Association wants to restore some of Wiley's path

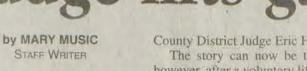

The story of Jenny Wiley has long been passed down from generation to generation among residents of Floyd County as well as surrounding counties.

Several areas and establishments in Floyd County bear the name of Jenny Wiley, but Bertha Daniels, a representative for the Jenny Wiley Association would like to give enthusiasts and those wanting to know more a chance to view a piece of the actual history behind the story.

Daniels presented to the Floyd County Fiscal Court yesterday a presentation detailing their reasons for commenting during the meeting.

In the presentation, Daniels explained that it had come to the attention of the association, which is made up in large part of the descendants of Jenny Wiley, that a portion of Route 3051 referred to as Ford Gap would soon be transferred from the

Plans are still moving ahead for the construction of the Martin Community Center as was evident at the Floyd County Fiscal Court's Tuesday meeting as members approved another $50,000 disbursment to the project for continued work and payroll expenses.

The $50,000 payment will be provided from the fiscal court each month and, as was determined during the court's last regular meeting, while funding remains available.

At least for this month, the monthly payment will consist of getting a start toward setting up personnel at the center, said Thompson.

As well as the monthly allotment, payment was also made to the Kentucky State Treasurer in the amount of $970 for a plan review of the facility, an expense on all building projects.

Grand jury issues indictment against mentally-ill defendant

by MARY MUSIC STAFF WRITER

The fate of a mentally-handicapped Prestonsburg resident now falls to the Floyd County judicial system, following an indictment handed down yesterday.

The grand jury indicted Michala Walters, 18, on two counts of firstdegree arson, class A felonies, after she allegedly attempted to start fires in two bathrooms at Prestonsburg Community College in April.

Although Walters has a long history of mental illness, if she is found guilty on those charges, she will face a 20-year-to-life sentence for each of the felony counts, which could run consecutively, according to Commonwealth's Attorney Brent Turner.

"I know these charges are serious," said her mother. Jennifer Walters. "I truly think that she does need treatment, but I think, as far as her going to trial, it will be a bad situation.

"All we ever wanted out of any of this was the appropriate treatment for my daughter," continued Walters, "and we'll continue to pursue that treatment until her trial.'

Walters, who was previously diagnosed with oppositional defiant disorder and borderline personality disorder, was released from the Floyd County Detention Center on August 14 after being incarcerated for 60 days without an indictment and has been staving at her mother's residence in Prestonsburg.

"This is a heart-wrenching case," said Floyd County District Judge Eric Hall, who signed the order for Walter's release. "She doesn't need to be in jail. She needs help. The only thing I can see here is somebody in desperate need of help, and it breaks my heart. This is by far the saddest case I've ever encountered.

Upon her initial arrest, Walters was transported to Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in High school test scores are 'main concern'

But Watson says there is reason for optimism, higher expectations

by RALPH B. DAVIS MANAGING EDITOR

Floyd County's head of school testing says that, while there is reason for concern based on results of the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills released last week, she believes the school system stands on the verge of improvement in statewide assessments.

"We are poised in a position for improvement that we haven't been in in a long time," said Joyce Watson, district assessment coordinator for Floyd County schools.

And Watson's optimism is strong. Not only does she believe that improvement could come as early as next year, she has one word to describe the degree of that improvement. "Significant."

Watson bases her beliefs on recent changes the school system has made to combat chronically poor showings in both the handed down against Gunnells yesterday, an anticipated additional charge of rape was not present.

The possibility of a rape charge was first eluded to while the case was still at the district level when county attorney Keith Bartley explained that his office had been prepared to present a case to the court that would have included the charge. based on certain evidence that was not revealed at the time.

"We haven't ruled out additional charges," Turner said yesterday. "In fact, there is a continuing investigation that could result in an additional felony charge. There are lab results pending in that investigation. The reason we went ahead and presented and returned what we had is because this is the bulk of the case. It's the grand jury's desire to further look into other allegations."

Of the nine felony charges had no intention of issuing an arrest warrant.

When asked if he felt Walters is mentally competent to stand trial, Turner said those answers will come as the trial proceeds.

"All I have at this point is the information that has been presented to grand jury to obtain an indictment," said Turner during an interview yesterday. "In any case, we have to start with the assumption a person is competent unless we receive any information otherwise, and that's something we haven't received at this point. If it's believed she's not competent ... we would look at it and see what the medical evidence was and proceed accordingly.

"There's a reason that competency is always an issue." continued Turner, "and that's because it's certainly not fair to prosecute someone who is incompetent to the point that they shouldn't be held accountable. It is never our desire to prosecute someone who is not competent."

Prestonsburg and later taken to the Hazard Psychiatric Center for evaluation.

After her arraignment, Walters was ordered by Hall to receive further evaluation at the Kentucky Center for Psychiatric Care at La Grange Prison to determine her mental ability to stand trial.

The results of those evaluations were ordered to be sent only to Walters' defense attorney, Vicky Ridgeway, who was unavailable to comment on issues regarding her case.

During her incarceration at the Floyd County Detention Center, Walters' family and employees at the jail, including Floyd County Jailer Roger Webb, feared for her safety because of her mental handicap. Deputy jailer Melissa

Bentley filed a petition for involuntary hospitalization for Walters on July 25, following a string of incidents which she said were prompted by Walter's behavioral problems. Noting that Walters was a "threat 'to herself and others" after she allegedly tried to attack other inmates and deputy jailers, Bentley said in the petition that Walters threatened to kill herself. According to other petitions signed by fellow deputy jailers, Walters threw herself against doors in the jail and kicked things when she became upset, and, according to Webb, tried to cut herself with a broken plastic shampoo bottle.

Following these incidents, Walters was placed in protective custody, and the violent episodes subsided, said Bentley.

"I don't see how they can do that," said Bentley, speaking of the indictment which was handed down yesterday. "This is no place for her."

Bentley said since her release, Walters has kept regular contact with her and other deputy jailers at the detention center.

"She brought me a picture over yesterday, and she calls all the time just to talk," said Bentley. "I hope they find a way to help her. She just doesn't deserve to be sent back to jail." It isn't likely that Walters will return to protective custody, according to Turner, who said yesterday that his office

The road was closed to traffic some time ago by the Transporta-tion Cabinet, said Daniels, as a result of a cleanup effort of a massive and illegal garbage dump that had existed for over 40 years in the Ford's Gap area.

That area, now clean and restored to its former beauty, would be an ideal place for those interested to have a look at some of the tangible history surrounding the Jenny Wiley saga, said Daniels.

national CTBS and the state's of grammar, the drop has been own test, the Commonwealth Accountability Testing System.

One of those changes reflects what has become the school system's "main concern" - the continued slide of high school students.

Since 1997, Floyd County freshmen taking the CTBS have scored lower overall each year. In 1997, ninth-grade students taken as a whole countywide scored in the 40th percentile. In 2001, that figure has dropped to 34.

To help combat that downward trend, the school system is for the first time this year placing curriculum coordinators in each the county's four high schools. Watson said the coordinators, who are in training now, will work full-time inside the schools to help ensure that what teachers more steep. In 1997, ninth-grade language scores placed in the 45th percentile. This year, that number has fallen to 35, placing Floyd County ninth-graders in the bottom 10 when compared to 171 other districts across the state.

That trend does not appear in other grades taking the test.

Third-graders have improved reading scores by as many as nine points over their score of 42 in 1997, although they experienced a one-point drop this year. In language, this year's score is 10 points higher than 1997's 40, but is down three points from last year. Math scores also showed improvement over the past five years, rising each year from 1997 to 2000, and staying the same in 2001.

At this overlook, the presentation detailed a request that sufficient room be created for an automobile turnaround which would allow driver's and visitors to the proposed overlook to enter the interpretative trail through Auxier and Ford's Gap and then exit the trail through the area they had previously entered.

Also, the association has asked that funding be provided for a series of signs to be installed along the trail.

The first sign, according to the proposal, would give visitors a brief narrative of the life of Jenny Wiley and would be installed at the beginning of the trail. A second sign would be situated at a mid-point along the trail and would give a history surrounding the establishment of Harman's Station and the Blockhouse Bottom settlement. Finally, a third sign, proposed for installation at the point overlooking Harman's Station. would tell the story of the captivity and escape of Jenny Wiley.

"We understand the reason the road was closed," Daniels said. "But one of the few places she (Jenny Wiley) was actually at in Floyd County was at this point. We want to put the focus here.

Floyd Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson admitted during Daniels presentation that it would have done the county little good to have cleaned the area up if no one was going to see the work, but did have certain concerns.

"There's no sense in us doing the work of cleaning it up and nobody seeing it," said Thompson. "We don't have a problem with this but we couldn't let vehicles through there or would start dumping are teaching and students are learning aligns with the core content measured by the tests.

But Watson said the responsibility for raising test scores does not end with the curriculum coordinators, or even with the school district. Everyone plays a part, she said.

"We, as a community, need to accept that education is an investment in our children's future," Watson said. "We, as parents, need to encourage reading. We need to be more a part of our children's education."

Reading appears to be critical, Watson said, and that is borne out by looking at how high school students scored on the CTBS.

While ninth-graders have shown little movement on the math portion of the test over the past five years, performance on reading-related sections has fallen each year.

On the reading portion of the test, which measures reading comprehension, scores for freshmen have dropped from the 48th percentile in 1997, to the 41st in 2001

On the language section, which measures students' grasp while, have not shown much movement in either direction. with reading scores varying only by three points, language scores by four points and math scores by five points over the past five years.

Watson said that part of high school students' problems in reading-related areas of the test boils down to a decline in reading as a recreational activity.

"Students do not read for enjoyment," Watson said. "I would like to see schools develop reading lists of books it would be expected students had read by the time they graduate high school."

Other actions taken by the school system in the hope of improving test scores include:

Conducting scholastic audits of every Floyd County school.

Highly-skilled educators placed at South Floyd Middle School, Allen Central Middle School and Stumbo Elementary.

One-on-one reviews of test data with school principals.

Still, Watson says that a key step in improving test scores has little to do with allocating money or changing policy. Instead, it requires a conscious decision to set higher expectations, then give students the tools they need to meet those goals.

"Making the decision to improve is the first step," Watson said. "We're going to improve."

they again."

The association stressed within their proposal that the idea was a means of "potentially laying the groundwork" for funding a replica of Harman's Station, stating they were aware that the city of Prestonsburg had made reference to the existence of the Jenny Wiley Trail on the site of the StoneCrest golf course.

In addition to the idea of 'groundwork" being established, the association also said the proposal could be tool for unifying all portions of the Jenny Wiley Trail as a "logical" addition to the County Music Highway Work Plan being developed by the Southern and Eastern Kentucky Tourism Development Association.

"We're not asking that the road be opened, only that the gate be moved back," said Daniels. "It's beautiful back there and we would like to capitalize on that if we could."

Thompson concluded the presentation by assuring Daniels that fiscal court commissioner Gerald Derossett and Deputy Judge-Executive Brett Davis would go at the request of the association and at any time which would be convenient to view the area and make a decision concerning the proposal after those initial observations could be made.

Now that we're free to talk

ur View

On August 9, this newspaper was served with a court order barring us from reporting - or even talking - about a criminal case involving Michala Walters, a mentally-ill young lady who faces arson charges stemming from an incident at Prestonsburg Community College.

Needless to say, we were, in no certain order, shocked, outraged, puzzled and angered by that decision.

Yesterday, District Judge Eric Hall, who originally signed the order, lifted it, freeing us once again to do what we are paid to do - report the news and share our opinions about it.

In between those two dates, we had been preparing a challenge to the order, and we were determined to pursue that challenge as long as it took, if that meant a trip to the Supreme Court.

Had we been allowed to write this editorial two weeks ago when the order was first given to us, it very likely would have been emotionally charged and would have reflected our anger. But calmer heads have prevailed, and we will maintain our dignity while we express our indignation.

Quite simply, the order was wrong, no matter how you wish to look at it. It was blatantly unconstitutional, depriving this paper and its readers of their most basic rights.

Freedom of the press is not just a freedom for the press. Because the First Amendment guarantees our right to print the news, by extension it also gives our readers the right to know what is happening in their communities. This, above all else, is why we were prepared to fight the order, no matter what the cost or inconvenience.

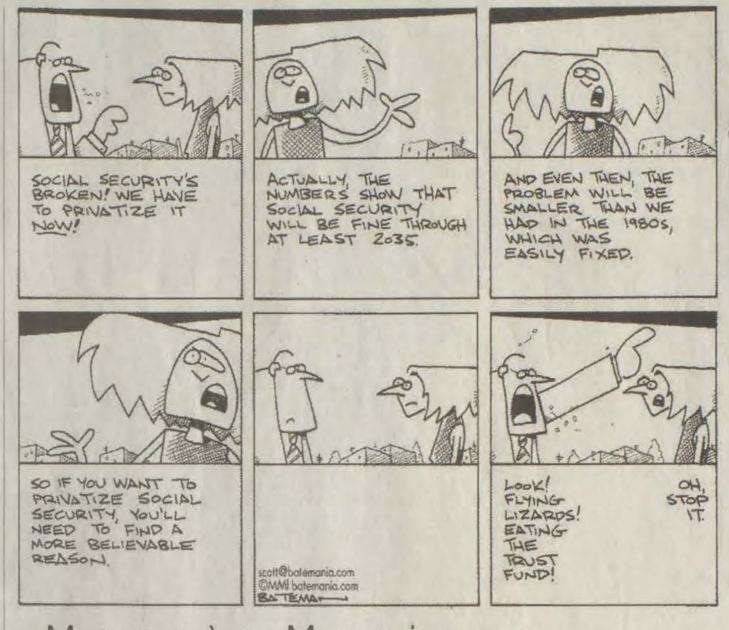

It does not help matters much that we were completely blindsided by the order. No one told us that this action was being considered, and we were not invited to object to it. Instead, one of our reporters was merely handed a copy of the order while she was in court covering another case.

In addition, the order itself was wholly overbroad, prohibiting us from "divulging or printing any information on any matters related to the ... case or the defendant." With such sweeping language, we could not even write about the gag order without running the risk of spending a few nights or a few months in jail.

All of these facts are covered in any Political Science 101 class on any college campus in the country, if not in every high school civics course. For that reason, we cannot understand how a group of lawyers, who surely were forced to study the Constitution to a greater degree than the rest of us, came to the conclusion that this order could possibly be the answer to any objections they may have had.

That being said, we have also had a chance to learn why the order came about. Judge Hall, while admitting in hindsight that he "may have overstepped" his bounds in making the ruling, said he did it out of concern for the defendant's welfare.

We certainly understand the judge's concern. In fact, we find it

When churches lose faith

God asked us to give goodwill toward men, not goodwill toward men while hoping to receive recognition.

God asked us to do onto others as we would have them do unto us, not do well unto others as long as someone is standing there to take a picture. It thrills my heart to hear stories about people who care enough to help others, but I get discouraged when I see some use their good deeds to gain a glimmer of publicity or puffery For the churches who get upset when their good works aren't publicized, I have only one question. Whatever happened to serving the Lord with a humble heart? A humble heart doesn't want or need recognition. A humble servant knows their good works will receive ample recognition from their Father. It isn't something that's really needed here in this world. I have spent many months searching for a home church and have been quite unlucky in my venture because I'm not really sure about some of the "fruits" that I see growing on the trees.

(God told us to test the fruits, remember?)

I listen to many churches pastoring on the local television stations or the radio, and I've visited a few for a second glance.

In many cases, people who believe he's more than just a preacher. To them, he's a teacher of God's word.

I am not trying to be judgmental about what's wrong and what's not in churches today. I do, however, believe that a lot of people are being led astray in the one place they feel safe - their home church. Many of the churches I've seen and visited are barely skimming the surface of God's true teaching, and most of the time, missing the entire point altogether. I am not attacking any denomination. It isn't my job to do that. The only point I'm trying to make is that if you, as a church, have to work extra hard to gain recognition or donations for your services, then maybe you're not teaching exactly the way God needs you to be. If you were teaching correctly, wouldn't God make sure you are properly blessed? Don't you think He'd help you mature into what He needs you to be? It's not about getting recognized for the help you give the world. It's about having faith enough to know He's gonna take care of you.

admirable that justice can be blind without being heartless. It is also refreshing to hear a public official say that he may have made a mistake.

Still, the road to hell is paved with good intentions, and that certainly proved to be the case in this instance. In showing concern for one person, Hall's order jeopardized all Floyd Countians' confidence in a government that is open and democratic, and a press that is free to report the facts.

With that being said, it is time for us to move forward and to leave this experience in the past as a lesson learned. But we only do so with the warning that any future attempt by anyone to muzzle the voice of this newspaper will be fought vigorously in defense of the rights of ourselves. and our readers.

The first annual golf scramble to benefit underprivileged boys and girls attending the Kentucky Sheriff's Boys and Girls Ranch was held on Monday, July 9, and hosted by Floyd County Sheriff John K. Blackburn at the StoneCrest Golf Course. It was a huge success!

MARYMUSIC

We are very thankful to Sheriff Blackburn and his staff, who worked diligently to see that this tournament was successful and record-setting all the way around!

The camping program we provide for underprivileged children throughout Kentucky helps young people and changes their lives for the better. The ranch now puts on about 20 golf tournaments throughout Kentucky to help raise the needed funds to continue providing a week of camp, free of charge, to these most deserving children.

This tournament raised over $8,000 to benefit the camp. Sheriff Blackburn, his wife, Pam, and Mickey, Mary, Jena and Lesa got the word out 🕷 about our tournament to benefit needy children. We thank all involved in this record-setting event and getting the job done.

Each player received a 12pack cooler, a towel and a hat from from ranch staff. A special note of thanks to all of the golfers, those donating gifts and prizes and sponsoring holes - you are each appreciated!

We say thank you for an outstanding job and we look forward to next year's tournament and hope everyone will join us.

Kentucky Career Choice Council donates classroom equipment to KCTCS

Career Choice Council (KCCCC) is partnering with the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) to enhance instruction for students in carpentry programs in KCTCS colleges.

KCCCC, which comprises construction industry organizations, has donated Construction Master Pro calculators and TrimJoist stress analysis software kits to each of 13 KCTCS colleges.

The calculators, manufactured by Calculated Industries, simplify calculations such as dimensional math (roof and stair parts), metric system conversions, pitches and angles, and board-feet lumber estimates. They are used by builders, general contractors, construction foremen or superintendents, carpenters, framing contractors, concrete/foundation contractors and other construction professionals.

The stress analysis software, donated and manufactured by TrimJoist, helps determine the > Robert Riggs of Riggs Sales Service, a member of the Home Builders Association of Kentucky (HBAK), worked in conjunction with Calculated Industries and TrimJoist to provide the donations, which are valued at $2,200.

> The items will be donated to the following KCTCS technical colleges: Ashland, Bowling Green, Central Kentucky (Lexington), Elizabethtown, Hazard, Jefferson, Laurel, Madisonville, Mayo, Northern Kentucky, Owensboro, Rowan and West Kentucky (Paducah).

The carpentry programs in the colleges prepare students for employment in the construction of houses and commercial structures. This program includes blueprint reading, site layout, foundation work, rough framing, roofing, and finishing work skills. Cost estimation and preparation of materials lists, as well as practical experiences in types of floor trusses and beams the shop and on-site, are includ-

"This generous donation will assist in ensuring the relevance of instruction in our carpentry programs," said Michael B. McCall, president of KCTCS. "Such partnerships with business and industry are a key to the success of KCTCS."

Murray Riffee, a member of HBAK and chairman of the KCCCC, said, "This is the first time that industry has made this type of donation, but it definitely won't be the last. KCCCC will continue to help KCTCS colleges and students succeed by providing the best tools and equipment possible."

Cave Run Storytelling Festival features some of America's favorite tellers

instant messaging and other high-tech gadgetry are enough to jangle your nerves and frazzle your hair, then the peace and tranquility of Cave Run Lake is the setting for a "quick fix" of those distractions. It's there at the Twin Knobs recreation area that you will find the third annual Cave Run Storytelling Festival on September 28-29.

Located eight miles west of Morehead, this idyllic environment provides the atmosphere for you to be transported in story and song to other times and places. The festival is a joint effort of the Cave Run Storytelling Committee, the Morehead Tourism Commission and the Daniel Boone National Forest. Stories are told in large tents overlooking the lake.

Eight of America's favorite storytellers come together to share captivating tales which evoke emotions from laughter to tears, Donald Davis, Elizabeth Ellis, Diane Ferlatte. Bill Jones, Kala Jo-Jo, Bill Lepp, Connie Reagan-Blake and Tom Weakley need no introduction to the storytelling community, and are sure to please those attending the festival for the first time. From California to Vermont, these July 30 through August 3. Hale tellers come to us having

Red Cross helps eastern Kentucky families recover

Flooding caused two deaths and extensive damage to over 300 homes in the eastern Kentucky area. Families from all over the five county area have been left to pick up the pieces of their shattered lives. Red Cross workers are helping to put their lives back together by delivering meals and clean-up and comfort kits to these families. Workers have also met with the families to provide vouchers for food, new clothing and necessary household furnishings.

Professional mental health workers worked alongside the Red Cross to provide counseling to help family members cope with the trauma of this devastating disaster.

You Can Help - by making a contribution.

At this time, Red Cross relief efforts in eastern Kentucky have exceeded $230,000. All Red Cross assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people.

To help the victims of this and other disasters, contribute to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by calling 1-800-HELP NOW or the Big Sandy Area Chapter 606-886-8330.

Contributions may be sent to the American Red Cross, 240 Francis Court, Prestonsburg, KY 41653 or P.O. Box 37243, Washington, DC 20013.

Thank you for your generosity - together, we can save a life.

wonders & miracles, I have seen firsthand what happens to people when they come in contact with the living Christ. When people hear that God's power is flowing in manifestation in our services, they will follow us in the same way they followed Jesus and His disciples. This is how we are going to see our cities come to God! This is the reason why I am committed School of Signs, Wonders & Miracles Through the Believer! When someone is sick and you are able to get them healed, it is not hard to get them saved. When someone has been tormented by evil spirits or addicted to drugs and you are able to-set them free - they want to make Jusus the Lord of their lives! This is the Gospel in action! This what Jesus told us to do! This is the NEXT MOVE OF GOD!" -Rev. Angelo Mitropoulos

Gas prices down across U.S., up in Kentucky and Lexington, says AAA

Gas prices continue to drop around the U.S., according to AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky. Prices finally stabilized during late July and August in reaction to slow economic growth. and an increase in gasoline inventories, AAA said.

The average price for a gallon of unleaded gas across the nation is now $1.40, down four cents from a month ago.

The highest average prices can be found in Hawaii, at $1.95; Alaska, at $1.72; and California, at $1.62 per gallon. The cheapest prices are in the South, with South Carolina and Georgia leading the way at $1.23 per gallon, followed by Louisiana at $1.27.

In Kentucky, average prices have risen slightly after a freefall in June and July.

The average price across the state is $1.34, up five cents in the past month. Still, Kentucky has the 11th cheapest gas prices in the U.S. this week.

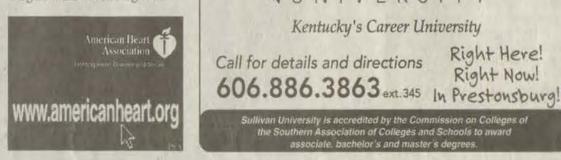

"Kentucky has more than held its own on gas prices this summer," said Dan Dickson, public relations manager for AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky.

"Drivers in the state needed a break after seeing record high prices here in the late spring."

A check of average prices this month in select Kentucky cities finds Lexington with an average of $1.35, up 11 cents: Louisville at $1.40, up seven cents. Owensboro at $1.30, up 11 cents and Ashland at $1.39, and Covington at $1.36, both the same as last month.

Crude oil prices have started to move higher lately, and this could cause somewhat higher gasoline prices as the summer driving season winds down:

Heritage Days 2001 theme announced celebration of 90 years of Harlan County Coal Heritage Days 2001-Celebrating the 90th anniversary of the first car of coal shipped out of Harlan County in 1911, A billion tons shipped.

This is the theme announced recently by the Harlan Tourist and Convention Commission for the annual Labor Day blast held in Harlan.

"This is an ideal way to pay tribute, and honor an industry that has been so vital to the Harlan County economy," said, Karen Phillips, executive director of the Harlan Tourist and Convention Commission. "There are several special tributes and activities planned throughout the festival to compliment this year's theme, including historical displays, contests and more.

Heritage Days, now in its fourth year, has become one of the region's premiere festivals, drawing participants and patrons from throughout the Commonwealth and many other states.

Mayor Danny Howard said the festival actually began after the Harlan Tourist and Convention Commission fielded many requests and complaints concerning the school reunions held Labor Day weekend each year, "We heard over, and over that the schools were attracting alumni from across the country for the reunions, but they needed help in scheduling activities. The festival certainly helps meet this need. In fact, this year, we have one class that will utilize the festival for its reunion.

And as important to entertaining the visitors, Howard said the commission members feel it is extremely important to provide recreation activities and entertainment to the residents of the county. "We provide them with a great opportunity to stay at home on Labor Day, and avoid costly travel. Most of our events and activities are free, something we certainly are proud to offer."

Howard said he is confident the festival offers something for everyone, based on the variety of activities scheduled.

an office on the third floor of the Floyd County Courthouse. He is there to assist veterans and their dependents in filing for state and federal benefits. This service is free and is provided by the commonwealth. Contact him at 606/886-7920. If there is no answer, leave a message and he will return your call.

Group sets meeting The Ups of Down Syndrome support group now has a permanent meeting place and time. The group will meet the first Sunday of every month from 2-4 p.m., at the Pikeville YMCA, beside Pikeville Independent School, Call 606/377-6142 or 478-5099 for more information.

Several new activities will join this year's lineup which is also loaded with traditional and popular events from previous years.

The intentionally famous Scheer's Lumberjack Shows will return this year. Extremely popular two years ago, the lumberjacks offer a program and competition that is fascinating to young and old. Shows are slated for 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5 p.m., on Friday, August 31, and at 11 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m., on Saturday, September 1.

"The lumber industry plays a big role in the local economy today, and this will give local residents a glimpse into the history and skill of this profession as well," said Phillips.

Saturday night has attracted extremely large crowds since the additon of the fireworks show. This year, patrons will again be treated to music, laser lights and Thunder in The Mountains.

One of the festival's kick off events, the Sanction B Dog Show, will be held on August 26, at 2 p.m., at Huff Park in Newspapers in the classroom enhance student learning

Newspapers in Education (NIE) is a program that strives toward a goal of "excellence in education" by working through a partnership with schools, community and local newspapers. Each week, newspapers are delivered to local schools, accompanied by question and answer worksheets that help to facilitate classroom learning. These newspapers are incorporated into daily classroom activities in not only language arts programs, but civics, history, political science, mathematics, and science as well. The possibilities of incorporating newspapers into the classroom are endless. Additionally, students learn about one of our country's most basic and fundamental rights - the right of a free press and freedom of speech. Newspapers provide the best available forum for our country's citizens to express their opinions about the community and the world in which we live. As NIE coordinator, I would like to solicit. your help in ensuring that this program remains active in our county schools. Sponsorship donations are needed and greatly appreciated by our schools' teachers and students. Please contact Kathy Prater at P.O. Box 390, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, or telephone at 886-8506, or e-mail to: features@floydcountytimes.com to inquire about sponsorship of the NIE program in our area schools.

Carter Funeral Home of Association, has been responsible for the planting of 500 trees on public lands in Kentucky as living memorials to honor the deceased.

This program is part of a large endeavor, in cooperation with the other conservation efforts in Kentucky, to restore the landscape and our environment with the eternal beauty of living trees. The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by the Carter Funeral Home. Once the Boy Scout Council have planted the tree, the designated relatives and friends will be sent an official certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history forever.

This living memorial is an example of the new innovative approach being taken by the funeral directors profession as a whole, and by James J. Carter II, of the Carter Funeral Home in particular, to increasingly contribute to their community and the environment.

State agricultural development board invests $400,000 to expand the Kentucky Center for Cooperative Development

The Kentucky Agricultural and accounting expertise, and Development Board voted today to approve a two-year $400,000 grant request submitted by the Kentucky Center for Cooperative Development. The grant will allow the KCCD to expand their ablity to offer technical assistance to groups of producers wishing to form new farmer owned cooperatives and provide ongoing training and education for existing cooperative boards and managers.

The scope of services offered by the KCCD currently includes cooperative structure, connecting farmers with specialized legal training for both cooperative bord members and managers of cooperatives.

'Agricultural Cooperatives are an important part of the landscape in Kentucky, and they're likely to become even more numerous in the coming years. These cooperatives, both existing and new, need technical support to guide them through the establishment of their organizations, to offer continuing education to their boards of directors, and to help grow and create opportunities for more farmers," said Governor Patton. "The Kentucky for Center Development will be the onestop shop our farmers need to establish profitable, sustainable cooperative ventures in whatever agricultural endeavor our producers choose to participate.

The decision to fund the KCCD is consistent with the Guiding Principles the Agricultural Development Board adopted in September of 2000.

One of these principles states that the Board believes that farmer-owned cooperatives will be an important vehicle to promote and sustain new and/or improved farm activity. The KCCD will help to foster that goal for agricultural development in the Commonwealth.

The KCDD will work hand in hand with the Kentucky Center for Agricultural Development and Entrepreneurship to help fledgling cooperatives secure funding for business development and feasilibility assistance, coordinating earlier investments made by the Board to foster entrepreneurial activity and Cooperative capacity building within the state's agricultural community.

The KCCD is currently overseen by an interim Board of Directors from entities that are intimately involved in the agricultural community in Kentucky. The Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative, the Center for Sustainable Systems, USDA Rural Development, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture have led the way in securing funding and housing the entity for the past several years.

The expansion of the KCCD will include locating at the Nolin Rural Electric Cooperation in Elizabethtown and will be coordinating further cooperative development efforts with the network of RECCs around the state.

The award was made as one of 72 projects approved by the Board during its meeting today. The Board approved a total of $7,248,080 in three statewide projects and $5,493,441 in 69 county level projects.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Each month, Childers and Venters Pontiac, GMC, Cadillac, and Nissan of Pikeville, disposes of 15 to 30 vehicles that are excess inventory, by means of taking these vehicles to auctions or by selling wholesale. Starting this month, we are going to offer these vehicles to the public at wholesale prices before we attempt to dispose of them at auction. This will be done over each month. The first sale will be this week, August 22, to August 25. Most of the vehicles are fully reconditioned, and most have some type of warranty. Some will be sold for as low as $299.00. The reduced price will be marked clearly on each vehicle included in this wholesale disposal sale.

State agricultural development board invests in research to prevent repeat of foal loss crisis

The Kentucky Agricultural the single largest source of cash Development Board voted today to approve a $56,400 grant request submitted by the Governor's Task Force on Mare Reproductive Loss Syndrome. The grant will provide half the cost of a full-scale epidemiological investigation to be conducted by a team of equine epidemiologists, biostatisticians, and toxicologists, in conjunction with the Kentucky Livestock Diseases Diagnostic Center and the Kentucky Equine Practitioners Association. The Grayson-Jockey Club Foundation will contribute the other half of the cost to complete the study. The objectives of the proposed research are three-fold: 1) to characterize the clinical disorders that have occurred in epidemic proportions during the spring of 2001, among horses and foals in Kentucky; 2) to identify predisposing or causal factors associated with the outbreak; and, 3) to formulate a plan for preparation, control, and prevention. Kentucky's horse industry is receipts in the Commonwealth's entire agricultural economy, accounting for $1.04 billion in 2000. This grant represents an investment to protect this important component of the state's agricultural economy and cultural heritage as the "Horse Capitol of the World." The Governor's Task Force on Mare Reproductive Loss Syndrome has drawn from the mass of equine veterinary expertise the Commonwealth has to offer, in order to prevent recurrence of the epidemic that affected hundreds of foals in 2001. "We're doing all we can to determine the cause of this devastating syndrome." sad Governor Paul Patton. "It's imperative that the value and integrity of Kentucky's signature industry be protected and enhanced."

This month's offering includes: a '97 Ford Taurus, a '98 Toyota Tacoma 4x4 Pickup, a '98 Buick LeSabre Custom, a '96 Jeep Grand Cherokee, a 2001 GMC Yukon Denali, a 2001 GMC Jimmy, (4) '98 Chevy S-10 Pickups, a '97 Cadillac DeVille, a '96 Chevy Cavalier, a 2000 Toyota Pickup, a '98 GMC Sonoma Pickup, a 2000 Chevy Cavalier, a 2000 Ford Mustang, a '96 Mercury Sable, (2) 2000 Grand Am's, a '91 Suzuki Samurai, a '88 Oldsmobile Station Wagon, a '92 Toyota Tercel, a '92 Ford Ranger, a '97 Ford Aerostar Van, a '89 Chevy Corsica

It's a win-win situation. The customer wins by buying front line vehicles at wholesale prices. The company wins by not having to pay auction sale fees and transportation costs. Oliver Williamson General Sales Manager

Our goal is to sell every single one of these vehicles this week. If you want to buy a vehicle at wholesale, stop by our lot. We're located 5.5 miles North of Pikeville on U.S. 23. Our phone number is (606) 437–4005.

Bell County wins easy over E. Jessamine, 42-6

Hilton's Bell County travels to Hazard Saturday for game with Prestonsburg

> by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

Dudley Hilton has returned to Bell County. Just ask the East Jessamine Jaguars, Better downs, Roher continued, sayyet, ask their coach. He knows. He knows, quite well.

East Jessamine Coach Paul Roher knows his team is young. He found that out quick Friday night as the Bell County Bobcats got up early and nearly scored a shutout win.

Paul Roher, coach of the Jaguars, said they made too many mistakes, including two botched kickoff returns in the first quarter and one fumble in the second that the Bobcats converted into three touching, "his team (East Jessamine) is young and, evidently, has some growing up to do."

Sophomoric is how the Jaguars' coach described their play. East Jessamine set a state record last year for team rushing, with 408 yards a game, but Bell County held the Jag ground attack to just 115 yards on 45 carries. Roher said East Jessamine had hoped to use its speed, but didn't get he blocking it needed.

East Jessamine completed

just 2-of-10 passes for 33 yards, while the Bobcats completed two-of-three passes for 59 yards and two touchdowns.

Willis can also air it out, as demonstrated Friday night. Willis hit receiver Chris Jervis for a touchdown pass early in the second quarter. An Aaron Neeley PAT kick made it a 21-0 game, It was a Nicholas Jamerson interception that made the third Prestonsburg score possible.

Fannin scored just before the end of the half and Neeley hit the extra point kick to make it a 28-0 difference in Prestonsburg's favor at the half.

"We went into the half feeling pretty good," added DeRossett.

Sheldon Clark's first score of the game came on the opening offensive series of the third quarter. Slone scored his second touchdown and his team's last of the game to make it 34-6. Prestonsburg senior Chris Spriggs intercepted a Sheldon Clark pass on the game's final play.

For Allen Central head football coach Robert Mayton, also in his first year at the helm of a high school football program, it was his first win.

The host Rebels went up 6-0 on a 21-yard James Prater touchdown run, early in the first quarter. Allen Central then attempted a two-point conversion run that failed. Prater scored again in the first quarter on a 50-yard scamper to make it a 12-0 game. Junior Dustin Hammonds added a two-point conversion run to make it a 14-0 game.

Hammonds returned a punt 70 yards for a score and added a twopoint conversion to make it a 22-0 Allen Central lead when the first quarter came to an end.

Senior fullback D.J. Hoover had a one-yard run followed by a conversion run by quarterback Alex Patton to make it 30-0 game at the half.

Half Mountain Speedway completes first races

by JAMES TRIMBLE HMS TRACK WRITER

After two consecutive rainouts, Half Mountain Speedway in Royalton finally got the inaugural race in. In front of a hills side full of fans and over 70 racecars the first race had all the makings of a good building block for bigger and better things for the Speedway.

All went as scheduled for the beginning of the race with drivers meeting at 6:30 p.m. hot laps at 7 p.m. with qualifying immediately after.

Qualifying for the Late Models, Modified, and Super Bombers was the first order of business with the No.1 of Eddie Carrier Jr. coming out and setting the quickest lap of the night of the 12 entries with a lap of 17.02 seconds at a speed of over 84 miles per hour.

Modified top qualifier was the 14 of Jim Branham with a lap of 19.39 seconds at a speed of over 74 Mile per hour.

Super Bomber fast time was set by the 19 of Jamie Slone with a time of 20.45 at a speed of over 70 miles per hour.

over two Late Model heat races were staged and the real racing began. In heat one the 10 of Paul Harris took the lead from the out side front row and held on to the lead for the first six laps then the 1 of Eddie Carrier Jr. was able to fight by Harris to take the lead and lead the rest of the way and post the win and pole for the feature. Harris and the 39 of Henry Hornsby really had a good battle for second but at the checkers Harris was able to hold Hornsby off to finish second.

After the qualification was

Heat two victory went to the 28 of Chucky May who lead flag to flag with the 17 of Shannon Thornsberry and the 33 of Arron Hatton coming in second and third

The first of three modified heat races rolled out next with the 14 of Jim Branham on the pole with the 11 of Jeff Jones along side. At the green Branham fought side by side with Jones for the lead and lead the first lap but Jones fought back and took the lead on lap two and would lead the next seven laps until the white flag lap when Branham got back to the point and would hold off ture the victory. Jones to take the win.

Heat two for the Modified had the 0 of Harry Branham and the 39 of Todd Robinson on the front row Robinson took the lead on the start and never gave it up.

Heat three had the 13w of David Webb and the 10c of Gary Combs on the front row. On the start Webb jumped to the front but the 7J of Jerry Rutherford moved from his third starting position to the point to lead laps two and three on lap four the 10c of Gary Combs took the lead and held off the field to take the win.

Super Bomber heat was next with the 19 of Jamie Slone and the 43 of Kevin Hall is the way they started the heat and the 19 of Jamie Slone and the 43 of Kevin Hall is the way they finish the heat.

The Quick Six race was next this week it was for the Late Models paying the winner $200 for a six lap dash to the checkers the difference with this race is the top six cars was inverted so that put the fast qualifier in the sixth position and the sixth qualifier on the pole for the dash. On the start the 39 of Henry Hornsby jumped to the early lead with the 10 of Paul Harris on pursuit but Hornsby was able to hold off the challenge and lead flag to flag to pick up the victory and $200.

The Bomber division heat was next the Bomber, Road Hog, and the Four-Cylinder division each drew for their heat race starting positions. In the Bomber heat the 2x of Tandy Spurlock drew the lowest number and the 50 of Bucky Collins was outside front row with the second lowest draw on the initial start of the heat a big pile up in turn one and two took out half the field of Bombers leaving only four cars to run the race of the cars that was left the 17 of Buck Lemaster went on to cap-

The modified feature rolled out next with the 14 of Jim Branham and the 39 of Todd Robinson on the front row on the initial start Branham spun out sending him to the tail but once the field was realigned and the races got under way they was plenty of action which lead to a lot of cautions

Super Bombers feature had the 19 of Jamie Slone and the 43 of Kevin Hall on the front row Slone pulled out to the early lead with Hall in tow but only a hand full of laps remaining Hall went to the pits with engine trouble moving the 24H of Michael Paul Howard to the runner up position as the laps wound down Slone remained in control and went on to win the feature with 24H of Howard coming in second, third was the 660 of JR Hunley, fourth was 46 of Dennis DeBoard, and fifth

The one offensive play the Prestonsburg defense struggled with defending, or stopping, was the counter.

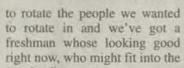

"The counter killed us," said DeRossett. "That was the one play that our defense really struggled against."

The officiating crew for Friday night's game cited the Blackcats for several penalties. Is the Prestonsburg head coach concerned with the number of penalties this early in the season?

"We're really aggressive and when you play aggressive, you're going to get called for some penalties." explained DeRossett.

UK football team holds first scrimmage without Caudill

Versatile Canadian signs to play football for Morriss' Wildcats

TIMES STAFF REPORT

The University of Kentucky football team held a scrimmage Saturday featuring the firstteam offense and defense against their second-team counterparts. The first-team offense moved the ball very well. including a 70-yard touchdown pass from sophomore quarterback Jared Lorenzen to senior wide receiver Anthony Kelly on the first play of the scrimmage. The second-team offense, led by redshirt freshman Shane Boyd, had some good moments against the first-team defense. The most impressive play came when Boyd scrambled. then rifled an eight-yard touchdown pass to freshman tight end Jeremiah Drobney.

"My gut feeling is that both quarterbacks had good days. although you have to look at the film to know for sure," Coach Guy Morriss said. "Shane Boyd's athleticism helped him make some plays. I think both of them performed well."

An emphasis for the coming season is to improve the running game and there were good signs in that area. Sophomore

Chad Scott had several good to help the defense with tackruns, including a 29-yard play on his first carry, Junior Artose Pinner ran with the first and second teams and showed his usual powerful style.

"Artose is a good inside runner." Morriss said. "He can be a guy who can grind it out in short-yardage and goal-line situations, but he's also faster than most folks realize. Not many people can catch him from behind."

Morriss also gave credit to the offensive line. Four of the starting linemen have missed practices because of injuries, but all of them played today with the exception of senior left. tackle Matt Brown, who is expected to return next week.

"There are some players we've held out of some practices and that's hurt our continuity, but the offensive line is starting to come together," Morriss noted. "I felt really good about how we were able to move the ball in the red zone.

The Wildcats return to the practice field Saturday at 3 p.m., completing six consecutive days of two-a-day practices. Sunday will be a day off. Monday and Tuesday are twoa-days and school starts on Wednesday.

"We probably need to have one more scrimmage," Morriss said. We'll sit down as a staff and talk about it. If we have another scrimmage, we'll probably do it early next week. We need to put them in a situation ling as we prepare to play Louisville."

Starting defensive tackle Jeremy Caudill sat out the scrimmage, nursing a back injury.

Kentucky signs Fontaine

Raymond Fontaine, a versatile athlete from Ottawa, Ontario, has signed to play with the Wildcats.

The 6-4, 200-pound Fontaine played defensive end, linebacker, defensive back, and wide receiver for his club team in Ottawa. He had his first practice with the Wildcats on Saturday and is being tried initially at defensive end.

"Raymond is a player that Coach Nelson (assistant coach Mark Nelson) found through his connections in Canada," Morriss said. "He has good size and speed. The fact that he's played end, linebacker, defensive back, and wide receiver shows his athletic ability."

"I heard about Raymond through Coach Dan Murphy, who played for Edmonton (of the Canadian Football League) when I coached there," Nelson said. "Coach Murphy told me that Raymond is a great athlete and good football player. I saw him at a combine in Montreal. He's a good-looking player who can run."

Bio: Raymond Fontaine, Defensive End. 6-4, 200, Fr-HS, Ottawa, Ontario (Sir Robert Borden HS) - Good allaround athlete ... Tug Valley Bass Anglers hold tourney at Dewey Lake

TIMES STAFF REPORT

On Saturday night, August 4, the Tug Valley Bass Anglers held its sixth tournament of the season and its last night event at Dewey Lake, Prestonsburg. A total of 16 boats competed in the event.

The weather for this night tournament was just right. The temperature was in the mid 80's at launch time with clear skies and a light breeze. Temperatures at night were warm, at about 70 degrees with some fog.

Because of a storm system and extremely heavy rains the night before the lake was about five feet above summer pool with a water temperature in the mid 80s. The water was mainly clear at the dam, but stained water had made its way down river to around Big Branch by morning. This kept all the fishermen contained in one small area of the lake, which made it crowded at times.

The fishing for this event was pretty good considering the conditions. The fish came shallow and stayed up most all night. Even though keepers were not plentiful the club weighed in 11 legal fish for 28.18 pounds.

Most of the bass were caught shallow on the main lake and back in shallow

TIMES STAFF REPORT

Marshall coaches felt they needed to end two-a-days with a solid workout. And that's just what they did.

The Marshall coaching staff put the Thundering Herd through a long scrimmage Saturday afternoon at Marshall University Stadium to officially bring two-a-days to an end.

The teams worked on a multitude of situations during the 2 1/2 hour session that drew several hundred loval Herd supporters despite occasional drizzle

"I thought we showed a lot of improvement over our scrimmage," Wednesday Marshall coach Bob Pruett said. "Our conditioning held up well and we didn't get anyone injured. That is always a concern with a full scrimmage like this.'

The coaches worked the first 45 minutes of the session on a wide variety of kicking game situations - everything from punting, kickoffs, onside kicks, PAT/field goals to safety kicks.

The next two hours saw the first and second units on both offense and defense alternating against each other.

Unofficial stats on the day showed that the Herd's first defense was very stingy against both the run and the pass.

and Duran Smith both had big days, as did defensive ends Ralph Street and Kelvin Smith.

Owens was credited with four touch sacks and a pass breakup while During Smith had a pair of big tackles, a PBU and an interception that he returned 104 yards for a touchdown. Street also had a pair of sacks and a tackle for loss while Kelvin Smith had a TFL and a PBU.

The Herd's first two quarterbacks both got plenty of work in the scrimmage. Junior starter Byron Leftwich completed 22 of 32 passes with one interception for 248 yards and a pair of scores.

Redshirt freshman backup Stan Hill connected on 20 of 32 throws for 116 yards and one score. Third teamer Andrew English completed five of 11 throws with one interception for 28 yards.

The ground game was somewhat limited in the workout, with sophomore Franklin Wallace leading the way with 12 carries for 48 yards and a score. He was also on the receiving end of a 60-yard touchdown pass from Leftwich late in the session.

The leading receiver on the day was junior Denero Marriott with seven catches for 67 yards and a pair of scores. Sophomore Darius Watts had Linebackers Michael Owens four catches for 55 yards and job. He hit on two of three field redshirt freshman Josh Davis goal attempts and all three of made six catches for 51 yards. his PAT kicks. Head also

Poison Oak

by CLYDE PACK The cure is in the mail

F ve often complained, via this very column, about all the junk mail I get. Most of the time I trash such unsolicited materials before I even leave the post office. However, the other day, for some reason, I carried this little catalog back to the office, and even browsed through it. I'm glad I did, because it was very enlightening.

It was really just one big ad for an encyclopedia-like volume of natural cures: "An overview of today's safest, most powerful natural remedies from M.D.s and "alternative healers," the bright letters proclaimed.

I suspect my name was selected as a recipient for this particular ad, because I'd previously ordered something through the mail and every company that desires to do so, now knows my age, occupation, Wilma's name, the number of children and grandchildren we have, our favorite fast food, and whether or not we still have our appendix. Then again, I could have received it, because for more than a dozen years I've been a collector, of sorts, of old-time cures, most of which are based on natural ingredients such as those in this pamphlet.

Anyway, I found it interesting, because some of the cures it discussed gave scientific reasons why many of the old-time cures actually work.

Although I'm certain the lady who sent me a card stating that eating raw onions was a good cure for asthma never really considered an "alternative healer," I now find that her suggestion really works. According to information in this catalog, onion juice contains compounds that mysteriously relax the bronchial muscles and prevents spasms.

Another reader suggested that a dose of vinegar mixed with honey is good for leg cramps. Well, according to this little catalog, it's true. It seems that vinegar is high in potassium, and leg cramps are often caused by low potassium levels. The honey obviously makes the vinegar more palatable. And did you know that cooked cabbage really is good for ulcers? Apparently, cabbage contains a lot of glutamine, an amino acid that has healing properties. I also learned that granulated sugar is great for open wounds and skin ulcerations, because it helps kill bacteria and speeds healing. And guess what? Cranberry juice is a good cure for urinary tract infections, because it helps prevent bacteria from anchoring to the bladder walls. One of my favorite cures, though, is to make a paste with water and meat tenderizer for easing the pain of a bee sting. I have actually tried this and know for a fact that it works. Now, thanks to this little unsolicited piece of mail, I know why. It's simply because the venom from a bee sting is protein-based, and meat tenderizer simply breaks down protein. Unsolicted or not, at least one piece of mail has come in handy.

Confederate soldiers and southern belles adorned the front porch and balcony of the Samuel May House this past week-end. The group were dressed in period clothing and assembled together to conduct open house tours of the historic home.

Funeral attire is indicative of the clothing worn by southern women in mourning during the 1800's and early 1900's.

Samuel May (1783-1851), one of the most industrious of pioneer settlers in Floyd County's early history, donned a great many hats during his life in this valley. He was a carpenter, surveyor, contractor, ferryman, inn-keeper, farmer, justice of the peace, politician, and even, for a brief period of time near the end of his days, a gold prospector.

But perhaps most importantly, he was one of the pioneer builders of and accompanied by his wife, Michelle, newly elected president of the local chapter of the Order of Confederate Rose.

"I've always wanted to participate in this sort of activity," said Holbrook, Resource Manager of the Corps of Engineers. Dewey Dam. The Confederate organizations participate in various activities that highlight the to 1917; and Leonidas Polk May (1865-1951), County Sheriff from 1910 to 1914, was immaculate and in full dress for the occasion Lace curtains and tablecloths served as adornments reminiscent of the many romantic balls that have been held within the home's historic walls throughout its colorful past. than we are today.

According to Dr. Perry, work is still continuing on the historic site. "We just completed new walkways and city workers have gotten around to trimming some of the larger trees for us it's nice to know that the mayor hasn't forgotten us," he said.

Additionally, sites have been prepared for new outdoor lighting and an area designated as the site of a future parking lot is staked off and ready for paving.

Perry hopes that the house will soon be able to remain open on a daily basis

Floyd County, building the county's first permanent courthouse, as well as the county's first two-story brick residence - the historic Samuel May House, located atop what is still a grassy knoll in the north end of Prestonsburg.

Dr. Robert Perry, a native Nebraskan, and Floyd Countian since 1989, has dedicated much time to preserving Samuel's home and its history. He has overseen extensive renovation of the structure and commissioned many locals to rally to the cause of preserving this historical site for future generations.

In an effort to further attract attention to the home, the Friends of the Samuel May House, an organization dedicated to the continued preservation and upkeep of the home, held an open house this past week-end, extending an open invitation to all to stop and tour the home. On hand were folks dressed in Civil War period clothing, as well as Dr. Perry, who made himself handily available to answer questions and provide brief historical sketches of members of the May family, as well as others, who inhabited the house during peak periods of activity.

Guests arriving at the home this week-end were greeted with fresh lemonade and ginger cookies by tour guides. Mark R. Holbrook, Commander of the Colonel Andrew Jackson May Camp # 1897, of the local chapter of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, was dressed in full uniform memory of Confederate soldiers, their families and their way of life, such as memorial ceremonies honoring the memories of fallen soldiers and Civil War reenactment battle scenes. The organizations meet monthly at the Samuel May House.

The former home of not only Samuel May, but other prominent Floyd Countians such as Colonel Andrew Jackson May (1829-1903), one of the region's Confederate leaders during the Civil War; Beverly May Clark, (1856-1929), County Judge from 1913 were on display, as well as framed historical sketches and information regarding the May House and its earlier inhabitants. A museum display case housing jewelry and other personal items that once belonged to some of Floyd county's more colorful residents makes for an interesting stop as you tour the historic home.

One will also notice the small stairs leading to the second floor rooms and the rather low hung doorways of the home. Evidence that our ancestors were a much smaller and shorter people for guided tours. In order to accomplish this goal, funding from the city has to be appropriated to pay the salary of at least one permanent employee that would be on hand to guide tour groups through the home on a seasonal basis. In the meantime, individuals and groups wishing to tour the home may contact Dr. Perry at 886-3863 to arrange a scheduled tour.

"Floyd County's Old Kentucky Home," as the house was dubbed by Josephine Davidson Fields, who wrote an early essay on the structure, is shaping up to be a tourist stop that will undoubtedly bring much acclaim to our county in the years to come. It is well worth taking the time to investigate its history and tour its walls.

Sadly, Samuel May died many miles away from his beloved home, on an excursion west to prospect for gold. Though his son, Andrew Jackson May, buried his father near his place of death, he was unable years later to locate his father's grave, due to changes that had taken place as a result of growth in the area. As Dr. Perry writes in his book, "The Oldest House in the Valley," "Since no stone marks Samuel's grave, his real monument is his house. It's up to us to preserve it."

For more information about Friends of the Samuel May House, and how you can help preserve this historic home, contact Dr. Perry at his Prestonsburg Community College office.

Ships that pass

I was rummaging through a desk drawer a few days ago when I came across a business card for a special agent with the FBI. I wondered why I would have this card—then I remembered.

We sometimes hear stories about situations that happen as ships that pass in the night. Well, that doesn't happen just at night, but there are some strange events that bring an unexpected contact in a most unusual place. My husband and I were on a trip about four years ago, taking a different route to Tampa by way of Interstate 95. It was a beautiful afternoon and, having started early in the morning, we were near the Georgia-Florida border when we came upon a traffic jam. There were three lanes of traffic, and we were in the middle lane which left us completely surrounded by other vehicles.

Knowing there was some delay up ahead, we figured we'd soon be moving again. But after a while, people started getting out of their cars and walking around talking to each other. We were on a straight stretch and, as far as we could see both ways, there were wall to wall vehicles. After some time, word drifted back that a semi had wrecked up ahead and the road was completely blocked. It was a time to practice whatever patience we had.

The license tags of cars around us were from all different states so, of course, we would not know any of the people. But one vehicle was a rental car in the outside lane at an angle behind us, and two fellows got out seeing we had Kentucky tags.

"Where are you from in Kentucky?" one asked, and I told him, "Eastern Kentucky." When he asked me to be more specific, I said, "It's near Pikeville."

"Be more specific than that," he urged, "where near Pikeville?" I told him it was a little town he'd never heard of called Betsy Layne.

"Do you know a fellow named Freddy Bailey?" he asked, and of course we knew him. He lived in Betsy Layne. "He and our daughter graduated from high school together," I said. "He was a detective with the Kentucky State Police, and I was his postmaster for several years."

"I once worked with Freddy," he told us. "I spent some time with the KSP, working out of Post Nine in Pikeville. And I was thinking I'd seen you somewhere," he continued. "I stopped at the post office there several

State Auditor Bob Babbage has been named as a defendant in a legal dispute between a Pikeville architect and the Pike County Board of Education. The suit, filed August 15, by architect James A. Ellis, involves a monetary dispute between the architect and the Pike County Board, which apparently arose soon after a state review of school construction projects in Floyd and Pike counties...Problems continue for a former Wheelwright police chief, following the recent filing of a civil rights action against him in U.S. District Court. The case against Danny Milligan, filed by Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf, stems from a September 1990, incident. Milligan allegedly "violently assaulted" Dennis Buckley, the plaintiff, "without justification or provocation," by striking him with a blackjack, spraying mace in his eyes, and kicking him in the legs as Milligan was putting Buckley into the police cruiser...A Martin County woman was killed Monday evening, August 19, when she lost control of her car on U.S. 23, crossed the center line and struck an oncoming vehicle, state police said. The victim, Carletta Crum, 20, of Inez, was northbound on U.S. 23 at Auxier at 6:05 p.m., when her '88 Chevrolet Cavalier apparently went out of control and hit a '90 Jeep Wagoneer driven by Clarence Sheffield, 54, of Prestonsburg, according to a report from the Pikeville state police post...Thanks to a court ruling issued Monday, the Floyd County Board of Education apparently has an official board secretary, an unofficial board secretary and a secretary to the secretaries...at least temporarily. After a brief hearing last week, Johnson Circuit Judge, Stephen "Nick" Frazier ruled Monday that the appointment of assistant superintendent Gary Frazier to the post of board secretary would stand, until a challenge to Frazier's appointment was resolved in court. On the eve of the first anniversary of the last year's teachers' strike in Floyd County, fears of a repeat performance appeared to have been calmed at Monday's meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education. Although no salary increase was approved by the board, a joint report from the county's District Planning Committee and District Budget Committee, said funds were available to provide an across the board 13.5 percent pay hike to all employees of the Floyd County School System...A Prestonsburg woman was killed Wednesday afternoon in a two-car auto accident at Banner. According to Kentucky State Police reports, at approximately 1:30 p.m., Dessie H. Setser, 71, of Prestonsburg, was killed when her 1981 Toyota Corolla was struck at the junction of U.S. 23 and Rt. 1426 by a 1986 Trans Am driven by Dennis Osborne, 43, of Ivel. Setser was attempting to cross U.S. 23 when her car was struck...The Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center has received funding for the next three years' through the U.S. Department of Labor, according to U.S. Senator Wendell Ford. Wedding announcement son of Barry and Gall Hamilton, were united in marriage in a ceremony per-

The period from late summer and early fall in Kentucky is the very best time to seed the major cool orchardgrass, tall fescue, timothy and bluegrass.

To increase your success rate, remember these four points:

First, address soil fertility needs. Take soil samples now to determine the fertility needs and give you enough time to supply the needed nutrients. Inadequate levels of phosphorous, potassium or limestone can limit the success of late summer seedings.

Second, control competition. Late summer seedings most often fail from competition and lack of water. When you control existing vegetation with herbicides or the emerging tillage. seedlings will have access to whatever water and nutrients existing overgrazed or are present, without having to mowed pastures. Forages compete with weeds.

To maximize the success of seedlings, use a burn-down herbicide to kill annual weeds. Other herbicides can be used where labeled to kill or suppress perennials like johnsongrass.

Remember to wait two to three weeks after spraying translocated herbicides before you plant in no-till situations. This will allow time for killed weeds to dry out and for residual effects of the herbicide to decay.

Third, plant a good variety. Varieties differ greatly in yield, persistence, disease resistance and COSL. season grasses such as Expensive varieities aren't necessarily good, and the cheaper ones aren't necessarily bad.

For data on the leading performers, check the University of Kentucky forage variety tests. You can find this information at http://www.uky.edu/Agricult ure/Agronomy/files/forage.ht m or by contacting me at the Floyd County Cooperative Extension Service.

Fourth, seed at the proper time and depth. Legumes and grasses should be seeded mid-September. before Grasses are less sensitive to later seeding than legumes. The major cool season grasses will not do well if you simply broadcast them onto should be seeded no deeper than one-fourth to one-half inch.

Late summer alfalfa seedings are susceptible to sclerotinia stem and cover rot. If sclerotinia has been active in your area or farm, strongly consider waiting until next spring to seed.

Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Highlands' Auxiliary donates additional $50,000 to the Medical Center

Highlands Auxiliary, the fund raising arm of Highlands Volunteer Services, has for the second time this year made a $50,000 donation to the Medical Center. The donation was used to purchase a new Skytron Electric Operating Room(OR) table ($38,693) and four new vital signs monitors ($11,000) for the Surgical Services Department and the Post Anesthesia Care Unit. The Auxiliary raises the majority of its funds through the operation of the hospital gift shop and donates revenues back to the Medical Center.

The Skytron Electric Operating Room table is the latest in state of the art OR equipment and gives surgeons greater ease and flexibility in positioning patients during surgical procedures. The Skytron table also offers greater comfort for patients.

The four vital signs monitors will be used in Surgery and Recovery (Post Anesthesia Care Unit). They are advanced multifunctional monitors which allow temperature, pulse, pulse oxygen. and blood pressure to be taken simultaneously. The monitors offer the same high quality, state of the art function and accuracy as those purchased earlier this year by the Auxiliary for the patient care floors

Highlands Regional, like other hospitals nationwide, is dealing with continued reductions in reimbursements from Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance companies. Donations to the organization are used for upgrades in new technology for patient care. Just as the cost of one Skytron OR table was over $38,000, it is not uncommon for the cost of new medical equipment to range from $100,000 to a $1,000,000 dollars. Highlands Regional is one of a declining number of community owned and operated healthcare facilities nationwide. As such, it receives no outside support for operations or capital equipment purchases. However, being community owned and operated is an asset in that it allows the Medical Center to retain a true community perspective and added insight to meet the healthcare needs particular to people in the Big Sandy area. To help with the high cost of providing new technologies in medical equipment and assure the continued delivery of high quality patient care, Highlands relies on and appreciates all donations. As a 501 (c) (3) organization, donations to Highlands Regional Medical Center are tax deductible and are used for the sole purpose of providing improvements in heathcare services for the people in the area.

How to Choose a Bank That Suits Your Needs

(NUE) - With banks offering an increasing number of financial services at widely varying fees, choosing one to handle your particular financial needs can be overwhelming.

Here are some simple tips on how to determine what suits your banking needs:

Evaluate your financial picture. How much money, on average, can you afford to keep in your checking account each month? Are you willing to invest more money in an account to get more benefits, such as accruing interest?

Pick a particular type of account. Evaluate the benefits of each type of account and choose one that matches your financial goals. Types of bank accounts include regular interest-bearing checking, checking, joint checking, express checking, no frills checking, savings account, special accounts for seniors and students, money market accounts, and certificates of deposit. Most banks offer hours you need. Also check out where your bank's automated teller machines are located; if you use your ATM card at other locations, your bank and the ATM you are using may both charge you fees.

Consider special services that can save you time and money in the long run. By having your paychecks directly deposited, you won't have to worry about rushing to the bank before it closes to make a deposit. This also will enable you to set up automatic, electronic bill payments. Having overdraft protection can protect you from bouncing checks which will save you bouncedcheck fees and give you peace of mind. And using a debit card - which operates like a cash withdrawal or personal check but is accepted anywhere credit cards are accepted - saves you from showing identification or giving out personal information at the time of a transaction.

Watch out for fees. Banks will charge fees for a number
