Stumbo burned in accident

State Rep. Greg Stumbo received second- and third-degree burns on his hands, leg and face as the result of a freak accident over the weekend.

Stumbo was burning trash and construction debris at a site where he is building a new home when a butane lighter exploded in his hand. A statement from his office said a breeze blowing at the time caused more damage than usual.

Despite his injuries, Stumbo maintained a sense of humor about the incident.

"I didn't expect cleaning up Kentucky to be quite this dangerous," Stumbo quipped. The joke came in reference to the House majority floor leader's sponsorship of litter and solid waste legislation session in the past three sessions of the General Assembly.

Stumbo is being treated by a family physician and is recuperating at home.

Teachers upset with longer day

by KATHY J. PRATER
 FEATURES EDITOR

Teachers took center stage at Monday evening's Floyd County Board of Education meeting. Donna Collins, president of the Floyd County Education Association, addressed the board, delivering what some could consider to be a veiled threat of a teacher's strike.

Collins read a letter detailing points of contention concerning the board's recent enforcement of a policy that has effectively extended the school instructional day by 15 minutes.

After first assuring the board that the district's teachers approached them with "dismay, disappointment and disillusion," Collins went on to remind the board's members that they had "engaged in one of the longest teacher strikes in Kentucky" in 1990, a strike that ended with a salary increase of 30 percent, implemented over a two-year period, for district teachers.

Stating that even with this salary increase teachers are still not adequately meeting cost-of-living increases, Collins went on to remark that the 15-minute increase in the school instructional day was "additional unpaid

Weekend vandalism occurring early Sunday morning left the facility and students of May Valley Elementary picking up pieces and asking questions Monday morning.

Students arriving to school Monday found that 20 trees, planted and maintained by parents and students alike, had been cut down.

In addition to the vandalism of the school grounds, a sign, which sets just outside the gates of the school, had been stripped of its lettering. All that remained on Tuesday was a blank brick facing.

Respect, Varia scholarships awarded

by MARY MUSIC
 STAFF WRITER

You have probably seen her sitting next to you at the doctor's office, twitching her hands in anxious despair, or maybe she pulled into the lane next to you. You watched her wipe tears from her eyes. She looks tired, afraid, lonely. Suddenly, you realize that she could be your mother, your daughter, your friend. You wonder how she got there.

Perhaps they forgot to tell her that they loved her, or that she is pretty enough or intelligent enough to stand on her two feet in this world. "Am I good enough?" "Am I doing the right thing?" "Do they really love me?" She, feeling helpless, will spend several years analyzing these questions unless someone steps up to help.

That's what obstetrician Chandra Varia wanted to do. Trying to reach out to young women who live with a similar cycle of emotions, Varia, along with her husband, Martin veterinarian Manendra Varia, began the "Respect Program" geared toward sixth- and seventh-grade females.

"Children are 20 percent of our population," said Varia, "but they are 100 percent of our future."

Since it began in 1995, 300 students in various schools throughout the county have participated in the nine-week educational program, which focuses on building self-confidence and shares with those students a hands-on learning experience about the importance of a drug-free life as well as other issues

Fanning bars religious group's visit

A decision by Floyd County Board of Education Superintendent Dr. Paul Fanning to cancel an assembly conducted by evangelist Rick Gage, a Texas native who has spoken to more than 2 million teenagers across the nation, may have caused Floyd County students to have "missed an opportunity" to receive a positive message, according to Gage.

"Our assembly program has nothing to do with religion," Gage said on Tuesday. "It deals with moral issues like drug abuse and premarital sex."

Gage and several other members of the Mountain Crusade for Christ have enjoyed many assem-

Board discusses name of new PHS football field

by KATHY J. PRATER

David Barber, assistant coach to the Prestonsburg High School football team, and judge of the Kentucky State Court of Appeals, addressed the members of the Floyd County Board of Education at their regular meeting on Monday evening, to offer a proposal concerning the newly constructed Prestonsburg High School football field.

Apologizing for his attire, "I was pulled off the field and asked to come here tonight," Barber informed the board that the field's "kick-off" date is scheduled for Friday, at which time the Prestonsburg Blackcats will face the Paintsville Tigers in their first home game of the season, and the first official play on the new field.

Barber appeared before the board to present a petition regarding the naming of the new field and to request the board's approval of the Prestonsburg High School committee's selected name.

The proffered petition reads: "In recognition of Josh Francis' desire to play football for Prestonsburg High School time to the teachers' workday."

According to Collins, the teachers of Floyd County are disgruntled in part because they feel that this additional time has not been set up to be truly beneficial to the student learning process.

"These minutes have been added to the end of the day — as we know, optimal learning is accomplished at the beginning of the day," Collins said.

Additionally, Collins said that this amount of unfocused time, whether added to the beginning, middle or end of the instructional day "would at best have a minimal effect on instruction for children and, at worst, simply be tolerated as something we have to do because the board says we must."

The members of the educational association further outlined "that this additional time produces seven and one-half additional days of instruction ... if we were hourly employees, there would be no question that this time must be paid time. Using an average salary of $30,000, this time would cost the board approximately $680,000 ... which makes our original salary proposal look very modest indeed. Regardless of the fiscal impact on teachers' salaries, the psychological impact of this action says very clearly to teachers and the community that teachers are the least important part of the educational team."

Collins further reiterated on behalf of the educational association members that Floyd County's teachers have "waited patiently for the board to recognize the dedication and perseverance of its teaching staff ... and endured cuts in teaching staff," and that "earlier this year we took a modest salary proposal to the budget committee. We requested $500 for each certified employee ...

a cost to the board of approximately $280,000. The budget committee declined to consider our proposal ... however, the budget committee did bring to the board a proposal for increased salaries for administrators, which you approved. The approximate cost of this increase, $60,000 to $75,000. We cannot believe this increase was a pat on the back for a job well done, remember the state report card? But, rather a recognition by the board of the many and varied activities or events the position requires. However, this increase neither implies nor requires additional time worked."

The association further made a formal request to the board to:

- rescind for the school year 2001-2002, the additional 15 minutes that has been added to the school instructional day,

- to appoint "a task force comprised of the superintendent, state manager, parents, members of FCEA, administrators, and others to develop a plan ... to move us toward attainment of our goals and the realization of our mission statement."

- to "appoint a second group to work with the limitations and ramifications of the traditional 175-day instructional calendar."

In closing, Collins informed the board that FCEA members view the "additional 15 minutes added to our day as an attempt at a 'quick fix.'" She queried the board as to the lasting result of this action and to the benefits that would be experienced by Floyd County students as a result.

Board Chairman Johnnie Ross was the first to comment following Collins' remarks to the board. Displaying obvious frustration, he commented that "we have a stack of audits that say we do not have enough instructional time in our schools ... basically this added time amounts to about one minute per class per day. I feel that the teachers of this county are saying, 'I do not want to spend 15 more minutes with your child, Mr. Ross.' I am opposed to rescinding the 15 minutes. However, I am not opposed to appointing a task force."

Betty Rowland, the Kentucky Education Association director for the Eastern Kentucky region, spoke from the crowd saying, "Mr. Ross, as a volunteer, you can give freely of your 15 minutes of time. These teachers had no option. Our complaint is that this time has no strategic purpose."

At this point, the crowd offered enthusiastic applause, after which Ross chastised teachers, explaining that he felt that the outburst was inappropriate.

As board members took turns addressing the teachers, questions arose as to whether or not the school district would remain in compliance with state guidelines if they voted to rescind the additional 15 minutes from the school instructional day.

Ross also explained to the assembled teachers that the 15 minute policy had been originally passed in 1998 and that it had only recently been enforced, and that he believed that a school principal had suggested the action at an earlier work meeting.

Superintendent Paul Fanning commented, saying that "We don't need to worry about where and how the proposal was made. It's there, and the time does have a specific purpose."

Board member Carol Stumbo told the teachers that "if I were in the classroom, I would be concerned about that extra minute, because it would only be a minute, and you cannot accomplish much in a minute."

Stumbo went on to say, "I appreciate your time and that you came here tonight. I also acknowledge that you should have been involved in this decision. This whole problem is a result of the fact that we did not communicate this decision to you, we did it to you, and for that I apologize."

Board members Glenna Slone and Jeff Stumbo also offered words of support to the teachers. "I acknowledge that teachers often stay late at school, they do it all the time," said Slone.

Jeff Stumbo added, "I want to thank the teachers for the job they do. This is one board member that will support a raise for you."

Ultimately, the board made no immediate decision in regard to the 15 minutes of added instructional time. Ross said the possibility existed that the 15 minutes could be rescinded and made a promise to the teachers to look further into the matter and report his, and the board's, findings to them.

Universal pickup hits snags

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

With universal garbage pickup well underway, employees at the Floyd County Solid Waste Board, Prestonsburg Utilities, as well as privately-owned water companies in the area have been working to make the transfer of garbage collection service go over smoothly.

At the implementation of the universal service, Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson said that there would be problems — problems which would take two to three months to "sort out."

Thompson reiterated that statement at a Floyd County Solid Waste Board meeting on Monday.

"When the flood hit, it knocked two or three of us out of commission as far as doing the billing for this service," said Thompson. "We're three weeks behind on that and at least three months behind on our set water projects."

Although garbage pickup for homes in the Floyd County area continues as before, there are problems in creating an accurate billing system for the service.

Floyd County Solid Waste Coordinator Lon May said that out of 3,332 bills mailed to households throughout the county, 1,157 bills sent to "bad" addresses were returned. Of those, the board was able, said May, to find and correct 229 of those addresses. Still, other homes in the area are yet to receive bills for their accounts, and others are billed for vacant addresses or lots. Roughly, said May, 904 physical addresses don't have the correct mailing address listed.

Thompson said one of the problems associated with billing issues is that Waste Management has yet to provide the Floyd County Solid Waste Board with a complete and accurate commercial database, which contains the addresses of previous customers.

Many of the employees with the board, at the judge-executive's office and DES have been working over 90 hours each week since the flood, dealing with flood issues as well as answering the "high volume" of calls associated with the universal service, said Thompson.

Water company employees who were present at the meeting explained that they have received several calls from citizens with questions about the garbage collection fee on their water bills, as well several who altogether refuse to pay for the service.

"You wouldn't believe what some of these people say," said May. "One guy called me and said he transported his garbage to a dumpster in Lexington where he works."

According to May, 70 percent of the households which received services through Waste Management actually paid for services. According to rough estimates given during the meeting, at least 53 families now refuse to pay for service.

Those families will receive a citation immediately, agreed the members of the board, unless they decide to pay for services.

Members of the board also passed a motion to "marry" the billing for both water and garbage collection services in Floyd County, by agreeing to ensure a joint petition for variance which will allow the water

LPC COUNTY WIDE PUBLIC FORUM

The Floyd County Board of Education has scheduled a local Board public hearing on the proposed District Facility Plan for Thursday, September 6, at May Valley Elementary at 6:30 p.m. The District Facility Plan lists the pending capital construction and/or renovation projects that the school district may undertake, and the priority order, if applicable, that projects will be initiated. Copies of the proposed District Facility Plan are available for examination by interested individuals at the Board office, 106 North Front Avenue, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., through September 24.

Questions may be directed to Superintendent Paul Fanning at 606-886-2354. Those individuals who would like to comment on the proposed District Facility Plan may present oral or written comments at the local Board public hearing. The local Board of Education, after due process, will forward the approved District Facility Plan to the Kentucky Department of Education for ultimate approval by the State Board of Education.

The local Board public hearing is being scheduled in accordance with KRS 157.620, and regulated by 702 KAR 1:001.

Scholarships

such as unplanned pregnancy, diet and exercise, and budgeting expenses.

Several students were honored Sunday at the Mountain Arts Center for their participation in the program along with several other students who received 2001 Varia Family Foundation Scholarships, with First Lady Judi Patton present to show her support. Two recent graduates of the program, Kim Shepherd and Heather Greer, were among participants awarded money for college or vocational school books.

Over the next 20 years, Varia expects to award a total of $1.6 million in scholarships to those who complete the program. She also announced during the ceremony that boys will also be included in the Respect Program.

"Obviously, we are very committed to this program," said program organizer Neva Francis, of Our Lady of the Way Hospital. "We, as females, need to understand that we can feel good about ourselves, that we can have the confidence we need to go out into the world, and that we can go after our dreams."

"We believe that every child needs to be praised daily, and that there is something good in everyone. It's a tough world out there and I think, as parents, it is very important for us to help our children realize that everyone is unique, no two people are alike, and it doesn't matter what you look like or what you wear. You have to feel good about yourself."

Although Varia stopped delivering babies in 1993, she still practices gynecology in her Martin office. The last set of twins she delivered, Tandra and Chandra Gibson of Knott County, carried a scroll with the names of scholarships winners.

During her speech, Varia, saying that she believed placing the Biblical Ten Commandments in schools is a "very good idea," listed "her" Ten Commandments: "Do your homework. Do not smoke. Do not drink. Do not use drugs. Do not go behind the wheel unless you buckle up. Do not drive, one hand on the wheel and one on the cell phone. Do not pass red lights and do not drive too fast. Respect and consider your textbook as holy as religious books. Respect your teachers. Respect your school as a religious monument."

Our View

Tribute should not be confused with endorsement

Prestonsburg High School will christen its new football stadium Friday and currently a last-minute effort is underway to determine the name of the facility.

Among the suggestions are a couple which would name the field either after state Rep. Greg Stumbo or jointly after Stumbo and Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin.

We do not necessarily disagree with the idea of giving credit to the two men, particularly in regard to the new stadium. It was, after all, Stumbo who secured state funding for the Prestonsburg facility, as well as a similar complex for South Floyd High School. And it was Fannin who, when the project appeared in danger of being scaled back, chipped in the power of the city to make sure the finished product mirrored the original dream.

We also realize that many football players, coaches and other students, faculty and staff of Prestonsburg High School wish to show their appreciation to the two men for what appears to be a splendid facility.

But, despite all of that, it probably isn't the best idea, especially in light of a controversy which ignited over a similar action elsewhere in the state.

U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell has been dogged by a tempest, albeit one of the teapot variety, over his involvement in raising funds for a political science center at the University of Louisville which was ultimately named after him. While the main point of contention has focused on McConnell's refusal to disclose the names of donors to the program, questions have also been raised over whether it is proper for public works to be named after active politicians. After all, the honored become the beneficiaries of endless publicity which can only serve to further their political careers.

There is a reason why corporations are willing to shell out millions of dollars to have their names attached to stadiums, and that's because they know it will pay off in the long run. They know that every time the name of the stadium is mentioned in print or over the airwaves, they'll be the recipients of free advertising.

Those who are thrilled with the new athletic complex may feel that both men deserve such a boost to their campaigns as a reward for their efforts. That's fine as long as we're talking about using private money on private time, but it's an entirely different matter when we're talking about using a public facility paid for with taxpayer money.

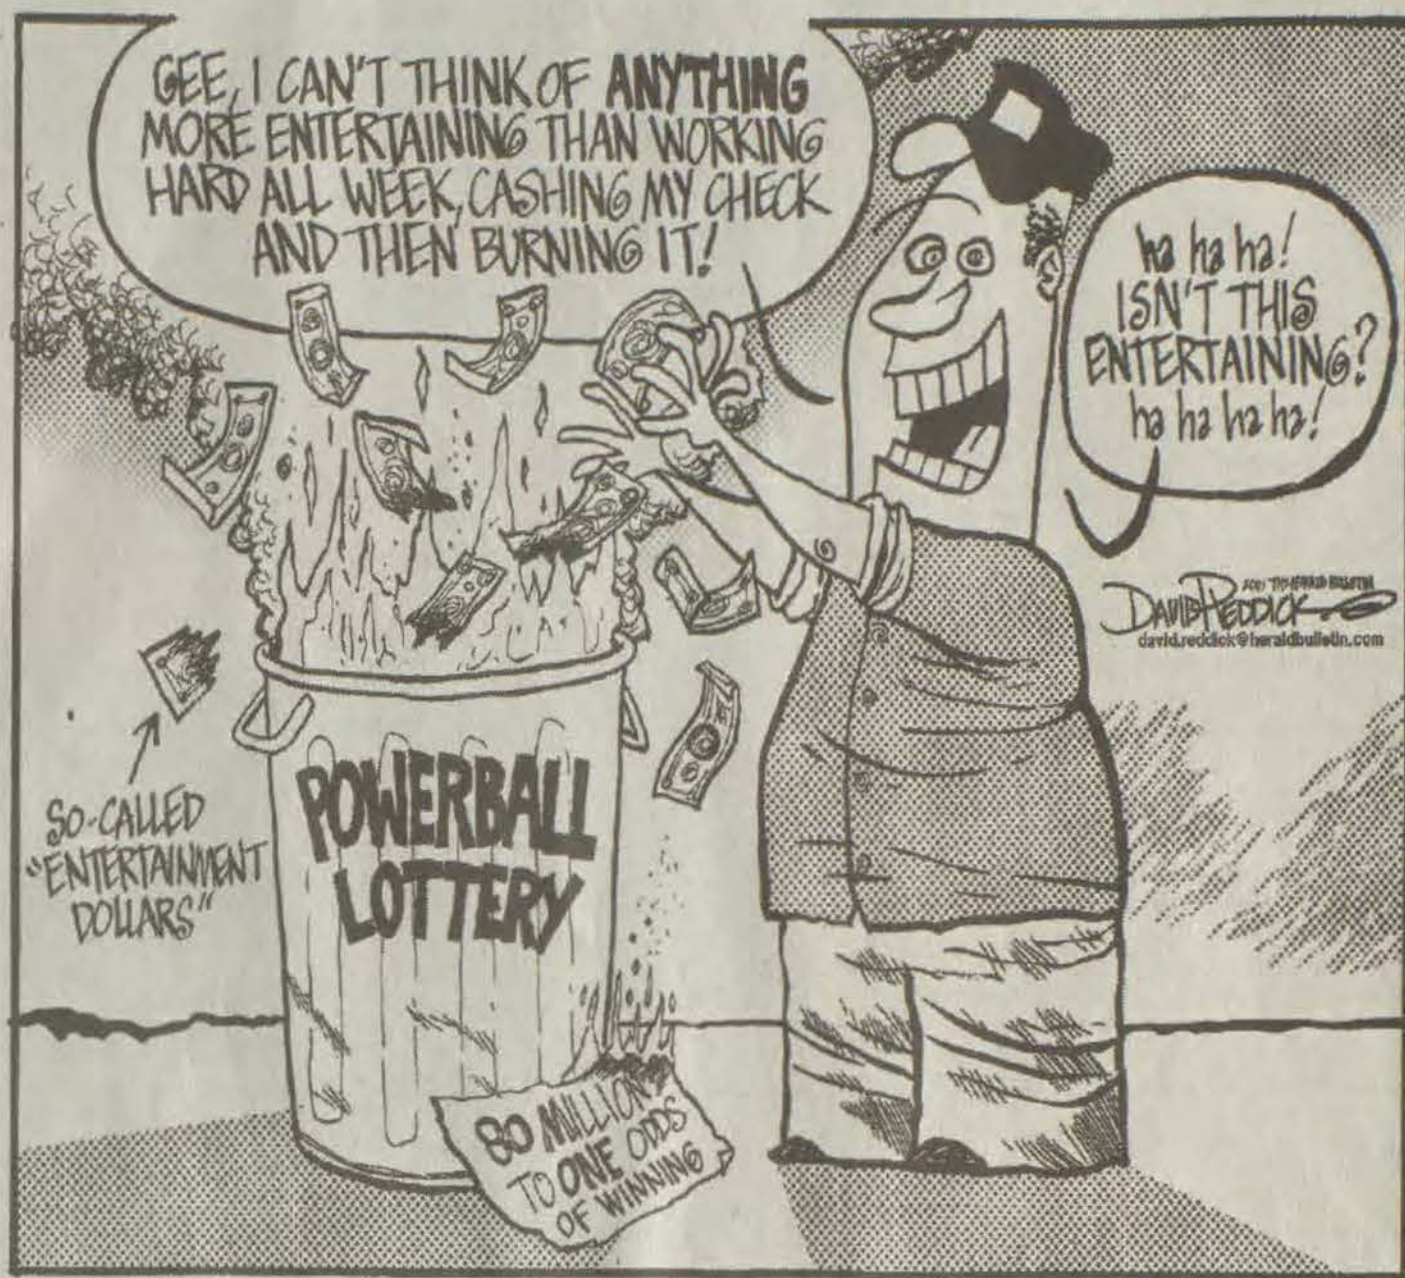

Those who wish to show their appreciation to Stumbo and Fannin — or any other public figure currently serving in office — can do so in countless other ways. They can lobby their friends, neighbors and relatives to vote for the two men at election time. They can contribute to their campaigns. They can even solicit private donations to erect a monument thanking them for contributions.

We have no desire to hamper the public futures of either Stumbo or Fannin, and our words are not meant to diminish their contributions in making the new field a reality. We also do not mean to suggest that either man has ever actively sought such recognition.

However, it is not fair to ask taxpayers to transform a public facility into what would essentially become, intended or not, an endorsement of two men's political careers.

It is much more prudent to name public works generically or, at the most, for those who have ended their political careers and stand nothing to gain except a well-deserved thanks.

Home and heart

When my phone rang early Wednesday morning, I expected to hear someone on the other end disapproving my opinion about certain modern church practices. I expected a lengthy conversation (which, by the way, I was well prepared for) where I would have to explain the very depth of my belief on this issue and why I know in my heart it's the truth.

What I found on the other end, however, when I picked up a phone, was a gentleman whom I have met only in passing in my life.

"I've got two words for you," he said.

"Home and heart."

I understood what he was saying. You can go to church 365 days in a year and spiritually be nothing, if the love isn't there with you, in your home and in your heart.

You can believe what men tell you the Bible says, and you have still learned nothing, if you don't take the time to read, study and understand it for yourself, in your home and in your heart.

You can go through your entire life not knowing the only person who really knows you, your home, your heart.

That is, I suppose, how it's always been, and how it always will be. It's one of the pleasures of being human, not just being Christian.

I am not about to claim myself as a sinless person. I'm certainly not anyone capable of sitting here and telling you how to live your life or how to love or how to hate. I can only share with you a few things that I have learned.

For those of you who don't quite understand where I'm coming from, I can say one thing. Life's answers aren't found at the bottom of a bucket, hidden like some mysterious wolf in sheep's clothing. You basically know already what it's all about — and those answers are found in familiar turf, the part of your heart that has been there with you since childhood.

Sometimes, we just forget to realize that we already have those answers. Sometimes, we simply forget to look. In either case, your heart is true. It still remembers.

I wanted to let you guys know that I am very grateful for all the letters, invitations, cards and kind words that you've given me since last week's column.

I couldn't fill a room with the love you guys have shared with me in just a brief conversation or letter describing your path in life. Thank you for that.

Appalled at vandalism

Imagine my dismay when I took my grandchildren to school at May Valley Elementary this morning and saw the devastation that someone had created over the weekend. The trees were cut, the flowers were uprooted and the landscape was trashed.

The May Valley campus held special meaning for me. My daughter, who was killed in an accident in May, was instrumental in planting and caring for the beautiful landscape. Every time I saw it, I was reminded of the beauty she had brought into the world.

Now, I am reminded of the ugliness some misguided persons can bring in a short time. If the labor and planning that went into the destruction had been put to better use, just think of the good that could have been done.

The people who did the vandalism must be very miserable and unhappy people. I wonder how they could have imagined that doing such a thing would make them feel better?

Schools also have good points

Your recent article on CTBS scores was distressing to me, beginning with the headline and the following article. All test scores are not "doom and gloom," but you began your article and went into detail about those schools that had made little or no progress in test scores. The positives were not even mentioned until much further into the article. This is especially upsetting to me as a teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary, where third-grade CTBS scores did improve. In fact, they were the highest third-grade scores in the county.

We here at Prestonsburg Elementary work very hard to deliver the Core Content and Program of Studies to our students despite difficulties we face every day. We have a fine support staff in our secretaries, cooks, custodians and instructional aides. Our principal and assistant principal are ready and willing to help with discipline and other everyday situations. Our site-based decision making council has sacrificed our instructional money in order to provide students with full-time related arts (music, art, PE). We work in a building that needs much renovation. Our library is not yet automated. However, the real strength of our school lies in its teachers — many of whom spend time working before and after school and even on snow days — and in parents who send their children to school regularly, thus emphasizing the importance of education in their homes.

Again, I say all of this not to brag about our school, but to let you know that there are GOOD things going on in some of our Floyd County schools and I would hope you would do your part. This letter could have been written about other schools in the county, but I know the facts about this one.

Shame on you for emphasizing the negative first. Please try to do better. What would happen if we treated our children in the same manner.

Board talks bus routes, test scores

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

The Floyd County Board of Education opened its regular meeting Monday evening at Adams Middle School with a moment spent to reflect upon the words, "There is no time spent with a child that is wasted."

Immediately following, Lindsey Anderson, an Allen Central High School freshman, addressed the board with a plea to keep Floyd County buses running in Knott County. According to Anderson, she and several other students — "approximately 15" — attend Floyd County schools, although they reside with their families in Knott County. Anderson said that an operating policy has been in existence in which Floyd County buses have traveled "about two minutes across the county line" to pick her and her classmates up at the mouth of the hollows in which they reside. Anderson lives on Chaffins Branch.

Anderson said that she has attended Floyd County schools since seventh grade.

Now, apparently, there remains a question as to whether or not the buses will continue with this route. Anderson said that she was recently accepted as a member of the Allen Central High School dance team and that she is required to pay team fees by Friday morning of this week.

"My mom needs to know if I'm going to be able to go to this school before she pays money," Anderson explained to the board members.

Supt. Paul Fanning said that he would look into the transportation policy and the situation with Anderson and her classmates.

"All I know is, for years and years, Floyd County buses have picked up Knott County kids," Anderson said. "I have friends whose parents went to Floyd County schools. I don't care where you live; if you want to go to school, you should be able to go to school."

At this point, the attending audience applauded Anderson's statement as she continued to pointedly ask Supt. Fanning, "Will the bus pick me up tomorrow?"

"Did the bus pick you up this morning?" Fanning asked Anderson.

"Yes," she replied. "Then the bus will pick you up tomorrow," Fanning said, as he continued to reassure Anderson that the situation would be looked into and addressed.

Bus scheduling was another matter brought to the board's attention as both board members, Carol Stumbo and Jeff Stumbo, commented that they were concerned with reports that students were not arriving home from school until well after five o'clock in the evening.

Parents have issued complaints that children are being required to wait for lengthy periods on school grounds for bus pickup and also that buses are crowded due to an attempt to consolidate runs between schools.

"We need to get these children home," said board member Jeff Stumbo.

Another point of concern addressed by the board were the recently released results of the district's Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills scores.

According to Joyce Watson, district assessment coordinator, John M. Stumbo Elementary had the poorest showing among the county's schools.

"Why is this?" asked Jeff Stumbo. "What can we do about this situation?"

Watson replied that the district administrators, teachers and members of the board were going to have to accept and "own" these results. "Even if it is painful to do so, we are all going to have to take ownership and responsibility" and turn this situation around.

Board Chairman Johnnie Ross said that the CTBS scores posed a particularly frustrating situation for him.

"I look at these scores, and I think, 'I've done nothing,'" Ross said.

Board member Carol Stumbo remarked that she agreed that the board was going to have to take ownership of the scores and give the school consolidated plan the focused attention of the board and "work on this problem until we get it fixed."

Moving on, Ross informed the board's members that he had a request from the district's student body to make all schools "smoke-free."

"These students have informed me that they cannot go into break areas without being exposed to smoke," Ross said. "Therefore, I make a motion to make all Floyd County schools smoke-free."

The motion was seconded and Ross continued, "So ordered. Effective immediately."

Supt. Fanning also took a moment to acknowledge Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fanning and to explain that Fanning had taken it upon himself to deliver books detailing the history of Floyd County courthouses to each of the county's schools.

The board passed its consent agenda and, due to the amount of time spent earlier on a discussion of the added 15 minutes to the school instructional day (see story, front page), was unable to complete the remainder of the agenda items.

Ross proposed that a special meeting date be set for attention to the remaining items.

companies to disconnect service for those who fail to pay their garbage bills within 15 days of the second billing.

The Floyd County Solid Waste enforcement officer will visit these homes, said Thompson, to explain that having a universal garbage collection service is the only way to effectively clean up the county. They will be cited, said Thompson, only if they still refuse to pay.

The board also agreed that individuals in the county who have both residential and commercial service will now receive two separate bills for garbage collection services.

"The bottom line is that the Floyd County Solid Waste Board is working through the water districts and the solid waste office to try to clean up Floyd County," said Thompson. "That's the bottom line of what we're trying to do, and we have to remember that."

The next meeting is currently set for September 10.

Businesses are a growing part of our electric cooperative

When we started looking for a place to build our factory, we focused on two things: quality of life for our people, and plenty of electric power.

We love the area. And our electric company? No problem! They're a co-op and are part of Touchstone Energy — a nationwide group of more than 500 electric co-ops. Our co-op was able to deliver us the power we needed. And we're actually members, with a say in how things are run. So we built our business... and our people get to live here.

Five counties designated for individual assistance

Disaster assistance for five counties has been expanded to include aid for homeowners, renters and businesses affected by the recent severe storms and flooding, the head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) announced recently.

FEMA Director Joe M. Allbaugh said the additional assistance was based on a review of damage data gathered by federal and state disaster recovery officials. The five counties previously designated for public assistance under the original disaster declaration issued by President Bush on August 15, are Floyd, Knott, Letcher, Perry and Pike.

"We remain committed to delivering assistance wherever it's needed, and to making sure that every qualified individual and family receives the help they need to get back on the road to recovery," Allbaugh said.

Affected residents and business owners in the five counties may apply for assistance immediately by calling the toll-free registration number, 1-800-462-9029 (or 1-800-462-7585 for speech and hearing impaired), between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., seven days a week, until further notice.

Allbaugh said calling these numbers is the only way to apply for a wide range of state and federal disaster assistance programs, that can include funding for temporary housing, U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) low-interest loans for individuals, and businesses to repair or replace damaged property, disaster unemployment assistance, and grants for serious needs and necessary expenses not met by other programs.

Callers are advised to have the following information available to help speed up the application process:

- your current phone number
- your address at the time of the disaster, and the address where you are now staying
- your Social Security number, if available.
- a general list of damages and losses you suffered.
- good directions to the property that was damaged.
- if insured, your insurance policy number, or the agent's and company name.
- general financial information.

When disaster strikes, the Federal Emergency Management Agency administers a number of disaster assistance programs and coordinates the efforts of many other federal agencies that provide services to help people through the recovery process. The types of assistance that are available follow.

Federal Emergency Management Agency Program

DISASTER HOUSING ASSISTANCE:

Housing assistance to individuals and families whose permanent homes were damaged or destroyed by the storm. Types of aid include grants for alternate rental housing; emergency repairs needed to make a residence habitable; and mortgage or rental assistance in cases where the disaster has caused extreme economic hardship.

INDIVIDUAL AND FAMILY GRANT PROGRAM:

Grants to individuals and families to meet serious disaster-related needs and necessary expenses not covered by insurance or other federal, state or voluntary agency disaster assistance programs.

DISASTER UNEMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE:

Weekly benefits to individuals out of work due to the disaster, including self-employed persons, farm owners and others not usually covered under regular unemployment insurance.

U.S. Small Business Administration Program

HOME/PERSONAL PROPERTY DISASTER LOANS:

Disaster loans to homeowners and renters for restoring or replacing underinsured or uninsured disaster-damaged real and personal property. (Available in declared counties.)

BUSINESS DISASTER LOANS:

Disaster loans to repair or replace destroyed or damaged business facilities, inventory, machinery, equipment, etc., not covered by insurance. (Available to large and small businesses in declared counties.) Loans also may be available to small businesses for working capital to assist them during the disaster recovery period. (Available in declared and contiguous counties.)

In addition, disaster assistance for 12 additional counties was approved recently to include aid for local governments. The counties are Bath, Clay, Elliott, Estill, Harrison, Lawrence, Lewis, Livingston, Mason, Menifee, Powell and Rowan.

"Jesus to the Rescue"

"Jesus to the Rescue" was the theme for Vacation Bible School at the Hueysville Church of Christ, which was a huge success. It was held June 18-22, from 6-8 p.m.

We would like to give our sincere gratitude for those who participated in the crafts activities, singing, and Bible Study, in teaching the kids that Jesus is our Rescue.

Thanks to those who brought refreshments and drinks during V.B.S. We want to especially thank the V.B.S. teachers, music instructors, craft helpers, and bus drivers.

A special thanks to the Garrett Fire Department for bringing all the fire trucks for the children, and thanks to the drivers who showed and explained to the kids the importance of the fire trucks in our daily lives, and the dangers that they face; and for giving the kids certificates.

Card of Thanks

The family of Ernest Gibson wishes to gratefully acknowledge the thoughtfulness and kindness of friends, relatives, and neighbors, in the loss of our loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, and prayers. We are especially grateful to the Regular Baptist ministers for their comforting words, the Stone Coal Regular Baptist Church, the Sheriff's Department for their assistance in traffic control, and the Hall Funeral Home for their kind and professional care. All your acts of kindness were greatly appreciated.

dose of much-needed medicine in the quest to make teens more aware of increasingly bad conditions.

Information often presented during the assemblies includes revealing statistics such as the fact that every day in America 1,000 unwed teenage girls become mothers, 1,106 teenage girls receive abortions, 500 teenagers begin using drugs, 135,000 kids bring guns or other weapons to school, 18 teens commit suicide as well as many other pieces of compiled data that are used to reflect a set of facts to teens

Fanning said on Tuesday his decision to cancel the assembly was based on legal merits and a pressing question as to whether or not the assembly would cause a conflict between church and state.

Citing an advertisement placed by the assembly in The Floyd County Times' August 26 edition and adding that he had obtained information that a possible "communication gap" had existed in the scheduling of the event from at least three school principals, Fanning contends the decision was in the best legal interest of the school system.

"The announcement of the scheduled event was placed almost in the middle of an advertisement for a religious crusade," said Fanning. "My perspective was to put in into a legal context. When I was made aware of the advertisement, I examined it closely and then spoke with principals and staff members and made my decision to cancel."

The advertisement cited by Fanning begins with the question, "Have you ever wondered whether your life matters to God?" and includes an agenda schedule for a motivational assembly. Fanning also explained that legal advice he received during past occurrences of the same nature during various times in his career also weighed in the decision.

"The issue of church and state is something we've dealt with before in Eastern Kentucky," said Fanning. "Based upon legal advice I received in the past, I made the decision. We've had outside groups come in before, but this was placed in the context of a crusade. I've never seen one advertised that way."

Fanning said he had received several phone calls, some calls expressing an understanding of the decision made and some who did not understand.

"The people with the concerns are very caring people but you have to look at the context I put it in," continued Fanning. "The advertisement raised a question and I followed up on it. I don't discourage anyone from going to a crusade, but there was no affirmation that there was not going to be a religious context to it."

The assembly had been scheduled during instructional time, instead of before or after school, said Fanning, who added that he spoke with three principals who had agreed to schedule the event.

"One of the principals was not aware of it," said Fanning. "Another said it had come through another person on her staff who had been contacted, and another said that someone approached him directly in his office, but said he was not aware of the religious context of the advertisement."

Gage explained during an interview with The Times on Tuesday that scheduling had been agreed upon through the school principals, adding that the group had not been able to confirm the assemblies through Fanning as he could not be reached.

The On Track assembly team remained busy yesterday touring Pike County schools but still reserved some hope that Floyd County might reconsider as Gage, during a luncheon in Pikeville yesterday afternoon, addressed an enthusiastic group of supporters.

"Things have been going well for us here because the doors to your children's school have been opened," said Gage. "And we're still hoping God will open the doors for us in Floyd County."

Area residents selected for Parent Institute

LEXINGTON — Five area residents have been selected as participants in the Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership.

Lisa Bryant, James Butler, Donna Collins-Martin, Bernardo Maldonado and James Short will attend three two-day training sessions at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, September 6-7, October 18-19, and November 29-30.

The Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership, a program of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, prepares parents to work toward higher achievement for all public school students. The institute seeks to create a new level of parent engagement in Kentucky, and it reaches all parents — including those who have the most difficulty being involved.

United Way to hold golf scramble

The United Way of Eastern Kentucky is gearing up for its fifth annual United Way Golf Scramble, sponsored by BellSouth, scheduled to take place Friday, September 14, at Stone Crest Golf Course.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m.

Registered players will receive golf cart transportation, lunch and the chance to participate in a raffle for prizes. Play is limited to 30 teams and pre-registration is recommended.

United Way of Eastern Kentucky hopes to raise $25,000 through the event to be used toward providing grants to local non-profit agencies serving the people in the five-county area of Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Martin and Magoffin counties.

Over 99 percent of the money raised in the Big Sandy area stays in the Big Sandy area.

Donations may be made directly to The United Way of Eastern Kentucky, P.O. Box 1446, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. The local chapter can also be reached at 1-888-393-5632.

Checks are in hand, and in the mail, for residents of Floyd County who suffered flood damages earlier this month.

According to FEMA spokesperson Wayne Goodson, $100,000 has been received for rental assistance to the affected counties and a total of 549 registrations for assistance have been recorded in the five-county area that was declared last week.

The numbers will increase as FEMA personnel complete their inspections of damaged homes, federal coordinating officer Michael Bolen said.

"Expect to hear from a FEMA inspector in about five days making an appointment to survey your damages," said Bolch. "Following that visit, and your claim is verified, you can anticipate that a check will arrive in the mail in about seven to 10 days."

Now that federal efforts for recovery are fully underway, flood victims may soon find their lives pieced back together without suffering the financial strain that doing so without assistance may have caused.

But questions remain for those who were hit by the flash floods and suffered damage without the comfort and benefit of flood insurance to rely upon.

FEMA spokesperson Wayne Goodson, who has been in the area to assist the state in speeding flood victims to recovery, expressed concern Monday, saying that many residents who were affected by the flooding complained about not having flood insurance as an available option.

"The only way flood insurance would not be available is because the county or community is not a participant in the flood program," said Goodson. "Otherwise, you could be on the highest mountain or in the deepest hollow."

The National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) is a program offered through FEMA and can, if utilized, enable homeowners to receive a lower premium on flood insurance through a local insurance agency.

A requirement, however, is that the community or county adopt a flood management ordinance which would set forth certain conditions that would be followed to minimize the effect of flooding.

Floyd County adopted a flood management ordinance on September 5, 1984, a decision which played some part in the federal assistance available to flood victims this week.

"Normally they won't be asked about flood insurance unless they live in a floodplain," said Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson. "But, of course, they can buy flood insurance if they live outside a floodplain. I believe the only county that didn't have this program was Letcher. I'm not sure that FEMA allowed them, not having the ordinance in place, to receive the full assistance."

Martin Mayor Thomasine Robinson explained on Monday that there had been an ordinance in Martin for years.

The ordinance, known as the flood damage prevention ordinance, was passed on November 6, 1986, when Robinson's father, Raymond Griffith, was mayor.

"The city of Martin has had that for years," said Robinson. "As a matter of fact, that has been discussed time and again at meetings ... Most of the people here that are in the floodplain either have flood insurance, or know that they could have it."

According to Maynard Insurance agent Billy R. Maynard, someone affected by flooding could go to an independent agent but that participating in the NFIP is an intelligent move on the part of a community as he explained the NFIP take all the risk involved.

"It's been my understanding that if the area doesn't participate in the flood program, then they can't buy it," said Maynard. "If it hadn't been for the president's declaration, a lot of people would be hurting, people without personal insurance would've had to clean up their own messes."

Even if a county participates in the national program — just as Floyd County has, as well as the city of Martin — there can be obstacles for flood victims who may be seeking help.

According to Maynard, if a home was placed in a floodplain after 1980, additional steps would be required.

"They could go to an independent agent and the agent would take down the basic information," said Maynard. "But after 1980 any property placed was supposed to have been put in a non-floodplain area. What they would have to do is obtain a flood elevation certificate."

Maynard explained a certificate could be obtained through a surveyor or engineer and if the lowest floor elevation revealed the area to be above the floodplain, the rate would be much more favorable.

Goodson stressed that FEMA doesn't want residents to exist under the misconception that flood insurance was out of reach.

"There's a lot of runoffs and a lot of streams come rushing down and anyone who is in close proximity to these should consider flood insurance," said Goodson. "Unless they live in a floodplain that would be determined by a flood insurance map that the county has which would map out their location."

Thompson was quick to explain that Floyd County was a participant in the flood program, and that, beyond that, there are plans for future adjustments.

"We're working on a program to reduce the premium 5 percent hopefully next year, possibly even 10 percent," said Thompson. "There are certain guidelines we have to be in compliance with to get this reduction and we are very close to being there."

The phone lines are still open to those who have not called to provide damage reports to federal agents, and the Small Business Administration is opening a temporary office in McDowell to screen applicants.

The SBA office will be located at the Left Beaver Creek Fire Station #2 on Route 680. The office is expected to be open today from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. After today, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday through Saturday, and the following Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. After that, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday until further notice.

"If you're a homeowner, renter, landlord or business owner, and had any damages from the severe storms and flood that began on July 27, I hope you'll come in to speak with one of our loan officers," said SBA Disaster Area Director Michael C. Allen. "You need to do this even if you had some insurance for your damages. We can process an application without insurance settlement information. By waiting, to settle your insurance claim, you risk missing the October 15 deadline."

Flood victims can also call 1-800-462-9029 to register for assistance, or visit FEMA's website at www.fema.gov.

"Refinancing your mortgage can be a complicated process. Let us give you simple answers to reduce your monthly payments, the length of your mortgage, or both."

Vandalism

cial Carole Combs was still at a loss as to why anyone would want to cause such damage, which she estimated to be several thousand dollars, and harm the children of the school who had helped with the groundkeeping and displayed so much pride in their work.

"Why would anyone want to hurt children?" Combs said. "These people are our children's role models. What kind of example is that setting for them? These individuals who did this could have brothers or sisters at this school."

According to Combs, the incident occurred at approximately 2 a.m. when two vehicles traveling on the road just in front of the school came upon a roadblock formed with several small trees.

The trees were later found to be the same 20 that had been removed from the school grounds, which Combs explained were four years old and fairly large.

"They must have used chainsaws to get these trees out of here."

The school's front gate had been busted open, and, as of Tuesday, some of the trees that had been used for the roadblock remained piled alongside the road outside the school.

The passengers of one of the vehicles which was stopped in the roadblock early Sunday morning stepped out of the vehicle, apparently to remove the trees from the roadway, when a group of individuals began to throw rocks at them, according to Combs.

Combs said the passenger chased the youths across the school grounds and onto the hill just behind the school.

At that point the vandals proceeded again to throw rocks at their followers, who left the scene and contacted authorities.

Martin City Police Officer Steve Toy was called to the scene and filed a report along with Kentucky State Police Trooper Joey Howard.

An investigation is underway to reveal the identity of the group of vandals.

"There have been unsubstantiated reports that this incident was discussed by a group of students at a nearby high school on Friday," said Combs.

The recent incident reminded Combs of a similar incident which she said occurred approximately three months ago, which also resulted in the school sign being stripped of its lettering.

"There have been other incidents besides these two, Combs said. "Around six months ago our flag was stolen from the pole outside the school."

Combs said that the flag was stolen once and replaced, only to be taken again. There hasn't been a flag replaced since the last incident.

"This is just the most shameful thing," said Combs. "All of the people here take pride in our school. We wouldn't even have these beautiful grounds if it weren't for the parents and children taking such an interest and working so hard. It's just a shameful thing to have to deal with."

Free higher education guide available

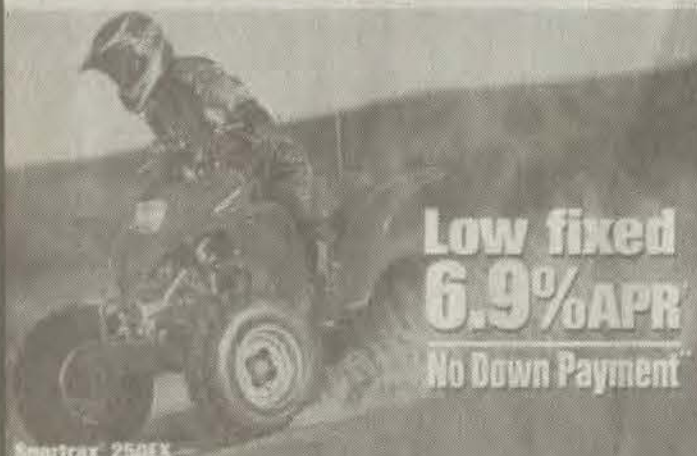

The 2001-2002 edition of Getting In, a free guide to post-secondary education in Kentucky, is now being sent to guidance counselors across the state for distribution to all Kentucky high school seniors.

Getting In is published and distributed by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA), and is available online at www.kheaa.com. In addition to guidance counselors and seniors, copies are also being sent to librarians, admission officers, financial aid officers, student loan lenders and others. Copies will be mailed in September to high school juniors via KHEAA's Success Through Educational Planning (STEP) program.

The 177-page book contains important, up-to-date information about Kentucky's four-year colleges and universities, two-year colleges and proprietary trade schools. Getting In contains facts on admissions, costs, academic majors and financial aid.

For more information about KHEAA programs and services, write to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority, 1050 US Highway 127 S, Frankfort, KY 40601-4323; call (800) 928-8926, extension 7381; visit www.kheaa.com; fax (502) 696-7373; or e-mail tbballard@kheaa.com.

Pathways at HIGHLANDS REGIONAL

The Medical Center of Eastern Kentucky
Emotional Care for Older Adults...

Highlands Regional Medical Center now offers a specialized inpatient psychiatric care unit, Pathways, for older adults. This is the first time inpatient adult psychiatric care has been available in the area. Pathways provides care for patients ages 55 and over who are in a crisis, may be suffering from depression, medication complications, confusion/disorientation, and need help to restore balance in their lives. The average length of stay for most Pathways patients is 10 to 14 days.

Pathways at Highlands is designed to quickly return patients to their optimal levels of functioning through an intensive, structured, physician-supervised program that coordinates with the medical care provided by Family Physicians.

Pathways is another new program offered by Highlands Regional Medical Center as part of its Mission to develop a healthier community. For more information about Pathways, call 886-7631 or 886-7632.

The South Floyd Raiders traveled to Raceland Friday for their season opener. The Raiders threw 31 passes in Friday's game. One problem: Raceland threw 46. And, the Rams completed 29 for a total of 332 yards.

Host Raceland struck first when senior quarterback Sam McKee found receiver Travis Roark for a 25-yard score. The Rams led 13-0 at intermission, following a second quarter score before posting a 44-6 win in rout-like fashion.

Raceland set single-game records for passing yards (332), completions (29) and attempts.

South Floyd (0-1) scored their only touchdown of the game in the third quarter's opening drive. The Raiders marched 73 yards in nine plays. Coach Nate Jones' South Floyd team got on the scoreboard when junior Josh McCray found the endzone on a two-yard run. The score pulled South Floyd to within 7 of Raceland at 13-6. The Rams exploded for 24 points in the second half to post the 38-point win.

South Floyd ball carriers rushed the ball for 170 yards on 44 carries. Raider receivers hauled in 14 passes for a total of 119 yards. McCray led South Floyd in rushing with 26 carries for 53 yards. Freshman Jordan Curry was South Floyd's leading receiver with eight catches for 104 yards.

Raceland (1-0) is back in action Friday, traveling to Grayson to take on East Carter.

The Raiders will also be back in action Friday, traveling to Betsy Layne (0-2) to face the Cougars in an in-county battle. South Floyd faithful will hope for a win as the Raiders face the Class AA Bobcats under new head coach Tim McCoy. The Bobcats fell 53-0 to region foe Morgan County last Friday night in a road game.

In week one, it was "The Mikeal Fannin and Matt Slone Show." For Prestonsburg, the 34-12 season-opening win against Sheldon Clark saw fullback Mikeal Fannin rack up 202 yards rushing while Matt Slone played a strong supporting cast role along with teammates. In week two's game against Bell County Saturday night it was "The Matt Slone and Mikeal Fannin Show" on the offensive side of the football as senior running back Matt Slone rushed for 235 yards on 17 carries for 2 touchdowns. Slone averaged 13.8 yards per carry. His longest carry was a 66-yard scamper. Fannin rushed for 84 yards on 14 carries, an average of six yards per tote. The end result was a 25-16 Prestonsburg win over Bell County and new-old coach Dudley Hilton.

It was James DeRossett on the sidelines calling the shots for Prestonsburg Saturday night. Prestonsburg head coach John DeRossett was serving a one-game suspension that dated back to an ejection from last season's playoff game against Boyle County. "I thought the kids played hard," said James DeRossett. "It was a great win for us."

The Bell County Bobcats were unsuccessful in trying to run away from Prestonsburg. The Blackcats held the Bobcats scoreless in the second half of Saturday's game.

Tigers roll over host Allen Central

Next opponent for Paintsville is P'burg

Explosive; quick-scoring. Lethal. Paintsville senior quarterback Chas Harmon saw his offense struggle in the first quarter of Friday night's game against host Allen Central. Both teams went scoreless in the first quarter of play before Paintsville erupted for 27 points in the second quarter. The led 27-0 at the half and rolled to a 45-14 district win.

"It was definitely a good win for us," said Paintsville Coach David LeMaster. "Any win, especially a district win, is a good win."

Tate Harmon put the Tigers on the board with a 6-yard run early in the second quarter. Jeremy Runyon added the extra-point kick to put the Tigers up 8-0. Enter Chas Harmon and fellow senior Dustin Hall, Paintsville's leading receiver last season, Chas Harmon and Hall quietly hooked up for three consecutive pass-catch scores in the second frame. The first quarterback-receiver hook-up was a 38-yard connection, the second a 25-yarder and the third a 40-yarder. Allen Central, who opened the season with a 38-0 blowout of county foe Betsy Layne, managed very little offense in the second quarter after outplaying the visiting Tigers for much of the first quar-

Pikeville College tourney welcomes participants

TIMES STAFF REPORT

Registration is under way for Pikeville College's annual scholarship golf tournament, Tuesday, Sept. 11 at Green Meadow Country Club in Pikeville.

This popular event, which draws golfers from all over the region, raises money for the College's student scholarship fund.

The competition format for this year's tournament will be individual play. A Modified Calloway Handicapping System will be used if a participant does not have a certified U.S.G.A. handicap.

Prizes will be awarded to the top seven low net scores and to the top three gross scores. In addition, prizes will also be awarded for the longest drive, longest putt, most accurate drive, closest-to-the-pin, and hole-in-one on selected holes.

For more information, or to receive a registration packet, call the Pikeville College Office of Development at 606/218-5276.

collegiate level. Ortega will suit up for Centre College this fall. He will play football for the Colonels.

Ortega, a sophomore, is listed as a defensive back on the Centre football roster. At Prestonsburg High School, the versatile Ortega was a multi-sport athlete excelling in football, basketball and baseball. At Centre, the former Blackcat will hope to help lead his new grid team to a conference championship. The Colonels play in the Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCAC). Ortega's first game as a member of the Centre football team will come on Saturday, September 8 when the Colonels host Earlham.

Trinity picked to win ninth straight championship

While John Ortega begins his first season of football at Centre College, another SCAC team gets the preseason No. 1 nod for a ninth straight championship.

Tigers

ter. LeMaster felt his team came out somewhat flat in the first quarter. "It's hard when you go on the road against a team like Allen Central," said LeMaster. "Anytime you play on the road, you have to be ready for anything. Just about anything can happen when you play a district game on the road."

Runyon was a perfect three-for-three on extra-point kicks before a bad snap left him with no attempt on the fourth Paintsville score just before the half.

Paintsville went right back to work in the third quarter. Tate Harmon found paydirt again by galloping 70 yards for a score. Runyon's kick again failed. With Paintsville leading 33-0, sophomore Shane Simpkins extended the margin by six when he took the ball away from Allen Central full-back D.J. Hoover. The Tigers converted on a two-point conversion to push the lead out to a 35-0 advantage.

The Rebels got on the finally got on the scoreboard when junior James Prater scored from eight yards out. Allen Central's two-point conversion attempt failed and the Rebels final score came just before the end the game when junior Dustin Hammonds scored a 1-yard touchdown capped off by an two-point run by quarterback Alex Patton.

The loss dropped the Rebels

The Trinity University Tigers have been selected to win their ninth-straight Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCAC) football title in 2001, based on exclusive preseason voting by the football head coaches in the conference.

Trinity shared the conference title last season with DePauw University and the University of the South-Sewanee as all three finished with 4-2 SCAC marks. For the fourth-consecutive year, the TU Tigers represented the SCAC in the NCAA football championships and made it to the national quarterfinals before bowing out to Hardin-Simmons (Tex.) University 33-30. Trinity advanced to the national semifinals in both 1998 and 1999.

In the same voting, DePauw quarterback Jason Lee, a 6-1, 210-pound senior from Indianapolis, Ind., was selected as the SCAC Preseason Offensive Player-of-the-Year. Lee, the 2000 SCAC Offensive Player-of-the-Year, finished last season second in the league in passing efficiency (117.0 rating), passing (243.8 yards/game) and total offense (232.8 yards/game) and led the Tigers' to a share of the conference championship with six consecutive victories after opening the year 0-4. His 2,194 passing yards is the fifth-highest in a single-season in SCAC history and he set school and conference single-game records for completions (41) and attempts (72) against NCAA playoff team Hope (Mich.) College.

There was not a clear-cut favorite among the coaches on the defensive side of the ball as 6-1, 210-pound senior linebacker Jason Geringer of DePauw and 6-0, 185-pound senior linebacker Jason Wheat of Sewanee both received two votes each from the conference's head coaches for SCAC Preseason Defensive Player-of-the-Year.

Geringer, a three-year starter and 2000 All-SCAC second-team selection, had 74 tackles (47 solo), 10 tackles for loss, five sacks and two interceptions for the Tigers last season. Wheat, a first-team All-SCAC selection a year ago, led the Tigers in tackles (79 total / 45 solo) for the second-consecutive year and had 17 tackles for loss. He was also selected to the 2000 Verizon Academic All-District team.

INJURY REPORT

Paintsville lineman Chuck Hicks did not see action in the Allen Central game. Hicks is nursing a hamstring injury he suffered in the August 17 Big Sandy Bowl game against West Carter.

So far, the Allen Central Rebels are for the most part healthy. Knock on wood. Last year the Allen Central Rebels struggled with injuries all season long.

GAME NOTES

Many Prestonsburg Blackcats were on hand to watch the Allen Central-Paintsville game. The Blackcats did not play Friday but instead played Saturday in the Pride of the Mountains Bowl in Hazard.

Versatile sophomore Shane Simpkins just missed an interception that would have went for an interception if caught.

Paintsville freshman Bobby Cassidy saw quite a bit of playing time on the defensive line.

Homecoming at Allen Central is this Friday night. The Rebels face Jenkins (1-1). At stake is both a Homecoming win and a district win. Jenkins got its first win in the first game of the season against Knott County Central.

The win upped Prestonsburg's record to 2-0. Prestonsburg and Bell County kicked off under a hot and humid conditions. When the first quarter of play came to an end, Bell County held a slim 8-6 advantage. Quarter number two had Prestonsburg mounting a comeback, outscoring Bell County 12-8 to take an 18-16 lead into the half. A stingy Blackcat defense held Bell County scoreless in the second half. After being held scoreless in the second quarter, Prestonsburg put a go-ahead touchdown on the board in the fourth quarter.

Bell County's offense managed more total yards than the Prestonsburg offense (383-345) but failed to put the ball into the endzone.

The Blackcats outrushed Bell County's ground game 323-287. The Bobcats did however manage more yards through the air, 96-22. Prestonsburg quarterback Joey Willis was one-of-two on pass attempts for 22 yards. Senior split end Austin Clark hauled in the lone pass.

On defense, Matt Setser had Prestonsburg's only interception of the evening. Senior defensive end Kevin Younce led the Prestonsburg defense with 11 tackles. Tony White, another senior defensive end, recorded Prestonsburg's only sack.

Friday night will be a milestone of sorts for the Prestonsburg football program as the Blackcats hold their first game on their new field. The Blackcats play host the Paintsville Tigers in a game set for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

million debt. Does anybody besides me hear opportunity knocking?

Or, in other words, why not kill two birds with one stone? Why not build a new facility that would nicely package UK's past, present, and future?

Yes, I'm talking about an on-campus building that would house both the museum and practice/office facilities for Tubby's program.

It would have to be located some place that has ample parking and easy access. That's the current museum's biggest problem. Located in the Lexington Civic Center, it's too far off the beaten path, too difficult for today's mall-oriented shoppers to reach. And that's a shame because it's a really worthwhile and interesting way to spend an hour or two.

As a longtime follower of Wildcat hoops (I even contributed the autographed drawing of Dan Issel's sophomore team that hangs in the recreation of Coach Adolph Rupp's office), I've thought long and hard about ways to make the museum more popular and profitable.

But I always end up with the same conclusion: It's going to go out of business unless it comes up with a new location.

As for the practice-facility issue, I must say that I love Memorial Coliseum, where Tubby's team now holds most of its practices. In fact, it's my all-time favorite place to watch basketball. I can't go in there without envisioning Coach Rupp in his brown suit and all the marvelous athletes who played there, from Bill Spivey to Louie Dampier to Kevin Grevey.

Heck, when I was a student at Morton Junior High and Henry Clay High in Lexington, a bunch of us who go to the Coliseum on Saturday mornings when UK was out of town and bribe the janitor, a fellow named George, to let us come in a play. The bribe came in the form of a Roi-Tan cigar, purchased at the drugstore in Chevy Chase.

Yet I also see Tubby's point in that he wants to be able to practice anytime he wants without worrying if the arena is being used by the women's team, the volleyball teams, whatever.

Maybe C.M. Newton or Tubby himself. When Pitino was the UK coach, he bragged that he would need only a week to raise the $150 million, or whatever, to build a new on-campus arena. But UK's recent agreement to stay in Rupp Arena through 2018 renders that issue moot. So why not a new museum/practice/office complex that would cost considerably less?

Fans could visit the new facility with the hopes of learning about the past and getting a glimpse of the present. Maybe, once a week, Tubby could even be talked into opening practice for museum visitors. This concept should be appealing both to veteran fans and youngsters who need to know, say, who Alex Groza was and why he's important to the program that exists today.

The facility could be the scene of all press conferences related to men's basketball. There could be special events where current players could appear with past players for autograph sessions. It would have to be a terrific recruiting vehicle that would help insure the continuation of UK's status as the nation's all-time winningest program.

Heck, there could even be an auditorium where the issues that have plagued UK basketball over the years — overemphasis, point-shaving, rules violations, ticket distribution, media attention — could be openly debated and discussed.

With a concerted effort on behalf of both the museum and the university, the money could be raised. It's time to think big, which the UK did when it built the Coliseum, instead of floundering around. Tubby could get what he wants. The museum could get what it needs. The program and the public would get something new and exciting.

From here, it looks like a win-win. I'd appreciate comments from UK Athletics Director Larry Ivy, or anybody else, as to why it wouldn't work.

You haddy-call it something

by CLYDE PACK

When I was eight or ten years old, Hadacol (we pronounced in Haddy-call, with the standard joke being, they named it that because they "haddy call" it something) was a popular alcohol-saturated, vitamin-mineral patent medicine.

I'm not sure, but I think it was billed as sort of a good-for-what-ails-you health tonic that promised to help kids develop strong, sturdy bones and help grown-ups keep their already strong, sturdy bones strong and sturdy.

Whatever its promise, though, Mom was sold on it, and my little brother and I were most fortunate to have experienced daily doses.

Actually, what I don't remember about the smelly stuff in the big brown bottle far outweighs what I do remember. For instance, I have no earthly idea as to where Mom got it; the company store, most likely. Then again she may have ordered it off the radio, since it was promoted heavily over the air waves by Cajun entrepreneur Coozan Dudley LeBlanc who established the Happy Day Company, and even promoted the product with the "Hadacol Caravan" which traveled around the country with big-name entertainers, like Mickey Rooney, Minnie Pearl and boxing champion Jack Dempsey, in tow.

I can't remember how it tasted, either, except it tasted better than cod-liver oil, and I hated them both. I haven't a clue as to how long we took the stuff, nor whether or not it did us any good. I guess it didn't hurt us any, because we both grew into reasonably healthy adults.

Anyway, what brought this 50-year-old memory into my little noggin in the first place, was something I read in a magazine article about vitamins. Apparently these days the broad term vitamins has given way to the broad term dietary supplements, with far more than strong, sturdy bones in mind. The article noted that more than $3 billion a year are spent on such supplements in his country, to help everything from chronic fatigue to lack of sleep.

I'm almost certain that the only fatigue we experienced as kids was of the physical nature, brought on by running the hills ragged, playing cowboys and Indians, or from a half-day's swim in our ole swimming hole in the head of Pond Holler. Our only problem with sleep was likely the result of our over-active imaginations

Misty Daniels comes to PES

Misty Daniels, a veteran of both the Kentucky Opry and Jenny Wiley Theatre, leads a group of Prestonsburg Elementary fourth grade students in a few warm-up exercises before Thursday afternoon's instructional session.

What do you get when you pair an accomplished actress with an impressive list of credits, among them a New York residency, with a group of Floyd County schoolchildren who know practically nothing about the world of theater? You get lots of eye-opening enthusiasm and excitement so intense that it takes every fiber of the children's being to sit still and listen and not jump up and dance, or sing, or perform a soliloquy.

Misty Daniels, a veteran of both Jenny Wiley Theatre productions, as well as an original cast member of the Kentucky Opry, has arrived on the scene at Prestonsburg Elementary School. Daniels is visiting the school as a guest artist / instructor courtesy of a grant partially funded by the Kentucky Arts Council as part of the state's Teacher Incentive Program (TIP).

The program places artists with varying fields of specialties in state schools for ten-day residency programs.

Prestonsburg Elementary was able to secure Daniels, an eastern Kentucky native, to participate in this program, bringing a wealth of experience in the theater arts to their fourth and fifth grade students.

Daniels grew up in Pikeville, where she said a friend of hers was planning to audition for a part in a Jenny Wiley Theatre production. "I was about 14 years old," said Daniels, "basically, my friend was auditioning, and so I wanted to do it too. I did, and I got the part, and so, just went on from there. But Jenny Wiley is where it all started for me, and now, even in New York, I meet people who have performed at Jenny Wiley. You'd be surprised how many, and actually, the New York theater community is really quite small - in proportion - so you get to meet a lot of people."

Daniels' role at Prestonsburg Elementary is to introduce the children to theater arts and to provide them with a basic knowledge of the many different fields of work available in a career in the theater. Daniels is quick to point out that not all theater workers are actors and actresses, there are many more people working behind the scenes in costume design, set design, make-up, lighting and sound, and directors, to name only a few.

Daniels began her initial session with the students by having them critique her performance of a "book report." Daniels gave her report with hands in pockets, slumping and giggling, with her attention wandering to various focal points around the room and making sure that in no way would she make direct eye contact with any member of her audience.

As the children's hands flew into the air and they prepared to offer their critiques, Daniels explained to them how we communicate with our bodies, that even though the words we speak may offer one message, our body language can offer a conflicting message.

In the same vein, Daniels informed the students that different inflections of our voices can convey varying meanings, though the words spoken can be exactly the same. The children were instructed to perform a drill in which they had to say the words, "Blue bugs have black blood," in manners denoting excitement and embarrassment. The children were able to see how the same words took on entirely different meanings depending on the tone in which the words were spoken.

The children also did what Daniels termed, "mirroring exercises," in which they sat across from each other and attempted to mirror one another's actions so well that an observer would have difficulty determining who was following who. The key, Daniels explained to the children was to move slowly and to pay close attention to your partner. This exercise is a first step in learning how to follow fellow actors on stage. "You don't just get on the stage and worry only about your lines - you have to pay attention to the others on stage. What are they doing, what are they saying - you have to learn to follow leads and make it all look natural as you're doing it," she went on to say.

Obviously, there is much to this business of the performing arts than readily meets the eye. As one child observed, "I didn't know acting was such hard work." Another student commented quite astutely, "I used to think that acting was just getting up and saying words, but now I know that it is very emotional, too."

"Yeah, it's more than it looks like," added her mirroring partner, "you have to let it come from your heart."

All the children were in general agreement that "Misty makes it fun" to learn about acting. "I thought this class was going to be boring, just reading stories or something, but it isn't boring, it's fun," said one little girl.

Daniels is very appreciative to have the opportunity to work with our area's children in a realm that she herself loves so much. Not a newcomer to the field of education, holding a degree in secondary English education and having taught kindergarten at one point, Daniels is, nonetheless, excited to be working with children again and to be teaching them the basics of drama and theater, something they would, otherwise, be exposed to in a limited capacity.

"I can't say enough in praise of Wendy Poe and Rebecca Haywood. They did the incredibly hard work of grant writing as well as all the follow-ups that made it possible for me to be here. Mrs. Hale-Frazier and all the teachers and staff have been very supportive, also. This school has shown great ingenuity and vision in selecting this program. Exposure to the arts is so important."

Small World...

An old fisherman remembered

From the time Dewey Lake was established, there has been no shortage of local fishermen anxious to try their luck in this body of water so close to home. On almost any given day, there would be boats going out with optimistic anglers who expected each venture to bring about the big catch that would break somebody else's record.

Among these individuals was our former editor and publisher, Norman Allen, who often wrote about the ups and downs of his efforts and about the proverbial fisherman's luck. He was in company with many friends that included Red Osborne, Russell Hagewood, Red Moore, Cecil Rice, Russell Stratton, Jack Branham, Walter Hall, Beecher Hardwick and others.

Beecher Hardwick lived in Betsy Layne and was accustomed to fishing the Big Sandy River where he had a knack for catching big catfish. But he, too, enjoyed the lake and was often joined by his favorite fishing partner, John P. Sammons of Martin.

Beecher enjoyed the local fishing but once his son, Tom, and grandsons, Bret and Brad, who lived in Michigan, planned a trip into Canada and convinced him he should come along. It was an adventure where a plane flew you into wilderness country with all your fishing gear and supplies. Then as the plane would leave, the pilot would call out, "I'll be back for you in a week." If you forgot to bring salt or any such supplies, that would just be tough. Whatever you ate for the week would be minus whatever you forgot.

After stashing their supplies away, they were ready for the mission they came for. A bit awed by the area, Beecher said, "I'm not sure I know how to fish in water like this." But Tom told him, "Just fish like you do for those catfish back in the Big Sandy." So he cast a line out and immediately a big fish hit the bait. It gave him the fight of his life and, when he finally got it in the boat, they saw it was a 48 inch Northern Pike.

Beecher lay down in the boat, beside the fish, and said, "If I don't catch another fish while I'm here, my trip has been worth it."

Back on Dewey Lake, some weeks later, he had another good day that made him the envy of all the local fishermen. He caught a whopper of a bass that had everyone saying it was the largest such fish they'd seen come out of the lake. Word soon spread among die-hard and would-be-anglers alike. Those in the area were coming by to take a look and estimated it weighed about nine and a half pounds.

After jubilating a while about his good fortune, he put the fish on a stringer and continued to push his luck. But when he'd had enough for one day, he reached for the stringer to take his prize home. But the fish had broken the stringer and was gone. He was one broken hearted fisherman.

His family says he came home and put his fishing gear away, saying he'd never go fishing again. When he'd hear John P. say things like, "Fishing is really good right now," or others would discuss what bait was working for them, he would turn a deaf ear.

It had been five years of no fishing when Tom brought his family for a visit. He and the boys went about setting a trot line in the Big Sandy and, almost without thinking,

Ten Years Ago (August 28 and August 30)

An Ashland businessman has pleaded guilty in federal court to charges of bank fraud in a case involving a Floyd County bank. Eric Charles, a car and coal dealer, pleaded guilty to 12 counts, including one charge that he defrauded more than $1 million from the Bank Josephine in Prestonsburg. The local issue involved Charles' alleged execution of a scheme to defraud a federally insured bank, and of submitting false documents in support of loans...A quick response by the Prestonsburg Fire Department can be credited for saving the V&R Market at Goble-Roberts from more extensive fire damage than it received on August 26. According to assistant fire chief, Mike Wells, a call came into Station Two at 9:45 p.m., Monday. Firefighter Mike Moore was attending church down the street from the market and was the first on the scene, radioing to the other firefighters that smoke and flames were visible, Wells said...Dewayne Bush takes pride in his work, and now he can take pride in knowing he's the best in Kentucky. Bush won the title of Kentucky's best bagger at the Kentucky Grocers' Association trade show at Heritage Hall Sunday, August 25. He received $200, a $500 scholarship, and will compete at a national contest in Orlando, Florida, in February...Talks between Floyd County teachers and school administrators reached an impasse, Tuesday evening, leaving questions about school finances unresolved less than 48 hours before district teachers are scheduled to vote on a possible strike. Representatives of the Floyd County Education Association (FCEA) met three hours, Tuesday evening, with a district budget committee, school finance officer Russell Frazier, board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell and superintendent Ronald Hager, before reaching a statemate over budgeted expenditures...A break-in last weekend at the Floyd County Board of Education's book depository at Wayland school resulted in a loss of school equipment and destruction of school property. The thieves stole approximately $1,000 worth of student calculators and caused more than $4,000 in damages, said assistant superintendent Gary Frazier, Monday when the break-in was discovered...The U.S. Chamber of Commerce sees child care as the fastest growing business in the next decade. The State Cabinet for Human Resources says it will be the favored benefit of the '90s. To help Floyd Countians become more informed about their options in this area, Carol Lewandowski, human services coordinator for Big Sandy Area Development District, coordinated a seminar, Tuesday, entitled "All About Business and Child Care" and invited area businesspeople and child caregivers...It appears that the 1991-92 school year could start as scheduled, even though a majority of Floyd County teachers voted Thursday to strike. The Floyd County Board of Education decided at a special meeting, Thursday, to ask the state Department of Education for assistance in solving a budget impasse between the district's budget committee and the school board's representatives...Preliminary construction could begin this fall on the Prestonsburg connector from new Route 23, but full-scale development won't begin before the spring of 1992. Tentative approval was given last Friday, August 23, to a $15.4 million bid for the ambitious project, which calls for construction of an overpass near Glyn View Plaza. The construction bid, offered by Bizzack Bros. Construction, has not yet been awarded...A keen eye by a Prestonsburg Police officer, Tuesday evening, led to the recovery of a vehicle stolen from Ohio and the arrest of a Floyd County man under indictment. Patrolman Mike Conn observed a suspicious vehicle at Greer Meat Company on South Lake Drive, at 10 p.m., Tuesday and his investigation resulted in the recovery of the vehicle reported stolen from Warren, Ohio, and two arrests...Larry Hardin, 44, nephew of Prestonsburg resident Pat Mills, became the first Martin Countian to successfully undergo a heart transplant operation, having survived the critical first 48 hours in good shape in the University of Kentucky intensive care unit at Lexington. "He's a miracle," said Hardin's surgeon, Dr. Michael Sekela, who headed the seven-man operating team...A cry for help was heard and heeded this week, as more than 175 people turned out at the Central Kentucky Blood Center in Prestonsburg to give for the "Great American Blood Drive." According to Billy Biddle, donor resources consultant, three records were broken during this week's drive, which was conducted on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The single day record is now set at 66 registering to donate; the blood-drive total record was passed with 178; and the Rotary vs. the Jaycees on-going battle surpassed the past three drives' total collection...There died: John Lee Crum, 58, of Martin, Saturday, at his residence; Ruby Mae Hackworth Bradford, 66, of Blue River, Saturday, at Highlands Regional Medical Center; Richard Wyatt, 69, of Galion, Ohio, Tuesday, at Galion Community Hospital; Williba Hall, 74, of Virgie, August 22, at his residence; Doris Ann Spradlin Lafferty of Prestonsburg was incorrectly listed in last Wednesday's edition as 56 years old at her death. She was 53. Couple to wed

Mrs. Dora Heath, of Elizabethtown, is happy to announce the engagement and upcoming wedding ceremony of her daughter, Judy Miller, to Arnold Griffith, the son of Christina and the late Elbert Griffith, of David. The wedding ceremony will take place on Saturday, September 8, 2001, at the afternoon hour of three o'clock, at Ms. Miller's Allen residence. A reception in the couple's honor will be held immediately following the ceremony. The gracious custom of an open wedding will be observed and a cordial invitation is extended to all friends and family members. The couple plan to reside in Allen.

Wedding announcement

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Salley, of Winchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Silas Ritchie, of Frenchburg, are happy to announce the upcoming wedding of their children, Gina Mae Salley, and Garlon "Buck" Ritchie. The ceremony will take place on Saturday, September 8, 2001, at the afternoon hour of four o'clock, at the Macedonia Baptist Church, Mt. Sterling. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed.

AAA offers tips to parents for children flying solo

Recent episodes of temporarily misplaced children who were flying alone should prompt parents to take extra precautions before allowing youngsters to travel solo, according to AAA.

In general, airlines allow children ages 5 to 7, to fly alone on non-stop or direct flights, and those 8 or older to make connections. Most airlines also charge a service fee of at least $30 one-way for an unaccompanied minor.

AAA provides the following advice for parents of children who will be flying alone:

- Discuss special needs with the airline. Tell the agent the child is flying alone, who will take the child to the airport and who will pick up at the other end.
- Have your child carry all important information—name, address, phone number of a contact person, itinerary—in a safe place.
- Make sure your child has the ticket in a safe place. If it's lost, tell the child to ask the flight attendant for help.
- Give your child a pre-paid calling card, and instructions on how to reach you in case of delays.
- Ask the airline if you can escort your child onto the plane so you can meet people seated nearby, point out the rest room and explain how and when to use the flight attendant call button.
- If your child will change planes, avoid late afternoon or evening flights. The chance of a flight delay becomes greater then.
- Leave home early to arrive at the airport at least one hour before departure, and at least two hours before an international flight.
- When checking in, you'll need to complete the airline's "unaccompanied minor" form, show your ID and tell the attendant who will pick up the child.
- Ask the airline how it will identify your child as a solo flyer—with a special pin?
- Don't leave for home until the plane takes off, in case the flight is delayed and passengers must leave the plane.

As the nation's largest motoring and leisure travel organization, AAA provides its nearly 44 million members with travel, insurance, financial and automotive-related stories. Since its founding in 1902, AAA has been a leader and advocate for safety and security of all travelers.

Tips to Make Your Child a Lifelong Reader

(NUE) - According to the National Assessment of Educational Progress, 38 percent of the nation's fourth graders do not read at a basic level. With such staggering statistics, parents are looking for ways to ensure their children's reading success.

In response, the National Center for Family Literacy and Snuggle fabric softener have partnered to raise public awareness of the positive role parents can play in preparing their children for reading success. The educational program features tips for parents, family interactive reading activities and a literary prize for new authors.

Many parents find it difficult to get their children to read because kids often are lured away by flashier activities, like video games and television shows. To help children to be lifelong readers, NCFL offers the following tips:

- Reward patrol. Consider setting up a system of rewards for reading books with small "prizes" that relate to the book theme. Reading a selection of books on nature could lead to a hike in the woods or a book on animals could be rewarded with a trip to the zoo.
- That's write. Have your children choose a relative or friend who has moved away to be their special pen pal. When children get letters, they will be excited to read them and write back. This is a great way to get your children to read and build their vocabulary skills.
- Museums, aquariums, zoos - oh my! Encourage your children to read aloud the signs posted next to the exhibits at fun family destinations. Not only will they learn about what they are seeing, but they also will gain confidence in reading aloud.

Cash flow management and the small business owner—Part I

As the owner of a small business, you've probably already discovered that commercial opportunities sometimes knock when they're least expected. Unfortunately, unless your company has sufficient cash on hand to meet these opportunities, they may pass you by. One way of better preparing your business to take advantage of the unexpected, is to practice sound cash flow management. In this two-part article, we'll briefly discuss the concept of cash flow management and highlight its importance to the small business owner.

Cash and the cash flow cycle

Every small business needs cash in order to carry out everyday commercial transactions, such as meeting a payroll, buying raw materials and paying taxes. But, there will probably also be occasions when your company (especially if its growing) could use additional cash in order to take advantage of unexpected business opportunities, such as one-time supplier discounts or unusually favorable lease terms.

Cash flow, which represents the cyclical movement of money into and out of your business, operates as follows: Money, whether from start up funding, loans or sales proceeds, enters your company and is converted into the goods and services you sell to your customers; these sales then bring in a new supply of cash and the cycle begins anew. Of course, running any business would be considerably easier if every expense was matched by a simultaneous sale of equal or greater value. Unfortunately, in the real world, cash flows into and out of your company rarely coincide. Moreover, inflows usually lag behind outflows (sometimes by months or even years) and that can leave your business periodically short of cash.

Cash flow analysis

You can also think of the cash flow cycle as representing the time between paying what your business owes (payables) and collecting what it is owed (receivables). Analyzing the cycle is an essential part of cash flow management and can help you gain a better understanding of your operations by highlighting problem areas that may be contributing to unnecessary gaps in your cash flow. Examining how cash flows into and out of your business should also allow you to answer the following questions:

- How much cash do we have?
- How much do we need to operate?
- When is it needed, where does it come from, and where does it go?
- Can our cash flow be improved?

A good first step is to examine the individual components that affect the timing of your company's cash flow. For most businesses, these components include, but need not be limited to:

- Accounts receivable
- Accounts payable
- Credit policies

Inventory.

Accounts receivable are the amounts a business is owed from prior sales, but for which cash has yet to be collected. Through cash flow analysis you can identify the gaps caused by this lag behind sales and collections.

Accounts payable are the amounts a business owes in the near future—usually a period of from one to three months. Cash flow analysis can help you decide if your accounts payable schedule is too tight, and placing an unnecessary strain on your company's cash flow.

Credit policies are the guidelines a company uses when extending or not extending credit to its customers. Too strict a policy can result in too many lost sales, while too lax a policy can lead to excessive amounts of uncollected receivables. In either case, effective cash flow analysis can help reveal the need for credit policy adjustments.

Inventory consists of the "extra" products or supplies a business keeps on hand to meet expected customer demand. Having too little inventory on hand leaves customer demand unmet, while an excessive amount of inventory merely absorbs cash that could be diverted to more critical areas. Cash flow analysis can help you determine the inventory level that's best for your business.

Keep it short

The shorter your company's cash flow cycle, the better. A short cash flow cycle can help reduce the amount of working capital needed for daily operations. Although every company operates under its own unique set of circumstances, there are generally two ways to shorten your cycle. Reducing manufacturing/development time; and shrinking the gap between sales and receivables collection.

Until each month's cash conversion cycle is completed, your receivables represent "idle" funds that are unavailable for other purposes. In order to continue operating until this money is deposited in your account, it may be necessary to obtain short-term outside funding. While effective, short-term financing does impose the additional cost of the interest payments owed to your lender. But, if you can keep your cash flow cycle as short as possible, these additional costs should be kept to a minimum.

Valley National Gases reports fourth quarter and fiscal year endings Valley National Gases Incorporated (Amex: VLG) reported recently that net earnings for the fourth quarter and year ended June 30, 2001, were $.08 and $.45 per diluted share, respectively, before the effect of charges related to the adoption of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 133 (SFAS No. 133), compared to $.08 and $.39 per diluted share for the same periods last year. Sales for the fourth quarter were $32.8 million, a 1.2 percent increase over the same quarter last year. Sales for the year were $141.3 million, a 12.1 percent increase over last year. Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (Ebitda) for the year increased 12 percent over the prior year, to $23.7 million.

Valley National Gases' President and Chief Executive Officer, Lawrence Bandi, commented, "We are extremely pleased with our performance for the year as net earnings increased 16 percent exclusive of the non-cash charges to interest expense. With our recognition of the continuing softness in the automotive, steel and basic manufacturing industries affecting our core business of industrial gases and welding supplies, we instituted steps and effectively reduced operating expenses net of acquisitions as sequential quarter expenses decreased $1.5 million. These initiatives are on-going and focus on actions to further leverage our existing operations, distribution routes and corporate overhead. Our management team is committed to improving earnings, even in a down-turned economy, while continuing to provide exceptional service to our customers."

Bandi further commented on Valley's acquisition growth stating, "We completed four acquisitions during the fiscal year, further strengthening our existing markets and providing geographic diversity into markets with excellent growth prospects. These added businesses bring our current annualized sales to $155 million.

Sales mix for the quarter consisted of 56 percent from gases and cylinder income and 44% from hard goods, compared to 52 percent from gases ad cylinder income and 48 percent from hard goods for the same period last year. Sales mix for the year consisted of 60 percent from gases and cylinder income and 40 percent from hard goods, compared to 55 percent from gases and cylinder income and 45 percent from hard goods for the same period last year.

Net earnings for the quarter decreased 3.5 percent to $0.7 million before the effect of SFAS No. 133, compared to the same quarter last year. Fiscal year net earnings, before the effect of SFAS No. 133, increased 16 percent to $4.2 million compared to $3.6 million for the same period last year. Net earnings for the quarter ended June 30, 2001 were $.07 per diluted share, which includes charges of $.01 per diluted share related to the adoption of SFAS No. 133, compared to $.08 per diluted share for the same quarter last year. Net earnings for the year ended June 30, 2001, were $.42 per diluted share, which includes charges of $.03 per diluted share related to the adoption of SFAS No. 133, compared to $.39 per diluted share for the year ended June 30, 2000.

On July 1, 2000, the Company changed its method of accounting for financial instruments to comply with SFAS No. 133. The Company primarily uses interest rate swap agreements to reduce the potential impact of increases in interest rates on floating-rate long-term debt. The current quarter and year results include an increase of interest expenses of $187,000 and $523,000, respectively, to record changes in the fair market value of the Company's interest rate swap agreements.

On April 2, 2001, the Company completed the purchase of two propane operations of Dixie Gas & Oil Inc. The operations are located in Franklin and Moorefield, West Virginia, with combined annual sales of approximately $2.5 million.

On May 17, 2001, the Company announced that it completed the acquisition of eight industrial gas and welding distribution branches from Air Liquide America Corporation, which included three branches formerly operated as Tampa Oxygen & Welding Supply. The operation are located in west-central Florida, representing approximately $11 million in annual sales.

On July 18, 2001, the Company announced an agreement to purchase The Buckeye Corporation & Mansfield Oxygen Corporation located in Canton and Mansfield, Ohio, respectively, having approximately $2.5 million in annual sales.

Valley National Gases, with headquarters in Wheeling, West Virginia, is a leading packager and distributor of industrial, medical and specialty gases, welding equipment and supplies, propane and fire protection equipment. Valley National Gases operates sixty-eight locations in 11 states, with seven production and distribution centers in the eastern United States.

Valley National Gases Inc., has a location on South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg.

NOTICE OF HEARING
Floyd County Bond Anticipation Notes, Series 2001
Floyd County, Kentucky, Public Properties Corporation First Mortgage Revenue Bonds, Series 2003 (Water Line Construction Project)
Notice is hereby given that pursuant to a petition of the Floyd

County Fiscal Court requesting the State Local Debt Officer to approve the financial plan whereby Floyd County, Kentucky, proposes to issue its Bond Anticipation Notes, Series 2001 in an approximate amount of $2,000,000 (which may be increased or decreased by 10%) and approximately $2,000,000 (which amount of bonds may be increased or decreased by an amount of up to $200,000) of its County Public Properties Corporation First Mortgage Revenue Bonds, Series 2003. A hearing will be held in the Conference Room, Department for Government, 1024 Capital Drive, Frankfort, Kentucky, on September 10, 2001, at 10:00 a.m. EST to consider whether or not the financial plan for the issuance of the Bonds should be approved. Petitioner Floyd County Fiscal Court is responsible for the publication of this notice and for the information contained herein. Specific questions about the type of project should be directed to the petitioner. The purpose of this notice is to comply with KRS 66.310 by notifying the public that the petitioner intends to issue bonds or other indebtedness in the total amount and at the terms set out herein. At this hearing, any taxpayer may appear, and will be given an opportunity to be heard.

Eugene L. Kiser, Jr.
State Local Debt Officer
Commonwealth of Kentucky
Be wise... advertise 886-8506

STOP!
You've cleared out your attic, your basement, your garage and now you're ready to host a garage sale. Before you proceed, follow these signs for placing the type of classified ad that will help turn your event into a bonanza.
Be sure to include in your Garage or Yard Sale ad...

1 WHAT.
Describe the type of sale you're hosting. Is it mostly household goods? Nursery furniture? Apparel?

2 WHEN.
Give dates and time of sale, and list date information.

3 WHERE.
Where the sale will be held, with directions or phone number for directions.

4 WHY.
Reason for sale, especially if it is a "moving" sale, since these tend to attract more customers.

Let one of our "ad-visors" help you with your ad. Call 886-8506
