Mock disaster planned at OU

MARTIN — Opportunities Unlimited School will stage a mock disaster Nov. 8. The drill is planned to begin at approximately 9:30 a.m.

The purpose of the drill is to provide the opportunity for students, staff, and emergency management personnel to practice disaster/emergency skills during a planned scenario. Mock disaster drills assist in improving communication between different emergency response agencies and schools.

During this planned event, a scenario has been developed that will include the use of Martin City Police and Fire Departments, with assistance from other local law enforcement agencies, Homeland Security and emergency management agencies and local hospitals.

The drill is a component of Floyd County Schools Safe and Drug Free Schools emergency preparedness planning.

Speakers at the dedication of the Eula Hall Highway stood with Hall as the green highway sign was unveiled renaming Route 979 in honor of the tremendous contributions she has made to the area.

State honors Hall by renaming road for her

GRETHEL — "I have never been so proud to know someone who has moved more mountains than a coal company," said state Rep. Chuck Meade, recalling all of the accomplishments that Eula Hall has made over the years.

A special dedication was held at Stumbo Elementary School on Friday to rename Route 979 at Mud Creek the "Eula Hall Highway" in recognition of the efforts she's made over the years that have helped so many in need.

The driving force that started the Mud Creek Clinic 30 years ago, Hall is both an advocate for the needy and one hard working individual who believes that each and every person should have access to health care.

James Kelly, Big Sandy District manager for the Social Security Administration, said Hall has worked tirelessly over the years, helping coal miners get black lung benefits, and she's not one who takes no for an answer.

"Eula is the Mother Teresa of Mud Creek."

The first clinic building fell victim to fire back in the early 1980s, but Hall never missed a step. They set up shop outside under a tree on a picnic table. Eventually, enough money was raised to construct the building where the Mud Creek Clinic is now located.

Tonya Conn, a representative for U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers' office, was present to announce that Hall and her accomplishments will be placed into the Congressional Record on Nov. 13 this year. She said Rogers wanted to let everyone know how much he appreciates the work Hall does.

"This is not something that Congress does every day," Conn said.

State Sen. Johnny Ray Turner was also on hand to express his congratulations on a lifetime of commitment served by Hall.

"I want to applaud the efforts Eula has made to help her fellow Kentuckians," Turner said.

Family members, friends, patients and many others were present to celebrate with Hall at the unveiling of the highway sign bearing her name.

"The best thing I've ever had in my life is my mouth," remarked Hall. She credits her accomplishments to speaking up for what she believes is right.

Ancil Lewis, chief executive officer of Big Sandy Health Care, announced that his company will be setting up a Eula Hall Patient Assistance Fund and a scholarship fund in her name.

It only took James Kelly one sentence to sum up Hall and her life's work when he said, "Eula is the Mother Teresa of Mud Creek."

Native Floyd soldier killed in Iraq

by ALEX SMITH
STAFF WRITER

A 22-year-old Floyd County native was killed Wednesday in Iraq, after the humvee he was riding in was hit by a roadside bomb just outside of Fallujah in al-Anbar province.

U.S. Marine Corps LCpl. Jonathan E. Thornsberry was one of five U.S. troops who died in the bombing early Wednesday morning, including four marines and a navy sailor. Fallujah and al-Anbar province have been known as one of the most violent areas in Iraq since 2003, and the five deaths on Wednesday raised the American death toll in Iraq to 96 this month.

Thornsberry, a McDowell native, joined the Marine Corps in January 2004, following a family tradition of military service. His grandfather and father served in the Army while his brother is in the Air Force.

Thornsberry's wife, Toni, said he was a loving family man who liked to put others needs before his own. She said while she was going to school he worked in the coal mines to pay for her education and planned to go back himself one day.

"He was really kind hearted, real brave," Thornsberry said. "He'd do anything for anyone. He'd give you the shirt off his back."

Thornsberry worked in the mines during the week and spent his weekends training in Johnson City, Tenn.

When Thornsberry's unit was called into action, he hooked up with an attachment out of Grand Rapids, Mich., and was stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif. before he left for his tour of duty in Iraq. Thornsberry arrived in Iraq on Sept. 26.

Toni Thornsberry said her husband would spend his free time at home with

Inmate at federal prison dies after being stabbed

The Associated Press

INEZ — Federal authorities were investigating the death of an inmate at a federal prison in Eastern Kentucky.

Calvin L. Speight, 42, was stabbed Tuesday at Big Sandy Penitentiary in Martin County, prison officials said.

"Preliminary information indicates he was the victim of an assault," said prison spokeswoman Mashelle Arisman in a news release. She did not give details of the circumstances.

"He had stab wounds to the neck," said Floyd County Deputy Coroner Glen Frazier, who examined the body at the hospital.

"A lot of it is still under investigation by the FBI," said Michael Truman, a spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Prisons in Washington.

Speight was serving a prison sentence of 25 years to life for rape and two counts of burglary in Washington, D.C., the news release said.

Speight was transferred Jan. 27, 2004, to the prison.

Times marks 10th year in current location

PRESTONSBURG — The Floyd County Times has been the voice of the county for 79 years, and although many things have changed throughout this period, including new composing and printing technology, many still remain the same.

Just like any other long-standing company, The Floyd County Times has seen it's fair share of employees who are there one day and gone the next, but a few have managed to adapt to the changes and move along with The Times.

This weekend marks the 10-year anniversary of the building which has housed The Floyd County Times newspaper office since its completion in 1996.

Jimmy Goble, who has been with the paper almost since its birth in 1927, still works diligently every day, just as he has since he began his career in 1935 while he was still attending high school. He says hopefully he'll be able to stick around for a few more years. Willie Conley has worked in composing since 1969 and Hannah Adams since 1981.

From the days of laying out and pasting pages by hand, to the more current computer technology, The Floyd County Times strives hard to provide a news source that serves all people of the community.

The Floyd County Times has been located at 263 South Central Ave. since 1996.

Beware!...if you or a family member are injured in an auto crash. Why?

There are many reasons, "Why." The opposing insurance carrier starts its own investigation while you're lying sick or hurt, for one, talking to witnesses, taking statements, looking into your background, things like that, not to mention calling you on the phone for a statement while you may not be able to think clearly. If your car has been damaged or destroyed, what's it worth? Do you really have to take the "book" value? And, what about the problems of getting about without your destroyed vehicle? Are you entitled to a replacement car in the meantime before your claim is settled? What about medical bills? For what will the insurance carrier pay? And, lost wages, if you can't work, do those get paid? What about temporary or permanent injuries to soft tissue? To your spine or limbs or other body parts? Do you have pain from the injury? Have you suffered? Are those to be paid for? Are you stuck with the offending party's little policy limits for permanent injuries? If your spouse is hurt, do you have a damage claim for that? On and on. If all this "stuff" is going on without you "being in the ballgame," so to speak, you're at a distinct disadvantage.

Call us for free advice: We'll meet with you and tell you what your options are.

We will help you: get a rental car, get your car repaired; handle your phone calls and negotiate with adjusters; find qualified doctors for you; get your lost wages; get your medical expenses paid; get paid every honest dollar for your injuries, your pain and suffering and your loss of earning potential.

What does it cost you? Nothing up front. No expenses. We won't represent you unless we believe in "your case." If we represent you, we'll pay the costs for medical reports, independent exams, experts, and depositions, if needed.

What about fees? We get paid when we settle or win. Also, we get repaid the money we had to spend to settle or try your winning case.

Energy Secretary announces $450 million for coal research

by SAMIRA JAFARI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHLAND — U.S. Department of Energy Secretary Samuel Bodman announced on Friday $450 million in grants over the next decade to further research in using carbon dioxide to mitigate the environmental impacts of coal use.

Thirty percent of the grant money, or $134 million, will be awarded to groups supporting such research in Kentucky, said Bodman at an energy roundtable hosted by U.S. Rep. Geoff Davis.

Called carbon capture and sequestration, the process involves capturing emissions, separating the carbon dioxide and sequestering it for commercial use or for injection back into the earth to flush out oil.

"Sequestration technology holds the key to the continued environmentally-responsible use of coal," Bodman said.

The Department of Energy projects that coal sequestration could play a major role in meeting the Bush administration's goal of reducing the intensity of greenhouse emissions by 18 percent by 2012.

The roundtable, featuring experts from the Southern States Energy Board, the University of Kentucky and the Kentucky Office of Energy Policy, was held in Ashland, a major coal processing city in Davis' district.

The Republican congressman is seeking re-election in a tough race against Democratic challenger Ken Lucas.

Davis and the other Kentucky leaders used Friday's discussion to stress the state's importance in coal sequestration and coal liquefaction research, which they say is crucial in reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil. They urged Bodman to continue directing money toward those efforts.

"I wanted the secretary to meet with these people, to see the unity in purpose," Davis said. The University of Kentucky's Center for Applied Energy Research is engaged in a pilot project for improving the coal liquefaction process, which creates synthetic oil by heating coal in the presence of hydrogen gas.

Proponents refer to the process as "clean coal" technology. However, the synthetic oil it produces still yields carbon dioxide, the main greenhouse warming gas, during both production and combustion. Researchers are trying to figure out how to keep the emissions out of the atmosphere and reuse them.

"We believe Kentucky is in a unique position to be the national leader in this arena," said state Rep. Rocky Adkins, D-Sandy Hook, holding up a small jar of clear fuel produced from coal by UK researchers.

"I want to make sure we're noticed as leaders in reducing our dependence on foreign oil."

LIHEAP subsidy component begins Nov. 6

PRESTONSBURG — As winter approaches, Big Sandy Area Community Action Program, Inc. will begin the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), Nov. 6 through Dec. 15, in an effort to assist low-income residents with high utility bills. LIHEAP is a statewide initiative sponsored by the Kentucky Association of Community Action Inc., in partnership with the state Cabinet for Health and Family Services, and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Last year, thousands of Big Sandy residents received financial assistance and emergency services from the LIHEAP Subsidy component. Applications will be taken in alphabetical order, with specific days assigned on the calendar. Applicants must present the following:

- Most recent heating bill or verification that heating expenses are included in rent (for example, lease agreements or rent contracts);

- Social Security card or official documentation (medical card) with social security numbers for each member of the household;

- Proof of all household income for the prior month;

- Proof of housing type (lease, Section 8 certification, Housing Authority statement, deed or rent receipt).

Applications will be taken at the local BSACAP services office in each Big Sandy county from 8 am to 4:30 pm. Applicants must apply in their county of residence. The office locations, addresses and phone numbers are listed below:

- Floyd County, 313 Westminister St., Prestonsburg, (606) 886-2929, 155 Route 306, Wheelwright, (606) 452-4324

- Johnson County, 230 Court St., Paintsville, (606) 789-6515

- Magoffin County, 131 S. Church St., Salyersville, (606) 349-2217

Lindsey Wilson College creates two scholarships for KCTCS students

COLUMBA — Lindsey Wilson College has created two new scholarship programs to help members of the Kentucky Community and Technical College System earn a four-year college degree.

Lindsey Wilson has established a scholarship for select KCTCS members of Phi Theta Kappa and a scholarship for full-time KCTCS employees.

"Lindsey Wilson is proud to be a partner in higher education with the Kentucky Community and Technical College System," said Lindsey Wilson President William T. Luckey Jr. "These two scholarship programs are but a small way that Lindsey Wilson can continue to work with our KCTCS colleagues to help open the doors of opportunity to a four-year college education to more Kentuckians."

Lindsey Wilson has a partnership with Big Sandy Community and Technical College's Prestonsburg Campus.

Lindsey Wilson's Phi Theta Kappa Scholarship is open to KCTCS students who are members of the international honor society, have completed at least 60 credit hours at a KCTCS campus and have a minimum cumulative grade point average of 3.5. Students who already hold a bachelor's degree are not eligible for the scholarship.

The scholarship provides up to $700 per term, with a maximum amount of $2,100 awarded annually. Up to two recipients will be awarded each year per KCTCS campus.

"Students should be rewarded for excelling in the classroom," Luckey said. "It is our hope that this scholarship will encourage students to continue their higher education journey after they earn 60 hours of credit from their KCTCS campus."

The KCTCS Employee Scholarship is a one-half tuition scholarship offered to full-time KCTCS employees who also enroll as full-time undergraduate Lindsey Wilson students. Students who receive the scholarship must maintain a 3.0 cumulative grade point average and continue full-time undergraduate enrollment at Lindsey Wilson.

"Kentucky has a lot of working adults who also attend college full-time," Luckey said. "We hope this scholarship will make it a little easier for those who work at KCTCS to afford a four-year college education."

For more information about Lindsey Wilson's KCTCS scholarships, contact Lindsey Wilson Big Sandy Prestonsburg Campus Coordinator Shelia R. Wallen at wallens@lindsey.edu or (606) 886-3863, extension 67237.

Public should see report

Throughout the many months of the grand jury investigation of hiring practices within Gov. Ernie Fletcher's administration — all the allegations, incriminating e-mails, sealed and unsealed indictments, denials, counter attacks and finger-pointing — perhaps the most disturbing aspect for the general public was not really knowing what happened.

Certainly, the general conclusion could be drawn that politics had been illegally allowed to influence personnel decisions involving merit system employees — Fletcher admitted as much when he agreed to a settlement.

The hope was that a fuller picture would be revealed when the special Franklin County grand jury issued its final report, even though the names of indicted individuals pardoned by Fletcher or any unindicted individuals could not be included. Even with those limitations, the report is expected to fill in scores of blanks and answer a myriad of questions about the actions and motivations of people entrusted with governing.

Or will it?

The grand jury's final report was issued last week. It was immediately put under seal. It could be weeks before the public gets to see it, and not until the parties involved — Fletcher, Attorney General Greg Stumbo and former Franklin Circuit Judge William L. Graham — get a chance to voice any objections to it before it is made public.

No one seems sure that any objections will be raised. But what if they are? Will the report be altered, edited or possibly watered-down to protect someone's status or reputation? Opportunities to pull the report's teeth seem ample.

What the public deserves to see is the full report, with no portions redacted and nothing scissored out. The grand jury has already had to comply with restrictions on what could be included in the report, and a lawyer for Fletcher was quoted as saying the report should not "discuss or evaluate what the grand jury believes he (Fletcher) did because that would be evaluating the evidence."

Actually, we'd like to know what the grand jurors think about everything that transpired. And we'd like to read the report for ourselves before the lawyers and politicians get finished with it.

We're all Neanderthals now

When it comes to the border, we're all Neanderthals now.

When the amateur border guards, the Minutemen, first set up with their lawn chairs and binoculars at the U.S.-Mexico border and started talking about the need to build a fence, polite opinion scoffed. Now, the fence almost represents a consensus position, embraced by the left and right alike, including likely Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton.

This political state of play is the exact reverse of what was widely predicted earlier in the year when illegal immigrants were marching in the streets; Hispanic and church groups were decrying the harsh treatment of illegals in a pro-enforcement House bill; and the Senate was passing an amnesty bill euphemistically dubbed "comprehensive reform." It was assumed that the crazies in the House would bend to a Senate bill endorsed by all the great and the good. But a funny thing happened on the way to "comprehensive reform" — the political marketplace worked.

Instead of embracing the Senate approach, the House undertook field hearings around the country. The delay gave candidates a chance to sample public opinion that is markedly sympathetic to the crazies. Consider the Democratic senator from Nebraska, Ben Nelson, who is running for re-election. He once opposed crack-downs on illegals in his state, but now complains that illegal labor crowds out American workers. He recently voted for the funding of the fence.

The public has long supported better immigration enforcement, but Washington has disdained and ignored it. Washington partakes of elite attitudes on immigration, and its strongest lobbies on both the right and left love a robust inflow of cheap, illegal labor. The high-profile debate on immigration, however, coupled with an election, has forced the Beltway to give public opinion its due.

This is not to say that increased enforcement has no enemies. The argument against the fence is, as Arizona Gov. Janet Napolitano has put it, "You show me a 50-foot wall, and I'll show you a 51-foot ladder at the border." This is true, and also beside the point. If illegals have to deploy 51-foot ladders to get here, their transit manifestly is going to be more difficult, and therefore fewer will attempt it.

But a fence itself isn't sufficient. The key is stepped-up interior enforcement to cut off the jobs magnet that draws so many illegals here. The so-called Basic Pilot program — a small, voluntary system allowing employers to verify the legal status of their employees by computer — must be expanded and made mandatory.

The Social Security Administration also has to tighten up its system of notifying employers when they hire people using fake Social Security numbers. It currently is full of holes that exist as a matter of policy to allow businesses, with a nod and a wink, to keep hiring illegals. These measures would really bite, and therefore are sure to encounter the bitter opposition of pro-illegal groups.

In the meantime, score one for the Neanderthals. They have shown that Washington can be made to respond to public opinion on immigration, for a change.

Time to get serious about North Korea's nukes

by LEONOR TOMERO
MINUTEMAN MEDIA

Editor's note: Donald Kaul is recovering from two deaths in his family. He is expected to return.

Recently, North Korea conducted what appeared to be a nuclear explosive test, spotlighting the growing threat from its nuclear weapons program to the United States and its allies in Northeast Asia. A viable diplomatic strategy that would effectively stop, or at least contain the spread of nuclear weapons and materials is urgently needed as our last viable line of defense against nuclear terrorism and further proliferation.

First, North Korea's success has now increased the threat of nuclear terrorism. Last month, it threatened to transfer nuclear material or weapons to terrorists or U.S. enemies. A terrorist group detonating such a weapon in the United States could kill hundreds of thousands of Americans, and devastate our economy, political system and way of life. Bomb-grade material is easy to hide and transport. If we fail to dismantle North Korea's weapons before it enables a terrorist group to acquire a nuclear device, stopping a nuclear attack on the United States will be next to impossible.

The recent test and North Korea's growing nuclear arsenal also directly threaten U.S. allies. The South Korean capital, Seoul, is just 20 miles from the North Korean border and extremely vulnerable to attack. Furthermore, the confirmation that North Korea possesses nuclear weapons could jeopardize long-term regional stability if it eventually leads Japan, South Korea or Taiwan to get the bomb. This turn of events could create a domino effect, with China reacting by increasing the size of its nuclear arsenal, leading India to expand its own nuclear weapon capability, in turn causing Pakistan to do the same.

With no viable option to eliminate North Korea's nuclear weapon program with military force, our only effective option for getting it to give up its nukes is successful diplomacy.

As Graham Allison of Harvard University has urged, we must make North Korea an offer it cannot refuse, combining carrots and sticks, despite concerns about rewarding bad behavior. The United States must give North Korea a stark choice. On one hand, it would risk a sure end to the Kim Jong Il regime and a crushing war that would fatally cripple the country if it enabled a terrorist to detonate a nuclear weapon in the United States. On the other hand, it could reap the benefits of economic and energy incentives, the security of a non-aggression pact, a pledge from the United States not to destabilize Kim Jong Il's regime, and the prospect of eventually normalizing relations if it abandons its nuclear weapons. Any agreement would require intrusive inspections.

We should not forget that North Korea has negotiated in the past. In 1992, the international nuclear monitoring agency discovered that North Korea was pursuing a path to nuclear weapons by producing and diverting plutonium. While imperfect, the negotiated 1994 Agreed Framework stopped this plutonium production and significantly slowed North Korea's nuclear program. It later started enriching uranium — the second way to make nuclear weapons. When this program was discovered in 2002 and North Korea threatened to withdraw from the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty, the Bush administration refused to engage in direct talks.

In the intervening four years of ineffective U.S. diplomacy, North Korea re-started its plutonium program, produced enough bomb-grade material for about 10 nuclear weapons, and said it plans to resume construction of two additional reactors that would produce material for 50 nuclear weapons annually. This compares to a current production level of one bomb per year. In addition it has tested missiles, threatened to sell nuclear weapons, and now seems to have conducted a nuclear weapon test.

We do not have the luxury to ignore North Korea or to complicate negotiations aimed at dismantling its bomb program. Tough and smart diplomacy is all the more necessary as Iran takes notes and ponders its own options.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

"But I thought the polls said..."

The tail-gate isn't down, but the gangplank is. All aboard that's going aboard. The Spirit of Salt River is ready to begin its November cruise, and guess who's that on the poop deck—me, plumb pooped.

Perhaps we all might join in this prayer, now that we've simmered down a bit.

Lord, we need of thy wisdom, but right now we need the more a miracle—the will to do what we already know to be right.

TO THE LOSER

Congratulations upon your defeat. Losing, you will probably live longer, certainly more happily, escaping abuse in all its refinements and brutalities. The door to service is not closed; there always is a place in which to serve—if not at the top, elsewhere.

True, you may have lost the place you wanted in history. Wouldn't mourn. I am not going to be cynical and say that history is mainly an epitaph written in varying styles, by different hands. But some folks, "way down the ladder, hold right permanent places in this "record of past events," and some, I recall got there because they gave, not because they received.

OLD-STYLE DELINQUENCY

Almost anytime I get with men from age 40 on up, and listen to their recital of shenanigans in which they figured, I get the feeling that these youngsters today are on the whole, a pretty good lot, by comparison.

There, for instance, was this rather sedate gentleman who told me the story recently of the time when he and four or five other youngsters decided to make a "run" of drinkin'-likker...They chose, of all places, the unused upstairs portion of a local church, by stealth got their crude equipment and all the necessary ingredients inside, and soon had their still going.

I don't recall if they had reached the "singlings" stage or were "doubling it back," when it happened. But these "manufacturers" had overlooked one telltale matter. Smoke.

One day, at the height of operations, the girls in the nearby telephone office saw smoke emerging from the superstructure of the church and quickly turned in the alarm. When the volunteer fire department arrived and made full and exact determination as to the cause of the smoke, which, of course was fire and as to the use of said fire, and who had set it burning, and for what purpose—well,

BSCTC announces ACHS
Big Sandy Idol participants

Big Sandy Community and Technical College (BSCTC) is pleased to recognize the Allen Central High School participants who were selected to be in the local-level competition of Big Sandy Idol at ACHS.

Big Sandy Idol, sponsored and organized by the music department of BSCTC, is a talent and scholarship competition that offers two winners from each school a chance to compete for a demo CD recording, a full-album recording, and a $1,200 vocal scholarship to attend BSCTC, along with a spot with the Big Sandy Singers, directed by Laura Ford Hall. At the local level high school shows, The Big Sandy Singers serve as judges as well as performing at the beginning and end of the talent competitions.

The college will be bringing the Big Sandy Idol Talent and Scholarship Program to all 16 high schools in Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, and Martin Counties where each student chosen to participate sings one full song. Two winners are picked from the group of singers and these two winners from each high school will advance to compete at the regional-level of competition, held at BSCTC, in early 2007.

Clayton Case, who was recently hired as BSCTC's Music and Drama Assistant Director, serves as the coordinator of the Big Sandy Idol Program. Case, along with Hall and Technical Director Timothy Cooley, have worked to organize sign-ups, auditions, and shows for each high school.

Through the sign-up and audition process at ACHS, of 15 auditionees, 5 students were chosen to compete at the local level—in front of the student body. At this competition, several students were recognized for their ability and runner-up and first-place winners were chosen.

The third-place ACHS winner was Kim Patrick; second-place winner was James Greer who sang "Settle for a Slow Down." And, winning first place was Josh Martin who sang "Crash."

The Big Sandy Singers, along with middle school student Jerica Blair, were special entertainment for the show. The group sang "Boondocks" by Little Big Town, Bon Jovi's "Who Says You Can't Go Home," and several of the Singers sang solos. Blair sang "Some Days You Gotta Dance" and "Believe."

Both Martin and Greer will receive a demo recording as a prize and will go on to compete in regional competition for a full-album recording or college scholarship. The first and second place winners were accepted into the Big Sandy High School Singers. As part of the Big Sandy High School Singers, the students will have opportunities to perform for the eastern Kentucky community and to receive vocal and stage training from Hall and Case.

The album recordings will be recorded on the Big Sandy Prestonsburg campus, at the Big Sandy Productions Studio with Technical Director Timothy Cooley as producer.

"There is a great amount of talent at Allen Central High," Case said. "I was so proud of all of the students who participated. They each did a wonderful job and they were very supportive of each other even though they were in competition. I am happy for each of them, and commend each of them for their talent."

BSCTC Community Theatre to hold auditions

The Big Sandy Community and Technical College (BSCTC) Community Theatre Troupe will hold auditions for its 2006-2007 play, Agatha Christie's Murder Mystery "Ten Little Indians (And Then There Were None)," on Thursday, Nov. 16, from 3:00-6:00 p.m., in Gearheart Auditorium, in the Pike Building on the Prestonsburg campus. Community members are invited to audition as well as students, and college employees.

"Ten Little Indians," the classic mystery, has roles open for 5-6 males and 3-4 females. All auditionees should be 16 years of age or older.

Those auditioning should prepare a monologue 1-3 minutes in length. It is best if monologues are memorized, but memorization is not required.

Auditionees should arrive at Gearheart Auditorium at any time between the 3:00-6:00 p.m. time block on the 16th. Those audition-

Community members Kelly Powers of Prestonsburg, Wes Ray of Pikeville, and student Chelsea Hogg perform a scene from the BSCTC 05-06 production of "Down With Love." Auditions for this year's production will be held on Nov. 16.

A Donald Trump-like mogul transforms an island paradise into a posh resort and upsets an ancient beast worshipped by the native population in this Italian gore fest.

Italian drive-in movies sometimes were late in getting to the next trend, which is the case here as you get a "nature strikes back because of environmental plunder" message that was passé by 1979. American filmmakers had already exploited this idea in the early 1970s with popular fare such as "Night of the Lepus" and "Frogs." Despite being late to the genre, this one packs a good amount of entertainment for undemanding viewers and lovers of camp.

Tom Doty
Times Columnist

It all begins with a photographer, named Daniel Nessel, sharing a helicopter flight to "Paradise House" with its billionaire founder Joshua. Along for the ride is Joshua's trophy girlfriend Sheena, who knows Daniel from her fashion magazine work.

The group gets a lecture from Joshua, who explains that tourists will pay through the nose for his resort, which has been carved out of a Southeast Asian island. He explains that he has brought progress to the region and tamed the natives, the Kuma tribe, who will act as the resort's main attraction, by supplying them with gifts of designer jeans, booze and as much backbreaking labor as they can stand. Joshua appears confident that they won't eat his guests, but that turns out to be a small comfort as the film progresses.

Turns out that the resort has stirred an ancient crocodile/deity called Kruna, and it is poised to take a bite out of the tourist trade. It strikes the night before the tourists arrive and quietly dines on Sheena and a burly native after the pair have enjoyed a respite on neighboring "Love Island," which is oddly named as it is liberally decorated with giant crocodile bones.

The tourists show up in the next scene and quickly assert their presence as annoying characters who deserve their collective fate as dinner for Kruna. They are a motley crew that includes a precocious pair of seniors, a spoiled brat and various young ladies styling the latest in Euro swim wear.

The natives, however, don't show up for work, which prompts a trip to their village by Alice and Daniel, who find them painted up and doing an anti-Kruna dance. The villagers point them toward a hermitic missionary who once saw the creature.

They find this guy living in a cave and eventually get him to spill the beans. He reports that he arrived with a dozen other missionaries and Kruna showed up and ate the lot of them. They decide to race back with the

Geraniums of love

by HARRIET XANTHAKOS
"CHICKEN SOUP FOR THE PARENT'S SOUL"

As the fifth of seven children, I went to the same public school as my three older sisters and brother. Every year, my mother went to the same pageant and had parent/child interviews with the same teachers. The only thing different was the child. And every child participated in an old school tradition—the annual plant sale held in early May, just in time for Mother's Day.

Third grade was the first time that I was allowed to take part in the plant sale. I wanted to surprise my mother, but I didn't have any money. I went to my oldest sister and shared the secret, and she gave me some money. When I arrived at the plant sale, I carefully made my selection. I agonized over that decision, inspecting each plant to ensure that I had indeed found the best geranium. Once I had smuggled it home, with the help of my sister, I hid it on the upstairs neighbor's porch. I was very afraid my mother would find it before Mother's Day, but my sister assured me that she wouldn't, and indeed she did not.

When Mother's Day arrived, I was bursting with pride when I gave her that geranium. I remember how bright her eyes were, and how delighted she was with my gift.

The year I was 15, my younger sister reached third grade. In early May she came to me full of wonder and secrecy and told me that there was going to be a plant sale at school, and she wanted to surprise our mother. Like my older sister did for me, I gave her some money, and off she went. She arrived home full of nervous excitement, the geranium hidden in a paper bag under her sweater.

"I looked at every plant," she explained, "and I know I got the best one!"

With a sweet sense of déjà vu, I helped my little sister hide that geranium on the upstairs neighbor's porch, assuring her that our mother would not find it before Mother's Day. I was there when she gave my mother the geranium, and I watched them both bursting with pride and delight.

It was like being in a dream I had already dreamed. My mother noticed me watching, and she gave me a soft, secret smile. With a tug at my heart, I smiled back. I had been wondering how my mother could pretend to be surprised at this gift from her sixth child, but as I watched her eyes light up with delight as she was presented with that most precious gift, I knew she was not pretending.

5 ways to keep teens busy on Halloween

The Associated Press

Spooked by the thought of your teenager at loose ends on Halloween? Therapists say the best solutions help teens too old for trick-or-treating to take on a little adult responsibility, but still have fun. Here are five strategies:

■ Take younger siblings trick-or-treating. This is "always an out," says family therapist Carleton Kendrick. It gives teens an excuse to dress up and collect candy.

■ Ask your teens to hand out candy at home. Challenge them to dress up and outdo you in entertaining the visitors.

■ Have them set up an elaborate Halloween scene at your house. Kit Bennett, founder of amazingmoms.com, suggests asking your teen to rig up a graveyard scene with sounds and lights. "They're going to want to stay put," she said. "They're going to want to see how their plan is being implemented."

■ Help them arrange to volunteer that night at a nursing home or homeless shelter. They can pass out candy or perform a Halloween-related skit. Public Halloween events also need volunteers and will often accept the help of teens. Volunteering is a way to "confer a little bit of maturity to a child who is seeking that," Kendrick said.

■ Host a Halloween party. "That gives you the control," Bennett said. She suggests a pumpkin-carving party or a scary movie party. Avoid the slasher-style horror movies; stick with campy old monster movies. If you're more ambitious, you can order mystery party kits online and have the guests solve a "crime." Or arrange a Halloween-related scavenger hunt in your yard. You can also hire a psychic to give spooky readings.

Auditions

ing will be taken in to audition on a first come - first served basis. Auditions will be held in front of three experienced judges, and the auditions will be private.

Those chosen should be available for rehearsal on Thursdays between 4:00-7:00 p.m., beginning Thursday, January 11, 2007. Performances will be held the last week of March in Gearheart Auditorium.

The plot of Christie's story will be both fun and challenging for the performers. Up to a house high on an island mountain top, ten people, who are strangers to each other, have been invited for a weekend getaway. When they are all gathered, they hear from their host that each one of them has, in some way, caused the death of an innocent person and that justice had not been served in their cases. There are eight guests and two servants there for the weekend, and one by one they begin to die, in accordance to the Ten Little Indians nursery rhyme. After a search is made of the house and island, they realize that the murderer is one of them. A few members of the group attempt to trust each other, but the question still remains, who can they trust? And who will leave the island alive?

This early mystery thriller, written by Christie in 1939, is an intriguing story that has survived for years and years, and has been shown on stages around the world thousands of times. "BSCTC is delighted to bring this classic production to our area," said Laura Ford Hall, director. "We are looking for a great cast comprised of community members and college students. There are roles available for people from the young adult ages to senior citizens, so we invite anyone who is interested to come out for the auditions."

Questions regarding auditions should be directed to the BSCTC Music and Drama Director, Hall, at 886-3863 or email laura.hall@kctcs.edu.

Allen

there was what is known as "a time" hereabouts.

What floored me about this whole yarn was a remark the narrator made at the close. He had been chuckling about the whole disgraceful situation. Then, suddenly, he became very serious and almost sadly remarked.

"You know, if that had been now, they'd have called us a bunch of juvenile delinquents."

FISHING TALE

This fisherman friend of mine almost staked out a claim on the point, down-lake, near the Jenny Wiley Riding Academy stables. He had worn the seat of his pants and the bank mirror-slick, and the results had been a whopping zero, all season long.

Finally, he was giving up and mumbling in his beard, words to the effect that "there ain't no fish in that blasted lake" when a fellow with "Tourist" written all over him came into the dock.

"Golly, you have a wonderful lake!" the outsider exclaimed. "I envy you fellows having a place with so many fish."

Reluctantly our friend went along with that, but with a number of mental reservations. Just then the visitor tossed over the side of his boat an eye-popping stringer of bass.

As soon as the hometown boy could unswallow his tongue, he piped, "What did you catch 'em on?"

"Soft craws, sir. Ever use soft craws?"

"All the time," our friend lied. "Where'd you catch them—up the lake? Down?"

The tourist pointed. "Know where the stables are? Off the point, right near there. Know where I'm talking about?"

The local fisherman gulped. "The stables...oh, yes, b'lieve I know the place."

"Felt like shootin' myself a tourist," he later commented.

news. Joshua will have none of it and has his henchman rough up Daniel when he tries to radio for help (don't want to upset the guests).

That night the natives kidnap Alice to appease Krana via human sacrifice while the tourists go on a late-night cruise. This leads to a wonderfully manic finale as the tourists are set upon by Krana and hastily retreat to the hotel, where the natives greet them with flaming arrows. It's rock and a hard place, time as tourists are forced to choose between Krana's jaws and testing the hand-to-eye coordination of the village people.

Apparently the natives have figured out that they can be rid of the Krana if they cure the region of its white people infestation. It's the high point of the film and a lot of fun, though the conclusion is an incredibly lame happy ending that stretches the credibility factor so wide that Krana could do the macarena in it.

This is low rent fun of the first order. Krana is a hilarious beast wrought for about a $1.50. In close-ups he's a big rubber head but the shots of it in the water are played by an inarticulate model. A couple of scenes appear to use a child's toy and these shots are worth tapping your pause button for extra yucks.

The film is also an opportunity to catch a few stars slumming. Barbara Bach (who would go on to be a Bond girl and Mrs. Ringo Starr) sports a "deer in the headlights" gaze throughout the film and probably doesn't remember making it. Mel Ferrer grabs a quick check as Joshua and earns it when he says lines like, "Remember that to the natives we white people are very strange." The script doesn't have much bite, which is ironic as it was written by George Eastman, who played the killer cannibal in last week's "Anthrophagus."

The film appears to have changed its title to cash in on the success of "Alligator" (which hit theaters the same year). The resort actually has a crocodile theme and everyone in the film calls the beast a crock and talks about the local crocodile problem. The finale even takes place on Crocodile Bridge. Granted it's a small point but I wouldn't want to misdirect you alligator fetishists out there.

Best line: "The Kumas tell us you have seen the Krana." 1980, unrated.

Sitting at idle doesn't save money or the environment

by TOM AND RAY
MAGLIOZZI

CLICK & CLACK
Talk Cars

Dear Tom and Ray:
My job requires me to spend a lot of time in my car every day — not only driving, but parked, working on my laptop. I estimate that the car is sitting at idle for approximately one hour every day while I work on the laptop. When the weather is cooler, I turn the engine off and roll the windows down, but during the summer, it is just too hot to sit without the AC going. I am reimbursed for mileage but have the feeling that I am getting the short end of the stick. While I am parked with the engine running, the odometer is not moving. Any guess how much gas I am using while sitting at idle? I am sure this varies based on the size of the engine, but for argument's sake, I have a 4-cylinder (Toyota Corolla). With gas prices so high, people might be interested in knowing how much gas is consumed by letting the engine idle. — Steve RAY: The only statistic we've ever seen for the amount of fuel used at idle is from the Ohio Air Quality Development Authority. It says that the average car uses about 0.15 gallons of fuel per hour of idling. That's about 45 cents' worth of gas. If you do that once a day for 250 days a year, that's $112.50 a year at $3 a gallon.

TOM: So what you need, Steve, is a jack. Jack up one of those front wheels while you're stopped and doing your work, put that baby in drive and let the odometer roll. That way, you'll MAKE money on the reimbursement for your idling time.

RAY: No, that's dishonest, Steve. And that doesn't even take into account the excess pollution you're creating by idling for an hour a day. A better solution would be to stop at a Distended Belly Doughnut Shop and do your work in there over a cup of iced coffee.

TOM: Yeah. It's got to be a lot more comfortable than sitting in your car. You won't waste any money burning gas, you won't be creating new pounds of carbon dioxide and you can put the coffee on your expense report. What could be better than that, Steve?

Get tire wear checked out, stat!

Dear Tom and Ray:
My husband and I share a 2002 Subaru Baja, which we love. We often drive it on tough four-wheel-drive roads in the mountains and deserts of Southern California, and it has never let us down. However, I have noticed that the sidewalls of the tires are becoming worn, and in one place, the black "rubber" coating has been scraped away and a white underlayer is exposed. This patch is about an inch by a half-inch, close to the outside edge of the tire. My husband and I disagree about the seriousness of this. He thinks the injury is cosmetic and should be ignored. I think it is serious and could result in the tire delaminating on the highway or somewhere in the remote outback. Since he is the one who looks after the car, I really cannot insist on new tires. However, I am worried. Could you put my mind at ease? — Daphne

RAY: No, we can't, Daphne. I'll tell you a little story. One time, I had a terrible ringing in my ears. And after a week or so, it was driving me crazy.

TOM: So he goes to the hospital, and he sees a world-famous eye, ear, nose, throat and wallet specialist named Dr. Patel. Dr. Patel does a thorough examination and asks my brother a bunch of probing questions. And then he announces his diagnosis, which is that my brother has tinnitus: ringing in the ears.

RAY: And I say: "Tinnitus? What causes that?" And he says, "Well, Raymond ... it could be nothing." Then a look of excitement lights up his face and he adds, "Or, it could be a brain tumor!"

TOM: That's the story with your tires, Daphne. It could be something cosmetic, or your tires could be falling apart.

RAY: When a tire has raised white letters, oftentimes those are produced by building up several layers of rubber, then buffing off one layer and exposing a white layer of rubber below. So that would be the "it could be nothing" explanation.

TOM: On the other hand, there are white-colored structural elements in there, like the carcass ply, which is the polyester "ribcage" that holds the whole tire together. And there are the steel belts themselves, which would look more metallic or shiny, but could appear to be white. Those are the tire equivalents of brain tumors. Those would need to be addressed immediately.

RAY: So, one thing to look for is the texture of the white material that's been exposed. If it's exactly the same texture as the rest of the tire's exterior rubber, that increases the likelihood that it's just another layer of rubber.

TOM: But if the texture is any different, if it has any kind of fibrous feel or if you see any crisscrossing material, you may have exposed something much more important.

RAY: The bottom line is that you need to take it to a mechanic or tire professional you trust, and find out exactly what's been exposed. See if you can get a more definitive opinion than the one Dr. Patel gave me. And by the way, my tinnitus went away a few days later and never came back.

Spicy California Raisin-Wine Sauced New York Strip With Warm Green Bean-USA-Grown Peanut Salad

Spicy California Raisin-Wine Sauced New York Strip With Warm Green Bean-USA-Grown Peanut Salad

Serves: 6

New York Strip

- 2 tablespoons chopped garlic
- 2 tablespoons cumin
- 2 tablespoons ground coriander
- 1 1/2 tablespoons salt
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 6 New York strip steaks (about 12 ounces each)

Spicy Raisin-Wine Sauce

- 1/2 cup red wine
- 1/4 cup California raisins
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon chopped cilantro
- 1 teaspoon chipotle peppers canned in adobo sauce
- 1/2 tablespoon chopped shallot
- Salt and pepper to taste

Warm Green Bean Salad

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 1/2 pounds fresh green beans, trimmed and blanched
- 2 tablespoons chopped shallot
- 1/2 cup roasted red peppers, cut into matchstick-size pieces (julienne)
- 1 cup roasted USA-grown peanuts
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
- Salt and pepper to taste

Combine garlic, cumin, coriander, salt and olive oil in small bowl and mix together. Rub onto steaks and arrange in shallow dish; refrigerate 1 to 2 hours.

In small saucepan, heat wine just to boiling for sauce. Measure raisins into small bowl and pour wine over; let stand 10 to 15 minutes until raisins are soft. Add remaining ingredients and puree in food processor or blender; set aside.

For salad, heat oil in large skillet and sauté shallot over medium-high heat 2 to 3 minutes. Add remaining ingredients; cook until heated through and beans are tender-crisp.

To serve, remove steak from refrigerator; drain and grill over high heat for 4 minutes per side until preferred doneness (145°F for medium rare). Remove from grill and drizzle with raisin wine sauce. Serve with green bean-peanut salad.

Grilled Veal Chop With California Raisin Pilaf and Toasted USA-Grown Peanuts

Serves: 6

Veal

- 6 veal chops (about 10 ounces each)
- 1 12-ounce bottle garlic-olive oil marinade
- Salt and pepper, to taste

Rice Pilaf

- 1 5.9-ounce package rice pilaf mix
- 1/2 cup California raisins
- 1 cup USA-grown peanuts, toasted
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley

Combine chops and marinade in shallow pan; let stand 1 to 2 hours in refrigerator, turning occasionally.

Cook pilaf according to package directions. Add remaining ingredients to hot pilaf and mix together. Keep hot.

Remove chops from marinade. Discard used marinade and grill chops over high heat 5 to 6 minutes per side until done (145°F for medium rare). Spoon 1/4 cup pilaf onto each serving plate; arrange grilled veal chop on top. Serve immediately.

Grilled Filet Mignon With California Raisin-Onion Jam and USA-Grown Peanut Garden Sauté

Serves: 6

Raisin-Onion Jam

- 1/2 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/4 medium yellow onion, thinly sliced (julienne)
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
- 1/2 tablespoon honey
- 1/4 cup California raisins
- 1 small sprig fresh thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon fresh lemon zest
- Salt and pepper to taste

Blue Cheese Glaze

- 1/2 cup crumbled Gorgonzola cheese
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 1/2 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1/2 tablespoon chopped chives
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Garden Sauté

- 3 ounces steak-cut bacon, diced
- 2 1/4 teaspoons chopped garlic
- 1 1/2 tablespoons chopped shallot
- 6 cups fresh chopped Swiss chard leaves or beet greens, stems and ribs removed
- 3/4 cup roasted USA-grown peanuts
- Salt and pepper to taste

Filet

- 6 filet mignon (about 6 ounces each)
- Olive oil
- Salt and pepper, to taste

For jam, heat oil in 12-inch skillet over medium heat. Add onions and cook until soft. Stir in vinegar and honey; cook 1 minute. Add raisins, thyme and lemon zest; cook over medium heat until reduced. Remove thyme sprig and divide mixture in half. Add half to food processor or blender and pulse until smooth. Combine with remaining mixture in skillet and mix well. Season to taste and set aside.

In a small bowl, combine ingredients for blue cheese glaze; mix well and set aside.

Cook bacon in large saucepan over medium-high heat for 6 to 7 minutes, until almost crispy. Add garlic and shallot; cook 2 to 3 minutes more until soft. Stir in Swiss chard; cook and toss until wilted, 3 to 4 minutes. Stir in peanuts and season to taste.

To serve, brush steaks with oil and season with salt and pepper. Spoon 1 to 2 tablespoons of glaze onto each steak. Grill steaks over high heat for 4 to 5 minutes per side until they reach preferred doneness (145°F for medium rare) and glaze is golden brown. Remove from grill and add a heaping dollop of jam. Serve with garden sauté.

Safety first when using a tree stand

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Many deer hunters only give tree stand safety a passing thought, thinking an accident won't happen to them. But falling 30 feet out of his deer stand, crushing the bones on the right side of his body and crawling a quarter-mile for help during the 1996 deer season was enough for Dee Dee Garvin to become a vocal advocate for hunter safety.

"Safety is something you should never take for granted; it's something you put first in everything you do, whether it's driving a car or climbing a deer stand," said Garvin, a regional coordinator for the National Wild Turkey Federation's Wheelin' Sportsmen program. "In a matter of 35 minutes from the time I got out of the bed that morning, I came to the realization that hunting, fishing or anything else, for that matter, is not worth risking your life for."

After a hospital stay and months of rehabilitation, Garvin was able to resume the outdoor activities he loves. Through the Wheelin' Sportsmen program, which helps people with disabilities to get outside and participate in a more active lifestyle through local chapter events nationwide, he tells his story and explains the importance of tree stand safety.

Like Garvin, Carl Brown, Chief Operating Officer for the NWTF, is an avid deer hunter. A fall from a tree stand several years ago changed the way he now prepares for all of his hunts.

"The idea of safety first really hits home after an accident," said Brown. "I never hunt without making sure all safety measures are in place. It's something I wish I had always done."

In many hunting situations, tree stands allow the hunter to see game better, and help reduce the amount of human scent on the ground. While positioning yourself in a tree sometimes gives hunters a better view, serious injury and even death can occur when all safety precautions aren't taken.

As CEO of the NWTF, Rob Keck has hunted many different species in many different places. But regardless of the game he's after, his main focus is always hunting safely.

"Being safe in the woods is something we can't stress enough," said Keck. "A hunter must be a good defensive hunter, just like being a defensive driver. Don't put yourself in harm's way by careless decisions."

To help hunters stay safe, the NWTF has compiled a list of useful tips for hunting out of tree stands.

■ Understand the stand: Manufacturers' warnings and instructions should be read before using the stand. Practice climb before the season, and use all provided safety devices. If there are any questions, call the manufacturer.

■ Wear a Fall-Arrest System/Full Body Harness: These devices are the best method to keep you from being hurt in a fall. Single strap belts and chest harnesses are no longer the safest restraints available; in fact, sin-

B-Team: Lady Raiders oust Adams

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BETSY LAYNE — South Floyd defeated Adams 31-12 Thursday in the Floyd County B-team girls' basketball tournament semifinals. With the win, South Floyd secured a spot in the tournament's championship game.

Kelsey Dye and Kiana Hall led the way for South Floyd, scoring eight points apiece. Each South Floyd player knocked down four field goals. Gabby Bailey added six points for the Lady Raiders, Ashley Castle chipped in four and Tessa Gayheart added three. Branda Hamby chimed in with two points for the South Floyd B-team.

South Floyd held Adams scoreless in the second quarter and led 22-3 at the half. The Lady Raiders outscored Adams in each of the first three quarters.

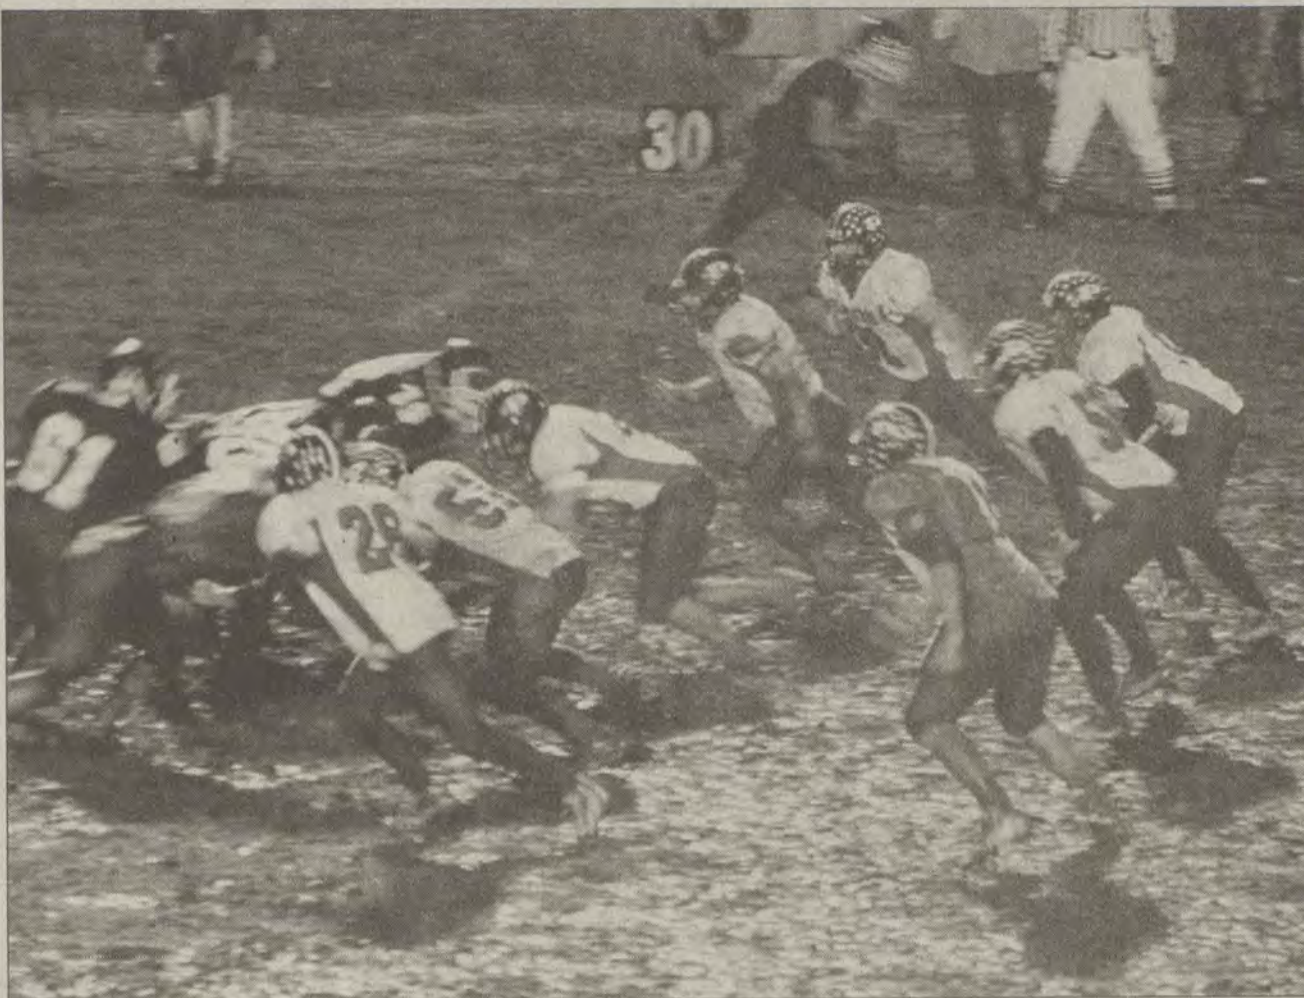

Tiffany Wertz led Adams with eight points. Wertz knocked down a game-high two three-point field goals for the Lady Blackcats. Allyson DeRossett LICK CREEK — Heading into the regular season-finale, the Prestonsburg Blackcats were looking to make somewhat of a statement as they prepared to meet Sheldon Clark in the opening round of the Class 2A State Playoffs. East Ridge was coming off a 20-19 setback at the hands of Magoffin County as the two teams were heading in separate directions to end the regular-season. Rain, rain and more rain was the theme of the night on Friday.

Prestonsburg would be forced to go with a power running game on this night and the trio of Lincoln Slone, Seth Setser and Allen Craynon would come through in a big way. Prestonsburg would score touchdowns on its first five drives and never look back en route to a 42-8 win.

East Ridge opened the game by taking the opening kickoff. Three plays and a punt would give the Blackcats the football at the East Ridge 44-yard line. Prestonsburg would need only four plays to hit pay dirt as Craynon, a sophomore, raced 31 yards for the first Blackcat touchdown of the night. After another East Ridge punt, Prestonsburg would again take over, this time at the East Ridge 47.

Lincoln Slone followed a 44-yard run from Seth Setser, with a two-yard touchdown plunge to give Prestonsburg a 14-0 lead with 1:24 left in the opening quarter. East Ridge

Postseason-bound Jenkins beats Betsy Layne, 38-6

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BETSY LAYNE — Betsy Layne entered the current football season with much excitement as Bobby Branham was set to perform head coaching duties in his first season. The Bobcats played host to Jenkins in a regular-season finale Friday night looking to go out on a winning note. Betsy Layne — which won't play in a district until next season — was simply playing for pride. Jenkins, thanks to a 42-12 win over Allen Central the week before, entered Friday night's game knowing it had locked up a spot in this year's Class A State Playoffs. Not wanting to end the regular-season on a down note, Jenkins made sure it had some momentum entering the first week of November. The Cavaliers scored 30 points before Betsy Layne answered. Playing on a rain-soaked Betsy Layne gridiron, Jenkins enjoyed major success rushing the football. So much, it rushed their way to a convincing 38-6 win.

Joshua Belcher was the top rusher for the Cavaliers, gaining 116 yards on 17 carries. Jenkins quarterback Chris Puckett added 86 yards rushing in the non-district game.

The Cavaliers, remaining on the ground, attempted only one pass.

Betsy Layne (1-9) got into Jenkins territory on its first offensive possession, but turned the football over on downs. Jenkins got on the scoreboard with 5:49 left in the first quarter when Puckett scored on a 23-yard run. Belcher added a two-point conversion run, capping Jenkins' 54-yard scoring drive.

Belcher provided Jenkins with its second touchdown with 3:30 remain-Stumbo. The Lady Blackcats battled back and won after Stumbo exited the first quarter ahead 8-4.

Kaylee Collins connected on three field goals and added six points for the Lady Blackcats. Kierra Shelton and Allyson DeRossett rounded out the Adams scoring with four and two points, respectively.
Adams outscored Stumbo 12-7 in the second half.
Starting guard T.J. Tackett scored a team-high nine points for Stumbo. Timera Thacker, a running mate of Tackett's in the Stumbo backcourt, added six points.

Trish Hamilton rounded out the Stumbo scoring with a one-of-two shooting performance from the free-throw line.
Allen Central 26, MCA 8: Undefeated Allen Central (21-0) got points from all five of its starters and rolled past Mountain Christian Academy (MCA).
Amber Shepherd helped to keep Allen Central undefeated, scoring a game-high nine points. Desha Elliott scored eight points and Hannah Macelose flipped in six for the C-team Lady Rebels. Krista Parsons pushed in two points and Caitlin Kidd connected on a free-throw for the Allen Central squad.

Allen Central, which defeated Allen 30-7 in the first round, shot 12-for-22 from the floor.
Kelly Akers and Shonda Bailey accounted for all of the MCA C-team's scoring, netting four points each.

gle-strap belts can cause internal injury when the wearer's weight suddenly jerks them tight. Furthermore, the pressure from a single strap or chest harness on the abdomen or chest can cause rapid loss of consciousness.
Climb with care: When a hunter is climbing and getting into or out of the stand are the most dangerous times. Always put on a full body harness before climbing.
Use a pull rope: Sometimes called a haul line, this is used to pull gear, including firearms and bows, to the tree stand once the hunter is safely positioned.

Don't load your firearm until you are secure in your stand.
Always let someone know where you are. Leave a note at the house or on the windshield of your vehicle stating where you will be and what time you expect to return. Also, take your cell phone. You never know when you will need it.

Blackcats

came back with a seven-play 60-yard drive, that ended with a fumble at the Prestonsburg 15 yard line. The Blackcats again needed only two plays of offense for Slone to race 75 yards and give Prestonsburg a 21-0 lead with 8:33 left in the first half. A solid defensive stand gave the Blackcats back the football at the East Ridge 49 with over 6:00 left in the half.
Junior quarterback Bobby Hughes would take it in from nine yards out to give Prestonsburg a 28-0 lead with 3:46 left in the opening half. Prestonsburg needed only 1:43 of the third quarter to tack on another score. Seth Setser's 31 yard run put the Blackcats in front 35-0 early in the third quarter. After both teams struggled with the elements throughout the rest of the third quarter, Prestonsburg would add its final score of the night. Senior Benji Fish scampered in from one yard out to give Prestonsburg a 42-0 lead with 6:55 remaining in the game.

East Ridge would get on the board with 3:54 left in the game as David Ratliff took it in from 10 yards out to help set the final score.
Prestonsburg finished the game with 336 yards rushing. Slone rushed for 183 yards and two scores for the winning team. Craynon finished with 51 yards and a score while Setser added 96 yards and one touchdown for Prestonsburg.
Wes Woods and Nathaniel Stephens each recorded seven tackles for the cats.

With the win, Prestonsburg finished the regular season 6-4 overall, winning five of its last six games.
Prestonsburg will take on Sheldon Clark this Friday in the opening round of the Class 2A State Playoffs. The two teams met earlier this season with Prestonsburg handing the Cardinals what was ultimately their only loss of the regular-season. Kickoff for the Sheldon Clark-Prestonsburg playoff game is set for 7:30 p.m.

Pikeville win streak ends against Lindsey Wilson

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE - It was fun while it lasted.
The Pikeville College volleyball team saw their four-match winning streak snapped on Tuesday night at the hands of Lindsey Wilson College, who dropped the Lady Bears in three consecutive games by scores of 30-23, 30-26 and 30-24. The loss was only the Lady Bears' second in their last six matches.

The Lady Raiders jumped out to a quick lead in game one, scoring the game's first four points. Later, as the Lady Bears drew even at 17-17, the Lady Raiders responded with seven consecutive points, taking a 24-17 lead and cruising to the 30-23 win.
In game two the Lady Bears responded by taking the lead on several occasions. Still, trailing 11-14, the Lady Raiders drew upon the previous game and rattled off five straight points, taking the lead at 16-15. Later, the Lady Bears drew back even at 26-26, but the Lady Raiders managed to pull away, scoring four consecutive and winning 30-26.

Trailing by two games, the Lady Bears simply seemed to run out of steam in the final game. The squads were even at 2-2 before Lindsey Wilson broke away, scoring five straight points and rolling on to the 30-24 victory in the game and clinching the match.

Junior outside hitter Vicki Hall and junior setter Sarah Meyer each led the Lady Bears with nine kills. Sophomore defensive specialist Hillary Mussman had 18 receptions to go along with 12 digs, while junior outside hitter Anna Bevins also contributed 12 digs, eight receptions, and one ace in the loss.

With the defeat, the Lady Bears drop to 14-17 overall and 2-7 in the Mid-South Conference. Lindsey Wilson, meanwhile, improves to 13-12 on the season and 4-4 in conference play. The Lady Bears will try to rebound when they host the Lady Patriots from the University of the Cumberlands this Tuesday. The MSC match is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Louisville planning major expansion at Papa John's Stadium

LOUISVILLE - Louisville wants to expand capacity at Papa John's Stadium by 50 percent in time for the 2009 season, athletic director Tom Jurich said Tuesday.

The stadium, which opened in 1998, would grow in size from 42,000 to 63,600 under the plan, Jurich said. The expansion would include building an upper level on the east side of the stadium, adding a terrace area to the south end zone and putting in 45 new luxury suites.
"We want to keep growing and growing and keep this program on the cutting edge," Jurich said. "We can see what a crown jewel this football program has become for this university."

The school sent out a survey to season-ticket holders on Monday to gauge the interest and support in the project, which Jurich estimated will cost $65 million.
Construction on the project would take 15-18 months but would not affect the stadium's availability or capacity during Louisville's football season, Jurich said.

Louisville (7-0, 2-0 Big East), currently ranked sixth in the country, is averaging crowds of 42,283 at home this season, including a record crowd of 42,704 that watched the Cardinals beat Miami on Sept. 16. That record could be broken when Louisville hosts No. 4 West Virginia (7-0, 2-0) on Nov. 2.
The expansion would make Papa John's Stadium the largest on-campus stadium in the Big East Conference. Both Pittsburgh and South Florida play in larger stadiums, but share the space with NFL teams.

The construction would also coincide with the building of a downtown arena in Louisville that will house both the Cardinals men's and women's basketball teams. Jurich said investors who express an interest in luxury suites and premium seating at both sites will be given the highest priority for game tickets.

Even without Bush, Rodriguez leery of Louisville

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. - West Virginia coach Rich Rodriguez isn't going to get lulled by Louisville's loss of star running back Michael Bush.
Rodriguez still calls No. 6 Louisville the best offensive team the fourth-ranked Mountaineers will face this year. Both teams are off this week and will meet on Nov. 2 in Louisville.

"It's the best offensive team we have played, no question," Rodriguez said Tuesday. "Their skill guys are future NFL guys. The quarterbacks understand what they want to do. Their receivers have big-play potential. And what is often overlooked is how good they are up front. It all starts offensively there. Their line is outstanding."
The absence of Bush, who was lost for the season after breaking his right leg in the season opener against Kentucky, hasn't stalled Louisville's offense. George Stripling and Kolby Smith have helped the Cardinals (7-0, 2-0 Big East) become the nation's seventh-best rushing offense at 216 yards per game.

"They aren't different from a scheme standpoint," Rodriguez said. "They are doing the same things. Bush is a talented guy who did everything well. But all their backs are capable and have shown that."
Stripling and Smith combine to average more than 100 yards per game and 806 yards overall. Their speed is better than that of the bruising Bush, who a year ago ran for 159 yards and four scores in a 46-44 loss at West Virginia in triple overtime.

Yet no Louisville player has bettered Bush's season-long run of 48 yards against Kentucky, when he scored three of the Cardinals' first four touchdowns.
West Virginia (7-0, 2-0) remains susceptible against the run, at least between the 20-yard lines, where it ranks next-to-last in the Big East in opponents' third-down conversions at 40.2 percent.
But the Mountaineers are different inside the 20, allowing just five touchdowns in 16 trips while also recording three interceptions and two stops on downs.

Not only do both teams rank in the top five nationally in total offense, they are in the top 12 in scoring defense.
"Is this a big game? Yes, let's not be foolish. You have two teams who are undefeated so it is a big, big game," Rodriguez said. "I just hope we play well. You hope your guys give their best effort, knowing they will make some mistakes, and make sure Louisville gets our 'A' game. We do that and we will see what happens."

Bobcats

ing in the first quarter when he scored on a three-yard run. After a Belcher two-point conversion, Jenkins led 16-0.
The Cavaliers were driving at the end of the first quarter, looking to score again, and carried the momentum over into the second quarter. Jenkins scored at the 11:55 mark of the second quarter when Taylor hit paydirt on a three-yard run. Taylor capped his own touchdown run with a two-point score, pushing the Cavaliers out in front 24-0.
The Bobcats had possession of the football late in the second half, but came up empty.
After going into halftime trailing 24-0, Betsy Layne gave up another Jenkins touchdown before getting on the scoreboard.
Taylor scored on another three-yard run with 4:56 left in the third quarter. Betsy Layne two-way starter Brennan Case, also a Bobcat defender, fell on a Jenkins fumble after Taylor's second touchdown.
Brandon Blair broke the scoring ice for Betsy Layne when he got loose and scored on a 75-yard run with 2:17 to go in the third period. Case went to the air for the two-point conversion after Blair's touchdown, but the pass fell incomplete.

Casey Childers added one last touchdown for Jenkins when he scored on a 13-yard run with :27 remaining. Taylor hit for the final points for the Cavs on a two-point run.
Blair led Betsy Layne in rushing, gaining 111 yards.
Case completed only one pass for the Bobcats while he had to pass against the Jenkins defense and a steady down-pour of rain.
Despite a one-win season, Betsy Layne showed significant improvement and promise with Branham calling the shots. The Bobcats averaged nearly 15 points per game. Betsy Layne scored 20 or more points in four different games and was on the losing end of three games decided by eight points or less.
Jenkins (4-6 overall, 3-3 in Class A, District 8) will be back in action Friday, Nov. 3 in the first round of the Class A State Playoffs on the road at longtime rival Pikeville. Kickoff for the Jenkins-Pikeville postseason game is set for 7:30 p.m.

SEC BASKETBALL NOTEBOOK: Stars mostly opted for SEC, not NBA

by JOHN ZENOR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The Southeastern Conference doesn't have to replenish its cupboards nearly so much this season. The biggest stars almost all opted to return to school instead of entering the NBA draft.

LSU's Glen Davis. Alabama's Ron Steele and Jermareo Davidson. Florida's trio of Joakim Noah, Al Horford and Corey Brewer. All postponed chances to make their NBA fortunes.

It was a big change from the pre-season task facing the league last season after seven SEC players left early and six went undrafted.

"We talk about how college basketball will be a lot better if these guys wouldn't make those type decisions," Florida coach Billy Donovan said of his star returnees. "Chances are those guys would have been first-round draft picks but they came back for the right reasons, and I think they need to be celebrated for what they've done."

The league is certainly celebrating all that proven starpower. The lone exceptions were Tyrus Thomas, who left LSU and was the fourth overall draft pick, and Kentucky's Rajon Rondo. Rondo was the 21st pick by the Phoenix Suns, then was traded to the Boston Celtics.

Davis said he didn't want to leave unless he was a sure thing.

"I just wanted to be the best player I could be, just leave my mark on college basketball," he said. "That's what it's all about. Immortality, man. Everybody wants it."

Then again, Davis figures he would have made a different decision if he had been in Noah's enviable position.

"I'm shocked Joakim Noah (came back)," he said. "I'd have been gone." Alabama coach Mark Gottfried thinks Steele and Davidson learned by the previous year's experience. Crimson Tide star Kennedy Winston skipped his senior season and was among those whose names weren't called in the draft.

"I think it's great for our league," Gottfried said.

While the players' return is also good for fans and TV ratings, it does have its drawbacks as Noah pointed out to Tennessee coach Bruce Pearl at the Adidas camp in Georgia over the summer.

"He puts his arm around me and said, 'Coach, you know the real reason I'm coming back?'" Pearl recalled. "'To beat you guys two more times.'"

KENTUCKY: Kentucky coach Tubby Smith doesn't want to spend much time talking about last season when he's trying to focus on a new one.

"I'll just say it was bad," Smith said.

That about sums it up from the Wildcats' perspective. They went 9-7 in the league, their worst SEC mark since going 10-8 in 1990.

"It was definitely tough," center Randolph Morris said. "Tough for morale. Tough for chemistry."

Tough for fans who are accustomed to much grander seasons. The Wildcats do open the season with something they didn't have at the start of last year: Morris. The 6-foot-11, 259-pounder sat out the first 14 games under an NCAA-mandated suspension for attempting to enter the NBA Draft.

"That's a great load off my shoulders," Morris said. "I think that me being here at the beginning of the year is going to make a world of difference on the team."

NEW REBELS: New Mississippi coach Andy Kennedy is changing the Rebels' style of play, but he's also trying to change their attitude.

"He knows what it takes to win and that's what he's drilling into us everyday," guard Bam Doyno said.

The Rebels have won just 13 SEC games the past three seasons under Rod Barnes. Kennedy is the league's only new men's head coach after spending last year as interim coach at Cincinnati.

He plans to install an uptempo style.

"We refer to it as pressure basketball," Kennedy said. "We're going to try to apply pressure at both ends of the floor. Typically, when you say pressure basketball you immediately think that means you're going to press. I think you control tempo with your offense not so much your defense."

Asked if he thinks the program will gain some respect this season, Doyno's response was: "Heck yeah."

"I really think people are going to hate to play us," he said. "Before they just kind of walked in and felt overly confident about beating us."

NOT SO BIG: LSU's Davis said he has trimmed down to 289 pounds on his still-thick 6-foot-11 frame.

He was about 310 this time last year.

"I just cut my portions down," Davis said. "I didn't eat beef at all. I saw 'Super Size Me.'"

He said he regained some of the weight during last season, and realized he needed to shape up during the Final Four loss to UCLA.

"I was like, 'You're breathing hard. You're even asking to come out of the game. What's your problem? This is the Final Four,'" Davis said. "It really bothered me."

TID BITS: The SEC will begin playing challenge games against Big East teams in December, Commissioner Mike Slive said. It will be similar to the Big 10-ACC challenge. Slive said it would give the league added exposure early in the season. He said it would involve four games a year at two neutral sites for the next three or four seasons.

SEC well-stocked with big men

by JOHN ZENOR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The Southeastern Conference is loaded with big men — and one Big Baby. Lanky shot-blockers. Hard-to-budge bruisers. Graceful gliders.

Sorry, Ron Steele. This might just be a big man's league this year.

"I think we have six, eight, maybe 10 big guys that have legit chances to be first-round draft choices," Mississippi State coach Rick Stansbury said Thursday at Southeastern Conference media days. "I don't know if there's another league in the country that could say that. I don't know if there was another time when our league could say that."

There won't be too many breaks in the paint this SEC season.

The league has the big stars, like Florida's ever-so-smooth 6-foot-11 Joakim Noah, and the slimmed-down but still formidable 6-9, 289-pound Glen "Big Baby" Davis of LSU. Kentucky will rely heavily on 6-11 Randolph Morris and Alabama has 6-10 Jermareo Davidson to complement point guard Steele.

And the man who will be busy deflecting shots while those guys rack up points will be 7-footer Steven Hill at Arkansas. He swatted away 91 of them last year, including 10 against Texas State.

"Everywhere you go, there's a big man," Hill said. "It seems like night in and night out, there's a different style of big man. You've got your athletic big men. You've got your power big men. You've just kind of got to adapt night in and night out."

It's no coincidence the teams with the top big men were picked to do well in the conference. Florida was picked by league media to win the SEC and the Eastern Division Thursday. Alabama was picked to edge LSU in the West, while LSU (five) and Alabama (3) were the only teams besides the Gators (21) to receive votes for the overall title. Arkansas was picked third in the West.

The only non-post player to receive votes in the player of the year ballot was Steele, who received three. Noah got 14, Davis 11 and Morris one.

Georgia coach Dennis Felton said the predominance of experienced big men in the SEC is notable these days partly because they haven't already headed to the NBA.

"Ten years ago, our collection of post players wouldn't have been a big deal," Felton said. "Today it is because guys that size tend to bolt pretty quickly to the NBA."

Davis returned despite leading LSU to the Final Four. Noah and teammate Al Horford came back even though they claimed the national title.

Davis averaged 18.6 points and 9.7 rebounds. Noah was the Final Four MVP and set an NCAA tournament record with 29 blocked shots, including six in the title game against UCLA.

Morris led Kentucky in scoring while Davidson averaged 14.3 points and 8.9 boards.

"Every team seems like they've got dominant big men." Georgia forward Steve Newman said. Georgia's main strategy for defending them is to "not let them touch the ball."

Making that more difficult is that teams like Alabama, Arkansas and Florida don't just stop at one good big man. The Tide's Richard Hendrix averaged 8.0 rebounds as a freshman. Florida's Horford grabbed nearly that many and was a double-figure scorer.

Darian Townes is only a couple of inches shorter than his teammate Hill and scored 9.5 points a game.

Morris figures the wealth of big men will only help them all get better.

"If you're put in that position to play against that type of competition night in and night out, it's a great experience," he said. "It's going to be a tough challenge, and I'm looking forward to it."

Pittsburgh picked to win the Big East

by JIM O'CONNELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Jamie Dixon didn't hesitate to say his current team would not be able to do what his recent Pittsburgh teams have done.

"We've been a program that every year has exceeded where we've been picked in the preseason poll and we can't do that now," Dixon said Wednesday when the Panthers were selected No. 1 by the Big East coaches for this season. "It's something that doesn't mean anything, but it's still a great thing for our program. It shows where we've come from and where we're at."

The Panthers return eight of the top 10 players from the team that went 25-8 last season, reached the championship game of the Big East tournament and appeared in the NCAA tournament for the fifth straight year.

Dixon is starting his fourth season at Pitt, and his 76-22 career record after three seasons is tied for fourth all-time.

The Big East had a record eight teams in the NCAA tournament last season and that number should at least be matched this season.

Pittsburgh was No. 1 on 10 of the 16 coaches' ballots. Georgetown was second with four first-place votes, while Syracuse, which won the conference tournament last season, and Marquette reach received one and were third and fourth, respectively.

"What makes this conference great is that it's always a different team that's making noise," Dixon said. "Everybody has had their run at the top and that's what different about this conference from the others and that's what makes it the best conference."

Georgetown made the NCAA tournament last season for the first time since 2001, with the Hoyas losing to eventual champion Florida in the round of 16. The expectations for national success are back at Georgetown.

"The players have shown the proper mentality to be in position to meet those expectations," third-year coach John Thompson III said. "I think our guys have handled it fine."

The Hoyas will have a familiar name back this season as Patrick Ewing Jr., the son of the center who led them to three Final Fours and a national championship in the 1980s, is eligible after transferring from Indiana.

Syracuse's run to the conference title last season as the No. 9 seed was led by senior guard Gerry McNamara, the hero in all four wins that came by a total of eight points.

"You hope coming into a new season that something like that has an effect on the players who are back," said Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim, who welcomes freshman forward Paul Harris, the preseason rookie of the year. "It's always hard to predict because this league is always so balanced. It takes a while to see how everybody plays in games."

Connecticut was picked fifth in the preseason poll but a new vote might see things differently.

The Huskies found out Tuesday night that 7-foot-3 freshman Hasheem Thabeet was declared eligible by the NCAA after questions about his transcripts from his high school in Tanzania were cleared up.

"He will do what a 7-foot-3, 265-pound athlete will do — have an impact," Connecticut coach Jim Calhoun said. "This is conjecture on my part based upon a few years of experience, he will get in foul trouble, that's inevitable, and he will have an impact. He will be in the top one, two in having an impact, not in the Big East, in the country. He will, at times, make it very difficult to shoot layups. He has the ability to change games."

Louisville was sixth in the voting and was followed by Villanova, DePaul, St. John's, Providence, Notre Dame, West Virginia, Cincinnati, Rutgers, Seton Hall and South Florida.

Big East commissioner Mike Tranchese doesn't think the eight bids the 16-team league got last season has to be the record for long.

"I don't think it's a ceiling number," Tranchese said. "Talking to the people who run the tournament and the people on the committee, they assured me there is no ceiling. We're never going to know until it happens but people said you couldn't get eight in and we did it last year."

Louisville planning major expansion at Papa John's

by WILL GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Louisville wants to expand capacity at Papa John's Stadium by 50 percent in time for the 2009 season, athletic director Tom Jurich said Tuesday.

The stadium, which opened in 1998, would grow in size from 42,000 to 63,600 under the plan, Jurich said. The expansion would include building an upper level on the east side of the stadium, adding a terrace area to the south end zone and putting in 45 new luxury suites.

"We want to keep growing and growing and keep this program on the cutting edge," Jurich said. "We can see what a crown jewel this football program has become for this university."

The school sent out a survey to season-ticket holders on Monday to gauge the interest and support in the project, which Jurich estimated will cost $65 million.

Construction on the project would take 15-18 months but would not affect the stadium's availability or capacity during Louisville's football season, Jurich said.

Louisville (7-0, 2-0 Big East), currently ranked sixth in the country, is averaging crowds of 42,283 at home this season, including a record crowd of 42,704 that watched the Cardinals beat Miami on Sept. 16. That record could be broken when Louisville hosts No. 4 West Virginia (7-0, 2-0) on Nov. 2.

The expansion would make Papa John's Stadium the largest on-campus stadium in the Big East Conference. Both Pittsburgh and South Florida play in larger stadiums, but share the space with NFL teams.

The construction would also coincide with the building of a downtown arena in Louisville that will house both the Cardinals men's and women's basketball teams. Jurich said investors who express an interest in luxury suites and premium seating at both sites will be given the highest priority for game tickets.

Local horse now resides in Europe

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PRESTONSBURG — A Whisper of Magic has carried the genes and traits of the local Rocky Mountain Horse overseas to Europe. Gert Jan de Groot of Amsterdam, Netherlands, recently completed the purchase of A Whisper of Magic from Prince Albert Stables of Prestonsburg.

Whisper is a three-year-old registered Rocky Mountain filly with the typical chocolate body color and striking white mane and tail. Whisper is sired by Old Time Hershey, one of the Rocky Mountain stallions standing stud at Prince Albert Stables.

The de Groot family has raised carriage horses in Europe for over 200 years and became interested in the local breed through the internet and magazine articles.

Gaited horses are not new to the Europe, but the distinct qualities of, excellent temperament, size and conformation that creates a pleasing eye appeal along with the smooth ride of the Eastern Kentucky horses is what brought de Groot to invest in the Rocky Mountain breed.

Sue Wells at Prince Albert Stables was the reason de Groot purchased his first Rocky Mountain horse from Eastern Kentucky.

Doing business long distance has its drawbacks — trust and honesty are among the most important things in a purchase.

"I could not be more satisfied with the purchase of Whisper," said de Groot. "She has all the qualities I was looking for and the service received from Prince Albert Stables has exceeded my expectations."

Whisper has exceeded the expectations of the folks at Prince Albert as well.

"The more we worked her the better she became," said Josh Murdock, trainer.

"She early on displayed the qualities of a great show mare. After only a short time Sue made a request of de Groot to allow the stables to take Whisper to a few local shows."

De Groot was very supportive of the idea and Whisper was started in the show ring. Winning her age division and qualifying for the World championship at the annual Untied Mountain Horse show at Harrodsburg in August capped her show career.

What a grand ending to a very exciting summer for Whisper, de Groot and Prince Albert Stables.

Whisper arrived in Amsterdam Tuesday, Oct. 24. Her life will be a pampered one until she foals next spring in Holland. Whisper has checked safe in foal to Sullivan Ballou, a seven-year-old World Champion stallion owned by Pat and Robin Brandenburg of Monroe, Ga.

De Groot plans on returning the foal to the Untied States to continue in its dam footsteps.

A small bit of Eastern Kentucky now resides in Europe.

Fall shotgun season a potential Thanksgiving turkey provider

By STEVE VANTREESE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PADUCAH — If there is a roll-your-own Thanksgiving turkey season, this is it.

Saturday, Oct. 28, through Nov. 3 brings the first segment of Kentucky's fall shotgun hunting season for wild turkeys. A second phase comes Dec. 2-8, but if you want to set aside a you-pick bird for the Thanksgiving holiday, the first segment is your shot.

Archery and crossbow hunting for turkeys also is allowed in the autumn, but the firearms hunt offers better chances of success simply based on the ease of operation of the weaponry dictated.

Thanks to the historic rebound of the wild turkey population to what may be as high or higher than prehistoric levels, hunters can now pursue the big game version of our game birds in every Kentucky county. The abundance of the flock makes it possible for the taking of birds of either gender even for bonus autumn gun hunting.

But fall turkey hunting is a different game than the traditional spring gobbler turkey hunt. The spring pursuit is one that centers on using hen calls to attract romantically inclined tom turkeys to what sounds like potential mates.

The annual turkey breeding season is months past and more months yet to come, so fall hunters have to rely on different tactics.

Most fall turkey seekers rely on pure ambush. Rather than counting on calling the turkey to the gun, the fall hunter sneaks out there and puts the gun where the turkey is going to go anyway.

Who can say where the turkey wants to go? The birds probably don't maintain a daily planner, so even they may not know what and where is on the schedule. And that is the chief rub.

Fall turkey hunters can just guess, setting up in a seemingly likely spot and hoping a bird or a flock of them comes along. More efficiently, fall poultry pursers spend some hours or days afield in advance, observing and listening for common turkey behavior. Such scouting can be used to determine roosting areas and routine directions of movement on feeding forays.

Ambush hunters commonly use temporary, made-on-the-spot blinds with natural material, but increasingly hunters rely on store-bought portable and instant set up blinds to help hide their forms and their movement to oncoming turkeys.

Setting up in a camouflaging blind helps defeat one of the turkey's sharpest danger-detection units, those keen eyeballs. Hiding one's human profile and especially the movement of turkeys, then maneuvers to close the distance without being seen or heard. When fairly close, the hunter then charges in on foot, shouting or waving arms, to suddenly startle the flock and provoke them to flap away in a panic in all directions at once.

While this seems patently against the hunter's ethic of stealth, the ploy begins to pay off when the hunter sets up at the spot of the panicked dispersal and begins to call to the scattered birds. Using the typical assembly talk of whatever birds were routed — coarse yelps for old gobblers, softer yelps for mature hens or high-pitched "kee-kees" for young-of-the-year jakes or hens.

By first making the gregarious turkeys lonesome by breaking them up, calling can serve a major role in attracting them back to what they take as a flockmate — only to give of themselves to provide for the holiday dinner table.

More radical is the technique of scatter-and-callback. In this alternative, a hunter detects a feeding flock

KDFWR meeting set for Wednesday

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) will offer the public a final opportunity to discuss wildlife-related issues with agency leaders during a meeting next week near Louisville. The meeting will help department officials develop priority issues in the future.

Persons interested in voicing their opinions regarding the agency's role and responsibility in managing fisheries and wildlife resources in the Commonwealth, and what areas of concern the agency should focus on, are encouraged to attend this public meeting at the Jefferson County Sportsmen's Club, Wednesday (Nov. 1) from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Ultimately, the agency will use public input and internal expertise from professional wildlife and fisheries biologists, law enforcement, education and engineering personnel to develop a long-term strategic plan for the agency to follow into the future. The plan is expected to be completed within the next eight months.

To date, key department leaders have met on two different occasions to begin evaluating the agency's strengths and weaknesses, as well as identifying external issues that are facing or will face the KDFWR in years to come. "Kentucky Afield" television recently aired an episode about the purpose and responsibilities of KDFWR and its specific plan to build "A Better Future for Kentucky's Wildlife."

Over the past two weeks, the KDFWR has held six regional public meetings — with an open house format — where citizens provided input on critical issues facing the department and the fish and wildlife resource. These public meetings were held in Grant County, Morehead, Hazard, Princeton, Campbellsville and Frankfort.

Issues discussed included habitat, fish and wildlife populations, recreational opportunities, funding and partnerships.

"We hope people in the Louisville Metro area will be able to come out and share their ideas with us regarding the future of wildlife management in Kentucky, and become part of the team in helping us achieve even greater successes in the coming years," said Dr. Jon Gassett, KDFWR Commissioner.

Directions to the Jefferson County Sportsmen's Club: From Louisville, take Gene Snyder Freeway (I-265) to Bardstown Road Exit (Exit 17). Turn south at end of ramp onto Hwy 31E, then travel approximately 5 miles to the Bullitt County line. Turn left on Waterford Road (KY 660). The club is located less than a mile to the right.

The clubhouse holds 150 people.

Participants are strongly encouraged to take the time to log onto the agency's website at fw.ky.gov, and click on "Planning for the Future" to read highlights about the strategic plan and learn of additional ways to get involved in this process. There is still a method for providing public input into draft components of the strategic plan and weighing in the same critical issues that have been discussed at the public meetings. This survey will be available online through Tuesday (Oct. 31).

Feel free to return to the department's website in the future, as it will be continuously updated with progress toward developing the KDFWR strategic plan.

Eldora releases '07 major dates

TIMES STAFF REPORT

ROSSBURG, Ohio — Tradition has long been a contributing key to the success of Eldora Speedway, and with that thought in mind, Tony Stewart has released the dates and ticket information for three significant and history-laden events at his one-half mile clay speed plant.

Each of the trio will be held on their customary weekends and despite escalating operating expenses, Stewart has held firm on the 2006 adult general admission pricing for 2007.

Kicking off the slate will be the 13th Annual Dirt Late Model Dream over the weekend of June 8-9, followed by the legendary Kings Royal by Crown Royal for Sprint Cars over the weekend of July 13-14 and wrapping up with the famed World 100 for Dirt Late Models on September 7-8. A Sunday rain date has been announced for each of the events.

Stewart has gone on to announce that reserved seat tickets for these events will go on sale Friday, Dec. 1 — online at www.eldoraspeedway.com or by telephone at 937/338-3815. A complete pricing breakdown and indication of reserved seating areas will be released on the website shortly.

While each of these events have made their mark in history; Stewart and his staff will be showcasing many additional events, with a schedule to mirror closely that of the highly successful 2006 campaign. As the details of these events are confirmed, a complete 2007 agenda will be released.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Pursuant to Application No. 836-5314 Renewal No. 3

In accordance with KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Matt/Co., Inc., 439 Meadows Branch, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, has applied for renewal of a permit for an underground coal mining operation located 0.5 miles south of Osborn in Floyd County. The proposed operation will disturb 10.63 surface acres and will underlie 195.67 acres, and the total area within the permit boundary will be 206.3 acres. The proposed operation is approximately 4.5 miles southeast from KY Route 1426's junction with KY Route 979 and located on Toler Creek. The latitude is 37° 28' 15". The longitude is 82° 36' 49". The proposed operation is located on the Pikeville U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by Ned Bush and K.C. Rogers. The operation will underlie land owned by Ned Bush, G.C. Stevens, Roberts Heirs, and W.C. Hambley Estate. The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections or requests for a permit conference must be received within 30 days of this date.

Odds & Ends

■ BATH, Pa. — Cub Scouts in Pack 55 got a real fright in their Halloween parade, and later an award from the mayor, when the flatbed truck they were riding on caught fire.

Mayor Betty Fields said the parade had started normally Tuesday night and had gone about 500 yards before flames erupted.

"All of a sudden the back of the truck started on fire," Fields said Wednesday.

Fortunately, the parade contained fire trucks. The Klecknersville Rangers Volunteer Fire Co. was behind the Cub Scouts and quickly snuffed the flames.

Firefighter Jason Harhart said it was unclear how the fire started. No injuries were reported. Fields said the parade continued on, and she gave the Cub Scouts a loyalty award for sticking with it.

■ HOLLSOPPLE, Pa. — A descendant of the man for whom this community is named wants what he says is an extra "L" dropped from its name.

"I'm a direct descendant of the founder," said Ed Holsopple. "I want to change the spelling to preserve its historical integrity."

Holsopple was founded in 1880 by Henry Holsopple.

Although most locals with the surname spell it with one "L," residents report fires to the Holsopple Volunteer Fire Co. and mail letters from the Holsopple post office.

Conecatego Township supervisors said they will decide what to do at their November meeting.

It's not the first time the conflict has come up. Archives from The Tribune-Democrat of Johnstown indicate the controversy began in 1813 when a family named Holtzapfel moved to the area.

As the children grew up, they disagreed on the spelling. In 1880, some began spelling it Holsopple.

■ IOWA CITY, Iowa — A volunteer firefighter was ordered to take an anger management class after using his vehicle's emergency lights to pull over a motorist.

Kevin G. Hutchins, 44, of Palo, pleaded guilty Thursday to impersonating a public official. He was given one year of probation and was ordered to serve 50 hours of community service and write an apology to the woman he pulled over, court records show.

Hutchins used his vehicle's emergency blue lights to stop the woman in March after she made what he considered an improper lane change. Only law enforcement officers have the authority to stop drivers.

Palo Fire Chief Steve

Mason said Hutchins has been on suspension pending resolution of the case. He said he has not decided whether Hutchins will remain with the department.

■ MAHOPAC, N.Y. — A man got so angry about the way a motorist had parked his car that he climbed into a forklift, placed the fork under the car and lifted it off the ground, police said.

Wasek Safrah, 51, of Ossining, was arrested on charges of criminal mischief and assault. Police said that in addition to lifting the car, Safrah punched out both the offending vehicle and the man who parked it.

Police said the episode began at about 5 p.m. Oct. 16 at a strip mall on Route 6 in Mahopac. Safrah, a store owner, felt the car, though legally parked, was blocking his access. The driver was an employee of another store.

The police report, issued Tuesday night, said a dispute emerged and Safrah punched the side of the vehicle, denting it. Then he took the controls of a forklift in the parking lot, maneuvered its lifting mechanism under the car and lifted it upward.

After lifting the car, Safrah allegedly punched the driver in the mouth. The victim was not seriously injured and police did not release that man's name.

Safrah could not be reached for comment. Neither the police nor the court had information on who might represent him.

■ COLUMBIA, S.C. — This holiday season may be a little tense at Karen Floyd's home.

Floyd, who is running as a Republican for state superintendent of education, has learned that her stepmother donated $100 to her Democratic challenger.

The stepmother, Jeannie Kanes, wrote Jim Rex's campaign a check last week. That donation prompted Floyd's father to send his daughter's campaign $100.

"Husbands and wives don't always agree on everything," Bill Kanes said Tuesday from Houston, where the couple have a residence. "This is one of those times."

Jeannie Kanes expressed dismay that her donation has become public. "If I had known this was going to happen, I wouldn't have done it," she said.

She said friendship and her belief that an educator should hold the state superintendent's job prompted her to support Rex.

"She is entitled to her view," said Floyd spokesman Hogan Gidley.

■ PORTAGE, Ind. — A young woman's goal of getting her driver's license crashed this week — right into the license branch.

The 20-year-old woman was pulling into a parking spot outside the Bureau of Motor Vehicles branch when she hit the accelerator instead of the brake, Assistant Fire Chief Mike Bucy said. Her driving teacher was in the passenger seat.

The car jumped a small curb and went into the building about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, tearing out a large glass window and damaging a door and low brick wall.

The driver and examiner, who weren't identified, were not injured. Bucy said a person in the building sustained a hip injury and was examined by emergency medical personnel but declined to be taken to the hospital.

The driver's car had damage to its hood and fenders.

The young driver, meanwhile, failed the test.

"I think it's fair to say the customer did not meet the required criteria," said Greg Cook, a Bureau of Motor Vehicles spokesman.

■ HUNTINGTON, W.Va. — His intentions may have been good, but Jason Sansom probably should have asked permission before painting a Huntington bridge pink.

Sansom, 26, said he was walking by the bridge over Fourpole Creek in Ritter Park last weekend when he noticed it needed a paint job.

He decided then and there that he wanted to do something to help clean up the city, so he bought $50 worth of paint and went to work painting it pink in honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

He got about an hour into the paint job, before a park official stopped him.

Jim McClelland, executive director of the Greater Huntington Park and Recreation District, asked Sansom to finish painting and to come back when the weather is warmer to repaint it, this time with white paint.

"There are a lot of fine causes, but that's not what the parks are there for. Any colors in the park system have to be approved by me and the district," McClelland said.

Cindy Artrip

Eye for photography, heart for people

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

Possessing a warm personality and a smile that could easily land her in front of the camera rather than behind it, it's little wonder that Cindy Artrip is seeing much success with her business venture into the realm of studio photography.

A graduate of Morehead State University, from which she holds a bachelor's degree in studio arts, the former Prestonsburg High School student still remembers what it felt like when her parents informed her that there was simply no money in the family budget for senior portraits. Her father had been injured in a coal mining accident and was unable to work at the time.

"I went to the photographer and paid for the sitting and had my picture taken, then found out that we couldn't pay for them," Artrip said. "I made up my mind early on that my goal would be to be a photographer that everyone could afford," she said.

Though Artrip says the first years were rather lean ("I didn't see a profit for three years"), her venture into photography has since proven so successful that her husband, Jimmy, was able to quit his job for a local computer support company and become his wife's business partner. "It's worked out really well," Artrip said. "He's just such a wonderful support for me. He stays at home and helps with the kids, the house and the business and, together, we manage to get it all done."

The husband-wife team now do everything required to complete a photography assignment, from the actual photo shoot to development and printing of the final package. "We do it all," she said. "We purchased our own equipment and are now able to do it all right here."

Not bad for a gal who started out in a small room in the back of a video rental store hoping to "make enough money to just pay for diapers and formula for my children," as Artrip said.

Artrip shares that she wanted very much to be able to stay at home with her children and be a full-time mom rather than choosing to work a 9 to 5 job. Her foray into photography enabled her to work, but on her own schedule, thereby allowing her to be available for her family when needed.

"My husband has been great," she said. "I've had a wonderful support system, from my husband to my parents and grandparents. Everyone has always supported and encouraged me. I have to give my husband 99.9 percent of the credit."

Artrip shares that her favorite photo assignments are those involving children and families. "I also love doing senior portraits, but working with small children is just something I especially love," she said. Artrip and her husband have two small children of their own, Adam, 17 months, and Josh, five years.

Being female, a mother, and possessing a compassionate heart, it isn't surprising to learn that one of Artrip's newest ventures is that of becoming a member of the non-profit organization, "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep." Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep is an infant bereavement program that uses the skills of professional photographers and videographers, who donate their time and services, to document, and memorialize, the brief lives of dying infants. "I know it will be a very hard thing to do," Artrip said, "but I found out about the program and I had to join." Artrip shares that her hopes in joining the Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep program will be a way in which she can help families to heal while enduring the tragedy of losing a child. "It seems like very little to ask, of me, in comparison to what these parents are going

Tammy Bartley

Background in management leads to beauty career

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

Following her entry into the workforce after high school graduation, Tammy Bartley, owner of Tammy's Shear Perfection, located on North Lake Drive, in Prestonsburg, worked for over 15 years in business management helping oversee the daily workings of a business that operated 29 different locations.

"I finally decided that if I was going to work that hard, I was going to work for myself," Bartley said.

Bartley said that she had always wanted to study cosmetology but since she had married so soon after graduation that she had "never really had the opportunity to go to school because I had to work" to help maintain her married household.

When the opportunity did arise, Bartley said she was quick to take advantage of finally getting to pursue her dream. "I enrolled in school, worked out my apprenticeship and went right into business for myself," she said. She has owned and operated Tammy's Shear Perfection for almost 11 years.

"I love what I do," she said. "I always wanted to do it and I've been satisfied ever since," she continued. Though Bartley does admit that going into business for yourself so soon after completing school is probably more stressful than working for someone else for a few years, she said she really wouldn't have had it any other way. "I'd probably recommend to new graduates to work in someone else's shop for awhile, though," she said. "It helps to build up a client base before going out on your own."

Bartley says that her extensive background in business management prior to going to cosmetology school and opening her own shop was, undoubtedly, a major factor in helping her business become successful.

Bartley says that it's "always best to make an appointment, but we welcome walk-ins, too." Visit Tammy and her staff at 487 North Lake Drive or call 889-9265 to make an appointment.

Tonya Newsome

Answered call to help those in need

by JOSHUA BYERS
PUBLISHER

Growing up in Eastern Kentucky, Tonya Newsome learned to appreciate the area's culture and friendliness, the way of life if you will. But it wasn't until she faced one of the biggest decisions in her life that the folks she grew up around steered her in the right direction and an exceptional human services company was born in Floyd County.

"When I first left Floyd County I never thought that I'd be coming back," she said. "But once I graduated from school I realized how much I missed the people of Eastern Kentucky."

A native of Floyd County, Newsome was born in Teaberry and graduated from Eastern Kentucky University with a degree in nursing.

Newsome is now the owner and executive director of Champion Supports and Services Inc., a private entity certified and licensed by the division of mental retardation for the state of Kentucky that serves those with mental handicaps.

The human services company was formed in 2003 and opened for business in January 2004. Newsome has 10 years of experience in the mental health field and is known as a qualified mental retardation professional — a designation which can only be earned with a certain blend of educational experience and actual work experience in the field.

Newsome said the idea to start a program wasn't really her own.

"I was working for another program and when I left that program several of the clients began to call me and ask me if I would start something of my own," Newsome said.

It's obvious she endears herself to the clients that she serves.

Newsome said it was only after "a lot of thought and prayer that I decided to open up this program."

But before making that decision she did what only seemed natural for a girl from Eastern Kentucky who valued the community, she asked those closest to her what they thought. And after 6 to 8 months she said she "decided to go down that path. It's a very big process just to get started."

The nature of the work is what made it such a difficult decision, she said.

"We are a 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week program and the individuals that we serve we are involved in every area of their lives," she explained, adding it's a lot of responsibility. "I won't do something if I don't feel that I could be the best at it."

Not surprisingly, Newsome's greatest professional accomplishment happened at Champion this past July when the state's arduous certification period yielded an excellent findings report.

"I'm very proud of the entire team," she said. "We are a team and it's a team approach and that's why we've been successful. It's not just one person doing everything."

Newsome said she also takes great pleasure in watching her clients grow.

"There are so many individuals that I have seen progress dramatically," she said.

Newsome gave an example of a client who could only use sign language when he began using their services but is now able to use some words.

"We've really seen a dramatic improvement in the quality of life of many of our clients," she said.

Champion currently has 14 clients with openings for two more people.

Newsome said Champion hopes to expand its services in the next three months by opening another location in Floyd County, and hopefully in Prestonsburg. The company currently employs 25 people.

Newsome said she's proud to be a role model for women in business.

"I think just the fact that for young girls right now that they can look and see that there are women in leadership roles in the community is important," she said. "You always hear that there are opportunities."

"You can do whatever you set your mind to do as long as the lord's on your side," she said.

We are a privately owned and locally operated human services agency committed to providing quality supports & services to individuals diagnosed with mental retardation and/or developmental disabilities. We are a Division of Mental Retardation Certified provider of SCL (Supports for Community Living) Waiver services. Our primary service area is the beautiful hills of the big Sandy Region; however, we do branch into other areas as requested.

What is SCL?

SCL is a Home and Community Based Waiver-type under the Kentucky Medicaid Program and is administered by the Division of Mental Retardation. SCL was developed in September 1997 for Kentucky residents as an alternative to institutional care and allows individuals with mental retardation and/or developmental disabilities to remain in or return to the community. This promotes community involvement and provides individuals with mental retardation and/or developmental disabilities with the same opportunities as other Kentucky residents. The Opportunities to be educated, live, work, worship, play, and socialize according to their own wants, needs, interests, and desires.

We believe:

All people are unique; therefore, it is necessary for supports & services to be individualized to meet their needs. The person is a person first and foremost—not a diagnosis or label.

Champions strive to be the very best and to always exceed expectations. Champion Supports & Services, Inc., are strongly committed to excellence and to becoming a leader in providing services to individuals and their families. We think outside-of-the-box in order to explore and develop other opportunities to enhance the lives of those served.

Cheryl Leslie

Continuing a downtown tradition in children's apparel

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

For nearly 40 years, the Lad 'n Lassie Shop had catered to area families looking to purchase the very best in children's clothing.

When Dot Marshall, long-time owner of the children's apparel shop, made the difficult decision to close after so many years of serving Floyd County families, Cheryl Leslie, current owner of the shop, said that the idea of purchasing the business "just wouldn't let go of me."

"I don't know what it was, really, but I know I just couldn't let go of it. I just felt compelled to do it," she said.

Leslie's decision to purchase the business and keep the name that had so long stood for quality in local shopper's minds was one that allowed a family tradition to continue in downtown Prestonsburg. Generations of local families have looked to the Lad 'n Lassie Shop for everyday quality children's clothing, as well as for all the special occasions in a child's life. From dressing their newborns to making sure their toddlers and children are dressed in the very finest for the holidays, the Lad 'n Lassie Shop has always striven to please.

Working for 23 years in her father's Prestonsburg dental office, Leslie was well acquainted with the Lad 'n Lassie Shop and was a frequent customer there herself, as were her family and friends. When Marshall hung out the "Closed" sign on the shop's door, Leslie said she felt a strong urge to keep the favorite business open though she had never considered the possibility of becoming a shop owner before.

Leslie, who moved the shop from its original location in Richmond Plaza to its current Court Street location, says she has "never regretted" her decision to purchase the business nine years ago. "I truly, truly enjoy coming here every day," she said.

In addition to newborn needs and children's clothing, the shop also offers hand-painted, custom designed furnishings crafted by a local artist. "We're very proud to offer these one of a kind unique pieces," she said. "Customers can purchase what we have on site, or they can special order a particular theme," she said.

The shop also offers a beautiful line of unique baby and children's gift items including jewelry for little girls and interactive stuffed pets.

"Running the shop has always been fun and interesting," Leslie said. "But the best thing about this shop," she continued, "is that everyone who comes in here is always happy. I don't know what it is, but everyone is always in a good mood when they come in here. I get up every morning eager to come in."

Leslie resides with her husband, Darrell, in Prestonsburg. The couple have two sons, Jonathan, who lives in Atlanta, Georgia with his wife and son, and Blake, a newly married doctor who resides with his wife in South Carolina.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Garland and Wonnell Godsey, of Prestonsburg.

Cheryl Leslie, owner of Lad 'n Lassie, says that every day is a fun day at the children's apparel shop.

Leslie Maynard

Getting to know her patients

by JESSICA HALE
STAFF WRITER

A lot of times many may get the idea that people in the medical field are so busy they don't really get to know their patients beyond their medical chart. Leslie Maynard is an exception to that assumption.

Maynard has been a nurse practitioner since 2001. She earned her bachelor's degree in Louisville, where she grew up. After graduating from the University of Louisville, she attended Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va., where she received her certification as a nurse practitioner.

During her time in college, she met her husband, Dr. Paul Maynard who practices medicine with her at Zebulon Primary Care Center in Pikeville.

Maynard sees an average of 15-to-20 patients a day at the practice she and her husband own. Although, this may seem like a large number, Maynard says it's actually low compared to others in the area who are in the same field as her.

"The most rewarding part of my job is to see someone who has come through a bad situation and after my help, they have amazingly recovered," Maynard said. "It makes it all worthwhile."

Maynard doesn't see her practice as a business, but as a personal relationship with people she cares about. She has often cried both tears of sorrow and joy with her patients, but says that's what she loves so much about her job.

"My personal relationships with patients do make my job a lot harder, especially when I lose a patient, but it's also what keeps me going," she said.

Getting emotionally attached to someone is one thing, but when you physically feel their pain, it really hits home. Maynard says she often gets aches and pains when a patient comes into her office needing help.

"It's so weird and I don't really know how to explain it, but I do sometimes actually feel some of what they are feeling," Maynard said.

Maynard is very proud of the accomplishments that her practice continues to make every day. Zebulon Primary Care is operating with cutting-edge technology. Maynard says that their medical records are almost completely electronic, which means records are more secure and day-to-day operations seem to run more smoothly with the new system.

"We like to stay educated on new technology that becomes available," Maynard said.

Not only is she a busy woman with her job as a nurse practitioner, Maynard is also a Girl Scout troop leader and has been a member of the Pike County Rotary Club since 2002.

Maynard says she is hoping that Zebulon Primary Care will grow in the near future. She and her husband, Dr. Paul Maynard, are considering bringing in other doctors or nurse practitioners to their practice.

"I've always wanted to be in this profession and there's nothing in the world I would rather be doing," Maynard said. "I have found my calling."

Carol Casebolt

Satisfied having a full schedule

by ALEX SMITH
STAFF WRITER

With a large dry-erase board on a wall in her office with more than 20 projects she is currently working on, as well as a crowded dayplanner with several engagements written in it, most people would be frustrated and wondering why they ever took such a job.

But for Carol Casebolt, the manager of external affairs, marketing and public relations at Pikeville Medical Center for the past two years, she wouldn't have it any other way.

"You can't really call it a job when you love what you do," Casebolt said. "When you don't feel like you're working, it's an extension of who you are."

Casebolt, who originally studied psychology in college and began working at an insurance agency afterwards, was lured into the public relations field via broadcasting after she had been asked after graduation if she had ever given it any thought. She began doing radio voice tracks and eventually moved into her first public relations job with Coleman Oil. She calls this job a transition point into the business when she was in charge of setting up a concert which would be attended by more than 10,000 people.

"It's probably what baptized me into the type of work I do now," Casebolt said. "It took me from the beginning to the end of a project."

After Coleman Oil, Casebolt began doing the same work for Childers Oil before she accepted her current position at Pikeville Medical Center. Casebolt said she likes her job and hopes to work there until she retires because she enjoys the job so much and because she believes she can do a lot of good there.

"You have an opportunity here to help people," Casebolt said. "For example, by putting ads out about breast cancer you can encourage people to come in and have a mammogram."

Casebolt said it is impossible to describe a typical day on the job because every day is so different. There are 90 departments at the center, so not only does she need to get news and information out to the general public, but to the 1,400 employees working in the facility as well.

One way she does this is with her weekly radio show called "Health Talk" which is broadcast over nine stations every Thursday. She also helps put out monthly newsletters for employees working in the hospital to get new program ideas out to them.

Casebolt has been married for 14 years and has a son and a daughter, both of whom she says are just as busy as her and are involved in many school sports. She said that in addition to her involvement as chairman of the Pike County American Cancer Society Relay for Life and the local Kiwanis Club and Chamber of Commerce, her hobby is supporting her children in their activities. Casebolt likes to keep herself busy and said it takes a lot of planning and scheduling, but she wouldn't have it any other way.

"If I lose my dayplanner, I'm in trouble," Casebolt said.

Thomasine Robinson

Serving her hometown

by ALEX SMITH
STAFF WRITER

Although Thomasine Robinson has been the mayor of the city of Martin for the last six-and-a-half years, she has spent most of her adult life helping to better the lives of those who live in the city.

Her top priority has been bringing businesses back to the area, which has been hard to do because of the one thing she can't stop — the rain.

Martin sits in a valley between Beaver Creek and has been subjected to three major floods since 1998. Many downtown businesses and homes have simply been destroyed and a redevelopment plan has been underway for over five years to buy the homes of residents and businesses and move the homes to higher ground. The project will cost $95 million over 10 years, and Robinson believes that the project will help bring back the town she grew up in.

"I enjoy being involved with our community," Robinson said. "My goal is to rebuild so that young people who grow up here will have the opportunity to build a home and have everything I had when I was growing up."

Outside her involvement with the community as mayor, Robinson has also been self-employed for the past 40 years as the owner of Jan's Florist and Gift Shop. Her sister was the original owner but she sold it after three years and Robinson has been running it ever since. She has been involved with sports for many years, including Little League baseball, AAU basketball, pee-wee football and girls' softball. Robinson said that anything having to do with kids is of interest to her.

"Any activity the kids are in, I'm there."

Robinson was born in Martin and her father was mayor from 1984 until 1997. She said she likes to stay involved with all residents, from helping out with her grandchildren to being involved in senior citizen programs.

"I'm a very active lady, I believe if you stay active you stay young."

Martin Mayor Thomasine Robinson pulls double-duty every day at her flower shop and at her office at Martin City Hall. Here she is working at city hall, where she spends anywhere from two to eight hours per day, depending on how much work there is to be done.

Michelle Sword

Found her business while planning her wedding

by JESSICA HALE
STAFF WRITER

With dreams of starting her own business, Michelle Sword's wedding day kicked off a whirlwind of opportunities for this eager and ambitious young woman.

While planning the details of one of the most important days in a woman's life, Sword decided that it would be much more practical for her and her future husband to purchase the items they needed for their big day instead of renting them from establishments located out of the area. Together they bought 200 plates, 200 wine glasses and 200 individual sets of silverware, among other things. After they had said their vows, prospective couples in the area began to ask to rent the items she had purchased for her wedding.

"You are sitting on a business," her husband said to her one day.

From then on, it was one event after another. Signature Events blossomed and although Sword first began operating out of a storage building she rented to store items she used for event planning, her business has grown so significantly that she has now moved into a larger building on North Mayo Trail in Pikeville.

"I'm sure we will be in an even bigger building by next year the way things are going now," Sword predicted.

With an average of eight weddings and events a weekend, Sword doesn't see business slowing down anytime soon. Her husband helps her with the business and even her 3-year-old son Daegan does his part, helping Mommy load and unload for events they plan. She's even having his own business cards printed that will read, "Daegan Sword, Co-Owner of Signature Events." With help from three other part-time employees, Sword says things are going great.

Signature Events has even expanded further into the region and Sword says she gets calls every day from interested people hundreds of miles away. Although the sky seems to be the limit for her, Sword says she doesn't want things to get out of hand by scheduling events that may take away from her local business.

The operations of Signature Events allow brides or other event coordinators to choose the plan that best works for them. Signature Events offers customers the option of self pickup and setup, or having the staff of Signature Events do delivery and complete setup for them. Sword says the flexibility of her business allows for her to coordinate several events within the same time frame because lots of times she doesn't have to set up at all, customers just pay to use her items.

Signature Events offers wedding and party rentals, event planning and sales. She has even become co-founder of East Kentucky Bride and co-owner of Signature Sweets, a fudge company that started as a suggestion for wedding party gifts to a customer.

"I've always told future brides that fudge is the perfect gift to give their wedding party, so that's how Signature Sweets got started," Sword said.

It's full speed ahead for a young lady who had hopes of owning her own business and she's proved she's more than capable of making it on her own.

Heather McPeak

Discovered a career while shopping for furniture

by JESSICA HALE

Heather McPeak, owner and operator of Dream House Furnishings, says she may not have taken the route she had originally planned for herself, but she's truly happy now with all of the accomplishments she has made.

Heather McPeak started her adult life sort of confused as to what career she wanted to spend the rest of her life in. Several years later, she is a smart, well-rounded, 29-year-old business woman who doesn't see business slowing down anytime soon.

McPeak majored in psychology at the University of Kentucky and planned on going to law school after graduation. She graduated a semester early and had a couple of months to go before she was scheduled to start her law studies. Feeling like she needed to get a job to earn some cash before school, McPeak began working in the school system as a teacher.

"I thought to myself, 'This is what I want to do with my life,'" said McPeak.

After a while, her job as a teacher fell through and she wasn't hired back for the following year.

"I was in a furniture store one day with intentions to purchase a bedroom suit. Before I left, I had purchased the entire store ... literally," McPeak said. "Owning my own business was a total accident."

Believe it or not, McPeak actually purchased that furniture business and soon turned it into an unlikely career for herself. Dream House Furnishings has been operating for about five years.

McPeak is a very busy woman, working an average of 12 to 14 hours a day. She says sometimes she even forgets to eat on certain days, but also says her long hours and lack of sleep are worth it. She has hired other people to help her, including three part-time sales persons and two full-time delivery guys.

McPeak attributes her happiness with her career choice to her customers because if it weren't for them, Dream House Furnishings would not exist.

"I have great customers," said McPeak.

"The people are the reason I do this job."

Walking into the building where her business is located on South Mayo Trail in Pikeville, one's eyes seem to dot quickly throughout the open space because each piece is special and unique. McPeak offers her customers both variety and originality, from custom bedding, blinds and wood floors to beautiful solid wood furniture pieces including beds, chests, couches, chairs, armoires and much more.

McPeak also owns a realty company called McPeak Realty. She mostly deals with rental properties, but says this business may grow in the future.

Both owner and decorator of Dream House Furnishings, McPeak says she may have taken a different route than originally planned in her career, but she wouldn't trade it for anything.

"It's hard owning and operating your own business, but I love it," said McPeak.

"We are a different kind of shop"

Billie Turner said she has left Our Lady of the Way on one or two occasions to work elsewhere, but said she has been drawn back every time. She said the hospital has always drawn her back because of the people who work there and because it is a faith-based institution.

Billie Turner

Focused from the beginning

by ALEX SMITH
STAFF WRITER

Not many people graduate high school early so they can get a jump-start on their career, but Billie Turner did just that when she enrolled in nursing school while her classmates finished up their senior year of high school.

"When I was in high school I knew some nurses that I was impressed by, so I left early," Turner said.

Upon graduation Turner began her nursing career at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin and has been working her way up the ladder ever since. She has been a licensed nurse for that past 28 years but has been adding many other responsibilities to her workload for a long time.

Turner spent time in a supervisory post in both the emergency and inpatient units at the hospital before eventually moving into her current position as vice president of clinical operations and chief nursing officer in 1993. She has many administrative duties and is responsible for ensuring that quality health care is provided for every patient at the hospital.

To accomplish this, Turner begins each day by gathering as much information as she can about the previous day by talking to physicians and reading reports about how many patients are currently lodged in the hospital, as well as discussing whether anything major occurred overnight. Then, she attends meetings.

"I spend a good amount of time in meetings discussing current and future hospital policy," Turner said.

Turner has filled her spare time over the years involved with activities at St. Martha's Catholic Parish in Prestonsburg, working as chairman of the survivorship program for the Floyd County American Cancer Society Relay for Life program, and by serving on advisory committees for the Big Sandy Community and Technical College and Healthy Floyd County 2010.

In between all of this she has been married for 30 years and helped raise two children, which she calls the biggest and most satisfying accomplishment of her life.

As she looks toward the future, Turner said she hopes to stay in her current position and help the hospital prosper in any way that she can.

"I want to see the hospital grow and expand its services to the community and the people we serve."
