Second arrest made in drug case

Another arrest has been made in conjunction with the Sept. 8 midnight arrest of Wheelwright resident Osalene Triplett on drug charges.

Triplett's son, Darrell Triplett, 31, has been arrested and charged with possession of marijuana, first-degree cocaine trafficking, cultivation of fewer than five marijuana plants and two counts of possession of drug paraphernalia.

Triplett was arrested and taken into custody by Officer Gary Tackett of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department on Sept. 13 at 8:57 p.m. He was located and arrested in the Minnie area at the Minnie Townhouses.

Triplett appeared in the district court of Judge Eric D. Hall on Sept. 18 to answer the above charges. Due to the unavailability of Lt. Ricky Thornberry of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department to appear, Triplett's preliminary hearing was postponed to Monday, October 9.

Eight candidates make the cut for PVA

Governor to select successor to Hall

by RALPH B. DAVIS
MANAGING EDITOR

The names of eight people vying to be Floyd County's next property valuation administrator have been submitted to Gov. Paul Patton's office.

The names were compiled after 12 people took a qualifying examination for the office of PVA. Of the 12 who took the test, eight passed. They include:

- Janice B. Allen
- Connie J. Hancock
- Paula S. Layne
- Debra K. McKinney
- Glen D. May II
- Russell Shepherd
- Barry K. Spurlock
- Michael D. Vance

In addition to passing the qualifying test, candidates for PVA must also have been a resident of the state for one year, said Vince Lang, commissioner of the Property Valuation Branch of the state Revenue Cabinet.

The governor will now review the names and appoint a successor to Lovel Hall, who died August 28.

In his experience, Lang said he has seen it take between two weeks and two months for a successor to be named after the names of qualified candidates are submitted, but that he anticipates a quick decision from the governor.

In the meantime, the Revenue Cabinet has appointed one of its own to fill in as PVA until a successor is named. Denny Miller, a cabinet field representative, will serve as PVA until Patton makes a selection.

Ordinarily when a vacancy arises in a public office, a successor is appointed until a special election can be held. But because there will be no elections next year and it is

Adult Day Services Week

Happy House meets needs

Times Staff Report

The Happy House Adult Day Services Center located at Archer Park in Prestonsburg is observing Adult Day Services Week, which Gov. Paul Patton has proclaimed for September 17-23.

Happy House Adult Day Services Center, Inc. is a non-profit organization and is governed by a board of directors. It is made up of two distinct models of adult day care — the social and the medical.

The social model is designed to alleviate feelings of isolation and loneliness among older adults by offering supervised socialization. The medical model seeks to provide health and rehabilitation services in addition to recreational services.

Happy House accepts adults of all ages who require constant care and supervision. It provides an alternative to nursing home care and in-home services.

Happy House provides respite for caregivers who want to allow their family members to remain at home but need relief from the stress of 24-hour constant care. It also provides affordable care that allows family members to continue to remain in the workplace and maintain an independent life while caring for their loved ones.

Among the services provided by Happy House are supervision, socialization, meals and snacks, therapeutic activities, exercise program, medication supervision, personal care (showers, shampoo hair, skin and oral care), physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech

Tackett pleads not guilty in drive-by shooting

by KATHY J. PRATER
STAFF WRITER

A Galveston man appeared in court Monday to answer charges of first degree assault in connection with a drive-by shooting that occurred on September 9 in the Branham's Creek area of Floyd County.

Aaron D. Tackett, 20, was on hand to hear testimony gathered against him from Officer Stewart Howard Jr. of the Kentucky State Police and Tawanya Tackett, the alleged victim.

Tawanya Tackett testified that near dusk on the aforementioned evening, Aaron Tackett was a passenger in a black Chevy Cavalier that continuously drove by her residence on Branham's Creek.

Tawanya Tackett alleges that as the vehicle passed, Aaron Tackett would hang out of the window and yell obscenities in the direction of her home. She said that she and her family placed two phone calls to the state police post to report the incidents but that no trooper appeared on the scene.

She also said that her family continued to try to enjoy their evening by planning a cook-out dinner. She said that she and two family members attempted to go to an area grocery store around 10 p.m.

They got into a family owned truck and were pulling out of the driveway when the car carrying Aaron Tackett drove by again, this time with Aaron Tackett allegedly hanging out of the window holding a shotgun pointed in their direction.

A single shot was fired that struck the outside mirror on

Suspect arrested for burglary, escape

Times Staff Report

A Wayland man has been arrested on charges of third-degree burglary and third-degree escape. The charges stem from an incident that took place on September 10 at Ivel.

At approximately 2:25 a.m. a call was placed to the Kentucky State Police post that informed of a burglary taking place at Southern Energy Homes. Trooper Anthony Taulbee responded and upon arrival at the scene, he discovered that a car accident had occurred on the Southern Energy Homes property.

The accident involved a single vehicle, a 1989 silver Mercedes Benz, operated by Gary T. Conley, 22. Conley reported to Taulbee that he had been run off of U.S. 23 by an unidentified vehicle.

Conley's vehicle had been backed into a 40-foot ditch and he was there by stranded. The officer took note of tire marks originating from the driveway of one of the mobile homes. According to police, the marks

Indiana suspect captured locally

A fugitive wanted by the state of Indiana has been arrested by local policemen.

Anita M. Glaser, 39, of Allegan, Mich., was arrested September 16 at 10:30 a.m. at Highland Heights apartments in the Goble-Roberts area.

When first approached, Glaser told arresting officer Ralph Frasure of the Prestonsburg Police Department that her last name was Stone and that she had no current identification. But, the officer reported, she did have identification and when he ran it through the National Crime Information Center, he learned that she had a governor's warrant against her from the state of Indiana.

Glaser was then arrested on charges of being a fugitive from another state and giving a law enforcement officer

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

WATCH OUT FOR YOUR ELBOW!

Even if you do not play tennis, you may have tennis elbow or lateral epicondylitis, a repetitive strain injury (RSI). This inflammation occurs most frequently in a person's dominant arm during middle life. As its name implies, it is very common among tennis players, especially those with a faulty backhand swing. Forty-five percent of tennis players who play or practice daily will get a tennis elbow. This condition also afflicts carpenters, mechanics, office workers, cashiers, maintenance workers, and anyone else who performs repeated hammering, grasping, and rotary forearm motions.

Lateral epicondylitis leads to tenderness and pain in the forearm and elbow. When touching the area, it will be painful. However, there usually is no swelling. Expert adjustments by a trained and professional chiropractor can help restore normal range of motion to joints that have become impaired, thereby improving blood circulation and speeding the healing process. A chiropractor can also suggest preventative measures such as using the proper sports equipment or tools, relearning how to perform a physical action, or doing the necessary stretching exercises before a strenuous activity.

Clarification

In the Sept. 17 Sunday edition of the Times, under "Courthouse News", it was reported that Clayton Williams, 19, of Drift had been charged with fourth-degree assault. However, on September 14, all charges against Williams were dismissed.

State University has placed students studying on the masters level in social work at Happy House as part of a practicum program. The Prestonsburg Community College Department of Nursing has placed students at Happy House as part of their training in Alzheimer's disease. Students from Prestonsburg High School have also participated in observation activities at Happy House.

Happy House works in conjunction with the Department of Employment Services and the Department for Community Based Services. Happy House has participated in demonstration projects for assessment tool development with the Division of Aging. Happy House has also provided on site training for senior citizen directors, homecare case managers and homemaker aides for Big Sandy Area Development District.

The total number of clients served by Happy House has more than doubled in the past year. Dana Caudill, director, feels that this number could double again this year, if space to accommodate the increased number could be provided.

The need for adult day services is growing within our community and, at present, all eligible clients and families cannot be served, Caudill said. The director and staff at Happy House would like to increase community awareness of their services and their need for expansion and encourage the community to support their expansion.

The director and staff at Happy House would like the community to know that they are pleased to provide necessary care in a gentle and caring way to each of their clients. They would also like to thank all the people who have helped them in making their program available to the community. They look forward to celebrating their tenth anniversary in March 2001, and are grateful to have had the opportunity to assist and touch the lives of the many families they have served.

They invite anyone with any questions to contact them for further information at 886-0265.

Officials with the city of Martin joined local baseball players in dedicating the installation of lights at the Martin ballfield. Mayor Thomasine Robinson said the lights would be used not only during ballgames, but could also be used to light the field for use as a landing area for medical helicopters.

showed that a vehicle had backed out, then backed up and ultimately ended at the site of the ditch where Conley's vehicle had become incapacitated.

Upon investigation, Taulbee noticed that Conley's car contained several pieces of household furnishings and that various pieces were also scattered among the immediate area of the accident scene. Among the items were end tables, lamps and pictures.

Taulbee further discovered that one doublewide home on the lot had been broken into. No forced entry had taken place as the perpetrator had entered through an unlocked rear door.

Conley denied any involvement with the burglary and was then transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center for treatment of minor injuries.

Staff at Highlands informed Taulbee that Conley appeared to be under the influence of a controlled substance, possibly Xanax. At that time, Taulbee told Conley that he would be arrested for DUI upon his release from the hospital. He told him that he would also be arrested for burglary.

While being treated at Highlands, Conley managed to escape, leaving the scene on foot. He was later discovered at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park by park rangers, resting in a kneeling position, barefoot, wearing jeans and a hospital gown at approximately 9:30 a.m. He was arrested and taken to the Floyd County Detention Center.

Conley has pleaded not guilty to the burglary charges.

Judge Eric D. Hall has found probable cause to refer this case to the grand jury. Conley is being held on a $25,000 property or 10 percent cash bond.

also the backup band to the solo and duet contestants. They did an excellent job, according to Ken Carriere from Goodtime Productions, one of the producers of the event.

In her state-winning performance, Hall performed two songs, "Broken Wing" and "I Wish," a song that Hall wrote. She received an enthusiastic reception from the audience for her performance on both songs.

Hall, who started singing at age 3 in church, will have an album out shortly.

Billie Jean Osborne said she looks for students who are brought up in church singing because they have learned a great deal needed to make it in the music industry. Osborne thinks that the fact that Hall sang an original number went a long way in helping her win the competition. She said she would suggest that Hall perform an original song in the regional competition.

"You never know who will be in the audience at one of these shows," Osborne said. "These shows just open other doors."

For over 19 years the County

Showdown and True Value have been supporting the music and the dreams of aspiring artists by providing a place to start.

Over 500 live events, plus over $200,000 in prize money each year, make the Showdown the best tradition in country music. That's why hundreds of radio and television stations get involved every year. New artists and new music are the lifeblood of any art form.

Hall joins some elite company by being a winner. Garth Brooks was a local winner in Oklahoma, LeAnn Rimes was a local winner in Texas, Chad Brock was a state finalist in Florida, Martina McBride and Neal McCoy were national finalists, and Sweetheart of the Rodeo was a national winner.

the driver's side of the vehicle. Pellets bounced into the open window striking Brenda Tackett, who was in the driver's seat, and Tawanya Tackett, who was in the far right passenger seat.

Tawanya Tackett was hit in the chest, while Brenda Tackett was hit on the arm and wrist.

A third passenger, Jamie Tackett was uninjured.

All three women were treated and released at Appalachian Regional Medical Center at McDowell.

Officer Howard testified that he found several 12-gauge shotgun shells in the vehicle Aaron Tackett had been riding in. He arrested Aaron Tackett later that evening.

Howard also testified that he knows of no genetic relationship between the parties and that a possible motive for the alleged shooting could be some sort of ongoing dispute among various members of each of the families, but that he does not know that for fact.

Aaron Tackett is being held in the Floyd County Detention Center under a $50,000 cash bond and has been ordered by Judge Eric D. Hall to have no contact of any kind with the women or their families.

Aaron Tackett has pleaded not guilty and denies that he ever shot into the vehicle carrying the women.

State to blame for ethics mess

That State Auditor Ed Hatchett's performance audit of county and city ethics codes uncovered a hodgepodge of vague and inconsistent local codes should surprise no one. What else could one expect from a state law that mandates local ethics codes but gives little direction on what those codes should entail?

The 1994 Kentucky General Assembly enacted legislation requiring that every county and city in the state adopt a code of ethics.

At the time, the federal BOPtrot scandal, which resulted in the convictions of a number of key legislators, was still fresh in the minds of Kentuckians, and legislators were intent on convincing voters that the sins of the past would not be repeated. Thus, while enacting a tough code of ethics for legislators, they took a step to ensure that the ethics of local officials would not be overlooked.

But it was a small step, one that gave locally elected officials great leeway in determining just what their codes of ethics entailed.

The only guidelines given local governments in the state law were that the codes include standards of conduct for local officials, require financial disclosure, include a policy on nepotism, and designate a group or a person to enforce the code.

The vague state law did not ban elected officials from hiring their family members; it simply stated the issue had to be addressed in the code. The financial disclosures required could be extremely general in nature, and most are.

Lacking more specific guidelines, most counties and cities relied on the guidance of the Kentucky Association of Counties and the Kentucky League of Cities in adopting their codes.

Indeed, the sample codes issued by those two organizations became the model for hundreds of codes throughout the state.

Since their enactment, some local governments have found a way around even the weak restrictions of their ethics codes.

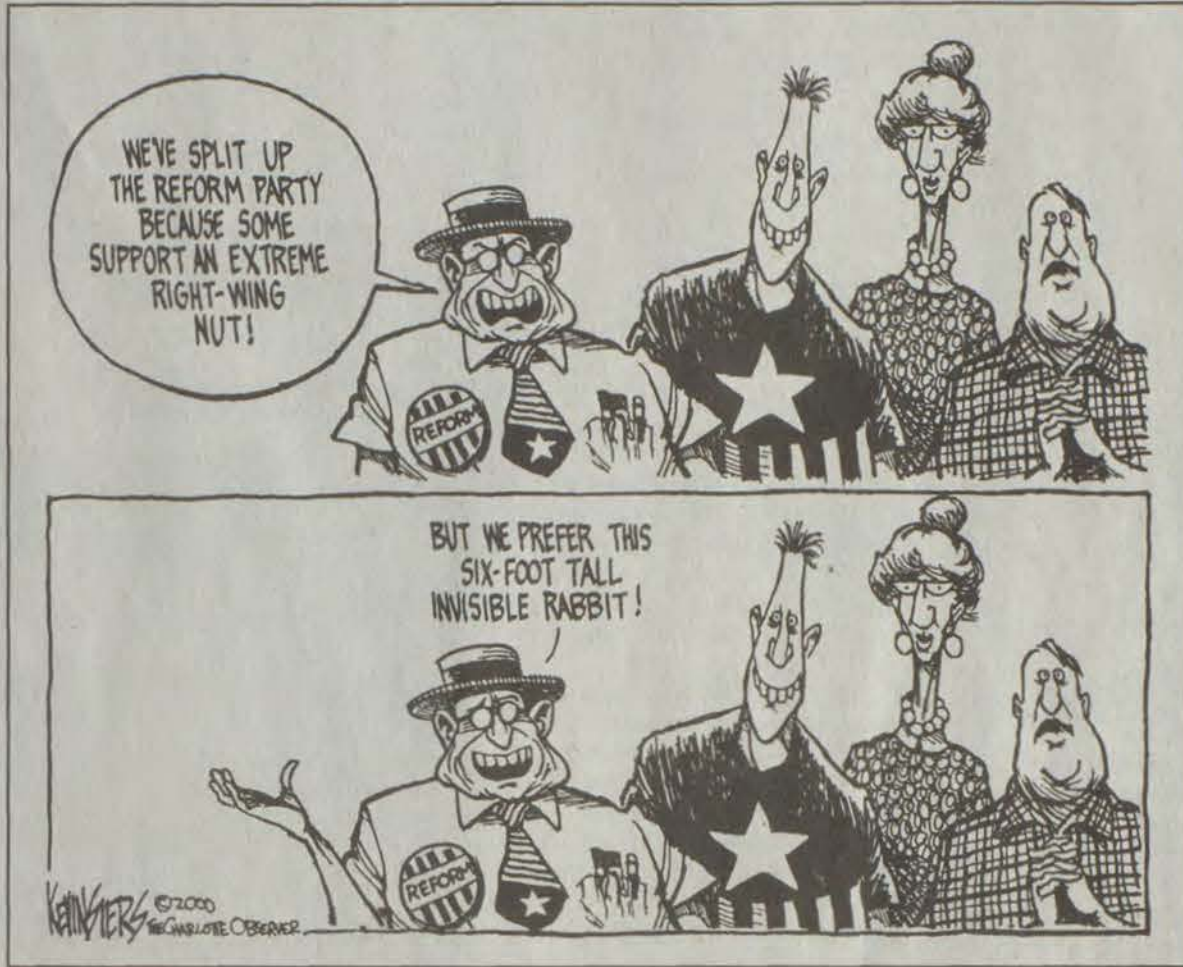

When one area county disliked the nepotism restrictions its code placed on the hiring practices of a newly elected judge-executive, the fiscal court simply amended the code to allow the hiring of some family members.

When a new mayor and city council feared an ethics board whose members were appointed by a previous mayor would rule against them on several complaints, the council changed the number of people on the board to assure the new mayor could appoint the majority.

Of course, members of the General Assembly are in no position to object to such local shenanigans. After all, when a powerful Legislative Ethics Commission ruled against some key legislators, the 1996 General Assembly gutted the 1994 law by stripping the commission of much of its authority.

Hatchett called the 1994 law mandating local ethics

Letters to the Editor

No justice in Floyd County

Editor:

I want to tell you a little about how the court system was when I was a young man. As a young man, I didn't get to go to school but about three months out of the year. I had to work to help support my mother and grandmother. I worked 10 hours a day for 75 cents. I went to work in the mines in 1937 at Monclo, W.Va. I made $5.60 a shift loading coal.

In 1938, I met Pauline Napier. We fell in love and were married. She agreed to help me with my mother and grandmother, who was bedfast. We are still happily married after all these years.

I would work in the mines during the winter months and come home to put out a crop for them in the spring. Later on, I went into the logging business.

In 1944, during the struggle of trying to start a business and keep my family up, I was drafted into the Army. That was a big setback. When I returned, I started the logging business again. Our roads were so bad, I had to put chains on my truck in the summer just to get my logs to market. I had to work the county road with the 10 or 12 men I had working for me just to get to town.

Then my old friend, the Honorable Judge Ed Hill, was elected. He never turned me down for any help I asked him for. Neither did the following judges: Alex Davis, Henry Stumbo, Harold Stumbo, Henry Stephens and Hollie Conley.

That was when judges served all the people, not just a select few. Living in Floyd County now is like living at the brink of hell.

Everybody needs to get out and vote for the truth one time.

You may ask, "Bill, what makes you feel that way?" The answer is, if you had to go through what I have in the last six or seven years, you would understand. I have always done my best to be honest and truthful and to treat people the way I wanted to be treated. You might ask, "Bill, could you get justice in Floyd County?" The answer to that is, I would have to see it to believe it, as I haven't so far.

Some of them remembered

Recently I wrote an article about the use of the word "myself" and how people tend to overuse it and thus use it incorrectly. A day or so after the column was printed, I got an e-mail from Missy Ross Little who works at the McDowell Family Resource Center. She was a student in my class while I was at McDowell. Below are the contents of her note.

This is Missy (Ross) Little.

I am at work at the McDowell Family Resource Center and I just finished typing our news for the community calendar and e-mailing it. I thought I would check out your column. While reading it, the following came to mind.

When reading this article on the Floyd County Times Interactive website, I remembered two other words that people from Floyd County, Kentucky and all over America cannot seem to use correctly. You see, I was listening at least one day in class. It was the day we discussed anxious and eager.

Anxious, if I remember correctly, is when you dread something and eager is when you look forward to something. Am I correct? I hear these words used incorrectly on the soaps, on television programs and in the movies. It is almost a daily occurrence. When I hear them I also cringe. If I learned anything, my dear English/journalism teacher, I did learn the proper usage of these words. It must have been rainy that day because I listened. Also, just so that you know, although it may not seem as though may of us were paying attention — we just couldn't escape without learning SOMETHING. While one eye roamed the room, the other was on our studies.

While one ear was listening to the roar of the air conditioner or birds singing, the other was on what was being said and we needed to know. While one hand was writing "I Love So & So" the other was fidgeting (okay so I couldn't spell that word), wanting to write those sentences and pick out the correct verb, noun, adjective and so forth.

So while you have been shaking your head, hoping we heard you, and praying we do all right in the world, remember: Hey, at least one of them was paying attention if only for a brief, fleeting moment. But I venture to say that there was more than one of us that heard you.

Missy

So some of them did listen. Most of the students turned out okay in spite of what hindrance I may have put in their paths. I know it is important for high school students to have a good time. Rest assured that the bunch from McDowell had a good time, but they learned a great deal also.

Thanks for the note, Missy. By the way, you did spell "fidgeting" correctly. I put it into my trusty spell checker and it said it was spelled correctly.

A few days later I saw Mary Slone, English teacher at South Floyd High School, and she said she told her students, "If you are anxious about going to the game, stay home, but if you are eager about going, come on and enjoy it."

None of us at McDowell were Vanna Whites, but we did enjoy the study of words and we enjoyed life. At that, we were ahead of the game.

Area high school students view civics videotape

County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson signed a proclamation Monday designating September 18-22 as "Operation Cooperation Week." With Thompson for the signing were Glenda Blackburn, left, from First Baptist Church in Prestonsburg and Michelle Lynch of the Central Kentucky Blood Center.

Local Baptists launch 'Operation Cooperation'

Kentucky Baptists are celebrating a birthday but instead of receiving gifts, they are giving a big one in the form of a statewide blood drive September 10-23 designed to help replenish blood supplies following Labor Day weekend.

A committee has been established in Prestonsburg as one of the 25 locations across the state where Baptists will be working to set a record for blood donations that will have a major impact on the state's blood supplies.

Dubbed "Operation Cooperation," Kentucky Baptists are promoting the blood drive as part of the 75th anniversary celebration of the Cooperative Program, the plan Baptists use to work together in supporting colleges, children's homes, mission-aries and other joint endeavors.

The blood drive for Floyd County has been set for tomorrow (Thursday) at First Baptist Church in Prestonsburg from 1 to 9 p.m. Local volunteers will be working with the Central Kentucky Blood Center, which will handle the actual blood collection.

Those who donate blood will be treated to a home-cooked meal afterwards, as well as t-shirts and sun visors.

Participation in the blood drive is not limited to Baptists, and the general public is encouraged to donate as well. Those interested in setting up a donation appointment for the blood drive can call Glenda Blackburn at 874-2776 or First Baptist Church at 886-8681.

Thanks to Hazard Community College and Hazard Technical College, nearly 30,000 high school students, as well as members of various civic groups, cable television viewers and public library patrons in the 5th Congressional District of Kentucky, will have the opportunity to learn more about how the federal and state court systems work.

They will learn this from an educational videotape contributed to every public and private high school, community and junior college, cable television station and some of the area chambers of commerce and public libraries by Hazard Community College, Hazard Technical College and the Committee for Citizen Awareness.

The videotape, entitled "Your Court System and You," features Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Dr. G. Edward Hughes, president of Hazard Community College and Hazard Technical College, and U.S. Rep. Harold Rogers.

The videotape includes information pertaining only to the 5th Congressional District of Kentucky.

"Hazard Community College and Hazard Technical College became involved with this public-service project after learning that only 20 percent of Americans indicate they understand how our court system works," Hughes said. This videotape describes in layman's terms the importance of the third branch of our democracy and the basics of how our federal and state court systems are set up.

"We are confident that this videotape will be well-received in the community. It is similar in format to another film produced by the same non-profit organization that is about the legislative branch of government that has been viewed by more than 20 million people nationwide, and which was recommended by 88 percent of the students who viewed it," Hughes said.

Hazard Community College and Hazard Technical College are providing this educational videotape for the area, as have more than 1,000 other corporations, universities and organizations in other locales across the country. Millions of people will see this educational videotape, the purpose of which is to improve a citizen's understanding of the judicial system and its vital role in our democracy.

codes "a good first step" — and it was. If nothing else, it required local governments to at least establish some broad guidelines regarding the behavior of elected and appointed officials.

The result is some strong codes, a few weak ones and a whole lot of codes that are somewhere in between.

Should the 1994 law have been more specific? Certainly. But when legislators are not really committed to holding themselves up to the highest ethical standards, they are in no position to expect anything more from local officials.

June A. Brose, DDS Pediatric Dentistry

Children have specialized needs when it comes to dental care, and require the services of a dental professional specifically trained in the growth and development of teeth and facial structures. Dr. June A. Brose specializes in the practice of pediatric dentistry, and is trained to provide expert dental care to toddlers, children, adolescents and people with special needs. Her office is located in Betsy Layne at 79 George Road, phone (606) 478-9311.

Good dental hygiene is important, and needs to begin with the appearance of the child's first teeth. Dr. Brose likes to begin seeing her young patients at an early age to accustom them to the lifelong practice of dental visits before any procedures are necessary which may make youngsters reluctant to return. With early enough visits, fluoride treatments and sealants can help eliminate the cavities that plagued earlier generations, and proper training in oral hygiene can reduce the adult-onset gum problem which results in loss of teeth.

Dr. Brose provides preventive care, general dentistry and emergency treatment to children of all ages. She can detect and treat dental disorders in their earliest stages to help young patients avoid, if at all possible, more complicated treatments later in life. Contact the office of Dr. June A. Brose for an appointment or more information.

Salisbury elected student body president at PCC

Jonathan Dale Salisbury, a sophomore at Prestonsburg Community College, has been elected president of the school's Student Government Association.

Salisbury, who was also recently re-elected to a second term as president of the Law Enforcement Club, is the son of Bill and Linda (Richmond) Salisbury of Martin.

Salisbury has attended PCC since his graduation from high school in May 1999. His future plans are to become a state trooper with Kentucky State Police.

As president of the Law Enforcement Club, Salisbury is in charge of all student fund raising activities and is responsible for parade coordination during area festivals. He assists in coordinating study groups and obtaining tutorial services for students who need assistance.

As president of the Student Government Association, Salisbury will serve as a liaison between the student body and the president and faculty of PCC. He will attend meetings of the board of directors, where he will have input on decisions affecting students academically and socially.

Another of Salisbury's duties will be to assist any student or group of students who has a grievance with the college or its employees. As president, he will decide whether the complaint is valid prior to taking it before the board of directors.

Salisbury is also active in other areas of the school. He serves with 11 other students as ambassadors to PCC's RCCI program. To serve as a student ambassador, students must maintain a 3.0 grade point average and take a leadership class during the freshman year of college.

Student ambassadors travel across the state, meeting with dignitaries and keeping a record of their travels in scrapbooks. The ambassadors also escort companies and organizations who come to PCC to recruit employees.

Early Floyd settler to be honored

A marker to recognize an early Floyd County settler will be dedicated Saturday, near Grayson.

The Poage chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will conduct the ceremony in honor of William Noland, who settled in Floyd County in the early 1800s.

Noland served two terms in the Revolutionary War, one from South Carolina, where he was born, and one from Virginia, according to Delores Hale Sarpas of the Poage chapter.

She said he is listed in the 1820 census of Floyd County and raised his family here. He moved to Carter County in 1850, to live with one of his children. He died, she said, at the age of 98 years.

The ceremony is set for 1 p.m. at the Noland Cemetery on Rattlesnake Ridge. To get there, take the Grayson exit off I-64. Past Grayson Lake, turn right on KY 3295 for about two-and-one-half miles, and then turn right onto Patchwork Lane.

FIRST FOOTBALL WINNER

Martin Hall, Prestonsburg is the Floyd County Times first gridiron winner of the 2000 season. Hall, who tied with Robert Hall, also of Prestonsburg, with 11 correct while missing one, won on the tie-breaker score. Hall is the winner of $50 for his effort. Play the Gridiron Games in each Wednesday's sports section.

CRISP STARRING AT CUMBERLAND

Former Prestonsburg standout, Seth Crisp, is having a solid season as a freshman at Campbellsville College. Crisp is being used as a backup quarterback and has already contributed to the Campbellsville cause.

In the first game of the season, with starting quarterback Jagers out with an injury, Crisp guided the Lions to a thrilling win with a winning touchdown pass with just 53 seconds left in the game. He passed for 129 yards in the game.

This past Saturday, Crisp completed four of 12 passes for 47 yards and scored on a 7-yard run in Campbellsville's 24-7 win over North Greenville. He carried the ball 11 times for 16 yards.

Speaking of former Prestonsburg players, I suppose most of Kentucky caught Jeremy Caudill on the tube Saturday as the camera's showed him making a nice tackle on an Indiana runner.

It was good to see on the starting grid for the Cats, Jeremy Caudill, Martin, Kentucky. I am very proud of both athletes. Both are just tremendous persons.

There was a lot of good college football over the weekend as well as some surprises in the pro ranks.

UCLA edged Michigan 23-20 in one major upset. Michigan was ranked No. 3 in the country coming to California.

What about the Wisconsin (No. 4) just getting past Cincinnati. It took overtime but the Badgers prevailed 28-25. No. 9 Washington just gets past Colorado 17-14 while Florida is upending Tennessee in a big SEC battle.

Of course, the UK vs Indiana match up was also a classic as neither team played any defense. Antwaan Randle El was just too much for the Cats and his only mistake, a fumble with less than two minutes to play, proved to be a costly one as the Cats scooped up the loose ball and scored pulling out a 41-34 win.

It is going to be a long, long season for Kentucky if they don't play any better on defense than they showed against the Hoosiers. Florida will have a cake walk this Saturday. Kentucky will be hard pressed to find more than two wins in the rest of the 2000 season.

The girls middle school basketball season tips off this week with only Adams Middle School competing in the conference. Coach Jennifer West will have a strong team and remember the name of Molly Burchett.

Allen Central Middle and South Floyd Middle chose not to compete in the middle school conference.

It was a rough week for county football teams as we finished 0-4 this past Friday night. The four teams have a combined record of 5-12 through the first half of the season.

It is hard to believe that we are nearly half way through, some teams are, the football season. Friday nights are going to become cool nights from here on out. Then it will get down right cold.

It was a big crowd that filled the Prestonsburg stadium Friday night for homecoming. The chili was great. I noticed a lot of

Francis wins at Thunder Ridge

Steve Francis of Ashland unveiled a secret weapon Friday night, and proudly displayed it in the winner's circle after taking it to his fifth United Dirt Track Racing Association Hav-A-Tampa Dirt late model victory of the season in the 60-lap Miller Brothers Coal Classic at Thunder Ridge Speedway.

Francis drove the Valvoline Oil Rocket Chassis Dodge Intrepid powered by a Gary Stanton-built Mopar engine and gave the Daimler-Chrysler Corporation its first-ever Hav-A-Tampa Dirt late model victory.

The battle for the HAT Championship took center stage, as Francis outran HAT point leader Scott Bloomquist of Mooresburg, Tenn., in the Miller Brothers Coal Warrior/Custom Mustang for the win. The battle between the two began in qualifications.

Francis went out right before Bloomquist and turned the 3/8-mile dirt oval in 18.336 seconds for an average speed of 73.626 miles per hour to top the qualifying list to that point. Bloomquist followed Francis on to the track and lowered the time to 18.321 seconds to set fast time for the evening with an average speed of 73.686 miles per hour.

Bloomquist earned two bonus points for fast time honors among the 39 entrants and held a 100-point lead over Francis.

Bloomquist earned the pole position for the main event by winning the first of four 10-lap Borla Performance Heat Races. Francis earned the outside front row starting spot with a win in heat two. The stage was set for a dramatic feature race.

At the drop of the green flag, Bloomquist and Francis raced side-by-side for the opening lap, with Francis taking the lead coming off the second turn on the high side.

By the third lap, Francis pulled out to a five car-length advantage, and by the tenth lap "The Kentucky Colonel" had stretched it out to a full straightaway over the three-time

HAT Champion.

The only time Bloomquist could get close to Francis was when they were in lapped traffic, or when the field was slowed by one of nine caution flags. On each restart, Francis was quick to pull out to a five to seven car-length advantage.

"This Mopar is the way to go," Francis said of his new ride. "We're going all out to win the championship with this new Dodge Intrepid, and we want to win the remaining three races. If Bloomquist still wins the championship, we'll know we did everything we

Hyden, off bench to pace Volleycats in second set

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS WRITER

The Allen Central Rebels girls' volleyball team has been a team on the verge of winning every game they have played this season. Coach Larry Maynard feels communication is a vital key for his team if they expect to ever play up to their potential.

So many times the Lady Rebels have dug a hole for themselves and then rallied back only to be turned away at the last second by their solid competition. This past Monday's game with Prestonsburg proved to be no different.

The undefeated Prestonsburg Volleycats traveled to Eastern this past Monday night to take on the Allen Central Lady Rebels. Coach Russell Shepherd's Volleycats have been tested this season but have yet to fall to defeat.

Since claiming the Pikeville Invitational girls' volleyball tournament two weeks ago, the Volleycats have gone on to add five more wins to their impressive undefeated record.

Following an Allen Central scoring serve, senior Stephanie Adams got the Prestonsburg first set started, reeling off 5 straight points. Becky Smith put the Lady Rebels' second tally on the scoreboard, only to see the serve lost on her next attempt. Prestonsburg senior Brooke Coleman took control of the Coach Bobby Hackworth's Prestonsburg's junior varsity football team improved to 5-1 on the season with a 18-12 win over Paintsville Monday evening at the Prestonsburg stadium. The Cats lone loss was an overtime decision to Pikeville two weeks ago.

Sophomore Matt Setser led the Prestonsburg offense scoring the two Blackcat touchdowns. All the scoring for both teams, with the exception of a safety, came in the first two periods.

Setser scored in the opening quarter on a 10 yard run and Rob Murray added the two-point conversion to go in front 8-0. After Paintsville got on the scoreboard in the second quarter, Setser scampered into the end zone from 15-yards out and quarterback Josh Bingham added the extra two points to give the Cats a 16-6 lead. In the final seconds of the first half, Paintsville scored on a pass play as the half ended 16-12.

Paintsville had first possession in the second half but an interception stalled out the drive at the Prestonsburg 18 yard line.

The final score came in the fourth quarter when a Paintsville ball carrier was nailed in the end zone by the Prestonsburg defense.

Prestonsburg was knocking at the door, threatening to score again but Paintsville's goal line stand stopped the Blackcats at the Tigers 1-yard line.

On first-down play, Prestonsburg line drilled the would-be ball carrier for the safety and the final 18-12 margin.

The Prestonsburg junior varsity will face Breathitt County at home next Monday night.

Powers wins 10th Late Model feature

by CHRIS BELCHER
TRACK WRITER

A full field of cars lined up in five divisions at Sitka's 201 Speedway this past Saturday night as race fans braved the cooler temperatures to watch some of the top local drivers challenge each other on the oval track.

David Powers won his 10th late model feature but had to hold off the challenges of Brandon Kinzer and Paul Harris. Powers, sitting at the pole position, got his first challenge from Kinzer on the start as the 18 car of Kinzer shot out turn two. Harris, who was on the outside of row two, shot out the field looking first to overtake Kinzer. Harris passed Kinzer out of turn four and turned his attention toward Powers.

On the fourth lap, Power set the pace and ran smoothly through the corners with solid runs down the straight-aways to put some distance between him and Harris.

Kinzer showed his racing strategy with by sitting up his car in the third racing groove. After battling with Harris for two laps, Kinzer's outside run would bring him off the fourth corner of lap seven and second place.

After clearing Harris, Kinzer opened up a three car length lead but still trailed the lead car of Powers.

Harris lost the backend of his car on the 14th lap and the mistake sent Harris to the rear of the lead lap. Powers continued his lead on the restart. But also on the restart, David Smith entered the picture and overtook Kinzer for second place but never could overtake Powers and had to settle for a second place finish. Kinzer crossed the finish line in third place followed by Harris and Marty Minix.

SUPER BOMBER FEATURE

Jim Lemaster picked up his 11th feature win in the super bomber division taking the green flag ahead of Scott McCloud and points champion Spanky Arnett.

Lemaster grabbed the lead on the second lap. McCloud gained the runner-up spot from Michael Paul Howard. McCloud would pull behind Lemaster but failed to find a way around the veteran driver.

BOMBER FEATURE

Keith Potter rapped up his second track championship finishing ahead of Scott Pennington and A.J. Stambaugh in the bomber feature. Stambaugh and Pennington set side-by-side on the front row.

when the Lady Rebels looked to have an attack launched, Prestonsburg would counter with an attack of their own. The senior-laden Prestonsburg team was too much for Allen Central in game one. The Volleyscats posted a 15-6 win and headed into the second set with a lot of momentum behind them.

Coach Larry Maynard made several player substitutions in game two and kept the game within reach before a late Stephanie Adams scoring flurry put the game out of reach. Adams came on late in the second set and put the game away with 7 consecutive scoring serves.

Junior Megan Hyden played above the net for the Volleyscats throughout game two. Hyden came off the bench in the first set and started the second set. Hyden took full advantage of her starting role in game two by putting three winning serves on the scoreboard. The Prestonsburg junior did many little things that will never show up in any score books such as communicating, along with statistics that will show such as sets and kills.

Allen Central's Lauren Majackey led the way for Allen Central in game two. Majackey put up four of her team's 10 points.

The Allen Central Lady Rebels were back in action last night as they traveled to South Floyd. Results were unavailable at press time.

The Prestonsburg Volleyscats were also back in action last night playing in an away game at Millard High School. Results from the Prestonsburg-Millard game were also unavailable at press time.

had to do to win it. This win was all my crew because they really had to work hard to get this new car together, and Gary Stanton who built us one stout engine."

Even with his new equipment sitting in the winner's circle, Francis was also quick to also thank engine builder Russell Baker, who built his engines prior to the Friday night event.

"We wouldn't be in the championship hunt if it wasn't for the great engines Russell Baker gave us this season," Francis said. "Gary Stanton and I have been talking for awhile about doing this, and it's hard to believe we came right out of the box in the first race and won."

Francis led all 60 laps and earned five bonus points for leading the most laps. Bloomquist, with a second-place finish, still has a 90-point advantage over Francis with three races remaining on the HAT 2000 Tour.

Wendell Wallace of Batesville, Ark., finished third in the Monday Trucking GRT/Russell Baker Grand Prix. Rick Eckert of York, Penn., took the fourth spot in the Raye Vest Rocket/Custom Grand Prix, and fifth went to Donnie Moran of Dresden, Ohio, in the McCullough Motorsports Mastersbilt/Fisher Grand Prix.

Ray Cook of Brasstown, N.C., spun on lap 27, but recovered to finish sixth in the English Mountain Spring Water GRT/Cornett Mustang. After starting 19th, Cook earned the JE Pistons Hard Charger of the Race Award. Cook also moved into a tie for fifth spot with 1996 HAT Champion Freddy Smith of Knoxville, Tenn., in the HAT point standings.

Eddie Carrier Jr. of Leburn drove the Miller Brothers Coal Rocket/Carrier Monte Carlo to a seventh-place finish. Jackie Boggs of Grayson was eighth in the McDonald's Swartz/Hixon Monte Carlo, with ninth spot going to Thomas Ware of Cynthiaiana in the Ware Funeral Homes Rocket/Cropper Monte Carlo.

Dan Schlieper of Pewaukee, Wis., ran as high as third early in the race, but a flat tire sent him to the back of the pack on lap 29, and he recovered to salvage a tenth-place finish in the Performance Roofing Systems Rayburn/Pro Power Monte Carlo.

In the opening laps of the race, it was Francis, Bloomquist, Schlieper, Wallace, and Smith in the top five. Wallace passed Schlieper for the third spot on a lap 15 restart. Schlieper then began to fade back through the pack, and his flat right-rear tire on lap 32 brought out the fourth caution flag. For many top ten drivers, it was a tough evening.

Defending HAT Champion Dale McDowell of Rossville, Ga., was running fourth when he tangled with the lapped car of Bill Reed of Knoxville, Tenn., in turn four on lap 12 to bring out the first caution flag. The damage on McDowell's Glenn's Auto Parts/Rhinehart Trucking GRT/Custom Monte Carlo retired him for the evening.

Paul Davis of Inez was running eighth when he cut down a left-front tire on his Barker's Mobile Homes Rayburn/L&T Monte Carlo to bring out the second caution flag on lap 13. The third caution flag came out on lap 27 when Cook spun down the front straightaway after trying to avoid a group of cars that tangled in front of him.

Darrell Lanigan of Union was running ninth when he spun the GVS Racing Rocket/Russell Baker Monte Carlo in turn two on lap 35 for the fifth caution flag. Smith brought out the sixth caution flag when a suspension component broke on lap 42 while running fourth in the Christenberry Trucking and Farms GRT/Custom Monte Carlo.

The seventh caution flag was brought out by the sixth-place car of Randle Chupp of Knoxville, Tenn., when he stalled the Biscotti's Restaurant Rocket/Draime Monte Carlo on lap 45. Debris brought out the caution on lap 50, and the final yellow was waved when Chuckie May of Prestonsburg spun the May Block GRT/Cornett Mustang in turn four on lap 51.

McDowell won the third heat and picked up the Scott Performance Wire Bonus Award. Brandon Kinzer of Prestonsburg won the fourth heat race in the Kinzer Drilling GRT/Elliott Taurus.

Boggs won the Renegade Transporters 1st 10-lap Consolation Race, and Tim Dohm of Charleston, W.Va., won the Polaris ATVs 2nd 10-lap Consolation Race in the Dohm Cycles Rocket/Draime Monte Carlo.

The next stop for the HAT 2000 Tour will be The Dirt Track @ Lowe's Motor Speedway in Charlotte, N.C., for a 100-lap $20,000-to-win main event on September 22-23.

201 Speedway

Stambaugh led the first circuit but Pennington began to make his move to the outside of Stambaugh taking the point on lap two.

By lap three, Potter entered the scheme of things as he challenged for the top spot. The race eventually came down between Pennington and Potter over the next six laps as the two veteran drivers would not yield to the other. Potter ran in front of Pennington finally.

On lap 10, Mark Queen fought his way around Pennington to take the second spot but would loose a right rear tire setting up a green/white run to the finish with Potter taking the checkered flag for the win.

ROAD HOG FEATURE
After finishing second in the bomber feature, Pennington took the checkered flag in winning the road hog feature.

The 201 Speedway held its first-ever demolition derby with Keith Potter winning the feature in his station wagon.

Racing continues this Saturday night with a full slate of dirt track racing.

Steve's Sideline Shots... Yale reaches 800-win plateau, Michigan on deck with 798

Yale became the first school to win 800 football games, pounding the visiting Dayton Flyers 42-6. Can you imagine being part of a football program with 800 wins to its credit?

The next time I hear someone criticize an Ivy League school's athletic program, I'll be quick to correct their comments by reminding them that the Yale bulldogs were the first college football program to reach 800 college football wins.

The Michigan Wolverines are next at 798, following a 23-30 upset to UCLA's Bruins.

The Ivy League has always had a great football tradition. Yale, Harvard, Brown, Dartmouth, Penn and Cornell really have excellent football programs.

What's better for a scholar/athlete than an Ivy League education and a football career at a school with a ton of tradition and a ton of college football memories? Maybe a big-time bowl game? Well, probably, but Yale's 800 wins will forever be embedded in college football history books.

Fulmer has good case in UF touchdown dispute

If you ask me, Tennessee Coach Phil Fulmer has good reason to be disputing Florida's last second game-winning touchdown.

Just in case you missed it, here's how it went: With 14 seconds remaining in the game, Florida quarterback Jesse Palmer hit receiver Jabar Gaffney on a 3-yard touchdown pass that looked to have hit the receiver in the chest and then fell through his arms. However, officials ruled it a touchdown catch, on the grounds that he had possession of the ball long enough for it to be a touchdown.

The touchdown call gave the Gators a 27-23 victory over the Vols.

The record crowd on hand at Neyland Stadium sat in shock following the touchdown.

Coach Fulmer has a good argument. I just hope he gets something across to the SEC officials. Some of you die-hard Kentucky fans might not like what I'm about to say, but it's true — I am a fan of the orange and white. In other words, I like UT football.

However, I also like UK. It's a strange relationship but it's one that works out pretty well.

There's just one time in a football season when I have to straddle the fence. Traditionally, I pull for the underdog, so I always cheer for Kentucky in the UK-UT games.

Visiting teams will bring back memories

The Whitesburg Yellowjackets will visit the Prestonsburg Blackcats this Friday night, while the Allen Central Rebels will host the Matewan Tigers. Both visiting schools will bring back memories of possibly some of the best times in my life.

Back in high school I attended three separate football camps with Whitesburg as a player for Johnson Central High School. Whitesburg always had a very physical team and also a well coached team. Even when the Yellowjackets were rumored to be "down," they seemed to always put a good team on the field. Coach John DeRossett's Blackcats will be up for the Yellowjackets, so look for a good football game.

My first encounter with Matewan High School came back in 1993, a whipping at the hands of the Tigers, which my teammates and I paid for during the next week of practice. However, the next season would have a much happier Matewan game ending. In 1994, the Tigers rolled into town with a Top 10 ranking only to be upset by an underdog Johnson Central high school team.

Unfortunately, the second win of my young senior football season would be the next to last win of the year as we finished with a 3-7 mark on the year. Ah, those were the days I will always remember.

Coach Bill Musick's Johnson Central football team has a 4-0 record heading into this week's home game with Perry Central.

Panorama left girls' teams eager for 2000 season

The Mountain Middle School Conference girls' basketball panorama held over the weekend at the Johnson County Middle School left many players extremely anxious for the start of the 2000 season, which began earlier this week.

Coach Jennifer West had her Adams Blackcats playing very well this past Saturday. The Blackcats fought a good battle before dropping a close contest to the Inez Indians. Paintsville looked much improved from last season, as did Magoffin County's Herald-Whitaker.

Coach Wireman and JCMS as always were gracious hosts. Coach Wireman is a former coach of mine. Believe me, Coach Wireman knows his basketball as well as his football. I still contend that Wireman would make a great head coach on the high school football level. A person can't be in two places at once and Wireman definitely has his hands full with the great girls' basketball program he has going at Johnson Central High School.

The popularity of girls' basketball is at an all-time high. More and more young girls are taking to the hardwood with hoop dreams on their minds.

Middle school girls basketball most often provides a good contest to watch. Be sure to get out and catch a game!

Sports In PERSPECTIVE Denis Harrington

Lenny Wilkens has more face to wash these days. His hairline has retreated to a position of high promontory from that it once occupied when he first arrived in the National Basketball Association some 40 odd years ago as a first round draft pick out of Providence College.

For 15 NBA seasons he was the ultimate team player, dishing the ball off to the big guys up front from his backcourt post while employed with the St. Louis Hawks, Seattle Sonics and Cleveland Cavaliers. To this day he still ranks among the pro net sport's leaders in assists, games played and free throws converted. What's more, he is one of only two men to be admitted to the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass., as both a player and a coach. The other inductee is the legendary John Wooden of UCLA fame.

Selflessness and personal sacrifice marked Wilkens as a guard who ran the offense with a sure hand and no little derring-do. He was always quick to get on the case of anyone found to be slacking off, superstars included. In the final analysis, he wanted to win. That meant tight teamwork at both ends of the court. Nothing has changed to this day.

Recently, at age 62, Wilkens became head coach of the Toronto Raptors, the NBA's more northerly franchise. Earlier this year he called it quits with the Atlanta Hawks where he had run the on-floor operations for seven campaigns. While there he earned a 310-232 won-lost record, often with talent that didn't particularly strike fear into the hearts of other league clubs.

Prior to Atlanta he directed hardwood traffic in Seattle, Portland and Cleveland. In heading up the Sonics program he led them to an NBA title in 1979, their lone ascent to the throne room thus far.

Currently, Wilkens reigns as the winningest coach in NBA annals with 1,179 victories as against 981 defeats. When he surpassed the great Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics in the most wins column, some naysayers rapped this accomplishment, claiming that longevity contributed to his success as much as anything.

Retorted Wilkens, "On only a few occasions did I have a team with players of championship caliber. Auerbach had great players all of his years in Boston. And it should be remembered that back then the league had only about half as many teams as it does today. I don't think Auerbach's winning percentage would be any better than mine if he was to have coached some of the teams I've worked with over the years."

At a news conference announcing his appointment with the Raptors organization, Wilkens said, "I'm going to keep doing what I've always done. My methods have proven to be successful in the past and I believe they will continue to produce good results here. The emphasis, as always, is going to be on working as a team. That's what wins championships."

Good news for Wilkens is the presence on the Raptors roster of Vince Carter. As a sophomore pro he averaged 25.7 points a game and was the leading vote-getter in the balloting for the 1999 NBA All-Star contest.

"Vince is a great player," Wilkens said. "He gave every team in the league fits last year. I look forward to working with him."

A possible negative is the impending departure from the Raptors of free-agent forward Tracy McGrady. The Toronto organization hopes the hiring of Wilkens will give McGrady second thoughts about leaving the club.

Center Kevin Willis, who once played for Wilkens in Atlanta, noted, "I think the team did a smart thing bringing Lenny in here. The older guys will respect him instantly and this will prove to be contagious with the younger guys. A positive attitude between the players and the coach is a very important factor in building a winning mentality."

The youthful owners of the Hawks wanted Wilkens to jazz up his offense, to floor a run-and-gun attack. But this went against his coaching grain so he opted out of Atlanta.

Looking forward to his inaugural run in Toronto, Wilkens said, "One thing that will definitely change with the Raptors is the way they play defense. I want us to be a better defensive group. And on offense we need to spread the ball around more."

Teamwork is still Wilkens' trademark. Raptors, better listen up.

Some stuff about the Olympics

Last week the very first gold medal in the 2000 Sydney Olympics was awarded to University of Kentucky graduate, Nancy Johnson.

Her event? The air-rifle competition.

Now when I was a kid, we called an air-rifle a B.B. gun, and the very best, state-of-the-art B.B. gun was the Red Ryder Daisy. While many of the kids in the neighborhood fortunate enough to have one—I never was—became rather proficient at picking off birds from the tops of fence posts and telephone poles, it never occurred to any of us that skill with a B.B. gun could one day qualify them for a real, honest-to-goodness Olympic event.

In today's world, I'm sure it wouldn't be politically correct to shoot at sparrows, wrens and bluejays in the Olympics, and Nancy Johnson probably didn't shoot a Red Ryder Daisy. But if we'd held the Olympics at Muddy Branch in the 1940s, that's what we'd have done.

We'd also have had, no doubt, a "home-made sling shot" competition, and I'd have been right up there battling for a medal, especially if I could have had for ammunition a pocketful of those marble-sized railroad gravels I'd always load up with when I'd walk the tracks through Greentown on my way back from the show on those hot, dog-day Saturday afternoons.

Now, I'm not saying that I was the best sling-shot shooter to ever come down the pike; I'm just saying that, at the moment, I can't think of anybody who could have beaten me. Of course, I saw enough Johnny Mack Brown and Audie Murphy movies to know that there's some pimply-faced, wet-behind-the-ears kid somewhere wanting to build a reputation, who would eventually get lucky and take down the top gunslinger.

Even though we spent a good deal of time in the Number One Pond (in case you're not a regular reader of this column, our old swimming hole was so named because it was formed by a slate dump from the Northeast Coal Company's Number One Mine), I'm afraid we'd not have fared too well in the swimming competition.

I read in Sunday's paper that they've, more or less, specialized the Olympic swimming events: breaststroke, butterfly, freestyle.

However, if there were a category called "dog paddling," some of us coal camp kids would be right in there giving somebody a run...er, make that, a splash...for their money. And instead of water polo, if the Olympic Committee would start an "underwater tag" competition, look out. And finally, I'm confident that Muddy Branch kids would set all kinds of records if one of the diving categories was "the belly flop."

Wonder how I can find out for sure whether or not Nancy Johnson won her gold medal using a Red Ryder Daisy?

Listen up!

I've never met Noah Tackett, four-year-old son of Robin and Doug Tackett of Auxier—Crawdad Bottom, to be exact—but he sounds like my kind of guy. He has a way of expressing himself and, if you don't always understand him, that just might be your own fault.

Someone who frequents Jerry's Restaurant in Prestonsburg told of being there a few evenings ago when Noah and his family were having dinner. The waitress was taking their orders and he asked for a glass of tea. When she came back with the tea, he told her he would also like some women.

"Now aren't you a big one to be asking for women," she laughed, then continued to serve the meal. When she thought she had served all their food, Noah told her again, "I'd wike to have some women." And once again, she laughed.

But another member of the family, Noah's grandfather, Freddie Goble, was at the table, and he was able to catch the eye of the waitress. "What he wants," he whispered, "is some lemon."

That's not the only story I've heard about Noah. He sounds like a younger version of his famous grandfather, and maybe one day we'll be seeing him on stage with the Kentucky Opry.

Non-Issue

When my husband sits at this computer, it's usually to play one of those games so easily accessed. That's one of his means for "resting." He probably thinks that's what I'm doing, too, when I'm at the computer, without being aware of all these profound thoughts I'm trying to arrange in a column.

He watches TV more than he reads the paper and may not have learned that I wrote about him last week had Cassie Allen not called and told him. They had a brief conversation about being fellow ex-marines and the bits of news they always like to talk about, and then he casually asked me where I put the paper.

When he and Cassie talk again, he might tell her there is another side to the story, but I don't think he'll bother to express any objection to anyone else. He knows I have a column to fill each week and, if I don't find material somewhere else, I could make other observations about him.

Response

I don't know if Dr. Adams appreciated having his grandson, J. D., pray for him to be able to grow more hair, but it pleased one of our readers who sent a note from Florida. Judy Nelson Calhoun wrote that she had enjoyed the request. She also mentioned that Dr. Adams had delivered her son 34 years ago and that he is still doing a wonderful job.

Judy grew up in the Floyd County community of Goodloe and is married to Rev. John Randall Calhoun, a retired minister of the Church of God. They now alternate their living quarters between Kentucky and Florida. She has promised to stop by when they're back this way again, and I'll look forward to that.

Help your children learn the value of money

by J.R. BLACKBURN

Most of what children learn about managing money comes from their parents, and we all hope that our offspring will grow up to be financially responsible adults. Here are some ways you can teach your kids to save and instill a healthy dose of financial responsibility that they can carry with them to adulthood.

- Start early. Even very young children can learn to tell different coins apart. Give them each a bank and teach them to deposit their coins and watch their banks fill up.

- Make savings a habit. Encourage children to save a portion of their income, even if it's only a small amount from a monthly allowance, earnings from a lemonade stand or a part-time job later on.

- Give regular allowances. Allowances give kids the chance to manage cash "hands on," a chance to practice how to save regularly and plan their spending. Of course, the amount should fit the child and be determined by you.

- Open a savings account in your child's name. A bank savings account can show youngsters how their money can earn more money through compound interest. They will also see that their cash is in a safe place, recorded and available when they need it.

Regular visits to the bank to make deposits, however small, help them feel comfortable going into the bank and handling their own accounts. Referring to a bank book reminds them that their savings are there and growing.

- Help plan a budget. Have your kids practice writing down what they'll buy during the week and how much each item costs. Then, suggest that they compare the list to their weekly income. If it doesn't add up, they'll have to prioritize their immediate needs and wants.

- Encourage goal setting. Help your kids acquire the planned savings habit by helping them make a "wish list" and a schedule for saving, with a target date for acquiring the wished-for items.

- Encourage money-earning ventures. Suggest that older children find creative ways to earn money beyond their weekly allowances—doing special chores or seeking jobs around the neighborhood, such as raking leaves, running errands or pet sitting.

- Issue an IOU if you extend credit to your children, and set a repayment schedule. You may want to charge interest at a nominal rate to demonstrate the cost of borrowing.

- Show the effects of inflation. To demonstrate how prices have gone up over the years, sometime when you're at the library with your children look up past ads in the newspaper archives for movie tickets, bikes, sneakers and other favorites spending goals. Then discuss what things cost when you were a child and even when your children were younger.

- Acquaint them with stocks. Make a game of teaching kids about stocks and how they work. Have everyone in the family pick a favorite company and "invest" $100. Show them how to keep track of the stock's daily progress through the newspaper's financial section. Explain that stocks represent ownership in a company. Then describe how the price of a stock generally follows the company's progress, how—as the company's fortunes rise—so potentially does its stock.

- Encourage financial reading. As your children grow older, provide financial magazines and discuss investment choices. Invite them to meet your financial advisor and to attend investment seminars with you.

Fiscal responsibility won't happen overnight. If you begin early, however, by the time your children are ready to start their own investments, the ground work will be in place for them to become savvy investors.

In the spirit of the season, the theme was "Tailgate Party," complete with a kettle of chili and fixings. The event was hosted by HRMC administrator Bud Warman and featured a tour of the hospital's wellness center.
