Man arrested after chase, cruiser crash

by TOM DOTY STAFF WRITER

GARRETT - A Hueysville man was arraigned Thursday after being charged with fleeing police in a car chase that saw him allegedly damage a sheriff's department cruiser.

Otis Gene Shepherd was arrested following a Wednesday evening episode which began when he was observed crashing into a telephone pole in front of an officer's home in Garrett. Sgt. Terry Chaffins responded to the call and pursued Shepherd into West Garrett, where he was eventually stopped after damaging a cruiser operated by Deputy Kevin Shepherd.

In a report filed by Shepherd, he noted that he barely got out of his parked cruiser when Shepherd hit it. He observed that Shepherd appeared intoxicated and was very irate, yelling and cursing at the officers.

Shepherd was charged with fleeing police, two counts of wanton endangerment, operating a motor vehicle under the influence, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

At his arraignment, Shepherd was issued a $10,000 partially secured bond and ordered to return to court for a preliminary hearing on July

Grand jury indicts aide, blasts school system

PRESTONSBURG - The Floyd County Grand Jury indicted a former May Valley Elementary teacher's aide Friday, charging him with nine counts of criminal abuse and six counts of perjury.

The grand jury also issued a report on their findings which chastised the staff at the school and county education administrators for failing to "protect the safety and well being of the children by not taking immediate action to attend to complaints.'

The grand jury indicted Marty Mullins, 35, following more than a year of investigation which included reviewing documents and listening to over 14 witnesses in the case, which dates back to 2002 and has already seen a civil suit brought against the school which was set-

PRESTONSBURG -A Prestonsburg man accused of rape and sodomy of a child under the age of 12 pleaded guilty to amended charges in circuit court Friday, following a recommendation by the commonwealth that he serve six years in jail and register as a sex offender.

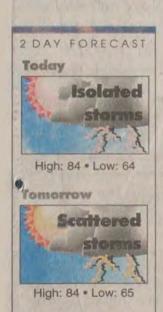

Johnny Spears, 52, will be formally sentenced Sept. 8 after admitting that he was guilty of the amended charges, which included two counts of unlawful transaction with a minor. He also pleaded guilty to one count of sexual abuse and must submit to three years of supervised probation upon his eventual release and register as a sex offender.

Spears admitted to suicidal thoughts at his hearing which have manifested themselves as a loss of appetite. Judge John D.

PRESTONSBURG - One defendant in the eBay theft cases appealed her high bond in circuit court Friday and saw her bond reduce somewhat, as it was brought down to $100,000 cash after originally being set in district court at $250,000.

Deborah Wallen, 36, of Prestonsburg, who is facing six counts of receiving stolen property in the case, appeared for the hearing with her attorney, Jerry Patton. County Attorney Keith Bartley stood in for the commonwealth.

Patton began the proceedings by making his case for Wallen. He said that she was accused of the lowest level of felony crimes and that there has been no testimony that Wallen ever entered the victims' homes. Gora Wicker, the codefendant, has been hit with several theft charges but thus far Wallen has only been charged with receiving stolen good from Wicker's neighbors which were subsequently sold on eBay, with the exception of items recovered at her Bull Creek home. He said that Wallen was being held for an exorbitantly high bond which was tantamount to a jail sentence. He further argued that Wallen hasn't been convicted of

Miners say mine safety rooted safe attitudes, not new laws

by SAMIRA JAFARI ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARLAN - Leon Napier was a hardworking man, but he admits that sometimes he and his buddies cut corners while mining underground. Maybe a ventilation curtain wouldn't stay up, maybe a coal-cutting machine was driven through a shortcut instead of on safe pathway Mostly, he says, the shortcuts were taken to speed up production.

"To run coal the right way ---the safe way - you won't run as much coal," says Napier, 46, who retired three years ago after working 28 years in eastern Kentucky's coal fields.

After two major coal mine disasters this year, new federal and state laws have been passed to save miners from explosions, fires, rockfalls and other hazards. But some longtime miners, like Napier, say it's going to take more than doubling up air packs and escape drills to create a safer working environment.

It's going to take a change in attitude.

"Until we get mine managers to take the responsibility for their employees and start caring about human lives, that's not going to matter," said Carl Potter, an Oklahoma-based mine safety consultant.

Allen Turner, a Harlan County miner also acknowledged workers should also take safety more seriously.

"You can do things to make your job easier, but it's not necessarily safer," he said.

was a proper venue for the school to review reports of abuse and act upon them.

The story broke in 2003 when an investigation by the Cabinet for Families and Children substantiated reports of abuse by Mullins towards special education students. The abuse allegedly occurred between January 2001 and September 2002. The alleged abuses included pinching students and twisting their arms and wrists, as well as reports of children being locked in a bathroom as punishment.

Mullins was charged in Floyd District Court with five counts of criminal abuse on July 30, 2004, and granted a preliminary hearing after an investigation by Kentucky State Police Det. Mike Goble.

The five perjury counts lodged against Mullins allege that he lied under oath when testifying on July 13, 2004. He was charged with regard to five statements made at that time, which include saying that he never made fun of a child's personal appearance, never locked a child in a bathroom and that he was never told that there was any dissatisfaction with his job performance before Sept. 17, 2002.

The criminal abuse charges, all class C felonies punishable by up to 10 years in jail, number 13 and include five incidents of locking children in a bathroom, four incidents of twisting a child's arm behind his or her back and four incidents of applying pressure to sensitive parts of the student's bodies.

when the criminal charges were first brought, Mullins' attorney, Terry Jacobs, dismissed the claims of students and labeled the case "a money hunt."

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT ASSESSMENT Floyd County, Kentucky (Levisa Fork Basin) Flood Damage Reduction Project

A public hearing on the content of the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) will be held at Big Sandy Communi and Technical College, 1 Bert T. Combs Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, on Thursday, July 27, 2006, starting a 6:00 p.m. The public hearing will give the public an additional opportunity to provide comment on the content of the DEIS

BACKGROUND: In accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Huntington District has prepared a Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) which documents planning analyse undertaken for a proposed flood damage reduction project in the Levisa Fork basin in Floyd County, Kentucky. Th study area includes the incorporated areas of Prestonsburg and unincorporated areas in Floyd County which are sub ject to flood damage from the potential of a reoccurrence of the April 1977 flood. The study area does not include th City of Martin, Kentucky, where a separate flood damage reduction project is underway. The DEIS documents agenc evaluation of four alternatives, two of which include floodwall/levee alignments intended to protect Prestonsburg an non-structural flood-proofing measures, a total non-structural alternative, and the No Federal Action alternative.

The USACE has distributed copies of the DEIS to appropriate Members of Congress, State and local government off cials in Kentucky, Federal agencies, and other interested parties. All persons and organizations that have an interest in the Levisa Fork Basin flooding problems as they affect Floyd County and the environment are urged to participat in this NEPA process. The DEIS is available for public review at the following locations:

Fletcher under fire from fellow Republicans

by ROGER ALFORD ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT — A key GOP leader called on Gov. Ernie Fletcher to drop his bid for a second term, saying Thursday that Kentucky's first Republican governor in more than 30 years is unlikely to

"The governor's persistent inability to grasp and manage political issues has led to a collapse of support within his own party, making it necessary for me to say publicly what many Republicans are saying privately: 'Governor, enough is enough. Do not seek re-election," said Jack L. Richardson IV, chairman of the Jefferson Sounty Republican Party.

Richardson is the first Republican leader to publicly call for Fletcher to bow out of next year's governor's race.

"Our Senate president was not exaggerating the level of concern," Richardson said. "If anything, he understated the depth of the governor's political problems. They are profound."

Other state Republicans

also have distanced themselves from the politically troubled governor.

Senate President David Williams, R-Burkesville, said last week he and fellow Republicans have "serious doubts" about Fletcher's reelectability. Lt. Gov. Steve Pence, Fletcher's running mate in 2003, withdrew from the ticket in June. And U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell declined to endorse Fletcher's candidacy last week, saying "I really haven't given it any thought.'

Richardson also said he doesn't think Fletcher can raise enough money to win reelection.

"I think at this point the governor is probably $2 million behind in fundraising where he should be,' Richardson said. "It's not a good situation."

The comments came one day after Fletcher and running mate Robbie Rudolph of Murray filed a campaign finance report showing they had raised $372,275 between June 23 and June 30.

"Raising this amount of money in less than 15 days sends a strong message that the people of Kentucky are excited about the Fletcher-Rudolph ticket and that they support my vision and my reelection," Fletcher said in a statement released by his campaign.

Fletcher campaign spokeswoman Jessica Ditto had no immediate response to Richardsons' comments.

Bill Stone, a Louisville businessman and former chairman of the Jefferson County Republican Party, said Richardson should not have publicly criticized a Republican governor, especially one who is seeking reelection.

Stone said Republican Party officials take an oath to support Republican office holders and candidates. "I think the only honorable thing now for Jack to do is resign." Stone said.

Despite the criticism, Stone said he believes Fletcher is on his way to a political recovery and pointed to his latest campaign finance report as evidence.

"The governor will tell you that he is not an obsessed political operator. He probably gets a C in politics, but he's the valedictorian of public policy. From a public policy point of view, he's been the best governor this commonwealth has had in at least two generations.'

Williams said during an appearance in Louisville Thursday that Fletcher stumbled in his handling of the state hiring scandal, which resulted in his indictment in May for allegedly rewarding political supporters with state jobs. He pleaded not guilty and is scheduled to stand trial in November.

Fletcher. the first Republican governor since 1971, ran on a promise to "clean up the mess in Frankfort." In his indictment, he is charged with official misconduct, political discrimination and conspiracy, all misdemeanors.

"I don't think the hiring practices was the big problem as much as how he was handling it," William said at an impromptu press conference at the Galt House, a Louisville hotel where he spoke to a local Rotary Club. "I advised the governor early on to go down and talk to the grand jury and accept responsibility for what folks in his administration had done and express contrition ... People will forgive a lot things if you show contrition."

Williams, who told reporters he has no plans to run for governor, also criticized the governor's political prowess.

"The problem that he has in office goes back to the fact that he hasn't been a seasoned politician," Williams said. 'Some people would say that's good, but it's made his relationship very difficult with the General Assembly, both Republicans and Democrats.'

Richardson, in a harshly worded statement delivered Thursday afternoon in Louisville, said he is not attacking Fletcher personally nor is he attacking his policies.

"It is his political ineptitude that is the problem, and ineptitude that has crippled his ability to implement important initiatives," Richardson said. " ... The governor's two and a half years of political missteps now threaten an opportunity that took over 30 years for Republicans to gain."

Joseph Lambert appointed Melcher to the case early last month. Melcher is a family court judge who serves in Harrison, Nicholas, Pendleton and Robertson counties.

Fletcher's attorneys had argued Stumbo should be disqualified because he may be a potential political rival of the governor's in the 2007 goverpor's race. While Stumbo has not ruled out a possible run for governor, the Democratic attorney general has said he would not challenge Fletcher while his office was prosecuting him.

Melcher said there would only be a conflict if Stumbo eventually became a gubernato-rial candidate. However, Melcher said he was "exercising caution" in disallowing Stumbo's participation. "Under the unique circumstances of this case, appearances are important," the judge said. "The commonwealth has not denied comment attributed to the attorney general which implicate him as a possible direct political opponent of the defendant."

Despite the ruling, Melcher said it doesn't appear that the attorney general is a "direct active participant" in the case.

Stumbo said he was pleased with Melcher's decision.

"The judge clearly states that, 'No actual conflict and no actual prejudice of the attorney general have been established' in this case," Stumbo said in a written statement. "He found that the Office of the Attorney General has handled this merit investigation and prosecution properly and according to law and may continue to do so."

Attorneys for Fletcher also filed a motion to dismiss the charges against him, saying there were "several statutory grounds for dismissal."

Prosecution of the governor on alleged hiring violations "amounts to selective and vindictive prosecution in violation of the equal protection clauses of both the Kentucky and United States constitutions," attorneys said in the motion.

And, a sitting governor must first be impeached and convicted by the legislature before being indicted or prosecuted for official acts, Fletcher's attorneys argued.

Melcher said he would rule on that matter and others at an Aug. 11 hearing.

For the past year, a special grand jury has been investigating whether Fletcher's administration broke state law by basing personnel decisions on political considerations.

That grand jury indicted

Fletcher in May on charges of criminal conspiracy, official misconduct and violating a prohibition against political discrimination.

Defense attorneys entered a not guilty plea for the governor at his arraignment.

The grand jury has also indicted 28 others in the patronage probe. Half of the indictments have been sealed by the judge, so that only grand jurors know who is named in them. The others are all current and former Fletcher administration staffers or associates.

Fletcher has issued a blanket pardon for anyone in his administration who might face charges - except himself.

Mine Safety

packs available for each miner and conduct escape drills every 90 days, among other new rules. The state also gained the power to fine mines in violation of the rules, and increased the number of underground inspections from two to three annually.

Similarly, West Virginia's new mine safety law, already in effect, mandates that miners be Provided with emergency communicators, tracking devices and extra air supplies underground.

The disasters also spurred federal legislation for miners to have more oxygen supplies and mine rescue teams to be within an hour's distance. Mine operators are also required to have new devices to track and communicate with trapped miners be in place within three years.

While the new laws have either gone into effect, or about to, there is a lag in the practical reffect of the law as regulators draw up with enforcement rules and approve new equipment.

But are new rules the answer?

"I would argue we have enough laws," said Bill Caylor, president of the Kentucky Coal Association. "Once the dust settles, you'll see if there was a series of occurrences that resulted in Darby and Sago. More than likely these were violations of current existing laws - I don't think the new laws would have much impact."

Industry observers say the laws focus too much on disaster survival, instead of disaster prevention.

Caylor said regulators should put more weight on the "behavior modification" of miners - changing bad, unsafe habits to prevent future disas-

"Probably, more laws would not have prevented the Sago or Kentucky Darby disasters," he added.

Both Caylor and Potter said government inspectors visiting mines should observe and train more — and police less. They said inspectors typically enter mines looking for violations, but don't spend enough time with miners to ensure that the mine is functioning properly --and not covering anything up during routine inspections.

Napier, who spent half of his career as a mine foreman, added that the short visits allow mines to clean up their act for inspectors and resume their flawed ways afterward.

"When the inspection was over." Napier said of some of the mines he worked for, "they went back to the way it was."

However, other experts, like Bruce Watzman, disagree, saying inspectors do help coal operators and workers.

"When inspectors are underground, they're with the miners," said Watzman, vice president for health and safety for the National Mining Association, which influenced the federal legislation. He added, "It's not like they go down there in a vacuum.'

Watzman said the new laws will make a difference in saving miners, though he added the federal legislation has room for improvement. He said what's missing is provisions to ensure that inspectors spend more time evaluating the most potentially hazardous areas of the mines and mandate random drug testing of all mine employees.

Near bottom once again

Guest view

Yet again, Kentucky is near the bottom, in 42nd place, in the latest Kids Count survey, the Annie E. Casey Foundation's state-by-state assessment of children's well being.

The rankings are based on 10 key indicators, such as infant mortality, teen pregnancies, and high school dropouts. Despite Kentucky's dismal showing overall, there were a few bright spots. Its teen death rate and the number of 15- to 19-year-olds having babies each fell between 2000 and 2003, and so did its rate of infant mortality.

However, the number of Kentuckians 18 and younger, living in poverty rose to 25 percent in 2004, dropping Kentucky to 46th among the states from 43rd in the 2000 rankings.

Meanwhile, the percentage of children living in families with no parent having secure employment rose from 34 percent in 2000 to 38 percent in the survey. And on top of that, Kentucky is one of just nine states that made no improvement in its dropout rate.

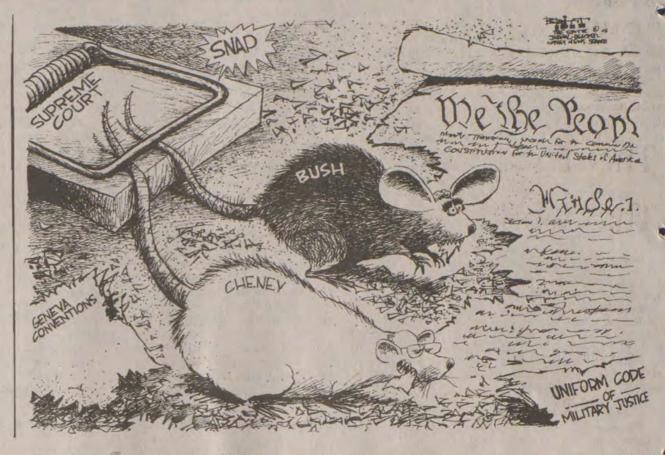

"What you don't want is a state that's not moving on dropouts," said Terry Brooks, executive director of Kentucky Youth Advocates. "If we don't tackle that problem, we've invented the next decade of economic problems."

Intergenerational poverty is, unfortunately, deeply rooted in Kentucky culture. Many of the state's poorest remain firmly planted not only where they were born and reared, but also in the same circumstances.

Better-funded social programs are, of course, part of the answer.

<sup>21</sup> But as Mr. Brooks said, "Santa Claus doesn't have to dome to town to help poor families." One of Kentucky's biggest problems is its failure to maximize existing resources. He lamented, for example, that there's not better cooperation and more collaboration between state welfare officials and others engaged in work force development.

These latest results emphasize how poorly the state is served by the political games and wedge-issue politics that now dominate Frankfort. Voters must insist that their leaders produce agendas for progress, not more excuses for the status quo.

Pulling out of Iraq

The Texas outlaw John Wesley Hardin once famously said that he never killed anyone who didn't need killing. Hardin's definition of who needed killing was considerably too liberal. But if there ever were anyone who unquestionably exhibited such a need, it was the late Abu Musab al-

Zarqawi, Iraq's maestro of vileness and death.

Zarqawi took the death cult that surrounds suicide bombing and pushed it to its hellish logical conclusion. pool of blood and a few scattered shoes, with loved ones wailing in the background.

His tactical goal was more death. He wanted to provoke the Shiite into acts as cruel as his own, and unfortunately had achieved some success. The vengeful Shiite militia members plying the streets of Baghdad to torture Sunni men before dumping their bodies in the street are Zarqawi's progeny. He gleefully pointed to their murderous work as justification for even more killing by Sunnis, toward a full-scale civil war making Iraq an Arab Rwanda choking on its own blood.

The word for this vision is "evil." It has become fashionable to regret President Bush's black-and-white, good-and-evil view of the world. But sometimes the ledger is indee quite simple - with Zarqawi's demise, the sum total of evil in the world is now a little less. Everyone professes to know this. But some know it more than others. Otherwise a major Democrat like John Kerry wouldn't be advocating a full U.S. pullout from Iraq. Until Iraqi forces can carry the load, a pullout means abandoning the field to the likes of Zarqawi. If Kerry had been given a magic wand to wave and make all U.S. troops disappear from Iraq instantly. Zarqawi would almost certainly be alive right now. There would have been no one to send F-16s to drop two 500-pound bombs on his head.

Within hours of the news breaking of Zarqawi's death, Rep. John Murtha was on CNN saying we should leave Iraq and let the Iraqis work out their civil war just the way we worked out ours. Of course, 600,000 died in our Civil War. And the Iraqis "working it out" would be accomplished with truck bombs and ethnic cleansing.

Humanitarian considerations aside, the stakes in Iraq are incalculably large. If many politicians in the U.S. have never realized this, Zarqawi always did. He knew the advent of decent government in the Arab world would be a blow to the ideology of terror, hence his ultimate strategic goal of forestalling it with mayhem and slaughter. We don't know if we will prevail in Iraq, but there is no doubt about how to lose: pull out prematurely. That's why erry, Murtha, et al., are effective advocates of defeat. From beyond the grave, Zarqawi can only wish that the Democrats for a pullout had been able to effect their preferred policy. Then this loathsome man who so needed killing would instead still be working his evil will.

-guest column Congress may yet have to raise the minimum wage

by MARK WEISBROT

It's a quiet war against America's working poor: Refuse to raise the minimum wage for a decade and watch rising prices eat away at the living standards of millions. That is what the United States Congress has done, and the minimum wage today buys less than it did before the last increase in 1997. In fact, it buys less than it did 50 years ago — a shameful new milestone in our country's long march toward Third World levels of inequality.

At $5.15 an hour, today's minimum wage won't even buy two gallons of gas. At $10,300 a year for a full-time worker, it's not even close to the meager poverty threshold of $13,000 for a single parent with one child.

But some 7.7 million workers are today working at minimum wage, or close enough that they would benefit from an increase. On average, they are contributing about two-thirds of their family income. The majority are over 25 years old, and only 30 percent are teenagers. So much for the stereotype of minimum wage workers as high-school kids who live with their parents.

It was just over 10 years ago, in May 1996, that the U.S. House of Representatives passed the last increase in the federal minimum wage, from $4.25 to $5.15 an hour; it finally became law in August of that year. It was a hard-fought victory for the Democrats in a Republican-controlled Congress. Sen. Ted Kennedy (D-MA) had to force a vote in the Senate by threatening to attach the wage increase to every piece of legislation in that chamber. But interestingly, when the vote came to the floor, it passed the Senate 74-24. Similarly, in the House, it passed by a vote of 281-144, despite the Republican majority.

Then, as now, more than 80 percent of the public favored the increase. Many Republicans didn't want to be on the wrong side of that issue in an election year.

Now Sen. Kennedy is back, with proposed legislation that would increase the federal minimum wage to $7.25 per hour over the next 26 months. And last month, Republicans on the House Appropriations Committee bucked their leadership and approved the increase.

The increase to $7.25 isn't enough. In terms of its real purchasing power, it wouldn't bring the minimum wage to its level of 1968. When one considers that productivity (output per worker) has more than doubled since then, it's hard to justify anyone working for less than what was paid nearly four decades ago. But $7.25 is at least a step in the right direction.

The loss of real income at the bottom of the wage ladder is part of a broader long-term trend that ought to be the dominant theme in any national election: the failure of the majority of American employees to share in the gains from economic growth. Over the last 30 years, the median wage has grown by about 9 percent, while productivity has increased by more than 80 percent. This is a sharp break with the past, when wages tended to grow with productivity, allowing for broadly shared prosperity.

000

To make things even worse, we have had a series of tax breaks in recent years — for example on stock dividends and capital gains — that are targeted toward upper income groups.

The minimum wage increase will buck this ugly trend toward increasing polarization of income and wealth, and it is hard to argue against. But the Right will haul out its usual posture, dating back to the 18th century, that such legislation will only hurt the people it is proposing to help, by making labor unaffordable, and thereby reducing overall employment. But the mainstream of the economics profession has rejected this argument on the basis of empirical research. Why should anyone else believe it?

And, while minimum wage workers have been losing ground to inflation, members of Congress have been hiking their own salaries, now at $165,200 per year. A House vote recently paved the way for another cost-of-living increase worth thousands of dollars annually. Congressional elections are about five months away. If Republicans in Congress want to block the minimum wage increase while raising their own pay, they could be playing with fire.

Come, let us go unto the lakes, where the cool breezes refresh us and glorious scenes await." "Thou speakest wisely," quoth Mrs. Church Member, "yet three, yes, four things must we do before we go." When the male tries to get to second base, however, he is summarily put in his place by his date and this proves her undoing as a shadowy figure moves in on the pair and slaughters them without mercy.

Enter Sheriff Brent Marken, who soon discovers that a killer with a mysterious agenda is stalking his town. A forensic expert discovers that the victim had the word "virgin" carved in her flesh. A third victim confirms the "worst-case scenario" fears of the sheriff and denotes that the killer is only after victims who haven't become sexually active. A town meeting with the parents of all the high school's students erupts in violence when the sheriff shares what he's learned. The parents react angrily and several fists are thrown when confronted with knowledge. The news eventually leaks to the student body and more chaos erupts as boys on the make realize they can use the killer's reign of terror to their advantage and promptly stage a party where all the girls are invited so that they can be taken off the killer's hit list. If this sounds explicit, then guess again, because director Geoffrey Wright is more concerned with developing the dramatic ironies here than displaying a teen orgy for the benefit of perverted viewers. What you get are several dramatically charged scenes such as one in which a parent confronts his teenaged daughter about her sexual history. Knowing that the daughter may be a future victim, the parent presses on despite the awkward subject matter. It's a well structured scene and in the hands of actors like Michael Biehn ("Aliens") and Brittany Murphy, it gets played to the hilt. As we walked and talked quietly along the water's edge, I noticed a line in the sand at our feet, curving in and out and looping here and there. At first I didn't think anything of it, but then it dawned on me that the line was forming letters.

"Hey! There's a message in the sand!" I pointed it out to Mark. I looked forward and back, trying to make out the words. When I looked to Mark for help, I saw excitement on his face.

Suddenly I knew. My mouth dropped open, and I felt like I was on a roller-coaster ride. I looked up and down the beach and saw it clearly now. "Will you marry me?" was written in the sand, waiting to be washed away by the rising tide.

Mark beamed and motioned me toward the question mark further down the beach. I ran to it and found a large spiral-shaped seashell lying where the dot would have been. 1 picked it up. Something rattled inside.

Car needs a warm-up to get out of park

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:

I picked up a repo'd 2000 Kia Sephia last fall. It's in great shape. The only problem I have with the car is that whenever it gets bitter cold -- which it does a lot where I live, in Montana - it will not shift from park to drive until it warms up! One cold morning last winter, I sat in the driveway waiting for 10 minutes. Otherwise, it runs great. Can anything be done before next winter to reduce the time it needs to shift in the cold? -

Scott RAY: Yes. Build a heated garage.

TOM: There are several possibilities, Scott. But the first thing I'd check is the shift interlock. RAY: This car, like every car these days, has a switch that prevents you from shifting out of park unless your foot is on the brake.

TOM: That's to prevent you from stepping on the gas by accident, and then putting the car in gear and accelerating straight into the nearest moose. RAY: It's possible that the shift interlock is out of adjustment, or the solenoid is being lazy in the extreme cold. That happens to my brother. TOM: Only when the temperature drops below 95!

> RAY: If it's the shift interlock, you don't even have to fix it. You have a bypass button that allows you to shift out of park just in case the shift interlock fails. I don't remember where it is on the 2000 Kia Sephia, but it's usually on or near the shifter. Your owner's manual will tell you where it is and how to use it. TOM: If using the bypass allows you to move the shifter when it's otherwise stuck, then you know the shift interlock is the problem. And you can either get it fixed or just keep using the bypass.

RAY: And if that's not it, you can use the remaining months before next winter to look for work in Arizona, Scott.

Tom and Ray discuss ethanol Dear Tom and Ray:

I've always wondered about ethanol. Seems too good to be true -you just plant some corn, harvest it, and in no time you have fuel for your car. So I Googled ethanol on the Web. There are tons of Web sites extolling the great benefits of corn-based ethanol as a fuel. Then I found one, healthandenergy.com, that made the opposite case. You guys went to MIT. Am I missing something? The report on this site says that 131,000 BTUs are needed to make one gallon of ethanol, but each gallon of ethanol only produces 77,000 BTUs. That means we're losing 54,000 BTUs for every gallon we produce. Just wondered if you guys have an opinion. Best regards. - Charlie TOM: Yes. But, as usual, it's not an informed one.

RAY: This issue is not only very controversial, it's also ripe for all kinds of obfuscation from various interested parties.

TOM: Right. I mean, if guys with degrees in chemical engineering can't agree on the answer, how the heck are we supposed to know who's telling the truth?

RAY: Wait a minute. You DO have a degree in chemical engineering.

TOM: Yeah. But to understand this issue, I'd have to actually READ all those papers! That would cut into my nap time.

RAY: All right. Well, from what we can tell, the basic issue is this: When you calculate how much energy it takes to produce a gallon of ethanol, you have to make certain decisions. Everybody agrees that you need to include the energy needed to plant the corn, water it, harvest it and convert the starch to alcohol. But, for instance, do you include the energy needed to manufacture the tractors that plow the fields? Scientists disagree about that.

TOM: They also disagree about the other side of the equation. The guy whose study you refer to, David Pimentel of Cornell University, is very well regarded, and has been studying this issue for years. He adds up his calculation of the amount of energy needed to grow the corn and then subtracts the amount of energy you get from a gallon of ethanol, and gets a negative number RAY: But there are other credible researchers, like David Lorenz and David Morris of the Institute for Local Self-Reliance, who take Pimentel's research and say yes, BUT, a gallon of ethanol isn't the only thing you get from that corn you grow. You also get stuff like corn oil and gluten feed. So, some of the energy that goes into growing the corn has to be assigned to those other corn byproducts, too.

When they do the numbers, the energy ratio of ethanol comes out positive.

TOM: So, the answer is not clear. What everybody does agree on is that ethanol made from plants with morecellulose, like switchgrass or sugar cane, will produce more ethanol per acre than corn will. And that will improve the case for ethanol - no matter what your starting point.

RAY: People also agree that using ethanol that we grow at home reduces the amount of foreign oil we need, which may eventually mean we don't have to spend billions to send our kids to guard oil fields overseas. So, there's a national security issue here in addition to a scientific one.

TOM: And then there are other questions. Like, how much of this ethanol blitz is a big, wet, government-subsidized kiss to big agri-business and corn growers? Is it ethical to use food to fuel our cars when people are going hungry? And if I'm using the stuff in my Grand Cherokee, will the price of a corn dog go through the roof?

RAY: We don't have the answers, Charlie. But we're eager to see some more light shed on the subject. And we're eager to move beyond corn to more efficient plant-based ethanol and see what kind of scale that could achieve. Meanwhile, pass the butter, will ya?

LUXEMBURG, Wis. -Stacy Martin needed a bird's eye view to see her boyfriend's marriage proposal.

Brian Rueckl's proposal came as a 40,000-square-foot message, "Stacy will you marry me?" tilled in a cornfield near the Manitowoc and Kewaunee county line.

"At first I was in shock and forgot to say, 'yes,"' Martin said.

Rueckl, an employee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency, persuaded Martin to take an airplane ride with him Monday to take pictures of the land.

The proposal came after a year of planning and 40 hours of work. Rueckl, 23, tilled the message, which included two intersecting hearts, on a farm owned by his boss.

William C. Horvath, 35, of Whitefish, pleaded guilty to making false statements, a felony.

U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy sentenced him to four months of house arrest and four years of probation. He also ordered him to stand outside the courthouse for 50 hours wearing the sandwich board with the message.

On the back, it must read: 'I have never served my country. I have dishonored veterans of all wars."

Molloy, a veteran himself. also ordered Horvath to write letters of apology to newspapers, the U.S. Marine Corps, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion in Kalispell. The judge said Horvath must admit in the letters that he lied repeatedly about serving and being

One of the problems: He was wearing his uniform improperly.

COON RAPIDS, Minn. - A man who has struggled to lose weight is hoping a lawn mower will help him shed between 30 and 50 pounds.

After working up quite a sweat mowing his own lawn this summer, Darrell Nelson thought that he could get a good workout by mowing lawns for other people as well. So he placed an ad on the Web site Craigslist.org offering to mow lawns for free.

He figures if he eats better and mows a lawn per day nearly every day of the week, he will be able to keep an exercise program going. He said he has a hard time keeping commitments to himself, but he voila - away it went."

ATLANTA - A Zoo Atlanta gorilla gave birth to the fifth western lowland gorilla born at the zoo in the past eight months.

The baby was born Thursday while the mother, Sukari, was on exhibit around 3 p.m., and a few zoo visitors who witnessed the birth alerted zoo staff, spokeswoman Susan Elliott said.

"It appears average in size and extremely healthy," Elliott said.

Gorilla mothers keep babies close to their body, so officials probably won't know the sex for three to five weeks. The baby will remain unnamed until they do.

Sukari and baby are expected to be on public exhibit this weekend, Elliott said.

southeast Ohio village's $500a-month bill for street lights. Voters defeated a tax levy last year, and a committee that gets money from local cable TV bingo has paid the bill since then.

In its first two days, the outhouse collected $200, Dowler said. The primary purpose of the emergency management group, which is made up of village officials and citizens, is to keep the lights on.

The emergency management group takes over the bill this month, and the levy is on the ballot again in the fall. If passed, enough money to pay the bill would not be generated for about a year, Mayor Fredricka Shover said.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados - At least one grieving family had to take up shovels and bury a loved one after gravediggers in this 10-hour strike to press for new rubber boots.

A total of 67 grave diggers and laborers at the Westbury Cemetery in the capital of Bridgetown walked off the job early Tuesday citing a lack of rubber boots for use during the. hurricane season as their main concern. Other demands included new first-aid kits and structural repairs to facility buildings.

"All the workers here are just fed up with conditions," said Anthony Eastmond, shop steward for the grave diggers' union.

The cemetery workers picked up their shovels after the Barbados Sanitation Service Authority pledged that boots had been ordered for all workers.

During Tuesday's walkout, friends and family of an 83year-old woman had to cover her grave with soil during ( morning service at the cemetery.

from us. Now, though, we have our own station and now, we hear, first-hand, about every bad man and woman in our nick of the woods.

We hear about how these people quarrel and fight; about how they kill each other; about how they burn down houses and churches; about how they rob our banks. We even learn about how they drive their cars too fast and drink too much and, at sad times, about how they mistreat their kids. If, by chance, anything good happens, will somebody please call me and tell me about it? They say bad news is better than no news at all ... well, I guess so?

These days, I talk to myself a lot more than I used to. I tell myself what to do and sometimes, even, where to go. Sometimes I forget what I told myself to do and just turn around and go back to where I was. I answer myself back a lot, too. Usually, I agree with every word I said and even wish I'd said it sooner. One good thing about it, though, I can tell myself to shut up and not make anybody mad.

According to a news release from the U.S. attorney's office, Horvath claimed during an interview with a probation officer on Aug. 9, 2001, that he had served in the Marine Corps. The officer was gathering information on Horvath on a prior charge of being a fugitive in possession of firearms or ammunition.

The probation officer then attempted to verify Horvath's military service, but was told by the Marine Corps that there was no record of Horvath ever having served.

Horvath then presented the probation officer with evidence of his time in the military, including photographs and decorations. However, Marine Corps representatives

CHAUNCEY, Ohio -In this Midwestern town, potty humor pays the bills.

To collect money for the town's street light bill, The Chauncey Emergency Management Group places a wooden outhouse on residents' lawn with a donation box where the toilet bowl should be and a sign on the door that says "Redneck Wishing Well."

People who find the latrine in their yard have to chip in to get it shipped out. They also get to pick the next home it graces.

The emergency management group's Jerry Dowler, whose phone number is posted inside the outhouse, hauls the privy in his pickup truck.

This one works on several levels but will not disappoint horror fans as there are a few splattery moments. The real trick to these movies is mounting suspense and Wright achieves that as well as injecting a fair amount of dark humor into the proceedings (check the title).

He also coaxes sturdy performances from the aforementioned pair as well as screen veteran Candy Clark ("American Graffiti") and former Saturday Night Live player Jay Mohr, who makes the most of his role as a poetry teacher who embraces the truth and is quick to point out about a certain king who, wanting to go hunting, asked the prime minister if it would rain. He was assured the weather would be good. On the way to the hunt, the royal party was met by a farmer riding a jackass, and the farmer warned the king it was going to rain.

His majesty laughed and went on, but he had barely begun hunting when a downpour came, drenching him and his party. He went back to his palace, threw the prime minister out, and called for the farmer.

"Tell me, how did you know it was going to rain," the king asked the farmer.

"I did not know, your majesty. It's not me, it's my jackass. He puts his ears forward when it's going to rain."

The king sent the farmer away and had the Jackass delivers the goods. There is also a strong central theme about hypocrisy that respects the intelligence of teenagers and manages to forgive the parents for striving to be the best role models they can be for their children. The idea that parents can learn from their children and shouldn't hide their past misdeeds from them is a smart one. Who would have thought that so many ideas could be stuffed into a horror film? me get things ready for my family's big Sunday dinner. I told her to go ahead and clean the green onions and get them ready. She did. Then she told me that she was going to wrap them up in paper towels and put "stretchers" around them.

Well, I sat and I watched. I wanted to' pay close attention because I had never heard of stretching onions before.

I watched as Eve wrapped the onions neatly in the fresh, clean paper towels and then reached into one of my kitchen drawers and and pulled out three rubberbands.

So, if you ever have any use for "onion stretchers," I have learned that I have several of them in my catch-it-all-drawer in my very own kitchen.

Judy, my beautiful daughter, took me to an out-of-town home improvement store the other day to look at a walk-in shower. We found one and it was just fine. But then, I decided that I wanted to pick me up a runner to lay before my stove and kitchen sink. You do know that a runner is a long, narrow rug? Well, we found one to my liking but Judy had to go all over the store to find someone to help us. I guess those workers in that store stay awfully busy. Everyone likes to go to these places, you know.

Well, anyway, Judy finally found three workers, but they were all on their cell phones. Then she found another young man, but it was his break time. After we had been waiting about 30 minutes or so, a young man finally came by and I stopped him and asked him if he would help us. He did, and while he was helping us, I told him about how hard it had been to find anyone to give us a hand. He agreed with me one hundred percent. Then he cut my runner and walked away.

We weren't even finished yet. After about another 30 minutes, a young woman sauntered by. Judy stopped her and asked her about what had happened to our helper. She told Judy that he had gotten sick and had to go home.

I seriously debated with myself about whether to apply for a job there or not at least maybe I could get myself hired just long enough to get my runner rug bought and paid for.

Well, all of these short notes are mostly nonsense, but I've had fun jotting them down, and, if you'll just look, you'll find a moral or at least some food for thought. in most of them. I hope, by now, that you have already discovered some of them and that you have come to realize that in every single day of our lives, there is a lesson to learn.

I'm 86 years old - and still learning.

many more, the most popular sport in the world crowns its champion today in the World Cup soccer final live from Berlin. It began exactly one month ago as 32 teams, including hosts Germany and defending champion Brazil, spread across German soil to kick off the elimination process, and now it's down to the 64th tournament match to see who owns the Cup for the next four years.

3:30 p.m. TNT NASCAR Racing

The improvements have been slow in coming, but now the No. 8 Chevy team of Dale Earnhardt Jr. is among the Chase contenders, a far cry from where they stood at this time last year. Getting better runs at the intermediate tracks, like his third-place finish at Michigan in June, have keyed the revival, which perhaps began a year ago at a similar track design, Chicagoland Speedway, where today Junior defends his USG Sheetrock 400 title.

Arrr! After the kids watch the new "Pirates of the Caribbean" movie, show them this special filled with true tales of adventure on the high seas. Dramatizations and computer re-creations bring to life such real characters as Blackbeard, Henry Morgan, Ann Bonny and Calico Jack Rackham, and traces the evolution of some well-known pirates from privateers - sanctioned by their governments to plunder other nations' booty at sea -- to freelancers.

9 p.m. CBS Movie: Saving Milly

Not your mother's disease-of-theweek movie, this touchingly done docudrama tells the story of journalist Morton Kondracke and his wife, Milly, an activist stricken with Parkinson's disease. The illness turns Kondracke, played by Bruce Greenwood, into an activist himself as he joins the crusade for a cure. If Madeleine Stowe's heart-wrenching portrayal of Milly doesn't move you, check your pulse. Intal

THE FALLER 9 p.m. COMEDY

Chappelle's Show

We like Dave Chappelle's humor, so we were as burnmed as everyone else when he walked away from his hit show, and now we're thrilled that the last few bits he shot are hitting the

10 p.m. SHOWTIME Brotherhood

It may be always sunny in Philadelphia, but it's always gray in a certain neighborhood in Providence, R.I. We're talking about morals, though, not weather. This new series set in that Irish-American enclave will have you scratching your head at times, trying to figure out who the good and bad guys are, as the central characters are a pair of brothers - one a politician, one a gangster who are neither completely angel nor devil. Hey, just like real life.

MONDAY, JULY 10 8 p.m. AMC

Movie: The Sting

Paul Newman and Robert Redford repeated their "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" teamwork in Oscar's best picture of 1973, a devilishly entertaining comedy. The stars play Depression-era con artists determined to swindle a vicious gangster (Robert Shaw). The music, adapted by Marvin Hamlisch from Scott Joplin's ragtime tunes, also earned an Academy Award.

8 p.m. TCM Movie: Tom Jones

Serious students of Brit lit might take issue with this 1963 adaptation of a Henry Fielding's novel. Let them go reread the book; the rest of us will enjoy the bawdy adventures of the title character (Albert Finney), whose enjoyment of the earthly delights of 1 18th-century England almost get him hanged. There are some "look what we can do!" camera tricks, but they didn't keep the film from winning the best picture Oscar - rare for both imports and comedies.

9 p.m. LIFETIME

Movie: Not Like Everyone Else We'd watch Alia Shawkat read the phone book, so it's a major treat to see what the young "Arrested Development" alumna can do with a meaty story like the one in this docudrama. She plays an Oklahoma teen whose interest in alternative spiritual practices makes her the target of a literal witch hunt after a teacher falls mysteriously ill. Post-Columbine hysteria, you see. Shawkat rocks her

TUESDAY, JULY 11 8 p.m. CINEMAX Movie: Raising Arizona

Just your standard boy-meets-girl flick, except that the boy (Nicolas Cage) is a small-time thief, the girl (Holly Hunter) is a cop, and they have a rather unconventional way of starting a family. When they discover they can't have kids, the Mrs. persuades her hubby to steal one from a set of quintuplets. Hey, there are five; Mom and Dad won't miss one. The Coen brothers of "O Brother, Where Art Thou?" fame wrote and directed this 1987 comedy.

8 p.m. TCM

Movie: Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid

A Western for folks who don't like Westerns, this delightful 1969 classic lives on in the hearts of its two leads: Paul Newman, who named his children's charity after the film's Holein-the-Wall Gang, and Robert Redford, who named his film institute after his character. Katharine Ross and Ted Cassidy -- better known as Lurch from "The Addams Family" -- also star in the tale of two outlaws coping with the tarning of the American West.

Keep your SpongeBob, kiddies; we'll take Tintin. The boy reporter with the odd hairdo – front cowlick? Prewar Mohawk? – has been entertaining comic readers for decades with his wild adventures. But what about the guy who created him? There's a lot of Georges Remi, aka Herge, in Tintin, as you'll see in "Tintin and I," based on interviews the reclusive cartoonist gave in 1971. Clever cartoon work puts Herge in his creation's world.

American Masters

Chances are you grew up singing Woody Guthrie's songs – "Riding in My Car" and "This Land Is Your Land" come to mind – but how much do you know about the man? Prepare to be educated and entertained by this biography of the great American troubadour, lavishly illustrated not just with his music but with his artwork. Pete Seeger, who knew and performed with Guthrie, and Bruce Springsteen, who recently did an album of Seeger covers, comment. Good stuff.

Nightmares & Dreamscapes: From the Stories of Stephen King Hey, it's hot out. You could use a few goose bumps. How about an eightepisode anthology of Stephen King stories, brought to the little screen with big-screen sensibilities and star power? William Hurt stars in the opener, "Battleground," a "Twilight Zone"-ish tale of toy soldiers who come to life and attack the hit man who killed their creator. Best to answer nature's call before it starts, as it airs without commercials.

Movie: Queen Kelly

If you only know Gloria Swanson as the deluded, aging ex-star in "Sunset Boulevard," here's a chance to catch her in her heyday. Erich Von Stroheim directed this 1929 silent classic, which casts Swanson as an orphan who catches the eye of a prince and the wrath of his half-mad royal fiancee. Von Stroheim – later Swanson's costar in "Sunset" – was fired before the film could be properly finished, but don't worry; you won't be left hanging.

THURSDAY, JULY 13 9 p.m. NBC The Office

See, this is why you should never share a secret with the likes of Michael (Steve Carell). To keep Michael from telling everyone else at the office about his feelings for Pam (Jenna Fischer), Jim (John Krasinski) has to be his boss's best buddy. And if you've seen the show, you know that's not the easlest job in the world, especially when he wants to do lunch at Hooters. Jim's uncomfortable as heck, but that's where the laughs come from.

10 p.m. FOOD

Throwdown With Bobby Flay

Bobby Flay can't resist a challenge. In this new series, he subjects himself to a new one every week. In each episode, cameras descend on an award-winning cook or baker, allegedly to shoot a profile. They're really there to capture the action when Flay reveals himself and throws down the gauntlet -- er, oven mitt. He'll take on the master in a cook-off of the latter's specialty, and may the best chef win.

worked its magic and sucked us in. The travails of our instant millionaires continue with Sean and Tally's (DJ Cotrona, Peyton List) bonding over Zoe's passing disrupted by a revelation about where her share of the winnings are going. Owning a business together proves difficult for Peter and Cameron (Luke Perry, Jason Gedrick), as if their marital issues weren't enough, in this new episode.

FRIDAY, JULY 14 8 p.m. AMC Movie: The Day the Earth Stood

Still

One of the most intelligent sciencefiction movies yet made, director Robert Wise's 1951 classic doubles as a cautionary tale about nuclear war. Michael Rennie is superb as a human-looking allen who lands in Washington, D.C. with his traveling companion: a metallic robot that can disintegrate weapons with its laser "eyesight." Patricia Neal and Billy Gray ("Father Knows Best") play earthlings who befriend the visitors.

8 p.m. CMT Summerfest

If you went to Summerfest, Milwaukee's monster music festival, chances are your ears are still ringing. If you didn't, here's your chance to catch three of this year's hot acts. This special showcases Lynyrd Skynyrd's performance, and CMT's mini-Summerfest continues Saturday with Hank Williams Jr. and Sunday with Hank Williams Jr. and Sunday with rising star Dierks Bentley ("What Was I Thinkin'?"). Southern rock, old- and new-school country; does it get any better?

9 p.m. ABC Kyle XY

There's nothing wrong with a little cross-promotion between a network and its sister cable channel, especially if it gives extra exposure to a good show. This mystery series from ABC Family definitely qualifies, so kudos to big brother ABC for giving it a spot. If you're just tuning in, it's the tale of a teen (Matt Dallas) of mysterious origins who's learning to be a "real boy." To quote an old commercial, try it; you'll like it.

SATURDAY, JULY 15 8 p.m. FX

Movie: The League of Extraordinary Gentlemen

An "X-Men" for bookworms, this enjoyable and fanciful 2003 adventure has a group of literary heroes saving the world via their unique talents. Sean Connery heads the cast as explorer Allan Quatermain, who fights an Armageddon-plotting villain with help from Tom Sawyer (Shane West), Captain Nemo (Naseeruddin Shah), the Invisible Man (Tony Curran), Dr. Jekyll (Jason Flemyng) and ever-young Dorian Gray (Stuart Townsend). Peta Wilson also stars.

8 p.m. NBC Saturday Night's Main Event

Are you ready for some rasslin'? Folks without access to cable and pay-per-view get a real treat tonight: two hours of all-star WWE action on good old broadcast TV. Wrestlers from all three WWE series --"Monday Night RAW," "Friday Night SmackDown!" and "Extreme Championship Wrestling" -- including Triple H, Kurt Angle, John Cena and Trish Stratus, are slated to take part. So kick back and enjoy ... but watch out for flying chairs.

Brooklynite Henry Hill (Ray Liotta) takes the gangland route to fame and fortune in Martin Scorsese's masterful 1990 exploration of organized crime. By turns violent and funny, relentlessly profane and unfallingly stylish, this adaptation of Nicholas Pileggi's book "Wiseguy" boasts an over-the-top, Oscar-winning performance by supporting actor Joe Pesci. Robert De Niro and Lorraine Bracco also star.

canola oil! Sweet potatoes are nutritional powerhouses. An important source of beta-carotene, vitamin C, potassium and fiber, they also contain just 140 calories. Sweet potatoes are a versatile vegetable that can be used in both sweet and savory recipes. Really. Just like canola oil.

Use canola oil in any recipe that calls for vegetable oil, and you'll get excellent nutrition and incredible functionality. Canola oil has the lowest saturated (bad) fat of all popular vegetable oils and contains no trans fat or cholesterol. Canola oil is high in monounsaturated (good) fat and contains omega-3s and vitamin E.

These nutrient-packed recipes are quick and easy to make, and best of all, they are good for you and taste great. Share them with family and friends.

The Quick Sweet Potato Pie With Honey-Walnut Topping and a Cookie Crust will delight your guests with its naturally sweet filling and cookie crust. The Roasted Vegetable Minestrone Soup is packed with flavor and goes great with the Sweet Potato Biscuits. The biscuits are so moist from the canola oil and sweet potatoes, you'll want to double the batch.

For more great recipes, go to www.canolainfo.org and www.sweetpotato.org.

Roasted Vegetable Minestrone

The roasted veggies with the prosciutto add many wonderful flavors to this earthy, rich Italian soup.

- 2 sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into chunks
- 1 medium zucchini, cut in chunks
- 1 medium yellow squash, cut in chunks 1 medium eggplant, peeled and cut into
- chunks (about 1 1/4 pounds)
- 5 Roma tomatoes, cut into chunks
- 1 red onion, cut into chunks
- sil/4 cup canola oil
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 ounces prosciutto, diced
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano leaves 1 tablespoon dried basil leaves
- Dash red pepper flakes
- 2 hay leaves
   1 (14 1/2-ounce) can whole tomatoes in juice, broken up

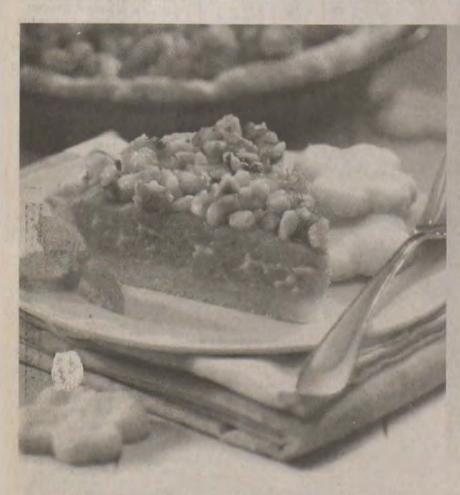

- 9 cups chicken broth
- 1 (16-ounce) can cannellini or other white beans, rinsed and drained
- 2/3 cup uncooked ziti pasta
- Grated Parmesan cheese, optional

Preheat oven to 400°F. Line baking sheet with foil and on it place sweet potatoes, zucchini, yellow squash, eggplant, tomatoes, red onion and garlic. Toss vegetables with canola oil. Add salt and pepper to taste. Roast 45 minutes to 1 hour, stirring vegetables after 30 minutes. Remove from oven and set aside.

In large non-stick pot coated with canola oil cooking spray, cook prosciutto, oregano, basil and red pepper flakes over medium heat 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add bay leaves, tomatoes, chicken broth and beans. Bring mixture to boil and add pasta. Lower heat and simmer 15 minutes or until pasta is done. Add vegetables, remove bay leaves and check seasoning. If soup is too thick, add more chicken broth or water. Serve with Parmesan cheese if desired.

Makes 12 cups

To freeze: Cool to room temperature. Transfer to freezer containers, label and freeze. To serve from freezer: Thaw. Reheat in non-stick pot over low heat until warmed through or reheat in microwave oven. If soup is too thick, add more chicken broth or water. Serve with Parmesan cheese if desired.

• Elk drawing deadline July 31

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT – It's simple. There's roughly 5,700 elk, but only 200 hunting permits. The deadline to enter for this year's Elk Hunt Drawing is July 31. The cost to apply is $10.

Drawn licensed hunters who live in Kentucky will be required to pay another $25 for a permit to hunt.

Non-Kentucky residents will pay $300 if drawn.

The permits are available online at fw.ky.gov. Permits may also be obtained in person at any license dealer, or by calling 1-877-598-2401.

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission has voted to allow handgun hunting for elk beginning this season. The new regulation will allow elk hunting with any handgun with a barrel at least 6 inches long, and firing a cartridge capable maintaining at least 500 footpounds of energy at 100 yards with a bullet diameter of .270 or greater. For pistols, this will include some.41-caliber handguns, and handguns equal or more powerful than the .44-caliber magnum.

Floyd County Times Interview: John Gilliam

This week's FCT One-On-On Interview is with Morehead State University football defensive coordinator John Gilliam, both a Prestonsburg High School and MSU graduate.

FCT: What does it mean for you to be able to coach at your alma mater?

JG: When we initially came back it was a big thrill for us. We enjoy the area. Working for the University is a different aspect for us. My wife is also from here. This has become our home. We've been here for a while now and have some great friends.

FCT: You're busy throughout the year, during the season and in the offseason. How's this offseason went? JG: The offseason becomes more and more important. We refer to the offseason as our second season. We signed 45 kids for the upcoming season and that number should go up another 10. We expect to have 50 or 52 true freshmen.

native, you get the opportunity to recruit in and around your hometown of Prestonsburg. Is Eastern Kentucky always a recruiting destination?

JG: Yes, we're always looking for kids in Eastern Kentucky to join our team. As far as that goes, we're always looking for Kentucky kids. Each year we try to hit all of the schools we can during the recruiting season, especially if a coach has a player he feels can help us.

FCT: Is MSU Football wellreceived with high school coaches around the state? JG: It is – we have some great high school football coaches here in Kentucky. They want to see their players succeed and have the best opportunities.

FCT: Kentucky kids fill many roster spots for the MSU football team. What kind of reception do you get from kids when they come in on recruiting trips?

JG: Once the kids get here and see our campus and our facilities, they like what they see.

I think you'll find as many Kentucky kids on our roster as any instate program. Our players PAINTSVILLE - Rain interrupted the Prestonsburg and Virgie 9-10-year-old All-Stars Tuesday evening when they met up in a final round pool play game. The game was halted in the bottom half of the third inning with Prestonsburg at-bat and the game knotted at 2-2. Rain continued Wednesday, ultimately forcing the game to start back Thursday evening. When the final round pool play game eventually resumed, Prestonsburg pulled away. The Prestonsburg All-Stars, behind the strong pitching of Tate Goble and a host of explosive hitters, defeated Phelps 13-3 in five innings. The Mercy Rule-win allowed the Prestonsburg 9-10s to finish pool play perfect at 3-0.

"I can't say enough about our kids," said Prestonsburg Manager Les Stapleton. "They have worked hard and continue to play hard."

Prestonsburg allowed Virgie to score two runs in the top half of the first inning Tuesday evening. The Prestonsburg All-Stars answered Virgie with two runs of their own in the home half of the opening inning. When the game got going again Thursday evening, Prestonsburg again shook a slow start. Prestonsburg didn't come across with any runs in the third inning, but plated five in the fourth frame. After giving up two runs in the first inning Tuesday, Goble surrendered just one more run Thursday. Virgie got its third and final run in the top half of the fifth inning. The Virgie team never led after enjoying the 2-0 advantage in the first inning.

Goble was strong in going the distance for Prestonsburg. The P'burg starter fanned five batters

New spec engine, age drop for Grand Nationals

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. – NASCAR has announced a multifaceted new program for the Grand National Division, which includes the East Series and the West Series. In previous years, local drivers have been among those to thrive in the Grand National Division.

A new spec engine will be available for teams in those divisions, beginning on Aug. 1; the new engine is expected to save teams considerable amounts of money while delivering stellar performance. for Grand National cars also is now available for use in the Grand National

The new spec engine is available through Provident Auto Supply, a North Carolina-based performance parts distributor owned by former Cup Series championship crew chief Gary Nelson, who also worked with NASCAR as Cup Series director, Vice President of Competition and Vice President of Research and Development. In addition to the spec engine, a composite body for Grand National cars also is now available for use in the Grand National Division. Composite bodies are currently available from Summit Racing, BSR Products and Eshleman Racing.

The combination of the spec engine, composite body and the option of running either 105- or 110-inch wheel bases, comprise a wide variety of cost-saving initiatives for the Grand National Division, which will serve as a developmental series for up-and-coming future stars of NASCAR.

The sanctioning organization also plans to reduce its minimum driving age to 16 for the Grand National and Modified tours beginning in 2007.

"We're taking these steps with the Grand National Division to reduce the cost of racing at these levels," NASCAR Vice President of Competition Robin Pemberton said. "The combination of the spec engine, composite

"The success of our All-Star teams is a direct result of coaches and parents getting involved in Little League," Stapleton said.

Prestonsburg closed the file on Virgie in the bottom half of the fifth inning, scoring six runs.

Leadoff hitter Hunter Brown led the Prestonsburg offense, going 3for-4 with a home run, a double and a single. Brown scored a game-high three runs for the Prestonsburg All-Stars. Adam Griffith also went 3-for4 for Prestonsburg.

Goble helped his cause at the plate, going 3-for-4 with two singles and a triple. Prestonsburg starting catcher/cleanup hitter Trey Stapleton added two hits, including a triple.

teid leaves Hendrick for chance with one-man trucks team Celtics sign draft

by JOHN MILBURN ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Kan. - In era in which promising ung drivers land prime jobs th big-name racing teams, oston Reid is doing things fferently.

But what might appear to me to be a step backward om an experienced racing mily actually could be seversteps forward for the rookie ASCAR Craftsman Truck ries driver.

In Reid's opinion, less realis more.

The 23-year-old Reid oved from being one of a indful of drivers in the endrick Motorsports develmental program to the sole iver for rookie owner Rick 'oodard.

"I knew it was for real. I new it was legit. I knew it asn't a deal that was going to me and then go," Reid said. t something I was going into at was stable and that's what needed, because in my heart I now I can do this. It's just a atter of aligning myself with sople that can do it."

Reid was signed as a develoment driver for Hendrick in 304. He shared seat time in le Hendrick Busch Series, nd kept busy with the USAC ilver Crown Series and RCA events. But the future at endrick changed quickly hen Ricky Hendrick died in ctober 2004 in a plane crash a route to Martinsville, Va.

"The developmental program got put on the back burner, and for good reason," Reid said. "They had to focus on getting their drivers in the Chase."

Reid competed in seven Busch races for Hendrick, finishing a best of 17th at Nashville.

A phone call from Rick Woodard changed Reid's fortunes. Woodard, a construction company owner in Cape Coral, Fla., called looking for a driver as he assembled a truck team for 2006. Woodard owned an ARCA team in 2005, finishing 10th in the points with driver Johnny Leonard. But Woodard always wanted to be part of NASCAR.

Reid said sharing time at Hendrick in a car with other drivers limited his ability to those who think he's too young learn and grow as a driver. At Woodard, he's the only driver and the focus of the team's efforts.

"I honestly don't take a look at it as a step back, it's a step forward," Reid said. "Even though you're not at a mass organization of Hendrick Motorsports, you've got a team dedicated to you, to your truck."

Woodard had no qualms hiring Reid to be a driver, knowing that the potential to win and willingness to learn were present.

"We've done good so far," Woodard said. "New team owner, new driver, new crew chief, it's been interesting. But it's the small steps I'm really looking at. We're a first-year team and we don't have any DNFs because of mechanical failure. We've never had anything fall off the truck or loose on the truck.

"To me, that's no small accomplishment."

The final piece was adding crew chief Mark Nelson, the former head mechanic for Robby Gordon's Nextel Cup team. Nelson took over duties after the race at Martinsville when Patrick Donahue left to be crew chief for Ray Evernham and Erin Crocker's truck.

"It was the chemistry I noticed. I mean it was instant, you could tell they could get along," Woodard said.

At 24, Nelson said there are to make the calls on the truck and get it prepared to be successful on the track.

"It's working. We keep going faster and faster, but there are weekends we just struggle," Nelson said. "There are weekends you wish you were 45 years old."

The team has been in the top 20 each week, posting a season-best 14th at Mansfield, Ohio.

"It's not going to happen overnight. I was at Hendrick Motorsports and it didn't happen overnight," Reid said.

Woodard is patient with Nelson and Reid, and is eager to see how the team does when it returns to tracks for a second time. Then there will be few excuses for not improving performances.

"I'm a competitive guy," Woodard said.

Reid said the veteran drivers in the truck series have helped him along the way in his first season, including points leader Todd Bodine.

Bodine said the rookie has the tools and the personality to have success. The veteran of every level of NASCAR said Reid takes instruction and criticism well.

"He's one of the kids who's really got a good head on his shoulders to start with. That's hard to find," Bodine said. "A lot of these kids have the ability to go fast, but they don't think."

Bodine said he gained new respect for the rookie after Mansfield, when the two raced for position for about 20 laps.

"He came over after the race and thanked me for racing him clean," Bodine said. "He knows his position in the sport and he's just trying to get to a better position. I'll help him all I can now."

Nelson has a few headaches each weekend, which he attributes to trying to figure ways to make Reid's truck faster.

"Maybe I'm not the smartest guy in the garage right now, but at 27, 28 years old, I will have four years of experience when other guys are still mechanics," Nelson said. "It may not be the best decision right now, but it's the path I want to go."

Shot put and discus throwing sector goes into effect in 2006-07

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

INDIANAPOLIS - Effective with the 2006-07 high school track and field season, the throwing sector of 34.92 degrees is now required for the shot put and discus events. In addition to this change that was approved last year for implementation in 2006-07, seven rules revisions were approved by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) Track and Field Rules Committee at its June 11-12 meeting in Indianapolis. These rules changes subsequently were approved by the NFHS Board of Directors.

The rules committee determined at its 2005 meeting that the throwing sector of 34.92 degrees would be required for the 2006-07 season," said Mike Colbrese, executive director of the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association and chairperson of the NFHS Track and Field Rules Committee. "This year's committee developed optional guidelines for the discus cage. Those guidelines are now found in the appendix reference."

In another change, Rule 7-5-12 states that the runway adjacent to the pole vault box may be marked with a permanent 1-centimeter or one halfinch line drawn through the top of the vault box (zero point) and extended 10 feet on each side. This will allow the host school to have a visible aid for proper placement of the landing pad, which will speed up the process when a last-minute change has to be made due to inclement weather.

"When there are prevailing winds, the host school would like to have the option of turning the pit in the opposite direction, and allowing for the line to be marked would aid in that process," Colbrese said.

Rule 9-6-5 was amended to stipulate that a competitor shall wear the assigned unaltered number when numbers are provided and computer chip(s) when those devices are used in competition.

"This addition makes it clear that when assigned for use, competitors shall wear the computer chips as assigned without altering or else be disqualified," said Becky Oakes, NFHS assistant director and liaison to the NFHS Track and Field Rules Committee.

The "set" starting command was eliminated for races or opening legs of relays of 600 meters or more indoors. Runners now will be expected to be set when instructed "On your marks."

The standard scoring system for the decathlon, pentathlon and heptathlon shall be the point scale established by the IAAF (International Association of Athletics Federations), unless the state association determines otherwise.

"The rule permits these special events to be conducted, but did not specify how to score," Oakes said. "This note to Rule 8 clarifies use of a standard scoring system unless determined otherwise by the state association.

Several rules changes will impact athletes' apparel and were adopted for clarify. Rule 3-2-4(o) states that games committees may restrict the wearing of items worn in excess of the school uniform, such as headwear. Rule 4-3-1b(5) and 9-6-1b(6) state that an American flag patch, not to exceed 2 by 3 inches, and either a commemorative or memorial patch, not to exceed 4 square inches, may be worn on the uniform top or bottom. Rule 4-3-1c now states that only a single manufacturer's logo/trademark/ reference, no more than 21/4 square inches with no dimension more than 21/4 inches, is permitted on the uniform bottom when a two-piece uniform is worn.

Track and field is the third-most popular sport among boys and the second-most popular sport among girls at the high school level with 944,901 combined participants during the 2004-05 season, according to the High School Athletics Participation Survey conducted by the NFHS. It also ranks second in school sponsorship for both boys and girls.

Softball right-of-way rules go into effect next season

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

INDIANAPOLIS - Effective with the 2007 high school softball season, new rules will dictate who has the right-of-way between a base runner and a fielder on a non-controlled batted ball. These rules revisions were approved by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) Softball Rules Committee at its June 18-19 meeting in Indianapolis, and then were subsequently approved by the NFHS Board of Directors.

"A player legally running the bases has full responsibility to avoid contact with a fielder who is attempting to make an initial play on a batted ball," said Ralph Swearngin, executive director of the Georgia High School Association and chairperson of the NFHS Softball Rules Committee. "However, after a fielder has had an opportunity to make an initial play on a batted ball, the responsibility for contact changes. Once a fielder, excluding the pitcher, misplays a batted ball, that fielder should not be protected and, therefore, should not be permitted to obstruct the advancement of a runner.'

A revised definition of interference states that a fielder is considered to be making an initial play on a fair batted ball when she has a reasonable chance to catch or gain control of the ball that no other fielder, except the pitcher, has touched. The fielder is still considered to be making an initial play if she fails to gain control of the batted ball, but is within a "step and reach" of the ball. This rule clarifies that the runner is charged with interference if she makes contact while the fielder is attempting to make the initial play on a fair batted ball.

In another change, Rule 3-6-17 expands the penalty when a player removes any lines of the batter's box or on the field of play. A team warning will be issued, with the next offense resulting in a strike for the offense or a ball for the defense. The change now restricts any subsequent offender to the dugout along with the head coach.

In addition to these two rules changes, the committee approved six major editorial changes. New Rule 2-15 clearly defines the confines of the field of play as the designated dugout/bench area and any enclosed or marked area designated as a warmup area that is adjacent to the field and within view of the umpire(s).

This rule identifies an area that has been left to umpire or site-by-site discretion," said Mary Struckhoff, NFHS assistant director and liaison to the NFHS Softball Rules Committee.

Malicious contact penalties will be clarified with additions made to Rule 3-6-18, which now states that if malicious contact is made by the offense, the play is dead immediately and the offender is declared out, unless she has already scored. If the defense is responsible for the malicious contact, the offender is ejected at the end of playing action.

For state associations that have chosen to utilize a double first base, Rule 8-10 will now provide more detailed information.

"With more states permitting the use of a double first base, we thought it necessary to make some additions to clarify which player uses the white and colored portions of the base," Struckhoff said.

The committee also identified Points of Emphasis for the 2007 season. Among those are concussions, batter delays, obstruction and interference, and inspection of equipment by umpires.

Softball is the fourth-most popular. sport among girls at the high school level with 364,759 participants during the 2004-05 season, according to the High School Athletics Participation Survey conducted by the NFHS. It also ranks fourth in school sponsorship across the nation.

DANVILLE - The Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCAC) has announced its 2006 Student-Athlete Academic Honor Roll for the 2005-06 spring term. From the 12 winter and spring sports, Centre College placed 80 student-athletes on the honor roll.

The 80 Centre student-athletes on the honor roll represent the second highest total in school history, falling only two short of the 2005 spring term of 82. To be eligible a student-athlete must maintain a minimum grade-point average of 3.25 for the term and be a regular member of a varsity athletic team in a sport sponsored by the conference.

Because the winter sports end during the spring term, both men's and women's basketball and men's and women's swimming and diving teams are included in the spring honor roll. Four Centre teams put at least 10 student-athletes on the honor roll led by the men's track and field team with 12. The men's basketball team, women's swimming and diving team and women's track and field team added 10 each. Paintsville native Stuart Rutledge was one of the Centre men's basketball players named to the honor roll.

In addition, the baseball team placed nine on the honor roll and the softball team had eight. Both the men's and women's tennis teams added five each. The men's swimming and diving team had four, the men's golf team three and both the women's golf team and women's basketball team placed two each on #### the honor roll.

Of the 80 student-athletes on the honor roll, 35 qualified for at least the second time. Ten of those have been named to the honor roll at least three times and five have earned Academic all-SCAC all four years.

The 10 schools in the SCAC have combined to place 793 student-athletes on the 2006 spring honor roll, a new conference record. The previous high was 764 set one year ago. Since the honor roll's inception in 1997, over 9,000 male and female student-athletes have been recognized for their contributions in the classroom.

Ole Miss nabs Florida transfer

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

OXFORD, Miss. - Andy Kennedy's Ole Miss basketball team reinforced the future of its backcourt with championship experience Wednesday, announcing that David Huertas of the national-champion Florida Gators is transferring to join the Rebels.

Due to NCAA transfer rules, the 6-foot-5, 178-pound guard can start practicing with the team in the fall but is ineligible for the 2006-07 season. Huertas may begin playing in the 2007-08 campaign with three years of eligibility remaining.

"David is a quality young man and a big guard with the ability to score in a variety of ways," said Kennedy, who is preparing for his first season as Ole Miss head coach. "He is obviously familiar with the SEC and comes from a winning program.

"With the players we have graduating after this upcoming season, it's an ideal situation for us to have a player of David's caliber sit out a year and come back with three years left."

A rising sophomore from Humacao, Puerto Rico, Huertas is currently working out at the Puerto Rican national team trials and is the youngest member of the preliminary roster.

He played in 35 games as a freshman for the Gators in 2005-06, including all 16 SEC contests, the NCAA Elite Eight win over Villanova and the Final Four victory against George Mason. Huertas connected on 33.3 percent (12-of-36) from three-point range last year and scored a career-high 15 points against Savannah State.

Ironically, he made his lone start of the season against the Rebels in Oxford, garnering a career-high 28 minutes and posting nine points and four boards.

Huertas finished the year with averages of 2.5 points and 1.5 rebounds.

His prep days were spent at Arlington Country Day in Jacksonville, Fla., where as a senior, he averaged 20.0 points, 7.0 rebounds and 5.0 assists in leading his team to the first 2A state title in school history and a No. 7 USA Today final national ranking. As a junior, he was the Florida 2A Player of the Year with a 21.0-point scoring clip.

The addition of Huertas marks the second time this week Ole Miss has dipped into the Sunshine State for talent, having inked guard Eniel Polynice of Booker High School in Sarasota on Monday.

Other Rebel signees of the offseason include guard Rodney Jones of Peabody Magnet (La.) High School and forwards Andy Ogide from Paulding County (Ga.) High School and Kenny Williams from St. Petersburg (Fla.) Community College. Also new to the Ole Miss lineup in 2006-07 will be sophomore guard Justin Cerasoli, who sat out last year after transferring from Seton Hall in July 2005.

Mixed blessing: Where there are blackberries, there are chiggers

by STEVE VANTREESE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PADUCAH - Like bacon and eggs, some things just seem to go ogether.

So it is with blackberries and chiggers, an interwoven duo that's good news and bad in a package deal.

Blackberries are the familiar fruits of several species of Rubus genus plants that grow as upright and spreading canes. The canes produce leaves and spring flowers, followed by some of the sweetest natural fruits in our wild environment.

Blackberry plants are some of the first to "volunteer" in open or cleared ground, canes reaching several feet in the few months of a single growing season. A blackberry cane produces fruit in its second year, then dies, newer canes carrying on with production.

The most apparent feature of the blackberry plant is that it bristles with needle-sharp thorns that grab at the clothing of human pedestrians, bogging them down and readily piercing tender skin.

The canes are generally avoided because of their painful "sticker" characteristics - except right about now and into midsummer as their berries ripen. They yield delicious fruit, long famous as prime ingredients in cobblers and other desserts, and they are quite desirable for eating berries alone.

The berries turn glossy black when ripe. When "green," they're an attractive red.

Humans have no exclusive favor for blackberries. The fruits of the thorny canes are an important seasonal food for most species of Kentucky wildlife. Many varieties of songbirds, wild turkey and quail eat them. So do raccoons, opossums, coyotes, foxes, voles. The deer, for one species, likes them ripe, green - red, that is - or past their prime in a dried condition.

Despite the thorns, the plants themselves are important to wildlife. Deer eat the leaves and rabbits nibble the canes. Several songbirds are attracted to the canes for nesting habitat, and numerous birds, rabbits and small rodents use the prickly thickets as escape cover.

In early to middle July, people often turn to wild thickets for gathering berries to eat fresh or to freeze. Just after these gathering sessions is when they often note the itchy red welts on their skin that represent the handiwork of chiggers.

Chiggers, the larva of harvest mites, are red-orange, six-legged arachnids that you've probably never seen. That's because it would take roughly 120 of them marching along squirrels, box turtles, deer, mice and in a tight nose-to-rump formation to make an inch-long column. They are so small as to be invisible to the human eye.

Adult harvest mites don't do this, but chiggers are parasites that feed, when given the opportunity, on humans and other animals. The chigger doesn't suck blood, but it crawls on a host, finds its way to a hair follicle or pore, then jabs a cutting mouthpart into the skin. From there it injects a sort of saliva that digests and liquefies tissue, then sucks it up. The chigger itself doesn't bury into the skin Chigger "bites" on people show up as red, itchy bumps that are the leftover result of the digestive juice injected into the skin. By the time people start scratching chigger welts, the tiny animal itself already may have dropped off, full and satisfied.

Human hosts of chiggers often use a folk remedy of painting welts with nail polish to "smother" the chiggers, which likely already have departed. The nail polish, indeed, may give some relief from itching by keeping air from the welts. Over-the-counter ointments with antihistamines or topical anesthetics may provide more relief from the torment.

Chiggers seem inseparable from blackberries, although they could be as prevalent on growth around blackberry canes as on the canes themselves. Weedy habitat is generally effective in giving chiggers access to human pickers.

For berry picking or any other activity in tall grasses, weeds and brush, the best recommendation for blocking chiggers is a combination of a permethrine-based repellent sprayed thoroughly on one's clothing, and an application of a DEET-based insect repellent on exposed skin.

Hatchery surplus produces stocking bonanza for Ohio River

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

FRANKFORT - Minor Clark Fish Hatchery just downstream of Cave Run Lake Dam produced excess numbers of hybrid striped bass this year. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources stocked these excess fish in the Ohio and Kentucky Rivers and should provide excellent fishing in the coming years on the two rivers.

"Our hatcheries did a tremendous job producing hybrid striped bass this year," said Gerry Buynak, assistant director of fisheries for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. Fisheries officials requested 150,000 hybrid striped bass for stocking in the Ohio River. The hatchery produced over 479,000.

"The Ohio River looks fantastic this spring," said Doug Henley, Ohio River fisheries biologist for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We had such a great year spawning last year on the river for all species, but especially forage fish such as emerald shiners and shad. We should have another year like that this year. We had three feet of visibility earlier this spring, which is phenomenal for the Ohio River.'

The fisheries division of Kentucky Fish and Wildlife originally planned to stock 30,000 hybrid striped bass in the Markland pool of the Ohio River, but the surplus allowed them to stock 112,000. They planned to stock 12,000 hybrid striped bass in the McApline pool of the river, but stocked 60,000.

Fisheries officials slated 24,000 hybrid striped bass for stocking in the Cannelton pool of the Ohio River, but stocked 88,500. The Uniontown pool of the river received twice as many hybrid striped bass as originally planned and the Smithland pool was to receive 15,000, but got 71,000.

The hatchery produced so many hybrid striped bass that biologists were able to stock two extra pools of the Kentucky River. "This is the first year we stocked that many pools of the Kentucky River with hybrid striped bass," Buynak explained. "We originally planned to stock pools four through nine, but we had extra fish so we also stocked pools two and three."

The Kentucky River would have received 20,000 hybrid striped bass, but fisheries biologists and technicians stocked 34,000.

"It was a very good year," Buynak said. "If these rivers continue to look this good and our survival is good, watch out. The fishing should be phenomenal in a few years for hybrids on both of these rivers.'

Stewart exhibit unveiled at IMS Hall of Fame

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

INDIANAPOLIS - Hoosier hero Tony Stewart received more accolades and one-of-a-kind awards for winning the 2005 Allstate 400 at the Brickyard during a public ceremony and media event Wednesday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Hall of Fame Museum.

Stewart, a native and resident of nearby Columbus, Ind., accepted his race winner's ring from IMS President and Chief Operating Officer Joie Chitwood. Stewart will try to earn a repeat victory in the 13th Allstate 400 at the Brickyard Aug. 6.

Stewart, a two-time Cup champion, also helped unveil a piece of artwork by noted motorsports artist Sam Bass that Bass has donated to the Hall of Fame Museum.

The artwork on display at the museum is a one-of-a-kind color reproduction of an original painting that The Home Depot commissioned Bass to create for Stewart.

The art commemorates post-race events from Stewart's long-sought, emotional victory at the Allstate 400 at the Brickyard: Stewart kissing the famous "Yard of Bricks," climbing the Speedway's catch fence, his No. 20 Chevrolet crossing the finish line and a headshot of Stewart.

Stewart's 2005 win at IMS in the No. 20 Chevrolet was one of the most emotional moments in Indianapolis Motor Speedway history and among the highlights of the 2005 season in which he won his second NASCAR Cup Series championship. His first season title came in 2002.

Stewart also officially opened an exhibit at the Hall of Fame Museum featuring five cars, scheduled to be on display until June 2007, that played a significant role in Stewart's rise from Indiana short-track racer to motorsports superstar.

"It's just a huge honor," Stewart said. "To have visited that museum so many times and seen so many pieces of history, and to have that exhibit dedicated to me is an honor. I don't know how else to put it.

There have been a lot of winners [at IMS], and they've never had an exhibit like this, so it basically makes me speechless. It's cool to see all these cars and see them all together again for the first time in a long time. It brings back a lot of cool memories of good times in my career. To see those cars sitting next to the cars of A.J. Foyt and so many other great winners is incredible."

The cars driven by Stewart that are on display are:

· The 1995 USAC Midget and Sprint championship-winning cars that carried Stewart to USAC's "Triple Crown." In 1995, Stewart became the first driver to win USAC's three national championships (Silver Crown, Sprint and Midget series) in the same year.

The Midget car is the No. 9 Performance Racing Industry Beast/Gaerte owned by Steve Lewis at the time, and the Sprint car is the Glen Niebel-owned No. 20 Boles Chevrolet. The Niebel Silver Crown series car will be added to the display in about a month.

· Stewart's No. 22 The Home Depot Dallara/Oldsmobile/Firestone IRL IndyCar® Series car and the No. 20 The Home Depot Pontiac that he drove at the 1999 Indianapolis 500 and Coca-Cola 600 on the same day. Stewart became part of an elite group that year, becoming only the third driver after John Andretti and Robby Gordon to race "the double," competing in both prestigious races the same day.

. The No. 20 The Home Depot Chevrolet in which Stewart won the 2005 Allstate 400 at the Brickyard.

A sampling of Stewart's driver's suits, helmets and other memorabilia are also on display, including:

· Driver's suit and helmet from the 1995 USAC Triple Crown season.

· Driver's suit and helmet, promoting the motion picture Shrek2. which Stewart wore at the Nextel All-Star Challenge in 2004 at Lowe's Motor Speedway.

All the cars, driver's suits and helmets are part of Stewart's personal collection, generously loaned by him to the Hall of Fame Museum.

Two Busch crew chiefs suspended for six weeks

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. NASCAR announced Thursday penalties and fines that have been issued among six Busch Series teams as a result of rule violations at Daytona International Speedway.

Shane Wilson, crew chief for the No. 21 Chevrolet driven by Kevin Harvick, was fined $15,000 and suspended from NASCAR for the next six events beginning with the July 8 race at Chicagoland Speedway for violating Section 12-4-A (actions detrimental to stock car racing) and 12-4-Q (car, car parts, components and/or equipment used that do not conform to NASCAR rules; Section 20A-2.1E: unapproved modifications in trunk area to enhance aerodynamic performance; Section 20A-3.9F: deck lid must retain stock shape and contours; lower read edge bent to allow air to escape and Section 20A-16.3G: shock absorber access doors missing). The violations were discovered during post-qualifying inspection on June 30.

Additionally, Harvick will lose 50 Busch Series driver points and team owner Richard Childress will forfeit 50 Busch Series owner points.

Also, Gene Nead, the crew chief for the No. 77 Chevrolet driven by Burney Lamar, was fined $15,000 and suspended from the next six events starting with the Chicago race for violating Sections 12-4-A and 12-4-Q (Section 20A-12.3J: unapproved shock absorber components; base valves are not permitted). The infraction was found during post-race inspection on June 30.

As a result, Lamar will lose 50 Busch Series driver points while team owner DeLana Harvick was also penalized with the loss of 50 Busch Series owner points due to the infrac-

Four other crew chiefs were fined due to violations at Davtona, Mark Durgin, crew chief of the No. 43 Chevrolet driven by P.J. Jones and Dave Fuge Jr., crew chief for the No. 34 driven by Paul Tracy, were each fined $5,000 for violating 12-4-A and 12-4-Q. During pre-qualifying inspection on June 30, the No. 43 was found to have unapproved modification to the approved air filter housing while the No. 34 was discovered to have unapproved air directional devices inside the air filter housing.

Also, Rick Gay, crew chief for the

No. 10 Ford driven by John Andretti, was fined $2,500 violation of Sections 12-4-A and 12-4-Q (Section 20A-2.1E: vent near the "A" post modified to enhance aerodynamic performance) and Marc Reno, crew chief for the No 1. Dodge driven by Mike Wallace, was also fined $2,000 for violating 12-4-A and 12-4-Q (Section 20A-16.4.2A: fuel cell vent tube exceeded the maximum use). The No. 10 violation was discovered during pre-qualifying inspection while the No. 1 violation was found during opening day inspection on June 28.

Krisiloff out, Grubb in at Ballew Motorsports SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

MOORESVILLE, N.C. - Billy Ballew, owner of Billy Ballew

Motorsports, announced Thursday that 20-year-old Indianapolis native Kyle Krisiloff will no longer drive the No. 15 Chevrolet Silverado in the Craftsman Truck Series.

Kevin Grubb took over the No. 15 for this weekend's race at Kentucky Speedway. He will also be behind the wheel at next week's event at Memphis Motorsports Park. Billy Ballew Motorsports entered this weekend 24th in the owners' point standings

"Due to a lack of payment and breach of contract by Steve Krisiloff, Kyle's father, and 21st Century Technology, Inc., Kyle Krisiloff will no longer be the driver of the No. 15 Billy Ballew Motorsports Chevrolet," Ballew said. "We are very upset about this and now it is in the hands of the attorneys. We plan on filing a lawsuit immediately."

The Billy Ballew Motorsports team headed to this weekend's event at Kentucky Speedway with Grubb, 28. Grubb had four previous starts in the Craftsman Truck Series, with two coming in 1997 and two in 1996. His best finish of the four is an 11th place at New Hampshire International Speedway.

"In light of the situation, we're glad to have Kevin Grubb join our operation," Ballew said. "Originally, we had planned on taking Kevin to Kentucky anyway to run our second truck, the No. 51 - now he'll jump in the No. 15 Woodard Pools Chevrolet and do a fine job for us.'

"I'm really excited to join Billy Ballew Motorsports," Grubb said.

"The team has already won a race this year [with Kyle Busch in the No. 51] and hopefully we can get another win in the next couple of races.

"I'm excited to work with [crew chief] Richie Wauters. We worked together briefly in the past and it's nice to return to a familiar face. I've also known Billy since he was first getting into truck racing. We always talked about teaming up together and now we've got the chance. I hope to make good things happen from this opportunity."
