Two killed in Pike wreck

by SHELDON COMPTON

BELFRY — Two West Virginia residents were killed earlier this week in an accident at Belfry in Pike County, according to reports from Kentucky State Police Post 9 in Pikeville.

Police said that 79-year-old Blanche Maynard, of Delbarton, W.Va., was traveling along Route 119 in Belfry when she crossed in front of a commercial vehicle driven by Ira Baisden, a 72-year-old fellow-resident of Maynard's.

Approximately three hours after the accident, Maynard was pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Coroner Ernest Casebolt.

Followup reports from state police said Baisden, who was driving the commercial vehicle Maynard crossed in front of, died later at Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, W.Va., from injuries sustained in the accident. Police said Baisden, who was flown from the scene by helicopter, had been wearing a seat belt at the time and that airbags had deployed during the course of the crash.

It was not mentioned as to whether or not Maynard was wearing a seat belt when the accident occurred.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Mitchell Adkins is investigating the accident.

JENNY WILEY PIONEER FESTIVAL

It didn't take long Thursday evening for the crowd to start filling into Prestonsburg's municipal parking lot for the early stages of the Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival. Several people stopped by the parking lot to sample some unique menu items and then moved down the street a couple blocks to the rides. The festival will continue through the weekend.

Convicted judge pleads to be released

PIKEVILLE — Leg shackles jangled as Knott County Judge-Executive Donnie Newsome and one of his political supporters short-stepped their way into federal court on Thursday, a week after they were convicted of election fraud.

Defense attorneys, trying to convince U.S. District Judge Danny Reeves that the men should be released from jail, called a string of witnesses who testified that the two wouldn't be dangers to the community if they were freed.

Newsome and co-defendant Willard Smith, wearing blue jail suits and sandals, were taken back to the Pike County Detention Center after the hearing. They're awaiting the judge's ruling.

Reeves gave no indication when he would enter his ruling, other than to say he would do it expeditiously.

Gerard Gerhard, an assistant state attorney general, said Newsome apparently will be able to remain in office for now despite the conviction.

Gerhard said elected officials who are convicted of felonies are subject to removal under the Kentucky Constitution, but their removals have to wait until the appeals process is completed.

Stephen Owens, a Pikeville lawyer representing Newsome, and Smith's lawyer, Eldred Adams Jr. of Louisa, asked that Newsome and Smith be released on bond until their sentencing, which is set for Jan. 5 in Pikeville.

LEXINGTON — President Bush on Thursday gave Ernie Fletcher's gubernatorial campaign its biggest single financial boost but warned a Republican crowd that money alone would not be enough in November.

"It's one thing to come to a fund-raiser, and that's important," Bush told an audience of 1,700, all of whom paid $500 to $1,000 a piece to attend. Many others paid $100 apiece to have their names included in a souvenir program. People who raised or donated $10,000 could get their photo taken with Bush.

"But you need to go to your coffee shops. You need to go to community centers and your houses of worship," Bush said.

"You need to tell people who haven't made up their mind you've got a good man in Ernie Fletcher. You need to spread the word to energize those folks."

Bush, in his 28-minute speech, time and again praised Fletcher as a congressman, a political ally and a man who "has the right values to lead this state."

Fletcher's Democratic opponent, Ben Chandler, has based his campaign largely on a criticism of the national economy and what he usually describes as Fletcher's blind willingness to vote for administration policies.

Bush had a different take on Fletcher's voting record.

Bush said that when he asked Congress to approve tax cuts, "This good man supported me. The tax relief came at the right time in American history."

As for the unemployed, Bush said that Fletcher "knows what he's talking about on job creation."

Earlier in the day, Chandler said Bush should visit the unemployed instead of stroking the "fat cats." Chandler, the state attorney general, has made the economy and job losses a primary

Shooting suspect nabbed in Ivel

HURRICANE CREEK — State police arrested a Lexington man at Ivel Monday and charged him with shooting a man during an altercation along Hurricane Creek, near the Pike and Floyd county line.

Charles Patrick, 27, of Lexington, was arrested near Ivel and later lodged at the Pike County Detention Center after police responded to a call notifying their office of a shooting at Hurricane Creek.

When police arrived at the scene they discovered Johnny R. Hall, 41, of Hurricane Road, at his residence. Hall had been shot, according to police reports, which did not specify where he had been shot or how many times.

After some initial investigation, police determined that Patrick had allegedly shot Hall during an argument that escalated into a physical altercation.

Approximately two hours after receiving word of the shooting, police had taken Patrick into custody.

Hall was taken to Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, W.Va., and is currently listed as being in stable condition, according to police.

Patrick has been charged with first-degree assault in connection to the shooting and remains lodged at the Pike County Detention Center.

Cops injured in separate incidents

PIKEVILLE — While responding to a shooting in Pike County Monday, Kentucky State Police Post 9 in Pikeville saw two of their troopers injured, one before making it to the scene of the crime and another who was conducting interviews about the shooting after the incident.

Reports from state police say that while en route to the shooting, Detective Terry Thompson was traveling along U.S. 460 on Road Creek near Elkhorn City when a vehicle driven by a person identified only as Jennifer Justice turned across the road and hit his cruiser.

The collision forced Thompson's cruiser to crash into a nearby residence, where it eventually came to a rest, police said.

There were no injuries to the occupants of the home, according to police.

Both Trooper Thompson and Justice were transported to Pikeville Methodist Hospital after the accident. Thompson was treated and released, while Justice was treated and then placed under arrest.

Justice was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol or drugs, no insurance and operating a vehicle on a suspended license.

Approximately five hours after Thompson was hit along Road Creek, another trooper, who was interviewing suspects about the shooting, was injured when an unoccupied vehicle rolled ■ DELAND, Fla. — In a state known for close elections, the mayor's race in Ponce Inlet came down to the tightest of margins — one vote.

A recount Wednesday broke a tie in the race, ending an election that started the day before.

Incumbent Mayor Bill Hoak won by a single vote, earning 465 votes to challenger Frank Vitale's 464.

"That's democracy, you know, at its best," said Vitale, whose political advisers have not yet ruled out a challenge.

Hoak declared the winner by Elections Supervisor Deanie Lowe after a recount of all ballots, said he had hoped to win a third term by a wider margin.

"I guess I'll have to find out the reason why so many voters went the other way," Hoak said. "I've got to do my homework."

Ponce Inlet is about 30 miles south of Daytona Beach.

■ MIAMI — Police said they arrested a man who robbed two neighboring banks within 20 minutes, then stopped to rest his tired feet.

Daniel Gallagher, 46, was charged with two counts each of armed bank robbery and threats to discharge an explosive device.

Gallagher allegedly walked into two banks in downtown Miami and told tellers he had a bomb in his bag. In both cases, he then demanded and received $100. Police said the bag actually contained a can of beer.

Gallagher told police that after the second robbery his feet had become tired, so he sat down for a break. A witness soon identified him and he was arrested.

Police said Gallagher, who has an extensive arrest record, told authorities he committed the robberies because: "I'm too ugly to get a job."

A call to the Miami-Dade public defender's office rang unanswered after business hours and it could not be determined if Gallagher was being represented by an attorney.

In Loving Memory of Cortney Danielle Smith

October 11, 1988, to December 8, 2002

God sent us an Angel in a special way, October eleventh is our celebration day.

He loaned her to us, but for only awhile, so we could enjoy her beautiful smile.

He needed her back after fourteen years, how the angels must have cried such joyful tears.

Though she can't be with us here, our memories remain so dear.

Please know your spirit remains in all hearts you ever touched. We miss you so much.

Happy Birthday, Cortney,

■ DES MOINES, Iowa — Former Drake kicker Billy Cundiff is now part of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Well, his shoe is there, anyway.

Cundiff's shoe was sent to the Canton, Ohio, hall after he kicked seven field goals for the Dallas Cowboys in a 35-32 overtime victory over the New York Giants on Sept. 15.

The seven field goals tied the NFL record. His shoe will be added to an exhibit that features kickers who have booted seven field goals in a game.

"Right now this is probably one of the highest moments in my career," said Cundiff, who's from Harlan. "I'll enjoy it while I can."

The other National Football League kickers with seven field goals in a game are Chris Boniol of the Cowboys, Rich Karlis of the Minnesota Vikings and Jim Bakken of the St. Louis Cardinals.

called to testify on Thursday on behalf of Newsome and Smith. All said neither of the men should be considered threats. Owens said he has an estimated 700 letters from Knott County residents who support the release of Newsome and Smith.

Jim Bates, a Hindman attorney who testified Thursday, said he was shocked that anyone would think Newsome could be a danger.

"He is no danger to the community," Bates told reporters after the hearing. "Keeping him locked up accomplishes nothing."

Those sentiments were echoed by others.

"I think Mr. Newsome is a real asset to the community," said Dr. Ira Potter, a physician from Maytown. Asked by attorneys if Newsome might be a danger, Potter said: "I can't imagine that."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Self said credible testimony during the trial showed that two witnesses were threatened. One said he was told he would be a walking dead man if he testified. Another said she was told she would have to answer to police if she took the witness stand.

Newsome was convicted of one count of conspiracy to buy votes and two counts of buying votes. He faces three to 15 years in prison. Smith was convicted of one count of conspiracy to buy votes and four counts of buying votes. He faces five to 25 years in prison.

Reeves said at the conclusion of the hearing Thursday that he also will consider things that occurred during the trial in making his decision on whether to release the men. He said some people who attended the trial followed jurors to lunch and talked about the case within their hearing in an effort to influence them. Also, he said some people made statements to the media in an attempt to influence jurors.

"These are the concerns that weigh heavily on my mind," the judge said before adjourning the hearing.

Georgene Johnson of Hindman said many people in Knott County question why Newsome was singled out for prosecution in the election fraud case. She said testimony in the trial showed candidates running against Newsome were buying votes.

"Who's prosecuting them," she asked. "It's a miscarriage of justice."

Police said that Trooper Luke Vanhoose and Detective Steve Bowman were interviewing suspects when a vehicle left unattended rolled backward and pinned Vanhoose between Bowman's cruiser.

Vanhoose was taken to ry theme of his campaign. He said it was significant that Bush was not making a public appearance.

"He's not talking to any of the people who've lost their jobs here in Kentucky. Instead he's only seeing the fat cats who want to spend $10,000 to have their picture taken with him," Chandler told reporters following a sometimes contentious appearance with Fletcher at a local high school.

Other administration officials also have helped raise money for Fletcher, the 6th District congressman, who is trying to become the first Republican since 1967 to win the Kentucky governorship. Vice President Dick Cheney appeared at a fund raiser in Cincinnati.

Commerce Secretary Don Evans and Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham came to fund raisers inside the state. Bush's political adviser, Karl Rove, played host at a Fletcher fund raiser in Washington. In addition, Bush's brother, Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, was featured at one of Fletcher's fund raisers in Kentucky.

Outside the civic center, hundreds lined the street Thursday, with Bush protesters outnumbering his supporters. Some war protesters held signs that read "Bush: War is not working" or "Violence cannot end violence." Several signs supporting Democratic presidential hopeful Howard Dean were visible in the crowd.

Two blocks away, Democratic faithful held their own rally, which featured a band and attracted representatives of several labor unions. Fletcher's campaign had taken in $3.6 million as of its latest report, filed Sept. 26. Fletcher had $2.3 million on hand at that time, twice as much as Chandler. Chandler got a $500,000 contribution from his running mate, millionaire businessman Charlie Owen, on Thursday.

Chandler and Fletcher began the day at Henry Clay High School before dozens of students and the radio audience of a WLAP talk show.

FRANKFORT — Though there will be many exceptions, Kentucky's middle and high schools as a group will not hit the state's academic performance targets at their current pace, the state school board was told Wednesday.

Elementary schools are a different story. They historically have outperformed the others and had done so again when scores from the 2003 round of the Kentucky Core Content Test

Chandler, stung by critical television commercials from the Republican Governors Association as well as from Fletcher's campaign, asked Fletcher to take "negative ads" off the air. "I will not run a single negative ad," said Chandler in front of reporters.

Fletcher declined to make any promises. He protested that Chandler has, in fact, been negative because Chandler has called him a "hypocrite" and the Chandler campaign has created a Web site that criticizes his actions and lampoons his own campaign slogan, "restoring hope."

"You have blamed all sorts of things on me," Fletcher said. The Web site was "just to attack me. ... We're running some contrast ads, and we will continue to do that."

Replied Chandler: "Let's stop it right now. If you don't like the Web site, we'll take it down right now." Said Fletcher: "I'm not going to be able to sit here and make a deal with you."

To reporters later, Chandler backed off a total disavowal of attack ads. "We are planning, as long as we think we can, to not go negative," he said.

When questioned by their student audience, however, the two candidates agreed on every issue, including opposition to legalized gay marriage but also to discrimination against gay people; that a national sales tax would penalize the poor; legalization of hemp farming only if there's a way to distinguish it from marijuana; and that local governments should decide whether to ban smoking without interference from the legislature.

The two candidates planned to debate Thursday night in Bowling Green.

Shoplifting arrests lead to drug charges

PRESTONSBURG — Two Magoffin County women were arrested Tuesday for allegedly shoplifting from Wal-Mart in Prestonsburg, but ended up facing more than just theft charges after police searched them at the scene.

Charlene K. Mullins, 38, of Royalton, and Regina L. Salyer, 31, of Salyersville, were taken into custody by Prestonsburg police Tuesday evening after a Wal-Mart employee reported that both women had attempted to steal two shirts and a pair of socks apiece from the store.

When Prestonsburg Police Officer Brian Kidd arrived in response to the complaint, he reported that during a search of Mullins' purse he found 10 "little blue pills" he said he believed to be Xanax tablets, as well as three white pills with green specks he believed to be Lorcet tablets in a plastic wrapper. Kidd said he also discovered a second wrapper with residue inside and a portion of a solid white pill in Mullins' purse.

Mullins was charged with theft by unlawful taking, second-degree possession of a controlled substance and prescription in improper container.

Her companion, Regina Salyer, was searched later at the Floyd County Detention Center, police said.

During the second search, deputy jailers reported finding one straw that had been cut and contained a white powder residue inside.

Salyer was charged with theft by unlawful taking and use or possession of drug paraphernalia. She pleaded guilty to both charges at her arraignment Wednesday and was given a seven-day jail sentence and ordered to stay out of Wal-Mart.

Mullins is scheduled for arraignment Oct. 21.

Pharmacist's keen eye leads to forgery arrest

SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — A Floyd County woman who police said was attempting to pass off a forged prescription was arrested earlier this week and charged with forgery and criminal possession after a heads-up reaction from a local pharmacy landed her in jail.

According to reports from Floyd County Sheriff's Deputy B.J. Caudill, 64-year-old Ollie Calhoun, of Ruff & Tuff, was attempting to fill a prescription when a pharmacist at the MedZone Pharmacy in Prestonsburg noticed the prescription had been altered, and called the doctor who had written it, police said.

The doctor informed the pharmacist that the prescription had, apparently, been altered to increase the number of tablets from 35 to 75, Caudill wrote in his report. The pharmacy then reported the discrepancy to police.

When officers arrived, Calhoun allegedly admitted to them that she had altered the prescription to read 75 tablets before attempting to pass it at the pharmacy.

Calhoun was arrested and charged with one count of forgery of a prescription and one count of criminal possession of a forged prescription. She was lodged at the Floyd County Detention Center on a $2,000 surety bond and is scheduled to appear for arraignment in Floyd District Court on Oct. 28.

Middle, high schools wouldn't hit academic targets at current pace

by CHARLES WOLFE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

were released Tuesday.

The state's goal for all schools is to attain a score of 100 on a scale of zero to 140 by 2014. A score of 100 would indicate that, on average, a school's student population was "proficient" under a system of four performance classifications — novice, apprentice, proficient and distinguished.

At current rates of gain, elementary schools would have an "accountability index" of 102.1 by the target date. Middle schools would be at 92.1 and high schools at 88.2.

Some schools will have to undergo some drastic changes, Education Commissioner Gene Wilhoit said. "Incremental development will not get them to the goal," he told the board.

Fourteen of Kentucky's nearly 1,200 public schools already have reached or exceeded 100. One is a middle school — North Oldham Middle at Goshen — and all the rest are elementary schools, five of them in Daviess County.

Wilhoit said the test data contain a telling tidbit: Among schools with large populations of low-income students, the elementary schools are far more likely to have high test scores than are the middle and high schools.

That gives lie to the notion that poor kids cannot learn as well as their more affluent classmates, Wilhoit said. It also raises questions about what happens in upper grades.

Wilhoit said the data also show that "school achievement is a result of effort, not kids' backgrounds."

Editorial roundup

San Francisco Chronicle, on the California recall results:
This is not a bad movie. It's the reality of what happens when a bland and unpopular governor meets a Hollywood action hero promising to blow up a corrupt and aloof culture in Sacramento.

In the 1972 film, "The Candidate," Robert Redford, playing Senate candidate Bill McKay, delivered the memorable election-night line, "What do we do now?"

Many Californians may be waking up this morning with a similar blend of amazement and uncertainty about their new governor. Schwarzenegger cloaked himself in generalities throughout the campaign. He talked broadly about creating an administration more receptive to business concerns — as a way to keep jobs in the state — while fending off other special interests who are draining the state budget. Much of his agenda remains a blank slate. ...

While Schwarzenegger ran against the status quo, his effectiveness as governor may depend on how well he can work with legislators of both parties. He need look no further than the history of another outsider-actor, Ronald Reagan, in mastering Sacramento more than three decades ago. ...

The Morning News, Springdale, Ark. on the leaking of a CIA operative's identity:

It is not an exaggeration to suggest that lives were endangered when someone told a newspaper columnist the name of a woman who was a covert employee of the Central Intelligence Agency.

... The FBI launched a probe of the incident several days into a controversy over accusations by the woman's husband, Joseph C. Wilson, that a White House official provided classified information about his wife to reporters.

Wilson believes the leak may have been retaliation for his role in embarrassing the Bush administration. Wilson, a former ambassador, undermined a claim made by the President during the state of the union address that Iraq had attempted to obtain weapons-grade uranium from the African nation of Niger.

... There is little chance an investigation — either by the FBI or by a special counsel — will be able to prove who leaked the information. Presidential administrations have, over the decades, perfected the art of the undetected leak. ... But an investigation is appropriate. And Ashcroft's Justice Department should be given the chance to prove itself before an independent counsel is called. Most of all, the Bush administration should examine its own house.

If this was an innocent slip of the tongue regarding an open secret ... we need to know that. If, however, it was inspired by political retaliation, it is in the president's best interests to find out who is responsible and let the legal system work. That's the only way to preserve what credibility his administration has left.

Presidential conventions now for sale

by JIM HIGHTOWER

Did you ever see the old science-fiction horror movie, "The Thing?" That fictional Thing came from outer space and threatened to destroy our country — but today we've got a real-life Thing that comes from within, grows bigger and bigger every year, and is steadily devouring our democracy: Corporate Money. We've seen the White House, Congress, and both major parties be consumed by this big-money, special-interest Thing, but now corporate contributors are even planning to swallow the presidential nominating conventions of the Republicans and Democrats. The Thing never sleeps.

After the Watergate scandal of 1972, these quadrennial conventions have been financed with public funds — a move intended to keep the corrupting power of corporate money out of the process. By 1980, however, a little loophole appeared allowing the sponsoring cities of the conventions to offset expenses by raising a limited amount of money from local corporations. Having gotten its finger in that little loophole, The Thing began to wriggle, enlarging the hole until its whole hand was inside.

By 2000, there were more corporate executives and lobbyists at the two conventions than delegates, with the likes of Microsoft and AT&T paying $2 million each to worm their way inside where they could schmooze with the top office holders of both parties and win favor for their special corporate needs. And now, at next year's two presidential conventions, corporations are expected to put up more than $100 million to pay about three-fifths of the total cost of the conventions.

But both parties seem willing to sell it all to The Thing. As a Republican election commissioner says: "I look forward to the day... when Americans can turn on their TVs and watch the Nokia Democratic Convention or the AT&T Republican Convention."

To help stop The Thing, call Public Campaign: 202-293-0222.

Opposed to closing veterans hospital

The proposal to basically close down the veterans hospital campus on Leestown Road in Lexington is opposed by the veterans who would be directly affected.

There is a proposal to eventually open up the 135-acre Leestown Division campus to "commercial interests."

I absolutely oppose losing forever this historic landmark property to outside (non-veteran) use. Leestown Division complements the land-locked campus facility at the Cooper Drive facility. Each has valuable assets the other does not. Just the campus alone at Leestown is irreplaceable and I understand there is considerable opposition to the overall plan already. I consider ludicrous and ill-conceived any reduction of the Leestown Road facility.

While no one can predict the future, the war situation could result in a catastrophic event that would cause many casualties, military and/or civilian. Being that the Leestown Division at its peak houses 800 or so hospital beds, with all the attendant care necessary to sustain these patients, it would seem foolish to entertain giving up such a valuable resource.

The natural surroundings at Leestown include meadows, tree groves, walking trails, picnic facilities, rehab and psychiatric counseling and other services that absolutely cannot be provided or duplicated in downtown Lexington. It has served past generations of veterans very well and there is no doubt that future generations of veterans deserve this same standard of care — nothing less!

Please voice your opposition to the closure of the Leestown Division. Write your congressman, the sooner the better, and contact your local American Legion, VFW, DAV or AMVET to sign a petition and receive more information.

At the Movies:

"Kill Bill - Vol. 1"

by CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP ENTERTAINMENT WRITER

Simultaneously exhilarating and infuriating, "Kill Bill - Vol. 1" is about everything and nothing at once.

Quentin Tarantino's first film in six years is an unabashed celebration of style over substance, of carefully choreographed fight sequences that result in cartoonishly crude violence — all edited with the relentless pacing of a music video.

It's both an homage to the film genres the writer-director loves (Japanese anime, Chinese martial-arts movies, Italian spaghetti Westerns, blaxploitation flicks) and to himself.

The uniform that the Japanese gangsters wear — black suit, white shirt, black tie — is straight out of "Reservoir Dogs," which turned Tarantino into a god among film geeks in 1992. And the melancholy surf guitar in the film's opening song brings to mind Dick Dale's "Miserlou,"

"Kill Bill - Vol. 1" is rated R for strong bloody violence, language and some sexual content.
93 minutes

Two and a half stars out of four.

which famously punctuated the "Pulp Fiction" opening credits in 1994.

"Kill Bill" is yet another opportunity for Tarantino to show off his pathologically obsessive eye for detail — and another opportunity to showcase "Pulp Fiction" star Uma Thurman, here playing an assassin who seeks revenge on the former comrades who tried to kill her on her wedding day.

The yellow track suit Thurman wears when she takes on 100 samurai-sword wielding thugs (a scene reminiscent of Keanu Reeves' battle with 100 Agent Smiths in "The Matrix Reloaded") is an exact replica of the outfit Bruce Lee wore in "Game Of Death." And during the climactic showdown between Thurman's character and Lucy Liu's in a Japanese garden, the snow seems to fall in perfect time to the music.

Then, just when "Kill Bill" really gets going, it abruptly ends — the result of Miramax's maddening decision to release the original three-hour film in two parts.

It's insulting to suggest that audiences can't sit still that long to watch such an enthralling, meticulously crafted film. Then again, cutting it into two halves is probably just a marketing ploy to get filmgoers to pay twice.

And they will — the film is enormously entertaining, a sensory overload with some moments of true inspiration and dark humor amid the carnage. The cliffhanger ending is a doozy, and it'll make you want to come back for "Kill Bill - Vol. 2" in February.

So if you choose to be manipulated, you'll get to see Thurman in all her athletic, authoritative glory as a character known only as The Bride, who hunts down her former colleagues from the Deadly Viper Assassination Squad.

After lying in a coma for four years, The Bride suddenly awakens in the hospital, realizes the baby she was carrying is gone, and puts herself through rigorous training in order to exact her revenge. (Sonny Chiba, a Japanese martial-arts film legend and one of Tarantino's idols, plays the samurai master who crafts The Bride's sword.)

She makes a list of her targets and then goes after them — though Tarantino depicts her duels in his trademarked out-of-

Collection of Fred Rogers' writings helps fill void

by JUDY LIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH — Mister Rogers may have left a void in millions of lives when he died but Mrs. Rogers hopes a new collection of his plainspoken wisdom will provide comfort to them as it did for her.

Joanne Rogers says "The World According to Mister Rogers: Important Things to Remember," from Hyperion Books, was published for people who grew up watching Fred Rogers' public television show. It serves as testament to his timeless message of love, friendship and respect.

"Most of the people who read this book will feel as if they're having a visit with him. I do, and I think that's why I cherish it so,"

Rogers said.

Culled from years of commencement speeches, songs, writings and interviews, the new book contains words of courage and inspiration — simple statements that made Mister Rogers a household name. At least one passage was pulled from a public service announcement that aired after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

One sentence reads: "I'm convinced that when we help our children find healthy ways of dealing with their feelings — ways that don't hurt them or anyone else — we're helping to make our world a safer, better place."

For more than three decades, the public television show "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" taught millions of young viewers about love and to feel more secure about the world. Decked in his zip-up cardigan and sneakers, he became a friend to children and a mentor to parents.

Unlike his previous songbooks for children and parenting guides, the new book has a broader appeal.

"It's not a book for children, not a book for children but a book for people who had watched the show over the years — grown-up children who were familiar with his program and who knew him," Joanne Rogers said.

Proceeds from the book sale will go to The Fred Rogers Fund, which promotes children's development.

The very private Rogers wrote the forward for her late husband's book, recounting how they met at Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla., where the two played piano. She continued to play professionally as he focused on his television show, which began airing at Pittsburgh public television station WOED in 1966 and went national two years later.

The two, who were married for more than 50 years, loved to laugh. Even before he died Feb. 27 after a bout with stomach cancer at his Pittsburgh home, Joanne Rogers, 75, said he told jokes and watched Monty Python with their grandchildren.

When he came home from the hospital after having surgery in January, he walked straight to his piano to play because he had missed it so much, she said.

"Our friendship was extremely important to our relationship and I miss that," Rogers said, "but on the other hand, he's everywhere."

Rogers uses three words to describe her husband — courage, love and discipline — which inspired editors to bundle his work into those three themes. The book's messages keep her company. She even uses paper clips to mark her favorite quotes in her copy of the final proof.

"If they had written it just for me, it would have been the best gift I could have ever had," she said. "I'm very grateful for it. I'll be interested to see how it's received."

Stumbo maintains financial lead in attorney general race

The Associated Press
FRANKFORT — Democrat Greg Stumbo's financial lead in the state's race for attorney general eclipsed his two opponents' combined totals by nearly $230,000, according to campaign finance records.

Stumbo, the state House majority floor leader, had so far raised more than $347,000. Between June 20 and Oct. 7, Stumbo spent nearly $115,000, according to records filed with the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance.

Stumbo had an ending balance of more than $234,000 for the reporting period.

Republican Jack Wood had so far put $6,000 of his own money into the campaign. He's spent about $4,500. Independent Gatewood Galbraith raised more than $11,150. Some of that has come out of his own pocket too. Galbraith has put more than $3,800 of his own money into the campaign.

Meanwhile, Democrat Russ Maple had a financial lead of more than $170,000 over Republican opponent C.M. "Trey" Grayson in their race for secretary of state. Maple had an ending balance of more than $234,000, compared with Grayson's ending balance of more than $63,000.

Maple spent nearly $15,000 on his campaign, while Grayson spent more than $126,800.

Jonathan Miller, the Democratic nominee for state treasurer, finished the reporting period with a balance of more than $243,000. Miller spent more than $412,000. Miller is running against Republican Adam Koenig.

Crit Luallen, the Democratic nominee for state auditor, had an ending balance of more than $355,000. She had raised more than $330,000, and spent more than $80,000. Her opponent is Republican Linda Greenwell.

Democrat Alice Baesler, who is running for commissioner of agriculture, had a balance of more than $67,000. Baesler is running against Republican Richie Farmer.

Koenig, Greenwell and Farmer had not filed reports as of Wednesday.

Picturesque fall season forecast for Kentucky

by BRUCE SCHREINER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Splashes of reds and yellows are starting to streak Kentucky's landscape in what is generally shaping up as an especially colorful fall leaf season. Weather conditions so far have been ideal to create brilliant fall colors, said Robert Paratley, a botany professor in the University of Kentucky's forestry department. "Because the weather has been dry and sunny and the nights have been cool, that's a very good set of circumstances for good fall colors," he said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

All it takes, however, is a period of rain and wind to spoil leaf peaking by bringing down leaves in a mushy heap, Paratley said.

But he said "if things more or less stay the same, then it should be a very good year for fall color."

State tourism officials are relishing the prospects of a picturesque autumn season in the Bluegrass State.

Leaf spotters for the departments of travel and parks also are predicting a good season for leaf watching, said Jayne McClew, spokeswoman for the Department of Travel. The spotters give weekly updates on the progress of the fall leaf season that appear on the department's Web site.

Fall colors are expected to reach their peak during the third full week of October, though the timing hinges on weather, McClew said.

The statewide forecast through mid-October calls for near-normal temperatures and only a slight possibility of above-normal rainfall, according to the National Weather Service.

Autumn ranks as the state's second busiest travel season, behind summer, McClew said. People flock to state parks, especially on weekends, and it's a busy time for festivals, she said.

Though not as acclaimed as the Northeast, Kentucky's fall scenery has some advantages, McClew said. Kentucky's leaf season often lasts longer, and the state has "amazing vistas to watch from," she said.

In Bell County in far southeastern Kentucky, people flock to Pine Mountain State Resort Park and Cumberland Gap National Historical Park for panoramic views of the fall colors.

"Fall is our busiest season," said Judy Barton, executive director of the Bell County tourism commission. "It's when most of the tourism people make their best money because of the colors. So everybody is wanting to know when the leaves are going to peak."

Kentucky's leaf season usually stretches for a few weeks, McClew said.

"The fall moves east to west in Kentucky," she said. "So you can enjoy a peak in the eastern part of the state one week, and maybe two weeks later see the peak in the west."

Kill

chronological-order style.

First there's Vernita Green (Vivica A. Fox), who gets it in her suburban kitchen in a barrage of blood and breakfast cereal unfortunately witnessed by her 4-year-old daughter.

Then there's O-Ren Ishii (Liu), the petite, feminine yet fearless leader of the Japanese mob underground. Liu makes her character so sexy and charismatic, it's hard not to root for her to win. Her bodyguard, a teenager in a school-girl uniform with the fantastic name of Go Go Yubari (Chiaki Kuriyama), is equally intriguing, and doesn't get enough screen time.

And that's about all there is to say for now. The "Bill" of the title (David Carradine, another Tarantino idol) is heard in voiceovers but won't appear on screen until the second half. Daryl Hannah shows up briefly in a naughty nurse get-up as another member of the assassin crew; presumably, her role will be expanded, too.

All we can do is guess and hope — just as Miramax and Tarantino can only guess and hope that killing Bill twice will pay off.

"Kill Bill — Vol. 1" is rated R for strong bloody violence, language and some sexual content. 93 min. Two and a half stars out of four.

BENTLEY'S COMMENTS

Early October equals big matchups

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

It's October, and the folks at Fox Sports have been trying to convince us this is the best sports month on the calendar.

Rick Bentley

I'm not sure I'd go that far, but here's a look at five very interesting matchups for those of you looking for a game to see or tune in to this weekend. Says here any of these will be worth your time.

Belfry (5-1) at Prestonsburg (3-3): A month ago this looked like a must-see event, but then 10 total points on consecutive Fridays to Ashland and then Sheldon Clark cost the Blackcats a five-game win streak. In the meantime, Belfry has made mincemeat of its five most recent opponents, and suddenly we seem to have a clear favorite.

But several things still make this worth a look. For one, Belfry

Pikeville remains perfect at home

PIKEVILLE - A fierce third-game rally behind the excellent serving of senior Tereza Morano propelled the Pikeville College Lady Bears to a 3-1 win over Cumberland College Tuesday night.

Van Meter

With the first two games split (Pikeville won a tight opener 30-27 while Cumberland jumped out to a 21-14 lead and won the second 30-26) and holding an 8-6 lead, Morano, a defensive specialist from Fortaleza, Brazil, held serve while the Lady Bears ran off eight unanswered points to bolt to a 16-6 lead en route to a 30-13 win to take a 2-1 lead.

The fourth game was more of the same, with Pikeville rolling to a 30-16 win.

"We played about as well as we can tonight," said first-year Coach Robert Staggs, whose team improved to 12-3 and ran its winning streak to seven. "We did a lot of things right, but what we did best was hustle. If we keep

Raiders face Hazard in district challenge

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

HAZARD - Hazard High senior quarterback Steve Sizemore took his first snap as a starting quarterback as a freshman. He is now a senior and is still starting. This season, he's having his best campaign yet. In the 2003 season, Sizemore has managed to avoid the injury bug that has plagued him in previous seasons, and stay healthy. He and Hazard will entertain South Floyd and head coach Donny Daniels tonight in a Class A, District Eight battle.

Sizemore's favorite target is receiver Lamar Williams. Even without any receivers, Sizemore is dangerous.

"He's one of the best athletes I've ever coached," said former Bulldog head coach Maurice Dixon, who PRESTONSBURG - Thanks to the tournament's medalist and an all-tournament performer, the big hardware from the Pikeville College Fall Invitational stayed home.

Pikeville won the two-day event, played at Stone Crest Golf Course, with a 635, finishing a single stroke ahead of Lindsey Wilson College when play ended Tuesday evening. "The boys are coming along nicely," said Dr. James Riley, the head coach, whose team will wrap up its fall schedule next Monday and Tuesday in the Mid-South Conference Fall Tournament in Campbellsville. "We're in good shape heading into the conference tournament.

Wallace racing toward another top 10

by MIKE HARRIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

A late season filled with frustration is suddenly looking much better to Rusty Wallace.

Five straight top 10 finishes will do that.

The streak has revived the former Winston Cup champion's hopes of finishing the season no lower than 10th in the standings.

"I've always said it's like three different categories," Wallace explained. "There's the champion, there are the other members of the top 10, and then there are the rest of them."

"I won't win the championship this year, and it's not too gratifying to just be among the rest of them," he said. "I know because I've been there and we're doing everything we can to avoid that happening again."

The last time Wallace finished outside the top 10 was 1992, when he wound up 13th. Other than 1984 and 1985 — when he finished 14th and 19th in his first two full seasons in NASCAR's top series — that is the only time Wallace has not been among the top 10 in the points.

His string of 10 consecutive top 10 points finishes is the best among active drivers, and it's been Wallace's biggest source of pride since his streak of 16 consecutive seasons with at least one race win ended in 2002.

"It means a ton to me and the team," Wallace said. "So does getting back into the win column, too. Both are the major goals left for the final six races of the year."

Both are also important goals for Wallace's Penske Racing South crew chief, Bill Wilburn.

"It's like a calling card or his claim to fame, and it is quite amazing when you stop and think about it," Wilburn said, referring to his driver's streak. "I know how much it hurt Rusty personally last season when that race-winning streak ended. I know because it hurt me just that bad, too."

After last week's ninth-place finish at Kansas Speedway, Wallace enters Saturday night's UAW-GM Quality 500 at Lowe's Motor Speedway tied for 13th with Bill Elliott — 900 points behind series leader Matt Kenseth but only 129 behind 10th-place Terry Labonte.

Before his string of top 10 finishes began last month at Richmond, Wallace was 17th, trailing then 10th-place Tony Stewart by 279 points.

Finishing among the top 10 in the standings is more than a bigger payoff from the points fund — it's also a ticket to the stage at NASCAR's postseason awards ceremony in New York City.

"It's so important to finish up there and have the opportunity to go to New York and have an Anderson, Ind., was the tournament's Medalist after finishing 73-73 for a 146. He won the tournament by six strokes.

"John played two days of excellent golf," Riley said. "He was focused and relaxed, and it was good to see him play up to his potential."

Teammate Wes Jenkins, a freshman from Prestonsburg, played his home course well enough to also make the all-tournament team. He shot 156 on consecutive days of 78.

"Wes was a real surprise, getting 78-78 out of a freshman," said Riley. "It was a great tournament for him."

Sophomore Jon Sarsiat finished with 166 (84-82), junior Brian Gallusser carded a 169 (83-86) and freshman Robert Chafin completed the 36 holes with a 174 (90-84).

Lindsey Wilson, ranked 19th in the final NALA poll last season, finished second with only a single shot deciding it. Tyler Sharpe was an all-tournament performer for the Blue Raiders with a 156 (86-76).

Georgetown Black was third, finishing four strokes back with a 639. Travis Timberlake's 152 (75-77) and Nike Marsee's 155 (79-76) qualified them for all-tournament honors.

Rounding out the field were Georgetown Orange (659), Union (680), U.Va.-Wise (693), Pikeville Orange (694) and Centre (715).

In the women's draw, Pikeville finished third behind champion Union College and runner-up Georgetown.

The MSC Championship will be played in April at Stone Crest, and the teams are already looking forward to their return trip.

"The course is in excellent condition and the greens are just beautiful," said Riley. "We really appreciate the support they've given the Pikeville College golf team."

giving that kind of effort we'll have some success the rest of the way."

The win kept Pikeville perfect in five home matches this season, but more importantly moved it to 2-0 in the five-game sprint that is the Mid-South Conference season. With only six teams in the league, the teams are playing the single-match round-robin for the final time; beginning in 2004, MSC clubs will play each other twice for a 10-game league slate.

Morano had a terrific match both on offense and defense: She finished with 27 digs and 10 blocks, two of them solos, on the defensive side, while she carded 20 kills and four service aces on offense.

Sophomore Hilary McKenzie finished with 15 kills and 14 blocks, including four solos. Senior Rebecca Van Meter had 15 kills, 12 digs and an ace.

Senior setter Amanda Sammons had 55 assists, 10 kills, five block assists, one solo block and 12 digs.

Pikeville will be back in action next Tuesday, stepping out of the MSC to play host to Asbury College. First serve will be at 6:30 p.m.

Comments

is deserving of its lofty perch as the third-ranked Double-A team in Kentucky. And, Philip Haywood was the man at Prestonsburg before he began what has been now a 20-year run on Golden Pond.

Then there's the fact that Prestonsburg beat Belfry — twice in as many visits — when the Pirates traveled to Floyd County two years ago.

And there's this: While Belfry beat Pikeville 28-6, Prestonsburg knocked them off 28-18 a couple of weeks earlier. Also, the Bucs blanked Magoffin 51-0 two weeks ago, and last week the Hornets got stung by the Cats 58-14.

Sheldon Clark (4-2) at Shelby Valley (4-2): This one is very interesting. Not only are the clubs each 4-2, they're also 2-0 in the young district schedule.

Traditionally, Sheldon Clark has the upper hand here. Jim Matney's club has long since been a power, and they knocked off Prestonsburg in a couple of overtimes recently at home.

But this one isn't in Inez, it's at Robinson Creek. And Sheldon Clark could be looking past the Wildcats to next week's trip to Belfry.

For Shelby Valley, it's the beginning of a difficult final month of the season. In addition to tonight's game, they still must travel to Prestonsburg and host Belfry. It's easy to see why folks have maintained that the bulk of the district still lies ahead of the Wildcats.

Seems to me a lot of things are favorable for the Wildcats. If they want to be taken as a serious contender this year, a win tonight would go a long way towards getting it done.

A long way.

Chicago at Florida: These clubs head to South Beach having split the first two games for three straight in the Sunshine State beginning Saturday.

The general consensus on this series has it hinging on the considerable right arms of Cubs pitchers Kerry Wood and Mark Prior. There are two ways of looking at this.

If you're a Cubs fan, all you have to do is hold court with them on the bump and you're in your first World Series since the year William Taft was elected president.

But if you want to swim with the fishes, all you have to do is get one against those two and you're in pretty good shape.

New York at Boston: Here's where you have the edge. This column was due well before last night's second-game of this series, so I have no idea how it turned out.

If Boston won, they have to be feeling pretty good, leaving the Bronx up two with a weekend series in Fenway. But if the Yankees pulled it out, it's a different story.

Still, if you're a Boston fan you have to feel good about getting a win from Tim Wakefield of all people, especially over Mike Mussina, in the opener. Of course, if you get three bombs from your offense, including a mammoth shot from Mo Vaughn's only slightly-thinner lookalike David Ortiz, you'll always like your chances.

Miami (5-0) at Florida State (5-0): Could have gone a few ways here what with Georgia playing Tennessee, Oklahoma meeting Texas and another battle of unbeaters in the NFL with Carolina visiting Indianapolis. Still, this is quite a matchup with 40 percent of the Top Five hooking up.

On paper it looks like Miami is the clear favorite. They've only lost once in the last three seasons and seem to have passed their two most fierce rivals, FSU and Florida.

But Miami lost starting tailback Frank Gore last week and will replace him with the unproven Jarrett Payton. If Jarrett was a race horse he'd be even odds to succeed, but Walter Payton's son is a fifth-year senior who will start for the first time in college on Saturday.

On top of that, the Seminoles have outscored their opponents 189 to 37 this year. They can't be too bad.

including two stops for a loss as the Colonel defense held Sewanee to 197 yards of total offense.

For the season, Centre leads the SCAC in total tackles with 60 and is second in the league in tackles per game (12.0). He also has three tackles for a loss, one sack, and an interception.

"John is one of the hardest hitters I have ever coached," said Centre head coach Andy Frye. "He can really close on a play and he's worked extremely hard in the off season to become a better player. He's playing like an All-American."

Ortega is one of the best all-around athletes in Centre history. He starts on the football, basketball, and baseball teams and made first-team all-conference in baseball and football last year. He was also named to the all-tournament team in basketball. In addition, he has also received All-American football status.

Centre will entertain conference rival Millsaps College Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Blackcats

Prestonsburg comes into the game with a 3-3 record and a 1-1 worksheet in district play. Belfry enters at 5-1 overall and 3-0 in district play. Prestonsburg will rest its hopes with a quartet of running back/receivers as Joe Blackburn, Trevor Compton, Nicholas Jamerson and Chat Yates hope to help lead the host team past a powerful group of Belfry Pirates.

Prestonsburg, while boasting a 3-3 record on the season, is actually two plays away from a 5-1 mark after the last minute loss at Ashland and a double overtime setback against Sheldon Clark.

The Blackcat offensive and defensive lines have steadily improved throughout the season. Tonight, Coach John DeRossett will look to leaders such as Shawn Whitt, Chad Allen, John Mark Stephens and David Shaffer to step up and provide a collective spark.

Belfry has moved up to number two in the state in Class 2A after some impressive wins of late and former Prestonsburg coach Philip Haywood has the Pirates in full stride at the right time. Belfry brings a talented group of backs into tonight's game led by bruising fullback Doug Howard and speedy tailback David Jones. Quarterback Paul Howard, who began his prep career at Pikeville, goes under center for the Pirates again this season.

Belfry boasts what DeRossett calls "a small college line."

The Prestonsburg staff traveled to Belfry for the Pirates game against Lawrence County, and came away very impressed.

"When we got to the stadium I asked the person at the gate if we made a wrong turn and were at a college game," said DeRossett.

Prestonsburg has faced the problem of being outsized almost every game thus far in 2003. However, the Blackcats more than make up for the lack of size with heart and speed. Prestonsburg has successfully slowed down opposing teams running attacks by stacking the line of scrimmage. Prestonsburg hopes to slow the Pirate ground game tonight. Prestonsburg will need a big game from Jeremy Carr on the defensive side of the ball and big plays out of the backfield tonight against the Pirates.

The Blackcat offense has proved its ability to move the football in crucial situations as evident in the two-minute drive in the fourth quarter at Ashland and late in the fourth quarter at Sheldon Clark. In the latest test, Prestonsburg hopes to put a great game together and not need a late drive against Belfry.

Kickoff for tonight's game at Prestonsburg is set for 7:30 p.m.

now coaches at a prep school in Florida. "He has a great work ethic. He's a very coachable athlete and a coach to coach."

The Hazard Bulldogs, South Floyd Raiders and Paintsville Tigers all play one another in the final three weeks of the regular season.

Hazard and Paintsville rank at the top of Class A, District Eight. Hazard has three district victories and is coming off a 61-20 win over Allen Central. Paintsville (5-2) is 4-0 in the district and on a bye week as it awaits the Bulldogs.

South Floyd's only district loss of the season came against Pikeville.

Paintsville's final three games of the season are against Hazard, South Floyd and Pikeville — in that order.

As his team got in practice time for Hazard this week, South Floyd head coach Donny Daniels touched on the athleticism Sizemore and many of his teammates exhibit.

"Hazard is a real athletic team," said Daniels. "(Steve) Sizemore is a real athletic quarterback and he has some good receivers to throw to. We're gonna get out of the six-man front and try and stop their offense."

South Floyd likely locked up a spot in the playoffs with wins over Fleming-Neon and Jenkins.

The win over Jenkins improved South Floyd to 4-3 on the season. Hazard is 5-1.

Kickoff for tonight's game is set for 7:30 p.m.

Members of the Paintsville High coaching staff will likely have eyes on tonight's game. The Tigers play Hazard and South Floyd, in that order, in key matchups the next two Friday nights.

College basketball to get longer 3-point line

by STEVE HERMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The 3-point line in college basketball is about to be moved 9 inches farther from the basket beginning in the 2004-05 season.

Barring unexpected dissent by the NCAA's two smallest divisions, the new line will be set at 20 feet, 6 inches.

The championships committees of all three divisions decided to keep the rectangular free throw lane, rejecting a switch to the trapezoidal lane used internationally.

"In Division I, it's essentially done," Marty Benson, the NCAA liaison to the basketball rules committee, said Tuesday. "In Division II and III, the management councils have to look at it and either approve what the championships committee did or change what the championships committee did."

Earlier this year, South Carolina coach Dave Odom, a rules committee member, said the extra 9 inches might discourage marginal shooters from taking longer shots.

"That would make the shot more meaningful," he said.

The management councils meet Oct. 21-22. If they agree, the changes in all three divisions will take effect in the 2004-05 season. If they don't, the matter will be decided by the NCAA executive committee Oct. 31.

That committee's options include approving the change for only the divisions that passed it, approving it for all three divisions or rejecting it for all three, Benson said.

It's unlikely Divisions II and III will not go along, he said.

Another proposal would cut from 16 to eight the number of predetermined sites for the first two rounds of the women's Division I tournament.

If approved by the Division I management council and the executive committee, that change would take effect for the 2005 tournament.

"It's just the evolution of the championship. It creates more neutral sites for the championship," said Scotty Rogers, assistant director of the Division I women's basketball championship committee. "You have a little more neutrality when only one of those teams could potentially play at home."

HUNTING

October hunting open for youth

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's youth-only firearms deer hunt weekend and the first segment of muzzle-loading deer season will occur on the second and third weekends of October, respectively, throughout the Commonwealth.

New this year, an October shotgun turkey season will also be open toward the end of the month and include the fourth weekend.

On the October 11-12 weekend, hunters age 17 and under can hunt deer with a firearm statewide. Junior firearm deer hunters must be appropriately licensed, accompanied by an adult, carry a hunter education course completion card, abide by the hunter orange clothing law and by season deer zone limits and requirements.

"Junior hunters are given the first opportunity to hunt deer with a firearm in Kentucky, which we believe increases their chances of success in many cases," said Jonathan Day, forest systems coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

"Our commission tries to insure that younger hunters have quality experiences in the field," Day continued.

"This special firearm season also serves to help us manage our herd effectively, in that a number of antlerless deer are usually taken by youth hunters," added Day.

Adults accompanying a junior hunter are prohibited from carrying a firearm, must remain close enough to the junior hunter at all times to take control of the firearm if necessary, and must comply as well with the hunter orange clothing law.

All deer hunters are required to record and report harvested deer as explained in the 2003-04 Kentucky Fall Hunting Guide book, available from license vendors statewide, on-line at fw.ky.gov, or by calling (800) 858-1549 weekdays 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Eastern.

The first segment of the Kentucky muzzle-loading deer season is October 18-19. Hunters may take either sex whitetails except in Zone 4 counties during this season. Zone 4 hunting is restricted to antlered deer only during the October muzzle-loading deer season.

Hunters are reminded that anyone hunting any species during an open firearms deer season must comply with the hunter orange clothing law. It is illegal to hunt on private land without consent of the landowner. Hunters may take one antlered deer per season (license year) on private land.

The newly established October shotgun turkey season will run for five days Oct. 25-29 statewide. During this season, a licensed turkey hunter may take one wild turkey of either sex. Hunters who have purchased a active part in the awards banquet, to have the opportunity to take to the stage and publicly thank the sponsors, owners and team members," Wallace said.

He winced when talking about the aftermath of that miserable 1992 season.

"We went up to New York for the banquet that year, but we'd almost wished we'd stayed at home," said Wallace, who sat in the back of the room with 12th-place finisher Dale Earnhardt. "I think the fact that Dale was up there and in the same boat that I was is probably what got me through the ordeal," Wallace said. "We were sitting in the cheap seats for the big show and made a vow that we'd both bounce back the next year."

They did just that. Earnhardt won the sixth of his record-tying seven championships and Wallace finished second, just 80 points behind, winning a series-high 10 races.

Wallace could easily be in the top 10 right now if not for one miserable month, August.

"That was one of the roughest months of my career," he said. "Unbelievable things were happening like getting caught up in crashes not of our own doing."

Among them: a brake problem at Watkins Glen, a crash at Bristol — "I can never remember crashing out of a Bristol race — never," he said — then an early race crash at Darlington.

In the five races during August, Wallace had one finish better than 36th and a 32.8 average.

"But we had a tremendous September and got things really turned around," Wallace said. "We've been going like gangbusters and we plan on keeping the steamroller going."

DIRT TRACK

HMS racing Saturday

ROYALTON — Half Mountain Speedway once again fell victim to potential bad weather conditions and canceled the race early Saturday so the race fans and drivers could make other arrangements for the weekend.

The Half Mountain Speedway Racing season will continue into the month of October as Half Mountain Speedway plans on running a full racing program this Saturday with all seven division hitting the speedway starting at 5 p.m. with the drivers meeting getting underway at 4:45 p.m. Gate will open at 2 p.m. with admission prices $10 for grandstand admission, $20 for pit admission. Kids ages five and under will be admitted free of charge in both the grandstands and the pit area.

Late Models will be in hand racing for $1200 to win. Limited Late Models will be after the $800 to win prize while Modifieds will be focusing on a $650 to win feature event. Super Bombers will be after the winner's share of a $500 to win feature. Bomber division drivers will have their eyes on a $400 to win top prize. Both the Road Hog and the Four-Cylinder divisions will be competing for a $200 to win feature win.

Over the past two weekends over 100 cars have graced the pit area at Half Mountain. This weekend, many of these drivers will return to the track. Also, look for some new drivers to be on hand to compete on what many drivers have called the best racing surface they have competed on all season and one race fans call one of the best tracks in the state.

For more information about Half Mountain Speedway log onto the official website at www.halfmountainspeedway.com or call the track on race day at 606/884-RACE.

Allen Central at Phelps tonight

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

EASTERN — The Allen Central High football team fell to 1-6 last Friday night when it went on the road and fell 61-20 to Hazard.

Allen Central began the game in grand fashion as Robbie Vanderpool returned the opening kick 96 yards for a touchdown. From that point on, Allen Central couldn't get back into the endzone, until the fourth quarter.

Hazard, behind the strong arm of senior quarterback Steve Sizemore, ran out to a 34-6 half-time lead and led 55-6 in the third quarter.

Wilfredo Domengez and quarterback Ryan Hammonds each had scores for Allen Central in the fourth quarter.

The win upped Hazard's record to 5-1 overall and 3-0 in Class A, District Eight.

Hazard is on the road tonight at South Floyd. Allen Central will also be on the road as it travels to Phelps.

Kickoff for both games is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Girls All 'A' looks like last year's

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

Last week the 15th Region All "A" coaches gathered to hold their annual drawing for this year's classic and guess what, it looks like just like last year's.

Coach Cassandra Akers' Lady Cats of Betsy Layne are the favorite to repeat for a third time in the last three seasons. Betsy Layne returns most of their scoring from last year, although they did lose Natasha Stratton to graduation.

Coach Akers has her team going agility drills as they wait the approaching October 15 date when teams can officially begin basketball practice for the upcoming season. "We are trying to improve our overall team speed," said Coach Akers. "We have been conditioning for the past three weeks."

The Girls All "A" will be played at spacious South Floyd this season but the lower bracket will have Allen Central, Betsy Layne, Paintsville and The Piarist School. Betsy Layne meets Paintsville in a first round game, like last year, and Allen Central will face Piarist, also like last year.

The upper bracket will include Pikeville, Shelby Valley, Phelps and South Floyd. Pikeville and Shelby Valley meet in a first round game while South Floyd battles Phelps.

Congratulations to the Betsy Layne girls volleyball team upon winning the district tournament last week. The volleyball Lady Cats will be in regional play next week and we wish them the best. Football: What a big matchup tonight in high school football. Coach Phillip Haywood and he Belfry Pirates, winners of their last five games (5-1) will face coach John DeRossett and the Prestonsburg Blackcats (3-3). The Blackcats are coming off a sounding win over Magoffin County last Friday night in homecoming play.

The Pirates are 3-0 in district play and will face a good Sheldon Clark team in two weeks. The Cardinals are 2-0 in their district and it looks to be a top matchup at Belfry when the Cardinals visit.

Prestonsburg should be one of the four teams to emerge from their district and the state playoffs.

After a week off, the Kentucky football Wildcats returned to the gridiron on the road at South Carolina this past Thursday night. The Cats were coming off a heartbreaking loss to Florida two weeks ago.

After a homecoming game versus Ohio, the Cats have a tough road ahead of them when they face Mississippi State and Arkansas.

Until Sunday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Betsy Layne announces signups

First signups for the Betsy Layne Basketball League will be held Sunday at the Dome.

Players ages 5, 6, and 7 will signup at 1 p.m. Signups for players ages 8-9 will follow at 2:30 p.m. Players ages 10 and 11 have signups scheduled for 4 p.m.

Another set of signups for all ages will be held on Sunday, Oct. 19 from 1-3 p.m.

The fee is $20 per child and $15 for each additional child in the same family.

THE BITTER WATERS OF MARAH!
 WITH THE ISRAELITES' WRATH, EXPRESSED IN EXPLOSIVE WORDS OVER THEIR APPOINTMENT AT NOT BEING ABLE TO DRINK THE WATER, MOSES TURNED TO THE LORD... AND THE LORD SHOWED HIM A TREE, WHICH WHEN HE HAD CAST INTO THE WATERS... (EX. 15:25)...

WHILE ALL THE PEOPLE WATCH SILENTLY, THE TREE IS POISED ABOVE THE WATERS...

AND WITH A MIGHTY SPLASH, IT IS IMMERSED IN THE WATERS OF MARAH—BUT NOT A SOUND IS HEARD FROM THE PEOPLE AS THEY WATCH...

POSTSCRIPT

Reaching for the stars

This is written before we find out what our fellow Americans in California decided to do about their executive leadership.

It's entirely possible that a celebrity (I hesitate to use the word "actor") has been tapped to be the next governor.

We once believed that anyone could be president or governor or mayor, or fill in the blank. I'm beginning to think that now one already has to be a celebrity to aspire to those positions.

We've come to attach all kinds of abilities to people whose faces we see repeatedly on TV, in movies or on magazine covers.

Millions of people, no doubt, will buy Madonna's new children's book. No matter that her first book was all about sex, with appropriate text and photos. No matter that she may not have even written the book herself.

(I read a few years ago that one of the best selling novelists in the publishing world hasn't written a word in years. Instead, he tells his ideas to a

THROUGH MY EYES

Short and Sweet

The week is just movin' way too fast this time, folks. The kids are home from school on fall break, one festival is under our belt, and one still awaits (along with a little "barely noticeable" pile of bills on my kitchen counter).

It just seems impossible to get it all done and when I begin to feel even the slightest bit overwhelmed, I tend to just adopt an

"Oh, well" attitude that just doesn't cut it, know what I mean?

I remember once browsing through a Hallmark store and coming across a card whose front pictured a cartoon drawing of a woman in old jeans and a sweatshirt, a bandanna tied around her frizzy hair, and a bead of perspiration dripping down her weary face. Scattered all around

Tips on home landscape fertilization

by RAY TACKETT
FLOYD COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT FOR AGRICULTURE

Late fall and early winter are the best times to fertilize landscapes with mixed plantings of grass and woody plants. But how much fertilizer should you apply?

First, take eight to 10 soil samples from several areas of the yard. Mix the samples together and take them to the Floyd County Cooperative Extension Service office to be submitted for analyses to determine soil pH (soil acidity or alkalinity) and whether you need to apply other necessary nutrients including phosphorous and potassium. You will receive research-based recommendations on the fertility needs of your landscape. There is a nominal fee for a soil test.

It's especially important to have a soil test done before you set out trees and establish lawns so you can add needed amendments prior to planting. For an existing landscape, take samples from only the upper three to four inches of soil. Remove any thatch or plant debris from the mixed sample, before submitting it.

Nitrogen is the most common element applied with landscape fertilization. However, soil tests don't give

APPETIZING AUTUMN

by DELORA KRAUS
GUEST FOODS COLUMNIST

This menu is intended to get your taste buds ready when you get called to dinner. Enjoy the fall; enjoy the food.

• • • •

Autumn is here! Fall harvest brings to mind crisp temperatures and outside work to be done before "crisp" becomes "frozen." It is the cooler days of autumn (and the aroma of those almost forgotten fall favorites) that bring us to the table for a longer late lunch or early supper. Is there anything better than a hard day's work outside? An equal would be the Fall Harvest Menu featured here. Try the Squash and

Tomato Soup for simple goodness with flavors that blend just right and offer pure satisfaction. This soup is also great paired with a grilled Swiss cheese sandwich on pumpemickel (and between the two slices of Swiss, add some grilled onions!). The Comfort Pork Tenderloin is perfect with Glazed Carrots and the Potato Gratin or the Baked Squash. If you have hearty appetites, make both and enjoy what's left in a packed lunch for the office the next

THINGS TO PONDER

Imprisoned illness

"Prisons...are only a problem for those locked inside of them, their loved ones, and those who want a free society (Joel Olson)."

The need for prisons has been brought more to mind, since our regional Federal prison is moving in inmates next week. Quickly the significant relationship between mental health and legal issues raises its ugly head. It seems in this day and age, especially with the wide spread substance abuse, many families directly or indirectly know of "someone" involved with the legal system, at the initial "court" level or as an inmate in jail or prison.

Typically, the legal cases seeking my professional services are often families learning to resolve issues and how to get along regarding children,

This Town, That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request. The following column was written in 1961.

A special Be Kind to Animals Day has been designated for November. It's election day, when both the donkey and the elephant will be needing friends.

Bill Crawford was in town last week from Florida. Bill's not living the life of Riley down there—just the life of Crawford. Which, to our way of thinking, is a good life: taking each day as it comes, satisfied with things as they are, worrying not about what they might be, and in his playgoing way making new friends while retaining all the old.

WE QUIT—MAYBE

Police Judge Watt Hale came in this week to relate a story a man had told him. Said this story was what was needed to convince him of the error of his ways and lead him to a momentous decision—namely, to stop telling the yarns that have been his stock-in-trade for so long.

The story involves a certain tom cat which, according to the fellow who told the story, was one of the finest mousers around. His owner was plagued by rats, and Tom had a field day with the varmints, but wasn't making headway enough to suit his owner, so he invests in a steel trap, just to help old Tom out.

But Tom doesn't understand the arrangement and shows up, next morning, minus a good portion of his right foreleg. His owner is cut up considerably by this turn of events, and he nurses the cat back to health, then goes to a nearby papaw bush, cuts him a forked limb and fashions from that light wood a peg-leg for the injured Tom. And it works splendidly.

A few nights, later, the guy hears all pandemonium being raised in the attic, and he hastens up to see what goes. And there, he swears, is the biggest rat in the county down on the floor, old Tom holding the cat with his good paw and flailing the life out of it with his peg-leg.

As I said, Judge Hale opined that this story had driven him to decide to cease and desist storytelling, but before he left he sang his swansong. Talk of youngsters in the old days, the lack of conveniences and such matters drove him to it, we explain in his defense. Anyway, he told of the boy who went barefoot till almost Christmas, only to weaken at last and agree to put on a pair of socks and shoes. Well, it seems to have been a mistake to do this, for pretty soon the boy developed a limp. His mother watched him with concern and suggested a doctor. Finally the youngster, after favoring the leg for a month, made his decision. "Maw," he said, "I aim to git to the bottom of this. I'm gonna pull off my shoe and sock and take a look."

He did—and learned the truth about his malady. He had been walking on an English walnut since the day he quit going barefoot.

After that—I quit...

her were dirty dishes, pots and pans, a blown apart vacuum cleaner, a couple of kids and, I think, a scrawny cat that was attempting to climb up her leg. Opening the card, I found the following words: "I need a wife."

Believe me, guys, I can relate! (And that's not a revelation into my sexual orientation - I'm as straight as an iron poker.)

The world in which we women live is one that very few men could ever hope to survive. What with housework, office work, children, relatives, pets, and what-have-you, it's an awful lot to try to balance.

But, we have to try, don't we? After all, resigning oneself to a lifetime of "couch potato-ism" surely isn't very appealing, is it?

But you know what is? Short and sweet newspaper columns!

With that, I'm off - and what's more, I'm off to sniff out a little fun for a change. Hey, if God didn't paint these hills up in orange, reds, and yellows each October for us to get out and enjoy, then what possible other reason could there have been?

Get out and breathe some fresh autumn air this season and until next week, take good care!

Birthday

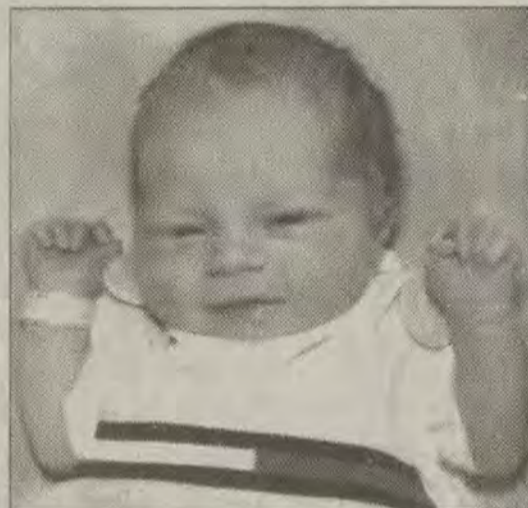

Happy 1st Birthday!

Logan Randall Gross will celebrate his first birthday on Friday, October 10, 2003. Logan is the son of Michael and Becky Gross, of Harold. His parents, grandparents, other family members and friends all wish him a very happy and exciting day!

It's a Boy!

Shanna and Christopher McKenzie are pleased to announce the birth of their son, Christopher Xander Logan McKenzie. Xander was born August 24, 2003, at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. He weighed 6 lbs., 9 oz., and was 19 1/2 inches long. Xander is the maternal grandson of Truman Shepherd and Deborah Allen, and the great-grandson of Laura Allen and the late Sidney Allen, and the late Mae and Harlan Shepherd. He is the paternal grandson of Henry and Ethel McKenzie, and the great-grandson of Aaron and Versie Adams, and the late Mona and Clarence McKenzie. Xander is joyously welcomed by his parents and grandparents as well as his aunts Mica, Benita, and Loretta, and uncles Shane, Clarence and Henry.

It's a Girl!

Tiana-LaShae Little was born on September 11, 2003. She is the daughter of Lee and Brandy Little, of Melvin. The beautiful baby girl weighed 8 lbs., 4 oz. at birth. Tiana-LaShae is the granddaughter of Deanie and David Stone and Shirley and Mike Little, who are all overjoyed with her arrival. She is the niece of Wesley, Angel and Misti, who can't wait to spoil her!

Tips

recommendations for nitrogen, because it is rapidly lost through leaching, or is removed during plant growth.

Deciding how much nitrogen to apply depends on the level of growth and maintenance you want. For average, healthy growth, apply two pounds of actual nitrogen, per 1,000 square feet. Apply four pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet for more lush growth, which also will require a higher level of maintenance.

It's important to note that application recommendations are pounds of actual nitrogen, while a fertilizer bag lists the amount of nitrogen (first of the three-number analysis) as a percentage. A common lawn and garden fertilizer (10-10-10) contains 10 percent nitrogen so you would need to apply 10 pounds of fertilizer to get one pound of actual nitrogen. You would need to apply three and one-third pounds of ammonium nitrate, which is 33 percent nitrogen, to get one pound of nitrogen. Urea contains more nitrogen, 46 percent, so you would get roughly one-half pound of nitrogen for every pound of urea applied.

There are several reasons late fall through early winter is the optimum time to apply nitrogen to yards with a mixture of grass and woody plants.

Applying nitrogen to grass in the spring and summer usually promotes excessive growth that's more susceptible to drought, disease and heat. Fertilizer applications to woody plants before they go dormant might interfere with their ability to become cold hardy. Most woody ornamentals lose leaves, indicating dormancy, by November 1. This is why November and December applications usually are best.

You can split fertilizer applications into two or three parts, applied four to six weeks apart. For example, if you want to apply four pounds of actual nitrogen, make two applications each of two pounds of nitrogen, say in early November and again in early December. You also could make three one-pound nitrogen applications in early November, late November and finally in mid- to late-December.

stable of anonymous writers. They crank out the words, and his latest best-seller sports his name on the by-line.)

Political figures appear on late night TV with Jay Leno and David Letterman, where they hope viewers will see them as ordinary people who love a good laugh. Their ideas take a back seat to the need to project a with-it image.

And then there's that sweet, long-virginal Britney Spears whom so many prepubescent boys and girls have idolized. Impressed with her bouncy, bubbly innocence, parents have spent millions of dollars on her CDs and other paraphernalia. Now she's appearing as near to naked as it's possible to be on the cover of Rolling Stone magazine and telling talk show hosts she's still a prim and proper young woman.

And the only way, it seems, we can avoid this celebrity mania is to live at the head of a long holler with no TV, radio, mail service or neighbors. That's a little radical and, I suppose, quite a bit unrealistic. But sometimes I do want to find that holler.

More reasonably, I do believe we must take back our own lives. We must learn to look around us for heroes. We must learn to think more critically when we hear people with broad smiles and sculpted looks spout what they think we want to hear.

And we must teach young people to think for themselves, to analyze, to delve, to reason and not to believe whatever is tossed at them by the celebrity of the hour.

Kathy Lowe welcomed new members to the Prestonsburg Woman's Club during a special tea held in their honor.

Christine Page, president, Prestonsburg Woman's Club, opened the club's first meeting of the new club year.

Woman's Club opens new year

The GFWC/KFWC Prestonsburg Woman's Club began a new club year with two major events. The "New Membership Tea" was held on August 24. Brenda Miller chaired the committee that recruited new members and organized the event. Christine Page, president, led the meeting. Potential new members attended and received information on the history of the woman's club movement at the state, national, and international levels from Kathy

Lowe. The first monthly meeting was held on September 4, at the club house, located in Archer Park. Plans for the club year were discussed. The club, which meets on the first Thursday of each month, will host upcoming programs on stress reduction, teaching kids with dyslexia, local government, international missionary work, and the history of conservation and preservation. It will also hold its usual annual fundraisers, which it hopes the community will support, as well as hosting their annual "Christmas in the Park" event in December. "Christmas in the Park" is held in conjunction with the City of Prestonsburg and Archer Park.

Lovely decorations and desserts were provided by the arrangements committee for both events.

Angioneurotic Edema - an allergy, but shots won't help

Q I have chronic angioneurotic edema. What causes it, and what can be done to treat it?

A It will help both you and my other readers if I first explain the difference between angioneurotic edema and a related disorder called urticaria.

Both of these conditions produce swelling of skin and mucous membranes. Urticaria is often referred to as "hives," a red, raised, itchy swelling of the skin — a "wheal" that usually lasts for a few hours. Angioneurotic edema produces swelling of the skin, but the swelling is in deeper skin layers and usually lasts for several days instead of hours. Angioneurotic edema usually produces a diffuse, painful swelling in the hands, feet and face, especially around the lips and eyes. The swelling may occur in mucous membranes — the skin-like tissue that lines the mouth, throat, bronchial tubes and digestive tract, as well.

Both angioneurotic edema and urticaria are the result of a disturbance to the circulation in the affected area of the body. The very small blood vessels in that area are dilated and leak clear fluid into the skin in response to histamine release. Leakage into the deeper layers of the skin causes generalized swelling, like a "fat lip," without the appearance of hives.

Angioneurotic edema can be the result of an inherited enzyme deficiency, but it and urticaria are most often produced by an allergic reaction. Medications, foods, inhaled allergens, insect bites and stings, and substances that contact the skin are the most common offenders. In other words, almost any substance that can get in you or on you has the potential to produce this type of reaction.

Acute angioneurotic edema, where the tissue in air passages becomes swollen and causes difficulty breathing, is a medical emergency, and you should get to the nearest ER quickly. With chronic angioneurotic edema, "watchful waiting" may be the best approach. Without treatment, about one half of those suffering from urticaria alone and about one fourth of those who have both urticaria and angioneurotic edema will be symptom-free within one year. There are, on the other hand, many for whom there is no effective treatment. Despite our best efforts, about 20 percent of those who have urticaria and/or angioneurotic edema will have repeated episodes for 20 years or more.

The doctor will ask about the victim's family history. If no blood relative has chronic problems with hives or angioneurotic edema, it's unlikely that the hereditary form is involved. This is important because there is very specific treatment for this form of the disorder.

Since the most common cause of urticaria and angioneurotic edema is an allergic reaction, it's important to try to identify the culprit. If this can be done, avoidance of future exposure is the best way to prevent new attacks. Examples of common offenders include penicillin, aspirin, ibuprofen (Motrin, Advil, etc.) and "ACE inhibitor" blood pressure medications. Common food or food additive agents include artificial food coloring, seafood, chocolate, nuts, strawberries, tomatoes and eggs.

There are several medications that work effectively to decrease the severity and frequency of attacks.

However, for reasons not yet clearly understood, we can't use allergy shots to treat the underlying allergic origin of angioneurotic edema as we can with most other allergies. Your doctor will prescribe medication to help treat your chronic angioneurotic edema. Unfortunately, treatment is the best we can offer since we don't yet have any medications that can "cure" you of this illness.

Autumn

day (that's almost as good as an "I love you" note tucked in the lunch box). And right now, fall beans are in the stores, and have been at the Farmer's Market as well in recent weeks. Add the Cornmeal rolls or your favorite warm bread and you're halfway to a memory of long ago in Grandma's kitchen. Top it all off a couple hours later with fresh Pumpkin Cheesecake. This is a hearty recipe offering intense flavor and just the right balance of sweetness. Of course, apples are another fall favorite, as are old-fashioned pears. This menu is intended to get your taste buds ready when you get called to dinner. Enjoy the fall; enjoy the food.

FALL HARVEST MENU

Squash and Tomato Soup (with cheddar cheese) ***

*Comfort Pork Tenderloin
Glazed Baby Carrots
Potato Gratin or Baked Squash (or both!)
Fall Cranberry Beans
Cornmeal Rolls
Pumpkin Cheesecake* ***

RECIPES:

Squash & Tomato Soup

Cut 6-8 tomatoes into bite-sized pieces and place in large pot.

Cut 6 small zucchini squash into bite-sized pieces and add to the pot.

Cut 2 small yellow summer squash into bite-sized pieces and add to the pot.

Wipe, stem and cut a pound of fresh mushrooms into slices or quarters and add to the pot.

Coarsely chop 1/2 cup red or sweet white onion and add to the pot (add more onion as desired.) Add four (4) vegetable bouillon cubes to the pot.

Slowly cook the vegetables until all have given up their juices (approximately 1/2 to 3/4 hour) and the flavors have blended; cook at medium heat for another 1/2 hour. Add salt and pepper and 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning.

To serve, ladle hot soup into bowls; add 1 Tablespoon (or more) sharp cheddar cheese on top of each bowl.

Comfort Pork Tenderloin

Buy a Pork Tenderloin to serve 10, or two of the smaller loins.

Wash and dry the loin and put it on a foil-lined jelly roll pan.

Rub it with olive oil and cover it with coarse-grind black pepper. Sprinkle rosemary liberally over the roast. Bake uncovered at 400 degrees for 1 hour (if using smaller loins, bake for 45 minutes).

Remove from oven and cover loosely with foil. Let rest for 15 minutes.

Slice and serve with natural juices. Wonderful with the Baked Squash, glazed carrots and good fall beans.

Glazed Carrots

Wash 1 pound baby carrots; cover with cold water and cook for 5 minutes. Drain and put into a buttered casserole dish.

Mix 3/4 cup orange juice, 1/4 cup pineapple juice, 1/2 cup brown sugar, and 2 Tablespoons dark Karo syrup. Pour over carrots and bake, uncovered, for 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

Potato Gratin w/spinach and cheese

Combine 1 cup heavy cream and 1 cup sour cream and cover - leave out overnight (it's okay to do this! I put mine in something like a Cool Whip container with a good lid and I do this part the night before I am going to make this dish.)

Use a 9-inch springform pan. Mince or crush one (1) garlic clove.

Melt one (1) teaspoon butter. Rub the entire surface of the pan with the butter/garlic; Set the pan on a large sheet of heavy-duty foil and pull the foil up around the sides of the pan; set aside.

Trim 1-pound fresh spinach and rinse. Place in a large pot with just the water that is left clinging to the leaves. Cover and heat, stirring once, until the spinach has just wilted. Drain well and squeeze out any excess moisture. Cool, chop fine. Set aside.

Grate one and one-half (1 1/2) cups cheddar cheese.

1/2 cups Gruyere cheese. Wash and chop 2 ounces fresh parsley or chives, or a combination. Beat 3 eggs, add the heavy cream/sour cream mixture, and the chopped spinach. Mix well, add 1-cup cheese and herbs. Add a sprinkle or two of cayenne pepper. Set this bowl aside.

Peel approximately 4 pounds potatoes (your favorite) and slice crosswise. Cook for 5 minutes. Drain and let cool until you can handle them.

Put a layer of overlapping potatoes in the bottom of the springform pan; salt and pepper; then spoon on about one-third (1/3) of the spinach/cheese/sour cream mixture; repeat twice more and then top with the last layer of potatoes. (I prefer a thin layer of potatoes, as it seems the egg/cheese mixture holds this dish together better.) Sprinkle the remainder of the cheese on the top. Set the springform pan down into a larger pan and fill with water until the water comes at least halfway up the pan (this is why you need the foil, so the water won't get into the potatoes and the butter, etc., won't leak out).

Bake for 2 hours at 350 degrees (or sometimes, I will bake at a lower temperature and for a longer time.)

Pierce with a knife to make certain that the center is done. Brown the top well and then let rest for about one-half hour. Remove the springform side. (These are also good at room temperature, or cold.)

Note: I often use more spinach or herbs, so these may be adjusted to your personal taste preferences. This sounds like a lot of work, but if you plan the day before, it goes together fast. I grate and measure the cheese the day before and bag it; prepare the sour cream and heavy cream the night before, and prepare the spinach the day before. Then, it is easy to peel and cook the potatoes, let them cool; mix everything together with the eggs; and put it in the pan. The only real drawback to this recipe is that there is no way to hurry it. It takes 2 (or more) hours to bake, but it is very good and it looks very pretty.)

Baked Squash

Use your favorite fall/winter squash - acorn, butternut, or other varieties.

Wash the outside and dry.

Cut each squash into 2 halves; scoop out the seeds and stringy portion of each half and make a cut on the bottom of each half so it will set upright, with the hollow-out section facing upward. Put the squash into a pan with sides and add a cup of water to the pan.

Lightly grease each half with olive oil. In each of the squash cavities, add 1 Tablespoon butter and 1 Tablespoon brown sugar and a sprinkling of cinnamon. Also, add from 1/4 to 1/3 cup of mixed raisins, dried cranberries, cherries, apricots, plums, figs, and your favorite nuts to each squash half. Top it all with a teaspoon or so of whole cranberry sauce, mixed with 1 teaspoon orange juice.

Cover the squash with foil and bake at 325 degrees for approximately 1 hour. To test for doneness, remove foil and use a sharp knife to pierce the squash. It is done if the knife inserts easily. Loosen foil and let cool for a few minutes prior to serving.

This squash is wonderful with a salad and warm bread for a vegetarian meal or as a side to pork or poultry.

Pumpkin Cheesecake

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Crust: Combine 1 cup graham cracker crumbs, 1/2 cup finely ground pecans, 1 Tablespoon light brown sugar, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon in a bowl. Mix to combine. Add 1 stick melted butter; stir to blend. Press the mixture evenly into the bottom and 1 inch up the sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Set aside.

Cheesecake batter: Combine three (3) 8-ounce packages cream cheese (at room temperature), 1 1/2 cups sugar, 2 Tablespoons cornstarch, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, and 1/8 teaspoon grated nutmeg (fresh is preferred) in a large bowl and beat until fluffy. Add 2 large eggs, 2 large egg yolks, and beat on low speed until just blended. Add 1/2 cup heavy cream and 1 1/2 cups fresh pureed pumpkin (or one 15-ounce can of pumpkin puree).

Pour the batter into the pan and place on a baking sheet. Bake until the center is nearly set, about 1 hour to 1 hour and 15 minutes. Remove from the oven and let cool for 30 minutes; run a knife around the sides and release the side of the pan; let cool completely. Wrap well and refrigerate for at least 4 hours or up to 8 before serving.

To serve: Whip 1 cup heavy cream until soft peaks form; add 1 Tablespoon light brown sugar sprinkled in a little at a time until the cream is thoroughly whipped and begins to stand up. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and continue to beat for another half minute.

Put a dollop of whipped cream on each slice and garnish with fresh cranberries (washed and dried, dipped in a wash of beaten egg whites and then rolled in sugar. Let the cranberries dry completely) and fresh mint leaves.

marital problems, anger-control, juvenile delinquency episodes, child custody conflicts, and addicts. Would you believe that, according to a past report, every dollar spent for mental health services in a person's early years has the potential for saving seven dollars in legal expenses later? (This is one of those times when numbers tell the story—the devil is in the details.)

There's always the big search for WHY things happen and WHAT can be done. Thus, crime and international comparisons have been done and the results were very interesting. The rate that white youth in the U.S. kill others has been six times the rate for all races combined in France, and 20 times the total homicide rate in Japan. The incidence of juvenile delinquency among Puerto Rican youth in New York City is far higher than for their age group in Puerto Rico. Murder rates in the U.S. have been between three and 20 times those in other industrial countries, such as Canada's murder rate is only about one-fourth that of the U.S. Furthermore, American youth kill 10 times more than Canadians. Generally, robbery, burglary, rape and other serious crimes occur at a much higher rate in the U.S. than in other industrialized countries. Since science with its research has not revealed any significant genetic difference among human populations, specific environmental factors have been found to correlate with levels of criminal behavior.

Many surveys and studies have found consistent results, regarding the relationship between negative social issues and the risk for later delinquency, adult criminality, and violent criminal offenses, over the years. Several examples were found connected to crime and child abuse. Child maltreatment for incarcerated individuals was estimated to be anywhere from 18.7 to 68 percent. Women in prison were more than three times more likely than men to report prior physical abuse, and six times more likely to report sexual abuse. Abused inmates were 38 percent more likely to commit a violent crime over non-abused inmates. In comparison of delinquency rates, 30 percent of the boys raised in aggressive homes committed juvenile crimes, as compared to six percent of those raised in non-aggressive homes. Between 43 to 48 percent of the nation's inmates grew up in single-parent homes. In addition, prisoners reported higher levels of abuse if they grew up in foster care, parents were heavy users of drugs and alcohol, and if a family member had been in jail or prison.

Sociopathic behavior is strongly linked to inadequate parenting and abusive childhood environments, which includes witnessing violent behaviors between parents. Sociopathic personality development is often the result of inadequate guidance by parents, lack of moral encouragements, and frequent exposure to pathological selfishness. Long-term effects of abuse include depression, self-destructive behavior, anxiety, feelings of isolation, poor self-esteem, difficulty in trusting other, substance abuse, and sexual maladjustment. Although abuse and criminality are related, not all maltreated children become delinquent and not all delinquents were abused in the past.

Other discussions were about the relationship between poverty and crime. Although there are individuals who receive welfare benefits, the U.S.' welfare spending is the lowest in the industrialized world, and has been declining since 1980. The situation became worse when the U.S. reduced spending on poor children by a third between 1979 and 1993. 22 percent of America children now live in poverty, with most European countries being between three percent and 6 percent. "Being poor in America means being at the bottom of an exceptionally harsh system of inequality...The links between extreme deprivation, delinquency, and violence...are strong, consistent, and compelling...growing up in extreme poverty exerts powerful pressures toward crime."

Now that the problem was discussed, what is the answer? It is well known that appropriate intervention by skilled and caring mental health providers can be an effective method of alleviating the problem, decreasing the rate of child abuse. Parents need to have valuable information about child-raising skills and nonviolent resolution of conflicts. Parents also need to handle the stress that often contributes to child abuse. After school program, such as music, sports or theater, can further aid these children in keeping them busy learning, and parents having relief. A large number of police chiefs agreed that such activities help the young get a good start in life, rather than imposing harsher punishments, and the potential for criminal activity is decreased. A research specialist in criminal issues found that such programs, when intense enough and implemented early enough in the lives of at-risk youth, can decrease the number who will later be involved in crime, by up to 80 percent.

Then there are the concerns for inmates in jail or prisons that are most likely to have significant mental health problems. In 1997, a survey of prisoners found that 10.1 percent of inmates in state institutions reported having a mental or emotional condition, and 10.7 percent said they had at least one overnight visit to a mental hospital or program. Also, in 2000, nearly 13 percent of inmates in state-run institutions (about 19 percent of those who were mentally ill) received some form of mental health care from a trained professional on a regular basis. Another problem is whether or not these inmates with mental health diagnoses receive treatment after being released. "...correctional institutions are reservoirs of physical and mental illness, which constantly spill back into the community." Could all of these issues have been addressed during the person's childhood? Would he be in prison as an
