PIKEVILLE — A procession of people took turns entering innocent pleas Tuesday to charges of election fraud in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

For most of the 10 defendants, including former state Sen. John Doug Hays, it was the second time they had stood before U.S. Magistrate Judge Peggy Patterson to enter the pleas.

A grand jury had issued a new indictment on June 6, adding mail fraud charges to the allegations that they had conspired to buy votes in last year's election.

Hays, his wife, and prominent Pike County businessman Ross Harris were among those who appeared for the arraignment hearings.

Prosecutors had sought the new indictment as a means to move the trial to U.S. District Court in Frankfort. Assistant U.S. Attorney Kenneth R. Taylor said in a court document that the defendants are so influential and well known that prospective jurors in eastern Kentucky could be improperly influenced.

No decision has yet been made on whether to move the case.

Flood victims assisted with cleanup

by ANNA L. MALLORY
REPORTER

ESTILL — Except for the water spots, Barbara Collier's floors are bare.

The musty stench from water that inundated the first floor of her home is still there. It may never leave, she worries, knowing she'll eventually get used to it.

But the fear of rising water is something to which she'll never become accustomed.

"It just kept coming," she said of last week's flooding. "No body knew it would get this bad."

This is the fourth time her home has been hit hard by flooding in the past 50 years since she's lived there — the home where she cared for her mother, two ailing sisters and ultimately her father.

Faith keeps her going.

"You just hope and pray it's not going to get any higher," she said. Sixty-eight year old Collier and her 34-year-old daughter Sandy Brown both say they wouldn't know what to do without the help of the Lord.

"If it weren't for Him, I would have died," the wheelchair-bound diabetic said. She was upstairs when the water got too deep to wade on the bottom floor.

(See VOLUNTEERS, page six)

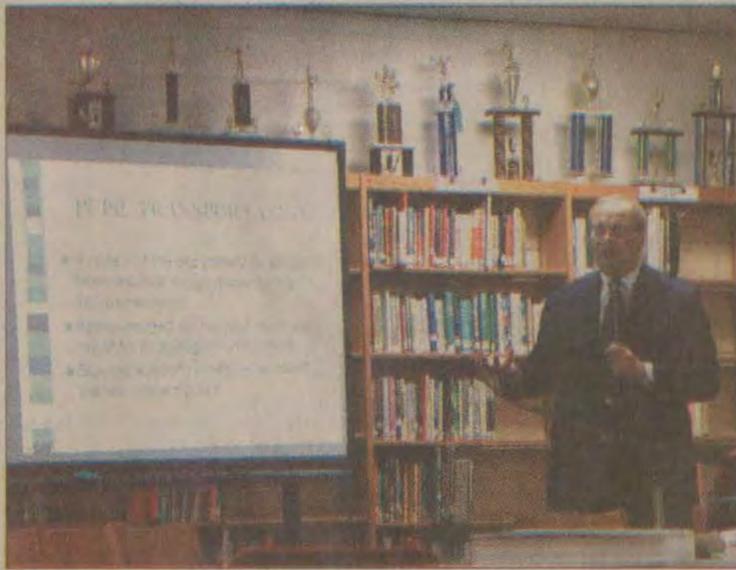

About 16 National Guardsmen, part of a crew of nearly 50 county and state workers, helped with cleanup efforts from last week's flooding. Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson said he expects the relief to take months.

Floyd County Schools Superintendent Paul Fanning told board members their schools were ready to be released from the state managed status they have been under since 1998. He cited academic performance, governance, finance, student support, equity and transportation as a few of the categories that have seen improvement.

Board votes to seek greater independence

by ANNA L. MALLORY

BETSY LAYNE — Despite dissenting opinion, the county's administration could soon obtain more control over its schools.

The Floyd County Board of Education voted 4-1 at its Monday meeting to petition the Kentucky Board of Education to become state assisted, not state managed as it has been for the past five years.

"I think we are a point now to ask for this," Superintendent Paul W. Fanning told the board. "It's not the best thing to write home to mama about, but it's improvement."

Fanning cited figures from the past decade, which he said demonstrated academic progress. In 1994, test scores, which come from the Kentucky Department of Education, show Floyd County elementary performance in the 30th percentile. This past academic year's performance illustrates a 30-point jump.

Not everyone on the board was satisfied with the numbers, though.

BETSY LAYNE — One in three teenagers in the county is overweight, according to a school board committee's research.

Assistant Superintendent Pete

Grigsby Jr., told the Floyd County Board of Education Monday night the answer to that problem is better nutrition and nutrition education in the school system.

"We need to do something," he said.

As a member of the Nutrition/

Health/Physical Education Committee, he and the four other members presented a recommendation that would change the material available to students through their vending machines.

Report on status of women released

FRANKFORT — Women from across the state gathered in Frankfort this past weekend to review the final report of the Governor's Task Force on the Economic Status of Kentucky's Women.

The report, "A New Vision for Kentucky," was officially released at the first Summit on the Economic Status of Kentucky's Women, a project of the Kentucky Commission on Women.

The report focuses on task force recommendations geared toward improving the lives of Kentucky women in five areas — economic sufficiency, education, equity, leadership and well-being.

Additionally, a report on state government employees was also released at the summit.

Welcoming summit participants on Friday afternoon, First Lady Judi Patton, honorary co-chair of the task force, said, "Each of you is to be congratulated for taking part in this historic

Pike wreck brings three murder counts

Times Staff Report

PIKEVILLE — A Kimper trucker faces three counts of murder after police said he was driving under the influence of drugs during a crash which claimed three lives.

George D. Williams, 38, was headed north on U.S. 23 near Foxcroft in his 2000 Mack flatbed truck shortly before 7:30 a.m. Monday, when an auger bit he was hauling snapped free from the truck and landed in the northbound lanes. The bit collided with two vehicles, setting a Chevrolet S-10 ablaze.

Larry D. Smallwood, 47, of Wheelwright, and Dudley Williams, 42, of Bevinville, were in the S-10 at the time of the accident. Both men were killed.

Smallwood was an employee of the Pikeville Automotive Group, while Dudley worked at Bruce Walters.

The driver of the other vehicle, a 1998 Pontiac Grand Am, was also killed. Carolyn S. Adkins, 38, of Jenkins, was dead when rescuers arrived.

Complaint alleges medical test fraud

LEXINGTON — Two insurance companies have filed a $1 million lawsuit against a Paintsville doctor and three directors of clinics and billing services, accusing them conducting a scheme to double-bill unnecessary medical procedures.

Allstate Insurance Company and Liberty Mutual Group filed the suit April 16 in U.S. District Court in Lexington against three Florida men — Greg S. Mack, Mark L'Hommedieu and Larry Lammers — and Dr. Olen D. Amerson, of Hager Hill.

The complaint also names several clinics and billing services, including Injury & Rehab Centers of Kentucky, Accident Injury Medical Centers, Physician's Medical Services, Paintsville-Pikeville Physician Services, GSM Inc., Comprehensive Medical Data, Intergroup Medical, Innovative Diagnostics of Kentucky and Mack Properties.

The complaint outlines a complicated scheme, primarily perpetrated by Mack and L'Hommedieu, who allegedly "directed several companies" operating "extensively" in Kentucky, including ■ BOULDER, Colo. — It's art to some, yes, but apparently not to the custodian who threw away the newest exhibit at the Boulder Public Library.

After being pulled out of the garbage, "My Favorite Place to Walk in Boulder: Or Found Trash Objects" officially opened Friday at the downtown library. The display features common trash found by University of Colorado art students in otherwise scenic spots citywide.

"This is a slightly different kind of art," said Karen Ripley, director of cultural programs. "It's not meant to be beautiful."

"One of the comments our maintenance guy made was that it smells," said Ripley, who saved the artwork. She said the odor could have been coming from a soggy brown leather clog found in a drinking fountain.

When the janitor dumped the display, there were no signs or barriers to indicate it was anything but what it looked like: a pile of rubbish, Ripley said.

Intended as a social commentary on ecology, the exhibit includes a green Frisbee, a plastic cookie cutter, a cigarette package and a drink coaster.

■ READLYN, Iowa — There's a new grump in town.

Every year in Readlyn, a small town about 20 miles north of Waterloo, a new grump is crowned to preside over the annual parade, talent show, dance and other activities in a celebration called Grump Days.

Janice Heineman was crowned Thursday as grump for 2003, after receiving more votes than five other candidates. She presided over the weekend's festivities.

Grump qualifications are simple - you must live in Readlyn and be at least 65 years old.

Drivers entering the town are greeted with a sign that reads,

"Welcome to Readlyn, home to 857 friendly people and one old grump."

■ CLAYCOMO, Mo. — This Kansas City suburb was abuzz after a tractor-trailer carrying 520 bee hives hit a slick patch and skidded off a highway interchange, spilling millions of bees.

The accident occurred shortly after 1:30 a.m. Sunday on the entrance ramp linking Interstates 435 and 35, the Missouri State Highway Patrol said.

Driver Steve Beavers was hauling the bees from Millerton, Okla., to Wisconsin, where they were to pollinate cranberry fields. His injuries: multiple stings. Firefighters, police and tow truck operators got their fair share, too.

Beavers said a woman and her husband stopped to help less than a minute after the accident.

"She asked, 'What are these insects?'" Beavers said. "I told her 'bees,' and she said, 'I have to go.'"

Police and firefighters alerted residents throughout the day of the swarming mess.

Residents of the Northgate Mobile Estates mobile home park, within 100 yards of the accident, said they stayed inside during the day or left their homes.

"They're all over the trailer park. It's a mess over the whole general area," bee expert Reuben Johnson said.

As the sun set Sunday, the bees started to settle as the temperature dropped. Johnson donned protective gear and got busy scooping up the bees.

"It's an exciting job. You don't get this very often," Johnson said. "I'll work all night if I have to."

The work continued through nightfall Monday.

■ HARRISBURG, Pa. — The Pennsylvania lottery hit the same number twice in its "Big 4" drawings, making 3-1-9-9 a very lucky number indeed for anyone who picked it for both the midday and evening drawings.

Those four numbers were randomly generated by a computer for the Monday midday drawing and then also selected in the traditional random pingpong ball drawing in the evening.

Bill Powell, a lottery representative, said it was the first time the same four numbers have appeared during the same day in Pennsylvania, but it has occurred elsewhere.

Powell noted that the drawing of a particular set of numbers in the midday drawing has no effect on the possibility of those numbers being picked later. The odds of any four numbers being picked in the Big 4 drawing is 1 in 10,000.

"It's completely random," he said. "The balls do not have a memory." The Pennsylvania Big 4 game paid 225 winners a total of $49,600 for the afternoon drawing and 1,887 winners a total of $759,200 in the evening.

Today is Wednesday, June 25, the 176th day of 2003. There are 189 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 25, 1950, war broke out in Korea as forces from the communist North invaded the South.

On this date:

■ In 1788, the state of Virginia ratified the U.S. Constitution.

■ In 1876, Lt. Col. George A. Custer and his Seventh Cavalry were wiped out by Sioux and Cheyenne Indians in the Battle of the Little Bighorn in Montana.

■ In 1942, some 1,000 British Royal Air Force bombers raided Bremen, Germany, during World War II.

■ In 1951, the first commercial color telecast took place as CBS transmitted a one-hour special from New York to four other cities.

■ In 1962, the Supreme Court ruled that the use of an unofficial, non-denominational prayer in New York State public schools was unconstitutional.

■ In 1967, the Beatles performed their new song, "All You Need Is Love," during a live international telecast.

■ In 1973, former White House Counsel John W. Dean began testifying before the Senate Watergate Committee.

■ In 1991, the western Yugoslav republics of Croatia and Slovenia declared their independence.

■ In 1995, Warren Burger, the 15th chief justice of the United States, died in Washington at age 87.

■ In 1996, a truck bomb killed 19 Americans and injured hundreds at a U.S. military housing complex in Saudi Arabia.

Ten years ago:

Vice President Gore cast the tie-breaking vote as the Senate approved a record deficit-reduction plan. Kim Campbell was sworn in as Canada's 19th prime minister, the first woman to hold the post.

Five years ago:

The Supreme Court rejected a 1997 line-item veto law as unconstitutional, and ruled that HIV-infected people are protected by the Americans With Disabilities Act. President Clinton began a nine-day trip to China in the city of Xi'an.

One year ago:

President Bush surveyed a huge wildfire in Arizona by air and declared the region a disaster area. A federal judge in Alexandria, Va., refused to accept a no-contest plea from Zacarias Moussaoui, accused of conspiracy in the Sept. 11 attacks, and instead entered an innocent plea on his behalf.

Mickey McGuire, representing District 1, said he was discouraged rather than encouraged by the performance illustrated.

"I know there are things Superintendent Fanning is working hard to do," he said. "There are people in the school system with ideas, but the proof is in the pudding."

He said each school in the state has jumped since the beginning of the statewide testing because of the adjustment period. Still, he insisted, the county's schools, elementary to high school remain in the back of the pack in academic performance. "When I get a four-page report of all the schools' academic performance, Floyd County Schools are consistently on page four," he said. "That is not

Paintsville, Pikeville, Hazard, London, Corbin, Somerset and Lexington, and also in other states, that offered monetary inducements to doctors "to prescribe tests and refer patients to the defendants' companies for the tests" in order to engage in an "illegal fee-splitting scheme."

Under the alleged scheme, a doctor would "lease" equipment and technicians from the companies, then order "medically unnecessary" tests for their patients.

"Furthermore," the complaint alleges, "the same type of tests are in fact ordered for virtually every patient, regardless of the symptoms or injuries and regardless of the actual medical necessity. The tests are thus a fraudulent means of quickly consuming the patients'

PIP [personal injury protection insurance] and workers' compensation benefits, with little or not benefit to the patients."

The doctors would then bill insurance companies for the technical component of the tests, even though the doctors only ordered and scheduled the tests and provided a room for them to be conducted. At the same time, Intergroup, Comprehensive Medical Data or GSM would allegedly bill insurance companies for interpreting the data.

"The amounts billed for both the professional and technical components were usually about the same, which in effect doubled the costs of the tests," the complaint alleges.

The complaint also alleges that many of the tests had little medical value for the patients and that "medical documentation the referring doctors provided to the plaintiffs rarely contained any documentation that clearly described the need for the planned tests."

The complaint alleges that Mack, L'Hommedieu and Lammers conspired to "induce doctors to refer patients for medically unnecessary electrodiagnostic tests," submitted "false and misleading medical bills" for the tests, "illegally split fees," and "billed for medical treatment, services and equipment that were never rendered or that were excessive and not medically justified."

Amerson, who surrendered his medical license in May 2002 for conduct "likely to deceive, defraud or harm the public," is named in the complaint for submitting "false and fraudulent medical bills" and forms to the insurers, and for ordering "unnecessary diagnostic testing, including MRIs, nerve studies and x-rays."

In the lawsuit, Allstate and Liberty Mutual say the alleged scheme cost their companies over $150,000, but a statement issued by the two companies Monday puts the figure at over $1 million.

Editor's note: A complaint offers only one side of a dispute.

event." Patton told participants that the summit project had "received national recognition" as she proceeded to outline an overall review of the task force's most viable findings.

Informing participants that the task force first convened in November 2001, with its objective being to examine the obstacles to economic progress of Kentucky women, identify solutions and compose a plan of action, Patton said, "Over 51,000 volunteer hours were spent on this project ... more than 300 committed women and men from 55 Kentucky counties worked for nearly a year (on the project)."

According to the report, Kentucky was recently ranked as the third worst state for women due in part to rankings as 47th in women's economic autonomy, 43rd in women's employment and earnings, 48th in women's political participation, 50th in women's health and well-being and 33rd in women's reproductive rights. It ranks 49th in the percentage of women with bachelor's degrees and 39th in women's median annual earnings, contributing to the state's tax base and overall economic health.

Also, according to the report, more than half of households headed by women in Kentucky have incomes below $15,000. Additionally, the findings include that more than 40 percent of the state's low-income mothers do not have health insurance.

"When all mitigating factors are considered," the report reads, "Kentucky men make at least 12 percent more than women with the same educational backgrounds."

Throughout the weekend, summit participants were asked to form groups and to address, in work sessions, some of the report's recommendations geared toward improving the lives of Kentucky women.

Among the recommendations were:

■ To more fully educate Kentucky women about the importance and power of the vote, as well as political activism and fundraising.

■ Develop leadership and mentoring programs for women.

■ Create public awareness about the importance of women to aspire to hold positions of power.

■ Create greater access to job training programs for women.

■ Develop means to supporting women in entrepreneurship.

■ Implement favorable changes in tax reform and public services, allowing women to be able to better afford the education and support services they need to become economically self-sufficient.

■ Create new economic development policies.

■ Create a system of public/private/nonprofit partnership support services for women who wish to further their educations or work outside the home.

■ Develop a means to supporting further research on women's studies and a means to sharing the findings of said research.

■ Promoting the enforcement of existing laws as well as enacting new ones; ensuring that equity be a top priority of state government.

■ Ensuring that training and learning opportunities exist for Kentucky's women and girls and encouraging women to study science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

■ Ensuring that career guidance opportunities for women exist.

■ Develop more and better housing for women.

■ Increase assistance to domestic violence survivors; provide information in regard to preventive health care.

■ Ensure that Kentucky women have access to all reproductive health services.

■ Promote the enlistment of women advocates.

"This report will serve as a guide when, in the future, we assess the status of women in the commonwealth," said KCW Executive Director Betsy Nowland-Curry. "When implemented, the task force recommendations will improve the status of Kentucky families."

"I consider myself fortunate to have been allowed to attend the summit and to take part in the process of improving the economic status of Kentucky's women," said Berthy Carr, one of the participants. "It raised my awareness of the status of women in Kentucky and gave me hope for the improvement of life us. Women make up 51 percent of Kentucky's population. Imagine what we could do if given the opportunity. I would like to encourage everyone to take part in improving the lives of women in Kentucky, even if they can do no more than cast their vote in coming elections."

Serving with Patton as honorary co-chair of the task force was former Gov. Martha Layne Collins, who delivered the keynote address at Saturday's luncheon.

Obesity

"I've seen some of these flavored milks in other places I've been and they seem to work really well," said board and committee member Jeff Stumbo.

The flavored milk vendors go along with the recommendation that 50 percent of the schools' machines must have healthy, low-fat food options and that another 50 percent must have diet sodas, juices and milks.

The vending machine contracts for the schools are up this coming spring, which makes the changes in machines a possibility, but the committee's other recommendations were Grigsby's largest concern.

His contention was that the board must enforce the implementation of an additional full-time physical education instructor to each high school to implement a new exercise curriculum.

"There are other ways, but they're not successful," Grigsby said.

Board Chair Carol Stumbo said it is too early to determine the feasibility of any of those options, but the board voted to send the vending machine portion of the recommendation to the budget committee for review.

After leaving that group, it will be sent to the board for final approval.

Grigsby's contention that the schools enforce a physical education curriculum is not a board decision, Carol Stumbo said. Allocation of funding for such programs can be made, but it is the individual principal's decision to implement the programs, she said.

The committee also recommended:

■ A central office district athletic director for all schools.

■ A physical education instructor for each elementary and middle school.

■ A central office physical education coordinator for all schools.

■ A district swim team.

It issued the following as alternative plans:

■ Fund high school and middle school physical education teachers for 2003-2004.

■ Fund elementary physical education teachers for 2004-2005.

It should surprise no one that Kentucky is among the first states to have its plan for implementing the federal "No Child Left Behind" law approved by the Bush administration. After all, many of the mandates in the federal education law parallel those of the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act. Thus, it took relatively few adjustments for state schools to meet the requirements of the federal law.

The federal law — the centerpiece of President Bush's education program — requires the approximately 1,100 Kentucky schools receiving federal funding to demonstrate that their students are making "adequate yearly progress" toward proficiency, based on test scores in reading and math in grades 3-8.

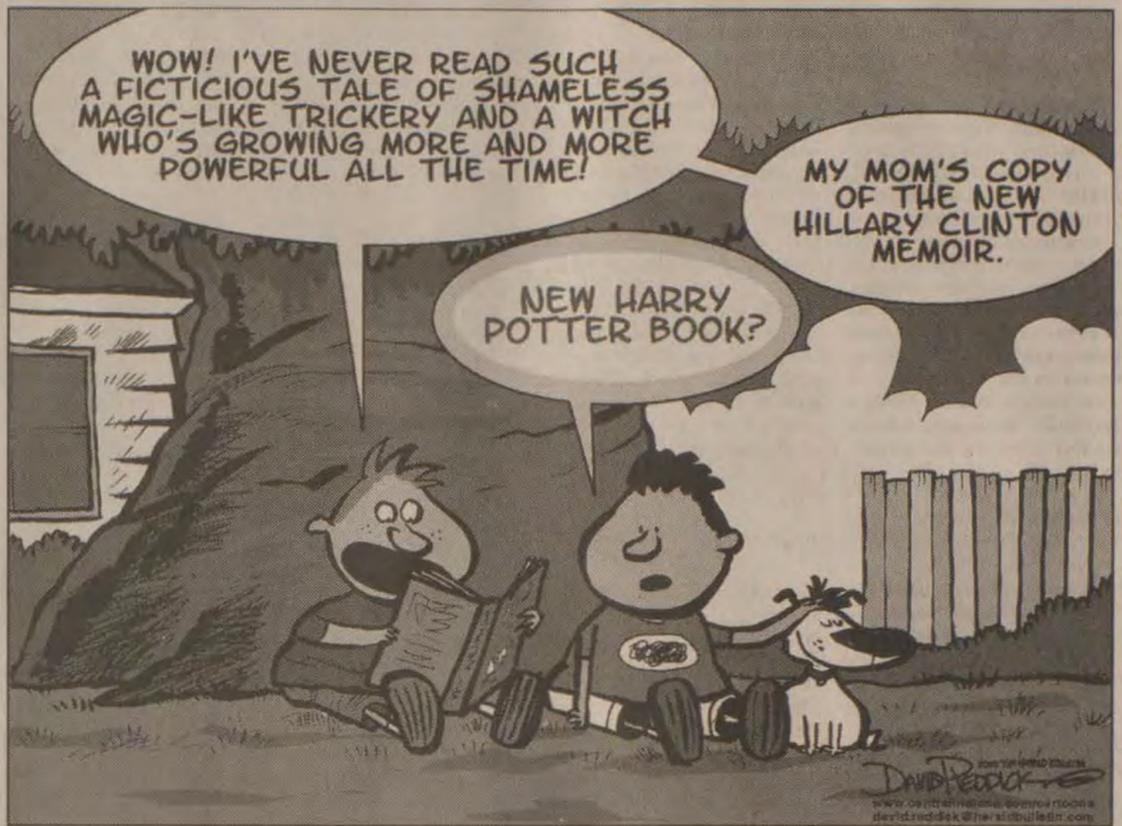

KERA has been requiring the schools show steady improvement in student test scores for the past 13 years.

To comply with the federal law, Kentucky is augmenting its existing test program with math and reading tests in the mandated grades.

Although it has received the stamp of approval from the Bush administration, Kentucky's plan still is not complete. Kentucky tests students late in the school year to reflect a full year of instruction. However, it takes until mid-fall to get results, and the federal law requires reporting before school begins so parents can make decisions about supplemental educational services or transferring out of schools that fail to make adequate yearly progress two years in a row.

Kentucky must find a way to reduce the time needed to get test results. Simply moving the tests to earlier in the year would not accurately reflect the progress of children.

Ode to Mr. Webster

I miss Larry Webster. It's as simple as that.

For those of you who don't know Larry Webster, or who have never heard the name, "Red Dog", first let me say, I'm sorry. Secondly, Larry was a columnist. He wrote a column — "Red Dog", namely — for the Appalachian News-Express for a number of years. Every Wednesday he was right there, satirically genuine and opinionated without apology. He was, for me, the standard by which all other local columnists were measured.

Larry Webster's not dead, as some of you might be thinking.

He's too stubborn to die, I believe.

Those of you who do know Larry will know that he no longer writes his column due to some conflict or other he had with the News-Express.

Now I have nothing against the News-Express, even have a friend writing there now, but the grapevine is hard to ignore.

It seems the word on the street is Larry wrote something that didn't go over well with The Great and Almighty Advertiser. Obviously, the grapevine is not the best source of information, so this little gem is likely not entirely accurate.

However, we know that Larry has written things that upset folks before. There's a group of "championship" cheerleaders in Pike County who would still like to see him sporting the new summer line of tar and feathers.

Truth is, I don't even know if Larry quit writing his column willingly, or was asked to stop submitting.

Truth is, I don't care.

Either way I'll not be reading "Red Dog" today, and so the measuring stick has been removed.

As a columnist, I owe a great deal to Larry Webster. Every time I write something that's difficult or a little jagged, something that opens me up to criticism, that threatens the status quo, I write with Larry in mind. That's the God's honest truth.

As a fellow Eastern Kentuckian, I owe much more. Larry has given us a literary shotgun — a loud and rambunctious blast of strong medicine — and asked for little in return.

His voice — hard as a shot of Uncle Willie's moonshine and brave as the man who drinks it — is as much a treasure as the mountain institutions he has fought to remodel through laughter.

And God knows we could use a few more "Red Dogs" in that fight.

Excellent plan

I have just read L.J. Hodgkinson's "A Plan for Peace". If only we could, as a country, implement his suggestions!

I totally support President Bush's decision to attack Iraq. I get disgusted with our news media's reporting because, I am sure as we all know, a majority of the truth is left out.

The way I feel about it is, since our troops did the dirty work, then it is up to the Iraqi people to work to rebuild their country. After previous wars, the countries involved worked hard to rebuild their countries. The Muslim countries want everything done for them, all the while complain, complain, complain! At least the Kurds made an effort to get rid of Saddam.

I, like most folks, am appalled that our troops are being killed one by one by snipers, suicide bombers, etc. Why should the troops have to endure this? If a crowd is unruly, then our troops should have the authority to open fire, eliminating the troublemakers.

If I had my way, the tanks, troops and air power would have the authority to clear a 50-mile radius of Baghdad, never mind about those "innocent bystanders" the liberal media harp about. In a war situation like that, there are no innocent bystanders!

Also, where is the help from the Muslim countries? Jordan has tents and supplies, but refugees must first get to their country. Although I totally support President Bush, I can't help wondering, as a retired military father of one of those killed said, why should we put our people at risk for people who hate us? Excellent question.

And while I am at it, why to we waste taxpayers' money housing terrorists waiting for trials, spend millions on trials, when we know they are guilty. They are not citizens, and their goal is to destroy our country. Punishment should be short, swift and final.

I read somewhere a comment from a Muslim terrorist who said that with American justice, the accused would die of old age before the legal system agrees on punishment, all the while draining our tax dollars.

Inmates deserve recognition

On June 10, Jailer Roger Webb allowed Deputy Jailer Teddy Ray Tackett and several jail inmates to clean the Snipes and Shell Community Cemetery. The cemetery is located high on top of a very steep mountain on Copperas Lick Branch, off Route 1427, Abbott Road, in Prestonsburg (formerly Bonanza).

It was such a hot and humid day! But not one inmate complained. They worked nonstop with weed eaters, clearing overgrown brush, weeds, etc. on the cemetery and a pathway to the cemetery.

All inmates were very nice, kind and friendly and deserve recognition for their deed of labor. The inmates are Scotty Williams, Kenny Spriggs, Jimmy Thomas, Jeffrey King, James Lackey and Randy Tackett.

A lot of these community cemeteries wouldn't get cleaned if it weren't for our Jailer Webb allowing this community service. To each inmate, thanks. We wish you well and a short-term jail stay. Hold you heads high, rise above your past mistakes, you're all in our prayers and God bless you all in every way.

Many times, we read the bad things in the paper, but the good things are overlooked and sometimes not fail to get printed. To anyone that disagrees about having good deeds printed about inmates, just remember a few true words of an old song that goes like this:

"A tongue can accuse, and carry bad news,
"The seeds of distrust, it will sow;

Panel looking at improvements to database tracking drug sales

by JOE BIESK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT — A state panel including lawmakers, doctors and law enforcement is looking at ways to improve Kentucky's electronic database of prescription drug sales.

Among other goals, the panel is trying to streamline the system to monitor illegal prescription drug activity faster while maintaining federal requirements for patient privacy.

"I think any time there's this large and widespread of a problem that it becomes a problem, obviously, of society," said Rep. Greg Stumbo, the House majority leader and committee co-chairman. "The only entity that can solve it is government."

Currently, the state maintains a database called Kentucky All Schedule Prescription Electronic Reporting. The system, called KASPER for short, is intended as a tool for doctors, pharmacists and law enforcement to monitor and curb illegal prescription drug abuse.

Patient information — including name, Social Security number and address — is compiled into the database after prescriptions are filled. That information is available to doctors, pharmacists, grand juries and police.

Doctors and pharmacists can use the information in writing and filling prescriptions. Police agencies with "bona fide" investigations can see how many times a potential suspect is writing or receiving prescriptions.

New prescriptions don't get compiled for about 30 days, and people requesting the reports have to wait anywhere from four hours to a week, said Dr. Steve Davis, director of the Health Services Cabinet's Division of Adult and Child Health.

Doctors should get a patient's prescription history back sooner so they can get the correct medications, Davis said.

"The only way that it can help you as a doctor is to get that information back quickly," Davis said.

Drug investigators also should be able to access the database information timely enough to catch someone who may be writing inappropriate prescriptions or a patient who is "doctor-shopping," Davis said.

However, the database may violate medical privacy, said Jerry Cox, a panelist and Mount Vernon defense lawyer. He said health officials could use information stored in the database to identify medical trends, but he said he's "not convinced" police should have access.

"We have rights of privacy and due process of law and these things," Cox said. "And this seems to be Big Brother 20 years too late."

Danny Clark, a panelist and president of the Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure, said people with legitimate medical needs should not become targets.

"We just have to be careful that we protect the patient who has a need for the medication and at the same time get as much of the prescription drugs off the street as we can," Clark said.

For the fourth year in a row, Prestonsburg Elementary students participated in the Jump Rope for Heart on March 25. The students raised $781.13 for the American Heart Association by jumping rope. Participating students included, back row, instructor Bridgett Clay, Stephanie Gibson, Hannah Walker, Josh Preston, Beth Collins, Samantha Stevens and instructor Glendine Hale; third row, Mikka Lowe, Kayla Hall, Austin Sloan, Nikki Ellis, Bethany Scarberry and Devin Clifton; second row, Wesley Moore, Chelsey Dikerson, Elizabeth Vaughn, Jessica Hall, Marissa Thompson and Brittany Jones; and, front row, Jordan Marcum, Madison Moore, Summer Shepherd, Gabriel Walker, Bonita Hughes, Kleona Craft and Amber Marsillett.

National HIV Testing Day

June 27 is National HIV Testing Day. Persons who should be screened are those who: (1) have had sex with someone infected with HIV, (2) who injects drugs, (3) who has many sexual partners, (4) who has had a blood transfusion between 1978 and 1985, and (5) women who may be pregnant or who want to be pregnant. Testing is offered at the Floyd County Health Department, call 886-2788 for information.

Environmentalists protest mountaintop removal mining

The Associated Press

LEXINGTON — A mostly peaceful protest over mountaintop removal mining resulted in four arrests when one protester scaled a pedway and unfurled two large blue banners.

One of Corrie DeJong's banners read "Stop Mountaintop Removal," the other "King Coal is Killing Kentucky."

About 80 environmentalists gathered to protest blasting off hilltops and bulldozing them into the valleys below, a practice they say has devastated the landscape of Appalachia and could destroy the ecosystem.

Some protesters were met with support of the mining practice from industry officials and others gathered at the "Kentuckians for Coal" rally, at the Kentucky Coal Association's headquarters a couple of blocks away.

Kentucky Coal Association President Bill Caylor said his group brought together about 50 ralliers "to set the record straight."

"They say we're destroying streams," he said amid the honks of passing cars. "It's easy for them to say that, but facts don't bear them up."

The pedway banners slowed southbound traffic on Broadway for more than an hour. Firefighters used an extending ladder to retrieve DeJong, of Knoxville, Tenn., and then police arrested him.

"Mountaintop removal is killing communities and the environment in eastern Kentucky," said a handcuffed Joshua Martin, of Bloomington, Ind., as police took him a waiting squad car.

Martin was one of three assistants who helped DeJong climb the pedway. DeJong was charged with trespassing. Martin and the other two — William Gorz of Candor, N.C., and Kent Mettle of Asheville, N.C. — were charged with disorderly conduct, Lexington police Sgt. Eddie Hart said.

"We had to get a boat to come get us out the door," Brown said. Her bed is downstairs now. Her mother's entire bedroom suite, a freezer full of food and clothing are all ruined. The two sit at a kitchen table between cabinets that must be replaced. The water from the spigot is only fit for washing hands.

They didn't have flood insurance. They couldn't afford it, Collier said. About 40 percent of the people in the southern part of the county are at poverty level, DES director Eddie Patton said.

"They can't afford it," he said. "They don't know anywhere else."

To help combat the individual damage, National Guard, county workers and outside volunteer groups have all come to the aid of flood victims, a task all too familiar to some.

Karen Vanderpool, originally from Flatwoods, said she worked in a house with mud about five feet high.

The Kentucky Southern Baptist Disaster Relief provides her an outlet for volunteering to help the countless others as unfortunate as Collier.

"I just like helping people," she said. In Mt. Vernon, Ohio, where she now lives, she works with the homeless on weekends, but seeing damage from flooding still hurts.

"I still consider Kentucky my home," she said. "I can identify with them a little bit."

She is one of about 30 people in the county helping, but director Rebecca Curry said she expects more to come.

"It's just so great. Some will leave and God sends more," she said.

That common bond of faith keeps the entire group together, a feeling they try to pass on to those who mourn the loss of their belongings.

"We pray with them," she said. "We ask them if they know their Savior."

But they don't push the issue. Spending time with families helping dig mud and debris from their homes allows the workers time to feel out their surroundings.

Campbellsville resident Willard Wise is in his fourth year as a volunteer. He said he'll go anywhere to help — he isn't doing anything he's not commissioned to.

"I don't think you're saved to sit," he said. "We're just Jesus' representatives."

At age 80, like many of the group's volunteers, Wise's age keeps him from digging and rebuilding, but he still does his part. Coffee is his specialty.

He's up every morning brewing a batch for the volunteers at the various stations.

Those in the county have about 31 jobs to complete. Flooded residents can stop by their station in Wheelwright to fill out an application. They've already completed about 12 jobs, most only take a day, Curry said.

Some are worse taking as many as three days, but the worst is knowing that nearly 400 families have stopped to receive water, cleaning supplies, clothing and blankets.

She'd like to see more, even though the cases begin to stick in her head after a while.

"You have to talk with them. You try not to cry with them, but sometimes you have to," she said.

Vanderpool gets a kick out of getting out to help rebuild, but she's still amazed at what she's seen — and this isn't the worst flood in recent history according to Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson. He's heard estimates of $1,489,000 in public works damage alone.

The figures for individual homes are not complete. They have been sent to Washington and now it's up to President Bush to determine if the region is a disaster area.

"I guess I just thought it would be one area," Vanderpool said. "It's just so widespread."

Board

regard to pay scale. Carol Stumbo, the board's chair, said there was no way to fit that proposal into the budget.

Glenna Stone of District 5, said the numbers, which rank the elementary, middle and high schools 149, 152 and 149, respectively statewide, are a drastic jump that should taken into consideration by both the state and the county boards.

The question is now turned to the Kentucky Board of Education which meets in August. If the system does become state assisted, the county will become responsible for funding it previously received.

McGuire argued that the board is hurting both itself and students by adopting a resolution that could potentially take away some of its money.

"We earned this," he said. "The state said that we were so bad we deserve this money."

The school system has lost band directors and arts teachers through the years. McGuire said those positions will not be filled again if the state funding is removed, but other board members said the money will be gone regardless.

Carol Stumbo reminded McGuire that state funding will be reduced despite the county's classification.

Spencer completes law enforcement training

by RALPH B. DAVIS
MANAGING EDITOR

Brandon Spencer

RICHMOND — District 1 Constable Brandon Spencer became the first Floyd Countian in his office and only the third constable statewide to complete the Department of Criminal Justice Training's law enforcement training program.

Spencer graduated from the academy June 13, after 16 grueling weeks.

"It was pretty tough," said Spencer, who was elected in 2002. "It's tough training. The academy is rated the best in the 50 states."

In addition to a rigorous physical fitness and self-defense regimen, Spencer studied day and night firearms training, emergency response driving, defensive driving, first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, DUI detection, tactical building search and radio communications.

One experience stands out in Spencer's memory — the day he was doused with pepper spray.

"Pepper spray is not the most enjoyable experience I've been through in my life ..." Spencer chuckled. "It helps you know what people can do when you use your weapons on them. We had to continue fighting after being sprayed and that lets you know they can continue to fight."

In addition to the training, which began Feb. 10, Spencer also returned home every weekend to perform his duties as constable.

Given the difficulty of the training, as well as the rarity of a constable actually participating in it, one might wonder why he would bother, but Spencer says he felt it necessary.

"I felt like it would help better serve the community and lend some integrity to the office ..." Spencer said. "It helps when you working in law enforcement if the public has confidence in your abilities ... I can't say I would turn around and do it again, but it was well worth it."

Mortgage Company, L.L.C.

What is a Mortgage Broker?
A Mortgage Broker is an independent real estate financing professional who specializes in the origination of residential and/or commercial mortgages. Right now, across the country, there are over 20,000 mortgage brokerage operations.

Why go through a Mortgage Broker as opposed to a bank?
Over 50% of Americans do. Many times mortgage brokers can offer better rates etc. from the banks, as opposed to you, the Borrower, going directly through that same bank.

The reason?
The mortgage broker does all of the paper work and the leg work on a file for the bank. If the bank had to use their own support staff to do the work that the mortgage broker does, the bank would incur considerable overhead costs.

In addition, the mortgage broker can offer the borrower a more extensive choice of loan programs and access to more affordable loans. When obtaining financing through a bank, you are limited to only their products and services.

Are Mortgage Brokers regulated?
Brokers are regulated by several federal laws and regulations, and dozens of state laws and licensing boards.

Have people benefited from the use of Mortgage Brokers?
Yes!! Mortgage Brokers have pioneered the "subprime" credit market, using unique loan programs to allow low to moderate income borrowers, with less than perfect credit histories, to start enjoying the benefits of home ownership. Without the assistance and dedication of a Mortgage Broker, home ownership would be a difficult task to achieve.

The brokerage industry plays a significant role in the mortgage lending process and the economy by increasing competition and driving down costs.

54 arrested in Pike over weekend

by LANA FULLER
PIKE COUNTY BUREAU

PIKEVILLE — Officers were kept busy in Pikeville and Pike County over the weekend, with 54 people being arrested and booked at the Pike County Detention Center over the weekend.

Fifteen were felony arrests and 39 were misdemeanors. Also, seven people were picked up for failure to appear for court.

Wade Melton, of Phyllis, was arrested by Pike County Sheriff's Deputy Robinson. Melton's arrest stems from a drug roundup last fall by Kentucky State Police and the sheriff's department. He is currently being held at the Pike County Detention Center and additional charges are pending.

Ricky A. Justice, of Mouthcard, was arrested by Deputy Hurley. Justice was tried and convicted for a felony conviction of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance and sentenced to seven years. Justice's arrest stems from a drug round up last fall by the KSP and the PCSD. He is currently being held at the Pike County Detention center.

Kimberly Robinson of Pikeville was arrested by Deputy Smith and charged with felony possession of forged instrument, misdemeanors consisting of two counts of theft by unlawful taking and fourth-degree assault.

Other felony charges arrests over the weekend for were:

■ Dennis E. Anderson, first-degree assault. He was arrested

Card of Thanks

We, the family of Queenie P. Thornsberry, would like to express our heartfelt thanks to everyone who expressed sympathy during the loss of our dearly loved one. We knew she was a special person, yet your attendance during services showed us how special she truly was, not just to our family, but to everyone she knew. We would like to express our special thanks to all who visited, sent food, flowers, cards, spoke comforting words, your prayers you sent up on our behalf, and your loving shoulder you lent us to cry on. We appreciate all the kindness, love, and respect you have shown our family. Again, we thank and love each and every one of you. God bless you all.

Statewide candidates report final tallies for primary

by JOE BIESK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT — Jack Wood upset state Rep. Tim Feeley to become the Republican nominee for attorney general, despite being outspent by nearly $54,000.

Wood, who beat Feeley by 10,216 votes, raised $3,001 and spent $791, according to campaign finance records filed Tuesday with the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance. Feeley, a Crestwood Republican, came in third behind Wood and Philip C. Kimball — who at last count spent a little more than $1,300.

Candidates in the more highly publicized governor's race spent a combined $15.3 million.

Self-financed Democrat Bruce Lunsford accounted for a large chunk of the total. He spent $8.3 million on his campaign before dropping out of the race and throwing his support behind House Speaker Jody Richards.

Richards received more than 132,600 votes, and spent about $832,000.

Ernie Fletcher, the Republican nominee for governor, spent about $2 million. Ben Chandler, Fletcher's Democratic opponent in the fall election, spent about $3.1 million.

Meanwhile, other low-profile races found candidates winning despite being financially over-matched.

Republican Linda Greenwell won the nomination for state auditor after Basha Cannon Roberts outspent her by nearly $25,000.

Greenwell collected 50,366 votes compared with Roberts' 25,216. Peppy Martin, Gov. Paul Patton's fluke Republican opponent in 1999, had more than

■ The board also elected Glenna Slone to the Local Planning Committee and heard from Billie Jean Osborne and Dani Smith and Betty Rowland, Kentucky Education Association Uniserv director for the Prestonsburg area.

Osborne asked the board to back her financially in the amount of $10,000 to pay for busing students to her performing arts school.

She asked for buses beginning at Osborne Elementary and Duff Elementary. The board acknowledged having given her such help in previous situations. If approved, the buses would begin running in July, she said.

■ The board highlighted achievements of its students and staff including:

■ Betsy Layne High School — recipient of the 2003 Silver Performance Award on the High Schools That Work Assessment, one of 21 schools nationwide

■ Ashley Vanderpool from May Valley Elementary School, winner of the 2003 Child Abuse Prevention Month button design contest. The design will be shown throughout the state on all the month's paraphernalia.

■ Brandy Parsons, Allen Central High School, winner of the Floyd Countian yearbook cover design

■ Lowell Brock, of Prestonsburg High School, who had perfect attendance from grades 9-12. Brock was one day shy of complete 1-12 perfect attendance. He received a $50 savings bond.

tored by providing real-time information about a miner's work environment.

Currently bulky monitors check for dust but then have to be mailed off to a government lab for analysis. Often a miner doesn't know how dusty his work environment was for weeks — too late to take steps to fix the problem.

Both the United Mine Workers of America and the industry-backed National Mining Association had criticized the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration for issuing a rule this spring that dealt with coal dust but did not explain how the monitors should be used.

Public comments on the proposed rule were due next week, after which the regulation would be finalized.

"That wasn't enough time," said Bruce Watzman, vice president for safety and health at the industry-backed National Mining Association. "We believe the testing of these devices should be allowed to proceed."

David Lauriski, assistant secretary of the mine agency, said he considered those concerns when deciding to suspend the rulemaking process.

"By keeping the record open, we can assemble the best information available on PDM (personal dust monitor) technology," Lauriski said. "At the conclusion of the testing period, we expect to move forward in a new and positive direction, with a final rule that reduces miners' risk of black lung disease."

Lauriski said he also was motivated by news that the new monitors had performed well during recent tests in a West Virginia mine.

Joe Main, the top safety expert at the United Mine Workers of America and a vocal critic of the administration's proposed rule, declined to comment on the suspension of the rule.

"We just late this evening received word of this intended action," Main said. "We're going to take a good look at what it all means."

Breathable dust in underground mines is the primary cause of black lung, a debilitating respiratory disease that kills about 1,000 miners annually.

Someday

Someday when my last line is written,
Someday when I've drawn my last breath,
When my last words have been spoken,
and my lips are sealed in death,
Don't look on my cold form in pity,
don't think of me as one dead,
I'll just be the house I once lived in,
My spirit by then will have fled.
I'll have finished my time here allotted,
but I won't be in darkness alone,
I will have heard from heaven,
the summons to come on home.
And when my body is in the grave
don't think that I'll be there,
I won't be dead, but living,
In the place Jesus went to prepare.
After all is said and done
I know that my last earnest prayer, is that my loved ones be ready,
"Someday to meet me there."

Fred Granville Francis, 87, retired attorney, formerly of Prestonsburg, and Lexington, died June 12, 2003, in Sarasota, Florida. He was born in Hindman, KY, on February 14, 1916, to Hubbard C. and Malissa Pigman Francis.

Mr. Francis graduated from Kentucky Military Institute in 1934, attended Pikeville College, and graduated from Washington and Lee School of Law in 1939. After passing the Kentucky Bar exam, he volunteered for the US Air Corps, serving from 1942 to 1946, and retiring with the rank of Major in the JAGD.

Fred practiced law in Prestonsburg from 1946 to 1985, where he served as a city councilman, Prestonsburg City Attorney, and Master Commissioner for the Floyd Circuit Court. He was appointed to the Kentucky Board of Bar Examiners in 1956 and served for 29 years, 25 of those as Chairperson. During the 1960's he was chairman of the House of Delegates of the Kentucky Bar Association. In 1971 he was awarded the Outstanding Service Award by the Kentucky Bar Association and also was elected chairman of the National Conference of Bar Examiners. The following year he was a delegate to the American Bar Association and was later elected a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation.

Other memberships include the University of Kentucky Fellows Society, Kappa Sigma fraternity, Scottish Rite Temple of Florida, Masonic Lodge of Kentucky, Shrine Temple of Sarasota, Pine Shores Presbyterian Church, and the Argali Society.

In 1942 Fred married the former Marjorie Hopkins of Carlisle, KY, and they had two children: William Gordon Francis, now of Prestonsburg, and Malissa Allen Francis (deLafosse). Both Marjorie and Malissa preceded him in death. He is survived by his son and daughter-in-law, Linda, and three granddaughters: Carrie Hamilton Francis of Boston, Malissa Thompson deLafosse and Lindsey Elizabeth deLafosse of Greensboro, North Carolina.

In 1982, he married the former Joyce Craft of Hazard, who also preceded him in death. He is survived by step-children Browning Tinker of Denver, Jina Craft of Denver, and Joseph Craft of Tulsa.

The youngest and last-remaining of eight children, Fred was a brother to R. Gordon Francis, Verner Francis Clarke, Flo Francis Homes, Paul Brutus Francis, Lyda Mae Francis, Ruth Francis Isbell, and Robert Day Francis. A younger brother, Jack, died in childhood.

A memorial service was held in Sarasota, Florida, on June 14, and a second service will take place at the Maggard Chapel, Centenary United Methodist Church, Lexington, on Saturday, August 16, at 4 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to The Lighthouse for the Blind, 7318 Tamiami Trail N., Sarasota, FL, 34243; or to Alice Lloyd College, 100 Purpose Road, Pippa Passes, KY 41844.

"So unless you've made, no mistakes in your life,

"Then be careful of stones, that you throw."

On behalf of the Snipes family, we want to thank each inmate and Deputy Tackett for the hard work, great job well done and wonderful community service. Thanks, Jailer Webb, for allowing this community service. We hope others will write a note of appreciation to Jailer Webb, Deputy Tackett and each inmate for cleaning graves of loved ones in the community cemeteries. A lot of people like us are on a fixed income and can't afford to pay to get cemeteries cleaned. Again, our deepest appreciation, and may God bless each of you.

Also, we'd like to ask more ministers to visit jail inmates and plan a Christmas program for them, and for churches to donate a gift of clothing to each inmate. Christmas can be a lonely time for inmates. So, ministers and churches, show God's gift of love to inmates this Christmas, of course, with the jailer's permission.

House approves financing Homeland Security Department

by ALAN FRAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The House voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to approve the first bill to finance the new Homeland Security Department and shower $29.4 billion on local emergency workers, airport screeners and a new drive against bioterrorism.

Though they supported it unanimously, Democrats said the Republican-written measure would fall short of meeting the nation's needs for protecting ports, borders and airports. For this they blamed the tax reductions President Bush and the GOP have shepherded through Congress over the past three years, absorbing money that could have gone to other needs.

"The majority party in Congress has decided that instead, their No. 1 and virtually their only priority is tax cuts," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

Republicans said the bill would continue the upgrades in domestic safety that began after the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, and said Democrats are never satisfied when it comes to spending.

"A lot of people would want us to spend tons and tons of more money, and believe me if we thought it was useful to do so, we'd have no compunction against doing that," said Rep. Harold Rogers, R-Ky., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee subcommittee, which wrote the bill.

The House approved the measure 425-2, with GOP Reps. Ron Paul of Texas and Jeff Flake of Arizona alone in voting "no." The Senate has yet to produce its version of the legislation.

The measure would finance the 22 agencies — and more than 170,000 workers — merged into a new Cabinet-level department by legislation enacted last November.

The biggest federal reshuffling in half a century was initially opposed by Bush and derided by critics as a rearrangement of the federal bureaucracy. Eventually, however, it gained his support and broad bipartisan backing as both parties feared a political price for opposing it.

The department includes the Coast Guard, Transportation Security Administration, Customs Service and Border Patrol — but not the FBI or CIA.

Until now, its component agencies were financed in several separate spending bills. The legislation considered Tuesday would provide $536 million, or 1.9 percent, more next year than what those agencies are getting in 2003.

"The bill would not even provide enough to keep up with inflation, never mind step up the pace of improvements to our security," said Rep. Jose Serrano, D-N.Y.

The White House said it supported the measure because it "largely tracks the administration's request." It would exceed Bush's proposal by more than $1 billion.

In a letter to lawmakers, the White House budget office warned that the bill — and the 12 other spending measures Congress is starting to write for next year — must heed an agreement to limit their total to $785

Ancient garbage dump yields clues about Indian cultures

The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — Archaeologists from the University of Kentucky have uncovered an ancient garbage dump beneath an unspectacular plot of land near Eva Bandman Park.

After nearly six weeks of excavation — brushing away the earth clump by clump, grain by grain — the archaeologists have uncovered about 1,000 pieces of pottery, remains of ancient weapons, and seeds and grains American Indians likely used.

The site was so rich — and such a target for looters — that a Kentucky State Police trooper guarded the area at night.

The artifacts, estimated to date from 1000 to 1700 A.D., were items the Mississippian and Fort Ancient cultures considered trash.

"They threw away stuff they didn't want," said Andrew Madsen, an archaeologist who is overseeing the research. "But those are things that give us clues to their daily lives."

The site was found several years ago when the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet was planning to widen River Road to four lanes from two.

The most significant discovery from the site so far, Madsen and his colleagues say, is evidence that the Mississippian and Fort Ancient inhabitants lived together along the river near the Falls of the Ohio, the same area that later would become Louisville. It is the first time that such concrete evidence has been found, Madsen said.

"The interaction between these two cultures is poorly understood," he said.

The site is among the most significant discovered locally in years, archaeologists say, because it could yield significant information about Louisville before recorded history.

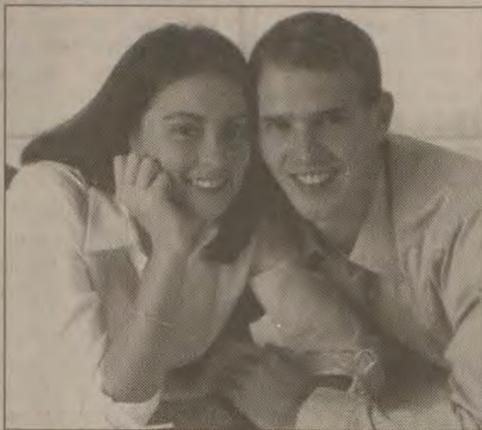

Although the transportation department occasionally discovers archaeological sites when it builds and widens road and constructs bridges, few merit the treatment given to the River Road location, said David Waldner, director of environmental analysis for the agency.

The River Road site was a natural to contain artifacts, Rick and Debbie Frazier of Corbin, Kentucky, wish to announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter, Stacy Denise Bennett, to Nathan H. Mullins, son of Mike and Frieda Mullins of Hindman, Kentucky.

Stacy is a 1996 graduate of Whitley County High School, a 2000 graduate of Georgetown College, and is presently employed at the Homeless and Housing Coalition of Kentucky.

Nathan is a 1998 graduate of June Buchanan High School and graduated from Georgetown College in 2002. He is currently a student at the University of Kentucky College of Medicine. Nathan is the grandson of Mildred and Herman Mullins of Hi Hat, and Dorothy Brown and the late Charlie Smothers of Brodhead.

The wedding is Saturday, July 19, 2003, at 5:30 p.m., at the Calvary Baptist Church, South 830, in Corbin, Kentucky. A reception will follow at the London Community Center, Main Street, London, Kentucky.

All friends and family are cordially invited.

Wedding Announcement

Hall-Ray

Mr. and Mrs. Freddy Hall, of Hi Hat, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Jada Wynn, to Justin Ray, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Ray, of Melvin.

The couple are both graduates of South Floyd High School as well as Eastern Kentucky University. The bride-elect holds degrees in both special education and elementary education. Her fiancé is an employee of Com-Air Delta Connection, where he works as regional jet pilot.

The couple will wed in a ceremony that will take place on Saturday, June 28, 2003, at half past the afternoon hour of five o'clock, at the Garrett Baptist Church. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed. Following, the couple will honeymoon in the Caribbean.

They plan to reside in Florence.

32,000 votes and spent less than $2,400.

Alice Baesler spent more than $95,000 to win the Democratic nomination for agriculture commissioner. One of her opponents, Roy Massey, outspent her by more than $32,000.

Baesler gathered 57,110 votes, compared with Massey's 28,240. Democratic state Sen. Joey Pendleton, of Hopkinsville, spent about $28,000 more than Baesler and finished second with 47,713 votes.

In the Democratic primary for attorney general, House Majority Floor Leader Greg Stumbo raised almost $480,000 and spent nearly all of it.

Democrat Russ Maple won the secretary of state nomination and spent about $230,000. Republican Trey Grayson spent more than $21,900 without an opponent.

Crit Luallen, the Democratic nominee for state auditor, spent more than $235,000.

billion. The rest of the $2.2 trillion budget is for automatic benefits like Medicare.

In a day of fights over amendments, Republicans used a party-line 222-200 vote to block Obey from proposing $1 billion more for the bill, to have been paid for by erasing part of this year's tax cuts for people earning more than $1 million annually.

In another procedural vote, the GOP barred another Democratic amendment to set up guidelines for when the agency can help local officials. Democrats have criticized the department for helping locate Texas Democratic lawmakers who left the state in May during a legislative fight over redistricting.

Republicans used procedural moves to strip one provision making it harder to award federal contracts to U.S. firms that have moved offshore to avoid taxes, and another blocking a plan to screen airline passengers by checking credit reports and other records.

Overall, the measure would provide $4.4 billion for local firefighters, law enforcement and other emergency responders, nearly $900 million more than Bush proposed. Included was $1.9 billion distributed by formula among state and local governments, $894 million over this year's total.

There was $5.6 billion over the coming decade — including $890 million for 2004 — for Bush's proposed Project Bioshield, under which the government would acquire antidotes and take other steps to counter bioterror.

The Transportation Security Administration would get $5.2 billion, down $639 million from this year. The new agency has been criticized by both parties for hiring too many screeners and inept management.

New technologies would get more money, including money to develop ways to protect airliners from missiles and detect germs sprayed over cities. Bush would get only $350 million of the $480 million he wants for using new identification technologies to screen and track visiting foreigners.

The bill contained fewer home-district projects than is common for spending measures. Among the few was language recommending that $19.5 million for bridge alterations be divided among Mobile, Ala.; Burlington, Iowa; LaCrosse, Wis.; Chelsea, Mass.; and New Orleans.

Dump

because people first settled along major rivers, said David Pollack, of the Kentucky Archaeological Survey, who is assisting in the River Road research.

The Mississippian people inhabited the western and southern parts of Kentucky and had a centralized government, with leaders who oversaw many villages — and whose power was passed from one generation to the next.

The Fort Ancient people lived largely in central and eastern sections of Kentucky. Each village governed itself.

Yet despite different customs and languages, the cultures appear to have coexisted around what is now Louisville, according to items found at the dig, said Gwynn Henderson of the Kentucky Archaeological Survey. Pieces of Fort Ancient-style pottery, simple in its design, were found with more decorative Mississippian vessels. Researchers also discovered two styles of arrowheads the cultures used to hunt.

The site sits in the state right-of-way that borders Eva Bandman Park.

The National Environmental Policy Act specifies that sites eligible for the National Register of Historic Places — including archaeological sites — must be protected or preserved as much as possible before transportation projects can proceed.

The state hired UK to examine the area, and archaeologists determined that it was so significant that it warranted a full excavation. The widening and relocation of River Road, completed in 1998, was planned to include a new entrance to the park, but that has been delayed.

The excavation and research cost about $150,000, said Kevin Dant, the Transportation Cabinet's environmental coordinator for Louisville.

Now that the River Road dig is complete, the recovered artifacts have been transferred to a former tobacco warehouse at the University of Kentucky that houses archaeologists.

Researchers expect to spend the next six to 12 months studying their discoveries. The items will be cataloged and kept at UK so researchers can view and study them.

Members of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club picked up trash May 3 along U.S. 23, between the junction of Route 80 and the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn. The group has adopted this stretch of highway as a continuing project, and signs in either direction indicate that the club is a partner with the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet in keeping this part of U.S. 23 free of debris and litter.

McClure takes Advance Auto 150 at LPIR

TIMES STAFF REPORT

COEBURN, Va. – Abingdon, Va. driver Eric McClure showed the fans and the UARA drivers he knows how to get around Lonesome Pine Raceway Saturday night in the Advance Auto Parts/Hobart UARA 150 as he set on the pole and lead all 150 laps to win the event.

McClure

With this Saturday night race being sanctioned by UARA-Stars the local points would not be in effect for this race, but on Thursday afternoon after talking to UARA officials Jerry McClure, Eric's dad and car owner, decided to make the trip and after Saturday's win the team is glad they did.

After the two hour Practice session McClure was not happy with the car and was uncertain

Hommel captures Southern win at Thunder Ridge

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PRESTONSBURG – One of the most exciting Late Model races of the season took place here in Floyd County over the weekend.

Hommel

Saturday night the O'Reilly Southern All Star Dirt Racing Series rolled into Thunder Ridge Entertainment Complex for the first time in the Series' 20-year history. Although it was a new venue the night had a familiar result, as defending OSAS champion Duayne Hommel of Newport, Tenn. would set fast time and go on to best the 24-car starting field for the fourth time this year.

ALC holds girls basketball camp

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIPPA PASSES – The Alice Lloyd College Girls' Basketball Camp was held last week, the week of June 16-20 at the Grady Nutt Athletic Center. Forty-five girls hailing from surrounding counties in kindergarten through eighth grade attended from camp.

The camp was conducted by ALC men's head basketball coach Gary Gibson.

All participants received a certificate, camp basketball and camp t-shirt. The winners of the various competitions received trophies. The trophy winners were as follows:

Hunter with Floyd ties hunts big game

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

Indiana resident Bill Haywood loves to hunt. And it shows with the stuffed trophies he has on display in his home, along with the images captured on photographs. Haywood, who has family living here in Floyd County, confides that he loves the outdoors and hunting, which played a huge role in his upbringing.

"I was raised hunting," said Haywood, who now resides in Laketon, Ind. "I was taught to take only what you need."

High School: Bush leads Kentucky to win

LEXINGTON — Versatile Michael Bush gave Louisville fans a glimpse of the future on Friday night, leading Kentucky to a 28-14 win in the Kentucky-Tennessee All-Star Football Classic at Commonwealth Stadium.

Kentucky won the annual game for the third time in four years. Tennessee holds a 14-6 lead in the series, which features graduated high school seniors.

Bush, the versatile quarterback who led Louisville Male to a runner-up finish in Class 4A last season, earned All-America honors from Student Sports as a multi-purpose threat. He showed why on Friday, completing 8 of 15 passes for 97 yards and a touchdown, rushing five times for 35 yards and catching three passes for 21 yards.

Bush said that while he enjoyed playing different positions in the all-star game, he is headed to Louisville to

Robby Gordon wins NASCAR road race

by MIKE HARRIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SONOMA, Calif. — This time Robby Gordon finished what he started, outracing Jeff Gordon on Sunday to win the Dodge/Save Mart 350.

Jeff Gordon, a three-time Infineon winner and no relation, looked for a while as if he might win. But Robby Gordon held off the four-time Winston Cup champion by 0.553-seconds — about four car lengths — in the battle of Chevrolets.

Two years ago on this same road course, Robby Gordon dominated only to see Tony Stewart slip past. Later that year at Watkins Glen — the only other road course on the 36-race schedule — Gordon was again the best car but lost an almost certain victory when the in-car camera battery exploded and started a fire.

the weekend at Lexington Catholic with an Elite Eight finish.

South Floyd beat Kentucky Country Day, Danville and Frankfort in its first day of competition. The second day saw the Raiders top West Jessamine and Corbin. Bates Creek, the tournament's eventual runner-up, ended South Floyd's run in the tournament.

South Floyd senior Adam Tackett received a high honor by being named to the all-tournament team.

Host Lexington Catholic defeated Bates Creek, one of its many rivals, in the championship game. South Floyd was

On Sunday, he led three times for 81 of the 110 laps on the 1.949-mile, 11-turn course, including the last 31 laps. It was the second NASCAR victory and first on a road course for the former Indy-car star.

"I don't think there was any luck here today," Robby Gordon said. "We had a plan and we stuck to it all day. We stopped when we wanted to stop and the strategy just worked out perfect."

Jeff Gordon never led but pressured the leader after passing Rusty Wallace for second place on lap 86.

"We had the fastest car at the end," the runner-up said. "Robby wasn't very good, compared to us, but he was good in the right places, the places where you can pass," Gordon said. "This is a tough place to pass."

Jeff Gordon, who moved past Dale Earnhardt Jr. to take second place in the standings, didn't want to take a chance on wrecking.

"We've got a points battle on the line here," he said. "I thought, 'If I get a really clean shot, we'll take it.'"

Kevin Harvick, Robby Gordon's Richard Childress Racing teammate, wound up third after battling with Gordon in the early going. The teammates pitted under green on lap 66 and briefly fell well back into the field. Harvick beat Gordon back onto the track.

It stayed that way until rookie Christian Fittipaldi hit a tire barrier and brought out a yellow on lap 71. Gordon took advantage of the situation to pass Harvick as they raced back to the flagstand to take the caution.

Jeff Gordon was critical of the move.

"Really, that's what won him the race," Gordon said. "You just don't do that. You don't pass a guy under caution. He did everything right today, except that. What he did can be done, but there's not going to be too many guys going to have too much respect for him."

Robby Gordon said NASCAR made it clear that the drivers would be allowed to race back to the flagstand on cautions.

"I asked the question at the (prerace drivers') meeting three times. They said it was just like every other week," he said. "Kevin Harvick may be mad at me, but it is what it is. I don't see what Jeff Gordon has to do with this."

Harvick's only comment on the pass was, "It was good hard racing except for that chicken

Hommel rolled onto the 4/10ths mile speedway as the third car out during Sunoco Race Fuels Pole Qualifying. Hommel turned in a quick lap of 17.007 seconds to claim the fast time bonus of $200 courtesy of Miller Bros. Coal. Tim Dohm of Crosslanes, W.Va. would clock in second followed by Jackie Boggs, Audie Swartz and Shannon Thornsberry. Qualifying would prove crucial, as 24 cars signed in negating the need for a consolation race.

Hommel would get the jump over Dohm at the drop of the green and be followed by Boggs. Dohm settled into 3rd but was immediately pressured by Swartz. Brandon Kinzer up from 10th and Jeff Cooke began to battle for the seventh spot with just four laps in. By lap 8 Hommel and Boggs have caught up to the tail of the field. Hommel splits the lap cars of Benny Butcher and Chris Wilson with a banzai move in turn one. Boggs would follow Hommel through to keep the H2 in his sights. Boggs then moved up to pressure Hommel down the back straight. Hommel quelled the attempt by using the lapped car of Bryan Hendrix as a pick. The first of 10 caution flags would fly on lap 12 for a spin by Shannon Thornsberry in turn four. The restart would see a hard charging Brandon Kinzer put the heat to Dohm for third.

Kinzer was finally able to slide past Dohm after a restart on lap 20 for an incident involving Royce Bray and sixth running Chuckie May. May was able to get in and make quick repairs to his No. 28 GRT car before the restart. May restarted 18th but it was obvious he was going to try and make his way back to the front. Meanwhile 5th running Audie Swartz got into the inside berm hard ending his night on lap 21. On the restart Kinzer roared to the inside of Boggs in turn one. The two would drag race down the back and at the line Kinzer held a small advantage. Dohm would spin in four and bring out the caution. Boggs found the outside groove at the halfway mark and rolled back around Kinzer for second.

Back in the pack May was making his presence known as he would bypass four cars in four laps and move into sixth by lap 33. A dramatic lap 36 restart attempt almost ended in disaster for Hommel. Boggs was able to pull underneath Hommel going into turn two. As the two raced door-to-door into three, Hommel would get in a little too high and go over the turn 4 bank. But it was all for not as Steven Harrison had already brought out the caution in turn one. Hommel would resume the lead with no apparent damage. After a lap 37 restart Kinzer would once again go to the hub and sweep by Boggs. Kinzer was then able to look under Hommel. But Boggs once again went up top to get around the 18 and make a run on Hommel at the line. Hommel was able to fend off the challenge in turn two when Boggs swept up high.

A stopped Tre Martin would bring out the final caution and set up a harrowing 10 lap shootout among the top 3. On the restart Kinzer was able once again to go around Boggs on the lowside. And as he had on 3 previous occasions Boggs rode the high line back around Kinzer to challenge Hommel. On lap 48 Boggs was able to deliver a slider in turn 1 to take the lead but Hommel with counter with a slider of his own in turn 4 coming to the white flag. Boggs looked low then high but was unable to get back around Hommel as he held on for the $5000 win. Hommel, Boggs and Kinzer were followed by 14th starter and current OSAS point leader Clint Smith and Chuckie May up from his earlier 18th place restart position.

Hommel commented on the clean racing between Boggs, Kinzer and himself. "This is a great facility and anyplace you can race with Jackie Boggs and Brandon Kinzer you are gonna see a helluva show."

Hommel picked up his fourth OSAS win of the year and cut Clint Smith's point lead to 36.

McClure seemed to have not cleaned off his tires well and slid up the banking in turn three. This allowed a hard charging Tissot to pull along side. Keeping his patience McClure was able to pull ahead and keep Tissot behind behind him. It was McClure's first UARA-Stars win.

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana's free throws were the difference.

Andrew Hershberger of Goshen High School scored 16 points Saturday night, hitting a pair of clinching foul shots with 18 seconds remaining as Indiana held off a late Kentucky comeback for a 75-69 victory and a sweep of this year's boys basketball All-Star series.

"I just tried to think of it as any other point in the game," said Hershberger, who hit all six of his free throw attempts. "I want to hit the free throws and just put everything else aside."

Justin Cage of Indianapolis Pike had 15 points, including 11-of-16 free throws, and Austin Montgomery of Indianapolis Perry Meridian scored 12 points, hitting all eight of his foul shots. As a team, Indiana hit 28-of-37 free throws to Kentucky's 19-of-24.

"We didn't shoot them as well as we would have liked, but we did get to the line," Indiana coach Mark Barnhizer said. "We be a quarterback only. "I told (the coaches) I didn't want to do that," Bush said. "If quarterback doesn't work out, then I can play other positions, but right now, I'm just strictly a quarterback."

Team most valuable player honors for Kentucky went to Louisville Manual wide receiver Keenan Burton. Burton, who has signed with Kentucky, had four catches for 66 yards and one touchdown, a 3-yard laser from Bush in the first quarter.

Ohio-bound quarterback Austen Everson of Brentwood was Tennessee's MVP. Everson rushed for 40 yards and completed 8 of 15 passes for 91 yards and two touchdowns, both to Chattanooga Notre Dame wide receiver Adarius Bowman.

A 33-yard pass from quarterback Justin Haddix of Breathitt County to Jacob Tamme of Boyle County highlighted Kentucky's first scoring drive, a six-play, 50-yard march that ended with Bush's TD pass to Burton.

A 48-yard interception return by Dustin Lopez of Hopkinsville gave Kentucky possession at the Tennessee 26. Five plays later, Lopez's high school teammate, Kentucky-bound Ricky Abren, bulled into the end zone from the 3, giving Kentucky a 14-0 lead with 4:02 left before halftime.

Tennessee marched 77 yards in the final minutes of the half and scored on a 10-yard pass from Everson to Bowman. Bowman, a North Carolina recruit who also was a Student Sports prep All-America selection, caught eight passes for 74 yards.

On Kentucky's first second-half drive, Bush eluded a heavy rush and found Burton open for a 47-yard gain to the Tennessee 1. Lexington Bryan Station's Markeith Gillis — an Eastern Kentucky University signee — scored on the next play, making it 20-7.

A 4-yard touchdown pass from Everson to Bowman on the first play of the fourth quarter pulled Tennessee within 20-14.

With 3:36 left, Kentucky's Marty Regan of Rockcastle County recovered a fumbled punt by Jimmy Beard of Memphis East at the Tennessee 18. Louisville Male running back Sergio Spencer clinched the win moments later with an 8-yard touchdown run. — Associated Press

201 SPEEDWAY Shutts claims second straight Modified feature victory

TIMES STAFF REPORT

SITKA — Clear skies graced 201 Speedway for a change Saturday night. The beautiful weather went into the night with dirt track action taking center stage on the red clay oval.

Salyersville's David Powers, racing in his 21st season, put the No. 97 J.M.C. Motorsports, Cropper-powered Grand Prix, sponsored by Green's Lawn Mower Sales and Service, and Fannin's Sawmill to the finish line first ahead of the 97J of Falcon racer Jim Lemaster in the Late Model feature. Terry Hicks of Willard got to the finish line third after starting 17th. Hicks finished ahead of Josh McGuire (4), Tom Hall (5), David Webb (6), and Randy Greathouse (7).

The Super Bomber feature featured defending division champion Glen Patton crossing the line first. The Pike Countian carried the checkers by finishing ahead of a second-place Corey McKenzie and a third-place Michael Paul Howard. Jim Lemaster finished fourth after leading the first four laps. Price resident Billy Hutchinson finished fifth ahead of Lester Robinette and Brian Pennington.

Floyd County driver Clint Shutts grabbed his second win of the season in Open Wheel Modified action in the Chapman Printing-, W.B.C.I. Fraternity-, and Home Scent Candles-sponsored car. After a fierce battle, David Webb brought the 13W to a runner-up finish ahead of another Floyd County driver, Chris Prater, in the 00 machine. West Virginia racer Tim Moore was fourth ahead of Walt Mayabb, and Whit Salyers.

Former Bomber track champion Bannie Blair took his second win of the season in the the night's Bomber feature. Inez driver Charlie Jude recovered from an ill handling racecar to finish second. After starting ninth in the feature, Salyersville's Steve Howard made a third-place finish ahead of Flat Gap's Dean Pennington, John Fitzpatrick, and Scott Lemaster who led the first six laps of the race.

Scott Pennington scored his

ON PINS AND NEEDLES

Paresthesia refers to an abnormal burning or prickling sensation in the hands, arms, legs or feet. Patients also describe the painless sensation as tingling, numbness, "pins and needles," or itching. Paresthesia can occur whenever pressure is placed on a nerve. The feeling normally disappears with relieved pressure.

The condition can become chronic for those individuals with widespread neurological disease or traumatic nerve damage. A stroke, multiple sclerosis, and encephalitis, as well as accidents, can trigger paresthesia. Carpal tunnel from repetitive tasks can also cause the problem.

Paresthesia in upper extremities usually originates from nerves in the neck, while paresthesia in the lower extremities normally comes from nerve problems in the lumbar region or lower back. Chiropractic has long been known to eliminate nerve constrictions in the back and neck. Carpal tunnel is also becoming a chiropractic specialty. If you suffer from loss of feeling in your body, make an appointment as soon as possible with your Doctor of Chiropractic.

Haywood's hunting travels have taken him through 39 states and two Canadian provinces. Some of his top states to hunt in outside of his home state of Indiana include Nevada and Alaska. A recent hunting expedition to Alaska resulted in him taking his seventh bear. Bear No.

7 for Haywood was a grizzly. He killed the grizzly from 244 yards away. The gun he shot the bear with was a 375 HH Magnum. The Alaska trip started in Juneau, Alaska. He hunted on an island in Alaska where over 100 miles was free of people population and animals roamed.

Haywood usually goes on two sizable hunting trips per year. A lot of the time, Haywood goes on the hunting trips by himself. One trip the avid outdoorsmen already has penciled in for next year is a hunting journey to Nevada where he plans to hunt antelope.

He admits that he hunts quite a bit in his home state of Indiana.

"The hunting is good up here," said Haywood, during a telephone conversation late last week. "I enjoy hunting the state of Indiana."

Haywood hunts bear, deer, antelope, even mountain lion. In October of 2002, he took a mule deer while on a hunt in Nevada. He has also killed mountain lion in Nevada.

And Haywood favors fishing, too.

Bill Elliott was fourth, followed by Ryan Newman. Wallace slipped back to eighth.

During the early stages of the race, Ron Fellows and Boris Said, road racing specialists hired just for this race, appeared to be fast enough to challenge Robby Gordon and Harvick.

Fellows slipped past both Gordon and Harvick under breaking on the hairpin 11th turn on lap 57, but both he and Said, who started from the pole, lost their shot at the win when they got caught out by pit strategy and wound up having to pit at the wrong time. Neither was in contention again, but Said finished sixth and Fellows seventh.

Matt Kenseth finished 14th and his series lead was cut to 174 points over Jeff Gordon. Earnhardt, who came in 185 points back, finished 11th and slipped to third, two points behind Gordon.

Boxing's state of perpetual confusion

by JIM LITKE
AP SPORTS COLUMNIST

There were two heavyweight fights over the weekend. One was sanctioned. Naturally, Mike Tyson fought in the other one — for free. It took place at a Brooklyn hotel, around 5:30 a.m. "I guess it's clear he wasn't doing road work," Teddy Atlas, Tyson's former trainer, told the New York Daily News. "He's not a guy who's looking and thinking of having a professional career."

Unfortunately for the fight game, he's not the only one. Lennox Lewis outlasted Vitali Klitschko in the weekend's cable TV bout — but just barely. He was overweight and out of breath and the outcome was very much in doubt until Lewis was awarded a sixth-round TKO over the older of the chess-playing, degree-holding Ukrainian brothers. That came because the ring doctor finally decided he'd rather risk the wrath of millions than have to look even once more at the cut over Klitschko's left eye — which by then was the size of a divot. "I want rematch," Klitschko, who speaks four languages, said afterward. "You know why? Because I know I will be winner in this fight." Lewis, less than impressive in the ring earlier Saturday night, was full of bravado outside it. "If he wants a rematch, there's no problem with that. I'm happy to give him a rematch, because I'll bust up the other side of his face, too," he said. Maybe. The sad thing is that Lewis will try his best to make sure it never happens, and even that assumes he'll continue to fight. Lewis is already sizing up a possible payday against with Roy Jones Jr. later this year, strictly because it could mean huge money for both fighters.

thing that I really wanted to do in the sport of boxing," he said. It was an easy line to swallow. The 37-year-old Lewis and Tyson, his junior by a few months, grew up as the best prospects in a generation brimming with promising fighters. They clashed during a few sparring sessions in 1984, and then

Astros, Yankees collect HAP titles

The Astros and Yankees won the two HAP Little League division championship games played Friday night at Stumbo Park in Allen. The Astros won the "B" tournament by beating the visiting Prestonsburg Rangers 11-1. Kannon Newsome pitched the Astros to the win. In the "A" championship game, the Yankees beat the Reds.

Rangers make best case for P'burg teams

The visiting Prestonsburg Rangers scored two victories to advance to the championship game of the tournament. Robbie Grigsby, Jaden Spurlock, Kyle Chaffins, Alex Griffith and Robbie Grigsby were among the key contributors for the Rangers in those victories. INDIANAPOLIS — The rout was on from almost the opening tipoff. Katie Gearlds had 22 points, nine rebounds and six assists Saturday night as Indiana, scoring almost at will, beat Kentucky 112-59 for a split in this year's girls All-Star basketball series. "We came out with more heart and more desire and more pride than the word 'Indiana' was written across our chests," Gearlds said. "Last week, it was embarrassing, to say the least. We didn't show up ready to play. Tonight, we just all came together as one. We were one team, not just a bunch of individuals."

let up. The Hoosiers took their biggest leads in the closing seconds at 110-55 on a 3-pointer by Kim McMillin of North Harrison and 112-57 on two free throws by Laura Gaybrick of Indianapolis Perry Meridian. "Tonight, our team ran into a phenomenal performance by a very talented group," Kentucky coach Mark Evans said. "No doubt about it, state pride has a lot to do with it. No doubt about it, individual pride has a lot to do with it. The most important key was we had to match the intensity of the other team, and we were unable to do that," Evans said. "The Indiana kids played a much better man-to-man defense, they helped each other a lot more, they played a lot more together and they got us on the boards. When you can't rebound, it's hard to run, and that was the story."

The Hoosiers held Kentucky to 24 percent shooting, had a 66-43 advantage off the boards and totaled 23 assists to just two for the visitors. The final score marked the second-highest point total by one team and the second-widest winning margin in the series' 28-year history, exceeded only by Indiana's 113-51 victory at Louisville in 1993. "Last week, we only had a day to look at Kentucky's pressure," Indiana coach Charlie Hall said. "I felt if we got in the right formations, the right spots, we could tear it up. This week turned out what I hoped for last week. We broke it down and got layups and easy looks. The kids looked for each other, incredibly unselfish." Indiana, which lost 75-60 at Owensboro a week earlier, took a 40-18 lead at halftime of the rematch. Indiana raced to a 40-point lead in the first five minutes of the second half and never Suntana Granderson of South Bend Riley had 15 points and eight rebounds for Indiana, while Miranda Green of Indianapolis Pike added 11 points and Reicina Russell of Lawrence North had 10 points and four blocked shots. Kentucky's only double-figure scorer was Toni Slaughter of Shelby County with 14 points and 12 rebounds. Gearlds, Indiana's Miss Basketball from Beech Grove High, had 12 points in the first half, when the Hoosiers took control. Kentucky hit only two of its first 20 field goal attempts and went without a basket for almost eight minutes in the opening period. The only points for Kentucky during that stretch were on a pair of free throws by Tracy Harbut of Bryan Station.

Indiana

started forcing the ball in to Justin and Andrew a little bit and got to the line. And Austin made some big plays. "Obviously, the free throw shooting at the end, when we started making them, helped us," Barnhizer said. Indiana took a 14-point lead late in the first half but went cold from the field, managing just two baskets through the first seven minutes of the second period. "We got out of our offense a little, didn't defend the 3-point line very well, got beat back defensively," Barnhizer said. "But the leadership of the Justin, Andrew and some of the players on the floor finally got ourselves together."

Kentucky came no closer than six points until the game's final minute. A 3-pointer by Sean Booker of Louisville Ballard and a basket and free throw by Justin Doellman of Ryle brought Kentucky within 71-66. After an Indiana turnover, Chris McCoy of Trinity hit another 3-pointer to cut the lead to 71-69 with 27 seconds left. Two free throws by Hershberger made it 73-69. Montgomery scored the final free throws with 9.8 seconds left after Kentucky was assessed a technical foul for calling an illegal time out. "It was one of those contests that both teams were going to war against each other," Kentucky coach Steve Sparks said. "Both sides played extremely well." "When we put them on the line ... it's kind of like we did that to ourselves," he said. "We weren't doing a good job defensively at that stage. We were doing a lot of reaching and grabbing, and unfortunately the officials were calling a lot of fouls. "I'm not going to complain about that, because we were taking too many chances. And it really stifled any kind of momentum that we could generate."

JWT & Kinzer Drilling announce 'School Day Matinees'

Mark Twain's classic "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," comes to life this summer with Jenny Wiley Theatre's production of the musical "Big River." The story of Huck and Jim's adventures, mischief and learning about one another and the world are wonderfully portrayed. With music by award winning country music star Roger Miller, Jenny Wiley Theatre is thrilled to offer School Performances of "Big River" at the Mountain Arts Center on Tuesday, August 19, and Wednesday, August 20. Edited to fit a 1 hour 30 minute format, "Big River" is perfect for students of all ages. A Teacher's Guide (via the internet) addressing KERA Core Components of drama, music and humanities will be available to participating teachers at no charge for use in their classrooms. What a great way to give your students an educational and fun experience

The Mountain Arts Center presents

LEWIS NEWMAN's newest exhibit, "Familiar Landscapes and Historic Buildings...plus, an assortment of portraits including wild and domesticated animals."

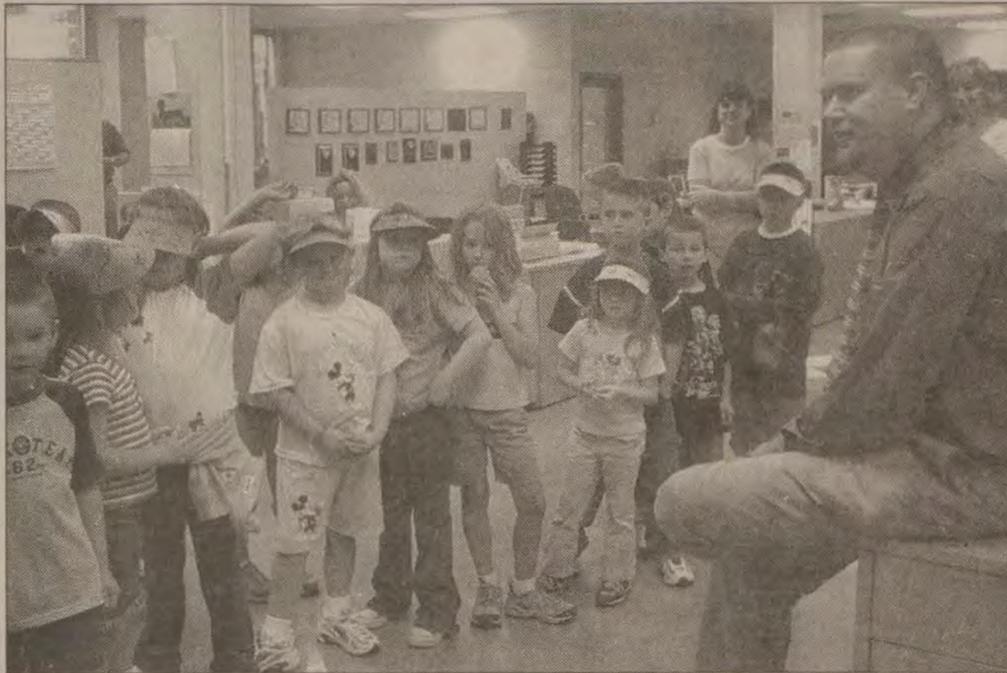

On display now in the Center's Art Gallery, Lewis Newman, of McDowell, spent a good portion of his youth growing up in Northern Ohio. He spent a lot of his time learning to draw as a student while recuperating from an illness. He and his family lived on a small farm, and race horses became the subject matter of much of his work. When he was older and returned to his roots in McDowell, his grandfather instilled in him his love of hunting and working in Floyd County, and the "artist" we're seeing today evolved.

Lewis is presenting a variety of subjects in his work. He has a considerable number of local landmarks...one of the hospital that used to serve Island Creek Coal in Wheelwright and one of the post office and railroad station at "Jump," near Martin. Also included are the Wayland Bank and Doug Hayes Home Place in McDowell.

Then there's the mare with her foal that will warm your heart, and a small drawing in Learning how a newspaper comes together can be a very interesting process. Especially if you're a youngster. Just as the 2003 school year was coming to an end, local teachers found a way to keep their students' minds actively engaged, as well as a means to releasing some of that "summer break is on the way" excitement.

Teachers from Prestonsburg Elementary decided that since their school was situated smack dab within the very center of a busy business, civic, and judicial atmosphere, what better way to teach a little social studies than to head out of the classroom and into the middle of all the activity?

"Testing is over and we've had so much rain that the kids haven't been able to get outside much, plus, everyone is getting really anxious about school almost being over. We decided that the best way to deal with the excitement was to just get out and move around and, in the process, learn a little about our local community," said Jo Ann Conn, a teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary.

"Also, our field trip funds are pretty much used up this late in the year, and this way, we don't even really need any money - we can just get out and walk around," she added.

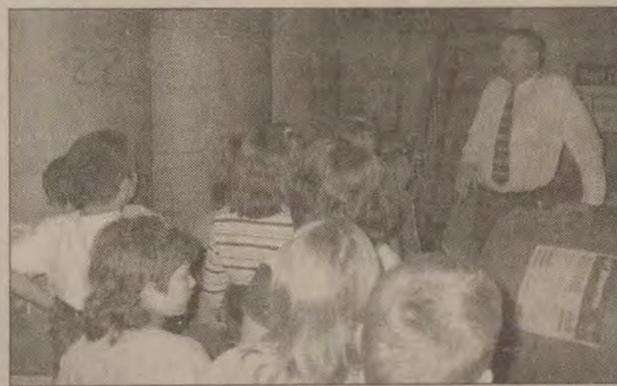

Upon arriving in the Times office, students were introduced to staff and given brief explanations of what each person's job entailed. Ralph Davis, editor, led the

POISON OAK

No print ads needed

Maybe it testifies to the fact that I need to get a life, but am I the only one who ever notices just how ridiculous those print ads for over-the-counter medicines really are?

Pick up nearly any magazine, and even before you get to page one, there's an ad for a pill (either regular or extra strength) for relief of arthritis pain and inflammation. And it appears that, just like doctors, pills have specialized.

One wonders if, in desperation, this pill for arthritis were swallowed to help a headache or toothache, would it do it? After having been washed into the stomach, would it seek frantically for a pain caused by arthritis? If it didn't find it, would it just sit back and dissolve, or would it pitch right in and help somewhere else?

Do advertisers think we'd fall for just anything? What about those ads that promise to change our thinking about laxatives? I mean, how many people do you know who actually sit around (no pun intended) and think about laxatives?

Imagine this conversation: "You look preoccupied. Dear. A penny for your thoughts."

Kim's Korner: Magical array of Talent

Kim Little Frasure

Dad treated Spouse and I to a night at the MAC this past Saturday night. And what a joy it was, too! People I am tellin' you, if you haven't gotten or taken the opportunity to witness the KY Opry, the Junior Pros, and the Junior Pro Fiddler's, you are missing it!

Year after year, these talented groups of individuals continue to amaze me.

It's a night filled with smiles, laughter, and tears. The sparring from Munroe and Keith get better and better, and the talent just blows you away.

Kory Caudill is flat out "Outstanding" on the piano. And this year melodies from the 70's are fantastic.

Could have done without Keith reminding us we were about to hear some tunes from way back, like (thirty years back) in the good old 70's. Ouch!

With our upcoming class reunion this August, this portion of the KY OPRY show is sure to be a big hit when fellow classmates get the chance to take in the show.

Ron Vanover and Laura Ford send chills up the spine when they belt out tunes! Boy, were those two ever blessed with talent.

The Carriere Family does this little skit from the song "The Devil Went Down to Georgia", that is just too cute!

It sure is easy to see why Ms. Billie Jean is so very proud to see her "dream" come to life on stage in such a magical array of Eastern Kentucky talent.

"Til Next Week, May God Bless.

A state budget pinch has put the financial squeeze on government operations, from the statehouse to the courthouse, prompting local officials to tighten their belts and to apply some pressure of their own. A projected $200 million shortfall in state revenues, announced earlier this month by Governor Brereton Jones, means fewer dollars for local governments and schools, sending officials in search of means to plug the funding leaks...At least five families were evacuated from their homes at Abbott Creek, early Monday morning, when a tanker truck carrying more than 9,500 gallons of liquid propane overturned, spilling part of its cargo. Mike Wells, assistant chief of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, said Monday that the accident apparently occurred at around 1 a.m., Monday, when Ohio-based Propane Transport Incorporated employee Richard Flowers took a wrong turn on an access road at Abbott Creek while searching for the Cliff community...Citing a lack of understanding of the district's budget, Thursday evening, Floyd County school board members nixed pay raises, for the time being, for school employees...Dancing, festival fun and fireworks! fireworks! fireworks! are heating up those warm summer evenings as the city of Prestonsburg's annual Fourth of July festivities kick into high gear...Pay us now or see us in court later is the word being sent this week to 100 of the most seriously delinquent accounts owed Floyd County's financially strapped Solid Waste Commission. The commission has notified those non-payers, whose collective bill for trash collections tops $134,000, that they have roughly 30 days to settle up on overdue accounts or face legal action...Another indictment issued last Wednesday, by a Floyd County Grand Jury, that was not released, involved a theft charge against a Floyd County woman, Darlene Wright, no age or address available, was charged with theft by unlawful taking for allegedly writing a $3,500 check, on January 9, to Lowell Sammons, knowing that the check would not be honored...Prestonsburg's Little Theater will open Friday night, July 2, with a performance by the Kentucky Opry Jr. Pros. The entertainment begins at 8 p.m., in the newly-refurbished Prestonsburg Elementary auditorium...The dispute over a controversial proposal to build a multi-million dollar government center on the site of the Prestonsburg Municipal Parking Lot may not be settled yet, but at least Prestonsburg City Council members now have a better understanding of it...Employees at the Paintsville division of American Standard voted overwhelmingly, Wednesday, to accept a three-year contract that provides hourly wage increases and a one-time lump sum bonus over the term of the agreement...The State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education held its July meeting at the Carriage House in Paintsville. The board convened at 1 p.m., Tuesday, July 6 to hear reports and hold committee meetings...Despite fiscal shortfalls, caused in large part by the Kentucky Cabinet for Natural Resources Division of Waste Management's closure of Floyd County's landfill last year, Floyd County Solid Waste Director Bob McAninch said Thursday the solid waste commission continues to strive to balance the books and clean up the county...Decisions by the Floyd County Board of Education, last month, to provide funds to one Floyd County high school football program, and to go forward with plans for an alternative school in the county, have drawn criticism from the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce...Citizens seeking to be candidates for local city councils or city commissions, mayors and seats on the Floyd County School Board in educational districts two and three have until August 3, at 4 p.m. to file to run for office...A Kentucky State Police surveillance team foiled a burglary at Lowe's of Paintsville, Wednesday evening, netting two Floyd County men and a Johnson County resident. Trooper Ghomer Prater, information officer for Kentucky State Police Post Nine, said Thursday, that William Skeens, 31; Joe Fraley, 29, both of Prestonsburg; and James A. Hicks, 21, of Thelma, were arrested outside of Lowe's at around 8:30 p.m., Wednesday. The men allegedly had contacted a store employee prior to the crime, Prater said, and "threatened" him with physical force and arson if he refused to cooperate with their plan to rob the business!...Efforts to outlaw the sale of alcoholic beverages in a Floyd County voting precinct have run aground, Floyd County Clerk Carla "Robinson" Boyd said this week, but may not stay in dry-dock for long. The efforts began in May, Boyd said, when several residents of the Mouth of Mud Creek #31 voting precinct submitted a petition to conduct a local option "wet-dry" vote. In order to qualify for the special election, Boyd said, the petition had to have at least 127 certified signatures, or roughly 25 percent of the 506 registered voters in the precinct who cast ballots in the November, 1992 general election...There died: Lizzie Slone, 86, of Marshall, Michigan, Saturday, at her residence; Ruby Branham Conn, 77, of Betsy Layne, Sunday, at Highlands Regional Medical Center; Eugena Chasity Hall, infant daughter of Jonathan and Judy Tackett Hall of McDowell,

Critter Corner: Monkeypox

This little "cutie-patootie" is 7-month old "Katie," a Lhaso Apso owned by Kandice and Nicholas Martin, of Teaberry. Katie is a little bundle of energy who likes to play fetch, romp with children, and hide things around the house! We love your "up-do," Katie!

By Dr. Carol Combs-Morris, DVM

As much as I ask for reader questions about topics of interest, I don't get many responses (hint, hint). However, my husband threw me a curve this week by asking me about monkeypox. I had never even heard of it—in the summer, I'm seldom home long enough to see the news. I knew it would only be a matter of time before someone else asked the same question, so I decided to find out what the big deal is and pass along the information.

Any time you need to know something about a health-related topic, it's best to go straight to the folks who know—the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta (www.cdc.gov). That way you are assured of accurate and up-to-date information. So here's the scoop as I understand it.

Monkeypox is caused by a virus that is in the same family as smallpox, cowpox, and vaccinia (the virus used in smallpox vaccine). It is rare, occurs mostly in Africa, and was first recognized in 1958 in laboratory monkeys, hence the name. Later scientists discovered that rodents, rabbits and other animals could get the disease, too. It was first reported in humans in 1970. There had never been an outbreak of monkeypox in this country until earlier this month. Most of the affected people that got sick with the disease had been in contact with pet prairie dogs that were infected.

To halt the spread of this disease the CDC and FDA have banned the importation of all rodents from Africa. They have also banned the import, transport and sale of prairie dogs and six other animals, including tree squirrels, rope squirrels, dormice, Gambian giant pouched rats, brush tailed porcupines, and striped mice. (I don't know what most of these critters are, either.) The current thinking is that the native American prairie dogs may have contracted the virus through contact with imported African rodents in pet stores and the like.

The signs of monkeypox in animals include lethargy, loss of appetite, fever, cough, runny eyes, swollen lymph nodes and a blister-like rash. Obviously, these same signs can show up in a lot of other diseases as well, so don't panic. There haven't been any reports of monkeypox infection in dogs or cats, but until we know more, any mammal is considered at risk. Realistically, unless you have a sick wild or exotic pet, or have another pet that was exposed to one on or after April 15 of this year, the risk is pretty low.

If you are concerned about a pet's illness, call ahead to your vet to describe the signs it is showing. If your vet thinks it sounds suspicious, you may be asked to bring the animal in as safely as possible. Use common sense to minimize exposure of people and other animals. Confine the pet in some sort of carrier, transport it in the back seat, don't bring the whole family with you, and don't wander around the vet's waiting room when you get there. And for Heaven's sake, DON'T release one of these sick animals into the wild or take it to a shelter, both places full of susceptible animals and primed for a massive disease outbreak. Recommendations about what to do may change as we understand the virus better, or if it becomes more common. You

Weddings

Tackett-Newsome

Mrs. Linda Tackett, of Grethel, is pleased to announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of her daughter, Ginger Lea, to Brian Emery Newsome, the son of Worley and Nancy Newsome, also of Grethel. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Roger Lee Tackett. She is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and is currently providing mentoring services through the AmeriCorps program at Pike County Works. Her fiancé is also a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and is employed through Hamilton Construction. The couple will wed in a ceremony that will take place on Saturday, July 5, 2003, at two o'clock in the afternoon, at the First Baptist Church of McDowell. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed. Immediately following, a reception will be held in the Life Center. The couple will reside in Grethel upon their return from a honeymoon vacation in Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

Samons-Delong

Mr. and Mrs. Green Samons Jr., of Martin, are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter, Amanda Gwen, to Timothy Delong, the son of Teddy and Judy Delong, of Hager Hill. The couple were wed in a ceremony that took place on May 31, 2003, in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. Amanda is the granddaughter of Eunice Samons, of Martin, and the late Green Samons and Lilly Mullins, also of Martin, and the late Delbert "Denver" Mullins.

Turner-Hall

William and Rosa Turner, of Jackson, are pleased to announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Amanda Turner, to Martin Hall, the son of Cainer and Gwen Hall, of Prestonsburg. Amanda is a graduate of Breathitt High School and Morehead State University. Martin is a graduate of The Piarist School and Morehead State University, and is employed as a special education teacher at Betsy Layne Elementary. The couple will wed in a ceremony that will take place on Saturday, July 12, at 2:30 p.m., at the New Hope Community Baptist Church, Jackson. A reception will follow in the church fellowship hall. All family and friends are cordially invited to attend.

Slone-Brown

Johnny and Bobbie Slone, of Martin, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Brandi Nicole, to Joseph Dwayne Brown, the son of Paul and Peggy Brown, of Garrett. Brandi is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and is currently attending the Regency School of Hair Design. Joseph is a graduate of Allen Central High School and Morehead State University. He is currently employed by Heiner's Bread Company. The couple will wed in a ceremony that will take place on Saturday, July 5, 2003, at half past four o'clock in the afternoon, at the Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church, Prestonsburg. A reception will follow in the church fellowship hall. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed. The couple plan to reside in Martin.

way in conducting the tour, taking time to explain to the children that a great deal of the work was now done with the use of computers and digital technology, much different "from the old days of cut and paste," he said.

The students were amazed when Heath Wiley, composing manager, had their group picture taken and then, within seconds, was able to print out a large 8"x10" copy for each teacher.

As the tour continued from the editorial department to the circulation department, Davis showed the children the several tall stacks of enormous rolls of paper waiting to be attached to the printing press. "We have an awfully lot of these right now," Davis told the children, "because we just had a shipment come in last night." Davis then showed the children the riding forklift that press employees used to carry the huge rolls. "Each roll weighs in the neighborhood of about 800 pounds," he said, "so there's no way anyone could carry one of these rolls without the use of a machine like this."

The youngsters were then directed to the area in which the actual printing press lay (not in use at the time) and to other areas such as the dark room and the room in which the newspapers are folded, bundled, counted and marked for delivery.

All in all, a pretty interesting hour for curious students. So, if your summer day camp program or children's organization is looking for a little educational activity in the weeks to come, bring them by the Times. We'll be happy to oblige. Just be sure to call 886-8506 and speak with the editor ahead of time so that necessary arrangements can be made.

The students of Prestonsburg Elementary also visited the Strand Theater, the Floyd County Library, and the Red Light Diner during their last couple of weeks of school.

Students from May Valley Elementary also toured the Times office, as well as local Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops, in earlier weeks.

"Oh, Bob!" I'm just sitting here thinking about laxatives."

"That's not natural, Dear."

"I know, Hon. I guess what I really need is a product to make me change my thinking."

I remember back in my Muddy Branch days when Mom reached for that big brown bottle of castor oil. Now, that product could make you change your mind about a lot of things, including Mom.

She also took care of a sore throat by dabbing turpentine on my tonsils, and rubbed me down with Vick's salve when I had chest congestion.

Of course, Mom was just "making do" with what she had around the house at the time; in a time when you couldn't just grab up a child and take him off to the doctor every time he complained of a belly ache or developed a fever.

Fortunately, sixty years ago, one didn't need print ads. For example, if you found yourself with a good full-fledged toothache, all you needed to do was carry in your pocket, a certain tooth-shaped bone from the head of a hog. Or, you could have just caught a green-eyed grasshopper at midnight in a graveyard, and bitten off its head with your sore tooth. Or better yet, if you would make a habit of picking your teeth with a splinter from a tree that had been struck by lightning, you would never have had a toothache in the first place.

Nope, we didn't need magazine ads in those days. Or course, about the only magazines that ever made it to our house, anyway, were the Progressive Farmer and the United Mine Workers Journal.

Chamber Membership means 'Business Networking'

Ron Lawson, Office of the New Economy

by REGINA BECKNELL
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, FLOYD COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Where can you go to business network with other area business owners? Your Chamber of Commerce Membership Meetings. The Chamber features a meeting schedule suitable for all. The meeting schedule works on a quarterly rotation, featuring a noon, breakfast and evening option and order of event. Looking for ways to stay on track?

Chamber website (www.floydcountkentucky.com) calendar provides a detailed upcoming events layout that can be printed for quick reference.

The Commerce Connection Newsletter highlights the coming month and feature events to look forward to.

Chamber Notes newspaper column in the Floyd County Times.

Chamber Happenings, weekly emails.

Business networking is your business' strongest and most affordable marketing tip; make the Chamber part of your business growth plans for 2003.

The next Chamber Membership Meeting is our "Eggs & Issues" Breakfast Meeting to be held July 9th, from 8 to 10 am at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Lodge. Our guest speakers will be Mr. Ron Lawson and Mr. Mel White; from the Office of the New Economy. Topics will include "Building a Regional Economy".

The Chamber wishes to remind members and possible members, to mark this date on their calendar.

The Government/Civic Affairs Committee, Mrs. Mary Begley, Chair, sponsors the "Eggs & Issues" Breakfast Meetings. Chamber Breakfast Meetings focus entirely on issues affecting the county and region; allows the membership direct contact with legislators, and highlights topics impacting business today. All breakfast tickets ($10/ea.) can be reserved by calling the Chamber. They are also available at the door.

The Chamber will host their next evening "Business After Hours" on August 13, at the Floyd County Times from 4 to 6 pm. Business After Hours not only provides a social networking setting, but attending members will be entered to receive prizes. The Chamber also holds our Business Card Exchange during our evening events, so make sure you have plenty of business cards on hand.

Upcoming Chamber Calendar of Events:

July 19th - Chamber Night at the MAC - Call to reserve your ticket for the Kentucky Opry. This 2nd Annual Chamber Tourism Promotion highlights the amazing tourism ventures available in Floyd County.

Aug. 7th - The Perfect Setting Ribbon Cutting Ceremony, 10 am in McDowell, KY. Call 377-6005 for more information.

Free magazine highlights outdoor recreation in Ky.

Hugging the sandstone face of a cliff in Red River Gorge. Spending four days backpacking atop Pine Mountain. Negotiating the whitewater beneath Cumberland Falls.

Or, maybe you prefer a lighter adventure, such as piloting a sailboat across Kentucky Lake or partaking in a leisurely, naturalist-guided hike in one of Kentucky's state resort parks.

Regardless of which end of the spectrum your personality falls into, Experience Kentucky is a new magazine that has undertaken the task of telling you what there is to see and do in the Bluegrass State, relying largely on first-hand accounts.

Experience Kentucky is a FREE magazine being distributed at Trail Dog Outfitters in Pikeville's Weddington Plaza and also at selected state resort parks. The Summer 2003 issue - containing a feature story about the Pine Mountain Trail - is now available, and Trail Dog also has a limited number of the magazine's first two issues, which have articles about climbing in the Red River Gorge and kayaking at Land Between the Lakes, respectively.

won't get in trouble for reporting a sick animal, even if it does turn out to have monkeypox. You might even be the person who is responsible for stopping an epidemic in its tracks.

Monkeypox can spread from animals to people through bites, or contact with and infected animal's blood, body fluids, or its rash. In people, the virus takes about 12 days to incubate following infection. Signs and symptoms in humans include fever, headache, muscle aches, backache, swollen lymph nodes and fatigue. A few days after the fever starts, a rash develops, with raised, fluid filled bumps. It usually starts on the face and spreads. The illness generally lasts for 2-4 weeks.

As with most viruses, there is no specific treatment except for supportive care and management of the symptoms. In Africa there has been a fatality rate as high as 10%, but we would expect much less here because the population is better nourished and has better access to medical treatment. Scientists don't know whether pets can contract the virus from people, but they will assume this is possible until proven otherwise.

Hopefully, we have just learned some interesting facts about a rare disease that we will never encounter. In the worst-case scenario of a local outbreak, however, we are armed with the basic information we need to protect ourselves - and our pets.

Virginia Gas Company, has begun production, it was announced this week by Peter C. Van Gilst, the company's vice-president in charge of operations...Woodrow W. Smith, 25, seaman on a Liberty Ship, was home last week wearing his "torpedo pin," a gift received from the Seaman's Union after his ship had been torpedoed off the coast of Africa, last March 10...With the exception of the Wayland, Hemphill and Fleming operations of the Elk Horn Coal Corporation, coal mines of the area were back at work under government direction...Commissioner of Agriculture William H. May, formerly of Prestonsburg, formally filed, this week, for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor...Two Floyd soldiers - Pfc. Mitchell D. Burke, of Weeksbury, and Pvt. Ralph Deboard, of Betsy Layne - are Axis prisoners, relatives have been notified...Six slot machines were confiscated on Left Beaver Creek, Tuesday, by Deputy Sheriffs T. S. Salisbury and Scott Compton...Angus Sexton, about 24 years old, native of Hueysville, was drowned, last Thursday, in a Michigan lake...The home of Atty. H. R. Burke suffered $500 fire damage, last Thursday, when a can of kerosene exploded...There died: Mrs. Maude Castle, 54, Tuesday, at Estill; Mrs. John Hyden, 41, Sunday, at West Prestonsburg; Mrs. Madison Collins, 28, of Minnie, Tuesday, at a Martin hospital; Joseph C. Click, 56, Sunday, at his home, near Emma.

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONER'S SALE

BY VIRTUE OF Order of the Floyd Circuit Court, entered on the 6th of May, 2003, in the Floyd Circuit Court, in the above styled action, to determine the divisibility of said property, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Old Floyd County Courthouse Door, South Central Avenue, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, (behind the new Floyd County Justice Center) to the highest bidder, at public auction, on Thursday, the 3rd day of July, 2003, at the hour of 9:15 a.m., the following described surface property, located at 4167 Rt. 979, Harold, Floyd County, Kentucky, and more particularly described as follows:

Tract No. 1: Beginning at a stake running down two hundred and fifty feet through the bottom, fifteen feet from the lower corner of the house, then running two hundred feet south up through bottom to a corner stake; thence, east one hundred and fifty-seven feet to the state highway, then with state road two hundred feet to the beginning.

Tract No. 2: Beginning at the corner stake at Janet Sue Spears line running one hundred and forty-seven feet to the meanders of the creek then running up creek to the old county road that goes over to Parson's Branch to Thomas Akers and Nora Akers line to the state road, then running with the state road to Eugene Akers line and running with Eugene Akers back to the beginning and including all dwellings thereupon. Being the same property conveyed to Hugh Winston Akers, Carlos Dean Akers, Lowell Keith Akers and Janet Sue Spears, by deed dated January 3, 1996, from Eugene Akers, single, recorded in Deed Book 392, Page 1, Floyd County Clerk's Office.

TERMS OF SALE:

(a) At the time of sale, the successful bidder, if the other than the Plaintiff, shall either pay cash or 10% of purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days.
(b) The successful bidder shall be required to execute a bond with good surety thereon for the unpaid purchase price of said property, if any, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, having the force and effect of a Judgment.
(c) The property shall be sold subject to any easements and restrictions of record in the Floyd County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America and/or the record owners thereof, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 2410 or KRS 426.530.

(d) The purchaser shall be required to assume and pay all Floyd County, Kentucky, real property taxes for the year 2003, and all subsequent years which are not yet due and payable. Any and all delinquent Floyd County, Kentucky, real estate taxes will be paid from the sale proceeds.
(e) If the successful bidder is a party to this action, he shall be given credit on the balance of the purchase price to the extent of his/her ownership interest in the above described real property, subject to payment of sufficient funds to satisfy the costs of sale and for the master commissioner.
(f) The net proceeds of the sale herein as ordered shall be deposited with the Court pending resolution of any expenses associated with this matter.
Any announcements made on date of sale take precedence over printed matter contained herein.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF PRESTONSBURG CITY'S UTILITIES COMMISSION

June 20, 2003

Effective immediately, and with the approval of the Division of Water, Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission is canceling the boil water advisory that was voluntarily issued on June 17, 2003, due to a water line break for its customers in the Middle Creek Area. The area affected was from Adams Cemetery Road West to and including Coal Branch. The boil water advisory was issued as a precautionary measure. The water line has been repaired and water samples taken in the area of the line break have been analyzed by a certified lab. The lab results indicate that the water supply was not compromised, and is safe for customers to use.

You've cleaned out your attic, your basement, your garage and now you're ready to have a garage sale. Before you proceed, follow these steps for placing the type of classified ad that will help turn your event into a best-seller.

- WHAT. Describe the type of sale you're hosting. Is it mostly household goods? Nursery furniture? Apparel?
- WHEN. Give dates and time of sale, and rain-date information.
- WHERE. Where the sale will be held, with directions or phone number for directions.

- WHY. Reason for sale, especially if it is an "moving" sale, since these tend to attract more customers.

Boxing

not again until last June.

It may have been too late for a reliable measurement, but Lewis claimed the win made him the top dog of his era, and insisted he had all the money he needed and not enough time to wait for a genuine contender to emerge.

Finally, Lewis asked and then answered his own question about what it would take to get him to fight either Klitschko, Chris Byrd or any other member of the unremarkable heavy-weight class filling out the rankings.

"If they want me to fight those guys," Lewis said at the time, "they're going to have to pay me money just to get me back into training."

Apparently, it wasn't enough in this case to make him train seriously — unless that was a money belt riding on Lewis' hips instead of a spare tire.

Lewis came into the fight with a ready-made excuse — he had only two weeks to adjust to Klitschko, a bigger fighter, after his original opponent, Kirk Johnson, was injured — but that wasn't the cause of all the huffing and puffing. He entered the ring at 256 1/2 pounds, the heaviest of his career, and it showed. Lewis couldn't get away from Klitschko's left hand and couldn't press the advantage each time he had the taller man in serious trouble.

"I knew his condition was not good, he's very heavy," Klitschko said. "He couldn't fight hard. I know I was hurting him with my punches."

Whether Lewis likes it or not, the glow from beating Tyson has already worn off. The only way he restores his credibility is the same way he did after the only two losses of his career. Lewis has to give Klitschko a rematch, show up in shape and beat him decisively — not square-dance with a pumped-up middleweight like Jones just because it's the best payday out there.

ALICE LLOYD COLLEGE

Raceland pitcher signs with Alice Lloyd

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RACELAND — Raceland High School graduate Sarah Meyer has signed to play softball at Alice Lloyd College.

Meyer led the Lady Rams to a 17-8 record and a berth in the 16th Region championship game, where they nearly upset Russell before falling 1-0.

Making the accomplishment more surprising is the fact Meyer, a center fielder for the first three seasons of her career, never pitched in a varsity game until this season.

Raceland coach Scott Floyd, Meyer's coach the past three seasons, said that despite getting a late start, she acquitted herself well on the mound this season.

"It's hard when you don't do something in your life and then you have to become a varsity pitcher," he said. "She pitched some jayvee last season but it's a big difference. Especially with pitching, experience goes a long way. But she got in a rhythm and at the end of the season was throwing as well as anyone in the region."

Although Meyer will primarily pitch at the college level, her ability to get on base (she batted well over .300 this season) would find her a spot in the batting order.

ALC head coach Tim Rice had the opportunity to see Meyer pitch and play on a couple of different occasions.

ART '03

Allen Central art student wins best of show

Josh Conley won Best of Show in the Smith & Williams Memorial Regional Art Show. The exhibit was held at the Dilce Combs Whitaker Athletic Center. Pictures were entered from Floyd, Knott, Perry Leslie, and Letcher counties. He received a trophy and Ribbon for his winning art work. Josh is the son of Darin and Teresa Conley of Hueysville. He also won first and third place in Acrylics and third place in Pencil Drawing.

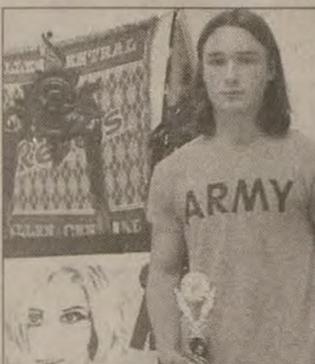

Also winning first place was James Meade. His winning entry was in Pencil Drawing. James is the son of Daryl and Sophia Bentley of Garrett.

Tori Maynard won second place in Pastels and Kayla Handshoe won second and third place in Charcoal. Tori is the daughter of Colonel Larry and Ann Maynard of Inez. Kayla is the daughter of Greg Handshoe of Mousie and Joan and Olen Cornett of Hueysville.

Terry Moore won second place in Manipulated Images. He is the son of Karen Moore of Martin and Terry Moore of Martin.

Amber Griffiths won fourth place in Pencil Drawing. She is the daughter of Dale and Amanda Stone of Langley.

All students are enrolled in the Talented and Gifted Art Class at Allen Central High School. The work was submitted by their teacher Caralita O'Quinn.

Allen Central's Outstanding School Artists were Terry Moore, Kayla Handshoe, Amber Griffiths and Tabitha Caudill.

Physics Class 2003

First-place winners were Jessica Fraley, Del Shepherd, Jennifer Belcher and Ryan Collins.

Taboo was the most popular game at Math Day.

ACHS Math Day 2003

Allen Central High School's annual Math Day has once again been a huge success, thanks to the diligent efforts put forth by the Allen Central High School Math Club and Math Department.

This year, students from Allen Elementary, Adams Middle, Betsy Layne Elementary, Allen Central Middle and South Floyd Middle participated in a wide variety of math games conducted by Math Club students. The events the students took part in were Taboo, Tangrams, DT Match, Correct Path and Mastermind.

Taboo was the most popular game this year at Math Day. The objective of Taboo is to try to guess a math term without using three particular words which are written on cards. One of the four group members has to describe words that relate to that word with the other three group members trying to guess it.

The top scoring teams were as follows:

First Place

Received Texas Instruments scientific calculators and Math Day shirts.

- Jessica Fraley, Allen Elementary
- Del Shepherd, Adams Middle
- Jennifer Belcher, Adams Middle
- Ryan Collins, Allen Central Middle

Second Place

Received geometry sets and Math Day shirts.

- Shannon Goble, Allen Elementary
- Amanda Hicks, Allen Central Middle
- Pam Slone, Adams Middle
- Ramon Spurlock, Allen Central High

Third Place (tie)

Received compasses and Math Day shirts.

- Wes Woods, Adams Middle
- Courtney Martin, Allen Central Middle

- Jeremy Brown, Allen Elementary
- Nathan Ross, Betsy Layne Elementary
- Chris Hamilton, South Floyd Middle
- Jordan Ochala, Adams Middle
- Zach Compton, Allen Elementary
- Mike Case, Allen Central Middle

The purchased prizes were funded by a grant from GEAR-UP. All participants received Math Day pencils and were entered in a random drawing to award Math Day shirts, Texas Instruments scientific calculators, free Dairy Queen Blizzards and geometry sets.

Math Club students, organized by the food committee, provided the food for everyone who was on hand that day. Our sound crew kept the entertainment level high with a variety of music and the presentation of awards.

Martin McDonalds and Dairy Queen were very conducive to making Math Day successful with their generous donations. A big thanks goes out to The Floyd County Times for putting all the details in the paper to help us promote Math Day and to Q95 for announcing the information on the radio. We would also like to thank our president, Jeni Jo Spurlock, for doing such a good job with organizing our groups.

On behalf of the Math Club, thanks to everyone that was involved with Math Day. We would also like to take this time to invite all Floyd County seventh- and eighth-grade math students to come and be a part of our Math Day next year.

Last, but definitely not least, a big thank-you to the schools that came and participated this year. It was you who truly made Math Day a success.

Mrs. Crisp's second-grade class just finished an interdisciplinary unit of studies focusing on change over time, fossils, and environments and change of organisms. As a culminating event, students constructed dioramas and they were displayed throughout their classroom.

The fifth-grade class at Allen Elementary had the opportunity to meet the sheriff of Floyd County, John K. Blackburn, along with his two assistants, Deputy Chafin (DARE instructor) and Deputy Caudill, with drug dog, Nitro. Nitro demonstrated how the sheriff's department uses him to locate drugs in schools. These men were presenting trophies, certificates and t-shirts that were provided by the sheriff's department because the students have completed the DARE program. This program teaches students the adverse effects of drug and alcohol use. Their unit is topped off with a fun-filled day at the Dewey Dam spillway.

Allen Elementary cheerleaders had a Father's Day grill giveaway on May 28. The winner was Julia Ousley, of Martin. She had purchased the lucky ticket from her great-granddaughter, Jaide Ousley, a boys' varsity cheerleader at Allen Elementary.

On Friday, April 18, Allen Central High School hosted its annual Math Day. Students were placed on teams with students from other area middle schools to compete in a variety of math performance events. Allen Elementary School had four student winners. Jessica Fraley was on the first-place team, Shannon Goble was on the second-place team, and Jeremy Brown and Zach Compton were on teams tied for third place.

Mrs. Isaac's entire sixth-grade class has been involved in starting the outdoor classroom. Various groups chose different projects to work on. Ethan Walker and Bryant Tibbs are shown digging holes to set fence posts in. Josh Head and his father, Jeff Head, are working on the grapevine rack with help from Mr. Stapleton, a community member, and other members of the group. The students have plowed, fenced and planted a melon patch, all of the flower boxes and a strawberry patch. The school is proud of all its students and appreciates all volunteers, those who showed up with their tillers and tools and especially all the parents who donated seeds, wooden posts, tools, etc.

Heather Miller and Courtney Lewis participated in the state Science Olympiad competition and placed second in bottle rockets.

BLHS students set Guinness World Record

Recently, the Guinness Book of World Records Organization officially recognized Betsy Layne High School students for successfully breaking a Guinness World Record by having the largest number of people flossing simultaneously in one spot.

Yes, you read it right. Approximately 350 students, faculty and staff members assembled in the school's gymnasium at 8 a.m. on Thursday, Dec. 19, to begin flossing. To accomplish the feat, over 1,300 feet of floss were used and hundreds of latex gloves.

The event was sponsored by the school's Student Council.

Friends, family members and coaches were in attendance to help the girls celebrate this exciting occasion.

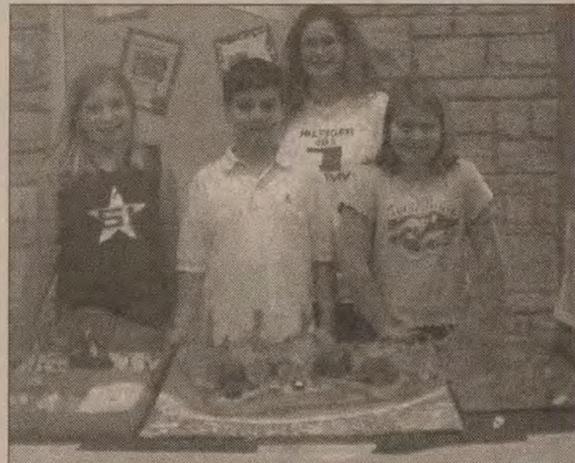

Recently, Mr. Thomas Hardwick, retired school teacher and Floyd County historian, visited Mrs. Denny Layne's Advanced history class. His insightful and witty presentation was filled with humorous anecdotes and interesting facts that informed students of Floyd County's rich history. Hardwick stressed to students the importance of their Eastern Kentucky heritage and encouraged them to be proud of who they are and where they call home. He also left the students with a helpful piece of advice for their futures. He stressed to them that they must "want less or earn more" to survive.

Accelerated Reader Earns Certificate
Lucas Hamilton read the most Accelerated Reading books in Mrs. Vanover's class at Stumbo Elementary. He was awarded with a certificate and a prize.

Shawn Taylor, a first grade student at Stumbo Elementary, was awarded a Certificate of Good Citizenship and Good Health Habits by Juanita Akers, the health aide at the school. Shawn, who is the son of Mrs. Chandra Taylor, picked up five bags of litter along KY route 979, during the clean-up day, April 19.

Kory Henry received an Outstanding Ambassador Award when he debated against over 900 other students for the honor at a recent KUNA conference. Kory is a 7th grade student at Stumbo Elementary Cody Akers, a P-4 student in Mrs. Stephanie Lawson's class at Stumbo Elementary, was named 1st place county winner in the art conservation contest.

Jesse Tackett, Kaytlyn Short, and Austin B. Hall were the kindergarten winners at Stumbo Elementary for the Conservation Contest in the area of art. Austin B. Hall went on to become the 1st place county winner.

Lucas Hamilton, a P-3 student in Mrs. Vanover's class was a school winner in the Conservation Contest at Stumbo Elementary.

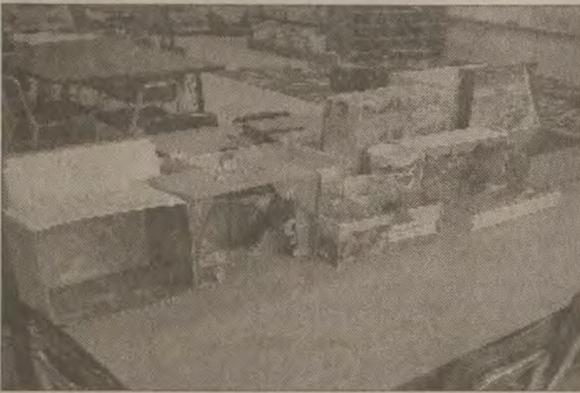

Mrs. Vanover's class at Stumbo Elementary has been learning about dinosaurs. The class participated in a fossil expedition using chocolate chip cookies and toothpicks.

Family Art Project

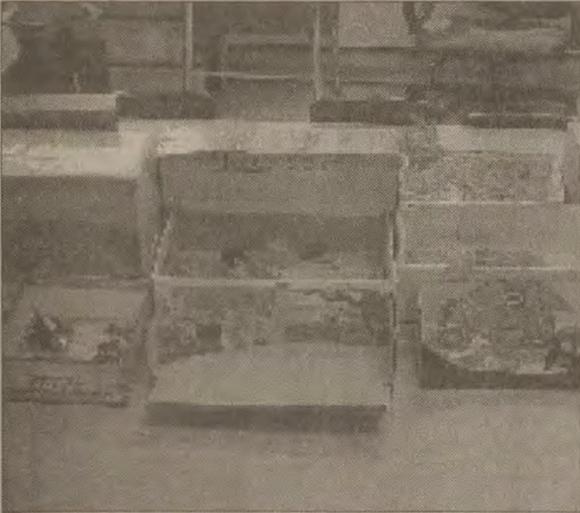

Mrs. Vanover's P-3 class at Stumbo Elementary decorated boxes with their parents for Valentine's Day.

The students in Mrs. Deborah Hall's class completed models of habitats. Oceans, ponds, rainforest, a bear's habitat, a real bird's nest, and several other examples were exhibited. Thanks to the parents and students for making our projects such a success.

The John M. Stumbo Y-club just recently attended the 2003 Kentucky United Nations Assembly representing the country of Finland. Students attending were: 5th grader Jace Short; 6th graders Stephanie McKinney, Adam Slone, and Bethany Newsome; 7th graders Kim Billiter, Allie Hall, Krista Flanery, Cecily Howell, Rachael Hamilton, Sasha Osborne, Colby Hayes, Jeremy Osborne, and Kory Henry; 8th graders Chad Conn, Samantha Newsome, and Brittany Mitchell. Kim Billiter and Kory Henry were chosen to represent the Madame President and her husband the Council Commissioner. The other students were Ambassadors of Finland debating bills with great success.

Academic Competition Results

Congratulations to the following Stumbo Elementary students who placed while competing in the Middle School Academic Competition in District 75.

Samantha Newsome placed 2nd in mathematics assessment. Jeremy Osborne placed 1st in social studies assessment. Stephanie McKinney placed 3rd in language arts assessment. Jessica Hall placed 5th in general knowledge. The Quick Recall Team placed 3rd in the competition

Mrs. Hall's P1 and P2 class at Stumbo has been working very hard to learn calendar math (shown above). We have been learning about magnets and forces. Some of our activities involved a 'magnet hunt' throughout the school. The students were looking for objects that magnets would attract. We have played 'tug-of-war' to demonstrate an example of forces. There have been many exciting things going on in our classroom.

STUDENTS VISIT THE STAR STUDENT STORE

The students pictured below are among many who purchased prizes from the Star Student Store with their star cards. Students earn Star Cards by exhibiting good behavior and for going beyond what is expected of them.

The Stumbo Head Start classes A, B, & C has been doing many end of year events. Recently they went on a field trip to the Airport at Pikeville and Gatti Land. The children and parents enjoyed the day together. Mothers were also honored with a muffin with Mom's event. Ms. Deb's Head Start class recently spent a week doing a unit on Sports. Seventh and eighth grade students demonstrated their skills and gave advice to the Head Start students.

Wesley Christian School

Wesley Christian students took their annual "Spring Retreat" to Aldersgate in April and May. Aldersgate is a Christian camp located in Ravenna. Each year, students and their parents spend time together enjoying things such as hiking, horseback riding, singing around the campfire and wading in the creek. It's an experience that every student looks forward to each year. We appreciate the dedication of director Lee Padgett and his staff.

Apples for Students

During the Food City program "Apples for Students", which ran from September through March, Wesley Christian School held a competition between its classrooms.

The classroom with the most receipts returned would receive a special treat.

At the end of the program, the school beat its goal of $230,000, therefore making this its top year in the program.

The top two classes had only a $1.62 difference in totals. The second-grade class was treated to an afternoon at Gatti's in Pikeville and the preschool was treated to a pizza party.

Wesley Christian appreciates all those who participated and helped make the program a success. The school was able to purchase needed items, such as videos, a scanner, televisions and more.

Teacher Appreciation Week

Wesley Christian School celebrated Teacher Appreciation Week May 5-9. Teachers received daily treats throughout the week from the Wesley Christian PTO. Each teacher received a token of appreciation from the board of directors at the weekly chapel service. The school appreciates the time and dedication each teacher puts in to make Wesley Christian a special school.
