Pike man killed in one-vehicle accident

by JACK LATTA
STAFF WRITER

ELKHORN CITY — A Pike County man died Wednesday after the vehicle he was driving ran off the road and struck a tree.

Reed Potter, 83, of Ashcamp, was traveling on Elkhorn Creek Road, when, according to Kentucky State Police, the 2005 Cadillac DeVille he was driving left the roadway and struck a tree.

Potter was transported to Pikeville Medical Center, where he was later pronounced dead.

Potter was reportedly not wearing a seatbelt.

The accident is still under investigation by Trooper Darrell Arnett and accident reconstructionist Det. Eddie Crum.

Catalytic converter theft case sent to grand jury

by JACK LATTA
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Three people charged with trying to steal catalytic converters off vehicles in Prestonsburg last week appeared in court earlier this week for a preliminary hearing.

Ronald Spurlock, 29, of Rainelle W.Va., along with Lowell, 43, of Garrett and Regina Castle, 21, of Martin appeared in Floyd District Court Wednesday where Judge James R. Allen determined that there was probable cause for the case to be sent to the grand jury.

Judge Allen's decision seemed to solidify upon learning that another warrant had been issued for Ronald Spurlock on the charge of stealing a catalytic converter from a car at McDowell ARH. The warrant was issued after an eye witness to the theft came forward.

Judge Allen was also not interested in lowering the defendants' bonds.

"As far as I'm concerned they will remain in jail until trial, or if they make bond," Allen said. Bond for each of the defendants was set at

Members of the Allen Volunteer Fire Department were called back out to May Village Thursday morning after reports that a home which had burned the night before had reignited. No one was injured in the fire, and thus far no report has been issued on what may have caused the fire.

Gas tax to rise 1.5 cents

The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — Beginning July 1, Kentucky will collect another 1.5 cents tax on each gallon of gasoline.

State finance officials say the tax, which goes toward the state road fund, will increase to 21.1 cents, and the diesel tax will rise to 18.1 cents.

The legislature designed the fuel tax to reset at least once a year based on the state's average wholesale price of gas. It could go down if prices fall, but the tax has increased, on average, by a little more than a penny every year since 2004, when it was 16 cents.

And with gas prices hovering around $4 for much of the state the past month, Kentuckians aren't too happy with another increase.

Kenneth Brown of Louisville says the state should be lessening the pain on consumers, not contributing to it.

Local students in concert tonight

by JACK LATTA
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — The Big Sandy Community and Technical College is hosting a Big Sandy Idol concert tonight which will feature a number of students from around the region.

The concert will be held in Gearheart Auditorium in the Pike Building on the BSCTC campus starting at 6 p.m.

Tickets are $5 at the door.

"We hope everyone will come to the show and support these students," Laura Ford Hall said. "Bring your family to the auditorium and enjoy an evening of local talent."

The concert is the culmination of the Big Sandy Idol summer program designed for high school students. The concert is being sponsored by BSCTC and Interstate Natural Gas.

According to officials with the college, BSCTC launched the the Big Sandy Idol Music Scholarship program for high school students last year.

The vocal music camp is offered free to every Idol finalist and honorable mention student. Students who took part in the camp learned concepts of vocal music including singer's breathing, pro-

PIKEVILLE — Kentucky State Police officials were still trying to determine the identity of the man killed in a fire this week in Pike County.

According to KSP officials, Post 9 responded to a structure fire at the residence of William Ratliff in Robinson Creek.

When firefighters from the Shelby Valley Fire Department arrived, it was learned that at least one occupant was still inside the building.

Upon extinguishing the blaze, the victim was located and pronounced dead at the scene by Pike County Deputy Coroner Zeb Hampton.

KSP say they will not release a name until positive identification has been determined.

The fire is still being investigated by KSP Arson Investigator Det. Don Parker.

Train derails in Perry Co.

Hazard Herald

DARFORK — A train hauling coal from the tippie in Ajax derailed early Thursday morning in the Darfork community of Perry County.

Officials said the call reporting the accident went out to Perry County 911 at 4:50 a.m. Thursday morning.

While an official cause of the derailment has yet to be released, five different cars left the track while the train traversed across a bridge near Everage Auto Sales. One of the cars overturned before landing in the creek between railroad and highway bridges.

United Mine Workers pans MSHA belt-air proposal

by TIM HUBER
AP BUSINESS WRITER

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — Coal mines could continue what critics call the dangerous practice of using conveyor belt tunnels to pump fresh air underground under new rules proposed by the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration.

Flame-resistant belts, fire prevention and detection in belt tunnels and federal approval also would be required under rules MSHA published in the Federal Register on Thursday.

"The objective of this proposed rule is to improve mine safety by significantly reducing the hazard of conveyor belt fires in underground coal mines," MSHA director Richard Stickler said in a statement.

Banning belt air outright would do even better, United Mine Workers spokesman Phil Smith said.

"We've always maintained that the Mine Act says that you can't use belt air," he said. "We believe it's a dangerous practice as demonstrated at Aracoma."

A National Mining Association

spokesman did not immediately return calls for comment.

The proposal is required by federal legislation passed after high-profile accidents in 2006 that killed 19 miners, including two in a belt fire at West Virginia's Aracoma Alma No. 1 Mine.

Smith said the proposal seems to violate that legislation by requiring that belts be merely fire-resistant, rather than nonflammable.

"The MINER Act calls for non-flammability of the belts. That's not what's in the rule, or at least that's not what's in the press release," he said. "It means it won't burn. To us, that's very important."

Additionally, the UMW is concerned that MSHA has ignored a Mine Improvement and New Emergency Response Act of 2006 requirement that mines demonstrate that using belt air will improve safety, Smith said. "There is no indication that the proposed rule actually mandates that."

According to MSHA, mines would have to buy flame-resistant belts once belts they're using now wear out, but only a year after the proposal becomes final. Mines also would have to replace heat sensors with carbon monoxide monitors and install smoke detectors, among other things.

Other requirements would include lowering dust levels in belt tunnels used for ventilation and requiring primary escape routes to have higher ventilation pressure than belt tunnels.

Public hearings on the proposal are planned for August in Utah, Kentucky, West Virginia and Alabama.

Thefts

$50,000 cash.

During the preliminary hearing, Maj. Gerald Clark, of the Prestonsburg Police department testified that when he pulled into the parking lot of Speedway he noticed two of the defendants standing near a Jeep.

Clark said that when he pulled around, "I saw some feet sticking out from under the Jeep." Clark said he got out and began questioning the three.

Clark testified that while Spurlock was attempting to cut the converter free, the Castles were trying to conceal him. "They were standing there trying to block the view of the Jeep."

According to Clark, Spurlock admitted to cutting the catalytic converter off of the vehicle which belonged to an employee of the business.

Clark further testified that he found two more catalytic converters on the scene, one in the back seat of Spurlock's vehicle, and one in the trunk of Castles' car.

Clark said that when he questioned Lowell Castle about the Converter in his trunk, he did not know where it had come from.

Clark said all three had slurred speech and could not seem to stand up straight. Two of the defendants reportedly passed out in the back of the police cruisers.

"They were on medication. Regina was under the influence bad," Clark said.

Officer George Tussey also testified during the preliminary hearing, and said that he searched Lowell's pockets and found a bottle of pills with the label torn off. Several more pill bottles, some with his name, some without, were also reportedly found in the trunk of Lowell's car.

A small change purse of pills was also found under the seat where Regina Castle was sitting. Tussey testified that Regina Castle stated that they were her pills.

According to Prestonsburg Police officials, catalytic converters have a street value of roughly $100 as scrap metal, but cost vehicle owners between $300 and $600 to replace.

Spurlock is charged with receiving stolen property over $300 (two counts), attempted theft by unlawful taking over $300 and public intoxication of a controlled substance.

Lowell Castle is charged with receiving stolen property over $300 (two counts), theft by unlawful taking, public intoxication of a controlled substance, prescription not in original container (three counts), and possession of controlled substance (two counts).

Regina L. Castle is charged with theft by unlawful taking over $300, receiving stolen property (two counts), possession of a controlled substance (three counts), public intoxication of a controlled substance, prescription not in original container (four counts).

The case will now be sent before a grand jury for indictments against the three.

Lowell Castle was also sentenced Wednesday to six months in jail and two years probation on the charge of defacing a firearm when he sawed off the barrel of a .22 rifle.

Dorothy Conley Stover

Dorothy Conley Stover, at age 72, completed her journey on this planet and left for her heavenly reward this 16th day of June, in the year of our Lord 2008.

She was a devoted member of the First United Methodist Church in Prestonsburg.

Dorothy Ann was born on December 6th, 1935, in Williamson, West Virginia. She was known to all as a kind and gentle soul with just a dash of mischievous humor. She could always be counted for a kind word or helping hand to anyone, whether it be friend, family member, or even a stranger. Her greatest love in life was her husband, Jess; together they have set a loving example of what a life lived in love, and with a love of Christ should be.

She graduated from West Virginia Tech in 1958, with a Bachelor of Arts in Journalism. In her time on this earth she was an educator, entrepreneur, and homemaker. Dorothy was a former president of the Highlands Regional Medical Center Auxiliary, and served willingly in other church, civic and social organizations.

Dorothy was preceded in death by her parents: George Thomas and Lola Davis Conley.

We are bereaved, but we are comforted in knowing that Dorothy is with Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in Heaven. We cannot help but praise him for the precious gift that was her life.

She is survived by her beloved husband, Jess; a daughter, Leann (Robert) Rodgers; a son, Tommy; and three grandchildren: Sarah, Katie, and Thomas Rodgers of Frankfort, Kentucky.

She is also survived by her sister, Betty Conley Campbell of Yadkinville, North Carolina; and many beloved nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers are: Clark

Visitation was Wednesday, at the Carter Funeral Home, with a celebration of life held on Thursday, June 19, at the First United Methodist Church in Prestonsburg, at 11 a.m., with Rev. Mark Watz officiating.

Burial was in the Vaughn Cemetery, in Louisa.

Carter Funeral Home was in charge of services. (Paid obituary)

DEFENDANTS

NOTICE OF CLASS ACTION AND OF A PROPOSED ADDENDUM TO CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT

THIS IS A NOTICE OF CLASS ACTION AND OF A PROPOSED ADDENDUM TO CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT; YOU, YOUR WARD OR YOUR CHILD MAY BE A MEMBER OF THE CLASS.

THIS IS NOT A NOTICE OF A LAWSUIT AGAINST YOU.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE CLASS DEFINED AS FOLLOWS:

I. "All present and future Kentuckians with mental retardation and/or related conditions who live with caretakers and who are eligible for, and have requested, but are not receiving Medical Assistance community residential and/or support services."

Please Take Notice:

II. A lawsuit in this Court involved claims, by the named Plaintiffs, that Defendants violated provisions of Title XIX of the Social Security Act by the manner in which they administered that portion of the Medicaid program concerning the provision of Intermediate Care Facility for persons with Mental Retardation (ICF/MR) services in community-based settings. The Court ruled that the case was to be maintained on behalf of the class defined above. The lawsuit sought only prospective, injunctive relief ordering reforms in the manner in which the program is conducted. The Court, following a fairness hearing in March of 2006, ruled that the parties' settlement agreement was fair, adequate, and reasonable and it ordered the parties to abide by the settlement agreement. The Parties have now mutually reached an addendum to the settlement agreement, the terms of which are more fully described in § IV below. This case involves no money damages. There will be no individual awards of money damages to either the named Plaintiffs or to the class members.

The purpose of this notice is to advise you of your possible membership in the class, your rights with respect to the lawsuit (including your right to exclude yourself, if you so desire) and including your rights with respect to a proposed addendum to the settlement agreement.

Notice of Class Action

III. Your rights may be affected by this lawsuit. Plaintiffs have alleged that Defendants violated the terms of Title XIX of the Social Security Act, in that they have not provided ICF/MR level services in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of Medicaid eligible individuals who meet the ICF/MR level of care criteria and have not delivered those benefits in a timely manner. Plaintiffs asked for injunctive relief requiring reforms in the program administration, as well as for attorneys' fees and costs. Defendants deny these charges. The Court has not ruled on the merits of the charges or of Defendants' denials and other defenses.

You have a choice whether or not to remain a member of the class defined above.

1. If you want to be excluded from the class you must send a written request that includes the statement "I hereby request to be excluded from the class in the Michelle P., et al. vs. Miller, et al. litigation" to: Hon. William S. Dolan, Protection and Advocacy, 100 Fair Oaks Ln., Frankfort, KY 40601 postmarked no later than July 7, 2008.

By making an election to be excluded,
 (a) You will not share in any relief that may be afforded Plaintiffs;
 (b) You will not be bound by any decision in this lawsuit that may favor Defendants; and
 (c) You may present any claims you have against Defendants by filing your own lawsuit.

2. If you want to remain a member of this class you should NOT file a request for exclusion and are not required to do anything at this time.

Notice of Proposed Addendum to Class Settlement

IV. Subject to Court approval, Plaintiffs and Defendants have agreed on an addendum to the previously approved settlement agreement. Plaintiffs asked the Court to make Defendants comply with certain provisions of the settlement agreement. Mediation ensued and the Court ultimately ordered Defendants to begin providing certain waiver services to class members. Defendants have appealed. After lengthy negotiations, and with input from many sources, the parties have produced a proposed addendum to the settlement agreement that, among other things, provides: Defendants will submit an amended Michelle P. Waiver to the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS); the Michelle P. Waiver will serve 3,000 class members in the first year and add an additional 1,500 "slots" each year thereafter, until reaching 10,000 slots. The Michelle P. waiver will continue until at least 2016; the weekly maximum for certain services is 40 hours; and to the extent permitted by law, Defendants obligations are considered reasonable and necessary costs to the state of Kentucky and are not dependent on designated appropriations by the Kentucky legislature.²

Certain actions by CMS, or the parties, will trigger a dispute resolution process. There is continuing jurisdiction in the Court for a period of time that ends only when the Michelle P. Waiver is renewed or July 1, 2011, whichever first occurs. All terms and conditions of the settlement agreement not specifically addressed in the addendum remain in full force and effect. Upon specific performance of the addendum, Defendants will have fully satisfied all obligations arising from the settlement agreement.

Defendants do not admit any wrongdoing or liability on their part. The proposed settlement with them is a compromise of disputed claims and does not mean that they agree with any of the charges made by Plaintiffs.

V. Plaintiffs will not be paid any attorney fees in this case.

You will not have to pay any fees or costs in this case.

VI. YOU DO NOT NEED TO DO ANYTHING TO BE PART OF THE SETTLEMENT CLASS. You will be a member of the settlement class unless you request to be excluded ("opt out"). As long as you do not submit a written request for exclusion described in Section III above, you will remain a member of the settlement class and will be bound by the settlement.

VII. The references to the settlement agreement, the addendum, and the complaint contained in this notice are summary statements only and do not convey the considerable detail involved. Class members wishing to review the entire settlement, addendum, pleadings and other filings in this case may do so at the:

Office of the District Court Clerk
 Room 313, Federal Building
 330 Broadway St.
 Frankfort, KY 40601

During the hours of 8:30 a.m. — 4:30 p.m. Monday — Friday

PLEASE do not call the Clerk's office. You must go there to view the pleadings file.

VIII. Any class member who has not opted out may object to the addendum in writing or in person, at his or her own expense, at the hearing on final approval. Written objections must include (a) proof of class membership; (b) the specific grounds for the objection, as well as any documents you may want the Court to consider and be presented to the Clerk's address in section VII above on or before July 7, 2008, and also mail a copy of the objection to Plaintiffs' counsel at the address listed in section III above.

IX. The Court has ordered that a hearing be held on July 14, 2008 at 2:00 p.m. in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky, 101 Barr Street, Lexington, Kentucky, to determine whether the Court should approve the proposed settlement.

It is not necessary for you to appear at the hearing although you have a right to do so ¹This represents a reduction from the 10,000 individuals to be served in the first year as provided for in the previously approved settlement agreement. The Addendum, however, commits Defendants to serving an additional 1,500 individuals each year until reaching 10,000 in year six, and further extends the waiver from a minimum of three years to a minimum of eight.

²This Addendum reduces the agreed upon maximum hour limitations on the total of certain services from 50 to 40 hours per calendar week.

Attorney files complaint against newspaper editor

The Associated Press

STANFORD — A criminal complaint has been filed against the editor of a weekly newspaper in central Kentucky after a photo of a juvenile murder suspect was published.

The (Danville) Advocate-Messenger reports that the juvenile's attorney filed the complaint against George Lewis, editor of The (Stanford) Interior-Journal.

The complaint alleges that Lewis "violated the confidentiality of a juvenile court proceeding" by taking the photo in late April and publishing it on May 1.

Kentucky juvenile court proceedings are closed to the public.

In a complaint filed May 2, public defender Susanne McCollough alleges that Lewis committed a misdemeanor offense on April 22 when he took a picture of her client through the door of a district courtroom during a juvenile proceeding.

Lewis' attorneys, R. Kenyon Meyer and James L. Adams, have filed a motion to dismiss the complaint. They argue the statute cited by McCollough is a directive to court officials and doesn't apply to the public, including Lewis.

They also argue that the entire statute is "unconstitutionally vague and overbroad."

McCollough's client was charged in April with killing two Lincoln County men in 2002 when he was still a juvenile. The photo was taken during his arraignment.

Lewis offered no comment when contacted at his office in Stanford by The Advocate-Messenger on Tuesday. The newspaper offices closed at noon Wednesday, and a home listing for Lewis couldn't immediately be found.

McCollough's voicemail said she was unavailable until June 25.

Lewis is scheduled to be arraigned Friday, but Lincoln County Attorney Daryl Day said the date could be moved to avoid a scheduling conflict.

The State Journal-Register, Springfield, Ill., on Tim Russert's death:
When the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Museum opened three years ago, it sought to pull Lincoln's presidency out of the history books and drop it into a modern context. Among the exhibits that does that in stellar fashion is "Campaign 1860," which sets the four-way presidential campaign of 1860 in a modern media setting. Setting viewers straight on the views of candidates Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, John C. Breckinridge and John Bell is the familiar, authoritative presence of Tim Russert.

Russert was a natural choice for this role. Since taking the helm of "Meet the Press" in December 1991, Russert had earned respect across the political spectrum. If a generation was to understand the bitterly contested presidential contest of 1860, who better to explain it than the man who guided America through the bitterly contested presidential contest of 2000?

"Campaign 1860" also appeared to have staying power. Russert, after all, was at the top of his game when the exhibit was unveiled. In fact, his participation was a tightly guarded secret prior to the museum's opening.

His loss last week was a truly sad moment for anyone who followed national politics in America. It's our hope that "Campaign 1860" remains part of the presidential museum for many years to come. It's a fitting tribute to one of this generation's great journalists; a person millions will miss as the current presidential campaign unfolds.

The Austin (Texas) American-Statesman, on Sen. Barack Obama and fighting rumors:

Democratic presidential hopeful Barack Obama learned an important lesson from the 2004 presidential campaign: Don't be passive about false rumors.

When Democratic nominee and Vietnam War veteran John Kerry, who served with distinction in the U.S. Navy and won multiple Purple Hearts for wounds in battle, was attacked for a lack of patriotism, his campaign was slow to respond. Obama won't be so passive. ...

But after the dustup last week over comments attributed to his wife, Michelle, the Obama campaign took to the Internet with a vengeance and a new Web site. Michelle Obama was accused of using a derogatory term for white people, which she and her husband roundly denied when it was reported and deny again on the Web site.

The name of the Web site, fightthesmears.com, says it all clearly and concisely. Obama's camp will respond to smears instantly and forcefully. It will not be easily swiftboated, not be passive about rumors no matter how bizarre, and not be caught unaware of the destructive potential of false statements.

It's an unfortunate reality of modern politics that the most absurd charges assume a life of their own on the Internet. Anyone can post any nutty thing, and it spreads like a virus. This is the new gutter politics, and it can be effective. ...

But Democrats have learned from the swiftboating of Kerry that they can and must fight back. Fightthesmears.com is an excellent tool for turning lies and smears back on their perpetrators and revealing the truth.

The Star-Ledger, Newark, N.J., on the consequences of low oil prices:

The Saudis have indicated that they'll increase petroleum production by 200,000 barrels a day in July - on top of an increase of 300,000 barrels a day this month - a move that may moderate the rising price of gas. Mind you, no one is predicting gas prices falling back to $1 a gallon. ...

Drivers flock back to gas-guzzling big cars, trucks and SUVs. They move farther away from work, so commutes lengthen. Businesses and ordinary citizens don't bother turning down the heat or dialing back the AC. The impetus for more mass transit disappears. Dependence on oil from the Mideast and other unfriendly places grows.

Worst of all, research into the alternative energy that could get us out of the oil mess evaporates. ...

Major efforts were made and significant progress was achieved (including a near-doubling of average gas mileage), but it all stalled, even reversed, when the price of a barrel of crude fell to the teens and stayed there for a decade.

The Saudis aren't planning to increase production because they sympathize with the average American - or any other oil consumers around the world, for that matter. They understand that oil at current levels will fuel an international economic slowdown. That's bad for their business.

But Americans should remember that the Saudis and other oil producers also fear that record-high prices will refocus the U.S. and other nations on the need to cut petroleum use. That would be even worse for their business. It also would cause instability at home, where oil is the only thing fueling the economy as a source of jobs and revenue. ...

We cannot afford to lose focus again.

Farmers can meet food, fuel demands

The topic of increasing food prices and their linkage to fuel costs and ethanol production is getting a lot of media attention these days. Much of the coverage seems to be misdirected or focused on placing blame, rather than getting to the facts.

The Floyd County Farm Bureau board of directors would like to join in this debate by focusing on some facts of how well the American farmer provides for the safe, abundant food supply in the United States and around the world.

Ethanol actually helps hold down the cost of gasoline, resulting in a 35-to-40 cents per gallon savings compared to what those prices would be if that much more oil was needed to meet current demand. That is imported crude oil not used, from many counties unfriendly to us.

Secondly, about one-fourth of the U.S. corn crop goes to ethanol, allowing plenty of corn for livestock feed, food production and exports. A major byproduct of ethanol production, distilled dried grains, is used as a livestock feed.

Thirdly, ethanol is a renewable fuel resource, produced by U.S. farmers, unlike imported crude oil, which is controlled and priced by a foreign cartel, OPEC.

Lastly, our nation's farmers are increasing production in response to tight supplies and higher prices. American farmers produced a record 13.1 billion bushels of corn in 2007. Weather permitting, this year production levels will be well sufficient to meet both food and fuel needs.

We wanted to outline the role American agriculture plays in producing abundant food, fiber and fuel for our nation. Our country's farmers play the key role in our economy, continuing to make even further improvements in food quality and value.

Drug problem will get worse

Floyd County is losing the war on drugs and it is going to get worse. The one thing that we were offering to the children of the county, the school board is not wanting to keep.

The Floyd County/UNITE counselor program will no longer be offered to our children in the schools next year and it is sad because there are so many children in need. I hope that we can do something, because as a community we are going to see more and more arrests, accidents and even death.

I feel that our system for drug prevention has become weak and it is our children that will feel the pinch. If the community cares we need to do something before it is too late for our children.

Governor's Scholars Program scaling back after budget cuts

by JOE BIESK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT — An educational program that for 25 years has aimed at keeping high-performing teens in Kentucky when they're finished with college, and beyond, is facing tight financial times because of state budget cuts.

The Governor's Scholars Program, which starts this week at Bellarmine University in Louisville, will be shy about 100 students from last year's class. The exclusive program, which operates through a mixture of public and private funding, will have to dip a little further into its financial reserves this year, organizers say.

"The budget cuts have made it difficult for us," Aris Cedeno, the program's academic coordinator. "It's just the financial realities of the state — something that everybody in America is facing right now."

The program, which boasts alumni such as Kentucky's current secretary of state and a NASA rocket scientist, is starting its five-week summer program this week at the Bellarmine campus. Other groups of students will be arriving for programs at Morehead State University and Centre College.

Kentucky's governor's scholars program started in 1983 under former Gov. John Y. Brown.

What began as a program for 230 students has grown to more than 1,000 each year. Its mission is to prepare some of Kentucky's top-performing high school students for college and mold them to become future leaders in the state, Cedeno said.

Costs are borne by the program, not the students.

But Kentucky is facing tough financial times and economic forecasters have predicted a $900 million dip in state revenue during the two-year budget period that begins July 1. Kentucky lawmakers passed a two-year $19 billion state budget in April that included harsh funding cuts for higher education and other government programs.

The Governor's Scholars Program was among the casualties.

Close to 79 percent of the program's operating costs come from the state, Cedeno said. The rest is offset by private contributions to the Governor's Scholars Program Foundation, Cedeno said.

Students from 118 out of Kentucky's 120 counties are participating this year, and Kentucky colleges and universities offer different levels of scholarships to those who successfully complete the program, Cedeno said. This year, however, the program will shrink from 1,150 students last summer to the current crop of 1,050.

"But the quality of the program has not been sacrificed. We had to make the decision: Do we sacrifice students or do we sacrifice the quality?" Cedeno said. "In order for us to maintain private donations we had to maintain quality."

Cedeno said state grant funding for the program will drop from $2.1 million under the last budget to about $1.8 million under the budget that takes effect July 1. That figure could drop further down to $1.7 million if an additional cut of about 4.5 percent takes effect, he said.

State Rep. Harry Moberly, the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee chairman, said the program was a "jewel for Kentucky" and one of the top leadership programs in the country. Moberly, a Democrat from Richmond, opposed the final budget because of such funding cuts, he said.

"It's unconscionable that we didn't appropriate the money that they need," Moberly said. "That's just another example of the deterioration of some of our education infrastructure from a bad budget — and this was a bad budget."

Billy Harper, a former Republican candidate for governor and now a member of the state Board of Education, said budget cuts to education have a negative effect on the state's future. The effect of cutting a program for the "best and brightest kids" might not show for many years, Harper said.

Such cuts "will have a negative impact in the future," Harper said. "We'll never know to what extent."

Still, Cedeno said he views the cuts as a learning opportunity. Program organizers can use it as a demonstration for Kentucky's future leaders on how to cope during slow financial times, he said.

"It's not that we are not suffering from the reductions, but we are seeing it in a very positive way and brainstorming to see what we can do," Cedeno said. "It is money that we will miss and we are already missing."

Other states that have come under similar financial problems have changed their programs to cope, Cedeno said. For example, some states have started charging tuition or have permanently reduced the number of students allowed into the program, he said.

"Everybody has to deal with these situations," Cedeno said.

Secretary of State Trey Grayson, an alumnus of the program who serves on its board, said it was the first time he could remember the program having to cut back because of financial concerns. Grayson said the program is valuable to students and to Kentucky and the funding cuts should be a "one-time action."

"The good news is the money is there in the foundation," Grayson said. "The bad news is that going forward, that will probably mean fewer kids."

Peach berry cobbler crisp

by LEANNE ELY CNC

This is the time of year to gorge on fruit — luscious peaches, plums, berries and melons. They're all in season and at their least expensive right now — especially if you're lucky enough to happen upon a little produce stand or someone selling melons in the back of a truck. In the more rural South, it's not unusual to find little produce stands set up in people's front yards, selling the bounty from their gardens and fruit trees.

And while I hate to turn on the oven this time of year, I'll make an exception for making a cobbler or a crisp. Peach or berry cobbler is one of those things that everyone should experience in the middle of a hot summer. Preferably with a big scoop of homemade vanilla ice cream...does it get any better than that? Yeah it does, my recipe is with both peaches and berries and is a combo cobbler/crisp!

I know what you're thinking...that's not exactly healthy fare! Agreed. Cobbler is not going to be on any of my top ten healthy foods lists anytime soon and no, I won't be giving you a recipe for a healthy version because it's not ever going to be THAT healthy and why mess with a good thing?

We can however, enjoy a treat every once in awhile. It goes back to the rule of eating really healthy 90 percent of the time and the other 10 percent, enjoying a splurge such as delicious homemade cobbler with seasonally ripe fruits in the middle of summer. Ah, life is good! Enjoy this cobbler recipe that's been a favorite of my family for years.

- Leanne's Peach Berry Cobbler/Crisp
Serves 8
- 1/2 cup flour
 - 1/2 cup uncooked old fashioned oatmeal
 - 1/2 cup brown sugar
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1/4 cup unsalted butter
 - 1/4 cup white sugar
 - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 - 1/2 cup cold water
 - 3 cups fresh peaches, peeled and sliced
 - 1 cup fresh blueberries or other berries (blueberries hold up best)
 - 1 tablespoon unsalted butter
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
In a medium bowl, mix together the first four ingredients. Add the milk and the 1/4 cup of butter, cutting it in and mixing till smooth

Emmy Award-winning celebrity named honorary chair of Highlands Foundation campaign

Actor Richard Thomas, best known for playing the role of "John-Boy" on the series "The Waltons," has been named honorary chair of the "Hope for Life" campaign.

PRESTONSBURG — Highlands Regional Medical Center has announced that Richard Thomas has been named as Honorary Chair of the Highlands Foundation's "Hope for Life" Campaign to benefit a new emergency department.

Thomas became a nationally recognized actor through his portrayal of John-Boy Walton on the American favorite family series, "The Waltons." He scored an Emmy for Best Actor in a Dramatic Series in 1972.

Thomas has committed much of his life to motion pictures for television, including works such as "The Red Badge of Courage," "Roots: The Second Generation," and the HBO mini-series, "Glory-Glory." In the early 1980s, he starred in four consecutive television films, including a remake of "Johnny Belinda"; cable versions of "5th of July" and "Barefoot in the Park;" and the title role in "Living Proof: The Hank Williams Jr. Story," which Richard also co-produced.

Although Richard Thomas was educated in New York City, he has strong roots in Eastern Kentucky. Thomas' father grew up in Johnson County and later left the mountains for the Big Apple, where he founded the New York School of Ballet. As a small boy, Thomas would return to Johnson County to spend summers on his grandparents' farm in Collista. He has never forgotten his ties to Eastern Kentucky.

"I am pleased to serve as Honorary Chairman for this important fundraising campaign," Thomas said. "My family roots are in Eastern Kentucky, so I have an interest in the campaign because I know what benefit it will be to the area. I encourage everyone to join in the effort by making a donation to the Highlands Foundation in support of the new Emergency Department at Highland Regional Medical Center."

Highlands Regional Medical Center is excited that Richard Thomas supports this important endeavor for the community. He narrated the campaign support video and made his own personal appeal for the new emergency department for Highlands Regional.

To support the project, contact the Highlands Foundation at 889-6271 or visit the Foundation's website at www.highlandsfoundation.com.

Natural Resources Conservation Service announces changes to Wetlands Reserve Program and signup deadline

Natural Resources Conservation Service in Kentucky announced the next WRP application ranking deadline is June 20, 2008. WRP applications are continually accepted and those applications received after June 20 will remain on file until the next ranking cycle.

The compensation portion of the Food, Conservation and Energy Act of 2008 for WRP is effective immediately and may be of special interest to local landowners. The new language in the 2008 Farm Bill authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to pay as compensation for a WRP easement the fair market value of the land, as determined by an appraisal or an area-wide market analysis or survey. The amount paid is limited to a geographic cap or the landowner offer, whichever is less. Landowners can view the geographic rate cap, which establishes the maximum easement payment NRCS will pay for the corresponding county, and other program information, on the NRCS Kentucky WRP Web page: <http://www.ky.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/WRP/WRPindex2008.html>. Scroll down to Wetlands Reserve Program Geographic Area Cap Map for Kentucky - Updated February 2008.

Another change to the WRP, but not effective until October 1, 2008, requires the current landowner have owned the land for seven years prior to enrollment, changed from 12 months. This next ranking cycle will provide those landowners who have owned the land for 12 months but less than seven years a short window of opportunity to enroll this summer. Landowners can enroll their land under a 30-year or permanent easement for a lump sum easement payment and up to 100 percent of the wetland restoration costs covered under WRP. Eligible lands include farmed wetlands, prior converted cropland, farmed wetland pasture, farmland that floods from rivers, farmland with somewhat poorly drained soils, and current or abandoned cropland with tile lines, drainage ditches, dikes or other similar alterations.

Please review the warranty easement deed carefully as the program may not meet all landowner objectives. A copy can be found at Kentucky NRCS' WRP Web page: <http://www.ky.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/WRP/WRPindex2008.html>. Scroll down to Warranty Easement Deed.

More Americans taking a family vacation this summer

BREVARD, N.C., June 16, 2008 Despite the worst consumer-debt crisis since the Great Depression to say nothing of gas prices rising to record highs the number of Americans planning to take a family vacation this summer is up 10 percent over last summer.

That according to a new survey of 14,175 U.S. families from all 50 states conducted by domestic empress Marla Cilley, host of BlogTalkRadio's FlyLady and Friends Show whose online community numbers nearly 500,000 members. Cilley's first-ever Schools Out survey also showed the number parents planning to send their kids to summer camp this year will rise 3.5 percent over last year.

And the single biggest problem parents say they're facing this summer in terms of the kids being home from school isn't the fact that families don't have enough money for travel and other fun activities (25.5 percent), it's that the kids have too much time on their hands and are bored (32 percent).

This data underscores the importance of parents getting away from it all with their kids while also getting time away from their kids no matter economic conditions, said Cilley.

But when the kids are home, they'll not only be taking part in free or inexpensive activities, like spending time at the library or visiting friends/relatives houses (20.5 percent) rather than to going to movies or theme parks (13.5 percent) more than ever (30 percent) will be working to earn extra money, the survey shows.

Meanwhile, 68.5 percent of parents say they're cooking more meals at home this summer, mostly because the cost of eating out has risen (37 percent) and sky-high gas prices make eating out even more expensive (32 percent).

For those months when families are home together, Cilley has developed a program called Camp GonnaWannaFly, which shows parents how to transform their abodes into fun, cost-effective FlyCamps.

On Tuesday, June 17 @ 2 p.m. ET, Cilley will host a special Schools Out episode of the FlyLady and Friends Show, which will focus on the survey, and how

In-car exercises and water important on long automobile trips

Family Medicine

OHIO UNIVERSITY
College of Osteopathic Medicine

Martha A. Simpson, D.O., M.B.A.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine

Q I am getting ready to take a long care trip this summer. We will have many long days, then stay in one place for a few days, then another long drive. My husband has already said that we won't be stopping a lot as we have many miles to cover in a short amount of time. Any advice?

A It sounds like your itinerary is set, and the long days of car riding are not negotiable. My first piece of advice about this kind of trip is similar to what I would suggest if you were planning to travel by airplane. Don't sit still in your seat for long periods of time. This can lead to stiff, aching muscles and even blood clots. In a plane, you can often get up and walk in the aisle to stretch your muscles and limber up a bit. In a car, however, you can't walk around without stopping the car and getting out.

What you need to know about are seat exercises. You need to wiggle your legs, and flex and extend your ankles frequently. Shift the weight on your buttocks from side to side frequently.

Other exercises you can do in the car include isometric contractions, shoulder shrugs and abdominal squeezes. Isometric contractions involve placing tension on a muscle, holding the contraction for several seconds and then releasing the tension. Shoulder shrugs are pretty much what the name implies -- lift your shoulders upwards toward your neck, hold for ten seconds, and then let them drop back to their normal position. You can perform an abdominal squeeze by placing tension on your abdominal muscles so as to pull your ribs toward your stomach. Then release and sit up tall. Repeat each of these exercises ten times.

Long car, bus and plane trips can cause swelling in the ankles. If you have the opportunity to lie down in the back seat with your legs elevated, that would be good too.

Drink plenty of water while you travel. This might give you a good excuse for a rest stop, despite your husband's desire to stay on the road.

A frequent problem with long trips in a car is constipation. Using a stool softener and eating fruit snacks during the trip can help prevent this problem. Also, this is another reason to drink plenty of water. Since you will be eating in restaurants, try to limit the heavy foods and concentrate on fresh vegetables and whole grain foods.

Fatigue is a problem with long trips. If you are the passenger, watch the driver and insist on stopping when you see the first signs of fatigue. Try to switch drivers every few hours. Stopping to switch drivers will also allow a few minutes to stretch your legs, as well.

Many people do not sleep well in hotels and are tempted to take sleeping aids, either over-the-counter or prescription products. This can be a problem if your first morning driver has not had adequate time to clear the medication from his or her system. Sleeping medications can impair depth perception and slow reaction time, so be careful if they are being used.

Finally, try to stick to your regular routine for medications, meals and bedtime; this can be especially helpful if you are crossing time zones. Be sure you have enough of your regular medicine with you. It's often hard to find a doctor in a strange locale to help you replace medications you left at home.

(although it will be lumpy with the oatmeal).

In a large saucepan over a medium high heat, mix together the white sugar, cornstarch and water. Add the peaches first and cook till bubbly, about 5 minutes. Add the blueberries and cook another 5 minutes. Add the 1 tablespoon of butter and the lemon juice. Now add the nutmeg and cinnamon. Mix well until butter is melted. Remove from heat.

Pour fruit mixture into an ungreased 1 1/2 quart baking dish. Spoon the batter over the top of the fruit and place in the middle of the oven and bake for about 30 minutes or until the crust is brown and cooked all the way through. Once cooked, allow to cool for about 15 minutes before serving — enjoy!

A good week for releases saw three entertaining efforts hit the racks alongside only one dud.

■ "Be Kind, Rewind" — Two video store clerks decide to remake every film in the store when one of them accidentally erases their stock in this entertaining poke at the movie industry. What makes this work is that neither fellow is much of a film school nut, so the results are amateurish and often hilarious. It helps that Jack Black and Mos Def play the clerks, and the remakes themselves are hilarious.

■ "Fool's Gold" — Matthew McConaughey and Kate Hudson star as an estranged couple who are reunited over a treasure hunt. This one features plenty of good banter and light comedy as well as a few good action scenes and should please folks who just want some entertainment and escape.

■ "Under the Same Moon" — This three hanky flick didn't play local theaters and what a shame, as it delivers the goods if you're in the mood for a good weep. A young Mexican boy makes the journey to America to find his mother when his grandmother, and caregiver, passes away. Mom goes on the hunt too, but there are plenty of obstacles for both as they try to find each other. Worth your time.

■ "Welcome Home Roscoe Jenkins" — The one bad apple this week focuses on a family reunion in the south that sees the titular character (Martin Lawrence cast as a talk radio host who has become a big shot) deal with a lot of resentment for his success. Not very funny and I'm getting a little tired of movies that make light of southerners in an age when it's no longer acceptable to poke fun at any other group.

Next week sees the debut of "The Spiderwick Chronicles" and Ryan Reynolds in "Definitely, Maybe."

Johnnie gets great reception in SanFran return

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Eastern Kentucky people are a proud lot. We may not have a lot, but we're proud of what we have, what we produce, what we grow.

One of our greatest exports, in this land of basketball madness, is baseball talent, and no place has churned it out like the small town of Paintsville. It's quiet, sleepy and now, thanks to US 23 being moved slightly, can be passed by with only a road sign as proof of its existing.

But in the spring of 1974 it was alive, and no road sign was needed.

People were finding their way there in droves for one reason and one only, and that was to watch local high school baseball star Johnnie LeMaster.

The San Francisco Giants made him their first-round pick that June, No. 6 overall, and thus began a journey that still has the two intertwined.

As part of their 50th anniversary of moving from New York to California, the Giants are paying tribute to the greats of their past this season by bringing them back, and last weekend, the club invited back all the talented infielders they've had over the last half-century.

So there on the field, together, were names like Willie McCovey, like Orlando Cepeda, Matt Williams, Darrell Evans and Tito Fuentes.

And, of course, Johnnie LeMaster.

During the best era in baseball history for slick-fielding shortstops - his contemporaries were names like Concepcion, Russell, Bowa and a guy in St. Louis they simply called "The Wizard" - LeMaster took a backseat to nobody. He could field, he could throw, he was a master with leather on his left hand and a cannon for a right arm.

"It was a special night," said LeMaster, known in these parts now as the sporting goods guy, the hall of fame baseball coach at Pikeville College and a spokesman for various anti-drug campaigns. "It was great to be there in the middle of it and to see so many of the players I'd played with."

Typical of Johnnie LeMaster, the second line he said quickly deflected any attention from him. "I got to take my four grandsons into the locker room, and they got to run the bases," he said. "I got a picture of my granddaughter in Willie McCovey's arms."

Here was Johnnie, the epitome of Johnnie, more proud of his grandchildren than his own accomplishments. This is the man I saw every day while we East Kentucky Miners Coach Kevin Keathley conducted a pro basketball youth camp at the Knott County Sportsplex Monday-Wednesday. The Knott County camp attracted 55 campers.

125 attend Coach Keathley's Pro Basketball Youth Camps

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE - Two youth pro basketball youth camps under the direction of East Kentucky Miners head coach Kevin Keathley have delivered top-notch instruction to 125 young hoops hopefuls. The Knott County Sportsplex, located in Soft Shell, hosted Coach Keathley's Pro Basketball Youth Camp Monday, June 16-Wednesday, June 18. Fifty-five basketball players from seven Eastern Kentucky counties honored their skills during the Knott County camp. One camp participant from Canada, currently living in Hindman while on a missionary trip, added an international flavor to the camp.

Earlier in the month, 70 young basketball players attended a Keathley camp held at Prestonsburg High School.

"I was really impressed with the reception we received an hour away at the Knott County Sportsplex this week," said Keathley. "We did our very best at giving the youth of Eastern Kentucky an experience they could benefit from."

The campers in attendance at the Knott County camp were focused and determined. Each camper absorbed what the pro basketball youth camp staff was teaching.

"I was really impressed with the campers who attended," Keathley added. "The campers worked hard and listened, making my three days much more enjoyable."

The Knott County edition of Coach Keathley's Pro Basketball Youth Camp - open to boys and girls - featured campers ages 4-16. Campers routinely showed up early and stayed late.

"I'm very proud of the turnout we've had for the youth camp series," Keathley confided. "A total of 125 children have attended the first two camps. Hopefully, we've been able to make an impact on the youth of this community."

The East Kentucky Miners head coach taught the same concepts he would as part of a pro basketball practice. An anxious group of campers couldn't wait to participate each day.

"The theme of the camp was communication and setting goals," Keathley noted. "I believe that each one of the children that attended my camp has the potential to achieve anything he or she sets their mind to. I really enjoyed working with all of them."

Campers were very receptive to the camp staff. Bonds were formed between the camp staff and campers throughout the week.

"I want to thank the staff of the camp for doing such a good job working with the campers," said Keathley. "Brian Levy worked with the younger kids and I thought he did a good job of making their experience enjoyable. Coach Jamie Howell from Adams Middle School did a good job of directing the oldest group and helping to keep them focused on the techniques and concepts we stressed each day."

Subway of Hindman and Kentucky Farm Bureau of Hindman served as camp sponsors. Each business didn't hesitate when it came time to step forward and sponsor the unique youth basketball camp.

"Our sponsors are owed a big thank you for helping to make this event possible," said Keathley. "These businesses and community leaders showed that they want to make a difference in Eastern Kentucky. For that, they should be commended for showing their support to the youth of our community."

Central Elementary in Paintsville is scheduled to host Coach Keathley's Pro Basketball Youth Camp July 21-23. Another edition of Coach Keathley's Pro Basketball Youth Camp is slated for Sheldon Clark High School July 31-Aug. 2.

Longer mourning dove season among proposals

Black bear season proposed for Harlan, Letcher, Pike counties

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT - The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission modified the mourning dove season; recommended a framework for a 2009 bear season and proposed a late season antlerless elk hunt on private lands at its quarterly meeting Friday, June 13.

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission recommends all hunting, fishing and boating regulations for approval by the General Assembly and approves all expenditures by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The Commission proposed to the General Assembly an additional 10 days of mourning dove hunting for the 2008 season. Mourning dove season will be split into three segments. The first segment opens September 1 and closes October 24, the same as last season. The second segment opens Thanksgiving Day (November 27) and runs for 9 consecutive days until December 5, an increase of 3 days from last season. A new third segment opens on the Saturday after Christmas (December 27) and runs for 7 consecutive days until January 2, 2009.

This new segment runs concurrent with the Free Youth Hunting Week. These additional days of mourning dove season are pending approval by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

In other wildlife-related business, the Commission proposed a Kentucky resident only black bear season in Harlan, Letcher and Pike

Kinzer competes in Lucas Oil Series races

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

ALLEN - The Kinzer Motorsports team visited the states of Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama June 12-14 for a trio of Lucas Oil Late Model Dirt Series races. The weekend kicked off for the No. 18 team on Thursday night, June 12 at the Duck River Speedway in Wheel, Tenn., as a $7,000 top prize was on the line. Veteran Late Model driver Brandon Kinzer ran third in his heat race to earn the seventh starting spot for the 40-lap main event. At the end of the A-Main at Duck River, Kinzer was credited with an 11th place finish.

The Kinzer team then turned its collective attention to the North Georgia Speedway in Chatsworth, Ga., last Friday for a $10,000-to-win event. Kinzer was strong in qualifying and later finished third in his heat race. After rolling off from the inside of the fifth row for the 50-lap A-Main, the Allen native drove his No. 18 GRT entry to a 15th place finish.

The Kinzer contingent ventured to Talladega Short Track in Eastaboga, Ala., Saturday for a weekend finale. The cameras of the SPEED Channel were present throughout the event at TST, taping the action for broadcast later in the year. Kinzer, for the third consecutive time, ran third in his heat race to earn a coveted starting spot in the $10,000-to-win feature event. After starting 12th on the grid, Kinzer maintained his position and wound up 12th in the final rundown.

Complete results of the weekend tripleheader are available online at www.lucasdirt.com.

Brandon Kinzer routinely races against some of the nation's leading Late Model drivers.

Johnnie

were together on the hill.
 But last weekend wasn't his only trip to the bay this season. On Friday night, May 30, the Giants held Johnnie LeMaster Night at AT&T Park.
 "I was very honored, and it was certainly a night I'll never forget," he said. "To have 40,000 people give you a standing ovation when they used to boo you was special."
 LeMaster certainly had his ups and downs with the fans - the embodiment of a slick-fielding, light-hitting shortstop, he once had his name replaced on the back of his jersey with the word "BOO" - but is now wildly popular in the city by the bay, to the point that when Giants fans selected the all-time San Francisco Giants team a few years ago, he was named the starting shortstop.
 Fans in attendance that night had a unique souvenir ticket: It featured a picture of

 LeMaster on each one.
 And how's this for irony: On the night they feted perhaps the greatest defensive player in their history, the Giants turned their first triple play since June 14, 1999.
 LeMaster mentioned the time he wore "BOO" on his jersey, and said former teammate and current Giants broadcaster Duane Kuiper brought it up in the pre-game ceremony that night.
 "But my teammates knew what it was about," he said. "Because they understood, it was alright to do."
 LeMaster is certainly proud of his ties to the Giants. "They're bringing back the history of the Giants this year," he said. "And that's a good thing."
 That history wouldn't be complete without a chapter on the slick-fielding, unassuming, quiet shortstop from Paintsville.

MSU football program announces recruiting class

by STEVE LeMASTER

Top-seeded Miami eliminated by Stanford

by ERIC OLSON
 ASSOCIATED PRESS

OMAHA, Neb. - With a potent lineup and deep pitching staff, Miami was largely considered the most complete team in college baseball.
 None of that matters now.
 The top-seeded Hurricanes are heading home without a national championship after Stanford eliminated them from the College World Series with an 8-3 victory Wednesday night.
 "It's a shock to everybody," Cardinal coach Mark Marquess said. "It's not a shock to the coaches."
 Many coaches have said all week that it isn't necessarily the best team that wins it all in Omaha. The Hurricanes were 18-5 in the regular season against teams that made the NCAA tournament. At the CWS, they went 1-2.
 It's all about who gets hot, coaches say, and the Hurricanes were not.
 "They outplayed us tonight," Miami coach Jim Morris said of Stanford. "They outplayed us, I guess, in every phase of the game: in pitching, defense and hitting."
 North Carolina and Rice made it to the CWS for the third straight year, and familiar names from past years such as LSU, Florida State and Georgia joined Miami and Stanford here, too.
 But surprising Fresno State has crashed the party and is one win from playing in the championship series.
 "They weren't even ranked," Marquess said. "They're here."
 Marquess promises there will be more teams like Fresno State in the future.
 "And that's parity. It's out there and it's not going to change," he said. "It's not going to go away. That's healthy for our game, that's healthy for Omaha, but it's not healthy for coaches who coach a program where the expectation level of their fans is that they're going to get here every year. It's not going to happen."
 Miami (53-11), ranked No. 1 for most of the season, failed to join the 1999 squad as the only No. 1 national seed to win the College World Series. The Hurricanes have been eliminated in three games in each of their four CWS appearances since 2003.
 "I don't think there is big advantage to be the first seed or eighth seed," Morris said. "The bottom line is that every team has played well to get here."

Morehead State signee leads Kentucky past Indiana

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD - Morehead State University men's basketball signee Tyler Brown scored a team-high 19 points to lead the Kentucky All-Stars to a 99-78 win over the Indiana All-Stars Sunday (June 15) in Louisville.
 Brown, an all-state performer from Apollo High School in Owensboro, scored 10 of Kentucky's first 16 points and made six of his seven field goal attempts in the game, including five-of-six from three-point range.
 "I have said all year that I truly believe Tyler is one of the top three or four players in the state of Kentucky," said MSU Coach Donnie Tyndall. "and, he certainly showed that in the game against Indiana on Sunday. The experience of playing in that series is awesome, and I'm glad he had the opportunity to represent Morehead State in such a fine fashion."

 Brown, one of the state's top high school boys' basketball players, averaged 17.3 points as a senior at Apollo. He signed with MSU during last November's early signing period.

"I'm just glad that we won the game," Brown said. "I was in foul trouble in the first game of the series, and it limited my minutes. So, I just wanted to help my team win. Playing for the Kentucky team was a thrill, and I can't wait to put on an MSU uniform and play for Coach Tyndall."
 Jasper transferring to UNLV: Former Kentucky guard Derrick Jasper is heading to UNLV.
 The Las Vegas Review-Journal reported on its Web site Tuesday that Jasper told UNLV coach Lon Kruger of his decision to transfer to the Rebels during a meeting over the weekend.

 Jasper averaged 4.2 points and 5.5 rebounds in 20 games last season for the Wildcats. He missed the first 10 games of the season following off-season knee surgery. He must sit out the 2008-09 season under NCAA rules.
 Jasper, who is from Paso Robles, Calif., told coach Billy Gillispie after the season that he wanted to be closer to home. The Wildcats granted Jasper permission to seek a transfer last month.

Season

counties from December 19 through December 20, 2009 (excluding Hensley-Pine Mountain WMA and surrounding areas). Modern firearms, muzzleloader, crossbow and archery equipment are legal for this season. The season bag limit will be one bear and there will be a quota of 10 total bears or 5 female bears, whichever limit is reached first. Bear hunters must take the bear to a designated check station by 8 p.m. and telecheck the bear by midnight on the day of harvest.
 In fisheries-related business, the Commission proposed to the General Assembly to standardize fishing possession limits at twice the daily creel limit for all fish species with a daily creel limit. A person shall not possess more than one daily creel limit while on the water or fishing from the shore of a waterbody. A person shall not possess more than 2 times the daily creel limit of unprocessed fish at any time. However, a person may return home from a fishing trip of more than two days with more than the possession limit if the fish are cleaned.

 The upstream boundaries of Lake Cumberland for fishing regulation purposes are Cumberland Falls on the Cumberland River, Devil's Jump on the Big South Fork of Cumberland River, the Narrows of Rockcastle River and Laurel River Dam on the Laurel River. The boundaries of Lake Cumberland previously were to the first riffle of these tributaries.

 Other action included that lake sturgeon may not be harvested statewide. The Lower Sportsman's Lake at the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Headquarters will be open to all ages. All of these fishing regulations go into effect on March 1, 2009.
 The next Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission meeting will be held at 8 a.m., Friday, August 15,

DODGER BALL: L.A.'s Lowe gets first road win since August, beats Reds 6-1

by JOE KAY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — So many times on the road, Derek Lowe deserved to win. In each of his last 11 tries, he came up short for one reason or another — no run support, no help from the bullpen, no breaks.

On a night when he felt awful, everything finally went his way.

Lowe earned his first road win since last August by pitching into the sixth inning, and the Los Angeles Dodgers extended their season-long domination of the Cincinnati Reds with a 6-1 victory on Wednesday night.

James Loney had a solo homer and a run-scoring double off Bronson Arroyo (4-6), sending the Dodgers to their sixth victory in seven games against the Reds this season. Juan Pierre broke the game open with a two-run triple in the seventh.

"I don't know what it is about the Dodgers," Reds manager Dusty Baker said. "They beat us pretty good."

Lowe (5-6) hadn't beaten anybody on the road since Aug. 22 in Philadelphia. He went 0-6 in his next 11 starts away from Dodger Stadium.

It wasn't entirely his fault. Lowe often has pitched well enough, but the offense has let him down. This time, he knew he'd need a little help and a little luck.

Hiroki Kuroda was scheduled to start on Wednesday, but told the team a day earlier that he had a sore pitching shoulder. By that point, Lowe had already done a strenuous off-day workout. He was moved up a day and took Kuroda's place, but knew not to expect much.

Lowe gave up three hits, including Edwin Encarnacion's solo homer, and matched his season high with six strikeouts. Manager Joe Torre took him out after his 85th pitch in the sixth inning with Los Angeles ahead 4-1.

"I may be prouder of this game than any," Lowe said. "It was an absolute struggle from the first pitch. You go out there and go as far as you can."

He finally broke through on the road against Arroyo, one of his teammates on Boston's 2004 World Series championship team.

"He pitched a great game," Arroyo said. "Once we got behind, you knew we weren't going to catch up."

Arroyo is in his own slump, going 0-2 in his last four starts with a 6.33

ERA. He gave up seven hits and six runs in 6 1-3 innings, and threw a wild pitch that let in a run.

The Reds lost for the 11th time in 16 games, a slump set up by their all-or-nothing offense. Cincinnati is 2-6 on a homestand that concludes Thursday, scoring a total of 17 runs. They're batting .179 on the homestand and are hitless in their last 17 at-bats with runners in scoring position.

"We've been a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde team offensively," Baker said. "We score a lot of runs, then we don't score any. We need Dr. Jekyll to show up."

Loney has been a big problem for the Reds all season, batting .400 with a pair of homers and seven RBIs. The first baseman is having a big month overall, batting .396 in June. He hit his sixth homer in the fourth inning, then doubled home a run that made it 4-1 in the sixth.

Loney has become more selective and worked deeper into counts during his at-bats this month.

"When I see a good pitch come, I should swing," Loney said. "That's the way I like to think about it. I might only get one good pitch per at-bat. I don't want to miss it."

Andre Ethier, who brought a 2-for-20 slump into the game, had a run-scoring single among his three hits. Pierre's two-run triple in the seventh off reliever Jeremy Affeldt made it 6-1.

"It's what managers like to see, when you score in one inning and another inning and another inning," Torre said. "It's something we haven't done in a while, sustain some offense."

Ken Griffey Jr. was out of the Reds' lineup for a second consecutive game because of illness. Rookie Jay Bruce took his spot in right field and made two of the game's two best defensive plays. Bruce made a diving catch on Pierre's liner in the third, then an over-the-shoulder catch of Blake DeWitt's drive to the warning track.

Notes: Kuroda was diagnosed with inflammation in the shoulder, received a cortisone shot and will miss his next start. Chan Ho Park will take his place Saturday against Cleveland. ... SS Angel Berroa dived into the stands to catch a foul ball in the ninth. ... The Reds sent RHP Homer Bailey back to the minors and activated OF Norris Hopper from the DL. Bailey was 0-3 in his three starts this season. ... With Corey Patterson struggling, Reds 1B Joey Votto in the leadoff spot for the first time in his career. He went 1-for-4. ... Bruce singled in the sixth inning, ending an 0-for-16 streak.

Bengals receiver Chad Johnson has minor ankle surgery

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Receiver Chad Johnson is expected to be fully recovered from ankle surgery when the Cincinnati Bengals open training camp next month.

Johnson had his troublesome right ankle cleaned out Wednesday. He is expected to be ready for the start of training camp on July 27.

The ankle bothered Johnson last year, and the team recommended surgery when the season ended. Johnson declined, and the ankle became an issue at the team's mandatory minicamp last week. The Pro Bowl receiver said he couldn't practice because the ankle was bothering him.

Johnson has been lobbying for a trade since the end of last season. The Bengals refused, and Johnson has threatened to sit out the season if he's not dealt to another team.

Banner day for Boston as Celtics win 17th title

by TOM WITHERS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — A blizzard of green-and-white confetti was in the forecast, a shiny trophy was being readied for its trip to the center of the parquet floor and T-shirts and caps were hurriedly handed out to the rest of the new NBA champions.

First, though, a final, fitting bow.

The clock said 4:01 left, and the scoreboard read: Boston 116, Los Angeles 81.

It was time for Paul Pierce, Kevin Garnett and Ray Allen to come out — together.

"I thought, they came in as a group, and I thought we should take them out as a group," Celtics coach Doc Rivers said.

The Big Three walked off as one, and into history.

With Bill Russell and John Havlicek sitting courtside, and Red Auerbach surely lighting up a victory cigar somewhere, these Celtics returned to glory like the great Boston teams before them, dominating the Los Angeles Lakers 131-92 in Game 6 on Tuesday night.

For Pierce, Garnett and Allen, this was moment they had waited for, the one they used to wonder would ever arrive. But they sacrificed individual acclaim for team success, and with Rivers as their guide, the trio brought Boston back to the top with title No. 17.

"I'll be forever linked to this city," said Garnett, who toiled for years in Minnesota. "And I'm more than grateful for that."

Almost an hour afterward, Pierce, the finals MVP who a year ago thought his days in Boston were over, strolled back onto the court.

"I didn't want a championship," he yelled to no one in particular. "I needed a championship. I ain't going nowhere. I'm spending the night."

In the closing minutes, Boston fans sang as if they were in a nearby pub, celebrating the first NBA championship won in the city since 1986. They serenaded the newest champs with "Seventeen" and taunted Kobe Bryant and his Lakers, who were buried by a green-and-white avalanche.

Garnett scored 26 points with 14 rebounds, Allen scored 26 and Pierce, who shook off a sprained right knee sustained in Game 1, added 17 for the Celtics, a 24-win team a year ago. Rajon Rondo had 21 points, eight assists, seven rebounds and six steals.

Boston built a 23-point halftime lead and obliterated the Lakers, who were trying to become the first team to overcome a 3-1 deficit in the finals. The 39-point win surpassed the NBA record for the biggest margin of victory in a championship clincher; the Celtics beat the Lakers 129-96 in Game 5 of the 1965 NBA finals.

As the clock ticked down, Pierce doused Rivers with red Gatorade. Owner Wyc Grousbeck, who named his group Banner 17 to leave no doubt about his goal, put an unlit cigar in his mouth — a tribute to Auerbach, the patriarch who had a hand in the franchise's first 16 titles.

Garnett dropped to the parquet and kissed the leprechaun at center court and then found Russell, the Hall of Famer who taught him the Celtic way, for a long embrace.

"You know you're a Celtic when other players come up and congratulate you to be here," said Garnett, the centerpiece of a 7-for-1 trade pulled off last summer by Boston general manager Danny Ainge, a former Celtics guard. "They explain the tradition. It's like coming into a frat."

It was Boston's first title since the passing of Auerbach, and following the game TD Banknorth Garden, the "new" Garden, smelled of one of his stogies. He must have been smiling as the Celtics denied Lakers coach Phil Jackson from overtaking him with a 10th championship.

The Boston-Los Angeles rivalry, nothing more than black-and-white footage from the 60s and TV highlights of players wearing short shorts in the 80s to young hoops fans, remains tilted toward the Atlantic Ocean. The Celtics are 9-2 against the Lakers in the finals.

RAJON RONDO

Boston missed its first crack at closing out the series in Game 5, but the Celtics didn't miss on their second swing, running the Lakers out of the gym.

"Beat L.A.?" More like "Beaten L.A.?" Bryant, the regular-season MVP, finished with 22 points on 7-of-22 shooting.

He started 4-of-5 from the field and seemed intent on forcing a Game 7. But he missed seven shots in a row and everywhere he went, L.A.'s No. 24 ran smack into a wall of Boston defense as high as the Green Monster.

"They were definitely the best defense I've seen the entire playoffs," Bryant said. "I've seen some pretty stiff ones and this was right up there with them. The goal was to win a championship, it wasn't to win MVP or anything like that, it was to win a championship."

With Garnett scoring 17 points and Pierce adding 10, Boston built a 58-35 halftime lead, and unlike Game 2 when they let the Lakers trim a 24-point lead to two in the fourth quarter before recovering, the Celtics never stopped.

They pushed their lead to 31 in the third and a mind-blowing 43 at one point.

No team had to work harder for a championship than these Celtics, who were playing in their record 26th postseason game after being pushed to seven by Atlanta and Cleveland before beating Detroit in six to win the Eastern Conference title.

They entered Game 6 slowed by injuries as Pierce, Kendrick Perkins (shoulder) and Rondo (ankle) were less than 100 percent. There was also uncertainty surrounding Allen, who stayed behind in Los Angeles following Game 5 after his youngest son became ill and was diagnosed with diabetes. The Celtics needed three planes to get back from L.A. and didn't get home until late Monday night.

But there were no excuses, and just as they had while winning 66 games during the regular season, the Celtics got a record seven 3-pointers from Allen and plenty of help from their bench as P.J. Brown, James Posey, Leon Powe and rookie Glen "Big Baby" Davis came in and contributed.

It was a group effort by this gang in green, which bonded behind Rivers, who borrowed an African word ubuntu (pronounced Ooh-BOON-too) and roughly means "I am, because we are" in English, as the Celtics' unifying team motto.

Rivers, who never won a title during 13 seasons as a player, was nearly run out of town last season as the proud Celtics dropped off the league's radar screen. But he remained confident, boosted by encouragement from his father, Grady, a former police lieutenant who told him to hang tough.

Grady Rivers died in the season's first week, and never got to see his son fulfill his dream.

As the final seconds ticked off, Rivers recalled his father.

"My first thought was what would my dad say," Rivers said, "and honestly I started laughing because I thought he would probably say, if you knew my dad, 'It's about time. What have you been waiting for?'"

Safety panel calls for steroid ban for racing

by JEFFREY McMURRAY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Thoroughbred racing took a major step toward outlawing steroids Tuesday when a safety panel created days after Eight Belles' fatal run in the Kentucky Derby recommended that they should be banned by January.

The proposal was immediately endorsed by several key players in the sport.

The call for a sweeping ban on anabolic steroids for racing was one of three suggestions from the committee established by North America's thoroughbred registry, the Jockey Club. Other recommendations dealt with banning certain horseshoes known to cause injuries and regulating the use of the riding crop by jockeys.

"Hopefully we can say this is the last year horses were racing on steroids," said Stuart S. Janney III, chairman of the committee. "There's a real opportunity to shame people into doing the right thing if that's what it requires. We hope it doesn't."

Congress might take action on the issue, too. On Thursday, a House Energy subcommittee will hear testimony from key players in the industry about steroids and other safety matters. Using as a bargaining chip a federal law that grants simulcasting rights to states, there is a push by some lawmakers to force the industry to ban steroids and do a better job of policing itself.

"Anabolic steroids have no valid purpose in the training and racing of the equine athlete," said Bill Casner, chairman of the Thoroughbred Owners and Breeders Assoc.

Alex Waldrop, president of the National Thoroughbred Racing Association, and Bill Parish, chairman of Breeders' Cup Ltd., also released statements endorsing the safety panel's recommendations.

Unlike most team sports, which have a national commissioner to make decisions, thoroughbred racing makes its regulations through individual states. Fewer than a dozen states have approved a model rule that would ban steroids prior to racing.

The safety panel says all racing jurisdictions should approve the rule by the end of the year. Steroids could still be administered by veterinarians for horses recovering from injuries, but they would be ineligible to race again until it's out of their bloodstream.

Larry Bramlage, who was the on-call veterinarian at Churchill Downs during the Derby, said the effect on steroids in horses is somewhat different from their effect on humans — but still a safety concern. Steroids help horses recover more quickly from injury and maintain an appetite, even though the muscle bulk often associated with them isn't always a positive thing.

"You obviously would not want a racehorse to look like an NFL lineman because that's counterproductive," Bramlage said.

In the shoeing proposal, the Jockey Club panel recommended banning the cleat-like "toe grab" that Bramlage said puts stress on a horse's front legs. There was no immediate rules proposal governing shoeing on the hind legs, and Bramlage said research is unclear on what effect back shoes may have on safety.

"We were convinced the further you stray from a flat shoe, the more you increase the trauma on the front legs and enhance the risk of injury," Janney said.

Besides calling for a limitation in the type of riding crop used by jockeys, the safety panel also proposed prohibiting jockeys from striking their horse with an arm raised above shoulder height. Janney said he knows of no racing jurisdiction that has taken that action.

PRO BASKETBALL YOUTH CAMP: Young basketball players from seven different Eastern Kentucky counties attended Coach Keathley's Pro Basketball Youth Camp held at the Knott County Sportsplex Monday-Wednesday.

SPORTS CALENDAR

East Kentucky Pro Basketball Youth Camps

The East Kentucky Pro Basketball Youth Camps, conducted by East Kentucky Miners Coach Kevin Keathley, will be held at Central Elementary School (July 21-23) and Sheldon Clark High School (July 31-Aug. 2).

Each of the three-day camps will run from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

The preregistration fee for an individual East Kentucky Pro Basketball Youth Camp is $65 per participant. Two siblings in the same immediate family who preregister can attend a single camp for $100. Each additional sibling in the same immediate family will be able to attend a single camp for $35 through preregistration.

The registration fee for the day of each camp is $75 per camper.

Registration for each camp will be held from 8-9 a.m. on the first day of the event.

Each East Kentucky Pro Basketball Youth Camp participant will receive a T-shirt, participation medal and certificate of completion. The camps will also include giveaways and the chance to win various prizes and awards, including basketball merchandise and trophies.

Lunch will be provided from noon-1 p.m. every day at each camp.

Camp applications are available throughout Eastern Kentucky counties and at the East Kentucky Miners office (located at 237 2nd Street Suite 5, Pikeville) and several area businesses. Applications are also available online at www.ekminers.com.

Checks for the camp should be made payable to Coach Kevin Keathley. For more information on the East Kentucky Pro Basketball Youth Camps, call 606-437-9715 or 606-794-6409. NASCAR's Nationwide Series struggles for mix of old and young

Upstart Logano turned heads as part of triumphant stop at Kentucky Speedway

by WILL GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPARTA — Even by Tom Logano's lofty expectations, his son Joey's historic victory in the Meijer 300 last weekend came as a shock. Joe Gibbs Racing's 18-year-old hotshot became the youngest winner in Nationwide Series history after beating Scott Wimmer by more than 2 seconds in just his third race on NASCAR's second circuit.

Afterward, Tom Logano stood in the pits, mouth agape from getting the best Father's Day present ever from his precocious kid.

Then again, maybe dad shouldn't have been so surprised.

His son, after all, has been winning races since grade school. And Kentucky's 1.5-mile tri-oval is developing a reputation as a place where young drivers can post their breakthrough victory. Joey Logano's historic win marked the third time in as many years the winner's trip to Victory Lane was the first of their Nationwide career.

The reason for the kids' success is twofold. The Meijer 300 comes about halfway through the Nationwide season, meaning inexperienced teams have had time to get into a rhythm and figure their cars out.

The other has less to do with talent and teamwork than geography. The Meijer 300 is one of just eight standalone events in the Nationwide Series. With most Sprint Cup drivers who double-dip in the Nationwide Series choosing to stay in Michigan for Sunday's Cup event, some of the circuit's lesser-known drivers finally get a chance to shine.

"It's definitely one of the tracks you come to in the back of your mind, and you look forward to having a good run," said Cale Gale, a part-time driver for Kevin Harvick Inc. who finished 18th behind Logano last weekend.

Good runs at Kentucky could be harder to come by for unknown Nationwide drivers in the future.

The track located about halfway between Louisville and Cincinnati is in the process of being sold to Speedway Motorsports Inc., and SMI owner Bruton Smith has made bringing a coveted Cup race to the track his first priority.

It would be a great move for a market hungry to see NASCAR's big boys do their thing, but would also mean the Nationwide event would likely lose its standalone status. Having the Nationwide and Sprint Cup events at the same track on the same weekend means more Sprint Cup drivers hopping into the Nationwide Series cars on Saturday, meaning fewer rides for Nationwide's up-and-coming drivers.

JOEY LOGANO

"It's a trade-off," said Brad Keselowski, who is second behind Clint Bowyer in the Nationwide Series standings heading into this week's event in Milwaukee. "Will it make you better? Certainly. But you get thrown into a sea with so many other different talents that you get lost in the mix. There's different priorities."

Sprint Cup drivers can often use the Nationwide Series race as a chance to get the feel for a track before the green flag drops in a Cup race on Sunday afternoon. Brad Coleman, a Nationwide Series regular who will get a shot in the Sprint Cup with Hall of Fame Racing at the end of the season, pointed to NASCAR's favorite bad boy as an example of the challenges riding against a Cup regular can provide.

"Kyle Busch always drives like a maniac out there, but he's an extra maniac in the Nationwide Series because he'll go out there and he'll pass you three-wide sideways," Coleman said with a laugh. "You know they have nothing to lose. If they get up there and win, they get money. If not, hey."

Busch, who is atop the Sprint Cup Series, leads all Nationwide drivers with four wins. He also has five DNFs, the fifth coming after he put his No. 18 Toyota into the wall on lap 163 of the Meijer 300.

While upset about the finish — particularly after he'd roared from the back of the field to lead a race-high 83 laps — Busch's day wasn't really ruined. He hopped into a helicopter shortly after the race and flew back to Michigan, where he finished 13th in the LifeLock 400 on Sunday.

"Everybody wants to be in that position where you can wreck on Saturday and still have a shot to make up for it on Sunday," Keselowski said. "That's not my situation right now (but) I still enjoy racing against them. I don't want to see them get kicked out, that's for sure."

Neither does anyone else, because Keselowski knows people aren't buying tickets to see him race, not yet anyway. He knows having Cup stars like Busch and Carl Edwards in the Nationwide Series can only help. How many is too many? Nobody knows.

"When we get to areas where we have companion events, it helps in different avenues," said Nationwide Series director Joe Balash. "There are some double-duty drivers that take the place (of Nationwide-only drivers), but the media coverage is so much higher that weekend. It's kind of a balancing act."

One that the Nationwide drivers sometimes win. When Keselowski won his first Nationwide event in Nashville on June 7, the field included five Sprint Cup regulars.

"It's competitive whether the Cup guys are running in it or not and I think it legitimizes the series in a way and makes a win for a guy like Brad Keselowski even more special knowing he beat all these Cup guys who are still running," Edwards said. "It's not like a Cup guy wins very week. These guys are getting better."

HOT, HOT, HOT: NASCAR drivers have to cope with 140-degree heat

by LARRY LAGE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BROOKLYN, Mich. — The Car of Tomorrow is making life hotter for NASCAR's drivers today.

Heat-stricken drivers had just enough strength to rant about the topic earlier this month at the Pocono 500 and the conversation was a hot topic again last week at Michigan International Speedway.

"I heard someone make a comment, 'They're race-car drivers, making millions of dollars. They're hot. Who cares?'" Jeff Burton said. "I guess that's a good point, but at the same time it's to the point of being ridiculous."

NASCAR technical director Steve Peterson said the new cars can get about 10 degrees hotter — up to 140 degrees — than previous models because exhaust exits on the right side instead of both sides.

"You could certainly cook eggs on it to say the least," Jimmie Johnson said. "With all the radiant heat from the tubes and the steel around you over the course of the race, you just can't get away from the heat."

Peterson insisted there are measures some teams are taking to improve conditions for their drivers such as adding insulation and adjusting the routing of air ducts and vents.

"Some teams are having success by doing those things and some teams are reluctant to add weight or alter the aerodynamics," Peterson said. "The different way teams are attacking the heat leads to us seeing one guy driving with a floor pan at 140 degrees and another guy at 100 in the same race.

"It's a difficult area for NASCAR to regulate. Some drivers say it's not a problem and others say it's a serious one, so obviously we want to help those guys."

Brian Vickers is among those asking for assistance.

"We're killing ourselves," he said. "We're going to the infield-care center off the races and that's ridiculous. NASCAR needs to step in and say we have to do something to cool these cars down and help us."

The Car of Tomorrow, a NASCAR-developed vehicle that spent seven years in development, was designed to improve safety, reduce team costs and improve competition. It makes several advancements in safety, with a larger driver's compartment, center-located seat and energy absorbing materials through the gut of the vehicle.

It also does something else.

"They are hotter than the old car — by far," Denny Hamlin said.

Kasey Kahne credits the guys in the shop for coming up with ways to make things a little cooler, redirecting exhaust heat away from him and running hoses to blow air on his chest.

"I felt pretty good all day," he said at Pocono, the hottest race of the year.

NASCAR officials and drivers agree that if you try to beat the heat on the weekend, it's too late.

"I live every day like it's going to be Pocono tomorrow," said Mark Martin, whose 49-year-old body is so fit it would make most teenagers jealous. "In the old days, people thought you could have a bowl of pasta and a good night's sleep and you'd be ready. I never subscribed to that."

"It takes so long for your body to change. It takes a long-term commitment to get in top physical condition."

Martin said the new cars are hotter, but not significantly more than from the Cup cars he raced in the early 1980s.

Simply put, driving in extreme heat has always been an occupational hazard in NASCAR.

At Nashville in 1982, Darrell Waltrip's feet were so hot that his wife held cloth-covered ice packs against his burnt heels while he did interviews from his back. At Martinsville in 1998, Ricky Rudd had to be lifted out of his car because he was so stricken by the heat.

Technology, though, has helped drivers over the years by developing microfiber fabric that wicks away sweat and helmets that make hot air colder.

But cool suits have yet to win over NASCAR drivers.

"Cold water pumping around your body in tubes within another set of underwear sounds great," Peterson said. "But if the unit fails, you're adding eight to 18 pounds of weight to your body and the suit becomes a steam cooker."

Burton said what's daunting about beating the heat is it's only going to get hotter as NASCAR goes from coast to coast, down to Daytona and up to Indianapolis.

"The worst is yet to come," Burton said.

Roush swaps crew chiefs for Nos. 60, 17 Nationwide cars

TIMES STAFF REPORT

CONCORD, N.C. — Roush Fenway Racing announced Tuesday that effective immediately, Drew Blickensderfer will assume crew chief duties with the No. 60 Nationwide entry with driver Carl Edwards.

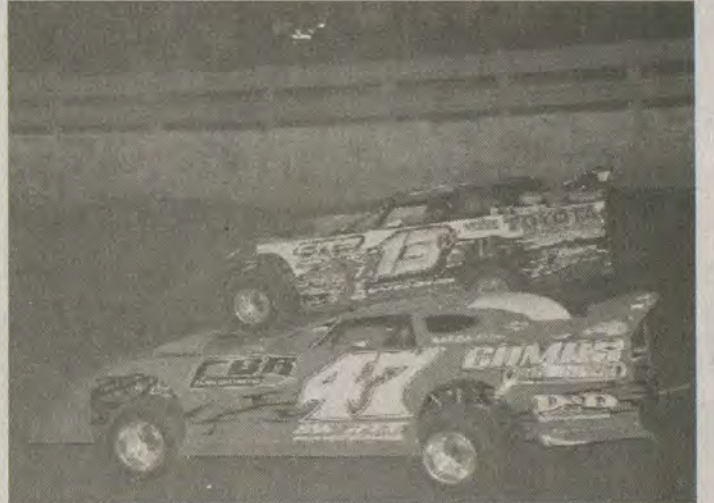

Pierre Kuetel assumes crew chief duties with the No. 17 Nationwide entry to be driven by Matt Kenseth and Jamie McMurray.

Through 16 races this season, Edwards is fourth in the Nationwide Series standings although the defending champion has not won a race. Through the first 16 races of last season, he had four victories and a 701-point lead in the championship standings.

The No. 17 car does have one victory this season, at Atlanta with Matt Kenseth behind the wheel.

ALLEN-BASED DIRT LATE MODEL DRIVER BRANDON KINZER (18) battled for position during a recent race.

LETCHER COUNTY'S CHRIS COMBS (47) ranks as one of the top drivers in the Battle of the Bluegrass Late Model Series.

Caterpillar to sponsor No. 31 car beginning in 2009

Has been primary sponsor of 22 car past 10 years

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Caterpillar Inc. and Richard Childress Racing have agreed to a multi-year partnership for the No. 31 Chevrolet driven by Jeff Burton beginning with the 2009 Sprint Cup Series season.

Burton, a 20-time winner in Cup Series competition, is currently second in the 2008 point standings with one victory, four top-five and 10 top-10 finishes in the season's first 15 races. The No. 31 team has made the Chase the past two seasons, finishing seventh in 2006 and eighth last year.

"To represent a well-known global brand like Caterpillar is an honor," team owner Richard Childress said. "Cat products have played a big part over the decades in construction projects at RCR, Childress Vineyards and Yadkin River Angus. Jeff and I look forward to meeting the Cat dealers and customers who loyally follow NASCAR racing."

The 2009 season will mark Caterpillar's 17th year of sponsorship in NASCAR. It will also be Richard Childress' 40th anniversary in the sport.

"Success in the highly competitive environment of the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series requires substantially greater levels of technology and investment than even a few years ago," said Jim Parker, vice president of Caterpillar's North American Commercial Division. "Joining Richard Childress and his team matches two organizations that share common values, as well as high levels of success. I'm confident this new partnership will excite Caterpillar's customers, dealers and employees."

Caterpillar has been the primary sponsor for the Bill Davis Racing No. 22 car since 1999, and went to Victory Lane four times with driver Ward Burton.

"Caterpillar and Bill Davis Racing have enjoyed a long and successful partnership throughout the last 10 seasons, and we are proud of everything we've accomplished together, including wins in both the Daytona 500 and Southern 500," team owner Bill Davis said. "This is an exciting time for our team, and we are looking forward to the future."

The No. 22 car, currently driven by Dave Blaney, remains in the 29th spot in Cup owner points. The team, led by veteran crew chief Tommy Baldwin, picked up 10 positions during the course of five events and has posted two top-10 finishes and six finishes of 22nd or better in the past eight races.

An announcement regarding a second Bill Davis Racing car for 2009, the No. 23 Sprint Cup Toyota, will take place in the coming weeks.

Faith and Family

The Sacred Winds Ensemble, on tour with 55 playing members, performed at the Kirby Road Baptist Church in Memphis on Sunday. The Ensemble is en route to New Orleans where they will play for the Baptist Church Music Conference's National Convention on Tuesday. The Ensemble was well received by an audience of 400 people. The church also graciously fed the group after the concert. On the return trip, the orchestra will give a concert at the First Baptist Church of London on Thursday, June 19, at 8 p.m. The group returns to Hazard on Friday and will enjoy lunch and some well deserved downtime at the Bobby Davis Museum and Park. They will perform their finale concert of the tour on Sunday, June 22, in the First Federal Center at 2:30 p.m. All performances are free of charge.

KIM'S KORNER

Are you a blessing builder?

Good Friday to everyone! I wanted to take this week's column to share a challenge we were given at church last Sunday, and pass it along to those of you reading to see if you were up for being a blessing builder too.

We were assigned the task of picking three people for one week to speak, email, telephone or send notes of encouraging, uplifting words into their daily lives.

And though this is just Wednesday while this column is being written and sent for publication, I must tell you the blessing builder that chose to bless my day this week has definitely done well.

Since Sunday I have laughed until my sides ached, and shed a few tears of joy, too, for her words have been so encouraging and so very sweet they have truly made my day each and every day.

It is amazing how we can say something that seems so small to us yet can be such a blessing to someone else. And in this day and time when so much seems to be going amok in this chaotic world of ours, sharing a little love and light into someone's day can sure have a positive impact.

Many of you know by now, yet some still don't that I am no longer at The Floyd County Times. Not as advertising manager, but I am so thankful and blessed that Publisher Joshua Byers wanted to keep this weekly column and even more thankful it is placed on the Faith & Family page of The Times. Not being in the office on a daily basis after being there for so many years, the relationships that were formed are truly missed. And though there are many more than three, I wanted to share how each of them have been a blessing to me.

Kim Little Frasure

■ Joshua, you blessed me with such a special parting celebration and your card will hold a place in my heart always.

■ Ralph, our editor (and yes, I still refer to him as "our") has such a sense of humor it is amazing. I can't help but wonder if there are any other editors at any other papers who keep a hammer by their side to raise when the ad staff wants to place an ad after deadline. Ralph does, and I just want him to know how smart he is and how much I appreciate his humor and the blessings he gave me while I was there.

■ Steve, you are such a dedicated worker. I don't think anyone has ever beaten you arriving to the office. You are a blessing to be around.

■ Willie and Cindy, how special you are, both so quiet and so kind and patient and what talent you both have. Both of you are truly a blessing.

■ Speaking of quiet, I don't think there is anyone I know that is more quiet than Hannah. Nor is there anyone I've witnessed with more strength. To work every single day during her chemo and radiation treatments, and to fight the battle of cancer and win it! Wow, what a blessing!

■ Mr. Goble, how precious your spirit is. I miss hearing your singing and jokes and hugs too. You are a walking talking blessing.

■ And though Kathy Prater has since left too, what a blessing she has been to me over all the years, editing my columns and sending her encouraging emails.

■ Jack, you blessed me with getting me to work during those snowy days and I so appreciate it.

■ Jamie Staggs, so young and yet so smart. Yes Jamie you have been blessed with knowledge and talent and you share it in such a sweet spirit.

■ Evelena is blessed with such organizational skills and in turn was such a blessing to me in our department. No matter what was needed, you could ask her for it and she could produce it. You go, girl!

■ Donnetta, you were such a blessing with having your numbers at your fingertips every time they were needed. It made life easier, my friend.

■ Leighann, such a sweet soul. You are a blessing just being you. Your kindness exudes, girlfriend. Don't ever change that.

■ Teresa, Danny and Emogene are just special. All three of you are testaments to the phrase "good people."

■ Margo, you have been blessed with being so thoughtful and in turn share that blessing unto others and I will never forget your thoughtfulness and kindness.

■ Joy, you amaze me. So young, so smart, such a dedicated hard worker and always willing to help in any area of that paper that needed it. You blessed me more than you will ever know. I am so proud of you and love you much.

■ Jamie, I saved you for last because the last five years it felt we were glued at the hip. You were my right arm. You are such a blessing with a heart of gold, your work ethic is one to be admired and your sense of humor doubled me over at times. There is not anyone I would rather see take my place in the ad manager's office than you. You soaked every detail I tried to pass along like a sponge and I know our advertisers will be in the best of hands with you. You were and continue to be a blessing to me every single day. Soar like the eagle, girlfriend — Soar!

'Til next week, be a blessing builder and be blessed!

Kentucky Baptists set to pray 'with one voice'

LOUISVILLE — Kentucky Baptists all across the state are being called to prayer on Sept. 10 to ask God to bring spiritual awakening and renewal to the commonwealth.

Using the theme "With One Voice," the prayer services will be held at Baptist churches all across Kentucky. Hundreds of churches are expected to participate.

The prayer gatherings are open to the public with everyone invited to attend.

At each location, Baptists and other Christians will gather for approximately one hour of concerted prayer. In most cases, the prayer time will be introduced with a brief service of welcome and worship, but the vast majority of the time will be dedicated to praying, both corporately and in small groups.

"We will pray for people we know who do not yet know Jesus, for spiritual awakening in our community, for a movement of God in each church and for Kentucky Baptist ministries across the commonwealth," said Dr. Bill Mackey, executive director of the Kentucky Baptist Convention.

The Sept. 10 prayer services will mark the fourth consecutive year that the KBC has promoted a special time of united prayer. Last year, Kentucky Baptists gathered as local groups of churches for simultaneous prayer events.

The two previous years, a team of KBC leaders traveled the state to lead prayer gatherings. In 2005, the team traveled the perimeter of the state, making more than 30 stops for prayer gatherings of Kentucky Baptists. In 2006, the leaders' travels focused on the interior of the state.

It is hoped that the prayer emphasis will spark large numbers of Christians to participate.

"Baptists are a people of prayer so it is certainly not something out of the ordinary for us to come together to pray," Mackey said. "But I do believe it helps us all to focus in on the importance of prayer and on the importance of the issues we are praying about when we come together with a special emphasis like this. It is significant when we pray knowing that other churches are also gathering on the same day to pray about the same things."

Visit www.kybaptist.org/onevoice for more information about the prayer services and to download materials that can be used in promoting a particular prayer gathering.

The Kentucky Baptist Convention is a cooperative missions and ministry organization made up of more than 2,400 autonomous Baptist churches in Kentucky. A variety of state and worldwide ministries are coordinated through its administrative headquarters in Louisville, including: missions work, disaster relief, ministry training and support, church development, evangelism and more.
