburn being overcome by smoke in a fire at Black Bottom and being dragged out of the building feet first.

His wife, Sgt. Sue Blackburn of the Police Department (also a volunteer firefighter), recalled a fire worked in a fire department that hot tempered. "A smooth blend," he were Blackburn fell through the roof. Shaken but unhurt, the chief was brought to safety.

Blackburn said he had trouble deciding to retire and a recent fire on Abbott Creek showed him he still had the service in his blood. From his first fire to his last, he said he had the same feeling of excite-

On the old trucks, the siren was controlled by a button on the floor.

"I was so excited I couldn't hold the button down," said Blackburn of his first fire.

When the firetrucks rushed by his home, the same old feeling was

"It was just like I was struck by lightning," said Blackburn. "My adrenaline shot up. It got my blood pressure way up. I was ready to jump in my vehicle and go." Now ready to settle down and do some serious fishing and hunting, among other things, Blackburn said the feelings are "still exhilarating but a little depressing."

"My firefighters would attack hell with a bucket of ice water" was not just a tactic used to train his men but a belief and philosophy Tom Bo Blackburn has lived by.

He asked the council members to listen to other people and honor their opinions. But he also urged the members to avoid being coerced into making decisions.

use one litmus test when making decisions - do the best you can for children in your school community.

"Create an environment to enhance student achievement," he Edward said some councils were "pushing the envelope" in coming up with creative ways to handle the chores of being site-based council members. He commended councils for taking such a courageous stand. Edward said while it was the council's right and responsibility to make decisions, those decisions must be clearly stated in the min-

"If it is not in the minutes, it didn't happen," he said.

Edward explained why the board and councils had to cooperate to make things run smoothly. For example, he said boards have to make a decision by March 1 about staffing matters. The board determines the staffing ratio (based on average daily attendance by the school population) but the councils determine how staff members will

Board member Johnnie Ross asked about instances where it appeared that the staff was not used as effectively as it could be. Edward said the board should work with the schools on such matters but should not make or coerce schools into making decisions about them.

Edward told the group that looking closely at the consolidated plan is a good way to make decisions about staffing. That statement brought reactions from some teachers (and parents) who said in some cases consolidated plans were put together by a few people and the rest of the staff knew little or nothing about what was in the docu-

Edward said if this were happening, it was an unconscionable practice and the principal should consider changing the way the document is put together so that there is buy-in from a great majority of the staff and include parent input.

He said a document prepared without this input wasn't "worth the paper it is written on." He said ignoring parents in this matter is "a slap in the face."

Edward said he would not be surprised if documents were put together this way. He said he had seen instances where site-based council members did not know what was in a consolidated plan that they approved. He admonished the council members, "Know what you are passing."

In closing Edward said, "Being a council member is not easy - it's not supposed to be." He said it was hard work, but satisfying work if done correctly.

Board members Jody Mullins and Don Roberts were not able to attend the meeting.

TRIAD-SALT comes to Floyd County

Special to the Times

TRIAD-SALT is nothing new, It's just new to senior citizens of the Big Sandy area. TRIAD-SALT is a national program sponsored by the joint efforts of the AARP, the International Association of Chiefs of Police and the National Sheriffs' Association. This acronym stands for The Right Information and Direction (TRIAD) and Seniors and Law enforcement Together (SALT).

The primary goals of the organization are to reduce the criminal victimization of older citizens and enhance the delivery of law enforcement services to this population. TRIAD provides the opportunity for an exchange of information between law enforcement and senior citizens. It focuses on reducing unwarranted fear of crime and improving the quality of life for seniors.

A local TRIAD is tailored to meet the needs of each community and is guided by a senior advisory council (SALT). TRIAD is an integral part of community policing.

Older Americans comprise the most rapidly growing segment of Americans is already 65 or older, a total of more that 33.6 million. Increased life expectancy is leading to new issues and problems for the criminal justice system as most communities experience a dramatic increase in the number of older persons. Calls for service, crimes, victims - all are changing.

Stop all the talk about victims

Our culture of victimization – the view that nobody is responsible for anything – reached its absurd zenith on ABC's "Good Morning America" show Monday.

The mother of a 6-year-old who is accused of shooting and killing a classmate in Mount Morris Township, Mich., was interviewed along with a family friend.

The pair blamed the shooting not on any person but on – get this – Michigan's welfare system.

Of course. Americans should have grasped this revelation

Of course. Americans should have grasped this revelation before. It's Michigan's welfare system that is causing the state's – if not the nation's – crimes and other problems.

It wasn't the fact that the alleged shooter's father was a selfish, petty, second-rate criminal who cared little about anyone but himself or that the mother was a crack addict who pawned her son off on her brother, who allegedly sold drugs for guns and kept the loaded guns around the house.

None of these people has any responsibility for the slaying of a 6-year-old girl.

Of course, the mother has a sound legal – if not moral – reason for trying to shift the blame: The state may prosecute her for negligence, so she wants to build a legal defense.

The pair also informed ABC listeners that they – and the 6-year-old accused shooter – were as much victims as young Kayla Rolland in this sad situation.

No, they're not.

No shooter – even a 6-year-old shooter – is in the same class as his victim. Kayla Rolland is dead. She doesn't get another chance at life. Her assailant does. The 6-year-old boy who police believe fired the fatal shot bullied people and had stabbed a classmate even before he picked up a gun.

No doubt his mother was mean to him and his father was a moral castoff. But while abuse may be a partial explanation, it never is an excuse. There are other abused children in this nation who do not stab and shoot people.

The families of Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris are not in the same category as the families of their victims. The fact that the trenchcoat-wearing duo thought athletes kidded them doesn't justify their behavior. Nor would it be justified if a second 6-year-old boy – upset with the Mount Morris Township bully – pulled a gun and killed his tormentor.

In such situations, it may be informative to recall a novel by Agatha Christie, who knew a great deal about human

Book on pioneer is published

Editor:

For decades, the Appalachians loomed as a seemingly-impenetrable barrier. In April 1750, however, Dr. Thomas Walker and five others discovered Cumberland Gap, Pine Mountain Gap ("The Narrows"), and Cumberland Ford, the only place where the river could be easily forded by people, horses and wagons. Together, they formed a triple natural Giveaway and made possible The Wilderness Road, the route [1780-1810] of 300,000 pioneer settlers.

Of the three geographic features, ony Cumberland Gap has received the attention it deserves, and Walker has been almost totally obscured by Daniel Boone, who followed his path 19 years later. Kentucky Governor Paul Patton, recognizing the signifiance of Walker's exploration, has proclaimed April 15, the "250th Anniversary of the Opening of Kentucky."

On that date, the Bell County Historical Society will dedicate The Dr. Thomas Walker-Cumberland River Historic Site, the place where Walker first saw and named the river. That morning, Dr. Thomas Clark, historian-laureate of Kentucky, will lead a panel of eminent scholars in a discussion of "Frontier"

Kentucky." In addition, the society is publishing "Gateway: Dr. Thomas Walker and the Opening of Kentucky."

On March 15, Bell County students, accompanied by historic re-enactors from Fort Boonesboro State Park, were scheduled to present advance copies of the book to Governor Patton and to every member of the Kentucky legislature. Copies will also be given to every school and library in the state. Many other events are planned. Also, on May 27, during the Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival, historic re-enactors from Colonial Williamsburg will help recall Walker's exploration.

"Gateway" is the only book-length work on Walker. It is written by David Burns, with photographs by the nature photographer Adam Jones and an introduction by Thomas D, Clark. The book is in color throughout and includes maps and holographic copies of Walker's Journal. The book is available from The Bell County Historical Society. # How to keep Kentucky's kids safe from guns

by Dr. Tom Pinkstaff

On average, Kentucky loses a child to gunfire each

Even worse, this tragic statistic does not address the additional number of children in our state who are injured in firearm accidents each year. Nor does it address the devastation that these incidents visit upon the injured children, the shooters and their families.

The impact of firearm casualties goes beyond a child's injury or death; surviving family members are also victims who must deal with a multitude of emotional and physical aftershocks.

We are all familiar with the tragic stories following a child "playing" with a loaded handgun and injuring himself or a playmate. The specter of school shootings and teenage suicides continues to haunt us as a nation and a state.

As a pediatrician, I spend much of my time promoting health and injury prevention. I have found no situation where the need for this knowledge is greater than in a home with a child and a handgun.

Because of the scale of the deaths and injuries from firearms, physicians and other health experts across the country have come to recognize that this is truly an epidemic of historic proportions. In 1995, firearms killed nearly 10 times as many people as polio killed during its most deadly year, 1952.

Now, handguns paralyze about as many people each year as polio did in 1952.

What can we do to prevent kids from obtaining and using guns against themselves and others? The key to treating any public health epidemic is found in prevention. We must continue to treat the children when they enter hospital emergency rooms, but our primary approach must emphasize prevention, including the implementation of policies that separate children from handguns.

As a state and as a nation, we accept legislation aimed at protecting children. We mandate seat belts, car seats, and numerous other protections through our product safety laws. Yet, we consistently and insistently fail to address the lack of barriers between children and firearms.

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that there be no guns in homes with small or teenage children. However, if there are guns in the home, they should be stored unloaded, with trigger locks, and separated from the ammunition.

In accordance with these guidelines, 17 states, including our neighboring states of Illinois and Virginia, have adopted what are referred to as Child Access Prevention (CAP) laws. Texas governor and Republican presidential candidate George W. Bush has also signed CAP legislation to protect Texas' children. These laws require gun owners to provide safe storage, such as a trigger lock, or some other measure, for their firearms.

CAP laws successfully reduce the number of children unintentionally killed by guns. In states with CAP laws, accidental gun-related deaths for children dropped 23 percent, according to research published

Lots to see, little to buy

I went with Butch Paige to the Computerfest in Dayton, Ohio over the weekend. The event is held twice annually in Hara Arena, a hockey venue, and has wall to wall computer merchandise—none of which I need but I all of which I want. And some I want two of the same item.

I thought it might not be safe to be around hundreds of people who thought in terms of only megabytes and megahertz. (If something bites her, Mega is hurt). I just made that up. I know it's not spectacular, but heck, I'm just getting into talking like this. Anyway, I just talked away in the jargon knowing very little of what I was saying. If you are not really hip on computer talk, just listen to a discussion among knowledgeable computer people. Sound likes a foreign language spoken in English.

What does one do at a compterfest? The same thing a shopper does at Wal-Mart — look a lot and buy a little. It's interesting to see what is new in the computer business. For example, I have been thinking how nice it would be to have a program that turns voice into text. I could just sit around and dictate stories all day and not be bothered with the mundane act of typing. So what did we see? A demonstration that works like a charm. I didn't buy the program, but I may have been set up for a future purchase.

I asked someone about using the voice software, and he told me that the program would never be able to translate my southern twang. I'm sure if the software can handle the New Englanders adding "er" to words (for example Cuber to Cuba), it should be able to handle our local dialect. Anyway, if I want to, I can talk just like Dan Rather. Well, maybe not exactly, but very close. If anyone uses such a system, let me know how effective it is.

So what are some of the other things that caught my eye (and on occasion my billfold)?

The first thing we found was a snow and ice storm. It was 77 degrees on Wednesday when I was getting into the idea of this trip and we have an ice storm. Once I went with Butch to a tennis tournament in Richmond, Virginia. Guess what? Yes, we had a blizzard. I think I will suggest to Butch that we go to the August version of the fest. But then we would probably have a tornado. I guess I will just mark this down as an adventure.

After sliding around on I- 75 and downtown Dayton, we made it to the arena and began looking. Anything to do with a computer was somewhere in the arena. I think we went to all the different sections of the meet but can't be sure. If not, we saw enough anyway.

If I had one of everything I longed for, would it make my life better? I doubt it, but I would have a new batch of toys. I did buy a 17-inch monitor for a good price, but also got a look at those flat screen monitors — but costing much as $1000, one won't be on my system anytime soon. I will just go to computer stores and play around on their computers that have those screens.

By Sunday morning the weather had moderated and we headed out to Bob

Rep. Branham's bill requires majority with interest in surface property to agree to mining, reclamation

Before a surface mining or mine of persons with undivided-or colreclamation permit is issued in lective-interest in the surface Kentucky, those persons with a majority stake in the surface would have to agree to mine or reclaim the land under a bill working its way through the Kentucky House.

House Bill 872, sponsored by State Rep. Ira Branham, D-Pikeville, would prohibit surface mining or reclamation from taking place anywhere in Kentucky, without the joint consent of a majority property, including tenants, landowners or heirs.

"Financial interest in Kentucky's land must be weighed carefully against the need to protect that land for future generations," said Branham. "This bill will ensure that no surface land is disturbed without very specific approval from a majority of those with interest in the property.

unintentional access to a firearm. In a 1998 study, 21 percent of children who said their parents owned guns also reported having touched or played with their parents' guns without permission.

In cases where parents responded that their children were unaware that they owned guns, the children were significantly more likely to report that they did indeed know where their parents' gun was, and that it was accessible.

To many Kentuckians, gun ownership is a cherished right, and some families will continue to keep guns in their homes. In a 1999 Kentucky Crime Victimization Survey, over 60 percent of respondents said they were gun owners.

But rights come with responsibilities. Our state legislators can and should insist that those who choose to keep guns be required to use trigger locks. Trigger locks are relatively cheap (between $8 and $15), and are often provided free of charge by a number of police departments and public interest

Kentucky must make gun safety a priority for our children's well being. Our kids continue to need adults, communities and public policies to protect them. Our goal must be to make deadly weapons inaccessible to children.

CAP laws promote gun safety without putting restrictions on legal gun use.

And they save children's lives.

TO ALL FLOYD COUNTIANS

Although family relations should never be the sole reason for voting for a candidate, the experience of us all has shown that a person's roots are a helpful indicator of his or her character. I trust mine speak of good things.

My father is Arnold Turner Jr., whose parents were Arnold Turner of McDowell and Annette Newsome Turner, originally from Ligon. Their parents were Joe "Hoss" Turner, originally from Turkey Creek, and Myrtie Martin Turner of Minnie and Milford Newsome of Ligon and Dona Hall Newsome of McDowell.

My mother is Libby Burga Turner, originally of Wheelwright, whose parents are Bill Burga of Hager Hill, and the late Alta Osborne Burga of Wheelwright. Their parents were Dewey Osborne and Eulah McReynolds Osborne of Wheelwright, and Thomas Burga of Johns Creek and Polly Clark Burga of Brandy Keg.

My loving wife of 11 years is Angel Justice Turner, daughter of Billy Joe Justice and Shirley Stamper Justice of Mullins. We are blessed with two wonderful children, Blake, 4 years old, and Celeste, 5 months old.

I ask for your vote, because I am the candidate seeking this important office for all the right reasons. I want to make our county a better, more decent place, where our children are safe, the elderly are protected, and the least among us are treated as fairly as the wealthy or powerful. That is my sole ambition. I consider no man my enemy, and seek only to serve. I have practiced law for the past five years and served the last two years as assistant Commonwealth Attorney. I know I can bring the decency and fairness needed to this office to make a new beginning for our county. January 1, 2001, will bring with it Floyd County's first full-time Commonwealth Attorney. Let's not turn again to the ways of the past.

Please help me by giving me your vote and support. I promise, you will never regret it and my conduct will always show my gratitude for your trust.

State jobless rate falls to lowest level since 1974

annual unemployment rate dropped s to 4.5 percent in 1999, making it the lowest jobless rate since 1974, according to the Department for Employment Services. The state's annual unemployment rate has gone down for three consecutive years.

As another sign of a robust economy, Kentucky added 45,500 jobs last year, the largest increase in jobs since 1995. Nine of the commonwealth's 10 job categories reported employment growth in 1999.

Carlos Cracraft, chief labor market analyst in the Department for Employment Services, an agency of the Cabinet for Workforce Development, said that 1999 was the second consecutive year that the rate was below 5 percent. The 1998 rate was 4.6 percent.

The U.S. unemployment rate fell to 4.2 percent in 1999 from 4.5 percent in 1998, the lowest national rate since 1969. Iowa posted the lowest 1999 annual jobless rate in the country at 2.5 percent, while West Virginia had the highest annual rate at 6.6 percent.

"Kentucky's labor market has consistently improved during the whole decade. Each year Kentucky has kept pace with the rest of the nation and added jobs in most areas," said Cracraft. "When you look at the whole decade, Kentucky has added a remarkable 354,800

For the fourth straight year, services was the largest employer in Kentucky and gained 19,800 jobs in 1999. Within the services category, most last year.

Total employment for the sector was 462,500 in 1999. Since 1989 the sector has added 149,800 jobs.

Trade positions showed the second largest gain in positions with an increase of 9,300 jobs for a total of 426,200 last year. Since 1989, trade jobs have jumped by 81,300.

"Retail trade represented 6,700 of the growth last year, while wholesale trade had 2,600," Cracraft said. "Within retail trade, general merchandise stores, including department stores added 1,900 jobs, eating and drinking establishments gained 900 jobs, while automotive dealers rose by 800 jobs."

The government and education sector had an increase of 6,000 for a total of 300,700 jobs in 1999. In the category, local education added 3,100 jobs, state education rose by 2,500 positions, local government had 500 more jobs and state government had an additional 100 jobs

NASA semitrailers coming to MSU

Students in Kentucky will have an opportunity to experience the benefits of space technology when the NASA semitrailer makes a stop on the Morehead State University campus, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 21-22.

More than 800 students from school systems in the region will visit the exhibit during its stop in Morehead, according to Eric Thomas of the Region 7 Service Center, who is coordinating the activity.

The semitrailer, owned and operated by NASA's Johnson Space Center, measures 53 feet long with expandable sides that allows it to nearly double its width, accommodating 30 people at once.

It is divided into sections with the Technology Hall of Fame featuring exhibits of the space program spin-offs. A surround-sound theatre, where a 10-minute video is shown, completes the exhibit.

Students and their teachers are scheduled to visit the exhibit from charge.

Specialized directory distributed

Talking on the telephone is something most of us take for granted. Yet if you're deaf or hard of hearing, placing a telephone call can be a major challenge.

Fortunately, technology has and more people are using e-mail and other kinds of technologies that are based on character displays and the printed word to communicate.

BellSouth publishes a special Text Telephone Directory, which currently is being mailed to customers who are deaf, hard of hearing or have speech impediments, and who use e-mail, fax machines, text pagers or text telephones (TTYs) to communicate with oth-

The annual directory, a free service, includes some 8,000 residential and business listings from BellSouth's nine-state service area, as well as national companies and organizations that offer TTY access to callers.

"BellSouth has a long history of service to people who have special communications needs," said Amy Scarborough, regional manager. "The BellSouth Text Telephone Directory is a convenient resource for persons who are deaf, hard of hearing, or who have speech impediments, and use text-based devices to stay in touch with family and friends.

BellSouth also offers a variety of products and services specifically designed to enhance people's ability to communicate. A good place to start is the BellSouth Telecommunications Center for Customers with Disabilities. Customers can call either the voice or TTY number. BellSouth representatives can help with telephone service, questions about bills and information about special products and services.

The number for the BellSouth Telecommunications Center for Customers with Disabilities is 557-6254 (TTY) or 557-6253 (voice). There's no charge for the call from anywhere in BellSouth's service area within the state.

BellSouth is a $26 billion communications services company. It provides telecommunications. wireless communications, cable and digital TV, advertising and publishing, and Internet and data services to nearly 36 million customers in 20 countries worldwide. For more information about BellSouth, visit the BellSouth Web page at http://www.bellsouth.com.

A stained glass retreat is set for Friday, April 7, and Saturday, April 8. Marie Lainhart, owner of the Glass Garden, will conduct the retreat. which is for people with some experience in stained glass.

Cost is $150 and includes supplies and meals. Call Musser at the above number.

Overnight accommodations for each retreat are available in the dormitory for $15.

Lainhart is also conducting four Thursday evening classes in stained glass, beginning March 23 and running through April 13, from 6 to 8 p.m., also at the Academy. The $100 fee covers four classes · Although Congress has mandated help for tax delinquents that help is one of the best-kept secrets in America.

* Lurking behind the facts are hundreds of really sad, local, humaninterest stories. Tax delinquency is a local tragedy in the closets of every community in America.

· What most people believe about tax delinquents is as far from the truth as you can get.

There are roughly 30 million Americans in trouble with the IRS today. Tax delinquents live in every city, town and village in America.

That means that there are people in your community who are in trouble with the IRS and most of them probably haven't a clue how to get out of their difficulty.

More than 50 percent of the people who call our offices - which means they are already so far along the road to trouble that they are in danger of having their property levied - do not know that the IRS is offering programs to help them deal with their delinquency problems.

Tax resolution is one of the better-kept secrets in America, yet Congress put the program in place 12 years ago precisely to help those people who are in trouble with the Many delinquent taxpayers are driven underground. They simply don't exist. Does that mean their trouble goes away? No. It means Compromise. By simple rule, them have given up because they bles every four years. The man who, can't pay their debt and don't know about the solutions available to them. They need help.

The two most effective remedies for dealing with tax problems are the Offer in Compromise and Penalty Abatement combined with a payment plan. Offer in Compromise and Penalty Abatement reduce the amount of debt the taxpayer owes. Do you know about these remedies? Probably not.

Question: What is an Offer in Compromise?

Answers The Offer in Compromise is a settlement program designed for the person who has amassed a large tax debt that they don't have a prayer of paying off. It is a formula driven program that is based on a delinquent taxpayer's net worth and future income stream. It is not related to what that taxpayer owes in back taxes.

It is also not related to the amount that the tax delinquent wants to pay. The Offer in Compromise is for people who truly cannot pay their back taxes and wish to settle the matter.

Question: When is the best time to seek an Offer in Compromise?

Offer in Compromise when you are still in financial trouble. Many people wait until they are doing better to approach the IRS. Waiting until they are doing better often means they no longer qualify for an Offer in Compromise.

The best advice Capitol Tax Relief can give to people in trouble with the IRS is "don't wait!" Act to clear up the trouble today. We highly suggest using the services for divorce, had a business fail, gone of a company that specializes in tax through a recession, experienced the resolution. It is the safest and cheapest route to success.

Frequently CPAs, tax preparation services and even attorneys who are not specialists in this niche assist taxpayers with Offers that do not work. This is a highly specialized Penalty amounts are so high that this taxpayer may have gotten on a payment plan and may have been chipping away at his debt for years without having made a dent in what he owed. This taxpayer has been paying penalty and interest that will keep multiplying unless he actively seeks redress.

Penalty Abatements are requests, by people who have been paying their tax debts, for their penalties to be excused due to personal situations (death in the family, divorce, natural disaster, recession, etc.) that prevented them from paying their taxes at the time they were due.

Question: What is Tax Resolution?

Answer: Tax resolution is a program for reducing the amount of tax a tax delinquent owes and resolving problems with the IRS. Tax resolution should not be confused with a payment plan. The payment Plan is, the IRS's favorite solution to delinquent tax problems. Payment plans Answer: It is best to seek an mean that a tax delinquent is paying exactly what he owes, plus penalty and interest, over time.

Tax Resolution is a program that helps the tax delinquent reduce the amount he owes. Often tax debt can be reduced to a payment of pennies on the dollar.

Question: Can the Delinquent Taxpayer resolve the problems with the help of the IRS?

Answer: Yes, but, from our expefull relief he or she is entitled to. The IRS is a collection agency. The IRS money from the taxpayer as he thinks he can.

Often the agent's job and training conflicts with the best interest of the taxpayer under the law. Just as it's not always a good idea to represent yourself in court, it's not a good idea to represent yourself in your dealings with the IRS.

Demand for anywhere, any time learning boosts KCVU enrollment have announced 1,724 students enrolled in courses for the current semester—an increase of more than 700 percent over the previous

Dr. Mary Beth Susman, CEO for the virtual university, said KCVU has found a niche among students who appreciate the convenience and value of anywhere, any time Web-based higher education.

"KCVU places a high priority on reaching out to populations of non-traditional students who work full-time, who care for families or who may live in remote areas of the state," she said. "With KCVU, students are finding it is, indeed, possible to have a life, a job, a family and an education, too.'

KCVU is successfully reaching its target audience, working people age 23-40 with women comprising just more than 56 percent of this semester's total enrollment.

Officials of the Kentucky --- Enrollment statistics also reveal Commonwealth Virtual University broad geographic representation with in-state students from 116 of Kentucky's 120 counties. Non-resident students come from 18 states and seven foreign countries.

Susman said considerable credit for KCVU's success is due to the cooperation from the state's colleges and universities. "Our education partners have done a remarkable job meeting student needs for anywhere, any time access to higher education," she said.

Student satisfaction is the KCVU's most powerful marketing tool, according to Susman. "In a survey of our fall 1999 charter class, more than 87 percent said KCVU met or exceeded their expectations of online learning and 82 percent said they would like to take another course." Susman explained that as stuand employer demand for skilled workers increases, stand-alone course offerings, as well as complete degree and certificate programs, will be added in response to these demands.

"We believe these first two terms are indicative of the need for and practicality of KCVU as an alternative to traditional methods of delivering higher education to the people of the Commonwealth," Susman said.

"We will continue working with institution administrators and faculty to expand and enhance KCVU's inventory of courses and degree programs to help achieve individual and statewide workforce development and higher education

Parents have confidence in schools, survey shows

FRANKFORT - Kentucky parents have higher levels of confidence in public schools than do parents nationwide, according to a report on a Phi Delta Kappa/Kentucky education survey.

The report was prepared by the Department of Education and includes a summary of survey findings with tables and graphs that show related national comparative data drawn from the most recent Phi Delta Kappa/Gallup polls.

The survey polled 800 Kentucky adults in January. Seventy-two percent reported that they were fairly well or well informed about public schools. The percentage was even higher for parents of public school students: 85 percent of that group indicated that they were fairly well or well informed, a figure that exceeded the 1998 national PDK/Gallup results by 5 percent.

In that poll, 73 percent of respondents overall and 80 percent of public school parents reported feeling fairly well or well informed about local public schools.

The survey also included questions asking respondents to grade the public schools. A majority of Kentuckians polled gave their schools high grades, with 53 percent assigning schools grades of either A or B. The percentage was higher among parents with children attending public schools - 60 percent gave their schools an A or B.

When asked about effective means of communication, 87 percent of all respondents and 88 percent of school parents said that school councils were either very or somewhat effective. School newsletters, open houses and open hearings also ranked highly among respondents.

Respondents also agreed that parents have opportunities to provide input on school-related issues such as hiring of administrators and curriculum offerings. More than one-third said that parents have about the right amount of say in the selection and hiring of administrators and in the allocation of funds. More than one-half said that parents have about the right amount of say in the selection of courses offered and the books placed in school libraries.

The report on the PDK/ Kentucky education survey is available as a Microsoft Word document http://www.kde.state. ky.us/comm/commrel/pdk/pdk.doc or as an HTML document at http://www.kde.state. ky.us/comm/ commrel/pdk/pdk.htm.

> In the championship game on Saturday in the 15th Region, the defending champions, Pikeville Panthers took on the Golden Eagles of Johnson Central.

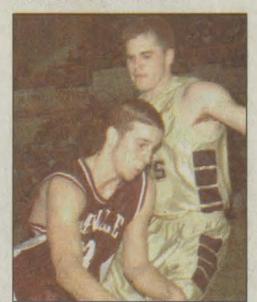

> > The Panthers entered the tournament with a record of 21-6, while the Golden Eagles entered with a 24-6 record. These two teams met back in February on Pikeville's floor and the Panthers came away with a 79-67 win over the Eagles. It was regional basketball atmosphere at Allen

approximately 4,200 excited fans when these two teams took floor.

Before the game began, Allen Central head Coach Johnny Martin presented "King" Kelly Coleman with a bronze trophy for being the "Player of the Century." Coleman received a standing ovation when he accepted the award.

Pikeville and Johnson Central both have had a successful season. But if there could be a upper-hand in this game, it would have to go the Eagles with nine seniors. These were two pretty evenlymatched teams in all other areas.

This was a very close ballgame. Pikeville had 17 turnovers while Johnson Central committed 16. Pikeville hit 13 of 23 free throws and Johnson Central hit 9 of 18. Pikeville outrebounded Johnson Central 40-26. But the deciding factor in the game was the three-point baskets. Johnson Central hit 11 of 19, while Pikeville only hit one while attempting 13.

Behind the treys, the Johnson Central Golden Eagles came away with the 66-54 win, dethroning the defending 15th Region champs.

Johnson Central had a big fourth quarter to give them the victory. The Eagles had four of the 11 treys in the fourth quarter, three of those in the first two-and-ahalf minutes.

Pikeville's Chase Gibson lead both teams in scoring with 18. Gibson also lead both teams in rebounding by pulling down 16 for the Panthers. Jeremiah Akers had 14 points and Brandon Thompson had

The Golden Eagles were led in scoring by Mitchell Coleman and Tommy McKenzie. Each had 17 points. Heath Castle had 12 points in the game, all coming from three-point baskets.

The Panthers drew first blood when Jeremiah Akers went in for a layup. But Mitchell Coleman soon answered for Johnson Central. Mitchell hit a two-point basket and was fouled by Matt Branham.

Pikeville College held a news conference Monday in naming their new head football coach for the first-ever football program at Pikeville College.

Pikeville has never fielded a football team in its more than 100 year history.

Willis is a South Carolina native who is in the process of attaining a doctoral degree.

At the press conference, President Hal Smith and Ron Damron, school vice-president for enrollment and student services, made the announcement. Willis, 32, said the job was an exciting one.

"I'm very excited about the opportunity to be part of the Pikeville College family," said Willis. "I think President Smith and Ron Damron are committed

Conley scores 17 as season ends for Cats

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

For three quarters the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats gave the Sheldon Clark Lady Cardinals all they wanted in a semifinal game of the girls' 15th Region basketball tournament at Elkhorn City Monday night.

For three periods, Prestonsburg played as well as they could defensively. For three stanzas the Lady Blackcats looked like a team that wanted to reach the finals of the girls' regional for the second straight year.

But in basketball, three quarters is not enough. A team must play four quarters.

It was in the fourth quarter that Prestonsburg selfdestructed as they stood and watched the Lady Cardinals do whatever they wanted en route to a 65-52 win, ending the season for Prestonsburg.

Freshman Desiree Cassidy was the one-woman wrecking crew for Sheldon Clark in the final period. Cassidy scored half of her 16 points in the fourth period to lead a 24-14 run for the Lady Cardinals.

The lack of working hard on the defensive boards hurt Prestonsburg in losing in the semifinals.

Prestonsburg trailed by only three points, 41-38, entering the final quarter but could only score three field goals in the first six minutes of the final period.

Cassidy was fouled and hit the front end of a twoshot foul to begin the fourth quarter but freshman Nikki Copeland slipped inside and got a rebound basket that gave Sheldon Clark a 44-38 lead.

Prestonsburg looked confused on offense but Stephanie Adams had a rebound basket to keep the lead at four points, 44-40.

■ Belfry vs Shelby Valley

Shelby Valley holds off Belfry

Lovell scores 22 but Belfry falls 53-46

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

One thing you learn when you face a Cindy Halbert coached team, don't; ever count them out.

The Shelby Valley Lady Wildcats experienced that Monday night when they finally posted a 53-46 win over the Lady Pirates in a semifinal game of the girls regional basketball tournament at Elkhorn Coach Bobby Spears ballclub got 17 points from Ashley Ratliff and 12 each from Summer Jones and Ashley Damron en route to victory. Tasha Bakey was the fourth Wildcat to score in double figures finishing with 10 points.

The Lady Wildcats were very impressive the first two and half quarters as they played like a team who wanted to avoid a repeat of last year's semifinals when they fell to Prestonsburg. But Shelby Valley played that game without the service of Jones.

The Lady Wildcats rolled out to a 35-20 advantage and looked as if they could coast the rest of the remaining 11 minutes of the game.

However, the Belfry Lady Pirates never had any quit in them as they roared back to close to within six points of Shelby Valley, 39-33, after three quarters.

Jones three-point basket staked her team to the 15 point lead at the 5:47 mark of the third period.

LEXINGTON - One thing is for sure when the 83rd Boys' KHSAA State Tournament gets underway Wednesday afternoon at Rupp Arena. There will be a new state champion.

Male eliminated defending champion Ballard in last week's 7th Region Tournament. A lot of experts expected Ballard to coast to another state title but, the thing that makes Kentucky high school basketball so great is that there will always be surprises.

In the 2000 field, 14 of the 16 clubs have at least 22 wins. Only two clubs - Bishop Brossart and Mercer County - don't have at least 20 wins.

So, which bracket is the strongest?

The top bracket is loaded with the likes of Lexington Catholic, Male, Iroquois and Scott County, while the bottom part of the tournament has Graves County, Russellsville, Corbin, Hopkins Central and Elizabethtown.

The overall record of the top bracket teams is 207-53 while the bottom bracket is 200-46.

Four teams - Scott County. Perry Central, Muhlenberg North and Boyd County - will return from last year's event and will try to Muhlenberg North (24-6) will open the tournament Wednesday at 1 p.m. facing Lexington Catholic

The Stars, the 3rd Region champs, will come into the tourney with a nine-game winning streak. MNHS has played four teams -Russellsville, Male, Hopkins Central and Scott County - in this year's field, but won only the Hopkins Central contest.

Danny Haney's Knights had to go into overtime to defeat Madison Central, 67-60, for the 11th Region championship, which was the club's 13th straight win. For a change, LexCath only played one team -Mercer County - in this year's

Newport Catholic (30-5) will face Male (26-7) Wednesday at 2:30

The Thoroughbreds have reeled off 21 straight victories, which included the All 'A' State championship. Newport Catholic is still hitting on all cylinders after winning the 9th Region. They have played four teams - Bishop Brossart, Male, Russellville and Perry Central — that made it to the Male will still be riding high off the Ballard victory heading into action. The Bulldogs have recorded five consecutive wins. After beating Ballard, Male downed Manual, 73-61, in the final of the 7th Regional Tournament. Male split in its four games against teams in the tournament as they beat Russellville and Muhlenberg North while losing to Newport Catholic and Iroquois.

The evening session Wednesday at 7 p.m. will have Perry Central (25-8) against Iroquois (29-2).

The Commodores have overcome a lot this season, which included star guard Ben Bowling sitting out some regular season action. Perry Central, the 14th Mercer County, which won the 12th Region, has to be the surprise team of the field. Stacey Hall's team opened the season with five straight losses and is one of two district runners-up to win a regional tournament. Mercer County defeated Harrodsburg, 56-49, in the regional title contest, which avenged a loss in the 46th District championship game. They played only Lexington Catholic of the teams in the State a team," said league director, Tommy Dingus. "Sometimes they get a little scare when they hear the words try out.'

Dingus, said the new organized league will retain the league name Beaver Creek Little League, the former name of three years ago.

"What else can we call it," he said. "We have teams at Minnie. Garrett and Martin."

The old Beaver Creek Little League was one of the best youth baseball programs around, fielding a list of 12 teams. Dingus is hoping of a return to those days but for now the league will consist of five

"We are hoping to get our 13-15 year-olds and 16-18 year olds off to a good start," he said. "We are hoping that the parents will all get involved in the league."

The league has appointed a board of control with Dingus heading the way. Dingus headed up the Martin Pee Wee League several years ago and that league is one of the strongest in the area.

The past two years the Beaver Creek area was under the Bambino League, a branch off of Babe Ruth

"Our league will not be associated with the Babe Ruth league," said Dingus. "We will be under Little League rules. Our older groups will be Junior League baseball and Senior League baseball."

Dingus said, like all leagues, it takes finances to run a league.

"But we are not wanting to beg all the business places for money to run our league," he said. "They get that all the time from everyone else. We are hoping to raise the money through special projects. If we can have two or three fund raisers a year, then we will not have to be a burden to the business places. We will need for all the parents to become involved in our league."

Dingus said league games would be played at three 'sites in Floyd County - Garrett, Martin and

One of the reasons, and perhaps the main reason for returning to Little League baseball was competing in the Little League playoffs at Paintsville each year. Under the Bambino format, a team automatically went to the state tournament. The Beaver Creek league likes the idea of competing for a berth in the

"Bambino baseball was all right," said Dingus, "but we feel we can field an excellent all-star team this summer. Hopefully, we can put two all-star teams in the playoffs but we do want to have one good

"But there is so much involved in running a league. You have to have the help and the money to do so. We are here for the kids. We are wanting to have a first class league where everything is run by the book. We will not have any hidden rules but we will play by the Little League manual."

The league hopes to begin play

"We want to encourage anyone who wants to play in our league and anyone who is interested in coaching, to come out to the meeting and registration day," said Dingus. Dingus said the board of control in District 7 was pleased the league was coming back. Dingus was hopeful that the Wheelwright Little League would join them as they field three teams.

"We may play some games against their teams, but they will not be counted toward our conference record," he said. "Overall, they would count, but not like when we play against one another in our to running a first-class program, Holtz. Willis has a B.A. from and that was really what made this opportunity so attractive to me."

Smith said the finding of Saul Smith was good find for the school.

"We feel very fortunate to have found in our football coach, Zak Willis, a man of high integrity, with a commitment to excellence and great compassion for people," Smith said. "One of his early references told me that one of Coach Willis' passions is helping people reach goals. And that sentiment seems to thread through everything we know about him.' Willis has spent the past four seasons as a graduate assistant coach at the University of South Carolina, where he spent last season with legendary Coach Lou Furman University, where he was a part of an NCAA Division I-AA national championship, and an M.A. from Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas.

Willis began his college coaching career at Greenville College in Greenville, Ill., where he worked his way to assistant head coach, defensive coordinator and recruiting coordinator.

He moved to South Carolina in 1996, where he gained experience on the offensive side of the football and served as an in-house recruiting coordinator.

Coming off another Dr. Jekyll performance against Arkansas in the SEC Tournament, No. 5 seed Kentucky in the Midwest should have its way with St. Bonaventure Thursday to set a classy Saturday match against Syracuse in Cleveland, Ironically, the Orangemen could put a rude end to UK's 1999-2000 academic year since the football team beat the Wildcats in the Music City Bowl barely three months ago.

On the other hand if Kentucky wins two tournament games the Wildcats will likely earn a rematch against Michigan State or Utah, both of whom lost at Rupp Arena this season.

Louisville, with a No. 7 seed Thursday at Tucson in the West Region, plays Gonzaga to try to earn a probable date against red hot St. John's. If UofL can upend the Johnnies, the Cards are headed for the Final 8.

TROUBLE IN WILDCAT NATION

Desmond Allison's demise arrested for driving under the influence and suspension from the basketball team - is a metaphor for Kentucky's season, DUI ... or PUI ... "playing under the influence," and doing it at the worst possible times. UK embarrassed itself in the opening round of the SEC Tournament - 27 turnovers against Arkansas in Atlanta.

Despite it all ... having, what I think is the worst team chemistry since the LeRon Ellis, Chris Mills and Sean Sutton team in 1989 when UK finished 13-19, Kentucky has still managed to win 22 games and has a chance in the NCAAs.

Allison's exit reminded me of Dwight Anderson (1979). Years after he frittered away opportunity, when he quit the UK basketball team and fell victim to substance abuse, Anderson spoke of regret and remorse. Allison's incomprehensible behavior is history repeating itself.

RECRUITING

Allison aside, UK assistant coaches were alredy looking for shooting help for next season as speculation grows that Tayshaun Prince will leave at the end of the school year. If true, it would be a colossal blunder by the sophomore who has lots of growing up

UK assistants have been scouting JUCO ranks where the names Jannero Pargo, Jamaal Davis and Carlton Baker have Pargo is a 6-2, 175-pound guard at Neosho County Community College in Chanute, Kan.; Carlton Baker is a 6-6 freshman and Jamaal Davis a 6-8 ophomore at Barton County Community College.

Arkansas, Georgia and Dayton

'Kentucky is going to come in here and talk with him and continue to evaluate this spring," Pargo's coach, Jeff Guiot, told a reporter from a JUCO publication. "They are going to evaluate him. I think that they like what they saw. He's a good player and a great individual."

Davis is reportedly headed to Cincinnati, but Baker may be ticketed to UK next year.

UK has already offered a scholarship to 6-4 Bowling Green High guard Josh Carrier, but the junior will make his visits to UCLA, Michigan State and others courting him.

EKU HOOPS: SHOP AT HOME FOR COACH

With Scott Perry throwing up his hands, Eastern Kentucky U. is shopping for a basketball coach .. again.

Friends in Campbellsville and Owensboro don't want to hear this, but Travis Ford and/or Ray Harper should be courted ardently ... promised perks, a car to drive, Derby tickets, country club privileges, a low-interest mortgage and a travel budget by Eastern Kentucky University.

Ford from Madisonville and Harper from Bremen in Muhlenberg County emerged as successful head coaches at Campbellsville U. and Kentucky Wesleyan. Each spinning magic with transfers, projects, rejects and high school stars blended into a system and stirred to excellence by passionate motivational speeches and results.

EKU, without a sustained string of winning seasons since Boyd Lynch and Bobby Washington in the 1960s, needs a homegrown charismatic with power-surge energy and a knack for talking the talk that lights up today's kids.

Eastern's short list ought to have two names at the top. Ford and Harper.

MILESTONES

Patrick Sparks, Muhlenburg-North's junior guard and Mr. Basketball candidate next season, has re-set the school record for points scored, passing Dougie Webb's 1,519 points in 1996. With his senior season to go, Sparks has a chance to put his name on Central City's rich basketball list before consolidation. Jerry Shanks scored 2,154 at Muhlenberg-Central; Greg Franklin had 2,233 and Tommy Eades' 2,232 at Central City High, and Corky Withrow had 3,136 at Central City.

■ Julie Farley. The Dixie our Heights junior established a new www.bobwatkins.com have one-game rebounding record in the Ninth Region. Against Notre Dame Academy Feb. 17, Farley had 32 rebounds, according to Coach Steve Wright. Fourthhighest ever in Kentucky, according to the KHSAA.

Hospitality at Campbell Arena great; EKU looking for a Ford?

It has been a busy week for area high school basketball fans as we are in the stretch run with only the girls' 15th Regional semifinals and championships remaining.

Kind of ironic that one of the sponsors of this year's event was the U.S. Army.

Perry resigns

After winning a staggering total of 19 games in three seasons, Eastern Kentucky University announced this week that men's basketball Coach Scott Perry stepped down.

He finished with an overall record of 19-61, which included a 6-21 mark this season when the Colonels opened the season winning five of their first seven.

EKU will lose only one senior from a team that had four juniors, two sophomores and five Perry came to Eastern after being an assistant at the University of Michigan for four years.

With his connections in the Detroit area, most of his recruits came from that area and that did not sit well with some of the EKU supporters.

Perry, 36, signed a five-year deal with the school back in spring of 1997. The deal then was worth a base pay of $73,000 a year.

One of two of the top names floating around out in Rumorville are Campbellsville College Coach Travis Ford. Ford has proven himself as a coach in his short tenure in the college ranks and would do one thing that EKU would like.

That is bring in some of the Lexington (University of Kentucky) cash. Like Kyle Macy's hiring, EKU could spin it into a bunch of season tickets and larger contributions from 'new" friends of the program.

The other early candidate is Lexington Catholic Coach Danny Haney. The former EKU player has already established he can build a great program and, being in a private school, he has also proved he can recruit with the best of Unlike Ford, money may be the issue with Haney. The LexCath mentor would probably have to take a hefty pay cut to take the job.

Only time will tell, if Eastern Kentucky is really committed to having a top-notched men's basketball squad or, like other schools in the state, just want to stay at the bottom of the Ohio arate tournaments and if it is, then most will have Valley Conference. Another note from the OVC, Tennessee > 1990s had a run with back-to-back trips to the NCAA Tournament (1992 and 1993) with the Nashville school. Are the Bearcats still a number one seed? Basketball junkies will find out later today which four teams will be the number one seeds in the NCAA Tournament when the brackets for the event are released. With Kenyon Martin out with a broken leg, does that mean that the University of Cincinnati won't be a top-seed?

Martin, probably the best player in the college game this year just three minutes into LIC's first. round Conference USA Tournament game, bumped into a St. Louis University player and fell with his ankle underneath him.

X-rays showed he had fractured his right leg and torn ligaments in his ankle and is out for eight weeks.

Now to answer my question:

Yes, for everything they accomplished this year, the Bearcats should be a number one seed.

And no, because they have no chance of winning the national championship, then they are not a number one-seed and the selection committee shouldn't waste that higher ranking on

The way I understand the placement of the top teams or the top-seeds, it means that they have the best team at the time of the tournament and have the best shot of winning the tournament.

With Martin out, Cincinnati has about as much chance of winning the national title as Rick Bentley has of going by an all-you-can-eat buffet and not stopping.

In other words, it isn't going to happen. We don't have much time left and then the talking/arguing will begin.

A Look at Sports...

NCAA not too kind to UK

devastating Kentucky's loss to Arkansas in the first round of the SEC tournament last week?

It was devastating!

The Cats came into the tournament on a high (not a Desmond Allison high) after a big win at home over a good Florida team, only to find the Razorbacks not ready to accept defeat before the ball was tipped off.

The breaks of winning another SEC tournament and getting, perhaps, a number-two seed in the NCAA tournament if they could have won the SEC tournament, were in place with Florida and Tennessee already eliminated. All the Cats had to do was get that first win over Arkansas.

But as the field of 64 teams tips off in the NCAA tournament Thursday night, the Cats find themselves a fifth seed (and it has been a long time since they were a five seed) and facing a St. Bonaventure team which knocked off then second-ranked Temple earlier in the year.

The Bonnies are not, repeat, are not going to be an easy first-round game. But any game Kentucky plays, no matter the opponent, the game is always close. The Cats have not had many blowouts this Worse gets worse for Coach Tubby Smith and UK. Starting forward Desmond Allison is ruled out for the upcoming tournament and could have played his final game in a Kentucky uniform. Already reported, Allison made a big mistake getting arrested for DUI and possession of drugs.

The infraction broke team and school rules, and Coach Smith had no other recourse but to suspend

All that does is shorten the already short Kentucky bench. Eight players will make the roster for the Cats with Marvin Stone, J.P. Blevins and Todd Tackett coming off the pines. Steve Masiello is just there as a fan favorite and is not even close to being a basketball player. He looks horrible on his shots to the

Todd has not played that much, in a corner and be forced to use the former Paintsville star.

It all goes back to a thing called loyalty. Allison knew the rules. He knew the consequences of being caught in such a demeanor. He knew that the team needed his presence. Yet there was no consideration for what the team needed, but what he wanted.

Now he has been found out and has to pay the price. Look for the student government body to revoke his scholarship at UK.

RUMORS ARE PERSISTENT...

With rumors of Tubby going to Atlanta to take the Hawks job next year, there are a lot of rumors floating around locally.

But that is all they are -

Some we have heard and put no

■ Cindy Halbert is interested in the Allen Central girls' position. Anthony Moore wants to return, if the school will rehire him. If Anthony wants to come back, look for him to return.

Johnny Martin, Allen Central, will head south to Gator country to coach high school basketball. Coach Martin could have gone there last year but opted to stay home. We believe he will be back at AC and enjoy the new seats in the J.E. Campbell Arena.

Bobby Hamilton is out at Prestonsburg and a host of coaches are waiting in the wings to apply for the position. Says here, Bobby will be back at the helm of the Lady Blackcats again this win-

Harold Tackett's name has been linked to every position in the county and then some. Harold wants to coach and he has proven that he can do the job.

Personally, I would like to see a school give him a coaching position. They would not regret it.

South Floyd Coach Henry Webb is going to Johnson Central, Central, Paintsville, Pikeville and Shelby Valley.

Wait a minute! Shelby Valley? Rodney Rowe is a fixture there and is going nowhere.

Paintsville? Come on. Bill Mike is not ready to hang it up yet. Allen Central. Nahhh! Johnson Central? Well, a possibility if Coach Johnny Ray Turner really hangs it up for good.

But, like most fans, look for South Floyd next year; if not, then just being the school's principal. But I can't really see that, either.

Betsy Layne Coach Cassandra Akers has resigned 12 times. But every time I talk with her or anyone close to the program, that is just a rumor. Cassandra is a good coach. She even admits that she is still learning her team. She will be back and even this year, but Tubby may be the Ladycats will be a district and High School to speak to Stacy and regional contender next year.

Remember. These are only rumors and not facts.

JEFF, WHAT IS WRONG...

Dale Earnhardt won the 75th Winston Cup race of his career by winning last Sunday's Cracker Barrel 500. Dale nosed out second-place finisher Bobby Labonte in a close call at the line.

Jeff Gordon continues to struggle early in the race season. Suppose he still misses his old crew chief, Ray Everham.

Race fans are getting antsy over the lack of action in NASCAR racing this year. Stay seated. It will pick up.

STATE LOOK...

The boys' Sweet Sixteen will tip off today at Rupp Arena in Lexington and Floyd County will be represented at the tournament by two schools.

Johnny Ray Turner of Drift, who coached the Johnson Central Eagles to the 15th Region title this past Saturday night, will make his first-ever appearance as a coach in the tournament.

Before the season began, Tommy McKenzie said one of his goals was to get his team to Rupp

"I want Coach Turner to be able to walk onto the floor as a coach and not as a fan," he said. McKenzie and Mitchell

Coleman, both seniors, have done just that, leading the Eagles past Pikeville in the regional finals. The second Floyd County connection will be when the Mercer County team takes to the court. Stacy Hall, who played for Coach Turner at McDowell, and was a good one, is the head coach at Mercer and led the team to the Sweet Sixteen in his first year.

Congratulations to both Coach Turner and Coach Hall in this year's state tournament.

Johnson Central meets Hopkins Central (26-5) Thursday night in a 8:35 p.m. tip off. Mercer County faces Scott County in the final first round game tonight at 8:30 p.m.

Of the field of 16 teams, Mercer County has the only losing record at 15-17.

Coach Hall's team started off at an 0-5 clip before righting itself and finishing strong.

Mercer was runner-up in the 46th District tournament to Coach Webb to be coaching at Harrodsburg, dropping a 53-51 decision in the championship

> But it was Harrodsburg who Mercer County met in the finals of the 12th Region tournament and Coach Hall's ballclub came away with a 56-49 victory.

> Mercer defeated Wayne County on their home court in a semifinal game, 68-55.

I called the Mercer County the lady who answered the phone asked if I knew him. Informing her that I covered him when he played at McDowell, she said, "We just love him to death here! We are so proud of him!" And so they should

There seemed to be too much disorder at this year's tournament as fans got bent out of shape because their team did not win.

Throwing of plastic bottles, offcolor signs and photos showed the character fans took on during the tournament. I think the tournament committee in the future should ban all signs, confetti, tissue paper and other objects from the gym.

Someone should be held accountable for the actions of a school's fans. One day, someone is going to get seriously hurt and it is not worth all that.

THE "KING" IS IN THE BUILDING...

What a treat for basketball fans who were in attendance at the final game Saturday night. Young fans and middle-age fans, who never had a chance to see Wayland's "King" Kelly Coleman play basketball or see him in person, were treated to a very special moment when Kelly was introduced before the final game began. Coleman was presented a brass trophy by tournament manager Johnny Martin as the Player of the Century.

Autograph hounds swarmed the former Wayland Wasp star. Kelly is still a legend in Kentucky basketball and will always live in the hearts of us who got to see him perform on the hardwood.

But I am afraid that some of the great names in Floyd County basketball and football will fade into history if something is not done to preserve their names. We need a Floyd County Hall of Fame.

Until Friday, good sports, everyone, and be good sports!

AND GRINNIN' Story and photos by Pam Shingler Lifestyles Editor

ershel Blevins has just let go another string of jokes.

Someone asks, "Is he like this at home?" His tolerant wife, Linda, shakes her head and grins, "Oh, it never stops."

Hershel says he asked her one day, "Would you like a laugh?"

She responded, "Yes," not knowing what to expect. "Would you marry me?" he shot back.

Who can say if that's the way it really happened. It's hard to know, in conversation, when the tall, burly Frasure Creek native is serious. He can be several minutes into a story before the listener knows he's being had.

It's easy, however, to see Hershel's serious side when he sings. His rich, deep baritone/bass voice is dead on Johnny Cash when he picks up a Cash song,

But he also does a better than average take on Mac Wiseman and other traditional country musicians.

Linda's voice, when she joins him, is high, sweet and melodic like a folk singer. She laughs as she admits she never knows what song Hershel is going to sing until he starts, leaving her to jump in a few chords away.

More than singing, Hershel loves playing the banjo and guitar and goes back and forth with ease. He taught himself to play as a youth, growing up on Big Mud

"I've got an ear for music," he says, but he can't let it go there. He puts his hand up to his left ear. "I keep skin-

He went to Ashtabula, Ohio, almost half a century ago, working on the railroad and fronting a family band. "I taught my four sons to play and they're all better than me," he says, this time without a hint of a joke. "All of them have played with big stars." The 68-year-old retiree started the family "on the road" when the boys were very young - one of them still in kindergarten. They played throughout Ohio and Pennsylvania, but "never made a living at it." As a family, they were billed as the Northeast Ohio Coon Hunters. Later, the sons played together as the Blevins Brothers.

Linda and Hershel were married about five years ago, after being friends and music buddies for more than 30

They and their late spouses knew each other through music, playing at festivals and churches and on radio shows. Linda, originally from Greenbrier County, West Virginia, and Hershel were widowed for several years before marrying each other. They appear to be boon

These days, they split their time between a farm near Ashtabula and a camper parked at McDowell. With Linda backing Hershel on guitar and vocals, they spend a good bit of time entertaining at nursing homes and hospitals and at charity benefits.

Hershel enjoys playing — and displaying — his $8,000, custom-made banjo, a show unto itself. He calls it the "Master Cross," an image borne out in etchings of crosses in the 24-carat gold trim on the instrument.

The banjo base is made of walnut with designs inlaid with mother of pearl. The tuning keys are made of shiny

The special banjo is "just something I always wanted.

He kids that Linda worked three jobs to pay for it, She nods her head, knowing any other response to be futile, but her ever-ready smile returns in a flash.

The Blevins couple "sang for our supper" Saturday afternoon at Sharon's Pizza at David, entertaining diners and pool players with jokes and songs. Look for them.

Hershel and Linda Blevins have homes in Ohio and Floyd County, which they use as bases as they entertain before a variety of crowds, mostly charitable benefits. Occasionally, they perform among friends, as at this recent performance at Sharon's Pizza at David.

'Lula, Comb down your bangs'

J. F. Bailey was the circuit judge for the 24th District from 1916 to 1946. His instructions to the Johnson County Grand Jury in the July 1921 session, to say the least, were lengthy. Newspaper accounts said that the judge took almost two hours to complete his charge.

It's almost a sure bet, however, that those who sat in his courtroom on that particular day did not get bored. Covering everything from robbery to child desertion, not only was the charge verbose and filled with legal jargon, it was also downright entertain-

A week or so ago, Dorothy Ross of Flat Gap sent us a copy of the newspaper's coverage of what Judge Bailey had to say. We enjoyed reading it so much that we've decided to share it with our readers, at least as much as our allotted space will permit.

The following is part of what he had to say about someone brought before the court on the charge of "disturbing religious worship.'

"To willfully disturb or interrupt a congregation assembled for, or engaging in worshipping God, or any other lawful assemblage, is a violation of the law and punishable with a fine and imprisonment," the judge told the jury. "We have entirely too many cases of disturbance.

"It is a very easy matter to create a disturbance that will attract the attention of a congregation and be a violation of the law," he said.

"But, this seldom occurs," the judge went on, "unless there is a little 'moonshine' in evidence. You see, some fellow may be perfectly sober through the week and when Saturday evening comes, he catches his pony and makes his way to some neighboring moonshine still and there parts with necessary coin to purchase for himself a quart of 'Forty-Rod Bug Juice.'

"On the following Sunday morning, he proceeds to get into his dirty hide at least a half pint of this poisonous stuff. He buckles a spur on each heel, straddles his pony and starts galloping down the road in the direction of the church singing, 'Lula, Comb Down Your Bangs.

"In such cases as this, don't wait to find out whether he got there or not, or disturbed the church. Indict him anyway, for he has violated the law. Of course, if he gets to the meeting place before he gets down by the roadside, he violates the law again. In that case, give him a double dose. Let us help him change his tune to 'Jordan Am a Hard Road to Travel.'

Sounds to me like the best thing to do back in 1921 was to either tip toe past a church service or take the long way around.

Again, thanks to Dorothy Ross.

■ The Story of Taps

The following story comes to me by way of Paul Youtsey who retired as Postmaster of Boulder Creek, California, and now lives in Pueblo, Colorado. He didn't say who the author was, but just that he liked this kind of story. I hope our readers will also like it.

It all began in 1862 during the Civil War, when Union Army Captain Robert Ellicombe was with his men near Harris' Landing in Virginia. The Confederate Army was on the other side of the narrow strip of land.

During the night, Captain Ellicombe heard the moan of a soldier who lay mortally wounded on the field. Not knowing if it was a Union or Confederate soldier, the captain decided to risk his life and bring the stricken man back for medical attention. Crawling on his stomach through the gunfire, the captain reached the stricken soldier and began pulling him toward the encampment.

When the captain finally reached his own lines, he discovered it was actually a Confederate soldier, but the soldier was dead. The captain lit a lantern. Suddenly, he caught his breath and went numb with shock. In the dim light, he saw the face of the soldier. It was his son.

The boy had been studying music in the South when the war broke out. Without telling his father, he enlisted in the Confederate women in World War II is "Rosie Riveter" helping build America's arsenal of democracy. Less known are the 265,000 women who joined the Armed Forces and helped win the war in uniform.

Memorial honors women who helped win World War II

While many of these volunteers served in traditional jobs such as typist, switchboard operator, file clerk, stenographer, cook and baker, many also became aviation mechanics, radio operators, parachute riggers, laboratory technicians, photo analysts or truck drivers.

Women served in every theater of the war, including North Africa, Europe, the Pacific Islands, China, India and Burma.

Nurses served near the front lines around the world, landed with the troops in North Africa and Europe, evacuated casualties aboard hospital ships and planes, and assumed greater professional

The Women Airforce Service Pilots never received the militarization promised to them until 1979 when the Air Force accepted them as a part of itself. In 1984, each was awarded the Victory Medal.

The contributions and sacrifices these women made will be honored when the National World War II Memorial is built on the Mall in Washington, D.C.

The memorial, whose cost is estimated at $100 million, will be funded primarily through private contributions. The American Battle Monuments Commission hopes to break ground by Veterans Day

The memorial will inspire future generations to remember these women-our grandmothers, aunts, mothers and sisters-the important role they played in our country's Americans who stepped forward when their country called upon

Members of the World War II generation who served in uniform and on the home front can be recognized in the memorial's Registry of Remembrances, a permanent record of their contribution to the war

Out of respect for the father, they did say they could give him one musician. The captain chose a bugler. He asked the bugler to play a series of musical notes he had found on a piece of paper in the pocket of his dead son's uniform. This wish was granted.

Q: Why did you recommend sugarless gum for children? Aren't the "fake" sugars they contain harmful for children?

A: No. Most sugarless gums are sweetened with mannitol or xylitol. These are calorie-contamining sugars, but do not promote tooth decay the way the sugar in regular gum or candy does. People who use excessive amounts of these sweeteners can get intestinal cramps, but that should not happen with normal use. Products made with NutraSweet (aspartame) are also safe for children in reasonable amounts. The safety limits for aspartame are based on body size, so although records show that adults can safely tolerate the equivalent of more than 10 cans of diet soda a day, limits for children must be adjusted downward. People with the metabolic disorder called PKU and the random few that may get headaches from the product should avoid it. Research has not shown any reason to prohibit children from consuming this sweetener. On the other hand, research clearly shows that bathing the mouth in sugar from

A: The answer varies with the type and size of nut. If you want a fairly reliable answer for a particular nut you're using, check the label on a packaged variety. As a general rule, however, an ounce of most nuts is about three or four tablespoons. For an average adult, that might be about a handful. An ounce of most nuts provides about 4 to 6 grams of protein, along with about 13 to 18 grams of fat and 160 to 200 calories. Very little of the fat in nuts is saturated fat-the type that is the greatest health concern-and nuts do provide valuable fiber and nutrients. Within moderation they can be a great addition to a healthy, mostly plant-based diet, as recommended by the American Institute for Cancer Research for lower cancer risk and overall good health.

tainly nothing "wrong" with these products, we are probably misleading ourselves if we say they are an equal substitute for a balanced breakfast. Most breakfast bars provide less fiber than you would get from a whole-grain cereal or toast, and most contain substantially more sugar than you might realize. (Check the label for sugar content, remembering that each four grams of sugar represents a teaspoonful.) Even products that market themselves as containing fruit really contain what is more like jam. Perhaps heading to bed fifteen minutes earlier would allow everyone to get up with 15 minutes to spare for a breakfast that includes a more balanced selection of whole grains and fruit without too much of a fat and sugar load. Even if you prefer dinner leftovers to traditional "breakfast foods," the key is the balance. Save the bars for occasional breakfasts or as a sweet snack. "Nutrition-Wise" is provided as a public service by the American Institute for Cancer Research. Questions for this column may be sent to "Nutrition Wise," 1759 R Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009. Ms. Collins cannot respond to questions personally.

Fields of Knott County. February 26: A daughter, Tips for painting water-stained walls

(NAPSA)-This time of year homeowners often have problems with water stains appearing on ceilings, walls and woodwork. Water from melting ice, snow and rain seeps inside from insufficient flashing around windows, skylights, dormers and chimneys, and from ice dams forming in gutters and along roof edges.

Some may think all that's needed to hide these stains is a fresh coat of paint. But water stains are reactivated by the water in latex paints and will bleed back through, ruining the paint job. Before painting, it's best to prepare water-stained surfaces with a "first coat" of a shellac-base primer, like B-I-N, from the Zinsser Company. The shellac resin permanently seals off the stain, as well as any musty odors. The primer can then be topcoated with any type of latex finish ditional pint, quart and gallon sizes, as well as a handy aerosol for covering water stains on acoustical ceiling tiles. The product is easy to use. It contains an alcohol solvent, so it dries fast, ready for topcoating in less than an hour, and brushes clean up easily with household ammonia and water. For more information, call Zinsser at (732) 469-4367 or visit the company's web site at www.zinsser.com.

Readily available at paint stores, hardware stores, and home

Lee Enterprises (NYSE:LEE) investments in markets where it can broadcasting segment and expand in publishing, online and information services.

Lee owns WSAZ-TV3 in Huntington.

Richard D. Gottlieb, chairman relationship with our and chief executive officer, said the company has engaged Credit Suisse First Boston and McFarland Dewey & Co. LLC to evaluate alternatives for selling Lee's nine network-affiliated and seven satellite television stations. He said Lee is evaluating several potential publishing and online acquisitions.

He said discussions with potential buyers would begin immediately and that a transaction could be completed within two or three months. The sale would then require federal regulatory approval.

Gottlieb said Lee has refocused its strategy in response to media trends, including ownership consolidation in the broadcasting industry.

"Although we believe broadcasting will remain a fine business," he said, "we concluded that the relatively small size of our holdings eventually would limit our ability to control our future. Rather than expand in television, we have decided to accelerate our growth in the other arenas, where we see very exciting opportunities.'

Gottlieb said the broadcasting division has performed exceptionally well in the last year. "By almost every measure, our stations have accelerated their performance in impressive ways and our people are doing outstanding work," he said. "Yet, in the long term, they will be even more successful if they are part of a larger broadcasting group."

In fiscal year 1999, the stations contributed $122.5 million of Lee's $536.3 million in total revenues. About 1,000 of Lee's 6,200 employees work in broadcasting.

Cats must face mirror before facing NCAA challenge

DARRELL BIRD

'The despair deepened with a setting sun and word that Kentucky had been insulted by the NCAA Tournament selection committee which saddled the Cats with a No. 5 seed when logic dictated no worse than a 4 seed. Seems RPI was ignored thus enhancing a RIP for the Cats.'

Five things to do in Cleveland:

5) Visit the "one-hit wonders" wall at the Rock 'n' Roll Half of Fame.

4) Try to find Drew Carey.

See if Tim Couch will have us all over for a cookout.

2) Hope it doesn't snow.

 Wish you were in Tucson.

dbird@catspause.com

nd for the most part March 12 had always been such a good day. It was on this day in 1894 that Coca-Cola was first served in bottles, as God intended.

And in 1959, in what might rate as the final intelligent decision by a governmental body, Congress signed up Hawaii as the 50th state thus ensuring life, liberty and the pursuit of bikini-clad islanders to NFL players in town for the Pro Bowl.

But then came the first March 12 of the new century, henceforth known across the Commonwealth of Kentucky as "Black Sunday."

With daybreak came the somber realization that Kentucky would not be playing in the SEC Tournament championship for the first time since coming off probation.

That despair deepened with a setting sun and word that Kentucky had been insulted by the NCAA Tournament selection committee which saddled the Cats with a No. 5 seed when logic dictated no worse than a 4 seed. Seems RPI was ignored thus enhancing a RIP for the Cats.

But before UK fans could even root through the inequities of the tournament bracket, there came the bell's final, deafening toll on "Black Sunday." Sophomore guard Desmond Allison had been suspended after being arrested on a DUI charge and alleged possession of marijuana. He won't play in the NCAA Tournament and, if convicted, he'll never suit up for UK again.

Forget March Madness. This is a Maddening March

The question that now begs consideration is how will Kentucky respond?

Well, let's just say that since they'll already be in Cleveland they might want to book a weekend tour of the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame.

I would like to believe Kentucky will tighten the ranks and lash out like the wounded animal that it is. Certainly, this team's fortunes have spun on a dime more than once this year. But to prevail in the rigorous NCAA Tournament and with a team down to just nine players, the Cats will have to discover an inner courage that has belied this group to date.

Kentucky has forged some good wins, and was admirable in bouncing back from a 4-4 start against competition that would've scared the flannels off a Navy seal. And that convincing rout of Florida in the regular season finale even stirred hopes of a bright postseason. But when taking the season as a whole, Kentucky has not responded as a truly courageous team when the chips are down. Courage from individuals who refuse to surrender? Absolutely yes. But a courageous, collective team effort as seen with the '98 champs who overcame Duke or with the '97 club that bulled ahead minus Derek Anderson? No.

Consider that Kentucky has trailed at halftime in 11 games but rallied to win only three times. And against SEC competition, UK sports an 0-5 collar including last week's abysmal effort against Arkansas in the tournament.

In fact, the foreboding question of how UK might perform in the NCAA Tournament was already a troublesome thought after the Arkansas debacle. Clearly, the Cats demonstrated they went into the SEC Tournament believing past success and the magical aura of the Georgia Dome would ensure another championship in "Catlanta." They forgot that all that success had been built on the hard work of past teams.

So where do we go from here?

For starters, if Kentucky is to piece together a legitimate contender this week they will have to dispatch first-round foe St. Bonaventure in short order.

Tubby Smith's Wildcats face a tough challenge in the Midwest bracket, which appears to be the toughest bracket in the tournament this year.

In sports, nothing salves a wound like winning.

Secondly, the depleted bench must contribute.

Jules Camara will be elevated to the starting lineup which, ironically, gives the Cats its best starting unit.

But J.P. Blevins, Todd Tackett, Marvin Stone and Steve Masiello must contribute. It's not an option.

Lastly, and perhaps most importantly, each player must face the mirror and confront their own desire. Do I want it? Do I really want it?

At this point, they'll not win because Kentucky arches over the jersey, or because of the rich tradition. They'll succeed only if this Kentucky team demands it so.

Midwest Is Toughest

It was bad enough that Kentucky received a No. 5 seed, but did the committee also have to place the Cats in the toughest region?

They're joined in the Midwest by No. 1 seed Michigan State, No. 2 Iowa State, No. 3 Maryland, No. 4 Syracuse, No. 6 UCLA and No. 7 Auburn.

By contrast, look to the South where top seed Stanford need only contend with No. 3 Ohio State for a trip to the Final Four. The No. 2 seed is depleted Cincinnati and No. 4 is Tennessee, which so far has shown an allergic reaction to March.

But as tough as the Midwest might be Kentucky's biggest challenge could be defying history. Since the tournament expanded to 64 teams in 1985, a 12 seed has upset a 5 seed every year but one.

In 15 years a 12 seed has won its tourney opener 18 times. Some of the more memorable upsets include last year when Southwest Missouri State beat Wisconsin and Detroit stunned UCLA. Then there was College of Charleston's win over Maryland in 1997, Drexel's upset of Memphis in '96, and Eastern Michigan's win over Mississippi State in 1991.

As for 2000, the scariest pairing could be in the South Region where 12 seed Utah State meets 5 seed Connecticut. Utah State went undefeated in its conference and has won 19 straight games. The other 5-12 matchups pit Florida versus Butler in the East and Texas against Indiana State in the West.

If you're a believer of NCAA Tournament trends, then it would appear the Cats have a 50-50 chance of winning its second game, most likely against No. 4 seed Syracuse. No. 5 seeds have a 42-18 record in first-round games but are only 20-22 in the second round.

Should Kentucky be able to beat Syracuse a probable date with No. 1 seed Michigan State would loom the following week in Detroit. Tragically, No. 5 seeds are only 2-18 in Sweet 16 games.

And for those who might be wondering, a No. 5 seed has never won the NCAA Tournament. The best showing was 1996 when Mississippi State caught fire and beat Kentucky in the SEC Tourney final before reeling off four wins to reach the Final Four. The Bulldogs thumped top seed UConn and 2 seed Cincinnati along the way.

Romancing the Stone

Trying to predict this NCAA Tournament is tantamount to toppling the lead milk jugs at the county fair with baseballs no more formidable that rolled socks. For starters, there is no clear favorite as with Kentucky in 1996, UNLV in 1990 or UCLA throughout the '60s.

With that, the next best option is to look at which teams are hot as we enter March. That nod goes to Michigan State, Iowa State, St. John's, Temple and Duke. Teams currently running cold include Indiana, UConn, most of the SEC and yes, even Kentucky. In fact, you can be certain that the rest of the nation scratched off Kentucky when news broke of Allison's arrest.

From this pulpit, look for a Final Four of Michigan State, St. John's, Temple and Stanford.

As for a national champion, it would be most fitting if this unpredictable season were to end with battle-weary John Chaney of Temple finally winning the big prize.

At least that's what I'm hoping for.

Just Wondering...

Think UK has a beef? Try explaining to Vanderbilt why they were left out. Of course, Vanderbilt was omitted on merit and not because Arkansas' automatic bid would have given the SEC a politically incorrect seven bids. Yeah, right.

® Think Vandy has a beef? Try explaining to Virginia why they were snubbed in favor of ACC rival North Carolina. Did the committee not notice that Virginia beat the Tar Heels twice this year?

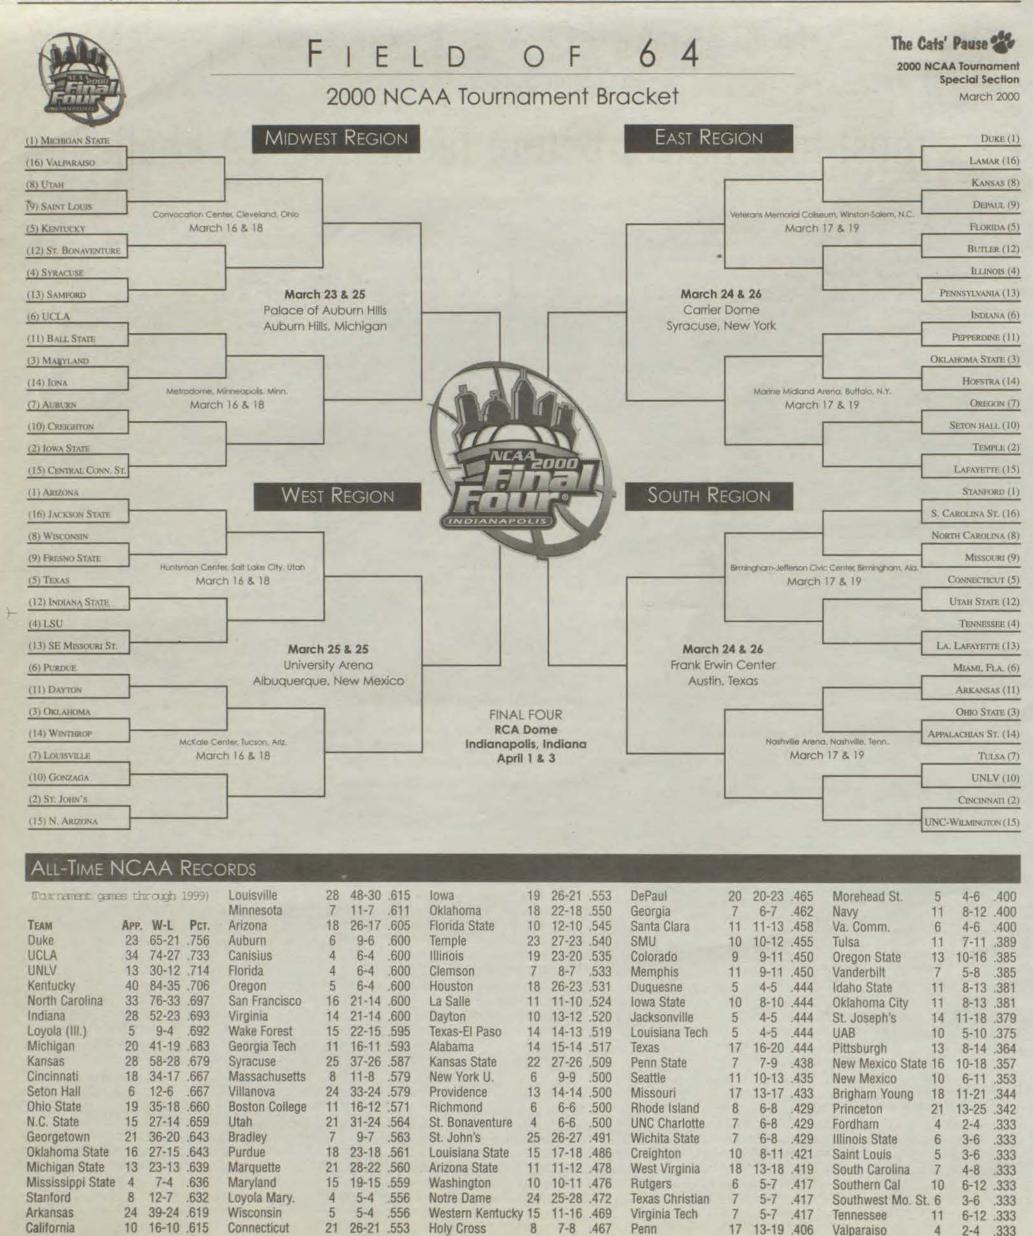

Think depleted Kentucky could use Derek Smith right about now?

 Anybody notice that Duke gets to play in the state of North Carolina again?

Description of the English States of Sonzaga. But hey, they're in Tucson, Ariz., while Kentucky is in Cleveland.

And finally, what on earth were you thinking Desmond?

■ Darrell Bird is managing editor of The Cats' Pause and eager to visit Cleveland if only for the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame where I hear the ABBA exhibit is to die for.

Bonnies will be tough, but they lack depth

Kentucky vs. St. Bonaventure

Date: Thursday, March 16 (Time TBA) Place: Convocation Center, Cleveland, Ohio

Radio: UK Radio Network Last Meeting: First Meeting

Series: 0-0

Notable: This marks the first-ever meeting for UK and St. Bonaventure, a school located in western New York. The Bonnies finished 21-9 this season, Kentucky 22-9. The Cats lost in the first round of the SEC Tournament, St. Bonaventure in the championship of the Atlantic 10. The game is Kentucky's first in Cleveland since an 81-65 win over Ohio State in 1996. UK has never played at the Convocation Center.

Keys

Point Guard

Tim Winn is St. Bonaventure's premier player, a point guard who can drive, draw and dish or get off his own shot. He averages 13.7 points and 4.1 assists, and he's the man who makes the Bonnies' offense go. If Kentucky wants to avoid the upset, it will need to start with sound defense on Winn.

Shooting Guard

UK's Keith Bogans made the SEC's All-Freshman team, and it's not hard to see why. Though in his first year as a collegian, he's already the best player Kentucky has at creating his own shot. He'll likely be matched up with David Messiah Capers, one member of a three-guard rotation for the Bonnies.

Center

Caswell Cyrus isn't St. Bonaventure's tallest starter, but he's listed as the Bonnies' center. At 6-foot-9, he isn't likely to handle the defense of Jamaal Magloire on his own. Magloire, a first-team All-SEC selection, has developed a more rounded offensive game to go along with his always imposing defense

Wing Forward

Tayshaun Prince slides back to his more familiar position with the suspension of Desmond Allison. If he's on his game, Prince, who'd been playing power forward much of the season, will provide a matchup nightmare for the Bonnies. St. Bonaventure starts three guards, the tallest among them 6foot-4 freshman Patricio Prato, a solid three-point threat.

Peter Van Paassen might not be the athlete UK's Jules Camara is, but he's got big numbers, averaging 10.2 points and 7.1 rebounds per game. Van Paassen operates mostly around the basket (he's missed his only two threepoint attempts this season), but isn't the shotblocker Camara is, having swatted away just 10 all season to the UK sophomore's 45.

Tempo

Don't expect a lot of scoring. Like Kentucky, the Bonnies average under 70 points per game, and St. Bonaventure isn't likely to crank up the pace, despite UK's lack of depth. Like a lot of A-10 teams, the Bonnies would rather grind it out and keep the score low.

Defense

Kentucky normally would get an edge here, but without Allison, arguably its best perimeter defender, UK is an uncertain commodity on defense. At St. aventure is an outstanding defensive unit, holding its opponents to just 40.8 percent shooting.

Bench

St. Bonaventure has eight players who average double-figure minutes, Kentucky has nine players. But don't weep too loudly for the Wildcats. The Bonnies can't bring anyone like Marvin Stone off the pine. Still, J.R. Bremer gets nine points per game as a reserve, and Kentucky will be hard pressed to find BONNIES scoring from its backups

Intangibles

The Bonnies have every reason to be confident, the Cats every reason to be uncertain. It's anybody's guess how Kentucky will respond coming off a damaging loss to Arkansas and playing without one of its leaders. St.

Bonaventure, though coming off a loss in the A-10 Tournament, should have some confidence based on a win against Dayton, the only opponent the teams have in common

n a typical season, Kentucky doesn't sweat its opening game in the NCAA Tournament. It shows up, and sometimes an upstart opponent makes a game of things for a while, but in the end, it's a forgone con-

This might be the year the Wildcats start

Facing a dangerous first-round foe - and doing so with one of its starters suspended -Kentucky rarely has looked more vulnerable than it does entering Thursday's game against St. Bonaventure in Cleveland.

You never want to be shorthanded," UK coach Tubby Smith said in a statement on Selection Sunday. "It's always a disruption and distraction. But we've been shorthanded most of the year with only 10 players eligible and healthy to play.

Though St. Bonaventure figures to be no pushover - it beat both Dayton, which defeated UK in December, and Temple this season it doesn't have the depth to fully exploit Kentucky's newest weakness. Six players average 24 or more minutes for the Bonnies, and only two more see double digit minutes.

The most notable among those St. Bonaventure players is guard Tim Winn, who leads the Bonnies in scoring (13.7 points per game), assists (4.1 per game), steals (98) and three-point field goals (54).

"They beat Temple earlier in the year and they beat Dayton this past weekend in the Atlantic 10 Tournament, a team that beat us in December. So you know their capabilities," Smith said. "They have an outstanding talent in Tim Winn and are very well coached by Jim

Kentucky faces St. Bonaventure as a No. 5 seed in the NCAA Tournament, its lowest seed since 1982, when the Cats were bounced from the first round of the tourney as a No. 6 seed by Middle Tennessee. Kentucky entered last weekend's SEC Tournament with a chance to play its way up, perhaps to a No. 3 seed, but lost in the opening round of the tournament to

"Well I think it's justifiable," Smith said of the seeding. "In the SEC Tournament." h a tough first outing against a good Arkansas team which proved to be better than people thought by winning the SEC Tournament. With the four co-champions losing in the league tournament - LSU, Tennessee, Florida and us - it hurt us all to some degree as far as the seeding is concerned."

Should Kentucky get past the Bonnies, a potential matchup with Syracuse awaits. The Orangemen, whom UK beat in the 1996 NCAA championship game, play Samford in the other half of Kentucky's early bracket.

That only hints at the depth of the Midwest Region in which Kentucky and St. Bonaventure are paired. The region features six teams who won or tied for conference championships. Among the powers located in the region are its top seed, Michigan State, along with Iowa State, Maryland, UCLA and

Of course, that's jumping ahead.

"When you get to this level, you don't overlook anybody," Smith said. "Certainly, at this moment, we feel like the toughest team in this region is St. Bonaventure.'

The Bonnies promise to put up a fight, but the school doesn't boast a grand tournament tradition. St. Bonaventure last played in the NCAAs in 1970, when Bob Lanier led the Bonnies to the Final Four. St. The school's last win in the tournament came in that season, a 97-74 rout of Villanova in the East Region final. St. Bonaventure would lose in the national semifinal to Artis Gilmore and Jack-

Kentucky, meanwhile, has a rich tournament history, but enters this season's event with as many question marks as it's had in years, none more significant, perhaps, than how the team will deal with the loss of Allison, who started 29 games and played in all 31, and who averaged 7.8 points, 3.8 rebounds and 2.4 assists per game.

"He was an athletic swing player who also was one of our better defenders," Smith said. "It's disappointing, but he's made a mistake and it has cost him and this team."

Skinny: The Spartans have been a mild disappointment, even with the return of point guard Mateen Cleaves. But MSU is a seasoned team with plenty of offensive options and last year's Final Four run to draw upon. Cleaves runs the show as well as any point guard in the country, but the Spartans still are susceptible to scoring droughts.

Skinny Duarry Duarry has a great name and decent game, but the Badgers aren't so concerned with perimeter play. They're more about punishing, physical play in the post, especially on defense. Wisconsin won't put many points on the board, but its defense so stymies its opponents' offense, it stays in most every game.

laying in the NCAA Tournament for the first time can be an overwhelming experience for some players. The travel, crowds, national media and championship pressure make some players wilt. Keith Bogans says that won't happen to him when he makes his NCAA debut for Kentucky this week.

"I love playing basketball," said the Kentucky freshman guard. "I never get tired. We could play 100 more games and I would still love it. My body might get a little tired, but I would be fine.

"That's what makes the NCAA Tournament so exciting. It's a different challenge, something I haven't experienced before. I came here to help Kentucky win a national championship. Now I have my chance."

Veteran Kentucky equipment manager Bill Keightley has watched a lot of players make their NCAA debut with the Wildcats. He doesn't foresee any problems with Bogans handling the hoopla.

"Keith is a tremendous competitor," Keightley said. "Being a freshman, he may not be supposed to take the bull by the horn, but he does. When it comes time to get a basket, he wants the ball.

"He'll take it and go where he is supposed to go. He is not adverse to putting it up in any situation. But if you don't put it up, it won't go in. He's absolutely fearless that way and that's what it takes to survive in the NCAA. You can't play afraid and he doesn't."

Bogans was one of the nation's top high school players and often played against the nation's best talent. He's been through a season at Kentucky facing the nation's most difficult schedule. No wonder he doesn't think the NCAA Tournament will disrupt him.

"I love to travel and play on the road," Bogans said. "I like playing in front of the big crowds and TV cameras. The environment can only make you play better."

Bogans played well enough to make a case for being the Southeastern Conference's best freshman, an honor the league coaches bestowed on Arkansas' Joe Johnson. Still, in a league filled with rising stars in the freshman class, Bogans more than held his own.

He's third on the team in scoring, but was second in scoring during SEC play.

Bogans had a UK season-high 25 points against Tennessee, 21 against South Carolina, 24 at Florida and 22 against Arkansas. Against Florida, he had 19 of his points in the second half, the most any UK player tallied in one half this season, to keep a big loss from being even more embarrassing.

He was the first Kentucky player since Ron Mercer in 1997 to have three straight 20-point games and only the second freshman ever to do that.

He'leads the team in shots taken, an unusual role for a freshman.

"I've never been opposed to shooting," Bogans said. "If I have a shot, I take it."

Bogans overcame a slower than expected start for him by becoming more patient and working on his shot even more. "I've learned to take my time, not rush as much," Bogans said. "I was rushing everything at the start of the year."

Bogans admits he was trying to live up to the hype that went with being a McDonald's All-American at legendary DeMatha Catholic High School in Hyattsville, Md. He worried when he didn't start that he was a failure.

The Cats were only 4-4 with Bogans coming off the bench. He earned his first start against Louisville, a 76-46 Kentucky win.

late to work on his shooting, which had been suspect early in the season.

"I'm probably still a better slasher than pure shooter and I still take a few bad shots," Bogans said. "But I'm learning."

Keightley learned something about the freshman many feel is destined to be a future NBA first-round draft pick when Smith went to 6 a.m. practices in February. Several players grumbled that the early workouts left them tired. Keightley never saw any complaining from Bogans.

"T've lived longer than a lot of people and something I've noticed in the game of life is that morning people do well," Keightley said. "I'm a morning person. I am ready to get up, get out and see people.

"Show me a person that smiles at 5:30 in the morning and I'll show you a guy who will be fine. That's Keith Bogans. He comes in and just lights up a room, even at 5:30. He would be laughing and the rest of the players would be looking like they sucked on lemon when they came in. Not Keith. He came ready to practice and have a good time. He just loves to play."

And win.

Bogans never likes to be out of a game, either. He shows his emotions, good or bad., and does look then like he might have been sucking on his own lemon. He may look like he's sulking, but it is his burning desire to win that leaves him frustrated when he can only sit and watch.

"I love to win. I always have," Bogans said,
"Nothing motivates me like winning. That's why I came here."

Bogans doesn't second guess anything his coach does, either.

"He knows what we are capable of doing," Bogans said. "A coach should never get down on a team and that's how he is. He stays positive and keeps us positive.

"In practice, his job is to get on us. Once we get on the court, he lets us play our game. I knew when I came here that he was hard on his players, but that's what I wanted. I knew he would push me to make me a better player and push our team to be better."

One thing Smith didn't have to push was Bogans' confidence. He predicted a win at Vanderbilt earlier this season, a game the Cats did win in overtime. He missed a potential game-winning shot at the end of regulation, but it was a shot he wanted to take and would love to take in a similar situation in the NCAA Tournament.

"Anybody on the floor should want to take a game-winning shot," Bogans said. "That's why you are here. You can miss, but I have confidence I will hit that shot. That will never change, not even in the NCAA."

Keightley says one other thing won't, either.

"A man that can smile as early in the morning as Keith can, never worry about him. He'll be fine whether it's in the NCAA Tournament or at work," Keightley said, "He's a dandy and it wouldn't stun me to see him have a big, big NCAA Tournament because he's not afraid of success or failure."

UK All-Stars

Six Kentucky football signees have been named to the Kentucky all-star team that will play the best from Tennessee in June at Commonwealth Stadium.

Linemen Josh Jaggers of Danville, Matt Huff of Louisville, Jeremy Caudill of Prestonsburg and Daniel Burnett of Lexington will be joined on the roster by wide receiver Gerad Parker of Lawrence County and quarterback Shane Boyd of Lexington.

Borrowing

New Kentucky offensive coordinator Tony Franklin has been busy recently. He attended a coaching clinic in Atlanta and then spent three days in Dallas exchanging ideas with other coaches who have a similar passing philosophy.

"It is just a chance for a certain group of coaches to get together and share a lot of things," Franklin said. "No one we play is there. You don't have to worry about giving away your secret or giving someone something they could use to beat you."

In Trouble

Former Kentucky player Myron Anthony was suspended by Texas Christian coach Billy Tubbs for "violating team rules" last week.

Anthony transferred from Kentucky last season and became eligible the second semester. He was averaging 11 points and six rebounds per game.

One might remember that Anthony was the one who took Wayne Turner's car without permission, had an accident, fled the scene and left Turner in trouble with the law.
