Student cleanup uncovers medical waste

by PAUL TAULBEE
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

What better lesson could be taught to a group of students on a warm spring day than responsibility for the environment in their own home community?

On Wednesday, fifth- and sixth-graders at Dennis Wooton Elementary in Hazard were taking some time from routine classroom work to pick up litter and garbage on Crawford Mountain Road, directly across from Perry County Central High School. The fifth- and sixth-grade students at Dennis Wooton have been sacking up garbage on Crawford Mountain Road for the past five years.

The kids worked under the supervision of Marea Prewitt, Maria Campbell and Bea Madden, outfitted with protective latex gloves, they picked up 300 bags of garbage and litter. The kids from Dennis Wooton were joined by state Rep. Brandon Smith, Perry County Judge-Executive Denny Ray Noble and Perry County PRIDE Coordinator Tony Lewis, who helped with the cleanup.

Everything was going great, the debris and garbage was being sacked up by the kids, when Rep. Brandon Smith checked out something lying in the stream that drains Crawford Mountain Road. Smith investigated and found the contents to be biomedical waste, including medical syringes containing what appeared to be human blood. Smith warned the students to stay clear of the area. The cache also contained drug paraphernalia — a pipe reportedly used to smoke crack.

The adults present made sure that none of the students came into contact with the biomedical waste. The material was collected in a plastic garbage bag and taken to the bottom of the hill and put under the care of the Hazard Police Department.

Major Elisha Morris was at the foot of Crawford Mountain Road diverting traffic during the cleanup. Morris, coordinator of the DARE program in Hazard, knows hazardous biomedical waste when he sees it. He called the Hazard Fire Department. The fire department brought down a hazardous waste disposal bag, but informed Morris that they could not dispose of the material.

Paper, ex-editor fight war of words

For nearly three decades, the Paintsville Herald has found its home in a building at 604 West Third Street in Paintsville. But this week, the business is set to relocate its offices to Main Street as the result of a feud between the paper and its former publisher, who also happens to own the building the paper is leaving.

The building is currently owned by Scott Perry, who was dismissed from his position as publisher and editor of The Herald on January 8.

Fred Foutz, who replaced Perry in January, wrote in his "Footnotes" column on April 6, "We have been asked to move."

During an interview with the Times Herald, however, Perry said that the statement was inaccurate.

"They were not asked to move," said Perry. "Their lease expired in 1999, and they chose to leave, instead of renegotiating the lease."

Perry notified The Herald by fax and certified letter on March 22, and an email on March 28, concerning the renegotiation of the lease.

When The Herald offered no reply concerning the matter, Perry sent a certified letter to the business, delivered by Deputy Charles Hitchcock of the Johnson County Sheriff's Office, on March 30.

"Be advised that if you fail to vacate said premises in the time allotted, the cost for continuing to occupy the building will increase May 1, 2001, to $1,815 per month and will continue at that rate until formal eviction processes are completed," the letter read.

Perry said Friday that he would neither confirm nor deny that the increase in rent, which ultimately led to the relocation of The Herald, is connected with his dismissal from that paper.

"The only animosity I have toward them is that they misrepresented the truth," said Perry.

Perry also wrote in his "Coffee Break" column, published in Wednesday's issues of The Martin County Sun

With the arrival of spring comes the threat of forest fires in Eastern Kentucky, and that was very real last week. The above fire was burning for at least three days last week along Route 15 at Red Fox, near the Knott and Letcher county line. No effort to extinguish the flames was apparent, but the fire was not threatening any homes.

Big Sandy River makes group's top 10 most endangered list

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

In its annual report for 2001, American Rivers, an environmental group based in Washington D.C., included the Big Sandy River on its list of endangered rivers.

The Big Sandy rests at the number seven spot on the list, following the Mississippi River, which also runs across a tiny portion of Kentucky, at number six.

Last October a coal slurry impoundment in Martin County burst, spilling 250 million gallons of water, mud and coal sludge and resulting in what the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has called the worst environmental disaster ever in the southeastern United States.

The spill, which ran into two streams and eventually into the Tug Fork of the Big Sandy River, killed river life for more than 75 miles and left residents without the benefit of a pure water source.

Gov. Paul Patton declared a disaster area in 10 counties after the sludge contaminated water supplies and draped the river with a coating of thick sludge which came as a product of coal being washed before being took to market. The runoff from these washing techniques forms a mixture containing heavy metals such as mercury, lead and arsenic which are then dumped into large holding ponds.

American Rivers said in its report that the Big Sandy is only one of several rivers on the 2001 list which became endangered as a result of energy production techniques such as hydropower, fossil fuel extraction and fossil fuel combustion.

The landscape along the Big Sandy River has many coal mines and consequently many coal slurry ponds, and some feel little has been done to clean up

Body found; Two charged with murder

Woman had been missing eight days

by GRETA FIELDS
EDITOR

The body of a missing woman, Tamara Jent Beverly was recovered on Wednesday on an old strip mine road several miles up in Allock, a hollow at Vico in Perry County.

Kentucky State Police have arrested two men from Bonnyman and charged them with murder. One of the suspects, Jimmy Ray Browning, 21, led police to the body after turning himself in to detectives at Post 13 in Hazard.

The body was found lying in a spot which is used to dump sewage from septic tanks.

Browning gave a statement to the police saying that another man, Anee Neace, allegedly killed Beverly, according to a copy of the citation signed by Det. Johnny Sizemore. After Neace allegedly killed Beverly, Browning allegedly drove Neace to a residence, where Neace allegedly burned the clothes he was wearing at the scene of the murder, the citation said.

After giving his statement to police, Browning took police to the scene.

Neace was also taken into custody and was in the Perry County Jail by Friday. No details were available concerning his arrest.

Neace is the father of one of Beverly's five children.

Beverly, 22, grew up at George's Branch, also in Vico. She is the daughter of Carson Jent, who died last year. Her mother, Janie, lives in Somerset.

Beverly's children have been kept in the custody of other people. She was trying to regain custody of one child. She was due in court for a custody hearing just prior to her death.

Beverly was reported missing April 5. She was last seen

Prestonsburg prepares for year in the spotlight

by MARY MUSIC

Recently, Prestonsburg hosted the first ever United States White House Fellowship visit. Fifteen representatives of the federal government toured Floyd County to learn, according to Fred James, director of the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission, "what makes the people here tick."

The group represented the departments of Labor, Commerce, Agriculture, Education, Army, Navy, Pentagon, and the vice president's office.

"This town's ready to bust loose," said Mark McLemore at the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission meeting on Thursday. "People want to come here to do things."

With the opening of the Stone Crest Championship Golf Course on May 1, and a variety of upcoming events scheduled, the committee expects a boost in tourism in the county during the upcoming months.

Jenny Wiley State Resort Park and the Mountain Arts Center are looking forward to hosting the Appalachian Regional Commission's national fall conference which takes place November 7 through 9.

According to McLemore, the conference will bring at least 200 ARC representatives from 13 states. Gov. Paul Patton is currently the state chairman of the ARC, and governors from other states will attend the conference.

"At this point, it is being considered as the most prestigious event that has ever been held in Eastern Kentucky," said McLemore.

According to McLemore, both Patton and Jerry Johnson, Patton's alternative representative in the ARC, "strongly recommended Prestonsburg" as the site for this event.

Pikeville College professor Katherine Sohn was recently awarded the James Berlin Outstanding Dissertation Award for 2001.

Sohn's dissertation, "Waslin' Women and Crownin' Women of Appalachia: Literacy Development Since College," was selected from among 18 entries for this award. She was honored at the annual College Composition and Communication Conference in Denver, Colo., in March.

The conference, which has a membership of 8,000, was established in 1949 as an arm of the National Council of Teachers of English to bring college composition teachers together annually to share concerns about the students they teach. The award is named after the late Dr. James Berlin, forgetting into a pickup truck in George's Branch. The missing person report issued by the State Police described Beverly as 5 feet 3 inches, blonde, blue eyes and 120 pounds.

Rumors circulated in Perry County that Beverly had been murdered for five days before her body was actually recovered.

State police received various calls about her during this time.

The Hazard Herald also received two reports, one on Monday and one on Tuesday, about a body being found. One caller said there was a body "in a silt pond." The other person said there was a body "in Allais."

On Wednesday, the rumors were confirmed. That day, Kentucky State Police got another call: This time the caller concerned a report of a body located in Allock.

That same day, police issued a news release saying that the body had been recovered and sent for an autopsy. Detective Sizemore went to Frankfort for the autopsy and could not be reached for information.

Police have not announced any motive for the murder.

Jimmy ('H.R.') Browning, 21, who is 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 260 pounds, was arraigned Wednesday before Judge Monte Gross.

Beverly had requested emergency protective orders twice on each man from Monte Gross. The most recent order was still in effect.

Beverly signed a complaint two months ago saying that Neace allegedly "tried to beat me up" on Main Street in front of a case worker. "He also stated that he would kill me," she said in her complaint. "I'm very afraid that he is going to hurt me."

Both men have a history of assault and domestic violence complaints and protective order requests filed against them, by Beverly and other people. Beverly had obtained two protective orders on Browning, for example, and last year filed an assault complaint against him.

Leadership Foundation's annual conference, set for April 26 and 27, will be held at the Mountain Arts Center and Holiday Inn. Patton will address the conference at a banquet at the MAC, followed by the annual WYMT-TV East Kentucky Leadership Awards Program. Patrons will be entertained by the Kentucky Opry.

The Chamber of Commerce Business Showcase will be held September 7 through 9 at Thunder Ridge Raceway. James referred to the showcase as "an economical development mission." Local businesses in the county will exhibit their products and other businesses from the surrounding region will be invited to visit.

The Kentucky League of Cities, Kentucky Association of Counties, Governor's office, Economic Development Cabinet in Frankfort, the Transportation Cabinet and other agencies have been invited to the event.

"If we got enough people excited about it," said James, "maybe it will encourage economic growth here in Floyd County."

The annual Floyd County Chamber of Commerce Banquet will be held May 10 at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Greg Stumbo will be the guest speaker at the banquet.

During the meeting, the commission discussed the status of the renovation of Prestonsburg's old post office, which is to become a travel center facility for tourism education, promotion and information.

James announced the proposed renovation to the city council last month.

According to James, Larry Adams, Prestonsburg's fire marshal, visited the building last week and "felt comfortable" that the wiring is in good shape. James stated, however, that the building needs some general construction.

The commission will be accepting a minimum of three bids for that construction, which includes carpeting, painting, plastering and adding windows in the lobby area.

The commission will be presenting bids for the project to the city council on the May 14.

During the meeting, Mark Miller, Boyd Thompson and Sharon Schoolcraft were reappointed to three-year terms as members of the committee.

Anyone interested in finding out more information on events to be held during the upcoming months in Floyd County can call 1-800-844-4704.

Disturbing questions

This week's discovery of a medical waste bag containing dozens of bloody needles tossed along a roadside in Perry County is certainly troubling, but so are the unanswered questions raised by the find.

The first question which must be answered — and soon — is how those who volunteer their time and labor to cleaning up litter and illegal dumps are to be protected from injury and infection when encountering such materials.

Perry County Superintendent John Paul Amis' response to the problem has been to prohibit students from taking part in future cleanups during school. While it is certainly unfortunate that schoolchildren will not be able to come face to face with the problems and solutions to illegal dumping, a far greater tragedy would be if a student were made ill from exposure to biomedical or other hazardous waste.

While the ban may be sensible when it comes to protecting our children, no such measures exist to protect adults who face the same hazards. Our state's garbage problem is one which must be rectified, and we cannot simply throw up our hands and walk away from the problem. Sooner or later, the trash must be picked up, and it is nearly certain that other dangers lurk for those charged with the duty.

Our city and county governments, as well as the PRIDE organization and other groups involved with cleaning up the messes of others, need to take a close look at what safety precautions are in place and what others need to be added.

But in addition to being concerned for those who might stumble upon such hazardous waste, we are also troubled by another question — how the bag of bloody needles found its way to the side of a road, near a high school, no less.

Medical waste is segregated from other garbage for a very good reason: It poses a danger to those who come in contact with it.

Placing such refuse in separate, clearly identifiable containers is only one minor precaution. Another, more important one is ensuring the security of such waste.

Because this appears to be an isolated case, and because the waste was found along with drug paraphernalia, one assumption could be that the bag of needles was stolen, as bizarre as that sounds, by an addict in search of syringes for drug use. While that notion certainly gives one pause over the depths to which some people can sink, it also points out the danger of inadequately secured medical waste.

No information has been released concerning the origin of the bag, but this incident clearly serves as a warning to hospitals, clinics and doctors' offices throughout Eastern Kentucky. That a lapse occurred somewhere is evident.

Obviously, the safety of our children is crucial. Just as important, however, is the safety of the rest of our citizens, and when it comes to this type of waste, the medical community has all of the responsibility.

We hope that this incident spurs all medical offices throughout the mountains to review their policies for handling the hazardous waste they produce, and to correct any weaknesses they find.

Japan inc. and us

by JEFFERY HART

Back in the 1970s, anxiety was widespread that Japan was buying the United States and destroying the American auto industry. Because the Japanese made a relatively small investment in Rockefeller Center, cartoonists drew a rising-sun flag waving in front of the buildings. Toyotas, Hondas and Subarus made a strong showing in our markets, while Japan made every effort to keep foreign goods from competing in its domestic markets.

Today, the American stock market is being depressed by two large factors. The less serious is the collapse in value of the NASDAQ stocks. Much more serious is the banking collapse currently facing Japan, as about 20 of its banks face ruin because of bad loans to failing enterprises. And those enterprises are failing because they are not competitive in the global economy, and this in turn is because they have long been protected from competition with foreign enterprises.

An American tourist in Japan would see a number of unusual things in daily life. For example, he would find no self-service pumps in the gas stations. A polite attendant would fill his tank.

A woman visiting a Japanese department store would find an unfamiliar plenitude of clerks and salespeople waiting to help her.

This is symbolic. Japan prefers that those gas-station attendants have jobs, even if it means that the enterprise is labor-intensive and less efficient and profitable. The same goes for the department store, which would have twice as many sales employees as its American cousin. And Japanese jobs tend to be permanent.

The entire country is organized this way. Solidarity trumps efficiency. The "Japanese Way" has powerful social sanctions. Not surprisingly, the Japanese economy is failing to grow.

As the McKinsey Global Institute analysis by Masahiko Aoki and Paul Romer puts it succinctly, the Japanese economy is in dangerous trouble because "in a misguided effort to protect jobs and maintain stability, the government subsidizes inefficient players and blocks the entry of competitors."

The fear of officials here is that the Japanese economy will tank and draw the international economy down with it. But there is no Japanese Margaret Thatcher to do what she did to the coal miners and other unions, or what Ronald Reagan did to the air-traffic controllers, or what Paul Volcker did to the money supply. Politically, the Japanese will be unable to let weak banks and noncompetitive enterprises simply fail.

And, indeed, we did not let Boeing or Chrysler go under. There will be some kind of bailout for Japan. After all, we paid $100 billion during the 1980s to bail out our savings and loans, which had been lending irresponsibly. But a Japanese bailout will demand that Japan cease protecting its businesses from international competition and entail tough discussions with free-market Japanese about ways to expand competition and join the global economy.

For traditionalist Japanese, there will be something tragic in this, but they will understand that they have looked into the abyss.

Potato chips better than politicians

Senator Mitch McConnell has commented many times that "our country spends more money on potato chips than it does on politics." It's no wonder!

Everyone knows about McConnell's idea of politics. It is expensive attack advertisements on TV and radio that scream at us and insult our intelligence. In order to pay for them, he spends lots of time begging for money from citizens who want special tax breaks or special favors from government.

It looks like our money is better spent on the potato chips.

Gore would have been a neutered dog

I hear a lot of moaning and groaning still from Gore supporters who are upset about his loss in November. The latest issue they're angry with Nader and the Green party for spoiling Gore's bid for the presidency is the repeal of the ergonomics regulation Clinton signed into law just two days before leaving office.

What they don't know is that this regulation would have died anyway whether Gore was sitting in the White House or not and the Democrats sold out the working people of this country.

In 1996, the Senate voted unanimously for the Congressional Review Act, signed into law by Clinton, which gave Congress a fast track procedure to overturn health and safety regulations within 60 days of their issuance.

Under this law there are no public hearings in Congress and no amendments permitted. Also the time for debate is limited on the House and Senate floor.

The CRA is profoundly undemocratic, yet the Democrats handed Bush and the Republicans the tool to give business lobbyists their victory.

Remember also six Democratic senators crossed over and voted to abolish the ergonomic rule. The so-called liberal Democrats in the Senate are fully aware of a voting bloc of senators from their party that consistently vote anti-labor and environment. They knew by passing this legislation they could please the corporate lobbyists and still appear to their voting constituency to be supportive of labor and the environment.

It's time for liberal Democrats to stop crying over the loss of the election and realize there are no true liberal Democrats in Congress, only charlatans and pretenders. This is just one example of why there is no longer any alternative but to build a true party for the people of this nation. It is no longer an option but a necessity to vote Green.

KenPAC enrollment starts in East Kentucky area

More than 22,600 Kentuckians with disabilities have enrolled in a managed care system operated by the Department for Medicaid Services designed to better coordinate their care.

The enrollment is for a special population of adults in Kentucky — the 69,000 people who receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits. They are enrolling in the Kentucky Patient Access and Care System (KenPAC).

In Floyd, Knott, Letcher, Martin and Pike counties, there are more than 8,300 SSI recipients. As of March 30, 3,171 have enrolled in KenPAC from these counties.

"We want SSI recipients to call us so we can talk to them about this important change in the way their health care will be managed," says David Meacham, operations manager for the KenPAC program.

Any SSI recipient who has not enrolled in KenPAC should call 1-877-639-0010 as soon as possible.

KenPAC, which began in 1985, is a managed care program that increases access to primary and preventive health services and coordinates other Medicaid-covered health care and related services for Medicaid members. KenPAC serves approximately 254,000 enrollees in 102 Kentucky counties.

There are about 1,500 physicians at over 900 sites participating in the program in Kentucky and bordering states. These providers are paid a monthly fee for each KenPAC recipient they serve, in addition to their fees for services.

The SSI recipients moving into KenPAC will retain the same level of benefits as other Medicaid members. Medicaid services will not change under this plan.

SSI recipients are being asked to select a primary care provider who will manage and coordinate their care, as well as make referrals to specialists. KenPAC is also placing nine nurses around the state to assist providers in managing the KenPAC population. This Care Coordination Support Program will start in Boone, Rowan, Boyd, Fayette, Pike, Harlan, Pulaski, Warren and Christian counties.

Notices have gone out to SSI recipients informing them of the changes. In most cases, they will be able to select their own KenPAC provider or clinic. The program will become effective for the SSI population between March 1 and May 1.

A KenPAC-SSI "help desk" with full-time nurses was established to help answer questions during the enrollment period. The help desk is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday. The toll-free phone number is 1-877-639-0010. The TTY number is 1-877-580-0066.

Besides adding the SSI population to KenPAC, the department has made some other changes to improve KenPAC. They include increasing the monthly payment received by KenPAC providers from $3 per member to $4 per member, recruiting more providers and providing opportunities to providers to earn additional payments for improvements in access to and quality of care, including improved utilization.

Medicaid members in nursing homes, hospice care, psychiatric health care facilities or home and community-based programs are excluded from KenPAC. Additionally, children enrolled in SSI will not be enrolled in KenPAC.

merly of the University of Cincinnati, for his contributions to composition studies during his lifetime. The award goes to the graduate dissertation that "improves the educational process in composition studies and adds to the field's body of knowledge through research or scholarly inquiry." The Berlin Award committee of six compositions scholars cited the freshness of Sohn's topic, which tells these women's stories with "respect, enthusiasm, and an authentic sense of hope." Sohn, an assistant professor of English and coordinator of the College's writing center, said her dissertation was written for doctoral requirements at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Her work examines the reading and writing habits of eight Pikeville College graduates she had taught. The dissertation relates the experiences of non-traditional female students who returned to college and succeeded in earning their degrees in spite of insurmountable odds. Using their words, which she elicited from interviews, Sohn describes the change from silence to voice as the women progressed through the academic program. "Even if they were unable to find work in their major, the dissertation shows that the experience of college helped them develop confidence in themselves," said Sohn. "So rather than 'whistlin' women and crowin' hens always coming to no good ends,' these women came to 'good ends.'"

Sohn is working with the College Composition and Communication Conference's journal and their Studies in Writing and Rhetoric monograph series regarding publication of the dissertation in the belief that these experiences might break down stereotypes of Appalachian women so that their whistlin' and crowin' voices can echo throughout the land. Copies of the dissertation are available in the Allara Library at Pikeville College.

Planting America's Future

by GEORGE CATES
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, NATIONAL TREE TRUST

For years, late April has been a time when Americans have gathered in cities and towns, farms and forests, to improve their health and beautify their communities. They do this for themselves, their children and the generations that will follow them. Neighbors unite to reduce water pollution, improve air quality, save energy, and provide homes for animals. And they've been doing it for nearly 100 years before "Earth Day" was declared. We must never forget the premier role trees play in the overall health of our nation and our planet. Since 1872, Americans have celebrated Arbor Day as that time to give trees the honor they deserve for many reasons. After all, trees give us:

 ■ Medicine - The USDA Forest Service reports 25% of our prescription medicines come from flowering trees.
 ■ Money in our pockets - According to research conducted by the US Department of Energy's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and the US Forest Service, strategically planted trees can save up to 20 percent in electricity costs. In addition, walls that are shaded tend to be 15 degrees cooler than unshaded walls and direct shade on a roof can make an attic 20 to 40 degrees cooler. In both cases less energy is needed to keep the building cool.

 ■ Clean air - The Center for Urban Horticulture at the University of Washington reports a healthy tree, say a 32-foot tall ash tree, can produce about 260 pounds of oxygen annually. Two trees fill the oxygen needs of one person each year.
 ■ Clean Water - Trees filter and store pollutants. They reduce storm water runoff which, in turn, reduces erosion of nutrient-rich topsoil.
 ■ Increased property value - According to the International Society of Arboriculture, property values of landscaped homes are 5-20% higher than those of non-landscaped homes.

 ■ Reduced stress - Studies have shown that people who view nature after stressful situations show reduced physiological stress response.
 The National Tree Trust is one of many organizations helping communities help themselves with trees. In the short but proud history of our non-profit organization, we've provided over 8 million trees at no cost to non-profit volunteer tree planting organizations around the country. Some of those trees were given to groups near your community to plant on public lands.
 There are thousands of organizations like these around the country. They plant trees, care for trees, and teach others about the importance of trees. Find the one near you. Call them before National Arbor Day on April 27.
 Spend a day with your family having fun planting a tree. Get your hands dirty while improving your community for your self, your children and their grandchildren. Go back in ten, twenty, thirty years and see the results of your efforts. Gaze upon the difference that you and your family made.

Major General George L. Cates, USMC (Ret.) is Executive Director of the National Tree Trust, a national, non-profit organization established in 1990 with programs to facilitate tree planting and maintenance through volunteer action, and to educate Americans about the importance and value of trees.
 For more information about its programs, write National Tree Trust, Attn: CM, 1120 G St., NW, Suite 770, Washington, DC 20005. Or call toll-free (800) 846-TREE ext. 16.

Banquet on February 20 at Highlands Regional Medical Center.
 Ralph Lundberg, vice president of human resources, welcomed guests and recognized former Employee of the Year recipients, Creed Gilliam and Brad O'Bryan.
 Lundberg introduced each of the Employee of the Month winners from which the Employee of the Year is selected: Rick Moore, registered nurse in ER; Kim Preston, registered nurse in outpatient surgery; Mike Roberts, assistant director of information services; Jeannie O'Bryan, director of the Senior Advantage Program; Jeanette Voisine, staff assistant in Marketing & Public Relations; Linda Mullins, laboratory technologist; J.D. Jackson, chief information officer; Polly Parker, registered nurse; John Salisbury, respiratory care staff technician; and John Thacker, general maintenance/grounds worker, Facility Services.

The Employee of the Year Award was presented by Harold Warman Jr., Highlands president and CEO.

Warman said in his remarks, "It is your attitude not your aptitude that will take you to your highest level."

Warman then opened the envelope and presented the award to a very surprised John Thacker.

Thacker, a Highlands employee since 1995, was honored by his fellow employees for his unending enthusiasm in everything he does.

Warman commented, "John has a positive attitude in everything he does and it rubs off on everyone around him."

Highlands officials said John is always busy doing his job and is known to stay late or come in whenever necessary to make sure repairs get done.

Included in the gifts John received were a $500 gift certificate, dinner for two, a weekend at the Lexington at the Green Hotel and the much-coveted Employee of the Year parking place in the front of the medical center.

An emotional Thacker thanked everyone and stated how totally surprised he was at being chosen.

"Even though I was chosen, I think everyone nominated was a winner," Thacker said.

The "Employee of the Month" and the "Employee of the Year" programs were created at Highlands to recognize outstanding employees of the organization. Key characteristics for nomination are: courtesy, attitude, respect and enthusiasm (care); extraordinary positive work ethic; a good team player; positive community involvement; and an enhanced image to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

He came to realize that a fundamental book on training for cross country was really not available. So, using the IBM computers at Olympics Stadium in Atlanta, during some down time between meetings, Hazen began to fashion a book that would address the questions asked by his colleagues.

PC's Lopez MSC Tennis Player of the Week

TIMES HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Pikeville College men's tennis team has been on a roll lately, and one of the big reasons is Christian Lopez. This week, those efforts have been recognized.

Lopez has been named the Mid-South Conference player of the week in men's tennis after helping his team to three 9-0 sweeps, including two against conference foes. Pikeville got wins over Lincoln Memorial University, Campbellsville University and Cumberland College last week.

Lopez, a 5-9 junior from Vina Del Mar, Chile, transferred to Pikeville from Shorter (Ga.) College, where he played in the NAIA national semifinals last year.

"Christian has done everything we've asked him to do this season. From the first day he got here, he's been a team player, and the guys think the world of him," said Coach John Kitchen. "I'm really happy for him. The league couldn't have honored a more deserving young man."

Lopez began the week with a 6-4, 6-3 win over Andy Barggram of LMU, and teamed with Rodrigo Puebla to win their doubles match 8-5. He then got a convincing 6-0, 6-1 win over Travis Thompson of Campbellsville, while he and Puebla played No. 1 in doubles and won 8-4.

He wrapped up the week the next afternoon with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Han Seong Ngum of Cumberland and he and Puebla won their doubles match 8-3.

The wins made the Bears 11-2 on the season and 6-0 in the MSC. They entered Tuesday's match at home with Georgetown having won five straight matches by 9-0 scores, including four against MSC competition.

"We're playing pretty well right now, and have a big week ahead of us," said Kitchen, whose team played North Greenville (S.C.) College Friday to decide the regular-season MSC title. "These guys know what it takes to win a champi-

New coaches added to PC football staff

TIMES HERALD STAFF REPORT

Pikeville College head football coach Zak Willis has added four new coaches to his staff, including two who were stars on the area high school level.

Gary L. Cunningham is the new offensive coordinator, Daric Riley will coach quarterbacks, Ben Howard is the new receivers coach and DeAnthony Honaker will coach offensive backs.

"We think we've added some talented people to this coaching staff," said Willis. The experience we have gained is deceiving, because these guys are so young, but they've all been around the game and have a tremendous amount of knowledge to draw on.

Cunningham, 38, is a native of Mableton, Ga., and a graduate of Jacksonville State (Ala.). In addition to his coordinator duties, he will also coach the offensive line.

He coached at Hargrave Military Academy for one season before moving to Methodist College. He then spent two years as offensive coordinator and lines coach at Missouri Valley College, and last

Jarrett notches second consecutive win

by GERALD HODGES
THE RACING REPORTER

Dale Jarrett took the lead from teammate, Ricky Rudd with six laps remaining in the 500 lap Virginia 500 for his third Winston Cup victory of 2001.

The key to Jarrett's win was tire management. Crew Chief Todd Parrott had told Jarrett to come in for fresh tires after a late race caution. Back on the track, he began to close on Rudd, who did not stop for tires.

"It was a great race all day," said Jarrett. "It was my man in the pits (Todd Parrott) that really made the right call. I know Ricky wanted to win, but I just had a lot better tires."

Rudd and his team had a brake hose problem on their No. 28 Ford Havoline early in the race that had to be repaired.

"We had to play catch up all day," said Rudd. "Because of the brake line we got out of sync on our tire stops and were a sitting duck at the end."

Jeff Burton led the most laps (202), but he had to make a stop for tires with 24 laps remaining and did not have enough time to catch the two leaders.

Finishing order: 1. Dale Jarrett, 2. Ricky Rudd, 3. Jeff Burton, 4. Bobby Hamilton, 5. Sterling Marlin, 6. Matt Kenseth, 7. Tony Stewart, 8. Bobby Labonte, 9. Jimmy Spencer, 10. Jerry Nadeau, 11. ## Betsy Layne beats Shelby Valley, 8-3

TIMES HERALD STAFF REPORT

Betsy Layne senior Dustin Elkins came on strong Thursday night and gave the Bobcats a 12-6 win over 15th Region foe Shelby Valley. Another Betsy Layne senior, Craig Keathley, had a home run in the game. The four-base knock just added to Betsy Layne's hit parade.

The Bobcats plated single runs in each of the first two innings to make it a 2-0 game. Coach Scott Anderson's Betsy Layne club added a pair of runs in the bottom of the third and one more in the bottom half of the fourth inning to go ahead 5-0.

Shelby Valley put their first score of the day on the board in the top half of the fifth inning. Host Betsy Layne outscored the visiting Wildcats 3-2 in the sixth inning. Strong pitching quickly ended any intentions Shelby Valley had of a seventh inning comeback.

Betsy Layne pounded out 12 hits in the game, doubling up Shelby Valley's output of six. Both squads had a pair of doubles in the game. Shelby Valley's Brandon Stevens, also a basketball player at the Robinson Creek high school, had one of his team's two doubles.

Raiders' Kaufman retires

Napoleon Kaufman, the Oakland Raiders' backup running back, retired from football Wednesday to devote his energies to his ministry.

Kaufman, 27, rushed for 499 yards on a career-low 83 carries as Tyrone Wheatley's backup last season.

Griese signs deal with Broncos

Brian Griese, who emerged last season as one of the NFL's best young quarterbacks, agreed Wednesday to a new six-year contract with Denver. Griese is a former college standout from the University of Michigan.

Broncos owner Pat Bowlen confirmed Thursday that the deal is for six years, and sources say it will pay Griese $39 million, including a franchise-record $12.8 million signing bonus.

Kentucky inks Ohio fullback

Ronald "Rock" Johnson, an all-state fullback from Cleveland, has signed a national letter-of-intent to play football at Kentucky, the university announced Wednesday.

Johnson rushed 94 times for 579 yards and nine touchdowns as a senior at St. Peter Chanel High School in Bedford, Ohio. He caught 11 passes for 137 yards and was the blocking back for tailbacks who combined for 2,400 rushing yards and 33 touchdowns last year.

Johnson's team finished 13-2 and was the state runner-up. He was named the team's Offensive Most Valuable Player and was selected for the "

UT's Dickey to receive 34th Neyland Trophy

Doug Dickey, who presided over prosperity as both a football coach and athletic director at the University of Tennessee, has been named winner of the Robert K. Neyland Memorial Trophy.

The award, named after the UT football coaching legend, has been given out since 1967 to an outstanding leader in intercollegiate athletics.

"Doug Dickey's peers will tell you he was not only an outstanding football coach, but is also an excellent athletics director," UT Quarterback Club president Jimmy Hyams said. "He was one of the few SEC coaches to have a winning record against Bear Bryant. As athletic director, he has overseen the growth and development of the Vol program to become one of the nation's finest."

When Dickey came in as football coach in 1964, the Vols had had only a .500 record during the previous three years. Although his first team finished 4-5-1, during his remaining five years at UT each of his teams won at least eight games, and won two SEC championships.

The Vols were short on talent when he arrived, but not when he left. Bill Battle's first three teams had a cumulative 31-5 record.

"I happily share the honor with the players, assistant coaches and administrators I have worked with

Sports In PERSPECTIVE

Denis Harrington

Few people have mixed emotions about New York Yankees pitcher Roger Clemens. "The Rocket" Clemens, they either love him or hate him.

It's not something Clemens is concerned about short term or long term. Bluntly put, he could care less. Only color him mean with a ball in his glove and standing on the mound working his spot in the regular rotation. He'll cuss you and hit you, if necessary, to get the edge. And he's never been heard to apologize about his behavior.

"No question about it; I'm pretty insane out there," he said. "Every time I toe the rubber, I'm pumped. More than anything I think about the people who pay their way into the ball park. Whenever I pitch I'm aware that in the crowd there might be someone watching who came especially to see me perform. Chances are they might have driven four hours just to get there. And maybe this will be their only opportunity to see me pitch. So I'm going to give it my best effort, whatever the occasion."

When Clemens beamed New York Mets catcher Mike Piazza the boos came cascading down in waterfall fashion. And this reaction only intensified when, in the 2001 World Series, he tossed a broken bat in Piazza's direction.

"I don't think I've ever allowed my emotions to get the best of me," he said. "As for the boos, I don't let them bother me. Everybody who's ever worn a uniform has heard boos. I've been doing this (pitching) for 17 years and I've got my own fans to watch me work. You can't make everybody happy and I've never tried to do so. It's a fool's errand."

Dubbed "The Rocket" for the speed with which his high heater reaches the plate, Clemens refuses to concede that there's been any notable reduction in his throwing velocity.

"I haven't really lost anything off my fastball," he said. "I'm still being clocked in the mid-90's. Sometimes I don't have my usual speed because of nagging injuries. It could be my back or a hamstring pull, the type of ailment that doesn't allow you to use your full motion to best advantage. But I'm always out there battling, fighting my way through problems. As for being hurt, I'd rather say, hey, I made a few bad pitches, walked too many guys, and leave it at that. If anybody knows you're hurt out there, they'll take advantage. They're going to attack you. Quite frankly, at this juncture of the proceedings, I don't expect I'll ever feel great physically again."

Because his health is often borderline Clemens finds it necessary to fall back on psychology as a ploy to help him win.

"I remember particularly a couple of games I pitched last year while ailing," he said. "I was getting the ball over at 87, 88 miles an hour, but the hitters were expecting it to be 10 miles an hour faster. And it took them six innings to figure out the zip wasn't there that day. By that time I had a healthy lead and the bullpen was called in to close shop. That's the hidden game, the mind game. On occasion you have to bluff."

As for his prevailing philosophy, Clemens said, "I always enjoy pounding the ball, and when I do the velocity is still there. But to make speed more effective I've developed a good splitter, and I also have a great changeup and a pretty fair curve. But I can still pound guys for six innings if the need is there."

Unlike many a player before him, Clemens admires New York Yankees team owner George Steinbrenner.

"The guy (Steinbrenner) has a football mentality," he said. "He doesn't let you coast. I don't mind, even at this stage in my career, if somebody gets after me a little bit. I enjoy people expecting bug things from me because I expect big things from myself."

For what remains of his big league tenure Clemens will be pitching for history and his place in it during each and every start.

year coached the defensive line and special teams at Methodist College.

"Pikeville seems to be a great place, and has some awesome people," Cunningham said. "We have some really hard-working players, and those things add up to make great things."

Riley is from Beaufort, S.C., and a graduate of Charleston Southern University. He spent two years coaching defensive backs at his alma mater, and last year coached defensive backs at Fairfield (Conn.) University.

"There are some real nice people here," said the 23-year-old Riley, and his is a quiet town. "I'm looking forward to some good things happening here."

Ben Howard is beginning his coaching career as the wide receivers coach. Howard, 21, was a three-year starting quarterback at Pikeville High School, and was a member of Georgetown College's national championship team last fall.

Howard is a student-assistant majoring in biology. "This is a beautiful town, with a lot of kind people, and when Coach Willis gave me opportunity to come home, I jumped at it," he said.

Howard is the son of legendary football coach Hillard Howard, who is now principal of Pikeville High School.

Honaker is coaching offensive backs after spending three years coaching offensive and defensive lines at Lafayette High School in Lexington. Honaker was a member of the 1988 and 1989 state championship teams at Pikeville High before moving on to the University of Kentucky. At UK, he played four seasons for Bill Curry.

"Pikeville is home for me, and when the opportunity to coach on the college level came, I realized quickly it was what I needed to do," said Honaker, 27. "I was part of something special at Pikeville High School, and now I believe I will be a part of something special here at Pikeville College."

P'burg Invitational slated for April 20-21

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

The Prestonsburg High School girls' softball team, under veteran coach Bridget Clay, will host an invitational tournament April 20-21. The tournament will begin on Friday afternoon and conclude on Saturday. The four-team tournament is a round-robin event.

Three 15th Region teams (one 57th District and two 58th District squads), along with a team out of the 16th Region, make up the tournament field.

A 57th District team, Sheldon Clark will take part along with two 58th District teams, host Prestonsburg and South Floyd. Rowan County is the 16th Region team taking part in the tournament.

Sheldon Clark will play South Floyd in one opening game of the invitational while Prestonsburg will take on Rowan County in the other game.

"It's a good tournament," said Prestonsburg Coach Bridget Clay. "It gives us the chance to play a team we normally wouldn't play in the regular season."

"We'll get our first look at each other Friday, and it will be two very good teams going at it. This will be some quality tennis."

Note: Results from all of this past week's Pikeville College tennis matches, along with other matches throughout the upcoming week, will appear in next Sunday's Times Herald Sports.

About Coach Kitchen...

John Kitchen is in his fourth year as the men's tennis coach and assistant basketball coach. John is a 1992 graduate of Knott County Central High School where he led his team to the state tournament two consecutive years.

Coach Kitchen is coming off back-to-back KAC championships in tennis, where his teams won conference titles in both singles and doubles. For his efforts, he was named Coach of the Year in the conference the last two seasons, and last year was Region XII Coach of the Year.

Kitchen played basketball and tennis at Pikeville College. He holds the school's single season (300) and career assist (756) records. He also won more games as a Pikeville College Bear than any other player in history.

Kitchen has a Bachelor of Business Administration Degree and holds a minor in accounting from Pikeville College.

during my coaching career," Dickey said. "Football is a team game. I am grateful to the team, including the fans who have made it possible for me to be selected as a recipient of the Neyland Trophy."

As the university's athletic director since 1985, Dickey again showed a magic touch.

While athletic departments at other major colleges struggle to make ends meet, Tennessee has enjoyed continued financial growth.

Construction has been almost constant, including improvements to Neyland Stadium and renovation of Lindsey Nelson Stadium as well as the building of Goodfriend Indoor Tennis Center and the Thornton Athletics Student Life Center.

Dickey has also been adroit at maneuvering UT through a handful of NCAA investigations with a minimum of damage.

He has received numerous awards, including Tennesseean of the Year by the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame in 2000 and the John L. Toner Award in 1998 as the nation's top athletic director.

In receiving the Neyland, Dickey joins an elite group of the nation's top college sports figures, including Bear Bryant, Tom Osborne and Bo Schembechler.

Dickey is married to the former JoAnne Beville. They have four sons, Don, Dan, David and Daryl, a daughter, Jaren Anne Wells, and 12 grandchildren.

Tickets to the 11:45 a.m. banquet on April 21 will be $20 each. Call Col. Gene Moeller at 865/974-1216 or 865/974-1219.

with Hazen's tremendous experience and international recognition in the cross country arena, Track & Field News was very eager to publish the book. And so, after five years in the making, the book "Training for Cross Country", whose sole author is Hazen (who has coached at Malone since 1967), was released just recently.

The book is one for beginning cross country coaches. It covers the fundamentals and principles of preparing runners to be successful in their development and racing. The book also has detailed training schedules for beginners, intermediate and upper-level runners. Strength and flexibility, nutrition and common running problems are among other areas covered in the book.

"In our American education system, most schools have a cross country program but not many times a track coach or sprint coach or even another sport's coach is asked to coach cross country," said Hazen. "Even though they may be a runner, they may very well be lacking in basic fundamental knowledge needed to help young kids train properly for cross country. I wanted to offer something that fit that need and hopefully this book does so."

The book, which sells for $19.95 plus tax, is available for purchase directly through Jack Hazen at P.O. Box 9512, Canton, Ohio 44771 or it may be purchased from Track & Field News Press (shipping and handling charge added) at 2570 El Camino Real, Suite 606, Mountain View, CA 94040.

Malone College, a Christian college for the arts, sciences and professions in the liberal arts tradition, awards both undergraduate and graduate degrees. Malone, a member of the Council of Christian College and Universities, is recognized by the prestigious Templeton Foundation as a leader in character development.

pionship. Johnson Central eventually fell in the second round of the playoffs to district rival Tates Creek, a team they'd beaten on the road in the regular season. Johnson Central, under Musick, finished the season with an 11-1 record. The near-perfect mark was the best in school history.

It's mid-April. Nearly every high school football team in the state has or is in the process of concluding spring football practice. Johnson Central remains without a coach. Names rumored for the job have included Mike Holcomb, head coach of the Breathitt County Bobcats; Jim Matney, head coach at Sheldon Clark High School and Billy Johnson, a former assistant coach and offensive coordinator under Musick at Johnson Central. Johnson, a former high school quarterback, had a stellar playing career at Johnson Central.

Both Matney and Holcomb now look to be out of the picture, while Johnson could still be interested, if he ever was interested.

Names and rumors do little in the way of getting a new head coach in place. And time is ticking on the program to get a new head coach in place for the 2001 season. The right man will have to be put into place at Johnson Central. It will be hard for any coach to go in and do what Musick did in his nine years as head coach. And the 2001 season doesn't begin with any cupcake game. Johnson Central will take on Ashland Paul Blazer if the first game of the season, the 2001 Big Sandy Bowl at Paintsville.

An odd twist: Musick staying? Could Musick actually stay aboard as head coach. It doesn't look likely, but there is still a slim chance. Just the like the fake punt the wily coach likes to take every now and then, it's possible. Once again, it doesn't appear likely, but there's still a possibility.

Johnson Central has the facilities. All of the school's sports facilities are on par with some of the best in the state. Whoever the school names as a new coach will have some quality facilities from which to ply their trade. Their trade? High school football.

Lasorda: Mr. Dodger

by DENIS HARRINGTON
TIMES COLUMNIST

For many years Tommy Lasorda was the object of behind-the-hand snickers and disparaging remarks due to his open, patronizing position as a Los Angeles Dodgers "front man".

"I bleed Dodger blue," he often said, "and when I die, I'm going to be the big Dodger in the sky."

Because of his jolly elf image and boisterous demeanor Lasorda appeared to be more puff than substance as a manager. Critics pictured him as a lovable incompetent and cheerleader the Dodgers management just couldn't see fit to replace.

Nothing was further from the truth. Ironically, the proof in the pudding came after Lasorda had finally left professional baseball as both a front-office man and on-field presence.

To the surprise of just about everyone Lasorda agreed to coach/manage the United States baseball entry in the 2000 Olympic Games in Australia. While the perennial favorites from Cuba would field a team peopled with players capable of playing in the big leagues, something Premier Fidel Castro has long forbidden, the American squad consisted of college types and unheralded mercenaries of questionable talent.

Only Lasorda could see a silver lining in this mixed bag and believed that a first-place finish was more than just a remote possibility. Utilizing all of his psychological and teaching skills he directed his ragtag stalwarts to a gold medal performance which astonished the

Riggs bounces back to win truck race

Scott Riggs was able to bounce back from trouble early in the Advance Auto Parts 250 at Martinsville Speedway to record his first career NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series victory.

A pit-stop collision 86 laps into Saturday's race knocked Riggs out of the top 20. But the Durham, NC driver remained calm and worked his way into the lead on lap 143. A lead he never relinquished.

Riggs said he "just tried to remain calm" after the pit-road skirmish on lap 86 damaged the front end of his Dodge.

"I didn't know how many trucks were on the lead lap then, and I didn't know how good my truck was," said Riggs, who picked up $35,560 for the win and retained his lead in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series points standings.

Rookie Travis Kvapil finished second to match his career-best finish while Terry Cook was third. Pole-sitter Joe Ruttman wound up fourth while Randy Tolsma was fifth.

Clanton gets win

Georgia's Joey Clanton continued his dominance of the 400-mile South Boston Speedway on Saturday night, leading all 300 laps of the event and collecting his second win of the season and third career race, capturing the Textilelease Medique 300 presented at Hardee's. Clanton's race win came from the pole position, which he earned on Friday afternoon after being the fastest car all day during practice.

Clanton is the first driver since 1996 to lead a race from wire-to-wire, when Gary St. Amant led all 300 laps at Columbus Motor Speedway.

panions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away." Cawood led the parade. This scholarship will give deserving students the opportunity to follow Cawood's path."

Cawood Ledford was born April 24, 1926 in Cawood. Before becoming the Commonwealth hero, Ledford, a graduate of Centre College, taught high school English in his native Harlan County. His first introduction to sports casting was during his teaching experience, nearly fifty years ago, when he began calling games for WHLN in Harlan. It wasn't long before his deep, resonating, baritone voice caught the ear of producers at WLEX in Lexington. It was then, in 1953, that Ledford began a lifelong career that can only be described as legendary. Cawood Ledford was with WLEX for three years before moving on to WHAS in Louisville. With his quick wit, smooth voice and love for the game, Cawood Ledford brought Wildcat games into the living rooms of Kentuckians for nearly forty years. Ledford was named Kentucky Sportscaster of the Year 22 times.

Horse racing fans counted on Cawood Ledford for twenty years to keep them updated on events at the Kentucky Derby, he was announcers for the Heavyweight Boxing Championship, the Masters Golf Tournament, The World Series and the Final Four. In 1979, he created his own production company, Cawood Ledford Productions, which he operated until 1993. During his celebrated career, he was the author of seven books. Upon his retirement in 1992, the University of Kentucky retired a jersey in his honor; a tribute normally given only to their basketball players.

Dick Vitale, the ESPN television analyst, only recently compiled a 16-member list of his favorite college basketball radio personalities entitled the "All-Cawood Ledford Team," in honor of this Kentucky legend.

In 1998, Cumberland College presented Cawood Ledford with an Honorary Doctorate of Laws degree. Cumberland is scheduled to honor Ledford once again with the "Outstanding Kentuckian of the Year 2001" award. The award is given annually to a citizen or native of Kentucky who has been a shining example of continued leadership and dedication to the betterment of the Commonwealth.

Since the Cawood Ledford Endowed Scholarship has been established by Wayne Perkey at Cumberland College, Ledford's legacy will live on in those who benefit from this gift. Proceeds from the fund will be used to assist Kentucky students attending Cumberland College. Anyone wishing to contribute to the Cawood Ledford Endowed Scholarship Fund may do so by sending your gift to Cumberland College, Office of the President, 6191 College Station Drive, Williamsburg, Ky. 40769.

Cumberland College, located in Williamsburg, Kentucky, is a private liberal arts college in its 112th year of operation. Cumberland offers four undergraduate degrees in 37 major fields of study, 30 minors and nine pre-professional programs.

sports world at large. And as well it should have.

Speaking of his winning technique, Lasorda said, "I motivate players through communication, being honest with them, having them respect and appreciate your ability and help. I started in the minor leagues. I used to hug my players when they did something well. That's my enthusiasm. That's my personality. I jump with joy when we win. I try to be on a close basis with my players. The experts claim you can't go out and eat with your players. But I question, why not?"

As a motivational speaker Lasorda had few peers. He never saw a losing situation in life. Not a few detractors considered his line of work to be a bit much and said so for the world to hear. One such naysayer was Joe Garagiola, a recognized mouth of no little moment, who masqueraded as a major-league ballplayer for the St. Louis Cardinals and later held forth as a network commentator.

With not a little disdain, Garagiola once told an NBC audience, "You can plant two thousand rows of corn with the fertilizer Lasorda spreads around."

A product of the old school which preached "play hurt or don't play at all," Lasorda abhorred the modern-era players who miss games for the most trivial of injuries.

"You can't make this club in the tub," he used to say. "I some kid asked me the way to the whirlpool I'd reply, 'Stick your foot in the toilet and flush it. When I walked into our clubhouse it was like walking into the Mayo Clinic. We had four doctors, three therapists and five trainers. Back when I broke in, we had one trainer, who carried a bottle of rubbing alcohol - and by the seventh inning he had drunk it all."

Lasorda is not one to fault the present-day obsession with the longball. Quite to the contrary.

"There is no way you'll get me to knock good base running," he said. "However, if God were to say to me, 'Tom, you can have your choice of power or speed,' I'd take power. The reason is simple. If a guy beats out a hit and steals second, you've got no assurance he's going to score. But when a man hits one out of the park, you've got a guaranteed run."

In the final analysis, Lasorda could still manage in the bigs today and succeed as of old. He proved that in Australia. And in so doing he would bring to big-time baseball a vital ingredient which is sadly lacking now - color.

Some things are just common sense. So when I heard about a telephone service offering high-tech solutions at affordable rates, I was more than a little interested. When I learned they also offered local telephone service, long distance, Internet and paging, together in a low-cost bundle, I was sold. So it's only natural they'd become my telephone service, too.

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Take notes, kids, or else Dale Jarrett is going to put all of you in detention. There might be a quiz. Jarrett stands alone at present. In a stock car racing world being invaded by wave upon wave of young rock 'n' rollers, Jarrett has become the lone reliable link to the past. In fact, fueled almost by Jarrett alone, the past is kicking the Pepsi Generation's butt. The 44-year-old Jarrett's victory in Sunday's Virginia 500 was his third in the last four weeks, serving notice for the umpteenth time that NASCAR has little need for a seniors tour. Martinsville Speedway had been one of the few worlds to have remained unconquered by Jarrett. Neither he nor his father, Ned, a two-time champion himself, had ever won on the paper-clip-shaped, .526-mile speedbowl. Overall, the victory was Jarrett's 27th, moving him past 1960s star Fred Lorenzen into NASCAR's all-time top 20. Jarrett never won a Winston Cup race until he was nearly 35. Lorenzen was barely over 30 when he collected the last of his 26 victories in 1967.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — How did the Dodge Ram suddenly become so dominant? Scott Riggs gave the Dodge its fourth consecutive victory in the Advance Auto Parts 250 at Martinsville Speedway. Riggs started on the outside of the front row and took control in the latter stages. Riggs became the third Dodge driver to win. Joe Ruttman captured the season-opening race at Daytona, and Ted Musgrave won races in Homestead, Fla., and Bakersfield, Calif.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Dale Jarrett vs. Jeff Gordon

This is no war of words. Both drivers are gentlemanly and complimentary of each other. But this is a vibrant rivalry, made more intense by the fact that the season's results to date seem to point to a two-man race between the two for the Winston Cup championship. NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "After eight races, the distance between Jarrett and Gordon and the rest of those who were expected to be contenders is extraordinary. It could be that others — like, for instance, Steve Park or Sterling Marlin — will emerge, but among the perennial contenders, only Rusty Wallace is anywhere close, and Wallace is already 228 points out of first. Tony Stewart is 364 points behind, reigning champion Bobby Labonte 430 out of first, Mark Martin is 489 behind and Jeff Burton is 531 out. Unless the wildly improbable occurs, Labonte,

PROFILE

Dale Earnhardt Jr.

Winston Cup Series

By MONTE DUTTON
NASCAR This Week

In the aftermath of his father's tragic death, Dale Earnhardt Jr. is probably the most popular driver on the Winston Cup circuit. An 11th-place finish in the Virginia 500 enabled the third-generation driver — both his father and grandfather are members of the National Motorsports Press Association's Stock Car Hall of Fame — to move from 20th to 19th place in the points standings. As a rookie, Earnhardt Jr. won Winston Cup races last spring at Texas and Richmond, and he then went on to win The Winston all-star race at Lowe's Motor Speedway. He hasn't won since, but he did manage to finish second behind Michael Waltrip in this year's Daytona 500. He won his third career pole March 30 at Texas Motor Speedway.

the best way I can. I think about him all the time. It seems like there are good days and bad days. Just when you think you're feeling better about it, and it seems to be lessening each day, you hit a bump in the road, and you'll spend several days where you can't think about anything else. I don't know how long that'll be, but it's not such a bad thing. I think about him often." Have you noticed the great outpouring from fans? "It really surprised me. You walk out on pit road, and that's when you realize how many people are paying attention and how many people know what's going on. ... The fans in the grandstands really give me a positive reaction. It's cool to see that. It really pumps you up and gives you a good feeling. It makes you want to give them something to make them laugh and give them something to cheer about. Is racing a release for you? "It's something that would really take me a long time to explain. The way I look at racing and the way I feel about racing, going to the track on weekends, the way I think about it, the way I prepare myself for each race ... it's totally different now than it was before. Some of the aspects about racing that were huge to me a year ago don't really matter no more. There are things I didn't really think I would appreciate, I appreciate now. I raced for three years in the Busch Series and the Winston Cup Series, and the majority of my enjoyment was how proud my father got and to see him happy after a win, and things like that ... they're not there no more."

Who's Hot... Who's Not

■ HOT: Dale Jarrett has three wins in the past four races and is 123 points ahead in the standings.
■ NOT: Todd Bodine was last at Martinsville and has been 32nd or worse in four straight races.

Trackside Trivia

1. When did Jeff Green make his Winston Cup debut?
2. How many bonus points does a driver receive for leading at least one lap in a Winston Cup race?
3. What year was the current Winston Cup points system introduced?

ANSWERS
1. 1994; 2. Five; 3. 1975.

AROUND THE GARAGE

Two Winston Cup teams make crew chief changes

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Two Winston Cup teams have hired new crew chiefs in the past week. Fred Graves, who once directed Ron Hornaday to a Craftsman Truck Series championship, is Hornaday's crew chief again, at least on an interim basis, since Philippe Lopez's departure. Jim Long has replaced Tim Brewer as crew chief of Mike Wallace's Ford.

WHERE IT ALL BEGAN: It was at a Craftsman Truck race at Martinsville Speedway where Richard Childress first started paying attention to Kevin Harvick, who now drives for Childress in the Winston Cup and Busch series. "I made a few moves that he thought were pretty gutsy," remembers Harvick. "Mostly I was beating up on another driver. I wasn't shooting for it, but it turned his head in my direction. For that, Martinsville will always be special. I didn't know it for a while, but my life completely changed — for the better — at that race."

KEEP IT CLEAN: Johnny Benson, who came to Martinsville ranked third in the points standings, entered the Virginia 500 with a certain trepidation. The tiny track is a little rough for Benson's taste. "Martinsville is a track that is hard on brakes, and it's a place where it is hard to pass," Benson said. "You sometimes have to bump people out of the way, and people are always bumping and hitting you. Everybody, going into the race, feels like he's got to hit or wreck somebody to get by them, and that is what they do so that takes some of the fun out of it. I don't like hitting or wrecking people. That's not racing. "Some guys take it to the point they say, 'Well, everybody expects to get hit, so I will just hit them and get them out of the way.' If you've got a good car there, then, I think you can get to the front without hitting people."

Your Turn

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week, I am writing in reference to the unfair rule placed on the Fords this year for the aerodynamic disadvantage that gives the other makes an advantage. The rules should have all makes using the same measurements on trunk scopes, and also the same number of new scopes that are now required on the rooftops. The only reason that NASCAR placed these disadvantages on the Fords was after they won the points championship for 2000 and some of the Chevrolet drivers kept complaining.

Roger A. Smith
Hagerstown, Md.
We assume you mean the manufacturer's championship, which Ford did win in 2000. But the points championship was won by Pontiac driver Bobby Labonte.

Dear NASCAR This Week, Dale Earnhardt was always the first to apologize if he wrecked someone and never badmouthed anyone who wrecked him. That's why I was a fan of his. For anyone to find fault, or send death threats, because of his fatal crash is an insult to his memory. Those idiots should go watch professional wrestling and leave us NASCAR fans alone.

Cliff Reed
Renville, Minn.
Dear NASCAR This Week, I'm writing about Dale Earnhardt's death. The people who are true racing fans would not blame Sterling Marlin. It's just part of racing. Dale would not have felt this way. I'm an avid Dale Earnhardt fan and have been for years. People are so cruel! I thank God for taking Dale so he didn't have to be like a friend of mine. He injured his brain stem and can't walk or talk ... just a vegetable in a wheelchair. No fan would want Dale to be that way. He was The Man in my book.

Dorothy Finch
Sad stories touch many lives. Thanks for writing.

Fan Tips

■ BodyDynamicsRacing.com, based in Denver, N.C., has created an online "Driver Scouting" service for up-and-coming professional racers. This service will offer talented drivers across the country the opportunity to be showcased on a professionally managed motorsports Web site, where they can be exposed to team owners, sponsors and motorsports media throughout the professional racing community and the world. The "Driver Scouting" report launched April 2. For more information, go to the company's Web site (www.bodydynamicsracing.com).

CREW OF THE WEEK

■ The speed of Dale Jarrett's pit crew gives him confidence that he can get out of the pits faster than other competitors, and the team, led by crew chief Todd Parrott, has been a huge factor in Jarrett's three recent victories. "My pit crew makes every gamble a little less of a gamble," Jarrett said after his Martinsville victory. "I guess they give us some leeway that other teams don't

FROM THE ARCHIVES

■ Nashville, Tenn., was a hotbed of Winston Cup racing for many years, and the opening of the new Nashville Superspeedway gives local fans hope of regaining a Winston Cup date within the next few years. Geoff Bodine won the most recent Nashville race, at the old fairgrounds track, in 1984. The racing was quite competitive there, as evidenced by the fact Richard Petty won nine times, Darrell Waltrip eight and Cale Yarborough seven.

Medicare AND YOU

Donna R. Morton
Medicare Beneficiary
Outreach Coordinator
AdminStar Federal

Q How do I find someone to provide home health care covered by Medicare?

A You may find a Medicare approved Home Health agency by asking your doctor or hospital discharge planner. You might also ask your local Aging Agency for help or look in the phone book Yellow Pages under 'home health care.'

Q Are there items or services that are not covered by Medicare home health?

A Some of the things that Medicare will not help pay for are:

- 24-hour care at home
- Meals delivered to the home
- Personal care by home health aides, such as bathing or dressing when this is the only care you need
- Help with shopping, cleaning, and laundry
- Prescription drugs

Q How long can I receive Medicare Home Health?

A As long as there is a medical need, Medicare pays for home health services. There are limits on the number of hours and days of care you can receive in any week. Home health care is there to help you after an illness or injury until you can care for yourself.

Q Can I live with a family member and receive Medicare home health care?

A Yes. Medicare rules say your home can be a house or apartment, the home of a family member, or even a home for the aged. A hospital or other facility that mainly provides skilled nursing services does not qualify as a home. If you are receiving skilled care in a facility, instead of your home, other parts of Medicare can help pay.

Q I want to protect Medicare dollars. What should I watch for that might be a sign of fraud or abuse by a home health agency?

A Most health care providers are very honest. But fraud and abuse does happen. You should be on the alert for:

- Visits made by home health care staff that you do not need
- Billing Medicare for care or equipment you did not receive
- A home health agency that offers you free goods or services for your Medicare number

CNC mortgage helps people determine if now is the time to buy or refinance a home

Today, most people are concerned about the state of the economy and their personal financial situations. Now that the Federal Reserve has cut interest rates for the third time this year one thing is sure, consumers who are confident about their future are refinancing big-ticket items such as homes and automobiles. Refinancing a residential mortgage loan or obtaining a mortgage to be able to own a home of your dreams in the Big Sandy region recently became easier when CNC Mortgage opened its office at 81 Weddington Road, in Pikeville. Only a few months after opening its new house on Thursday, April 5, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. CNC Mortgage is a subsidiary of Citizens National Bank, the second largest independently-owned and operated community banking company in the Big Sandy Region. Citizens National Bank, headquartered in Paintsville, operates branches and ATMs in five counties of the Big Sandy Region. "Opening this residential mortgage loan office, in Pikeville demonstrates another way that Citizens National Bank can be the bank for your life," said Dennis Dorton, president and CEO of Citizen National Bank and its sub-siary, CNC Mortgage LLC. "People will soon discover how convenient and easy it is at CNC Mortgage to apply for money to buy a home. In most cases, we will be able to close on loans much quicker than other sources. Our mortgage specialist, Greg Lee, has the experience that is necessary in the Big Sandy region to be able to help customers comfortably make one of the largest investments they'll ever make, purchasing a home." According to the National Association of Realtors, the national average for a 30-year mortgage dipped to 6.89 percent the third week of March, far below the peak of 8.64 percent that hit May, when the Federal Reserve pushed interest rates up for a sixth straight time in an effort to slow what was then red-hot economic growth that was raising concerns about inflation. "The most common reason people refinance a home is to take advantage of lower interest rates, thereby saving on mortgage costs," said Greg Lee, CNC mortgage specialist. "Now, is the time to refinance a home, when the economic conditions for doing so are right. Of

"It's just good, clean fun for everybody," said Pat Lemaster, current owner of the "Redlight Diner," formerly "Our Place," in Prestonsburg. Patrons joined in with the festivities on Friday night during their Easter celebration. "Wild Fire," a local band, played for the crowd, and the children were entertained with an Easter egg hunt and visits from the Easter bunny and a clown. Racheal Tussey, Prestonsburg, won a four-foot Easter bunny given away during the celebration. The diner roasted hot dogs outside, while customers visited booths. Charlotte Powers, Auxier, and Meranda Lafferty, Wayland, were the winners in the store naming contest. Pat Lemaster, owner says she plans to continue the fun throughout the summer with similar celebrations to be held each month.

Lodestar Energy Inc. Vendors

by JOHN W. HUGHES, PRESIDENT

On Friday, March 30, involuntary bankruptcy petitions were filed in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Lexington affecting Lodestar Energy Inc. and its parent, Lodestar Holdings Inc. The filings were made on behalf of a firm that recently acquired a substantial majority of Lodestar's outstanding public debt. Apparently, this firm has concluded that the bankruptcy process is the best means for restructuring the debt.

It is important to understand that this filing of an involuntary bankruptcy petition has no immediate legal impact on Lodestar. In many ways, it's the same as the filing of any other lawsuit. Lodestar will now have the opportunity to review the filing in the context of the company's current financial situation and determine whether it agrees that our ongoing restructuring process will benefit from the formal reorganization procedures of the bankruptcy court. If Lodestar agrees, it may in essence "take over" the process and proceed as though Lodestar itself had filed the petition. If Lodestar does not agree, it will contest the filing and the bankruptcy court will determine whether the Nine months ago, R&S Truck Body began a reward program in an effort to raise awareness of the importance of perfect attendance and safety management. On April 9, employees were awarded with plaques for their exemplary efforts in both categories. Plaques were presented to Danny Webb, Jimmy Whitaker, Brian Tipton, Charles Stambo, Bruce Shelton, Michael Sammons, John Pelphry, George Music Jr., John Johnson, Dwayne Hicks, Sie Hamilton, Johnathon Freeman, Clarence Davis, Danny Daniels, Roy Cox, Tony Collins, Mike Butcher, Gary Butcher and Adrain Adkins. Charles Collins, president of R&S, said that the company is currently planning other incentives to stress the importance of attendance and safety management with R&S employees.

Faculty present at National Conference

Three Prestonsburg Community College faculty members presented at the 25th Annual National Association for Developmental Education (NADE) Conference held in Louisville, on March 14-18. John Carrell, instructor in developmental reading, Rick Casper, assistant professor in developmental education, and Myra Salisbury, assistant professor in developmental English, presented Teaching Organization and Idea Development in Writing to Generation X.

Those participating in the event came from a variety of educational areas including reading, mathematics, writing, tutoring, counseling/advising, learning assistance, disability service, learning strategies, retention, and administration, as well as several other disciplines. Though many came from across the United States, international countries were represented also.

Carrell, Casper, and Salisbury divided the participants into small groups and used structured brainstorming and affinity diagramming techniques, designed to be flexible and useful with students who have different learning style preferences, to develop ideas for writing.

Evaluations of the session were positive, with the majority rating the experience as "excellent." John Carrell said, "Rick, Myra and I were very honored to have been selected as presenters for the conference. It was a very positive experience for us, and we feel the participants truly enjoyed the opportunity to apply a teaching technique."

Financial FOCUS

No time to be on investment 'sidelines'

Disappointing investment results in 2000 may be sending some people out of the market and onto the "sidelines"—where they'll wait for things "to get better" before jumping back in. But is it a good idea to take a timeout from investing? Not really.

If you're investing for the long term, you always have to be looking into the future—far beyond today's headlines. And no matter what the market as a whole is doing, you can always find areas that offer strong potential for growth. Plus, when the market is down, you may be able to pick up high-quality stocks at good prices.

Furthermore, by staying invested, you won't miss out on any market upturns. Remember, the market can rise just as quickly as it can fall. If you're off to the side, just watching, you could be left behind quickly when the market takes off. And there's ample historical evidence that it could do just that; over long periods of time, stocks have typically trended up, overcoming the down years and bear markets.

Still, there's no question that the market's performance in 2000 was shaky enough to give even experienced investors a case of the jitters. The Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 6.2 percent for the year—its worst year since 1981 and its first losing year since 1990. But the Dow's slide was dwarfed by the drop in the technology-heavy Nasdaq composite index, which tumbled 39.3 percent for the year—its worst year ever.

If you do want to stay in the market, but you don't want to be unnecessarily victimized by drops of these magnitudes, what can you do? Your most important defense is diversification—the distribution of your investment dollars over a variety of asset classes, including income, growth, growth-and-income, aggressive growth, cash and cash equivalents.

Diversification can help protect you against downturns affecting just one or two market sectors. And, because you're exposed to a wide range of investments, you'll increase the likelihood that, at any given time, some parts of your portfolio will do well.

Your individual asset allocation mix will depend on several factors, including your risk tolerance, age, objectives and financial resources. A qualified financial professional can help you determine the combination of investments that's right for your situation. Once you've established the asset allocation mix for your portfolio, you'll need to monitor it, and make adjustments as you encounter changes in your life. For instance, as you move closer to retirement, and you've achieved some of your important goals—college for your kids, a paid-off house, etc.—then you may want to alter your asset allocation mix somewhat, possibly moving a certain percentage of your portfolio out of the "growth" area and into "income."

Even with a carefully prepared asset allocation plan, there's no guarantee that you will avoid losses, especially in the short term. But if you've chosen high-quality investments, and you have the patience to stick with them over the long term, you should do a lot better in the market than out of it.

 course, there are many reasons why people decide to refinance a home. It is important that people are clear about the reasons they want to refinance, so they can decide if the changes will help them achieve their goal.
 Some other reasons people decide to refinance are to lower monthly payments, reduce or extend the term of the loan, or change the loan from an adjustable rate to fixed rate. "Sometimes people even refinance their homes to allow them to pay off other debts such as credit cards, because it is often less expensive to consolidate debts with a mortgage," Lee said. "Regardless of what the reasons are for refinancing a home, we welcome the opportunity to help people determine whether or not this is the window of opportunity to do so."
 CNC Mortgage focuses its services on residential fixed rate conventional mortgage loans. Citizens National Bank offices offers other types of loans such as VA and KHC mortgages, adjustable rate mortgage (ARMs), construction loans, and loans to purchase land for future residential construction.
 Applications for a residential mortgage loan can be made at the new CNC Mortgage office in Pikeville, near the Autobahn, or by phone locally at 432-3028, toll-free at 866-286-9180, or by fax (606) 433-1093. In the future, CNC Mortgage will offer mortgage applications on its web site.

 process should proceed. In the meantime, Lodestar is committed to continuing business as usual. Again, there is nothing about the filing that in any way should prevent us from doing so. We recognize, however, that the mere filing of this petition and the misunderstanding that many people may have about its legal effect on the company may cause concern among our employees, vendors and others. Be assured that we will continue to work hard to restructure the company's finances in a manner that will enable Lodestar to continue as a dependable coal producer. We appreciate your support as we go forward.
