Chandler, Fletcher to debate again on KET

The Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Gubernatorial opponents Ben Chandler and Ernie Fletcher have agreed to a second forum on Kentucky Educational Television, spokesmen said Thursday.

An hourlong program has been added to the broadcast schedule for Oct. 15. Chandler, the Democrat, and Fletcher, the Republican, were already scheduled to appear on the network on Oct. 20.

KET has traditionally staged two forums with the gubernatorial nominees. The network had proposed a second program on Oct. 27, eight days before the election, but Fletcher's campaign said it had a scheduling conflict.

Mark Nickolas and Wes Irvin, spokesman for Chandler and Fletcher, respectively, said the two camps had been in talks in recent weeks.

Board accused of concealing abuse

PIKEVILLE — The parents of seven disabled May Valley Elementary students filed a lawsuit in Pikeville's U.S. District Court Tuesday against the Floyd County

Lawsuit alleges officials did nothing to stop mistreatment at May Valley Elementary

Board of Education, the school system's director of special education and six specified members of May Valley's staff, as well as at least one unspecified staff member.

The lawsuit pinpoints former May Valley special education instructional aide Marty Mullins, claiming that Mullins subjected the seven Behavioral Disorder Unit students named in the lawsuit to mental and physical abuse on numerous occasions between January to mid-September of last year.

The students range in age from 5 to 11 years old, according to records from the Cabinet for Families and Children.

According to the parents, Mullins began what they are claiming became a long series of abuse by calling one 11-

Court spends money to save money

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Since imposing a home incarceration program on Aug. 15 in hopes of curbing overcrowding and to cut back on expenditures at the Floyd County Detention Center, the Floyd County Fiscal Court made its first significant financial decision as a result of that move during a special-called meeting yesterday.

Court officials voted to amend their 2003-2004 budget to include $130,000 in fees for the program, with the largest amount — $65,000 — set aside to meet contracted services such as costs for monitoring and bracelets.

Clerks enlisted to work for the program will make up $30,000 of that total amount, while $18,000 has been earmarked as salary for the program's supervisor.

Costs for fuel, office supplies, maintenance and repairs and other unspecified needs make up the remaining $17,000.

Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley said during yesterday's meeting that 11 inmates had been referred for the program since it began in mid-August, adding that, of as yesterday, clerks were working on bringing that number up.

The decision to implement the program was, without doubt, a sound one, according to Bartley.

"You might break even on this, but I don't know how many hundreds of thousands of dollars you're going to save by not having to pay out food, lodging and health care and so forth," Bartley said.

Steady rains overnight Wednesday forced Prestonburg Elementary to evacuate its basement due to flooding. School officials said at the time that basement flooding during rainy periods has been a chronic problem of late.

Pennington enters guilty plea

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PIKEVILLE — Millard Pennington, the Floyd County man arrested in January after police raided his home in early November and found large quantities of drugs, moonshine and cash, pleaded guilty to three of the eight counts brought against him in U.S. District Court in Pikeville Wednesday.

Pennington had been scheduled to go to trial Wednesday, but pleaded guilty just before trial was to begin. The additional counts in the indictment were dismissed as part of the plea deal.

At the time of raid in November, state police discovered more than 140 pounds of marijuana, approximately half a pound of cocaine, various prescription pills, 20 quarts of moonshine, one weapon and over $14,000 in cash. Numerous other items were confiscated during the search, including three cars, two trucks, one Harley-Davidson motorcycle, one Honda all-terrain vehicle, one pontoon boat and various articles of jewelry.

As part of his plea, Pennington

Judge denies issuing hardship license

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Responding to reports published last week that he may have issued a hardship license for home incarceration inmate Timothy Bellamy, who is currently under investigation following his involvement in a wreck at Eastern last month that killed his passenger, District Judge James R. Allen flatly denied any possibility of such an action Wednesday.

"Neither I nor Judge (Eric) Hall could have been involved in that case in any way, form or fashion," Allen said. "We have no authority to issue a hardship license unless it's a first-offense DUI, and then only after 30 days, and even then only if it was to be in this county, certainly not in an Indiana case."

Allen said he did accept a guilty plea from Bellamy in 1999 on a first-offense DUI, but was quick to add that he neither offered to or was asked to award him a

Still waiting for money, court takes out loan

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — The Floyd County Fiscal Court voted yesterday to accept an offer from Citizen's National Bank for a $1 million loan that officials expect will cover some of the flood repair projects still hanging in the balance because of slow-moving federal reimbursements.

Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson said the fiscal court is still owed nearly $2 million from a series of floods that have washed over the county in the past few years, adding that the decision to take out the loan was the best alternative to approaching the mounting list of repair projects throughout some of the harder hit areas of the county.

"Floyd County is still owed close to $2 million in FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) money," Thompson said. "We seem to be having a tough time getting it ... We will be able to solve some problem like school roads. That's the purpose of this loan."

The fiscal court, which agreed earlier this year to apply for the loan, accepted Citizen's offer of a 1.85 percent interest rate and a waiver of related fees.

The line of credit would not be taken at one time, according to Thompson, but would be accessed as needed, a point the court discussed at length when agreeing to the application process.

Now that the line of credit has been secured, the money can't make its way to the county's fund quick enough, considering the floods that have hit the coun-

Candidate for Lieutenant Governor Charlie Owen touched down on Prestonburg High School's football field during team practice late Thursday afternoon. Owen, who stopped to "huddle" up and shake hands with the PHS football team, moved on later to meet with local officials and discuss his and gubernatorial candidate Ben Chandler's plan for health care if the two are elected in November.

■ BECKLEY, W.Va. —

Cock-a-doodle don't!
Some southern West Virginia residents say roosters on steroids are clucking relentlessly all day long, and they want the birds to pipe down.

A disgruntled resident gave a recording of the roosters' noises to Raleigh County Prosecutor Larry Frail and Bill Roop, the county commissioner's lawyer.

Frail and Roop said Tuesday that they didn't notice anything unusual when they inspected the area near state Route 3, but they plan to return for further evaluation.

County Commissioner John Aliff said a man is raising gamecocks, and the birds have been injected with steroids. Raising gamecocks is legal in West Virginia as long as they're not used for cockfighting.

"A rooster crowing very early in the morning is no problem," Aliff said.

County commissioners say they probably will amend a noise ordinance, which deals primarily with barking dogs, to cover the birds' crowing.

■ CADD VALLEY, Ark. —

A man's skimpy swimsuit was too much — or too little — for Taco Bell workers.

Employees at Taco Bell called police Sunday when the man walked into the restaurant wearing only a tiny black Speedo swimsuit and a cut-off T-shirt during the Labor Day weekend.

Caddo Valley Police Chief Hiram Latin said his attire, or lack thereof, was a little too revealing.

"He was inappropriately dressed for a restaurant," said Latin. He said the man had left his clothes at a lake.

The man faces a $750 fine and possible jail time if convicted of indecent exposure.

According to Arkansas law, a person can be charged with indecent exposure if "he knows his conduct is likely to cause affront or alarm."

Police ticketed the man and took photos of him in the Speedo, for use in court.

■ EDGEWATER, Fla. — A 91-year-old man grew weak while cleaning his roof last weekend and lay there for two days before purposely rolling off, falling 8 feet into his back yard where he was rescued.

The man, whose name was not released, cried for help while in his yard for several hours Monday until a neighbor heard him and called 911, said Mark O'Keefe, spokesman for EVAC ambulance service.

Paramedics treated the man for dehydration, exposure, including a sunburn and bug bites, and minor scrapes and bruises, O'Keefe said. He was taken to Bert Fish Medical Center in New Smyrna Beach and released later Monday.

The man told paramedics he climbed onto the roof — as he does every Saturday — to clean it off, but this time he experienced an episode of weakness and could not get back to the ladder to come down, O'Keefe said.

He called for help for two days, but no one heard him. The man told paramedics he rolled off the roof as a last resort, hoping someone would see or hear him from the ground, O'Keefe said.

■ GILLETTE, Wyo. — Deryl Miles is accused of cat nabbing.

Miles, 55, allegedly kidnapped his neighbor's cat and held it hostage for $50 after the animal wandered into his yard.

He was arrested Tuesday on misdemeanor larceny charges for allegedly trapping the cat, named Brunswick, in a wooden shed behind his mobile home, according to court documents.

Surrounded by police, Miles called a local newspaper from Birth Announcement

Isabella Therese Ratliff Salunga was born on November 24, 2002, at Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg, Virginia. She weighed 7 lbs. and 15.5 ozs., and measured 21 inches in length. "Bella" was christened at St. Isidore the Farmer Catholic Church in Orange, Virginia on March 2, 2003. She was joined by her godparents Andrew and Amy Salunga, grandparents from Kentucky and California, and numerous family friends to celebrate the event. The christening was followed by brunch at Tolliver House Restaurant in Gordonsville, Virginia.

Bella is the daughter of Alexander and Nikki Ratliff Salunga. She recently visited her family in Kentucky, when her mother, a Wayland native and June Buchanan School graduate, completed a five-week summer internship at Appalachian Research and Defense (AppalRed) in Prestonsburg. Nikki is currently a third-year law student at the University Law School. Bella is the granddaughter of Kenneth and Sheila Ratliff of Harold.

year-old student names such as "long haired bitch" and "long haired girl" and "faggot" during school in January of last year. This led to Mullins pushing the student to the floor and then sitting on top of him, pressing his weight on him, putting his arm on the back of his neck and applying force to his neck, according to the child's parent.

The student reported the alleged abuse to his teachers, including special education teacher Mattie Donta, according to the suit. Donta did not respond to the complaint and Mullins denied the abuse, the lawsuit says.

From that first instance on, the parents claim that this particular student, who allegedly endured more extreme and more frequent abuse than the others, reported being abused by Mullins again in February, April, twice during the month of May, August and finally twice over the course of four days in September. Another student also reported that Mullins abused him during this four-day period.

The lawsuit claims that the classroom rarely had a full-time teacher present, but instead relied on substitutes, and that when the teacher was present, she was frequently out of the room. In all but the initial case, the lawsuit claims that the abuse was first reported to the parent who then approached May Valley Principal Carole Combs.

According to the suit, Combs refused to investigate each complaint, stating that Mullins was "like a big teddy bear" and contending that he "loves kids".

Finally, Combs and Assistant Principal Tonya Williams allegedly told the student's mother they were "tired" of the complaints and that they did not believe the reports.

The lawsuit claims that on Aug. 30, Behavior Disorder Unit teacher Justin Ambergly "ordered" the student who allegedly suffered the most abuse to go into the EBD classroom bathroom with Mullins as punishment for yelling out the answer to questions before being called on. The lawsuit claims that Mullins would often take the students into the bathroom and slam them against the wall, pinch, gouge and hold the bathroom door closed so they couldn't get out.

The student began crying at the thought of going into the bathroom with Mullins, the lawsuit claims, because he had been subjected to abuse in the room several times before, but was told he had "misbehaved" and "it would be worse" if he did not go into the bathroom with Mullins.

The alleged abuse was again reported to Combs and again she refused to respond, the lawsuit says.

In mid-September, the 11-year-old student's mother took pictures of the bruises and red marks left on her son's body, which are included as Exhibit A in the complaint filed Tuesday, and on Sept. 13, the Cabinet for Families and Children initiated an investigation into the claims.

Reports from social worker Malvedine Allen, which were taken from interviews of three of the students and instructional aide Rene Conn, were that the claims of abuse were "substantiated", according to the lawsuit.

Allen wrote in her report that "Mullins ... twisted children's arms, bruising and pushing them", adding that "Mullins is verbally abusive and curses them" and that he picked "one student against another to fight".

Allen reported that these substantiated claims were witnessed by "three other teachers and several aides and was reported." Allen also reported that the abuse spanned portions of 2001, as well.

Allen interviewed Mullins on Nov. 19 and reported the instructional aide said the staff at the school "did not like him and that the children were constantly whispering behind his back and saying that they were going to make up lies to get him into trouble." Allen reported that Mullins also said he was a "good, moral, Christian person" and that he "would never abuse any child," as well as pointing to his prior experience as a prison guard, saying that he "knew how to restrain these children properly."

During a second interview on Nov. 21, Allen wrote that she told Mullins the reports of abuse had been confirmed by the children and Conn. He denied any wrongdoing, according to Allen, and stated that he felt Conn was "too easy on the children."

May Valley Principal Carole Combs, Assistant Principal

Tonya Williams, EBD teacher Justin Ambergly and Conn were all named as defendants in Tuesday's lawsuit.

The complaint seeks unspecified compensatory and punitive damages.

hardship license in that case.

Floyd District Court records show that Bellamy currently has a valid Kentucky driver's license, renewed on March 6.

Both Allen and Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley said it was odd that Bellamy's plea of guilty to a second-offense DUI in Indiana wasn't reflected on records in Floyd County, but Bartley says, given the extent of possible charges that could come from the fatal accident last month, the fact that the Indiana case wasn't reflected on Floyd County records held only limited importance.

"What the state police and Indiana are wanting to know right now doesn't have much to do with whether he had a valid driver's license at the time," said Bartley. "What they want to know is whether he really was coming home from work and whether or not he was intoxicated at the time of the accident."

Bartley said reports of whether alcohol was factor in the accident would take roughly another month-and-a-half, while a report concerning any possible drugs involved in the crash would likely be six months or more.

But, regardless of how pivotal the point may be, Allen says "unattributed" reports that he may have issued Bellamy a hardship license were not only unfair to him personally, but were also an unfair blow to the integrity of the Floyd County court system.

"It's not fair to me, it's not fair to this court," he said. "It not fair to Eric Hall, either, because we're very careful about issuing hardship licenses. I've been a public official for 25 years and it disturbs me that this office would be accused in such a way."

Bellamy had been serving out the rest of his sentence from Indiana under a home incarceration program supervised by Floyd County Deputy Jailer Damon Newsome when he wrecked at Eastern on Aug. 16, resulting in the death of his passenger, 31-year-old Everett Douglas Vanderpool, of Stone Coal.

President Bush forcefully takes center stage in 'DC 9/11' drama

by LYNN ELBER
AP TELEVISION WRITER

LOS ANGELES — Filmmaker Lionel Chetwynd is a supporter of President Bush, a self-described political conservative and a defender of the war on Iraq.

None of that, he contends, disqualified him from making a film about the Bush administration's actions in the days immediately following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

And Chetwynd makes no apologies for writing and producing an admiring account of a confident, decisive leader in Showtime's "DC 9/11: Time of Crisis," debuting 8 p.m. EDT Sunday.

"Yes, it is a flattering portrait of the president because he did become the instrument around which we rallied," he said. "You could say that anybody in the office might have done that. We'll never know, because he was the one in the office.

"I think the important thing is, is it a fair representation of those nine days?" said Chetwynd, an Academy Award nominee (1974's "The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz") whose TV credits include "Ruby Ridge: An American Tragedy."

"DC 9/11: Time of Crisis" shows Bush mustering his inner resources to reassure an anguished nation while guiding his Cabinet in beginning to frame America's political and military response.

Timothy Bottoms (who essayed a comic portrayal of the president in the Comedy Central satire "That's My Bush!") plays a composed but tough-talking Bush. The cast includes Penny Johnson Jerald ("24") as national security adviser Condoleezza Rice and George Takei ("Star Trek") as Transportation Secretary Norman Mineta.

Some scenes echo accounts included in Bob Woodward's 2002 book "Bush at War." The film depicts Bush's resolve to return to the White House despite warnings of a possible threat against it and his refusal to cede to his staff decisions on key passages of an Oval Office speech.

Chetwynd, who wrote the script that was directed by Brian Trenchard-Smith, based the drama on interviews with top-ranking members of the administration as well as on books and news accounts.

A Bush appointee to the President's Committee on the Arts and the Humanities, Chetwynd was able to request and receive an interview with President Bush that went nearly an hour.

Recalls Chetwynd: "I said I was having trouble sorting out the president from the commander in chief from a guy called George W. Bush, a man with a wife and children and who comes with a full set of emotions."

Understanding how Bush harnessed the emotions provoked by the Pentagon and World Trade Center attacks shaped the project, Chetwynd said. "There's no room for W today," Bush says to his wife, Laura (Mary Gordon Murray), in one scene.

The film, which blends drama with footage of events and TV news reports (often from Fox News Channel, which Chetwynd says offered the best deal), is not a psychodrama. Chetwynd cites as his inspiration "Missiles of October," the 1974 TV movie that re-created the Kennedy White House during the Cuban missile crisis.

He wanted "DC 9/11: Time of Crisis" to remain similarly focused on a narrow time frame, and not solely for creative reasons.

"In those nine days, we were wounded and from that sense of injury did come a national identity, which is rarely given to a fractious country like ours," Chetwynd said. "One of the great aspects of America is the constant food fight that seems to be going on at the various tables in the cafeteria."

"But every once in a while, we come together and say, 'You know what, there are larger issues and there are greater obstacles that we have to face as a people.'"

While Chetwynd asserts his personal politics should be a non-issue, that's not the case. During a question-and-answer session with the Television Critics Association in July, Chetwynd was asked to detail his campaign support for Bush (he contributed $1,000, he said).

One reporter said a donation to Democratic candidate Al Gore would have been preferable because it would have shown "less potential bias."

"I mean, c'mon!" Chetwynd responded to the group. "Am I supposed to abdicate? Does that mean, then, I cannot engage in political subject matter because I have expressed a preference in a political election?"

Looking back on the day,

Chetwynd noted that a subsequent session on HBO's new Washington-based drama "K Street" didn't include any queries for series producer George Clooney about his politics.

"A lot of people feel I shouldn't have a seat at this table" where popular culture is created, Chetwynd said.

He refuses to accept criticism of the film as Bush campaign propaganda. He does not deny it is, as one observer said, a shot across the bow of Democrats seeking to replace Bush. That characterization initially bothered him, but no longer.

"Let him (Bush) and his administration's handling of those nine days be the standard to which the American people hold him and all of those Democratic candidates for president. Let this be the standard by which we judge our leaders because they rose to the occasion."

"I don't care what your politics are. They did the right thing."

his trailer and said "I've taken (the cat) legally because it was trespassing on my property."

Miles refused to release the cat, and was arrested after leading police on a brief chase around his yard, court documents stated.

The cat's owner, Leah Vader, said she called police after hearing her pet howling from the shed next door.

"You have the right to call animal control if you have an unwanted animal in your yard," she said. "You don't have the right to hold him for ransom."

EKSC Mars Party scheduled for Saturday

PRESTONSBURG — The East Kentucky Science Center will hold its next Mars Party on Saturday, Sept. 6, weather permitting, near the Stone Crest Golf Course Clubhouse parking lot on Maggie Mountain in Prestonsburg.

Mars' orbital path has brought it closer to Earth than it has been in 60,000 years, and spectators will get a good view of the "Red Planet" through September. The Science Center will have several telescopes at the Mars Party, according to Raymond Shubinski, EKSC director. Spectators who view Mars through some of the Center's high powered telescopes should see Mar's southern polar ice cap, Shubinski said.

The Mars Party will begin around 9 p.m. Spectators are asked to park in the clubhouse parking lot. White beams from car headlights hinder viewing by affecting night vision. A shuttle service will be available to transport individuals to the observing site.

Spectators should use only red lens flashlights. Red cellophane can be taped over regular flashlight lens to shield the white light.

The Mars Party is part of the Science Center's Mobile Outreach Education Program and is made possible, in part, through the MSU East Kentucky Regional GEAR-UP Project, which provided a major portion of the telescopes through a grant, and through the Music-Carter automotive dealership and Citizens National Bank.

If the night sky is clouded or in inclement weather situations, the event will be cancelled. However, if the sky is partly clouded and stars are visible, the event will be held as planned. Check the Science Center's website, www.wedoscience.org, for cancellation notices, or call the Science Center at (606) 889-0303 for more information.

Ladycats land Right Beaver Classic title

EASTERN – The grade school/middle school girls' basketball season is just a few games old and the Betsy Layne Elementary Ladycats are already champions.

Betsy Layne, coached by Jim Roberts, captured the Right Beaver Classic championship last Friday night.

The Ladycats got off on the right foot, beating South Floyd 40-25 in the opening game. In the semifinals, the Ladycats faced a tougher test but passed with a high mark. Betsy Layne beat Knott County participant Emmalena 61-57 in an overtime thriller to advance to the championship game.

In the semifinals win, Kaitlin Lawson led the Ladycats with a team-high 29 points. Megan Hamilton, a sixth-grader at BLES, scored 17.

In the championship game, Lawson got in to foul trouble, but the Ladycats made the most of the situation and went on to beat tournament host Allen Central Middle 31-18. Lawson flipped in 13 in the title game win.

NEXT WEEK

Four games dot Betsy Layne's schedule for next week. The Ladycats host South Floyd on Monday in A-, B-, and C-team games, before heading out on the road to Adams Tuesday night for A and B contests. The BLES C-team will host Osborne Wednesday and travel to McDowell Thursday.

First win, take three

LICK CREEK – Two games from the 2003 high school football season are now history and South Floyd is still without a win. But, don't feel sorry for the Raiders. South Floyd head coach Donny Daniels wouldn't expect that.

"Sure, our kids are disappointed and hurt after the two losses," said Daniels. "But they're ready to move on and play football.

And play football the Raiders will. Tonight, South Floyd travels to East Ridge tonight for its third game of the current campaign. Both South Floyd and East Ridge are winless on the season. So far, a season of close calls and near misses is the best way to describe the Raider campaign.

"It's like I've told our kids, we're four plays away from being 2-0 on the season," added Daniels, whose team led Shelby

COMMENTARY

Touchdown was not the answer

We learned a few things about the football programs at the Commonwealth's two largest institutions Sunday night.

Some were good. Under first-year coach Bobby Petrino, Louisville played with confidence, poise and organization. On the other sideline, Jared Lorenzen proved he could be mobile regardless of how close he is to three bills.

Others were not so good. Consider how disorganized Kentucky looked, particularly in the embarrassing kicking game, where they gave up the difference in the game – 16 points

SALYERSVILLE – When the Allen Central Rebels travel to Magoffin County Friday night to take on the Hornets, a bowl victory will be on the line for both teams. More importantly for Allen Central, the first win of the season is again at stake, following a Week Two loss to Paintsville. Adams downs Allen, 14-8

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PRESTONSBURG — Allen scored first against Adams in grade school/middle school football action Wednesday night at Prestonsburg High School's Josh Francis Field, but the lead wouldn't hold up.

Allen scored on its first possession and was successful on the conversion to jump out to an 8-0 lead. Allen's lead stood through one half. However in the end, Adams pulled out a 14-8 win to go up in the Floyd County Conference football race. Adams got on the scoreboard in the second quarter when quarterback Bobby Hughes scored on a sneak. The conversion failed and left Allen with an 8-6 advantage at halftime.

In the second half, it was the hard-nosed running of James Michael Lafferty, Taylor Clark, Nathaniel Stephens and Seth Setser that got the Blackcat offense rolling and going for positive yardage. Adams drove the football against Allen with Hughes scoring again late in the third quarter and Lafferty adding a successful conversion and what would ultimately be a six-point win for the Blackcats. Adams recovered an onside kick and kept the ball the entire fourth quarter to preserve the win.

Founders Day

Founders Day Festival is currently underway in Magoffin County.

Allen Central began its grid season with a 27-26 loss to in-county rival Betsy Layne. Last week, the Rebels hosted district foe Paintsville and fought throughout, before falling 49-0.

Rebel head coach Jeremy Hall and staff, after playing Magoffin County tonight, will face in the remainder of September, Jenkins (Sept. 12), Fleming-Neon (Sept. 19) and Knott County Central (Sept. 26).

The Founders Bowl is the only bowl on the 2003 schedule for Allen Central.

Magoffin County, despite starting well and putting 14 points on the scoreboard in the first period last Friday night, fell on the road to Powell County 20, Magoffin County 14.

The Hornets (1-1) began the season on a positive note by defeating Knott County Central on the road in the first game of the season. The win broke a long, grueling 25-game losing streak for Magoffin.

Dayne Brown is the head coach of the Hornets.

A player to watch on offense for Magoffin County is sophomore quarterback Robert Bailey (6-3, 190). This year's Magoffin County teams mixes well both the pass and the run.

Valley at halftime last Friday night, in a Shorty Jamerson Gridiron Classic matchup only to eventually fall by a 34-28 final tally. The week before, South Floyd lost in overtime to Powell County.

With a roster that doesn't number many over 25, Daniels is hoping for the weather prediction of cooler temperatures to pull through tonight. Maybe Mother Nature will cooperate.

"It'll be interesting to see how we play in 70-degree temperatures," added Daniels. "Our kids have played in some real hot temperatures."

A bruising ground game has emerged for the Raiders in the early goings of the season with Brandon Little and Wesley Hall each had over 100 yards in rushing last week against Shelby Valley. East Ridge is in its first season under new head coach Mike Davis, a former assistant at Trimble County and a graduate of Boyd County High School. Davis replaced Erik Ratliff, who coached East Ridge to four wins in its inaugural season in 2002.

The Warriors began the 2003 season with a Pike County Bowl loss to Pike County Central and followed that up last week with another setback against Haysi, Va.

Davis hopes his team will be able to pull it together tonight against the visiting Floyd County team.

"We've gotten better each game," said Davis. "Right now, that's what we expect — to get better each game."

Bentley

in a 40-24 loss.

But the worst thing we saw came after many had left rain-soaked Commonwealth Stadium when in the final seconds of a sure victory, we learned all we needed about Petrino in his first game at the helm.

Playing his biggest rival, Petrino called timeout with 13 seconds left to set up a running play that resulted in a final touchdown, rubbing it in the nose of the boys in blue.

Let me say right here that Kentucky clearly could have stopped Lionel Gates had it put forth a little more effort. He ran parallel to the line of scrimmage for nearly half the field before turning toward the goal line.

But they shouldn't have had to.

Petrino should have attempted a little class, forewent the timeout and instructed his quarterback to take a knee at the Kentucky two. The 33-24 win would have been no less impressive, and even those in Big Blue Nation still chaffed by Rick Pitino's hiring would have been forced to tip their collective cap in appreciation.

It's a no-brainer.

I'm sorry, but I don't buy Petrino's explanation that he "only" called a running play, and that Gates, who had worked hard all summer, deserved a chance to score.

Those are excuses.

With any luck, by the time Petrino has coached as many games as the guy whose nose he rubbed in the dirt he will have learned the importance of showing a little class. He could have scored a lot more than seven points by calling the old victory play instead of sending his tailback toward the goal line.

This was particularly amazing considering UofL's status in this state. Few people pulled for Louisville before they hired Public Enemy No. 1 to coach the basketball team. He could have earned some goodwill brownie points with those outside his city limits by remembering that a nine-point win is good enough.

Of course, Petrino isn't the only one guilty of such shenanigans. Already in this high school football season, I saw one local coach pull the same stuff on a cross-county rival.

Leading by four touchdowns heading into the fourth quarter, our coach had invested most of his offensive game plan in the ground game, and obviously was showing some success.

And despite this fact, and that they had thrown only five passes in the first three periods, this Vince Lombardi wannabe doubled that number in the fourth and called timeouts on his final drive to try to score yet again.

It was only thanks to some timely laundry did they not score on that drive.

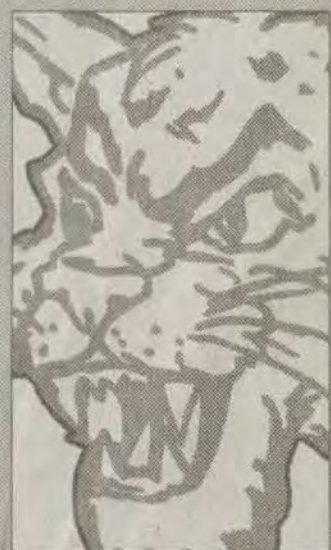

What are we teaching our children? These guys certainly are singing a different tune than the one Philip Haywood hums on Pond Creek.

Back when Belfry and Clay County were in the same Triple-A district, I was in Death Valley for their game and saw the Bucs get the ball on the final play of the third period thanks to a goal line stand.

With the game well in hand (Belfry led 28-0), Haywood did the right thing and kept the ball on the ground and the clock moving. Yes, his team could have probably scored at least

Warrior Classic will include area teams, Oak Hill Academy

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

LICK CREEK — The schedule is set for the 2003 East Ridge Warrior Classic. The date is December 13 and teams and players in the event will feature a mix of area, state and national talent.

East Ridge head coach Jerry Hurley and staff will welcome in nine other teams, including national power Oak Hill Academy out of Virginia and Louisville teams Waggener and Ballard.

The event field features talented basketball players from beginning to end.

"We're pleased with the teams we have lined up for this year's Classic," said Hurley.

"It'll be some great basketball."

The 2003 East Ridge Warrior Classic will run in two sessions — a morning and evening session with the gym being cleared and tidied up in between the two sessions.

Fifteenth Region teams joining East Ridge in the all-day event include defending champion Shelby Valley and Johnson Central, a former champion. Powell County is a participant from the 14th Region. Others teams committed to play in the Warrior Classic are Knox Central, a team out of the 13th Region, Frankfort and Christian County.

The first game of the day will tip off at 11:45 a.m. and pit Knox Central against Johnson Central. The 1:30 p.m. game has Powell County against Frankfort. Powell is the defending 14th Region Champion. Shelby Valley will play Christian County at 3:15 p.m. East Ridge will play Louisville Waggener at 6:45 while Louisville Ballard and Oak Hill Academy is on tap for an 8 p.m. beginning.

Prior to the stop in Pike County as part of East Ridge's event, one night earlier Oak Hill will visit Hazard.

In addition to East Ridge, three other teams are already committed for the 2004 Warrior Classic with Louisville Male, Lexington Catholic and Science Hill, Tenn. giving acceptance to invitations.

East Ridge Warrior Classic, Dec. 13

■ 11:45 a.m. Knox Central-Johnson Central

■ 1:30 p.m. Powell County-Frankfort

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Pikeville men's basketball adds six

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — The men's basketball staff at Pikeville College had a busy summer which has paid off with six additions to its roster of talent.

The list includes one of the 15th Region's most celebrated players, junior college transfers, a standout from the Palmetto State and an international player.

"This group of young men brings to Pikeville College quality not only on the court but also in the community and in the classroom," said Randy McCoy, who is slated to begin his fifth season at the helm of the Bears. "We feel this group of young men can fill the large void left by losing last year's group of seniors. They can also help us continue in our quest for a national championship."

The players include:

■ Mike Hall, a 5-10 freshman from Hi Hat, who had a remarkable career at South Floyd High School. "Mike brings with him athletic ability and winning ways from one of the top programs in the 15th Region, and will be of great value in our program during his career," McCoy said.

■ Leszek Pawlek, a 6-8 freshman from Warsaw, Poland. "This is a young man we're very excited about," McCoy said. "With his great fundamental potential to both play on the perimeter and inside."

The Bears also landed two junior college players from Mississippi in B.J. Townsend and Jarell Jones. Townsend is a 6-4 junior from Canton, while Jones is a 5-8 junior from Jackson.

"The athletic ability of these two young men and knowledge of the game of basketball will play a tremendous role this year," said McCoy. "They're offensive capabilities along with tremendous athletic skills brings immediate help to our program."

■ Leonardo Bolden is a 6-3 freshman from Piedmont, S.C. "We are very excited about what Leonardo will bring to our program for the next four years," McCoy said. "One of the top prospects from the state of South Carolina, he will be a very exciting player for our fans to watch thanks to his ability to play above the rim and his tremendous quickness."

■ Morease Gray, a 6-5 junior from Pelham, Ga., will offer a variety of talents to the club. "He brings a workhorse attitude to our program. His ability to do the little things, such as rebound on both ends of the court and play quality defense will be a valued role in our program."

The Bears open the 2003-04 season on Sunday, November 9, playing host to Miami University-Hamilton.

'Teenage Terrors' on the loose in NASCAR

by MIKE HARRIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

First, there were the "Young Guns," drivers in their 20s with talent and confidence.

Now, there are the "Teenage Terrors," Brian Vickers and Kyle Busch, raising eyebrows and expectations with feats seemingly too mature for their tender years.

The 19-year-old Vickers and 18-year-old Busch finished 1-2 last Saturday in the Busch series race at tough old Darlington Raceway — considered by many grizzled veterans the most difficult track in NASCAR.

Two-time Daytona 500 winner Michael Waltrip finished third in the Busch race, passed by Vickers in the pits and Busch on the racetrack. The 40-year-old Waltrip said he isn't surprised at the quick start by the two youngsters.

"A race car doesn't know how old the driver is," Waltrip said. "I keep telling people, with the equipment these young guys get into nowadays, it's not surprising they have so much success."

"They don't know any better that they can't do the job. They get in the car and they get on it."

Darlington was the second win of Vickers' first full season in the Busch series. He goes into Friday night's race in Richmond, Va., third in the points race with 15 top-10s and eight top-fives.

Success has earned Vickers a trip to the next level in 2004, when he will be the youngest full-time Winston Cup regular ever at 20.

Busch, the younger brother of 25-year-old Winston Cup star Kurt Busch — one of the "Young Guns" — isn't far behind Vickers.

Running a limited schedule of Busch and ARCA races this season, Kyle has two ARCA wins — both before his 18th birthday — and has finished second in two of three Busch series starts since becoming eligible to race in the series on May 2, his birthday.

The youngster ran seven NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series events in 2001 as a 16-year-old, and the plan was to move him last year to the steppingstone Busch series. But NASCAR passed a minimum age requirement of 18.

Instead, Busch ran 20 races in the American Speed Association in 2002, earning four top-fives and finishing eighth in the Midwest-based stock car series as a rookie. He also made his ARCA debut last fall in Charlotte, finishing 12th.

Both Vickers and Busch drive for Hendrick Motorsports, an elite team that fields Winston Cup cars for four-time series champion Jeff Gordon; two-time series champion Terry Labonte, who won last Sunday's Southern 500 at Darlington; Jimmie Johnson, another of the "Young Guns;" and Joe Nemechek, who will be leaving at the end of the season to make room for Vickers.

Vickers will replace Nemechek in the No. 25 Chevrolet next season, with Busch climbing into the full-time seat Vickers leaves behind in the Busch series.

Vickers was discovered by Ricky Hendrick, son of team owner Rick Hendrick, and began his Busch career in 2002. He took a while to begin fulfilling his potential.

"I tore a lot of stuff up my first year," Vickers said. "My first four races (this year) and the 21 races I ran last year we had some good runs, we had some bad, some blown tires, had some stuff break, and I made a lot of mistakes."

Vickers is certainly aware of the opportunity he's been given.

"Having been within the Hendrick organization makes a huge difference," Vickers said. "Rick has so much advice to give a young driver that can keep him from making those mistakes that most people have to make to learn from."

"I've got a lot of information to pull from that's helped me this year."

The same could be said for Busch, who also can turn to his older brother for advice, even though Kurt drives for the rival Roush Racing team.

"Kurt and I are great friends," Kyle said. "He told me a lot of things I needed to know about (Darlington) and ... everything that he told me worked."

Mostly, though, the early success for Vickers and Busch appears to be a matter of unusual talent.

"Brian has proven that he has the tools to be successful, not only through on-track performance, but with his maturity and ability to handle himself in a way that represents our sponsors, our teams and our sport in a positive light," Rick Hendrick said. "There's no doubt in my mind that he's going to have a very long and productive career."

"Kyle Busch is a talent. In a short amount of time, he's shown that he has the ability to go out and compete with the best this sport has to offer. It's going to be fun to watch him race every week with a championship-caliber team."

Chemwolo takes first MSC honor

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — Pikeville College Alex Chemwolo got his senior season off to a terrific start, and the Mid-South Conference office took notice.

In the first week of honors presented this season, Chemwolo was named Cross Country runner of the week by the league office after his performance in the Shawnee State Invitational.

The Daytona Beach native won the 8K event with a time of 25:42, finishing 18 seconds ahead of University of Charleston runner Mikey Guinn, who came in second.

"Alex winning a race is no surprise," said Coach John Biery. "He's a very talented runner who knows how to maintain the right pace to make his move at the end of the run. We're very proud of Alex, and hope he's on his way to an All-American caliber season."

Chemwolo has been All-Mid-South Conference in both seasons at Pikeville College. As a junior, he was runner of the week three times.

Chemwolo and his Cross Country running mates will be back in action Saturday, Sept. 13, when they travel to Danville to compete in a meet hosted by Centre College.

one more touchdown, maybe two. But for him, getting the win was enough, and the quickest way to do that was by running the ball, which in turn runs the clock.

With four minutes to play, Haywood's team finally gave the ball up on downs, having run eight minutes off the clock and just barely having reached mid-field.

The Tiger coach, whose name I don't recall, was so appreciative that he did the same thing: Clay ran the ball up the middle and the final four minutes off the clock.

B.J. Elswick coached perhaps the best girl's basketball team I covered in my tenure as a sports writer, and he had a single goal at the beginning of every game. He wanted to win by 20 points.

His logic was if his team won by 20, they left happy.

Because his team was very good, if the other team only lost by 20, they'd be happy too. So if everybody leaves happy, what's the problem?

I'll guarantee Rich Brooks wasn't too happy with that last-second touchdown Sunday night.

Someday, when Petrino is on the other end, he'll hope some coach treats him a little better than he gave last weekend.

And for his player's sake, I hope they will too.

The Blackcats are 1-1 on the year and 1-0 in county conference play. The next conference foe for Adams is Allen Central. Blackcat head coach James DeRossett was pleased with his team's overall effort in the second half Wednesday night.

"Our kids showed a lot of guts in the second half to come back like we did," said DeRossett. "I thought our line settled in and started opening some holes for our backs to run through."

Adams has a road game scheduled for Saturday at Varney.

H.S. golf season battles the rain

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

The high school golf season is well underway as area teams try to get in matches in between showers of rain.

On Monday, Aug. 26, Jenny Wiley hosted a four-team match with Sheldon Clark, Betsy Layne, Magoffin County and South Floyd participating. Jenny Wiley is a Par 34 Course.

In high school golf matches, the participating teams play five players and counts the low four scores to determine the winner of the golf match.

Sheldon Clark finished with the low total of 175 in the four-team match. Betsy Layne was second with a total of 177. A young Magoffin County squad was third with a total of 187 and South Floyd finished fourth with a score of 194.

Sheldon Clark was led by Brett Cassidy's 39. Jeremy Preece and Seth Copley finished with 43s, and Shawn Johnson ended with a 50.

The second-place Betsy Layne team was led by Bill Collins' score of 40. Cody Click scored 41 while Brandon Thacker and Derek Case each shot 48s.

Magoffin County was led by freshman Chase Carpenter's even par 34. Carpenter, one of the top area players, recorded a birdie on the short par 4, hole No. 2, but recorded a bogey at the tough par 5, hole 5.

Magoffin County's improving and only junior Courtney Conley shot a 40 (+6); followed by freshmen Justin Casebolt's, 56 (+22); and Tyler Lykins, 57 (+23). South Floyd was led with Coby Hayes, 38; Josh Vanderpool, 42; Scott Gayheart, 50; and Johnathan Mullins, 64.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Kentucky turns its attention to Murray State after Louisville loss

by MURRAY EVANS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Calling his squad "a team in transition right now," Kentucky football coach Rich Brooks repeatedly promised Tuesday that the Wildcats will improve, beginning Saturday against Murray State.

Brooks said he was disappointed with the Wildcats' execution in the season-opening 40-24 loss to Louisville on Sunday, but noted that there's plenty of room for improvement.

"We're a team that needs to play more cohesively together," Brooks said during his weekly news conference. "I don't think this game is an indication of what we're capable of doing the rest of the year.

"We have work to do, but I knew that when I came here. I'm not happy with where we are after one game, but I'm not ready to roll over and pronounce this thing as a done deal, because it isn't. We will get better, I promise you that. This team will respond, we'll play better football, and we will be a force. Before the year is over, we will win our share of games, and in the future we will win more than our share of games, based on recent history."

Brooks said criticism and second-guessing he has heard since the Louisville loss reminded him of what another Kentucky coach recently endured.

"The weekend I came in here to be hired, Louisville had just kicked the devil out of our basketball team," Brooks said. "I think they were about 3-3 at the time, and there was doom and gloom for Tubby (Smith)'s basketball program. Look what happened after that for those two programs. Louisville still had a very good year, but Kentucky had a great year. They went through the SEC totally undefeated."

"Now I'm not suggesting we're going to do that in football, but what I am pointing out is one game doesn't make a season. I believe this team still has a lot left in it, and I promise you, we're going to get better."

To do that, Brooks and his staff will try to improve weaknesses in preparation for UK's first-ever game with NCAA Division I-AA Murray State. The Racers, who shared the Ohio Valley Conference title last year, blanked Valparaiso 34-0 on Saturday in their season opener.

Brooks said Kentucky's offense and defense made "normal mistakes," but that "catastrophic mistakes" occurred on the punt unit. Kentucky had one punt blocked, resulting in a Louisville touchdown, and punter Sevin Sucurovic dropped a clean snap on another attempt, leading to a safety.

"That just shouldn't have happened," Brooks said. "We'll have an awful lot of practice on the punt team this week. Now, can I catch the ball for Sevin? No. But if Sevin doesn't catch in there, then we'll put somebody else in and let him catch it. Sevin can punt it if he's protected and he catches it."

Louisville frequently pressured Kentucky quarterback Jared Lorenzen, but Brooks said breakdowns in protection were not necessarily always the fault of the offensive line. He said at times, Lorenzen failed to look for secondary receivers or correctly read the defense. But he did have praise for Lorenzen, who completed 18 of 31 passes for 236 yards and two touchdowns.

"He made things happen. He is an unbelievable guy. This guy is a big-time player," Brooks said.

The Wildcats emerged from the loss without many injuries, Brooks said. Standout wide receiver and return specialist Derek Abney re-aggravated a hamstring injury that cost him two weeks of preseason practice, but he planned to practice Tuesday.

Starting tight end Jeremiah Drobney has a bruised hip, starting outside linebacker Deion Holts suffered a slight concussion and backup linebacker Dustin Williams has a strained neck. Brooks said all of them should be available to play Saturday.

The loss to Louisville will not keep the team from focusing on preparing to play Murray State, guard Sylvester Miller said.

"We'll be able to get our confidence back," Miller said. "Losing the opener doesn't mean we don't trust the coaching staff that we have. We just have to get more into the system and keep on grinding out in game-type situations."

Trinity falls from the 4A top spot

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — After opening the season with two straight losses, Trinity has fallen from the number one spot in The Associated Press high school football Class 4-A poll.

St. Xavier takes over the top spot this week, with Louisville Male ranking second. St. Xavier received 14 of 17 first-place votes. Trinity also received two first-place votes.

In the 3-A poll, the top four teams remain in place, with top-ranked Boyle County receiving 12 of 17 first-place votes.

Corbin remains on top in the 2-A poll, with Owensboro Catholic and Breathitt County rounding out the top three respectively.

The top five teams in the 1-A is also the same as last week with Danville, Mayfield and Beechwood rounding out the top three.

DIRT TRACK

Kinzer Motorsports team catches rain

ALLEN — If you were a duck it would have been a great Labor Day weekend. But for dirt track drivers like Brandon Kinzer, things were not quite as good. The team eventually ran into heavy rain wherever it went.

The weekend started out with a rainout at Half Mountain Speedway Saturday in Royalton. Battle of the Bluegrass rescheduled the $5000 to win race for September 14.

The Kinzer team was then scheduled to run the Sunoco ALMS series race at Eldora Speedway on Sunday; however, it also fell victim to rain, with no rescheduled date.

"We were really looking forward to this weekend of racing. Right now we can only look forward to heading back to Half Mountain to take a stab at the $5000 to-win even on September 14. Until then we will focus on Eldora for the upcoming World 100. Unfortunately we can't argue with Mother Nature, we'll just get 'em at the World."

The next race for Brandon Kinzer Motorsports rolls up this weekend at Eldora Speedway in Rossburg, Ohio. The famed "World 100" pays $36,000 to the winner. For more information on Brandon Kinzer or Brandon Kinzer Motorsports, visit www.brandonkinzermotorsports.com.

Kentucky Afield marks 50th anniversary of outdoors series

Kentucky Afield, the country's longest-running outdoor TV series, launches its new season Saturday, Sept. 13, marking the series' 50th anniversary. Hosted by Tim Farmer, the program airs weekly on KET1 Saturdays at 8/7 p.m. CT, with repeats Sundays at 4/3 p.m. CT.

To celebrate this milestone, Kentucky Afield will feature special segments throughout the new season with past hosts and other contributors as well as clips from past seasons. Former Kentucky Afield host and current Kentucky Life host Dave Shuffett is featured on the Sept. 13 program, fishing on the Green River with his son, Willie.

Future programs will feature Ron Rhody, Kentucky Afield's first host, and the father-son photography duo of Karl Maslowski and his son, Steve, who have provided the series with beautiful wildlife footage for more than 30 years.

Farmer says that the program helps educate viewers about Kentucky's outdoor resources. "A lot of our viewers enjoy the outdoors and the program reminds them of when hunting and fishing were part of everyday life," Farmer says.

Kentucky Afield is a production of KET and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Produced and directed by Carl Babcock, the series is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. Viewers can find out more about programming on KET's four digital channels by visiting the KET Web site at www.ket.org.

THROUGH MY EYES

Happy Birthday, Baby

My first baby turns 16 today. I don't know where all the years have flown. It was just yesterday afternoon that I was checking her diaper and putting her down for afternoon naps. And now today, I'm listening to talk about obtaining a driver's license amid insightful comments on the George Bush administration.

How do they manage to become so grown up, so fast? I don't think I'm ready for this.

Yesterday evening I spent a little time looking at pictures that were taken when my children were mere toddlers. Funny how all the hectic and frenzied days of bathtime, naptime, playtime, and "let's be little monsters" time all fade away into sweet memories of precious smiles and tender moments. I can remember how I used to feel so pressed for time each day as all my waking minutes were consumed with caring for my children. Now, in hindsight, I can see that it really didn't matter if the juice was spilled or if the toys were all put neatly away. What has mattered most throughout the years is that

by LIBBY RAE
FLANERY, MAYTOWN
CLASS OF 1943

Those who grew up in the Depression and World War II years are people whose memories are packed with much love, hurt, tragedy and loss. They are strong and courageous people because life taught them that they had to be. The years of their youth were not easy ones. Their lives are filled with experiences that make for exciting, humorous, sad, and joyful stories. Stories that need to be retold. The people of whom I speak have witnessed world events as life has moved from the slower days of the horse and buggy to the light-speed years of space travel. On Saturday, May 3, 2003, the 1943 graduating class of Maytown High School came together once again to celebrate the 60th anniversary of their high school graduations. Many classmates were not able to graduate due to their leaving school to serve our country during World War II. Therefore, the 1943 class opted to open up their reunion festivities to include all those who graduated, as well as all those who would have graduated, from the years 1936-1947.

Approximately 65 people showed up at the old Maytown school campus, now known as the Maytown Lifetime

(See JOURNEY, page two)

Ray Prater and Bob Allen were the only two boys in their World War II graduating class of 1945. The two former classmates spent hours reminiscing.

Molly Slone and Gypsy Allen jitterbugged to some "Big Band" tunes proving you're only as old as you feel.

The Howard sisters, June, Bobbi, and Mildred, arrived with brother Lowell (not pictured).

Four members of the Hayes family showed up at the Memorial Day Homecoming event. Siblings, Sidney, Jerry, Ethel and Marion Jr. were thrilled to attend.

POSTSCRIPT

Not so perfect

I like to ponder and share the values of life in the village of Auxier, and there are many, especially the good neighbors.

But (always a "but") it's not utopia. A couple of things keep it from being so.

For one thing, we have a scoundrel or two - or three - who mistake the main drag for a drag strip. Their carelessness puts pets, children and the rest of us in peril whenever they're on the road.

Naturally, they don't believe stop signs apply to them, so they expect everyone else to yield to them.

When they approach the major curves in the road, they look out for their own safety by taking their half of the road smack dab in the middle. Everyone else be damned.

The other group of miscreants of which most of us are ashamed are those who thoughtlessly choose to share their garbage.

The other day as I left the post office heading out of town, I was behind a small sedan. It looked clean and well-kept.

Yet, before we got to the three-way intersection, someone in the passenger seat tossed a pop can nonchalantly out the window. It bounced merrily on the blacktop in front of me and then rolled over to the side where it joined assorted other trash, some of it no doubt from this same car.

I thought of honking my horn or of sending an obscene gesture, but I decided against it. With a profound sense of frustration, I figured the car's occupants would have no notion as to the cause of my action.

(See POSTSCRIPT, page two)

This Town, That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request. The following column was written in 1961.

SOUNDS OF AUTUMN: The chirping of a cricket, a jar-fly whirring, the rattle of drying leaves in the wind - and Junior moaning as if in extremis, till it's too late to go to school.

OH, WELL...

I am reminded that some dictionaries, which are presumed to be better than mine, say that that word which I still say should be spelled, "a-d-v-i-s-e-r" may correctly be spelled with an "or" at the end. Hm-m... "Advise"...change "e" to "o" and add "r." An early riser, then, should be an up betimes "risor," and a teaser a "teasor." Maybe all this is all right. I have always maintained they could just as well have spelled Caesar "Seizer."

It says here that the trouble with most marriages is that the husband wishes Friend Wife could make bread like his mother did, while the little woman wishes he could make dough like her father.

A LITTLE LATE?

They're tearing down the old courthouse, and a sign at one entrance reads "Danger! Do Not Enter." Commented one sign-reader, "Shoulda put that sign up 50 years ago."

Things to Ponder: Eating disorders

Last time, the discussion was about eating disorders. Although it might not be surprising, after stopping to think about the situation, it is difficult to recognize that so many of our children seemed to have really taken on the society's focus of being THIN at all costs, in a "monkey see, monkey do" fashion. It was hard to believe that 42 percent of the girls, 1,118 children in the first-through-third grade, indicated that they preferred body shapes different from and thinner than their own. Also, 50-percent of the girls, 3,175 fifth-through-eighth-graders, wanted to lose weight, regardless of whether they were heavy, and 25 percent of the boys felt the same way. Since our self-image is such an important part of our daily life and how we interact with others, it is not difficult to guess how emotionally painful it is likely to be for these children and young people. Do you know a child, a young person, or any one who might be displaying their psychological problems in behaviors associated with an eating disorder?

Three major eating disorders have been identified: (1) Anorexia Nervosa, a potentially fatal syndrome of self-starvation; (2) Bulimia Nervosa, that consists of a pattern of behaviors creating a binge-and-purge syndrome; and (3) Compulsive overeating where individuals eat excessively without feeling or being hungry. Most often females typically have eating disorders, and it was surprising to find out that six percent of patients in an eating-disorder clinic were males.

The 12-year-old boy, who was seen recently in the office, weighing 100

Of course, Auxier has no dibs on these kinds of people. Every community in these parts has residents who have no concept of civil manners, of what it means to be good citizens.

We all have to tolerate those who think the road is there for their pleasure alone. We all have to put up with those who cannot see the ugliness they perpetrate.

I don't know about you, but I'd just as soon they'd leave my community.

Thank goodness for the ninety-nine percent of Auxier residents who aren't like this.

pounds and being 5'6" tall, had various symptoms associated with Anorexia Nervosa. He had really gotten his mother's attention by almost literally stopping eating. His serving sizes of what he would eat had become smaller and smaller. He was obsessed with being perfect, and in his mind one way of doing that was by not eating. A "guess" was that, when he was in the fifth grade and wanted to be a basketball player, he decided that if he lost weight, he would be a better athlete. Another "guess" was that his being a "great" ball player, rather than an "excellent" student was more desirable in his group. When seen, the young teen had a low self-esteem, was socially isolating himself, and still strived excessively to be perfect.

In pursuit of identifying individuals who might have an eating disorder, one group of researchers (David M. Garner & others, 1982) have kept developing probably the most widely used standardized measure of symptoms and concerns characteristic of eating disorders. The Eating Attitudes Test (EAT-26). The EAT-26 or any other test alone does not yield a specific diagnosis of an eating disorder. However, these researchers believed that the EAT-26 and a diagnostic clinical interview were good screening techniques for eating disorders. By all means, if you have significant concerns about what might be your responses, please contact a mental health professional and/or a physician. Check your response to these statements about, and your attitude toward eating: am terrified about being overweight; avoid eating when I am hungry; find myself preoccupied with food; have gone on eating binges where I feel I may not be able to stop; cut my food into small pieces; aware of the calorie content of foods I eat; particularly avoid food with a high carbohydrate content (bread, rice, potatoes); feel that others would prefer if I ate more; vomit after I have eaten; feel extremely guilty after eating; am preoccupied with a desire to be thinner, think about burning up calories when I exercise; other people think I'm too thin; am preoccupied with the thought of having fat on my body; take longer than others to eat my meals; avoid foods with sugar in them; eat diet foods; feel that food controls my life; display self-control around food; feel that others pressure me to eat; give too much time and thought to food; feel uncomfortable after eating sweets; engage in dieting behavior; like my stomach to be empty; have the impulse to vomit after meals; enjoy trying new rich foods; have gone on eating binges (eating a large amount of food while feeling out of control); make myself sick (vomited) to control my weight; used laxatives to control my weight and shape; and exercised to lose or control my weight.

Now that you have all of this information about eating disorders and you think that "something" needs to be done, what do you do? What can parents do? First, check out your attitude about food. There is a greater likelihood that your child will be extremely focused on his appearance, if you, as a major adult in his life, are constantly dieting or preoccupied with weight or appearance. Ultimately, you need to hit a realistic viewpoint of your size and body image. Make peace with your body. Your child is then more apt to not feel that he has to achieve a body standard that you were unable to reach. Well-meaning parents can really do psychological damage when they start talking about encouraging thinness early on with the child. This is a great way to create more of a

Wedding Engagement

Fannin-Platt

Mrs. Leslie Ford Howell and Mayor Jerry Fannin cordially invite their friends and family to the ceremony uniting their daughter, Miss Virginia "Jenna" Leslie Fannin, to Mr. John Brandon Platt, in marriage. The ceremony will take place on Saturday, September 13, 2003, at six-thirty in the evening, at the First Presbyterian Church, Prestonsburg. A reception will immediately follow at the Ramada Inn-Carriage House, in Paintsville.

Wells-Bays

Jenny LeeAnne Wells and Tommy Ray Bays Jr. are happy to announce their upcoming wedding. The couple will be joined in marriage in a ceremony that will take place on September 12, 2003, at half past six o'clock in the evening, at the Maytown Methodist Church. Jenny is the daughter of Joy Wells Adams and the late W.K. Wells. Tommy is the son of Melissa and Glen Ousley and Tommy Ray Bays Sr. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed.

Journey

Learning Center. They came from near and far with some traveling from as far away as Kansas, Michigan, and Florida. Some arrived in wheelchairs, on scooters, and by the use of walkers and canes. But the important point is, they arrived.

The day began that May morning bright and early, at 8:00 a.m. It was a wonderfully warm morning filled with fellowship and memories. Classmates reacquainted themselves with long-ago friends, spending the morning sharing stories of their lives, showing off photographs and reminiscing of days gone by. They shared memories of their communities and earlier days, as well as of more recent events and floods - both past and those more recent. They spoke of former teachers and coaches, the "Black & Gold" Wildcats basketball team and the old outdoor basketball court that lay south of the school gymnasium as well as the old tennis court that used to lie east of the old school buildings.

They spoke of children and grandchildren, relatives and family genealogies, and friends and community members. They spoke of all with the utmost respect and fondness.

By mid-morning, Dan and Beth Chauncy, who now oversee the new Lifetime Learning Center, guided everyone along a tour of the old campus buildings, which now house a library, a computer center, a fitness center, craft room and a refurbished basketball gymnasium. The campus also is home to a new walking track, playground and picnic area. Despite all the work that has already been done, Dan and Beth speak of still more plans for the future as they work toward rebuilding the once lively community of Maytown.

Following the tour, everyone returned to the old school lunchroom to enjoy a wonderful meal of home-cooked foods together. Everyone was grateful to be together as the food was blessed and everyone took seats and settled in beside old and much loved companions.

The afternoon was filled with entertainment as a local line dancing group known as the "Swinging Sensations" showed off their talents, led by Charlotte Soder. The classmates learned that several of these ladies grew up in the World War II era also, making their performance even more enjoyable.

As the afternoon entertainment continued with the playing of music from the "Big Band" era, many were moved to tears as memories of loved ones and days gone by flooded their senses. Still others were moved to lay down their canes and put aside their walkers and step out upon the dance floor. Everyone was delighted when a former cheerleader and basketball player forgot momentarily about their aches and pains and set about to "burn up" the dance floor with their old jitterbug moves they had learned and performed so many years earlier during their days of youth and exuberance.

Of particular interest to note was the discovery that among those present, four members of four different families had managed to attend. The Howard sisters, June, Bobbi, and Mildred, along with brother, Lowell, were pleased to attend; as well as the Hayes sisters, Sidney, Jerry, and Ethel (who has graced the Maytown community with her presence for 96 years now), with their brother, Marion Jr.; and the Slone sisters, Ruby, Ruth, Emma Jean, and Molly; and four Ratliff sisters, Bertha, Myrtle, Lula and Sidney. Everyone had their picture taken together as did others as they clustered together in groups of relatives and friends.

As the day wore to an end, all were reminded to mark their calendars for Memorial Day weekend 2004, the date of the next Maytown Homecoming event.

As the strains of the classic tune, "Sentimental Journey," played in the background, hugs and handshakes were handed out along with a few tears being wiped lovingly away, as the doors to the old community school were locked and everyone bid a fond farewell to their everlasting neighbors and comrades.

The event had tired everyone out and though they were eager to return home to rest, they were nonetheless saddened to part from dear friends and a day of sweet remembrances.

my children were loved - and that they knew it.

Emily, you were my first baby. Born on Labor Day, sixteen years ago. You brought new meaning to the term for me that year as you struggled for 18 hours to be born before finally being brought into the world via Caesarean section.

I can still remember how exhausted I was, but yet, when you were placed into my arms, all the long hours melted away. I can still see, so vividly, your pretty little pout and your little round head...your perfect little fingers and toes.

And today, when you smile that beautiful smile of yours, I see standing before me a beautiful young woman full of intelligence and creativity. But I also see a mischievous little toddler, peeping up from underneath a glass tabletop and calling out, "Mommy, see me?"

Yes, I do.
Happy birthday, sweet sixteen.

LOCAL ARCHEOLOGY

The jack-hammers and inloaders got to work on a Third Street (Central Avenue?) sidewalk today and, lo! up near the corner there they unearthed a sidewalk beneath the one they were uprooting. I hear that in another "tell" these undesigning archeologists delved into, the other day, they came up with an unbroken bottle of hundred-proof stuff. But you don't have to use a camel's hair brush, infinite care and a magnifying glass to find such items, hereabouts. They aren't artifacts—just unpleasant facts.

TAKE TIME...

Twelve good resolutions have been suggested to us:

1. Take time to live. Killing time is suicide.
2. Take time to work. It's the price of business.
3. Take time to think. It's the privilege of mankind.
4. Take time to play. It's the secret of youth.
5. Take time to read. It's the fountain of wisdom.
6. Take time to be friendly. It's the road to happiness.
7. Take time to dream. It's hitching your wagon to a star.
8. Take time to love others. It's the mark of godliness.
9. Take time to look around. It's too short a day to be selfish.
10. Take time to laugh. It's the music of the soul.
11. Take time to play with children. It's the joy of joys.
12. Take time to be courteous. It's the mark of the gentleman.

ENCORE!

We hope the Jenny Wiley Drama Association can, for its own profit as well as for the benefit of the public, book a production of excellence such as was the "Oklahoma!" production at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheater recently. Those youngsters did an excellent job. And among them were two of Floyd County's own—Miss Sally Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DuRan Moore, now of Lexington, who was a member of the orchestra; and Denver Music, of Dwale, who portrayed, in grand style, the role of Jud Fry.

Situational depression common reaction to child leaving home

By Martha A. Simpson, D.O., M.B.A.

Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine

Q My daughter left for college last week and I am still very sad and weepy about her leaving. While I know that college is a good thing for her, this is very hard on me. How long will this last? Is it normal to feel this way?

A Each parent reacts differently to a child leaving for college. And while it is a joyous and proud occasion to have a child attend college, the change in home life can be very devastating to some people. When your child leaves for school, you suffer a loss. This loss can cause a problem called situational depression. This type of depression is a reaction to a specific event or series of events that have created a loss in the sufferer's life. It is a normal reaction to a painful event. Many people suffer this kind of depression when a loved one dies, when they go through a divorce, or when they fail to reach a major goal in their life. An example of this last kind of situation would be an athlete who loses an important sporting match, or in the case of team sports, whose team loses the big game. When there has been a death or divorce, the adjustment period can last for over a year. In the case of a lost sporting match, the depression can be gone within a day. You should become concerned about a situational depression when your reaction seems out of proportion to the actual painful event itself.

So, it's normal for you to feel sad for a while about your daughter leaving. But, you should notice some improvement rather quickly. If you don't, it may indicate that your situational depression is slipping into a full-blown clinical depression that may require professional help.

There are a number of factors that can either lessen or increase the impact of your situational anxiety. For instance, if you have a large family, the impact may be less because you still have other children at home and/or because you've been through this experience before. Your reaction may be heightened if this was your first, last or only child leaving for college. Another factor that can impact your reaction is the distance to the college. If she is close enough to see frequently, you may find the separation easier to take than if she will only be home for holidays.

Finally, you may find it easier to cope with your situational depression if you work outside the home. A working parent is often able to recover from this event quicker than a homebound one because while at work the parent can focus on job duties that take his or her mind off of the feeling of loss.

So what should you do? If you have friends who have been through this, ask them what helped them get past the first couple of weeks. Keep in touch with your child. The phone is great. I use e-mail to correspond with my college kids. Indulge yourself in your hobbies if you have them. If you don't have a hobby, this may be a great time to start one. Join an exercise club. Go out on a date with your spouse.

If, after a few weeks, you don't seem to be working through this transition in a satisfactory manner, see your family physician. Sometimes a situational depression can become a full-blown clinical depression in people who are prone to depression. The good news is that clinical depression is usually very successfully treated with modern medications.

Life Conferences for Women present "A Measure of Faith"

At the Mountain Arts Center, Saturday, October 4

This special conference is for those who need an additional "Measure of Faith" before the time comes when they will be required to have all it takes to get to the next day in life. If you've had enough faith in the past, and even for today, are you sure how much will be needed in your future plans? Who do you place your faith in? Is it your own ability to take hold of life? Trusting in a friend to help? The author and finisher of your faith is Jesus Christ. Have you lost your spouse, your job, your home, a child, your health? What crises have tested your faith? Lots of questions? Need answers? Come to this conference! At "Life Conference for Women," you will be encouraged, you will be changed, and you will be blessed! Bring your Bibles, pen and note pad to the Mountain Arts Center. Food and lodging are NOT included in the fee. Hotel accommodations are available nearby.

The conference will convene on Saturday, October 4, at 9 a.m. Doors will open at 8:30 a.m. and conference will end at 4 p.m. Pre-paid conference fee is $25/person; pre-paid registration for groups of 25 or more will receive a 10% discount.

IVIS WRIGHT: CONFERENCE SPEAKER. Meet the woman who has tested more than one Jordan in her life. Ivis is a Dynamic Christian Speaker who speaks from Experience and her heart. Ivis is the author of "The Day Life Stopped, but I Didn't Die" and "Appalachia Gold Nuggets."

JIM HILL: SPECIAL MUSIC. The Stamps Quartet:

1962 & The Statesmen Quartet: 1967-1972. Jim is an original member of the Gaither Homecoming Events, whose videos are featured in many of their concerts. Life Conference for Women is excited to bring Jim Hill to Eastern Kentucky and to the Mountain Arts Center.

problem and may lead to eating disorders in the future. Anyway, who knows what size the cupid-looking little girl is going to look like at 20?

Some more specific suggestions for parents regarding teaching appropriate eating in children are: (1) take the emphasis off weight gain. It is best to stress the importance of not eating too much of any food, healthy or unhealthy; (2) make a habit of exercise and healthy eating. While providing a balanced snack, don't make a big deal out of it; (3) don't make negative comments about your children's or your own appearance. One researcher found that mothers of girls with eating disturbances were significantly more critical of their daughters' appearance than mothers of girls without eating disorders; (4) praise attributes besides appearance. Be positive to your children about other qualities, such as honesty, reliability, or sense of humor; (5) if you think your child is overweight, consult your pediatrician. Please don't put a child on a diet without asking a professional first, because restricting a child's food intake can harm healthy growth and development. Arrange for more exercise to be included in the child's daily routine before mentioning food intake to a child; and (6) is your preschooler at risk? Be aware of what your child is saying about himself and value-laden comments, such as "I have a fat tummy" or "I don't like fat people." Don't get into a power struggle about food with your child. By all means, if you think that your child or someone you know might have an eating disorder, start with a good physical examination. Severe medical problems can be created by significant, chronic eating disorders, even death.

Learning skills, earning computers at the Auxier Lifetime Learning Center

Over 75 adult students received a free used computer upon completing the basic computer course offered at the Auxier Lifetime Learning Center this past spring. A free used computer is available to any student meeting income eligibility guidelines (low income), who completes all eight classes and who does not already own a computer.

The Auxier Lifetime Learning Center will begin another round of basic computer classes on Monday, September 8. The center is located in the former Auxier Grade School building. Call 886-0709 for more information and to register for the class.

The staff of the Auxier Lifetime Learning Center realize that in today's world, it has become mandatory to be able to operate a computer - both at home and in the workplace. The combination of learning computer skills, along with the prospect of obtaining a free used computer, helps many who would otherwise be left behind in today's computer world.

Two former Auxier Lifetime Learning Center computer students have written and published books using the word processing skills they learned at the center.

The Auxier Lifetime Learning Center also offers classes in sewing, knitting, and crocheting, as well as GED classes.

Call 886-0709 to learn more.

STOP!

You've cleaned out your attic, your basement, your garage and now you're ready to host a garage sale. Before you proceed, follow these signs for placing the type of classified ad that will help turn your event into a best-seller.

Be sure to include in your Garage or Yard Sale ad...

1 WHAT.

Describe the type of sale you're hosting. Is it mostly household goods? Nursery furniture? Apparel?

2 WHEN.

Give dates and time of sale, and rain date information.

3 WHERE.

Where the sale will be held, with directions or phone number for directions.

4 WHY.

Reason for sale, especially if it is a "moving" sale, since these tend to attract more customers.
