Nine indicted for car wreck scam

by JESSICA HALE STAFF WRITER

PIKEVILLE - A federal indictment was filed Thusday involving nine Floyd County residents for allegedly arranging staged automobile accidents in order to collect insurance payments. A grand jury in Lexington has charged Billy Joe Johnson, Arlene Hall, Robert B. Johnson, Randall C. Holbrook, Gordon Ray Stanley, Bill Junior Little, Greg Hall, Johnny Lee Fogle and Dee Tackett with one count of conspiracy.

On or about Jan. 10, 2001, and continuing to about Feb. 16, 2004, the defendants allegedly conspired together with William Jason Johnson, Christy Johnson, Chad Conn, Douglas Branham and possible others to devise plans to stage automobile accidents in order to claim shares of insurance payments and receive medical treatments for personal injury.

The alleged conspirators would intentionally cause damage to insured automobiles owned by other conspirators in order to file such claims and subsequently make false statements to law enforcement, insurance companies and medical personnel regarding the circumstances surrounding the accidents and their injuries. Further, they, would share the money with other con-, spirators not making claims.

Billy Joe Johnson also has been charged with four counts of aiding mail

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. --Robert Frederick watched closely as a team from Kentucky worked methodically through the imaginary mine, a carefully mapped grid of metal posts and yellow tape, deciding how to locate five "victims" trapped by an unseen fire.

Frederick, who joined the Barbour County Mine Rescue team six months ago, knows his turn will come. And when it does, it won't be on the grassy, sunlit fields of Mylan Park. The clues won't be on white placards.

It will be for real.

"I'm just here to learn, said Frederick, 42, of Belington, who works at Carter-Roag Coal Co. mine near Mill Creek. "This makes me feel more confident. This helps a lot.'

When accidents happen, coal miners count on all-volunteer teams of rescuers to save them. Eighteen teams from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia took turns Wednesday competing inside

Attorney general probing recent jump in gas prices

FRANKFORT — Kentucky Attorney General Greg Stumbo announced Friday that his Office of Consumer Protection has issued a new investigative subpoena to Speedway in response to yesterday's gas price spike.

"Yesterday's retail gas prices shot up while wholesale prices fell," said Stumbo. "Today we have sent subpoenas for Speedway stores across Kentucky requiring explanation of this price spike. Speedway is a trendsetter in gas pricing across the Commonwealth."

Speedway's gas prices today are ranging from $2.99 to $3.19 per gallon in Kentucky.

The Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection is also continuing its examination of wholesale pricing by major petroleum refiners. "The root problem of excessive gas pricing is not limited to the retail market," Stumbo said. "Price gouging by refiners must be addressed head on."

On Tuesday, Stumbo announced his Office reached a statewide settlement with 11 petroleum marketers for $47,500 following an extensive investigation into allegations of gas price gouging. Furthermore, Stumbo announced that a lawsuit has been filed against Mar Rob, Inc. in Scottsville.

The Office's investigation into gas price gouging began after Hurricane's Katrina and Rita in August, 2005. At that time, Attorney General Stumbo called upon Governor Fletcher to declare a State of Emergency to put the price gouging law, KRS 367.374, into effect.

Under Kentucky's Price Gouging law, passed in 2004, no supplier of essential consumer products, including gas, can sell it for a price grossly in excess of that charged prior to the declaration. The Attorney General's investigation found that the eleven petroleum marketers excessively increased prices to obtain windfall profits during the state of emergency.

Consumers who suspect price gouging can email their complaints to the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection gaspricecomplaints@ at ag.kv.gov.

Stumbo begins fundraising for 2007 re-election bid

The Associated Press

FRANKFORT - Attorney General Greg Stumbo's reelection campaign has begun accepting donations.

Stumbo reiterated that he has no plans "at this time" to run for governor in 2007.

"If I were running for governor, I'd be out there running," he said. "... If you are going to run for one of these statewide offices, you've got to put your name on the ballot and go.'

Stumbo, a Democrat, last year opened an investigation into the hiring practices of Republican Gov. Ernie Fletcher's administration. Fletcher has contended that Stumbo's action was motivated by personal political interests

Fletcher has pleaded not guilty to misdemeanor charges brought by a special grand jury that was working with a prosecutor from Stumbo's office. Fletcher is accused of approving an illegal patronage scheme to promote and hire supporters in civil service jobs.

Stumbo said he had not been actively raising money so as not to interfere with fundraising under way for this November's elections. He plans to send out a mailing soon soliciting contributions, however.

If he decides to run for governor, any money he has raised for the attorney general's race would have to be given up.

"If you switch and run for a different office, you must dispose of the remaining money in the original campaign account," said Sarah M. Jackson, executive director of the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance.

Under state law, the money must be refunded to contributors or given to the candidate's political party, the state treasury or a charity recognized by the Internal Revenue Service.

Last November, Stumbo's re-election committee's report showed a balance of $317.02. It does not have to file another report showing any contributions or expenses until this November.

Teams compete not only on time, but also on judgment, mapping skills and a written = test.

Regional contests like this run all summer across the country, with a national competition every other year. And with new federal requirements that coal companies have a team capable of responding to every mine within an hour, the contests will likely get bigger. Marshall Fugate, who trains Kentucky team that the Frederick watched, said his men have worked together for at least six years and train once a month. But contests offer another chance to improve communication, consider a previously unseen problem and learn from the feedback of judges.

"This type of training is to get everybody comfortable working together - and to get comfortable with their equipment," he said. "They're working on procedure so that they don't have to think about

In a crisis, he said, "It has to come naturally.'

Fugate's team covers two Consol Energy mines in Kentucky, Jones Fork E-3 and Mill Creek E-3. He tracked their progress on a map as they simulated what they would do underground — checking gases with a meter, prodding at the imaginary ribs and roof for stability.

In this scenario, another team has checked three of the mine's five entryways. The blue helmets bob as the team works through the other two, finding the first victim in 22 minutes.

When a victim is alive, the team carries him back to a fresh-air base, where medics and another team are waiting. If a victim is dead, the team tags the body, reports the location and moves on to search for a survivor. In Tuesday's scenario, three miners die, but two are rescued.

Rod Henry, former captain and current trainer of Consol's Enlow Fork mine in southwestern Pennsylvania, said contests will take on new importance as rookies join established teams and companies form new ones. New federal laws require teams attend two regional competitions per year, so all will likely grow.

The Enlow Fork team won the national contest in 2001 and 2003, and Henry said it's been called to 13 accidents in the past five years. That includes Quecreek, where nine men were trapped underground for more than three days in 2002.

Henry was on the radio Drugs with the recovered miners, bracing them for the spectacle they saw as they rose from the earth in a rescue capsule.

The public, however, doesn't generally see the work of mine rescue teams.

"All you get is the satisfaction of doing your job," he said.

Since the accidents at West Virginia's Sago Mine, where 12 men died after a Jan. 2 explosion, and Kentucky's Darby Mine, where five men died in a May 20 blast, more miners are volunteering for

For an administration that promised to "clean up the mess in Frankfort," the Fletcher administration has a remarkable capacity to embroil itself in messy controver-SY

This time it is the Fletcher team, with Gov. Ernie Fletcher playing a central role, making a mess of the seemingly simple chore of filling a vacancy on the Murray State University Board of Regents.

First, Fletcher rejected all six of the candidates for the opening presented to him by the bipartisan Postsecondary Education Nominating Committee. The governor cited a law that allows him to decline to make a selection from such a list. He defended the action by saying he didn't think there was a suitable candidate on the list.

Or was it that there was not a suitable Republican on the list, or the right Republican? Edwin Orange, executive director of the office of board and commissions, said this: "While we are sure the nominees submitted are fine individuals, the governor was not familiar with any of the Democrats on the submitted list."

If it were only Fletcher wanting a Republican more to his liking on the board, as purely political as that is, it would at least be understandable and probably within his prerogative as governor. By virtue of the position, Kentucky governors have great discretion to make appointments to boards and commissions. But there seems to be a lot more to this particular appointment.

If MSU interim President Kern Alexander is right, Fletcher's decision is political because he wants to appoint someone to the board who can help the school's former athletics director, who was fired and has sued the school for breach of contract.

The fired athletics director is E.W. Dennison, a friend of Robbie Rudolph, who is secretary of Fletcher's executive cabinet and his running mate next year. Rudolph, who is from Murray, has said he lent Dennison $250,000 for legal bills and other costs. Alexander believes Rudolph is seeking to have a say in who Fletcher appoints. If that is true, it is reasonable to assume that

As Lieberman goes ...

The Democrats' position on the Iraq War has been a muddle. Many top Democrats supported it, although it's hard to believe all of them had their hearts in it. Of course, the party's core supporters were passionately opposed from the beginning. This has led to the Democrats' pullout, no-don't-pull-out, please-don'task-us-what-we-think pile of contradictions and evasions on the war.

The muddle is moving toward a resolution, and the vehicle for it is the Aug. 8 Democratic Senate primary race in Connecticut. Sen. Joe Lieberman has been a stalwart supporter of the war, and the left-wing blogosphere - representing the party's mad-as-hell anti-war base has resolved to make him pay. Antiwar challenger Ned Lamont is such a threat to Lieberman that the threeterm incumbent and former vicepresidential candidate is preparing to run as an independent in the general election, should he lose the primary. A Lieberman loss could signal a turning point as significant, in its way, as the rise in the GOP of the Goldwaterites, who vanquished the liberal Rockefeller Republicans, or the ascendancy of the McGovernites, who sent the old hawkish Scoop Jackson Democrats packing.

Unfortunately, there aren't many Lieberman-style hawks left in the party, which is Lieberman's problem.

John Edwards has repudiated the war and lurched left since his 2004 vice-presidential run. He leads in presidential polls in John Iowa. Kerry regrets his prior support of the war and wants a deadline, any deadline, for exiting Iraq. Even the cautious Hillary Clinton just turned her back on Lieberman by saying she would support Lamont if he wins the primary

If Lieberman does lose, it will be a sign that Clinton herself is vulnerable to a challenge from the left in the 2008 presidential primaries. Then, she will be under enormous pressure to walk away from her support of the war, too.

The biggest winner is Howard party all the more complete.

Their main issue is the war, but they also represent a general repudiation of the one hiccup in the post-1972 McGovernite dominance of the party, the Clinton administration circa 1994-1998. Clinton was pro-growth, pro-free trade tonally moder? ate and willing to use force abroad. Al Gore spurned this winning centrist formula in 2000, but he felt compelled to make a bow to it by picking the moderate Lieberman as his running mate. Now, the Democratic party is on the verge of saying a Lieberman-style hawkishcentrism is utterly anathema.

Lieberman could still win the primary. Even if he loses, he could win the general election as an independent, showing that the party's left wing doesn't have wider appeal. B if Lieberman is ousted from his seat, it will be a decisive victory for the party's haters and anti-war bloggers. The Democrats' muddle on Iraq will finally have ended, and the party will be the poorer for it.

The attorney general's office said Fletcher may have violated state law by turning down the candidates.

beyond the beltway Opposing stem cells is just sophistry

by DONALD KAUL MINUTEMAN MEDIA

I'm a liberal. I pride myself on seeing both sides to every question. For example, although I am strongly "pro-choice" on the question of abortion, I can understand the "pro-life" argument as well.

There is a certain sentimental appeal to the idea that any abortion is the taking of human life and thus not to be considered under any circumstances. (The idea is often illustrated by a gruesome picture of an aborted late-term fetus that looks a great deal like — surprise, surprise — a baby.) It's that "under any circumstances that gets me.

The pictures do not speak to early term abortions, which are less photogenic, and even less to "morning after" pills, which abort the process at its very inception.

Still, it's a powerful idea and not one to be dismissed lightly. It's one to be dismissed heavily.

It entirely ignores the effect of an unwanted pregnancy on the life of a young, unmarried woman, for example, or one who's been the victim of rape or incest, circumstances that very likely condemn her to a life of poverty and ignorance.

It also ignores the effect of being an unwanted child of an ignorant, poverty-stricken mother has on the kid himself. What better recipe do we have for a life of crime interrupted Dean, left for dead after his infamous 2004 Iowa "scream." Lamont is a straight Deaniac, not just in his opposition to the war, but in his demographic profile: white, well-off and highly educated. These are the same people who backed the successful peacenik insurrection of George McGovern in 1972, and now they are bidding to make their control of their frequently by prison?

So I accept abortion as a necessary evil. But, while I can see two sides to abortion, I'm damned if I can see two sides to stem cell research

President George W. Bush last week vetoed a bill passed by the House and Senate that would have expanded federally supported stem cell research. It was his first veto of any bill and -- wouldn't you know it? --- he picked the dumbest opportunity possible.

Stem cell research is a no-brainer, on the yes side. You take embryos, created in fertility clinics and frozen, and try to find ways to use their stem cells to cure things - Parkinson's disease, diabetes, Alzheimer's. Like that.

As things stand now, most of these embryos are thrown away. Instead of that, Congress's bill would have put some of them to useful purpose. What's not to like? But the conservative right wing of the Republican Party --- that's the one that resembles an 800-pound gorilla in this administration - won't have it. So President Bush vetoed it.

None of their arguments makes

"I felt like crossing this line would be a mistake," said the Great Decider, 'and once crossed we would find it almost impossible to turn back."

What in the world does that mean? What line would we cross by using these "excess" embryos for valuable research and why would we ever want to turn back?

Of even less weight was the argument of Rep. Mike Pence of Indiana who said: "The issue is whether or not it is morally right to use the tax payer dollars of millions of pro-life Americans who find this research morally objectionable."

We poor taxpayers see our dollars used for things that we find morally objectionable all the time. Dick Cheney's salary, for example. And I wonder how many of those "millions" have kids who are afflicted with diseases that might be cured through stem cell research.

But the work argument of all was presented visually by the presence at the veto of a dozen or so babies that have been born from frozen embryos through in vitro fertilization.

The president smiled at them and said: "These boys and girls are not spare parts. They remind us of what is lost when embryos are destroyed in the name of research.'

That is hogwash, and not a good grade of hogwash at that.

There are roughly 400,000 frozen embryos now waiting for use. There are 128 babies produced from that embryo stash.

Most are thrown away. Stem cell research merely says: "Let's see if we can find a way to use them to save

That is eminently sensible, which is more than you can say for the psuedo-Christian arguments of Bush and his gang.

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

Dog Days are, usually, hot and dry. How come, then, it gets cool and rains...and rains! Because these are Water-Dog Days.

About the only way I'll ever get even with the C-J's redoubtable Creason is to remind him that the story of the drunk and his car trouble which he retold from Woodrow Burchett, appeared first in this column, and then print an item he beat me to by a few days. I saw this sign at a Leburn, Knott County, store, last Friday, and immediately decided it belonged herein. By Saturday or thereabouts, Creason had it in print. ## 'Visiting Hours'

by TOM DOTY TIMES COLUMNIST

Though marketed as a slasher film, this early-1980s effort is actually a thriller about celebrity stalking that features none of the slasher elements which tended to include: teens getting, killed after engaging in premarital sex or taking drugs, faceless killers who are indestructible and plenty of gore and nudity. Though this one has a bit of the red stuff, there are no other slasher conventions present and the killer's identity is revealed at the outset

The film opens with talk show host Deborah Ballin grilling a prosecutor who has just gained a conviction over a battered housewife who assaulted her husband. The camera cuts to Colt Hawker watching the show on his TV and the audience who thinks that the husband was the victim. We know this because he's squeezing the life out of one of those stress balls as Ballin rakes the prosecutor over the coals.

Ballin's show leads to criticism from her producer/boyfriend but she doesn't handle the critique very professionally and storms out of the studio in a huff, saying she will walk home. Here the film makes a fundamental error and shows Ballin arriving home by car which, though an obvious editing error, leads the audience to believe that she's a liar. She open doors, waving arms, shoos, and other invitations to vacate. So they borrowed this landing net of mine.

But, as in the case of so many of my fishing trips, no catch. The fowl simply would not come to roost in it. Finally, in desperation, and in defense of new furniture, over which the visitor swooped with devastating effect, they came out with a trusty air rifle and shot the visitor down. I have, on occasion, been tempted to shoot a few fish, but the law doesn't encourage such tactics.

So here I be. I can't even properly register my disgust and say, "That bet is for the birds."

THE VISITOR

It's always Dog Days at this office. The other morning, we had a new specimen-a gentleman dog of doubtful lineage, but small and prettily marked with a black eye, balanced by black on the opposite ear, otherwise white. The mutt enjoyed a reasonably warm welcome, did a lot of tail-wagging, and some following back and forth, as we pretended to be busy. But, like ships that pass in the night, he has vanished from our ver ken. But he has left behind a few sol fleas to remind us that we all make ov our contribution, in some way, ×0 wherever we go, or are.

Skinned knees, scratched elbows, the occasional bumped head, and maybe, even, a couple of cases of head lice - these things are all commonplace ailments seen everyday by school nurses and health assistants.

But sometimes, and especially so with special needs students, health care needs go beyond the ordinary. Ruth Blackburn, director of special education, and Jennifer Martin, registered nurse, Floyd County Board of Education, along with district health care assistants also employed by the school system, have spent the past week preparing for just those out of the ordinary health care needs.

"Emergencies can arise at any time," Martin said. "Our people have received, even before school has started, over 33 hours, each, in special training.'

The training was conducted July 31 through August 4, by Martin, Blackburn and Belinda Henson, paraeducator trainer for the Kentucky Department of Education, at the Morehead State University education center, located on the Prestonsburg campus of the Big Sandy Community and Technical College.

Among the topics discussed during the week-long training session were: CPR/AED administration, first aid administration, medication policy and procedures, seizures, asthma/allergies, diabetes, choking, use of Epi-pen, vision/hearing referrals, head lice, bloodborne child, eating disorders, and new information on Hepatitis B vaccinations

Health care assistants and paraeducators (professionals specially trained to handle the specific needs of special education students) also received training in how to specifically care for such special needs as catherizations, G-tubes and diaper changing, as well as training in how to properly restrain, lift, or handle special needs students.

Melissa Keathley, health care assistant, Betsy Layne Elementary School, has been working with special needs students in the Floyd County school system for 14 years; her workplace companion, Barbara Kidd, has been employed by the school district as a special needs assistant for the past 20 years.

Both women agree that the training they receive each year is "very beneficial" and that each new year, the lessons and lectures build upon what they learned in previous training sessions.

"You never know what situation might come up," said Keathley, 'you just have to be prepared for anything."

The AED (automated external defibrillator), a device used to treat sudden cardiac arrest by delivering an electric shock to the heart, was a new component of this year's training. A component that the health care assistants agree was a valuable learning experience. "AED training, CPR, even learning how to control head lice, are all beneficial

Neighbor's car sounds like a clock

Keathley and Kidd readily agreed, noting that "heart attacks can happen anywhere.'

"We just want our parents to be aware that we're working hard to protect the safety of their children," Martin continued. "Health care assistants have a demanding job and there's a lot to learn to stay on top of things ... that's why our continuing education training programs are so important. These assistants are already at work, even before the first day of school, preparing for care for their students.

In addition to the health care training, assistants also focused, on Friday, on training, offered from Blackburn, on how to make a student's very first day of school a positive experience, and, how to continue that positive experience throughout the school year.

"A lot of it has to do with informing the student of classroom expectations, and with special needs students, especially, helping them to realize that they are in a safe, and secure, environment," she said.

"We're very happy with how well our training went this week," "Ms. Henson, Blackburn said. from the KDE, said that our group was the most energetic and positive group that she had worked with all summer. Well, that didn't surprise us any, we already knew that," she said.

gets some of the audience sympathy back when she enters her home and finds that Hawker has broken in and made himself comfortable. Unfortunately his idea of comfort is busting up her furniture and freeing her parrot, who drops his regards all over her queen-size bed.

Hawker then springs out and attacks her in a well-executed sequence that finds her trying to escape by stowing away in a dumbwaiter. Unfortunately for her, Hawker figures out where she is and promptly severs the line holding her up, which sends the device crashing into the laundry room. Hawker makes good his escape when he hears sirens and Ballin wakes up in County General Hospital (gosh the screenwriters must have worked hard to come up with that name).

Now the stage is set and the rest of the film details Hawker's attempts to get at Ballin. County General may sport an official sounding name, but it employs strictly bargain basement security, which allows Hawker to drop in repeatedly and necessitates several room changes for Ballin before the hospital opens its doors to a platoon of Canada's finest. It all leads to a showdown wherein Ballin must take her security into her own hands and lay some serious hurt on Hawker.

Okay this isn't the most original thriller but it does sport some good photography as well as a breakout performance by Canadian thespian Michael Ironside, who had just made

"CHICKEN SOUP FOR THE FISHERMAN'S SOUL"

Most summers, my extremely busy retirement schedule permitting, I travel to the beautiful Rocky Mountain town of Telluride, Colo. The Sheridan Arts Foundation has an ongoing effort there, helped by a willing contingent of well-known celebrities, to restore the historic Sheridan Opera House and support its theatrical training program. Another part of the foundation's program is its annual Wild West Fest.

Each summer the Sheridan Arts Foundation, in partnership with the Boys and Girls Clubs of America, brings a large number of inner-city and underprivileged children to Telluride for a magnificent week of Wild West activities. As part of the program, which includes mentorships in theater, horsemanship, art, music and Indian hoop dancing, they offer the kids an opportunity to learn how to fly-fish. I have been very fortunate to be involved with that program, helping these great kids learn some of the secrets of my favorite pastime.

One of my fondest memories occurred a couple of summers ago when I was teaching a young innercity boy from Atlanta how to fly-fish. At one point, I was so taken with our beautiful Western Colorado surroundings that I asked, "Have you ever seen mountains prettier than these?" He looked at me and said,

"Sir, I have never seen any mountains.'

It suddenly made me realize how blessed are we who have enjoyed the sport of fly-fishing in beautiful, natural surroundings.

Soup for the Soul Later that day I was conducting a mentorship discussion with the kids, and I publicly asked my young fishing partner how many fish he had caught. He proudly stood up among his peers and announced that he had caught four fish. That immediately caused several other kids to jump to their feet claiming five_ six, seven and so on. Needless to when say, asked how big_ claims were made of every size from minnows to tiger sharks and everything in between.

It was that moment I proudly realized these kids had become true fishermen.

Neighbor's car sounds like a clock

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray: I am writing to you regarding my neighbor's car. I think it's about to break down. Now, normally I wouldn't care, but the thing is, I don't have a car, and my neighbor gives me a ride down to the bus stop every morning. I really don't want to walk 4 miles every day at 6 a.m. Anyway, the car is making a profusely loud ticking noise. I looked under the hood, and it seems to be coming from the top of the engine. It's an Oldsmobile station wagon, like a 1990-some-thing-or-other, with a V-6 engine, front-wheel drive and an automatic transmission. There is no "Check Engine" light coming on. I looked into the oil level and found that it was almost bone-dry. I filled the oil up all the way, and it's been holding this oil, but the noise never went away. What could be the problem, and what can I do (or get my neighbor to do) about it? Thanks for any useful advice (assuming you have some, of course). — Kai TOM: You want useful advice? Move closer to work, Kai.

This is Wednesday afternoon, late, and still we don't know where the part is, or whether it's headed in this direction by air, truck or dog sled.

much you're going to be able to do about either of those things at this point.

TOM: Here's how it works. When the engine is running, the cam shaft spins. Each time a high point - or cam lobe comes around, it pushes on something called a hydraulic lifter. That, in turn, pushes on something called a push rod. The push rod hits the bottom of a rocker, which is like a seesaw. When the other end of the rocker gets pushed down against the valve stem, the valve opens. That lets air and gasoline into the cylinder, which keeps the car running.

RAY: Now, you might ask, how do all of these pieces stay in perfect adjustment through the years? Good question, grasshopper! The answer is that the hydraulic lifters adjust automatically.

TOM: The hydraulic lifters constantly get filled with oil from the oil pump, and that allows them to expand to take up the slack that gets created as the other parts wear out.

RAY: So, either one of your neighbor's lifters is no longer holding oil or, more likely, a lobe on the cam shaft has been worn down to a nub.

TOM: So instead of a few thousandths of an inch between those parts, he's got about 3 feet. OK, maybe a quarter of an inch. Those pieces slapping together are causing the loud ticking noise.

RAY: This car is running on about five and a half cylinders.

ANDITICAL

Now, on some cars, this ticking will go away after a few minutes. That means it's not that bad yet. So maybe after he drops you off at the bus stop, he keeps driving, and the ticking eventually stops. But if not, it requires a pretty serious repair, and it's not something you're going to be able to do for him.

TOM: My advice would be: Don't worry about it. Continue to check his oil for him once a week, and top it off when necessary. That's a nice thing to do in exchange for the ride you get every day. And give him a case of Gunk Oil Treatment for the holidays. That might quiet it down some. And in the meantime, save up for a pair of in-line skates.

Reader needs minivan suggestions

Dear Tom and Ray: I am beginning to look for a new car, a minivan. I currently drive a 1999 Jeep Cherokee Sport, which I love, but I need something bigger (I do a lot of things with my Westies, and I need more space to be able to stack the dog crates in the back, plus have room for my stuff). I like having four-wheel drive, since I often travel in lousy weather or have to drive through muddy fields at various dog events. Should I get a van with all-wheel drive? Someone told me that allwheel drive on a minivan really doesn't matter because the body of the car sits low on the wheelbase (unlike SUVs, which sit high), and a van with front-wheel drive is all I really need. What do you think? Also, do you have a recommendation for a minivan? I'm leaning toward a Toyota Sienna right now. Thanks guys! - Jody

RAY: Well, I'm glad you're looking at the Sienna, Jody, because that's the only allwheel-drive minivan on the market these days.

TOM: It also happens to be a very nice one, so you can't go wrong with a Sienna.

RAY: But when you see the sticker price (the all-wheeldrive version starts around 33 grand), you might want to have a few other options on the table.

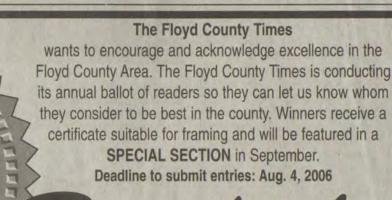

TOM: One option might be a front-wheel-drive minivan. In moderately bad weather, minivans do quite well, as your friend suggests. They're heavy and have the engine right over the front wheels, and they have enough ground clearance to get you through a modest amount of snow with no problem. So if bad weather is just an occasional problem for you, front-wheel drive might be enough. Especially if you invest in four good snow tires.

RAY: But if you HAVE TO drive frequently in unplowed snow, or - as you say - onto muddy fields, then you really do need all-wheel drive. And in that case, a good backup option might be something like a Ford Freestyle.

TOM: That's sort of the Barry Bonds of station wagons, with optional all-wheel drive. It seats six or, with the seats folded down, carries a boatload of cargo. It starts at about five grand less than an all-wheel-drive Sienna, and gets slightly better mileage. Put that on your list, too, Jody.

What's the best way to warm up your engine in the morning? Find out by ordering Tom and Ray's pamphlet 'Ten Ways You May Be Ruining Your Car Without Even Knowing It!" Send $4.75 (check or money order) to Ruin, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

American actress Linda Purl fares much better as a nurse who commits herself to saving Ballin and takes her share of lumps for that decision.

Surprisingly the best performance here is by Lenore Zann, who scores a small role as a young woman that Hawker picks up and later tortures. She eventually comes forward and helps finger Hawker, but it's her tough girl demeanor (she breaks into his apartment and tears it to shreds after being assaulted) that shines through and makes her a character that the movie should have centered on. She went on to a solid career in animation and voiced the character of Rogue in the "X-Men" series.

All in all, this shapes up as a good time waster but a film about such a serious topic as domestic violence and stalking would have benefitted from a lead character that you could root for.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 6 2:30 p.m. NBC

NASCAR Racing

Indianapolis Motor Speedway has a reverence about it, a way of eliciting the soft side in otherwise gruff racing folk. The hardened exterior of Tony Stewart, for example, was reduced to mush last year when he finally experienced a victory lap at his self-described "holy grail," just miles from his Indiana hometown. Today, Stewart returns to the site of his greatest win to defend his Allstate 400 at the Brickyard title.

8 p.m. NBC

NFL Preseason Football What a weekend for John Madden. He's inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame for his work as head coach of the Oakland Raiders, and then he caps it by doing what's arguably made him even more famous: analyzing a football game. Madden is again alongside Al Michaels, both moving from ABC to the back-in-the-NFL-business NBC for its Sunday-night schedule. Tonight's Hall of Fame Game encounter pits the Raiders against the Philadelphia Eagles.

If you've ever tried to keep a lawn or garden free of weeds, you know how ruthless plants can be about reproducing. "The Seedy Side of Plants" explores the many ways in which they have adapted to survive and propagate. The key to it all is getting those seeds out there, and nature has devised some rather elaborate schemes to ensure that happens. If watching plants reproduce sounds about as exciting to you as watching grass grow, prepare to be surprised.

8:30 p.m. SHOWTIME Movie: Everyone Stares: The Police Inside Out

Not the best documentary ever made about a band, this 2006 offering from Stewart Copeland, drummer for the Police, nevertheless has gotten good feedback from fans of the group. Copeland shot lots of home-movie footage during the Police's rise to stardom in the late 1970s and '80s, and he strings it together with ample namation and some clever audio editing. If you're a Police fan, you'll probably love it. If not, feel free to pass.

advised with this documentary about the devastation wrought by methamphetamines, which one pair of desperate addicts calls the "devil's drug." That said, you should watch ... and make sure the kids know what meth, or crank, will do to them. It includes graphic footage of several people in the grip of the drug, people who want to quit but can't.

9 p.m. SCI-FI Movie: Big Fish

Yes, it is a Tim Burton movie -- how could you tell? Burton uses his typical approach of merging fantasy and reality in this visually stunning 2003 drama. On his deathbed, a traditional exaggerator (Albert Finney) relates more tall tales of his allegedly colorful past to his estranged son (Billy Crudup), who has been lured back home by the family matriarch (Jessica Lange). Ewan McGregor and Alison Lohman have the Finney and Lange roles in prolonged flashbacks.

MONDAY, AUGUST 7 7 p.m. HBO

Movie: Jim Brown: All-American Produced and directed by Spike Lee, this well-done 2002 documentary spotlights the football Hall of Famer whose life story also includes a career in Hollywood and a dedication to civil rights. Interviews with a host of ex-athletes, authors and film stars are woven throughout the two-hour film, as are Brown's thoughts on a variety of subjects, including his troubles with law enforcement that have haunted his post-NFL life.

8 p.m. TCM Movie: Airport

Often cited as the granddaddy of disaster movies, this engrossing 1970 adaptation of Arthur Hailey's best-seller merges several plots at a snowbound Midwestern airport. Its manager (Burt Lancaster) is the brother-in-law of a pilot (Dean Martin) who's on a flight to Rome that's carrying a stowaway (Oscar winner Helen Hayes) and a wouldbe bomber (Van Heflin). Jean Seberg and Jacqueline Bisset also star.

Last Comic Standing It's decision time! The field of comedians has been winnowed down to the final two, who perform tonight, with the winner getting a talent contract with NBC and a special on Bravo. #### 9 p.m. SPIKETV Movie: Goldfinger

The third James Bond film -regarded by many purists as the best of the series -- introduces Harold Sakata as Oddjob, who enforces his boss's orders with a razor-edged bowler hat. Goldfinger (Gert Frobe) is the rich villain who, after buying up all the world's private gold, plans to bomb Fort Knox. Of course, Agent 007 (Sean Connery) intends to stop him. Shirley Eaton and Honor Blackman costar in the 1964 adventure.

Movie: Key Largo

One of the most magical pairings in movie history. Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall are among the hostages held by a gangster (Edward G. Robinson) who takes over a hotel during a tropical storm in this taut 1948 thriller from director John Huston. Claire Trevor copped an Academy Award for her scene-stealing performance as Robinson's boozing girlfriend.

8 p.m. ABC FAMILY Movie: Stuart Little 2

When Dr. Gregory House went after a rat in his old flame's house last season, we knew he wouldn't kill the critter. Come on, he's Stuart Little's dad! Hugh Laurie returns to the role of Pa Little for this charming 2002 sequel, as does Michael J. Fox as the voice of the mouse adopted by a human family. Stuart befriends a little bird who, unbeknownst to him, is being forced to work for the sinister Falcon. When his new friend vanishes, he sets out to rescue her.

In preparation for potentially shooting low at next week's PGA Championship, the pros at Castle Pines Golf Club in Colorado hope to add to their scores when The International begins today. The Modified Stableford scoring system – players gain points with good shots and lose them with bad ones – is used in this tournament, which rewards aggressive players like two-time International winner Phil Mickelson. Retief Goosen is the defending champion.

Due to the high heat, DeRossett had to alter his team's practice schedule.

"When the heat index gets so high, there's just so much you can do," said DeRossett. "At our place, when we practice, we always check the heat index. At Eastern, they do the same thing. As we all know, weather conditions can't be controlled and some times adjustments have to be made.'

The Football Blackcats have enjoyed some successful time on the gridiron in Richmond on various occasions this summer. Earlier on in the offseason, Prestonsburg ventured to EKU for a passing camp and made a strong push for a tournament title.

"Eastern is a great place to take a football team for any passing league tournament, camp or whatever," DeRossett commented.

Prestonsburg arrived on the EKU campus on Monday afternoon and left to return home Thursday morning.

On Saturday, Prestonsburg took to Josh Francis Field for a preseason scrimmage against visiting Lawrence County. At presstime, Prestonsburg remained without a second preseason game.

LAS VEGAS - Dwyane Wade had just thrown down the last in a series of dunks by the U.S. team, and he could 'think of only one way to celebrate it.

Jogging back downcourt during the third quarter of the U.S. team's 114-69 rout of Puerto Rico on Thursday, Wade <sup>E</sup> turned and saluted a group of American <sup>211</sup> soldiers sitting in the front row.

Wade and his teammates weren't trying to show up the Puerto Ricans. They just wanted to make sure some special fans were enjoying a very good show.

"We weren't out there to talk, even <sup>117</sup> though after we made some spectacular -plays it may have looked like we were celebrating," Wade said. "We were just saluting the soldiers that were there. We were showing our respect."

The Puerto Ricans actually had a fourpoint lead early in the second quarter before they were buried under a 31-2 run spanning halftime.

"We started a little frantic, but we finished well and it was a good test for us,' U.S. guard Gilbert Arenas said. "We settled down, played defense and got after it. They had 26 points in the first period and then we blew the game open.

Carmelo Anthony scored 18 points, Antawn Jamison added 16 and Wade had 14 for the Americans, who'll meet Puerto Rico again on Aug. 19, in the opening game of the world championships in Sapporo, Japan.

And along the way, they earned some back by overwhelming an opponent that had embarrassed them last time they met.

Puerto Rico's 92-73 upset at the 2004 Olympics was perhaps the lowest moment in U.S. basketball history, and it was followed by two more losses in Athens. A revamped USA Basketball changed the way it went about selecting players, with Thursday's game being the ' first since the adoption of a national team program that features a three-year commitment.

So far, so good.

"We know what kind of team they "have," said Puerto Rico guard Carlos <sup>DB</sup>Arroyo, who plays for the Orlando Magic. "They are definitely a different i team than what they showed two years ago at the Olympics.'

The Americans certainly look better

It was a mostly impressive effort from the U.S. team, trying to get back on top of the basketball world after disappointing performances in the last two international competitions: a third-place finish in '04 following a sixth-place showing in the 2002 worlds.

Arroyo led Puerto Rico with 16 points. Daniel Santiago, Roberto Hatton and Rick Apodaca each added 12 for Puerto Rico, which shot 35.8 percent (19of-53).

Cheered on by a group of flag-waving fans at the Thomas & Mack Center, Puerto Rico pulled ahead 33-29 while the Americans went scoreless for more than 3 minutes to open the second quarter. NYRA has complained that it gets to keep too little of the money bet on races under the current deal, which was written before an explosion in competition from televised races, off-track betting and casino gambling. It lost more than $15 million in 2004 and $22 million in 2003.

Albany has provided a $30 million bailout to help keep NYRA afloat into 2007.

Indiana college creates motorsports curriculum

TIMES STAFF REPORT

INDIANAPOLIS Marian College president Daniel J. Elsener, along with leaders at motorsports organizations from around Indiana, announced today the launch of The Business of Motorsports curriculum. A first in the Midwest and one of only two in the country, the motorsports management program will prepare students to address the management and marketing needs of the fastpaced racing industry.

"In central Indiana alone, the motorsports industry is made up of nearly 10,000 workers in over 400 businesses. That totals some $425 million in annual wages," said Matt Steward, director of motorsports development at the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC). "There is a real need for strengthening Indiana's motorsports workforce so we can continue our leading role in the highly competitive world of motorsports."

The Business of Motorsports program at Marian College supports Governor Mitch Daniels' initiative to expand the racing industry in the state.

"We are fortunate to have many leaders from the motorsports industry as our partners in this program," said president Elsener. "Governor Daniels has a great vision for this state that includes expansion of this important industry and Marian College is prepared to help students and the industry achieve success."

Located within two miles of the iconic Indianapolis Motor Speedway (IMS), Marian College has a rich history in motorsports. The 120-acre campus is built on the former estates of James Allison, Carl Fisher and Frank Wheeler?three of the four founders of IMS and the Indianapolis 500. Jack Snyder, former IMS and Indy Racing League legal counsel, and Mike Hudson, retired vice chairman of Rolls-Royce North America and advisor to John Menard (founder and owner of Menards home improvement chain, owner of an racing engine shop in England, and owner of the 1997 and 1999 IRL league championship teams), are Marian College trustees.

Additionally, the newly formed Indiana Motorsports Association makes its home on the Marian College campus.

gram at Marian College will fill a great need and help our member companies by providing a skilled and educated workforce that can help us grow and expand," said Tom Weisenbach, executive director of the Indiana Motorsports Association.

Marian's motorsports management program is distinctive in that it focuses on the skills and knowledge needed to effectively run a business in the racing industry. Marian has offered a general sport management degree for more than 20 years; the concentration in motorsports will strengthen the overall program, according to Dr. Leigh Ann Danzey-Bussell, assistant professor of sport studies at the college and director of the motorsports program. One of the most important benefits of the Marian College program is an extremely robust internship program?as many as 40 hours of handson work experience and up to 12 college credits with companies like USAC, Just Marketing, Indiana Motorsports Association, the Lyn St. James Foundation, and others.

Ball Brothers Venture Fund awarded a grant to Marian College

"The Business of Motorsports pro- and the motorsports management program to provide scholarship funds that would attract interested and qualified students. The award criteria sought to "provide seed money for creative start-up programs."

About the program

The Business of Motorsports is an 18 credit hour curriculum of study developed by Dr. Danzey-Bussell in conjunction with recognized leaders in the motorsports industry.

They include:

Joie Chitwood, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway

Rollie Helmling, president of the United States Auto Club (USAC)

Indianapolis Raceway Park Indiana Motorsports Association

Just Marketing

Governor Mitch Daniels and Indiana Economic Development Corporation

Lyn St. James Foundation Two courses have been offere-d since fall 2004, with the additional four classes to be offered for the first time in fall 2006. Students will learn from Marian College faculty as well as professionals in the industry. Most notably, Indianapolis Motor Speedway president Joie Chitwood will teach the survey course.

The motorsports program is rooted in management theory and supplemented with practical application. Graduates will be required to conte plete a semester-long internship with a motorsports organization.

Marian College has established internship commitments from USAC, Indianapolis Raceway Park, Indiana Motorsports Association, Just Marketing, Indiana Economic Development Corporation, Lyn St. James Foundation, 500 Festival Associates, and the Ball Brothers Foundation.

Within the established Department of Sports Studies, sports management students can declare a concentration in motorsports management. Marian College students pursing other degrees can select a motorsports minor.

Fisher gets IRL deal to drive at Kentucky

by STEVE HERMAN ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS - Sarah Fisher, the first woman to win the pole in a major auto racing series, will make her first IndyCar start since 2004 in the Aug. 13 Indy 300 at Kentucky Speedway.

Dreyer & Reinbold Racing hired Fisher Thursday in a one-race deal she hopes will lead to a full-time ride in the Indy Racing League.

"It has been some time and there is a lot of catching up to do," she said. "Hopefully it will be like riding a bike, but I am sure that there will be challenges we will have to figure out how to hurdle. ... I want to be there at the end and racing as hard as I did before, and that in itself will achieve results."

Fisher, 25, won the pole at Kentucky in 2002 and still holds the track record in qualifying at 221.390 mph. Rahal Letterman's Danica Patrick became the second woman to win a pole, with three last season, but Fisher's second place at Homestead-Miami in 2001 is still the best finish by a woman in Indy racing.

Patrick is the only other woman currently driving in the IRL's top series. Katherine Legge is a rookie this season in the rival Champ Car series.

"I'm here to race against everyone," said Fisher, who was voted three times by fans as the most popular driver in the IRL. "I'm here to do the best that I can and ultimately get back to the level of IndyCars that put me up front.

"Danica and I are two individuals out there competing in a man's world, whether it is in stock cars or IndyCars," she said. "I don't look at her any differently then all the other drivers. We are different people who want to achieve the same result."

Fisher's only IRL race in 2004 was in the Indianapolis 500, where her 21st-place finish was her best in five starts at the Speedway. She lost her ride with Walker Racing after that, drove in the NASCAR Grand National West series last year, with four top-10 finishes, and had no luck finding a job this season until the deal with Dreyer & Reinbold developed.

We believe that it is a very good track for her and with the momentum our team has been building, a good result is what we are looking forward to," said team co-owner Dennis Reinbold.

Fisher also drove for the Indianapolis-based team in 2002 and 2003.

She will be the fourth driver for Dreyer & Reinbold this season, following former winners Buddy Lazier and Al Unser Jr., and Ryan Briscoe, who is scheduled to drive the final road course of the season at Sonoma, Calif., on Aug. 27, leaving the season's final race at Chicago next month still open for a possible ride for Fisher.

"I am looking at all opportunities," she said. "A 2007 option would be awesome in IndyCars. ... I still have opportunities in the stock car world. I want to drive a good race car and there is still interest from teams that I have driven for in the past."

Fisher has 48 IndyCar career starts and won $2.3 million.

just about now to be ready.

Scouting and the actual hunting may come later, but midsummer can be a vital preparatory period for the bowhunter's equipment and shooting form. A bow and arrow hunter should shoot during the season to keep sharp, but preseason practice is essential to hone for a moment of truth or two that may come weeks or months later.

Shooting a bow in repetition is the best way to learn to shoot a bow. Along with physically building the muscles necessary to shoot with ease, practice in launching carefully aimed arrows develops "muscle memory" that is necessary to shoot with consistency. Developing good form and shooting in that position repeatedly to the point that it becomes automatic are the keys to accurate arrow placement. The kind of shooting practice one takes can reflect in success or the lack of it in real hunting circumstances.

Because even the fastest arrows are ploddingly slow compared to speeding bullets, bowhunting is a short-range game, mostly under 30 yards. The relatively looping trajectory of the arrow makes the judging of distances critical. A well-aimed 25yard shot taken at an actual 30 yards could hit low or miss a deer altogether.

Bowhunting practice, therefore, should involve shooting at varied distances, even one arrow per spot to best test range-estimating skills. Different angles, too, are helpful to develop readiness for real life variables. Shooting on 3-D target ranges - at lifelike animal targets set at unknown distances - is as good a training method as it is entertainment for the archer.

The bowhunter who does his whitetail business from a tree stand should spend as much time as possible in practice, shooting from the same sort of elevations at which he hunts. The tree stand hunter must learn to apply his shooting form to downward angles. (Here's a hint: Bend at the waist as much as necessary to get onto targets at a sharply downward angle, keeping your armsto-body positioning the same.)

A large factor in tree stand shooting practice is that bugaboo of range estimation again. Distances can be deceiving when judged from 18 feet skyward, one reason why when tree stand bowhunters miss deer, they tend to shoot high.

Along with developing accuracy, preseason practice lets a hunter test and fine tune his combination of shooting gear to real hunting standards. It should be zeroed in for consistent performance and accuracy within realistic hunting ranges and especially familiar for shootability out of habit when the high-anxiety occasion of a big deer in the shooting lane occurs.

Not only must the bow and its chosen accessories be ready to shoot with passable accuracy, it must be able to do it with deathly quiet. Preseason is the time to equip a bow with string silencers and limb vibration absorbers to hush the shot. Even more critical is fitting an arrow rest with mole skin or lining the riser's shelf area with felt so a draw doesn't screech even slightly or a bobbled arrow shaft doesn't clunk off the side of the bow.

The whole setup should be adjusted and the moving parts, the wheels or cams of a compound bow, lubricated so the draw doesn't make the tiniest of stress noise that could send sharp-eared deer bounding away.

Bengals linebackers moving on without Thurman

by JEFFREY McMURRAY ASSOCIATED PRESS

GEORGETOWN - With leading tackler Odell Thurman suspended for the season's first four games, it's the linebacker shuffle for the Cincinnati Bengals.

There are some new faces competing for jobs on the outside, and a familiar one - former outside linebacker Brian Simmons — will be taking over Thurman's spot in the middle.

For Simmons, it's hardly a dramatic change even though the position has a whole different set of priorities. After all, he played it for the first five years of his pro career.

"I don't really care what I play," said Simmons, a nineyear veteran. "I just want to go out there and give the team a chance to win football games. Right now if me being in the middle is doing that, then that's where I want to be."

When camp opened without Thurman, coach Marvin Lewis shrugged off his absence.

"If you want to be in charge of him, you're welcome," he said.

None of the other linebackdismiss as minor ers Thurman's suspension for violating the league's substance abuse policy. As a rookie last year, Thurman's 148 tackles easily led the Bengals, and four of his five interceptions came on tipped passes.

But new players are stepping up, and Lewis says they're doing it well.

There was quite a stir in Cincinnati when the team surrendered a third-round draft pick to claim linebacker off the bench. Outside starting Ahmad Brooks in the supplemental draft after he was kicked off the team at the University of Virginia.

"Now I'm in the NFL," Brooks said. "My college days are over. It's time to look forward."

Lewis said he appears to be doing just that.

"He has gone out every day to work to prove something," Lewis said.

Offensive linemen haven't proven much difficulty for Brooks at camp. Instead, his biggest weakness seems to be from far smaller foes: bees. When one crossed his path during an interview Thursday, he jumped into the air, splashing Gatorade from his bottle.

Despite Brooks' good camp, he is likely only competing to be the first linebacker duties belong to third-year player Landon Johnson and the team's 2005 first-round draft pick, David Pollack.

Simmons says the key to the linebackers' impressive play in practice has been knowing about Thurman's situation heading into camp.

"We kind of knew it from day one," he said. "It's not like it happened the week of the game or something like that."

Another linebacker, Caleb Miller, says the team hasn't missed a beat with Thurman out.

"In football, people get hurt, they go down, they're in and they're out," Miller said. "For whatever reason, this and that happens. It's just the nature of the game, and you've got to move on.'

Famous as announcer and pitchman, Madden goes into Hall of Fame as a coach

by CONNOR ENNIS ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK - Before the video games, the athlete's foot commercials, the announcing booth and the six-legged Thanksgiving turkeys, John Madden was a football coach.

And, as Madden the announcer might put it, he was a pretty darn good one.

On Saturday, Madden will enter the Pro Football Hall of Fame 28 years after coaching his final game, recognition some might say is long overdue for a man that has become, especially for PlayStation lovers, the face and voice of the NFL.

"It means everything to me," said Madden, who was elected by the Seniors Committee. "It's just something that humbles you and excites you more than you've ever been excited."

Madden was only 32 when Al Davis hired him to coach the Oakland Raiders in 1969. Before leaving the sideline for the announcing booth in 1978, Madden led Oakland to a 103-32-7 regular-season record and a victory in the 1977 Super Bowl. Oakland never had a losing record under Madden, winning seven division titles and making the playoffs eight times.

Current NBC broadcast partner Al Michaels likens Madden's short career as a coach to that of Hall of Fame pitcher Sandy Koufax. Only Hall of Fame coaches George Halas and Curly Lambeau reached 100 wins faster than Madden. His .759 regular-season winning percentage stands as the highest ever among coaches with 100 career victories.

And his Raiders teams stand as some of the most successful, and colorful, in league history.

With players such as Ken Stabler, Fred Biletnikoff, Gene Upshaw, Art Shell and Willie Brown, the Silver and Black had plenty of talent - and maybe even more attitude. Even Davis, the team's owner, was brash, proclaiming his mantra to "Just win, baby.'

While some coaches Madden's age - he was one of the youngest head coaches in league history when he was hired - may have been intimidated by the cast of characters, it played right into Madden's strength.

"I always thought his strong suit was his style of coaching," said Stabler, the team's quarterback. "John just had a great knack for letting us be what we wanted to be, on the field and off the field. ... How do you repay him for being that way? You win for him."

Madden was never revered as a master tactician. Stabler said "he basically pitched me the playbook and said go play," letting the quarterback lead the offense. But he was at his best when relating to his players, often seeming more like a friend than a coach as a result of his age and demeanor.

"Players loved playing for him," said Shell, now in his second stint as Raiders coach. "He made it fun for us in camp and fun for us in the regular season. All he asked is that we be on time and play like hell when it was time to play."

Said Madden: "Sometimes guys were disciplinarians in things that didn't make any difference. I was a disciplinarian in jumping offsides, I hated that. Being in bad position and missing tackles, those things. I wasn't 'Your hair has to be combed.""

But what his players saw as a coach letting them be themselves, some observers saw as a young coach simply trying to not mess with a formidable collection of talent.

It may be one of the reasons Madden had to wait nearly three decades to enter the Hall. Another, at least in the beginning, was the possibility he could return to coaching, which he left in part because of a fear of flying. That led to the Madden Cruiser becoming part of the modern sports lexicon.

"It was one of those things that you cannot control so you try not to worry about it," Madden said of the long delay before he was elected. "But to say you don't think about it would be a bunch of baloney. Twenty-seven years ago I was a finalist and one of the reasons they said I didn't make it was because they said they were afraid that I was going to go back into coaching and not stay retired, so they wanted to make sure." Apparently they're sure now.

SIOUX FALLS, SD - The Sioux Falls Storm (17-0), for the second year in a row, are the UIF United Bowl champions! The Storm ended their perfect season with a 72-64 victory over the Lexington Horsemen (14-3) at the Sioux Falls Arena in front of a sold-out crowd of 4,800 screaming fans. Sioux Falls has now <sup>16</sup> won 20 straight games since the 2005 playoffs. Last season, the Storm defeated the Sioux City Bandits for United Bowl I. UBII's game MVP went to Terrance Bryant, quarterback for the Sioux Falls Storm.

The game started off with a bang for the Horsemen as Chad Spencer quarter, Lexington took the lead once more after a 9-yard run by Dieonte Stewart that put the Horsemen up, 26-21. This would not last long as Casey Veenhof caught one of his three touchdowns from five yards out, to bring the Storm back on top. Minutes later, Spencer (LEX) and Veenhof would trade TD's and bring the game back to a three point ball game, 32-35, with the Storm having the advantage. With forty seconds remaining in the first half, Colin Barber nailed a 24-yard field goal to tie the game at 35. The Storm, wanting the last move, saw James Terry in the end zone for a 12-yard score from quarters.

The third quarter saw no let down of offense, as Bryant rushed in a one vard TD in the first two minutes of the third, to bring the Storm's lead to 14. Eddie Eviston would answer right back with a 22-yard bullet to Spencer and bring the Horsemen back to within 7, 42-49. Veenhof, once again had an answer for Spencer, as he caught a 13-yard line drive from Bryant for the Storm. Going into the fourth quarter, the Storm had the lead, 55-45.

Minutes into the fourth quarter, Eviston got caught with his head on a swivel and threw the ball away in the end zone, resulting in a Storm safety,

Times, television schedule set for WKU Football

TIMES STAFF REPORT

BOWLING GREEN - With its season-opening contest at I-A Georgia scheduled to be broadcast regionally by Lincoln Financial Sports (formerly Jefferson Pilot), Western Kentucky University will have a pair of televised games during the 2006 campaign it was announced Thursday.

In addition to the season opener, which will air locally on WBKO-TV (local cable channel nine) and be shown in major markets throughout the Southeast including Atlanta, Birmingham, Charlotte, Cincinnati, Lexington, Louisville, Memphis, Nashville, New Orleans and Tampa, the Hilltoppers' Oct. 14 contest at Missouri State will be shown regionally on FOX Sports Net as part of the Gateway Football Conference's broadcast package.

"I am very pleased we are able to bring some outstanding road games back to our local market for those fans unable to join our team in person while we are on the road" said Hilltopper Director of Athletics Dr. Wood Selig. "Being selected for the SEC game of the week to kickoff the 2006 football season is a strong statement to the respect WKU football has developed nationally. Such far-reaching visibility and exposure will only help us in our mission to 'spread the red' and attract the finest student-athletes to our outstanding football program."

"Any time we can get our program on television, it does nothing but help," added head coach David Elson. "It's always good for our fans who can't make the trip to be able to watch at home and for parents to be able to see their sons play. We are always excited when we get an opportunity to be on any national, regional or local form of television."

Additionally, all game times for WKU were announced. The Toppers' first three home games - against Chattanooga (Sept. 16), Western Illinois (Sept. 30) and Illinois State (Oct. 7) - will kickoff at 6 p.m. (CDT), while the final three contests at L.T. Smith Stadium/Jimmy Feix versus Indiana State Field (Homecoming on Oct. 28), Youngstown State (Nov. 11) and Austin Peay (Nov. 18) are slated to begin at 4 p.m.

The game at Georgia is set for an 11:30 a.m. start, while the "Battle of the Blue Grass" the following week at Eastern Kentucky will kickoff at 5 p.m. The MSU contest on FOX will begin at 3 p.m., with WKU's game at Southern Illinois starting at 6 p.m. WKU's final road contest, at Northern Iowa, is scheduled to kickoff at 4:05 p.m.

The Johnson County Golden Gophers, a U12 soccer team, won a pair matches at the Bluegrass State Summer Games
